THROUGH a variety of circumstances, many of which are unforeseen and wholly unpreventable, it occasionally happens that our Lodges have to change their place of meeting, and although in many cases the change is for the ultimate benefit of the Lodge, there are occasions when, either from the loss of old associations, or other causes, the reverse is the case. The brethren of the Euphrates Lodge have just made a change from the Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street, where the Lodge has met for many years, and we venture to think that the selection they have made for their new home must prove of great advantage to their Lodge in the future, they having been fortunate enough to find accommodation at the Holborn Restaurant, the proprietors of which establishment have lately intimated their willingness to accommodate Lodges, both as regards their actual working as well as at the banquets which follow labour, the lack of which feature has long been, to some extent, detrimental to the establishment being recognised as a Masonic centre. The first meeting of the Lodge at its new quarters took place on Wednesday, the 24th inst., and a departure from the ordinary course of proceeding was made on this occasion, for the ladies were invited to participate in the banquet and festivities which followed. A most successful meeting was the result, and the way in which everything was arranged reflected the greatest credit, alike on the W.M., Bro. W. J. Cooper, his Officers, and the executive of the Holborn Restaurant. Lodge was opened by the Worshipful Master, who was supported by Bros. W. F. Bassett S.W., T. Boyden J.W., F. G. Burstow S.D., J. West J.D., H. Wagstaff I.G., and the following Past Masters:—W. W. Ricknell, T. Rushton, C. G. Cutler, J. C. Franks, J. Carter, Louis Stean, T. R. Martin, J. J. Marsh, and John Halsey. Having proceeded to submit the minutes of the previous meeting for confirmation, the Worshipful Master advanced the Lodge, and conferred the third degree on Bro. White. Lodge was subsequently closed, and the brethren repaired to the banquetting-room, accompanied by their ladies. When all were seated, the assembly presented a most imposing gathering, inasmuch as there were between eighty and ninety guests present, among them being the following visitors to the Lodge:—Bros. W. R. Hayleck J.D. 901, G. H. Stephens I.P.M. 1693, Henry Forss I.P.M. 917, W. W. Lee 1897, John Cooper 1471, W. W. Morgan P.M. 211, W. Ball 1472, E. Prosser 860, John Day 141, G. Stevens 1076, T. A. Davies 174; with the following ladies: Mesdames Cooper, Glass, Martin, Halsey, Edwards, Bourne, Pryor, Boyden, Taylor, Wallis, Prosser, Allister, White, Davies, Kippel, Smith, Day, Bolton, &c.; Misses K. and E. Halsey, McLean, Ricknell, A. Ricknell, Bassett, Carter, and Woods. At the conclusion of the banquet, which was served in the ample manner which has gained for the Holborn Restaurant its present high reputation, and under the personal superintendence of Brother Hamp, the W.M. gave the customary toasts, in their modified form, having regard to those who were present. Bro. P.M. Martin proposed the health of the Worshipful Master, and in doing so spoke of the interest displayed by Bro. Cooper in the welfare of the Lodge, and the efforts he brought to bear to promote the comfort and happiness of its members. After a spirit rendering of "The Men of Harlech," By Bro. E. Prosser, the W.M. rose to reply. Having thanked the company for the way in which they had received the toast, he referred to the gratification he experienced at seeing so large an assembly to do honour to the occasion. He trusted the ladies were enjoying themselves, and hoped they would go away with happy recollections of the evening they had spent with the brethren of Euphrates Lodge. In accordance with the wish of the W.M. Bro. Morgan rose to propose the next toast, the health of the Ladies. He did so with a vast amount of gratification; it had been urged that the brethren were that evening embarking on an innovation that might disturb the harmony and regularity with which the proceedings had for so very many years been conducted, but all who had listened to the remarks that had been made in this regard felt convinced that they were urged, not in a spirit of opposition, but as a mild form of protest. The evening, so far, had gone off most pleasurably; and, in offering the toast for the acceptance of the brethren, Bro. Morgan said he felt convinced the ladies would appreciate the arrangements that had been made for their enjoyment. Naturally, on such occasions, when the fair sex were assembled, speculation was rife as to how far ladies might participate in Freemasonry, and the question had been asked, "Were there any lady Freemasons?" This had been answered in the affirmative by one of the fair sisterhood present, who had stated she possessed a portrait of a lady Freemason. This he (Bro. Morgan) thought doubtless referred to the portrait of the Hon. Mrs. Aldworth, who, he might tell the ladies present, had been regularly initiated into Freemasonry. This event occurred when she was a mere girl, and it was recorded, amongst the legends of the Craft, that she afterwards married, and no doubt became the mother of many good and true Masons, some of whose descendants might be present that night. There were other instances on record of lady Freemasons, even in this country; but here, however, the majority of the brethren deemed it advisable that the ladies should confine themselves to the exercise of the virtue of charity, in association with their husbands and brothers. Here they could render valuable service, and if they would avail themselves of the opportunities offered of inspecting the Institutions, more especially on the occasion of the distribution of prizes—an event which would shortly take place at the Royal Masonic Girls' School, at Battersea Rise—they would have an opportunity of seeing the excellent manner in which the girls were trained. Bro. W. W. Lee responded; he expressed the gratification the ladies felt at being present, and hoped that would not be the last opportunity they might have of attending the meetings of the Lodge. For the Past Masters Bro. Cutler replied, and after a few other toasts, the proceedings were brought to a conclusion, the company joining with spirit in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." During the evening some excellent songs were given, by Bros. Wells, Edwards, Lee, Prior, and others. Miss Woods favoured the company with a song—"Is this a dream?"—which she rendered most artistically, while Bros Carter, Woods and Morgan contributed recitations.

GREY FRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

AT the regular meeting, on the 10th instant, there were present Bros. R. C. Prickett W.M., J. H. Hawkes I.P.M., E. J. Blackwell acting S.W., R. Dowsett acting J.W., J. T. Stransom Treasurer, J. Greenaway Secretary, B. W. Bennett acting S.D., W. Hickie J.D., Chas. Slaughter I.G., J. Sparrow Steward, Past Masters W. Ferguson, E. Margrett, W. W. Ridley, Bros. Biggs, Knight, and Stewart. Visitors—C. Holbrook jun. 2043, F. Blackwell W.M. 414, A. Livings 414. After preliminaries, Bro. E. Margrett P.M. gave a very lucid and interesting lecture. The sum of two guineas was voted from the funds to a case of distress brought before the Lodge. Bro. W. Hickie J.D. gave notice of motion, "That it was desirable greater facilities be afforded to the brethren for perfecting themselves in Masonic Ritual." The labours of the evening being ended, Lodge was closed according to ancient form, and adjourned.

PERSEVERANCE LODGE, No. 1743.

A MEETING was held on Saturday, the 13th inst., at the Imperial Hotel, Holborn Viaduct. Bro. W. H. Mollindinia, the W.M., was prevented from being present through ill health, and in his absence Bro. Louis A. Leins, the father of the Lodge, presided. The work comprised all three ceremonies, and each was carried out with perfect accuracy. Careful as to the way in which he performed his own work, Bro. Leins was admirably seconded by his Officers. There were four candidates for raising, namely, Bros. Watts, Draper, Park, and Wells, who were conducted through the ceremony two and two up to the obligation, and were afterwards all raised together. Bros. Wainwright and Corsham were then passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, and lastly, Mr. John Morris Broad, who was proposed by Bro. Chamberlayne, and seconded by Bro. Ferry Sec., and Mr. George Augustus Timme, proposed by Bro. Lovell D.C., and seconded by Bro. W. Smith S.D., were initiated. During the evening the desirability of having a ladies' gathering at next Lodge meeting was considered. Bro. Leins explained this was a matter which could not be disposed of by a resolution of the Lodge, but must depend upon an agreement between the brethren individually. Some desired that the Lodge meeting should be held on the usual Saturday, and that some other day in the week should be fixed to hold the dinner, because if Saturday was adhered to the dance must necessarily be strictly of a Cinderella character. On the other hand it was pointed out that such a proceeding would make the meeting altogether independent of the Lodge—which was not desired—and would moreover increase the expense. It was ultimately agreed by a majority that ladies should attend the banquet, after the Lodge meeting in April, and a Committee was nominated to arrange the necessary details, it being suggested that an unusually early hour should be fixed for opening the Lodge and getting through the work, so as to admit of the possibility of an early dinner hour. After routine work the Lodge was closed. Later on, the brethren and their guests supped together, Bro. Leins presiding. It is often said that Freemasons should not be parties to introducing any one into the Craft whom they would hesitate to introduce to their families; there can be no doubt that Bro. Leins acts on this principle, and he showed his confidence in "his children" as he calls them, of the Perseverance Lodge on this occasion, by bringing three of his daughters—admirable musicians—to enliven the intervals between the toasts. The brethren owe their thanks to Bro. Leins, and their most respectful gratitude to the young ladies themselves. The toasts comprised the Queen and Craft, the Most Worshipful Grand Master the Prince of Wales, the Grand Officers, the Worshipful Master, the Initiates, the Visitors, the Past Masters, the Secretary, the Officers of the Lodge, and the Press. The Immediate Past Master, in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, said it was a toast which was always heartily received by the brethren of the Perseverance. The brethren had heard the statement made in Lodge by the W.M. in the chair that Bro. Mollindinia was unable to attend in consequence of illness; this they all regretted, and they sympathised deeply with Bro. Mollindinia. Bro. Leins, however, was always to the fore to fulfil the duties of any absent brother, and there was no one whom the brethren of the Lodge would wish to see in the chair on such an occasion rather than Bro. Leins. He was the father of the Lodge, and there was no occasion to say more. He would therefore simply ask them to be upstanding, and drink the health of Bro. Leins, the W.M. in the chair. In reply, Bro. Leins said he rose with great pleasure to thank the brethren for the very kind way in which his health had been proposed and responded to. It grieved him very much that their W.M. was not with them, though his absence could not be avoided. When the Master of a Lodge was smitten with illness, it was doubtless hard for the sufferer to be deprived of the opportunity of performing his Masonic duties, and it was also hard for the Lodge to be deprived of his services. Such things, however, were unavoidable, and they could only pray that their W.M. might soon be with them again. As for himself, the brethren knew that he did everything he could for the interest of the Lodge of Perseverance. In establishing the Lodge he had met with very good friends, who rallied round him and paid him the compliment of asking his advice; this would always be given freely, and to the best of his ability. It was most gratifying to him to know they were so harmonious. Brother Leins concluded by saying that he hoped he should be a member of the Lodge of Perseverance to the last day of his life, and that they might always be as happy and united as they were now. Amongst the Visitors present were Bros. G. Kearney J.W. 1541, J. C. Cross S.W. 902, G. Schadler P.M. 65, A. F. Lay P.M. 1364, J. Phillips 158, R. Dyson J.W. 65, W. F. Packer 1571, J. Lusby jun. 1259, J. Handley 473, R. J. Ward P.M. 3, W. Williams W.M. 902, W. Wyatt 121 Canada, G. D. Bundy P.M. 902, and E. C. Massey.

SPHINX LODGE, No. 1329.

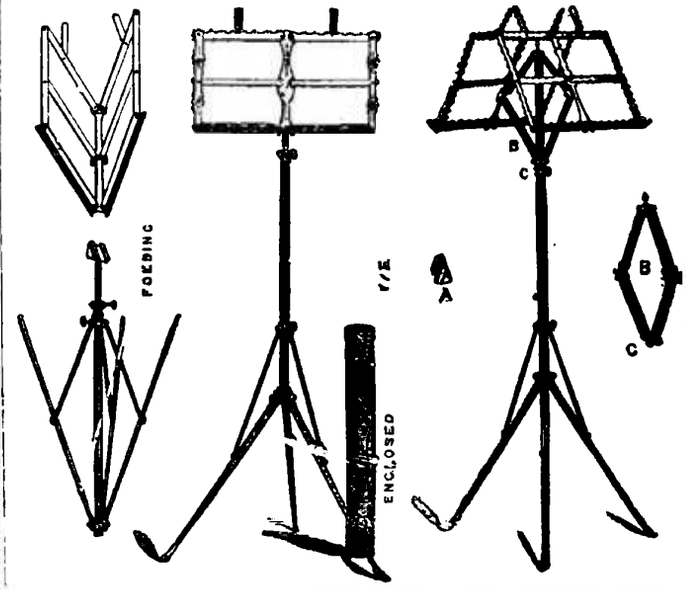
THE usual meeting was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, on Saturday afternoon, the 20th instant. The W.M., Bro. G. Marsden, opened the Lodge in due form at four o'clock punctually, when there were present Bros. J. Voisey S.W., John Hernaman J.W., J. C. Reynolds Treasurer, Charles Wilson Secretary, D. D. Mercer J.D., F. W. N. Smith Organist, Thomas Edward Webb I.G., Gharles Gooding Steward; P.M.'s G. T. Bickerton, B. R. Bryant, J. J. Brinton, P. A. Nairne D.C.; Robert Elgar, Thomas Bradley, W. Andrews, Frederick P. Hunt, Charles R. Scriven, John Arlidge, Alfred Ramage, Thomas Arnold, Henry S. Bigg, W. Andrews, C. F. Cockle, Robert Irvine, Thomas H. Woodward, J. N. Turney, H. H. Hyslop. Visitors—J. H. Hawkins W.M. Prosperity 65, J. Nickal 1539, J. Dixon P.M. 1728, W. Harold Vint 871, Robert Grey 176, W. Jeffery 1625, J. H. Lowry 1472, R. J. Paton J.W., Richard Kimpton W.M. 1728, Henry Lynn I.G. 217, A. C. Bradley P.M. 1216, H. R. Greeat P.M. 507. The minutes of the preceding meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to pass Bro. Frederick Pursord Hunt. He next proceeded to raise Bros. W. M. Yardley Andrews and Charles Richard Scriven, who had been passed in the Crichton Lodge, No. 1641. He afterwards initiated Mr. Henry Hector Hyslop into the secrets and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. Several matters had to be postponed until the May meeting. The Lodge at a late hour was closed. The brethen then repaired to an adjoining room, in which Bro. Venables had in readiness a capital repast. On the removal of the cloth the W.M., in appropriate terms, proposed the Queen and the Craft; the Most Worshipful Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon; the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the other Officers of Grand Lodge. Bro. J. J. Brinton I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., to which due response was made. The Initiate was complimented, and this toast was acknowledged. The W.M. next proposed the Visitors, for which Bro. Hawkins responded. The Past Masters of the Lodge were not forgotten, and Bros. Brinton, Bryant, Nairne, and Bickerton replied. For the Officers Bros. Wilson, Reynolds, Voisey, and Hernaman responded. Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Marsden sang some excellent songs during the evening, and Miss Walker proved her efficiency as an instrumentalist by presiding at the pianoforte. Bros. Voisey, Gooding, and Scriven gave some popular songs. The Tyler's toast concluded a most agreeable evening.

Chiswick Lodge of Instruction, No. 2012 — A meeting was held on Saturday, 20th instant, at the Windsor Castle Hotel, King Street, Hammersmith. Present:—Bros. Perdue W.M., R. W. Williams S.W., J. Sims J.W., G. Gardner Treasurer, J. Wood S.D., G. Gardner J.D., J. Williams I.G., Weeks Tyler, Ayling P.M., Preceptor A. Tilbury, H. Farze. Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was advanced to the second and third degrees, and resumed to the first. The second section of the first lecture was worked by Bro. Preceptor, assisted by the brethren. Lodge was resumed to second degree, and Bro. Tilbury was examined, and later in the evening the ceremony of the second degree was rehearsed in a very able manner. Bro. S.W. was elected W.M. for coming week. Lodge was closed.

The regular meeting of the Board of Benevolence was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. Joshua Nunn P.G.S.B., the President of the Board, who was supported by the two Vice-Presidents, Bros. James Brett P.G.P. and C. A. Cotterbrune P.G.P. There was a large number of brethren present, while the list of applications to be considered was the largest ever known, being sixty-one in number. The brethren having confirmed their recommendations of the last meeting, proceeded to the consideration of the new cases. Of these, one was dismissed, ten were deferred, and the others were relieved, with a total of £1,071. The grants consisted of seven amounts of £5 each, one of £6, fourteen of £10, eleven of £20, seven of £30, nine of £40, and one of £100.

At a numerously attended regular meeting of the Lodge of Sincerity, No. 174, held at the Guildhall Tavern, on Wednesday, the 17th instant, the Worshipful Master, Bro. F. J. Dellow, in able and eloquent terms, and in the name of the Lodge, presented Bro. John Newton P.M. P.Z. with a handsome Past Secretary's jewel, also a testimonial, tastefully engraved on vellum, on his retirement from the Secretaryship, as a mark of esteem, and as a token of the members' high appreciation of the manner in which he has discharged the duties of that office for eighteen years, to the entire satisfaction of the brethren and to the advantage of the Lodge. In returning thanks, Bro. Newton requested, now that he was relieved from the duties of Secretary, to be permitted to write the history of the Lodge, which is in the 118th year of its existence. Permission to do so was readily given, and a strong desire expressed that Brother Newton might long be spared to continue his association with the Lodge of Sincerity. The jewel, which is of exquisite design and workmanship, reflects great credit upon Messrs. Halford and Sons, of Fenchurch Street, by whom it was manufactured.

The installation ceremony will be rehearsed at the Prince Leopold Lodge of Instruction, held at No. 202 Whitechapel Road, E., on Monday evening, the 29th instant.



We are pleased to learn that the United Northern Counties Lodge, No. 2128, has voted from its funds three guineas to the Mansion House Fund for the Unemployed Artizans. May others follow the excellent example set them by this young Lodge.

THE FREEMASONS AND THE POOR OF MARGATE.

ON Tuesday afternoon, the 16th instant, the Union Lodge, No. 127, Margate, entertained about two hundred of the aged and deserving poor of the town to dinner and tea in the Foresters' Hall. The idea of giving the treat originated about two months ago, at one of the meetings of the Lodge, and it was heartily endorsed by the Freemasons of the town, who, in token of their approval of such a step being taken, subscribed liberally towards defraying the expenses which it would involve. As a preliminary step, a certain number of tickets were sent to the vicars and the ministers of various denominations in the town, upon whom devolved the duty of selecting from among their parishioners and congregations the most deserving cases. A list of names were sent in from the various sources, and they were afterwards scrutinised by the Managing Commitee. This was a task of no ordinary kind, and it is almost needless to add that if twice the number of tickets had been available, they could have been easily disposed of. The dinner consisted of roast beef, roast legs of mutton, roast veal, hams, Christmas puddings, and mince pies, and there appeared to be an abundance of everything. Both for dinner and tea, the caterer was Mr. J. Hume, of High Street, who gave great satisfaction. The guests appeared to be in the best of spirits, and evidently appreciated the liberality and kindness manifested towards them. We may remark that the Committee of Management consisted of the following individuals:—Bros. H. Wootton W.M. (Chairman), J. G. Henning P.M. (Treasurer), W. Jones Lane S.W. (Hon. Secretary), and all Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge. The carvers were:—The Mayor (Councillor H. F. Hermitage), Bros. J. Crawford, J.P., G. Akhurst, Rev. W. Taylor Jones (Chaplain of the Lodge), J. G. Chancellor P.M. P.G.S., A. Wootton P.M., W. Crawford P.M., J. Healing, T. Goodyear, Spencer (Beach House Hotel, Westgate), J. Thurston, J. Fagg, Phipps, and Col. Bamber. The ladies and gentlemen who attended to the wants of the guests were—The Mayoress (Mrs. Hermitage), Mrs. Hindley, Bro. and Mrs. W. H. Newell, the Misses Chancellor, Bro. Block, Bro. S. Pointon, J.P., Miss Pointon, Bro. E. L. Dixson and Mrs. Dixson, Bro. John Reeve, Bro. W. B. Reeve, Bro. W. J. Clarke and Mrs. Clarke, Bro. and Mrs. W. Bentley jun., Bro. J. H. Brown, Bro. Buck and Miss Buck, Bro. J. Brighurst and the Misses Brighurst, Bro. Copeland and Miss Copeland, Bro. Gurton, Miss Goodyear, Mrs. Healing and Miss Healing, Mrs. Cousins, Mrs. Miles, Mrs. Henning, Bro. Hume, Miss Hume and Master Hume, Bro. A. Latham, Mrs. Fagg, Mrs. Owen, Mrs. Phipps, Mrs. C. D. Smith, Mrs. and Miss Akhurst, Dr. White, Bro. and the Misses Wootton, Mrs. H. Wootton, and Bro. Harris. During the repast, selections of music were performed on the pianoforte by Mrs. W. Jones Lane. After dinner, a programme of songs, &c., was gone through. In addition to the guests, a goodly number of the ministers and public of the town were present. The Rev. W. Taylor Jones (Chaplain of the Union Lodge) presided, and amongst others present, in addition to those already named, were the Rev. J. James, Rev. J. Drew, Rev. W. T. Hindley, Rev. G. Bruce Rhind, Rev. D. Lloyd, &c. The programme opened with the selection, "Old Friend John" (Bro. Henning), and the following additional songs were also given:—"Red, White, and Blue," Bro. Stanley; "The Cantineer," Mrs. Owen; "Village Blacksmith," Bro. H. Wootton; "Powder Monkey," Bro. W. Jones Lane; "Tiddy-fol-lol," Master W. Hume; "Tit for Tat," Mrs. J. A. Fagg; "The Little Hero," Bro. Newell; "Johnny Sands," Bro. Staner; and "Auld Lang Syne," Bro. J. Hume. In response to an encore, Mrs. Owen sang, "Home, Sweet Home," and Mrs. Fagg was also recalled and favoured the audience with "Just as Well." Bros. Newell and Staner were honoured in a similar way, and both kindly appeared a second time. Bro. Staner's encore song was "Oh! I'm so volatile," which created a considerable amount of amusement. The same remark will apply to the song given by Master Hume, who, though a mere juvenile, acquitted himself very creditably, and betrayed a little of the dramatic instinct. He too, was encored, and responded by repeating the most telling portion of the song. A charming duet, "Two Merry Hearts," was given with fine effect by Mrs. Fagg and Mrs. Owen, who were deservedly applauded. Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Fagg rendered excellent service at the pianoforte as accompanyists. The programme closed with the National Anthem. During the proceedings, the Rev. G. B. Rhind was called upon to speak. He said he supposed he was asked to occupy that position as representing the Vicar of Margate, who was absent from their gathering that day. He was sure that the Vicar would have been very pleased indeed to have been amongst them, and to have expressed the gratitude he felt to the Freemasons for the generous act of that day, and his cordial sympathy with the poor people present. He thought they would be glad to hear that the Vicar was recovering, and that he hoped to be back amongst them again by Easter day, thoroughly restored to health. He had sent a letter to him (Bro. Rhind), expressing the hope that all of them would have a very good day, and said it was a very kindly act on the part of the Freemasons to give them that treat. He (Bro. Rhind) also owed a debt of gratitude to that worshipful body. They applied to him to send them a list of the names of the deserving poor of the parish of St. John's, but he was limited to a certain number. He and the churchwardens had, however, ventured to increase that number very much, and he was very grateful to the Freemasons, for not a single person sent was rejected. A gathering of that kind showed that there is a good feeling existing among the people of the town—that they were bound together in the bonds of charity and goodwill towards one another. He knew a large number of the persons whom he saw before him, and knew that many of them had been much straightened in their circumstances during the present winter, distress having been so prevalent. The Freemasons, however, had proved that they were not insensible to the distress which had been felt by the people residing in certain parts of the town; they had held out the hand of fellowship to them, feeling that, though some of them had been placed in higher and some in lower circumstances in life, yet they were all brothers and sisters together, and that they should be animated with feelings of love one towards another. The Rev. J. James, who was also called upon to say a few words, remarked that a stranger in the town had said to him "What a wonderful good people these are." He thought all of them would feel that it was exceeding thoughtful on the part of the Freemasons to provide that feast, which had been so well anticipated and so great in its profusion and variety, and, he thought he might add, so heartily enjoyed by all who were present—that was, by most of those he saw before him, for many had only seen the fun. The "Masons," they knew, regarded themselves as builders; some of them were even master Masons, and belonged to the Grand Lodge. Now, there were many ways of building. They talked sometimes of "building up the constitution," and he thought that the "Masons" had that day been building up the constitutions of their guests in a very real and true sense indeed. And he thought they would be none the worse for that kind of building up. He only trusted that some other good society in Margate would follow the example now set, and that a feast of the present kind would not be the last they would enjoy during the present year. He remembered that about six years ago there was a dinner of that kind held in the Hall-by-the-Sea, and he thought that it was provided by public subscription. There was a very large number of persons present on that occasion, and then, as now, all who met together were very well pleased with it. Just now, when his mind reverted to that occasion, he could not help thinking, "How many who were with us then have passed away!" He could remember many from his own church and congregation who enjoyed the festivities of six or seven years ago. That afternoon they had had a very touching and beautiful song—all about the sweetness of home, and he dare say that many of them felt, although it was very enjoyable to come there as they had done that day, yet that there was no place like home. Now, he had been asked to say a few words to them about religion, and he accepted the responsibility and the duty with very great pleasure, because he knew that the subject of religion would not be distasteful to the Freemasons, and he was certain it would not be inappropriate, for he knew that a great many of those who were present were always pleased to hear about good things—the best thing. There was a home to which God was calling them, and he had been thinking that afternoon about the place which had been provided for them and for all. With what readiness they had come to that entertainment, and yet it might be that some of them were very dilatory in accepting the invitation to the great feast which God in His love had provided for them. He believed that the true enjoyment of life consisted in associating religion with everything; therefore, he was glad they were prepared that afternoon to hear a few words from him about the claims of God and the blessedness of religion. He would take the opportunity of personally thanking the Freemasons for the kindness they had shown to some of his congregation, and he was sure that all of them would heartily thank the donors of the feast given that day. The Mayor of Margate said he had to thank the promoters of that feast for giving him, as Mayor of the Borough, an opportunity of being present there that afternoon. He appreciated the kindness which had prompted the invitation, which he had accepted as readily as any which had been sent to him since he came to occupy the position of Mayor. He felt that it afforded him a grand opportunity of meeting with many old inhabitants who perhaps did not know him personally—and let him tell the poorest there that the Mayor of the Borough had regard to the humblest as well as to the highest citizens in the town. He was the servant of them all. On the 9th November last he put off self and put on duty, which he had tried honestly and faithfully to perform during the time he had been in the position he now held. He was indeed gratified to be present there that afternoon; it was a pleasure to him. Let them go away with one feeling and desire, and that was, to assist one another just a little—ever so little—and it would redound to their pleasure and come back to them a hundredfold. They had the promise of that in the Old Book. He could assure the Freemasons that gatherings of that kind were likely to do incalculable good, inasmuch as they served the purpose of bringing together various classes of people. The present gathering had shown that the poor had the sympathy and respect of others in the town, and he believed that all of them had felt pleased to be waited upon as they had been at the dinner table. He trusted that the example set by the Freemasons would be followed by others, and he would lend all the assistance in his power to further a movement of that kind. Bro. John Crawford, J.P., said he had been asked, on behalf of the Freemasons, to say how glad they were to see the guests present; it had been their wish that nothing should be wanting. He assured his hearers that there were no secrets in the Lodge; all they had was a spirit of charity and brotherly love to all, and as a proof of this, they did not forget their poorer brethren, but endeavoured to help them in every possible way. He hoped they had enjoyed themselves, and that the Union Lodge would, in course of time, invite them there again. In conclusion he called for three cheers for the Worshipful Master of the Lodge. The cheers were heartily given. The Worshipful Master (Bro. H. Wootton), suitably acknowledged the honour done him, but he thought that the other brethren of the Lodge had equals claims to be honoured for helping to provide that dinner. He confirmed the testimony of Bro. Crawford that the objects of Masonry, pure and simple, were to afford relief in times of distress. The Mayor proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, who he remarked had left his professional duties in order to be present with them that afternoon. The Rev. J. Drew seconded, and the resolution was cordially adopted. The Chairman, in response, said it had been a pleasure as well as a privilege to preside over them that afternoon, and he was greatly obliged to them for the way in which they had received the vote of thanks. He concluded by proposing a vote of thanks to the vocalists and instrumentalists who had so kindly contributed towards the pleasure of all of them that afternoon. This was cordially agreed to, and subsequently tea and other refreshments were served to the company. At a latter stage of the proceedings, the guests having retired, ladies and gentlemen who had attended to their wants partook of a high tea. The chair was occupied by the Worshipful Master, and the vice-chair by Bro. W. Jones Lane S.W. The toasts of the Working Committee, Ladies, Visitors, and Caterer, were proposed and responded to, by Bros. W. Jones Lane, Newell, Harris, and Hume respectively. The proceedings then closed.—Keble's Gazette.

MONTAGUE GUEST CHAPTER, No. 1900.

THE installation meeting of this Chapter took place at the Inns of Court Hotel, Lincoln's Inn Fields, on the 10th inst. Present: Comps. Montague Guest M.E.Z., G. P. Festa H., F. R. W. Hedges J., S. Brooks P.Z. S.E., H. Slyman P.Z. S.N., E. J. Pelts 2nd A.S., Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke G.S.E. (Hon. Member), F. Richardson P.G.P.S. (Hon. Member), T. Fenn Pres. B. of G.P. (Hon. Member), F. Philbrick G. Reg. (Hon. Member), R. Henwood, and W. W. Goodman. Visitors:—Comps. J. W. Woollall G. Treasurer, J. Buzzogoli 749, E. Baxter P.Z. 8, A. Fish P.Z. 95, J. Faulkner P.Z. 1423, Hugh D. Sandeman P.G. Supt. Bengal, Raphael Costa P.Z. P.G.D. (Hon Member), T. H. Filton 2, E. Bowyer P.G. Std. B., Raymond Thrupp P.G. Std. B., W. Lake P.Z. 1297 and 1589, and others. Letters of regret at being unable to attend were received from Viscount Holmesdale Prov. G. Supt. Kent, General Brownrigg Prov. G. Supt. Surrey, Sir Francis Burdett Prov. G. Supt. Middlesex, Sir John Monckton, Capt. Philips P.G.S.N., J. S. Eastes P.G. Swd. B., and others. The Chapter was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last convocation were read and confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was received and adopted. The M.E.Z. then vacated the chair, which was occupied by Comp. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke G.S.E., who had kindly undertaken the duty of Installing Principal. Comp. G. P. Festa was then installed as First Principal, Comp. F. R. W. Hedges as Second Principal, and Comp. Brookes as Third Principal. Comp. Festa then rose and said he had a most agreeable task to perform—viz., to present to the retiring M.E.Z. a Past Principal's jewel. He referred briefly to the satisfaction the Companions felt at having so distinguished a Mason as the Provincial Grand Master of Dorset as their Founder and First Principal. He felt sure the gift would be accepted by him as an expression of the hearty good-will of the members of the Chapter, and he trusted he would live long to wear it. Comp. Montague Guest, who was evidently taken by surprise at this part of the proceedings, thanked the Companions most heartily for the acknowledgement of his services. He trusted he should have the satisfaction of often wearing the jewel at their future meetings. The jewel bore the Montague Guest arms and motto, with the Arch emblems, set with eight diamonds, and was of very chaste design and workmanship; it was manufactured by Comp. George Kenning. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions adjourned to a banquet, under the presidency of Comp. Festa. The Queen and Royal Arch Masonry, The M.E. First Principal H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the other Royal Arch toasts, were given and loyally received. Comp. Philbrick, Grand Registrar, in responding for the Grand Officers, said it was always a sign of virility when a new Lodge took unto itself a Chapter. Grand Master Lodge, No. 1, after the lapse of over a century had only just done so, however. The Craft in Grand Office always took the kindest interest in the success of Royal Arch Masonry. As the M.E.Z. had said, they had amongst them great masters, of which every Freemason should be proud, and it was a Brotherhood that commanded universal respect. Comp. Montague Guest then rose to propose the health of the

M.E.Z., and the Second and Third Principals—all good and worthy Masons. He had during the past year ample opportunities of observing the zeal and ability of Comp. Festa, to whom the success of both the Lodge and Chapter was in a large measure due, and who was extremely popular in the Craft. He was ably supported by Comps. Hedges and Brooks, and the other Officers of the Chapter. He himself retired from office with the certain knowledge that his successor and his Officers would perform their duties with credit to themselves and the Chapter. Comp. Festa, in response, said he hardly knew how to express to Comp. Montague Guest his thanks for the flattering remarks he had used in reference to himself. If in the position of M.E.Z. he should succeed in obtaining their approval, he should be perfectly satisfied, and he could only express a hope that when he left that chair he should deserve their thanks as much as his predecessor. Comp. Festa then proposed the health of the retiring First Principal. Comp. Montague Guest thanked the Companions heartily for the reception the toast had met with at their hands. He felt unworthy of the compliment that had been paid him. He had not, perhaps, done all that he should have done during his year of office, but he had felt much pleasure and satisfaction at the position of both Lodge and Chapter, and the compliment paid to him in naming them after himself. He had put down the prosperity of the Chapter especially to the interest taken in it by such Masons as the M.E.Z., to whom it owed its existence. The M.E.Z. then proposed the health of the Grand Scribe E., Comp. Shadwell H. Clerke, who had generously come forward to help the infant Chapter, for which they hoped they should have grateful hearts. Comp. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke said it was very kind of the M.E.Z. to refer to his services in the way he had done. It seemed but the other day that he had installed Comp. Montague Guest as First Principal, and now he had the pleasure of installing his successor. He was sure the Chapter would have a successful future. The M.E.Z. next proposed the health of the Visitors. No Lodge or Chapter was more pleased than the Montague Guest to entertain their friends. They had present a very distinguished visitor from the other side of the ocean, and he trusted he would take back with him a favourable opinion of English Masonry; they had also present many other Companions, who were too well known to need any words of introduction or commendation from him. Comp. Tilton D.G.M. of the District of New York responded. The next toast was that of the Charities, and the M.E.Z. referred, in very complimentary terms, to the interest taken in the Charities by Comp. Frank Richardson, who was one of the most active and valued members of the Girls' Institution. Comp. Frank Richardson, in reply, said it was a subject on which he could dilate for an hour. He referred to the recent Festival of the Benevolent Institution, remarking that it was highly creditable to the Craft that such a large sum should, in these bad times, be collected. The Boys' School was an admirable Institution, but it was with the Girls' School he was more intimately associated, and in this he felt the deepest interest. They could not make them Masons, but they did their best to make them fitted for the battle of life. They were not overworked, but they were well worked, and they must all feel the liveliest satisfaction that the Educational Statistics showed that the Girls' School was at the top of all similar Institutions in England,—these returns proved that the money subscribed by the Craft was well applied, and he trusted the coming Festival of the Girls' School would prove as good as that of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The toast of the Officers, responded to by Comps. Slyman and Henwood, brought a very pleasant and successful meeting to a close. We should mention that the proceedings were enlivened by some excellent singing, the artistes being Signor Maestro Sala, Signor Monori Rocca (late of Covent Garden Italian Opera), and two English artistes from the Criterion Concert.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Prince's.—With pleasure we noticed, on a late visit to this theatre, that although "Enemies" has been performed over sixty times, the piece is almost as attractive as it was during its first week's career. Mrs. Langtry, as Margaret Glenn, plays the part with more power and refinement than she has displayed heretofore. Notwithstanding the first two acts drag heavily, the artistes engaged score well, and certainly make a success of the well-conceived drama in which they are engaged. Special mention should be made of Mr. Coghlan (Richard Darvel), Mr. J. Fernandez (Peter Darvel), Mr. R. Pateman (Daft Willie), Miss Robertha Erskine (Aunt Anne), and Miss Flora Clitherow (Rose Heely).

Grand.—On Monday evening, for the first time on the London boards, was produced a five act drama entitled "Woman against Woman," an adaptation from the French, by Mr. Frank Harvey. The story—depicting as it does a long course of persecution to which the heroine, a young and beautiful woman, is subjected—appeals somewhat to the sympathetic feelings of the audience. Ferdinand, Viscount de Brabannes, the hero, though possessed of considerable property, is of a despondent and sedate turn of mind, and purposes entering a monastery. The Count and Countess de Brabannes, his brother and sister-in-law, being in needy circumstances, endeavour to their uttermost to induce him to carry out his project, as in the event of his so doing all his property would devolve on this said brother. The necessity of inducing the Viscount to at once immure himself becomes imperative, as at this period the Count and Countess learn that a distant relative has bequeathed a magnificent fortune to Ferdinand. Ferdinand, being pressed by the Countess, appoints a time for meeting her and declaring his intention. Meanwhile, he hears of his good luck, and, his eyes being opened to the mercenary object of his relatives, he, to their evident chagrin, announces his intention,—not only not to enter the monastery, but to marry Louise Ferrat, a young lady of poor fortune, to whom he has offered his hand. The conspirators, thus checked in their scheme, do not despair of ultimately attaining their object, and with the connivance and assistance of the Duc de Grandcour, a young man devoid of principle, who has become enamoured of Louise, but has been repulsed by her, commence to work upon the jealousy of the Viscount. The Duc disguises himself in a domino similar to that worn by the Viscount at a masked ball, and finds little difficulty in abducting the unsuspecting Louise. Ferdinand, hearing of his wife's apparent faithlessness, vows vengeance, and having obtained a clue to the culprit, through the instrumentality of Pierre, a lawyer's clerk, immediately follows to the duke's mansion, where he arrives at the moment Louise is about to be subjected to violence. Ferdinand wounds the Duke, and disbelieving the protestations of innocence made by his wife, has her conveyed to the prison for unfortunates. Here Louise is visited by Pierre and Gondinet, a lawyer. They, after hearing her story, set themselves to work to procure her release. Meanwhile, Ferdinand resolves upon leaving the country, but finds himself unable to do so without once more seeing his wife. At the interview which follows she convinces him of her innocence. Happiness, however, does not yet attend the unfortunate couple. The countess and her agents are continually taunting him on the subject of his wife's infidelity, and the dishonour she has brought on him. To put an end to these doubts, the Viscount decides to leave the place where they are surrounded by so many enemies. Before, however, the time for departure arrives, the profligate Duke obtains access to the residence of Ferdinand, and at an interview with Louise he administers a narcotic, intending by that means to accomplish his purpose, but the opportune arrival of Pierre at the moment the opiate has done its work again baulks the villain. He and the Countess, defeated at every turn, now adopt a different method, and endeavour to get the Viscount incarcerated as a madman. The Countess procures an order to commit Pierre to the Bastille, and, threatening him with this, enlists him in her service for the purpose of conveying the deed of interdiction through without delay. Pierre however plays a double game; while pretending to serve the Countess he in is fact serving Ferdinand; and the Countess's last weapon recoils. When they apply to the magistrate for the order for incarceration, the conspiracy is revealed, and Ferdinand's sanity and Louise's innocence are fully established, while the three conspirators are ordered into custody. The play is fairly written, and contains some interesting situations, though much that is highly improbable might easily be improved. Miss De Grey, as Louise, performed creditably, but scarcely did justice either to herself or to the part. This in a measure was to be accounted for by the fact that she was suffering from a severe cold, which deprived her of much of the fire and animation she undoubtedly possesses. Mr. Bassett Roe's Duc de Grancour was a well-studied creation, and presented a thorough specimen of the cool calculating, unprincipled villain, who stops at nothing to serve his ends. Mr. Brodie's Ferdinand was a well-considered performance, whilst Mrs. Clinton faithfully depicted the haughty and treacherous Countess de Brabannes. Mr Jones Finch as the nervous lawyer, and Mr. Fred Charles as Pierre, played with energy and spirit; the latter enlivened the proceedings at every available opportunity, and by his finished acting made a somewhat weak part full of life and energy. The staging of the piece was fairly good, while the dresses were in excellent taste.

Mohawk Minstrels.—The North London pleasure seekers will be repaid just now by a visit to the Mohawk's popular establishment. A new programme has just been prepared, and is given nightly to crowded audiences. Several importations have been made to the troupe, and these meet with a hearty reception. Messrs. Chas. Oswell, Walter Howard, W. C. Hawkins, J. H. Danvers, Thomas Campbell, and the old favourites—Messrs. Ernest Gordon, Little Thomas, James Francis, Will Parker, and F. Russon—all contribute successfully to the evening's amusement. In the second part the management has called in the clever "Pinauds," and they go through their entertainment with a grace and an ease that is marvellous. An operatic selection, by the Mohawk Minstrel's choir, is ably rendered; while Walter Howard's drolleries, with his banjo accompaniment, are as whimsical as ever. The Mohawk's wind up their successful entertainment with a new burlesque burletta by Edmund Forman, entitled "The Smuggler Smuggled." In this Messrs. James Francis, J. H. Danvers, Little Thomas, Will Parker, and F. Russon all contribute successfully to the evening's amusement.

Crystal Palace.—The great annual show of spring flowers and plants, on the 26th and 27th inst., with its fresh and many-hued array of hyacinths, tulips, polyanthuses, cinerarias, daffodils, and other bright heralds of the warmer weather, is an auspicious forerunner of the coming summer season at the Crystal Palace. The season itself will be formally opened on Saturday, 1st May, by a colossal performance of Gounod's popular oratorio, "The Redemption." Gounod's work, by reason of its great subject, no less than by the massive breadth of its treatment, is specially suited for production on the scale associated with Handel Festivals, and possible nowhere else than at the Crystal Palace, where there is an orchestra capable of accommodating many thousands of executants, and a musical organisation equal to the greatest tasks that can be imposed on it. The solo vocalists engaged for the performances are Madame Albani, Miss Annie Marriott, and Madame Patey, Messrs. Edward Lloyd, F. King, and Santley. The chorus will consist of about 3000 voices, the nucleus being the thoroughly trained London contingent of the Handel Festival Choir; and the orchestral accompaniments will be sustained by some hundreds of the most skilled executants in the kingdom; the whole being under the baton of Mr. August Manns.

WALLINGTON LODGE, No. 1892.

THE brethren of this Lodge have every reason to be proud of the success which has attended their working during the few years they have been in existence. They have secured for themselves a reputation for smartness, for benevolence, and for hospitality, which many Lodges much older, and with far more experience, have not yet gained; and, if they only continue as they have commenced, the Lodge will become a source of advantage to all who may become associated with it. The installation meeting of the present year took place on Thursday, the 18th inst., at the Public Hall, Carshalton, when the Lodge was opened by Bro. J. W. Baldwin Prov. G. Standard Bearer, the Worshipful Master, who was well supported by the Officers and brethren of his Lodge. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been read and confirmed, some alterations in the bye laws of the Lodge, proposed by Bro. John G. Horsey P.M. P.Z. P.P.G.D.C. were agreed to, as also was a proposition by Bro. William Pile P.M., "That a Past Master's jewel, of the value of five guineas, should be presented by the Lodge to Bro. James W. Baldwin in recognition of his valuable services during his year of office as Worshipful Master." Bro. William Henry Ransom, of the Old England Lodge, No. 1790, was next proposed as a joining member, and was accepted in due form. Bro. James W. Manley was passed, and the report of the Audit Committee was received. The next business was the installation of Bro. Alfred Bishop S.W., and W.M. elect. He was presented to the Worshipful Master by Bro Horsey, and regularly installed. He afterwards invested the following as his Officers—J. W. Baldwin P.G. St.B. I.P.M., F. Carter S.W., W. Bassett J.W., W. R. Crowe P.M. Treasurer, L. A. Mesquita P.M. Secretary, G. W. Filmer S.D., H. E. Aslett J.D., J. G. Horsey P.M. Past P.G.D.C. D.C., J. A. Taylor I.G., W. Harwood W.S., J. Rowcastle Organist, A. Rowley Tyler. The ceremony of Installation was then completed, after which Bro. Bishop presented the Past Master's jewel which had been voted to Bro. Baldwin. The duty of making the presentation was a most pleasurable one, as he felt the jewel had been worthily earned, and most heartily deserved. Brother Bishop hoped Brother Baldwin would continue in good health for many years to wear it. The Lodge was subsequently closed, and the brethren repaired to the Greyhound Hotel, where a banquet awaited them. After the toast of the Queen had been honoured, Brother Bishop proposed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., M.W.G.M. No words could add to the lustre of fame that surrounded the Grand Master, indeed he might say no recommendation was needed; the toast commended itself to every Mason who was cognisant with the doings of the Order. After "God Save the Prince" by Bro. Rowcastle, the toast of the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the Officers of Grand Lodge Present and Past was given; Bro. Bishop said he had not sufficient acquaintance with the Officers of Grand Lodge to personally sound their praise; but he thought the strongest testimony that could possibly be borne to the manner in which their duties were carried on in England lay in the fact that so small a number of complaints were brought forward. Where a society is ruled over with so much unanimity, with so little attempt at discord, it spoke well for the governing body, and that fact in itself was sufficient to recommend the toast. In speaking of the Provincial Grand Master for Surrey, Brother Bishop said that all those brethren who had the opportunity of seeing General Brownrigg in his official capacity were aware that he performed the duties of his office well. He might be a little bit of a martinet with junior Officers occasionally, but he did a considerable amount of good, and they respected him all the more for his soldierly strictness. A more satisfactory Provincial Grand Master it would be difficult to find, and he was sure that the brethren would all have great pleasure in drinking his health. The W.M., in proposing the next toast, said that as they got on with the toast list they got nearer and nearer home. They now came to the toast of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master. It was within the knowledge of a good many brethren that on the departure of Bro. Arnold to the western hemisphere his position had in a sort of temporary semi-official manner been filled by Brother Greenwood P.P.G.S.W. and Prov. Grand Secretary. He had hoped that Brother Charles Greenwood would have been present on this occasion, but the brethren would be pleased to learn that had he been nominated as Deputy Provincial Grand Master by the Provincial Grand Master. They had two Provincial Grand Officers present, namely, Bros. Horsey P.P.G.D.C. and Baldwin, who was still in collar as Provincial Grand Standard Bearer. He did not know that he could say anything more than that the Provincial Grand Lodge of Surrey was carried on with a minimum amount of friction, which spoke for the tact of the Grand Officers. With this toast he would couple the names of Bros. Horsey and Baldwin. Bro. Horsey said he thanked the W.M. for giving him priority of speech, though he doubted whether a live Standard Bearer was not of more importance than a past Director of Ceremonies. He thanked the W.M. for his kind words, especially in regard to their much esteemed Bro. Charles Greenwood, who had been promoted, as they had just heard. They all deplored the loss of Brother Arnold, but they must also rejoice in seeing Brother Arnold's place taken by Brother Greenwood, than whom no one had done more for the Province of Surrey. He had for some time known that Brother Greenwood was to succeed Bro. Arnold, and at Chertsey the other day it was formally announced. Brother Greenwood then stated he had served the Province for thirty years as Grand Secretary. In hailing him as their D.P.G.M. they would look forward to as prosperous times in the future as they had in the past under Bro. Arnold. After a brief acknowledgment by Bro. Baldwin, this brother said those present might have noticed he had taken the gavel in hand; this he had done to propose the health of their Worshipful Master. It was a duty he was very proud of, though he was afraid that his poverty of speech would not allow him to do justice to the occasion. The brethren had watched Bro. Bishop's career in the Lodge, and had seen that in every office he had occupied he had performed his duties in a satisfactory manner; at last he had attained the highest honour the Lodge could bestow; and he felt certain that Bro. Bishop's future work would be equally satisfactory with his work in the past, and that he would perform the duties attached to the office of Master as efficiently as he had fulfilled all his other duties in the Wallington Lodge. The brethren knew perfectly well that whether he had opportunity or not, he was perfectly able to do the work. He was sure that he was expressing the feelings of all present when he prayed that Bro. Bishop might have a happy year of office. In reply the W.M. thanked the brethren very much for the kind manner in which his health had been proposed and received. He rose with diffidence and pleasure to address them—with diffidence lest he should be unable to carry out the duties of his position to their satisfaction—and with pleasure because he was well assured of their kindly feeling. Those who knew him knew he would endeavour to do his best. He was particularly proud to be in that chair—for one especial reason, he happened to be the first initiate in the Wallington Lodge who had had the satisfaction to attain the chair. It was but a short four years ago since he was initiated, and although he did dream of the possibilty that he might some day reach that position he had not the faintest expectation of doing it so soon. He had to thank not only those who had elected him, but those who had preceded him, because there were some who by reason of seniority ought to have been in the position he now held, and he felt that he owed it to their kindness as well as to the vote of the Lodge that he was now in the chair. That he had met with the greatest kindness it was possible for a Mason to meet with was a foregone conclusion. From the very first evening when he joined the Craft his experiences of the Wallington Lodge had been pleasant; he had spent many happy hours there. The results of his joining Freemasonry had surpassed his most sanguine expectations; and he trusted that if he was granted life and strength to go through his year of office he should be able to lay down his gavel and pass it to his successor with satisfaction to the Lodge as well as to himself. The next toast was the health of the Visitors, and Bros. Smith, Potts, and Pocock replied. In complimenting the I.P.M., Bro. Baldwin, and the rest of the Past Masters of the Lodge. Bro. Bishop said theirs was not an old Lodge, and had not a long roll of Past Masters. One was far away, while another, who had been present in Lodge, was unable to remain for the banquet. However, they had three very effective Past Masters present—Bros. Baldwin, Horsey, and Pile—and if it were humanly possible that Bro. Baldwin could fail him in the hour of need, he had only to look beyond him to find a Mason of even greater experience. He could not wish for better supporters than Bros. Baldwin, Horsey, and Pile. The brethren all knew them, and all who know them respected and admired them. Bro. Baldwin returned his sincere thanks to the Worshipful Master for the kind manner in which he had proposed the toast, and the brethren for the cordiality with which they had received it. There was one thing which was always required of a Master—to act up to the three great principles of Freemasonry—brotherly love, relief, and truth. It was not always that we could carry out these principles as we could wish, but we could all strive to do so. He had striven, and thanked the brethren for overlooking his shortcomings. He thanked them, too, for the very handsome jewel they had given him; it would remind him of a very pleasant and happy Mastership. Their Worshipful Master was going up as a Steward to the Festival of the Boys' School, and he (Bro. Baldwin) had intended to refer to it in Lodge, and take their vote for £5 5s. to be placed on his list. He had overlooked it, however, but he hoped the money would still be forthcoming. Bro. Pile also responded. The toast of the Masonic Charities was given, and Bro. Morgan was called upon for a response. In acknowledging the toast, Bro. Morgan strongly urged on the brethren the desirability of supporting their Provincial Grand Master at the approaching Festival of the Girls' School. He regretted the absence of Bro. Charles Greenwood, who he could wish had been present to respond in his place. Bro. Greenwood was taking a great interest in the coming Festival, and on the previous Monday had been appointed Acting President of the Board of Stewards. The Province had gained a high position by the zeal it had displayed in supporting General Brownrigg four years back, and doubtless the Stewards who would assist the Provincial Grand Master in May next would muster as numerously as they did on that occasion. For the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary Bros. Crowe and Mesquita replied; while the toast of the Officers was fittingly acknowledged by those brethren who had been enabled to remain to this late hour. The Tyler's toast was then given, and the meeting brought to a conclusion. The toasts throughout were interspersed with songs and recitations.

We are asked to state that, by an error, the case of Alice Flora Cook, No. 20 on the List of Candidates for the forthcoming April Election of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, is incorrectly stated as having both parents living, it should read "father" only.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The diseases common to our rigorous climate, which endanger the constitution, will always exist, though many may be mitigated and their effects removed by timely and appropriately applied. Holloway's Pills are acknowledged far and wide to be the most effective purifier of the blood, the most certain regulator of disordered organs, and the safest and surest aperient that can be prescribed. This medicine is applicable to all ages, young or old, robust or delicate; it increases the appetite and restores the bowels. After the digestive is subdued occasional doses of these Pills will prevent any relapse, and moreover secure, promote, and intensify the good results which flow from perfect purity and regularity.

GALLERY LODGE CONCERT.

A CONCERT in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the Gallery Lodge, No. 1928, of which Bro. C. F. Pardon is Worshipful Master, was given at the Brixton Hall, Brixton, on Saturday, the 20th instant. Despite the inclemency of the weather, there was a good attendance of the brethren and their friends, and the result was not only an artistic but a pecuniary success. The artists successively appearing on the platform, which was tastefully decorated with flowering plants, supplied by Messrs. Horsford and Sons, Brixton Station, were Madame Thayer, Miss Lizzie Mulholland, Miss Bene Fowell, Miss Alma Evelyn, Miss Alice Farren, Mr. Percy Palmer, Bro. Frederick Cundy, Mr. Herbert Jewell, Mr. Henry Horscroft, Bro. Wilhelm Ganz (piano), Bro. W. L. Barrett (flute), M. Theodore Werner (violin), Herr Otto Langey (violoncello), Mr. Sidney Hill (organ), and Mr. Lee Davies (piano). The first-named lady certainly achieved the greatest success of the evening, her rich and powerful soprano being heard to great advantage in an aria from "Il Flauto Magico," and in Eckert's Swiss Echo Song. Miss Lizzie Mulholland gave Braza's "Serenata," to Bro. W. L. Barrett's flute obligato, with her wonted skill and grace. Miss Alice Farren sang Gounod's "Ave Maria," and F. Cowen's "Never again," the latter being the more successful effort. Miss Bene Fowell, a debutante, with a pleasant soprano voice, gave a careful rendering of the "Jewel Song" from "Faust," and Hope Temple's "Fond heart, farewell," and Miss Alma Evelyn rendered Pinsuti's "Gates Ajar" in most effective style. Mr. Percy Palmer's opening effort, "I'll sing thee songs of Araby," was requited by a unanimous encore, in response to which he gave Dibdin's "Tom Bowling," and in like fashion he had to supplement Balfe's "Come into the garden, Maud," with "The Distant Shore." He also sang "Stars of the summer's night," which was equally well received. Bro. Frederick Cundy's light tenor voice was well suited to Paul de Faye's "O'er the hills of Normandie," and Birch's "I am waiting," and Balfe's "Good night, beloved," which he gave with much sweetness and feeling. Mr. Herbert Jewell has also a pleasant tenor voice, and had reason to be gratified by the reception accorded to his singing of "Tell her I love her so," and "Alice, where art thou?" Mr. Henry Horscroft's powerful tones and skilled execution were well displayed in Loder's "Diver," "The yeoman's wedding song" (Poniatowski), and Watson's "Two Bells." Among the instrumentalists, it is hardly necessary to say that Bro. Ganz (Past Grand Organist) took the lead by his performance of Beethoven's "Moonlight" sonata, and of a pianoforte solo of his own, embodying the Nightingale's Trill," and "Qui Vive." M. Theodore Werner played Sarasate's violin solo, "Spanish dances," with feeling and brilliancy. Her Otto Langey executed a reverie of his own on the violoncello, and Bro. W. L. Barrett a pot pourrie of Scotch airs, also arranged by himself, on the flute, in bright and clever fashion. Kalliwoda's "Trio in D," for violin, violoncello, and pianoforte, was adequately rendered by M. Werner, Herr Langey and Mr. F. F. Baffen, and Mr. Sidney F. Hill gave several organ solos with good effect. The absence of the Worshipful Master and one of the concert hon. secs. (Bro. Basil Cook), from indisposition, were the only drawbacks to a very enjoyable evening; through the exertions of Bros. H. Massey P.M., W. O. Goldsmith S.W., J. C. Duckworth J.W., R. J. Albery, W. T. Perkins, F. H. Gale, and A. MacNeil (who officiated in the onerous but gracious office of Wine Steward in most admirable style), went far towards supplying this loss. Messrs. J. Brinsmead and Sons kindly lent one of their grand pianofortes for the occasion.

The Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon writes to the publishers in reference to the fac-simile of Shakespeare's will appearing in Part I. of "Cassell's Illustrated Shakespeare":—"The copy of Shakespeare's Will which you have sent me is of great interest, and permit me to say an excellent reproduction of the last will and testament of our Immortal Bard."

A Cyclopædia within the reach of all, in portable and handy form, has long been a desideratum, and "Cassell's Concise Cyclopædia," which meets this want, has been so successful that the publishers have arranged for the issue of a new and revised edition, the first part of which is to be published this month. This remarkable work contains nearly twelve thousand distinct articles on history, biography, geography, mythology, topography, science, &c., and is complete in one volume.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

Freemason's Chronicle;

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

Reports of United Grand Lodge are published with the Special Sanction of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England.

VOL. XXIII.—No. 586. SATURDAY, 3rd APRIL 1886. [PRICE THREEPENCE. 13s 6d per annum, post free.

GRAND LODGE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

WE have before us a bulky volume, containing an Abstract of the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of the Most Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons of Pennsylvania and Masonic Jurisdictions thereunto belonging, being Extracts from the Minutes of its Emergent, Quarterly, and Annual Grand Communications for the year 1885. The minutes are set out in copious detail, and comprise many matters of general interest to the Craft; dealing with several appeals, in which it was considered, and very justly, that had the charges brought forward been referred to a Committee to report as to their sufficiency, it is highly probable that they would never have reached Grand Lodge at all. In one particular case a lengthy trial took place, in which forty-eight witnesses were examined, and 214 manuscript pages of testimony taken, with the attending personal friction and feeling; all of which the report sets forth "might have been avoided." The charge alleged that a certain brother was not a suitable person for advancement; but it was decided that there was not even the obscurest hint in the record that his conduct, since he was made a Mason, had been in the least degree questionable. Therefore Grand Lodge had nothing before it but moral delinquencies, alleged to have occurred, not only before his initiation, but before his petition was approved. The principle, therefore, was laid down that had the accused never become a Mason, the Craft could not have exercised the power of discipline over him; and it is equally clear that they had no jurisdiction over a Mason for offences committed by him whilst he was a profane, for Grand Lodge can only discipline a Mason for Masonic offences, and Masonic offences can only be committed by Masons. The decision goes on to say, "The immoral life of a profane is certainly no reproach to Freemasonry, and consequently cannot be an offence against its laws, nor can it possibly become an offence should he afterwards be admitted as a member of the Fraternity. It is otherwise, however, with the immoral life of a Mason, for then it becomes a Masonic offence, and falls under the jurisdiction of Masonic authority." It was contended, however, that as the charge alleged that the accused was not under the tongue of good Masonic report, he was initiated in violation of the Landmark; but Grand Lodge held that such a question could not be raised. If a Landmark were indeed violated, the Lodge was the offender, and not the accused; and that was not the way to reach the remedy. If a charge could be sustained, the accused would have to be punished, by either reprimand, suspension, or expulsion, all of which recognise the regularity of his initiation, and, as a consequence, rebut the suggestion that a Landmark was violated in his making. If a Landmark were violated, the action of the Lodge was necessarily void, but that result could be ascertained in any other way than by proceeding directly against the Lodge, for it must be manifest to every one that the integrity of the action of a Lodge cannot be impeached through an accusation against one of its members. The Lodge must have notice of the charge against it, and opportunity to defend its action. Without indicating any opinion whether the Grand Lodge could investigate the action of a subordinate Lodge in determining that an applicant is under the tongue of good Masonic report, it is suggested that, should such a right be sustained, and G. Lodge should adjudge that the applicant was not under the tongue of good Masonic report, the Grand Lodge might have an equal right to reverse the unfavourable action of a Lodge in such a case, and order that the applicant be initiated. The committee appointed to inquire into the circumstances of the case, said it seemed clear that the Grand Lodge would be slow to inquire into the action of a subordinate Lodge in determining whether or not an applicant was under the tongue of good Masonic report, should it ever assert its right to do so. Upon this, the appeal was dismissed.

At the Quarterly Communication, held at Philadelphia in Sept. last, a circular letter was received from the M.W. Grand Lodge of Virginia, announcing the death of R.W. Bro. John Francis Regnault, Grand Treasurer, which was ordered to be entered and filed; as also was a letter from the Grand Lodge of Colon and Cuba, announcing the death of R.W. Bro. Aurelio Almeida, Grand Secretary. A proclamation and edict from the Grand Lodge of Quebec, to the effect that all intercourse should cease with any Lodge holding allegiance to any foreign Grand Lodge, and meeting in that Province. Several Lodges which had been suspended for want of returns had made amends, and were revived. The number of Lodges in the jurisdiction in the year ended 27th December 1884 was 379, and the total number of members 37,175. A list of the Lodges, where held, and the times of meeting, are then given, followed by an original, important, and deeply interesting Masonic document, connected with the early History of Freemasonry in Pennsylvania. Bro. Clifford P. MacCalla Grand Warden stated that it was the oldest original Masonic Lodge Report in America, and that the original is now in the possession of C. T. Ingham, Esq., of Atlantic City, New Jersey, who inherited it, among a number of old papers of David Hall, for many years the partner in the printing business of Bro. Benjamin Franklin, in whose handwriting it appears to be throughout. It is signed by eleven brethren, all of whose names appear in Liber B as members of St. John's Lodge. It reads as follows:—

Gentlemen of the Lodge,—The Committee you have been pleased to appoint to consider of the present State of the Lodge, and of the properest Methods to improve it, in obedience to your commands have met, and, after much and mature Deliberation, have come to the following Resolutions:—

1. That since the excellent Science of Geometry and Architecture is so much recommended in our ancient Constitutions, Masonry being first instituted with this Design, among others, to distinguish the true and skilful Architect from unskilful Pretenders; total Ignorance of this Art is very unbecoming a Man who bears the worthy Name and Character of MASON; We therefore conclude, that it is the Duty of every Member to make himself, in some Measure, acquainted therewith, as he would honour the Society he belongs to, and conform to the Constitutions.

2. That every Member may have an Opportunity of so doing, the present Cash be laid out in the best Books of Architecture, suitable Mathematical Instruments, &c.

3. That since the present whole Stock is not too large for that purpose, every Member indebted to the Lodge pay what is from him respectively due on Monday night, the nineteenth Instant, that so the whole being ready by the 24th of June, may be sent away by the first Opportunity. And that every one not paying that Night, be suspended till he do pay: For without Care be taken that Rules are punctually observed, no Society can be long upheld in good Order and Regularity.

5. That the use of the Balls be established in its full Force and Vigour; and that no new Member be admitted against the will of any present Member; because certainly more Regard ought to be had in this way to a Brother who is already a Mason, than to any Person who is not one, and we should never in such cases disoblige a Brother, to oblige a Stranger.

6. That any Member of this Lodge having a complaint against any other Member, shall first apply himself to the Wardens, who shall bring the Cause before the Lodge, where it shall be consider'd and made up, if possible, before the Complainant be allow'd to make that Complaint publick to the World: the Offender against this Rule to be expell'd.

The chief features in the next Quarterly Communication were the "donating" of 500 dols. towards the relief of Masonic brethren, their widows and orphans, of the city of Galveston, Texas, from the effects of loss by fire on 13th November 1885; the election of Officers and Trustees to serve the ensuing Masonic year; an edict commanding all brethren of that Grand Lodge to hold no Masonic intercourse with any member or members of any Lodge existing in the Province of Quebec enrolled on the register of any foreign Grand Lodge other than that of the Grand Lodge of Quebec; and the appropriation of 3,000 dols. to the use of the Stewards of the Stephen Girard Charity Fund. Voluminous financial tables are then given, which, no doubt, possess local interest.

At the Annual Grand Communication, held in Philadelphia on 28th December 1885, the R.W. Grand Master Bro. E. Coppée Mitchell delivered a lengthy and practical address, occupying over twenty pages of printed report. In giving a review of the occurrences of the year, he opens by saying everything had been exceptionally peaceful in the Craft. The Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania was in harmony with all the Grand Lodges recognised by it, and nothing had occurred to interfere in the slighest degree with these pleasant fraternal relations. The correspondence with Grand Masters of several jurisdictions had been conducted with brotherly kindness, and there had not been the slightest occasion for any discord or harsh feeling. After referring to the Masonic dedication of the Washington monument, in Washington City, where the Officers of the Lodge were courteously and fraternally received by the M.W.G.M. of the District of Columbia and the brethren of that Grand Lodge, he reports a number of Grand representatives of this Grand Lodge near the Grand Lodges of other jurisdictions, and the initiation at sight of the Rt. Rev. Dr. Wm. Stevens Perry, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the diocese of Iowa, of whom he says:—

The gentleman who was thus made a Mason had been long personally known to me as suitable in every particular for the distinction which was conferred upon him,—a ripe scholar, a distinguished clergyman, and an honest man. I have since been informed that he has connected himself with the Craft in the State of Iowa, by joining a Lodge in the City of Devonport, where he resides. The Brethren of the Grand Lodge of Iowa will be pleased to receive the work we have done upon this most suitable material.

Everywhere, except in a few places for which special reasons exist, the Grand Lodge seem to have entered upon a prosperity and good fortune. Lodges which have, for a long time, needed few or no additions to their membership are receiving applications from that class of the community whom we especially desire to see among us. There can be no better evidence of Lodge prosperity than this. He then enlarges upon the vital importance that new members brought into a Lodge should be chosen from the best in the community in which the Lodge exists; and adds, "it is the character of the members, rather than their number, that gives tone to a Lodge and fixes its position in the respect of the community in which it is situated." Having acknowledged the services rendered by the Deputy District Grand Master, he observes that "we have endeavoured to preserve the ancient work of the Craft in all its didactic purity, while in some other places the disposition to dramatise has been yielded to. If we are to keep our ancient Ritual it must be by constant watchfulness against the tendency to imitation, which is one of the instincts of human nature." It had been his unpleasant duty, during the year, to issue a large number of edicts, in a great many cases declaring void the admission of members to Lodges, and the initiation of candidates. He had not been unmindful of the fact that in taking this method of rectifying the onus of a Worshipful Master, or the Secretary of a Lodge, the punishment falls most hardly upon the innocent man who has nothing to do with the unlawfulness of the method by which he has been taken into the Lodge; and if another way of satisfying his obligation to see the regulations of the Grand Lodge fully expressed could have been discovered, he would gladly have taken it. A number of Dispensations had been granted during the year, chiefly to hold special elections for W.M. or one or more Wardens, or Treasurer or Secretary, and sometimes to elect all the Officers. He then speaks of the satisfactory work witnessed while paying an official visitation to the Lodges in Reading, Pottsville, Bloomsbury, Wilkesbarre, Manch Chunk, and Easton, where he was received in a truly loyal and fraternal spirit. The corner-stones had been laid of the "Packer Memorial Church of the Lehigh University," at South Bethlehem, Pennsylvania; and a monument to the poet Schiller, in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia. The financial condition of the Grand Lodge was very prosperous, the income being sufficient for all calls made upon it. They had been able, out of the income of Grand Lodge, to place in the Sinking Fund, during the year 1885, the sum of 15,000 dols., and he looked upon this Sinking Fund as a most important factor in the future prosperity of Grand Lodge. It now amounts to over 325,000 dols. securely invested. Coming to the question of Charity, with which he concludes his address, he says this is the vitalising spirit of our Fraternity, the source of our strength and power in the world; the very reason why we should exist as a society. In the exercise of this, the chief—

Of the cardinal virtues, I am aware that the brethren of Pennsylvania have not been remiss. But as a G. Lodge we possess two large funds devoted exclusively to Charitable uses,—the G. Lodge Charity Fund and the Stephen Girard Charity Fund. At our last Communication a Special Committee was raised to take into consideration the methods of dispensing the Charities of the Fraternity in the State, including the disposition of the income arising from these two funds. I do not desire to forestal the action of that Committee, but it may not be out of place to notice the immediate demand which prompted Grand Lodge to authorise its appointment. It is that a system may be put into operation by which the worthy brother who needs immediate assistance and cannot wait, may have his case properly investigated without delay, and the relief suited to his wants promptly afforded.

No doubt Brother Stephen Girard, in his varied experience as a merchant and mariner trading with many foreign countries, had in mind, when he established the fund which bears his name, the many vicissitudes in life in which a worthy and respectable man, abundantly able, under ordinary circumstances, to maintain himself, might find himself, through sickness, shipwreck, or other accident, far from home; a stranger in a strange land, perhaps not even understanding the language spoken around him, penniless and friendless. Where could such an one go for help? If a Freemason, he would naturally, inevitably, properly, go where he knows he has a right to recognition and relief; where, although a stranger, he is sure to find friends and to be recognised as a Brother by his Brethren.

So precious and sacred a privilege as this, which can never be refused recognition, should be jealously guarded against imposture. We ought carefully to mature a plan by which we secure to the worthy Brother the absolute certainty of receiving the assistance which he has a right to expect; and just as thoroughly enable ourselves to detect the impostors who by fraudulent arts endeavour to share in the benefits to which they are not entitled.

Appended to the volume is a lengthy report of the Committee of Correspondence for 1885, with which we have not space now to deal, but which is full of interest, not only to our Transatlantic brethren, but to many on this side of the "pond," including, as it does, many interesting communications with the Grand Secretary, and the Grand Lodge of England.

WHO IS FIT?

FROM the utterances of most writers and speakers it appears that a great many persons believe that a Grand Master is an Officer of much higher Masonic character, and charged with more exalted duties and functions in Symbolic Masonry, than the Master of a Symbolic Lodge. Doubtless some Grand Masters are of the same opinion, and not only regard themselves while in the "Grand East" as far more important characters in the Masonic scheme than any others whomsoever, but ever afterward when the grand gavel has, like the sceptre of a dethroned monarch, slipped from their grasp, they still cherish a fondness for lingering superfluous on the oriental stage or "platform," as the station of the East might now be termed, as though Masonry has some use or occupation for them there.

For the most part, the Grand Masters of Masons have well understood their position, and have recognized in every Worshipful Master an equal, if not in all things or anything pertaining to the society of Masons, yet in that most important and exalted station known to Symbolic Masonry, beyond which it is impossible for a Mason to advance.

If any Grand Master would reflect that the highest possible Masonic function consists in lawfully conferring the degrees of Masonry, and especially in opening and closing and celebrating the sublime degree of the Master—an office which cannot be performed by "King, Prince or Potentate of Earth, except he be a Mason," he might well realize that it was not to a higher Masonic position in the great Symbolic Lodge that he had been elevated, but to a more important station in the secular organization of a society. If a man be elevated to a higher position in Masonry, that will remain with him, though every Lodge in the world should be disbanded: but there are only three positions in Masonry by degree: beyond these all exaltation ceases. Added to these is the dignity and office or function of those who open and close and rule the Lodge. Of these the Worshipful Master is the chief, and rises above the Wardens, somewhat as does the Master's degree above those of the Fellow Craft and Entered Apprentice: and with this similarity between the two instances, that if the less or lower do not exist, the higher and greater has no place.

The Grand Master—as presiding Officer of the Grand body so far as it is instituted for the purpose of caring and providing for the material and secular interests of the society of Masons, the enactment of laws and solving by authority the questions springing out of its system of jurisprudence—may be justly said to hold a very honourable and useful position, and one which is indispensable to the society, and the same may be said of him in his capacity as the chief of its executive magistracy. But in all this he differs in nothing important or essential from the presiding and executive Officer of any other society of laudable object and a considerable number of members, of equal average intelligence. But for what is the Masonic Grand Body instituted? It is simply to keep up a solution of knotty questions, and make provision for carrying itself on and to maintain a chief Officer, and rites and ceremonies peculiar to its system or organization? If this were all, what would the Masonic institution be, more than any one of a thousand associations whose peculiarities merely serve to distinguish them from each other? Instead of anything like this, the very object and end—the reason for the being of the Masonic Institution is to put in effect and maintain in efficient energy and action that great mission or function with which the Masonic Lodge is charged; the perpetuation and dissemination of those important truths and knowledges, and that sublime philosophy of charity, fraternity and humanity, together with the mode and order of their inculcation, which make up what we call in ancient phrase, the "mysteries" of Masonry. Take away this and the society has nothing left which it can assert to be exclusively its own.

It is clear that the very object for which the Masonic Lodge, Grand or constituent, is formed and has its being, is the dissemination, perpetuation and enjoyment by its members of Masonry, in the highest and best sense of that term;—all other considerations involved, however much regarded, are either subsidiary or incidental to this supreme end of the Institution. Yet, in view of this, What is the very highest, and it may be said the central and characteristic function of the Lodge in the whole scheme of its offices, operations and duties? Manifestly the conferring of the sublime degree, which is the culmination and completion of its symbolic work, or "mysteries," for the sake of which both Grand and Symbolic Lodges exist. Such being the case, since the Grand and Worshipful Master are each invested with equal power, capacity and authority to perform the chief duty and office possible in Masonry; the one in his strictly Masonic character, which is the highest he can assume, is equal in every respect to the other, and neither greater nor less. When each has held this most exalted position in Masonry during his allotted time, the gavel passes from his hand, and he is remitted to the floor as the equal of his brethren and no more, save that out of respect and by the voluntary courtesy which suggests itself to magnanimous and fraternal minds, he is treated as first among his fellows; and here again these two Masters stand equal to each other, and not otherwise. Nevertheless, in official position, for all purposes concerning the welfare and external dignity and influence of the society, the Grand Master is all which is claimed for him, and his responsibility as custodian of the work, and as executive-in-chief, and his powers of discretion in many cases, render him the head and front of the Fraternity for the time being.

Nothing in the foregoing is uttered in disparagement of our Grand Masters, nor to encourage any Worshipful Master to esteem himself on account of his position more highly than he ought, but to call to the minds of all Masters, Wardens and Brothers throughout the Lodges that there is something in the "Craft of Masonry" which is far more exalted and valuable than any merely official position considered apart from the Masonic work, or that can be found in any benevolent or social organization outside the Lodge—and which characterizes Masonry alone—and besides this, to put in a clearer light the degree of responsibility which devolves upon the occupant of the oriental chair, in every particular Lodge, as well as upon the Grand Master of the jurisdiction. This responsibility arises from the transcendant value of the principles and order embodied in the work committed to the charge of the Worshipful Master for the time being, as the authorized representative of the Masonic body at large, and successor of a line of illustrious Masters, and especially as the chief symbolic character in the sublime system of the Lodge.

The intelligent and reflecting Master, in view of the character which he sustains in the work, which is the all in all of Masonry, cannot look with indifference upon his part in such a drama as is presented in the three degrees, nor consent to allow himself to discharge the principal office therein in a merely perfunctory manner, according to the letter of the ritual, and there stop, nor to permit the like to be done by those under his direction so far as it may be in his power to prevent it. But he must be continually urged by a noble sense of his duty to the Craft and to himself to use every effort on his own part, and promote assiduity in those about him, in acquiring more and more thorough knowledge and understanding of the things contained in the body of Symbolic Masonry; that he and they may be, each in his station, a veritable light of the Lodge, for all Masonic purposes.

Nothing short of skilful and persistent effort on the part of the Master and other Officers and influential members of the Lodge can prevent the further lapse of the mind of the Fraternity from a just sense and appreciation of the intrinsic excellence of the Masonic Institution, and from a clear insight into all which renders it different from, and superior to, every other form of benevolent and social fellowship; until there will be nothing left in view of the craftsmen but that which may be found everywhere among modern relief and benevolent societies. For this lapse is continually going on, as all can see, and, like every other movement of downward and retrograde tendency, is accelerated as it goes.

The fact that aside from the honour and dignity flowing from ancient establishment, and wide extension of its institutions, together with the worthy character of its numberless votaries, there is still something in Masonry so exalted and precious in the eyes of the humane and magnanimous, that the charge of its custody and maintenance invests the office of a subordinate society with a capacity and function the same as the most exalted which can be attributed to the head of the whole Grand Jurisdiction, is the very fact which demonstrates the superiority of the Masonic Institution over every other which lays claim to a similar character. For every one can see that nothing like this can be supposed in the case of any other society or fraternity which exists to-day. For all such, even though universal charity, liberty and order should be as prominent features of their characters as of Masonry itself, would still lack the internal and essential characteristics of Ancient Craft Masonry, involved in its incomparable degrees. And since, as said above, this peculiar excellence of the degrees is that which endows with dignity the office of him who is charged with the ministration of their secret wisdom and beauty; they cannot for a moment be ranked with mere conventional ceremonies, however imposing, nor their utterances treated as well-ordered examples of declamation for the temporary admiration of the neophyte or others being present, but they stand in comparison with such as the illumination of a veritable philosophy, with the glitter of a school-boy's effusion on exhibition day.

The habit of bringing into the Lodge the forms and practices found in all sorts of associations—not even excepting political conventions—tends continually to withdraw the attention of all from the proper and peculiar methods and usages of the Lodge, and thereby to the effacement of all external distinctions which isolate it from imitative societies, until the internal characteristics are no longer kept in view, and the degrees come to be regarded as mere appropriate ceremonies which the Officers must see to, and if they be conferred without confusion or omission all is well.

When Master and members have reached this stage of declension in their appreciation of Masonry (that is, if they ever had any) the whole system takes its place in their minds alongside of the host of modern orders, and the inducement to uphold the dignity of the Masonic Institution is at an end, and Masonry in its sublime aspect is lost. To counteract this tendency, everywhere exhibited, towards an utterly inadequate and false conception of what the Symbolic Lodge really is, all Grand and Worshipful Masters, as being first in responsibility, should make no delay in aiding to restore in the minds of the brethren the knowledge and understanding of the things contained in the degrees, both severally and collectively. But this is not to be done either by patience or perseverance in the perusal of Masonic orations or the discursive effusions which reiterate the stereotyped eulogies on Masonry, its antiquity and grandeur, however forcible and eloquent, or appropriate to the occasion which may have called them forth. The Craft have always been abundantly supplied, if not snowed under with this kind of literature, and all the time have learned nothing to the point. The reasons are two: First, nothing can be put in print, even if the author knew what to put there, except such matters as may be a guide to those who will study Masonry where it is to be found; and, second, no attempt is made to show anything by any sort of proof or demonstration which can properly be written. The writings commonly published make no attempt even at this. They continue repeating in varied phrase what has been uttered through generations, each writer relying with child-like simplicity on the authority of the one who last preceded him, and he on his predecessor, and so on back, while all the time nothing is shown. Imagine an advocate appearing before a court to "show cause" for or against a rule or decision of any sort, who should indulge in a long eulogy of his client and a diatribe of an hour on the time-worn subjects of justice, liberty and the glories of the Fourth of July and the battle of New Orleans, until choked off by the court. Could anybody learn from this, though repeated every day for a year, whether his client should have a rule or not? Such is the case with Masonic utterances not intended to show anything of the true lore of the Lodge, but only to compose excellent sentences into agreeable discourse, with more or less force and beauty, concerning Masonic sentiments and the principal objects of the Craft.

Now, without laying aside the countless treasures of thought which are to be found in the literature above mentioned, the Master or Grand Master who may desire to restore Masonic light to the craftsmen whom he represents, must put himself to study, not from books, except as to a few particulars, but from the things contained in the Lodge—the proper and only storehouse of esoteric Masonic knowledge. He need not be afraid that he will exhaust the subjects which will successively spring up in his pathway of exploration, or that Masonry will fail to demonstrate itself in the fulness of its admirable order, if it be sought out with the same astuteness and perseverance which the students of science exercise in bringing to light the secrets of the natural universe.—Voice of Masonry.

WHAT BRO. PIKE BELIEVED IN 1871 AND WHAT HE BELIEVES NOW.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

In Bro. Pike's "Masonic Origins," he admitted, as I shall show hereafter, that the degrees of the York Rite and of the Scottish Rite were alike modern. But in 1871 Bro. Pike issued a pamphlet, in which he denied the truth of the traditions of the so-called York Rite, but still clung to the notion that the Scottish Rite was ancient.

By way of a preface, I must inform the reader that in 1867 Bro. Geo. Frank Gouley edited a paper in St. Louis, called The Freemason, and that he was at the time Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge, and also Grand Master of the Missouri Templars. Bro. Gouley was then a firm believer in the traditions of the York or American Rite, consisting of three Blue degrees, four Royal Arch degrees, three Templar degrees, and two or three of Royal Select degrees. About the same time, Bro. Gouley received thirty-two degrees of the A. and A. Rite, when, to his horror, he discovered that in certain degrees of the Scottish Rite, the secrets of the Royal Arch and of the Knights Templars were revealed. This brought on a discussion between the Missouri K.T. and the S.G.C. of the Southern Jurisdiction of the A. and A. Rite, and a number of papers and pamphlets were issued by the combatants. From Rebold and Folger Bro. Gouley learned that the Charleston Frederick the Great Charter was a forgery, that the A. and A. Rite was a new concern; and he charged the A. and A. Riters with having stolen the Templar degree from the York Rite, and even went so far as to get the Missouri Grand Comandry to "boycot" the A. and A. Riters. In 1871 Bro. Pike collected the articles, letters, &c., relating to the said controversy, and combined them in a pamphlet, headed "Vindication of the Ancient and Accepted Rite against certain libels." The first part consists of an address by Bro. Pike to a body of A. and A. Riters, in which he said:—

"You are the chiefs of Exalted Masonry. Your powers are real and substantial. If you do not duly estimate them, it is impossible that you should well perform the corresponding duties. The highest of these accompany only the highest powers . . . You style yourselves Sovereign Grand Inspectors General, Grand Elect Knights of the Holy House of the Temple. You are so, if you know the Royal secret, and understand the Holy doctrine. You claim to hold the powers of the first and last Grand Masters of the Temple within this jurisdiction; and that claim is valid, there is ample internal evidence in the degrees to those who understand them. The Kadosh are the only Soldiery of the Temple."

Now all the above utterance is mere buncomb. Bro. Pike ought to know that power can only be exercised when aided by a well-equipped army, a navy, an organised police, or sufficient cash to buy up majorities of members in our State Legislatures or of our Houses of Congress. That the assumption of high-sounding titles confer no power may be proved from the fact that a rival A. and A. concern has existed in Louisiana since 1813, in defiance of Bro. Pike's authority. Several A. and A. concerns exist in the Northern jurisdiction, in spite of S.G.C. Palmer's authority, and even the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, since it declared itself protector of certain high degree concerns, found itself powerless to enforce its laws and penalties against those who chose to take its forbidden Rites and Degrees. Nor is the Kadosh any more the real soldiery of the Temple than the Knights of Odd Fellows, and a dozen other so-called Knights including the "Knights of Labour." Bro. Pike further says:—

"When Masonry appeared in Europe in the Middle Ages, it had its mission that exposed it to persecution; and that accounts for the solemnity of the obligations of the lesser mysteries. If it had been only what Blue Masonry is now in England and America, its obligations being out of all proportion to its objects. The objects to which the Order owed its existence were abandoned in England about the time when it crossed the Atlantic. . . . It [they] became the ally and supporter of the English Government and Church . . . confining its teachings within the domain of morality alone. But Scottish Masonry and the Ancient and Accepted Rite have not changed nor denaturalised or perverted the meaning of their symbols. Now, as in the days of Dante, its mission is to aid humanity, setting its foot on despotism, and treading under foot tyranny and intolerance. The Cap of Liberty is the symbol of sovereignty of the people."

All this is mere fiction; for in the Middle Ages there existed no other kind of Masons but the building guilds, who knew nothing of either lesser or higher mysteries; its mission was neither to establish the rights of the people or to promote religious toleration, but for the purpose of monopolising the building trade and get as much wages for their labour as they could, just the same as the trade unions and knights of labour are trying to do to-day. The so-called Masonic persecution in the Middle Ages was confined to England only; that is, laws were enacted for specifying the rate of wages to all kinds of labourers, servants, and artizans, including masons and carpenters, during the reigns of Edward III., Richard II., and Henry VI. The carpenters and masons, however, managed to extort higher wages than the law allowed, hence they were threatened with punishment; but I do not know whether any of them were ever punished. Nor was their Masonic O.B. out of proportion to their object, for it was as brief as it possibly could be; nor did the Masons abandon "the cap of liberty" a few years before Masonry crossed the Atlantic. True, something was abandoned, that is, in 1717 they abandoned the old operative ritual and constitutions, in which religious intolerance was embodied, viz., "to be true to the Church, and to entertain no heresy." This law was abandoned in, or soon after 1717, and for it was subtituted in the first Charge as follows:—

"But though in ancient times Masons were charged in every country or nation to be of the religion of that country, whatever it was, yet it is now thought more expedient only to oblige them to be of that religion in which all men agree, leaving their particular opinions to themselves," &c.

And, furthermore, how could Bro. Pike claim that the mission of Scottish Masonry was to tread under foot despotism and tyranny, and at the same time believe that the most unscrupulous despot, Frederick of Prussia, could have patronised such liberty-loving, and tyranny-hating Masonry as Bro. Pike imagined it to have been? Bro. P. says:

"It is said that in May 1786 Frederick was not competent to transact any business. That is not true. He was competent and did it; [viz. that he wrote the Charleston charter]. He was not known, it is said, to have had anything to do with high degrees. Of course not. If he [Frederick] was at the Rite of Strict Observance, or real Templarism, the outside world would not have been very likely to know it; there is no evidence to prove that [Charleston] Constitutions were forged. We do not believe they were. We know that before 1786 Frederick was regarded by the Masons of the Rite of Perfection as their head; for Bro. Solomon Bush wrote to him as such from Philadelphia (we think) in 1873."

The facts however are: Frederick was neither at the head of the Strict Observance, nor of the A. and A. Rite. The Strict Observance was no more real Templarism than the Templarism of Bro. Gouley. Solomon Bush never wrote a letter to Frederick either in 1783 or at any other time, and the most impartial investigators have unanimously denounced the Charleston Charter of 1786 as a forgery.

"The Scottish degrees (says Bro. P.) are Scottish and not French; they are Scottish for reasons of which the editor (Gouley) seems to be profoundly ignorant."

But Dr. Manningham's letter of 1756, and Lyon's "History of Freemasonry in Scotland," as I shall hereafter show, prove that Scotland was not the birthplace of high degrees. Bro. P. further says:

"The Royal Order Herodom of Scotland we know to be very ancient. It claims to have been established in 1314 by Robert Bruce." Bro. Pike also believed that James III. in 1721 sent a warrant from Arras, "authorising certain London Knights to confer the Rose Croix and Kadosh Templar Degrees," and that Charles Edward Stuart, son of the former, established a Rose Croix Chapter at Arras in 1747.

Now, Dr. Manningham's letter of 1756, which has often been printed (see Mackey's Cyc., art. Manningham), gave the first blow to the pretension of Scottish high degrees. These so-called Scottish degrees are claimed to have been worked at Kilwinning. But Bro. Lyon says:

"The Fraternity of Kilwinning never at any period practised or acknowledged other than Craft degrees; neither does there exist any tradition worthy of that name, local or national, nor has any authentic document yet been discovered that can in the remotest degree be held to identify Robert Bruce with holding Masonic courts, or the institution of a secret society at Kilwinning."

In short, the Royal Order of Scotland was manufactured in the last century. Bro. Gould proved conclusively that Charles Edward Stuart was not a Mason, and, as to the alleged Masonry of James III., it is too absurd to be discussed. After Bro. Pike has so zealously advocated the antiquity of his high degrees, which, as already shown, is without any foundation, it is rather amusing to read the following. He says:—

"Intelligent men may probably be induced to respect Masonry more if it will persuade its writers to indulge less in ridiculous inventions, gravely published as traditions; to cease relying for evidence of antiquity on charters that are not genuine, and manuscripts of apocryphal authority, pretended to exist in the Bodleian Library . . . and also, if they will become ashamed of claiming as Freemasonic associations the old working guilds of Stonecutters, with Christopher Wren as a Grand Master."

Now, with all due respect to Bro. Pike, I must say (1st), while Bro. Pike believed in the Robert Bruce Masonry, and the genuineness of the Charleston Charter of 1786, the censure he designed for the writers of ridiculous inventions, &c., is equally applicable to himself; and (2nd), while I agree with him that the Bodleian Henry VI. does not exist, and that Christopher Wren was not a Grand Master, I cannot see how he could impute the parentage of our Freemasonry to any other source than to the stonecutters of the Middle Ages. For, in the first place, the Lodge of Antiquity MS. 1688 is essentially the same as that of the Alnwick Operative Lodge, which continued an operative Lodge for many years after 1717, and the records of all the old Lodges in Scotland, that formed there the Grand Lodge in 1736, prove conclusively that from first to last they were operative Lodges. So far, I had good reason to find fault with Bro. Pike's credulity; but next comes something better. He says:—

"Criticism is continually occupied in dissecting history, detecting forgery, and resolving annals into myths and legends, and Masonry cannot escape the searching investigation. Bro. Mackey says, 'the laws which govern the institution of Freemasonry are of two kinds, written and unwritten, the latter are derived from the traditions, usages, and customs of the Fraternity as they have existed from the remotest antiquity, the written law is derived principally from the following sources:—1st, The Ancient Charges, said to have been written in the days of James II., and 2nd, The Regulations adopted at the General Assembly held in 1603.'

"But," adds Bro. P., "that learned brother must well know that no Masonic Charges were written in the reign of James II., and there is no evidence at all that any General Assembly was held in 1663." Again,

"How many of us know which among the symbols of Masonry are really ancient and which are modern, so modern as not to have been used before the beginning of this century; we know how long it had been pretended, exciting the quiet contempt of the well-informed, that the Saints John were patrons of Masonry," &c. Again,

"Since the publication of Findel's history, it would be quite as well for Masons of other Rites to say very little about the A. and A. Rite being modern. The positive statements of that careful historian that the Master's degree was not known prior to 1700 (which are unquestionably true) should teach them a little caution . . . Until after 1700 there were no degrees in Masonry. There were Apprentices, Fellows free of the Craft, and Officers called Masters and Wardens, but no degree of Master Mason, or any other." (The italicising above is Bro. Pike's).

After asking Gouley the meaning of York Rite, Bro. P. proceeds to show the modernness of the several groups of degrees called York Rite, and says,

"The Royal and Select Master was wholly unknown until about 1800. The Chapter degrees were fixed up by Webb not long after that time; and that Templarism, as worked in this country, is wholly different from the Order of that name in England and on the Continent of Europe, and more modern than even the Council and Chapter degrees." Again:—

"He (Gouley) stated that the 'Order of Temple' has existed in this country for nearly eighty years, and in Europe, in one form or another, for near seven hundred years. The Masonic Templar Degree was carried from France into England about 1750, and worked in the Dermott Lodges. In 1791 Dunckerley put himself at the head of the Encampment, in which that and other degrees of Herodom Kodosh were worked . . . In England, before 1791, Masonic Templarism was worked by artizans and mechanics, and the degree was given for a few shillings. It never had the least connection with the Templar Order, and is not now recognised by the Scottish and English Templars. The Order of the Temple in France is wholly a different thing. The American degree was made by Webb, and Templarism is not a whit more connected or related to the genuine Chivalric Order of the Temple than Odd Fellows.

"It is proper to call any Rite bastard and illegitimate, none deserve it more than the American, which is one of the latest in the world, younger than the Rite of Misraim of Badarrid, and, including the Council degrees, young as the Rite of Memphis of Marconis de Negre

"The evidence of the antiquity of Masonry consists of hints here and there, and occasionally a word or phrase, which those who have worked over and over again its Rituals have intentionally let alone, not knowing their significance. Its present formulas and Rituals are not old; its lectures and explanations of its symbols are modern. A Mason of 1717 could not gain entrance into an American Lodge in 1867.

If space permitted, I could have trebled extracts to the same effect. Sufficient, however, has been given to show that while Bro. Pike in 1871 ridiculed the claimed antiquity in behalf of the York Rite, and referred with sarcastic contempt to believers of the Bodleian MS., and in the patronage of the Saints John, and, while he admitted that the degrees, Rituals, symbols, &c., of the York Rite are modern, he at the same time adhered to a belief in the Masonry of Robert Bruce, in the Rose Croixism of James III. and of Charles Edward Stuart, in the genuineness of the 1786 Charter. In short, he believes in the antiquity of Scottish Rite Masonry. But in his recent pamphlet—viz., "Masonic Origins," Bro. Pike abandons the antiquity even of his pet Scottish Rite. He says:—

"The next Rite that made its appearance in Masonry was that of Perfection, or Heredom (not in Scotland, but in France), composed of the Blue degrees and twenty-two others, the eighteenth being the Rose Croix, and the twenty-fifth the 'Prince of the Royal Secret.' Of the authors, or origin, or separate working, before the organisation of the Rite, of any except two or three of the twenty-two degrees, no information whatever has come down to us; and little reliance is to be placed on what has been told in regard to these two or three. The degrees had been organised into a Rite before 1762. One by one they had been invented, worked, communicated by the inventors to others, and at last—how and by whom, nobody knows—had been arranged into a system called a Rite."

I was informed by a New York brother that formerly Bro. Pike believed in the antiquity of all Masonic traditions, including that of Hiram's monument, of the "Broken column and the Virgin weeping." But, be that as it may, in 1867 Bro. Pike ceased to believe in the antiquity of the York Rite, and now even two or three cherished degrees of the Scottish Rite he admits to be doubtful. Bro. Pike is the best informed American Mason, as far as Masonic history and literature are concerned. The modernness of all of our degrees has been demonstrated by Bros. Findel, Lyon, Hughan, Gould, and others. Such being the case, I think it is high time for every sincere lover of truth to exert his influence for ridding Masonry of an accumulated mass of fiction, which is alike repugnant to religion and common sense. In short, a clean sweep of all the rubbish must be made sooner or later, and the sooner it is done the better will it be for the reputation of our Fraternity—that is, if we desire to preserve and deserve the title of "Honourable."

Boston, U.S., 16th March 1886.

We have received a copy of a neatly got-up little work, containing a lecture on "The two Pillars at the porchway entrance of King Solomon's Temple," delivered by W. Bro. J. T. Thorp, P.M. 523, P.P.G.S.W., at the Union Lodge of Instruction, Freemasons' Hall, Leicester. It forms a neat little handbook of notes interesting to Masons, shedding much light upon abstruse points in our ritual, the chief endeavour of the writer being to fix the respective positions of the two brazen pillars. He gives a brief historical account, describing the form and situation, both of the original Tabernacle and also of the Temple itself, and the little brochure is accompanied by plans of each. We commend it to the perusal of all who are desirous of adding to their store of Masonic knowledge, derived from evidence and research.

Monday—Eclectic Chapter. Wednesday—Smeatonian Society, Lodge of Progress, Italian Ball. Thursday—St. James's Chapter, Universal Chapter, Victoria Rifles Lodge, Westminster and Keystone Lodge. Friday—Britannic Chapter, Royal Kensington Lodge, Thistle Lodge, Odd Volumes, Society de Secours mutuel des Suisses. Saturday—City and West End Soirée.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—:o:—

"Debrett's Illustrated Heraldic and Biographical House of Commons and Judicial Bench, 1886." Edited by R. H. Mair, LL.D. Illustrated with armorial bearings. London: Dean and Son, 160a Fleet Street, E.C.

Like all other of Debrett's standard works, this elaborate and exhaustive compilation stands alone as a book of reference on the subjects of which it treats. Dr. Mair has brought to his aid all the authentic information which it was possible to obtain down to the present time, with respect to the composition of the lower house of our Imperial Legislature, and gives a notice of each of the members now sitting in Parliament; the counties, divisions, universities, boroughs, and borough-wards for which they were returned; with the names of the unsuccessful candidates, and the numbers recorded at the polls. Against the latter are placed shields, bearing the borough arms, or corporation seals; and indices are made of newly created boroughs, and of members who did not sit in the last Parliament, or who sat for other constituencies. Divisions of counties and boroughs are given in alphabetical order by their primary title, under the heading of their respective county, and not in the numerical order in which they appear in the "Redistribution of Seats Act." The number of members returned by the several constituencies are indicated, as also are the number of registered electors, and the number upon the register prior to the extension of the Franchise, while the Parliamentary populations (based on the last census) of counties and divisions are also given in concise form, most easy for reference. Considerable space is devoted to the names, families, and residences of the Peers and Peeresses of the United Kingdom, to which are appended Peers' surnames and eldest sons' titles; followed by a full and comprehensive list of the Judicial Bench, in the order of precedence: judges of county courts; recorders; metropolitan and stipendiary magistrates; colonial judges; together with a useful explanation of technical Parliamentary expressions, with brief descriptions of the duties of some of the higher officers of State. In addition to these, a list of the Ministry is given; the public and general Acts passed during the 6th session of the 10th Parliament of H.M. Queen Victoria (48 and 49 Vic.) are enumerated; a list of the High Chancellors and Speakers of the House of Commons since the Reform Act of 1832; clerks and officers of the Houses of Peers and Commons; constitutions of the House of Commons; general elections since the Reform Act; duration of Parliaments, &c., of the United Kingdom; a list of Administrations since 1715; a comparative table showing the differences of population and representation between the present and old constituencies; Peeresses in their own rights; representative Peers for Ireland and Scotland; Peers who are minors, and the dates when they attain their majorities; dates of adjournments of Parliament, 1842-83; lords-lieutenants of counties; addresses of clubs, &c. It will thus be gathered that the work before us is a perfect encyclopedia of all that it may be desired to know in reference to the House of Commons and no single item of information on the various points treated has been overlooked. A considerable amount of care and erudition must have been brought to bear upon this vast work by the editor and compiler, whose efforts are produced in the finest style of the typographic art and binding. The work is not only indispensable as a book of reference to the politician, but forms a pleasing ornament and addition to any library or the drawing-room table.

An ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Portsmouth Freemasons' Hall and Club Company was held in the Lodge-room, at the Company's premises, Commercial-road, on Tuesday, 30th ult. Messrs. William Miles, Henry Croucher, Robert J. Rastrick, and John H. Corke were re-elected Directors, and other formal business having been transacted, the proceedings terminated with the usual votes of thanks.

Bro. J. M. Klenck has been unanimously elected, at a Vestry meeting of St. Helen's, Bishopsgate, to be one of the Overseers of the parish for the ensuing year.

A lecture will be delivered by Bro. S. Valentine P.M. No. 9, at the Albion Lodge of Instruction, Crown Hotel, Essex Street, Strand, on Friday evening, the 16th instant. Subject: "Some Speculations as to the Origin of Freemasonry; its Signs, Tokens and Words, as suggested by the Bible."

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the respiratory organs. In common colds and influenza the Pills, taken internally, and the Ointment rubbed over the chest and throat, are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic, this treatment is the easiest, safest, and surest. Holloway's Pills purify the blood, remove all obstacles to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the over-gorged air tubes, and render respiration free, without reducing the strength, irritating the nerves, or depressing the spirits; such are the really means of saving suffering when any one is afflicted with colds, coughs, bronchitis, and other chest complaints, by which so many persons are seriously and permanently afflicted in most countries.

THE THEATRES, &c.

Comedy.—To catch the popular taste now-a-days is to ensure success, and in this Messrs. Harry Paulton and Mostyn Tedde have achieved a great triumph by their travestie of "Masse-en-yell-oh." As the title suggests, the piece is a skit on the West-End riots, with the scene laid at Naples; and the idea is to expose the avarice and laxiness of the sedition-mongers, the absurd demands of the "unemployed," and the weakness and indecision of the authorities, with Mr. Percy Compton making up cleverly as head of the metropolitan gendarmerie, in satire upon the late Chief Commissioner of our own metropolitan force. There is talking galore all through the piece, and the hero does quite his share of the fun-making, assisted in admirable manner by Miss M. A. Victor, who delineates the Cockney-Neapolitan winkle-seller with irresistible archness and verve. The dancing is excellent throughout, especially that by Mr. F. Wyatt. Mr. F. Mervin makes up into a capital embodiment of a police-sergeant, and Miss Mellnotte, Mr. Lytton Grey, Mr. A. Collini, and Mr. Hubert George acquit themselves meritoriously in the other prominent parts. The sketch is prettily mounted, and altogether makes an acceptable after-piece to the successful comic opera, "Erminie."

Novelty.—Nothing daunted by the course of ill-luck that has attended this house since he has been connected with it, Mr. Edouin has re-opened its doors, but without the assistance of his old colleague, Mr. Lionel Brough. This time the popular manager has placed on the boards a burlesque, by Mr. George Dance, entitled "Oliver Grumble," and what with charming music, pretty dresses and scenery, and capital jokes, at last he seems to have hit the public taste. The burlesque is based on events during the time of King Charles I. and Cromwell. Oliver, scheming to overthrow the king, is embarrassed by the twin children of one Ireton. A battle takes place on Primrose Hill, where Charles is taken prisoner and incarcerated in prison. Miss Alice Atherton and Mr. Willie Edouin, as Carrie and Harrie, are the life of the piece, and certainly ought to secure a success such as they achieved with "The Babes." They are always ready to dance and sing, and this they do with such success that they are encored again and again. In the prison scene we see these clever artistes imitating a Hindoo juggler and a Nautch girl. Such an imitation we seldom see, and they must have spent considerable time at the Indian Village to bring their performance to such perfection. Miss Atherton also scores another success in her clever song, "The Fan." Mr. Arthur Williams, as Oliver Grumble, is extremely funny, and this is certainly one of the best things he has done for a long time. Miss Edith Blande (King Charles), Miss Emily Spiller (Prince Rupert), and Miss Addy Conyers (Lord Fairfax), all do their utmost to merit the applause that is nightly bestowed on them. Certainly the best singer of the company is Miss Dysart, who takes the part of Queen Henrietta Maria. Mr. Mark Kinghorne (Mr. Dee) has but few opportunities to distinguish himself, but he makes plenty of use of his legs. Smaller parts are well sustained by Miss Nellie Murray (Bridget), Mr. F. Grove (old Ireton), Mr. Chas. E. Stevens (John Hampden), Miss Jennie Dawson (Jymes). There is a good chorus, and, with a little more experience, "Oliver Grumble" ought again to bring success to the house wherein Mr. Edouin has shown so much enterprise.

Old Acquaintance Musical Society. — An admirable smoking concert was given at Freemasons' Tavern on Tuesday evening last, under the auspices of the "Old Acquaintance" Musical Society, in compliment to its musical director, Bro. J. Kift—a face well known at so many of our Lodges in the City and elsewhere. The artists who gave their assistance on this occasion included Bros. H. Ashton, Franklin Clive, Sackville Evans, W. G. Forington, E. Gatfield, Albert James, McCall Chambers, H. P. Matthews, W. Pallant, H. Schartau, Arthur Thomas, Arthur Thompson, Sidney Tower, and J. Wheeler; Victor Buziau (violin), and J. A. Brousil (violoncello). Bro. S. J. Pallant (Hon. Secretary) presided, and an admirably selected programme was submitted to a numerous and highly appreciative audience. After the glee, "Strike the lyre," Bro. Sackville Evans sang the "Toreador's Song" from "Carmen," and was followed by Mr. Arthur Thomas, who rendered in good voice A Lee's "The Macgregor's Gathering." After a humorous song by Bro. Schartau, came Millard's ballad, "Thinking of home," with vocal accompaniment, by Bro. Montem Smith, and the manner in which the piece was rendered by Bro. Albert James was such as to elicit unbounded and enthusiastic applause. This, in our opinion, as in that of many others, was the gem of the eveing. Bro. Victor Buziau gave a brilliant violin solo, and was followed by Bro. Arthur Thompson in Hatton's "The clown's song." Mr. W. Pallant gave a humorous sketch. Bro. Franklin Clive sang "Old Chelsea," by Tito Mattei; and the first part of the programme was concluded by Bro. H. P. Matthews in humorous vein. Part second opened with Bishop's glee, "Hart and Hind," and the other items included—Nautical song, "Old Pilot Jim," Corney Grain—Mr. E. Gatfield; violoncello solo, "Tarantella," Dunkler—Mr. J. Adolphe Brousil; humorous sketch—Bro. Lieut. Cole; recitation—Mr. J. Wheeler; song, "The young friar," Mrs. A. Goodeve—Mr. W. G. Forington; ballad, "When other lips," Balfe—Mr. Sydney Tower; humorous song, Mr. McCall Chambers. Bro. J. Kift conducted with his usual skill and ability, and the audience, on departing, expressed their extreme pleasure and satisfaction with the musical treat which had been provided for their delectation.

"MASONIC RECORDS."

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—I shall be glad if you will kindly allow me to call the attention of your readers to an advertisement in another column of the Freemason's Chronicle, in reference to my forthcoming volume on "Masonic Records." Acting on the advice of valued friends, especially of my esteemed Bro. W. J. Hughan, I have decided to publish a larger edition, and to issue the work to all subscribers before publication at one guinea per copy, being only half of the original price. I shall be glad to have the names of intending subscribers as early as possible. Brethren who have already promised to take copies at two guineas will, of course, only have to pay the reduced price of one guinea per copy. I hope, however, to hear that many of them will take an additional copy, which would form a useful present to the Lodge libraries.

Yours fraternally,

THE COMING FESTIVAL OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—The day fast approaches when the Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls for the current year will be held, and anxiety grows apace as to what the result of that meeting will prove to be. I must confess to being of a very inquisitive turn of mind, and having occasion to frequently visit the county of Surrey, I have been at some trouble to try and find out what the brethren of that county are doing in support of the Chairmanship of their Prov. Grand Master. So far as I can judge they are not doing so well as they have done before. I may be wrong in my surmise, but I believe it is the fact that Surrey has not yet sent up as many supporters of their esteemed Provincial Grand Master as they might have done, and the time is getting very short during which the brethren of the district will have opportunities of supplying the deficiency. I trust they will excuse my interference, but may I appeal most strongly to them to make a supreme effort on this occasion? They have two particular reasons for doing so. First, they will show respect to their Provincial Grand Master, and, second, they will help in a good cause.

Yours fraternally,
A Surrey Visitor.

A PANACEA FOR "THE UNEMPLOYED."

IN the present agitation with respect to the great depression of trade and industry, when difficulties in obtaining employment are driving men to find relief from the Mansion House and other funds, the mind naturally turns upon the discovery of some means whereby to ease the "glutted" labour market. A popular idea is that emigration is the only cure for the evils which are so apparent, and the sore distress which is everywhere around us, not only amongst the "labouring" classes, so-called, but amongst skilled artizans and mechanics. There are many ways of looking at this question, which admits of criticism of a varied nature. Many consider, and with a great degree of force, that the enormous sum contributed to the Mansion House Fund—towards which, by the way, Grand Lodge sent a donation of £200—is but a "drop in the ocean," and fails to meet the requirements of the case. Temporary relief, it is urged, is but an incentive to listlessness; and, pitiable as it may be to see each day crowds of indigent men clustering around the doors of the "branch relief offices" in London and the suburbs, it can hardly be gainsaid that the unhappy-looking individuals who spend so much time hankering after their little doles might be more profitably employed. Sam Weller, at a certain interesting epoch in his history, uttered the sage ejaculation, "Whether it is worth while going through so much to learn so little is a mystery." And so many of the poor fellows who would scorn the inquisition of the Charity Organisation Society—a huge blot upon the very name of Charity—are yet fain to tremble on the threshold of the "national gift" for the merest help in the support of their wives and families. It is not our province to canvass the many suggestions which have been made as to the manner in which the present congestion of the labour market might be ameliorated. We leave it to the legislator and the statesmen to say whether the starting of gigantic public works would meet the exigencies of a depression which is without parallel in the present generation. There is one scheme, however, which has recently been propounded by a Somersetshire vicar and his wife which, if it could be rendered practicable, might possibly tend to the more permanent benefit of the working classes of this country. The idea is that societies should be formed in every district for placing before the necessitous the advantages of emigration to "more favoured climes," especially naming New Zealand, and that "all—even the poorest—should be asked to contribute regularly (say as little as a penny per week) towards paying passages out, &c." The "idea" is a good and generous one theoretically, but we fear it will be endorsed by few beyond that circle which is standing by the kindly-hearted vicar of a country parish and his estimable wife. Men who have moved about in the world and know what life is, fail to see that, whilst men, women, and children are starving in our midst, they will hesitate to subscribe their little mites—though "only a penny per week"—towards assisting their brethren to "leave their country for their country's good." We say theoretically the idea is good, but we fear it is optimist and unworkable. There can be no question, as the advocates of this scheme of assisted emigration point out, that the evils attendant on an overstocked labour market will increase rather than diminish, and the question therefore of relief is too broad for any individual solution. It has been suggested to us by a correspondent that "if the influence of the Brotherhood could be secured in this direction"—that is of creating a national "self-aid" system of emigration—great things might be accomplished, and the well-known kind and brotherly feeling of the Freemasons would do much to dispel the resentment which often arises when the subject of emigration is proposed to the home-loving Englishman. Without in any way criticising in an unfriendly spirit the well-intentioned suggestions of our correspondent, it is well to say that a difficulty at once presents itself to the Craft in any way dealing with the subject in any shape or form. Freemasons, though unstinted in their benevolent actions, are restricted—in their Masonic capacity—to the objects for which the Institution was founded, and in which it exercises so enormously a munificent influence. Freemasons, as a body, have no power whatever to contribute any more than they have done to the alleviation of the distress which we see about us, nor to aid in the transference of any of our poor, however deserving or desirous of emigrating to "more favoured climes." Thus dismissing as impracticable any appeal to the general body of the Craft for such a purpose, it is open to question whether, "however wretched the prospects" of the unemployed, emigration is "ever looked upon as the last resource." Those who attended the recent Conference on Emigration held in London, and heard the discussion that took place amongst men who had made a study of colonial life and experience, will have come to the conclusion that almost equal difficulty exists there as we find at home. The best hands who are "willing to toil" may unquestionably reap the "fruits of the soil." But the fact so often reiterated still holds good that the men who fail to succeed at home are as little likely to find a royal road to prosperity anywhere. If emigration means the drafting of our best skilled hands, and leaving the home market to the monopoly of the mediocre, we cannot see it would tend in any measure to the national weal. On the other hand, if our "ne'er-do-weels" are to be shipped off "in communities," as our correspondent says, they will find but a sorry welcome at the hands of the colonists, unless, forsooth, "some of the principal colonists could be induced to interest themselves in the party's welfare on arrival." We quite agree that such an act of magnanimity on the part of the "principal colonists" would "take off much of the feeling of loneliness and uncertainty every emigrant must experience on going to an unknown world." But hard dry facts must be looked calmly in the face in the consideration of any such a scheme as has been shadowed forth in the letter before us; and much as we should be disposed to lend what little aid we could in the way of solving the great labour problem, it must, after all, resolve itself into a question of who are fit or otherwise of being assisted to emigrate to more favoured climes, should they desire it. We have before us a couple of pamphlets, compiled for the Auckland Agricultural Company, Limited, setting forth, in interesting manner, details as to the climate, natural resources, &c., of New Zealand, with full information as to the means of getting there, and obtaining land on advantageous terms. These are accompanied by items of "general interest to the intending emigrant," which we commend to the perusal of those who may be interested in the subject. In the event of their success on the distant shores of the Antipodes being such as to enable them to aid the funds of "the Free Emigration Association," well and good; but, once for all, it must be understood that our Colonies are only fitted for those who, in the words of the pamphlet, are "really willing to work in a position to gain a honest livelihood in a most healthy and fertile country, where workhouses and starving people are alike unknown, and where, by means of industry and thrift, a man may maintain his family comfortably, and also make a provision for his old age." Work, industry, and thrift form the threefold key to all success in life, whether at home or abroad; and, neither in this country nor in any other can it be otherwise. Such enterprises as that in which Dr. Barnardo and others are engaged, of sending sturdy young lads to the Colonies, is a step in the right direction, and all who witnessed the departure of two hundred of that philanthropist's "family" for Canada a few days since will be stimulated in their exertions to support the movement inaugurated by the founder of our "boys' homes." But the case is otherwise in respect to those who are popularly known as "the unemployed," and we fail to see that the remedy for the existing evils lies wholly and solely in emigration. In any case, however, any scheme which may tend to the benefit of the deserving poor is worthy of consideration, and we therefore commend to the perusal of any who may feel an interest in the matter the two practical treatises on New Zealand which have been published by the Auckland Agricultural Company, 68 and 69 Cornhill, London.

THE THIRD CITY MASONIC BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION.

THE twenty-fourth meeting of this Association, which is held in connection with the Sincerity Lodge of Instruction, No. 174, took place at the Railway Tavern, Fenchurch Street, on Monday, the 22nd ult. Bro. J. Newton, the President of the Association, was in the chair, and there were also present Bro. F. Brown Vice-President, G. Ward Verry Treasurer, H. M. Hobbs Secretary, and the following members of the Committee, viz.:—Bros. Webb, J. S. Fraser, Haslip, and G. Jones; also Bros. Large, Magee, Matthews, Smith, &c. Two ballots were obtained by Bros. G. B. Foster and D. Scott. This being the end of the Society's financial year, the Officers and Committee were unanimously re-elected, and Bros. Large and Magee appointed Auditors. Bro. J. Newton, the President, in calling attention to the fact that this Association had now been in existence for two years, congratulated the members on the success that had attended it, and referred with satisfaction to the number of ballots which had been drawn, viz., fifty-two, of ten guineas each.

We have been requested to announce that the Loughboro' Lodge of Instruction, No. 22, has changed its place of meeting from the Cambria, Loughboro' Junction, to the Gauden Hotel, Clapham. The time of meeting is Monday evening, at 7·30.

The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed at the Prince Leopold Lodge of Instruction, No. 1445, held at Bro. W. H. Myers's Printing Works, 302 Whitechapel-road, by Bro. Pringle, W.M. No. 781, on Monday evening, 5th April, at seven o'clock.

EGYPTIAN LODGE, No. 27.

THE installation meeting of this prosperous old Lodge was held on Thursday evening, at Anderton's Hotel, when there was a goodly muster of the brethren and visitors, under the presidency of the retiring W.M., Bro. E. B. Haynes. He was supported by Bros. Matthew H. Hale S.W., A. T. Webster J.W., H. G. Buss P.M. Treasurer, J. B. Poole P.M. Secretary, J. W. Dixon S.D., C. B. Todd J.D.; Past Masters T. J. Maidwell, W. H. Libbis, J. Green, J. H. Jacobs, J. March, S. R. Lamble, C. T. Cuthbertson, F. Harrison and J. L. Coulson; Bros. H. H. Haynes, J. Colwell, L. Burt, H. Wright, J. Langs, F. May, F. Izant, A. W. May, R. D. Smith, J. Hollyman, J. O. Kennedy, W. G. Cleare, A. Porter, B. Young, Isaac Scarth, J. Easton, S. Ullman, W. H. Allen, S. J. Davers, Potter Tyler, and many others. Amongst the Visitors were Brothers J. Dornshea W.M. 715 S.C. (Sydney), A. W. Wills P.M. 299 P.G.D.C. Kent, R. R. Harper P.M. and Secretary 813, T. R. Smith P.M. 1558, L. C. Haslip P.M. 813, T. White, J. Nicholls P.M. 25, J. Gibbs I.P.M. 1613, G. B. Chapman S.W. 299, A. C. Wood I.G. 720, Charles Evans J.W. 1922, M. Gelder 185, G. R. Bolton S.W. 1314, D. N. Sherwill 813, G. H. Jackson 860, H. H. Bridgman 2030, &c. The brethren assembled soon after half-past four o'clock, when Lodge was opened with the customary formalities, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Having advanced to the third degree, Bro. Wright was raised, the impressive ceremony being performed by the W.M., assisted by his Officers. Resuming in the second, Bro. J. E. Coxwell was passed, the working in this degree being also of a most meritorious character. Having closed to the first, the ballot was opened for Mr. Edwin Palmer, who had been nominated by the Worshipful Master, and seconded by Bro. T. J. Maidwell P.M. The voting was unanimously in favour, but Mr. Palmer being unavoidably absent, the ceremony of initiation had necessarily to be deferred. Bro. M. H. Hale S.W. was then presented as the Worshipful Master elect, and having assented to the responsibilities of office, a board of Installed Masters was duly constituted, when Bro. Hale was installed into the chair of K.S., with the usual solemnities. On the re-admission of the brethren, the newly-installed Worshipful Master was proclaimed, and saluted with the customary honours, after which he proceeded to invest his Officers for the ensuing year. The whole of the installation ceremony was performed in masterly manner by Bro. T. J. Maidwell P.M., who delivered the traditional charges with excellent effect, eliciting frequent expressions of approbation from all present. A committee was appointed to revise the bye laws of the Lodge, and some routine business have been transacted the Lodge was closed amidst the heartiest good wishes. Subsequently the brethren and Visitors adjourned to the Pillar Hall, where a sumptuous banquet was provided, in a manner that amply sustained Bro. Clemow's reputation as a caterer. The arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of the numerous company were all that could be desired. At the conclusion of the repast, the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, that of the Worshipful Master, the Immediate Past Master, the Installing Officer, and the Visitors being received with special enthusiasm. A handsome Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. Haynes on his retirement from the chair, as a Mark of the esteem with which he is held by the brethren, and in recognition of the valuable services he had rendered to the Lodge during his successful year of office. The proceedings, which were of a most agreeable and harmonious character throughout, were interspersed with a capital selection of vocal and instrumental music, and a very happy evening was enjoyed.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—At the meeting held on Monday, 29th ult., at the Cock Tavern, Highbury, N, Bros. Cooper W.M., Dixie S.W., Marks J.W., Collingridge Secretary, Hancock S.D., Weeden J.D., Ware I.G., Western acting Preceptor. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was opened in the second degree, when Bro. Collingridge, as candidate for raising, answered the usual questions and was entrusted. Lodge opened in the third degree, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. Bro. Kirk was appointed W.M. for 5th April.

The Annual Supper took place on Monday, 22nd March, when between forty and fifty brethren enjoyed the excellent catering of the Bros. Baker. Bro. Cooper W.M. took the chair, and Bro. Forge S.W. filled the vice chair. After the usual Loyal toasts, Prosperity to the Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, coupled with the name of Bro. Trewinnard, Preceptor, was given. Bro. Trewinnard, in reply, thanked the brethren for their support during the past year, and for again electing him. Bro. Forge, Treasurer, announced the amount of money he had in hand, while Bro. Collingridge, Secretary, informed the brethren that at forty-five meetings the average attendance was twelve. The funds had been expended on a life vote to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, on Bro. Woodman's list. The annual subscription to the "Old Folks'" entertainment at Christmas had been given, and the bye-laws of the Lodge of Instruction had been reprinted. The piano was kept going by Bro. Collings, assisted by Bro. Thomas, while Bros. Woodman, Smith, and Mullord sang, and several brethren recited. After spending a very pleasant evening the brethren separated in harmony.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London or Country by Bro. G. A. BUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement.—This eminent Chapter of Improvement is now pursuing a most successful career, for every weekly meeting is attended by some of the most distinguished members of the supreme degree. The usual meeting was held on Tuesday last, 30th March, at the White Hart, Aldchurch Lane, and was well attended by P.Z.'s and others, amongst whom were Comps. E. C. Beedell, H. C. Jepps, M. H. Loney, J. L. Anderson, J. S. Payne, H. Forss, C. H. Webb, J. S. Fraser, A. Fish, E. Stanton, J. Brittain, H. Thompson, R. J. Notley, Herbert Ruff, J. Charles, C. Jones, Howard Ruff, J. Newton, &c. The Chapter having been opened, the ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed in the usual style of excellence. Comps. J. S. Fraser M.E.Z., C. H. Webb H., J. Brittain J., Charles S.N. and F. Brown Preceptor. Comp. Fish was the candidate. At the conclusion of the exaltation ceremony, Comp. A. E. Staley, of the Jerusalem Chapter, No. 185, was unanimously elected a member of this Chapter of Improvement. The election of Officers for the next fortnight then took place, which resulted as follows:—Comps. Notley M.E.Z., Forss H., Herbert Ruff J., Jones S.N., Beedell P.S. Comp. Brown, the Preceptor of the Chapter, announced that on Tuesday, the 13th of April, the installation of Principals will be rehearsed by the following Companions—C. H. Webb P.Z. Stanmore Chapter, J. S. Fraser Z. of Hope and Unity Chapter, Romford, W. Gillard Z. of Mount Sinai Chapter; the ceremony to commence at half-past five o'clock, when the attendance of all present and past Principals is fraternally invited. As the Installation ceremony is seldom rehearsed in Chapters of Improvement, a favourable opportunity is presented to Royal Arch Principals of hearing the Ritual of this supreme degree.

The regular weekly Convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement, No. 1471, was held on Thursday, at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's-road, N. Comps. Wm. Radcliffe M.E.Z., W. H. Dean H., F. Brasted J., J. E. Sheffield S.E., J. Funston S.N., T. C. Edmonds P.S. The Chapter was fairly attended, and the ceremony of exaltation was ably rehearsed.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE Exhibition Building in Prince Alfred Park presented a brilliant spectacle recently, when His Excellency Bro. Lord Carrington enjoyed the hospitality of his brother Masons. From all parts of the colony members of the Craft had come to do him honour. The galleries were filled with ladies, who were rewarded with an insight, as far as banqueting went, into the mysteries of the Masonic Craft. Below this animated assemblage there sat in the body of the hall more than 600 Masons. The crush was too great for the caterer, Mr. Gunsler, for whose reputation sympathy was expressed, as the tables had only been laid for 500—that is, 100 persons less than tickets were sold to the day preceding. His Excellency, who was accompanied by Capt. Gascoigne A.D.C., was received by the D.G.M.'s of the English and Scottish Constitutions (Bros. John Williams and Dr. Sedgwick respectively). Accompanied by six Stewards they conducted him to the place of honour; the band, under the direction of Herr Patek, playing the National Anthem. Behind the Governor there hung the Royal Standard—before him, high up on the gallery railing, was the Royal coat of arms; and in front of him, on the table, was a magnificent floral decoration. Among white dahlias and tuber roses Mr. Searle had skilfully worked, with red geraniums, in large letters, distinguishable at any distance, the words "Welcome, Lord Carrington." The Governor sat on the right of the Chairman (Bro. J. Williams), and on the left was Bro. Dr. Sedgwick. The Lodges under the two Constitutions were well represented by Masters, Past Masters, and brethren. The Mayor of Sydney, Bro. John Young, was present. Among the Grand Lodge Officers present were the following:—Bros. F. A. Wright D.D.G.M. (E.C.), H. Westcott P.D.D.G.M. (E.C.), H. Simpson P.D.D.G.M. (E.C.), Gastain Sahiel G.S.W. (E.C.), W. H. Tulloh J.W. (E.C.), F. B. Davidson D.D.G.M. (E.C.), T. Read Registrar, W. H. Stokes Pres. Board of Gen. Purps., W. Webster Grand Treasurer, A. H. Bray Grand Secretary, A. A. P. Tighe D.G.D.C., J. Booth G.S.D., J. Leavicon G.S.D., S. Hodge G.J.D., A. Hancocks and J. Marshall Sword Bearers, Albert Chapman D.G.J.W. (S.C.), J. M. Lachlan D.G.S.C., M. S. Levy Instructor of Works, J. Macdonald President Board of Benevolence, W. Higstein D.G.S. (S.C.), Madgwick D.G. Chaplain (E.C.), Darcy Irvine D.G. Chaplain (S.C.), F. W. Knight Grand Pursuivant, Captain Airey Assistant Grand Pursuivant, and G. F. Garland D.G. Organist. The toast list was brief and brotherly. First there was that of the Queen, then that of the Prince of Wales, the Grand Master of English and Patron of Scottish Freemasonry, to which the brethren responded with the honours, "One Point 21," led by the Director of Ceremonies. The Chairman then proposed the toast of the Governor. He said it was well known that their guest was an intimate friend of their brother, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and was one of the most respected and esteemed of England's peers. With such a name and fame it was unnecessary for him to say that all Masonic honours should belong to him. His Excellency, more than any other man in the colony, was fitted to consolidate Masonry there. And if in his wisdom it was essentially necessary that his Excellency should perform this duty, no one would hail with greater delight the occasion than he (the speaker) would, provided it was done in a legal and constitutional manner. The toast was vociferously pledged with Masonic honours, the band playing "The Fine Old English Gentleman," and the Masons giving the mark of distinction, "The Feint 18," some impulsive ladies in the galleries taking the time, too, from the Director of Ceremonies, and giving the honours as heartily and as "brotherly" as the Masons beneath. Brother Lord Carrington, in reply, said: Right Worshipful Sir and Brethren, From the bottom of my heart I beg to tender to you my most respectful and grateful thanks for the overwhelming kindness with which this honourable company has been pleased to receive this toast, and I feel that the reception of this toast has a great significance, for it is not the individual that has been received, but it is what the individual represents. It is a grand moment to stand here and reflect that the cheers which greeted the name of the Governor of this great and important colony really represented the loyalty which is felt towards her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, by all ranks and by all sections of this colony, and it also proves that the loyalty of New South Wales is indeed a creed, and indeed a reality. I take this opportunity, Sir, this evening, at this grand and magnificent banquet, to express my great pleasure at seeing the galleries filled with grace and beauty. It is indeed a compliment to Freemasonry. And it shows how utterly wrong those are who tell us that Freemasonry is unpopular amongst the ladies. Their presence here shows entirely the reverse. Brethren, your Chairman has told you of the many distinguished persons who have held high office in the Craft, and also that the heir to the throne of England—the heir to the great Empire—holds the highest place of honour in our Grand Lodge of England. He has told you that his Royal Highness's brothers have held high office in the Lodge, and, most important of all, that his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, in the Royal Alpha Lodge, himself admitted his son into Masonry. It was my great privilege to be present on that occasion. It is indeed a thing that ought never to be forgotten by every Mason all over the world, as it gives a distinct answer to all those who bring accusations of every sort or kind against our great and glorious Craft. The Chairman has also introduced a subject which in this company I should not individually have ventured to touch, and that is the subject of the consolidation of Masonry in this colony. On my arrival, brethren, on your shores, I was greeted not only by the brethren who belong to the Constitution which is so worthily presided over by my Right Worshipful Brother on my left (Bro. Williams), but I was also greeted with expressions of loyalty from the Grand Lodge of New South Wales, which is under the presidency of Dr. Tarrant. It is impossible for me, serving under the English Constitution, to accept their address as a Mason. But I think it would be unbecoming of me if I did not, before this honourable company, acknowledge the loyalty that prompted them to receive me as a representative here of the Throne. Brethren, we all regret there is a division in our ranks. It is a matter of deep and lasting regret; but perhaps we have the cure among ourselves. For it is only Masonry that can unite us. Masonry, brethren, is the centre between good men and true, and the happy means of conciliating friendships amongst those who otherwise must have remained at a perpetual distance. It is not for me, in such an important subject like this, to give advice or offer an opinion. But surely, before this distinguished company, I may be permitted to express the hope that our divisions will come to an end, and that we may all be united in the common bond of Masonry. Brethren, may the Freemasons of this great colony yet be united in our Lodges as we are united in our loyalty to our Queen, and in our grand creed, from which no one is excluded, provided he believes in the glorious Architect of the Heavens and the Earth, and so long as he practises the sacred duties of morality. A very pleasant duty has been confided to me, and I feel greatly honoured at being permitted to propose to you all a toast which will be drunk with the enthusiasm and the cordiality that it deserves. I have to propose the toast of "The Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland, and their representatives in this Colony." On an occasion of this sort, it is not for me to remind you of what are the duties of Grand Lodges. They administer and frame the laws for good government; they are the arbiters of disputes which occasionally may arise; they are the final court of appeal. I call on you all to drink with enthusiasm and with cordiality this toast, and with the toast I have to couple the names of Bro. Williams D.G.M. of the English Constitution, and Bro. Dr. Sedgwick D.G.M. of the Scottish Constitution. And before I sit down perhaps I may be permitted to say that though loyalty has called us together, yet it is no slight tribute to the merits of these distinguished Freemasons that to submit their names for the acceptance of the grand company that is assembled this evening in this magnificent hall is to secure a demonstration that both the District Grand Masters are regarded all over the colony with respect, esteem, and affection. With all my heart I give to you our District Grand Lodges, coupled with the names of our District Grand Masters. The toast was warmly pledged, cheers being given first for the English and then for the Scottish Constitution, and, on the call of the Governor, one cheer more for both, the band playing, "Come, let us be happy together." Bro. Williams responded for the English, and Bro. Dr. Sedgwick for the Scottish Constitution. Soon afterwards his Excellency retired, amid the cheers and congratulations of his brother Masons, and with the goodwill of his gentler admirers in the gallery.

TO UNDERSTAND THE TRUTHS OF FREEMASONRY.

THAT understanding of the truths taught by Masonry, and that appreciation of the obligation and duties of a Mason, which begets activity in the work, outside of, as well as in, the Lodge room, is, in my opinion, the great need of the day and hour. In this, we are all deficient, and all and each of us responsible for that inertness which has well nigh reduced Masonry to an association of persons held together almost alone for the pecuniary benefit it may afford them. This, brethren, is the dark side of the picture, and it is mentioned because we enter the light through the darkness. The moral influence exerted by our beloved Order is being felt in almost every locality in the State, but the morality of its membership does not come up to the standard erected by the teachings of the Order. I would have its adherents learn more of that morality taught by Masonry, feeling assured that, these being known better they would more generally be observed and practised by the Craft, and the cause of humanity correspondingly advanced.

If the symbolism of the compass and square was more strongly impressed upon the mind of the initiate, Masons would not, sometimes, malign to the profane one whom, in the Lodge room, he is apparently pleased to call "brother," but would make an honest effort to live up to the duties and obligations every Mason has assumed, and thus make his conversation and action bear testimony to the excellence of the principles of, and calculable benefits resulting from Masonry when fully lived up to by its adherents. I do not overlook the many difficulties with which we have to contend, by reason of the frailties incident to our human nature. I do not forget that there are two natures in man, the "higher and the lower, the great and the mean, and the noble and the ignoble," nor does Masonry; but in every degree teaches its membership to cultivate and practise the better part of our nature, and continually guard ourselves against the temptations suggested by our prejudice, passions, and appetites. We should be slow to make inferences which a full examination of the facts would prove to be unjust, as well as to firmly refuse to approve that which justice and good morals would condemn.—Liberal Freemason.

DOES IT PAY TO BE A MASON.

WE have been asked by men if it paid to be a Mason. In answer to such, we would say it pays some a big percentage, but to others it pays but little. To a man with a large heart and benevolent disposition, who lives to make the world better because he lives in it—who is generous, charitable, and a social being—it pays, for it gives him an opportunity to develop those qualities that make up the true man; but a close-fisted, narrow, contracted, selfish man, who lives within himself, like a turtle—that only sticks his head out of his shell to snap at something—that passes by and can see nothing good in this world but dollars and cents, and believes in the principle of "everybody take care of himself,"—to such a person we would say that it would not pay him to join the Masons, because he would not feel at home in our Lodges, for they teach morality, charity, and brotherly love. They feed the hungry, clothe the naked, visit the sick, bury the dead, care for the widow and orphan, and help, aid, and assist their brethren in every way possible; they will speak well of them in their absence; they comfort the distressed, speak kind words in the ears of erring ones—in fact they are "their brother's keeper." They will pay their dues cheerfully, sacrifice their time and use their talents to promote this glorious course of humanity; they glory in doing good. Its pays such persons to be Freemasons. Such a member will attend Lodge meetings regularly, will serve on Committees, will accept office and perform the duties. He will read Masonic papers, will study the Ritual, will post himself on the laws regulating the Order; in fact he will live up to the obligations. When such a brother dies, his loss is deeply regretted. Such a person it pays to be a Mason, and it pays the Lodge to have him in it.

But those, like the Jew in New York, who said "I will join the Masons, and put on my vest a big G, and get lots of trade on the square," generally get left. Masonry is not to be used as a trademark, and he who tries to so use it will find that it will not pay.—Detroit Freemason.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?

WHAT can be done to secure better attendance at Lodge meetings?

First, select intelligent and earnest Officers; those in whom the brethren and community have confidence. They should also be "bright" in their duties. Few indeed will long take to trouble to attend Lodge and listen to the absurd butchering of a beautiful ceremony. The more intelligent a man is, the less patience he has with ignorance at the column of "wisdom." In this enlightened age Officers cannot be successful without reading, to keep up with the Masonic news and other information. Hence, some of the many periodicals should be regularly read by them. The more of the membership who take a Masonic paper, the more interest in things Masonic will be manifested in Lodge meetings.

We venture to assert that no Lodge whose membership read such papers will lack in having attractive meetings.

The amount of unpardonable ignorance among Officers is astonishing, and a better state of affairs cannot be expected until we have a competent Grand Lecturer.

A comfortable, clean Lodge room is also essential. It may be plain, but the jewels, floor and furniture must be kept clean, the room warm, well ventilated and lighted.

Every member should be encouraged to participate in the proceedings, and not confine it to a few, who are everlastingly assigned to the various duties. Yet prosy speeches should not be permitted, and business should be conducted according to the best rules. If there is no special business on hand, select some good readers to read a short extract from your Masonic paper, and discuss it; then send the editor an account of your work, expectations, surroundings, and news occasionally. Make it short. This will be interesting to your neighbourhood, as well as to others, and will tend to build up your Lodge.

Vary the exercises by putting to each member, as a class in school, a question in the lectures. Do not try to do too much all at once. Remember, short, spirited meetings, which leave something to think and talk about, are the successful, enjoyable meetings.

This for a year faithfully, and let us know the result.

The above, from the Masonic Home Journal, is so good that we repeat every word for our State of Texas.—Texas Masonic Journal.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.
G. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department. Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

FREEMASONRY IN SUFFOLK.

WHEN the history of our own times comes to be compiled by some future Masonic writer, the annual calendars which are now issued in many of the Provinces of England will be found to afford one of the readiest means of supplying much of the data necessary for the historian's work, even if, in a few years' time, a collection of these Calendars will not in themselves contain sufficient for a full history of English Freemasonry of the present day. There are, however, many ways in which these Calendars might be made of more general interest than they are now, and they would prove of greater service for historical purposes if each edition was to contain a brief summary of Masonic events particularly associated with the Province in which they are issued. By this means brethren would have an incentive for local research, which we are sure would be the means of bringing much valuable information to light. For a time, at least, it would only be necessary to devote a few pages of each edition to the details we suggest, as we should simply advise the giving of dates, and the most meagre details. This should make the local Calendars of interest outside the districts for which they are specially compiled, and, in view of the fact that a large majority of them are at present carried on at a loss, from a financial point of view, this in itself should be matter for consideration. There are Masonic events connected with every district, worthy of being recorded in a local work, which at present escape any permanent record, except, perhaps, in the newspapers of the day, which are seldom preserved, merely because there is no available means of recording them. If our suggestion were adopted, this would no longer be the case, and once having created a demand for historical information, the supply would soon prove equal to meet it.

We have before us the "Masonic Year Book for the Province of Suffolk for the year 1886," and propose to review its contents, with a view of making the information it contains more generally known, and as an incentive for other districts not similarly supplied to follow its example in the several matters referred to.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk, which was under the rule of the late Lord Waveney until the day of his death, in February last, consists of twenty-one Craft Lodges, and, at the time the present year's calendar was compiled, had upwards of 800 members on its roll, distributed as under—

The Province of Suffolk may thus be said to be strong in both the Craft and Royal Arch degrees, and, as we shall show later on, it is also represented in Mark, Rose Croix, and Knight Templar Masonry. It is, however, in its systematic support of the Masonic Charities that Suffolk is deserving of more than passing reference, and if the Year Book now under notice did nothing more than record what has been done, and what is being done, on behalf of "the poor and distressed" of the Fraternity, it would still be a most useful publication, and one worthy of being considered as an example for other districts to imitate. The Suffolk Masonic Charity Association is a committee formed with a view of utilizing to the utmost the votes for the Institutions which are received by brethren in the Province, and consists of one brother from each Lodge, elected at the regular meeting in January, in addition to the Provincial Grand Master and Deputy Provincial Grand Master (who act as President and Vice-President respectively). The Committee meets at least twice in each year, and proceeds to the selection of the most deserving candidate, for the support of the Province at the respective elections, the method of selection being by voting among the members present, the chairman having a casting vote. Each Lodge has to contribute 10s a year towards defraying the necessary expenses of printing, postage, attendance of representative at the elections, &c. Minor matters of detail are imposed on each of the members of the Committee, in order that proper returns may be made up and annually laid before Provincial Grand Lodge. In proof of the excellent organisation and the united spirit which exists in the Province we now give a summary of the Committee's work during the year 1885. Two hundred and fifty-seven different subscribers to the Institutions are recorded in the list which accompanies the Year Book, and the total number of votes to which they are entitled is given as 2375, made up of 751 Girls' votes, 799 Boys', 364 Mens', and 461 Widows. Of these, 2088, or nearly eighty-eight per cent., were sent into the Association and used on behalf of the Province, which exhibits a state of organisation unequalled, we think, by any other Province in England. Another association formed in the county has for its object the obtaining of Life Subscriberships by Lodges, Chapters, Preceptories, and Societies of the Province, who subscribe not less than four guineas per annum. A general meeting of the Committee is held annually, in February, when a statement of accounts is submitted, and a ballot or drawing takes place for priority of presentation to as many life subscriberships as the amount of funds then in the hands of the Treasurer will allow, subject to certain regulations, among which we may mention that each Charity is to be selected as nearly as possible in rotation; that each Lodge shall have one chance in the drawing for every two guineas standing to its credit in the books at the time of the ballot, and shall be entitled to only one nomination at any one ballot; that each successful Lodge has to give a promise in writing, through three of its principal Officers, to continue the payment of its subscription until the full amount of the life subscription is paid. At the second general meeting of this Association, held at Ipswich on the 27th February 1885, fifty guineas was ballotted for, and the following Lodges and Chapter were successful in drawing a ten-guinea Life Subscribership:—Stour Valley Lodge, No. 1224, St. Andrew's Lodge, No. 1631, Royal Sussex Chapter, No. 376, Adair Lodge, No. 936, and Unity Lodge, No. 71. Three of these Life Subscriberships went to the Benevolent Institution, and one each to the Girls' and Boys' Schools.

Suffolk forms a part of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of East Anglia, and contributes three Lodges and seventy members to that body, viz.—

while the higher degrees are represented by the Prudence Preceptory of Knights Templar, meeting at Ipswich, with twenty-four members, and the Victoria Chapter Rose Croix, also meeting at Ipswich, with 34 members. In addition to these, there is a warrant in existence, but at present in abeyance, for the Royal Plantagenet Preceptory of Knights Templar.

Much of the other information contained in the book is of the character which is usually met with in such works, having reference to the days of meetings, Officers, &c., of the several Lodges, Chapters, &c., the Grand Officers, &c., and details of the Charities. Altogether, the work may be said to be complete as far as it goes, still, as we have said before, it would be of even greater interest if some of its space was devoted to a résumé of the Masonic events which have occurred in the Province during the past. We should be pleased to see Suffolk, which is deserving of high praise in regard to the management of its Charity matters, making a move to remedy this omission, and we feel sure that in such a case the Province would soon find many imitators.

SYMBOLS.

An Address delivered by Rev. George F. Hunting at the Dedication of the new Masonic Temple, in Battle Creek, Michigan.

IN the early pages of an old book which we have been taught to revere is the record of the childhood of our race. A choice bit of man's heritage was set apart by the Supreme Ruler and Giver as the cradle of that childhood. To describe it I shall use but two words, for no attempt at elaboration can express a tithe of what is suggested by these words, "Eden" and "Paradise." Through all the ages the first has been the symbol of whatever is glad and glorious in man's present life, and not less has it been a picture of all the joy and peace and satisfaction within the reach of anticipation. The second is of Persian origin, and was borrowed by the seventy of Alexandria, as a fitting word by which to translate the first. They are therefore really, in our common use, one and the same word, and when we to-day seek an expression which covers all the forms of man's possible felicity, we gladly fall back upon this and sum up all the heavens of real and fancied bliss in this one word "Paradise." Beautiful as Eden; glorious as Paradise;—what words can add to these? They may be demeaned to describe the sensual heaven of the Turk. They may be applied to the "happy hunting grounds" of the red man, or they may give our poor human thought a lift toward the divine, as we look upward and wonder what shall be, when the soul, free from the clods that bind it, shall escape into the beyond. Study these two words in all their far-reaching meaning, and you shall possibly form some adequate conception of what may be hidden in a symbol.

And now we come down through the ages until a time when the Omnipotent reversed the hand which held the flood, and in silent solitude the ark floats above the deluged world.

These are two symbols, the flood and the Ark, and they mean—the one destruction, overthrow, and the other, rescue, safety, security. And the words deluge and ark have lost none of their suggestive significance by their transfer from that far-off age to our own. Turn now a leaf and see where presumptuous mortals planned to scale heaven's walls and get to themselves a name; and they succeeded, for the name is Babel, and it lives, and is familiar to our ears to-day, as the symbol of confusion and crestfallen conceit. Turn yet other leaves of the wondrous story, and lo! men build according to the plan drawn upon the trestleboard of heaven, the tabernacle, the tent of Jehovah, and it is, as a whole, and its every several part, a symbol in which is written some moral truth.

It would be interesting to trace the symbolic teaching through all the parts of this strange building, to show how aptly the curtains, the vails, the boards, the pins, the rings, the staves and the bars, the hooks, the loops and the tenons, and even the colour of the different vails, are all made, without any forced application, to teach truth. And yet more wonderful is the teaching of the furniture of the tent, and especially the Ark and its contents and appurtenances. The tables of the law, the pot of manna, and the rod of Aaron, are the most significant symbols.

I say it would be interesting to trace the line of instruction through all its parts until we mastered this rare, unique system of ethics, so strange, yet so beautiful, so grandly impressive in its simplicity; but we can follow the fascinating theme no farther, lest we tire your patience with many words. Another step down the long ladder, toward our time, or more justly up the ladder, and see, from the hill-tops of Judea curl heavenward the smoke of ten thousands altars. Each bleeding, burning victim is a type, and in after time, upon another hill-top of that land, behold the antitype, the one chief sacrifice toward which the lesser pointed through all the long centuries of expectation. The victim was such an one as wrung from the pagan heart of a Roman soldier the confession, "Truly, this man was the Son of God."

And again a symbol, for the cross on which that greater sacrifice breathed out its life has grown from a suggestion of torture and agony into a thing most sacred. It has led martyrs to the stake and armies to the fiercest fight earth ever saw. It has kindled faith and hope among the millions of Christendom, and the fire burns in their hearts to-day—each, the martyr, the soldier, and the humble disciple, looking upon that symbol, catching from it inspiration, toils onward, upward, with this its glad "Excelsior!" "In hoc signo vinces." And now, from this climax of symbolism let us descend to another branch of the theme before us.

Egypt is the land of symbols. The valley of the Nile is Egypt. Along the banks of this historic river the student of the mysterious finds most ample breadth for the exercise of his skill. Shaft, column, pyramid, and ruined wall, are but the tablets on which the history of nations dead is written, in symbols which baffled all scholars until the key was found.

In 1799 was discovered in the delta of the Nile the so-called "Rosetta Stone," bearing upon its side inscriptions in three styles of character, the first and second ancient Egyptian hieroglyphics—and the third Greek.

This was the key. It fitted the lock, and within these eighty years, little by little, the old inscriptions have yielded to the painstaking, indefatigable study of oriental scholars, until to-day whole libraries are composed of translations from those records of the past. Some one will perhaps sneer at this and ask, Of what use is all this labour? Why not let the dead past lie in its grave? Why disturb the mouldering remains of thing which have dropped out of the records of time? Our mistake lies in our ignorance. The record was not dead but slept, and men have done well to arouse it from its slumber, and bid it tell for us the mysteries in its keeping. The past is indeed in some sense dead, but so are the foundation facts of geology, and of almost every science, and it is one of the triumphs of the human mind that it has unearthed these bottom truths, for they afford a firm base for that superstructure which helps us in our daily needs. And here the importance of that maze of marks and signs which is found upon the walls of ruined splendour along the Nile begins to be seen and felt.

Had the history of that far by-gone been written in books, like ours, it might have been, and in all probability would have been destroyed, as was that vast library of Alexandria and our modern world have never known its secrets. The symbols cut in enduring rock could not be altogether destroyed, and they have held their story safe from those who would have effaced it had they known its import, and preserved it for an age when the world needed it, and then revealed to diligent search such wonders as grow more and more astonishing at every added page of the new revelation. The single item of the testimony found to corroborate Scripture history is enough to give value to these symbols, and pay for the long labour given to their explanation.

Then, too, there have come to us, through this channel, hints concerning mathematical and astronomical science which have already been found important as data for our present study, and their importance grows as the world gathers wisdom, and finds here and there through all its building vacant places which these old facts, and they alone, will fit and fill, and so make the work complete. Let no man then despise those whose zeal is kindled into enthusiasm over a half-effaced inscription on some old monument, or who search for hidden wisdom among the wrappings of a mummied king who died before the rushes grew which sheltered the infant Moses.

I can conceive how such pursuits may have a fascination for some minds, and I am ready to acknowledge my indebtedness to those explorers who subsoil for me the ground where my plowshare can only mark the surface. But let us look for a moment at yet another field. Our own land is a treasure-house of ancient symbols, of which we know as yet but every little. Each year of study adds to our stock of knowledge touching a people who once occupied the mountains, hills and prairies which we call ours to-day. Who or what they were we may not yet decide, for no key has been found to unlock the secrets so plentifully written upon the rocks of Colorado and Arizona, and more sparingly distributed through other portions of the West. Who were the mound-builders, and what was the design of the landmarks which they have left behind? Did the ten lost tribes of Israel find their way to this western world, and perish here? Who were the ancestors of the red-men whom our fathers found in possession of this land? And as we explore the caves and dens in the rocks between our bounds and the Pacific, and study the symbols cut upon their sides, and ask, Who? echo as yet answers, "Who?" But, in due time the key will doubtless be found. Some western Rosetta Stone will come to light, and a new book be opened to the world whose startling revelations may revolutionize our theories concerning the past of our country.

I have gone over this field, my brothers, with a hasty stride, only to kindle in your minds, if I may, some better conception of the length and breadth and importance of that vast field of which we are becoming comparatively familiar with one little acre. I have not confined myself to the strictly defined meaning of the word symbol, for I am not aiming at an exact treatise, but only desire to place before you such hints as shall lead to thought touching what is to me a very interesting field for exploration.

Symbolism, the symbolism of the world, is a study of such grand proportions as shall employ the time and talent of generations of students yet unborn. The magnitude of the whole should give us a better and broader appreciation of our little system of Masonic symbols, and lead us to study them as we have not been wont to do. There are mines of truth beneath the ground where we have examined but a spade's depth, and whole treasures of wisdom lie stored away in the secret tills of the chest, while we as yet are only playing upon the lid. We cannot find them all to-night, but let us look a little among such as we have found, and it may be we shall be quickened to profounder study, which shall bring profit alike to the mind and heart. If we have no higher use for symbols than to make them the agency for political chicanery, or commercial roguery, in the line of a blind cypher which is a cloak for fraud we had best let them alone. And there are other abuses of symbols, besides these, and a sometimes negligence of the lessons to be found in them, which leave their marks of ill, or fail of their legitimate work upon our hearts and lives, through our own fault.

Let us look now at our symbolism, my brothers, and let the truth suggested lie down close to our individual lives. To the uninitiated the Master's carpet, or chart, with its apparently incongruous assemblage of emblems, is a meaningless thing, and it has occurred to me that we who are within the mystic circle do not all duly appreciate the lessons hidden beneath our beautiful system of hieroglyphics.

Enshrined within these significant symbols dwell together, shrouded in mystery, the genii of poetry and music. Void and voiceless to the outer world, to us, if we indeed have ears to hear—to us, if the soul listens—they are vocal with lessons of wisdom and melody almost divine.

To the world that rough ashlar is but the figure of an unhewn stone, to us it is a human soul, fresh from the quarry of the infinite, to be by us carved and polished into beauty. The gavel and the guage to eyes yet hoodwinked are only the tools wherewith the mechanic plies his vocation. To us the one represents a perfect rule by which to divide and use the hours allotted to us here, and the other suggests the myriad agencies by which the sharp angles and inequalities of our humanity are to be chipped away, and the rough ashlar cut to a plan laid down upon the trestleboard of God.

The plumb and the square are to the stranger without only the builder's implements, and have no significance beyond their material form and ordinary use. To us these things, so common-place, are teachers, and with a voice which challenges attention they tell of that stern uprightness which should ever characterize a true manhood, of that right and exact virtue which should govern the life and make it beautiful, and of that earthly plane along which we are passing swiftly and surely, toward that goal where uprightness and virtue, obliquity and vice, shall find their due reward.

The compasses lie with the square, and to us they signify the control of bodily desires and appetites within the circumference of a pure and virtuous life. That isolated point within the circle is impressive. It means you, my brother, and me, and that circle means the bound which we may not pass without sin.

The twin tangents on the right and left are holy men whose lives are worthy our imitation, and upon the boundary line above rests heaven's holy will revealed to man.

Therefore, we may not burst these bonds without tramping upon the example of the good and great of the past, and more than all, treading beneath our feet the authority of Almighty God.

The three steps, the pot of incense, the bee-hive, the anchor, the ark, the hour-glass and the scythe, the trowel, the spade, the coffin and the sprig of acacia, and above them that all-seeing eye, that eye of God, all these are replete with suggestive moral lessons, and they demand from every brother not only thoughtful attention, but an earnest struggle after that purity of life toward which these symbols point as the climax of human excellence.

Each of these items in the object lesson before us might be developed and elaborated into an address quite long enough for this occasion, and merely to enumerate them as I have done is only to suggest what I trust each brother will think out for himself, for here is food for thought which the years will not exhaust. By no other channel does moral truth appeal to man more forcibly, or reach him more readily, than by such a system of pregnant symbols. But there are conditions even here. There are men in whose souls there seems to be no poetry, no music, and the words of Shakespeare come to mind, as a fit comment just here.

> "The man that hath no music in himself,
> Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
> Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils.
> The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
> And his affections dark as Erebus.
> Let no such man be trusted.

There is a natural refinement of soul which instinctively apprehends the lesson of a symbol. Education cannot give this refinement, but only help to develop it. It is often found among the unlettered, cropping out from its coarse surroundings, like a violet from the thorn-hedge. If it be in the man, study will bring it out. Therefore, our duty as those whose best moral culture is attainable by a proper understanding of symbols—our duty, I say, is to give time and thought to the dissection and careful examination of these picture lessons which are always before us. Analyze the trowel, the spade and the coffin, and see what there is in them; for, as so, under the cover of these plain, ordinary things, there are grand, glorious truths. A chestnut burr is an uncomfortable thing to handle, but if you would get at the sweet kernel within it you must break the rude covering. So, if one would enjoy and profit by these lessons, of which our Masonic symbolism is so full, he must penetrate the external form by thought, aided by imagination. The man whose soul is full of poetry and music will lay hold of these hidden things at once, for his mind revels in the field to which our symbols belong, and yet this same gifted one may make no proper use of the lessons so readily acquired. Something further is demanded, and that something is an inherent manliness, a love of truth and right for its own sake. A thirst for gold inspires men to delve in the mine, to blast down huge mountains of quartz, turn rivers from their long-worn beds, and ransack the very bowels of creation in their eager search. So a thirst for truth will urge men to pierce the walls wherewith it is hemmed in, and cut their way through every obstacle till they reach the inner sanctum of the God of truth. The external form of the casket may be rough and uncouth, but within are treasures worth all the labour of unlocking them. The outside of our symbols, the mere form of the arch and pillars, with their chapiters and globes, their lily and pommegranate work, though comely, are but unmeaning shapes. But bring to your aid the "open sesame" of persistent thought and eager desire after truth, and these same arches and pillars are rich with helpful suggestion towards a higher and better life. Our symbols are stepping-stones towards that which is most excellent, and we, who are free to climb the inviting way, are surely to be blamed if we fail of reaching the upper plane of that moral ladder whose lowest round stands on a level with every apprentice, and over whose cloud-veiled top the Supreme Architect stoops down to the humblest of us all, and whispers, "Come up higher."

> "The toad, ugly and venomous, > Wears yet a precious jewel on his head;"

The motive that induced most of us to knock at the doors of the Lodge was either curiosity or the feeling that Masonry was an institution to which it was an honour to belong. Curiosity has been satisfied—Masonry has honoured us, and yielded us advantage. Have we also honoured it? We are really an advantage to Masonry in so far as we are worthy members of the Craft, only in so far as the virtues symbolized on the Master's carpet find place in our lives.

A man may be "well posted," as the phrase goes, and yet not be a good Mason, through lack of moral integrity. He may know all that the symbols teach, and have the unwritten work at his tongue's end, and yet be a drunkard and a libertine, a dishonest trickster in business, or a bold blasphemer of that God to whom at this altar he prayed for help and light, and in whom he professed to put his trust. To use the exhortation of the word of God which graces our altar, "My brethren, these things ought not so to be." To say that a man is a Mason ought to be equivalent to an assurance that he is a man to be trusted anywhere and everywhere. It ought to be a voucher for purity and uprightness in all the relations of life. Is it so? Is there no stain upon the lambskin, my brother? I am not speaking professionally, nor do I violate the rules of our Order by any attempt to press upon your attention in this place a religious creed. I have used the words, morals and morality, with studied care, for Masonry is not, and does not claim to be religion, but only an excellent code of morals. I speak as a man and a Mason, as one who deems himself honoured by this badge, and laments that he has not always honoured it. I simply ask your candid, thoughtful attention to the symbols of which I have spoken, and those of the higher degrees of which I have no time to speak, and I ask you, What do these tell us we as Masons ought to be, and how far do our lives correspond with their teaching? What King Solomon was, or what was the character of Hiram of Tyre is of comparatively little importance to us of to-day. We are responsible for our own deeds, and not those of our long-ago buried, royal brothers. The question for us to answer is not, What was Washington? but What are we? If we revere the memory of Washington, let our lives be such that we may dare to claim kinship to him, the good and great, whose ashes sleep at Mount Vernon.

Brothers, the sand in the hour-glass is swiftly running—the spade stands ready to do its last work for us. The coffin is open, and the grave waits. The sprig of acacia, already grown for some of us, hangs green upon the bough, ready for the hand of those who over us shall whisper, "Alas, my brother!" Has our trowel done its work? Do our lives tally with the plumb-line, the compass and the square? Has the gavel been duly used, and well? Has the rough ashlar been polished and made ready, and is it, to-night, a perfect ashlar, waiting for some noble place in the goodly temple of our God? Will the stone fit the niche?—the exact and perfect niche arranged for it by the Divine Architect. To aid in securing fitness for that niche is the grand end and aim of all the teaching of our glorious symbolism.

As in that temple of the holy land,
Whose mighty pillars, as by magic wand,
Rose toward the heavens, each beam and stone were found,
From loftiest pinnacle to solid ground,
Hewn out on Lebanon, with wondrous skill,
Matched each to each, one only place to fill;
So in that higher temple is a niche
For every being: for the poor and rich,
The high, the low, the freeman and the slave;
Some, deep foundation stones, or gilded nave,
Some lofty spire, or heaven-daring tower,
And each owes all its beauty, all its power,
Its wondrous symmetry, and matchless grace,
To this one fact, 'twas fitted for its place.

X, Y, AND Z.

SOME of the old Masonic books tell us that once upon a time Geometry and Masonry were synonymous. We can believe it. There is much in common between the two. Geometry can only be worked out by means of Algebra, and in Algebra there are certain unknown quantities, represented by X, Y, and Z. In Algebra and Geometry not a few students become familiar with the forms of these X's, Y's, and Z's, without finding out what they mean. Freemasonry also has its X's, Y's, and Z's, and although every initiate has them on his tongue, some never find out their values, or, in other words, what they mean. Brethren learn the symbols—intimately learn them, without ever discovering what they stand for. Strange, do you say? Not at all. Many students graduate in Algebra and Geometry without being able to discover for themselves the values of X, Y, and Z. They slip through without learning anything. We once knew a Professor of Mathematics (now deceased), who, though he was expert at figures and letters himself, never manifested the least ability to teach Geometry to others. So some Masters of Lodges are more ornamental than useful. They may be able to set down the example on the board (so to speak), write down X, Y, and Z, but as for establishing their values, that is more than they dream of doing. And yet every Freemason is entitled to learn and know all there is in Masonry. Every Freemason is privileged to become intimately acquainted with every one of its secrets. Every Freemason ought to know what Masonry is, and why it is—in other words to be acquainted with it through and through.

It is a common saying of the profane that there are no secrets in Masonry. No secrets! The Craft is full of them. These secrets naturally fall into two great classes, the avowed and the unavowed. Ostensibly, all of the former are made apparent to the initiate; really, almost all of the latter, forming the larger and really more important class, are hidden from his eyes. Yet the examination of a proposed visitor to a Lodge often proves how little he knows of even the A, B, C's, of Masonry, to say nothing of the X, Y, Z's. But we shall not now refer, except in passing, to the A, B, C's, reserving our remarks for the more recondite X, Y, Z's.

Freemasonry professes to give each of its initiates an explanation of all of its forms and ceremonies. This is apparent at every initiation, and it not only strives to accomplish, but does accomplish much in this direction. There is however, so much in Masonry, that the usual formal explanations fail to bring all of the kernel of meaning out of the nut of ceremony. To get at this, supplementary teaching is necessary, and this it is especially the prerogative of the W.M. to give. He is the Master of the Lodge, the teacher of its Geometry or Algebra, the authorized explainer of its X, Y, and Z. Hence the importance of elevating, in succession, the ablest Brethren in the Lodge to the station of W.M. This Masonic officer should be a Brother who can work well, and explain well his work—one who knows familiarly both the X, Y, and Z, and the A, B, and C, of Masonry.

But what about these X's, Y's, and Z's? What are their exact values? We can only call attention to the subject here, without being able to go into details. There is a time and a place where these can be made fully apparent, but it is not here and now. But we may indicate what we mean. It is possible to know the significance of certain forms, without learning the scope and meaning of the whole. Indeed, the latter is usually disposed of with a word. What is the prevailing teaching of the E.A. degree? Does the initiate usually apprehend it? Or does he learn it as a sort of X, Y, or Z, perhaps ever to remain an unknown quantity in his mind? Doubtless in too many cases this is true. The initiate possesses the skeleton of Masonry, without having it clothed with flesh and blood, without having had breathed into it the breath of life. And he fraternally grasps this dead body through life, and tries to persuade himself that it is a living friend, a true brother, when all the time it is nothing but a skeleton, which may move its limbs like a jumping Jack, when the string is pulled, but has no power to move itself, or to move him. Take the F.C. degree, and a similar remark is applicable to it; while the M.M. degree is a perfect maze of unexplained, but not unexplainable, mysteries.

What a wonderful opportunity does Freemasonry afford for delight and instruction to the loving student of its mysteries! He may begin to discover them immediately after he has received the First degree, and from the time that he subsequently receives the Second and Third degrees, and the Royal Arch degree, he may continue to pursue his studies, and receive his reward, until time shall be no more with him, and he be raised to the Grand Lodge above. The affluence of intellectual wealth in Freemasonry is past computation. It is this which attaches to it men of the largest attainments, the finest culture, and the maturest age. Brethren grow old in its service without ever growing weary of it. Past Grand Masters are as fond of it, more fond of it indeed, than the most enthusiastic tyro. The reason is, they know, better than most others, the values of the X, Y, and Z in Freemasonry.

It is a familiar truth in Masonry that it is full of triads. We have a triad exemplified in the work of the Lodge, which we may state thus:—It should be correct in form, impressive in rendition, and clear in meaning; in other words, it should be the true work, emphatically delivered, and adequately explained. If you have all of this you have perfect Freemasonry; if you lack a part of it you have a fragmentary Freemasonry, and if you have but a small fraction of each you have—what you have, and the less you think of it the better, for it is an abortion.

Brethren, strive to learn the entire alphabet of Masonry. All learn their A, B, C, and some learn to mind their P's and Q's, but quite a number fail to comprehend their X, Y, Z. They are not very hard to learn either. Every one may learn them, and it is the purpose of The Keystone so to dispense Light in Masonry as to render this task easier, and thus increase both the knowledge and the pleasure of every one of its Masonic readers.—Keystone.

MASONIC CULTURE.

THE word culture has a pleasing sound, and is often used to smooth off a sentence, little regard being had to its large import. Intrinsically, however, the word is one of vast and varied significance. It may be applied to the whole nature of man, representing a training of the body, an enlightenment of the mind, an expansion of the affection and sympathies, together with a right direction and use of the moral faculties, such as impart fullness of life to a being thus pre-eminently endowed. In its unrestricted meaning it may well serve to indicate that grace and strength of human character—that symmetrical development of the intellectual and moral powers—which come as the results of earnest thought and striving for the best things of mortal accomplishment.

Culture in this general sense stands for the noblest work in which man may engage. It points to his improvement in some way—to his rise from an inferior to a superior condition. It implies greater productiveness of life—and also more of knowledge and more of blessedness As a modern writer states the proposition: "All culture is beneficent: it brings out the reserved forces of our endowment, it makes us feel our true relations to the world about us, and it must unquestionably refine our nature, and elevate us in the scale of being." This was the view taken by Goethe who says: "It matters but little whether a man be mathematically or philologically or artistically cultivated, so he but cultivated."

It may justly be claimed for Freemasonry that it renders some aid in a work of general training of the heart and the life. Its Province is to broaden and deepen the currents of human thought. It has a recognised ministry of instruction and enlightenment, whilst its influence is always felt on the side of a generous culture which seeks to exalt man above ignorance, pride, vanity, and all debasing passions, and so present him in his nearest possible resemblance to a perfected, qualified humanity.

There is, however, a technical culture in Freemasonry by no means to be disregarded—a culture important in itself and also as constituting an essential preparation for that more general work of enlightenment and discipline already indicated. Masonic culture is a phrase that must carry with it first of all the idea of an understanding of the system that is included within the broad lines of our Fraternity. There can be no culture such as is entitled to the prefix of Masonic unless a due amount of study has been given to the underlying principles and teachings of the Institution, thereby reaching some clear perceptions as to its character and purposes. Then there must be an acquaintance with forms and ceremonies, so as to know what these observances are, when used, how applied and how related to each other, together with their moral significance. It is a mistake to suppose that one can acquire all needed culture in these matters by "passing through" the various degrees and orders which belong to the Masonic system, or witnessing now and then—at very distant intervals, perhaps—the rendering of the work. Something more is requisite if one would be a cultured Mason even according to this lower form of designation. The inquiring mind must apply its powers to discern the intended application of varied forms and practices,—the meaning of ceremonies that in themselves may seem very silly, but which rightly understood will take on a very different character. The intelligent Craftsman will of necessity be a student in respect of whatever belongs to the prescribed expression of Masonic truth, while he will note with care all signs and tokens—symbols as well as words—bearing upon the illustration of these various lessons brought to his attention.

Masonic culture, even as thus limited, makes too many demands on brethren to be altogether popular. Some cannot give the time; some have not the inclination; others do not realise the worth of such study and application; while others who are prompt attendants upon Festival occasions seemingly care nothing for the Masonic system or organisation except as its social features are presented. And so the class of the non-cultured is exceedingly large. Brethren take all the degrees and gain high honours, but they do not master the first principles in the science of Masonry; they do not study the ritual nor give careful scrutiny to the ceremony; they do not think, read and investigate in order to become cultivated and proficient in the Royal Art. It needs no argument to show that such as these add but little to the strength and efficiency of the organisation. Only the well-informed and well-disciplined—they who comprehend the essential nature and genius of the Masonic system—can be relied upon to stand by the Fraternity in any exigency that may arise, and to be faithful under all conditions and at all times. Our sacred trusts are safe only as ability, intelligence and virtue shall have prevailing power in the hearts and lives of brethren—only as such a class shall have controlling influence in the counsels of the Craft. They who are thus and need being well versed in the technical law of Fr[illegible] standing its history, and appreciating [illegible] and its moral teachings are best prepared to make it more effective in its most important uses for the present [illegible] men, and to lead it on in the way of a [illegible] are to be the teachers, leaders, inspirers of [illegible] informed and less strong—remembering always the duty and responsibility [illegible] whom much is given of the same [illegible] Freemason's Depositor.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—As Spring approaches, [illegible] favourable opportunity offers for rectifying irregularities, removing impurities and erasing blemishes which have arisen from the pressure of matter to be cast off during winter from being transpired through the pores. This searching Ointment, well rubbed upon the skin, penetrates to the deep-seated organs, upon which it exerts a most wholesome and beneficial influence. Well nigh all the indigestions give way to this simple treatment, aided by purifying and aperitive doses of Holloway's Pills, round each box of which plain "instructions" are folded. Bilious disorders, loss of appetite, fullness after eating, lassitude, gout, and rheumatism may be effectively checked in their painful progress, and the seeds of long suffering eradicated by these remedies.

MARK MASONRY.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MONMOUTHSHIRE.

THE Mark Master Masons of Monmouthshire held the annual meeting of their Provincial Grand Lodge on Monday, the 29th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Newport, under the banner of the Keystone Lodge, No. 109. The proceedings were of a very interesting character, the principal event of the day being the installation of Bro. Capt. S. Geo. Homfray, D.P.G.M. of Craft Masonry of Monmouthshire, as Prov. G. Mark Master. Bro. R.C. Else P.G.M.M.M. of Somerset undertaking the duty of Installation. Amongst those present was Bro. Frederick Binckes Past Grand Warden and Grand Mark Secretary of England. The programme was speedily and ably gone through, the Installation ceremony being particularly well conducted. The following were appointed as the Provincial Grand Officers:—

Bro. Major A Thrale Perkins	Deputy G.M.
J. C. Hunter Little	S.W.
Alfred Taylor	J.W.
Rev. D. Bowen	Chaplain
J. Porter Fowler	M.O.
J. O. Marsh	S.O.
Andrew McMahon	J.O.
Giles Golding	Registrar of Marks
Samuel Davies	Treasurer
Edwin J. Whitley	Secretary
J. Davies	Assistant Secretary
George Beavis	S.D.
J. Jewel Williams	J.D.
J. Holman Dunn	Inspector of Works
J. G. Hedges	Sword Bearer
S. O. Peglar	Standard Bearer
H. R. Hudson	Director of Ceremonies
T. W. Mitchell	Assistant Director of Cer.
J. G. Thomas	Inner Guard
A. Thornton, Daniel Evans, William Parsons, J. N. Barnett	Stewards
H. Fletcher	Tyler

Provincial Grand Lodge having been closed, a banquet followed at the Westgate Hotel, the Provincial Grand Master being supported by his Deputy, Bro. John Walker P.G.M.M.M. Gloucestershire, Fred. Binckes P.G. Warden G. Sec., R. C. Else P.G.M.M.M. Somerset, Col. Chas. Lyne D.P.G.M.M.M., Thos. M. Humphries P.P.G.S.W., Staffordshire, William Watkins P.G. Standard Bearer Eng., R. V. Vassar-Smith P.P.G.D.M.M.M. Gloucestershire, C. W. Radway P.G.D Eng., E. H. Davies P.P.G.J.O., S. G. Homfray jun., Thos. Harrby P.P.G.J.W. J., O. Marsh P.G. Stwd. Eng.; and others. In due course the Prov. Grand Master proceeded with the toast list, first giving the Queen and Mark Masonry. As loyal subjects they hoped Her Majesty might long be spared to reign over them. The next toast was His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales M.M.G.M.M. nominate. The brethren were pleased to find His Royal Highness was taking such a deep interest in Masonry. On the occasion of His Royal Highness being installed as the Grand Mark Master, he (the speaker) should make it his duty to represent Monmouth. If their good Secretary (Bro. Binckes) who was present with them—would kindly let him know how far or to what extent he could afford accommodation, he had no doubt that a considerable number of Mark Masons from the Province would attend the installation. Bro. W. Watkins P.M. 109, Past Grand Mark Senior Warden, said he was highly honoured in having to propose the next toast, the M.W.G.M.M.M. the Earl of Kintore. As Mark Masons they were much indebted to his Lordship for what he had done for the Mark degree. It was highly gratifying to know that they would have as his successor His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, in whom they would have a most distinguished brother who had expressed himself as highly interested in the advancement of Mark Masonry. Bro. Colonel Lyne Prov. Grand Master (Craft) for Monmouthshire proposed the toast of the R.W. D.G.M.M.M. the Lord Egerton of Tatton, and Officers of the Grand Mark Lodge, Present and Past. He felt a great pleasure in proposing this toast, and coupling with it the names of the Provincial Grand Master of Gloucester and the Grand Secretary of England. They all felt it a high honour for these distinguished brethren to come amongst them on such an interesting occasion. It was a rare circumstance that a Provincial Grand Master was supported by such excellent representatives of the Mark Degree as they found there that night. Referring to Bro. Binckes, Colonel Lyne said he had done, and was continually doing, a vast amount of good in the cause of Masonry. He was sure that when he rose to respond he would be well received. Bro. Walker thanked the brethren most heartily on behalf of the Grand Lodge for the manner in which they had honoured the toast. He regretted that only one supporter from his own Lodge was present; he had hoped several more would have been there. Owing to the weather and other causes, they were prevented from doing honour to their distinguished Bro. Homfray. Bro. Binckes remarked that the frequency and facility afforded him to respond to this toast was the very cause of difficulty to him. He was so frequently called upon at Provincial Grand Lodge meetings to reply that he was almost at a loss for words to change the phraseology of his utterances. It was gratifying for him to note the manner in which this comprehensive toast was received amongst Masons. In conversation with an eminent actor, he had expressed an opinion that it must be monotonous to go through the same performance night after night for a long series of nights. His reply was, "We feel we have a different audience night after night to play to;" and so he might say he had to return thanks for this and other toasts to different companies of brethren. Alluding to the toast, he remarked that their Deputy Grand Master, Lord Egerton of Tatton, could look back over a long period; of him it might be said that there never was a brother who had met with such an amount of success in his duties, and who had discharged them more faithfully than he had done. He (the speaker) had had a long experience in connection with the Mark degree—twenty-eight years associated with the Order, and he should complete his twenty-fifth year in June next, a quarter of a century in an official position, and even now he was not quite prepared to be laid on the shelf. When he looked back upon Mark Masonry, and saw what it was, as compared with what it is now, and noted the progress it had made, he was more than gratified. In this Province the Order had prospered very much indeed, and he said this without indulging in an invidious comparison. He hoped they would date a new starting point in regard to Mark Masonry in the Province of Monmouthshire. When he looked round those tables, and saw so many who worked so actively in the cause, there was every reason to anticipate greater prosperity. Their excellent brother the P.G.M. of Somerset had done much for the Order. They had elected a progressive Prov. Grand Master for Monmouthshire, and they had taken the first opportunity to incorporate the name of his Royal Highness with the toast since his election as the Grand Master nominate. Taking the hint already given by the Prov. Grand Master, that at the installation of his Royal Highness he would be there, no doubt, he would be attended by a very large number of brethren from that Province. Speaking eulogistically of the way in which the Provincial Grand Master of Gloucester carried out his duties, Bro. Binckes remarked that, looking back over a long life, he had reason to congratulate himself on the success which had been attained in Mark Masonry, and in fact it had exceeded their most sanguine anticipations. They had now 400 Lodges, and over 20,000 registered members, and he questioned if there was any other branch of their Order which could show such progress. He congratulated the brethren of the Provinces represented on the progress which had been made in Mark Masonry, and hoped the time was not far distant when Mark Masonry would be recognised among the essential degrees of Freemasonry. Right Worshipful Bro. Else proposed the R.W. Bro. S. Homfray P.G.M.M.M. Monmouthshire. This was the toast of the evening, and he felt it a very high compliment to be entrusted with it. He most sincerely congratulated the Prov. G.M. on his election, and paid a high tribute to the ability which he displayed in all that appertained to Masonry. His appointment was an augury of greater progress in the future. In the matter of the Charities, for some time past Bro. Homfray and he had been going hand in hand, and shoulder to shoulder, and in all that they had undertaken they had succeeded. Hence it was he felt so much pleasure in seeing him inducted into the chair. The Provincial Grand Master returned thanks in well-selected terms for the honour which had been accorded to him, and also for the way in which his name had been received, also thanking the visiting brethren for the kindness evinced towards him. A number of other toasts followed, including the Mark Benevolent Fund and other Masonic Charities, coupled with the name of Bro. Frederick Binckes, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, who responded in a telling speech, eclipsing his former efforts on behalf of the various Charities in connection with this and other degrees. Other toasts were duly acknowledged and responded to. Throughout the evening the proceedings were enlivened with sentiment and song, and a more convivial gathering has not been held in this Province in connection with Mark Masonry.

RECTITUDE CHAPTER, No. 581.

THE regular meeting of this Chapter was held on Thursday evening, the 1st inst., at the Corporation Hotel, Tipping-street, Ardwick, Manchester. The Chapter was opened in due form and with solemn prayer by the Excellent First Principal Comp. J. T. Richardson, who was assisted by Comp. Rogers H., and Past Principal Julius Arensberg acting as Third Principal, in place of Comp. T. H. Hall, who was unable to be present owing to important business engagements. Much to their credit, every other Officer was present, and there was an average attendance of Companions, with a fair attendance of Visitors who had put in an appearance to do honour to the occasion, which was the presentation of a robe to Comp. J. T. Richardson First Principal, and a P.Z.'s jewel to Comp. Julius Arensberg, a Past First Principal of this Chapter and Past Prov. Grand Officer. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. S. A. Andrew, a Past Master of the Richmond Lodge; this having proved unanimous, that worthy brother was exalted to the supreme degree of a Holy Royal Arch Mason by Comp. J. R. Richardson in his most impressive and eloquent manner. The lectures were not given on this occasion, but the First Principal explained that it was owing to a great portion of the time of the evening being aked for by the Companions for the presentation business; he, however, promised that the whole of the lectures should be given on the next occasion, by himself and Second and Third Principals, Comps. Rogers and Hall. Hearty good wishes were expressed by the visiting Companions, and Companion H. Darbyshire then congratulated the Excellent First Principal on having the day previously received Prov. Grand honours, by being appointed Second Assistant Principal Sojourner. He also congratulated the Chapter on its receiving, for the first time, Provincial recognition by Comp. Richardson's appointment. Comp. Darbyshire then read a petition which had been prepared and presented to the Prov. G. Superintendent of Works, and proposed such should be recorded on the minutes. He next, on behalf of the Companions, formally presented the First Principal with a handsome robe, made of scarlet satin, and trimmed with ermine, and in a lengthy speech referred to the valuable services of Comp. Richardson to the Rectitude Chapter. Comp. Rogers Second Principal then, on behalf of the Chapter, presented Comp. Arensberg with a P.Z.'s jewel, and in earnest terms referred to the long and valuable labours of this worthy Companion to Masonry in general. Both presents were suitably acknowledged, and the Chapter was closed in due form, at 8·30 p.m.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

EPPING LODGE, No. 2077.

AN emergency meeting of this flourishing young Lodge was held on Saturday, the 3rd instant, at the Cook Hotel, Epping. There were present Bros. J. Salmon W.M., J. Woodrow S.W., J. London J.D., J. Lewis I.P.M., E. J. Acworth P.M. Treasurer, G. Dance P.M. Secretary, Fraser S.D., Lawrence I.G., and a number of members and visitors. Lodge was opened in due form, and after the usual business the Lodge was opened in the second degree, and after answering the usual questions Bro. Smith was raised to the third degree by the W.M., in excellent style. Lodge was resumed to the first degree, and Bro. Abbott having answered the usual questions was passed to the second degree. Lodge was again resumed to the first degree, and the ballot being unanimously in their favour, the following gentlemen were duly initiated into our ancient mysteries—Messrs. Roworth, Miller, Taylor, and Odell. Nothing further offering, Lodge was closed in due form. The usual banquet followed.

AMHERST LODGE, No. 1223.

THE final meeting of the above Lodge, under the Mastership of its popular Worshipful Master C. J. Craig, was held at the Amherst Hotel, Riverhead, near Sevenoaks, on Saturday, the 3rd instant. There were present to support the Master Bros. E. J. Strange S.W., J. J. Birch J.W., R. Durtnell P.M. P.P. Grand Supt. Works Treas., J. H. Jewell P.M. P.P.G.O. Secretary, W. Sparrowhawk S.D., P. Hanmer J.D., A. H. Lee I.G., J. Hamlin D.C., F. P. Lee Steward, E. J. Dodd P.M. P.P.G.O., A. W. Duret P.M., T. J. Baker P.M., C. J. Dodd P.M., C. E. Birch I.P.M, A. Ross Organist, Pascoe, Hooker, Dixon, D. J. Kent, Burfoot, Wallace, Lloyd, J. Barker, J. Fyfe, W. H. Cate, Ryder, Stevenson, S. Hall, H. S. Strange, T. Baker, Gething, H. W. Dodd, Townend, Newberry, Hutchings. Visitors—C. J. Wing 1678, J. H. Meyer 1559, N. H. Turner 2000, Gibson 1658, Woods 1475. Bro. P.M. Duret raised Bros. Burfoot, Fyfe, Barker, and Hutchings, taking them two at a time, in the order named. The Worshipful Master then resumed the chair, and Bro. E. J. Strange was unanimously elected Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. Bro. P. M. Durtnell was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. South Tyler. A Past Master's jewel was voted to Bro. Craig. Four initiates were proposed, and will be ballotted for at the next meeting. Bro. P.M. Baker then proposed a vote of condolence to the family of Bro. Shorey, a member of the Lodge lately deceased; this was agreed to. The Lodge then adjourned. Before the Lodge was closed, Bro. Strange presented a handsome banner, painted by himself, to the Lodge. It represented the arms of the Earl of Amherst, and was received by the brethren with honours. The Lodge, it may be remarked here, is named after the Provincial Grand Master.

Royal Military Lodge of Instruction, No. 1449.—A meeting was held on Monday evening last, the 5th instant, at the Masonic Temple, 38 St. Peter's Street, Canterbury. Present—Bro. Cockersell W.M., Tomblings S.W., Pepper J.W., Abbs Secretary, Develin S.D., M'Clintock J.D., Pasmore Steward, Simms I.G., Blake Tyler, Hammond I.P.M. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The questions leading from the first to the second degree, were put to Bro. Pasmore, and answered correctly. This brother then retired. The ceremony of passing was next rehearsed, Bro. Hammond I.P.M. acting as candidate, Bro. Cockersell very ably giving the charge. The Lodge was then lowered to the first degree. The working tools were explained by Bros. Pepper, McClintock, Simms, Tomblings, and Abbs. Nothing further having been offered for the good of Freemasonry in general or of this Lodge of Instruction in particular, the same was closed in due form.

Alexandra Palace Lodge of Instruction, No. 1541.—The usual meeting of this highly-flourishing Lodge of Instruction was held on Saturday evening, 3rd April, at the Station Tavern, Camberwell New Road, and was well attended by members of the Craft. Although this is professedly a Lodge of Instruction, since the time it has been in existence, as the offspring of the parent Lodge, it has carried out to a great extent the general principles which are the distinguishing characteristics of our Order; and prominent amongst them the brightest ornament that can adorn our Masonic profession, which is charity. Every meeting of its members is turned to a practical development of that great principle, and although the means by which it is carried out are but slow in their application, there is a steady determination and continuity in the means by which the results are obtained. Not a meeting passes over but something is done in aid of the great object that all true Masons have in view, and although an edifice cannot at once be reared, every one is always ready to lay a brick in building the foundation, if not the superstructure which may be placed upon it. These remarks have been drawn from a personal visit to this Lodge, and from an indisputable fact, that the great object of Masonry is here carried out, nurtured and cherished, and that from a very humble sour of great good has been obtained. The Lodge itself is well worked, and, under the able Preceptorship of Bro. J. R. Stacey, the pure Ritual of Freemasonry can always be obtained by those members of the Craft who, in taking office, wish to do credit to themselves and confer honour upon the Lodges to which they belong. At the last meeting of the Lodge, on Saturday last, Bro. Edman occupied the chair of W.M., Bro. Ruffen S.W., and Bro. Maxted J.W., and the ceremony of initiation was most creditably rehearsed, Bro. Harvey being the candidate, with all the Officers well up to their work. Several sections of the degree were worked, and after some alterations were agreed to in respect of the bye laws, a most interesting and truly Masonic gathering was brought to a close.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—A meeting was held on Monday, 5th inst., at Bro. Baker's, Cock Tavern, Highbury N. Bros. Dixie W.M., Turner S.W., Weeden J.W., Collingridge Secretary, Hancock S.D., Keogh I.G. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. White candidate. Lodge was opened in the second degree, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. White candidate. Nothing further being offered for the good of Freemasonry, Lodge was closed in due form. Bro. Turner will occupy the chair on Monday next, 12th inst.

The regular meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. Dudley Rolls. The minutes having been read and confirmed, and those of the House Committee read for information, two grants were made to ex-pupils towards outfit, the sum given in one case being £20, and in the other £5. The proceedings were brought to a conclusion with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys has been fortunate in securing the services of the Right Hon. Lord Suffield, Provincial Grand Master of Norfolk, as Chairman for its Festival, which will be held on the 30th June next. We hope the brethren of Norfolk, and indeed of England generally, will rally round Lord Suffield, and render his presidency of the Boys' School Festival one of the most successful ever known. The Institution has recently made considerable additions to the number of its beneficiaries, and as a consequence additional support is needed. We sincerely trust the appeal which is now being made to the Craft on its behalf may be warmly responded to.

SUPPERS FOR AUDIT COMMITTEES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER.—I shall be very glad if you, or any of your readers, will kindly inform me what is the usual refreshment (if any) allowed by a Lodge to the Committee of Reference, or Audit Committee, at their annual Audit meeting. I may inform you that in my mother Lodge the said Committee consists of at least twelve members, and the sum of £10 is charged in the account of the Lodge for their supper. On inquiry, I am informed that the charge is the usual one, and is made in other Lodges, as I shall find. I may add that I happen to belong to another Lodge, where the charge I have named is not made at all. I speak with authority, being one of the Audit Committee, and if my brother Auditors and myself require any refreshments while performing our arduous (?) duties, we put our hands in our own pockets to pay for what we require. I have no doubt that I shall learn through your columns that the practice I have alluded to is not so general as the Officers of my mother Lodge seem to think.

Yours fraternally,
AUDITOR.

KNIGHT TEMPLARY IN NEBRASKA.

A NEATLY got-up brochure, containing the Proceedings of the Grand Commandery of Nebraska, at its thirteenth annual Conclave, is to hand, and from it we learn that the gathering, in the Asylum of Mount Moriah Commandery, No. 4, New Masonic Temple, Lincoln, Nebraska, was attended by representatives from ten of the thirteen chartered Commanderies of the Jurisdiction, under the presidency of R.E. Sir Thomas Sewell Grand Commander. The acting Grand Captain-General, Sir Edgar S. Dudley, formed the assembled Knights, and the Grand Commander entered and assumed the command. After inspection, review, rehearsal, and devotions, the Grand Commandery entered upon the labours of the annual Conclave. On the first evening of the session credentials were presented of Officers and members entitled to seats, and who included representatives of Mounts Calvary, Olivet, Carmel, Moriah, Zion, Lebanon, Hermon, Sinai, Tabor, Horeb, Nebo, Hebron, and Palestine. In delivering his annual address, the Grand Commander welcomed the representatives with unfeigned pleasure to the Conclave. Through the tender mercies of Almighty God they were again permitted to assemble around the altar and offer up their thanks to the Giver of all good for the many tokens of His unbounded love. Not only as Templars had they been favoured, but as a State. The earth had yielded an abundant harvest, and the granaries of the husbandmen were filled to overflowing. Their numbers had been materially increased, and he hoped the material thus received into their asylum would add lustre and honour to their noble Order. Peace and harmony prevailed throughout their jurisdiction. Reference is then made to the religious service at Trinity Cathedral, Omaha, on Ascension Day, which was followed by a banquet given by the courteous and generous Templars of the Mount Calvary Commandery, then Grand Commander Sewell installed the Officers elect for the ensuing year, and a pilgrimage was made to the homes of several of Omaha's honoured Knights, "whose unbounded hospitality was appreciated by all participating." Speaking of the foreign correspondence, the Grand Commander returned thanks to E. Sir John J. Monell jun. for his report, which was alike creditable to himself as well as to this Grand Body. He accepted, in July, on behalf of himself and staff, an invitation from the Mount Moriah Commandery, No. 4, Lincoln, to participate with them in the ceremonies of laying the corner-stone of the State Capitol of Nebraska; and in May he installed the Officers of the Mount Moriah Commandery, No. 4, Lincoln; and the Mount Calvary Commandery, No. 1, Omaha; at the same time and place installing Sir Charles A. Holmes as Grand Standard Bearer, he not being present at the installation of Grand Officers. Feeling reference was made to the death of Sir Knight Wm. B. White, who was "well and favourably known throughout our State." A peculiar sadness surrounded this comrade's death. A few hours preceding his demise a son was born to him. He took the babe in his arms, kissed and blessed it, and after naming it after himself his spirit passed through the Golden Gate. In his death was extinguished one of the brightest lights in the asylum of Mount Calvary Commandery. The decease was also noted of Sir Elbert Hartwell English, who was "an able and profound jurist; and well known throughout this State," and of Sir Hiram Hubbard Past Grand Commander of Illinois. A general order had been received from the Most Eminent Grand Master Sir Robert Enoch Withers, recognising the Supreme Grand Priory of Canada as a sovereign and independent body. Several "decisions" were then set out, referring to a request from Mount Nebo Commandery for a special dispensation to change the date of their Conclave, in respect of which he declined, "believing that the emergency did not exist that required such a stretch of authority as to change the Bye-laws of a subordinate Commandery," adding that the undoubted prerogative of the Grand Commander to grant Dispensations should only be exercised in extreme cases. Special Dispensations had been granted to various Commanderies, amongst others to appear in uniform and attend religious services at the City of Grand Island; to participate in the exercises of Decoration Day at Beatrice; to act as an escort to the Grand Lodge of A.F. and A.M. on the occasion of laying the foundation-stone of the new State Capitol building; to march, in uniform, as Red Cross Knights, from the Asylum of the Mount Moriah Commandery at Lincoln, to the Commercial Hotel, to attend a banquet; to the Mount Lebanon Commandery to appear in full uniform on Easter Sunday for the purpose of attending Divine service in one of the churches of Grand Island; and to Mount Hermon Commandery to ballot on certain petitions for the Orders of Knighthood within less time than that provided by the Code of Statutes. Visitations were made during the year to several Commanderies, all of which were well Officered and in fine condition. Some of the Asylums were described as models of perfection, and the Grand Commander observed "there is nothing I can say that will give additional lustre to their well-earned fame, which has spread both far and wide, for knightly deeds and acts of pure beneficence." At the Easter Sunday service with Mount Moriah Commandery, at Lincoln, "forty swords were presented, and each Sir Knight renewed his vows of fealty to the risen Christ, with a renewed determination to wield his sword in defence of the Christian religion." Holy Trinity Church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers and evergreens, the floral offerings being emblematic of the Order. Recommendations as to uniformity of costume in the various Commanderies, ritual, and other matters, concluded the Grand Commander's address, which was listened to with rapt attention.

An interesting feature in the Conclave was the presentation, by Mrs. Edwin Davis, of Omaha (wife of Sir Edwin Davis I.) of the portrait of the First Grand Commander Sir Henry Porter Deuel, in which that lady addressed the Conclave as "Gentlemen Sirs," and says:

"During the tournaments and public assemblies held in the ages of the Crusades, when the orders of Knighthood seem to have had their origin, great regard was shown to ladies, and a chaplet of flowers bestowed by the hands of a fair lady upon the brow of a knight, victorious in their trials of skill, was deemed the highest honour. The history of those times furnishes innumerable instances of the daring deeds done by knights in defence of female innocence. There are many reasons why all ladies should be the friends of the Templars. My own personal esteem for them is greatly strengthened from the fact that its ranks contain many near relatives and friends, and it has been a cherished wish with me for a long while, to do something that might meet their approval. It has not been an easy matter with me to determine in what manner to do this. The days of victorious wreaths are numbered with the dead past, and a new order of things reign, in which all Sir Knights are to be honoured, instead of one who was victorious in single combat in the olden time. Thinking possibly it might be pleasing to the Grand Commandery to have a portrait of its first Grand Commander, Sir Henry Porter Deuel, I decided some months since to make the effort to furnish one for your honourable Order, and I have requested Sir Robert C. Jordan to present the same to the Grand Commandery for me, and if it meets their approval, I shall feel highly gratified, and that my long-cherished wish has been accomplished.

It need hardly be said that the gift presented in such chivalric terms was accepted with "keen satisfaction and pleasure," and due acknowledgment of it made to the fair donor.

A characteristic letter was also received from Sir John Monell jun., relating an accident which befel him on his way to Omaha by the Union Pacific Railway, and which prevented him from completing his report. He writes:—

"The train was running at full speed. One of our Nebraska hurricanes was blowing with more than its usual emphasis, and directly at right angles with the train. In attempting to pass from one car to another, I had no sooner stepped on the platform than I was staggered by the force of the wind, and before I could regain my balance, I fell from the platform, and promptly measured my length on the free soil of Nebraska; result, a badly dislocated ankle, and the small bone of the leg splintered. The surgeons call the injury a 'Pott's fracture,' which no doubt renders the entire matter quite clear to you. As the possessor of so learned and high-sounding an injury, I of course felt sensibly reconciled to my suffering, anticipating great distinction in the annals of surgery thereby. I am, however, slowly drifting towards the conclusion that I might have been persuaded to deny myself this surgical distinction, and permit Mr. Pott to keep his fracture for his own use; I would prefer to finish my report. Such little labour as I could manage with much difficulty to perform, since my accident, has been imperatively demanded by matters of business, quite closely connected with the unromantic question of daily bread and butter. I have, therefore, been compelled to cast a wistful look of farewell on the many leaves of my unfinished report on foreign correspondence, which now, alas! will never see the light, as I pen this lame excuse for its non-appearance. I say 'alas!' because no man likes to leave an undertaking uncompleted, even though when accomplished it may be no great things. I had intended this now unfinished report to be my last, having merely occupied the post till some abler and more experienced reporter could be induced to occupy it, and on this account I the more regret the break in our reports; but with writers of such experience and ability as Sirs Warren, Marlay, Bowen, Tulleys, and abundance of others, I trust Nebraska will not again be compelled to put her journal in print without a creditable report on correspondence. It will be a consolation to reflect that the loss of your report is more than compensated by a marked diminution in the expense account. I expect to be through with Mr. Pott's fracture in about three or four weeks, when I shall at once return it to him in good order. Real sorry I cannot meet with you."

On the second day of the Session various matters of detail were considered, and the Conclave was closed with the customary expressions of harmony and goodwill.

The report is accompanied by a finely-executed portrait and autograph of Grand Commander Thomas Sewell, and a list of the names of the Grand Commandery of Nebraska.

ANTIQUITY OF MASONRY.

AS there seems to be quite a diversity of opinion among Masonic authors on this subject, and as book-making is rather on the increase than otherwise, we have, every few days, some new work on the "History of Freemasonry," the Masonic searcher after history must find himself in a quandary as to which is the real true history, and out of the many theories advanced, which is the right one. Of course it will make very little difference to the true Mason whether Freemasonry began in Egypt, with the building of the Pyramids, or whether it sprang from, or grew out of, the building of King Solomon's Temple, or whether Masonry was an offshoot of the Building Guilds of the 14th century. That Masonry is an old, time-honoured institution, no one can deny; and its antiquity now seems only to be questioned by those who should be its supporters, who, in the book-making mania, are each striving with the other to extingish the light of its origin by some newly undiscovered history that does not present positive proof, unaccompanied by tradition, or secret ritual of its ancient existence. In other words, they deny all the old established theories and teachings, because they are unable to find any record of them in the literature or writings of the Middle Ages, arguing that the absence of positive proof in such writings is conclusive evidence of their non-existence. We have devoted some considerable time and space to this subject in our former numbers and have published a good deal of correspondence on the subject of "Were Solomon, Hiram of Tyre and Hiram Abif, Masons?" together with different versions of numerous historians, who each seem to vie with the other in their zeal to show and affirm that Masonry is a modern institution, and did not exist in the days of Moses and Solomon, and that its speculative character was never known till within about two hundred years ago. And we have given our readers the correspondence on this subject that they may judge for themselves. For our part, we have no hesitation in repeating what we have said before, that Masonry was the outgrowth of the religious teachings of the ancients, which was represented by allegories to the people, and, having expressed ourselves fully on this subject before, we will now content ourselves by making our same quotations from authors, and leave our readers to judge for themselves; at the same time reminding them of the fact that such questions are not of vital or serious importance to them, and tend rather to degrade than to elevate the Masonic Institution, and furnish food to the book-making appetite of the modern historians who are seeking to overthrow the long-established traditions of our institution by asking for proofs upon questions long since conceded, and in cases where the length of time would preclude the possibility of positive evidence. We opine that discussions at this late day upon subjects so unimportant to Masons tend rather to injure than advance the interests of the Order. Especially on such subjects we say, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." Our learned and esteemed historian, Bro. Mackey, in a late work, says:—

Years ago in writing an article on this subject under the impressions made upon me by the fascinating theories of Dr. Oliver, though I never completely accepted his views, I was led to place the organisation of Freemasonry, as it now exists, at the building of Solomon's Temple. Many years of subsequent research have led me greatly to modify the views I had previously held. Although I do not rank myself among those modern iconoclasts who refuse credence to every document whose authenticity, if admitted, would give to the Order a birth anterior to the beginning of the last century, I confess that I cannot find any incontrovertible evidence that would trace Masonry, as now organised, beyond the Building Corporations of the Middle Ages. In this point of view I speak of it only as an architectural Brotherhood, distinguished by signs, by words, and by brotherly ties which have not been essentially changed, and by symbols and legends which have only been developed and extended, while the association has undergone a transformation from an operative art to a speculative science.

But then these Building Corporations did not spring up in all their peculiar organisation—different, as it was from that of other guilds—like Autochtones, from the soil. They, too, must have an origin and an archetype, from which they derived their peculiar character. And I am induced, for that purposes, to look to the Roman Colleges of Artificers, which were spread over Europe by the invading forces of the Empire. But these have been traced to Numa, who gave to them that mixed practical and religious character which they are known to have possessed, and in which they were imitated by the mediæval architects.

"We must, therefore, look at Freemasonry in two distinct points of view: First, as it is—a society of Speculative Architects engaged in the construction of spiritual temples, and in this respect a development from the Operative Architects of the tenth and succeeding centuries, who were themselves offshoots from the travelling Freemasons of Como, who traced their origin to the Roman Colleges of Builders. In this direction, I think, the line of descent is plain, without any demand upon our credulity for assent to its credibility.

But Freemasonry must be looked at also from another standpoint. Not only does it present the appearance of a speculative science, based on an operative art, but it also very significantly exhibits itself as the symbolic expression of a religious idea. In other and plainer words we see in it the important lesson of eternal life, taught by a legend which, whether true or false, is used in Masonry as a symbol and an allegory.

But whence came this legend? Was it invented in 1717 at the revival of Freemasonry in England? We have evidence of the strongest circumstantial character, derived from the Sloan Manuscript, No. 3,329, recently exhumed from the shelves of the British Museum, that this very legend was known to the Masons of the seventeenth century at least.

Then, did the Operative Masons of the Middle Ages have a legend also? The evidence is that they did. The Compagnons de la Tour who were the offshoots of the Old Masters' Guilds, had a legend. We know what the legend was, and we know that its character was similar to, although not in all the details precisely the same as, the Masonic legend. It was, however, connected with the Temple of Solomon.

Again: Did the builders of the Middle Ages invent their legend, or did they obtain it from some old tradition? The question is interesting, but its solution either way would scarcely affect the antiquity of Freemasonry. It is not the form of the legend, but its spiritual and symbolic design, with which we have to do.

This legend of the third degree as we now have it, and as we have had it for a certain period of two hundred and fifty years, is intended, by a symbolic representation, to teach the resurrection from death, and the divine dogma of eternal life. All Masons know its character, and it is neither expedient nor necessary to dilate upon it.

But can we find such a legend elsewhere? Certainly we can. Not indeed the same legend; not the same personage as its hero, not the same details; but a legend with the same spirit and design; a legend funereal in character, celebrating death and resurrection, and solemnised in lamentation and terminating in joy. Thus, in the Egyptian Mysteries of Osiris, the image of a dead man was borne in an argha, ark or coffin, by a procession of initiates; and this enclosure in the coffin or interment of the body was called the aphanism, or disappearance, and the lamentation for him formed the first part of the Mysteries. On the third day after the interment, the priests and initiates carried the coffin, in which was also a golden vessel, down to the river Nile. Into the vessel they poured water from the river; and then with the cry of Eurekamen agallometha, "We have found him, let us rejoice," they declared that the dead Osiris, who had descended into Hades, had returned from thence, and was restored again to life; and the rejoicings which ensued constituted the second part of the mysteries. The analogy between this and the legend of Freemasonry must be at once apparent. Now, just such a legend, everywhere differing in particulars, but everywhere coinciding in general character, is to be found in all the old religions—in sun worship, in tree worship, in animal worship. It was often perverted, it is true, from the original design. Sometimes it was applied to the death of winter and the birth of spring, sometimes to the setting and the subsequent rising of the sun, but always indicating a loss and a recovery, as referred to by Bro. C. S. Mott, in his lecture before Delta Chapter, No. 628.

Especially do we find this legend, and in a purer form, in the Ancient Mysteries. At Samothrace, at Eleusis, at Byblos—in all places where these ancient religious and mystical rites were celebrated—we find the same teachings of eternal life inculcated by the representation of an imaginary death and apotheosis. And it is this legend, and this legend alone, that connects Speculative Freemasonry with the Ancient Mysteries of Greece, of Syria, and of Egypt. Says Bro. Mackey:

"The theory, then, that I advance on the subject of the antiquity of Freemasonry is this: I maintain that, in its present peculiar organisation, it is the successor, with certainty, of the Building Corporations of the Middle Ages, and through them, with less certainty, but with great probability, of the Roman Colleges of Artificers. Its connection with the Temple of Solomon, as its birthplace, may have been accidental—a mere arbitrary selection by its inventors—and bears, therefore, only an allegorical meaning; or it may be historical, and to be explained by the frequent communications that at one time took place between the Jews and the Greeks and the Romans. This is a point still open for discussion. On it I express no fixed opinion. The historical materials upon which to base an opinion are as yet too scanty. But I am inclined, I confess, to view the Temple of Jerusalem and the Masonic traditions connected with it as a part of the great allegory of Masonry.

"But in the other aspect in which Freemasonry presents itself to our view, and to which I have already adverted, the question of its antiquity is more easily settled. As a brotherhood, composed of symbolic Masters and Fellows and Apprentices, derived from an association of Operative Masters, Fellows and Apprentices—those building spiritual temples as these built material ones—its age may not exceed five or six hundred years; but as a secret association, containing within itself the symbolic expression of a religious idea, it connects itself with all the Ancient Mysteries, which, with similar secrecy, gave the same symbolic expression to the same religious idea. These mysteries were not the cradles of Freemasonry: they were only its analogues. But I have no doubt that all the Mysteries had one common source—perhaps, as it has been suggested, some ancient body of priests; and I have no doubt that Freemasonry has derived its legend, its symbolic mode of instruction, and the lesson for which that instruction was intended, either directly or indirectly, from the same source. In this view the Mysteries become interesting to the Mason as a study, and in this view only. And so, when I speak of the antiquity of Masonry, I must say, If I would respect the axioms of historical science, that its body came out of the Middle Ages, but that its spirit is to be traced to a far remoter period."

Thus we agree, and assert our former opinion that Masonry was at first a speculative, scientific, and quasi religious institution, having its origin in the mysteries. In course of time it was made the nucleus or foundation of religious creeds among the churches and the operative part assumed or adopted by the travelling architects, cathedral builders and guilds. But that a system of speculative Masonry has always existed, and the formation of the present system of Masonry was merely the uniting of the old system with the operative or guild Masons, and the evidence seems conclusive to us from the fact that the speculative branch was, to a certain extent, represented by architectural implements, yet its officers and chief points were represented by astronomical and religious nomenclature. Thus, the Master, King Solomon—Wisdom; Sen. Warden, Hiram of Tyre—Strength; Jun. Warden, Hiram Abif—Beauty; the three Lights are represented by the Sun, Moon, and Master of the Lodge; while the Holy Bible, square and compasses represent the other three Lights; Master in the East, Sun rising; Junior Warden in South, Sun at meridian; Senior Warden in the West, Sun at close of day; East, the place of light—journeying around the Lodge Room with the course of the Sun. North, darkness, "where the sun at noonday darted no ray of light;" together with many other like astronomical and Biblical expressions well known to Masons. On the other hand, had there been but one branch of the Order, and that Operative Masonry, the stations and allusions would have been to subjects more modern or more clearly architectural, and named after the many celebrated works of architecture, such as the Tower of Babel, the Pyramids of Egypt, the Leaning Tower of Pisa, the Cathedral of Como, St. Paul's of London, and many other names of which they were justly proud, and which would have been eminently more proper for a society emanating solely from an operative association of Builders and Architects, who were totally ignorant of the scientific teachings of Astronomy, Geometry, and kindred sciences of the ancient languages, especially the secret mysteries of Greece, Syria, Egypt, &c., from which the nomenclature of speculative Masonry has been largely taken, and from which the secret Ritual of even the present day has been largely copied.—Masonic Review.

Haymarket.—"Jim the Penman," a new four-act play, by Sir Charles Young, first produced at a matinée about a fortnight since, has been put in the evening bill at this theatre. The play is a romance of modern society, and tells a story rich in dramatic interest, effective incidents, and powerful situations. James Ralston, holding a high position in society as a financier, lives in luxuriant style in an elegant house in town. He has also a country residence. This James Ralston is no other than a notorious forger—Jim the Penman, who in years gone by has perpetrated several forgeries, whereby he has managed to accumulate an immense fortune. His wife, previous to her marriage, was engaged to an old friend of Ralston's, Louis Percival, who, prior to claiming his bride, went to seek his fortune in America. In Percival's absence, Ralston has managed to imitate the lovers' handwriting, and has sent each a letter, purporting to come from the other, and thereby breaks off the engagement. Ralston then persuades the woman he has wronged to become his wife. After the lapse of a year, Percival, who has realised a fortune during his sojourn abroad, returns to England to prosecute the search for those who have robbed him of this same fortune, and pays a visit to Ralston's house, where he and his old love, now Mrs. Ralston, discover how they have been deceived, but without suspecting who is the culprit. In the course of the play, it is shown how the gang with which Ralston is associated manages to secure the diamonds of a certain Lord Drelincourt. It happens that on the night this fraud is proposed to Ralston by his partner in crime, Baron Hartfeld, Lord Drelincourt offers his hand to Ralston's daughter, and is accepted by her. The next day, on repairing to his bankers for some diamonds which he proposes to give to his intended wife, he finds that, by a forged order, the diamonds have been given over. But, before the thieves have been able to get rid of the plunder, the robbery is thus discovered. How the forgeries are brought home to Ralston by a detective who has been a frequent visitor at his house; how his wife finds out the injury she has sustained, which she does by comparing the letter supposed to have been sent by her to Percival with a cheque she authorised her husband to write in her name, and how, when the denouncement is made, Ralston suddenly dies of heart disease—by which means his wife and children are spared the shame and publicity of his conviction as a felon—are all shown in the play. We can but give a mere outline of the story, space not permitting our going into it more fully. In describing the acting, we can only say that the artistes engaged gave as much satisfaction as the play, and that is saying a great deal. Mr. Arthur Dacre, as Jim the Penman, plays the part in a highly sensational fashion. He has grasped the idea of the author, but his want of command sometimes makes him ineffective when he should be strong. Mr. Beerbohm-Tree gives a clever impersonation of the swindling Baron Hartfelt, his bearing throughout being most natural, and he never overacts the part. Mr. Barrymore was earnest as Louis Percival, but this gentleman would be suited better with the character of Ralston. The Captain Redwood of Mr. Charles Brookfield was a capital study of character. Lady Monckton played with power and discretion as the suffering wife. In the third act where she compares the cheque and the forged letter, before accusing her husband, few actresses could have exhibited such variety of expression by dumb show as did Lady Monckton. If she could rise to the situation in the last act her impersonation would be perfect. The other parts were well filled by Mr. Edmund Maurice (Lord Drelincourt), Mr. Frank Rodney (George Ralston), Mr. Forbes Dawson (Mr. Chapstone, Q.C.), Mr. Ulick Winter (Mr. Netherby, M.P.), Mr. P. Ben Greet (Dr. Pettywise), Miss Helen Leyton (Agnes Ralston), Miss Henrietta Lindley (Lady Dunscombe), and Mrs. E. H. Brooke (Mrs. Chapstone). The play, which may be said to rivet the attention of the audience from beginning to end, is a work that has long been wanted in London, and from the hearty reception given to both author and artistes, we may predict for "Jim, the Penman," a most successful run.

Novelty.—Mr. William Greet, the courteous manager of this theatre, announces his benefit for Thursday, the 15th inst., when he will present an attractive programme.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

G. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department. Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THE Quarterly General Court of Governors and Subscribers of this Institution was held on Saturday, in the Large Hall of the Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall, Past Grand Treasurer. The minutes having been confirmed, Bro. H. B. Marshall was re-elected Treasurer of the Institution, on the proposition of Bro. J. L. Mather, seconded by Bro. E. F. Storr. Bro. Marshall tendered his thanks for the compliment, and assured the brethren he had endeavoured to discharge the duties of the office in the past to the best of his ability. It had been his privilege during the past year to speak for the first time in Grand Lodge on behalf of the Institution, and it then afforded him great gratification to see the practical sympathy of the brethren assembled, who voted the sum of £1000 towards the additional charges entailed by the purchase of the recently acquired land adjoining the School grounds at Battersea Rise. He was sure he was expressing the sentiments of his colleagues, as well as of himself, when he said they were individually and collectively actuated in that purchase by an earnest desire to promote the best interests, to study the comfort, and increase the benefits of the poor fatherless girls that the Craft had committed to their care. The General Committee for the year was then elected, as follows:—Bros. A. L. Annett, J. W. Berrie, J. J. Caney, J. F. Corben, Col. Wolseley-Cox, T. A. Dickson, W. Dodd, J. French, T. G. C. Gambrill, Walter Martin, A. Moore, and W. Vincent. An additional vacancy, to be filled at that day's election, was then declared, on the motion of Bro. J. H. Matthews, P.G. Standard Bearer, Vice-Patron, seconded by Bro. Edgar Bowyer, P.G. Standard Bearer, Vice-Patron. The vacancy was caused by the death of Inga Edith Wilkinson, who died after four days' illness. Bro. Gladwell brought forward his proposal, that in recognition of valuable professional services gratuitously rendered to this Institution by Bro. Frank Richardson P.G.D., Patron, he be elected an honorary Vice-President, with 20 votes at all elections of girls. Bro. Gladwell said it required but few words to introduce this proposal; the Chairman had already alluded to the duties which fell to the House Committee in the matter of the purchase of the extra land at Battersea-rise, and he might allude to the service of Bro. Richardson, a member of the House Committee, whose services as a lawyer had often been placed at the command of the Institution. Those services were conspicuous on the occasion he referred to, when the negotiations necessitated the inspection of many deeds, and the devotion of a great deal of time, much care, attention, and circumspection. Had the business been placed in the hands of some one who had less interest in the welfare of the Institution, the School might have been saddled with a bill of costs far exceeding that which was incurred, and though the negotiations were protracted, they might have been much more prolonged, and the terms might have been far less favourable than they were. There was really more show than substance in the present proposal, for they were only giving Bro. Richardson a little more patronage than he had already acquired by his liberal pecuniary contributions to the Institution. Bro. Henry Smith, Deputy Prov. G.M. West Yorkshire, seconded the proposition, which was carried unanimously. Bro. Charles Lacey P.M. 174 next rose, for the purpose of directing attention to what he considered an objectionable paragraph on the balloting papers for the present election, and which was conspicuously printed in red ink, to the effect that if the subscriber died after he or she had signed the paper, but before the election, the proxy would be invalid. He had no doubt this paragraph had caused discomfort to brethren in advanced years. Although such was the law of the Institution, it was unwise to have it announced on the balloting paper. It was putting the matter very pointedly to the subscribers. He should move that such a paragraph do not appear again. Brother James Stevens P.M. 1426 also expressed dissatisfaction with the paragraph. The Chairman said they were in the unfortunate position of having this law, which he thought was undesirable. The brethren, however, had power to alter it, and they also had power, if they did not alter it, to say that it should not appear on the balloting papers. Notice of motion could be given for the next Quarterly Court, whereupon Bro. Lacey said he should move a resolution on the subject in due course. This concluded the preliminary business, and the poll was declared open for the election of twenty-four girls into the Institution. A list of those who were successful appear in another column; we here append details of the unsuccessful, the votes polled on whose behalf will be carried forward for the next election.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE usual Quarterly General Court of Governors and Subscribers, and Half-yearly Election of this Institution was held at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen Street, on Monday, under the presidency of Bro. W. Roebuck P.G. Steward. On the minutes being submitted for confirmation, Bro. W. A. Scurrah brought forward his motion, "That so much of the minutes of the Quarterly General Court of Monday, the 11th January 1886, as refers to the alteration of the mode of the election of the House Committee be not confirmed." The proposer of the motion said he did not mean to reflect upon any member of the House Committee; he knew them to be the right men in the right place. They were doing their work thoroughly well. The laws for the election of the House Committee had been carefully framed; but they might be altered and improved. But alteration should be carefully effected, and there ought to be a very good and sound reason for change. Hitherto no reason had been suggested for the alteration. He would like to ask the Secretary, as the most competent to answer—had the old rule that the House Committee should be elected annually worked well? Bro. Binckes said, after a very large experience he had no hesitation in saying the old rule had worked well. There was always a quorum present; the average number was eight, and very often there were nine, or even twelve. Bro. Scurrah said he had tried, but could not obtain any satisfactory answer to the question, What reason there was for the advisability of altering the law? They might get a new man on the Committee, who might not be up to his work; he might be incompetent, he might not have time to attend, and it might be necessary that he should, so to speak, go to school to learn his work, and it was said that they could not expect a man to be on a Committee of that kind and learn the work thoroughly unless he had been on it twelve months. That was an insult. To say that they could not pick out of Freemasons men who, unless they were on the House Committee twelve months could not know the work, was an affront to the Order, because every one knew that the majority of these Committeemen were business men, up to the details of business; many of them able to give time to the work, and no one should be elected who was not. Every one of the brethren was competent for the work. Look at it in another light. If they had a brother on the Committee who was incapable of doing his work, was it not well to be able to get rid of him as soon as they could? It was a very bad reason, in fact no reason, to say that brother should be on the Committee for three years; the sooner they got rid of an incompetent person and got a competent one the better. What were they doing by this new law? They were proposing that a brother who was incompetent should remain on the Committee for three years, to the exclusion of a competent one. At the end of three years four of the number were to go out, the remainder were to stay four years, then four more were to go out, and four of the twelve would remain in for five years. Was this reasonable? Who provided the sinews of war, and brought the money to support the Institution? For any one to say that those who were the Governors were to be debarred from the privilege of electing these Committees every twelve months was absurd on the face of it. What about the other Committees—the General Committee and the Audit Committee? They ought all to be tarred with the same brush. When the axe was laid at the foot of the tree they all knew that it was only a question of time when that tree would fall. They ought to be very careful how they hurt the susceptibilities of thosewho subscribed to the Institution, and he hoped they would agree with him and restore the power the brethren had had to elect every year. Brother A. E. Gladwell P.M. 172 seconded the motion, while Brother E. F. Storr P.M. and Treasurer 22 opposed it. He was surprised at the doctrines Brother Scurrah had propounded. There was not a brother in the room who knew more about Committees than Bro. Scurrah; twenty-five years Bro. Scurrah said he had worked on Committees, and knew the practice well. He was sorry to hear him say he did not believe in triennial elections. He (Bro. Storr) did. He was not the man to go on for a House Committee for one year only. It was all very well to say they must go to school to learn the work, but they must look at the expense, annoyance, and trouble of going in for one year only. He was not ambitious of being on a Committee; the first year the members were of no use at all. If they wanted to do good to the Institution, and to learn their lessons; if they wanted to be somebody on the Committee, let them know what they had to do and serve an apprenticeship. If a man was an ornamental man only, take him off. Bro. Scurrah had not given this question sufficient thought, and he (Bro. Storr), after many years' experience of Committees, entirely disagreed with him. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D., as the originator of the proposal, had been and was still of opinion that the Committee should be well versed in their duties, and this could not be done in one year. They wanted brethren well up to the work, and with a thorough knowledge and experience of it. They might elect a brother who would utterly fail. Brethren elected for one year only might say it was not worth while to attend. As for himself, it did not matter to him an atom whether a brother was elected for twelve months or twelve years. Bro. Henry Smith Deputy Grand Master West Yorkshire dissented from Bro. Stewart's proposition, that if a brother were elected for one year only he did not care a button about it, and he would attend or neglect his duties as he thought proper. If that was an argument against annual elections, how much the more was it an argument against three years' elections. Let them have a fair argument. Bro. Binckes had told them the annual election had been found to work very well. Bro. Binckes had had a great deal of experience, and ought to know. Let the rule go on as it was; let them have annual elections. If it had not gone on well, let them alter the rule. He disliked this peddling with the rules, and constantly interfering with and changing them. Bro. Scurrah's motion was then put, and carried by a large majority. In other respects the minutes of last meeting were agreed to. On the motion of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D., seconded by Bro. Edgar Bowyer P.G.Std.B., Bro. George Plucknett P.G.D. was unanimously re-elected Treasurer of the Institution. On the motion of Bro. W. A. Scurrah, seconded by Bro. E. F. Storr, the following were elected as the General Committee for the ensuing year:—Bros. Brackstone Baker, Blackmur, Dorey, Dunkley, Law, Noah Martin, E. C. Massey, Henry Massey, McKay, A. H. Scurrah, H. Webb, and H. Wells. Scrutineers of votes were then nominated, and the election of boys into the School was proceeded with. A list of those successful will be found on page 248, while the following list gives particulars as to the votes polled by those who were unsuccessful on this occasion.

PARTIAL SUSPENSION.

ACCORDING to general Masonic usage, a Mason under suspension is thereby deprived of all the rights and privileges of Masonry for the time being, and until the penalty is removed, by limitation or otherwise, it is unlawful for Masons to hold Masonic intercourse with him while under such sentence, which necessarily excludes him from the Lodge-room when a Lodge is at labour. It matters not for what cause the penalty may have been inflicted—the effect must be the same in all cases until it is removed. There are two grades of this penalty, known as "definite suspension" and "indefinite suspension," but the only difference between them is in duration, and hence the effect under either must be the same while in force.

In the Proceedings of the last annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas, among the decisions of the Grand Master, which were approved by the Grand Lodge, we find the following:

"A brother suspended for non-payment of dues has not the privilege of visiting his Lodge. The Lodge may permit him to do so, but this is not a right which he may demand. And when permitted to visit the Lodge, it is only as a visitor, and not as a member, and therefore he cannot vote, sit on committees, or otherwise participate in the business of the Lodge."

This is what we would term "partial suspension," the extent of which may be more or less, according to the humour of the Lodge from time to time. The suspended brother goes up to a stated meeting of his Lodge on one occasion and is admitted. At the next meeting he finds the door closed against him. If he has an inclination to attend regularly, all he can do is to go up and inquire, "May I come in to-night?" He is in about the same condition as an Honorary 33° member of the Supreme Council in the Scottish Rite—sometimes he gets in and sometimes he does not. He has the satisfaction of knowing, however, that his Masonry is not costing him anything, even if he is not enjoying its full benefits. He never did care to take an active part in the proceedings of his Lodge, and the loss of his vote is more than compensated by his relief from dues and committee work. In one sense he becomes a sort of honorary member.

Now we have no objection to the Grand Lodge of Arkansas, or of any other State except Indiana, inflicting this sort of a penalty for non-payment of dues, if they will do it under some other name than "suspension." It is in fact nothing more nor less than "dropping a member from the roll," as has been done in some Grand jurisdictions. Make the punishment for non-payment of dues whatever you please, but call the penalty by its right name, so that others may not be misled as to the Masonic standing of your members. In Indiana we could hold Masonic intercourse with one who had been dropped from the roll, but could not with one who is under suspension, even if he had committed no greater offence than non-payment of dues. The obligation not to hold Masonic intercourse with one who is under the penalty of suspension was in no way qualified as to the cause of such suspension. We cannot recognise such a penalty as "partial suspension."—Masonic Advocate.

FREEMASONRY IN GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

MUCH of what we said last week in regard to Suffolk Freemasonry applies with equal force to nearly every other English Province, for to outsiders, and those who are not intimately associated with one or other of them, Freemasonry in one county is very much like that in another; therefore, it is not our intention to make as full a summary of other Provincial Calendars as we did of that of Suffolk, but rather to devote our space to a notice of such items as may be peculiar to the several districts which come under notice. In years to come we hope there will be sufficient in each Provincial Calendar to render its perusal a matter of more general interest, and then we may treat the information contained in them in a different manner to what we here do. We now devote attention to Gloucestershire, the Calendar for which, compiled by Bro. R. V. Vassar-Smith, the Provincial Charity Secretary, presents one or two features of novelty, among which we may mention a page devoted to a "record of Masonic occurrences in Province of Gloucestershire" in 1885; which, unfortunately, mainly consists of an "obituary;" the other matters recorded being the Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution (held in London), at which the Provincial Grand Master of Gloucestershire presided, and the installation of Bro. John Walker, M.A., as Grand Mark Master of the Province. There is also a record of the Past Officers of the Province—which is presided over by the Right Hon. Sir M. E. Hicks-Beach, Bart., M.P., P.S.G.W.—and then a list of the several Lodges, with the Officers, Past Masters, date and place of meeting, name of Secretary, number of members, &c. of each. From this list we learn that the Province of Gloucestershire has on its roll 605 Masons, distributed among its fourteen Lodges as follows:—

No.	Lodge	Meeting at	Members
82	Foundation	Cheltenham	51
246	Royal Union	Cheltenham	67
270	Royal Faith and Friendship	Berkeley	28
493	Royal Lebanon	Gloucester	79
592	Cotteswold	Cirencester	57
702	Sherborne	Stroud	39
761	St. John	Dursley	24
839	Royal Gloucestershire	Gloucester	60
855	Sympathy	Wotton-under-Edge	30
900	St. George	Tewkesbury	30
951	Prince of Wales	Stow-on-the Wold	29
1005	Zetland	Gloucester	50
1067	Royal Forest of Dean	Newnham-on-Severn	36
1363	Tyndall	Chipping Sodbury	25

The Provincial Grand Chapter, which is also under the government of Sir M. E. Hicks-Beach, consists of three Chapters, with a total membership of 155, viz.:

No.	Chapter	Meeting at	Members
82	Unanimity	Cheltenham	88
493	Royal Lebanon	Gloucester	34
839	Royal Gloucestershire	Gloucester	33

Full particulars are also given as regards the Mark and the higher degrees of Masonry, while the closing pages of the Calendar are devoted to the subject of Charity. From these we learn that the Charity Committee of the Province consists of the head of the Province and his Deputy, the Prov. Grand Treasurer and Secretary, a representative from each Lodge, &c., in the Province—who must be at least a Life Subscriber to one or more of the Charities—such subscribing members, resident in the Province, as have served the office of Steward to two of the Charities; brethren who act as Stewards (for the year in which they serve), and all Life Governors of the Provincial Benevolent Fund. This Committee has the management of the Provincial cases at the several elections of the Institutions, and the Calendar gives a list of those who have been elected through the instrumentality of this Committee. In connection with the subject it is stated that at the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge at Cheltenham in 1882 it was resolved, in respect to the distribution of alms for the poor and distressed that at all meetings of Lodges in the Province, whether followed by a banquet or not, the box for poor and distressed Masons should be sent round, and the sum collected inserted in the minutes of the Lodge on each occasion. It was also decided that a portion of the sum collected should be handed over to the Charity Steward of the Province, in aid of the fund for the relief of poor and distressed Masons of the Province exclusively, or their wives and children, and that for the first five years, by way of experiment, the portion should be one-half of the sums collected. Any brother subscribing five guineas (in one or more sums) to this Fund becomes a Governor, and as such is entitled to attend all meetings of the Charity Committee. Then follow details of the Masonic Charity Association of the Province, the objects of which are (A) The increase of the number of Life Subscribers and Life Governors to the Royal Masonic Charities, and (B) The formation of a systematic Benevolent Fund for the purpose (1) of educating and advancing in life the children of distressed or deceased Freemasons in the Province; and (2) to give assistance in elections to the Masonic Charities. Lists are also given of brethren who have served the office of Steward to the Charities for the year 1885, together with the amounts collected, and this is followed by a list showing the votes held by the several Lodges, &c. (and the members thereof) in the Province. This list gives the total number of votes in Gloucestershire as follows:—691 Girls', 1016 Boys', 625 Men's, and 777 Widows', a total of 3019. This number, which was the total on the 1st January 1886, compares with past years as follows:—1879, 936; 1880, 1229; 1881, 1463; 1882, 2017; 1883, 2093; 1884, 2320; and 1885, 2489. There has thus been an increase each year, which on the eight years shows an improvement of 2173 votes. A list of Lodges, &c. in adjoining Provinces brings to a conclusion a very useful little work, which, as may be judged from the extracts we give, contains much valuable information in connection with Freemasonry in Gloucestershire.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. Edgar Bowyer P.G. Standard Bearer. The minutes having been confirmed, Bro. J. Terry (Secretary) reported that four of the male annuitants had died since the last meeting, as also had one of the male candidates. One of the widows on the list for the next election had written, withdrawing her candidature, which withdrawal was accepted. The report of the Warden for the past month, and the report of the Finance Committee were read, adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The application of a widow for the usual share of her deceased husband's annuity was received and granted, after which a Committee was appointed to prepare the annual report of the Institution, and the proceedings were brought to a conclusion with the customary vote of thanks to the Chairman.

Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall P.G. Treasurer will preside at the next Festival of the Newsvendors' Benevolent and Provident Institution, to be held at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Tuesday, 25th May.

AN OLD LODGE.

By Bro. William James Hughan.

THERE are many old Lodges in Scotland which date not only years prior to the formation of the Grand Lodge of that country, but far into the seventeenth century, some even earlier still. As the records of such Lodges in several instances overlap the debatable period, or, in other wores, the "transition period," naturally such minutes afford most reliable evidence of the character of these old Lodges, before and after the advent of the Grand Lodge in 1736.

The interesting and most suggestive Histories of Lodges "Kilwinning," "Mary's Chapel" (Edinburgh), "Journeymen," No. 8, &c., have been carefully written by Brothers Lyon, Hunter and others, and so far as they and we know, or can discover, the esoteric ceremony in vogue until the second or third decades of the last century was confined to the admission of Apprentices, after which all were on the same level as respected Masonic secrets; that is to say, whatever was subsequently communicated, if aught, was of a secret character; all participated, or might do so, whether Apprentices, Fellows or Masters.

I am aware that this statement has not passed unchallenged, but it has never been disproved. Should any records be traced, proving three distinct and separate degrees were worked before the origin of the premier Grand Lodge of England, 1716-17, and exhibiting, also, proof that they were written before the second decade of the last century for England, and the second or third decades for Scotland, I shall be among the first to acknowledge the evidence, but not until then.

Bro. Alexander Ross, whilst Master of the "St. John's Old Kilwinning Lodge," No. 6, Inverness, wrote an excellent account of its ancient records, the volume being published in 1877, in a sumptuous style, though very little notice, unfortunately, has been taken of its value and importance. The Lodge may have been an old offshoot of the "Mother Lodge Kilwinning," especially from the suggestiveness of its title, but beyond intimating the probability of such a connection, we cannot at present venture.

The Lodge was represented by its Masters and Wardens at the inauguration of the Scottish Grand Lodge, November 30th, 1736, and on September 26th, 1737, the members petitioned the authorities in Edinburgh for a charter, in accordance with their accepted antiquity at the time. The brethren claimed existence as a Lodge from 1678, having abundant material then at hand in confirmation thereof, though they were aware that a still greater antiquity might be favourably entertained. They stated "That preceding the year 1678, it seems by tradition of our oldest members now living, that the Lodge kept their minutes from time to time in an irregular manner, upon sheets or baffles of paper, most of which we cannot collect, so as to make anything of them to purpose—they having either been canceled or lost by accident."

"But upon the 27th December, 1678 years, Ther was a book given in by The Honble. William M'Intosh (Broyr German to the then Laird of M'Intosh) who was then chosen Master of the Lodge, from which date all the regular meetings and transactions of the Lodge are recorded till this date."

The petitioners recite the names of the several Masters, Senior and Junior Wardens, "Boxmasters or Treasurers," from 1678 to 1736 (inclusive), but not one word occurs relative to Masonic degrees or ceremonies of any kind whatever.

It is much to be regretted that at the present time the Lodge only possesses records from the year 1737, but, fortunately, its petition in 1737 affords particulars of the regular Officers from 1678, so that its official roll is thus complete from that year to now, a period of over two centuries!

The petition remarks as to the continuity of the election of Officers of the Lodge in manner as follows: "Inverness, 27th December, 1678, William Mack Intosh was chosen Master, Alexander Nicolson, Senr., Andw. Ross, Jun. Wardens, & Dd. Ross, boxmr. The same persons continued in these offices till 15th November, 1681, when William Hendrie was chosen boxmaster or Treasurer, & the above members continued till 1st December, 1684, when John M'Bean was chosen Jun. Warden & Andw. Ross Treasurer; ye rest continued till——" "27th December, 1692 when James Barbour was chosen Master," &c. (and so on to 27th December, 1736.)

The charter issued by the Grand Lodge recites that "It was evidently made to appear to us and our brethren of the Grand Lodge, by proper documents, that from the twenty-seventh of December, one thousand six hundred and seventy-eight, they have been constituted and erected in a regular Masson Lodge by the name and designation of Old Inverness Kilwinning aforesaid, since which time they have been in use to keep regular meetings, in which they have received and entered Apprentices, past Fellow Crafts, and raised Master Masons, and for that purpose have kept regular books, wherein they entered their proceedings in the way and manner practiced in other well govern'd Masson's Lodges." The Lodge was confirmed in its privileges, and empowered "to receive and enter Apprentices, pass Fellow Crafts and raise Master Masons," and was allowed precedence from the year 1678, so that if a daughter of the Old Kilwinning Lodge, it took date one year latter than the first known of its Lodges, viz., "Canongate Kilwinning," No. 2, Edinburgh, warranted or authorized in 1677.

Happily, both of the charters are still preserved. Now, it should be noted that neither the petition, nor aught else from Inverness, so far as we know, said aught about the conferring of the three degrees from 1678, no warrant before 1717 ever alludes to such, and no records exist which refer to the third degree prior to the last century, so that the declaration of the Grand Lodge officials in 1737, respecting this old Lodge and its working three degrees from 1678, is purely fanciful. On the constitution of the Lodge thus officially, the membership consisted of nineteen Masters, ten Fellow Crafts, and twenty-six Apprentices, fifty-five in all, mainly Speculative Freemasons, if not exclusively so. The Lodge seems to have possessed an interest in property and lands, in common with the Six Incorporated Trades, and from time to time dividends were received thereon.

According to Bro. Alexander Ross, the first Provincial Grand Master in Scotland, Alex. Drummond, Esq., was appointed over the Lodges in the western counties, who visited the Lodge at Inverness, April 20th, 1739.

One shilling sterling was the fine inflicted for drunkenness, if seeking to attend the Lodge; two shillings for the second time, and "for the third time to be turned out of the Lodge," the sentence being dependent upon a "solemn recantation," payment of fine, and "discretion of the Lodge."

The Lodge processions were conducted with great regularity and much pomp. On every St. John's Day the Masons walked, properly clothed, through the streets of the Town. The meetings for business commenced often as early as nine o'clock a.m. On the occasion of the annual election of office bearers, the Lodge walked thereafter in procession to church, in communion with the other Lodges.

On 25th March, 1745, it was provided "Yt each Entered Apprentice may sign the same in testimony of his adherence to them (By-Laws), yt his mark, then taken out, may show the members of this as well as oyr. Lodges, the time of his admission."

A Friendly or Benefit Society has existed in connection with the Lodge for many years, and is in a prosperous condition financially, having an estimated net income of £609 per annum from investments, &c.

The St. Andrew's Killwinning Lodge, Inverness, was in existence A.D. 1735, and probably before. In 1745 the members had the misfortune to have their "records, jewels, utensils and cash, either stolen or destsoyed by the men of the Duke of Cumberland's army, their room being used by the 'orderly-sergeant,' the warrant only being saved." This Lodge joined its more fortunate and friendly rival in 1839, when it was No. 31 on the roll, so that subsequently its member came under St. John's Lodge, No. 6. Long may the prosperity of the old Lodge continue.—Voice of Masonry.

Holloway's Pills.—Sleeplessness, flatulency, acidity, nausea, and all dyspeptic indications may be speedily relieved by these famous Pills, of which large quantities are shipped to all parts of the world. The constantly increasing demand for Holloway's medicine proves its power over disease and its estimation by the public. In weakness of the stomach, in diseases of the liver, and in disorders of the system, caused by cold or a sluggish circulation, no medicine is so efficacious, no remedy so rapid, as these Pills, which are altogether incapable of doing mischief. By quickening digestion, they give refreshing sleep, sharpen the appetite, impart tone to the digestive organs, purify and enrich the blood, regulate the secretions, and strengthen the whole physical frame.

GENTLEMEN MASONS.

TO our view, and doubtless in accordance with the views of the readers of The Keystone, a Freemason is nothing if not a gentleman. A gentleman must be the very corner-stone of a Freemason. The corner-stone of a material edifice, in Masonic symbolism, itself represents a true Mason, who is always a perfect Ashlar—plumb, level and square. There is an eminent fitness in this symbolism, because early in the last century, when Freemasonry ceased to be in any degree operative, and became purely speculative—that is, when Freemasons were no longer builders of cathedrals and other stately edifices, but when gentlemen who were not operative Masons came to be admitted into the old cathedral organizations, or operative Lodges deduced from them, and were there taught moral lessons from the implements of Masonry and the old legends of the Craft—this new class of members of the old Masonic Fraternity were denominated "Gentlemen Masons." We quote from one of the old MS. of the last century.

What do you learn by being a gentleman Mason?

Answer: Secrecy, Morality and Good Fellowship.

What do you learn by being an operative Mason?

Answer: To Hew, Square and Mould Stone, lay a Level and raise a Perpendicular.

As our readers are aware, the transition of Freemasonry from having been an operative art to being a speculative science, was gradual, and almost imperceptible. Just as now the various tradesmen's guilds of London elect as members gentlemen who are innocent of knowledge of their respective trades, so in the olden time, when Freemasons were famous only as fabricators and architects, they occasionally admitted men eminent for social or political distinction as members of their Lodges. This has been abundantly proved by old Minute-Books of Lodges, old MSS. and old books of general information, likes Plot's History of Staffordshire. The fact is incontestible. But we are not concerned with this fact now, further than so far as it introduces us to one of the names—Gentlemen Masons, given to members of the ancient and honourable Craft. It is a good name, a significant name, a name that we should cherish. It betokens more than it literally expresses. It signifies now not only one who is not an operative Mason, manually using in building operations the Plumb, the Level and the Square, but one who is a worthy successor of the middle-age Freemasons, to whom we owe the most of the glories which belong to Gothic architecture in that wonderful era. It signifies to us that a man must be in the accepted sense of the term, to-day, a gentleman before he can be a Freemason. Freemasonry founds itself now exclusively upon gentlemen as its corner-stone. And, mark you, gentlemen are born, not made; resembling poets in this respect. Education will do wonders, but we do not believe it can make a gentleman. Only the Grand Architect of the Universe can do that. A gentleman is a fine piece of clay, a specimen man, the farthest remove from a boor; a man you can trust, a man you can respect a man you can love. In such an one you may implicitly repose brotherly love, and this is the particular kind of love Masonry bestows. With gentlemen for the Cornerstone of Masonry in these modern times, what is Freemasonry not susceptible of, in the way of fraternal accomplishment? A gentleman is a pleasant Brother to meet in your Lodge, a pleasant man to meet when you are away from home. He is approachable, affable, with a heart as well as a head, with kindly sympathies as well as an eye for "the main chance." He is "one of us" because he deserved to be, and however much of a gentleman he was before he was made a Mason, he is more of one now. He has been taught that he is not an "independent" in this world, not even merely a family man, bound to specially regard only those of his own flesh and blood; but he has broadened his views in becoming a member of our universal brotherhood. Just as the sun is said never to go down on the British possessions, so the sun never goes down on the brotherhood of Freemasons. They are in every civilized country. They brave even the dangers of the Arctic circle and the wilds of Africa. They are everywhere. In every country the Freemason finds a Brother, and in every land a home. This feature alone leads not a few to attentively regard the Craft, and seek to be included in it. Upon the few rare Masonic occasions that a public procession of the Craft appears, the world inevitably notices the bearing and character of the brethren who so appear and notes the fact that they are gentlemen, men of social and business position, including among them the leaders in all the great social and industrial movements of the day. Masonry does not make a display in public for the purpose of calling attention to this fact, but the fact is always evident on the rare occasions referred to. It is because these occasions are rare, that gentleman do not hesitate to appear on them, for if they were every day, many gentlemen would decline to participate.

The Craft has every reason to be proud of this old designation, "Gentleman Mason," because it is not merely the index to an interesting history in connection with the origin of the term, but it represents an actual fact, which reflects honour upon our ancient and honourable Fraternity in its accepted form to-day.—Keystone.

IS FREEMASONRY DECLINING

OF the former glory of Freemasonry there can be no question. As a system, it has passed through various processes of evolution, and advanced by successive steps, all along the way making expression of essential truths well calculated to give light and blessing to the world. As an organization it has broadened and deepened its influence, becoming a factor of no small importance among the benign forces of society. It has acquired resources both of material and of higher good, and thus has insured a remarkable degree of success. It has attained an honourable position, because of the principles and ideas it has illustrated, and because of the practical services it has rendered in ways of moral and social usefulness. The record which the Masonic organization has made is one of bright and blessed accomplishment, and Craftsmen may will rejoice that so much of inspiration is to be gathered from a survey of the past.

There is no question as to the prestige which comes from former days of Masonic progress and accomplishment. That ancient renown is an indisputable fact. But how does the Institution manifest itself at the present time? Is it holding its own? Is it augmenting its power and usefulness, or is it declining? There are those who tell us that Masonry is on the wane, that it has about fulfilled its mission, and is not well adapted to the needs and conditions of modern life. There are others who say that the character of the Institution has been impaired by changes of system and administration—by innovations that ought not to have been allowed, and which surely involve a loss both of strength and utility. And still another class tell us that there is not now any such attachment to the Craft as formerly existed, and on this allegation they formulate their pessimistic theories of Masonic deterioration, decay, and death.

We take no stock in these gloomy prophecies. Our belief is, that Freemasonry was never in a condition of so much strength and prosperity as now. To-day it gathers to itself more of the increments of power than in any former period of its history, and exercises a broader and more potent ministry of blessing than ever before.

Freemasonry is not declining! It is not declining as a system. It still stands for the same great principles which gave it character and prominence in the early time, and sets forth a code of morals and ethics that may well claim the assent of intelligent and noble minds. Brotherly love, relief, and truth, are still emphasized as the fundamental ideas of the system, which is illustrated by ancient form and ceremony. No changes have come in to destroy or cripple the primal teachings of Freemasonry as regards man's duty. There is the same call now, the same clear enforcement by word and illustration by a varied symbolism that were put before the fathers as they were instructed in the Masonic system. Changes may have crept into the ritual and the work, but these have in no sense affected the great, distinguishing principles that underlie the Institution. Freemasonry in its essential character, retains the ancient impress, and presents itself to the world in an undimmed moral splendour.

Its organic life is not declining. It never had a more numerous following than now. Its membership has increased during the year just ended. It has prospered in the things that appear in the outward showing; establishing new Lodges in all the countries of the civilized world; building new halls, gathering material resources to a greater extent than in any former period; and in manifold ways, making expression of its vigorous life and advancing power. It is still the leading fraternity among the world's association that exercise their social and humane ministries.

Freemasonry is not declining in the character of its membership. Doubtless there are weak, indifferent brethren, who would not meet the tests of any severe trial with much of stedfast devotion to the Craft. In the anti-Masonic days, some denied the faith, and showed how empty and vain their Masonic professions had been. Under the same conditions, most likely some brethren who have been ready to enter a popular organization, would be equally ready to forsake it if it became unpopular. But beside these are others, the majority of the Fraternity as we believe, who are most allegiant to Freemasonry both as a system and an Institution. They have Masonic enthusiasm, devotion, zeal, and in their hands the interests of the Craft will suffer no loss. We have a feeling of pride when we consider the membership of Masonic Lodges, and notice the intelligence, moral worth, and true manhood therein represented. Our Institution will not decline, so long as it can call to itself such material and be thus supported.

Freemasonry is not declining in its service of social, benevolent, and moral good. It performs a benign work in a way hidden from the general view. It administers its practical charities in a way peculiar to itself. It relieves much suffering, and sends the gleams of hope and joy into many darkened homes and hearts. It brings its followers together in sweet and hallowed fellowship, and by its blessed communications of friendly thought and help augments the zest of life. It gives moral helps and delights as well, thus making its offices felt in all that tends to the establishment of a worthy character, and the maintaining of a useful and true life. While Freemasonry makes its power to be felt in such directions; while it exercises so broad and blessed a ministry among men, there need be no fear of its decline or fall. It will endure as an agency of good—an instrumentality of light and blessing, which has resting upon it the Divine approval.—Freemason's Repository.

THE THIRD TOTTENHAM AND ENFIELD MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

THE annual report of this valuable Association has just been presented, and, as we have reported the progress of the movement in the last three years, we have pleasure in observing, from the final balance-sheet, before us, that the efforts of the promoters have been brought to a successful issue. The President of the Association, which has proved of so much benefit to the members during the existence of the organisation, is Bro. John Maller P.M. 754, who has been assisted by Bros. E. Poore P.M. 1237, P. Prov. G.D.C. Middlesex, Vice-President; J. H. Thompson P.M. 1707, P. Prov. G.S.B. Middlesex Treasurer; J. Garrod P.M. 754, H. V. Clements S.W. 1237, P.M. 754, &c. P.P.G.A.S. Middlesex, E. J. Everdell P.M. 1579, W. M. Tegg P.M. 754, E. G. Lewis P.M. 754, &c., G. Tegg W.M. 1579, &c., A. Bryant P.M. 1237 P. Prov. G.J.D. Middlesex, W. J. Meek S.D. 754, J. D. Birkin J.W. 754, E. F. Day 534, J. Steer 1579, G. Rowe P.M. 754, J. M. Rudd P.M. 1579, S. Parsons S.D. 1237, Committee; and A. J. Fiddler W.M. 754 P. Prov. G.S.D. Middlesex Hon. Sec. The Committee, in presenting their report, state that during the past year £110 16s 6d has been subscribed, and eleven appropriations made to the three Masonic Charitable Institutions. The total amount subscribed during the four years of the existence of the Association amounts to £409 2s 6d, and the Committee congratulate the members on its being brought to so successful an issue. The total amount subscribed by the three Associations was over £1,600, a result which reflects the highest credit and satisfaction, not only upon the executive but the members generally. It is unnecessary to enter into minute details as to the manner in which the Funds of the Association have been dispensed, but a glance at the balance-sheet is sufficient to show the vast amount of good which has been effected, and the substantial benefit which has been accorded to the three Charities connected with the Craft. Joining in the congratulations expressed by the Committee, we heartily hope that any future exertions in the same laudable direction by similar Associations may be crowned with equal, if not greater, success than that which has attended the movement which has just been closed with such satisfaction to all concerned in the Third Tottenham and Enfield Masonic Charitable Association.

THE MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A short time since a letter, signed "P.M. 1607," appeared in your columns, and appended to it were the financial tables for the year so arranged as to convey the compiler's view of the position of the several Provinces in relation to the three Masonic Charities. In the letter the Province of Lincolnshire is made to appear greatly in default, as the following extract will show:—"The next on the list is Lincolnshire, with an annual deficiency of £640. Now this case is worse than the preceding, for while Devonshire is taking £1020 from the funds she is contributing at the rate of nearly £378 per annum. Lincolnshire, on the other hand, is burdening the funds with £696 per annum, to which she contributes something under £60. I am given to understand this Province is starting Provincial Charities of its own, and a very good thing too; but she should be just before she is generous, and not lay all the burden of her destitute Craftsmen and their belongings on the shoulders of the other Provinces. The Benevolent are short by over £233, the Boys' £246, and the Girls' 156." Such boys, girls and annuitants from this Province as are now deriving benefit from the Masonic Institutions have secured these advantages either by the payment of a sum in cash, or because a sufficient number of votes was given in their favour, and as the votes given to them were secured by the payment of a sum of money representing their value, it is somewhat difficult to understand the meaning of the paragraph from the letter of "P.M. 1607" above quoted. The Province has voting power, for which it has paid; is it not at liberty to use it in securing the object for which votes are acquired? or is the Province in possession of benefits from the Masonic Institutions to which it is not entitled? In what way is it acting unjustly? It would be instructive if "P.M. 1607" would make these points clear. Apart from the above, the figures given in the Tables, as far as this Province is concerned, are far from being correct, and it is much to be regretted that the compiler of the tables did not make sure that his figures were accurate before giving publicity to them. Seven years' contributions to the Boys' Institution are put down as £161 3s, whereas over £490 has been sent in support of this Institution during the period named. The cost this year is put down at £270—that is, charging for six boys, whereas two of the six boys in the Institution are "Oliver Memorial" boys, and were purchased into the School—over £180 having been paid on account of each boy, so that clearly their cost should not be placed side by side with the contributions from the Province. The cost of the girls is put down at £170, whereas it should be £136, there being only four girls in the School, and not five as calculated for. The contributions for the seven years are said to be £94 10s, whereas over £196 was contributed for such period. As to the Benevolent Institution, I regret I cannot get at the total sum sent from the Province for the seven years, but I know in 1885 two Lodges contributed nearly £90 to this Institution, apart from the ordinary subscriptions of say £14, and there should be placed to the credit of the seven years in question, something like £115 being the proportion of the purchase money for about fifty votes for fifteen years. The figures given by me* make a difference of about £200 in favour of this Province, and reduce what "P.M. 1607" calls a deficiency of £640 to about £430. As far as I can form an opinion of the future of this Province there is, I believe, a strong and loyal attachment to the Central Charities, which the inaccurate and misleading remarks of "P.M. 1607" will not seriously interfere with. The stream of Masonic benevolence has it is true been largely directed for some time to the formation of Provincial Charities, which I am glad "P.M. 1607" approves of, but I hope that at no distant date the Province will direct its charitable efforts towards further helping the grand Central Institutions, of which every Mason may be justly proud.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

B. VICKERS, Prov. G.S.

Lincoln, 9th April 1886.

THE THEATRES, &c.

—:o:—

Vaudeville.—Tuesday witnessed the first evening performance of "Sophia," by Mr. Robert Buchanan. The author has selected the well-known novel "Tom Jones" for his theme, but has refrained from using any part of the book which might cause offence, and the results of his labours are satisfactory. Act I. shows a lawn before Squire Western's house, where we witness an interview between Tom Jones (who is despised by all), and Blifil (a mean and lying scoundrel), both under the guardianship of Mr. Allworthy, a country gentleman, who believes Blifil to be the essence of goodness. Tom Jones, after kissing a poacher's daughter, protecting the poacher, and thrashing Blifil within an inch of his life, is turned out of the house, a consummation brought about by the lying propensities of Blifil. The scene in Act II. is described as a "Barber's Shop and Rural Prospect," and here we find Tom has taken refuge with Partridge, whose oft-repeated remark of "Next, please," causes much laughter. Sophia, however, through her maid Honour, discovers Tom's retreat, and informs him she is being forced into a marriage with Blifil, who is distasteful to her. She escapes to London, whither she is tracked by her father and Blifil. She is also followed there by Tom. Act III. represents a room in Lady Bellaston's house in Golden Square. This lady pretends to help Sophia. She visits Tom in the garret where he is lodging, where he has taken refuge with Partridge. Now follows an amusing episode. Honour pays a visit in search of Tom, and is hidden by Partridge in a cupboard. Lady Bellaston then enters, and is also hidden in an adjoining room. Sophia in turn arrives, and is found a hiding place, but she is surprised at the entrance of Squire Western and Blifil. Some conversation takes place, which ends in Sophia disclosing herself, and renouncing Tom, and signifying her intention to conform to her father's will by marrying Blifil. Act IV. shows us a room at the Bull and Gate Inn, Holborn, where all is made right, through the agency of Honour and Partridge, and Blifil's villainy is exposed. In almost every case the parts assigned to the several artistes suited them admirably. The Sophia of Miss Kate Rorke was fresh, sympathetic, and charming. The way in which she threw herself into Tom Jones's arms when she visited him in his garret seemed so natural that it was received with rapturous applause. Miss Lottie Venne is well suited with the part of Honour; while Miss Helen Forsyth plays with spirit as Molly Seagrim. Miss Sophia Larkin was at her ease in illustrating the vanity of Miss Western. Miss Rose Leclercq thoroughly earned the applause which was bestowed on her as the baffled Lady Bellaston. Mr. T. Thorne has secured another of those parts from which he manages to create so much fun. His Partridge was full of humour, and he will doubtless revel in a part that suits his style so admirably. In Mr. Charles Glenny's Tom Jones there was no lack of manliness and buoyancy. Mr. Allworthy was well played by Mr. Gilbert Farquhar; Mr. Carleton discreetly accentuated Blifil's villany; while Mr. Fuller Mellish showed improvement as the poacher Seagrim. Mr. Fred Thorne works hard to command success as Squire Western, and this he certainly does. He at times, however, makes too much noise for so small a theatre. At the conclusion of the piece both author and artistes were called before the curtain.

Gaiety.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford, the manager of this theatre, announces his annual benefit matinée, for Tuesday afternoon next, the 20th instant, when a new comedy, entitled "Veracity," will be produced.

THE FIFTEEN SECTIONS

WILL BE WORKED

At the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507, held at the Moorgate, 15 Finsbury Pavement, E.C., on Monday, 19th instant. Bros. J. C. Smith W.M., James Hemming S.W., J. Thom J.W. Second Lecture—Bros. Thom, Edmonds, Procter, Hemming, Emblin. Third Lecture—Bros. Fraser, Storr, Solomon. Commencing at 7·30.

The West Smithfield Lodge of Instruction, No. 1623, will in future be held at the New Market Hotel, 26 King-street, Smithfield, E.C. It meets every Monday at 7·30 p.m., under the Preceptorship of Bro. William Pennefather P.M., with Bro. H. J. Lardner as Assistant Preceptor, and will close at 9·30. Craftsmen are cordially invited.

The Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, held at the Criterion, Piccadilly, will not meet on Thursday next (the evening before Good Friday). On the following Thursday evening, the 29th inst., the members will assemble as usual.

The Revised Book of Constitutions; Critically Considered and Compared with the Old Edition. London: Simpkin, Marshall & Co. 4 Stationers' Hall Court, E.C. Sent on receipt of stamps, One Shilling, by W. W. Morgan, Freemason's Chronicle Office, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville.

£20.—Tobacconists Commencing.—An illustrated guide (110 pages): "How to Open Respectably from £20 to £500." 3 Stamps. H. Myers & Co., Cigar and Tobacco Merchants, 109 Euston Road, London. Wholesale only. Telephone No. 7511.

Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, No. 22.—The annual supper was held on Monday evening, the 12th inst., at the Gaudon Hotel, Clapham S.W., under the presidency of Bro. Johnson P.M. 1320, Secretary 2005, Preceptor of the Lodge. There was a large assemblage present, amongst whom were several prominent local brethren. The supper was of a most récherché character, and was served in Bro. Shannaw's well-known style. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts being given from the chair, Bro. Woods P.M. proposed, in eloquent terms, the toast of the evening—Success to the Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, and in the course of his remarks said there could be no doubt that under such an able Preceptor, and with such ample accommodation, the Lodge could not fail to be a prosperous one. The Preceptor (Bro. Johnson), the Treasurer (Bro. Westley), and the Secretary (Bro. King), suitably responded. The health of the Visitors was proposed by Bro. Johnson, and Bro. Jenkins W.M. Royal Jubilee Lodge and Bro. Stunt W.M. Blackheath Lodge returned thanks. The Chairman, in proposing the health of the host (Bro. Shannaw), commented upon the excellence of the repast he had provided. Bro. Shannaw briefly replied. Several brethren contributed some excellent songs, and a most harmonious and enjoyable evening was spent.

Merchants' Lodge of Instruction, No. 241.—The members of this Lodge of Instruction held their annual meeting at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on 6th inst., the principal Officers being Bro. R. Robinson P.P.G.R. acting as W.M., Bro. A. C. Luker S.W. 251 as S.W., Bro. W. H. Cooke S.W. 1013 as J.W. Bros. Brotherton and West were re-elected Treasurer and Secretary. During the banquet which followed the business, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the Treasurer read the financial statement, which proved that the Lodge was in a most flourishing condition. The following brethren responded to the special toasts—Bro. W. H. Cooke for the Officers, Bro. James Pendleton for the mother Lodge, Bros. Brotherton and Luker for the Treasurer, and Bro. West for the Secretary. This Lodge of Instruction owes its present strong position mainly to the Preceptor, Bro. R. Robinson, with whose profound knowledge of the Ritual are combined a specially courteous and pleasing manner, and all the tact necessary to the discharge of his important duties.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on Friday, 9th instant, at the Star and Garter, Kew, when there were present—Bros. Turner W.M., Hughes S.W., F. Botley J.W., Andrews Preceptor and Treasurer, C. E. Botley Sec., Thomas S.D., Cammell J.D., Rev. Pickering Chaplain, Francis I.G., Sugg Organist, Goss, Hughes. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Goss candidate. The questions leading to the third degree were answered by Bro. Frances, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. H. Hughes candidate. Bro. C. E. Botley answered the questions of the fifth section of the first lecture. Bro. J. H. Hughes was elected W.M. for 16th inst. It was proposed and seconded that the Masonic votes of the Lodge of Instruction be vested in the names of the Secretary or Secretaries for the time being. Lodge was closed, and adjourned.

Alexandra Palace Lodge of Instruction, No. 1541.—The usual meeting of this Lodge of Instruction, whose doings were commented upon last week, was held on Saturday evening, 10th inst., at the Station Tavern, Camberwell New-road, and the following were the Officers on that occasion:—Bros. Ruffles W.M., Maxsted S.W., Hooper pro tem for Hampton J.W., Botibol S.D., Perkins J.D., Stacey P.M. Preceptor, Wesley I.G. The ceremony of passing was gone through, Bro. Isaacs candidate, and the work was done in a highly creditable manner, and at its conclusion several sections of the degree were worked by the brethren. Nothing further was brought forward in the shape of business, and the Lodge was closed in complete harmony in the usual manner.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—On Monday, 12th inst., at Baker Bros., the Cock Tavern, Highbury, N. Bros. Turner W.M., Richardson S.W., Flack J.W., Collingridge Secretary, Hancock S.D., Dixie J.D., Barnett I.G., Western acting Preceptor. Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Weeden, as candidate for raising, answered the usual questions, and was entrusted. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. The third section of the lecture was worked. Lodge was resumed to the first degree. Bro. Styles, Camden Lodge, No. 704, was elected a member, and Bro. Richardson appointed W.M. for Monday, 19th inst.

Creaton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1791.—Held at the Wheatsheaf, Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's Bush, on Thursday, the 8th inst. Bros. Davis W.M., Williams S.W., Spiegel J.W., Burton P.M. S.D., Jennings I.G. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Molony candidate. Bro. Williams W.M. of the Shepherd's Bush Lodge was elected W.M. for Thursday, the 15th inst. It was arranged that the annual Festival of the Creaton Lodge of Instruction take place on the 29th inst., at the Wheatsheaf, at 8 o'clock, the members present promised their support, and it is expected, under the management of Bro. Chalfont P.M. Secretary, this will prove a success. It was decided that the Lecture on the Origin of Freemasonry, its transmission from the early ages to the present generation, with the different rituals, will be delivered by Bro. Spiegel P.M. on 6th May. The Lodge was then closed.

MARK MASONRY.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

THE half-yearly meeting was held at Ripon, on Wednesday, 7th instant, under the banner of the Prince Leopold Lodge, No. 352. The Prince Leopold Lodge was opened at three o'clock by the W.M., the Rev. W. C. Lukis. Two Master Masons, Bros. Parker and Hutchinson, were regularly advanced to the degree of a Mark Master, after which the W.M. elect, Bro. Francis Smith was regularly installed into the chair of A. by the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. C. L. Mason. Bro. Smith was duly proclaimed and afterwards invested his Officers for the ensuing year. At 5·20 the Provincial Grand Lodge was announced, entered, and duly opened by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master, Bro. C. L. Mason, assisted by the following Officers:—Bros. the Rev. W. C. Lukis, M.A., D.P.G.M.M., Joseph W. Monckman P.P.G.W. as P.G.S.W., L. P. Pugh, M.D., Prov. G.J.W., Rev. Dr. Smyth Prov. G.M.O., Thomas Whitaker P.P.G.W. as Provincial G.S.O., W. F. Tomlinson Prov. Grand Registrar as Prov. G.J.O., W. Corke P.G.S.O. Provincial Grand Secretary, Parkin as Prov. G.S.D., Hutchinson as Prov. G.J.D., James H. Gratien Prov. G.I. of Works, W. R. Massie Prov. G.D.C., J. J. Green as Prov. Grand Sword Bearer, Henry A. Styring Prov. Grand Standard Bearer, Pearson as Prov. Grand I.G., Frances Smith, Tupman, and Thorpe as Prov. Grand Stewards. The Provincial Grand Mark Master was duly proclaimed, and in thanking the brethren said: I do not know whether any word is necessary to explain the reason of our meeting at Ripon, having had a Provincial Grand Lodge of Emergency here in last April. Then we met to consecrate the Lodge under whose banner we are assembled to-day; now we are specially asked to be present and assist at the installation of Bro. Smith as the W.M. for the ensuing year. I congratulate the Prince Leopold brethren on the steady progress they have made during the first year of their existence, and I am sure all the members of Provincial Grand Lodge join me in wishing the new Master, Bro. Smith, a happy and prosperous year of office. In November last we rather unexpectedly received a notice of the proposed alteration of the Book of Constitutions, and a draft copy was sent for inspection. I regret the matter was so hurried; indeed the time was so short that we could not call the General Purposes Committee together to consider them. I do not know how far the altered Book of Constitutions may affect our Provincial Grand Lodge bye-laws. But it will be desirable as soon as the new Constitutions are published for the Committee to meet and carefully consider them. There is one alteration in the Book of Constitutions which will be satisfactory to all. It has enabled Grand Lodge to elect H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Mark Master. We may congratulate ourselves on the distinguished honour conferred on our Order by the acceptance of the position of Grand Mark Master by his Royal Highness, which, I am sure, will be very beneficial to the Order. Brethren, it will devolve upon you to-day to nominate a Provincial Grand Master, as my time of office, in accordance with the Constitutions of the Order, will expire next September. I desire most heartily to thank the brethren for all the kind and loyal support given to me during my term of office, which I shall always remember with pleasure. I trust, brethren, that you will not allow kindly feelings to bias you in your choice to-day, for I can assure you that, whoever it may be, he shall have from me all the assistance and help he may need. Brethren, we require still a little more perseverance in some of our Lodges. Many are working well, but some are flagging. May I ask the help and assistance of the active members in promoting the welfare of all the Lodges in the Province?" The roll of Lodges having been called, it was found that with one exception all were represented. The minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Halifax, on Wednesday, the 14th October last, having been confirmed, apologies for non-attendance were read from several Provincial Grand Officers. The Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. the Rev. W. C. Lukis) proposed, the Provincial Grand Registrar (Bro. W. F. Tomlinson) seconded, and the Provincial Grand Master Overseer (Bro. Rev. Dr. Smyth) supported, a resolution, nominating Bro. C. L. Mason for re-appointment by the Grand Master for the ensuing three years. This resolution was unanimously adopted. The Provincial Grand Master, in acknowledging the resolution, said that he would endeavour in the future, as he had done in the past, to do all he possibly could for the welfare of the Order in the Province. Invitations were tendered from Leeds and Sheffield for the Provincial Grand Lodge to hold its next meeting in those towns, and the Provincial Grand Master intimated that those invitations should receive due attention. Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Unicorn Inn, where Bro. Collinson had made ample arrangements for their comfort. The usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and a very pleasant evening was passed by the brethren.

ROYAL ARCH.

ISRAEL CHAPTER, No. 1502.

THE members of this Chapter attended in strong force at the usual meeting, held on the 31st ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope Street, Liverpool. Comps. S. J. Henochsberg M.E.Z., M. Aronsberg H., and H. Archer J. were the Principals, and there were also present Comps. M. Hart P.Z. Treas., H. A. Tobias P.Z. S.E., A. Kirkpatrick S.N., D. Stern First Assist. Soj., R. Wilcock Second Assist. Soj., P. Ball Janitor, R. Robinson P.Z., S. Simmons, J. P. Paris, H. J. Cottrell, D. Gabriel sen., A. J. Lindsay P.Z. 126, A. D. Hesketh P.S. 1356, J. C. Robinson H. 249, E. Sherwood P.S. 680, and Hugh Williams P.P.G.S.B. P.Z. 1094. Two candidates were exalted, and the manner in which the new First Principal performed the principal portions of the ceremony elicited general approval. He received admirable assistance from the other Principals and subordinate Officers. An excellent supper was subsequently supplied by Comp. Casey, the House Steward, and the subsequent proceedings, generally presided over by Comp. Henochsberg Z., were of a most enjoyable nature.

Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement.—To achieve honours in the Craft degree of Freemasonry has ever been the desire and emulation of the great body of its members, and when the coveted position of Worshipful Master is attained, it is generally believed that the acmé of the Order has been arrived at. There is, however, as every Master Mason knows, certain things which are left in store for him, should he be fortunate in obtaining a knowledge of them, and they will be found in the development of the supreme degree of the Holy Royal Arch; and therefore all its ceremonies are regarded with that veneration which is due to this exalted degree. There are but few of its members who are sufficiently versed in the Ritual of the ceremonies of installation of its Principals as to undertake the treble duty when required, and therefore, when it was announced that three Acting Principals in the Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement would instal their successors, an unusual amount of interest was felt in the gathering on this occasion. The convocation for this purpose was held at an earlier hour than usual on Tuesday, 13th inst., at the White Hart Tavern, Abchurch Lane, City, and as the ceremonies announced are so seldom rehearsed, the gathering was attended by some of the most eminent and exalted members of the degre. Amongst those present, we noticed Comps. H. Ruff P.Z. 95, Strugnell P.Z. 1044, H. Thompson P.Z. 619, Dr. Pridmore P.Z. 619, Horne P.Z. 7, Webb P.Z. Stanmore Chapter, Middlesex, C. Daniel P.Z. 65, Knight Z. 174, Brooks Z. 975, Ferry Z. 65, Frazer Z. 214, Gillard Z. 19, Smart Z. 766, Notley Z. elect 7, Charles Z. elect 19, Roberts Z. elect 65, Wells H. elect 1556, Payne H. elect 1524, Haynes H. elect 65, Beedell J. 538, Jeffs J. elect 19, and many other Principals and Past Principals. The Chapter having been opened in due form, the Installation of the three Principals was rehearsed by Comps. Webb Z., Fraser H., and Gillard J., and it is not too much to say the whole of these interesting ceremonies are rarely given in so perfect a manner as they were rendered on this occasion, and there was a concurrent opinion that the highest praise was due to Comp. Brown, the Preceptor of the Chapter, for what he had done in bringing about so satisfactory a result. The rest of the Companions were afterwards admitted, and the ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed by Comps. Notley Z., Payne H., Ruff J., Brown S.E. and Preceptor, Webb S.N., Beedell P.Z., Comp. Haynes being the candidate. The ceremony being brought to a conclusion, it was proposed, and unanimously carried, that a vote of thanks should be recorded on the minutes to the three Principals who had rehearsed the ceremonies. The following were elected Officers for the ensuing fortnight—Comps. Webb Z., Ruff H., Jeffs J., Jones S.N., Payne P.S. It was announced that Comps. Brooks, Hall, and Notley had undertaken to rehearse the Installation ceremonies on Tuesday, the 11th of May, the last time they will be rehearsed this season, and it is hoped that a large gathering of Principals will attend on that occasion. Since this Chapter of Improvement has been removed to its present place of meeting it is every night numerously attended, and those aspirants for distinction in this supreme degree will find it a great advantage to them to receive the instruction here to be obtained. The Ritual of the degree is communicated in its greatest purity by its talented Preceptor, who is most painstaking in his endeavours to make all his pupils proficient as Royal Arch Masons, and fit them to fill any office in the Chapter to which hereafter they may be called.

The North London Chapter of Improvement maintains the goodly attendances that have been the rule of late. The ceremony of exaltation was ably rehearsed on Thursday by Companions Dean M.E.Z., Radcliffe H., J. Strugnell J. The other offices were filled as under:—Comps. Sheffield S.E., Bird S.N., Edmonds P.S.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

ST. MICHAEL'S LODGE, No. 211.

THE closing meeting of this Lodge for the winter season took place at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, on Tuesday, under the presidency of Bro. Henry Martin W.M., who was supported by E. Thring S.W., T. H. Peirce P.M. as J.W., William Radcliffe P.M. Secretary, F. T. Bennett S.D.; P.M.'s Alfred Green, Alfred Withers, Usher Back, T. H. Lavers, John Laver, F. J. Hentsch and W. W. Morgan. The minutes having been confirmed, Bros. Charles James Dawsen, and Capt. George Caleb Challen were raised to the sublime degree, and after routine business the Lodge was closed. A supper followed, after which the toasts customary to the occasion were honoured. Among the visitors were Bros. A. Hart Senior Warden 1046, C. Luckett 1126, A. Honnson Inner Guard 1110, George Taylor, Past Master 1539, J. A. Collings Organist 1673, C. F. Curtis 1950. In the course of the evening reference was made to the appointment of Bro. Charles Greenwood P.M. and Treasurer of the Lodge to the Deputy Grand Mastership of the Province of Surrey. Bro. Morgan, who made the announcement, spoke of the illness which prevented Bro. Greenwood's attendance that evening. This illness was particularly to be deplored at the present time, as Bro. Greenwood was engaged most strenuously in support of his chief—General Brownrigg—who would preside at the approaching Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Bro. Greenwood had undertaken a Stewardship for the Girls' School, as representing the St. Michael's Lodge, and in his absence he (the speaker) urged the brethren to support their Treasurer to the best of their ability. A most liberal response was made by those present, and as the sum of ten guineas was voted at a previous meeting, there is little doubt that an amount will be forthcoming which will be creditable to the Lodge which Bro. Greenwood will represent. Bro. Radcliffe was requested to convey to Bro. Greenwood the sympathy the brethren felt for him in his illness, and their hope that he would be soon restored to health.

POLISH NATIONAL LODGE, No. 534.

THE Installation meeting of this popular Lodge took place at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Thursday, 8th April, with Bro. Bieling W.M., O. Bryant S.W. and W.M. elect, Tongue J.W., Dr. Corrie Jackson P.M. S.D., Apsey J.D., Turner I.G., A. Runtz D.C., Banks Tyler. Lodge was opened at 6 a.m., when the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A very satisfactory report from the Audit Committee was read and accepted. Dr. Jackson then presented the Master elect (Bro. Bryant) to the W.M., to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. The ceremony was most carefully performed by the retiring W.M., and in a manner that gave the greatest satisfaction to the board of fourteen Installed Masters, and to the large number of guests who were present. After the W.M. had selected his Officers for the ensuing year, it was his pleasing duty to present Bro. Bieling with a very handsome P.M.'s jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him at the last meeting. This was received, and suitably acknowledged by the recipient. Bro. Jackson P.M. then proposed that, in consideration of the able manner in which Bro. Bieling had performed his duties during his year of office, for representing the Lodge at the Festivals, and also for so well performing the Installation ceremony that evening, that he should be presented with the special decoration known as the Polish White Eagle. This was seconded by Bro. Nowakowski P.M. and Treasurer, and unanimously carried by the brethren. Bro. Bieling expressed his appreciation of the kindness he had always received and the support that had been given to him during his year of office. He hoped that the present W.M. would have as happy and prosperous a year as he had had. The resignation of two of the brethren was accepted, with regret. All other business having been completed, the Lodge was closed in the usual manner, Bro. Jackson P.M. giving a short farewell address. The brethren then retired to the banquet-room, there the "fourth degree" was duly celebrated, grace having been sung, the W.M. proposed the health of the Queen and Craft. This was followed by "God save the Queen." The toast of the M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Pro G.M., D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers was responded to by Bro. Philbrick Grand Registrar, who thanked the brethren for giving him the opportunity of responding to the toast. All felt the deep debt of gratitude with which the whole body of Freemasons regarded their M.W.G.M., who at a most critical period in the history of the Craft came forward and undertook the onerous duties, and who ever interested himself most deeply in all matters of important business connected with the Craft. The Pro G.M. also devoted himself to the pressing concerns of the Craft, that the interests of Freemasonry might be duly guarded, and this feeling was also felt by the Grand Officers. Miss Thomas here favoured the brethren with a pianoforte selection. The I.P.M. then proposed the health of the W.M., and hoped he would have a happy and prosperous year of office. Bro. Bryant, in reply, thanked the brethren for having elected him as their W.M., and assured them he would do all he could for the prosperity and advancement of the Lodge. Bro. Nash favoured the brethren with an amusing song. The toast of the Visitors was then drank, with enthusiasm. Miss Blanche Owen followed with a song. The toast of the Officers and Tyler brought to a close a very pleasant evening. The following Visitors were present—Bros. Philbrick Grand Registrar of England, Snodin P.M. 157, Norris P.M. 181, Alford P.M. 228, Main 1531, Shand P.M. 1563, Styles 704, T. Panter Telfie 12, Schartau 1519, Barratt and Paas jun. 28, Smart P.M. 776, G. L. Wingate P.M. 1423, John Cox P.M. 1658, Larchin P.M. 1541, Alfred Bryant 1445, Andrews 1329, John Dale 1613, Berry J.W. 1382, Foster P.M. 19, Saegert P.M. 548, John Nash and J. Niedzielski.

GODERICH LODGE, No. 1211.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday afternoon, the 5th instant, in the Masonic Rooms, Great George Street, Leeds. The W.M. Bro. Charles Scriven occupied the chair, and he was supported by W. Bro. Herbert Green P.G. Secretary, by a large number of the past and present Provincial Grand Officers, as well as by the Worshipful Masters of all the Leeds Lodges, and many visiting brethren from many parts of the Province. Bro. G. W. Balfour, M.P., was passed to the second degree by the W.M., assisted by Bros. Youings and Ward, the ceremony being beautifully worked. Bro. Youings was then installed into King Solomon's chair by W. Bro. Scriven, after which Bro. Blagbro sang "Be thou faithful unto death." After this ceremony, the Lodge closed "in peace and harmony," and the brethren retired to the banqueting room, where Bro. Wood served dinner. During the evening interesting speeches were delivered. The musical part of the programme was in the hands of W. Bro. Townsend, and W. Bro. Winn acted as Director of the Ceremonies. In the course of the proceedings, W. Bro. Scriven was the recipient of a very handsome Past Master's jewel, which had been subscribed for by the brethren in recognition of the admirable manner in which he had discharged his duties. The Officers of the Goderich Lodge now are as follow:—W. Bro. Youings W.M., W. Bro. C. Scriven I.P.M., Bro. Bradford S.W., Bro. Smith J.W., Bro. Canon Bullock Chaplain, Bro. Rev. A. B. Coombe Assistant Chaplain, W. Bro. Furness P.M. Treasurer, W. Bro. Robinson Secretary, Bro. Ward S.D., Bro. Cussins J.D., W. Bro. Winn P.M. P.P.G.W.M.C., W. Bro. Crowe P.M. P.P.G.D. WOLSELEY LODGE, No. 1693.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 6th instant, in the Masonic Rooms, Town Hall, King Street, Manchester. It being the election night, there was a very large attendance of brethren, and a goodly number of Visitors, including the Provincial Grand Junior Warden, and the Provincial Grand Secretary Bro. John Chadwick, whose presence in the Wolseley Lodge is always looked upon with a great amount of pleasure by every brother of the Lodge. The Worshipful Master Bro. Wm. Harris was at his post, assisted by every one of his Officers, who did their work that evening, as they have always done, in a manner that called forth the heartiest appreciation on the part of the Provincial Officers and visiting brethren, many of whom were Past Masters and Worshipful Masters of neighbouring Lodges. Bro. Holland answered the questions leading to the third degree in a manner seldom equalled, thus giving evidence that his instructor had well done his work. After a few preliminary remarks, the Worshipful Master instructed the Deacons to hand round to the brethren the voting papers for election of Worshipful Master. After this was done, Bro. McKellen P.M., in a neat and truly Masonic speech, strongly urged upon the brethren present the important necessity of having a unanimous election, and referring in laudable terms to the services of the Senior Warden Bro. Thomasson. He concluded by remarking that he hoped the way in which Bro. Thomasson had performed all the offices he had held would induce the brethren to sink other considerations, and reward his ability by electing him Worshipful Master. One by one each of the brethren who were eligible for election withdrew their names, and then the Junior Warden, who is very popular in the Lodge, in the most magnanimous manner also withdrew his name. The Director of Ceremonies then rose, and expressed the pleasure he felt at the conduct of the Past Masters and Junior Warden in the matter. He endorsed almost everything that had been said by previous speakers, and hoped that the election would prove unanimous, and that the Wolseley Lodge would still go on and prosper. The Worshipful Master appointed Bro. Geo. Hunt I.P.M. and the Director of the Ceremonies, Bro. Henry Darbyshire, as scrutineers of the voting papers, which, having been gone through, were declared to be almost unanimous. The announcement was received with great satisfaction by the Lodge. Bro. Thomasson returned thanks, and hoped that the brethren would never have occasion to regret the honour they had conferred on him. The Director of the Ceremonies then asked the Worshipful Master to be good enough to vacate the chair and leave the Lodge, as it was his intention to make a proposition which should be discussed by the brethren, and, as it referred, amongst others, to himself, he felt that the Worshipful Master would feel more comfortable outside. The Worshipful Master bowed assent, and requested his Immediate Past Master Bro. Geo. Hunt to occupy the chair, and retired amidst the Masonic greetings of the brethren. Bro. Darbyshire then made the proposition, and, at the suggestion of Bro. Past Master Hopewell, amended the same, which was read as follows:—"That Past Masters' jewels be presented to the three first Worshipful Masters of the Wolseley Lodge —namely, Bros. D. Edwards, G. Hunt, and W. Harris, and that a committee be appointed to consider and decide as to a special design being got for the said jewels, the cost to be defrayed by the Lodge." The proposition, in its amended form, was duly carried, and the W.M. re-entered the Lodge. In reply to the usual questions, the Secretary Bro. J. Hatton read communications, and two resignations from brethren, who, through circumstances which they explained with regret, withdrew from the Lodge. The resignations were duly accepted. Hearty good wishes were expressed by the visiting brethren, and the Lodge duly closed at 9 p.m. The brethren then sat down to a well-provided knife and fork tea, put upon the table by the Lodge caterer, Mrs. Edwards. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were gone through, and, the W.M. having passed the gavel to Bro. D. Edwards, that worthy brother proposed the health of the newly raised Bro. Holland, in such a manner as to call forth the applause of the brethren. Bro. Holland replied in suitable terms. The toast of the Worshipful Master was proposed by Bro. Darbyshire, and responded to by Bro. Harris. The toast of the Officers was then proposed, and with it was coupled the name of Bro. J. Hatton, the indefatigable Secretary of the Lodge, and this highly respected brother responded to the toast. One of the most pleasant evenings ever held in the Wolseley Lodge—enthusiastic to a degree—was brought to a close by the Tyler giving his toast a few minutes before eleven o'clock.

PRUDENCE LODGE, No. 2069.

THE regular meeting of this flourishing Lodge took place on Saturday afternoon, in the Masonic Hall, Great George Street, Leeds, when there was a large attendance of brethren. The W.M. W. Bro. the Rev. Dr. Smyth, Deputy Dist. G.M. Eastern Archipelago was supported by W. Bro. Mason P.M. P.P.G. Treas. S.W., W. Bro. Tudor Trevor P.M. S.W., W. Bro. William Watson P.M. Secretary, Bro. Robert Abbott Treasurer, Bro. the Rev. H. S. Butler Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. J. E. Player S.D., Bro. Scott Young J.D., Bro. Atkinson (in the absence of Bro. Theawell) I.G. W. Bro. Craig P.M. P.P.G.D. acted as I.P.M. The Visitors included Past Masters from Leeds, Ripon, Halifax, and other Lodges. Bros. Benjamin, Sykes, Bailey, and Lewis Howard were raised to the sublime degree by the W.M., assisted by W. Bro. Mason. This beautiful ceremony was most impressively worked. Bro. J. Wilton Jones was afterwards initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by the W.M., who received efficient aid from his two Wardens, and from W. Bro. R. Craig. Hearty good wishes having been exchanged, the brethren and Visitors adjourned to "high tea," at which a most enjoyable time was spent. Bro. Jones, in responding to the Initiate's toast, bore testimony to the impressive manner in which the ceremony had been worked. He expressed the hope that he might be able to live up to the high standard set by the mystic Craft, and that in his case Brother might mean more than a name.

PRINCE EDWARD LODGE, No. 2109.

THIS new Lodge, which may be said to be an off-shoot of the Wolseley Lodge, No. 1993, Manchester, consecrated so recently as the 23rd of January this year—which event was duly reported in our issue of the 6th of February—held its meeting on the 10th inst., in the hall of the Conservative Club, Heaton Moor, near Manchester. The chair in the east was occupied by Bro. Hopewell W.M. of this Lodge and Past Provincial Officer of Bombay. The Senior Warden Bro. Webster and the Junior Warden Bro. Barton occupied the chairs in the west and south respectively. All the other Officers were in their respective places at the time set down for the commencement of business, and the Lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer by the W.M. at 6.30 p.m. The business on the agenda paper was a ballot for one joining brother, one initiation, two passings, and two raisings. The joining brother was unanimously elected. The initiatory ceremony was performed in an excellent manner by Bro. Past Master Eastwood. The corner-stone address was ably delivered by Bro. Wells, who was initiated only about two years since in the Wolseley Lodge, but who now, with much credit, occupies the position of Senior Deacon in the Prince Edward Lodge. The working tools were very creditably explained by Bro. Barton, the Junior Warden. The Lodge was then raised to the second degree, and the candidates having answered the questions, were entrusted. After they had retired, the Lodge was raised to the third degree, and the candidates were duly re-admitted, and raised by the W.M. in a most impressive manner. Several important matters were discussed. Hearty good wishes were expressed from the visiting brethren, and the Lodge was closed in due form and with solemn prayer by the W.M. at 10.30. After the ceremony of initiation, the brethren were called from labour to refreshment, and sat down to a well-furnished table, supplied by the Lodge caterer. There was a very good attendance of brethren, who seemed to enjoy the splendid working of the Officers, and the Visitors were unanimous in their expressions of the delight they felt in seeing this new Lodge so favourably launched. We would remark that, though the room in which the Lodge is now held is a very handsome one, complete as to its furnishing and acoustic properties, we are glad to learn that it has been decided by the Officers and members, in conjunction with the proprietors of the Hall, to build a special room in the grounds adjoining the Conservative Club at Heaton Moor for a Masonic temple. Owing to the pressure of the business of the evening, the Worshipful Master had not an opportunity of again inviting the visiting brethren to the festive board, but very generously remarked that he hoped they would take an early day to revisit them, when he might have an opportunity of showing them that the Prince Edward Lodge could, and would, entertain its Visitors to a sumptuous festive board, where they might regale themselves, like the Wolseley Lodge, with the "cups that cheer, but not inebriate."

PORTSMOUTH FREEMASONS' HALL AND CLUB COMPANY.

THE directors of this company have issued the following report: "Gentlemen, the directors submit the balance-sheet for the past year, from which it will be seen that the balance will allow the payment of a dividend of two and a half per cent., free of income tax. The alterations and improvements which were approved by the shareholders on the 19th January 1885, and confirmed at the annual meeting on the 31st March 1885 have been completed, necessitating an additional mortgage of £120 to meet the extra capital expenditure. The dispute with the builder, which was referred to arbitration by the shareholders, has been decided in favour of the company, and the matter settled. The system of club management submitted to the shareholders on the 19th January 1885 not having been successful in inducing an accession of club members to compensate for the increased outlay, the directors resolved to alter the system, so as to reduce the expenditure, in the interests of the shareholders. The new system came into operation on the 1st October last, and is working successfully; it now only remains for those having a financial interest in the concern to give the undertaking their patronage and support; as it should be borne in mind that the property, from its position, is yearly increasing in value. During the year, the vacancy on the directorate caused by the resignation of Mr. A. W. White has been provisionally filled by the board in inducing Mr. John Henry Corke, T.C., to join the directorate. This gentleman, with Messrs. William Miles, Henry T. Croucher, and Robert J. Rastrick, who retire by rotation, are willing to continue their seats at the board if the shareholders so desire, and offer themselves for re-election. (By order of the directors), E. S. MAIN, secretary."

COMMERCIAL MUSEUMS.—One of the questions of the hour is that of establishing commercial museums, and it is very patent that English manufacturers will have to strain every nerve to retain the foreign, and in some trades, the home markets. One great difficulty in the way of the British manufacturer is, that he is often at a loss to ascertain what particular patterns of goods are suitable for one market, and what for another. The same class of textiles, hardware, and other goods, which are adapted for the South American markets are not suited for our Colonies, and so manufacturers are often in perplexity respecting this vital matter. Various methods for the establishment of commercial museums have been suggested. One is that there be in London one large building devoted to samples of merchandise, and, in other plans put forward, that they be established in a few large centres as well as in London. In his book on Free Public Libraries, Mr. Thomas Greenwood points out how well adapted these admirable institutions are for this scheme of establishing commercial museums. It is evident that manufacturers in Nottingham, Leeds, or Sheffield, could not visit London every time they wished to examine a particular pattern. Why should not these, and all other towns, have a Commercial Museum attached to their Free Library? These museums, to be of any practical value, must be local. Free libraries are the property of the ratepayers, supported by a rate which never exceeds a penny in the pound per year on the rateable value. These buildings are, in a considerable number of towns, exceedingly well adapted to form the nucleus of commercial museums.

No. 3 (for April) of Mr. Francis George Heath's new threepenny illustrated magazine, "Illustrations," contains, under the respective heads of Amusement, Art, Biography, Economy, Invention, Literature, and Science, "Dreamland Wheeling," by "Olaf Quaintleigh;" "Wild Flowers for Gardens (the Rockery)," by F. E. Hulme, author of "Familiar Wild Flowers," with three illustrations by the author; "'Cycling Chat," with one illustration; "Sketching Rambles," by F. G. Short, with three illustrations by the author; "Deerstalking," with six illustrations by Walter Winans; "Old English Clocks" (I.), with one illustration; "English Statesmen" (Nos. 3, 4, 5, and 6—Lord Iddesleigh, Mr. W. H. Smith, Mr. Chamberlain, and Lord Randolph Churchill), with four portraits; "Underground Travelling" (London "Circle" Trains), with map, and sixteen other illustrations; "Illustrated Inventions;" "The Chronometer Balance," with two illustrations; "The Lonely Bride," by the author of "Lorna Doone;" "Books," with five illustrations; and "Stray Papers" (I. "The Hedghog"), with one illustration. The illustrations number forty-eight in all, and the publishers are Wells, Gardner, Darton and Co., London.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

CANDIDATES FOR THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE annual general meeting of this Institution will be held on Friday, the 21st May, on which occasion the usual election of brethren and widows as annuitants will take place. The applicants for the benefits of the Institution are particularly numerous in connection with both branches of the Fund, there being fifty-eight brethren on the list for the Male branch, and seventy-one widows on that for the Female. At the present time the declared vacancies are very few in comparison with the large number of eligible candidates, the actual figures being fifteen for the Male Fund and nine for the Female; in both cases three of these vacancies being for deferred annuities, only available on the death of some of those already in receipt of grants from the funds of the Institution. It is all but certain that the number of vacancies to be filled will be increased on the day of election, as deaths have occurred among the annuitants since the numbers to be elected were fixed, and the vacancies thus caused will, without doubt, be filled up as usual. These will not, however, make the prospects of the candidates very much better, and under any circumstances we may expect to see about one hundred of the Old People who are at present applying for annuities sent despairingly away after the contest on the 21st of next month, and then nothing can be done for that large number of deserving candidates for another year. In that time, perhaps, many of these poor old people may find relief from their sorrows in death, while others—and we hope by far the majority—will be spared to take part in another election, with, we trust, a much brighter result, so far as they are individually concerned. However, the next election is what concerns us at the present time, and for that contest, as we have said, the ballot papers show a total of one hundred and twenty-nine candidates, with twenty-four vacancies, that is, nearly one annuity for each five who apply. It is not our intention to devote any considerable space to a seriatim review of the cases; we shall content ourselves with a notice of some of the special points which strike us.

Of the fifty-eight brethren who apply for the benefits of the Male Fund fourteen have taken part in previous elections, thus leaving forty-four who now appear for the first time. Of the fourteen, two now make a fifth application, three a fourth, three a third, and six a second. Brother Charles Sarl, No. 1 on the list, brings forward 75 votes from his four former attempts. He was initiated in No. 35, Cowes, Isle of Wight, in 1863, and paid thereto until December 1879. In 1876 he joined No. 551, Ventnor, and continued a member of that Lodge for five years, making a total of 21¾ years' payments to Grand Lodge funds. He is now entirely without means, but we hope will ere long receive such help as the Benevolent Institution is enabled to afford to those elected to its benefits. No. 2, William Harrison, 73 years of age, is in a far better position, but is still a long way off the coveted annuity. He has a total of 441 votes to his credit, the accumulation of four elections. He was initiated in No. 180, London, in 1854, he afterwards joined No. 733, London, and has altogether paid to Grand Lodge for fourteen years. He also is entirely without means. We should much like to see the names of these two brethren among the list of successful. We do not advocate anything like a concession being made on their behalf, but we feel that five years is almost long enough to keep them in that agony of suspense which they must have both felt so long, in not knowing when to expect the annuity for which they have been declared eligible since the close of 1881 in the one case, and the beginning of 1882 in the other. The fourth application cases are Francis Harper (aged 64), John Musham (aged 46, permanently paralyzed), and Frederick Allies (aged 81). These three brethren have subscribed for 22¾, 5½ and 7 years respectively. Bro. Harper, who was initiated in No. 211, London, brings forward 241 votes; Brother Musham, initiated in No. 200, Scarborough, 8 votes; and Brother Allies, initiated in No. 520, Worcester, 500 votes. We hope it will not be necessary for either of these brethren to make a fifth application. Bros. John Robinson, Charles Leigh, and Robert Nichol, who each come forward for the third time, have respectively 269, 20, and 94 votes to their credit. The former (Brother Robinson) was initiated in No. 123, Richmond, Yorks, and subscribed for twelve years. He is now, at the age of 68, incapable of following his business, having been deprived of the use of his left side through a paralytic stroke. Brother Leigh, an initiate of No. 244, Jersey, and a joining member of No. 1003, also meeting at Jersey, is accredited with 24¼ years' payments. He is 66 years of age and, being afflicted with rheumatic gout, is unable to gain a livelihood. Brother Nichol, an initiate of No. 481, Newcastle on Tyne, is permanently incapacitated from following any employment, and is thus compelled, at the comparatively early age of forty-five, to ask the help of his brother Masons. Will they refuse to grant it? Brother W. Nixon polled 37 votes at last year's election. He was initiated in No. 412, Longtown, in 1853, and paid thereto for thirty years. He is now in his seventy-sixth year, and through age, infirmity, and loss of trade, is reduced to a state of poverty, and quite unable to earn his living. Brother W. J. McLean brings forward 50 votes. He was initiated in No. 248, Brixham, in 1852, and through that Lodge and No. 328, Torquay, which he subsequently joined, he has subscribed to the funds of Grand Lodge for 31¼ years. He is dependent on a sister for support. Brother H. L. Hogg, aged 74, was initiated in No. 57, Hull, in 1849, and remained a member of that Lodge for 29 years. He only secured 9 votes last year, and is at present dependent upon a daughter. Brother R. H. Fry has 15 votes to his credit. He was initiated in 1843, in No. 284, Warwick; he afterwards joined No. 502, Rugby, and in the two Lodges he subscribed to the funds of Masonry for thirteen years. He met with an accident in 1880, and has been confined to his home ever since. Brother John Rowe, an initiate of No. 202, Devonport, appears to be in better circumstances than any of the preceding, so far as income is concerned, for he has a pension of £32 per annum. He was a subscriber to his Lodge for thirty-three years, but is at present unable to do anything for his maintenance. Brother Henry Hatchforth, aged 72 years, was initiated in 395, Leamington, in 1847, and continued a member of that Lodge for 13½ years. He is now without means, except what he earns as a Tyler. He brings forward 257 votes from last year's election. The whole of the remaining cases are new to the present list, and are, we are sure, one and all of them deserving of any help it is possible for the Craft to afford. There is not one but has had to undergo a severe examination ere his application was admitted, and not one but has felt the misery of reduced circumstances. May they all, in turn, be elected to the benefits of the Institution, and may they then long enjoy its annuities, is the wish of every one of its subscribers. It is only the lack of ability to perform what they wish that prevents the subscribers admitting all of the applicants as annuitants at the next election.

Turning now to the Female Branch, we have a list of seventy-one widows seeking a participation in the benefits of the Benevolent Institution. Of these, one makes an eighth application, five a sixth, one a fifth, eight a fourth, eleven a third, twenty a second, while the remaining twenty-five now appear for the first time. The number of votes brought forward range from 1355 in the case of Elizabeth Coulton, No. 19, third application; to nil in the cases of Nos. 39, 40 and 41, all of whom are second applications. As in the case of the brethren seeking to participate in the benefits of the Male Fund, there are special reasons in each of the Widows' cases to render them deserving of sympathy; and large as the number of applicants undoubtedly is, it would not be considered too large for the subscribers to relieve them all, if it were in their power so to do. It is distressing to contemplate the amount of suffering which these two lists of candidates disclose; but, alas, the cases here recorded are but a tittle of those which exist, and which, but for our Benevolent Institution and similar Charities, would ever remain unrelieved. It is only by continued and united efforts that these benefits can be extended, or even sustained; and, as we feel that a study of the two lists to which we have here directed attention would prove one of the best incentives to increased exertion, we commend them to our readers.

MASONRY EVERLASTING.

An Oration by Right Worshipful Alfred A. Hall, Grand Chaplain, at the Dedication of the Masonic Hall, Rutland, Vermont, 27th January 1886.

WE stand to-day in the presence of a work completed, bearing evidence of study, watchfulness, the liberal contribution of means and good taste. Brethren of Rutland, I congratulate you upon the fruition of your labours. May this Masonic home prove to you and to those who shall follow you, a very Bethel in which the pure and noble tenets of Masonry shall be taught. From your altar may the pure incense of morality and virtue ever ascend as an acceptable service to the Great I Am. The ceremonies of consecration have been fitting and impressive, and this beautiful and commodious hall, now dedicated to Masonry, to virtue and to universal benevolence, is an honour to its patrons and to our Institutions, and a monument to the dignity of Masonry. The ceremonies of the evening were to some extent an imitation of the dedication of King Solomon's temple—the prototype of all Masonic halls—and, while they could not expect that divine approval would be manifested by the visible fire which signalized God's presence in the holy of holies, it was hoped that the work had been so constructed and that its future use would be of such a character as to merit the approval of the Lord of hosts.

The occasion and ceremonies make it eminently fitting that we consider the relation of Masonry, virtue and universal benevolence, which have formed triple links in the chain of dedication. Of Masonry let us ask the three important questions—whence? what? whither?—asked by every thoughtful man and woman of every new and obscure principle offered for consideration. The origin of Masonry is veiled in obscurity, and we neither accept the theory of zealots who affirm that it is coeval with the creation, nor limit its birth to the date of its present purely speculative form in 1717. The true time probably dates from the associations formed by the architects of Tyre, called the "Dionysiac Fraternity," an association of builders of temples and like edifices, distinguished by the use of the common signs as a means of recognition. Organizations having similar traditions have existed in all countries for ages, and the evidence of the best Masonic scholars, as well as of much that is in the nature of circumstantial demonstration, show that the antiquity of Masonry is great. From a manuscript in the Bodleian library we have the opinion of the time upon its origin in a dialogue between King Henry VI. and one of the brotherhood summoned for examination, very quaint in expression:

Questian: "Where dyd it begyne?"

Answer: Ytt dyd begynne with the fyrste menne yn the Este, whych were before the ffyrste menne of the Weste, and comynge Weste ytt hath herewyth alle comforts to the mylde and comfortlesse."

The "what" of Masonry is by far the more important question. While we are proud, and justly so, of our antiquity as an organization, and regard it as proof of strength and stability, in this utilitarian age we care far more for the thing itself than for its origin or age. Granted that it commends itself to our use or judgment, and we accept it without question as to whence it came. By the test of works and fruits Masonry should be tried, and if upon examination it is found to contain anything immoral in teaching or practice, or if it trenches upon duty to God, our neighbour or ourselves, then the "tekel" of Belshazzar's warning should be written upon the cover of every Masonic book as well as the walls of every Masonic Lodge room. But if instead there is found anything true, just, honest, lovely or of good report, if there be any virtue or any praise in it, then we have the authority of the great apostle for believing it worthy of our thoughts. Masonry is born of the necessities of mankind, teaching that God is our common Father and man our brother. Its four corner-stones are truth, virtue, justice and charity, and it aims to make men purer, nobler and happier by encouraging mental improvement and social enjoyment, and affording mutual protection and relief. The teachings of the several degrees require a belief in God, and inculcate secrecy, duty, the practice of the cardinal virtues, uprightness, honesty and the cultivation of the liberal arts. There is a marked prominence given to geometry; there are lessons taught by the various Masonic emblems, and finally, the crowning lessons of Masonry teaches that there is an immortal part within us bearing affinity to that supreme intelligence which pervades all nature, and which can never, never, never die. Masonry leads us up to a sublime and noble height by paths hewn carefully in the rock "morality." It bids us from an altitude high and pure behold the streams of life wind gracefully and beautifully from source to mouth through fields made green by noble deeds, unbroken and unlashed by storms and rapids that mark the course of selfishness and sin, but at the dark, unfathomed river, where all finite life must end, it only presents a heaving, tossing tide that marks its nearest shore, content with whispering that there is a land beyond. While not affording perfect satisfaction, nor claiming to supplant the higher life, it tell us of a loftier peak beyond, ascended by a path which runs near to that by which we came, up to a grander, nobler height—the summit of Christianity—and with prophetic words assures us that from such a point we may, in the pure sunlight of God's truth, span the dark abyss and catch glimpses of the jasper walls, the pearly gates and glittering towers that mark the New Jerusalem.

But what is the effect of such teachings upon the heart and life? A beautiful ideal might be held up before us, the imagination might be led to grand and noble heights, but unless it went further than to please the fancy and excite the admiration, it is of little or no practical value. Nought but good can come from Masonic teachings. The evil found in members is not of Masonry. The truth it teaches cannot be contemplated without leaving higher and nobler aspirations, which, if allowed to take root and grow, will prove like the river winding through the valley, adding fertility to its soil and fringing its banks with living green and perennial flowers. A noble principle in the heart benefits not alone him who receives it, but all who come within its influence, for

> No life can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strength,
> And all life not be purer and nobler thereby.

Masonry has grown from crude beginnings to an institution covering the whole habitable globe, and counts among its numbers all classes and conditions of men; the highest, the lowest, the richest, the poorest, if worthy of acceptance. This country alone has more than seven hundred and fifty thousand Masons, and they increase from twenty thousand to thirty thousand yearly.

Universal benevolence is one of its grandest features. Charities are of two kinds—individual and general—amounting in the aggregate to millions of dollars yearly, expended for the benefit of members, their families, and in the support of libraries, colleges and asylums. The sufferers from fires, floods, famines and epidemics find prompt and willing assistance from Masonic treasury. And one of the noblest features of Masonic charity is the secret manner in which it is bestowed.

Written in heaven,
What has been given!
Placed on the record in letters of gold.
Read of the spirits,
Judges of merits,
Some day the names to us all will be told.

In short, virtue and charity are lines running through the whole fabric of Masonry, constituting important elements in its warp and woof, giving it strength and stability, and commending it. If doubts are entertained as to the truthfulness of what has been attributed to Masonry, any one who cares to study can satisfy himself that, while Masonry is a secret society, its only secrets are methods of instruction and means of knowing who are entitled to its benefits. Its principles and teaching can be known as well by an outsider as a member, for the exoteric instruction is far less limited that the esoteric.

Brethren, the reality of life and its work should find willing acceptance in our hearts, and in view of the teachings of our Order we should study not only to make the most of it for ourselves, but for those around us. Masonry means this or means nothing. Our splendid ritual, beautiful ceremonies, excellent precepts, attractive Lodge rooms and fraternal associations are not worth perpetuating simply to gratify the taste or please the fancy. Unless there be found in them the eternal principles of truth, from which good deeds shall spring, benefiting mankind and improving the world, the whole system of Masonry is

"As idle as a painted ship
Upon a painted ocean."

There is power in the Masonic Institution, and if you and I see to it that the fires are kept burning and the boilers well filled, standing at the lever where we can keep it under control, it will prove one of the grandest pieces of human invention ever designed for the benefit of man, and the beauty that surrounds it will be in keeping and harmony with the Institution. Masons may come and go, Masonic halls may crumble and decay, Lodges may spring up, flourish and die; aye, the eternal hills may be shaken and cast down, but like the word of God that shall survive the heavens and earth, the principles of Masonry, virtue and charity are from everlasting to everlasting and shall not pass away. Go forward, then, my brethren, in this great and glorious work; within this hall, made sacred by our dedication to the patron saints of Masonry, let truth prevail and righteousness be exalted; practise our rites in the most solemn and dignified manner; maintain assiduously the dignity of your profession; let your faith be simple, pure and strong, your hope grounded in good works and deeds, be illuminated by the glorious mysteries of the hereafter, and may Masonic charity prove as boundless as the wants of our fellow creatures. For one, I am proud to be a member of such an organization. Its record, past and present, is a present study and its future is bright with promise. No other society, except one, can be compared with it for its inherent power. As a purely moral organization it stands without a peer, and will continue to supply that inborn longing for companionship which all have felt and shall feel until the heavens and earth shall pass away and God shall call us into that eternal, perfect institution prepared from the foundations of the world.

And then farewell, Masonic band,
To consecrations, dedications, halls,
Each man a well wrought stone shall stand,
Made ready for the heavenly walls,
A pillar 'neath that mighty dome
Where children find a father's home.

Thursday, the 29th inst., has been appointed for the reception of Works of Art intended for the Summer Exhibition of the 19th Century Art Society, at the Conduit Street Galleries.

The following Festivals were celebrated at Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending Saturday, 24th April 1886:—

Monday—Grand Masters' Lodge, British Lodge, Royal Albert Lodge. Tuesday—Wanderers' Chapter, Salisbury Lodge. Wednesday—Buckingham and Chandos Lodge, Grand Stewards' Lodge, Oak Lodge. Thursday—Grenadiers' Lodge, Polish National Lodge, Jerusalem Lodge.

"FROM LABOUR."

WITH the coming of the swallows, and the bursting forth of Spring into fresh and verdant livery, arise also visions of pleasant days to be spent amidst flower-clad fields and sea-side recreations, where health and spirits may be recruited after a long period of labour, and by means of which renewed energies may be strung up for the recurring toils of everyday life. Eastertide comes this year later in the season than it has done for a century past, or can be for three centuries to follow, and one result has been that after an unusually severe winter, warm weather and bright skies are assured to all who have the means and inclination to keep holiday. Amidst the multitude of seductive attractions which allure the man in "populous city pent," the only perplexity is to choose the most enjoyable, compatible with the length of the purse, but at any rate none of us can complain that there is any dearth of choice or variety. The "fresh woods and pastures new" of the country-side, where hedgerows teem with wild flowers, and the boughs of trees are reverberent with the song of birds, are sure to attract thousands to their verdant and umbrageous shade; for there it is the "heart of Nature" is heard to blend in unison with the repose so eagerly sought after by those whose lot it is to be engulphed all the rest of the year in the vortex of business, and the intricate mazes of money-making. Painters have portrayed, and poets have sung, of the glorious solitude and the calm restfulness of those sequestered nooks and dells where "the wild thyme blows" and the meadows are dappled with the daisy and the butter-cup—where the underwood is lit up with the pale yellow of the primrose and the glowing azure of the wild hyacinth. More tempting, to many minds are the invigorating enjoyments ever to be found in their boundless variety on our coasts, where

The bridegroom sea is toying with the shore,
His wedded bride. He decks her tawny brow with shells—
Retires a pace to see how fair she looks,
And then runs up to kiss her;

Where white winged yachts skim like swans along the surface of the sea, where boating, and bathing, and a thousand and one delights are ever present both for young and old. Away, then, with dreary calculations as to depression of trade, Land Bills and Home Rule; let politics be consigned to the temporary limbo of forgotten things; and hie away to those favoured spots where health and spirits may be revived, the petty worries of life—at any rate for the time—be swallowed up in the all-pervading sentiment of "begone, dull care." In spite of all that may be said to the contrary, all sorts and conditions of men are now on the tiptoe of expectation of a holiday of some sort or other, and it is pleasant to feel that the nipping frosts and snow have disappeared before the advent of summer skies, and that so far as the ubiquitous Clerk of the Weather is concerned, he has put on a genial smile, as though to make amends for all the frowns with which he has favoured us since the last Bank Holiday. So far as Masonry is affected by this welcome change in the meteorological aspect of things, we are now bordering on the period when the brethren will "part upon the square" for a more or less lengthened interval, when the implements of our profession will be laid aside, and when that respite after labour may look for well-deserved realisation. There are, indeed, agreeable anticipations of those summer excursions so dear, not only to those who have borne the brunt of the work of the session, but to the fair ones also who have learnt by experience the pleasantries in which, we will not say they are permitted to participate in Freemasonry, but to which they lend their sunny smiles and their graceful companionship. The Junior Warden will be in command in a majority of most of our Metropolitan Lodges for some months to come, and the brethren will enjoy a sense of that well-earned rest which follows all the more enjoyably upon a consciousness of duty well and wisely performed. Already we hear of preparations for these "outings" of the Craft, and there rise up before us recollections of merry meetings at which we have assisted in days of yore, in quiet sequestered nooks in the suburbs; on the "silvery" Thames, beyond the bustle and smoke of navigation; where the quiet angler follows the "gentle art," without fear of his serenity being disturbed by the invading steam launch or boisterous 'Arry; and where the amenities of social intercourse usurp the place of the dry monotony of work. It would be idle to deny that such an interregnum produces a most wholesome and exhilarating effect on every mind and body: Whether it is in the transient pleasure of friends meeting friends in "jolliest amity" for a single day, or a more prolonged excursion further afield, the reaction is proportionately beneficial in every sense of the term. Not only are old friendships renewed and cemented, and fresh and lasting acquaintanceships created, but the rough angles which may possibly have formed, like knobs and excrescences, on the perfect ashlars of our fraternal relations are rubbed off; and whilst congratulations are exchanged upon the continued prosperity of our Order and the harmony that is apparent amongst all sections of it, many little matters that might have ruffled the surface of that accord which should ever pervade our Lodge affairs, are set straight and relegated to their proper sphere of oblivion. It has been our duty and pleasure, since last we wrote upon the subject, to record the steady progress and prosperity of the Craft generally, the sustained liberality of the brethren in the cause of Charity, and the maintenance of all those great and glorious principles which lie at the very foundation of our Brotherhood. In view of another recess, which is dawning upon us, we offer our sincerest wishes that those who contemplate the many enjoyments of the holiday season; may they realize to the full the anticipations they may be forming, and that they may return, when the gavel shall summon them to renewed labour, with physical powers recruited, and hearts refilled with those genuine impulses which flow from a sincere and active study of the tenets of Freemasonry. Our country friends, to whom such changes bring no such acute appreciation perhaps as is felt by "men in town," will doubtless find other means of variety and relaxation. Probably they may wend their ways City-ward, and whilst seeing the "sights o' town" supply the places of those who have winged away to fairer scenes, where the din and bustle of City life is silenced, and replaced by the soft whispering of forest leaves, and the cadences of the "sad sea waves." To each and all we cordially wish a "happy time," and as we welcome our Provincial brethren with every hearty good wish as they appear in our midst, so also we send with our town friends the same fraternal greetings on their various ways, wherever they may be scattered o'er land or water, with the hope that each and all may return to their respective spheres of labour after the rest and refreshment they may have experienced by the holiday season which is now dawning so auspiciously upon them all.

THE MASONIC PEARLS, AND ANTI-MASONIC SWINE.

THAT Freemasonry is the happy possessor of pearls, no one who is at all familiar with it will deny. All Freemasons know it, and also not a few non-Masons, who have paid any attention to our literature. It possesses pearls of thought—some of the loftiest thoughts known to the ages—pearls of moral teaching, and pearls of social and convivial companionship. One pearl of thought is the doctrine of the immortality of the soul; one pearl of morality is obedience to the One living and true God, and to the obligations of the Craft; and one pearl of fraternal practice is the enjoyment incident to the period of Masonic Refreshment. We might instance many others, but these are sufficient for our purpose. Indeed, Masonry is a crown of pearls, some of which are of priceless value.

It is quite as easy to prove that anti-Masons are comparable to swine, as that the distinguishing characteristics of Freemasonry are comparable to pearls,—although it may be a little unfair to the swine to compare anti-Masons to them. Anti-Masons are as blind as bats to truth, as intolerant as Roman inquisitors to what they do not understand, as drivelling as idiots concerning the mysteries of Masonry, as stilted in their pride as Lucifer, pretenders in religion, and with nothing consecrated about them, unless it be a consecrated stupidity. Such are the biped swine of our era—anti-Masons, and of course we do not cast our pearls before them. Nor do we cast our pearls before any of the profane. We do not invite non-Masons to join us. We do not, or should not, set up anything that partakes of the character of a Masonic show, and ask the public to admire it, and in effect say, if they like it, to send in their petitions for membership. No, the genius of Masonry is opposed to all this. It is a secret society. Its pearls are for its initiates only, certainly not for its enemies, nor even for those who are indifferent to its merits. Here we may enunciate an important principle, which goes to explain why it is that Masonic pearls are not scattered broadcast over the earth.

There always has been an aristocracy in truth. The highest truths have never been made clear to the ignorant, the degraded, the despisers of the good, the true and the beautiful. Consider a few striking examples of this fact. To whom did Jehovah commit the divine truths of the Old Testament? To the world at large? No, not even to half the world, but only to a small fraction of it—to the seed of Abraham, to His chosen people, the Hebrews. In the highest civilisations of elder time a kindred rule prevailed. In Egypt, in India, and in Greece, truth was the prerogative of the best classes. The initiates in the Mysteries of Osiris in Egypt, and in the Mysteries of Eleusis in Greece, belonged to the intellectual aristocracy of their time. The vulgar herd might worship stocks and stones, animals and reptiles, the sun, moon and stars, Jupiter, Apollo and Mars, but those who could appreciate the truth and be trusted with it, worshipped the One only living and true God, and acknowledged their faith in the immortality of the soul. These were secret or esoteric doctrines with them, which might not be openly avowed, lest they should be contemned—they were pearls, that might not be cast before swine. The Mysteries were a prudential veil, that concealed from the vulgar crowd the truths which they could not comprehend, and would only treat with ignorant disdain. Even cosmopolitan Christianity came first to the Jews, and afterwards to the Gentiles, and to the more ignorant of these it is still foolishness. The bulk of the populace of China to-day are justly denominated heathen, with their joss houses and degrading practices; but the earliest missionaries to China from the West soon discovered that "the higher class despised the idolatory of the vulgar." One of the charges made by the Greeks against the early Christians was, "their teaching the worship of one God to the common people." The Founder of Christianity Himself almost always exhibited a prudential, mysterious reserve. When He healed the sick, opened the eyes of the blind, cured the impotent and raised the dead, "He gave the strongest injunctions of secrecy which, nevertheless, the active zeal of His partizans seems by no means to have regarded." Baptism was, and is still, the initiatory ceremony which introduces the Christian candidate into the Christian Mysteries, and for several centuries after Christ the central truths of Christianity were taught exclusively in secret, and only to baptised iniates.

Freemasonry is not at all peculiar in dividing mankind into Freemasons and profanes, and reserving its pearls for those who value them. The Jews divided mankind into Jews and Greeks. The Greeks divided them into Greeks and Barbarians. In this respect we are not innovators, although we are often charged with vain glory and despising others. We despise no one. We do glory in our system of truth, in our impressive symbolism, in our active charity. If we enjoy ourselves and do good to others, why should we be made the subjects of invidious criticism and slanderous detraction? Why should the merchant who has goodly pearls with which to freely reward his friends, be lampooned as a deceiver? But remember, these filthy detractors are only swine, men who go nosing around the world stirring up the mud of untruth, and flinging it over others better than themselves. Right sure are we of this, that our enemies will discover no pearls, for they are not cast before swine. Pearls are ornaments of great price; pearls beautify and adorn, but who ever saw one in a sow's ear? Masonic truth, like all truth, is powerful and will prevail, in spite of the puny efforts of anti-Masons—the profanum vulgus of their time. —Keystone.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Soldiers and Sailors.—These well-known and easily used remedies are especially serviceable and convenient for those who, like soldiers and sailors, are exposed to great changes of climate, and the hardships inseparable from their calling. Many of the diseases engendered in the system from these and other untoward causes can be checked and controlled by attention at their onset, and in Holloway's remedies will be found a ready means of relief, without hindrance from duty. Many a man is invalided, and rendered more or less a burden to himself and friends, from neglect of the early symptoms of his complaint, which calamity might be averted by timely resort to the use of Holloway's Pills and Ointment.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

RANELAGH LODGE, No. 834.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge took place on the 13th instant, at the Criterion. There were present Bros. C. Dopson W.M., H. W. Blake S.W., Doncaster J.W., G. Butt P.M., J. Tuck Sec., Copestone S.D., Lucas J.D., Craggs I.G., A. Williams D.C., H. D. Williams and W. W. Williams Stewards, Sims I.P.M., P.M.'s Slack, Fisher, Barker, Shaw, Purdue. Visitors—Bros. F. Botley 1996, Fletcher P.M. 180, Fry 1692, E. Van Pulton 1601, E. Austin 1791, E. B. Cox 1563, C. Pearce 173, W. H. Bolt 1568, Smyth 1231, Ellis 66, Madell 1201, Coffin 107, and about forty members of the Lodge. The brethren whilst in the Lodge experienced a great treat in the very able working of the I.P.M., not only in the three degrees, but in the manner in which he delivered the addresses as Installing Master. The duties of D.C. were carried out by Bro. Purdue. The prosperity of the Lodge was shown by the large balance in hand, and a Secretary's jewel was voted to Bro. Tuck for the able manner in which he had carried out his arduous duties for some years. After the presentation in open Lodge of a beautiful P.M.'s jewel to the I.P.M., the brethren retired to the Victoria Room, where they partook of a sumptuous banquet. The hour being late, the usual toasts were necessarily curtailed. However, a most delightful evening was spent, contributed to by the harmony of several distinguished brethren.

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1611.

THE regular meeting of this Lodge took place in Freemasons' Hall, St. Saviourgate, York, on Monday, the 12th inst. In the absence of the Worshipful Master, through illness, the chair was taken by Bro. T. B. Whytehead P.M. P.P.G.S.W., who was supported by Bros. Sir F. G. Milner Bart. I.P.M. P.G.S.W., C. G. Padel P.M. P.P.G.O., G. Simpson Past Provincial Grand Pursuivant, J. T. Seller P.M., M. Millington P.M., J. Blenkin P.M., G. Balmford P.M. P.P.G.O., W. Brown S.W., James Kay Secretary, S. J. Dalton P.P.G. Steward S.D., W. Lockenby J.D., W. Storey Steward, J. D. Irony and P. Pearson Asst. Stewards, J. Hall Tyler, G. Lamb, W. Sharp, J. R. Jackson, W. Ream, H. Mennell, J. Mennell, R. M. Hayden, J. Thorpe, W. T. Nance, W. Wrigglesworth, W. B. Dyson, J. W. Blenkin, T. Masterman, and the following Visitors—Bros. B. Polkinghorne W.M. 1991, E. Harding W.M. elect 1991, J. H. Taylor 1991, K. G. Campbell 1991, A. M. White 1991, M. Bryson 236, W. G. Fricker 322, R. S. Robinson 123, E. W. Brewer 1536, W. Quickfall 1884 P.P.G.O. Isle of Wight, and others. The Lodge having been opened, a successful ballot was taken for a candidate, after which the Lodge was opened in the third degree, and Bro. Whytehead raised Bros. Mennell and Hayden. Bros. Hewday and Coates were passed. The lecture on the tracing board in the second degree was given by Bro. W. B. Dyson. Bro. Whytehead presented to the Lodge, on behalf of Brother G. Chapman Junior Warden, a very handsome mahogany book-case, with a glass front, which had been placed in a recess in the smoke room, and in which the Masonic medals and other curiosities belonging to the Lodge had been placed. Also on behalf of Bro. Simpson P.M., and Bro. R. Ware, two volumes for the Lodge library. A vote of sympathy was also passed with Bro. W. Stephenson I.G., who was dangerously ill, and the Secretary was instructed to write to him conveying the good wishes of the brethren. On the motion of the Treasurer, a sum of £25 was voted from the Lodge funds to the Building Fund. After the close of the Lodge, the brethren adjourned to the smoke room, and a most harmonious evening was passed, the usual toasts being honoured, while songs were contributed by Bros. F. Milner, T. B. Whytehead, H. Mennell, J. Mennell, W. B. Dyson, W. G. Fricker, and others.

ROTHESAY LODGE, No. 1687.

A MEETING of this Lodge was held on Wednesday, 7th inst., at the St. James's Hall, Piccadilly. Bro. E. L. P. Valeriani W.M. was supported by his Officers and the following Visitors:—Bros. Ramsay P.M. 259, Collins I.P.M. 776, Coombes P.M. 12, Renard 1387, Grostephen 348, Bober 1743, Heild W.M. 704, Rayner 1681, G. Reynolds S.D. 1614, H. Roberts 1044, G. Ronchette 1287, P. Silo 1808, Cooper 1426. Lodge having been duly opened and the minutes read and confirmed, there was an ample amount of business to be gone through, consisting of one raising and two initiations, one of the latter being the son of the Worshipful Master. The ballot for each of them was unanimous. The first business was the raising of Bro. Edwards, who upon examination proved himself very proficient in the progress he had made in the science. He was then, in a most impressive and solemn manner, raised to the sublime degree by the Worshipful Master. Lodge was resumed to the first degree, when Messrs. Leon Valeriani and M. Alexander Jules Martinn were initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry, both ceremonies being rendered by the Worshipful Master in a faultless style, and during the conferring of this important rite he displayed considerable feeling, as one of the initiates was his son. The next business was the election of W.M., Treasurer, Auditors, and Tyler for the ensuing year. Brother Green was elected W.M. for that period, Bro. J. Bastin as Treasurer, and Bro. R. Potter P.M. Tyler. A Past Master's jewel, with collar and jewel, were unanimously voted to Bro. Valeriani W.M., in recognition of the devoted services he had rendered to the Rothesay Lodge and to Freemasonry in general during his year of office, upon which he received the congratulations of the entire body of brethren present. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquetting-room, where a splendid repast was served by Bro. Roberts, and during the time so occupied some choice music was given by Italian artists, which added great zest and pleasure to the brethren, and contributed much to the enjoyment of the good things set before them. On the withdrawal of the cloth, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, after which Bro. Ramsay Past Master of the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 259, in a telling and spirited address, returned thanks on the part of H.R.H. the Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers. The Immediate Past Master said, for the last time, in accordance with his position, he had to propose the health of the Worshipful Master. All the brethren knew the interest he had taken in the Rothesay Lodge, and the very able manner in which he had discharged the duties of the chair that evening, and, more especially, the manner in which he had performed the ceremony of initiation. It was a matter of rare occurrence in a Lodge that a father initiated his own son into the mysteries of Freemasonry, but he felt sure the brethren would agree with him when he said they had seldom, if ever, seen that Rite conferred more impressively, or with more Masonic and manly feeling. The Worshipful Master, in acknowledging the toast, thanked the I.P.M. for the kind expressions which had fallen from his lips, and the brethren for the hearty manner in which the toast had been received by them. He could assure the brethren of the Rothesay Lodge that he would do all in his power to promote the welfare of the Lodge in particular, and to Freemasonry in general. It should also be his care to attend those grand Institutions of Freemasonry, the Royal Masonic Charities. It was his great pleasure that night to have to propose the health of the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. F. V. Green, the son of their worthy Immediate Past Master. He wished him health and success, and trusted he would fulfil the duties of the Rothesay Lodge in the same admirable way in which his father had done before him; he (the W.M.) would promise to render him all the assistance in his power. The W.M. elect in reply, thanked the Worshipful Master for the kind manner in which he had proposed his health; he could assure the brethren that he would endeavour to follow in the footsteps of the W.M., and also of the I.P.M. He trusted the Lodge would continue to prosper when he should have the privilege of occupying the chair. The Worshipful Master, in proposing the health of the initiates, said the toast he was then about to propose always afforded any Worshipful Master a great amount of pleasure; he especially felt it so under the existing circumstances, as one of the initiates was his eldest son, and he must ask their indulgence whilst addressing a few words to him. He said—"Leon, having brought you into the world, in which I have always tried to do my utmost to earn and deserve the respect of my fellow-creatures, I now have the pleasure of introducing you into the Masonic world, and I hope that you will become a shining light and a useful member of the Fraternity. You will on this evening see what work and perseverance was really necessary for obtaining my present high position. In making you a brother, consider it a proof of my affection for you. I entrust into your keeping the fruits of my labour; and I having been able to accomplish so much, how very much easier will it be for you, who have such advantages. You need not be afraid of wanting good advice, as in all cases of difficulty the brethren of your new family will at all times be willing to render you assistance. My advice to you is, work hard and persevere, and may T.G.A.O.T.U. spare me to see you attain my present position as W.M. of the Rothesay Lodge. I sincerely trust you will never do anything to disgrace the Craft, but, on the contrary, will do your utmost to be an honour to it, and to this Lodge in particular. Brethren, I ask you to drink heartily to the health of the initiates," a request which was cordially responded to. The initiates, in reply, said they would endeavour to do all they could, and become a credit to the Craft. The words of the Worshipful Master would urge them on to greater diligence. The Worshipful Master next proposed the health of the Visitors, and said the Rothesay Lodge was pleased to see them. He trusted they had had a pleasant evening and been happy. They had not a large gathering, but they were brethren well known to them all. He would call on Bros. Collins I.P.M. 776, J. Rayner 1681, and G. Reynolds S.D. 1614 to respond. Bro. Collins said it gave him much pleasure to be amongst them. He could say that he had spent an enjoyable evening, and was glad to be with them again, not only for the sake of seeing old faces, but to admire the impressive work of the Worshipful Master. Bro. Rayner said it also afforded him much pleasure to be with them. The name of St. James brought back to his memory youthful times, as he was born in the parish. He could not help admiring the working of the W.M.; and, while speaking, he would give invitations to his own Lodge (the Londesborough) to the P.M., the I.P.M., and incoming Master. Bro. J. Reynolds said that, as Secretary to the Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, which met every Thursday evening at the Criterion, Piccadilly, he had had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of their worthy W.M. He was a true and hard worker, and the brethren of the Rothesay Lodge must be proud of such a Master. In his eyes there was light, and in his face happiness, which he communicated to others. He had visited many Lodges, and seen many initiations, but had never heard such an impressive and manly speech as had fallen from the lips of their W.M. that evening. He should have been sorry to have missed the address, which was most touching and impressive, and, in conclusion, said he wished the Rothesay Lodge every success. The W.M., in proposing the health of the Past Masters, spoke of the great assistance he had received from them during his year of office. He knew they had the interests of the Lodge at heart, and would do all in their power for its benefit. It was a singular coincidence that the son of their Immediate Past Master Bro. Green should have been elected that evening to succeed him, at the same time as he initiated his eldest son. It would be well remembered in the Rothesay Lodge. Bro. Green I.P.M. assured the brethren that nothing would be wanting on his part to promote the welfare of the Rothesay Lodge. He only hoped that the W.M. elect would have a successful year of office. Bro. J. Darter P.M. W.S. hoped the brethren had spent a pleasant evening, and that their comforts had been well attended to. The Worshipful Master might always rely on the assistance of the Past Masters. The Tyler's toast brought to a conclusion a very enjoyable evening, several of the brethren contributing songs and recitations, and one performed some beautiful music on the mandolin.

PERSEVERANCE LODGE, No. 1743.

THE election meeting for the ensuing year was held on Saturday, the 10th April, at the Imperial Hotel, Holborn Viaduct, when the brethren of the Lodge mustered in considerable force to transact their business, which consisted of the passing of Bros. Broad and Timms, and the raising of Bros. Wainwright and Gossham. In the absence of the Worshipful Master, Bro. L. A. Leins P.M. P.Z. took the chair, and conducted the business in a most perfect and impressive manner. After the ceremonial part of the work was over, the election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler took place. The election of W.M. was unanimous in favour of Bro. Reed, the Senior Warden, while Bro. Leins was again chosen for Treasurer, and Bro. Payne re-elected as Tyler. After an Audit Committee had been appointed, the Lodge was closed with solemn prayer and adjourned. As this was a ladies' banquet, the brethren hastened to receive their fair friends, and conduct them to the banquetting hall, which was most beautifully decorated by Bro. Begbie, the manager of the hotel. After the banquet was over, the W.M. in the chair proposed the first toast—the Queen and the Craft. Bro. Leins suggested that the ladies would like to take part in a dance; he would therefore make the speeches in reference to the toasts as brief as possible. In order to assist in this, he would take the three in one; he therefore proposed loyalty to the throne and fidelity to the Craft. On again rising, Bro. Leins said he had now to propose the toast of the evening—the health of the ladies. He was very pleased to see the Lodge honoured by the presence of so many. Undoubtedly, this was a very successful gathering; they numbered over eighty. Bro. Leins continued; the ladies would like to know something of our Masonic secrets, and he was only too glad to be able to tell them. He could not agree with those brethren who were signifying their dissent; he felt perfectly at liberty to enlighten the ladies as to the grand Masonic secret,—that was Charity. Only a month since Grand Lodge paid away the sum of £1630, viz., 200 guineas to the unemployed of London, sums of £75 and £50 respectively to orphan daughters of Freemasons, £75 and several £50's to widows of Freemasons, and £150, £75, and several £50's to Masons in distressed circumstances. Furthermore, we have our Girls' School and Boys' School, and our Institution for Old People. To these Institutions collectively every year is subscribed from forty to fifty thousand pounds. Undoubtedly this may be considered our grandest Masonic secret. He might therefore venture to say to the ladies that, should any of their husbands be called to their Masonic duties—where, he could assure them, they had to work hard—they would consent to their going with all good wishes. Of course, we have some black sheep amongst us, but why should the whole body suffer for the sake of a few? When we find we can do no good by bringing such around us, we have no alternative but to let them have their own way. Bro. Leins concluded a capital speech by again thanking the ladies for doing the Lodge the honour of visiting them on this occasion, and calling on the brethren to drink the health of the ladies, and associating with the toast the name of Bro. Chamberlayne, who he would ask to respond. Bro. Eade proposed the health of the acting W.M. He did so with a great deal of pleasure. No brother of the Lodge was more respected than Bro. Leins. He is always ready to give a helping hand whenever called upon. He is the father of the Lodge, and Treasurer, and he always tries to make the brethren happy and comfortable. His fifty-second birthday was celebrated yesterday, and he (Bro. Eade) would now ask the brethren to be upstanding and drink, not only to the health of the W.M., but also to wish him many happy returns of his birthday. Bro. Leins, who was received with a hearty good cheer, said he had great pleasure in rising to respond to the toast so courteously given by the I.P.M. Bro. Eade, and responded to so heartily by the brethren. It was a pleasure to him to see they were really so united a body, and worked so peacefully and so happily together. He wished he might be spared for many years to be with them, and to note the same good feeling as was exhibited now. The next toast was the health of the W.M. elect. Bro. Leins said that no brother was more liked or respected in the Lodge of Perseverance than Bro. Reed; he would unquestionably make a thorough good Master. Bro. Reed thanked the W.M. for the kind way in which he had proposed the toast; he would do all in his power to give the brethren satisfaction. The Visitors were next complimented, and the toast was responded to by Bro. Mason, and a gentleman who said he hoped he should shortly be allowed the opportunity of joining the Order. Bro. Leins then thanked the ladies very heartily for giving the Lodge the honour of their attendance. He hoped he might see them again next year. Dancing was now the order of the course, and this was most cheerfully kept up till nearly twelve o'clock. The evening's enjoyment was completed with the greatest satisfaction and happiness.

Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, No. 1614.—Held at The Criterion, Piccadilly, W. The ceremonies of consecration and installation will be rehearsed on Thursday evening, 13th May, at seven o'clock precisely, by Bro. Jas. Terry P.P.G.J.W. Herts P.M. 228, 1278, 1366, Secretary to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons. Dress—full Craft regalia. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, there will be a supper. Brethren desirous of having tickets can obtain the same of Bro. G. P. Bertini, The Criterion, Piccadilly, or of Bros. W. C. Smith S.W. 1563 Preceptor, 9 Mill Street, Hanover Square, W.; G. Reynolds S.D. 1614 Treasurer and Secretary, 3 St. James's Square, Pall Mall, S.W.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—On Monday last, at Baker Bros., the Cock Tavern, Highbury, N. Present—Bros. Richardson W.M., Fluck S.W., Clark J.W., Collingridge Sec., Potter S.D., Hancock J.D., Keogh I.G., Forge W.M. elect 1693 Deputy Preceptor. Past Masters Bros. Western 1693, Weeden W.M. 1693. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. White acting as candidate. Bro. Turner answered the questions leading to the second degree. Lodge was opened in the second, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Turner acting as candidate. The Percy Lodge have accepted an invitation to visit this Lodge and work some of the sections, on Monday, 17th May. We trust all members of the Lodge that can make it convenient will attend. Bro. Geo. W. F. Back, Mozart Lodge, No. 1929, was elected a member. Lodge closed in due form, and adjourned till 3rd May.

Chiswick Lodge of Instruction, No 2012. — At the meeting held on Saturday, 17th instant, at the Windsor Castle, King Street, Hammersmith, there were present:—Bros. J. H. Wood W.M., A. Williams S.W., J. Dobson J.W., Geo. Gardner Treas., Johnson P.M. Secretary, A. Craigs S.D., W. W. Williams J.D., H. F. Williams M.C., E. Ayling P.M. Preceptor, Purdue P.M., Simms P.M., Bros. W. Harrison, W. Thornton, V. Wing, Rowling, Smither. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Thornton candidate. This brother answered the questions leading to the second degree. The ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Wing candidate. Bro. S.W. was duly elected to fill the chair of K.S. at the next meeting.

EBORACUM CHAPTER, No. 1611.

THE regular meeting of this Chapter was held on the 6th inst., at York. In the absence of the M.E.Z., Comp. T. B. Whytehead P.Z. presided, supported by Comps. M. Millington H., J. Blenkin J., Brown P.S., J. Kay S.E., G. Chapman S.N., Dalton, Lackenby, Ware, and several other Companions. None of the Companions having presented themselves, the acting M.E.Z. gave the mystical section, and the Chapter was closed, the members adjourning to an excellent supper, after which a pleasant and social evening was spent

RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.

EBORACUM CONCLAVE, No. 137.

THE annual meeting of this body was held on the 1st inst., at York, Brother W. B. Dyson, M.P.S. presided, supported by his Officers and brethren. Bro. Harry V. Millbank 123 was advanced to the Order, after which the chair was taken by Bro. T. B. Whytehead P.S., who installed Bro. William Brown as M.P.S., and Bro. G. Balmford as V.E. The Officers were then appointed, and the St. Peters Commandery of St. John having been opened, Bro. W. Brown was admitted to the Order and enthroned as Commander by Bro. T. B. Whytehead. After the close of the ceremonies the brethren, to the number of 12, met at supper and passed a pleasant evening.

ANCIENT EBOR PRECEPTORY, No. 101.

THE annual meeting of this body took place a few days ago at the Masonic Hall, St. Saviourgate, York, when Bro. T. B. Whytehead P. presided, in the absence of the E. Preceptor through illness, and installed Bro. Christopher Palliser as Eminent Preceptor. The following Officers were appointed:—Bros. W. Brown Constable, W. H. Cowper Marshal, T. B. Whytehead P. Registrar and Treasurer, Rev. W. Valentine Chaplain, A. H. H. McGachen First Herald, J. T. Belk Second Herald, W. B. Dyson Vexillum Belli, M. F. W. Williamson Beauceant, Augustus Harris Sword Bearer, W. Watson Captain of Guards, and P. Pearson O.G. Bro. J. S. Cumberland P., whose retirement was announced, was elected an honorary member of the Preceptory.

Crystal Palace.—The choral rehearsals for the colossal performance of Gounod's "Redemption," on Saturday, 1st May, have commenced; and the first, that of the London contingent of the Handel Festival Choir, numbering nearly 2 000 voices, which took place at Exeter Hall, fully bore out the freely expressed anticipation that in M. Gounod's Oratorio we have a welcome addition to those works, few in number, which are suitable for reproduction on a gigantic scale. The massive breadth of the choruses and the great unisonal effects at the rehearsal in question, even without the rich orchestral accompaniments, gave promise of a splendid result on the day above named. As before announced, the solo vocal parts will be sustained by Madame Albani, Miss Annie Marriott, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. F. King, and Mr. Santley; while the band and chorus will total about 3,500 performers; Mr. August Manns conducting.

DEATH.

THE MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am always open to correction, and to acknowledge any errors that I may have inadvertently committed in endeavouring to advance the interests of our Institutions. I am extremely pleased to learn from the Provincial Grand Secretary of Lincolnshire that his Province has contributed more than appears in the Annual Reports of the several Festivals from which I have taken my figures. In 1879 Lincolnshire is reported to have given to the Benevolent Institution £68 14s 6d; in 1880 nil, 1881 nil, 1882 nil, 1883 nil, 1884 nil, and 1885 £89 15s—in all £158 9s 6d; to the Boys in 1879 £64 1s, 1880 £44 12s, 1881 nil, 1882 nil, 1883 nil, 1884 £52 10s, 1885 nil—£161 3s; to the Girls in 1879 £21, 1880 £73 10s, and none since—£94 10s. So that from my data I was right. As to the Oliver Memorial Boys I acknowledge an error here; but supposing both the boys to have entered at the age of eleven only, there is still, a year a piece at £45 each to add to the cost. As to the extra girl, all know that in October 1885 there were three on the strength besides Bellamy, whose time expired in the previous month, and two were elected, viz., Smith and Benthill; and that Ashton's time is not up till June 1887, Crow's till September 1887, and Hildred's till November 1889; but even allowing that my figures are all wrong, and that Bro. Vickers' are right, I do not hesitate to say that an annual deficiency of £430 is not to the credit of the Province. My good brother says, "The Province has voting power for which it has paid; is it not at liberty to use it for securing the object for which votes are required?" Why, certainly it is. But let us find out as near as we can what the voting power is by which it manages to secure the return of one or more candidates when put forward, and I take my data from the subscribers' books to the Boys and Girls for the year 1885, not having those of 1886 by me; the Benevolent book being compiled in a different method it would take up too much time to pick them out individually. Now the subscribers' list for the Boys gives to Lincolnshire 343 life votes and 39 annual, and to the Girls 275 life and 21 annual votes; and taking the Benevolent list to be as much as these two put together, I need hardly put the question how far those numbers would go to secure the election of one candidate to each Institution per annum? And it is rare indeed but that there is one or more for each. Therefore, to the second question,—Is the Province in possession of benefits from the Masonic Institutions to which it is not entitled? I say no, for it has a perfect right to use its own votes, and all it can beg or borrow from its neighbours; but at the same time it does not exonerate the Province from the obligation due to its neighbours, and is all the more reason for its putting its shoulder to the wheel and lessening the obligation. That Provincial Institutions are excellent things nobody will deny, and again I say, the Province ought to be just to the old ove. Although she is on to a new, she ought to be just before she s generous, and that if she cannot do her duty to the Central, how s she to do it to both Central and Provincial Institutions?

I remain, yours fraternally,

ABUSE OF THE BALLOT.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Certain events of recent occurrence in relation to the abuse of the ballot for introduction of initiates into Freemasonry have afforded reasonable grounds in the minds of many brethren for desiring the intervention of high Masonic authority to prevent the continuance and increase of what is rapidly becoming a most injurious scandal in connection with the Order.

I allude more particularly to the discredit which falls upon the innocent victim of cliquism and want of harmony in Lodge, who seeks to join our ancient institution in the only manner prescribed, and also to the unmanly and un-English, not to say un-Masonic, action of those who, by indiscriminate black-balling, vent, through the medium of a perfectly upright and honourable candidate, their petty spite upon those members of their Lodge with whom they disagree.

Instituted as a safeguard to our privileges, and affording the opportunity, without exposure, for the rejection of such as may be known to be objectionable or undesirable candidates, the utility of the ballot when honestly, and therefore properly, applied cannot be contested; but when the first principles which should guide and direct its exercise are wantonly set aside, and the opportunities it affords are made to subserve and become available for purposes of factious opposition, without regard to the injury done to individual character and social position, it is high time that that which is sometimes characterised as "nobody's business" should engage the attention of all right thinking Freemasons.

Amongst many sad experiences of the evil I refer to I have met with none so strongly pointing out the necessity for authoritative notice as that I shall now endeavour to relate.

Within the past week I was honoured by an invite to a Lodge in Kent, specially summoned as an emergency meeting, for the purpose of balloting for, and, if elected, initiating a gentleman of undoubted "good report," and holding a position of considerable social importance in a fashionable watering place in Sussex. He had selected the Lodge in question for the reason that a very intimate friend for many years, who is the Secretary of the Lodge, would be his most appropriate proposer, to whom alone his antecedents and present qualifications were known. His seconder was the W.M. of the Lodge, who had a less extensive knowledge of his individual merit, but a sufficient assurance of his fitness for candidature. He had been proposed at the previous regular Lodge meeting, and all then present expressed satisfaction with the anticipated introduction of a worthy man and talented musical companion. Not doubting of acceptance he attended as requested, at the cost of time and travel; but only to be refused!

And why? It appears that some offence had been given to one or more Past Masters of the Lodge, as far as I could understand, by the election, under circumstances which justly warranted the choice of the brethren, of the present W.M., and by the appointment of the present Officers; that, thereupon, the W.M. had been informed that his ruling and actions in the Lodge would not be supported; and that as a matter of fact none of the objecting brethren had attended the Lodge since the last installation meeting. But they put in an appearance at this "emergency," and their intention was soon made apparent. Without the slightest attempt to interfere with the privacy of the ballot, the W.M. and his Officers and members knew at once from whom opposition to their wishes might be expected. It was known also that no one of the malcontents had any personal knowledge of the candidate, and could not be influenced by objections to moral character or social position. As they had not been present at the former meeting when the qualities of the candidate had been stated by his proposer, the W.M., before taking the ballot, and for the information of all then present, required the proposer to repeat what he had previously stated, and then positively solicited any members entertaining objection to give him, in the confidence of the tyled Lodge, the slightest hint thereof, that withdrawal of the candidature might in such case ensue, and the discredit of formal refusal avoided. There being no response to this very courteous and reasonable application, the ballot was taken, and the four expected "pills" were deposited. Nothing, therefore, was left the W.M. but to close his Lodge, and this was done in sorrowful regret that "peace and harmony" had been so ruthlessly disturbed.

Now, can such conduct as this be permitted to pass without authoritative notice? Assuredly not! The "good and welfare of Freemasonry in general," the best interests of individual Lodges in particular, are jeopardised by such grave disturbance of the genuine tenets and principles of the Order. And more than that, a great wrong is put upon men of reputation and intelligence, upon those whom we should seek to attract towards, and not repel from, our Institution. Of the minor wrong done by those misguided brethren to whom I refer, by putting their Lodge companions to the expensive attendance at a meeting so far distant from London, and which they intended to make abortive, not much notice need be taken; but on the general principle that there is "no wrong without a remedy," it may be hoped that measures may be promoted which will effectually prevent repetitions of such scandalous "abuse of the ballot."

Yours fraternally,

JAMES STEVENS P.M. P.Z.

GRAND LODGE OF NEW MEXICO.

THE Proceedings of the eighth Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of the Territory of New Mexico, held under the banner of the Chapman Lodge, in the City of Las Vegas, has just been issued, and from it we observe that the representatives of a large number of Lodges met under the presidency of the M.W. Grand Master Bro. Cornelius Bennett, who was supported by Bros. Max Frost Deputy G.M., Jas. T. McNamara G.S.W., A. McK. Whitcombe G.J.W., S. R. Biggs as G. Treas., A. E. Keene G. Sec., Rev. J. D. Busch G. Chaplain, J. Corbett G.S.D., C. N. Blackwell G.J.D., Dr. W. S. Harroun G. Marshal, J. S. Elston and C. F. Allen G. Stewards, W. T. Treverton G. Tyler, and others. Grand Lodge having been opened in ample form, and a Committee of Credentials appointed, the brethren were called to refreshment. At the afternoon session of the first day, the Committee on Credentials reported the names of P.G. Officers, Officers of Lodges, Past Officers of Lodges, and Grand representatives who were entitled to seats in the Grand Lodge. The Grand Master, in the course of a lengthy and eloquent address, observed that during the past year peace had reigned, and the Craft seemed to have been actuated by that zeal and emulation so necessary to its prosperity. So mote it ever be; for strife and discord should have no place among the builders. There were three things which he deemed of great importance to the welfare of the Fraternity, and to which he specially invited their attention, viz. (1), the careful and judicious selection of materials, in which matter it was his experience that they were not too careful. He added—"Committees of Investigation too often recommend a petitioner without due consideration, and thus unfit stones, those of which perfect ashlars can never be made, are placed in the walls of the Temple, only serving to mar its beauty and weaken its solidity. Too often the three great pillars are overtaxed to support and uphold it." (2). Examination of Visitors—remarking that impostors were often admitted within the sacred homes of the Craft through the lax and careless examination of Committees. A parrot-like examination should not satisfy a Committee; other means should be added—a receipt produced, or other written evidence would be good collateral. (3). Prompt collection of dues, to a want of which many Lodges owed their indebtedness. The G.M. appended to this part of his address the practical rider that "a prompt collection of dues, every three or six months, makes easy payment for the members, and small bills to meet." He suggested that to own their Masonic homes should be the ambition of all Lodges. It gave to any Lodge a great advantage, not only in the sense of feeling "it is our own," but also in a financial way. "No rent to pay!" How often this item of expense ate up the revenues of the Lodge, and how often Lodges became disheartened from this cause! Referring to the installation of Officers elect of the Mimbres Lodge, No. 10, Georgetown, he said—"The hall was crowded with earnest workers, and we enjoyed a most refreshing Masonic love-feast." In March he issued a dispensation for the organisation of a Lodge at San Marcial, the brethren of which deserved great credit for the fine and secure hall they had prepared, the regalia and paraphernalia, and, above all, for the skill they exhibited in the work. He predicted for this Lodge a brilliant future. The dedication and consecration of the new hall of the Deming Lodge, No. 12, he described as "a profitable and enjoyable occasion." Several answers that had been given to questions coming up to him for decision during the year were read; and the G.M. then related a peculiar case in which Masonic charity is extended. "Bro. Crouch died at Deming, leaving a wife and family in destitute circumstances, and a communication was received appealing for help in supporting them. It appeared that this brother was a delegate to the Convention at which this Grand Lodge was formed; was a member at the first session of the same, at which the law was enacted, 'that any unaffiliated Mason, remaining such for more than one year, should be debarred from all Masonic privileges.' Bro. Crouch was an unaffiliated Mason at the time of his death, and had been such for more than one year. Under the circumstances, I deemed it proper to address a letter to each Lodge in this jurisdiction, stating the case fully, and adding, 'If you deem this a case where Masonic charity should be extended, you may send to Bro. James M. Wilson W.M. of Deming Lodge, No. 12, such amount as you deem proper, with the assurance, on my part, that it will be carefully expended for the support of the family of our deceased brother, John S. Crouch.' I am happy to say that a liberal response was made to this appeal." In conclusion, he assured the brethren who exalted him to the position of Grand Master that what he had done in the Masonic vineyard had been done with an eye single to the welfare thereof. Errors might have been made, as "to err is human;" but, if so, they had been errors of the head, and not of the heart. The Report of the Grand Secretary was then presented, giving the returns and the annual dues of Lodges, recording the initiation of a "Library Improvement Fund," and other matters, and setting forth that the actual expenditure during the Masonic year just ended compared favourably with that of previous years, particularly when they took into consideration the utter absence, at the outset, of stationery, dispensations, charters, and the necessary articles of office furniture. At the second day's session various reports were received, dealing with accounts, ways and means, bye-laws, and returns of chartered Lodges within the jurisdiction, from the latter of which it was shown there had been an increase of 45 members during the year. Officers were elected, and the next Annual Communication was fixed for 22nd November next. A report was presented to the Committee on Appeals and Grievances, after which several votes of thanks were passed, and a voluminous report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence was appended to the Proceedings of Grand Lodge. At the close of the proceedings, a banquet was given by the Chapman Lodge No. 2, at the Plaza Hotel, in honour of Grand Lodge and the new Grand Officers.

THE SYSTEMATIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

THERE is a trite saying amongst Masons, and we often hear it reiterated, both in the Lodge-room and at the banquet-table, that Charity is doubly valuable when it is systematic, when the flow of benevolence is constant, and can at all times be depended upon. Of necessity, we must always look for a certain degree of fluctuation in all matters where pecuniary interests and charitable deeds are governed by changes of circumstances. Still, the importance of system as a principle can scarcely be overestimated. A cheering example of this is exemplified by the Tenth Annual Report of the East Lancashire Systematic Educational and Benevolent Institution, which has just been forwarded to us, together with a list of the subscribers to the Treasurer's and Almoners' balance-sheets. The President of this organisation is Brother Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie R.W. Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire, who is assisted in the trusteeship by Bros. George Miller and James A. Birch; Brother G. P. Brockbank (of Bolton) as Treasurer, Bro. James Heelis (of Manchester) Hon. Sec., Bro. J. L. Hine (of Manchester) Chairman of the General Committee, and Bro. Chadwick (of Manchester) Secretary. With such a goodly array of names at the head of the administration, there is scarcely room for surprise that the beneficent scheme should continue in so healthy and satisfactory a condition, more especially as the active executive is warmly seconded by most of the Grand Officers of this important Province. After congratulating the donors and subscribers, brethren, Lodges, Chapters, and other associations, who have aided their funds during the year, the General Committee report that their proceedings have had a satisfactory result in every respect. The new bye-laws, which came into operation in September 1884, are found to work well, and in a manner that shows the value of the trouble, carefulness, and attention bestowed upon their compilation, as they now stand. It is confidently expected that they will be found to be more in accordance with the enlarged scheme of the Charity, and more suitable for the present circumstances of the gradually increasing business of the Institution. The donations and subscriptions during the year amounted to £923 10s 4d, and the income and interest account from investments to £272 6s 1d; making up a total income of £1,195 16s 5d. The total subscriptions and donations are thus subdivided—From Lodges and Chapters to the end of the year £544 19s 4d, from the St. Joseph Preceptory £5, and from private individuals £274 15s 6d. As a result of a Masonic ball held at Bury, an addition of £10 was made to the funds; while, as the proceeds of a sermon at Oldham, the substantial offertory of £30 was received, and thanks are tendered to Bro. Henry Thomas and many others of the brethren at Oldham and Bury. At Rochdale, Lodge 54 arranged an amateur dramatic performance, which resulted in an addition of £2 1s 6d, for which thanks are returned. A very successful amateur dramatic and operatic performance was given at Manchester, entitled "The Dragon of Wantley," under the auspices of Bros. J. R. Beard, Jas. MacLaren, and others, from which a balance of £26 9s was handed to the Treasurer. In addition to this, two dividends from the Brunswick Building Society was received, amounting together to £62 5s, and a new subscription of £5 has arisen from the Lodge of Instruction No. 581. The Committee add:—

"Another pleasing addition has also been made to our funds, in connected with a testimonial to our respected Bro. George Parker Brockbank, our present Treasurer, upon his recent appointment to the office of Grand Standard Bearer of England. Several of his friends and brethren, who had long admired his consistent Masonic career, determined to present him with a testimonial of their respect and congratulation. Upon consulting with him, it was arranged that, after providing for a simple but elegant service of silver plate for Mrs. Brockbank, the residue should be devoted to the various Masonic Charities, Metropolitan and Provincial, of which resulted the sum of £26 5s was handed to this Institution. It will, no doubt, be considered that grateful thanks are due to Bro. Brockbank, whose personal wishes have earned us this donation."

The expenditure of the establishment was £124 2s 4d, somewhat in excess of last year; but this is in a measure accounted for by the grant to the Secretary of a gratuity for his valuable services and considerable personal trouble and attention in connection with the revision of the bye-laws, and attending numerous meetings incident thereto. This, and several other items of necessity, will of course not occur next year. The bank balance and balance in Treasurer's hands at the end of 1884 was £417 18s 2d; the amount at the present time is £569 15s 11d. In addition to this, during the year the sum of £500 has been permanently invested with the Corporation of Leicester. The grants for relief (besides the grants by the Almoners) were £112, for twelve cases, in amounts ranging from £5 to £20. The grants for education, being for 26 children on the books for the year, amounted altogether to £261 10s 9d; and the total sum expended by the Almoners in relief in small amounts was £54 1s 9d, covering 52 cases, extending from 2s 6d to £5. These figures give ample proof of the right of existence of such an Institution as this, and show its claims to continued support. A very good margin remains between the income and expenditure of the year, namely, a net gain of £651 17s 9d. In further aid of the established position of the society, it is proposed that a Festival shall be held during the current year, which it is hoped will result in a substantial addition to the fund. The report goes on to advocate an "active and kindly interest in the various Masonic Charities" as a means of relieving the routine of ordinary occupation, and observes that "a work like this, in which there is so little of formality, and so much to unite us in pursuit of our highest principles, must ever be a practical advancement of our Order, besides being a blessing to those who unfortunately have to crave our assistance." After acknowledging the support accorded by Lodges to the Society, the Committee tender their thanks to the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master for the deep and ever-increasing interest with which he has all along supported this Charity, adding that, although every one in connection with it has worked with hearty assiduity, yet to him is mainly due the great and important results which, under his fostering care, have crowned all the efforts of the Committee with the cope-stone of success. In announcing the retirement of their hon. Secretary, who has served the office for ten years (besides his former similar position for a like period with the preceding Charity Institution), the Committee observe that, in retiring, he desires dutifully to thank the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master and every member of the Institution "for the great forbearance, kindness, and brotherly courtesy which he has received at their hands, without any exception, upon any single occasion." In the Appendix to the Report are printed the forms of petition for admission to the Educational Institution, and for relief, the Lodge certificate, and the general form of Lodge recommendation. Extracts of the rules are followed by the Treasurer's and Almoners' balance-sheets, and a report of the annual general meeting of the society, held in Manchester in January last, when 54 out of the 94 Lodges of the Province were represented. Amongst the resolutions passed, after the usual votes of thanks had been accorded, was one to the effect that the Festival this year should "take the shape of a party given for the children whom we educate, and that they should be brought to the Masonic Hall and have a tea there, so that the Committee might see their adopted children." There is also an "In Memoriam" to deceased officers and life governors of the Charity, and a list of the donors and subscribers to the funds. The compilation is altogether a very interesting one, and is admirably printed in pamphlet form by Brother Andrew, of Manchester.

STAFFORDSHIRE MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

THE fifteenth annual report of this valuable Institution has just been issued, and the Committee, in presenting an account of their Stewardship, are happily enabled to congratulate the Province upon the continued success of the Association. The objects of the organisation are divided into two parts—the "A" Fund being to increase the number of Life Subscribers and Life Governors to the Royal Masonic Charities; and "B" to form a systematic Benevolent Fund for the education and advancement in life of children of distressed or deceased Freemasons in the Province of Staffordshire, and to give assistance in elections to the Masonic Charities. Under the first of these headings the sum collected during the year was £665 13s, which, after providing for 20 who had right of election without ballot, will enable the Committee to ballot for 65 Life Subscriberships, absorbing £433 5s. Several Life Subscriberships, the results of Stewards' efforts at the several Festivals, had been received in full, and at once paid over by the Treasurer. Under the heading "B" the subscription to that Fund amounted to £106 19s, and grants have been paid during the year for the education of children while residing at their own homes, amounting to £48 0s 9d. Satisfaction is expressed that the Province has been represented by Stewards at each Festival during the past year; and special mention is made of the splendid lists taken up from the Abbey Lodge, No. 264, by Bros. W. H. Bailey P.M. and Sec. P.G. Registrar, and C. Graham P.M. P.P.G.W.; also from the Etruscan Lodge, No. 546, by Bro. A. G. Prince P.M. P.P.G.S. of W. Bro. Bailey, who undertook the duty as Steward for the Boys' School in 1884, the Girls' and Boys' Schools in 1885, attended in a similar capacity to represent the Province at the Benevolent Festival last February. The payments to the London Institutions have been during the year:—to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, £141 15s; to the Institution for Girls, £194 5s; and to the Boys, £359 2s; making up the very creditable total of £695 2s. Other amounts which had not passed through the hands of the officials of the local Association, but paid direct to London, make a grand total for the year of £753 18s, from the Province of Staffordshire. The work being done for the cause of Masonic Charity in the Province was recognised at the June meeting of Grand Lodge, when the Secretary, Bro. T. M. Humphries P.M. 539 P.P.G. Supt. of Works, Walsall, was elected a member of the Management Committee for the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons. Each election during the year had been attended by the Secretary, and that of the Boys in October last year by Bro. Turner, of Longton (one of the managers of Charity elections). Their efforts had been mainly to repay the heavy debt incurred in 1884, viz., 1,100 Boys' votes, 90 Aged votes, and 308 Widows' votes, which had been accomplished, and jointly with North Wales and Salop they had succeeded in electing to the Boys' School, viz.: F. W. Higgison, son of the late Bro. F. B. Higgison, of St. Peter's Lodge, 419, and of the St. John's Lodge, 601, Wellington (Salop). At the May election for Aged Freemasons, all arrangements had been made for securing the return of the late Bro. Hodgson, of Leek, but he died only a few days prior to the day of polling; hence some difficulty was found in placing the votes, which were ultimately loaned for re-payment in May next. There are now five boys, three girls, and two widows enjoying the benefits of the Institutions, and the amounts sent up since 1871 have gradually increased from five guineas in that year to £695 2s in 1885. A list of the members is followed by a summary of subscriptions, statement of votes received for the Masonic Institutions in 1885, and an abstract of the rules of the Association. We congratulate the Association upon the very satisfactory report they have submitted, and trust we may have a continuance of the efforts which have so long characterised the brethren of the good old Province of Staffordshire.

The Provincial Grand Chapter of the Holy Royal Arch for the Province of Essex will be held in the Library of Colchester Castle, on Monday, the 3rd day of May next, at half-past one o'clock p.m., when the attendance is required of the Provincial Grand Officers, with the Principals and Past Principals of the Chapters in the Province. All R.A. Masons are invited to be present. The Provincial Grand Chapter will be opened punctually at two o'clock, and a banquet will afterwards take place at the Red Lion Hotel, Colchester. Tickets, including wine and dessert, 10s 6d each.

Bro. James Stevens P.M. P.Z. has accepted the invitation of Worshipful Bro. S. C. Wakefield, Provincial Grand Steward Oxon, and W.M. of the Windrush Lodge, No 1703, to deliver his Lecture explanatory of the Ritual and Ceremonial of the First Degree, under the title of "Knobs and Excrescences," at the ensuing meeting of the Lodge, at Witney, Oxfordshire, on the 5th May. A large gathering of brethren from neighbouring Lodges is anticipated.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London or Country by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

In another column will be found a record of the death of the wife of Bro. Charles Greenwood, which sad event took place on Friday, the 16th instant, after a very brief illness. The loss of a partner who has for many years shared one's joys and troubles is at all times hard to bear; but in the case of Bro. Greenwood, who has been most devoted to his wife, and who himself is in very bad health at the present time, the bereavement is particularly severe. In offering him and the members of his family our sincere sympathy, we are but echoing a sentiment which will be felt by all who are acquainted with our beloved brother. A Mason more respected than Bro. Charles Greenwood it would be difficult to find. We trust strength may be given him in this his hour of affliction, and that he may find that solace which alone can sustain him. The members of his family, with whom he is surrounded, will, we are sure, do their best to comfort him, and we trust he may live for many years to enjoy the company and guide the steps of his sons and daughters.

The annual Festival of Grand Lodge and investiture of Grand Officers will take place on Wednesday next, at Freemasons' Hall, London, under the presidency of the Right Honourable the Earl of Lathom, Deputy Grand Master. The usual dinner will be served in the Freemasons' Tavern, at six o'clock, tickets for which may be obtained of the Grand Stewards at any time before 4 p.m. on Tuesday, the 27th inst.

The perusal of a specimen page of Bro. Lane's forthcoming work, "Masonic Records 1717-1886," enables us to express our hearty approval of the task on which he is engaged. His proposal is to give a list of all the Lodges at home or abroad warranted by the four Grand Lodges and the United Grand Lodge of England, with their dates of constitution, places of meeting, alterations in numbers, &c., exhibiting all the Lodges on the English Register for 1886, together with those previously on the roll, specially arranged in a tabular form, to shew at one view all the numbers taken by each Lodge during the successive enumerations to the present date; also particulars of all Lodges having special privileges, Centenary Jewel Warrants, &c. The tabular method of supplying this information adopted by Bro. Lane is at once distinct and complete, and should recommend his volume to all who take an interest in the history of the Lodges at present on the Register of the Grand Lodge of England, or which have been erased or lapsed in years gone by. The work has been some years in preparation, and is expected to be ready during the summer of this year. It will contain about 300 pages of closely printed matter, and a reduced fac-simile of Pine's engraved list of Lodges, A.D. 1725 (as a frontispiece). As only a limited number will be printed, intending subscribers will oblige by sending their orders, without delay, to the author, or to Bro. W. J. Hughan, at Torquay.

Bro. Hy. Baldwin P.P.G. Standard Bearer Middlesex, W.M. of the Stuart Lodge, No. 1632, asks us to notify that, notwithstanding the first regular meeting falling on Monday next (Bank Holiday), the Lodge will meet at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, at 6 p.m., as heretofore —for the purpose of raising a candidate (on behalf of the Lebanon Lodge), and for other routine business. There will not be a banquet on this occasion.

EASTER ENTERTAINMENTS.

THE holiday public will have no reason to complain of want of variety in the amusements which will be provided for them during Eastertide, for their name is legion. Probably the greatest difficulty will be to choose from among the plethora of good things set before them that which ensures the best value for the money expended. Considerable interest is being manifested in the re-production this evening (Saturday) of "Human Nature," at Drury Lane Theatre, in which Mr. Augustus Harris shines the composition with Mr. Henry Pettitt. The "national" theatre has been re-decorated since the withdrawal of the pantomime, which proved one of the most successful on record; and we have little doubt that the piece to be re-produced will enjoy another long and triumphant run. At the Lyceum, "Faust" will draw crowded houses during the week, and "The Lord Harry" is certain to do the same under Mr. Wilson Barrett's auspices at the Princess's. There will be no change at the Haymarket while "Jim the Penman" draws such goodly audiences; whilst "The Harbour Lights" at the Adelphi, and "My Sweetheart," at the Strand, are sure to attract good houses. At the Globe, "The Pickpocket" will be accompanied by "The Sins of the Father;" while "The Mikado" and "The Carp" will continue to hold their own at the Savoy. "Cupid" will "camp" at the Criterion, in company with "The Man with the Three Wives;" and the Prince's will still combat with its "Enemies." "Fedora" will occupy the boards at Her Majesty's, and the inimitable Toole, in "Going it," will play "Faust and Loose." At the Opera Comique, "On 'Change" will be continued, and "Sophia" will reign at the Vaudeville. The Gaiety will appear in "Borrowed Plumes," with "Jack Sheppard" as the great attraction, and visitors will find at St. James's the play of "Antoinette Rigaud." The story of "Lurline" will be enacted at the Avenue, and "Oliver" will "Grumble" amidst the redolence of "Wet Paint" at the Novelty; whilst "Hard Hearts" will be commenced on Monday at the Grand. The "Silver King" at the Surrey will vie with the "Silver Wedding" at the Standard, and the "Schoolmistress" will play her pretty pranks at the Court; and you may go "Round the World" at the Empire in Leicester-square. "East Lynne" is to be continued at the Imperial, and "Hoodman Blind" at the Britannia. Of the miscellaneous entertainments, of which there appear to be an endless variety, the Indian and Japanese Villages are sure to come in for a large share of attention; whilst of course thousands will be allured by the special programmes at the Crystal Palace, the Albert Palace, the Aquarium, the Alhambra, the Oxford, Canterbury, Royal, South London, and the minor music halls; the Moore and Burgess and Mohawk Minstrels, Madame Tussand's, and others—as the auctioneers say—too numerous to mention. Then there are trips by water to Rosherville Gardens and other places at which to "spend a happy day," and very naturally our open spaces at Epping Forest, Hampstead Heath, Peckham Rye, Blackheath, Greenwich Park, Kew, Richmond Park, &c., will each receive their quota of the holiday crowd who revel in the glories of "St. Lubbock's" Day. It is impossible to reckon up half the inducements which are offered by the railway Companies to various points of interest, but unquestionably the greatest strain upon their resources will be in connection with the great volunteer reviews at Dover, Portsmouth, and elsewhere, whilst great freights may be anticipated to the various seaside resorts and fashionable watering-places within easy hail of town. The only hope is that the millions who will turn out to enjoy themselves, according to their respective tastes, may be favoured with genial weather, so essential to all outdoor festivities, and that no meteorological influence will tend to mar the enjoyments of one of those days which are set apart especially for the delectation of the working and industrial classes of the country.

Crystal Palace.—The directors of the Crystal Palace Company, of which Bro. Major A. G. Dickson, the popular M.P. for Dover, is Chairman, have just issued their programme for the thirty-third season; and, from a perusal of its pages, we are content to accept their assurance that "no effort will be spared on the part of the management to utilise the experience of the past and the resources of the present and future, to make the coming year worthy of the best traditions of its predecessors." In spite of the many attractions that have sprung up since the big glass house at Sydenham was erected, and in spite of the competitive spirit that has been manifested in catering for the entertainment of the masses, the Crystal Palace abundantly maintains its hold upon the popular taste, the entertainments there presenting an extent and variety unsurpassed by any resort of its kind, either in London or out of it. Every conceivable means of enjoyable recreation, of a refined description, is here to be found, whether we take the colossal musical performances, of which the Handel Festivals have been examples of world-wide renown, the other high-class concerts which take place from time to time during the season, the illuminated out-door fêtes and great firework displays, fruit, flower, and other shows, dramatic performances, great popular fêtes, archery, cycling, and other sports, &c., thousand and one exhibitions of art, science, literature, music, practical engineering, and landscape gardening—all these afford scope for the instruction, edification, and amusement of the hundreds of thousands who visit the Palace during the season. This year's programme is not only equal to, but far in advance of, any of its predecessors, the opening of the summer season being celebrated by a performance, on the largest scale, of Gounod's oratorio, "The Redemption," which will be produced on Saturday, 1st May, with Madame Albani, Miss Annie Marriott, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. F. King, and Mr. Santley as soloists, a chorus of over 3,000 voices, and an orchestral band comprising several hundreds of instruments. The performance will be under the conductorship of Mr. August Manns. This will be followed by a series of high-class concerts, in which the most eminent of our artists will be engaged, and the pyrotechnic displays which allure such enormous crowds to the Palace grounds promise to be even of greater magnitude than heretofore, if such be possible, under the management of Messrs. C. T. Brock and Co. An entirely new feature in the outdoor arrangements this year will be the Volunteer fête, the great army of our citizen soldiers never yet having devoted a day at the Palace to a gathering on behalf of its own best interests. The forthcoming fête will be in aid of the Volunteer Forces Benevolent Association, and will take place on Saturday, 29th May. Then there are the annual Police, Temperance, Catholic Total Abstinence, Foresters', Colonial and Indian, and other fetes (the last named being especially to welcome the Indian and Colonial visitors who are expected to be present at the forthcoming Exhibition at South Kensington), an infinite variety of concerts and histrionic representations, sports and pastimes of every variety, balloon ascents, and miscellaneous entertainments, presenting a charm and variety enough to satiate even the most fastidious tastes. Of course, there will be all the surroundings of cricket, archery, lawn-tennis, and other outdoor pastimes so freely indulged in during the summer months; and we advise all those who are interested in these, as well as the other departments of this brilliant and judiciously-arranged programme, to lose no time in securing copies of the neat little handbook, from the Secretary of the Crystal Palace Company, Sydenham.

ZETLAND, Gr. M.

To all and every our Right Worshipful, Worshipful, and Loving Brethren.

Seal.

We, THOMAS DUNDAS, Earl of Zetland, Baron Dundas, of Aske in the County of York, &c., &c.,

Grand Master,

OF THE MOST ANCIENT AND HONORABLE FRATERNITY OF FREE AND ACCEPTED MASONS OF ENGLAND

Send Greeting:

Whereas, it appears by the Records of our GRAND LODGE that a Warrant of Constitution bearing date the 11th day of April 1798, was granted to certain Brethren therein named, authorizing them to open and hold a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons at Fort William, in the City of Calcutta, and Province of Bengal, and which was then registered in the Books of the GRAND LODGE, No. 317. And whereas by the union of the two GRAND LODGES on the 27th December 1813, the said Lodge became No. 402, and by the general alteration of the numbers in the year 1832 it became and is now registered in the GRAND LODGE Books, No. 279, and is now held at their own Private Room, at Fort William aforesaid, under the Title or Denomination of

The Lodge of "Humility and Fortitude."

No. 279.

And whereas the Brethren now composing the said Lodge have by their Memorial represented to us that their Warrant hath by some accident become much defaced and torn, and they have prayed us to grant them a Warrant of Confirmation. Now know ye that we being satisfied of the reasonableness of the said Bequest and from the confidence reposed in the Brethren do hereby grant this Our Warrant of Confirmation unto our Right Trusty and well-Beloved Brethren FREDERICK JENNINGS, W. Master, CHARLES HENTY, Senior Warden, JAMES GILES BOWERMAN, Junior Warden, JAMES BLACKBURN KNIGHT, WILLIAM HENRY TAYLOR, ROBERT TULLY BARHAM, WILLIAM HALL HOFF, ANDREW D'CRUZ, Junior, and other Brethren composing the said Lodge, authorizing and empowering them and their successors to continue to assemble and hold a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons at Fort William aforesaid at such times as to the Brethren thereof may appear necessary and be regulated by their By-Laws in conformity with the general Laws of the Craft, and then and there when duly congregated to make, pass, and raise Free Masons according to the ancient custom of the Craft in all Ages and Nations throughout the known World. And further at the Petition of the said Brethren, We do appoint the said FREDERICK JENNINGS to be the Master, the said CHARLES HENTY to be the Senior Warden, and the said JAMES GILES BOWERMAN to be the Junior Warden, for continuing to hold the said Lodge under this Warrant of Confirmation and until such time as another Master shall be regularly elected and installed, strictly charging that every member who shall be elected to preside over the said Lodge and who must previously have duly served as Warden in a Warranted Lodge shall be installed in ancient form and according to the Laws of the Grand Lodge, that he may thereby be fully invested with the Dignities and Powers of his Office. And we do require you the said FREDERICK JENNINGS to take special care that all and every the said Brethren are or have been regularly made Masons, and that you and they and all other the members of the said Lodge do observe, perform, and keep the Laws, Rules, and Orders contained in the Book of Constitutions, and all others which may from time to time be made by Our Grand Lodge, or transmitted by us or Our Successors, Grand Masters, or by Our Deputy Grand Master for the time being. And we do enjoin you to make such By-Laws for the government of your Lodge as shall to the majority of the members appear proper and necessary, the same not being contrary to, or inconsistent with, the General Laws and Regulations of the Craft, a copy whereof you are to transmit to us. And we do require you to cause all such By-Laws and Regulations and also an account of the proceedings in your Lodge to be entered in a Book to be kept for that purpose. And you are in nowise to omit to send to us or Our Successors, Grand Masters, or to the RIGHT HONORABLE FOX MAULE, Baron Panmure of Brechin and Navar County Forfar, K.T., G.C.B., &c., &c., &c., Our Deputy Grand Master, or to the Deputy Grand Master for the time being at least once in every year, a List of the Members of your Lodge, and the names and descriptions of all Masons initiated therein and Brethren who shall have joined the same with the fees and monies payable thereon.

It being our will and intention that this our Warrant of Confirmation shall continue in force so long only as you shall conform to the Laws and Regulations of our Grand Lodge. And you the said FREDERICK JENNINGS are further required, as soon as conveniently may be, to send us an account in writing of what shall be done by virtue of these presents.

Given under our Hands and the Seal of the Grand Lodge a London, this 18th August A.L. 5859, A.D. 1859.

By command of the M.W. GRAND MASTER,

Gr. S.

PERFORM YOUR WORK WELL.

MUCH depends upon the manner with which the work is performed what value can be placed upon it when completed. It carried out in a careless way, the marks of imperfection will soon become apparent on the material, even if at first they be covered over with a gloss which hides them from the casual glance.

From the first moment the novitiate enters the ante room until he signs the bye-laws of the Lodge due consideration should be had for the solemn compact he is about to engage in. Too often, far too often, there is a tendency to frivolity in the ante room which, harmless elsewhere, often results injuriously to the young Mason. Men of refinement dislike it, while those of less discernment fancy that, in joining Masonry, they are connecting themselves with some rollicking club or society. The Directors of Ceremonies should perform their duties with seriousness, and allow no one to interfere with them, even by their presence. When first received in the Lodge, the candidate should be made to feel that the work in which he is engaged requires his whole fidelity, and that the lessons which are being inculcated are meant with all seriousness. Every Officer should consider well the part he has to take in the work, and perform it to the best of his ability. And when the candidate is to be instructed in the lesson of charity, or any other of the virtues, he should be made to feel that the teachings are for him alone—that is, "he should be talked to." Too often are these lessons given in the same way a boy would recite his task at school, and with many references to a monitor. It is only within comparatively a few years that these assistants to the lazy have been brought into use. The attentive ear only received the sound. When a candidate notices that the Master, who should be a perfect workman, reads out of or refers to a book, he naturally loses interest, as he fancies he "can read for himself at some future time."

Then as the candidate advances step by step through the various degrees, it should always be borne in remembrance that he is like soft clay, easily moulded; but that his mind, like the clay, will become hardened in time. The first impression which he may receive will be left for good or evil. As the work becomes completed, so will it permanently retain the marks of those impressions made at the outset. The candidate should be taught the "essentials" in a perfect way; the instructor ever remembering what they are and why they are employed. The novitiate may easily learn what is right; but it is not so easy to make him "unlearn" what he may have acquired wrongfully.

Then let every Officer feel that it is his bounden duty to perform his share of the work well. Every Master should also consider that it is a part of his obligation to teach his apprentice properly; so that he may be turned out a skilful workman, always entitled to his full wages no matter in what part of the civilized world he may be called upon to travel during the period of his existence.—New York Sunday Times.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

"ABUSE OF THE BALLOT."

THE letter published in our correspondence columns last week, from the pen of Bro. James Stevens, under the above heading, raises such important issues that it is almost impossible to treat the subject with mere passing notice. True, it has been discussed over and over again in the pages of this journal, in cases where flagrant violation of the real uses of the ballot have been pointed out to us; but there is obviously little to expect by way of improvement in this particular so long as there lingers in our Lodges that spirit of discord and contention which it would seem to be as difficult to eradicate as are our most troublesome household pests. For the benefit of those who may not have perused carefully the communication referred to, or may possibly have overlooked it amidst the activities of the Easter holidays, the facts as narrated may be briefly outlined here, for the purpose of bringing them prominently under the notice of our readers. And let us premise, before going further, that the miserable coterie, whose names are mercifully concealed by the writer of the letter, should experience a tingling of the ears—provided they have any sense of Masonic honour left in their composition at all—such as they never experienced before at so direct a challenge hurled at their "knavish tricks." An emergency meeting, it would appear, was called of a certain Lodge in Kent, at which a gentleman of undoubted good report, and holding a position of considerable social importance, was to be submitted as a candidate for initiation. His sponsor was the Secretary of the Lodge, who knew his nominee well, and detailed to the regular Lodge meeting the antecedents and present qualifications of the gentleman who sought participation in the mysteries and the privileges of the Craft. These were abundantly satisfactory to the brethren then in attendance, and the nomination was duly seconded by the Worshipful Master, who, though personally unacquainted with the applicant, felt himself justified, nevertheless, in supporting the claim for admission to the Lodge. In brief, he had sufficient assurance of the gentleman's fitness for candidature; while at the regular Lodge meeting, to which the nomination was submitted, "all then present expressed satisfaction with the anticipated introduction of a worthy man and talented musical companion." But, mark! The canker-worm of discord had crept into the Lodge; some little friction, such as should never for a single moment be tolerated in a Masonic family, had arisen in consequence of the choice made by the Worshipful Master of his Officers for the year, and thus a little clique, including one or more Past Masters—who ought to set a better example—purposely abstained from the meetings of the Lodge, though they rallied venomously to testify their chagrin on an occasion when their private spleen could be vented on an innocent victim. According to the information afforded by our correspondent, who judiciously avoids the mention of persons or locality, it seems that some inkling had been obtained by the Worshipful Master and his Officers of intended and preconcerted opposition to the candidature of the gentleman whose name had been so favourably received. There was a ruffle on the otherwise smooth waters, and the habitual serenity of the Lodge-room was clouded by an ominous shadow of vindictive opposition. Frowning faces, that had relieved the Lodge of their unwelcome presence during recent regular meetings, darkened the atmosphere of this "emergency;" and in order to quell the inevitably coming storm the Worshipful Master acted within his perfect right; and with the utmost candour and impartiality in having recapitulated to the brethren the qualifications of one who had travelled a great distance, and at much personal expense, and who then stood knocking at the door of the Lodge for admission. Having done so, he "positively solicited any members entertaining objection to give him—in the confidence of the tyled Lodge—the slightest hint thereof, that withdrawal of the candidature might in such case ensue, and the discredit of formal refusal be avoided." This was a proper and constitutional course to adopt; but the Iscariots, who had come with the ill-concealed purpose of upsetting the harmony of the Lodge, made no reply to the courteous invitation of the Worshipful Master—whose only sin appears to have been that he declined to practise "the old man and his ass" of the fable—but sullenly and vindictively black-balled the candidate who had been so unanimously accepted by all the rest of the brethren. "Nothing, therefore, was left the W.M. but to close his Lodge, and this was done in sorrowful regret that 'peace and harmony' had been so ruthlessly disturbed.'" Happily, such cases of so abject and base an abuse of the ballot rarely come under the notice of the Craft; and, for the sake of those principles of accord and harmony which Masons so dearly cherish, may this miserable exhibition of Kentish spitefulness find no parallel in our records for a very long time to come. If the animosity of the malcontents had assumed such intensity as to cause them to refrain from meeting in regular Lodge under the régime instituted by the Worshipful Master for the time being, on what earthly ground of gentlemanly courtesy or honour could they have been prompted to rally on an occasion when no other end could possibly be gained than that of inflicting pain and ignominy upon a perfectly innocent individual? Such conduct cannot be characterised as any other than despicable in the extreme, and unworthy of the great Fraternity to which we belong. There is an old axiom that "'tis great to have a giant's strength, but cowardly to use it;" and never was the aphorism more appositely exemplified than in this wretched fiasco in Kent. We have no words sufficient to express our abhorrence and contempt of men who would adopt so paltry a means of wreaking their retaliation for a fancied or real grievance. If there were reasonable grounds for dissatisfaction with the majority of the brethren, the malcontents might have remembered the lesson imparted in their first degree, and have held aloof altogether from the Lodge until such time as their differences might have been amicably adjusted rather than disturb the harmony of the rest. The very fact of their doing so with reference to the regular meetings rendered it doubly flagrant to combine maliciously on an evening specially set apart for the election of an ostensibly excellent candidate, against whose eligibility not a word could be advanced. Had there been any ground of objection it might have been urged in response to the challenge so courteously presented by the Worshipful Master prior to the ballot being taken. That such response was not forthcoming is to us a sufficient proof that no just cause of complaint was known or justified; but with a subtle sulkiness these "misguided brethren" smuggled their "pills" sneakingly into the adverse side, and thus excluded from the Lodge a man who, upon the face of the facts related to us, would have proved a useful and most acceptable member. None could be more jealous than ourselves of the sanctity of the ballot, when legitimately applied, although it were always preferable that if any likelihood is shown of a candidature being in disfavour intimation thereof should be given to the proposer and seconder, in order to prevent a refusal, which is always a source of painful regret to the members of a Lodge, who regard such a contretemps as a hitch in the otherwise smoothly working machinery of their body. As a rule this more sensible and honest course is adopted, and much scandal and heartburning avoided; but in the instance now under consideration, there was a deliberate straining of the powers of voting, and simply to gratify a personal pique, and to mar the comfort and happiness of the majority, because they had acted contrary to the wishes of the clique. What were the particular causes of the isolation of these three or four members from the body of the Lodge we are not aware, nor do we care to ask. But we do say, that such an exhibition of malicious spleen as that narrated by our correspondent furnishes us with a sorry picture indeed of the extent to which factions spite can be carried even in a Masonic Lodge. For the sake of the credit of the Craft, we hope we have heard the last of it, although we quite agree with our correspondent that there should be exercised some "high Masonic authority to prevent the continuance and increase of what is rapidly becoming a most injurious scandal in connection with the Order." It is useless to argue with men whose little minds are so easily poisoned as those involved in the "scandal" before us; or those who will descend to such despicable means of showing their resentment. They belong to a class—a very insignificant one, we are glad to believe—who deem that they have the privilege of the ballot, and have a right to use it, regardless of consequences. Undoubtedly, they have a right to use it, but as a rule it is exercised legitimately, and at any rate with some little show of decency. But no amount of argument will convince some people that the rules of decency should be considered and observed. No; they have a grudge against one or other of the Officers, and the only way they can show it is to cause discord to arise in any possible way, no matter at whose expense. Over and over again we have heard the same wail of regret that such should be the case, and we have found it unavailing either to argue or advise such a class of individuals. We grieve to say so, but the spirit of personal vindictiveness cannot be wholly and entirely stamped out even in our Masonic Lodges. The only course to be adopted, so far as we can discover, is for the decent members of the Lodge to set their faces against such petty would-be tyrants and cowardly scunks, and to send them to that "Coventry" which they so richly deserve. Some men have no soul beyond their own personal likes and dislikes, and there is no use attempting to cure such a deep-rooted disease. We can only hope, with the writer who has ventilated this subject, that "on the principle that there is no wrong without a remedy, measures will be promoted which will effectually prevent repetitions of such abuse of the ballot" For ourselves, we confess we can offer no suggestion as likely to secure a panacea for this evil, though we should be pleased to hear what our correspondents have to say on so important a question.

DUTY OF THE HOUR.

An Extract from an Oration by Bro. L. C. Krauthoff, before the Grand Lodge of Missouri, 13th October, 1885.

DEEP in the heart of man is a great yearning for association and communion with his fellows. He has an inborn aversion to solitude and the life of an anchorite. He realises that unaided and alone he is weak and helpless, and unable to develop the great mission and purpose of his existence. 'Tis this that produces associations in every relation of life—domestic, religious, social, governmental, political, business; and this, also, far back in the misty past, gave rise to an institution having for its purpose the formation of the entire human race into one grand and harmonious family, and for its aim, the realisation of the heaven-taught universal brotherhood of man. In such an organisation, aid and assistance to the poor and needy, the amelioration of sorrow and suffering, and the contribution to the relief of the weak and distressed, must needs be a part of the foundation upon which the superstructure rests. And so it is. Next to a belief in God, Charity, which is indeed but an incident to such belief, is placed at the very basis of the Institution. Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth are its most excellent tenets. The lesson of Charity is taught in the Masonic Primer, and is repeated and amplified in every grade through which the candidate passes, and unless he has learned it, he has indeed been a poor and unworthy scholar. The obligation to practise it is most solemnly enjoined upon him by word, symbol, and ceremony, and the promise to follow this teaching is repeatedly given in words and manner most serious and binding. Under a sense of this obligation, this body has taken initial steps for an organised and collective redemption of those promises, by the establishment of an Industrial Masonic Home. In the light of the facts disclosed by the address of our Most Worshipful Grand Master, the perfection of this initial step and the practical exemplification, individually and as a Grand Lodge, of the charitable principles we profess, is, to my mind, the duty of the hour! With this evidence before us, there can be no question of the need of assistance, prompt and substantial, to our indigent brethren and to the distressed widows and orphans, who have been left to our care and protection by brethren who have "gone before." The very fact that a worthy distressed brother, or a widow or orphan left by one, lives in our jurisdiction, is at once an appeal and a demand, more eloquent than words can frame, for assistance and relief at our hands. It is a demand we cannot, it seems to me, permit to pass unheeded, consistent with a sense of the obligation resting upon us. Preserved in its pristine purity, the Institution of Freemasonry will have a mission that can only expire with the last man on this sphere, who, prophet-like will stand, saying:

> "We are twins in death, proud sun;
> Thy face is cold, thy race is run,
> 'Tis mercy bids thee go;
> For thou, ten thousand thousand years
> Hast seen the tide of human tears
> That shall no longer flow."

Never should eye be so keen, ear so ready, heart so willing and purse so open as when the existence of distress and the ability to do good is presented to the members of an organization charged with such a mission. This state of facts and this opportunity are now before us; and in a Masonic body, this should mean, with one voice, a resolution that there shall be no waiting for poverty to plead; for shrunken forms and withered cheeks to stare us in the face, or until destitution shall have driven to crime or beggary; but that prompt and effectual action will be taken. Can we do so, collectively, in the present financial condition of this Grand Lodge and its subordinates? Can we assist in it individually without materially injuring ourselves and those dependent upon us? In what manner can we best and most practically attain the desired end?

Thanks to the prosperity that has blessed her subordinate bodies, and the intelligence and ability which have marked the management of her funds, this Grand Lodge is to-day in a most flourishing condition. Her treasury is plethoric, her income far exceeds her expenses, and she has, and will continue to have a yearly surplus. The details of this financial condition can be readily gathered from the several reports of our Grand Secretary and Grand Treasurer, and I need not weary you by presenting them here and now. How shall we dispose of this surplus? Shall it be refunded to the contributors, or shall it be permitted to accumulate until, under the the influence of the full tide which an overflowing cash box usually generates, it will be expended for a purpose less worthy and less powerful for practical good than that to which it was set apart at the last Communication of this body? The system of refunding to subordinate Lodges has little to commend it, and certainly there is neither demand nor necessity to resort to it, and the other probable disposition that has been indicated will have no advocates at this day.

This surplus, supplemented by what the healthy condition of the subordinate Lodges justifies them in contributing, and but a small proportion of the plenty that our Heavenly Father has so generously scattered over our smiling State, which has fallen to the lots of the twenty-eight thousand Masons within her borders, and the other resources which our Most Worshipful Grand Master has enumerated, all join to make up an endowment fund sufficient to justify action on the part of the most cautious financier. Added to this is the most munificent disposition manifested by a loving widow of one of our departed brethren, who in his earthly life was one of Masonry's brightest ornaments and most faithful votaries, to fulfil the purpose which he fondly cherished while he graced our midst, to materially assist in this great work. This purpose is fully shared by her, and, besides carrying it out, she gives it a double value by accompanying it with an offer of her own time and energies, her love and ministration, her experience and ability.

Never was occasion more propitious than at this time! Verily the indigent Mason and suffering widow and orphan have cause to be gladdened by the bright view and glorious prospect that is opened up! The changing lights on the mountain tops, that long have seemed to make our path to duty dim and beset with difficulties, have settled into a steady glowing brilliancy that radiates throughout Missouri, bearing upon its beams messages of love and hope to the needy and the suffering whose weary souls have so anxiously waited for light and ease.

The experience in other jurisdictions shows the feasibility of the performance of this duty by the erection of a Home where one and all of these will be welcomed and made to feel that they are at home, in fact and in truth, in the fullest and best sense of that sweet term. In song, verse and prose, in divine and in human writings, the beauties of home—that have been portrayed. Let us build one, by the aid of God, and make it one of his temples. Unto His Fatherly care let us commit it and those that come to dwell therein. No music that ascends to His throne will please Him half so much as that which comes from such a retreat. To the Mason upon whom age has drawn apace, whose loved ones have one by one been borne in sadness to that narrow house, and who stands all alone in the winter of his life, let us furnish a resting place where he may find his seat near the fire or in cooling shades, and there pass his days, concentrated within himself, and happy in feeling how good and how pleasant it is to have such brethren.

> "Spot of earth supremely blest,
> A dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest,"

To that brother whom health has deserted, to whose heart the chill cold blasts of adversity have brought terror and despair, who has no hope disconnected with that eternal rest that is surrounded by the dreary silence of the tomb, to whom life seems dispossessed of all its former attractions and who turns with loathing from all the world around him, let us whisper the glad words of brotherly love, and within the hallowed precincts of our Home, show him the full force of the sweet ties of Fraternity that grapple us to him with "hooks of steel," and the heaping full measure of the cordial and substantial sympathy these ties bring to him. Send him a message that comes to him as "as the sun kisses the frozen earth," that bids him drive away dull care, to gather new hope to cheer him on his way and "to break out from the prison of his sorrows."

The Temple of Solomon, it has been said, was "the prayer of a nation put in marble," and so let our Home be to the Mason's widow and orphan, the embodiment of the Fraternity's principles and the evidence that the mystic tie that bound the husband and father to his brethren, now draws them to those he left behind him. Let us bid them dry their tears, bind up their wounded hearts, take them under our fostering protection, and place them beyond the trials and temptations, the want and suffering, of a world all too selfish, all too unmindful that "all mankind's concern is charity," and that all the triumphs and trophies of worldly success heal not "a passion or a pang entailed on human hearts." Make our Home the very fountain-head of charity from which go out streams "to invigorate and gladden the sorrowful, to bear relief to famished poverty, to meander by the widow's cottage, to lave the feet of the orphan."

> "White flowers of love its walls shall climb;
> Soft bells of peace shall ring its chime;
> Its days shall all be holy time."

The thankful glistening of an eye erstwhile red and swollen from weeping tears of sorrow which bedipped the crust that alone saved from starvation; the tremulous voice that wells up from the heart that was lately all but broken with despair and filled with misery, brings to the doer of good a peace of mind and a delicious sense of duty well performed that has in it something of a benediction and something of a psalm.

> "The drying of a single tear has more
> Of honest fame than shedding seas of gore."

Is there one among you who in his past life has felt the need of human sympathy and assistance? Is there one across whose path has come a wall apparently as dark as ebony and as hard as adamant; whose bark of life has been tossed by angry waves high upon adversity's barren shore? To him this appeal is not in vain. He will be a willing searcher for the "points of polarity" among his brethren. Never to his dying day will he forget the renewed hope he gathered from the warm, sympathetic grasp of the hand whose thrill told him that there was a living response to his emotion; nor the gratitude he felt for him who showed him the golden rift that marked the gate through the dark barrier, or for him whose aid safely set his bark afloat again in the calm waters of peace and prosperity. Fate may have such an experience in store for many of us. Bring yourself to think, if you can, how wistfully and prayerfully you would look for succour should it come to you; and, in that frame of mind, recalling the Golden Rule, and remembering that "he that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord;" that "blessed is he that considereth the poor;" that the Great Teacher has enjoined upon you to "love your neighbour as yourself," determine once for all to enrol your name among those who shall feel it their duty and their pleasure to found and maintain an institution whose purposes will be so fruitful of good, and the success of which will always be to them a source of joy and happiness. Perchance some day this bread you now cast upon the waters will return to you increased in value many thousandfold.—Voice of Masonry.

FREEMASONRY IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

THE records of the progress of the Craft in the Colonies and dependencies of the British Crown are always interesting to brethren at home, and it is gratifying to learn from the reports we have just received from the Grand Lodge of South Australia that continued vitality pervades the numerous Lodges in that distant part of the globe. At a Quarterly Communication, held at the Freemasons' Hall, Flinders Street, Adelaide, in July, last year, the M.W. Grand Master Bro. the Hon. S. J. Way, Chief Justice, presided, supported by Bros. H. E. Downer, M.P., Deputy Grand Master, A. M. Simpson J.P. S.G.W., J. Ramsay J.P. S.J.W., Saul Solomon President of the Board of General Purposes, Dr. T. E. J. Seabrook J.P. Kildael Grand Tyler, and many Past Masters, Worshipful Masters, Wardens, and other visiting brethren. The report of the Board of General Purposes to the Grand Lodge of South Australia was then presented, and from it we learn that during the preceding quarter the Worshipful Masters of a number of Lodges had been installed, the R.W. Deputy Grand Masters and the Grand Officers being present at many of these ceremonies. The Book of Constitutions had been published, and copies supplied to all the Lodges. Grand Lodge certificates were then being issued. The Board congratulated the Craft upon receiving the intelligence, by telegraph, of the recognition of the Grand Lodge of South Australia by the Grand Lodge of England; and it was expected that the Grand Lodges of Ireland and Scotland would shortly follow the example. In accordance with resolutions passed at a previous Grand Lodge, the Board had caused to be erected in the Lodge-room a tablet in commemoration of the foundation of the Grand Lodge of South Australia. The Board, of which Brother J. H. Cunningham is G. Secretary, recorded with deep regret the death of a worthy and esteemed member of Grand Lodge, Bro. P. M. William Oldham, Past Grand Inspector of Lodges, who died at Kafunda, on 3rd July 1885. The report was received and adopted. R.W. Brother H. E. Downer proposed, and R.W. Bro. A. M. Simpson seconded, "That this Grand Lodge desires to record the deep regret experienced at the loss sustained by the death of V.W. Bro. William Oldham, Past Grand Inspector of Lodges, and that the G. Secretary be instructed to forward to the family of the late brother a letter of condolence and sympathy on behalf of the Grand Lodge." This was carried, as also was a resolution that a letter of sympathy should be forwarded to R.W. Bro. H. M. Addison, on account of his recent accident. Grand Lodge was then closed in ample form.

At the October Quarterly Communication Right Worshipful Bro. H. E. Downer, M.P., D.G.M. presided, in the absence of the Grand Master, and he was supported by a full attendance of Grand Officers, Past Masters, Worshipful Masters, Wardens, and Visiting brethren. The Board of General Purposes reported that official intimation had been received from the Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland that the Grand Lodge of South Australia had been recognised and acknowledged by those bodies as a regular Grand Lodge; also that the warrants of the Lodges working under the English and Irish Constitutions, previous to their connection with the South Australian Constitution, had been cancelled, and returned to this Grand Lodge by their respective Grand Lodges. The Grand Lodge of Scotland had resolved to allow the warrants of the several Scotch Lodges to be retained by them, and they would in due course be cancelled and returned. With very great pleasure the Board informed the Grand Lodge that the Grand Lodge of Scotland had passed at their last Communication the following resolution—"That Bro. Hugo C. E. Muecke, Ex-District Grand Master, be cordially thanked for the services he has rendered to the Grand Lodge of Scotland." Recognition had also been received, and fraternal correspondence opened with the Grand Lodges of Manitoba, Peru, New Mexico, and Michigan. The Grand Lodges of Scotland, Manitoba, and Peru had submitted the names of W. Bros. J. D. Hedderwick, Peter McGregor, and Ignacio Acuna as Worthy Representatives of this Grand Lodge near their respective Grand Lodges, and the Board recommended that these brethren be commissioned accordingly. The Board further recommended the names of the following brethren to be suggested to the undermentioned Grand Lodges as Worthy Representatives of this Grand Lodge—England, M.W. the Hon. S. J. Way Grand Master; Ireland, R.W. Bro. H. E. Downer Deputy Grand Master; Scotland, M.W. Bro. H. C. E. Muecke P.G.M.; Manitoba, W. Bro. Saint G.D. of C.; Peru, W. Bro. Knight Deputy G.D. of C.; New Mexico, W. Bro. Gurner P.G. Reg; Michigan, W. Bro. Bullock Assistant Grand Deputy D. of C. The Board suggested that the question of conferring honorary Lodge rank upon the representatives of this Grand Lodge near other Grand Lodges should be considered. A petition for a new Lodge at Yorktown had been granted, and the Lodge was to be consecrated shortly. The Board recommended that his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the M.W. Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England, be requested to fill the office of Grand Patron. The demands upon the Benevolent Funds had been considerable during the last quarter; the applications had been carefully considered, and relief had been afforded in all cases when found worthy. Resolutions were passed expressing gratification at having received from the Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland intimation that recognition, as a lawfully constituted Grand Lodge, had been accorded to the Grand Lodge of South Australia, and that this Grand Lodge heartily reciprocated the desire for the interchange of fraternal intercourse and correspondence. Grand Lodge was then closed in due form.

The Grand Master presided at the January Quarterly Communication, numerously supported by Grand and other Officers and Brethren. The Board of General Purposes reported that the new Lodge at Yorktown had been duly consecrated by the Deputy Grand Master and Grand Lodge Officers, on 21st November 1885, under the designation of the Melville Lodge, No. 36. They regretted to report the death of Bro. T. J. King, Past Grand Inspector of Lodges, which took place on 14th December. Bro. King, who was deservedly esteemed by his brother Masons, was accorded a Masonic funeral, at which a large number of the Craft attended, together with many of the Grand Officers. The death of Bro. G. M. Turnbull, Grand Steward, also occurred in the preceding month. That brother was a respected and popular member of the Lodge of Harmony, and by his death many members of the Craft had lost a loving brother and sincere friend. The Board recommended to the favourable consideration of the Grand Lodge the notice of motion by R.W. Bro. John Ramsay—"That the amount payable by Lodges to the funds of General Purposes and Grand Lodge, for each of its contributing members, be reduced from one shilling to ninepence per quarter." This, when submitted to the meeting was carried unanimously. The Benevolent Fund in connection with the Grand Lodge had been drawn upon to a very considerable extent, but it was gratifying to have to report that relief had been afforded to every case deserving of consideration. The report was read and adopted, and it was agreed that letters of condolence should be forwarded to the widows of the late Bros. T. J. King and G. M. Turnbull. Nominations for Grand Lodge Officers and members of the Board of General Purposes were then received:—

THE "QUEEN" OF INLAND WATERING PLACES.

A POPULAR and effective means of advertising the attractions of "favourite resorts" is the publication every now and then of illustrations, by which intending excursionists at the opening of a holiday season are enabled to form a decision on the always perplexing question, "Where to go for our annual holiday?" We have just received a unique specimen of this kind of visitor's guide in the shape of an illustrated supplement to the Buxton Advertiser, in which are given a series of panoramic views of "the Queen of Inland Watering-places." The views, especially those of Buxton from St. Anne's Cliff, the Pavilion and Gardens, Haddon Hall, Chee Tor, and Chatsworth, are exceedingly good, and the whole of the supplement is remarkably well-executed. It is stated in the accompanying letterpress that the lowest portion of the town is 1,000 feet above the level of the sea. The antiquity of the town, which was at one time a Roman station, is attested by the many grand Roman roads converging upon it; and we are reminded by the quaint reminiscences of "Old Buxton" that many great and illustrious personages have at various times visited the place, and derived great advantage from the use of the mineral waters that have given to Buxton a world-wide reputation. Probably on these waters and baths the fame of Buxton may be said principally to rest. The thermal waters spring in immense and unvarying volumes, and at a temperature of 82° Fahr. It is asserted that the curative properties of these waters in cases of rheumatism and gout are "simply mervellous," and, although there is much that is hackneyed in an expression so often employed, there can be little difficulty in adducing testimony to the truth of the assertion from the experience of those who have sought the healing benefit of the mineral springs and the baths for which this Derbyshire Spa is so renowned. The supplement before us describes the baths as truly a "Bethesda's pool" to suffering humanity. In cases such as the one now under notice, when so much stress is laid upon the virtue of native springs, and to the unequalled salubrity of the temperature, and the admirable sanitary and hygeinic arrangements of the place, the inference is set down at once that such a resort is only suitable to the afflicted and infirm. We have heard the remark applied to Torquay—certainly one of the most beautiful, as well as the most invigorating of sea-side resorts—that it is only a place fit for people far gone in pulmonary ailments, and not for the vigorous and the strong. Of course, in making such assertions, those who utter them are in some measure at least actuated by personal or interested considerations; and daily experience is found to contradict to the letter all such rival accusations. It must not be thought, therefore, that because Buxton has an unparalleled possession of springs and baths it is only a resort for invalids; for in the Pavilion and gardens music is blended with lawn-tennis, boating, bowling, rinking, and many other pastimes which the young and athletic so much enjoy, whilst the beauty of the surrounding scenery adds Nature's own charm to the enterprises of art in providing attractions for visitors. The supplement published by Mr. C. F. Wardley is a work of art in itself, whilst the information accompanying the plates is interesting, and full of valuable hints to those who are just now contemplating the package of their family portmanteaus before setting out for their summer sojourn in the country.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

SOUTH MIDDLESEX LODGE, No. 858.

THERE was a very gratifying attendance of members and Visitors at the Installation meeting of this popular old West-end Lodge, held at Beaufort House, Walham Green, on Thursday evening, the 22nd instant. The Lodge is intimately bound up with the Second Middlesex Rifles and other Volunteer corps of this district, many of whose officers figure on the roll of membership; and during the past year, under the able and genial presidency of Bro. Lieut. F. Larner, the proceedings have been crowned with even more than ordinary success. There appears to be such thorough harmony and urbanity pervading the conduct of this Lodge's affairs that it need be no matter for surprise that new and excellent "blood" is being constantly infused into it, and that, both from a numerical and financial point of view, this branch of the Fraternity is in a robust and healthy condition. The brethren assembled soon after four o'clock, under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. Lieut. F. Larner, who was supported by Bros. C. S. Wilkes S.W. and W.M. elect, T. C. Allengame J.W., Major C. H. Reid-Tod P.M. Treas., W. H. Rawkins Secretary, E. H. Walmsley S.D., W. H. Hobbiss S.D., Lieut-Col. H. Radcliffe P.M. Director of Ceremonies, E. A. R. Ewen Steward, Past Masters P. Kirke, W. F. Woods, Francis Egan, C. H. Cumberland, B. Pollard, and P. H. Jones; Bros. W. Burn, C. W. Stevenson, B. Fickling, R. Ethridge, W. Graham, W. S. Cottis, R. H. Grey, C. Wetherby, S. H. Moore, W. Ham, Thos. Grover, Woodstock Tyler, and others. Amongst the Visitors were Bro. J. Percy Leith P.M. 2 P.G.D., J. G. Fisher P.M. 1194 P.G.S. Middlesex, E. Clark P.M. 1329 P.P.G. Supt. of Works, J. Clulow 1851, H. J. Amphlett 1511, R. Wilson 2054, A. B. Hudson 1657, H. F. Back 55, F. Prior 765, J. H. Townsend Green 1974, J. Holliday 1777, F. A. Ford 2021, R. Josey 1828, &c. Lodge was opened in accordance with ancient Rites, and the minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, was advanced to the third, when Bro. W. Graham was raised to the sublime degree, the ceremony being impressively and ably worked by the retiring W.M. Bro. Larner then vacated the chair, which was assumed by the esteemed Treasurer of the Lodge, Bro. Major C. H. Reid-Tod as Installing Officer; and Bro. C. A. Wilkes was presented in due form as W.M. elect, and assented to the usual interrogatories on accepting the responsibilities of office. A Board of Installing Masters was then constituted, and Bro. Wilkes was inducted into the chair of K.S. with all solemnity, the ceremony being performed in masterly manner. On the re-admission of the brethren, the newly-installed W.M. was proclaimed, and saluted in the three degrees, after which he invested his Officers for the year, as follow:—Bros. Lieut. F. Larner I.P.M., T. C. Allengame S.W., S. E. H. Walmsley J.W., Major C. H. Reid-Tod P.M. Treasurer, W. H. Rawkins Secretary, W. H. Hobbiss S.D., Dr. A. Handyside J.D., E. A. R. Ewen I.G., and Woodstock Tyler. The ancient charges to the Masters, Wardens, and Brethren were delivered by the Installing Master with much elocutionary effect, and the ceremony throughout was most edifying and highly appreciated by all present. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Radcliffe P.M. acted efficiently as Director of Ceremonies. At the close of the Installation business, the ballot was opened for Dr. Gilbert Richardson, of Putney, proposed by Bro. Wilkes and seconded by Bro. Larner, and for Mr. J. Wilmer Ransome, of Highbury New Park, whose sponsors were the same. Both were unanimously accepted, and Mr. Ransome being present, was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Craft, the working of the newly-installed W.M. giving promise of able and excellent ruling during the year upon which he had just entered. The other candidate, Dr. Richardson, was prevented by urgent professional duties from attending. The report of the Audit Committee, which showed the Lodge to be in a satisfactory condition, both as regards numbers and funds, was submitted and approved; and the Worshipful Master then, in the name of the brethren, presented to the retiring Master a handsome P.M.'s jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him by the Lodge, as a mark of their esteem, and in recognition of the valuable services he had rendered during his tenure of office. The jewel was quite unique in its design, bearing on its front the Middlesex arms, beneath which was a bugle, denoting the connection of the Lodge with the Second South Middlesex Volunteers, and on the reverse side was the inscription—

Presented to Bro. Fred. Larner P.M. for his efficient services as Worshipful Master during the year. April 1886.

The gift was accompanied by a few eulogistic observations on the part of the W.M., who referred to Bro. Larner's very successful year, and the zeal and fidelity with which he had carried on the affairs of the Lodge during the time he had filled that exalted position. He had gained the respect and esteem of the brethren generally by his unwearying exertions for the promotion of the best interests of the South Middlesex Lodge, and he (the speaker) hoped to have that worthy brother's assistance and counsel in carrying on the business of the Lodge in the year upon which he had, by the kindness of the brethren, entered to-day. Bro. Larner briefly acknowledged the compliment which had been paid to him, and promised to continue his efforts for the welfare of the Lodge, as he had done in the past. He congratulated Bro. Wilkes upon his accession to office, and the brethren upon the wise choice they had made, and assured them all that whatever he could do to advance the prosperity of the Lodge he should be most happy to do. In wearing the beautiful jewel which had been fastened to his breast, he should ever be reminded of the pleasant hours he had spent in association with the brethren of the South London Lodge, and concluded by expressing the hope that he might continue to merit the kindly sentiments which had actuated them in making him such an acceptable present. Some routine business having been transacted, and hearty good wishes interchanged, the brethren and Visitors adjourned for the banquet, which was served in admirable style by Mr. Maltby, in the large hall, whose walls are adorned with quaint military subjects, bought, we understand, from the old "Globe," in Leicester-square. At the end of the hall was a large drop-scene, on which is painted a strikingly excellent representation of the Volunteer camp at Wimbledon. At the conclusion of the recherché repast, which was capitally served, the Worshipful Master proposed the Loyal toasts, in doing which, after alluding to her Most Gracious Majesty as Patron of the Craft, he said when they looked back upon the time since H.R.H. the Prince of Wales succeeded to the position of M.W. Grand Master, they would find that nearly 700 new Lodges had been consecrated, and each year had brought upwards of 800 into the Order. That spoke volumes as to what the Prince of Wales had done for Freemasonry. The Prince had endeared himself to every man, woman, and child, not only in England, but on the Continent, and his name was respected, not only by Masons, but by every community throughout the world. He then gave in suitable terms the M.W. Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers, present and past. In doing so, he spoke of the superior way in which the work of Grand Lodge was carried on, and said we ought to be thankful to those gentlemen who so assiduously devoted themselves to the interests of the Craft. This evening they were honoured by the presence of one of the Grand Officers—which was not a frequent occurrence in their Lodge—and they would have had others but for the meeting occurring so close upon the Easter holidays. The toast was received with the utmost cordiality, and, in responding, Bro. J. Percy Leith P.G.D. said the Officers of Grand Lodge did their utmost to merit the approbation of the brethren generally. The duties of Grand Lodge required careful attention to matters of detail, and that attention conduced mainly to the success or otherwise of the Institution. To obtain the approval of the brethren by the success of their exertions was the highest reward coveted by the Officers of Grand Lodge. He thanked them individually for the kind manner in which the Worshipful Master had coupled his name with the toast, and it afforded him genuine pleasure to have had an opportunity of witnessing the ceremonies, performed in a manner which, he assured them, was deserving of the highest credit. Not only was their own Master employed in those ceremonies, but they had an opportunity of seeing their Immediate Past Master, who had carried on the work of the past year so well, taking upon himself the raising of a brother to-day. There was no doubt that Bro. Larner's mantle would fall upon the shoulders of his successor. He (Bro. Wilkes) had had an opportunity, which few Masters have of performing an initiation on his installation night, and they were all much gratified at the extremely able way in which he, as a novice, conducted that interesting ceremony. In Bro. Major Reid-Tod they had a Past Master who was always available, whose services were ever at their disposal, and who would at any time come forward to take upon himself the arduous duties of Installing Master. He had discharged those duties that day with great ability, and was deserving of high credit. Having thanked the brethren for their hospitality, he said his visit to the Lodge on this occasion was particularly agreeable, inasmuch as the father of their initiate was an old friend of his, and it was a strange coincidence that he should be present on the night when the son was initiated into Freemasonry. Bro. Larner I.P.M. then assumed the gavel, and proposed, in felicitous terms, the health of their newly-installed Worshipful Master. Most of the brethren present knew that Bro. Wilkes was a thoroughly good man, in every capacity of life, and from what they had seen they might be confidently assured he would make an excellent Master of their Lodge. Very few words were required to recommend this toast to their notice, but he asked the brethren to offer Bro. Wilkes the same cordial help that they had afforded him (the speaker) during his year of office. He was sure that at the expiration of that term they would have every reason to be abundantly satisfied with the choice they had made. The W.M., who was heartily received, said he rose with diffidence and pleasure to respond to the toast—with diffidence, fearing he should not be able to carry out the duties which they had been kind enough to impose upon him to their entire satisfaction, and with pleasure because he had reached, he might say, the height of his ambition in Masonry. When, only a few years ago, he had the honour of being initiated in this Lodge, he was vain enough to hope he might attain to the exalted position he now held. He had attained that position, even sooner than in those ambitious days he expected, and he thanked the brethren for the extremely kind way in which he had been received on this occasion. He should strive to do his best to justify the selection they had made, and hoped that at the end of his year of office they might be able to drink to his health with the same cordiality as they had done that day. He assured them nothing should be wanting on his part to maintain and to increase, in his humble way, the welfare of the South Middlesex Lodge. In proposing the health of the I.P.M., he spoke of the able manner in which Bro. Larner had conducted the office of Master during the past year, although that subject needed no comment from him. They were all extremely indebted to him for the way in which the affairs of the Lodge had been conducted. It was impossible for any Master to have done his duty in a more efficient manner than Bro. Larner had done; therefore, he had very great pleasure in proposing this toast. As he had been warned two or three times that time was on the wing, and that the brethren would run away, he asked them, without further preface, to drink to the toast with all honours. Bro. Lieut. F. Larner I.P.M. was warmly applauded, and, after returning thanks for the hearty reception accorded to the toast, said after the many speeches he had made during the year, they would not want any lengthened remarks from him on this occasion. He was very proud to have arrived at that position. Of course, he valued his position as Master of the Lodge, but he was equally happy in that which he now filled as a Past Master. He wished to convey to them his grateful thanks for the very kind support they had rendered him during his year of office.

The W.M., in proposing what he termed the toast of the evening, "The Initiate," observed that without initiates Masonry would be entirely at a standstill. In the South Middlesex Lodge they had been particularly fortunate in having a goodly number of them. That evening he had hoped to have had the honour of two initiates, but at the last moment he received a telegram from one, who was a medical man, to the effect that he had been called away on important duty. He hoped, however, to have the pleasure of initiating him on the next occasion. They had that evening a very excellent addition to their number in the person of an old friend of his, and possibly, in name, a friend of many others in the Lodge. It was three or four years since he had the pleasure of proposing Bro. Ransome, but circumstances had prevented him from attending until now. However, the old adage held good, "Better late than never." Personally, he was much pleased that Bro. Ransome did not come forward earlier, because now he had the honour of initiating his old friend. He was one of the right sort, and one of whom they would have reason to be proud. The E.A. song having been sung with acclamation, Bro. Ransome thanked the brethren very much for having received the toast of his health so heartily, and also for their having admitted him into the Order. He had been deeply impressed with the interesting and solemn ceremony he had witnessed in the Lodge-room. It had always been one of his ambitions to become a Mason, and he thanked them most sincerely for having admitted him. The W.M. next extended a hearty welcome to the Visitors, and said although in every Lodge this toast was well received, he thought it was especially so in the South Middlesex. He did not know that he had a right to say "especially," because every Lodge was glad to receive Visitors; but, speaking for the brethren of his Lodge, he said they were only too delighted to see such a goodly number present on this occasion. He then enumerated the brethren who had honoured them with their company, some of whom were distinguished in the Craft, and he had received letters and telegrams expressing regret for non-attendance from others who, although not with them in person, were so in spirit. Bro. Clark said his visit to the South Middlesex Lodge had afforded him much gratification. He thanked them for the bounteous manner in which they had entertained their Visitors, which was something beyond that usually experienced, even in Masonic Lodges; and the way in which the working had been done afforded him much pleasure. It was most agreeable to meet so many old friends, amongst whom was the initiate, whom he had known in business. If he carried out his Masonic duties as he did those on behalf of his clients, he would be everything that the brethren of the Lodge could desire. Bro. Fisher could add but little to what had been said by the last speaker in response to this toast; but Bro. Clark omitted one important point, and that was the excellent manner in which the installation ceremony had been rendered by their worthy Bro. Major Reid-Tod. Having witnessed that ceremony on many occasions, he was bound to say he had never seen it carried out in better form, or with more expressive feeling than it had been done that day. He thanked Bro. Reid-Tod for the able manner in which he reminded them of the tenets and principles of the Craft. In that ceremony everything was brought to their minds as to what Freemasonry was, but it was the manner in which it was rendered that made an impression upon their hearts. He had heard Bro. Tod rehearse that ceremony many times in Lodges of Instruction, but that evening he even excelled himself. He again thanked them for their unbounded hospitality at the festive board, and for the treat which had been afforded them in the Lodge-room. Bro. Back thoroughly endorsed the sentiments expressed by those who had preceded him. Although he had not the good fortune as yet to witness an installation ceremony, from what he had heard from critical brethren he knew it had been admirably performed. The W.M., in appropriate terms, gave the Past Masters, extolling their zeal and assiduity in promoting the welfare of the Lodge and the comfort and harmony of the brethren. The Past Masters severally acknowled the toast, and, the Officers of the Lodge having replied to the compliments paid to them, the list was fittingly closed by the Tyler. The proceedings of the evening, which were of the most enjoyable character throughout, were diversified by some capital songs and recitations, Bro. Hobbiss rendering efficient aid as accompanyist on the pianoforte.

CALLENDER LODGE, No. 1052.

THE Installation meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 20th ult., at the Masonic Rooms, King Street, Manchester. After the confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting, a ballot was taken for a joining member, Bro. Joseph Priestman, and declared to be unanimous in his favour. Bro. Robert White P.M., the D.C. of the Lodge, presented the W.M. elect, Bro. Seth Wrigley, the S.W. of the past year, for installation, and this interesting ceremony was performed in a most impressive and eloquent manner by the popular outgoing Master, Bro. Roger Walker. Although this was Bro. Walker's first attempt in the capacity of Installing Master the ceremony was rendered in such a style as to engross the attention of the brethren, from the commencement to the end, and Bro. Walker was rewarded at its close with an outburst of applause seldom given in a Lodge-room. We venture to predict the day is not far distant when Bro. Walker's talents will be recognised and rewarded in the Province of East Lancashire. The addresses to the newly-appointed Officers were delivered by Bro. J. Beresford P.P.G.D. Cheshire; this brother's fame is such as to render criticism or praise superfluous. After business the brethren, numbering about sixty, adjourned to a sumptuous banquet provided in the room below, where they did ample justice to the viands, excellently served by the Lodge caterer. The Queen, Prince and Princess of Wales, the Grand Lodge and Provincial Lodge toasts having been duly honoured, Bro. Jno. Chadwick P.G. Secretary responded to the latter, assuring the brethren of the Callender Lodge that the Prov. G.M. R.W. Bro. N. Le Gendre Starkie would be pleased to hear the report he (Bro. Chadwick) should give of the good and efficient work done in their Lodge. He noted with pleasure that although the members were not numerous, and that the brethren had during the past few years not been able to do as much as they wished towards the general Charities, they had that day voted another £5 to the East Lancashire Masonic Benevolent Institution, to mark their esteem for the Installing Master, and the success which had attended the Lodge during his tenure of office. Bro. Chadwick also announced that Bro. Warburton P.M., the Charity Representative of the Lodge, had supplemented the vote by a donation on his own behalf of £5. It was only fair that acts like these, done in secret and so unostentatiously, should at least be mentioned, so that brethren might be stimulated to imitate the good example, and that the giver should himself see his charitable act was recognised. Bro. Walker I.P.M. then proposed the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master. In Bro. Seth Wrigley the Lodge would undoubtedly find a worthy occupant of the chair; he would prove an honour to the name of Callender, for whilst serving the subordinate offices of the Lodge he had, by his suavity, courtesy, zeal and assiduity, ingratiated himself into the affections of every member and earned the esteem of the Past Masters. The manner in which Bro. Wrigley had thrown himself into the labours of preparing for the comfort of visitors to the installation and banquet was an additional guarantee that the duties devolving upon him would be faithfully performed, and every detail carefully attended to. Bro. Seth Wrigley, in reply, assured the brethren that he had, from the time of his initiation, aimed at filling the position in which the brethren had that evening placed him; he would prove his gratitude for the confidence they had reposed in him by handing the warrant, on the expiration of his term of office, if with no extra lustre, at least as untarnished as he now received it. He only hoped he should succeed in his efforts as well as Bro. Walker, who had been most energetic and untiring for the welfare of the Callender Lodge, this should be his aim and endeavour during his Mastership. In proposing the health of the I.P.M., Bro. Wrigley made most flattering allusions to the work that had been done, and to the unanimity which had prevailed in the Lodge. He then presented to Bro. Walker a beautiful P.M.'s jewel, on behalf of the members. He trusted that Bro. Walker would live long to wear the jewel, which denoted the affections of every member. Bro. Walker I.P.M. responded, and promised that having fallen into the ranks of the P.M.'s he should, like them, remain in the Lodge, and whilst he lived wear with pride the jewel which the brethren had been pleased to bestow upon him. It should ever be a beacon to direct him to his Masonic duties, and any service it might be in his power to render would be willingly given on behalf of the Lodge or any of its members. The Secretary, Bro. Edwards, in proposing the Visiting Brethren, complimented the Lodge on being honoured with distinguished brethren from many Provinces; brethren who had attained Provincial rank. There were also present many who deserved it, but who, through the scarcity of offices at the disposal of the Prov. Grand Master, and from the number of brethren eligible for the honour, were unavoidably, up to now, undecorated. He asked the Visitors, all of whom had given evidence of being at home, to come and see the Lodge whilst the ordinary duties were being performed through the year, and promised they should find one of the best worked, truly harmonious, hospitable and happy Lodges in the Province. They would be satisfied that the Lodge work could not be excelled, and a better acquaintance with the Lodge would improve their opinion of the Worshipful Master's hospitality, however high that opinion might already be. Nearly all the Visitors responded. Amongst them were Bros. J. Chadwick P.G.S., Thos. Carter P.G.O., Board P.G.D.C. Warwickshire, J. Beresford P.P.G.D. Cheshire, Wm. Harris W.M. 1993, Hebden P.M. 1458, Elliott P.M. 1147, Biddolph, Hill, Blatherwick, and Cheetham W.M. 993. Bro. Harris concluded a very eloquent response by paying a high compliment to Bro. Walker I.P.M., expressing the extreme pleasure it gave him to meet Bro. Walker and witness the ceremony he had so well performed, more especially as Bro. Walker had rendered such valuable service to him (Brother Harris) in performing ceremonies in the Wolseley Lodge, where he had made himself so agreeable and popular to every member. Bro. Harris also expressed the hope that the very high prestige of the Callender Lodge might be maintained, and that it might continue in its labour of love, and prosper under its new Master. Bro. Blatherwick said, that having for years worked in another sphere with the late Bro. W. R. Callender, he was convinced that from the manner in which the Lodge was conducted, and the "esprit" which prevailed, the inspiration of that departed brother haunted the Lodge, and that whilst this continued the Callender must of necessity remain a model Lodge in the Province. The toasts of the Past Masters and the newly-invested Officers having been duly honoured, Bro. Warburton P.M. gave the Masonic Charities, favouring those present with a most interesting account of the history and work of each, remarking that although the Lodge had not subscribed as much as they could have wished to the general Charities, owing to the claims of their own members and the depression of trade in the district, the feeling was strong in the Lodge to be in the fore in the lists of subscribers to the Masonic Charities, the trifle given to-day therefore might be considered an earnest of more to follow. During the evening the meeting was enlivened with some capital music, singing and recitations by Bro. Carter P.G.O., Owles, J. Jordrell, Ernest Jones J.W., Bennett I.G., Start, and the brethren left after one of the pleasantest evenings spent even in this ever happy Lodge.

VICTORIA LODGE, No. 1056.

THE installation meeting of this popular Lodge was held at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham Street, on Thursday evening last, when there was a goodly muster of the brethren and Visitors, under the presidency of the retiring W.M. Bro. Edmund Bowles. Lodge was opened soon after four o'clock, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was then presented, showing the Lodge to be in a sound and healthy condition, both as regards membership and finances; the report was unanimously adopted. Lodge being advanced to the third degree, Bros. W. P. Bothamley, E. Noyes, and H. Mitchell were raised, the working of the Worshipful Master being all that could be desired. Resuming in the second, Bro. Samuel Cochrane S.W. and W.M. elect was presented for the benefit of installation, and having formally assented to the responsibilities of office, he was duly installed into the chair. The brethren, on their re-admission to the Lodge, saluted the newly-installed W.M. in the three degrees, and the charges were delivered, in an effective manner. The W.M. then appointed and invested his Officers for the ensuing year, and after the interchange of fraternal greetings, the brethren and visitors partook of a sumptuous banquet, provided in Bros. Ritter and Clifford's usual commendable style. The customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the health of the newly-installed W.M. being received with especial enthusiasm, and responded to in appropriate terms by Bro. Cochrane. The toast of the Visitors was also very heartily received and acknowledged, whilst a fitting tribute of praise was accorded to the Past Masters, Treasurer, Secretary, and Officers for the active zeal they had displayed in promoting the interests of the Victoria Lodge. The proceedings of the evening, which were of a thoroughly harmonious and enjoyable description, were varied by some capital singing and recitations.

St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction, No. 141.—The annual meeting of this very old Lodge of Instruction was held on Good Friday, the 23rd ult., at Brother Pope's, White Hart Tavern, King's Road, Chelsea, on which occasion a large number of eminent brethren attended to celebrate the custom of working the fifteen sections. The following took part in the working:—Bros. W. Stuart P.M. 142, 179 as W.M., A. Carlstrom S.W., P. Coghlan J.W., J. March Secretary. First lecture—Bros. Coghlan, Alexander, Ruffle, Coop, Whiting, Smith, Woods. Second lecture—Bros. Watts, Corbey, Carlstrom, Cleghorn, Dairy. Third lecture—Bros. Markland, Whiting, Woods.

The M.W. the Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales having approved of a new Masonic Lodge for Gosport, the consecration will take place in the Thorngate Hall, on the 12th May, by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master (Brother W. W. B. Beach, M.P.), assisted by the Officers of the Province. Brother Francis Powell P.M. 903 is the Worshipful Master designate.

Bro. Spiegel P.M. will deliver his lecture, on the Origin of Freemasonry, at the Creaton Lodge of Instruction No. 1791, held at the Wheatsheaf Hotel, Goldhawk Road Shepherd's Bush, on Thursday, the 6th of May.

The following Festivals were celebrated at Freemasons Tavern during the week ending Saturday, 1st May 1886:—

Tuesday—Royal York Chapter, Lodge of Prudent Brethren, Royal Savoy Lodge. Wednesday—Grand Festival, Smeatonian Society of Civil Engineers, Jordan Lodge. Friday—Britannic Lodge.

—:o:—

Drury Lane.—London has its national theatre once again, with its old glories of melodrama. The pantomime season had extended this year beyond its usual limits, and indeed Aladdin might seemingly have travelled through midsummer and autumn to shake hands with the "Forty Thieves" next Christmas. Mr. Harris has willed otherwise, and now we have "Human Nature" for a few weeks before we welcome Carl Rosa and his pleasant opera season. In the absence of Mr. H. Neville, with a touring company, Mr. Harris assumes the part of the hero, and seems equal to the chivalry required. On the first night he was strangely nervous, as many a gallant captain has been before on entering on a great campaign. That strangely versatile actor Mr. R. Pateman is the demoniac baby farmer, so blood-curdling in his villainy that the gallery does not hiss, but howls at him in appreciative virtue. Mr. Harry Nicholls plays the benevolent "comic relief" with a brightness and geniality that reminds old playgoers of Buckstone. Pretty Marie Illington is still the delightful soubrette—charming in every one of her scenes. However, for this occasion the "play was (not) the thing," but rather the playhouse. It was the première of Drury Lane newly decorated, and with such liberal magnificence that surely the grand old interior has never shone with such a glory of ruby velvet and lavish gilding, whilst the same coloured tableau curtains repeat and complete the gorgeous draperies of the boxes. The uncompromising severity of the central sunlight gains grace and sparkle from a veil of crystal drops. The stalls and the boxes have had their seats upholstered for the greater comfort of visitors, and soft carpets cover the endless stairs and corridors. Drury Lane is now the most luxuriously appointed theatre in London. At the close of the performance Mr. Harris was summoned again and again in answer to the enthusiastic plaudits of the audience.

Third Lecture—Bros. Gilt, Weeden, Giddings. Bro. J. R. Cordell 813 Secretary.

Obituary.

SIR HENRY EDWARDS, BART., P.P.G.M. WEST YORKSHIRE.

The news of the decease of Brother Sir Henry Edwards will be received with feelings of regret throughout the country, but more particularly in that district of Yorkshire with which he was more intimately associated. Our deceased brother was appointed to the charge of the Masonic Province of West Yorkshire in 1875, and was the first Mason on whom the Grand Master conferred the dignity of Provincial Grand Master. Some two years since Sir Henry was compelled, through ill health, to resign his appointment, much to the regret of the brethren of his Province, who had learned to appreciate the thorough heartiness with which he entered into, and carried out, his Masonic duties.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Health or Wealth.—No sane person would hesitate an instant in the choice between these two conditions. Now is the season to secure the former, either by restoring or confirming it. These Pills expel all impurities from the system which fogs, foul vapours, and variable temperatures engender during winter. This medicine also acts most wholesomely upon the skin by disgorging the liver of its accumulated bile, and by exciting the kidneys to more energetic action; it increases the appetite for food, and strengthens the digestive process. The stomach and liver, with which most disorders originate, are fully under the control of these regenerative Pills, which act very kindly, yet more efficiently, on the tenderest bowels.

THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF GENERAL PURPOSES.

To the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England.

The Committee of General Purposes beg to report that they have examined the accounts from the 20th January to the 20th April 1886, both inclusive, which they find to be as follows:—

Balance Grand Chapter - -	44	5	2	Disbursements during the quarter -	248	16	2
„ Unappropriated Account -	185	2	4	Balance - -	220	10	0
Subsequent Receipts -	438	2	6	„ Unappropriated Account -	198	3	10
	£667	10	0		£667	10	0

which balances are in the Bank of England, Western Branch.

The Committee have likewise to report that they have received the following Petitions:—

1st. From Companions George Arthur Montgomery Tapscott as Z., Andries Selzer as H., Thomas Melville du Toit as J., and nine others for a Chapter to be attached to the Octahedron Lodge, No. 1417, Barkley, South Africa, to be called "The Octahedron Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Barkley, South Africa.

2nd. From Companions Stephen R. White as Z., Richard Thomas Middleton as H., Henry Hagell Lowrie as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Southern Cross Lodge, No. 1590, Uitenhage, Cape of Good Hope, to be called "The Southern Cross Chapter," and to meet at Uitenhage, Cape of Good Hope (East Division).

3rd. From Companions James Reginald Spence as Z., Raphael Borg as H., George Charles Peere Williams Freeman as J., and seven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Bulwer Lodge, No. 1068, Cairo, Egypt, to be called "The Bulwer Chapter," and to meet at Cairo, in Egypt.

4th. From Companions James Griffin as Z., James Gifford as H., William Odam as J., and twenty-two others for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of St. George, No. 2025, Stonehouse, to be called "The St. George Chapter," and to meet at the St. George's Hall, Stonehouse, in the County of Devon.

5th. From Companions Henry John Atkins as Z., William Bowring Rogers as H., David Sydenham as J., and seven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of Hengist, No. 195, Bournemouth, to be called "The Hengist Chapter," and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, Bournemouth, in the County of Hampshire.

6. From Companions James Smith as Z., Alexander Smith as H., John Bray as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Broad Arrow Lodge, No. 1890, St. George's, Bermuda, to be called "The Royal Edward Chapter," and to meet at St. George's, Bermuda, West Indies.

7th. From Companions William Mason Stiles as Z, William Alfred Scurrah as H., James Willing jun. as J., and seven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Henry Levander Lodge, No. 2048, Harrow Station, to be called "The Henry Levander Chapter," and to meet at the Railway Hotel, Harrow Station, in the County of Middlesex.

8th. From Companions George Lambert as Z., Robert Payne as H., Herbert C. Lambert as J., and twelve others for a Chapter to be attached to the Queen's Westminster Lodge, No. 2021, London, to be called "The Queen's Westminster Chapter," and to meet at 8A Red Lion Square, Holborn, London.

The foregoing petitions being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

The Committee have also to report that they have received a memorial from the Companions of the Chapter of Fidelity, No. 3, London, praying for a Charter authorising them to wear a centenary jewel, in accordance with the resolution passed by the Supreme Grand Chapter on the 1st February 1882. This memorial being in form, and the Chapter having proved an uninterrupted existence of 100 years, the Committee recommend that the prayer thereof be granted.

The Committee have likewise to report that a Chapter through neglect of the Law as contained in Article 67, page 22, of the Royal Arch Regulations (Edit. 1879), has recently exalted a Brother at a less period than twelve calendar months from the date of his becoming a Master Mason :—

The Committee have admonished the Chapter to be more observant of the Law in the future, and have ordered the candidate in question to be re-obligated.

The Committee have further to report the receipt of the two following communications, viz. :—

1st. An Edict of the Grand Chapter Royal Arch Masons of Quebec—dated 16th January 1886, severing fraternal intercourse between its Chapters and their members, and those of this Grand Chapter, in consequence of the continued existence within the territory exclusively claimed by the former, of the two English Chapters, Nos. 374 and 440, which have been working in Montreal long previously to the formation of their Chapter.

2nd. An Edict to the same purport from the Grand Chapter Royal Arch Masons of the State of Louisiana—dated 1st March 1886, to continue in force so long as the two Chapters in Montreal shall remain under the Grand Chapter of England.

These communications have been briefly acknowledged by the Grand Scribe E., and as the Grand Chapter of England does not exchange Representatives with Grand Chapters of the Royal Arch degree on the continent of America, these Bodies differing from that of England in their forms and qualifications, the Committee do not recommend that further notice be taken of these communications.

POLISH NATIONAL CHAPTER, No. 534.

THE installation Convocation was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, on Thursday, 22nd ult. Comps. Palmer Z., Dr. Corrie Jackson H., and Dr. Jagielski J. The first business was the examination and passing the accounts by the Audit Committee; these were found to be very satisfactory. Afterwards came the ballot for the Officers for the ensuing year. Companion Dr. Corrie Jackson was unanimously chosen M.E.Z., Comp. Jagielski H., and J. Bieling J. These various Officers were then installed in a most able manner by Comp. Palmer. After this followed the ballot for Brother Schwartz, of the Ebury and Marylebone Lodges, proposed by Comp. Chaplain. This proved to be unanimous in his favour, and he was exalted to the supreme degree by the newly installed M.E.Z. The ceremony being completed, and various communications brought forward by Companion Pass S.E. having been received, the Chapter was closed until October next.

Howard Ancient Landmark Lodge, Mass. Const.; G. Martin 1 E.C., &c. The District Grand Lodge was opened in form at 9·15 p.m., and after the Circular convening the meeting had been read, the minutes of the last regular Communication, which had been printed and circulated, were confirmed. Bro. Cory read the Report of the District Board of General Purposes, which was adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes of the present Communication. The District Grand Secretary, in the absence, through indisposition, of the District Grand Treasurer, explained that the Treasurer's report showed that the receipts during the year had amounted to tls.381·83, against which there had been an expenditure of tls.201·53, leaving a balance of tls.180·30. In addition to this balance, after writing off ten per cent. for depreciation, there were assets, represented by the old regalia, amounting to tls.264·60, making a total of tls.444·90. There was the unpaid bill for the new regalia of £60 2s, but the new regalia would of course, come into the assets. Bro. Thorne Past District Grand Master complimented the District Grand Lodge on its improved financial position, and proposed that the Treasurer's report be adopted. The District Grand Master in the chair, in seconding the motion, explained that the accounts would be audited and annexed to the printed minutes of the present Communication. The accounts were then formally adopted. The ballot for the election of Treasurer was then taken, and resulted in the re-election of Bro. Short. Bros. R. W. Astill, A. P. Macgregor, and J. Findlay were elected members of the District Board of General Purposes. The following brethren were invested District Grand Officers for the ensuing year, viz. :—

Bro. John Myrie Cory	S.W.
Alfred Johnsford	J.W.
William Henry Short	Treasurer
John Morris	Registrar
Rev. Frederick Robert Smith	Chaplain

John West	Stewards
Joseph James Poynter	Stewards
The S.W. Union Lodge 1951, Tientsin	Stewards
Charles Merritt	Tyler

The District Grand Master in the chair congratulated the brethren on the harmonious working of the different Lodges in the District since the Communication in September last. The Worshipful Masters of the local Lodges had been installed and their Officers invested, and he wished them all a prosperous year. From the Union Lodge no returns had been received, though especially applied for, and their non-arrival had placed him in an awkward position, being unable to name its Officers for appointments in the District Grand Lodge. He reverted to the very satisfactory report from the Treasurer, and spoke of the progress made in the Masonic School scheme, stating that the school would now soon be an accomplished fact. Bro. Thorne explained that the Treasurer had not yet paid the tls.100 voted for the Masonic School. He formally proposed that the Treasurer be empowered to make the payment, and the motion having been seconded by Bro. Kingsmill was unanimously passed. Bro. Kingsmill mentioned that it was a great improvement to see, for the first time, the brethren arranged under their respective banners, and he hoped this plan would be followed in future. The District Grand Secretary read a letter received from the Grand Secretary, pointing out that the wishes of the Northern Lodge of China, No. 570 E.C., in connection with the appointment of a successor to Brother Thorne, had not been communicated to him, but the District Grand Secretary showed by the press copy of his letter of the 4th February 1885 that this had been done, and stated he had replied to the Grand Secretary accordingly. The Grand Secretary also wrote that the votes held by the District Grand Lodge for appointments to the Masonic Schools at home were in the hands of Bro. S. Rawson, but that no election was coming on just then. The District Grand Secretary read a circular received from the Grand Lodge giving instructions as to the requirements to be attended to in forwarding petitions for New Lodges' After receipt of several copies of "Proceedings" had been acknowledged, the District Grand Lodge was closed in form, and the brethren separated in peace, harmony, and brotherly love.

FESTIVAL OF UNITED GRAND LODGE.

THE annual Festival of the Grand Lodge of England was celebrated on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, London. The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Lathom Deputy Grand Master presided, and was supported by the following Grand Officers:—Lord Kensington P.G.W. as Deputy Grand Master, Hugh D. Sandeman P.D.G.M. Bengal as Past Grand Master, the Earl of Milltown P.S.G.W. as S.W., Colonel Sackville West J.W., Rev. R. N. Sanderson Chaplain, F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Registrar, T. Fenn President Board of General Purposes, Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Secretary, E. E. Wendt, D.C.L., Secretary for German Correspondence, J. Watson S.D., T. H. Goldney J.D., Horace Jones Superintendent of Works, Sir Albert Woods Director of Ceremonies, Charles Hammerton Sword Bearer, Butler Wilkins Standard Bearer, G. P. Brockbank Standard Bearer, E. M. Lott, Mus. Doc., Organist, Henry Garrod Pursuivant, and A. Lucking Asst. Pursuivant. So much of the minutes of the last Communication of Grand Lodge as related to the election of Grand Master and Grand Treasurer having been confirmed, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was proclaimed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The acting Grand Master having announced that the Earl of Carnarvon had been re-appointed to the office of Pro Grand Master and himself to that of Deputy Grand Master, the two appointments were formally received by Grand Lodge. The other Grand Officers, of whom we give a list on page 279, were then appointed.

Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren repaired to the Freemasons' Tavern, where banquet was served by Messrs. Spiers and Pond, under the supervision of Bro. Madell. At the conclusion of the banquet, the customary toasts were honoured, Bro. James Hayho fulfilling the duties of Toastmaster. After full honour had been done her Majesty the Queen, the Chairman rose to propose the health of His Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master, Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and other members of the Royal Family. The toast had been frequently given. The Prince of Wales was a true Mason. Unfortunately, he was unable to be present that day, but Lord Lathom was happy to think there was a probability that in a short space of time they would see the Grand Master perform a most interesting ceremony—that of installing His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught as Provincial Grand Master of Sussex. Additional interest would be felt on the occasion, as the Duke of Connaught also bore the title of Duke of Sussex. It was often extremely difficult for the Grand Master to choose those who ought to rule over the different Provinces, but he thought the Grand Master's choice, hitherto, had fallen without exception in the right place. He had never heard a word spoken against his appointments. He could assure the brethren that His Royal Highness not only took a deep interest in Masonry, but that the work of Masonry took up, as the Grand Secretary would tell them, a great deal of his time. He asked them to drink to his health, and that of the Princess of Wales, whom they all loved so much, and who, he was perfectly certain every one present would be glad to hear, was restored to health. The Earl of Lathom, in proposing the Sister Grand Lodges, said they were extremely fortunate that evening in having representatives from three—Nova Scotia, Canada, and New York. There was no doubt that, much as Masonry had increased in this country, it had been ably backed and followed up by those who, though not actually living in it, were related to it. The way that Masonry had increased throughout the world in the last few years had been something extraordinary. He wished that a census could be taken of Freemasons. Comparing the present with twenty-five years ago, if that could be done, he had very little doubt that the number of Freemasons in the world would prove to have very nearly doubled. Bro. Major-General Laurie, G.M. of Nova Scotia, rose; this was not the first occasion on which he had had the honour of receiving an invitation to the Grand Festival; nor the first occasion he had had the gratification of attending and enjoying the hospitality of Grand Lodge, but the greater gratification to him and those supporting him was, that it was not in their personal character, but as representatives of the bodies to which respectively they belonged. The noble Earl had spoken of the spread of Masonry throughout the world; he believed that Masonry, as they specially understood it, was mainly confined to the Anglo-Saxon race, and more especially the English-speaking portion of that race. In a few days they would see a large advent of colonists to their shores, whom they would welcome as they always welcomed visitors. They would find that these visitors were very much like Englishmen in appearance, and that their great desire was to be taken for Englishmen; and if they could examine their hearts, their feelings, and not simply study their outside appearance, they would find they were in their hearts as thorough Englishmen as any one sitting at that board. He must now say a word in connection with the Masons of the United States. It was his pleasure, eleven years ago, to be present at a great assembly held in the city of New York, at the dedication of a Masonic Temple, when there was a procession of 35,000 Masons. It was not, however, to that he wished to allude. In the course of the banquet the name of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was mentioned, and it was received by the whole assembly upstanding and with shouts. He mentioned this to show that though allegiance was changed, the sentiment of brotherhood remained, and proved the truth of the saying, that "blood is thicker than water." If the brethren of the old country and those of the colonies stood together, it was a federation which could stand against the world. Brother Hugh D. Sandeman, P.D.G M. Bengal, in proposing the health of the Pro Grand Master said he would like to enter into a panegyric as to the excellence of the Earl of Carnarvon, but as he had not the ability to do so he would refrain. It was a satisfaction to every brother present to see that a portrait of the Earl of Carnarvon was now in Grand Lodge; the Pro Grand Master had exerted himself very much in the cause of Masonry. The Earl of Carnarvon was now absent recruiting his health, which had suffered in the service of the Crown at a time when that service was greatly needed. As a true Mason, when his services were needed, he at once consented to take office, and if necessary to surrender his health or his life for the benefit of his country. For these as well as for other reasons his name would always be venerated by Masons. Brother Lord Kensington proposed the Deputy Grand Master and Chairman. There were many present who could speak with more authority as regarded the Earl of Lathom and his work in Masonry than he (Lord Kensington), but as one who had known him intimately from the time they were at school together, he could speak of him in the highest terms. He knew the good work he had done, and that no time or trouble was spared by him when his presence was requisite. That morning he had come up from his home in North Lancashire to be present with the brethren, and about fifteen months ago he underwent a still more trying journey to instal him (Lord Kensington), in Pembrokeshire, as Master of his Province. Lord Lathom had done right good work for Masonry, and was one of the pillars of the Order. The Earl of Lathom in replying said that was not the first time by a good many that the brethren had welcomed him in the same hearty manner, and he thanked them from the very bottom of his heart. What little he had done for Masonry had been done from a thorough conviction of its usefulness. It was now, he was sorry to say, thirty years since he was initiated by Brother Pickard, and he looked back to that time again and again, and thanked the day when he became a Mason. He became a Mason because he had heard enough to think there was a great deal in it, and when he entered it he found what he had thought was a reality. For some years he did not take an active part, but owing to circumstances in the Province to which he had the honour to belong—West Lancashire—he was induced to bestir himself. Since that time he had been promoted to a very high position in Masonry, and it filled his heart with deep thankfulness when he thought that year after year he was thanked by the brethren for what little he had done. His duties were not onerous or heavy; but he could say honestly and conscientiously that when he was called upon to perform them, he always endeavoured to do so. He did not know there was a more heart-stirring thing in the world than to think that in the great body of Freemasons, not only in this country, but throughout the world, there was a body of men united together by one great bond, and for the same objects—Charity and Loyalty. Charity was and ought to be universal among Masons, and Loyalty was, and ought to be, universal, whatever country they might be in. If he had not found that those two great principles of the Order had been thoroughly carried out, and thoroughly pushed, he for one would not have taken the active part in Masonry he had. But these principles were actively pushed, they were thought of, and he believed they were thoroughly in the heart of every Mason. Let them act up to them, and so long as they did so he was sure that their great Order of Freemasonry would last as a great and moving spirit in the world. He could dilate much more on the principles of Masonry, and on the principles of Loyalty and Charity, but he would content himself by merely thanking the brethren for their kindness, and assuring them that the trouble of a few hours' travelling was amply repaid by the cordial reception they had given him. In speaking to the toast of the R.W. the Provincial and District Grand Masters, the Chairman said he was happy to say he knew personally nearly the whole of the former, and had had the honour of installing a goodly number of them. He only hoped he might not have to install many more, for he thought that those who now held office were the best who could hold that position. The work of the Provincial Grand Masters was a great one, for they kept together the whole body in one united mass. He was happy to think that in past years the Prov. Grand Masters had done their duty thoroughly and well. The District Grand Masters were a different body, but they had the same duties to perform. He was not acquainted with them so well as with the Provincial Grand Masters, but he believed, from what he had heard and seen, that they did their work thoroughly. They had among them that evening the District Grand Master of Victoria, Sir William Clark, and he was happy to welcome him as representing that very great—he was going to say, unit, but a very great portion of the Empire. Bro. Clark was here, though not specially in connection with the Exhibition which was about to be opened, but still as one who had taken a leading part in the colony of Victoria, and he wished the brethren to give Sir William Clark a welcome, not only as a Mason, but as one from the other side of the sea, who had come among his English brethren. Sir Wm. Clark, in reply, said he was delighted with the welcome he had received from English Masons. He thought there were other brethren present who could have done more justice to the toast than he. In the first place he was not a speaker, and in the second place he had a very bad cold, which interfered with his throat; and as there were others present who could respond he should be pleased if the Chairman would call upon them. He must, however, say that the people of Victoria were as true Masons as the people of England. The Earl of Lathom, in proposing the Grand Wardens and the other Grand Officers, Present and Past, said he was glad to have to propose that toast for one special reason. He had had the honour of performing that day a duty which he believed had never fallen to the lot of any Mason, that of investing the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain as Grand Warden of England. The Lord Chancellor bade him make his excuses to the brethren for his absence from the banquet. His lordship came a long distance to Grand Lodge, and had a long distance to go back. The Junior Grand Warden, Lord Charles Beresford, was also unable to stop. Having a bad cold, he had strict orders from his doctor not to stop out. The Prince of Wales had made an excellent choice of Grand Officers for this year. He (Lord Lathom) was delighted to welcome a fellow countryman in the person of Bro. Samuel Pope, Q.C. The duties of a Grand Officer, as a rule, were not very arduous, but the offices were rewards for what the brethren had previously done, and ought to be looked on in that light. Whether it was the collar of a Warden, or the collar of a Pursuivant it was a badge a man ought to honour as much as the Victoria Cross; for it showed the man had done his duty in Masonry. If a man wished to be a good Mason, and to obtain advancement, let him do his duty to the Charities; he certainly did not do his duty as a Mason if he neglected them. The toast of the Masonic Charities was entrusted to the Rev. W. Mortimer Heath. He knew that a desire for the welfare of these Charities existed in the heart of every brother present, and the great practical outcome of their principles they were able to show to the world. The Chairman had spoken about Charity, and in a great measure had taken it in its wider sense. He (the speaker) was privileged to propose it in its narrow, but not less important sense, in the shape of the great Institutions which were at once the honour of the Craft and the admiration of the outer world. Those who had watched the progress made of late years by the Institutions—the vast sums of money which had been collected, the large body of Stewards who had gathered those sums of money, would think they had seen Masonry in its practical view, and he had no doubt this had tended to place Masons in a high position among those who were not of them, but who stood outside. It was not his province to speak as to those Charities in the presence of the working members of them, the Secretaries, and who could speak much better of them than he; but whether it was among the metropolitan brethren or among the provincial brethren, he could only say there was only one desire,—to support them and to keep them up to the utmost state of efficiency. He belonged to a small Province, but he was happy to say that even the little Province of Dorset had not been without its efforts in the way of Charity. He was proud to say that what other Provinces and what the Metropolis had done in the past, would be done in the future. Brother Frederick Binckes replied. On an exceptional occasion such as the Grand Festival, which was peculiarly a festive occasion, it would not be becoming in him to make anything in the shape of a practical appeal for support for any one or all of the Masonic Institutions. They who were associated in the great work of practical Charity, either as the official representatives or those who bore distinguished positions as members of the Committees, or in other capacities, were only too delighted to know that on an important occasion like this space was found on the toast list not only to mention, but to give the best wishes of all the good Masons assembled together for the success of their various Charitable Institutions. He could not for one single moment attempt to forget or ignore the admirable words rendered by the popular nobleman who presided that evening,—than whom no one had more enlisted for himself the sympathies of the Craft at large; and who would always continue to merit those sympathies by the genial kindness of his presidency wherever they met him. The noble lord told the brethren words which he had repeated over and over again,—that Loyalty and Charity were the two watchwords of the Masonic Order. Might those two watchwords never be forgotten, never be ignored by every individual brother who arrogated to himself the position of being a good, honest, conscientious, loyal Freemason! From that dais at no distant date he ventured to say, that while avoiding anything in the shape of political allusion there could be no doubt on his mind—he could not understand there could be any doubt existing in the mind of any rightly and well constituted Freemason—that he must be loyal to the sovereign of his native country, and if he was loyal to the sovereign of his native country, he would also be loyal in his support of the Masonic Institutions. He did not ask them to believe he was indulging in exaggerated language; he meant what he said on that occasion; if they ignored their loyalty their Charities would suffer. Might their loyalty know no diminution, and their Charity increase in the estimation of every one. In responding for the Grand Stewards, Brother Day, President of the Board, said it gave him great pleasure to return thanks for the kind way in which the toast had been proposed. Their year of office had been a pleasant one. They had endeavoured to perform their duty, and he hoped their work had been done to the satisfaction of Grand Lodge. The brethren then repaired to the Temple, where the customary concert was given. The musical arrangements of the evening were under the direction of Brother Edwin M. Lott, Mus. Doc., Past Grand Organist, who was assisted by a strong body of artistes.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

FREEMASONRY IN ESSEX.

THE Provincial Grand Lodge of Essex, which has at its head the Right Hon. the Lord Brooke, had 1114 members on the registers of its twenty-four Lodges at the time of the issue of the Calendar and Directory for the Province for the present year, distributed as follows:—

No.	Lodge	Meeting at	Members
51	Angel	Colchester	114
160	True Friendship	Rochford	49
214	Hope and Unity	Brentwood	36
276	Good Fellowship	Chelmsford	41
433	Hope	Brightlingsea	72
453	Chigwell	Chingford	30
650	Star in the East	Harwich	91
697	United	Colchester	93
1000	Priory	Southend	74
1024	St. Peter	Maldon	54
1280	Walden	Saffron Walden	18
1312	St. Mary	Bocking	31
1343	St. John	Grays	41
1437	Liberty of Havering	Romford	29
1457	Bagshaw	Loughton	34
1543	Rosslyn	Dunmow	23
1734	Trinity	Rayleigh	34
1799	Arnold	Walton on Naze	47
1817	St. Andrew's	Shoeburyness	42
1977	Blackwater	Maldon	59
2005	Brooke	Chingford	18
2006	Tilbury	Grays	26
2063	St. Osyth's Priory	Clacton-on-Sea	46
2077	Epping	Epping	12

These figures show an average of nearly fifty members for each Lodge, and when we consider the number of Lodges in the Province, this is unquestionably a large average. The Province has the advantage of being near the Metropolis, and two or three of its Lodges may be said to really consist of London men, who, as in many other parts, combine Freemasonry with pleasure, to the extent of holding their meetings where they can enjoy a few hours' change among the green fields, as a break in the monotony of every day life in the Great City. The Masonry they practise is no worse on this account, as any one paying a visit to Essex, or looking to what is done by the several Lodges in the Province for the course of charity, could easily prove; indeed, we feel we may refer to Essex as a Province whose actions are worthy of imitation by others. There are some of the best Masons of the kingdom enrolled among its members, as well as some of the warmest supporters of the Masonic Institutions; there is therefore little cause for surprise that it should be to the front among its fellows.

In Royal Arch Masonry Essex is somewhat behind. Its Provincial Grand Chapter was constituted in 1883, and now has for its Superintendent Comp. Fred. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar England. The Provincial Calendar gives a list of four subordinate Chapters, with a total membership of 112, distributed as follows:

No.	Chapter	Meeting at	Members
51	Patriotic	Colchester	40
214	Hope and Unity	Chingford	23
276	Essex	Chelmsford	23
1000	Priory	Southend	26

This, considering the proportions of the Craft degree in the county, is but a poor show, but doubtless the brethren of Essex are acting as they think best in confining nearly the whole of their attention to the three degrees of Craft Masonry, and so long as they attend to those as they are now doing there will be no cause for accusing them of being behind in their support of the Craft.

Mark Masonry is worked in Essex in three Lodges, the Constantine, No. 145, meeting at Colchester (51 members); the Beaconsfield, No. 205, meeting at Walthamstow (11 members); and the Chelmer Lodge, No 342, meeting at Chelmsford (27 members). These three Lodges are included in the Mark Province of East Anglia, which comprises the counties of Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk and Cambridge, and which is under the Provincial Mastership of the Right Hon. Lord Henniker P.G.M.M.M.

The Charity work of the Province is entrusted to a Committee, consisting of the Provincial grand Master and his Deputy, the Provincial Grand Chaplain, Treasurer, Secretary and four other Officers—three past and one present (the senior of whom retires each year at the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, when a present Provincial Officer is elected in his stead). All Essex Vice-Patrons or Vice Presidents of either of the three great Masonic Charities, and one member from each Lodge in the Province, elected annually on the day of installation of the Worshipful Master. The co-operation of members of the Province is invited on the subject of votes for the Charities, and brethren are requested to send their proxies to the Provincial Grand Secretary, in order that they may be polled, exchanged or lent, on behalf of the County. We do not know to what extent the brethren have united their powers, but Essex has been able to do exceedingly well at many of the elections of the past, and this can only be done where united action is adopted. The Calendar for the year concludes with a list of subscribers to the Institutions, showing the number of votes held by each. From this we gather the following summary,

Votes held by	Boys	Girls	Male	Female	Total
Prov. G.M., D.P.G.M. & Prov. G.L.	47	53	35	21	156
Private Lodges - - -	94	77	64	68	303
Chapters - - -	7	8	10	6	31
Individual Subscribers - -	500	445	306	352	1603
	648	583	415	447	= 2093

In conclusion, we can but express a hope that the Province of Essex may continue to flourish, and that the brethren who comprise it may long maintain the reputation it at present enjoys.

THIS IS MASONRY.

An oration before the Grand Lodge of California, 14th October 1885, by Rev. William A. Knighten, Grand Orator.

THE duty of this hour is the honest reflection of this body upon the principles underlying our noble Order, the objects for which we maintain its institutions, and a glance at the hopes we entertain for its future.

First.—To be a Mason, a man must have a desire to hear, and see, and know some truths hidden from the view of other men; to find a mystery of value to the heart and mind unknown before.

Second.—That desire must be intelligently directed. The surroundings of a Mason must be able to enlighten and develop the manly qualities of the man.

Digitized by Google

Third.— To be a Mason, man must be a temple. In him must live, as active agencies, all the hightest mental and moral qualities. He must be able to love, to obey, and to be truthful. These are eternal principles. Time and the grave can never touch them.

Fourth.—A man must be progressive. If we have a dogma, this is it. We accept the great doctrine of Masonic evolution, and advocate a special order of advancement. We move along all the lines of usefulness that God has ordained in all His laws. Each individual must march with his elbow touching a brother, and with his eyes expectantly fixed upon the sublime work of self-conquest.

Masonry has not lost her high ambitions. New stars are nightly beaming down upon her "wise men," and new gifts are coming to the birth of her new and mighty truths.

Some have thought us fogies and have declared our mission ended, but the fields of higher usefulness and destiny still open up before us. Along the path of centuries Masonry has been the friend of progress. It opened the secret vaults of Hiram of Tyre, and gave a field for his genius, wealth, and ambition, making his name immortal by associating it with Hiram Abif and our Grand Master, King Solomon, and the Temple of his God. It took the Queen of Sheba and the royal caravans of the East, and stood them before his temple, that they might witness the glory of its architecture and the wisdom that planned it. It has ever gathered about its altars the noblest and best of souls.

The friends of Masonry have been the benefactors of the race. They have championed every cause dear to the poor, the ignorant, and the oppressed, and have many times fought the battles of human liberty against the votaries of superstition and tyranny. They have been the friends of learning. Art, science, and literature have often lit their torches at our altar fires. They have always borne aloft the banner of religious liberty. From age to age the light of divine truth has been shining upon her altars; and, with consistent and steady march, she has taught the world the great lessons of liberal thought. Not a religious institution, we have guarded the word of God more closely than our traditions, and have preserved its golden pages beneath our heads and hid its teachings in our hearts.

It is said that Alexander had the Iliad of Homer bound in gold and placed nightly beneath his pillow. So do we with this eternal word. He read of Trojan heroes and their struggles with the Greeks. We read of the victories of truth and the stately marches of its friends. This word greets the eyes first opened into the realms of true Masonic life. Masonry has no creed, but all creeds may bow around its common altar. In the deep and far-reaching plans of God for the moral and spiritual uplifting of the human mind, Masonry seems to have been one among His divine purposes, plainly indicated on the great trestle-board of time.

When this nation struggled for its rights among the greater powers around it, Masons stood by their open Bibles with their unlifted swords. Washington and Lafayette were bound by its sacred ties, and lived and died as the noblest types of manhood in this or any other age. It has not alone manifested its power in the defence of right upon the field of battle, but, during the pursuits of peace, it has fostered every interest of mankind. The plans of this Fraternity are intended for the world to-day, and for the ages yet unborn. It reaches across all lines of race, colour, and clime, and touches the industries, the commerce, the arts, the learning, and the social and national relations of all countries. It has helped to subjugate and control error, and has aided in the enlightenment of ignorance. It embraces in its teachings the wisdom and experience of Solomon, the ardent love of John the Evangelist, and the integrity and patriotism of Washington. It strives to restrain all personal prejudices, control all warring passions, and bring out into clear and beautiful review the highest, noblest and best of moral jewels in the soul. It is an arm of protection about virtue, and a sword and shield about virginity. It has for its aim the eternal uplifting and approximation of man to an ideal higher than nature has yet produced—a manhood after the will, and subject to the perfect government of God. It means to apply the square of its principles to the rough ashlars of humanity, and, with the chisel of wisdom and genius, bring a polished, shining stone into that ever living, imperishable building of God—that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

The world is full of ruined enterprises. Cities, theories, creeds, statutes, and even nations have passed away. It is said that time proves all things. It has tested many of man's inventions, and they have melted in the crucible of its touch, like the enemies of the Hebrew children in the furnace of their own construction. The errors of Pharaoh were washed with him from his chariot in the billows of the sea. The ruins of Troy are the monuments that tell of the lust of Paris. The dust of the desert has drifted across the heathen temples of Thebes and Palmyra, and the mighty walls of Nineveh have long since slept unnoticed save by the excavator who digs amid her ruins. The mythology of Greece has come down from the Olympian heights, and the ephemeral thrones of their visionary deities have been buried for centuries from the belief of men.

So the world moves on, with grander marches up the heights of reason, faith and hope, toward the higher goal of God's higher purposes in its creation. Errors still grow old and dusty, and are laid away in the vaults along the wayside of the years. The wrong assumptions of our enemies, their egotistical anathemas, and their evil prophecies, have marched back with the long procession of the fossiliferous departed. Human progress has stood beside these sepulchres and inquired the causes. Down from the echoing corridors of history has come the true response—man's ignorance and sin. Error in man's moral temple weakened its structure. Decay and change crumbled it away. Blind reason sought the realms of faith and found its grave in the deep, dark wilderness of superstition. Masonry has stood beside them all in the calmness of delightful contemplation.

I seem, my brethren, to be standing in the vestibule of some great temple. It is grand in all its vast proportions. The architecture is superb. Its foundations are deeply laid. Every stone has passed the plumb and square of some master mind. Every column has been turned and polished for its royal stand in the processions of its long and spacious halls. Every arch stands richly inlaid with keys and cappings firmly bound. The cornice is gilded. Its domes rise high above the ruins of man's other plans, and gold-tipped spires lift their shining heads from dizzy heights, and first salute the rising of the sun. I stand beside its altars, and seem to see its burning tapers and the rising incense. I hear the voice of prayer. This, my brethren, is Masonry.

I hear the tread of increasing multitudes as the years go by. The wisest and best of each successive generation come and go. One is a kingly form. He comes from the throne, and with majestic tread ascends the stairs and takes the place of honour in the East. Here is another. He is the master workman and the widow's son. Famed in the hearts of kings for genius above his age, he takes his place as counsellor to the king. Hiram Abif and Solomon are here. Now comes the third, a man of Tyre, gorgeous in the gold that glitters in his crown and sparkles on the border of his kingly robe. Here is one standing by the lighted tapers. He is looking at the measurement of ethereal walls, and counting the multitudes along the shores of eternal streams. He hears the music of the upper worlds, and looks upon the temples of the shining hills. This is John the Evangelist.

Years have passed. Now comes a man with the tools of all the Craft. He toils amid the labourers of his age, and leaves his monuments in shapely domes and marble columns till a kingdom repeats his praises. This, my brethren, is Sir Christopher Wren, the great London architect. There is silence for a time. Then comes a form—tall, graceful, and with an imperial glance. He takes his stand near the East. He has just sheathed the sword. He now pauses near the altar, then he passes down the halls. This, my brethren, is the Father of his Country. There are multitudes like these whose feet have walked these holy isles. Franklin, Garfield, Starr King and Thomas Guard have passed the open door, and rest their weary feet beneath the green acacia. Noble deeds have borne aloft the banner of our Order, and unveiled characters have stood about our altars like stars above us in the night of human life.

This temple is composed of eternal elements.—A true Mason is one at heart. Here is the throne of Speculative Masonry—the real seat of Masonic life. It carries into a man's soul the priceless jewel of friendship, and brings from his inner life the flowings of its pure and living fountains. It is no argument against Masonry that the covenant unites only those who take it. This is true of all human organizations. The bond is world-wide and its tenure for ever, and the heart of every true Mason beats responsive to humanity's call, while, with the mystic trowel, his hand is ever ready to spread the cement of Friendship and Brotherly love. We have a key to the arches of this temple that never shall be shaken by the storms and changes of time. It is charity. Deeply inlaid with jewelled tears of gratitude, and embalmed in our Masonic covenant, it sheds the lustre of its brilliance upon the world. Speak it not to your left hand, but let the angels tell your deeds of love, where the incense of true devotion rises for ever from the altars of our spiritual temple—where God, our Supreme Grand Master, for ever presides. Where is it seen? Where is its earthly whisper heard? Where is the quiet tread of its footfall? Go, angel of inquiry, to the bedside of the sick, and place your ear upon the pillow of the dying. Go, angel, to the distressed widow and fatherless children. Go to the grave of the loved one and there see the light of this holy virtue shining from the windows of the soul. Where there is sorrow to need sympathy, where there is need to call for relief, where there is wrong to be made right, and where there is darkness to be made light, there let the beams of this divine sun fall from our Order for ever and for ever.

Washington Irving says that "Dionysius, the tyrant, conscious of the disaffection and enmity of his subjects, became suspicious and distrustful even of the courtiers that surrounded him. He had a cave near his palace arranged in the form of an ear. He then caused them to be placed therein, while he would station himself in a secret place and listen. He could hear the faintest whisper." Love needs no such safeguards. It hears and tells only truth. This is true Masonic greatness. Here is a secret tie stronger than death—a Gordian knot that no impetuous Alexander has yet been born to cut. This is the sacred fire, like that of the temple service, that will never expire; and this, my brethren, is a secret reason why Masonry will never die.

Masonry has no secrets that can injure the world. All its secrets as an Order tend to promote the universal good. It is said that an Emperor once built a palace of glass, that all might see him in his private life, and that he placed it on a hill, to allay the suspicions of his subjects. We do not need these outward displays. We take the simplest of the heart's expressions of secret faith. This is an essential element of our strength. How quietly the heart can trust its friends—how strongly it can hold its forces upon the soul! There is no miracle in the universe grander than the silent influences of the soul of man. Atoms, worlds, stars, suns, and constellations are swung in their grand harmonious circles, and have been kept in their most sublime and orderly marches, night and day, since "the morning stars first sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy." Faith is more subtle. It enters the deep places of thought and searches the hidden realms of mind for the solution of eternal problems. It reaches the depths of the past and peers into the mysterious and unfathomed future for the purposes of its life. It takes hold of the present and its wonderful hopes and relationships, and gathers the fragments of earth's broken urn, and lights the fires of eternal affection anew in the world of spirits far beyond the stars. Thus, my brethren, we are as a family in the world, looking for security of the earthly and present good of all mankind, and also waiting for the opening of the eternal doors, when the immortal Tyler shall let us enter upon a grander life.

We need frequently to look at qualities.—Forms of the ritual and the externals of the profession do not fill the requirements of Masonic life. We must look higher than all our symbols for the true import of our Masonic obligation. We must search the motives. They must be laid upon the conscience and be measured by the highest sense of duty. Any candidate for these honours, at these sacred altars, should first desire to be a better man; better innately; better in every high and manly resolution; better in every relationship to the brethren of the Craft; better in every aim as a part of the moral structure to which you belong and of which we form a part. Bound more intimately than any other human society, we must all be honoured in the success of one, or pained and injured by the failures of one. We are to be a building.

Motives to moral excellence should always be growing stronger. Our moral qualities are the true centres of our highest strength. There must be fidelity to the cause. The noblest of the Craft have been shining out this highest virtue upon the shrine of Masonry down to the present day. The first lesson of this brotherhood gathers its force from a character illustrious by fidelity. Death for a principle. Death for the protection of truth, innocence, and love. Here gathers the other moral excellencies, as stars in groups.

The strength of the human will is involved.—What words of mystic power in the "I will," "I do," "I am" of Masonry. No terms of equal force are found in all the grasp of human thought. The reason, the emotions, the conscience, have left the destiny of society at the feet of this supreme authority, and have waited for its assent. In the consciousness of an abiding conviction, we have placed ourselves upon this border-land of infinity and asserted our will of devotion and consecration to this sublime Order. The greatest care of Masons should ever be to strengthen this, man's noblest gift. Enforced by all the faculties of the mind and body, let it carry in its divine supremacy all power in the resistance of evil. Morally stand firm. This will is up beside the throne of Freemasonry. In fact, it presides here over every virtue we are called upon to defend or reveal, and it stands by the eternal throne, in the inner temple of the universe. The great object of this institution is to make strong men. While we may help the weak, it is also intended to raise the standard of character higher than the mere fancy of illiterate and corrupt, or dissipated and flattering society.

What grander mission than that of the strong arm, thinking brain, and increasing wealth, guided by a broad plan, a keen eye, and a high determination to help the helpless and comfort the comfortless! What better method than organised thought and heart and will! Cromwell was right, when he found the gold and silver images of saints standing in the church, to command them to be made into coins and distributed to the poor. The work of all the Craft is toward this one divine achievement. The return of necessity is the common expectation of all generations. The consecrations of the strong are the remedies that God has prepared for that certain day or hour. Fountains are falling from the clouds and creeping from the edges of eternal snows, to pour in cataracts down to the bedsides of the suffering; but there must be somewhere a friendly hand to give a "cup of cold water to one of these." Times of darkness, like prowling enemies, sometimes come to the threshold and fling their long deep shadows across our loved ones and our homes, but the attentive ear must hear the sighs, the faithful breast must beat with sympathy, and, with fleet foot and rapid wing and angel purpose, come to smile away our gloom.

So the young, brave and strong, led the aged and trembling King Solomon up the stairs of "three, five and seven." So in the recruiting ranks of this illustrious Grand Lodge of California. The gallery of bright and noble faces will increase in numbers out by the stairway. New faces will be seen, and other feet will walk these sacred halls. They will move along the great highways of the future to bear the burdens and meet the responsibilities of the Order, and to imitate the virtues of those who have gone before.

Brethren, look at the uprisings of opportunity. Every step taken in the rapid development of the State, every advance in her material resources, in her commercial relationships, in her mental and moral progress, brings some new possibility to the Craft. New charters, new halls, new initiates, and new necessities are coming rapidly up together. Let us, then, go out from this our annual convocation with higher resolves for the work of the coming year. With our attachments all made stronger, our hopes more firmly knit about the sublime destinies of the future, and our memories refreshed with the treasured glories of our illustrious departed; let us go to the places of our labour in the temples of the Craft.—Voice of Masonry.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Easy Digestion.—These admirable pills cannot be too highly appreciated for the wholesome power they exert over all disorders of the stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. They instantaneously relieve and steadily work out a thorough cure, and in its course dispel headache, biliousness flatulence, and depression of spirits. Is is wonderful to watch the daily improvement of the complexion, as Holloway's pills purify the blood and restore plumpness to the face which had lost both flesh and colour. These pills combine every excellence desirable in a domestic remedy. The most certain and beneficial results flow from the occasional use of this regulating medicine; even persons in health, or when following sedentary occupation, will find it an invaluable aperient.

We, THOMAS DUNDAS, Earl of Zetland, Baron Dundas, of Aske in the County of York, &c., &c.,

Grand Master,

OF THE MOST ANCIENT AND HONORABLE FRATERNITY OF FREE AND ACCEPTED MASONS OF ENGLAND

Send Greeting:

Whereas, it appears by the Records of our GRAND LODGE that on the 4th day of March 1801, a Warrant of Constitution was granted to certain Brethren therein named, authorizing and empowering them and their lawful successors to hold a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons in the City of Calcutta in the East Indies, and which was accordingly opened and is now holden under the Title or denomination of

"The Marine Lodge."

And was then registered in our Grand Lodge Books No. 323, but by the alteration of numbers consequent on the Union of the two Fraternities on the 27th December 1813 became No. 410 and by the general alteration or closing up of numbers in the year 1832 became and is now registered in our Grand Lodge Books No. 282. No. 282.

And whereas it hath been represented to us by our trusty and well beloved Brethren JOHN CHAUNCE the Master of the said Lodge, JOHN GRAY S.W., CHARLES MCAFEE J.W., FREDERICK G. SIDDONS P.M., BENJAMIN W. LAZARUS P.M. JOHN J. L. HOFF P.M. and others the Members thereof that the said Warrant hath by time and other circumstances become defaced and illegible, and they being desirous that the Lodge should continue to be holden in a regular and constitutional manner have prayed us to grant them a Warrant of Confirmation.

Know ye that we being satisfied of the reasonableness of their request and of the confidence reposed in the said Brethren do hereby grant this Our Warrant of Confirmation authorizing them and their regular successors to continue to assemble and hold a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons at Calcutta aforesaid on such days and at such times as shall to the Brethren appear necessary and be regulated by their By-Laws duly made in conformity with the general Laws of the Craft, and then and there when duly congregated to make, pass, and raise Free Masons according to the Ancient custom of the Craft in all Ages and Nations throughout the known World and further at their said Petition and of the great trust and confidence reposed in every of the above named Brethren. We do declare the said JOHN CHAUNCE to be the Master of the said Lodge, the said JOHN GRAY to be the Senior Warden, and the said CHARLES MCAFEE to be the Junior Warden, for opening and holding the said Lodge and until such time as another Master shall be regularly elected and installed. Strictly charging that every member who shall be elected to preside over the Lodge and who must previously have duly served as Warden of a Warranted Lodge shall be installed in ancient form and according to the Laws of the Grand Lodge, that he may thereby be fully invested with the Dignities and Powers of his Office. And we do require you the said JOHN CHAUNCE to take special care that all and every the said Brethren are or have been regularly made Masons, and that you and they and other the members of the said Lodge do observe, perform, and keep the Laws, Rules, and Orders contained in the Book of Constitutions, and all other which may from time to time be made by Our Grand Lodge, transmitted by us or Our Successors, Grand Masters, or by Our Deputy Grand Master for the time being. And we do enjoin you to make such By-Laws for the government of your Lodge as shall to the majority of the members appear proper and necessary, the same not being contrary to or inconsistent with the General Laws and Regulations of the Craft a copy whereof you are to transmit to us. And we do require you to cause all such By-Laws and Regulations, and also an account of the proceedings in your Lodge to be entered in a Book to be kept for that purpose. And you are in no wise to omit to send to us or our successors, Grand Masters or to the Right Honorable CHARLES ANDERSON WORSLEY PELHAM LORD WORSLEY, &c., &c., &c., Our Deputy Grand Master or to the Deputy Grand Master for the time being at least once in every year a List of the Members of your Lodge and the names and descriptions of all Masons initiated therein and Brethren who shall have joined the same with fees and monies payable thereon. It being our will and intention that this Our Warrant shall continue in force for so long only as you shall conform to the Laws and Regulations of our Grand Lodge. And you the said JOHN CHAUNCE are further required as soon as conveniently may be to send us an account in future of what shall be done by virtue of these presents.

Given under our Hands and the Seal of the Grand Lodge a London, this 4th July A.L. 5846, A.D. 1846.

By command of the M.W. GRAND MASTER,

WORSLEY, D. G. M.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

GREY FRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

A REGULAR meeting was held on the 14th April, when there were present Bros. R. C. Prickett W.M., J. H. Hawkes I.P.M., R. Dowsett P.M. acting S.W., H. Creed J.W., B. W. Bennett acting S.D., W. Hickie J.D., Stransom Treasurer, J. Greenaway Secretary, W. Cordrey acting I.G., F. Brown acting D.C., P.M. E. Margrett; also Bros. Kemp, Tegg, Sherwin, Smallwood, Parkes, E. W. Ridley, and S. Knight. The minutes of the last regular Lodge were read and confirmed. The W.M. nominated Bro. J. T. Stransom as Treasurer for the ensuing year. Bro. W. Hickie then brought forward his motion that it is desirable greater facilities be afforded to the brethren for perfecting themselves in Masonic ritual, and explained his views in support of the motion; he considered that a Committee should be appointed to arrange the best means of carrying the same into effect, and that the Permanent Committee be called on to consider the question. This was seconded by Bro. H. Creed J.W., who stated the object of Brother Hickie was to create a greater interest in the working of the business of the Lodge, and that the members should feel they have every opportunity afforded them to perfect themselves in the ritual. Carried. Bro. Creed J.W., proposed, on behalf of Bro. P.M. Palley, that a Committee be formed for the purpose of furthering the election of Bro. P.M. Freeman's son into the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and that the Committee should consist of the Permanent Committee, and that they meet next Wednesday at seven o'clock. This was seconded by the W.M., and carried. Bro. Bennett proposed, and Bro. Hickie seconded, a gentleman as a candidate for initiation. The labours of the evening being ended, Lodge was closed according to ancient form, and adjourned.

HENRY LEVANDER LODGE, No. 2048.

THERE was a goodly muster of members and Visitors at the annual meeting of this young but prosperous Lodge, held at the Railway Hotel, Harrow, on Saturday afternoon, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, Bro. W. A. Scurrah. Just at this season of the year, when Nature is donning its summer livery, a trip into the country is most enjoyable, especially when pleasure is combined with duties of an equally congenial character. Thus the prettily-situated rendezvous at Harrow has become a favourite resort of the brethren of "ye mystic tie," several Lodges having been attracted to this locality. Saturday was an ideal "May-day," i.e., whilst the sun was above the "golden West," and the neatly-kept lawn of the Railway Hotel furnished ample means of recreation for those who sought mental and physical exercise upon the greensward. The accessibility of Harrow from town brought several City friends, and when Lodge was opened, soon after three o'clock, the room was comfortably filled. The W.M. was supported by Bros. C. J. Axford S.W., P. Cheek J.W., C. P. McKay P.M. 720 Secretary, R. M. Surridge S.D., W. H. Burgess J. D., Harry Webb I.G., S. Reece, and A. H. Scurrah Stewards; John Read P.M. 720 Organist, W. M. Stiles P.M. (honorary), Jas. Very Tyler, A. W. Wace, H. W. Parker, E. J. Sadgrove, W. D. Dickenson, J. Dolling, E. R. Clunn, J. Measor (Vice-President of the Girls' School), H. T. Garner, J. Stabbings, F. C. Joseph, A. W. Gerrard, W. H. Maguire, &c. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. H. Jenner W.M. 1964, Edwin Storr P.M. 179, A. J. Fidler W.M. 754, J. V. Baggi, J. Trongi, and J. J. Churchill 776, C. J. Knightley 1744, C. Smith 1328, T. R. Chamley 141, H. Dickey S.W. 1744, H. F. Sheppard 701, H. Sillis 957, and others. Lodge was opened with the regular formalities, when, the minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, it was advanced to the third, and Bros. H. Thornton Garner and J. Trongi, of the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507, were raised to the sublime degree (the latter by request of Bro. Lovegrove P.M. and Treasurer), the ceremony being most admirably performed by the Worshipful Master, assisted by his Officers. Resuming in the first, the ballot was opened for Mr. W. R. Nelson, of Milton Street, E.C., who had been proposed by the Secretary, and seconded by Bro. R. M. Surridge; Mr. Nelson Barry, of Gresham Street, E.C., whose sponsors were the same; Mr. J. W. Ryder, of Crouch End, nominated by Bro. W. H. Burgess, and seconded by Bro. C. Stevens; and Mr. T. A. Nixon, proposed by Bro. Burgess, and seconded by Bro. H. Webb. All were unanimously elected, and Messrs. Nelson, Nixon, and Ryder, being in attendance, were duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry. Advancing to the second degree, Bro. Charles Stevens was passed, all the ceremonies being performed in such a manner as to reflect the highest credit on the abilities of the W.M. and the working of the Lodge generally. The brethren proceeded to the election of Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, their choice falling unanimously on Bro. C. J. Axford, who had ably discharged the duties of the Senior Warden's chair during the preceding twelve months. Bro. H. Lovegrove P.M. was unanimously re-elected Treas., and Bro. James Very Tyler. In consequence of the delay on the part of the other candidates for raising (Bros. Hugh Maguire and J. Stabbings), it was found impossible to get through with the formidable agenda in time to enable the brethren to enjoy comfortably "refreshment after labour;" and the W.M. considerately deferred these ceremonies to an emergency meeting, the date of which will be duly intimated. Bros. Joseph, Parker, and Clunn were appointed as the Audit Committee for the ensuing year. Hearty good wishes were interchanged, and Lodge was closed in due form. It should be mentioned that the musical portions of the ceremonies were efficiently rendered by the Organist of the Lodge, Bro. J. Read P.M. 720. Notwithstanding that the company made their appearance at the banquet-table more than a hour later than they had been expected, an excellent repast was spread by Bro. Hamlin, whose arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of the guests were eminently satisfactory. The amenities of the evening were sustained in most lively fashion, the Initiates coming in for a reception that is characteristic of the Henry Levander Lodge. The W.M., in proposing "Loyalty to the Throne and devotion to the Craft," coupled with it the names of her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, the M.W. Grand Master the Prince of Wales, Earl Carnarvon Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Lathom Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers Present and Past. Owing to the limited time at the disposal of the brethren, he refrained from making any lengthened remarks in connection with the toast, merely observing that the affairs of Grand Lodge were admirably administered by the rulers of the Craft. He then gave the health of the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Sir Francis Burdett, Bart.; the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Raymond Thrupp, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present. He believed no more worthy Masons or courteous gentlemen existed than those whom he had named, nor were there any who had Freemasonry more thoroughly at heart in the Province of Middlesex. All the Grand Officers had done their duty thoroughly to the Province, and done it admirably well. They had been that evening favoured by the presence of two Provincial Grand Officers, though one of them—their worthy Senior Warden and W.M. elect—had been obliged to leave early. The other, Brother A. G. Fidler, was well known and highly esteemed. He had not known Bro. Fidler for a very long time, but had learned to respect him greatly. He was a quiet, unobtrusive, courteous brother, thoroughly up in the Ritual of Freemasonry, and all that pertained to it. Bro. Fidler, in acknowledging the toast, felt extremely grateful for the kind way in which it had been proposed and received by the brethren; he was sure their excellent Prov. Grand Master and his Deputy highly appreciated the reception which was invariably accorded to their names on occasions like the present. Individually, he thanked them for having associated him with the toast of the Provincial Grand Officers, who were all animated with the best wishes for the success of the Henry Levander Lodge. Bro. C. P. McKay P.M. Secretary then assumed the gavel, and in proposing the health of the W.M., said Bro. Scurrah had admirably discharged the arduous duties pertaining to his genial work; in fact, he had accomplished that which no other W.M. had done in this Lodge, and what he feared no other W.M. could possibly achieve. He had been amongst the Charities, high and low, and had taken, he believed, the greatest amount from this Province that had been sent up for many years—about £140 or £150 more than any other Steward had been able to present upon his lists. Therefore, they had in their W.M. a brother who loved Freemasonry from first to last, and who intended to stand by it. He trusted Bro. Scurrah would stand by the Henry Levander Lodge after he had vacated the chair he now filled so worthily. He had shown that affability, that genial, hardworking style which the brethren were hunting for; and now they had so good a man it was their desire to keep him as long as they could. After he had passed the chair, he was one of those active, genial brethren that they would be most anxious to keep amongst them. They would drink to the health of their esteemed W.M. with all good feeling, and he hoped that at some future time they would be able to swell the amounts taken by him to the Charities, even more than they had done in the past. The toast was received with the utmost cordiality, and in responding, Bro. Scurrah W.M. thanked the brethren most heartily for the compliment they had paid him. He did not know that he could say anything new, or more than he had said on former occasions. He had already told them that the welfare of the Henry Levander Lodge was very dear to his heart, in consequence of his being one of its founders, and he was quite sure that interest would be sustained by him as long as his life should last. He could not let this opportunity pass without thanking all the Officers and brethren of the Lodge for the very kind manner they had acted towards him during the past year; for the way in which the Officers had assisted him in the work he had been called upon to do; and for the generosity and kindness with which every member of the Lodge had treated him. He felt it especially due to them to say this, being the last regular meeting over which he should preside as their W.M., and he would take the opportunity of tendering his very best and most grateful thanks to them for the kind manner in which all the Officers had upheld him in the duties which he had been called upon to perform. As he had said before, he had taken a great and deep interest in Freemasonry, and all that pertained to it. He honoured and admired the principles of the Craft, and held that they were not perfect Masons until they had gone into the Royal Arch. He therefore felt it a duty incumbent upon him to do something to form a Royal Arch Chapter in connection with this Lodge, so that each member of it, if they wished, could be introduced into a Chapter belonging to their own Lodge. He might say that, with the assistance of his dear old friend Bro. Stiles, he had been enabled to accomplish that object, and the matter was to be brought up at the Supreme Grand Council on the following Wednesday evening. He believed, from a communication he had received from that Council, the petition would be granted, and that they would have a Charter of Constitution for a Royal Arch Chapter. Perhaps to some this might seem a small matter, but he thought if they were as thoroughly conversant with Freemasonry as himself, and some other of the brethren around that board, they would feel it was a great privilege to have a Royal Arch Chapter attached to this their mother Lodge. He hoped that many of them—all, in fact, when they were eligible—would become Royal Arch Masons in their own Chapter. Referring to their Senior Warden, who had been compelled to leave them, he should have liked to have proposed his health in the ordinary way as the W.M. elect. It was done on the spur of the moment, as Bro. Axford was leaving the room, and they could not now do anything further; but he must be permitted to say that the brother who had been elected to the chair that day was eminently deserving of the honour. He was a thorough gentleman and a worthy Mason, and it would be within the remembrance of many that at this time last year Bro. Axford, in the most generous and Masonic manner, gave up his right, as S.W. of the Lodge, to be elected W.M., in order that he (the speaker), as J.W., might be elected to that proud position. He took it as a very great privilege, and mark of respect on Bro. Axford's part, that he should have done this, and he would always remain in his memory as a good friend and brother, who acted in the most noble way towards himself. In the future he should, in return, do everything he possibly could to uphold Bro. Axford during his year of office, and as long as they lived and belonged to this Lodge, it would be his pride and privilege to afford him every assistance, and to show his gratitude to, and friendship for, the brother who so nobly manifested his friendship towards himself. He would simply add that, as he had done in the past, so he would endeavour in the future, to do all he could to further the interests of the Henry Levander Lodge, whether as I.P.M., one of the Past Masters, or in whatever office he might hold. It would ever be his pleasure and delight to uphold, and, if possible, to increase, the prestige of this Lodge. The next toast was a very important one; indeed, he might say it was the "toast of the evening," and that was the health of the Initiates. They all knew that in every society or institution, as years rolled on, that institution decreased in numbers, from various causes; many were taken away to foreign parts, others might be removed to the Grand Lodge above, and the members might be reduced to comparatively few. Therefore, it was necessary, in every institution, the membership should be kept up by the infusion of "fresh blood." If so in respect of any other community, how necessary was it in a Masonic body. This Lodge had only been in existence some two years, and, of course, when it commenced their roll was a short one. Gradually it increased, one by one, and two by two, until they arrived at a very fair number. This year he thought he was not wrong in saying he had had the pleasure of initiating eighteen members; and he was not only pleased at the fact that they had been so enabled to increase the numbers of the Lodge, but he believed they had not diminished the quality of it. All the new members brought in were thoroughly worthy and good men, and were proud additions to the strength of the Henry Levander Lodge. If he could say this with regard to those who had gone before, the remark applied equally to the three brethren who had been initiated to-day; they were thoroughly good, solid, genuine additions to the strength of the Lodge. He hoped they would prove by experience genuine Masons, and that they would never have cause to regret having been initiated in this Lodge. The toast having been heartily received, Bro. W. R. Nelson said, after the very interesting song to which they had just listened, from Bro. Joseph, the thought struck him that he and his brother initiates found themselves in a much happier position than did Joseph of old, seeing that they had more brethren. He thanked them for the cordial manner in which the toast had been received, and hoped he might verify the anticipations of their W.M. by becoming a worthy member of the Fraternity. Bro. J. W. Ryder also briefly returned thanks. This was his maiden attempt at public speaking, but he was pleased that he had an opportunity of returning thanks on such an occasion for a toast that had been so cordially received. He was very much pleased that he had come amongst them, and hoped that they would have no cause to regret having admitted him into their ranks. He should do all he could to acquire a knowledge of the Masonic art, and to increase and multiply the brethren of his Lodge, and he hoped in time to become a useful member of the Craft. The W.M. then gave a hearty welcome to the Visitors. They all knew that in every Lodge Visitors were welcome, and the Henry Levander was not backward in this respect. They were at all times delighted to see Visitors, and the more they had the better they liked it. For a night like this, not being an installation, he thought they had a goodly array, and, in the name of the Lodge, he stretched out the right hand of fellowship to them, saying how very pleased he was to see them, and hoping to have their presence on many a future occasion. He then enumerated the several brethren from other Lodges, and extolled their individual merits. Bro. Edwin Storr was much indebted for the kind way in which the brethren had received him. It was a pleasure to him to visit this Lodge, because he had the happy acquaintance and friendship of many of its members. Although it was not a very old Lodge, yet it showed admirable form, and set a bright example to those whose charter was much older. More especially, the members had characterised themselves by the indefatigable way in which they attended to the working, for which they were to be highly commended. He felt sure the members and future Officers would never be ashamed of the Lodge, or any lack of good working in it. He also thanked them for the very kind invitation they had given him, and the hearty reception they had accorded to the Visitors. He acknowledged the assistance given him by the W.M. and others when they met in the City, as they often did on Monday evenings, and trusted all the brethren would strive to make Freemasonry something more than a name. Their object was not to meet together merely for conviviality, but to try and do good, and to cement the bond of friendship between man and man. That he believed to be the very essence of Masonry. They heard a great deal about Charity, but if they acted truly and honourably towards each other Charity must necessarily come of itself. He was all the more pleased with his association with the members of this Lodge because he believed they tried to act up to the true principles of Masonry that he had indicated. He then mentioned the case of a widow for whom the brethren of his Lodge were endeavouring to secure the benefits of the "Old People's Home" at Croydon. Her late husband had been for forty-three years a subscriber to Grand Lodge, and she was now in the workhouse. Even if the brethen did not succeed in getting her into the Benevolent Institution, they would pension her out, so that she might pass the remainder of her days in comparative comfort. This intimation was received with prolonged applause. Bro. Dicker also responded. Having known this Lodge since its consecration, it was a pleasure to see how it had grown in numbers and influence, especially under the presidency of their present W.M. He congratulated them upon their working, and said no Lodge in London, or in the Province of Middlesex, could do better. Bro. Knightley felt great pleasure in attending this Lodge, especially as their W.M. was one of his oldest friends; and Bro. H. Jenner complimented the brethren upon the quality, as well as the quantity, of the work done that day, and certainly they had had a lot of it. He should take back with him a very good report of the Lodge and its members to the various inhabitants of Harrow who happened to be Masons; and he should not be surprised if at some future time he brought with him a large contingent from the neighbourhood. Bro. Sheppard wished the Lodge God speed with their Royal Arch Chapter, and promised to do all he could to assist in it. He referred to Bro. Storr's efforts to get a widow into the Croydon Institution, and said if every brother would take Brother Terry's advice, and pay their guineas into the funds, it would be a great charity to those poor Masons and widows who were in need of it. He should carry away with him very pleasant reminiscences of his visit to Harrow that day. Time was now announced for the last returning train to town, and the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, and the Officers of the Lodge, were simply proposed and acknowledged, the Tyler closing the proceedings in due form. Bros. Joseph, Reece, and other brethren varied the speeches of the evening with some excellent songs, and altogether a very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Pears P.M. and Secretary 1247, Charles Pike P.M., A. E. Lean P.M., Alfred Davis 48. Visitors—Bro. Jacques Wynman 188, and several other brethren. Lodge opened with solemn prayer; after each Officer in rotation J.W. to I.P.M. had answered the usual questions, the minutes were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for Mr. George Griffen (brother to P.M. Griffen), who was unanimously elected and initiated; the working was solemnly and impressively performed. Bro. Lemon intimated to the W.M. that he would act as Steward for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and trusted that the brethren would support him. It was proposed by Bro. L. D. Westcott, and seconded by Bro. Gover, that the sum of ten guineas be voted to Bro. Lemon; this was unanimously agreed to. Nothing else offering for the good of Freemasonry, Lodge was closed. The brethren adjourned for light refreshment. The Loyal toast was duly honoured. Bro. Mosey and others responded for the Grand Officers. Bro. W. T. Westcott proposed the health of the W.M., which was received in grand Masonic style. The W.M. replied; he was proud of his position in such a Lodge, where he had the assistance of such an able body of Officers. The next toast was the health of the P.M.'s, the Secretary, Treasurer, and other Officers. Bro. Griffen replied for the P.M.'s, and the S.W. for the other Officers. The Secretary proposed the health of the Initiate, in a pleasant manner and amidst roars of laughter. The Initiate's reply was short, but good. The W.M. proposed the health of the Visitors; he was pleased to see a representative (Bro. Wynman) from the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE amongst them. Bro. Wynman thanked the W.M. and brethren for their hospitality, and for the courtesy they had shown him in proposing his health, in connection with prosperity to this journal. Altogether a very pleasant and social evening was spent.

LODGE OF JOPPA, No. 188.

THE members held their regular meeting on Monday, 3rd inst., at the Freemasons' Tavern, when there were present Bros. Dewsnap W.M., Wall S.W., Botibol acting as J.W., Gardner S.D., Lenzberg I.G., Dodson P.M. D. of C., Hart Asst. D. of C., Rocco Chaplain, Coombs Steward, Lyon Treasurer, Lazarus P.M. Secretary; also Bros. Martin I.P.M., Spiegel P.M. Amongst the Visitors we noticed Bros. Bott P.M. 1839, Stokes W.M. 1839, Benabo 212, Levy 212, Young 1601, Ridler 214, Seigenberg 1629. Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed. Bro. Seigenberg, a candidate for raising, was duly entrusted after he had answered the usual questions to the satisfaction of the brethren present. Lodge was then opened in the third degree, and Bro. Seigenberg was raised. In the course of routine work it was decided to strike off the list of members the names of two brethren who were in arrears with their subscriptions. Bro. Spiegel as senior V.P. proposed that the Bye-laws of the Joppa Benevolent Fund be revised; this was seconded by Bro. Gardner S.D., and carried. Lodge was then closed in perfect harmony, and adjourned till the first Monday in October. The brethren then partook of a banquet, provided by Messrs. Spiers and Pond, and prepared under the superintendence of Bro. Silver, according to Jewish ritual. Fifty-two brethren sat down, and enjoyed themselves in brotherly love. The usual toasts were proposed, and loyal responses given. The health of the P.M.'s and the Joppa Benevolent Fund having been proposed and respectively responded to, the Visitors were complimented, Bros. Stokes, Bott, Siegenberg, Benabo and Young replying. A capital vocal entertainment was provided by Mr. Van Noorden jun. Miss Mabel Fraser played a solo on the violin, and secured an enthusiastic encore.

GODERICH LODGE, No. 1211.

THERE was a large and brilliant gathering of West Yorkshire brethren at the usual monthly meeting of this Lodge, on Monday evening, 3rd inst., at Leeds. The Worshipful Master (Bro. A. W. Youings) was surrounded by his Officers and a goodly number of the members, whilst R.W. Bro. Tew P.G.M. West Yorkshire, Bros. Smith D.P.G.M., and many Provincial Officers were on the dais, including Bros. Winn, Beck, Furness, Crowe. Each of the remaining seven Lodges in the town was represented, either by the W.M. or the principal Officers. Bro. Youings raised Bro. Balfour, M.P., to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, in a manner which won the admiration of all who heard him. Bro. Jacques P.M. rendered him useful assistance. Afterwards the R.W. P.G.M. initiated into the mysteries of Masonry Mr. T. Greenwood Teale and Mr. Herbert Spinks, in his usual impressive manner. These duties having been performed to the satisfaction and delight of the crowded Lodge-room, hearty good wishes were exchanged and the Lodge was closed in peace and harmony. Bro. A. Wood, the Steward, had meanwhile prepared a sumptuous banquet, and one of the most pleasant evenings yet spent in this Lodge was enjoyed. There was no lack either of speech or song, and right heartily were the good things appreciated.

AMHURST LODGE, No. 1223.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Amhurst Arms Hotel, Riverside, near Sevenoaks, on 1st inst., when there was a satisfactory muster of members and visitors, under the presidency of the retiring Master Bro. C. J. Craig. He was supported by Bros. E. S. Strange S.W., J. J. Birch J.W., R. Durtnell P.M. P.P.G. Supt. Wks. Treasurer, J. H. Jewell P.M. P.P.G.O. Secretary, W. Sparrowhawk S.D., P. Hamner J.D., J. Hamlin D. of C., F. P. Lee and P. Durnell Stewards, A. H. Lee I.G., W. South Tyler; P.M.'s E. J. Dodd P.P.G.O., A. W. Duret, C. J. Dodd, T. J. Baker, C. E. Bach, W. E. Banks, &c. Amongst the Visitors were E. W. J. Hennah P.M. 40 P.P.G.C. Sussex, T. C. Newsom P.M. 1692 P.G.S.B., W. A. Dawson P.M. and A. Richards W.M. 1768 (members of the Board of General Purposes), W. C. Banks P.M. 1768, S. W. Shaw P.M. 709, J. Airey P.M. 1678, Warner W.M. Medway, G. H. Eddis 228, J. Wynman 188, J. W. Boulter, T. P. Grayson 272, Cleave 874, Wing 1674, S. L. Green 1414, J. Hillhouse 225, W. H. Making 1278, Drewitt, and others. After the confirmation of the minutes of last meeting, the ballot was taken for Mr. Leonard Geo. Smith, Mr. Crane, and Mr. Mac Gregagh, who were duly initiated into Freemasonry, the ceremony being perfectly performed by the Worshipful Master, assisted by his Officers. Bro. W. A. Duret then presented the W.M. elect, Bro. Edwin Sydney Strange, the Senior Warden for the past year, for the benefit of installation. The very interesting ceremony was performed in admirable style, and after the newly-installed Worshipful Master had been greeted and saluted with the customary honours, he invested his Officers for the year, as follow:—Bros. C. J. Craig I.P.M., J. J. Birch S.W., W. Sparrowhawk J.W., R. Durtnell P.M. P.P.G. Supt. Wks. Treasurer, J. H. Jewell P.P.G.O. Secretary, A. H. Lee S.D., J. Hamlin J.D., F. P. Lee I.G., P. S. Durnell D. of C., C. Hooker Asst. D. of C., A. Ross Organist, T. Baker W.S., W. Lloyd Asst. W.S., S. Hall Standard Bearer, W. South Tyler. At the conclusion of the business the brethren and visitors dined together, when the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the health of the newly-installed Worshipful Master being enthusiastically received. The Visitors paid the Lodge a high tribute of appreciation, both for its working and hospitality, the toast being replied to by Bro. E. W. J. Hennah and others. In connection with the Press, Bro. J. Wynman's name was associated, and he responded in suitable terms. The proceedings were varied by some capital music and singing, and a most agreeable evening was enjoyed.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693.—On Monday last, at Baker Bros., the Cock Tavern, Highbury, N. Present—Bros. Fluck W.M., Hancock S.W., Ware J.W., Collingridge Sec., Clark S.D., Richardson J.D., Clark I.G., and several others. The Lodge was opened in due form. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Collingridge candidate. Bro. Hancock was elected W.M. for Monday next. The Percy Lodge of Instruction will rehearse the Fifteen Sections here on Monday, 17th inst. Lodge was closed in due form and adjourned.

Creaton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1791.—At the Wheatsheaf, Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's Bush, on Thursday, the 22nd ult. Bros. Austin W.M., Sims S.W., Craggs J.W., Burton S.D., Cavers J.D., Jennings I.G., Davies Preceptor, Chalfont P.M. Sec., Spiegel P.M., Malony, Wood, and a fair attendance of the members. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed. Brother Malony offered himself as a candidate for passing, and answered the usual questions; Lodge was then opened in the second degree and the ceremony of passing very carefully rehearsed. Lodge was opened to the third degree, and the ceremony of raising rehearsed with such efficiency that those present, one and all, congratulated the W.M. most heartily.

On Thursday, 6th instant, Bro. Sims W.M., Barton S.W., Austin J.W., Jennings S.D., Perdu J.D., Malony I.G., Davis Preceptor, and a large number of brethren from neighbouring Lodges. After preliminaries, according to announcement Brother Spiegel P.M. gave a lecture on the "Origin of Freemasonry." The lecturer commenced, three generations before the Deluge, with Lamech, who, by his two wives, had four children, who were the originators of the sciences. Continuing to the Tower of Babel, the building of the first and second Temples, he explained how the workmen went to different parts of the world, and the sciences became generally known. He ascribed to the days of Athelstan the time Masonry became known in England, where it was patronised by all monarchs, with two or three exceptions. After the historical part, the lecturer began with the old Rituals, and traced them through their various changes to Bros. Preston and Hemmings. The lecture was listened to with great interest, and all present expressed a wish that the lecturer might be induced to have the same printed, for the benefit of the Craft. Several brethren present invited Bro. Spiegel to their respective Lodges to deliver his interesting lecture. In two cases the invitation was accepted, and a cordial vote of thanks was recorded on the minutes to Bro. Spiegel.

The installation meeting of the Richmond Lodge, No. 2032, was held at the Station Hotel, Richmond, on Tuesday, Brother W. R. Phillips being installed as Worshipful Master. A full report of the proceedings will be published in our next issue.

HEROISM REWARDED.

We copy the following from our esteemed contemporary the Keystone, of Philadelphia :—

To the Editor of the Keystone.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—On Monday evening, 29th March, about forty gentlemen met at Bro. Donaldson's, Broad and Filbert streets, for the purpose of presenting silver watches to the five sailors of the steamship Lord Gough, who, under command of Second Officer Roberts, rescued the Officers and crew of the American barque Cleopatra, on the 27th of December last, in mid-ocean.

The United States Government had previously recognized the services of the noble fellows by presenting the Captain and Second Officer with gold chronometers, while each of the crew received 25 dollars. The Humane Society of Massachusetts also added 15 dollars to each, and silver medals.

Bro. Captain Hughes, of the steamship Lord Gough, in the course of his remarks said, These men are entitled to all the credit which has been given them, and more. But, my dear friends, their bravery falls into insignificance when compared with the heroic conduct of the Captain of the wrecked barque, which, in my humble estimation, far surpasses the historic instances given by the gentleman who preceded me. It was a sublime display of Christian faith and moral courage, which should be inscribed in letters of gold upon the title page of history.

When we sighted the barque in distress, we instantly headed toward her. My request for volunteers was impulsively responded to, and immediate preparations were made to launch a boat. We hove-to when within a safe distance, but on looking toward the wreck we discovered her crew in the act of removing the signal of distress! We were astounded, and for the moment our efforts were relaxed—but the word was quickly given, and the eager crew threw all their strength upon the oars. Tossed and buffeted by the angry sea, the little boat reached the wreck in safety, rescued the fourteen survivors, and returned with her precious freight.

After congratulations had passed, I asked the Captain to explain his singular conduct in raising his flag.

We all believed that we were doomed, and no human power could save us! Therefore, to prevent any further sacrifice of human life, we requested you to desist in your efforts, and to go your way and leave us to our fate.

I noticed a tear trickling down the Captain's cheek as he concluded the peroration of the evening, while those who so loudly applauded were also visibly affected.

A surprise was prepared for First Officer Bro. Routledge. Toward the close of the proceedings, Bro. Samuel Sidebotham stepped to the front, and in the name of the assembled company presented that gentleman with a beautiful Masonic Mark, as a memento of his efforts in the rescue at sea.

It is worthy of remark that on this occasion discipline was so far relaxed that captain and crew broke bread together at the same table.

During the course of the evening, remarks were made by Bros. Senator Cooper, J. Fletcher Budd, Esq., John Dornan, John Yard, Henry Taylor, "poet laureate," and others, while a glee club and brass band enlivened the occasion with appropriate selections.

Truly and fraternally,

W. B. REED.

A JUBILEE PUBLICATION.—The fiftieth anniversary of Her Majesty's accession to the throne is an event which will form one of the memorable epochs in the history of the English nation. In connection with the celebration of the Jubilee Messrs. Cassell and Company announce the publication, in monthly parts, of "The Life and Times of Queen Victoria," with a profusion of high-class illustrations. Part I. of this important work will be ready on 25th May. Each monthly part will contain sixty-four pages the size of The Quiver, with a handsome frontispiece. With the first part will be issued a large presentation plate, consisting of a beautiful engraving of the picture by Gourlay Steelle, R.S.A., entitled "A Cottage Bedside at Osborne."

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London or Country by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. W. Roebuck, Grand Sword Bearer, Vice-Patron of the Institution. The minutes having been read and confirmed, those of the House Committee were read for information, as also was the report of the Audit Committee. Four new petitions were taken into consideration, three of which were accepted, and the boys thereby rendered eligible for the October election, while the other was deferred. Four former pupils of the Institution were awarded grants of £5 each towards outfits, and the usual nominations were made for the House and Finance and Audit Committees, as follows :—House Committee—Bros. Edgar Bowyer P.G. Standard Bearer, A. F. Godson Deputy Provincial Grand Master Worcestershire, Henry W. Hunt, J. L. Mather, T. Hastings Miller, James Moon, J. Joyce Murray, William Paas, F. W. Ramsay, M.D., Dudley Rolls, Charles Saunders, M.D., and Henry Venn. Finance and Audit Committee—Bros. C. E. Soppet, C. F. Hogard, W. Maple, T. Cubitt P.G.P., T Griffiths, G. P. Gillard, G. Cooper, H. S. Goodall, and S. Richardson, nominated by Bro. G. P. Britten; and Bro. W. H. Saunders, nominated by Bro. S. H. Parkhouse. A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought the proceedings to a conclusion.

The first meeting of the Board of Stewards in connection with the approaching Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall. Brother Edgar Bowyer P.G. Standard Bearer having been voted to the chair, the Officers of the Board were elected, the following brethren being appointed :—Lieut.-Col. Hon. Sackville West P.G.W. President; the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, H. B. Marshall (P.G. Treasurer), Edgar Bowyer (P.G. Standard Bearer), and J. L. Mather Hon. Presidents; A. F. Godson (Deputy Provincial Grand Master Worcestershire), and A. M. Broadley acting Presidents; C. F. Hogard Honorary Treasurer, and F. Binckes (Secretary of the Institution) Honorary Secretary. It was determined that the Festival should take place at Brighton. The Stewards' fee having been fixed at two guineas, and a Committee appointed to make the necessary musical arrangements, the proceedings terminated with the usual vote to the Chairman. The next meeting of the Board will be held at Freemasons' Hall on Monday, the 7th June.

The installation meeting of the Abbey Lodge, Westminster, No. 2030, will be held at the Town Hall, Westminster, on Monday, the 10th inst., at four o'clock, when Bro. F. Seager Hunt will be installed as Worshipful Master. There are four candidates for passing and two for initiation coming forward at the meeting, so that a busy day may be expected.

The Dover Freemasons are having a Masonic temple erected near the General Post Office. The object is to enable the whole of the Lodges to meet under the same roof.

The Lewis Lodge of Instruction, No. 1185, meets every Friday evening, from 7·30 till 9.30, at the Fishmongers' Arms Hotel, Wood Green, N.

We are sorry to see that one of the essentially "ladies' day" in connection with Freemasonry is likely to be shorn this year of its attractiveness. At the first meeting of the Board of Stewards of the coming Mark Benevolent Fund Festival, held on Thursday, at 8A Red Lion Square, it was decided to hold the Festival at the Holborn Restaurant, instead of at the Crystal Palace. The Stewards' fee was fixed at 42s, and Wednesday, the 28th July as the date of the Festival. Bro. Rev. A. H. Cummings was elected President of the Board, C. H. Driver Treasurer, and C. F. Matier Secretary.

BROTHER SIR HENRY EDWARDS, BART., C.B., P. PROV. GRAND MASTER OF WEST YORKS.

IN our last issue reference was briefly made to the departure from our ranks of one who for a long series of years had filled a high and important sphere in the Masonic Fraternity, as well as in those positions which naturally belong to a country gentleman and landowner. Few men have taken a more active part in public affairs, and the life so usefully spent for, at any rate half a century, has closed amidst universal expressions of regret. Our deceased brother for more than forty years represented Yorkshire constituencies in the House of Commons, and the result of his labours forms no blank page on the Statute-book of the realm. As Justice of the Peace for his Division of the premier county, as foreman of the Grand Jury at the county assizes, as High Sheriff of Yorkshire, and in other capacities he was equally assiduous; whilst he was ever foremost in local and parochial matters, expending his time, money, and influence in the promotion and management of institutions calculated to promote some good and benevolent object. He was, moreover, the founder of the Second West Yorkshire Yeomanry Cavalry, of which he was appointed captain in 1843, and we are told by those who knew him best how highly his hearty, though costly, service had endeared him to that fine body of men. In all relations of life he was deservedly beloved, and his removal by the hand of Death has left a gap which it will not be easy to fill. We have often had occasion to refer to the great and useful part which our deceased brother took in the Craft, attending with zeal and discretion to the administration of the business of his Province, which comprises no fewer than sixty-nine Lodges. The records published in the pages of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE reveal how constant he was in his attendance, not merely at the meetings of Prov. Grand Lodge, but at many of the gatherings in various parts of the West Riding which came under his immediate surveillance; and perhaps nowhere will his genial presence be more sorely missed than at the gatherings of the "mystic tie," whereat his kindly words of counsel and encouragement so frequently fell on admiring and appreciative ears. Only about eighteen months ago the hon. baronet was compelled, through failing health, to resign his appointment as Prov. Grand Master, the first Mason on whom the Grand Master conferred that dignity; and his place has been supplied by the election to that high office of Bro. T. W. Tew, of Pontefract. The heartiness with which he entered into the duties of his Masonic profession was not less ardent than that which characterised his other positions of responsibility, and won for him the heartfelt and sincere admiration of the whole of the brethren, not only in his Province, but the Craft in general, amongst whom his name was as "a household word." Our beloved brother, who had been ailing for some time, passed peacefully away at his residence, Pye Nest, Halifax, on the 23rd ultimo, he being then in the seventy-fourth year of his age. Although it appears to have been his wish, and that of his family, that the obsequies should take as quiet and unostentatious a form as possible, it was only natural that those by whom he had been so long surrounded, and who had learned to appreciate his high and genuine qualities, should manifest a desire to pay a last tribute of affectionate respect to their lost friend, neighbour, and benefactor. Muffled peals were tolled from the churches on the morning of the funeral, whilst flags were flying at half-mast over all the public and other buildings in Halifax. All classes of the community seemed to evince a desire to show some tribute of respect to one who had lived and grown old amongst them; and there were not a few amongst those who had experienced the true Masonic maxim he ever practised, that Charity is twice blessed, both to him who gives and to him who receives. The procession was marshalled in the town about nine o'clock, the various contingents taking up positions on the road leading to Pye Nest, ready to fall into the places allotted to them. The Loyal Gregorean Society, the Halifax and Calder Agricultural Association, the Conservative Associations, the Mayor and Corporation, the Rifle and Artillery Volunteers, and the Yeomanry Cavalry, all took part in the cortège; whilst the brethren of the Province, who mustered in great force at the Masonic Hall, each wearing a sprig of acacia as a button-hole, formed a conspicuous feature in the mournful pageant. As the bier was borne by loving hands from the family mansion and placed upon the hearse, the band of the Second West Yorkshire Rifle Volunteers played the Dead March in Saul, and the procession moved away in the direction of King Cross, amidst a throng of thousands of sympathetic spectators, who lined the way with heads uncovered for a considerable distance. All the shops were closed en route, and the windows of private houses had the blinds drawn in token of respect. After the cortège followed the friends and representatives of the public bodies in which Sir Henry had taken an active and life-long interest, the procession extending for half a mile or more. The Prov. Grand Lodge was represented as follows—Bros. T. W. Tew (Pontefract) R.W. Prov. G.M., Henry Smith (Bradford) W.D.P.G.M., Thos. Hill P.P.G.W. (Mayor of Bradford), J. R. As the procession moved off in the direction of the cemetery the military bands played funeral marches, and the almost unbroken lines of spectators, the great length of the cortège, both military and civilian, all tended to show how general were the expressions of sorrow, and the varied character of the procession testified how worthily and voluntarily the late baronet had been associated with others in public institutions and organisations which have a prominent place in the history of this part of Yorkshire. The distance from Pye Nest to All Saints' Church is about two miles, and the procession occupied three-quarters of an hour in passing any given point. On reaching the Church each portion of the procession opened out and lined the sides of the road, the Yeomanry, hearse, and relatives passing forwards to the sacred edifice, followed by the other mourners. The Rev. Canon Pigou, vicar of Halifax; the Rev. J. H. Warneford, vicar of All Saints'; and the Rev. E. Snepp, vicar of St. Paul's, King Cross (where for many years the deceased baronet and his family had worshipped) met the coffin at the gates, and the Rev. J. H. Warneford repeated the opening sentences of the impressive burial service of the Church of England. The coffin was carried on the shoulders of eight men to the chancel, were it was placed in the centre, and the sweet perfume arising from the beautiful flowers in which it was enshrouded, particularly of the heliotrope, filled the sacred edifice. While the procession filed into the church, the organist, played the "Dead March" from Saul. A limited number of ladies and gentlemen had been admitted to the church before the arrival of the cortège; clergy occupied seats reserved for them in the chancel. The handsome little church was crowded to its utmost capacity, but, of course, a very large proportion of those who took part in the procession had to remain outside, including the military. The Rev. Canon Pigou read the 90th Psalm, the clergy giving the responses; and the lesson from 1st Cor. xv. was read by the Rev. J. H. Warneford. The Rev. E. Snepp, as vicar of the parish in which Sir Henry died, performed the actual ceremony of interment, the concluding portion of the burial service being undertaken by the Rev. Canon Pigou. The newly-made vault, which is situate at the south-westerly portion of the churchyard, was a pretty scene, having been tastefully decorated by Mr. Derricott, gardener at Pye Nest. At the bottom was a large cross of primroses and white arabis, whilst the sides were lined with leaves of the laurel, holly, and fir, relieved with bunches of double daffodils. The top and edges of the tomb were also lined with moss, upon which were placed bunches of primroses, wild daffodils, and blooms of the rhododendron. In the centre of the western sides of the cavity was also a large cross, composed of double daffodils. The body was enclosed in a shell of stained pitch pine, with strong outer case of polished English oak, and the brass mountings were of an elaborate description. The plate bore the following inscription:

of Pye Nest Yorkshire.
Born 20th July 1812.
Died 23rd April 1886.

After the service at the grave side had been concluded, floral tributes of affection were placed in the tomb by the members of the family of the deceased baronet; and afterwards, numerous wreaths, sprigs of acacia, and other floral offerings were deposited on the coffin by the Freemasons and other friends of the departed. During the rest of the day thousands availed themselves of the opportunity of viewing the grave. From all parts of the Kingdom wreaths and floral crosses were sent to Pye Nest, whilst many were deposited in the tomb by the mourners present. The brethren of the Province presented a wreath composed of four lilies, white camelias, and white roses, containing within a circle and double triangle of violet cinerarias having the simple gardenia in the centre. Another, a wreath of acacia, was from the brethren of the Lodge of Probity, No. 61, "in token of heartfelt sympathy with Lady Edwards and family." The eight Leeds Lodges also sent a wreath. The W.M., Officers, Past Masters, and brethren of the Aire and Calder Lodge (Goole) of Free and Accepted Masons sent a wreath of white flowers, having the initial "E." in blue hyacinths, "in token of sorrowing sympathy with Lady Edwards and family." Affectionate references were made to the decease of our esteemed brother at the West Riding Court on Saturday, and at the parish churches in various parts of the West Riding on Sunday, similar expressions being made at the Easter vestry meetings and the Halifax Chamber of Commerce. We understand that Bro. Wm. Day Keyworth jun., of London and Hull (the sculptor of the recumbent statue of the late Archdeacon Musgrave in the Halifax Parish Church), has taken a very successful cast of the features of the late Sir Henry Edwards, Bart. This was done shortly after death.

Princess's.—Accustomed as Mr. Wilson Barrett must be to the intoxicating excitement of a triumphant "first night," even his well-trained nerves must have been strangely thrilled by the enthusiastic reception given to "Clito," the new tragedy of which he and Mr. Sydney Grundy are the happy parents. Those who had been present on the first nights of "The Lights o' London," "The Silver King," and "Claudian" might have supposed that the delight of the audience could rise to no higher crescendo, but all former welcomes were certainly outdone on Saturday last, when each descending act was followed by ever-increasing recalls. At the close of the exciting scene at the end of Act IV., the audience seemed determined to bring on Mr. Grundy, but he as resolutely refused to appear, preferring not to take his ovation until the whole of his elaborate work had been set forth. Then, as a blushing young nineteenth centurian, he was led forward, as it were, by a graceful embodiment of the Fourth B.C., in the person of Mr. Wilson Barrett. The story of "Clito" is extremely simple and human; a story that might thrill the hearts of men and women, irrespective of its mise-en-scène or local colour. A young man of high ambition and generous heart is tricked into loving a worthless woman, and by this fatal infatuation finds hope, and life, and honour all hopelessly wrecked. Mr. Barrett gives a most sympathetic and manly portrait of the hero—graceful, and with that charm of personal beauty befitting a young Athenian. In his scenes of passion he rises to piercing eloquence—electrifying the house. Miss Eastlake, as Helle, the wicked enchantress, proved a startling revelation, even to those who have most believed in her powers. In her cynical triumph in evil, in the mockery of her laughter, there was a demoniac ring, though always the fascination of her loveliness gave a more poignant intention to her pitiless intent. Miss Eastlake paints the courtezan, not with the false sentiment of the Dame Aux Camelias, but with the unrelenting touch of the moralist who would show us the hateful thing hidden beneath the glamour of false beauty; she seizes the anticipations of the authors, and, fearlessly trusting herself to the guidance of tragic passion, she dares to give such a portrait of a lost soul glorying in evil as the stage has rarely seen. Then, when she has brought death and ruin on her dupes, and she must fly for her life, Miss Eastlake shows us how this mocking Messalina becomes as abject as she has been arrogant, and cringes at the feet of Clito for "life; only a little life." All the parts in the piece are adequately filled, but especially characteristic is the acting of Mr. Willard, as the reckless voluptuary, with silken draperies and jewelled hair. Only just now and again his delivery of the blank verse showed a tendency to colloquial carelessness, but he made of a small part a most important feature in the picture. Miss Carrie Coote was charming in the small part of Clito's foster-sister. We may expect much from this young lady's sincerity and grace of method. The scenery is very fine, but not laboured to make lines in the advertisements. Each act has one scene, much to the advantage of the action, which thus smoothly passes without breaking the attention of the spectators by revolving scenery and the passes which go to destroy stage illusion. The pictures of Athenian interiors are exquisite in their artistic completeness. The burning incense, the falling fountains, the roses, and soft music of lutes, in Helle's chamber—this picture would alone repay a visit to the theatre. The acting, the mounting, the plot, the dialogue are all so admirable that we can only say it will doubtless be long before so good a play can be given us by a modern author.

The Royal Academy.—Every year the exhibition at Burlington House appears to deteriorate; the general verdict, endorsed even by the President himself is that this year the show is an exceptionally poor one. There is hardly a picture of any importance that would bear a prominent place in the French Salon, excepting those that have come thence. The really fine pictures may be counted on the fingers of one hand. Mr Sargent's portrait of Mrs. Vickers and the group of the Misses Vickers, Mr A. Moore's "Silver," Mr. Burne Jones's "The Depths of the Sea," M. Fantin's "Autour du Piano," almost closes the list. But what is most lamentable is the evidence of poverty of ideas in the men who have already made their reputation. When the Academicians and Associates do not absolutely repeat themselves, they imitate each other. Mr. Herbert is of course good to the fore, but it is useless to complain of the decrepitude of this artist when comparatively young men—such as Messrs.

Long, Poynter, Brett—give us works which are not far preferable. Mr. Sargent really excels himself; every year he improves in delicacy, and he never loses his breadth. No. 195 is a full length portrait of a lady in grey, standing with a large white flower in her hand. It is admirable in every respect. In quality of painting the fresh brilliant colour, the clear hard drawing, the spirited and natural attitude of this portrait contrasts favourably with the rancid shadows, pasty lights, and flabby outlines of the portrait of Sir John Millais, for instance, by Mr. Frank Holl. We are told that mere quality of painting is not everything; that human interest is needed to make a fine picture, that without charm and personality all art is at an end, &c.; the Spectator especially lecturing in this strain. We are quite ready to grant all this, but surely the Spectator is begging the question when it applies its strictures to Mr. Sargent's work. There is as much grasp of character, refinement of expression, ease and charm of style in the portraits of the Misses Vickers as in anything that Sir John Millais ever painted, and as to "mere" quality, there is absolutely no comparison. It is absurd to assume that exquisite painting necessarily excludes human interest, or that a badly painted picture can possibly be a fine work of art. Moreover, bad painting is always rampant in the English Academy. We far prefer the pure English school of Turner, Constable, Walker, Hunt, and we may even include Burne Jones, to the mixture of all influences that we perceive on the walls of the Academy. Oily unpleasant quality of flesh painting is a blemish that is continually thrusting itself upon the eye of the critic. A sort of epidemic of jaundice seems to have broken out, and yearly is on the increase. Mr. Pettie especially delights in red shadows and yellow lights. His "Musician" is dying, apparently, of a bad bilious attack, the yellow shadows in the face being most alarming. The unfortunate elderly gentleman in the sequel to the "Marriage de Convenance" looks merely as if he were feeling the effects of too frequent application to the wine which his butler was pouring out two years ago. The same faults of over richness of colour in shadow we find in Mr. Seymour Lucas's "Peter the Great at Deptford," and in various other pictures. Taking the galleries in their order, Mr. Henry Moore justifies his election with two fine pictures,—"A Breezy Morning," and "The Harbour's Mouth." Of his two others, "The Sound of Isla" appears to us rather hot and stale in colour. Mr. Knighton Warren gives us an agreeable surprise this year; he started as an imitator of that feeblest of painters Mr. Long, but now he comes out with an original solidly painted portrait of "The Marquis Tseng." He has not mitigated a shade of the brilliant uniform, and yet, unlike the ghastly garishness of Mr. Logsdail, the bright colours are only subordinate. Mr. Poynter has executed a portrait of the Marquis of Ripon that is truly amazing. The face is of the quality of a brass medallion, utterly without relief, and of a peculiarly hot orange colour. We pass over Mr. Long and his cats. Mr. Goodall has gone in for elaborate detail in "Puritan and Cavalier," and "Old Maid," but the painting is thin and feeble, as is most apparent in the chalky quality of the faces. Mr. E. Wyly Grier's "Amateur" is not at all amateurish, the picture being full of light, and the figure well drawn and unconventional. Mr. Albert Moore's "Silver" has much of his peculiar charm of tone, colour and scheme, and is rather an improvement on late years. Mr. Pettie is one of the cleverest and strongest of British artists, but the unfortunate defect of which we have spoken is always in the way. The portrait of Mr. Ritchie is no exception; and although it is vigorous and life-like, it is most unpleasant. M. Mount London has a clever picture, with a quotation from Matthew Arnold; two shaggy Celtic youths carving flutes out of reeds. This picture is decidedly French in style, notwithstanding its English quotation. In the next Gallery, No. VI., there is some good painting in "Domino," by Mr. Frank Bramley, but the use of the French flat brush is a little too obvious. Mr. John Collier is not at his best in the portraits of the daughters of William Reed, Esq. By far his richest portraits, it appears to us, are in the Grosvenor. "Maenads," in Room VIII., is Academic, but uninteresting. Mr. W. H. Margetson, whose work we have not before noticed, has two portraits of some importance, of which we prefer "The Squire's Daughter," which is rather in the style of Mr. Boughton. Mr. Logsdail's "Preparation for the Procession" is simply awful, in its frantic dottings of colour. Brilliant colour is very well in its way, but there should be some scheme or sanity. Here there is none. His other picture, a Venetian "Al Fresco," is even more grotesque; being an out-of-door subject, the total absence of tone and atmosphere is enough to make one's eyes ache. It is a pity to see cleverness devoted to making colour scream like a fishwife. Mr. Reid's "Shipwreck" is very dramatic, and is of course a good work of art, as all his pictures are, but the treatment is rather ghastly, and there is a queer lurid light over the front of the picture that does not appear natural. "Preparing for Christmas," an Irish interior, is a pleasant piece of tone and colour, by Mr. Helmick. In the next gallery a glance did not show us anything strikingly good. Mr. Seymour Lucas in "Peter the Great" is—Mr. Seymour Lucas; we need say no more; just as Mr. Marcus Stone also is—Mr. Marcus Stone, and Mr. Luke Fildes none other than himself. Perhaps repetition is better than imitation—we know not. To proceed. In Gallery No. VIII. is Mr. Sargent's "The Misses Vickers," which we have mentioned before. Suffice it to say here, that it justifies the expectations of it which were aroused by its high position last year in the French Salon. Mr. Solomon J. Solomon, determined to make a frantic bid for Academic success, has thrown aside his realistic palette, and executed a large classical piece, "Cassandra" being torn from the altar by some Greek hero—(is it Ajax?) We cannot congratulate Mr. Solomon on his new departure. The movement of the figures is at once conventional and extravagant, the painting is not all that could be desired, and the tragedy is cheap; in fact, one might say, in the style of Dr. Johnson, that the picture is ill-conceived, ill-executed, and ill-hung. Mr. T. Lavery has two clever, broadly-painted effects, which should be noticed here. The gallery of cabinet pictures is not so interesting as last year, although Mr. Sidney Starr contributes a charming impression of "Finchley Road," and Mr. Toovey also shows real progress in "The Nimble Penny"—a study of a crowd round a Cheap Jack, which is London all over. Mr. L. Bernard Hall shows one of his small, clever portraits, and Miss Ellen Cooke's "Roses" appears to us the best of the ten versions of that much hackneyed subject in this gallery, even including Messs. Fantin and Alma Tadema. In Gallery X "'Twixt Power and Duty," by John Bowie, has all the faults of Mr. Pettie, with none of his strength. Mr. Colin Hunter comes out in a new branch in his portrait of Miss Alice Lyall, which we cannot consider a success, in spite of his subject. In Gallery XI., Mr. Herman G. Herkomer has a portrait of a grey-haired lady, "Mrs. Stobart," which is quite worthy of Hubert C. Mr. Henry Moore's best picture, in our opinion, is in this room. Mr. Fantin seldom favours us with such an important work as his roomful of portraits in "Autour du Piano," and we welcome it all the more. Usually he presents us with a rather hackneyed version of flowers, but when he does come out in portraiture he shows his great power. Altogether, we consider the exhibition a poor one—not because Mr. Herbert is exasperating, not because Mr. Long is ridiculous, not because Mr. Brett is extravagant, but because the newer men are disappointing by their absence or failure. Where is Mr. Gregory? What has become of Mr. Herkomer? What is the matter with Mr. Bartlett? Why, oh! why sky Mr. Lemon? Whither is Mr. Logsdail going? Why does Mr. Scholderer hide himself in the Water-colour Room? All these questions are harassing us. Even the assumption that the artists are neglecting the Academy and sending their best works to other galleries does not account for the feebleness of the whole. The general average is fair, but Art does not go by averages, but by individuals.

Saturday, the 15th inst., has been appointed for the Private View of the Summer Exhibition of the Nineteenth Century Art Society, at the Conduit Street Galleries, and the Exhibition will open to the public on Monday, the 17th inst.

Alhambra.—The programme provided by the management of this popular place of amusement for the Easter Holidays has resulted in an all-round success. Variety of every kind is the predominant feature, and, with the aid of an excellent band, a most enjoyable evening can now be spent here. The brothers James go through their acrobatic performance with infinite grace; while great fun is caused by Professor Wingfield's leaping dogs. The marvellous agility displayed by the two Arabs, Abachi and Mazus, is nightly received with rapturous applause; and, in fact, we have rarely seen a more clever performance. The Hanlon Voltas go through their entertainment upon the triple bars, while Nellie L'Estrange, Jenny Hill, Maud and Charlie Ross, Mdlle. Pacra, and J. W. Rowley render good service in carrying out the programme. A special feature of the evening is Mr. Leo. Stormont's rendering of the song "The Shamrock and the Rose." The successful ballets, "Nina" and "Le Bivouac" still meet with much favour. During the evening the band, under the direction of M. Cazanbon, gives three selections, the last, "Souvenir de Belgrade," bringing a most successful entertainment to a close. The management announce that they will shortly produce "Cupid," a new ballet divertissement, in which Signorina Besone will make her appearance.

The Dramatic Students.—The fourth performance by the members of this Society will take place at the Royalty Theatre (kindly lent for the occasion by Miss Kate Santley), on Thursday, the 13th day of May 1886, at 2.30, when will be produced the Rev. James White's drama, "The King of the Commons."

Bro. W. Waller, of 84 and 86 Tabernacle Street, E.C. (late of Drury Lane), has just issued the 20th edition of his catalogue of theatrical costumes and furnishings, which will be found interesting and useful to many who are fond of participating in histrionic entertainments, whether of the professional or amateur character. There are an increasing number of young people who adopt the rational and cultivated recreation of dramatic representations; and often they are at fault to find the means of securing those accessories which are indispensable to the production of their pieces. They cannot do better than seek the aid of Bro. Waller, who has received hundreds of testimonials from a satisfied clientèle as to the manner in which he has catered for them.

MASONIC FUNERAL AT FALKIRK.

ONE of the most imposing spectacles ever witnessed in Falkirk was the funeral of Bro. John Gillespie, which took place a few days since, with Masonic honours. The brethren were marshalled in the Town Hall, and from there they went to the house of the deceased, in Callender Road, in order of seniority, the youngest, No. 388, taking the lead, headed by the band of the Falkirk Ironworks, which played the "Dead March in Saul." The procession left Callender Road at two o'clock, and all along the streets the way was lined with spectators, and the shutters of all the shops were closed as a mark of respect. Arrived at the last resting-place, the coffin was borne by eight of the brethren of the deceased brother's Lodge, and the others closed in around the grave, where the service appointed for the burial was conducted by the chaplain.

ROYAL ARCH.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER.

THE Quarterly Convocation of Grand Chapter was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, London. In the absence of the regular Grand Officers the chair of Z. was filled by Comp. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar, that of H. by Comp. James Glaisher, and that of J. by Comp. J. Sampson Peirce. There were also present Comps. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke S.E., the Rev. Thomas Robinson S.N., Robert Grey President of the Committee of General Purposes; Baron de Ferrieres as 1st A.S., the Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope as 2nd A.S. The minutes having been confirmed, the acting Z. announced that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. was, by virtue of that office, Grand Z. of England for the year. His Royal Highness had appointed the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon Pro Grand Z., while the Right Hon. the Earl of Lathom was, by virtue of his Deputy Grand Mastership in Grand Lodge, H. of Grand Chapter. The Grand Z. had appointed the Right Hon. Lord Leigh J., Comp. Col. Shadwell H. Clerke S.E., and the right Hon. the Earl of Limerick S.N., Comps. Robert Grey President of the Board of General Purposes, D. P. Cama Grand Treasurer, and F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar. The Companions were invested with the other collars of Grand Chapter:—

Comp. the Rev. J. Nelson Palmer	...	Principal Sojourner
W. Mortimer Heath	...	1st Assistant Sojourner
Ralph Clutton	...	2nd Assistant Sojourner
J. E. Le Feuvre	...	Sword Bearer
Rudolph Glover	...	1st Standard Bearer
H. Trueman Wood	...	2nd Standard Bearer
Wm. Roebuck	...	3rd Standard Bearer
George Toller	...	4th Standard Bearer
Frank Richardson	...	Director of Ceremonies
E. Dean Davis	...	Deputy Dir. of Cers.
Wm. Clarke ...	...	Assistant Dir. of Cers.
Wilhelm Kube	...	Organist
Henry Sadler ...	...	Janitor

Comp. Philbrick then read a communication from the Grand Z., to the effect that, in recognition of the distinguished services rendered to Royal Arch Masonry for many years past by E. Comp. Thomas Fenn Past Grand Sword Bearer, His Royal Highness had been pleased to confer upon him the rank and precedence of a Past President of the Committee of General Purposes, which he requested the acting Z. to duly announce to Grand Chapter. Companion Philbrick could scarcely express the pleasure it gave him to be the means of conveying to Grand Chapter this announcement of an honour as worthily deserved as he believed it was well bestowed. Every Companion knew how thoroughly this great mark of His Royal Highness's favour was deserved by Comp. Fenn, and it was fully appreciated by the Companions. The Report of the Committee of General Purposes, which we published in our last issue, was taken as read, duly received, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. Comp. Robert Grey P.A.G. Soj. President of the Committee moved, and Comp. J. Lewis Thomas seconded, the granting of the eight warrants for new Chapters for which petitions had been received, as also the granting of a centenary warrant for the Chapter of Fidelity, No. 3. Comp. Grey said that, with respect to the Chapter which had exalted a brother before he had been twelve months a Master Mason, it was only a few days within the year, and it appeared in this case, as he believed it was in others, the Companions took the date of initiation instead of the date of the raising, and that they had unwittingly fallen into error. Perhaps if this was made known among the Order generally the mistake would be avoided in the future.

The acting Z. stated that the new Royal Arch Regulations provided that the Committee of General Purposes should consist of the Grand Principals, a President, and two other members to be nominated by the Grand First Principal at the Quarterly Convocation in May, and six other members to be elected by Grand Chapter at the same Convocation. Whereupon Col. Shadwell H. Clerke informed the M.E.Z. that the Prince of Wales had appointed Comp. Robert Grey President of the Committee, and Comps. E. Letchworth and Robert Turtle Pigott the two nominated members. Comps. C. F. Hogard, Geo. Lambert, J. L. Mather, F. Davison, W. A. Dawson, and James Lewis Thomas were elected by Grand Chapter to complete the Committee. The appeal of Companion Joseph Dawson P.Z 832 was then considered and subsequently dismissed, after which Grand Chapter was closed. It was announced during the meeting that the new Royal Arch Regulations were ready for distribution.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF ESSEX.

THE annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Chapter was held on Monday last, at Colchester, under the presidency of the Grand Superintendent of the Province, Ex-Comp. Fred. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar. The business meeting was held in the handsome library of Colchester Castle (kindly lent by Bro. James Round, M.P.), and commenced at two o'clock, with the confirmation of the minutes of the last meeting, held at Southend, on 19th November 1884. The P.G.S.E. then called the roll of the Chapters, which showed them all to be represented, the total number of members for 1885 being 114, as against 110 in 1884. The Auditors reported a balance in hand of £25 17s 6d. The Officers of the year were appointed and invested as under—

Comp. Vero W. Taylor P.Z. 270	...	P.G.H.
Alfred Welch P.Z. 51	...	P.G.J.
T. J. Ralling P.Z., S.E. 51 (3rd year)		P.G S.E.

Albert Lucking P.Z. 1000 (3rd year)		P.G. Dir. of Cers.
A. W. Martin 1000 ...	...	P.G. Janitor

On the motion of Ex-Comp. the Rev. F. B. Shepherd P.Z. and S.E. 276 P.P.G.H., seconded by Ex-Comp. A. C. Veley P.Z. 276, Ex-Comp. Andrew Durrant P.Z. and Treas. 276 was re-elected P.G. Treas. The Grand Superintendent, in his address to the Companions, explained that in the ordinary course of things their meeting would have been held in the autumn, but at that time the country was in the turmoil of the General Election, and it was considered advisable to postpone it. The returns read by the P.G.S.E. showed that not only had the Chapters maintained their ground, but had made steady progress. That, he thought, was a subject for congratulation, especially in these times, and situate as they were in the midst of an agricultural district suffering under an unprecedented state of depression. He was glad to note that there were signs of increased activity among the R.A. Masons of the Province, for only last week the brethren of the Liberty of Havering Lodge, meeting at Romford, sanctioned an application to the Grand Chapter for a Chapter to be attached to their Lodge. Should H.R.H. the Grand Z. be pleased to accede to the prayer of the petitioners, a Chapter at Romford would fill the void occasioned by the removal of the Brentwood Chapter to Chingford. Having referred to the recent revision of the Book of Constitution of the Grand Chapter, and explained some of the provisions thereof, the Grand Superintendent congratulated the Comps. upon the harmony that prevailed in the Province, and expressed a hope that when they next met they should be able to report further progress. On the motion of the P.G.H., seconded by the P.G.J., the sum of £10 10s was voted to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Ex-Comp. George Cooper P.Z. and S.E. 214 said he was authorised to invite the Grand Superintendent to hold his next meeting under the banner of the Hope and Unity Chapter, at Chingford. The Grand Superintendent said he should be pleased to accede to the kind invitation of the Comps. of the Hope and Unity Chapter, and thanked them for it. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Round for his kindness in granting the use of the Castle Library, and to Miss Philbrick (sister of the Grand Superintendent) for a thoughtful present of button-hole bouquets. P.G. Chapter was shortly afterwards closed, and the Comps adjourned to the Red Lion Hotel, where a récherché banquet was well served by the host (Comp. Hart), the Grand Superintendent presiding. Among the R.A. Masons present, in addition to the Officers mentioned above, were—Ex-Comps. the Rev. F. B. Shepherd P.P.G.H., George Cooper P.P.G.J., E. England Phillips P.P.G.J., Fred. Wood P.P.G.S.N., G. F. Jones P.P.G.P.S., W. Sowman P.P.G.A.S., James P. Lewin P.P.G. Swd. Br., John J. C. Turner P.P.G.O., A. C. Veley P.Z. 276, J. E. Wiseman P.P.G. Std. Br.; and Comps. John Dean 51, R. D. Poppleton 51, J. G. Potton 51, A. S. B. Sparling S.E. 51, George Harrison P.S. 51, Charles Godfrey 214, and Edmund Gowers 51. Letters expressing regret at their inability to attend were received from ex-Comps. Shadwell Clerke P.G.S.E., Major-General Laurie G. Supt. Nova Scotia, the Rev. C. J. Martyn G. Supt. Suffolk, T. F. TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.
G. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department. Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE APPROACHING FESTIVAL OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THE second great Festival in connection with the Charitable Institutions of the Craft is rapidly drawing near, the Ninety-eighth Anniversary being fixed for Wednesday next, at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of Bro. General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., Provincial Grand Master of Surrey. In anticipation of these events, it is usual to take a forecast as to the prospects of success likely to attend the efforts being put forth te secure a satisfactory result; and it would be cheering if that outlook had assumed a somewhat more rosy character than it is our lot to contemplate on the eve of this Festival. From a variety of causes, which it is perhaps difficult to give an adequate account for, those prospects are not so promising as we should desire to see them. It would be absolutely wrong were we dissatisfied with what has been done at the last few Festivals, because the results have in the aggregate exceeded our most sanguine anticipations. At the same time, we have become so enured to grand results that we have been urged on to stretch to the utmost limits, and to such extreme tension, the power for good that is latent amongst the brethren of the Craft that now the very contemplation of a bad result at the forthcoming Anniversary, however slight the ground for apprehension, strikes us with a feeling akin to dismay. But for some reason or other we are inclined to think that the Province of Surrey is not taking the matter in hand with that activity and energy which is essential to the thorough and complete success of the Festival over which its esteemed and popular Provincial Grand Master has consented to preside. We hope we may be wrong in such a calculation, nor do we desire to damp in any way the ardour of those who are doing what they can to make the event of next Wednesday a gratifying success; but whether it is that the supreme effort put forth in the year 1883 on behalf of the Benevolent Institution, followed by the desire to support the Boys' Preparatory School at Wood Green, to a certain extent overtaxed the resources of the brethren, or whether the apparent laxity arises from other causes, there certainly does appear an urgent need for some additional impetus to be thrown into the matter even at this, the eleventh hour. It has been suggested to us from some quarters that the Province of Surrey was hardly prepared to follow up the great efforts to which we refer by another, so soon afterwards, and the circumstances of the case have been rendered all the more difficult in consequence of the indisposition of our estimable Bro. C. Greenwood, Deputy G. Master of the Province, which untoward event is, we fear, likely to prevent the attendance of that assiduous and indefatigable Brother in his capacity of one of the acting Presidents of the Festival of this year. Bro. Greenwood's illness, which all the brethren devoutly hope may be of but a temporary character, coupled with the sad domestic bereavement which he so recently sustained, has had the effect of throwing one of the most powerful propelling powers in such a movement out of gear, for all who know him will be only too eager to admit that whatever Brother Greenwood takes in hand in the interests of the cause we all hold so dear, he leaves no single stone unturned by which to contribute to the entire success of the laudable work. To lose his powerful influence and aid at such a juncture as the present is little short of a calamity, so far as the excellent Institution at Battersea Rise is concerned; but from all that we can see at present we entertain but slight hopes that the sanction of Brother Greenwood's medical advisers will be given to his attendance at next week's Festival. Under these regrettable circumstances, if the brethren of Surrey will look around them amongst the Lodges of the Province from which no Stewards have as yet consented to render immediate practical aid, there may be still time to produce such a result as shall allay every apprehension as to the outcome of the effort now before them. We only want a Steward to be named from every Lodge, and we are quite sure that between now and the time when the annual account of the Institution is closed, such persuasive pressure will be brought to bear upon the brethren as will relieve the Provincial Grand Master and the executive of the School of all fear as to the means of continuing in their beneficent work being placed at their disposal. We have already touched upon this subject, and should have allowed it to pass without any further word of comment, but as the time approaches it is necessary that every effort should be strained to its utmost to bring about the consummation that is so devoutly to be wished—a "bumper" for the "bonnie lassies" at our Battersea Rise establishment. To add to the perplexities of the situation we hear with sincere regret that the Provincial Grand Master has himself been somewhat indisposed of late; and knowing how thoroughly the gallant General enters into all matters connected with the Craft in general, and his own Province in particular, even this passing and temporary drawback to the prosecution of his efforts is sincerely to be deplored. We all know with what hearty zeal and unwearying assiduity he enters into the hard work of the position he so worthily fills, and it is sincerely to be hoped that Wednesday next will find him completely restored to that health and vigour which is necessary for the fulfilment of such an arduous task as that which he has so generously undertaken. As we recently pointed out, Brother General Brownrigg is not new to the work which will then devolve upon him, for he undertook a similar duty on behalf of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution three years ago, on which occasion he proved himself a most capable President, and the efforts he then made, supported as they were by the brethren of the Province, proved most beneficial to the interests of the "Old People's Home" at Croydon. That similar exertions may be made on behalf of the Girls' School is our earnest hope, but there is little time left to the brethren of the Province to rally up to the standard required to make the Festival the brilliant triumph we all desire to see it. We do not profess by any means to take an alarmist view of the situation, even though up to the present the number of Stewards on the list is far below that which should have been returned to headquarters. But it would be a source of unfeigned regret throughout the whole of the Fraternity were the results of the event appreciably short of those of preceding years, and such a contingency may yet be avoided if the brethren will put their shoulders to the wheel in such a manner as to enable our worthy Brother Hedges, as Secretary of the Institution, to announce that so far from there being any falling-off in the support accorded to our favourite Institution, so eminently deserving of all the help that can be extended to it, there is at any rate a continued supply of the necessary means of carrying on the work of that branch of Masonic Charity.

We have had the gratification of recording the fact that in spite of the universal depression of trade, and the proverbially "bad times" experienced by men in all grades of commerce and industry, the subscriptions sent up to these great Masonic meetings have been steadily and substantially maintained; and we look forward hopefully that in the few days yet remaining before the Anniversary of the Girls' Festival there will be such a rustle of activity amongst the brethren that, amidst the applause which will undoubtedly follow the principal speaker next Wednesday evening, the voice of Bro. Hedges may be heard in grateful acknowledgment of the amount of aid which the brethren have by their united exertions sent up to enable the executive to carry on their grandly important work of the coming year. It not unfrequently happens that when a supreme effort is called for, enforced almost upon us, at the latest moment, such is the result of active determination to surmount all obstacles that the result is surprisingly gratifying; and from the depths of our wishes for the successful carrying on of the Girls' Institution, we trust to see that effect triumphantly exemplified on the occasion to which so many of our brethren are looking forward with expectant hopes on Wednesday evening next.

HINTS TO BRO. T. B. WHYTEHEAD.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

EDITORS of Monkish chronicles are generally apt to ignore the superstitious beliefs of their authors. Mr. T. Wright, however, in his preface to the works of Giraldus Cambrensis, did call attention to the credulity of his author. Giraldus possessed a "pound of learning," but needed the "ounce of common sense;" he believed that a wolf spoke to a priest, that a wooden cross in Dublin spoke to the people, that there was a mill that would not grind on Sunday, nor grind corn that was stolen, and some hundred similar wonders besides; among which is the following pretty story, viz.:—

"St. Keivin, during Lent, retired to a cabin in the wilderness, where he gave himself up to contemplation . . . reading and prayer. One morning, having raised his hand to heaven, as was his custom, through a window, it chanced that a blackbird pitched upon it and laid her eggs in his palm, treating it as her nest. The saint, taking pity on the bird, showed so much gentleness and patience that he neither drew in nor closed his hand, but kept it extended and adapted it to the purpose of the nest, without wearying, until the young brood was entirely hatched."

How the saint managed to reach his larder, and to perform the functions of nature during the required time, for laying all her eggs and hatching the birds, does not seem to have puzzled Giraldus at all. However, even in the 12th century, his credulity was criticised. So, in the preface to his second book, Giraldus gave his doubting critic an indignant lecture, and quoted St. Augustine and other high authorities, to prove that belief in miracles should not be doubted nor questioned. Now, I may be wrong, but I cannot help suspecting that Giraldus was a Mason; anyhow, his method of reasoning, when defending his belief in miracles, is precisely like the reasoning of our Masonic writers when defending the antiquity of Masonry, &c. I also believe that if our Masonic degree fabricators had read the works of Giraldus, the blackbird story would have long since been dramatised into a Masonic degree, and the city of York would now have been blessed with an Irish Masonic degree, having St. Keivin for Grand Master, and Brothers Blackbird for Grand Officers. Lest, however, the reader should think that I am a little too sarcastic, I herewith copy from Socrates' Ecclesiastical History a miracle just as absurd as the one above quoted, which is now incorporated into our Masonic degrees, and called "The Order of the Red Cross of Constantine," which is as follows:—

While his (Constantine's) mind was occupied on this subject (the conquest of Rome), he was hesitating what divinity's aid he should invoke for successful conduct in the war; it occurred to him that Diocletian had profited but little by the Pagan deities, . . . but that his own father, Constantius, who had renounced the idolatrous worship of the Greeks, had passed through life far more prosperously. In this state of uncertainty, a preternatural vision, which trancends all description, appeared as he was marching at the head of his troops. He saw . . . a pillar of light in the heavens, in the form of a cross, on which were inscribed these words—"By this conquer." Struck with astonishment at the appearance of this sign, and scarcely believing his own eyes, the Emperor asked those around him if they beheld the same spectacle, and, they all declaring they did, the Emperor's mind was strengthened by this Divine and extraordinary apparition. In his slumbers on the following night he saw Christ, who directed him to prepare a standard, according to the pattern of that which had been seen, and to use it against the enemy as an assured trophy of victory. In obedience to this Divine oracle, he caused the standard, in the form of a cross, to be prepared (which is preserved in the palace even to the present time), and, proceeding in his measures with greater confidence, he attacked the enemy and vanquished him before the gates of Rome."

This story is treated generally with contempt. Even the orthodox Mosheim could not swallow it. I confess to be unacquainted with the arguments used by the first doubters of that story. I shall, however, give my own reasons for disbelieving it. First, because it is very absurd; second, if Constantine had seen the vision in the sky, and Christ in a dream, in the year 308, it seems to me that he would have sought baptism there and then; but the truth is he could not be prevailed on to submit to that necessary Christian rite before 337, or just before he died; and third, this story was unknown until about one hundred or more years after Constantine died. Now, Eusebius, "the father of ecclesiastical history," as he is called, was a favourite of Constantine, and wrote a short biography of his patron in 337. No one will be surprised at his omitting the cruelties and vices of the subject of his memoir, nor of his overloading him with praise for the good he had done. If, therefore, the Constantine vision was true, surely Eusebius would have known it, and, if he had known about it, I can see no reason why he omitted it from his life of Constantine. The fact that Eusebius did not mention the Constantine miracle is very pretty conclusive evidence that the said story was unknown during the lifetime of Constantine, even to his most intimate friend, and that it was, therefore, an invention from first to last. As already said, rational, as well as religious, writers, disbelieve in the Constantine vision, but our foppish Masons, who want to play Knights and Emperors, have made the Constantine story into a Masonic degree, and are ready to swear that it is all "true as Gospel."

Again, in the Middle Ages, some men imagined they could make gold out of certain compounds, and were called Alchemists. Some of these really believed in the possibility of what they were seeking, but many of them were mere pretenders. These Alchemists, sincere or pretended, looked very mysterious, and pretended to know the hidden secrets of Nature. In 1616 a wag wrote an imaginary history of a society of Rosicrucians, who were adepts in the mysterics of science. This history was at first believed, and hence people took it for granted that the Alchemists were Rosicrucians, and were, and have been, an organised society. Now, it is very easy to persuade some of our Masons that every society in olden times that had a mystery or secret were Masons, and that their mysteries were preserved among Masons to this day. Accordingly, there is a Masonic Rosicrucian concern in York, in which Bro. Whytehead figures as the "Great Adept," and for some years past he annually repeated his belief in the antiquity of the Rosicrucian Order. To be sure, it is generally known that the very word "Rosicrucian" was unknown before 1616, and that no Rosicrucian Society existed before the Masonic mania for high degrees broke out. But what of it? Reason or no reason, Bro. Whytehead is determined to believe it. In his last address he said—

"As far as we know, this singular mediæval brotherhood was banded together for the purpose of investigating the hidden mysteries of Nature and Science. It met but seldom; it was said to have drawn its members from every quarter of the globe, and its ostensible objects were the amelioration of the condition of mankind, and the judicious communication of knowledge . . . We know that in the latter days, at any rate, of the renowned society its members became subject to derision," &c.

The above quotation proves that when once a story is Masonised, it is defended through thick and thin by those whose interests it is to keep the concern alive; and, as our good but deluded Bro. Whytehead imagines that we cannot have too many Masonic degrees, and that the more degrees a man possesses the more scientific he is, and as our brother holds the high Grand office of "Chief Adept" in the Rosicrucian College, hence, by annually repeating the Rosicrucian story, he finally comes to believe that a "renowned" Rosicrucian Society existed in the Middle Ages. The present object of the Rosicrucians, however, Bro. Whytehead says, is not for the purpose of finding the philosopher's stone, but to search "for the true history and origin of Masonry; a mystery which rebuked the wisdom of some of the most learned and talented men of the last century, and which is even now apparently a long distance from disclosure," and, after referring to our old Masonic histories and to the "Old Charges, edited by our learned Bro. Hughan, himself a member of our Rosicrucian Order" (I hope, however, that Bro. Hughan did not pay anything for his Rosicrucianism); and, after intimating that the Old Charges are very old, he then pays the following compliment to Bro. Gould. He says:—

"Bro. Gould's History is, as far as actual information is concerned, absolutely exhaustive. It is in itself an entire Masonic library, and is by far the most able work on the Craft that has yet made its appearance. But Gould has dealt with his whole subject, I think, somewhat too much from his own professional standpoint. It is the business of the legal mind to reduce to its lowest ebb of credibility every statement that is arrayed before it, and reject as unworthy of credence everything that cannot be absolutely and irrefragably proved by facts or figures. Now, although this is a very proper frame of mind in which to approach a mere question of right and wrong, . . . yet I scarcely think it is the best spirit in which to attack the problem of the early and unwritten history of Freemasonry."

And after demolishing his "man of straw," viz., who denies any history to Freemasonry before 1717,* Bro. Whytehead favours us with an entirely original idea of the unwritten history of Freemasonry. He says:—

"I believe with Bro. Carson, of Ohio, that up to that period (1717) Freemasonry has been essentially Christian in its teachings, and that what was known of builders, which had previously died out through the process of natural decay and lack of useful objects for existence. (Now for the original.) It was, I suspect, these guilds who learned a certain portion of the ancient Christian mysteries from their employers of the Benedictine Order, and adapted them to their own purpose. It was they who added to those mysteries the Hiramic legend, and the symbolism of Solomon's Temple, and converted into the stone-worker's allegory what had previously been an exposition of the story of the fall of mankind, the sacrificial redemption of the human race, and the doctrine of resurrection. The true mystery had been handed down to the Benedictines, and preserved by them, from the early Christians, and before that date had been kept secret and inviolate from the foundation of the world by successive patriarchs and prophets, whose 'schools,' as they are termed in the old Testament writings, were merely what we should term in our own phraseology Lodges or Colleges for the instruction of the chosen initiates."

We see now what kind of a history of Freemasonry would suit Bro. Whytehead's notion. To be sure, he frankly admits that he cannot prove what he believes; but what of it? Whether he can or cannot prove it, he is determined to believe that it is, and ought to be, Masonic history, and that Bro. Gould was guilty of an unpardonable sin for not engrafting Bro. Whytehead's notions into his history of Freemasonry. It is natural to one whose mind was cast in a theological mould to like only those histories which chime with his religious dogmas; and such histories have been written again and again, both by religious and Masonic zealots. Now, one who believes in the existence of a Rosicrucian renowned Society in the Middle Ages, and who is infatuated with a "thousand and one" Masonic degrees he has taken, very naturally prefers Dr. Oliver for his Masonic historian. And such is the case with Bro. Whytehead. Oliver, who could write what the elder Dr. Disraeli called "a history of events which never happened," is Bro. Whytehead's ideal historian, but Gould is altogether too prosy and matter-of-fact for Bro. Whytehead's taste; and, although evidence is wanted to prove his "unwritten history," yet he is not going to give it up, for he imagines that he will find evidence in the inscriptions on the old monuments.

Now I have patiently waded through some seven or eight volumes of "The Records of the Past," which are filled with inscriptions taken from the old monuments. I have read Max Muller's Sacred Books of the Hindoos, Rawlinson's "Religions of the Antient World," the Hibbert Lectures, and other works on the same subject, and I nowhere found a Society resembling our Craft in all those books. However, as I have not exhausted all the authorities upon the subject, I will not discourage Bro. Whytehead from further pursuing the inquiry. But I must advise him not to publish another word upon the question at issue until he is prepared to prove that the patriarchs and prophets derived the doctrine of redemption from Adam, that the said docrine was kept as a secret, and why they kept it secret. He must also prove that the early Christians had mysteries, that the Benedictines derived mysteries from the early Christians, and communicated those mysteries to the Masons. He must further explain how it was that the said mysteries of the early Christians were confined in the Middle Ages to the Order of Benedictines only? And why the Benedictines imparted their mysteries to Masons only? He must also prove that the Hiramic legend was known to Masons before 1717, and that Solomon's connection with the Craft was known before the Matthew Cooke MS. was written, and that Symbolic or Speculative Masonry existed before 1717.

Should Bro. Whytehead succeed in proving all I require, I shall be foremost in congratulating him upon the event. I will concede, without further question, the antiquity of the Rosicrucian Order, the vision of Constantine, that a wolf spoke to a priest, that a cross in Dublin spoke to the Dubliuites, that a pious mill would not grind on Sunday, and that a blackbird laid its eggs in the palm of the reverend Irish St. Keivin. Besides which, if Bro. Whytehead proves that his faith in the unwritten history of Masonry was well founded, he will deserve a crown of laurels, and will surely be proclaimed by every Grand Lodge in the world, not only as a "Chief Adept," but as the greatest Masonic historian that ever was.

BOSTON, U.S. 26th April 1886.

* Symbolic, or Speculative Masonry, did not exist before 1717, but no one denies the existence of Masons' Trade Unions, or Guilds, in the Middle Ages.

It is announced that H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England has just appointed the Right Hon. Lord Henniker Grand Master of the Province of Suffolk, in the room of the late Lord Waveney.

We congratulate Bro. Thomas Vincent, P.M. 1861, P.P.G. Sword Bearer Surrey, on his re-election to the office of Churchwarden of the united parishes St. Margaret with St. Magnus, London Bridge. This is the eleventh time that Brother Vincent has received similar honour at the hands of his fellow parishoners.

Another of our old friends has passed away, in the person of Bro. J. R. Foulger P.M. of the Domatic Lodge, No. 177, whose sudden death occurred on Saturday last. An inquest was subsequently held, when medical evidence was adduced, showing the cause of death to have been heart disease. Bro. Foulger will long be remembered as a competent and painstaking Preceptor.

The Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution held their regular monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, under the presidency of Bro. Edgar Bowyer, Past Grand Standard Bearer. The minutes were confirmed, and the Secretary reported the death of a male annuitant. The Warden's report was read, and then a letter referring to one of the male candidates was considered. After full discussion, it was decided that his name should be removed from the list of approved candidates. The retiring members of the Committee were nominated for re-election, and several other brethren were also nominated. The draft of the annual report, to be submitted to the subscribers at the annual meeting on the 21st inst. was then considered, and approved, after which a vote of thanks to the chairman brought the proceedings to a conclusion.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

LODGE OF UNION, No. 414.

A REGULAR meeting of the Lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Reading, on 20th April. Bros. F. Blackwell W.M., D. H. Witherington S.W., John W. Martin J.W., R. C. Mount P.M. Treasurer P.P.G.S.W. Berks and Bucks, Albert W. Parry Secretary, C. G. Hawkes S.D., W. Sherwood J.D., J. H. Walters I.G., C. T. Rayner Steward, W. Hemmings Tyler; P.M.'s M. J. Withers I.P.M. Prov. G.J.D. Berks and Bucks, R. Bradley Prov. Grand Secretary Berks and Bucks, C. Stephens Prov. Grand Treasurer Berks and Bucks, Charles Oades P.P.G. Registrar Berks and Bucks, J. Weightman P.P.G.J.W. Berks and Bucks. A. Livings, George S. Galt, B. Ruddock, W. G. Millar, W. Bonny. Visitor—H. Creed J.W. 1101. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Charles Townshend Murdoch, of Buckhurst, Wokingham, banker, M.P., formerly of Leinster Lodge, No. 387, Malta, on the register of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, proposed by the Worshipful Master, and seconded by Bro. M. J. Withers, was balloted for, and elected a joining member. A part of the sections in the second degree were worked by the Worshipful Master, Bros. Bradley and Oades, at the conclusion of which the members evinced their appreciation of the admirable working by warm acclamations. Lodge opened in the third degree. The W.M. addressed Bros. Alexander Livings and W. Bonny, giving the complement of the ceremony of raising. Lodge was closed in the third and second degrees, when the W.M., in accordance with notice, moved "that the Treasurer shall, previous to the Lodge held in March in each year, deposit in a separate account at the Bank, from the funds of the Lodge a sum equivalent to 18s 6d for each subscribing member who did not attend the annual banquet in the previous January, and that after allowance had been made for the necessary expenses of the Lodge and payment of principal and interest on the mortgage account, any further sum which, in the opinion of the majority of the brethren present at the November Lodge, can be spared from the general funds, shall also be paid into the same account. The amount so invested to form a Fund of Benevolence, which shall be available for votes to the Masonic Charities, cases of personal distress connected with Freemasonry, or such other charitable purposes, Masonic or otherwise, as the brethren from time to time may determine, and that grants made from such Fund of Benevolence shall be subject to bye-law No. 5." The motion was seconded by Bro. Withers, and a well-sustained discussion ensued; the W.M., Bros. Withers, Bradley, Stephens, Mount, Walters, Martin, Millar, Witherington, Sherwood, and Galt taking part. Bro. Bradley proposed as an amendment, "That the subject be referred to the Permament Committee for consideration and report." This was seconded by Bro. Mount, and carried. On the amendment being put as a substantive motion, it was declared to be carried by 12 votes—twenty-one members being present. The W.M., in accordance with notice, proposed that the sum of £15 15s be devoted to Charity, and that the sum be given to augment the list of Bro. Wheeler jun. P.M., who would represent the Lodge as Steward at the next Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. This was seconded by Bro. Bradley, and carried unanimously. Business being ended, Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper at the Great Western Hotel. The W.M. presided, and a very agreeable conversazione resulted.

THE WINDRUSH LODGE, No. 1703.

THE regular May meeting of this Lodge was held in the Corn Exchange, Witney, Oxon, on Wednesday, 5th instant, the W.M. Bro. S. C. Wakefield Prov. G. Steward being supported by a large gathering of members and brethren from neighbouring Lodges. Advantage had been taken by the W.M. of there being no work before the Lodge to proffer an invitation to Bro. James Stevens P.M. P.Z. to deliver his successful and interesting lecture explanatory of the ritual and ceremonial of the first degree, now so well known to the Craft, under the title of "Knobs and Excrescences." The Lodge was opened by the W.M. and the following Officers:—Bros. H. W. Drinkwater P.M. Prov. G.S.W. Oxon S.W., Harry Robins P.M. Secretary 1703 P. Prov. G.J.W. Oxon J.W., A. T. Matthews I.P.M. P. Prov. G.S.D. Oxon, J. M. Clench P.M. Treasurer P. Prov. G. Standard Bearer Oxon, G. Owens Prov. G. Organist Oxon S.D., S. A. Heath J.D., R. Sheafe I.G., W. H. Tarrant Organist, A. Buck Steward, S. Smith Tyler. There was a very fair attendance of members, and amongst the Visitors were Bros. Butler W.M. 1399 P.P.G.S.B. Oxon, J. H. Shale, R. Corden and others from the Alfred Lodge 340, Oxford, A. Pearce S.D., and others from the Bertie Lodge, 1515, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, Bro. Wakefield W.M. addressed the brethren and stated that he had thought it advisable, as well in the interest of the Lodge itself as for the good of Freemasonry generally, that the otherwise unemployed evening before them should be made instructive by a Masonic lecture. He had therefore invited a well-known brother, whose efforts in the direction of Masonic instruction were receiving deserved recognition, to attend on this occasion and to enlighten them on many points of ritual, with a view to comparing their own practice in Lodge with the forms and ceremonial which he would expound. He hoped and anticipated that the initiative he had taken would in the result be justified by the pleasure and enlightenment which their visitor would afford them, and might be imitated by many other Masters of Lodges, who had spare evenings at their disposal. Bro. Wakefield then formally introduced Bro. Stevens to the brethren, and requested their kind attention. A very hearty welcome was accorded to the lecturer on his rising, and after a brief acknowledgment of his reception, Bro. James Stevens commenced an address, which during nearly two hours, rivetted, without the slightest interruption, the attentive consideration of his hearers. We cannot, of course, print that which is intended only for utterance under a tyled roof, and must therefore be content with an expression of our conviction that this lecture ought to be heard in every Lodge holding under the United Grand Lodge of England. It deals with the ritual as practised for the past seventy-five years, with the innovations made therein, and anomalies and divergencies which have made the practices of some Lodges, when compared with others, not only ridiculous, but in many instances most injurious to the welfare of the Order. We cannot go into any of these particulars, but we strongly commend the lecture to all who desire to have common sense reasoning for what they do and say in Masonic Lodges. At the conclusion of his address, Bro. Stevens was warmly applauded, and a vote of thanks was unanimously ordered to be recorded on the minutes of the Lodge, the W.M., who proposed, and Bro. Drinkwater, who seconded the vote, respectively expressing their high appreciation of the service rendered to Freemasonry by the exposition to which the brethren present had so attentively listened. The lecturer returned his thanks for the compliment paid him, and stated his readiness to accept from any Lodges which might desire to extend the same, invitations for a like purpose. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper, after which the Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Brother Matthews in proposing the health of the W.M. (Brother Wakefield) paid a high tribute to the excellent qualities which not only so well fitted him for his exalted position, but endeared him so much to the members of his Lodge, and especially extolled the interest he had shown on this occasion by his personally inviting Bro. Stevens, and so giving his members the benefit of experiencing one of the most instructive and enjoyable evenings of the many passed by them in the Windrush Lodge. The W.M., in response, stated how pleased he felt to receive such an acknowledgment of his efforts to carry out his duty, and especially that his personal invite had been attended with such satisfactory results. He had heard that if he could secure Bro. Stevens for his lecture, neither he nor his Lodge would regret doing so, and he must say that even his most sanguine anticipations had been exceeded. He would at once propose the Visitors, and couple with the toast the name of the lecturer. The toast was drank with much fervour, and responses were made by several of the Visitors present, Bro. Stevens contenting himself with a few brief remarks in continuation of what he had previously said in the Lodge. What, however, he lacked in speech he made up for in recitations, and complied with the earnest request of the brethren by delivering the Masonic poems—"The Three Great Lights," "Masons' Vows," and "The Level and the Square." Several excellent songs by other members and visitors added to the social enjoyment of an evening which will doubtless be long remembered by those who shared in the proceedings, and who, at a somewhat later hour than usual, separated with the interchange of fraternal greetings and good wishes.

PRINCE EDWARD OF SAXE-WEIMAR LODGE, No. 1903.

ON Wednesday afternoon, the 5th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Portsmouth, there was a numerous and representative gathering of members of the Craft, including several Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, Worshipful Masters, Past Masters, and visitors from London, to witness the installation of Bro. Lieutenant James Knowles, R.N. (H.M.S. Hercules, now stationed at Portland) as Worshipful Master of the Lodge for the ensuing year. Lieutenant Knowles was one of the founders of the Lodge, which was established five years since, under highly favourable auspices, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught having been present at the inaugural ceremony, at which there was a very large number of Masons, many holding high rank in the Craft. The Lodge has the honour of having on its roll of Grand Officers the M.W. Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, who, on the occasion of a Volunteer review being held at Portsmouth, paid a visit to the Lodge. Captain Lord Charles Beresford, R.N., M.P. (from whom a letter had been received, expressing regret that his Parliamentary duties prevented his attendance), was the first W.M., and the office has since been held by Bros. T. Page (two years), Captain Lathom Cox, and H. J. Long. The ceremony of installing Lieutenant Knowles (who has filled the offices of Junior Deacon and Junior and Senior Warden) was ably and impressively performed by Bro. H. Townsend P.M. P. Prov. G. Deacon, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to him for his services. Then followed a pleasing incident, viz., the recognition of the services of the retiring W.M., also one of the founders of the Lodge, who, after having held various offices, was elected to the chair, the duties of which, as the W.M. remarked, when presenting him with a Past Master's jewel, he had discharged in a manner that had been most satisfactory to the brethren, and had conduced to the prosperity of the Lodge. The W.M.'s eulogistic remarks were warmly received by the brethren, and Bro. Long made a feeling and appropriate response, thanking the brethren for their appreciation of his services, and promising to continue to do all in his power to promote the welfare of the Lodge. The jewel, which is of solid gold, set in diamonds, has the recipient's monogram, is of handsome design, and bears the following inscription—"Presented to Bro. H. J. Long P.M., by the members of the Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar Lodge." The W.M. appointed and invested his Officers as under—Bros. H. J. Long I.P.M., W. Royston Pike S.W., J. Livesay J.W., Rev. P. H. Good Chaplain, G. Backler Treas., A. L. Emanuel Sec., E. G. Charpentier S.D., W. Ford J.D., J. Wilson D.C., G. Sylvester Org., A. Long I.G., H. G. Giles and E. Austin Stewards. Upwards of sixty brethren sat down to a récherché banquet, which was admirably served by Bro. W. Mayhour, of Ordnance Row, Portsea. The banqueting hall was tastefully decorated with lace curtains, mirrors, plants, and flowers. At the conclusion of the banquet, the customary toasts were honoured. P.M. Townsend proposed the Worshipful Master, referring in warm terms of eulogy to the great interest which Lieut. Knowles had taken in the Lodge, and the toast, having been received with much enthusiasm, was suitably acknowledged by the W.M. A warm reception was also given to the I.P.M., Bro. J. Long, the toast being introduced by P.M. Page. Bro. Sylvester and others contributed harmony, and a very pleasant evening was passed.

RICHMOND LODGE, No. 2032.

THIS young and highly prosperous Lodge met at the Station Hotel, Richmond, Surrey, on Tuesday, the 4th inst., on which occasion the installation of Bro. W. R. Phillips took place. The Lodge was opened at the appointed hour by Bro. Phillips himself, he being qualified by a previous Mastership to discharge that duty, and the W.M., Bro. C. I. Digby, being delayed in respect of attendance. There were present during the evening, besides the two brethren named, Bros. J. P. Houghton J.W., W. F. Reynolds P.M. and Treas., G. C. Rowlands Sec., E. Dare S.D., H. Sapsworth J.D., H. J. Ireland D.C., J. Marjason I.G., Albert Crew Org., and Banks Tyler. The I.P.M., Bro. B. E. Blasby, and Bros. Thomas Fenn P.G.D. President of the Board of General Purposes, and Joshua Nunn P.G.S.B. President of the Board of Benevolence (honorary members) also attended. The members who signed the attendance-book were Bros. J. Aldridge, W. C. Rainbow, T. Covell, F. A. Meeres, F. R. Robinson, S. Abell, D. G. Macrae, T. Keyes, A. Aldin, J. E. Goring, F. C. Moufiet, Dr. E. A. Cooke, G. Trinder, H. Clifford, W. Clifford, W. Williamson, H. F. Nash, R. Smith, E. Downs, &c. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. James Stevens P.M. 720 1216 1426, W. H. Lee P.M. 975 Prov. G. Asst. Sec. Middlesex, W. R. Williams, P.M. 975, H. S. Hunter P.M. 1321, W. R. Forge P.M. 1793 Prov. G.D.C. Middlesex, J. T. Lucas P.M. 192, J. W. Clarke 1572, Alfred Tucker 1733, S. Hunt 1196, W. Courlander 975, H. C. Landsdowne 1541, F. J. Ruddle 1763, C. Clarke 975, W. Johnson, C. Stewart Stephens 754, E. T. Smith 1768, W. Drewett 859, and W. R. Parker 742. The Lodge was opened, and previous minutes confirmed. Bro. Macrae having proved proficiency, the Lodge was duly prepared for the ceremony of raising; and the W.M., Bro. C. I. Digby, having arrived, occupied the chair of K.S., and, in a most effective manner, duly raised the candidate to the M.M. degree. The ceremony of installation was then at once proceeded with, and in this, as in the previous work, the W.M. proved his great capacity as a careful and earnest worker. Bro. W. R. Phillips P.M., on assuming the duties of W.M. of the Lodge, after courteous greetings from the Board of Installed Masters, and reception of the salutations of the members of his Lodge, proceeded to appoint his Officers, and to invest them in the following order, viz. :—Bros. J. P. Houghton S.W., E. Dare J.W., W. F. Reynolds P.M. Treas., G. C. Rowlands Sec., H. Sapsworth S.D., J. Marjason J.D., A. Crew I.G., Messum D.C., W. C. Rainbow Org., A. Aldin and T. Covell Stewards, and Fryer Tyler. The addresses to Master, Wardens, and Brethren, delivered in a very effective manner by Bro. Digby, completed a ceremony which gave great satisfaction to all concerned. Ballots were then taken for Messrs. William Edwin Marsh, Arthur Clinton Taylor, and Arthur Walker, which, proving unanimous in their favour, secured their introduction into Freemasonry at the hands of Bro. Phillips, who, we were glad to observe, gave to each candidate his "just due" by separate initiation. Amongst other routine business, a motion for an addition to the bye-laws relating to the Benevolent Fund of the Lodge was carried, and the sum of five guineas voted to form the nucleus for such Fund. A like sum was voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, to be placed on the list of Bro. Houghton, who will represent the Lodge as Steward at the forthcoming Festival. Hearty good wishes having been expressed by the Visitors, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. A very elaborate menu was placed before the guests on this occasion, but the length of time occupied in the work of the Lodge, but more particularly the delay in service during the repast, interfered sadly with the otherwise enjoyable nature of the evening's programme, and rendered the duties of the W.M. presiding more difficult than need have been the case. To meet the exigencies of necessary early departure by many of the brethren, a portion of the bill of fare was, perforce, abandoned, and the subsequent musical entertainment, in which many talented artistes were engaged, was considerably hurried and shortened. Nevertheless, the brief time allotted to the company generally was of a most enjoyable character, and, except that too much, for an installation meeting, was attempted, nothing but high praise is due to those who had the conducting of the entire proceedings. The customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, after brief but forcible introductions by the W.M. It had been hoped that the toast of the Grand Officers would have been responded to by Bro. Fenn, President of the Board of General Purposes, and the Consecrating Officer of the Lodge, but, for reasons above stated, that worthy brother had been compelled to leave. In his regretted absence, Bro. Joshua Nunn P.G.S.B. returned thanks, and expressed wishes for continued success to the Lodge. The I.P.M., Bro. Digby, proposed the health of the Worshipful Master in very eulogistic terms, as to his ability and general capacity for carrying out the duties of his exalted position, and expressed his confidence that he would prove, by the exercise of his skill and his eminent qualifications for the office, and his fitness to rule, advance the interests of his Lodge. Amidst the plaudits of the brethren, he wished him health and the support of T.G.A.O.T.U. in all his undertakings. A feeling response from the W.M., acknowledging the compliment paid to him, and assuring the members of his Lodge that nothing on his part should be wanting to justify the expectations they held, was concluded by his proposing the health of the Initiates, who severally returned thanks for their reception. The Visitors received a very hearty welcome, and the W.M. congratulated his Lodge on so large a number being present. Bro. James Stevens P.M. 1216, &c., returned thanks on behalf of the Visitors, for the pleasure which had been afforded them, both in respect of Lodge work, admirably performed and the subsequent entertainment set before them. He ventured to express an opinion that the ceremonies performed that evening had been carried out in a manner which would have done credit to Lodges of many years' standing, and was therefore all the more creditable to the Richmond Lodge, which, under the guidance of such qualified brethren as the W.M. and his predecessor, could not fail to merit the success it sought to attain. Bros. W. R. Forge Prov. G.D.C. Middlesex, and Lucas P.M. 192, also replied in terms of high commendation of the Lodge proceedings, and appreciation of their welcome. The health of the Installing Master and Past Master was cordially received, and a handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Digby, with best wishes from the Lodge, and hopes that he might live many years to wear it. To this toast Bros. Digby and Blasby severally responded in appropriate terms. The remaining toasts were the Masonic Charities, the Officers, and the Tyler's toast, which brought the proceedings to a close at a somewhat later hour than most of the London brethren had anticipated. It must, however, be admitted that they had every reason to carry away with them remembrance of a meeting such as might induce them to desire its repetition at future installations in the Richmond Lodge. We cannot close this report without a notice of the excellent vocal music, arranged by, and under the direction of, Bro. W. C. Rainbow, the Organist of the Lodge, whose talented company comprised Madame Lita Jarrett, R.A.M., Miss Mary Horton, and Bros. Crew and Abell. The programme was an excellent selection, and the several artistes most effectively rendered their respective numbers. Their services were highly appreciated by all present.

ABBEY LODGE, No. 2080.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge took place on Monday, the 10th instant, at the Town Hall, Westminster, when Bro. F. Seager Hunt was installed as Worshipful Master of the Lodge, in succession to Bros. W. Burdett-Coutts and W. H. Baker, the first and second Masters respectively. There was a large attendance of members and visitors, nearly two hundred signing the attendance book. Lodge was opened by Bro. W. H. Baker, who was supported during the meeting by the following Officers of the Lodge:—Bros. Burdett-Coutts P.M., F. Seager Hunt S.W. (W.M. elect), W. Sugg J.W., J. C. F. Warrington Rogers P.M. Treasurer, J. E. Shand P.M. Secretary, W. Bowman Spink P.M., Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G.C. Chaplain, J. Gibson S.D., H. R. Baker J.D., R. E. H. Goffin D.C., H. Mainwaring-Dunstan I.G., H. W. Schartau Organist, C. C. Piper and G. R. W. Wheeler Stewards. The minutes of the regular Lodge of the 8th March having been read and confirmed, the Worshipful Master advanced his Lodge, and proceeded to confer the second degree on Bros. H. Dawson, Morgan, Irving, and Cowley. He then took the ballot for two gentlemen who sought admission into the mysteries of Freemasonry—Mr. Percy George Hodson, proposed by Brother C. Humphreys, and seconded by Brother Richards; and Mr. Joseph Foster, nominated by the Worshipful Master, and seconded by Brother Hambling. The result of the ballot was unanimous in favour of these two candidates, who were subsequently admitted to the light of Masonry. The report of the Audit Committte was received, and formally adopted, after which the ceremony of installation was proceeded with. Bro. Seager Hunt was placed in the chair of the Lodge in the presence of some fifty installed Masters, and in due course received the salutations of his brethren. He appointed the following brethren as the Officers for the year:—Sugg S.W., H. R. Baker J.W., Simpson Chaplain, Rogers Treasurer, Shand Sec., Gibson S.D., Goffin J.D., Mainwaring-Dunstan I.G., Piper D.C., Wheeler A.D.C., J. Browne-Martin and F. J. Smith Stewards, Schartau Organist, and W. Walkley Tyler. Bro. W. H. Baker, who throughout the day, had performed the duties of the chair in a most efficient manner, then concluded the ceremony of installation, bringing his year of office to a most satisfactory conclusion. Lodge was subsequently closed, and the company repaired to banquet. Among the Visitors present were Bros. the Hon. and Rev. Francis Byng, M.A., 1635, Chaplain to the House of Commons, Frederick Binckes Past Grand Steward, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, E. Paetel 1624, G. Pallett 1287, W. C. An enjoyable banquet having been served, the W.M., Bro. F. Seager Hunt, proceeded with the toasts of the evening, remarking, in introducing them, that the lateness of the hour prevented his giving to them the full attention they deserved. The first toast on the list needed no words of commendation from the chair in such an assembly as was then gathered together, for if there was one society or institution more likely than another to do honour to the toast of the Queen and the Craft, it was the mystic body with which he then had the pleasure of being associated. He therefore submitted the toast, reminding the brethren that the Queen had wrought more good for the country than any other monarch who had ruled the destinies of this mighty empire. The next toast, as given on the list was a most comprehensive one, and, in view of the short time the brethren had at their disposal, the W.M. felt it wise to give it as it appeared on the programme. It was H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon Pro G.M., the Earl of Lathom D.G., and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. This also was a toast which required no words to commend it to those present, for the brethren knew full well the position these illustrious and distinguished men occupied, and they knew full well the manner in which they discharged the duties pertaining to their respective offices. In the discharge of their functions they had won the admiration of the whole of the Masonic brotherhood. The Prince of Wales was a Grand Master unequalled by any who had gone before him, and the present generation of Masons might say that, great as had been the hold which Masonry had had upon the world in bygone times, never in this country had such an impetus been given to the Craft as since the accession to power of the Prince of Wales. In conclusion, he would but repeat a part of the song which, but for want of time, they would now have an opportunity of listening to—

"In the heart of every Mason,
There always will be shared
The prayer that our Grand Master
May long to us be spared."

With the toast was coupled the name of Bro. Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G. Chaplain, who tendered his thanks on behalf of the great chiefs of the Order, and also on his own account, not only for the reception given to him as a Past Grand Officer, but also for the honour conferred upon him by the W.M. again appointing him as Chaplain of the Lodge. Bro. Simpson followed with some well-chosen remarks, based on the Poet Laureate's ode at the opening of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, and concluded with the words—

"Sharers of our glorious past,
Britons, hold your own!
And God guard all!"

The Immediate Past Master then assumed the gavel, and proposed the health of the Worshipful Master. He was sure the toast would be received by the brethren with the greatest enthusiasm. He had intended to make a somewhat lengthy speech, as he had felt that was necessary to do justice to the subject, but the circumstances of the hour prevented his doing so. The brethren were, of course, aware that their Worshipful Master occupied a position in public life, and, although he had intended and had wished to be present during the whole of the ceremonies that day, his public duties had detained him too late to enable him to keep his original appointment. Their Worshipful Master was truly a representative Westminster man, and as such they greeted him as ruler of the Abbey Lodge. He and the members of his family had been identified with Westminster for many more years than any one in the room could remember, and they might rest assured he would maintain the reputation of their Lodge during his Mastership of it. In the name of the members, and on his own behalf, he wished him a happy and prosperous term of office. The Worshipful Master, in reply, said he had been prepared to meet with a certain amount of cordiality at the hands of his brethren, but he was not prepared for so hearty a reception as had just been accorded to him. He had a feeling of diffidence when he was asked to accept the post he now had the honour to occupy, but after the very hearty welcome with which they had received the words of the Immediate Past Master, and the brilliant reception they had accorded to him, he felt he need have no fear about attempting to perform the duties of the office he had undertaken; while any shortcomings which he might evince would be pardoned by the kind friends whom he saw around him. He offered his apologies for not being present in Lodge in time to fulfil his engagements according to the original programme, and asked them to remember that during his year of office he was a Freemason and nothing more. The only explanation he could give, and which he hoped they would all receive as being a true one, was that circumstances beyond his power of governance prevented him from keeping many engagements into which he had entered. Yet one word more with regard to the non-performance of duties; he hoped they would believe that he thoroughly intended to fulfil the duties appertaining to his proud position as Master of the Lodge, and it was only because of the lateness of the hour that he postponed the performance of those duties until they should have the pleasure and privilege of meeting again. He felt deeply indebted to the Lodge for placing him in the position of Worshipful Master. Reference had been made to his birth and parentage, but not to his education. Had that been properly gone into, they would have found that not only was he a Westminster man, and that his father, and grandfather, had lived in Westminster before him, but that he had received his education in the Collegiate School not far from where he then stood. Though he was not actually born in Westminster—and circumstances compelled it to be otherwise—yet he was christened by the then Rector, the Rev. A. Jennings, by whom he and every other member of his family had been married. He was therefore thoroughly identified with Westminster, and hoped he should continue to be so for the remainder of his days. Occupying for the first time in his life the position of Worshipful Master of a Lodge, he felt it a decided privilege and pleasure. He had no hesitation in saying he was well aware of his shortcomings, but he had only to follow in the footsteps of the two Masters who had been so successful in that chair and he should do well. On the other hand, in consequence of their goodness, his own shortcomings stood out in all the greater contrast. Though he could not compete with them in the discharge of the duties pertaining to the office, yet he could compete with them in admiration of, and reverence for, any general indoctrinism to be discovered in the glorious Ritual belonging to the mystic Craft; and he hoped he had derived from it the means of making himself more extensively useful to his fellow-creatures. When they looked to the great and glorious teachings of their Ritual, they might combat with all the powers of Atheism and Socialism that stared them in the face, and brave any foe that might be brought against them. By following out the principles of Masonry, they would bring into the fold a great number of men who would increase the national strength, and add to the happiness and future greatness of the country. The next toast was the Visitors, and, in proposing it, the Worshipful Master said the Abbey Lodge was a very young one, but during the two short years of its existence it had been presided over by Masters who had performed the duties of the Lodge in so admirable a manner as to win for it the halo of renown it then enjoyed. The members of the Lodge would not wish such an occasion as the present to pass without the presence of Visitors from other Lodges, and he hoped the guests that night would be able to go forth into the Masonic world with a good opinion of the day's proceedings in the Abbey Lodge. He had pleasure in coupling with the toast the names of two distinguished guests, Colonel Edis, who was well known both in the Masonic world and outside of it, and his old friend, the Hon. and Rev. Francis Byng. He hoped that, from what the Visitors had seen of the Abbey Lodge that day, they would be induced to come amongst them on many future occasions. Col. Edis responded in a forcible speech. He especially referred to the fact of there being upwards of fifty installed Masters present at the installation, and to the pleasure the guests felt in seeing the Lodge so prosperous. The Rev. F. Byng followed, making appropriate allusions to his association with the City of Westminster, and to the House of Commons, where he had the pleasure of meeting the Worshipful Master and one of the Past Masters of the Abbey Lodge. Bro. Nairn also responded on behalf of the Visitors, tendering his thanks, and paying a well-merited compliment to the members for the way in which the day's proceedings had been carried out. The health of the Installing Past Master was next proposed by the W.M. The toast was one which needed but few words on his part to commend it to their acceptance, for when they looked at the way in which Bro. Baker had discharged the duties pertaining to his office during the past year, not only the members of the Abbey Lodge, but Visitors from other Lodges would admit that no Lodge had ever possessed a better Master. No brother could have performed his duties with more ability, or in a manner reflecting greater credit upon himself, or more to the satisfaction of the brethren, than he had done. Theirs being a young Lodge, the number of Past Masters was small, and it happened that their I.P.M. was the Installing Officer of the day. He was the second P.M. only of which their Lodge could boast, but he thought the brethren would say that the two Masters who had reigned in the Abbey Lodge had so fulfilled their duties that, while they had raised the character and renown of the Lodge, they had placed a very hard task upon their successors in office. Great and good was their first Master (Bro. Burdett-Coutts), in whose praise not one word too much could be said, for they all knew how ably and energetically he performed his task, and those who had been behind the scenes, and knew what a vast amount of labour devolved upon the Master of a Lodge, were aware of the immense pains which Bro. Baker had bestowed upon the work that had fallen to his lot. He referred to the zeal, energy, and ability with which those duties had been fulfilled, and said Bro. Baker was equally assiduous in other callings in life, whether at the vestry board or in works of Charity. If any movement was started for a particular and deserving object, no one was more prominent in it than their excellent Installing Past Master. He was only echoing the sentiment felt by every brother present when he said he hoped they should long see the Installing Master of that day not only working with them in the Abbey Lodge, but in the grand old parish and city and liberty of Westminster. The W.M. then, in the name of the Lodge, asked Bro. Baker's acceptance of a Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted him by the brethren, as a token of their sincere and earnest hope that he might long be spared to wear it in their midst, and that he might ever look with pride, pleasure, and satisfaction upon the way in which he had always been received in the Lodge, and the many friendships he had made amongst them. He trusted that harmony and friendliness would be cemented in the Lodge, so that in the future they might be brethren, not only in name, but in earnest. He then fastened on Bro. Baker's breast the magnificent gold jewel, on which was enamelled the words, "W.M. Secundus, 1886," underneath which were the Westminster arms, with the number of the Lodge. On the reverse side was engraved the following inscription:—

"Presented to Bro. William Henry Baker P.M., by the brethren of the Abbey Lodge, Westminster, No. 2030, in token of esteem, and of high appreciation of the services rendered by him as their second Master. 10th May 1886."

Bro. Baker returned his sincere thanks. He had that day been placed in two very difficult positions—one in the Lodge, and one out of it. The one in the Lodge was a position that very few Masters could possibly have undertaken; and he apologised for any shortcomings that might have taken place in consequence. He assured them that the message received early in the evening from their W.M. quite unhinged him, and he scarcely knew what to do, or how to proceed. The second difficulty was that which the W.M. had just imposed upon him, and that was to respond, in adequate terms, for the kindly, and he feared too flattering, way in which the toast of his health had been proposed, and for the cordiality with which it had been received by the brethren present. No one was more aware than he himself of his shortcomings during the past year. It was all very well to say no, but he had a difficult position to fill, and he had been obliged to follow one of the most distinguished Masons who had ever graced the Craft. He was followed by another equally distinguished, who would fully maintain the reputation and the honour of the Abbey Lodge. It could not be denied that his position, intermediate between the two distinguished brethren he had named, was a very difficult one to fill, but he trusted he had been enabled to fill it with a certain amount of consideration for the brethren, while he had striven to his utmost to maintain the reputation, honour, and stability of the Abbey Lodge. So much with regard to his personal duties in the chair. One word more, and that was to thank them for the splendid jewel which the Worshipful Master had placed upon his breast that evening. He asked the brethren to believe him when he said he should always esteem that as one of the proudest memorials he could have of the regard and affection which the brethren had evinced towards him as the Master of the Abbey Lodge. He should look upon it as a jewel which he could always wear in any Lodge with pride and satisfaction, and he concluded by again thanking them for the very great honour they had conferred upon him. The Worshipful Master then proposed the Initiates, whom he congratulated upon their admission into the Lodge, and whom, he hoped, would follow heartily and sincerely in the footsteps of their predecessors in the Lodge. Bros. Hodson and Foster having replied, the toast of the Past Masters was given, Bro. Bowman Spink acknowledging it. This was followed by the Charities, acknowledged by Bro. Binckes; the Treasurer and Secretary, the Officers, and finally, the Tyler's toast, which latter brought a very pleasant and successful gathering to a conclusion.

EPPING LODGE, No. 2077.

THE ordinary monthly meeting of this flourishing young Lodge was held on Saturday, the 1st inst., at the Cock Hotel, Epping. There were present Bros. J. Salmon W.M., Acworth I.P.M. and Treas., and J. Woodrow S.W., J. London J.W., Fraser S.D., Barns acting J.D., Hughes I.G., W. Dance Sec., Parkinson Tyler, and a number of members and visitors. The minutes of the Lodge of Emergency and ordinary Lodge meeting were read and confirmed, and the Lodge was opened in the second degree. Bro. Sutton Abbott answered the questions leading to the third, and was entrusted and retired. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and Bro. Sutton Abbott was duly raised to the sublime degree of M.M., the work being most impressively performed by the W.M., who was ably assisted by his Wardens, &c. Bros. Roworth, Osell, Taylor, and Miller were passed Four gentlemen were proposed for initiation. Nothing further offering, the Lodge was closed in due form. The usual banquet followed. The Province has reason to be proud of its new Lodge, and if it continues to prosper in the way it has done since January last, when our esteemed Bro. J. Salmon was installed its second W.M., it cannot fail to become a very strong Lodge, both numerically and financially.

GEORGE PRICE LODGE, No. 2096.

THE regular meetings of this Lodge were resumed on Wednesday, 28th April, at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, when there were present :—Bros. J. D. Langton W.M., H. M. Hobbs S.W., F. T. Ridpath J.W., J. S. Fraser Secretary, E. Samuel S.D., M. C. Laing J.D., W. G. Goode I.G., W. Lane Tyler, W. D. Merritt acting I.P.M., W. G. Oates and S. Oxenham Stewards; also Bros. E. C. Holdsworth, C. Holden, H. Moseley, and D. Guedalla. Visitors—Bros. F. J. Blake P.P.G. Registrar Surrey P.P.G.D. Gloucester, W. H. M. Smith W.M. 463, Maitland H. Dicker W.M. 1470, F. Knight 1185, R. W. Wilson 2054, F. Carter 14, and T. H. Bentley 1248. The minutes of the last meeting, and the emergency meeting held in London in September last were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Dr. Arthur Matthey and Henry David Guedalla and Ernest C. Lemon, and it proving unanimously in their favour, Dr. Matthey and Mr. Guedalla were duly initiated into Freemasonry. The W.M. gave the charge after the initiation. The next business was to elect the W.M., and Bro. H. M. Hobbs was unanimously chosen Master for the ensuing year. Bro. Joseph Langton was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Lane re-elected Tyler. The acting I.P.M. proposed, in appropriate terms, that a Past Master's jewel be presented to the W.M. on his retiring from the chair, and it was carried unanimously. The Audit Committee was then appointed, and after hearty good wishes from the Visitors the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. In the course of the evening the W.M. expressed his regret that his year of office had drawn to a close, and assured the brethren of his appreciation of the high Masonic honour conferred on him in appointing him first Master of the George Price Lodge. He also congratulated the brethren on their choice of W.M. in Bro. Hobbs, who was instrumental in founding the Lodge, and moreover a very hard working Mason. The Master elect, in response, thanked the brethren for the confidence they had placed in him in electing him Master for the ensuing year, and assured them that he would, to the best of his ability, follow in the footsteps of the first Master. The enjoyment of the evening was considerably added to by some capital songs from Bros. Dicker, Bentley, Ridpath, and Guedalla.

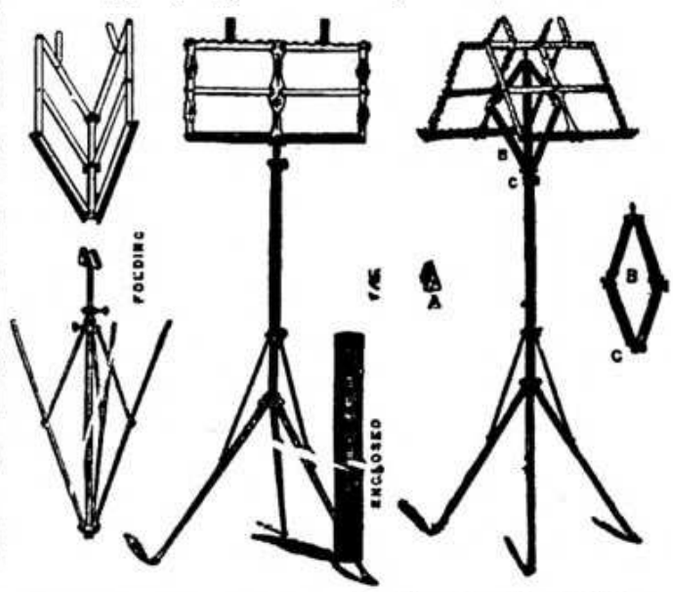
PANMURE CHAPTER, No. 720.



THE twenty-first installation meeting of this excellent working and prosperous Chapter was held at the Stirling Castle Hotel, Church Street, Camberwell, London, on Monday, the 10th instant. Chapter was opened by Excellent Companions J. W. Watts M.E.Z., W. Wilkins H., H. Baldwin J., and the Past Principals then present, after which Comps. below the chair were admitted. Amongst those who attended, in addition to the above named, were Past First Principals James Stevens, M. S. Larkham, T. Poore Scribe E., R. N. Field, B. R. Bryant, J. S. Terry D.C.; and Comps. G. T. Thornes S.N., H. C. Jefferys J. elect, C. Holcroft P.S., H. A. Woodwell, E. Whittaker, G. Treves, W. H. Tilling, S. Richardson, H. Burnell, W. Lane, &c. The Visitors were ex-Comps. S. P. Catterson P.Z. 79 548, H. Maunder Williams J. 1396, and J. Read 279. The minutes of the previous Convocation having been confirmed, Bro. William Lucas, of the Royal Leopold Lodge, was duly exalted into R.A. Masonry. The installation of the Principals for the ensuing year was then undertaken by Ex-Comp. Thomas Poore P.Z. and Scribe E., who, it is needless to say, discharged that duty with all the care and attention to detail for which that veteran Freemason is so justly celebrated. Ex. Comp. H. Wilkins, who we regretted to find still in anything but good health, was installed M.E.Z., Ex. Comp. H. Baldwin H., and Comp. H. C. Jefferys J. The Officers then invested were Ex. Companions Poore P.Z. Scribe E., C. Holcroft Scribe N., B. R. Bryant P.Z. Treas., E. Whittaker P.S., G. Treves 1st A.S., W. H. Tilling 2nd A.S., J. S. Terry P.Z. D.C., and W. Lane Janitor. The report of the Audit Committee, which was of a most encouraging character, was received and adopted, and in the course of the evening the services of the I.P.Z., Ex-Comp. Watts, in promoting during his year the great improvement in the financial condition of the Chapter, were suitably acknowledged by the presentation to him of a handsome P.Z.'s jewel, with appropriate inscription. After the despatch of routine business, the Companions adjourned to banquet, and spent a very pleasant evening after the never yet broken fashion which has characterised the Panmure Chapter throughout its twenty-one years' existence. To this fact Ex-Comp. James Stevens P.Z. bore witness, from practical experience of every such meeting of the Chapter since its consecration; and the visiting Companions, S. B. Catterson, H. Maunder Williams, and J. Read, severally expressed their pleasure in renewing former visits for association with R.A. Masons who so well understood the practice of the principles of the Order in communicating happiness. With earnestly expressed wishes for the restoration to health of their M.E.Z., Ex-Comp. Wilkins, and for the continued improvement of the Chapter, the Companions separated at a reasonable hour, well satisfied with the proceedings of the evening.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

CONSECRATION OF THE GORDON LODGE, No. 2149.

ON Tuesday, 4th instant, the Gordon Lodge was consecrated at Hanley, making the 28th Lodge now held in the Province of Staffordshire. The Gordon is an offshoot of the Menturia, the jubilee of which was celebrated two years ago, and most of the founders of the former are still members of the latter. It appears to have been the great success of the Menturia which rendered a new Lodge in Hanley desirable in the judgment of many of the members, who number nearly 80; and although opinion on the subject was divided, it may be assumed that all opposition to the formation of a new Lodge has been withdrawn, and that the two Lodges will work harmoniously. The founders of the Gordon Lodge have all taken office—namely Bros. John Bromley W.M., J. L. Hamshaw S.W., Henry Palmer J.W., E. E. Scrivener P.P.G.S.D. S.D., J. West Jones J.D., John Warner Treasurer, J. B. Piercy P.P.G.S.W. Secretary, Thomas Taylor P.P.G.S.W. D.C., Frederick Mountford P.G.O. Organist, and J. Charlesworth I.G. Prior to the commencement of the proceedings, Bro. Bromley entertained at luncheon, at his residence, The Mount, Penkhull, the founders of the Lodge and the following brethren:—Col. G. S. Tudor P.G.M., Col. Foster Gough D.P.G.M., Dr. J. Clarke P.G.S.W., C. T. Cavendish P.G.J.W., the Rev. F. Lloyd P.G. Chaplain, W. Cartwright P.G.S., H. C. Faram P.G.S.D., T. K. Pedley P.G. Supt. of Works, T. E. Fowke P.G.D.C., E. Croydon P.G.A. Sec., G. W. Walker P.G.S.B., J. Ingamells 460 P.P.G.J.D., E. B. Jackson W.M. 418, D. Smith W.M 637, F. Barlow W.M. 546, G. C. Kent P.M. 546, W. Savage P.M. 451, J. B. Ashwell J.W. 637, the Rev. F. E. Waters Chaplain 418, and Lawton 1031. At half-past one o'clock in the afternoon there was a large assemblage of brethren at the Mechanics' Hall, Hanley, where the interesting ceremony of consecration was to take place. In addition to those whose names are given above, there were present Bros. F. Derry 539 P.P.G.S.W., W. Hulse P.P.G.S.W., T. Bickley 418 P.P.G.J.W., A. L. Broad 460 P.P.G.J.W., R. Tooth 637 P.P.G.R., F. W. Tomkinson 451 P.P.G.S.D., F. W. Grove 1192 P.P.G.J.D., W. Maskew 98 P.P.G. Supt. of Works, W. Needam 966 P.P.G. Supt. of Works, J. S. Crapper 418 P.P.G.A.D.C., R. Dain 98 P.P.G.A.D.C., S. Bennett 98 P.P.G.A.D.C., J. F. Pepper 482 P.P.G.A.D.C., J. C. Clemesha 966 P.P.G.S.B., F. Weston 98 P.P.G.S.B., W. Vernon 156 P.P.G.S.B., T. Unwin 637 P.P.G.P., J. Mottram 726 P.G.A.P., G. Woolf W.M. 98, S. Parkes W.M. 419, J. T. Snape W.M. 460, W. Davenport W.M. 966, J. Stevenson W.M. 1942, F. J. Milner P.M. 966, G. Chell P.M. 966, J. Clark P.M. 526, W. Brown W.M. 347, A. J. Wallen P.M. 802, J. S. Furnival P.M. 533, J. Stringer P.M. 418, B. S. Brough P.M. 546, R. Hilditch P.M. 98, &c., there being altogether upwards of 120 brethren present. The ceremony was performed by the P.G.M. Col. Tudor, who having opened the Lodge, addressed the brethren on the nature of the meeting, and Bro. Croydon, as A.P.G. Sec., stated that the founders had petitioned for permission to establish a Lodge to be called the Gordon, and they were anxious to have the Lodge consecrated and the Officers installed. The warrant of the Grand Lodge, which was signed by the Earl of Lathom as D.G.M., approved the name, numbered the Lodge 2149, and specified Hanley as the place of meeting. Bro. John Bromley was designated W.M., and Bros. Hamshaw and Palmer Wardens. The other founders having signified their approval of the Officers named, and promised to comply with the laws of the Grand Lodge of England, Bro. the Rev. F. Lloyd delivered an oration on the nature and principles of the Order. Having referred to the proceedings of the meetings of Provincial Grand Lodge at Lichfield a year ago, and at Wolverhampton in October last, he said they had now obeyed the commands of their superiors, and mustered round the standard in the metropoli of the Pottery towns to discharge an agreeable and high duty. The solemn service of that day should lead their minds through the paths of serious contemplation to remember on what principles and for what purposes their ancient Order was founded. Freemasonry had its bitter enemies and its doubting despisers. Some there were who complained it was made a substitute for religion, whereas it was only the handmaid to her fair graces. Others presumed the labours of Masons were trifling, absurd mysteries, or profane mummeries, whereas there was no subject existing within the range and grasp of the human intellect into which the science of Freemasonry did not enter in the pursuit of wisdom and knowledge. Some ridiculed the secrets of Freemasons, declaring them to be either hurtful to society or wrong in themselves, whereas those secrets were bonds of their mutual fidelity, by which they obliged themselves "to trace wisdom and follow virtue." Time was when the members of the Craft were denounced as dangerous, and every man of eminence known to be a Mason was called upon to renounce his connection with the societies. But in the face of all opposition the Fraternity was calm, and the sun of Masonry had dispersed the clouds which darkened her sky so long. Without territorial possessions, without any other coercing power than that of morality and virtue, Freemasonry had survived the wreck of mighty empires, and resisted the destroying hand of time. No other institution could be compared with it. Every other society sank into insignificance when placed by the side of Masonry, Christianity alone excepted. Like Gray's virtuous peasant, Freemasonry kept the noiseless tenour of its way, and rejoiced in the unsullied happiness of doing good. Why did Freemasonry first begin to exist, and why had the institution been thus preserved? Masons' work began with the creation. To understand the measures of weight and light and sound—to unravel, seize upon, and comprehend those unchanging laws by which the earth, the sun, the moon, the planets were sustained in space—to follow up the changes of seasons, and in every step of the investigation, as the intellect climbed from lofty truths to truths still more lofty, to pause in profound admiration, to feel the Creator close to the creature, and to adore—this was the first aim of Masonry, this its task, ever fresh, never ended—a science teeming with new results and adding incentive after incentive to praise and glorify the Great Architect of the Universe. Freemasonry had been preserved because it instructed its members to worship their Almighty Maker, to honour and obey the sovereign of their country, to be peaceful in their stations, diligent in their callings, honest in their dealings, respectful towards their superiors, gentle and condescending to their inferiors, merciful towards their enemies, kind and obliging in all the duties of their common life. Such was the institution which God had preserved to the world, unlimited in its numbers, and scattered over every land and kingdom. The work of the Fraternity to-day was to be true to the original character of the Order; to continue to follow the God of Nature through all the wonderful variety of His works; and to keep the silence and observe the sacred rules imposed upon the Craft by Solomon. It might be said by some scoffer, if Masonry be such a pure and ennobling science, should not all Masons be wise and good and temperate and self-denying, full of piety and good works? The answer was that the fitness of any system was not to be tried and condemned because of unworthiness in some. If any men had been led by an impatient curiosity, without higher motive to place unhallowed feet on the tesselated pavement, if any had turned the hallowed purposes of Masonry into mere convivial meetings, if any had been content with merely acquiring superficial acquaintance with the Craft, let not the system itself be charged with their perversions, their sins or their folly; an unworthy brother would perhaps have been a worse man if he had not been a Mason. He concluded with an exhortation to the brethren to use all the passing hours of this life in works of charity towards their fellow-men and in piety towards God. The Chaplain then read the 1st to the 16th verses of the 2nd Chapter of 2 Chronicles. The Lodge board having been uncovered, the P.G.M., the D.P.G.M., and the P.G. Wardens perambulated the Lodge, and at the appointed times scattered the emblems of plenty, of joy and happiness, and of unity. During the greater part of the proceedings music of a solemn and impressive character was introduced, the P.G.O. (Bro. Mountford) presiding at the harmonium. After the consecration ceremony the P.G.M. vacated the chair, and the W.M. designate was installed in a very able manner by Bro. J. L. Hamshaw. After the business of the Lodge, about 60 of the brethren adjourned to the Saracen's Head Hotel, where an excellent banquet was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Hassall. The W.M. presided, and at the conclusion of the dinner he proposed the loyal toasts and the health of Earl Carnarvon (Pro G.M.), the Earl of Lathom (D.G.M.), and other Officers of Grand Lodge. Bro. Foster Gough appropriately responded. Bro. Hamshaw, in eulogistic terms, proposed the health of the P.G.M., which was drunk with great cordiality. Col. Tudor, in responding, acknowledged the heartiness with which he had always been welcomed in North Staffordshire. He spoke of his desire to discharge the duties of his office faithfully and impartially, observing that, with the very best intentions, it was sometimes difficult—not to say impossible—to give satisfaction to all. In all that he did he endeavoured to do that which would be to the advantage of Freemasonry. He (Col. Tudor) then proposed the health of the W.M. and success to the Gordon Lodge, expressing himself gratified with everything he had seen in relation to the Lodge that day, and his firm belief that the Lodge would prosper. The toast was well received. Bro. Bromley acknowledged the toast. He disclaimed any desire on the part of the members of the Gordon Lodge to damage the Menturia, whose interest he still had at heart. But he fully believed there was ample room for both Lodges, and that both would prosper. He proposed the toast of the Menturia Lodge, coupling with it the name of Bro. W. H. Hales, who responded, remarking that he believed the Menturia would continue to maintain the high position it had held for half a century. He trusted that each Lodge would have a large accession of members, for he was sure there was room for both. Bro. the Rev. F. Lloyd proposed the health of Bro. Hamshaw, installing Master, who spoke of the impressiveness of the Masonic ceremonies, and said all his Masonic knowledge had been gained at the Menturia Lodge. Bro. Charlesworth proposed the health of Bro. Foster Gough and the other Officers of the P.G. Lodge, present and past, for whom Bros. Croydon and Lloyd responded. Bro. Palmer proposed The Visitors, and the toast was acknowledged by Bros. F. J. Milner, J. Webberley, and T. K. Pedley. Bro. Jackson prosented the toast of the Officers of the Gordon Lodge, on whose behalf Bro. J. W. Jones returned thanks. The health of the P.G. Chaplain, with thanks to him for his splendid oration at the consecration, was proposed by the W.M., and acknowledged by Bro. the Rev. F. Lloyd. Bro. T. Taylor proposed the Masonic Charities. He remarked that in round figures the Masons of the country subscribed £50,000 a year for their three central charitable institutions. In addition, there were many valuable local institutions, including the Staffordshire Masonic Charitable Association, the advantages of which he pointed out. Bro. F. Derry, whose name was coupled with the toast, observed that a grand work was being done by Staffordshire in support of the Charities, and foremost in contributing to that result was the Menturia. The Tyler's toast concluded the list. The speeches, which were brief, were interspersed with some excellent vocal music by the Silverdale Glee party, and the evening was spent very pleasantly.—Staffordshire Advertiser.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

Holiday Haunts in East Anglia. Stratford: Benjamin Perry, Great Eastern Company's Works.

Here, in the form of a neat little sixpenny handbook, we have presented to us a selection of articles which have appeared in the public Press on the holiday resorts in Norfolk, Suffolk, and Essex, embellished with engravings of the most favourite resorts in each of the three counties named. We prefer this means of disseminating information respecting "holiday haunts" to the stereotyped "guide books" which are to be found in almost every little watering place or sequestered nook which can boast of a local scribe. In such cases the "guide" is invariably an advertising puff, in order to attract visitors, who fail, on arrival there, to realise the glowing descriptions of the author; but from the pens of disinterested correspondents, writing to the newspapers, there is a far better opportunity of judging of the character of the localities that are indicated, and of the best means of utilising one's time most profitably and enjoyably. This little brochure comes very opportunely just at this season, when Paterfamilias is arranging to send "the wife and the dear girls" away on their annual trip; and to those who are revelling in agreeable anticipations of that sort, we cordially commend the work before us. It is not our province to recount the experience of these correspondents of our contemporaries, which are reproduced, "by permission," in the pages of the handbook; suffice to say, if the pleasant explorations of our confrères are read, they will prove an inducement to many to wend their way to the bracing and breezy Eastern Counties where, both at the seaside and inland there are attractions as varied as they are numerous. The articles are capitally written, in a chatty vein, and will serve up as matter on which to feast the imagination—or recollection—by those who are either unable to visit these favoured haunts, or who, maybe, have been there in the course of their summer peregrinations on holiday bent.

THE NEW OXLEY (CANADA) RANCHE COMPANY, LIMITED.

The prospectus of this Company, which appears on another page, has just been issued, and from it our readers will perceive that it is intended to raise a capital of £120,000 in 10,000 shares of £12 each, the object being to purchase and carry on the business of the Oxley Ranche, in Alberta Province, N.W.T., Canada. The ranche was established four years ago, and it will strike intending investors that, with such names as the Earl of Lathom D.G.M., Mr. A. Staveley Hill, Q.C. M.P., and Mr. George Baird as the largest shareholders and directors, acting in conjunction with other gentlemen eminent in the commercial world, the undertaking is of a most solid and substantial character. The largest number of shares (3,333) allowed by the rules of the Stock Exchange will be allotted, with £9 10s per share, credited as paid up, to the vendors, in part payment of the purchase money. The directors and their friends have applied for 1,700 shares, and they will be allotted in full, at par. The balance of 4,967 shares are now offered for subscription at par. We are informed that up to the present time the business of the ranche, which is 300,000 acres in extent, has been highly successful and lucrative, the herd having been carefully improved in grade by the admixture of young bulls of the highest class, specially imported from England. The conditions under which the land is held under lease from the Canadian Government are exceedingly favourable, and the profits, both in cattle and horses, have been decidedly good. The ranche is under the most practical experienced management, and, taking a comprehensive calculation of the prospectus issued, we should say the investment is one which should be carefully weighed by those who are casting about them for a safe and profitable investment.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment.—Travellers to and from distant climes would do well to bear in mind that those changes and the altered diet and surroundings of their lives entail manifold risks to health. Occasions are sure to arise in which they will need a remedy such as these renowned Pills and Ointment, and no traveller by land or sea should ever fail to have a supply at hand. Thus he may truly be said to have a physician always at his call for the various emergencies of travel. Chills and fevers should be promptly treated, and the printed directions should be carefully studied at the commencement of any illness, for Holloway's remedies can be safely used in all climates.

THE THEATRES, &c.

The Grand.—We have all heard of the devoted Browning Society, whose mission is the elucidation of the mystic utterances of its titulary divinity; and now Shelley, whose name was erst Anathema Maranatha, may rejoice in a band of devotees celebrating "pious orgies" in his praise. To Dr. Furnival the honour is due of founding the society, and it numbers in its ranks such names as Stofford Brook, Mrs. Glyn-Dallas, W. M. Rosetti, Mrs. Kendal, Prof. Napier, Miss Alma Murray, Hermann Vezin, a multitude of literary luminaries and Committees of Collegiate Libraries and the Library Committee of Guildhall. "So does the whirligig of time bring about its revenges." Dr. Furnival and his Committee from the beginning were determined that the world should have the opportunity of seeing on the stage Shelley's redoubtable tragedy, "The Cenci." Miss Alma Murray and Mr. Hermann Vezin warmly seconded the project, and especially Miss Murray, who proceeded to use all her influence to warm the sympathies of West End managers in the undertaking; but the W. and S.W. sense of propriety proved too severe, and it was only among the hardy Northmen of Islington that she found the requisite courage. Mr. Wilmot, of the Grand, offered his theatre on the most generous conditions, and the play was produced last Friday afternoon. "The High Street" has rarely seen such an entanglement of broughams and barouches, hansoms and sublime family chariots, as were struggling towards the theatre doors at two o'clock; and it was amusing enough to see the bewilderment of these wanderers from afar as they appealed hopelessly to each other while endeavouring to find their appointed places. Before the curtain drew up, the whole building was densely crowded. A prologue had been written for the occasion by Dr. Todhunter, in which we heard something about the "tinsel woes of the mummer's art," about "tawdry properties," about Mr. Browning in the stalls like "an Archangel holding scales," and manipulating a crucible as a kind of sanatory inspector for the occasion, until the hour (two o'clock) peals out 'The Cenci.'" Mr. Outram had a very difficult task in struggling with his prologue; but wherefore wrap himself up in that great grey dressing-gown? The public is generally inclined to resent a prologue, but "The Cenci" public accepted Dr. Todhunter's patiently, and warmly applauded his allusion to their Browning's birthday, that day, viz., 7th of May. So much has been written in our contemporaries about the morality, or want of it, in the tragedy, that we need not discuss it; but this, however, we will say—that the presentment of sin and crime is moral or immoral only from the point of view. The tale "Dame Aux Camellias" is surely not a moral story. The tale of "The Woman taken in Adultery" is one of the most sublime homilies. Art should surely hold the mirror up to Nature. The beholder must draw what lesson he can; Art should not pretend to improve the occasion. In "The Cenci," Art, great, soul-thrilling and pathetic as her power is, has unhappily lifted her mirror, not to reflect Nature, but a monstrous moral abortion. So that whilst we are thrilled by the poet's and the actor's genius, we resent the spells they throw over us. We feel that the Court Cenci whom Shelley, at war with the world, threw as a defiance at the world he hated—this Count Cenci whom Mr. Hermann Vezin makes to live and breathe, till we accept the poet's nightmare as a thing of life; yet we know it is all a nightmare, all the historical documents notwithstanding. A two-headed nightingale or a pig-faced lady are as fit subjects for Art as the hero of Shelley's tragedy. In Mr. Hermann Vezin's hands this monster is lifted into a Satanic grandeur; rather an embodiment of the spirit of evil seems visible on the scene, than the wretched human monster we associate with Count Francesco's name. If some future Byron Society should ever put "Cain" upon the stage, may we be there to see Mr. Vezin as the Lucifer. How sublime would be his presentment of that abyss of malignity and despair! The Beatrice of Miss Alma Murray was assuredly a revelation of that lady's powers. Her tender dignity and sweet womanliness, even amid her awful degradation and despair, touched the horror of the scene as with the tenderness of soft music. How great her power over the emotion was shown by the complete hold she maintained on the rapt audience during the long Fourth and Fifth Acts, when the whole weight of the play rested on her. She was almost able to conceal the wholly unsatisfactory development of the story after the death of the Count. Shelley most inconsequently makes Beatrice prevaricate and shrink with pitiful cowardliness from the thought of death, when she has declared that life was an unendurable burden. In these same acts we should quite lose the Beatrice we have loved but for Miss Murray's skill in preserving the same sweet embodiment, despite the words put forth from her lips. The cast of the play was efficient. Especially deserving of praise was Mr. Mark Ambient, whose Bernardo Cenci was instinct with tender, youthful fervour; a fitting brother of the sweet Beatrice. Mr. Foss was excellent as a "first murderer," especially in the scene when brought writhing from the rack. Mr. Outram, as a villainous priest-lover, showed an intelligent grasp of a difficult part. The scenery was good, and the costumes in excellent taste. "The Cenci" is too monotonous in its gloom ever to take a place as an acting play, but its great power, and the opportunities it gives in its leading parts, would always make it interesting as a dramatic tour de force.

Royalty.—When Mr. Dion Boucicault produced his comedy "Led Astray" in 1874, it will ever be remembered for the remarkable acting of Mr. Charles Thorne, and the success of Miss Helen Barry, who for the first time appeared in a part requiring boldness and strong nervous power. Miss Barry made her first appearance since her return from America last Wednesday week in this popular "Led Astray," playing the same part as when the piece was first produced. Miss Barry has played the character of Armande Chandoce so often that she has made it her own, and the way she portrays the romantic, neglected wife, admits of but little room for improvement. With admirable skill Miss Barry suggests Armande's yearnings for the sympathy which is denied her by those from whom she expects it, and depicts with considerable force the various phases of her struggle against the temptation that besets her. At other points she has invested the part with fresh and effective touches; she lays more stress on the wife's endeavour to hide from those around her her pensive sorrow, and the existence of a weakness which never really approaches guilt. All through the piece Miss Barry's part is very interesting, and the applause which is nightly bestowed on her testifies the satisfaction which she gives. Mr. H. R. Teesdale does not make the husband anything but a cowardly sophist, who expects from his wife that fidelity which he does not himself display. Mr. Frederick Lewis causes considerable humour as the good-natured Hector Placido, while the Mount Gosline of Mr. W. T. Hemsley is good. The part of the novelist, George de Lesparre, is entrusted to Mr. Neville Doone, and he plays with that seriousness which the part requires. Mr. Peyton's Irish accent as Major O'Hara is very funny. Miss Gertrude Tempest as Mathilde is somewhat awkward, but withal she acts good naturedly. The part of Susanna O'Hara is made the most of by Miss Grace Armytage, while the two mothers are represented by Miss Marie Davis and Mrs. De Solla. The piece is splendidly staged, and during its short run a success may undoubtedly be predicted for it.

Toole's.—After running for nearly three months with but little success, "Faust and Loose" has had to be withdrawn. Mr. Toole could not get playgoers to forget the unsuccessful first two or three nights, and as a consequence the burlesque of "Faust" failed to fill the little house in King William Street. Mr. Manager has paid the penalty of producing such a piece before it was ready, and has now put on "The Serious Family," an adaptation from the French, by Morris Barnett, which he had previously brought forward at a matinée. It is nearly forty years since Buckstone appeared as the canting gentleman, who makes such disturbances in the Torrens household, and it might, on account of age, claim to be original to the average playgoer; but, admitting this, public taste has changed so much that it is doubtful if its story will interest an audience of the present day. The husband, who is so borne down by the will of his wife and mother-in-law, that he has to play the hypocrite at home, and carry his gaiety abroad, in the way it is managed in "The Serious Family" is not likely to be over popular. The Aminadab Sleek of Mr. Toole is a part that the popular actor manages to identify himself with, and he is never once betrayed into revealing his own individuality. Mr. E. W. Ward as the husband, is exceedingly good, but looks too manly to be ruled by his wife and mother-in-law. Mr. Billington plays with dash as the Irish captain, who is the means of bringing cheerfulness to "the Serious Family." Miss Marie Linden is excellent as the widow Mrs. Delmain, and Miss Emily Thorne admirably portrays the mother-in-law. "Ici on Parle Français" is the after piece, and this induces considerable hilarity.

THIS Company is formed to purchase and carry on the business of the Oxley Ranche in Alberta Province, N.W.T. Canada.

The Ranche was established in 1882, and has been carried on by a private Company, of which the Earl of Lathom, Mr. Staveley Hill, Q.C., M.P., and Mr. George Baird are the largest Shareholders.

The business of this Ranche having been proved, during its conduct by the private Company, to be a highly lucrative and successful one, it has now been arranged to transfer it to a public Company, so as to enable the different interests to be determined and the affairs of the private Company closed.

The Ranche and ranges are situate within 70 miles of Calgary, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and were selected personally in 1882 by Mr. Staveley Hill, and leases were granted to him by the Canadian Government.

The Property is 300,000 acres in extent, and is held under lease direct from the Canadian Government, having 17 years still to run, at the almost nominal rent of £600 per annum, or about a halfpenny per acre. The grass is excellent, and the climate, both in winter and summer, is eminently suitable for Cattle raising.

The Herd has been gradually and carefully formed since 1882, (the last purchase being a considerable number of young cows about a year ago), and has, since its formation, been greatly improved in grade by the judicious mixture of Bulls of the highest class, specially imported from England.

The Herd, numbering, as per Herd Books 11,129 head, composed, approximately, as follows:—Cows, 6,283; Steers, 1,912; 2 Year-Olds and Yearlings, 2,534; Bulls, 400, is now fully matured, and is in the most favourable condition for giving the largest return of profit.

For the protection of the Company, however, the Herd is to be purchased as containing 10,000 head only, at the price of 45 dols. per head, which number the Vendors guarantee, and will make good in case of deficiency, the Company being entitled to any excess over the 10,000 head without further payment. The Calves dropped since the autumn "round-up," and unbranded, are not to be charged for.

Herd, 10,000, as above, at 45 dolls.			450,000 dolls.
Horses	For Ranche work, 90 Brood mares - - Stallions - - Young stock - -	600, at 70 dolls.	42,000 dolls.
Ranche Buildings and Outfit			40,000 dolls.
		Equal to £110,000 -	532,000 dolls.

These are moderate prices, and readily obtainable in the same district for Cattle and Horses of equal Class.

These Northern Cattle must not be confounded with those of Texas. They are for the most part well bred Shorthorns of a different class, and the selling price of the Beef Steers is practically double.

The Beef Steers sold from the Herd during the last two seasons have realised an average of 60 dols. per head, delivered on the Ranche; the chief buyer being the Canadian Government, for the Indian Supply Department, and the Mounted Police.

The Horse Breeding is profitable. The unbroken Horses readily sell for 90 dols. per head, and sales of broken Horses have been made as high as 250 dols. per head.

The Ranche Buildings and Corrals are of an unusually substantial and complete character, and much superior to such Buildings generally.

Payment of the purchase money, as shown above, £110,000, is to be made as to £20,000 in 6 per cent. Debentures (or cash, the proceeds of the same), as to £31,663 10s in the shares of this issue (£9 10s credited as paid up on each £12 share) and the balance in cash.

Mr. STAVELEY HILL selected the Ranche, and obtained the lease from the Canadian Government in 1882, and again visited and resided for some time on the property in 1883 and 1884, and Lord LATHOM visited it in 1883. The property is fully described in Mr. STAVELEY HILL'S well-known book, "From Home to Home."

The Manager, Mr. PINHORNE, who resides on the Ranche, is thoroughly competent, and fully understands the business, and possesses the entire confidence of the present Shareholders. Previously to his going out to this Ranche, he had considerable experience of Stock-raising and agriculture in England.

The Cattle having been purchased by actual count on delivery, the shortage of numbers, so frequent in the cases of purchases by English and Scotch Companies holding Ranches in the United States, cannot occur.

Another great disadvantage from which many of these Companies suffered was that they possessed little or no land of their own, either freehold or leasehold. This Company has its lease, as before described, direct from the Government, with a practical certainty of a renewal at the end of the 17 years.

The Directors entertain the highest opinion of the prospects of this Company, and believe that the shares form a safe and lucrative investment.

The Vendors, THE OXLEY RANCHE, LIMITED, who are the promoters of the Company, pay the whole expenses of the formation of the Company—printing, advertising, and Solicitor's costs up to the allotment of the Shares.

The only Contract entered into is dated 7th May 1886, between THE OXLEY RANCHE, LIMITED, of the one part, and THE NEW OXLEY (CANADA) RANCHE COMPANY, LIMITED, of the other part, and this Contract, and the Memorandum and Articles of Association may be seen at the Offices of the Company.

Prospectuses can be obtained at the Bankers, the Brokers, the Solicitors, and at the Offices of the Company. Applications for Shares may be made on the form enclosed with the prospectus, and sent with the deposit to the bankers, or direct to the Secretary.

In cases where no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned to the applicant in full.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

FOR the second time during the current year the Freemasons of England have shown, in the most practical manner, their desire to maintain that reputation for benevolence which has long been associated with them, in connection with the three great charitable Institutions of the Order. The Ninety-eighth Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Wednesday, under the presidency of General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., P.G.W., Provincial Grand Master for Surrey, and the result of the appeals to the craft of which that meeting was the climax, was an addition to the funds of the Institution of £13,029 3s 0d. This total is something like a thousand pounds short of what was announced at the corresponding Festival last year, but even then it is a grand sum to raise as a year's contribution to one of the three Charities of Freemasonry, especially when we consider it in connection with the equally satisfactory total of £15,000 raised for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in February last. The total thus far for the year is therefore £28,030, and if we may anticipate that there will be no falling off in the support given to the Boys' School, the Festival of which will be held at Brighton in a month's time, this year's total will bear favourable comparison with any which has preceeded it.

The £13,029 raised on Wednesday was the result of the efforts of two hundred and seventy-four stewards, four of whom have yet to make a return, so that the average of the lists sent in is upwards of £48 5s 0d. The honour of the largest list is on this occasion secured by a Provincial Steward—Bro. B. J. Thompson, representing the Province of Northumberland—who collected £905 2s 0d. He is followed by one of the Surrey Stewards—Bro. Joseph D. Langton—who, although only representing a Private Lodge, the George Price, No. 2096, brings up the grand sum of £407 18s 6d. To this brother must, we think, be accorded the palm, for while his only competitor had the whole of the Province of Northumberland from which to solicit subscriptions, Bro. Langton had only a single Lodge, and that too a very young one, in a Province which had twenty-one other Stewards at work, among them the Provincial Grand Master and his Deputy.

One hundred and twenty-four of the Stewards appear on the London list: thirteen as members of the House Committee, eighty-nine as representatives of Lodges, and twenty-two as unattached. The totals collected by these brethren were £679 10s, £4,190 19s 6d, and £523 13s respectively; £5,394 2s 6d in all. Bro. Bernhard Kauffmann heads the London Stewards, as far as total is concerned, his list, as representative of the King's Cross Lodge, No. 1732, amounting to £164 17s. He is followed by Bro. Alfred R. W. Powles, with a list of £153 6s from the Selwyn Lodge, No. 1901; and then by Bro. George Coop, from the Queen's Westminster Lodge, No. 2021, with a round £150. Thus we have three Lodges, all comparatively young, heading the list of London contributors to the festival, and sending up amongst them close on £470. This is an answer—and a most satisfactory one—to the large body of Masons who lament the extension of Freemasons' Lodges in the Metropolis; who affirm that the granting of a warrant is a mistake, and that each one granted for years past has been detrimental to the interests of the Order. Fourth on the roll of London Stewards is Bro. Frank Richardson, a member of the House Committee of the Institution, who has been successful in securing towards this Festival a total of £138 10s. He is followed by Comp. Charles Tayler, of the Eccleston Chapter, with a list of £120 15s, who in turn is succeeded by Bro. K. R. Murchison, a Steward from the Friends in Council Lodge, No. 1383, who figures for £103. There are three brethren who share among themselves the honours of the next rank, lists of one hundred guineas each having been subscribed by Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall (a member of the House Committee of the Institution), Brother T. B. Daniell (Merchant Navy Lodge, No. 781), and Bro. Francis W. Stamp (Perfect Ashlar Lodge, No. 1178), while two other brethren, C. H. Bardouleau and Rowland Hirst bring up a similar amount as joint representatives of their Lodge, the Langthorne, No. 1421. Bro. Chas. Hammerton, another member of the House Committee, answers for a total of £100, as also does Bro. W. T. P. Montgomery, of Peckham Lodge, No. 1475. These twelve lists bring us to the end of the three-figure totals from the Metropolis, and as usual we here conclude our remarks on this section of the Festival. It must not, however, be assumed that we imagine anything under one hundred pounds as being unworthy of mention; on the contrary, we should much like to offer a few words of congratulation to each of the other Stewards individually. It is only the necessity for keeping within the limits of the space at our disposal which compels us to draw a line, and that line has usually been at the close of the three figure lists.

We now turn to the Provinces, first among which comes, as should be the case, the district over which the chairman of the day presides as Provincial Grand Master. Surrey on this occasion sent up a magnificent sum, the total of its contributions, at the hands of twenty-two Stewards, being £1,334 4s 6d, but we leave further consideration of this amount, as well as other Provincial contributions, until next week.

THE Ninety-eighth Anniversary Festival of this Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen Street, London, under the presidency of General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., P.G.W., Provincial Grand Master for Surrey. As stated above, the result was a grand addition to the funds of the Institution, and one of which the Chairman, the Stewards, and all interested in the Charity, have every reason to be proud. The usual banquet was served by Messrs. Spiers and Pond, Limited, and at its conclusion the toasts of the evening were honoured. It was not merely as loyal subjects, said the Chairman, that those present should drink the health of Her Majesty the Queen, who had ruled over the nation wisely and well for close on fifty years, but also as Freemasons, for they could but remember how intimately the Queen was associated with the Order. Her father and three of her sons had associated themselves with the Craft, while many other branches of her family were likewise members of it. She was also chief Patroness of the Institution the Festival of which they were then celebrating. The toast was followed by that of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., Grand Patron and President of the Institution;

the Princess of Wales, Grand Patroness; and the other members of the Royal family. The Chairman thought it was very fortunate that many years ago the Prince of Wales was persuaded to become Grand Master of England. He had recently heard of an American newspaper which suggested that the initiation of the son of His Royal Highness was a hole and corner affair, and that it ought to have taken place in a larger assembly of Masons. His Royal Highness was Master of the Royal Alpha Lodge, and he appealed to those present whether it was not perfectly natural that the Prince should desire to initiate his son in the Lodge over which he presided. He had the privilege of being present at that initiation, and hoped Prince Albert Victor would follow in the footsteps of his Royal father. The toast of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers was next submitted. The Chairman said this was really the proposition of his own health, but with that modesty which at all times distinguished Freemasons he could not omit giving it. He believed that all the Grand Officers tried to do their duty as well as they could. The position was sometimes an anomaly, all there was to do being to set a good example to the younger brethren, which he hoped and believed they did. With the toast was coupled the name of Brother Sir William Clark, District Grand Master of Victoria, who he felt sure must have been pleased, like others who had recently arrived from the Colonies, at the welcome which had been given them in connection with the Exhibition just opened in London. Brother Sir W. Clark felt highly complimented in having his name associated with those included in the toast. He should be very glad when they had an Institution in Victoria similar to that the Festival of which they were then celebrating, and he did not think it would be long before such would be established. The brethren of Victoria had already done their best as far as a Charitable Fund was concerned, but had not as yet been rich enough to endow an Educational Institution. When he was previously in England the brethren of the Colony had asked him if Lady Clark would take charge of an orphan girl who had been educated in the School. They took her, and found her a well-educated and well-conducted girl. She had since met with great success in Victoria. Bro. T. W. Tew, Prov. G. Master West Yorkshire, proposed the health of the Chairman. General Brownrigg had occasionally visited West Yorkshire, where the brethren were always proud to meet him in their Lodges. Bro. Tew then traced the career of "Our next Chairman," both military and Masonic, and concluded by formally submitting the toast. General Brownrigg, having replied, submitted the toast of the evening—Success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, coupled with the health of the Treasurer. He briefly traced the rise of the Charity, and said it was utterly impossible for any one who had not seen the School to form any conception of what it was. There was neatness, regularity, and perfect discipline connected with it such as he had never seen at any other school, and he had had some experience in looking after schools of different sorts. The drill of the girls was the most perfect he had ever witnessed. On one occasion he had been asked to say something to the girls as to what he had seen. He told them that in his soldier days he had seen the manœuvres of almost every military nation in the world, but had never seen anything to equal the beauty of their drill. He was an old adjutant, but had never seen anything so perfect as the wheeling and counter-marching of the girls at Battersea. He did not tell them that, but he did say they were the prettiest battallion he had ever seen. He urged the brethren to support this excellent School, mentioning that a very good plan was to put down their children's names as Governors and Life Governors. He had qualified the son of his old age—who was that day four weeks old—as a Governor of the Institution. Bro. H. B. Marshall, P.G. Treasurer and Vice-President of the Institution, replied. He felt that the Treasurers of the Masonic Charitable Institutions were much to be envied. His experience of Treasurers outside of Freemasonry was that very frequently they had to provide the treasure, rather than take care of it. A very different state of things existed with them, and he submitted it could not be too often or too widely made known or repeated for the benefit of managers of Charitable Institutions outside Masonry that the sumptuous banquet they had just partaken of was not provided at the cost of the Institution, but out of the pockets of the brethren. It was also the custom of the Stewards to commemorate the generosity of the brethren by inviting the children to an annual outing at the Crystal Palace. Very gratefully, on behalf of the Executive Committee, did he acknowledge the generosity of the brethren in entrusting them with funds sufficient to maintain and educate adequately to fight the battle of life the 243 girls that had been committed to their care, and they looked forward to the time when, by a continuance and by an extension of generosity they might still further spread the benefits of the Institution. Bro. F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary of the Institution, then read the list of amounts subscribed, of which we give full details in our present issue, after which the Chairman proposed the toast of the other Masonic Charities—and success to them, to which Bro. Terry, Secretary of the Benevolent Institution, responded. The Stewards of the Day and the Ladies having been toasted the proceedings were brought to a conclusion.

CONSECRATION THE LODGE OF HOPE No. 2153.

ON Wednesday afternoon, the 12th instant, the interesting and impressive ceremony of constituting a new Lodge was performed in the Thorngate Hall, Gosport, by the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master (Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.), who was accompanied by several Provincial Officers. There was a good muster of the members of the new Lodge, which has been established more particularly for members of the Services and of visiting brethren. The P.G.M. having taken the chair and appointed the Wardens pro tem, delivered an address, remarking that the application for the warrant for the Lodge indicated a desire to promote and extend the benefits of Freemasonry. There would, it was perfectly true, be little cause for congratulation were there any doubts as to the success of the Lodge in the future, or as to the sincere wish of the brethren who were joining it to promote it. That, he trusted, they might dismiss from their minds. No doubt the brethren of Gosport, emulating their brethren in Portsmouth, who had such a number of Lodges, were desirous of extending their Lodges, which was not surprising, considering the growth that Gosport was making. That being the case, and a number of brethren having signified their wish to join in promoting a new Lodge, he had every desire to assist them by all means in his power, and therefore he had come there that day, it being one that he thought would probably be convenient to them, and on which he could be spared from the House of Commons, though the business on most days was rather of an entrancing nature. What was the work on which they were engaged? Was theirs a society based on the principles of yesterday? No, it was a society based on principles which had existed for thousands of years. It was curious that almost from day to day things were brought to light which showed that Freemasonry must have existed even for a longer time than they had an idea of. They had remains of buildings brought to light which bore traces of Masonic emblems, showing that in those days there were brethren who desire to perpetuate their society. It had been found that in countries which they had no idea had any contact with the civilised portion of the world Freemasonry must have existed, and how it could possible have permeated to those remote places was a perfect marvel to them. But, as a rule, Masonry had been synonymous with, and had extended with knowledge. This showed that Masonry was one of those societies which were allied to the best interests of civilisation. Their society promulgated some of the best principles which, apart from Christianity, could be inculcated. How could what was taught in their ritual fail to exercise a favourable influence upon the conduct of men if only they acted up to them? It was only for them to do so and they would become better citizens, better men, and have increased reverence for the Great Being who created the world and all that was in it. It was surprising, considering the length of time that Freemasonry had existed, that there were hardly any cases where brethren or Lodges had fallen away from the principles which had been inculcated. There had been a melancholy instance in recent times, which he trusted might never occur again. Most of the Lodges in France had fallen away from the faith and traditions of their forefathers and rejected the name of the Supreme Being within the walls of their Lodges. Had this repudiation been received with favour in other countries? Far from it. They had been refused intercourse with Freemasons in other countries, and in England they had been accounted as out of the pale of the Masonic Order. He thought this showed that the brethren of this day were determined not to reject the excellent lessons given them in the past. He trusted that the work in which they were engaged might be fraught with prosperity to the Order, and that the Lodge of Hope would shed a bright influence around and be an honour to the Order they loved so well. The P.G. Secretary having read the petition and warrant for the establishment of the new Lodge, which is to be held on the third Wednesday in each month, at the India Arms Hotel, a short address in advocacy of charity was delivered by Bro. the Rev. J. N. Palmer, Grand Chaplain of England, after which the ceremony was proceeded with, Bro. T. F. Wilton presiding at the harmonium. The W.M. designate of the new Lodge, Bro. Francis Powell P.M. P.P.G. Pursuivant, was presented to the P.G.M. by Bro. G. F. Lancaster, officiating for the D.P.G.M. (Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre), who, it was explained, was in London on other Masonic duty, and on the completion of the ceremony of installation the W.M. appointed the Officers, as under:—Bro. W. Green P.M. S.W., T. Stretton J.W., Rev R. Measham P.M. Chaplain, H. Crisp Treasurer, W. J. Pawsey Secretary, T. Pearson S.D., Major E. S. Innes J.D., T. W. Holdstock I.G., J. G. Williams D.C., D. Batson Org., E. Jewell and E. H. Buck Stewards, L. Cauvin Tyler. Before close of the Lodge several members were proposed, and hearty votes of thanks were accorded to the P.G.M. and to the Officers for presenting the collars and jewels. Letters of apology for non-attendance had been received from, among others, General Sir G. Willis, Captain Lord C. Beresford, M.P., General Sir F. Fitz Wygram, M.P., Captain Sir Alfred Balliston, R.N., Colonel Sir F. Festing, R.M.A., Captain Colomb, R.N., and Colonel Crease, R.M.A. The W.M. presided at the banquet which followed, at the India Arms Hotel, when the usual toasts were proposed.—Evening Mail.

CONSECRATION OF THE SURBITON LODGE, No. 2416.

ANOTHER Lodge has just been added to the roll of the Craft, and, leaving aside the question so often discussed as to whether the multiplication of the branches of Freemasonry is wise in policy or otherwise, we must congratulate our brethren of Surbiton upon the excellent start that was made by this latest addition to the Fraternity on Tuesday last. This is the thirty-first Lodge which has been established in the county of Surrey, and the event, graced as it was by the presence of the Provincial Grand Master, General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., drew a large number of the Prov. Grand Officers from various centres in the county, as well as brethren from London and Lodges in adjacent Provinces. The weather was delightfully fine, and a "day in the country" was thoroughly enjoyed, as it should be at this season of the year, when this portion of the silvery Thames appears at its brightest, clad with the livery of Spring. The brethren assembled in the Lodge-room at noon, and had time to inspect and admire the commodious and suitable hall which had been provided for the purpose, with the whole of the arrangements and appointments of which they expressed themselves delighted. The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master took the chair, appointing as his Wardens Bros. W. H. Perryman A.G.P., and Thomas Long P.M. and Treasurer 889 P.P.G.D.C., who was assisted in the consecration ceremony by Bros. Rev. Geoffrey Hughes P.G.C. Surrey Chaplain, John G. Horsey P.P.G.D.C. Surrey Director of Ceremonies, R. Sebastian Hart P.G.S.D. Surrey Installing Officer, James Squire P.P.G.S.B. Surrey, Charles Greenwood jun. acting P.G. Secretary P.P.G. Reg. Surrey, and W. W. Morgan P.M. 211. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. Samuel Hewett 1614, James Packham 3, John Drewett S.W. 1638, W. Drewett J.W. 889, George Moorman J.W. 1981, G. W. Avliffe 946, Wm. Chapman S.W. 889, H. J. Rose 1793, James Hill W.M. 1658, Edwin Q. Auster 7, J. Jacobs I.P.M. 1614, Edward Jacobs P.M. 1614, George Coleman P.M. 1614, E Stillwell P.G.S. W.M. 1872, W. H. Bays P.M. 1658, Henry King P.M. 1639, Robert Walden D.C. 1658, A. Alden 2032, J. W. Moorman W.M. 1638 Sec. 1981, H. Weaver W.M. 889, G. T. Clayton P.M. 1872 P.G.A.D.C. The Lodge having been opened in the three degrees, the Prov. G. Master was saluted, and the acting Secretary having handed the petition and warrant to the Prov. Grand Master, the latter addressed the brethren on the nature of the meeting, in the course of his brief but practical observations expressing the gratification it afforded him to witness the progress that Freemasonry was making. He was always pleased to recommend the petition for a new warrant in cases where it was, in his judgment, and that of the brethren, desirable, and they would all agree that this was a case in which such petition had been very properly applied for and acceded to. The founders of the Lodge were Bros. Dr. C. C. Gibbes P.M. 1872 and P.P.G.J.D. the Worshipful Master Designate, Albert Storr P.M. 1658 and A. Wilson P.M. 1298 the Wardens Designate, J. W. Allen, Austin, T. Beck, G. F. Budden, C. Brain, S. Hewett, F. P. Hill, J. H. Jarvis, A. Jobbins, F. Lockett, W. Metcalfe, W. McMillan, J. Packham, W. W. Wakeford, C. Worry, and W. Douglas Young. The brethren of the new Lodge having been arranged in order, the Director of Ceremonies read the petition and warrant, to which the names of the above founders were appended, and the brethren signified in Masonic form their approval of the Officers named in the warrant. The Prov. Grand Master then called upon Bro. W. W. Morgan for an address upon the nature and design of the Institution, and in response Bro. Morgan observed that knowing the Prov. Grand Master had other engagements it made it desirable that brevity should prevail on this occasion, and therefore the remarks he was about to submit to the brethren would be few, though they need not lack earnestness of purpose. On looking around he found himself surrounded by brethren who had distinguished themselves, and had brought the full benefit of their experience to bear upon the Craft, and therefore he need not detain them with any exposition of the nature of the Institution, the objects and constitution of which they knew so well. But as a natural consequence of the formation of a new Lodge the design of the Institution might well demand a little more of their attention, and he reminded them that a Lodge of Freemasons, to be successful and harmonious in its sphere, should consist of men who would enter heartily and thoroughly into the work set before them, with a desire and a will to do the best they possibly could for those around them, and more especially to uphold and support each other in all their doings in life, so far as these did not prove derogatory to their personal interests and duties. He spoke earnestly on the essential importance of studying closely and practising the principles and tenets of the Craft in their entirety, as by so doing they would do much to enhance the happiness and prosperity not only of themselves, but of the human family universally. Casually referring to the use and the abuse of the ballot, which subject had recently formed a matter of considerable comment in certain circles, he briefly reminded the brethren that judicious use should be made of the privilege thus accorded to them, that the black ball should not be employed unless in cases of necessity, and the power absolutely vested in them exercised only in extreme cases. The bonds of brotherly love which cemented them as one body in this grand Institution should teach them the principles of temperance and generous forbearance, wisdom and discretion tempered with their zeal; and, from what he had seen and knew of the brethren who had founded this Lodge, he was assured they would ever inculcate these precepts amongst the brethren who should be enrolled under its banner. In a properly organised Institution such as their own, there was but one aim and object that bound them all together in family relationship; and matters in which no cardinal points were involved might be amicably arranged without recourse to extreme measures, which were frequently the means of sowing the seeds of discord and discontent in even the most prosperous Lodges. If this idea were carried out, there was ample scope for the Lodge to progress to their mutual advantage, and the benefit of the district in which they were now assembled. He congratulated the brethren upon the successful launching of their new venture, which he was perfectly assured, under the wise and able guidance of their estimable Prov. Grand Master, would prove a most valuable acquisition to the Craft. The anthem commencing "'Tis a pleasant thing to see," was then sung, Bro. Sebastian Hart presiding at the organ; and this, as well as the other musical portions of the impressive rite, was efficiently carried out. The first portion of the dedication prayer was then said by the Chaplain, Bro. Rev. Geoffrey Hughes P.G.C. Surrey; and the brethren turning to the East, the Prov. Grand Master gave the

CONFIDENCE LODGE, No. 193.

THE last meeting of the session in connection with this sound and prosperous old Masonic Lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Monday evening, 10th instant, when the W.M., Bro. W. Saint, was supported by his Officers, and over forty of the members and Past Masters. Among the latter were Bros. W. A. Cubitt I P.M., S. Webb, J. E. Fells, W. Wood, J. Smith, R. Kershaw Treasurer, J. Shackell Secretary, Biddle Steward, and C. A. Davis. The Visitors included Bros. T. Roberts jun. 569, L. O. Mollet 765, H. Forss 917, H. W. Humphreys 1638, H. Waynforth 1766, C. M. Campbell 1638, H. Jay 174, and G. H. Stephens 1623. Lodge having been opened in due form, was advanced to the second degree, and Bro. Alfred Mignot was passed. Bro. F. Hemings' name was on the agenda paper for raising, but he sent a letter of apology for unavoidable non-attendance. After the despatch of the usual Masonic business, Lodge was closed until the second Monday in October next. The brethren and visitors were afterwards entertained at a sumptuous banquet, provided in Bro. Clemow's proverbially excellent style, when the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured. In proposing the Queen and the Craft the Worshipful Master spoke of Her Majesty's opening the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, and of her being then on her way to perform an equally interesting ceremony at Liverpool. He also alluded to the Most Worshipful Grand Master the Prince of Wales rendering his august mother such assistance, and of his being an ornament to the Craft. Bro. Cubitt, in proposing the health of the Worshipful Master, spoke in eulogistic terms of Bro. Saint's sincere and earnest endeavour to make himself proficient in the ritual of Freemasonry, and to make every member of the Lodge, as well as the visiting brethren, comfortable. The W.M. having responded in suitable terms, several complimentary toasts followed, Bros. Jay, Stephenson, and Forss responding for the Visitors. Some excellent songs were rendered by Bros. S. Webb, F. Silvester S.W., and Bros. Forss and J. Roberts jun., the evening being brought to a conclusion by the Tyler's toast.

UNITED LODGE, No. 697.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held on the 12th inst., in the Library of Colchester Castle (kindly lent for the occasion by Bro. James Round, M.P.), when Bro. the Rev. W. Morgan Jones S.W. P.P.G.C. was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being ably performed by Bro. R. Haward Ives I.P.M. 51 P.G.A. Sec. The Officers for the year were appointed and invested as under—Bros. J. T. Bailey I.P.M., G. P. Hazell S.W., Henry J. Skingley J.W., Rev. E. H. Crate P.M. P.P.G.C. Chaplain, Richard Clowes P.M. P.P.G.S.W. Treasurer, Thomas Rix P.M. P.P.G.S.B. Sec., Alfred Jas. Norman S.D., Arthur J. Ward J.D., Thomas Eustace P.M. P.P.G.S.B. D.C., C. Osmond P.M. 51 P.P.G.O. Org., Joseph Ashdown I.G., S. Munson Tyler, Manley, Horncastle, and Oldham Stewards. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Ives for his kindness and ability in performing the ceremony, especially as he was called upon at an hour's notice, owing to the V.W. D.P.G.M., who was to have been Installing Master, not being able to reach Colchester in time. The thanks of the Lodge were also given to Bro. Jas. Round, M.P., for kindly allowing the use of the room. Between fifty and sixty brethren afterwards dined together at the George Hotel, an elegant banquet being served by the new host, Mr. Morris. In replying to the toast of his health and that of the Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers, the V.W. D.P.G.M. (Bro. Fred A. Philbrick, Q.C.) congratulated the brethren upon the prosperous condition of the Province of Essex. When he first had the honour of being appointed D.P.G.M., which was in the lifetime of the late Lord Tenterden, there were but nineteen Lodges; now there twenty-four on the roll, and he understood from their Provincial Grand Secretary that the warrant for a new Lodge, to meet at Halstead, and to be named the "Joshua Nunn," had been received, and would shortly be consecrated. It was satisfactory to know that all the Lodges were doing good work for the Craft in Essex. It was only last Saturday that he was present at the installation meeting of one of the youngest of our Lodges—the Tilbury—and he found there the true spirit of Masonry pervading the brethren. They had just removed their Lodge into that magnificent hotel which had been erected in conjunction with the vast engineering undertaking of Tilbury Docks, which had brought the port of London into Essex. In conclusion, the V.W. D.P.G.M. expressed his regret that he had been unable to reach Colchester in time to perform the installation ceremony; and, while thanking Bro. Ives for his kindness in acting as substitute, complimented him on being able on so short a notice to carry out the work. During the evening an excellent programme of vocal and instrumental music was carried out by Bros. Osmond, Clowes, Sperling, and Coombs, assisted by Masters Nunn, Coombs, and Watts, the latter lad playing a very nice accompaniment to "La Serenata" on the violin. Amongst those present, besides the Officers mentioned above, were :—Brothers Frederick A. Philbrick, Q.C., G. Reg. D.P.G.M., F. Binckes P.G. Stwd. Sec. R.M.I.B., T. J. Ralling P.M. and Sec. 51 P.G. Sec., Richard Clowes P.M. and Sec. 650 P.P.G.S.W., F. R. Hides I.P.M. 650 P.G.J.W., Jno. Corbie W.M. 453, J. S. French W.M. 433, Andrew C Durrant W.M. 276, M. L. Sanders W.M. 650 William Sowman P.M. 51 P.P.G.J.W., J. E. Wiseman P.M. and Sec. 433 P.P.G.A.D.C., R. H. Ives P.M. 51 P.G.A. Sec., Walter J. Nunn W.M. 2063. R. F. Symmons, P. Quilter 51, F. Reichter 51, Chas. Gray 51, E. Williams 1016, and the following members of 697 :—Bros. A. Gosling P.M., G. A. Eustace P.M., Robert Smith P.M., Joshua Street P.M., J. H. Boulton,

EBORACUM LODGE, No. 1611.

ON Monday, the 10th inst., the regular monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, St. Saviourgate, York. There were present Bros. T. B. Whytehead P.M. P.P.G.W., G. Simpson P.M. P.P.G.P., G. Balmford P.M. P.P.G.O., C. G. Padel P.M. P.P.G.O., J. T. Seller P.M., M. Millington P.M., J. Blenkin P.M., W. Brown S.W., Geo. Chapman J.W., J. Kay Sec., W. Lockenby J.D., P. Pearson as I.G., W. Storey and J. D. Irving Stewards, R. Ware, W. T. Nance, H. Meunell, C. Tuff, W. Routledge, John Thorpe, W. R. Jackson, W. Wrigglesworth, J. E. Wilkinson, W. Sharp, R. M. Hayden, and others; whilst amongst the visitors were Bros. M. C. Peck P.M. 250 Prov. G. Sec., T. Thompson P.M. 57 P.P.G.D., J. Todd P.M. 236 P.P.G. Reg., W. Tesseyman P.M. 57 P.P.G.S. of W., W. H. Cowper P.M. 1848 P.P.G. Reg., E. Harding W.M. 1991, F. Woolnough 1991, A. M. White 1991, H. S. Hopton 256, W. Ward 236, and others. The Lodge was opened by Bro. J. T. Seller P.M., and, after the confirmation of the minutes, a ballot was taken for a candidate, after which an accepted candidate was initiated. The chair was then taken by Bro. M. Millington, who initiated a second candidate, the charge to the two candidates being given by Bro. Brown S.W. The chair was then taken by Bro. T. B. Whytehead P.M., who said that there were occasions in the working of the Craft when very pleasant tasks had fallen to his lot, and this was one of them. It was one of the duties inculcated in their teachings that merit should have its reward, and that patient industry should not go unrecognised. Those who were active workers in Freemasonry were well aware how essential it was to the prosperity of any Lodge that those who might be termed its "staff" Officers should be energetic and careful, and should have the real interests of the Order at heart. Since that Lodge had been formed in 1876 it had been fortunate in the possession of a Treasurer who had steadily worked and laboured for its welfare. Bro. Balmford P.M. was the first Treasurer appointed, and he had annually received the unanimous vote of the brethren to the same office, the result being that he was at that moment their Treasurer after a service of 10 years. All the older members of the Lodge knew what had been done by the Lodge. They remembered the difficulties that had attended its formation, and the struggles that had eventuated in their possession of the beautiful building in which they were then met, the splendid furniture that surrounded them, and the valuable collection of Masonic books, pictures, and relics that formed their museum. Much of this was due to the careful manner in which the Treasurer had husbanded the resources of the Lodge, and the brethren had felt that some slight recognition was due from them to one who had served them so well. On behalf of the brethren of the Lodge, he asked Bro. Balmford's acceptance of a gold Treasurer's jewel, which he had great pleasure in placing upon his breast, wishing that he might be spared for many years to come, to work shoulder to shoulder with them in the great cause of brotherly love, relief, and truth. After the applause had subsided Bro. Whytehead resumed his remarks. He said that there was another brother with them that evening whose services had been even of a more laborious character than those of the Treasurer. He referred to the Secretary, Bro. James Kay. Bro. Kay was no novice at secretarial work. He had made his mark and won the respect of the brethren in Hull, where he was for years the Secretary of one of the Lodges before he came to York. He had been appointed Secretary of the Eboracum Lodge at its formation, and had annually been re-appointed to the office, with the exception of one year, when he served in a Warden's chair. The work of a Secretary involved a great deal of careful attention to details, and they were fortunate in the possession of a brother who was able to devote time and trouble to the work of that office. They all knew how courteous Bro. Kay always was, how ready to give information, and how genial, and it had been the wish of the members to pay him the compliment of presenting him with a Secretary's gold jewel, which he was truly glad to place upon his breast with the same good wishes and congratulation as he had expressed towards Bro. Balmford. Bros. Balmford and Kay then rose, amid the continued applause of the brethren, to express their thanks, which each did in a few well-chosen words. The presentations had come to them in the nature of surprises. Whatever they had done for the Lodge had been in a true spirit of anxiety for its prosperity, and it would be their pride and pleasure when they wore the jewels to remember the donors and the happy hours they had spent under the banner of Eboracum, No. 1611. The jewels were designed and manufactured by Bro. George Kenning, and were of a very chaste description. The Treasurer's consisted of the cross-keys, suspended from a Past Master's emblem under a scroll, inscribed:—

"Presented to W. Bro. G. Balmford P.M. P.P.G.O., by the brethren of Eboracum, 1611."

That presented to the Secretary had the cross pens under a scroll, engraved:—

"Presented to Bro. J. Kay by the brethren of Eboracum, 1611."

The Secretary then read a letter from Bro. Stephenson I.G. thanking the Lodge for its sympathy with him in his severe illness. Hearty good wishes having been expressed by the visitors, the Lodge was then closed, and the whole party adjourned to an excellent supper which had been set in the banqueting room. The tables were tastefully decorated with plants. Bro. T. B. Whytehead presided, and was supported by the other Past Masters and visitors. At the conclusion of supper an adjournment was made to the smoke room, where the usual toasts were given. The health of the Visitors was responded to by Bro. J. Todd P.M. 236, and W. H. Cowper P.M. 1848. The health of the Treasurer and Secretary was drunk with musical honours, and a right merry evening, enlivened with songs, came to an end all too soon.

SAMSON LODGE, No. 1668.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge, which is the youngest of the five so-called Jewish Lodges of Freemasons in London, was held on the 11th inst., at the Regent Masonic Hall (Café Royal), Regent-street, when there was a representative gathering of members and Visitors, the latter including the Worshipful Masters of the Tranquillity, Joppa, and Montefiore Lodges. The brethren assembled at half-past four o'clock, and Lodge was opened in form, under the presidency of Bro. H. W. Casperd, who was supported by Bros. R. A. Kingsbury S.W. W.M. elect, B. Fald J.W., M. D. Loewenstark P.M. Treasurer, Baron D. Barnet P.M. Secretary, J. S. Miller S.D., S. Lancaster J.D., Isaac Levy I.G., H. Moss Steward; P.M.'s H. Aarons, J. Quincey, C. Ochsee; Bros. C. Benjamin, Isaac Kool, C. A. Adams, J. F. Durban, F. G. Brown, F. T. Drewell, J. Van Praagh, A. H. Marks, Emil Hahn, J. N. Nash, J. Seigenberg, A. P. Casperd, A. Oberdorffer Tyler, &c. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. D. M. Davis W.M. 1017, J. N. Dewsnap W.M. 188, W. D. Bayley W.M. 185, H. H. Myers J.W. 1707, R. G. Crawford, and T. E. Clarke 55, W. J. Frith 1005, H. J. Amphlett, and others. After the confirmation of the minutes, Lodge was advanced to the second degree, when Bros. J. F. Durban and C. A. Adams were passed, the ceremony being worked with a precision and impressiveness for which the retiring W.M. has become proverbial. Bro. R. A. Kingsbury, who had ably discharged the duties of the Senior Warden's chair during the preceding year, was then presented for installation, and in the rendering of this impressive rite Brother Casperd may be said to have even excelled himself, so admirably and faultlessly was the work executed. The ancient charges were given with all the requisite effect, and the whole ceremony was such as to elicit the hearty encomiums of all present. The newly-installed W.M. having been proclaimed and saluted in the usual manner, proceeded to invest his Officers for the year, as follow:—Bros. H. W. Casperd I.P.M., B. Field S.W., J. S. Miller J.W., M. D. Loewenstark P.M. Treas., Baron D. Barnet P.M. Sec., S. Lancaster S.D., Isaac Levy J.D., F. G. Brown I.G., F. T. Drewell D.C., H. Moss Assist. D.C., J. Van Praagh W.S., A. Oberdorffer Tyler. Hearty good wishes having been interchanged, Lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was served in récherché style, the arrangements made for the comfort and enjoyment of the guests being all that could be desired. At dessert the customary Loyal and Craft toasts were given from the chair and duly honoured. The W.M. observed that it was the highest honour Freemasonry could have attained to have at its head the coming King, whose sway would cover upwards of three hundred millions of people. No person enjoying higher respect in the universe could have been selected as Grand Master of the Craft, and they were all proud that they could take the hand of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and say, "He is a brother amongst us." He then proposed the R.W. Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Lathom, and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. He had hoped to have had the presence of one of the Grand Officers that evening, but at the last moment the Grand Treasurer had written to say he was unable to accept the invitation to attend, and in an extremely pleasant letter begged him to apologise to the brethren for his unavoidable absence from their meeting. The names of the noble brethren who held offices in Grand Lodge were names which they all honoured, for they were men who did not seek Masonry for what they could get out of it; and he was glad that Masonry was looked upon by such noblemen as Lords Carnarvon, Lathom, and others, as an institution worthy of their earnest and zealous support. They all strove to uphold the Grand Master in the exalted position which he held, and administered the affairs of Grand Lodge in a manner that evoked the admiration of the brethren generally. Bro. Casperd I.P.M. then rose and said he was delighted to have the gavel in his hands once more, for he had become so used to it that he could hardly leave it alone. But if he ever held it with a degree of pleasure it was at the present moment, when about to propose the health of their excellent Worshipful Master. He was sure that toast would be received with the utmost cordiality and satisfaction, for they all knew the admirable qualities possessed by Bro. Kingsbury, who had that day been installed into the chair. For his own part, he was glad that he was out of office, so far as the work of the Samson Lodge was concerned; and he only hoped that their new W.M. would have double the amount of work that had devolved upon himself during his year of office. He had known their W.M. for he scarcely knew how many years—before he was married, at any rate—and all he could say was that, if ever a man acted Masonry before he knew Masonry, that man was their Worshipful Master. Since he had known it he had always kept up to it. He rejoiced to know that Bro. Kingsbury succeeded him in the chair, for he felt certain that if he (the speaker) had been able to give satisfaction, their present W.M. would be able to do so far more abundantly. The toast was received with great enthusiasm. The W.M., in responding, remarked that after what had been said by their Immediate Past Master, he could but thank Bro. Casperd for the extremely kind manner in which he had proposed the toast, and the brethren generally for the cordiality with which they had received it. If he had wanted any omen for the future, that certainly had been given him in the way in which they had drunk to his health. He asked them to accept his hearty and sincere thanks. He now filled a position which, when he joined the Lodge, he could scarcely have dreamed of occupying for many years to come; but circumstances seemed to have been ordered otherwise. He sincerely hoped the time had not come before he was prepared to accept the responsibilities of office, and he assured them he should do his very utmost to deserve the goodwill and respect which they had shown him in the Lodge that evening. He trusted that with the assistance of the Officers and brethren, they might be enabled, at the expiration of his term of office, to feel satisfied with the choice they had made in placing him in the chair. He would not detain them any longer, as they had a programme before them of a much more interesting character than any speech he could place before them. He then proposed the health of the Visitors, in doing which he said he would distinguish that toast from that of our Sister Lodges, which were represented that evening. He was delighted to see the Worshipful Masters and other members of the sister Lodges present, and if they would permit him, he would afterwards propose their toast specially. He asked them to drink to the Visitors in right royal manner. For a Lodge to be without Visitors would be to have no new blood amongst them, nothing to waken them from their lethargy by the excellent speeches they invariably heard from strangers coming from other Lodges. They wanted to know what was going on in other Lodges, in order to try and emulate them, and to improve their own working. He hoped some day to hear a remark from a W.M. of a sister Lodge, "Ah, I wish you had been doing your work as the Samson Lodge have been doing theirs." With the assistance of such Officers as he had now around him, he hoped the day was not far distant when some such expression would be heard. Let them teach the Visitors a lesson, that in their Lodge there was a welcome which they could not find surpassed in any other. He was particularly delighted to see so many Visitors present, three of the Worshipful Masters being personal friends of his, and he was pleased to make the acquaintance of the other. He associated with the toast the names of Bros. Crawford and H. H. Myers. The toast was received with a "good fire," and Bro. Crawford replied in a brief but humorous speech, thanking the brethren of the Lodge for the generous manner in which the Visitors had been received, and complimenting the Lodge upon the excellence of its working. Brother Myers said this was the first time he had had the pleasure of visiting the Samson Lodge, and it was extremely gratifying to him that through the courtesy and kindness of one of its members he had an opportunity of meeting them on this occasion. He congratulated the Lodge upon having a W.M. who knew certainly how to conduct its affairs, and the I.P.M. upon the excellent way in which he had performed the installation ceremony. His clear enunciation and good delivery, particularly in the charges, produced a great effect upon him and all the rest of the brethren; as long as they had such Masters the Lodge would bear a name in the first rank of Freemasonry. The W.M. said he had now a very important duty to discharge, and that was to propose a toast that was not down upon the programme, the reigning Masters of the three sister Lodges, who had honoured them with their presence out of the five Lodges who termed themselves Jewish. It had been customary with them that the four other reigning Masters should take part in their installation ceremonies. He was delighted to see three of the W.M.'s present; the fourth had unfortunately been compelled to send a telegram to say the state of his health prevented his attendance. He very much regretted that Bro. Henochsberg, W.M. of the Lodge of Israel, was not with them, but they wished him a speedy recovery to health. He associated with the toast the names of Bro. Bayley W.M. 185, Bro. Dewsnap W.M. 188, and Bro. Davis W.M. 1017. Bro. Bayley said it was with unfeigned pleasure that he attended on this occasion. He was reminded that the Samson was the youngest of the sister Lodges, and it seemed to be a wise dispensation that they were termed "sister Lodges," for he believed amongst the five Lodges which had been named, perfect friendship had been kept up year after year by the interchange of visits on the part of Masters and members. That had been productive of the greatest Masonic good, for it had taught them much of the inner working, and it enabled them to imitate that which they found to be good, and to point out what was defective in others. Every one must be pleased to see the vigour which this Lodge had displayed within the comparatively short time since its establishment. The sister Lodges wished it the utmost success, and congratulated them upon the excellence of its workmanship. The installation ceremony was a source of very great pleasure, showing the true spirit of Masonry and emulation. By the Worshipful Master's conduct this evening he had proved himself a worthy successor to the chair, and an ornament to the Craft. He was sure that at the end of the year the members would be proud of him, and very gratified with his working. On behalf of the sister Lodges he offered them his sincere thanks, and trusted the Samson Lodge would well sustain the prestige and prosperity it had attained. Brother Dewsnap, on behalf of the Joppa Lodge, also tendered his sincere thanks for the reception accorded to the toast. It was a source of great pleasure to him to attend a meeting of the Samson Lodge for the first time. He had the pleasure of knowing their I.P.M., whom he esteemed very highly, and doubly so after having seen him work the installation ceremony. It was his good fortune to visit many Lodges, but he never received a more kindly greeting than he did amongst the Jewish brethren. It was rather strange that of the five so-called Jewish Lodges three had Christian Masters. He must say that going amongst Jewish brethren he met with a better reception than in any other Lodge. Amongst Hebrew brethren they met with working equal to any in London, and whenever he had been present with a Jewish Master and Officers the ceremonies had been superbly carried out. Bro. Davis, in the course of his reply, gave it as an illustration of the universality of Freemasonry that Jews were enabled to meet Christians, and Christians Jews in a Lodge with perfect amity and accord. They had no issues in the Lodge, provided they were Masons, and they were all able to meet on the one common happy ground of Masonry. That was one of the beauties of the Order. He spoke at some length of the working of the day, which he said was worthy of all praise, and was a good augury of what they might expect during the year. The W.M., in proposing the health of the Installing Master and I.P.M., said it was a pleasant duty to render to Bro. Casperd hearty thanks for the excellent manner in which he had performed his duty during his term of office. He (the speaker) only hoped he might be able to acquit himself to some extent as Bro. Casperd had done. He was only a young Mason, but he thought he was correct in saying that no Master of the Lodge had had the privilege of initiating so many members into it as had their I.P.M., he had added ten initiates and one joining member during his year He hoped it might be his happy lot to have even one-half as much success. He was only too charmed that their I.P.M. had felt himself capable of performing the duties of installation, as he was the individual whom he had to thank for having joined the Craft. He was delighted to follow Bro. Casperd in the chair, for he was a Master to whom he could look up for any assistance or counsel he might need. He would be his main support in the Lodge, and a true friend on whom he could safely rely. He had now the pleasurable duty of asking Bro. Casperd to accept from the brethren of the Lodge a beautiful jewel which had been voted to him from the friends of the Lodge. They would all agree with him that in placing that jewel upon his breast it had been well earned. He was charmed to be able to pin to Bro. Casperd's breast a jewel equal in value to any that had been presented to his predecessors in office. It was the wish of every brother of the Lodge that Bro. Casperd might live long to wear it, and to enjoy the credit which it would reflect upon him in any Lodge which he might visit. The brethren had done him the high honour of asking him to request Bro. Casperd to accept that jewel as a token of their esteem and of thanks for the able way in which he had performed his duties in the past year. Brother Casperd Immediate Past Master, who was heartily received, said he rose with a great deal of satisfaction, in the first place to offer his sincere thanks to the W.M. of the Lodge for the kind way in which he had proposed the toast, and for the courteous manner in which he had pinned that beautiful jewel to his breast. He thanked them from the bottom of his heart for having so cordially supported him during his year of office. He had tried to the utmost of his ability to do his duty as a Mason and Master of their Lodge, and it was a consolation to him to know he had given them a certain amount of satisfaction. At this time last year he thought it was a very proud moment in his life to find himself in the chair, but it was even a prouder moment now that he was in the position of I.P.M., and to think he had been enabled in some way to give them satisfaction in the performance of the duties which had devolved upon him. There was only one point on which he was inclined to rule the W.M. out of order, and that was (he said it without fear of contradiction) he never in his life invited a man to become a Mason. When a person had asked him, "What is Freemasonry?" his answer invariably was that he had never regretted joining it, and that his interrogator must follow in the same course—that if a man wanted to become a Mason he must do so from what he felt, and his conviction that it would advance him as a man and brother. That was what the W.M. meant. If in this immediate circle of Masonic organisation he had been enabled to fulfil the duty to their satisfaction he was more than rewarded. He had done his best to win their approbation, and was gratified that they had acknowledged that his efforts had come up to their expectations. He also thanked them for the handsome jewel which the W.M. had placed on his breast that evening, and he could assure them that as I.P.M. he should consider it his duty and privilege to assist the W.M. in every possible way, though, from what they had seen that day, he very much doubted whether any such assistance would be needed. He had known their W.W. since they were boys together, and now hoped he might have a very successful year of office, with a goodly number of initiates and joining members. The W.M. then, in felicitous terms, gave the health of the Past Masters, the toast being acknowledged in suitable manner by Bro. H. Aarons; and the remaining toasts were the Treasurer and Secretary, and the Officers of the Lodge. During the evening a choice selection of vocal and instrumental music was given by a glee party, consisting of Mr. Hugh Davies (alto), Mr. H. Price (first tenor), Mr. Selwyn Davies (2nd tenor), Mr. E. A. Baker (bass), Mr. E. Bateman, Mr. W. Peering, and Mr. James Hallé (pianoforte), the brilliant performances of the last-named artiste being a noticeable feature of the interesting proceedings.

Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693. — On Monday, the 17th instant, the Fifteen Sections were worked in the presence of forty brethren by the members of the Percy Lodge of Instruction at the Kingsland Lodge of Instruction, No. 1693, held at the Cock Tavern, Highbury. Bros. I. P. Cohen P.M. 205 W.M., Powell S.W., Galer J.W., Kirk S.D., Cross J.D., Barnett I.G., Western Preceptor, Collingridge Secretary. Lodge was opened in due form, when the following brethren took their respective Sections:—First Lecture—Bros. Barnett, Lone, Turner, Jenkins, Kirk, Beatton, Powell. Second Lecture—Bros. Bancock, Dixie, Giddings, Kirk, and Dixie. Third Lecture—Bros. Williams, Weeden, and Cross. After some new members had been elected, the brethren who had worked the Sections were thanked for attendance, and honorary membership was conferred on Bro. I. P. Cohen. Bro. Kirk will be W.M. on Monday next.

Chiswick Lodge of Instruction, No. 2012. — A meeting was held on Saturday, 15th instant, at the Windsor Castle, King Street, Hammersmith. Present:—Bros. W. W. Williams W.M., Charles Dopson Senior Warden, George Gardner (Treasurer) J.W., Wm. Johnson Secretary, J. H. Woods S.D., H. F. Williams J.D., Arthur Williams I.G.; P.M.'s Bros. Purdue, Sims, Ayling Preceptor; also Bros. Davies, Furse, Brown, Wing, Cragge, Tipper. After preliminaries, the second ceremony was rehearsed. Bro. P.M. Ayling was unanimously re-elected Preceptor for the ensuing year, Bro. Gardner Treasurer, and Bro. Johnson Secretary. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to the Preceptor, Treasurer and Secretary for their services during the past year. A similar compliment was paid to the Auditors. It was resolved that the Fifteen Sections be worked on Monday, 7th June, at 7 p.m. sharp. Brethren are cordially invited to be present.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WILTSHIRE.

THE annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the Town Hall, Warminster, on Friday, the 7th instant, being received by the Longleat Lodge, No. 1478. In the unavoidable absence of the Provincial Grand Master, Lord Methuen, the chair was filled by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Sir Gabriel Goldney, Bart., supported by Colonel Randle Ford P.P.G.J.W. as P.G.S.W., the Rev. T. J. Heard as P.G.C., F. H. Goldney P.G. Treasurer, H. Merrick P.G. Registrar, H. Bevir P.G. Secretary, J. T. Calkin P.G. Superintendent of Works, G. Pike P.G.A.D.C., W. H. Burt P.G.S.B., T. Turner Steward, H. C. Tombs P.G.D. England P.P.G.S.W., W. Nott P.P.G.J.W. Charity Secretary, J. C. Maclean P.P.G.S.D., T. S. Futcher P.P.G.J.D., W. J. Mann Past P.G. Superintendent of Works, C. Gauntlett P.P.G.A.D.C., W. H. Brinkworth P.P.G.O., E. S. Mackrell P.P.G.O., Edwin Eyres P.P.G.P., A. J. Beaven P.P.G.B., F. S. Hancock W.M. 663, F. Barton W.M. 1271, E. Jones W.M. 1295, W. Pullen W.M. 1478, &c., &c. The roll of the various Lodges was called, and the call with one exception was duly responded to. The Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Harry Bevir, then read the minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Salisbury, which minutes were duly confirmed. This was followed by the reading of the minutes of the Charity Committee meeting, which had been held the same morning, from which it appeared that Bro. J. C. Maclean had, at the request of the Committee, consented to act as Steward from the Province for the forthcoming Festivals of both Girls' and Boys' Schools, and that to his list for the former the Committee recommended a vote of £10 10s, and for the Boys' School the sum of £21. These recommendations were adopted. The Provincial Grand Treasurer, Bro. F. H. Goldney, read an abstract of his accounts, which had been duly audited. These accounts showed that, in addition to the cash balances in his hands on the general account, the Charity account and the Provincial Benevolent Fund account, there were investments in the funds amounting on the whole to something like £500. Bro. Goldney intimated that they would probably have to bear a new expense for the future, inasmuch as the Somerset House authorities had made a claim for income tax on the various contributions to the Prov. Grand Lodge funds. The principle on which this claim was made had been under the consideration of the authorities of Grand Lodge, who, he was afraid, would feel themselves obliged to admit it. The reports and accounts of the Provincial Grand Treasurer were approved and adopted. The Prov. Grand Registrar, Bro. H. Merrick, presented his report, which stated that the Province appeared to be in a generally satisfactory and progressive condition, that there was an increase in the numbers of the brethren as compared with the numbers given in the last report, bringing the total nominal strength of the ten Lodges up to 451, and that there had been a decided improvement in the effective working conduct of various Lodges. The Registrar's report went on to say that it might be broadly assumed that the total income of the ten Lodges amounted to about £750, and the ordinary expenditure to about £600 per annum, but directed the attention of Lodges to the large and increasing amount of outstanding unpaid subscriptions. The adoption of this report was carried by acclamation. Brother William Nott, Provincial Charity Secretary, presented the report of the Benevolent fund and Charity Organization Committee as follows:—

Benevolent Fund.—The whole of the income to the end of the year 1881 has been invested in Consols, and the income for the past year will also be available for further investment, no claim having been made upon it. The fund is now assuming a most satisfactory position, and in a few years will—should no large claim occur—have reached an amount, the income from which, with the annual subscriptions from the Lodges, will allow of a substantial assistance being given when occasion may arise for it.

Charity Organization.—At the last meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge it was reported that the Committee had adopted the widow of the late Bro. Charles Feavour, of the Lodge of Rectitude, No. 335, Corsham, as a candidate for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. This case being taken up by the Associated Provinces at the election in May last, Mrs. Feavour was elected on that, the first attempt, she being eighteenth on the list of twenty-three successful candidates.

Your Charity Secretary as Secretary of the Association of Provinces, of which Wiltshire is one, has attended the meetings of their representatives, which take place in London at the elections. The representatives of the other Provinces are Bros. Captain S. G. Homfray D.P.G.M. Monmouthshire (Chairman of the Association), R. C. Else D.P.G.M. Somersetshire, M. Tennant D.P.G.M. E.D. of South Wales, R. V. Vassar-Smith, Gloucestershire, W. Parnell, Bristol, M. J. Walker, Leicester and Rutland, and J. Wilson, Worcestershire; and to all of whom the thanks of this Province are due for their hearty co-operation, which has resulted in the Association attaining a commanding position at the elections for the great Masonic Charities.

The Wiltshire recipients of these Masonic Charities are now as follows:—From the Benevolent Institution four widows are (as three of them have been doing for the past nine, seven, and three years respectively) receiving annuities of £32 each; whilst in the Girls' School, five, and in the Boys' School, two children are being maintained and educated. Wiltshire thus derives from these Charities a large benefit, the money value of which may be reckoned at nearly, if not quite, £500 a year.

The contributions of Wiltshire to public Masonic Charities during the past year have been made through the medium of Bro. John Chandler, as Steward from the Province, for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, with a list of £188 17s; and Bro. William Nott, as Steward for the Mark Benevolent Fund, from the Wiltshire Keystone Mark Lodge, at Devizes, with a list of £17 15s; to these must be added a donation of £10 10s from Lodge 335 to the Boys' School; thus giving a total of £217 2s.

It may be added that the votes sent in to the Provincial Charity Organization Committee during the past three years have been as follows —

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys	498	509	513
" " Girls	370	417	384
Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons	242	233	244
" " for Widows	171	338	279
	1281	1497	1420

Nearly all the votes in the Province (both Lodge and Private) are now placed at the disposal of the Committee, and on this being done depends the success of the organization.

WILLIAM NOTT, Prov. Charity Sec.

Devizes, 31st December 1885.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master proposed that this report be adopted, and that the thanks of the Provincial Grand Lodge be given to Brother Nott for his great and successful exertions on behalf of the objects of the Committee. This was carried by acclamation. Sir Gabriel Goldney, addressing the brethren, said he would then proceed to the most interesting part of the day's proceedings, which was to present to Bro. Henry C. Tombs, Past Provincial Grand Secretary, the piece of plate which had been purchased pursuant to the vote of Provincial Grand Lodge at its last meeting. Brother Tombs in the seventeen years during which he filled the office of Secretary for this Province had in that capacity secured the goodwill of every Wiltshire Mason. His work had been arduous, and he performed it in such a way as to be of the greatest assistance and benefit to Masonry, and doubtless it was to his untiring efforts to a great extent that the number of brethren in the Province had increased from about 200 when he took office to nearly 450 when he resigned. He asked Brother Tombs to accept this little gift, not for its intrinsic worth, but to remind him and his family of the appreciation and goodwill of the brethren. The piece of plate, which consisted of a silver salver weighing 133 ounces, dating from the reign of George I., and which bore the following inscription, was then presented to Bro. Tombs :—

"Presented to W. Bro. Henry C. Tombs, P.G.D. England, P.P.S.G.W. and Prov. Grand Secretary Wilts, by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Wiltshire, 5th November 1884."

Brother Tombs warmly expressed his acknowledgment of the kindness of the brethren, a kindness, he said, which he should ever remember. Masonry had ever, from the time of his initiation, possessed for him a great charm; he looked upon it as a bulwark against the infidelity and discontent which were now more than ever showing themselves in various quarters, and he assured those present that, so far as lay in his power, his best efforts would always be available to further the interests of the Craft. He asked the brethren to accept and believe in his warmest gratitude, though he could not find words to express how fully he appreciated their kindness. He could not refrain, before sitting down, from expressing his high opinion of the exquisite taste which had been shown by the Provincial Grand Treasurer and the other members of the Committe appointed for the purpose in their selection of the beautiful work of art now before them. The acting P.G.M., Bro. Sir Gabriel Goldney, then addressed the meeting, expressing his regret at the unavoidable absence of Lord Methuen. He referred to the postponement of Provincial Grand Lodge from its usual time of meeting in the autumn—a postponement rendered necessary by the elections and other matters then occurring, which prevented the meeting being then held—and to the difficulty which had since occurred in finding a suitable day; whilst, at the same time, he felt gratified at seeing so large a gathering of the brethren after all this delay. He briefly referred to the satisfactory character of the reports which had been read. Bro. F. H. Goldney, in the Provincial Grand Treasurer's report, showed that Masonry in Wiltshire was in a flourishing state as regards its finances, whilst that of Bro. H. Merrick, the Registrar, was equally satisfactory as regards numbers and position of the brethren and Lodges in the Province. Bro. Nott was also to be congratulated on the report which, as Charity Secretary, he was enabled to lay before the meeting. He (the acting P.G.M.)—and he was sure all the brethren agreed with him—felt that the warmest thanks of the Province were due to Bro. Nott for the manner in which he had carried out the details of the Charity Organisation work, both in Wiltshire and in connection with the other Provinces with which Wiltshire was associated. The acting P.G.M. also congratulated Bro. Bevir on the manner in which, in relation to this the first Provincial Grand Lodge since his appointment, everything had been carried out. To the members of the receiving Lodge he expressed the pleasure it gave him to come amongst them again, though, at the same time, he could not avoid expressing his regret that at the last moment he had received a letter from Lord H. F. Thynne, the first Worshipful Master of the Lodge, saying that it was utterly impossible for him to be present that day. Brother Tombs called attention to the list of candidates for the Masonic Charities, which he was afraid showed that some of the brethren, or whose friends, who were now on those lists were hardly of the class who ought to receive the benefits of the great Masonic Charities. Bro. H. F. Goldney, P.G. Treasurer, also referred to the subject, quoting Lord Lathom's remarks at the recent Annual Festival, when he impressed upon the Craft the necessity of carefully considering the character and position in life of every applicant for admission to our Order. The acting P.G.M. then declared all offices vacant, and Brother F. H. Goldney was, on the motion of Sir Gabriel Goldney, seconded by Bro. Tombs, re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer; Bro. John Savory was re-elected Tyler, and the following investments of Provincial Grand Officers for the year were then made—

Bro. W. Nott 663	Grand Senior Warden
George Lopes 626	Grand Junior Warden
Rev. T. J. Heard 1478	Grand Chaplain
F. H. Goldney 626 (re-elected)	Grand Treasurer
H. Merrick 1271 (re-appointed)	Grand Registrar
H. Bevir 355 (re-appointed)	Grand Secretary
A. J. Beaven 1271	Grand Senior Deacon
T Reeves 1478	Grand Junior Deacon
W. Dean 1295	Grand Supt. of Works.
J. Chandler 855 P.P.G.S.W. (re-appointed)	Grand Dir. of Cers.
H. L. Ward 603	Grand Asst. Dir. of Cers.
J. Green 355	Grand Sword Bearer.
H. Millington 632	Grand Organist
F. J. Hannan 586	Grand Pursuivant
W. Pullin 1478	Grand Assist. Pursuivant
T. S. Hill 632	Grand Standard Bearer
G. North 1295, H. Howse 663	Grand Stewards
J. Savory 355 (re-elected)	Grand Tyler

This ended the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and after it was closed the brethren adjourned to another room in the Town Hall, where the annual banquet took place.

At the close of the Chapter the Companions met at supper, and spent a pleasant evening.

ESSEX CHAPTER, No. 276,

THE anniversary convocation was held on the 10th inst., when the Principals were installed by Ex. Comp. Vero W. Taylor P.Z. P.G.H., as follows :—Ex. Comps. A. C. Veley M.E.Z, J. P. Lewin P.P.G.S.W. H., A. Mead P.G. 1st A.S. J. The other Officers were invested as follows :—Comps. the Rev. F. B. Shepherd S.E., E. Shedd I.P.Z. S.N., J. J. Cavill P.S., R. G. Kellett 1st A.S., F. P. Sutthery 2nd A.S., Sarel Janitor. At the close of the ceremony a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Comp. Vero Taylor for his kindness and ability in performing the installation ceremony. The Companions afterwards dined together at the White Hart Hotel. Among those present, in addition to the Officers above mentioned, were—Ex. Comps. Thomas J. Ralling P.Z. and S.E. 51 P.G.S.E., Frank Whitmore P.Z. 376 P.G.P.S., A. Goodchild P.Z. 276 P.P.G.P.S., F. Meggy, A. C. Durrant, G. Copus, G. Bannister, T. Winnatt Smith, R. D. Poppleton, F. Bird, and E. Gowers.

Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement.—Those who attended the meeting of this Chapter on the 11th inst. must have felt highly gratified at the increasing interest this beautiful degree is obtaining, thus amply evinced by the large number of Past and Present Principals (twenty-five in number) who assembled to take part in the rehearsal of the installation of the three Principals. Comp. Brown, the Preceptor, has for the past year or two thrown open these chairs on two occasions during the session, so that opportunity is afforded to six Companions each session to exercise themselves. On this evening the duties were undertaken by Comps. S. Brooks P.Z. 975 Z., F. Brown P.Z. 538 H., R. H. Crowden P.Z. 1297 J., and it is needless to say that with such efficient workers the ceremonies were most carefully rendered. This part of the business of the evening being finished, the Companions were admitted, when the various offices were filled as follows—Comps. Charles Z., J. L. Payne H., B. Haynes J., C. H. Webb S.N., M. H. Levey P.S. The exaltation ceremony was most ably rehearsed, Comp. C. Daniel being the candidate. Comp. E. Collard (Chapter 19) was unanimously elected a member. A unanimous vote of thanks was given to Comp. Charles for the very impressive manner in which he had performed his duties for the first time. Comp. Charles will be installed into the first chair of the Mount Sinai Chapter on Tuesday, and we congratulate the Chapter on having so accomplished a worker to preside over it. Votes of thanks were tendered to the three Installing Officers; then the Chapter was closed, and the convocation adjourned until Tuesday, the 18th inst. The session will end on the last Tuesday of this month. We noticed amongst the Principals present S. Brooks, H. Furss, C. Powell, H. W. Ruff, W. S. Lee, Thomas Perrin, C. S. Fraser, C. P. Gillard, E. Child, R. H. Crowden, M. L. Levey, J. Brittain, T. Charles, T. L. Payne, R. P. Tebb, B. Haynes, H. C. Tepp*, C. H. Webb, C. Daniel, &c.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—As spring approaches a most favourable opportunity offers for rectifying irregularities, removing impurities, and erasing blemishes which have arisen from the presence of matters forbid by winter from being transpired through the pores. This searching Ointment, well rubbed upon the skin, penetrates to the deeply seated organs, upon which it exerts a most wholesome and beneficial influence. Well nigh all the indigestions give way to this simple treatment, aided by purifying and aperitive doses of Holloway's Pills, round each box of which plain "instructions" are folded. Bilious disorders, loss of appetite, fulness after eating, lassitude, gout and rheumatism may be effectively checked in their painful progress, and the seeds of long suffering eradicated by these remedies.

THE MEAT SUPPLY FROM NEW ZEALAND.

SHAKESPEARE has told us that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, but practical experience often leads us to question the correctness of his dictum. Englishmen of the present day are very apt to allow themselves to be led away by name rather than by quality, and in no instance perhaps is this more noticeable than in the question of food. We have been taught to regard English mutton, for instance, as unequalled by that grown in any other part of the world, and so prejudiced are a large section of the English nation that they will not even taste any that has not been raised on the downs of the South Coast—that is, if they know it! but unfortunately recent action in our House of Commons has demonstrated that all "South-down" mutton is not fairly entitled to be so described; indeed that no small quantity of it reaches the butcher from abroad, who prefers to retain the name, lest by any other it should not "smell so sweet." The mere mention of frozen mutton from Australia or New Zealand is enough to frighten a large section of the community, who will not even give it a trial. How we pity these misguided individuals, for much as we relish the prime joints of Old England, we venture to think there are as good grown outside its borders, even at the other side of the world. We never had any prejudice against frozen meat, and have often enjoyed a prime joint brought to us in that condition,—well knowing it to have been killed at the Antipodes—as much, or more, than less liberal minded individuals who have eaten of it under the supposition that it was native meat. Prejudice, however, is gradually wearing away, and foreign meat is becoming more and more a recognised necessity for this country. If legislation is brought to bear upon the subject we may expect even greater strides towards its popularity, and in such a case increased demand must be the result. The present is, therefore, an exceptionally good time in which to arrange to keep pace with the growing demand. Among ventures having this object in view we may mention the Merrywala Estate and Stock Company Limited, full particulars of which will be found elsewhere in this issue. This company proposes to purchase an estate of about 41 square miles, with homestead, stock, implements, &c., in the Province of Otago, New Zealand, there to carry on the business of sheep-farming with a view to the export of wool and frozen mutton. The Estate has many attractions—the greatest, perhaps, the reported presence of gold, but even if the precious metal is not found in payable quantities it is anticipated that the receipts from timber, stone, wool, sheep for local consumption, and frozen mutton for London, will be sufficient to realise handsome dividends. The capital of the company is £150,000, divided into £5 shares, 26,000 of which, together with 2,000 debentures of £50 each, are now offered for public subscription. Forms of application for shares and other particulars may be had of the Secretary, at the offices of the company, 17 Great George Street, Westminster, S.W.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Some time ago a good deal of correspondence on the subject of "Technical Education" appeared in your columns, which, after the letter signed "Instructor," suddenly ceased. As this subject appears to be attracting considerable attention throughout the country, I should be glad to know whether any steps have yet been taken towards the formation of such classes in the Boys' School at Wood Green.

I beg to remain, Sir,

Yours fraternally,

A W.M.

ROYAL ASYLUM OF ST. ANNE'S.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A child of the late Bro. W. F. Lane, who was collector to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, is an applicant at the ensuing election, for the fourth time, for the benefits of the Royal Asylum of St. Anne's.

Doubtless, if made acquainted with the circumstances, many members of the Craft would gladly assist with votes, which the widow finds so hard to obtain, more especially as the case is ineligible, under the rules, for the Masonic Institution for Boys, one of the family being already there.

Will you, therefore, kindly allow me to call attention to the case, and to say that proxies sent to me "will be thankfully received and faithfully applied."

Yours fraternally,

N. B. HEADON, P.M. and Treasurer,

The Great City Lodge, No. 1426.

44 Gutter Lane, E.C.

The Quarterly meeting of the General Committee of Grand Lodge, and monthly meeting of the Board of Benevolence was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, the three principal Officers of the Board being in their respective chairs. The agenda for the June communication of Grand Lodge having been submitted, the grants made at the last meeting of the Board of Benevolence were confirmed, after which the new cases—40 in number—were considered. Six of these were deferred, one was dismissed, and the others were relieved with a total of £875, made up of one grant of £5, seven of £10, two of £15, eight of £20, eight of £30, three of £40, three of £50, and one of £100.

The twenty-second annual edition of the "Export Merchant Shippers' Directory," with Itinerary for London (price 15s), will be issued by the end of this month by Messrs. Dean & Son, 160A Fleet Street, E.C.

Alhambra.—The directors of the Alhambra announce the production, on Monday next, 24th May, of an entirely new grand ballet divertissement, entitled "Cupid," in which the celebrated Signorina Besseno, prima ballerina assoluta of La Scala, will create the title rôle; and Miss Lillie Lee, assisted by Millie, Marie and Vivian, will also appear. This ballet is invented and will be produced by Mon. J. Hansen, and a very important musical score has been specially composed for it by Mons. Jacobi. The scenery is by T. E. Ryan, while the costumes, by Mrs. and Miss Alias (from the designs of L. Besche), are novel and artistic. A grand procession, diversified by characteristic dances, will form one of the attractions in this gorgeous ballet; and charming variety will be obtained by the introduction of types of the people of the four quarters of the globe, including representatives of New Zealand and the Indians of North America. The sections representing India and our Colonies will be interesting items in the performance, and be illustrative of some features of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition.

MERRYVALE ESTATE. ACREAGE, &c.

THIS Company has been formed to purchase the MERRYVALE ESTATE and SOUTHLAND, in the province of OTAGO, NEW ZEALAND, containing 26,390 acres of freehold land and 454 acres leasehold, or about 41 square miles, with the homestead, stock, and implements, &c., thereon, the property of James Ashbury, Esq., of Merryvale and Brighton, and principally to carry on the business of sheep-farming, with a special view to the export of wool and frozen mutton.

The Estate is about 7 miles from the railway-station at Otautau, which is 31 miles from the town of Invercargill, and 48 from the shipping port (the Bluff), where steamers from 3000 to 4000 tons can go alongside the wharf. The railway also connects with the towns of Dunedin, Lyttleton, and Christchurch, and the entire railway system in the South Island.

The situation of the Estate is exceptionally good, being surrounded by timbered ranges of hills, and bounded or traversed by the Rivers Waiau, Orawia, Merry, Fenham Creek, and various tributaries.

The surface is undulatory, and affords excellent shelter. Water is abundant at all seasons of the year, consequently there are no droughts, such as have proved so disastrous to stock in Australia and the River Plate.

The drop of lambs last year was 84 per cent., but it is expected that by improved management the per centage may reach 100 per cent., or one lamb per ewe. Owing to the natural shelter on the Estate, the loss of lambs is very small.

The public County main road runs about 15½ miles through the Estate; and the post and wire boundary and paddock fences measure about 60 miles.

In November 1885, about 12,260 acres were in English grasses or under cultivation for turnips or oats; 5413 acres were Bush (forest); and 9171 tussock (native grass) and fern.

The Vendor estimates that with an average annual expenditure of about £5,500 the area in English grasses or under cultivation for turnips or oats will be increased by the 31st March 1891 to 16,743 acres, and the number of sheep on the Estate to about 41,000.

LIVE STOCK, TIMBER, AND MINERALS.

The Estate and stock, together with crops, implements, &c., were purchased by Mr. Ashbury in March 1885. The live stock, after delivery was taken, consisted of 17,245 sheep and lambs, 392 head of cattle, 493 hogs, and 21 horses, &c., as shown by valuation and return accounts. Considerable additions of stock have since been made.

Most excellent and valuable forest timber, such as Totara and Black Pine, is found on the Estate. A tramway is intended to be made to connect the Estate with the Railway system, by which the timber will be available for sale.

The Commission on the Colonial Industries of New Zealand reported to Parliament in 1880 as follows:—

"The demand for foreign products is constant and unlimited."—"The wealth to be derived from an economical disposal of the forests is literally incalculable."

There is a valuable stone quarry on the Estate, with regard to which a leading architect of Invercargill reported, in July 1882, as follows, viz.:—"I have examined the building stone sent down from your property at Merryvale, and consider it an excellent building material. The great drawback to its coming into general use appears to me to be the heavy expense of carriage." When the proposed tramway is completed, the difficulties of conveyance would be removed.

Coal has also been reported as discovered on both sides of the Estate.

Since the purchase important discoveries of Gold have been made on and near the Estate.

Gold was first discovered in Otago in 1861; since then, the Otago gold district, up to 31st March 1884, produced 4,319,544 ounces of gold, valued at £17,026,320. From the formation of the New Zealand Colony to the 31st March 1884, the total value of gold exported was £40,707,074. In or about October 1885 alluvial gold was found in the Merryvale Bush and the adjoining Long-Wood range, belonging to the Crown, and active explorations were at once set on foot.

On the 11th March 1886 the Vendor's Agent wrote from Merryvale, as follows:—

"Gold Field.

"Yesterday I saw some quartz that had been brought down from the bush, richly studded with gold. It is reported that it comes from a reef two feet wide. As soon as I ascertain whether this is the truth I shall telegraph you. The quartz reefs that have been found all run north and south—that is to say, run on to Merryvale. Probably they will be deep down, but such reefs are generally richer than those near the surface."

On the 20th March 1886 the Agent sent the Vendor a code cablegram, expressing that a gold reef had been struck outside the Estate, and dipping towards it, but that no Assay had been made. The place of discovery is understood to be only a short distance beyond the boundary. The above telegram has since been confirmed by another to the effect that practical miners are now tunnelling to the lower part of the reef at their own cost; and also by letters. If the Assay should prove to be within the average of paying Quartz Gold, the advantage to the Company in the way of royalties or on sale might be many times the value of the Estate.

CLIMATE OF NEW ZEALAND, INCREASE IN VALUE OF LAND, &c.

The Company will not be invested with gold mining powers; but, in conjunction with the Vendor (who reserves a moiety of the Gold rights), will be able to dispose, by way of sale or lease, of any gold which may be found on the property; and, by assisting in the formation of other companies for mining purposes, will also be able to ensure to the shareholders of the Merryvale Company who desire it a participation in gold mining enterprise.

The climate of New Zealand is the most healthy of all the seven Australasian Colonies; its average Spring temperature being 55 degrees, Summer 63, Autumn 57, and Winter 48.

Judge Bathgate, of Dunedin, in his recent work, "New Zealand: its Resources and Prospects," says:—

"As society progresses in population and wealth, and as new branches of industry develop and prosper, so will the value of land steadily increase."—"There is every reason to expect that land in New Zealand will touch a far higher price than has yet been dreamed of."—"No part of New Zealand is above 100 miles from the seaboard, in the South Island 75; and when the Crown shall have parted with the last acre of its waste lands, then the value of freehold throughout the Colony will rise with a bound to an amount to which it is difficult to assign a limit."

Digitized by Google

The Hon. Robert Stout, one of the Commissioners of the Land Board of Otago, late Attorney-General of New Zealand, and now Premier, reported on the 24th May 1884 as follows, on the Southland portion of Otago:—

"Southland will, I believe, one day be the finest district of the Colony for mixed farming."

The average product of cereals per acre in Otago and Southland is greater even than in the famous Canterbury district of New Zealand. An idea of the value of good land in the latter district may be formed from recent valuations received through one of the leading New Zealand banks, which were as follows:—£6 to £35 per acre; and for potato land £50 per acre (letting from £3 to £4 per acre); and in the Ashburton district £5 10s to £13 per acre.

The Otago and Southland Investment Company, Limited, (registered in England) has paid dividends averaging 12½ per cent. during the last four years. The Reserve Fund is over £78,000, and the shares stand at 87½ per cent. premium.

WHEAT AND OTHER CROPS.

A Report on which the Vendor purchased the Estate states, in describing the land, "The soil is a good depth, and very rich, and is capable of producing heavy crops of both grass, grain, and root crops." If the price of wheat rises to any great extent it might be advisable to grow crops on some part of the Estate; in which case the Vendor believes that the results, with average good harvests, would soon repay the purchase-money of such portion. The average yield per acre of corn in Southland and Otago exceeds that of any other district in New Zealand, or any other country in the world.

The average yield per acre, taken from statistics, is as follows:—For years 1873-1883, Otago and Southland 31·2 bushels per acre; New Zealand generally, 26·3. In Manitoba and the North-West Territories of Canada 27 for 1877-1880. In the United Kingdom it was 26·5 for 18 years ending 1883; Australasia (excepting New Zealand) 12·86 for 1873-1883. In the United States of America it was 12·15 for 1882-83, and in Russia 5·5 for 1872-73. As compared with the other Australasian Colonies, New Zealand stands for Potatoes in the proportion of 5·12 to 3·03 tons per acre.

BRITISH CONSUMPTION OF IMPORTED MUTTON.

On the question of population and meat supply, Mr. M. G. Mulhall, F.S.S. (author of "Balance-sheet of the World"), in his "England's New Sheep Farm," after tabulating the numbers of inhabitants and cattle in the United Kingdom in 1882, writes:—"Hence we may expect in 1896 to have a population of 42 or 43 millions, and to produce only as much meat as will feed our inhabitants for five months in the year. Our importation will then exceed a million tons yearly, the bulk of which must necessarily come from the Australian Colonies."

In an article on the British Beef question the St. James's Gazette of 1st March 1886, after remarking that it has been estimated that the British consumption of mutton averages ¼ lb. per head per week, and on that basis the annual consumption would be rather more than 400,000 tons of mutton, concludes as follows:—

"American and Canadian Cattle rule Glasgow, as the frozen mutton of New Zealand is beginning to rule Smithfield."

The total importations from New Zealand in the 4 years 1882-85 amounted to 994,754 carcases as against 336,109 from Australia in the 6 years 1880-85. The demand for New Zealand mutton has increased so considerably that it will probably outstrip the supply. New Zealand mutton commands in London a much higher price than Australian or River Plate mutton. Salesmen of the London Central and Leadenhall Meat Markets are now erecting extensive Refrigerators to avoid forced sales. Some are already constructed and in use.

There are works for freezing on the wharf at the shipping port, the Bluff; besides which Messrs. Shaw, Savill and Co. Limited, have many sailing vessels for the London trade specially fitted with refrigerating apparatus to freeze carcases on board.

For the purposes of estimating profits as below mentioned, an average wholesale price has been assumed of 5d per lb. for mutton, as against 6½d per lb., the average price for the last three years in the Metropolitan Meat Market. Lamb has been taken at an estimated price of 9d per lb.

The following opinion from Messrs. Brooke and Co., Commission Salesmen, of Leadenhall Market, confirms this estimate of future prices:—

"Having regard to the increasing favour with which New Zealand mutton is received in England, we think that 3s 4d or 3s 6d per stone (of 8 lbs), that is 5d or 5½d per lb. for mutton, and 6s or 6s 4d per stone, that is 9d or 9½d per lb. for lamb, will be fair average prices for estimating purposes over the next few years, especially in view of the annually increasing consumption.

G. F. BROOKE."

WOOL.

The price of Merryvale wool from 1877 to 1885 averaged about 10½d per pound; in estimating the profits it is taken at 8d, for year 1886-87, and afterwards at 9d.

Cross-bred wools have recently proved steadier than Merinos, and not liable to so much fluctuation, as partly shown by Messrs Jacomb, Sons & Co.'s Wool report of 31st December 1885, which stated that the average values of Merino Wools then stood at from 20 to 25 per cent. below the currency at the corresponding time of 1884, and that the coarser Cross-breds had only suffered 5 to 7 per cent. Merryvale sheep are cross-breds, except a proportion of Merinos for crossing the breed.

A leading article in the Standard of 10th March 1886, on the condition of Trade, says:—

"Cotton is tending upwards, and wool can hardly help doing so, after the fearful havoc wrought among Australian sheep by the prolonged scarcity of rain."

TERMS OF PURCHASE AND TRANSFER OF ESTATE.

The Vendor purchased this Estate on the strong recommendation of his Agent, Mr. G. J. A. Richardson, of Burnham, Essex, an experienced agriculturist, who was engaged for several months in 1884, on his behalf, in prospecting and reporting to him on various properties in New Zealand. His subsequent detailed Report of 30th January 1885, was fully confirmed by an experienced Colonial valuer. These Reports and the Vendor's own opinion, after personal inspection, all warranted the conclusion that the Estate was "the pick of Southland," and the terms of purchase extremely favourable.

Mr. Ashbury's intention in purchasing the Estate was occasionally to reside there; but partly in consequence of the large addition of capital required to develop the Estate, and the Timber, Stone, and other industries, and to construct a short railway or tramway, he has decided to transfer it to a Joint Stock Company, retaining a large interest in shares.

Towards the construction of the proposed railway or tramway, the Government and adjoining landowners may be expected to contribute largely. A letter recently received from the Vendor's Agent at Merryvale says:—

"A railway can be made through the property, for which the Government has offered valuable concessions."

The price at which the Vendor purchased the Estate in March 1885 was £120,000, and the stock, &c., at £17,175 13s 1d. Portions of the purchase money remained on Mortgage.

The Company is to purchase the Estate (except a moiety of the gold rights) at the above-mentioned price of £120,000; the stock, at their cost price per head, and to take over the mortgages, the particulars of which are stated in the Agreement.

Permanent additions and improvements since 23rd March 1885, to be paid for at cost price.

Outgoings and incomings before 31st March 1886 to belong to and be paid by the Vendor; afterwards to and by the Company.

Lambs and other produce of the Estate during the past year to be taken over at current wholesale price.

The amount of cash paid in respect of purchase money by the Vendor, and capital expended by him as above, to be paid to him in fully paid ordinary shares, plus £5,000 in cash, out of which he will pay all expenses and commissions relating to the establishment of the Company and the purchase.

If the Mortgages are arranged to be continued, it may not be necessary for some time to call up the shares beyond £3 per share.

The Vendor will pass a portion of each of the first three years in New Zealand as Managing Director, without receiving remuneration for such services, beyond the usual Director's fee, until a dividend of at least 7 per cent. has been earned. The amount will then be left to be settled by the Company in General Meeting.

Moneys received from calls and remaining unexpended may be placed on deposit account at the Company's bankers in New Zealand at the current rate of interest for deposits. This recently was about 6 per cent. per annum.

DEBENTURES.

The Debentures will be constituted a charge on the undertaking and property of the Company (including uncalled capital), subject only to the existing mortgages; and the proceeds of the Issue will be payable to the Trustees, and be applicable exclusively in redemption of such mortgages. On these being satisfied, the debentures will become a first charge on the property of the Company. The debenture moneys are payable to the Bankers of the Trustees as follows:—£5 on application, £15 on allotment, the balance within 12 months by instalments of £10 each. Interest runs from payment. The debentures will be payable to Bearer, and will have coupons attached for interest also payable to Bearer half-yearly.

Excluding future receipts from timber, stone, &c., and the possible revenue from gold, the main sources of income will be the sale of wool, of sheep for local consumption, and of frozen mutton for London.

The Vendor estimates that in about three years, when the pasturage portion of the Estate is fully under cultivation, it will be capable of carrying 60,000 sheep, and a dividend of about 15 per cent. per annum may be expected; in the meantime, that the dividends will average 9 per cent. on an assumed capital expenditure of £200,000. The dividends may be increased by buying store sheep and fattening them for export to the London market. When the timber, stone, and other industries are developed, the dividends should be further and largely increased.

The Registered Office of the Company will be in London. Application will be made for quotations of the Shares and Debentures on the London Stock Exchange, and in New Zealand.

The only Agreement entered into by or on behalf of the Company is an agreement dated the 15th day of May 1886, made between Mr. James Ashbury and John Delille as Trustee for the Company.

The following Documents may be seen at the Offices of the Solicitors, viz.: A copy of the above-mentioned Agreement, and of the Articles of Association, and copies of the present Vendor's Purchase Agreement, and of the three Reports on the Estate referred to in this Prospectus.

In the event of no allotment being made, all payments on application will be returned in full.

Application for shares or debentures to be made to the Bankers, on the form supplied, and all further information may be obtained from Messrs. Chadwicks, Boardman and Co., 36 Coleman Street, E.C., and 64 Cross Street, Manchester, and at the Offices of the Company.

By order,

JOHN DELILLE,
Secretary (pro tem).

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE PROVINCIAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

AS we said last week, in speaking of the recent Festival on behalf of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, the Province of Surrey took the premier place among the counties of England so far as amount of contributions was concerned. It was represented by twenty-two stewards, who were headed by the Rt. Wor. Provincial Grand Master, Gen. J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., who was also the Chairman of the Festival; while among the Stewards was the premier representative of a private Lodge, Bro. Joseph D. Langton, of the George Price, No. 2096, with a total of £407 18s 6d. Gen. Brownrigg's list was a splendid one, £193 10s, and although a part of this amount may justly belong to the Friendship Lodge, No. 6, of which the Chairman is a member, Surrey is fairly entitled on this occasion to all the credit of its Provincial Grand Master's total. Then we have Bro. J. Hooke, as representative of the East Surrey Lodge of Concord, No. 463, who was also fortunate enough to secure a three-figure total, his list being returned as £105; while a welcome addition of £10 10s has since been made. Bro. Charles Belton, of the Royal Alfred Lodge, No. 777, is next in order of merit, with a total of £89 15s 6d, and then comes Bro. W. A. Laker, of the Royal Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1362, who has helped to swell the total with a list of £63. Bro. John G. Horsey, a good all-round man on any occasion, did not confine his attention to a particular quarter, but he brings up a total of £53 11s, collected probably from among his personal friends, or from those Lodges where he has tried to persuade a brother to act as Steward, but where the contributions have hardly been sufficient to justify separate representation. Bro. H. C. Leigh-Bennett, of the St. George's Lodge, No. 370, makes a very useful contribution to the funds of the Charity, his list of £47 4s being the next in order; and then comes the total of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Charles Greenwood, who figures for £43 10s 6d. Our readers will remember the heavy loss which Bro. Greenwood sustained in the death of his wife, during the heat of his self-imposed campaign, and the ill-health which still further impeded his efforts; but the amount of his personal list is no criterion of what he did on behalf of this year's Festival for "Our Girls;" indeed, we may say that the more he worked the less did his list become; for, whenever he had the promise of help to swell his total, he turned round and induced the donor to act as an independent Steward. By this means he prevailed on several to undertake Stewardships, and we must therefore look to the general total rather than to his personal list for the result of his efforts. Bro. Thomas Long, of No. 889, took up £42, while the lists of the other Surrey Stewards were all under that amount. In the aggregate the twenty-two Stewards of the county brought up £1,334 4s 6d.

Northumberland is second on the list of counties, with a total of £905 2s, collected by Bro. B. J. Thomson, a member of the Northern Counties Lodge, No. 406, who acted as Provincial representative. This brother's list was the largest of all the Stewards at the Festival, and when its total was announced, it was greeted with well merited applause. It is a grand amount, and does credit not only to the Brother who collected it, but also to the district from which it was subscribed.

Kent had eight Stewards, and sent up a total of £546 0s 6d. Its chief representative was Bro. Henry Mason, of the Pattison Lodge, No. 913, who collected £210, while he was followed by Bro. F. H. Hallett (£73 10s), Charles Holcroft (£64 11s 6d), G. W. Mitchell (£63), &c.

West Yorkshire secured the next place. Twenty-nine brethren from the district acted as Stewards, headed by Bro. T. W. Tew, the Provincial Grand Master. The total amount sent up by these brethren was £500, a total which is most satisfactory, especially in view of the munificent contributions of West Yorkshire in past years.

West Lancashire sent up twelve Stewards, and a total of £352 16s. Bro. R. Goodacre represented "The Province," and secured a list of £147. Bro. S. G. Sinclair, one of the Stewards of St. George's Lodge, No. 32, was next highest, with £63.

Cambridgeshire appears to be trying to make up for past shortcomings. Its total at this Festival was one of which any Province—even either of the large ones—would have reason to be proud, being no less than £273, sent up at the hands of Bro. C. A. Vinter, who is accredited to "The Province," and right ably did he represent it.

Essex is another district to which especial praise is due. On this occasion six of its brethren acted as Stewards, and the total they secured was £245 14s; Bro. G. F. Jones, of the Priory Lodge, No. 1000, took the lead, with £66 3s; and was followed by Bro. F. A. White, of No. 1437, with £57 15s.

Berks and Bucks, with three Stewards, sent up £227 15s; more than half of the amount coming from Bro. Henry Warden, the representative of the Ellington Lodge, No. 1566; who collected £115. The other Stewards were Bros. John Greenfield, No. 795, £57 15s; and Samuel Dyer, No. 1887, £55.

Gloucestershire was ninth in order, even though one of its Stewards had made no return. Altogether there were five representatives from this county, and the total secured by four of them was £222 12s. Bro. Samuel Bland, of No. 493, secured £78 15s of this; and Bro. Henry Tovey, of No. 592, £68 5s.

Staffordshire, with two Stewards, working on behalf of their respective Lodges, and jointly on account of the Province, contributed £204 15s; no inconsiderable sum, especially if the brethren of the district are reserving their strength until their Provincial Grand Master undertakes the presidency of one of the Festivals; as we hope he will do ere long.

Wiltshire was well represented by one Steward, Bro. J. C. Maclean, a member of the Royal Sussex Lodge of Emulation, No. 355, who secured £200 11s from his Lodge and the Province.

Monmouthshire, was close on the preceding total, £199 10s having been contributed from this district. Bro. S. Davies was a Steward on behalf of the Province; and brought up £162 15s; while he was ably supported by the now familiar Master Willie Watkins, who on this occasion collected £36 15s.

Middlesex, with six Stewards, took the next place, the total from the Province being £173 7s 6d; £56 14s of which sum was collected by Bro. Dr. H. W. Roberts, of the Burdett Lodge, No. 1293. Bro. Alfred W. Gower, of the Gooch Lodge, No. 1238, also did well, his total being £49 7s.

East Lancashire had five Stewards and between them, with sundry odd amounts, a sum of £170 5s was added to the total for the year. The "sundries" formed the largest total, the figures being £68 5s, and then, in order, came Bro. W. Hardcastle, of the Albert Victor Lodge, No. 1773, with an even £60. The other four Stewards from this district contributed totals of ten guineas each.

Hampshire and the Isle of Wight had four brethren working in its midst on behalf of the Festival, and among them they secured £164 2s 6d. Bro. John W. Gieve, of the Harmony Lodge, No. 309, had the largest total, his list being £71 4s 3d. Bro. W. T. Way-Buckell, of No. 151, brought up £48 16s 3d, and Bro. R. White, of No. 1331, £33 12s.

Each of the remaining Provinces had totals of less than £150. We here give the respective totals, and in addition the number of brethren of each district who acted as Steward :—

Bristol	1	145 19 0

The above figures, and the splendid sum to which they total, are sufficient evidence of the desire of Freemasons throughout the country to do their best on behalf of those whose station in life is such as to call for outside aid. If such disinterested charity as is here evidenced can only be maintained, Freemasonry will never lack a strong advocate in support of its principles of Brotherly Love and Relief. We hope that not only may similar success attend all Festivals of the future, but as year by year the blessings of Freemasonry become more extended, that additional support may be forthcoming and that the contributions may some day be sufficient to meet all the calls made upon them. In conclusion, we again heartily congratulate all who had a hand in the Girls' School Festival of 1886, and the Institution itself on being able to secure so large a list of supporters, which will enable it to continue its good work amongst the orphan daughters of Freemasonry.

LESSONS TAUGHT BY FREEMASONRY.

An Oration delivered by Dr. Branch, W.M. Mount Olive Lodge, St. Kitts, W.I., at the unveiling of the memorial to Dr. Dinzey P.M., on 13th March 1886, at the Springfield Cemetery, St. Kitts.

IT is, alas, only too true that the roses of friendship, as a poet has said, fall only on the turf that covers the dead. The grave has no ear for the sweet words of love, no eye for the proofs of esteem and the tribute of affection.

Yet the ceremonial of to-day is not an unmeaning and useless pageant. It has given us an opportunity of expressing, to the relief of our own hearts, our grief for the loss that we have sustained, and has caused us to meditate on excellencies of character which we would fain emulate.

To us, my Brethren in Freemasonry, the labours of the day are fraught with special significance. Once again has the great lesson been taught us that virtue triumphs even over death. Once again have we raised our eyes to the Star of Hope whose rays penetrate even beyond the dark veil that shrouds the unknown land.

But what more profitable subject of meditation is there to any one than the finished story of a good man's life? It matters nothing to a philosophical mind that the drama was enacted on a small and lowly stage. External circumstances cannot add to nor diminish the intrinsic grandeur of the theme. The perfect circle is as beautiful and as full of meaning when traced with contracted as with wide-spread compass-points.

None of you will be likely to construe these remarks as an undervaluing of the career of our deceased friend and brother. Second to no other in usefulness and nobility is the work of the practical physician, whether his lot be cast among the rich and powerful or the poorest and meanest of his fellow-men, in an obscure islet or some mighty centre of civilisation. The talents and energies which are faithfully expended in applying the resources of Science to the necessities of suffering Humanity may not gain fame or rank or wealth, but can scarcely fail to be held in high estimation and to win a rich guerdon of love.

Such were the labours and such the reward of John Keightley Dinzey. The elegant and appropriate memorial before us is the gift chiefly of those who benefited by his services. I take this opportunity of remarking, en passant, that the credit of originating the idea of its erection is due to Solomon Shelford, Esquire. It, this Lodge of Sorrow, and the immense concourse here assembled to do honour to the memory of our departed brother are tokens of the exalted opinion of his merits entertained by this community and of the large place which he filled in our hearts.

Ay, and ever will fill. Surely the poor of Cayon and Nichola Town Parishes will long miss the generous hand and sympathetic heart buried here. Can the patients whose lives he has redeemed from death forget the self sacrificing devotion which assuaged their sufferings? Often will the colleagues by whose side he has loyally stood in many a hard fight yearn for his helpful presence. Can the memory of the genial companion, the disinterested adviser, the faithful friend ever fade?

Many of us have reached or overstepped the prime of life. Time will not give back

> "The golden days and fairy flowers
> To these wearied hearts of ours."

We cannot hope to replace the broken link of an early friendship by any newly-made companionship. One by one the friends of a lifetime glide from the clasp of our loving arms into the grave's cold embrace, carrying with them our own hopes and joys, ambitions and energies, the bloom of our youth and the vigour of our manhood.

> "Ah me! What hidden occult science
> Can from the ashes in our hearts once more
> The Rose of Youth restore?
> What craft of Alchemy can bid defiance
> To Time and Change, and for a single hour
> Renew the phantom flower?"

But, my Masonic Brothren, have we no hope of a reunion with the companions of our former toils? Yes, for not in vain have we passed, guided by the beacons of Conscience and Reason, through the dark and rough road of Life and the pathway of Science to the sombre portals of Death. Even thus and there have we seen the dawn of an eternal morn silvering, though but with faint and flickering beam, the sable cloud that rests on the prospect of Futurity. Our noble and ancient mysteries have nerved our hearts to face with calm courage the King of Terrors and to tread with firm step around the good man's grave. Even he, who though a Master in our Israel, has not advanced beyond the ritualistic lessons of the Order, knows the sublime truths that Nature herself has instilled into our inmost souls a reasonable hope of a hereafter and an instinctive belief, founded on that hope, that heroic devotion to duty even at the cost of life is infinitely preferable to life itself purchased with the loss of honour.

But the humble and ardent students of esoteric Masonry find in it more authoritative and direct teaching on this all-important subject. By esoteric Masonry I do not mean the alleged possession of occult science by the so-called theosophists and such-like mystics. Still less do I allude to the tenets of certain philologists who claim to have found the genesis of the Masonic as well as of all other theological or ethico-religious systems in a "Solar Myth" or a "Naturalistic Theory." It would be idle to deny, in the presence of those who have advanced to the East in due form, that Astronomy has in all ages constituted an important part of Masonic Science. It would be equally absurd to tell you, who understand the use of the square, the level, and the plumb, that Masonry was not an ethical system. Our ancient Brethren who watched the skies from the lofty temples of Belus, or those who from the banks of the rising Nile saw in the Southern sky the calls to labour and refreshment in the ascending Sirius and Canopus, may have come at length to believe that there was nothing in the mysteries that they practised and transmitted but a symbolism of the real nature of the celestial scenery. But such was not the lesson that had been taught them by the Patriarchal Master who left for their observation the sublime parable of Ophinchus, radiant with the hope of the race. Nor by the illustrious Grand Master, second Father of the Adamites, who bequeathed to them the meaning of the threefold splendour on the black emblem of death and destruction.

In spite of the wonderfully unalterable nature of Freemasonry, the rituals of different ages and races will become more or less fashioned in accordance with prevalent notions as to the chief meaning of the institution. Thus it may appear to many in our day a mere system of morality, just as it probably seemed to some of our ancient brethren only the temple in which recondite scientific truth was safely enshrined.

It is of course impossible to enter into any real and clear explanation of esoteric Masonry in an untyled assembly. Suffice it to say, as bearing on the present subject, that it contains the essential truths of religion known to the primeval Adamites, however its formulæ may have been modified in ancient or modern times by dominant scientific or religious systems: and that to the esoteric Mason, many a word, or even accent, of the Universal Language plainly and confidently declares that death, certain as it is, is not a reality. Beneath its hideous panoply is hidden the angel-form of immortal youth, "the bright face of a blooming boy fresh as a flower new-born."

But, brethren and friends, we are assembled here to-day, not only beneath the shade of the acacia, but at the foot of the Cross. All of us here present, whether Masons or not, are Christians; and he whose body sleeps beneath this Cross leaned his dying head on the bosom of the Crucified Son of Mary.

The hope of a reunion in a happy eternity with our departed friends is so clearly the chief solace for the loss of their companionship in our lives, that one naturally finds himself, on an occasion like this, discussing the subject of man's immortality. Speaking as the present occupant of the Oriental Chair of the Mount Olive, I have been privileged to direct attention, so far as it could be done outside the door of a Lodge, to the consolations which Masonry offers in the presence of death. I have simply stated the teachings of our Order on the topic of a future existence ex cathedra, for there is no necessity to vex the holy calm of God's Acre by adducing arguments to a Christian assemblage in justification of the hope that is in us.

As Christians we live in the shadowless light of a noontide Sun, the Sun of Righteousness. The darkness of death and the gloom of the grave have disappeared from among the mysteries of our common humanity, for this is "the Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world, and the Light is the Life of men."

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The annual meeting took place on Friday, the 21st inst., at Freemasons' Tavern, when there was an exceptionally large attendance. Bro. Henry Smith, Deputy Prov. Grand Master West Yorkshire, was voted to the chair. The minutes of the last annual meeting having been printed and circulated, were adopted, as also was the report of the Audit Committee. The following is the report of the Committee of Management:—

REPORT.

The Committee of Management has much pleasure in submitting a Report of its proceedings during the past year to the Governors and Subscribers of the Institution.

The Annual Festival was held by direction of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G., &c., Grand Patron and President, on Wednesday, the 24th of February last. The Most Honourable the Marquis of Hertford, Right Worshipful Grand Senior Warden, occupied the chair, and was supported by a Board of 279 Stewards, the aggregate of whose lists of subscriptions and donations amounted to £15,000 11s 6d. A result so satisfactory, under a concurrence of most depressing circumstances, cannot it is hoped be otherwise than eminently gratifying to the Craft in general, but more especially to those who had a hand in bringing it about. It is true the total was in round figures £2,770 less than was subscribed at the Festival held in February 1885, under the auspices of Sir M. R. Hicks-Beach, Bart., M.P., Prov. Grand Master of Gloucestershire, but it must not be forgotten that on the occasion referred to an exceptional amount of enthusiasm was created by the paucity of vacancies, and the overwhelming number of applicants for admission on the Widows' Fund; that the Board of Stewards was also stronger by 76 brethren than it was this year; and last, but not least, that the Chairman had the aid of a Province which both for its own credit's sake, as well as from the sense of respect and loyalty it entertained for its chief, gave him an active and generous support. Lord Hertford, the Chairman for this year's Festival, was not so fortunately placed. He had a less numerous Board of Stewards, and he had no Province—at least in the sense in which Gloucestershire helped Sir M. E. Hicks-Beach. Yet, notwithstanding these drawbacks, the total realised was in excess of any previous year,—1885 excepted. With these facts before it, the Committee is most anxious to place on record its deep gratitude to their noble Chairman, and the brethren who so successfully co-operated with him in obtaining this brilliant result.

At the election in May 1885, there were upon the Funds of the Institution 375 annuitants, that is to say, 173 men and 202 widows, while to-day there are 129 candidates, namely 58 men and 71 widows, all of whose respective claims to receive the benefits of the Institution have been most fully investigated and approved. The vacancies to be balloted for consist of 15 on the Male Fund, and 9 on the Widows' Fund, so that excluding the 3 deferred annuitants in each case, there are 12 on the former and 6 on the latter. Since, however, these figures were declared at the meeting of the Committee in February there have died 9 men and 2 widows, so that the numbers to be elected to-day will be 24 men and 11 widows. The Committee very seriously regrets the marked disproportion there is between the numbers of vacancies and candidates in respect of each Fund, especially that of the Widows, but having regard to the large increase which was sanctioned—not only in the last, but in previous years—by the Governors and Subscribers of the Institution, it does not consider it would be justified in recommending the creation of any fresh annuities. The sum annually required towards providing for the present needs of the Institution in this respect is £13,416, to which must be added the further sum of £340, divisible under Law 9 (Male Fund) among the widows, 17 in number, of recently deceased male annuitants. This gives a total annual expenditure on account of annuities amounting to £13,756, and the Committee, in the exercise of what it trusts will be considered a wise direction, does not consider it would be warranted in recommending that any further liability in this direction should be incurred.

The Committee avails itself of this opportunity of expressing its thanks to United Grand Lodge for its renewed vote of £70 towards providing the residents at Croydon with coal during the winter months.

It is also most anxious to convey its very cordial thanks to the Honorary Surgeons of the Institution, Henry J. Strong, Esq., M.D., and R. Percy Middlemist, Esq., for their invaluable services and unremitting attention to those among the annuitants, both resident and non-resident, who have been under the necessity of seeking medical advice and assistance.

It is likewise a source of satisfaction to be able to report that the building at Croydon is in a complete state of repair, and only needs that care and supervision to which all buildings of this character must from time to time be subjected.

The audited Statement of Account for the year ended 31st March 1886 is appended, and, while inviting the most rigid examination of its details, the Committee is confident it will be found that the utmost economy has been observed in administering the funds of the Institution. Hence, in appealing both to the Craft at large as well as to the general body of the Governors and Subscribers for a continuance of that support which alone has enabled it to fulfil its arduous duties with, it trusts, so much satisfaction and success, it is fully persuaded that such appeal will not be made in vain.

It only remains for the Committee to express the earnest hope that the urgent appeals it is compelled to address annually to the brethren for the means which are indispensable in order to maintain the Institution at its present strength will be as generously responded to in the future as in the past. Moreover, it must be obvious that if the funds of the Charity were increased, there would be a proportionate diminution in the number of unsuccessful candidates, and as a consequence an alleviation to a still greater extent than is now possible of that great amount of distress which it is the desire of every one to cope with successfully. May the support which is needed so imperatively, and to an annually-increasing extent, be forthcoming always in equal, if not in an ever-increasing abundance.

On motion duly proposed and seconded, the Report was adopted.

As there were 20 candidates who sought election as Members of the Committee, a Poll was demanded, and Scrutineers were appointed to examine the papers. The result was in favour of the following:—Frederick Adlard P.M. 7, John Bulmer P.M. 174, C. H. Driver P.M. 905, A. Forsyth, M.D., P.M. 140, Thomas Griffiths P.M. 907, Wm. Hilton P.M. 1351, C. E. Soppet P.M. 60, Louis Stean P.M. 212, Raynham W. Stewart P.M. 12, Stephen Barton Wilson P.M. 59.

A motion which stood in the name of Bro. Birch, to alter the day for holding the Annual Meeting of the Institution was withdrawn; but an alteration was made in the law respecting the election of Treasurer. The result of the election for this office was in favour of Bro. Edgar Bowyer, Past G. Standard Bearer, but the change did not give satisfaction to all who were present, and some discussion afterwards ensued as to the legality of altering the law. Bro. Fenn, President of the Board of General Purposes was elected Trustee of the Sustentation Fund; and Bros. John Newton, J. J. Berry, and Tattershall, Auditors. The Election of Annuitants on the respective Funds, Male and Female, was then proceeded with. We gave the List of those successful in our issue of last week. The proceedings concluded with the routine votes of thanks to Chairman and Scrutineers.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London or Country by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

TOTTENHAM AND ENFIELD MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATIONS.

THE inauguration of a Fourth Association, the object of which is to obtain for each of its members a life governorship in one of the Royal Masonic Charitable Institutions, took place on Friday evening last, under the most interesting auspices, between fifty and sixty gentlemen dining together at the Seven Sisters' Hotel, Page-green, Tottenham. The assemblage was not purely Masonic, the peculiar constitution of these associations, which have been productive of so much practical good, being to extend their advantage to others, outside the pale of the Craft. According to the rules we find that by a subscription of one shilling per week, payable monthly, as soon as the Treasurer is in possession of ten guineas, members are entitled to draw for a life-governorship in one of the Charities, the successful member having the choice as to which Institution shall receive the amount. Membership of the Association is not confined to the Craft only, but any lady or gentleman may be proposed as a member, though, of course, they are not entitled to any voice in its management. Thus it will be seen that the single aim and object of the society is to enlist sympathy and help to our excellent Charities; and the substantial help rendered by the three Associations which have run their successful course at Tottenham should be an incentive to many other Lodges to emulate an example so eminently practical and beneficial. Bro. Oddy provided a capital dinner, which had the advantage of being well served, and the company sat down under the presidency of Bro. J. H. Thompson P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M. 1237 (President), who was supported by Bros. H. V. Clements P.M. 754, P.P.A.G.S. Middlesex, and J. Garrod P.M. 754 (in the vice-chairs); Bros. A. G. Fidler W.M. 754, P.M. 1237 P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex (Treasurer), W. Binnie W.M. 1237 P.P.G.S.B. Berks and Bucks (Secretary), A. Bryant P.M. 1237 P.P.G.J.D. Middlesex, E. J. Everdell P.M. 1579; J. D. Birkin J.W., L. E. Wilson, J. Oddy, Voller and Mills, representing Lodge 754; Bros. H. Woodley 1237, T. Sawyer, G. Richards 1237, C. J. Knightley 1744 and 1237, J. Howlett 1327, Sharp, M. Hart, Wheelhouse 1237, Moseley 228, J. Pinder 1707, Mr. F. Fidler, Mr. J. Thompson jun., Mr. A. Marsh, Mr. A. Binnie, Mr. E. Rudston, Mr. R. Hart, Mr. A. Clark, Mr. J. Webb, Mr. Batchelor, Mr. Glover, and other gentlemen. After discussing the good things provided, the loyal toasts were given from the chair, and received with musical honours.

Bro. Garrod, in proposing "Prosperity to the Fourth Tottenham and Enfield Masonic Charitable Association," said no one wished prosperity to this movement more earnestly than he did himself. They had met this evening for the dual purpose of doing honour to their Bro. Fidler, the energetic and indefatigable Secretary of the Third Association, and also to inaugurate a new Association, which was now in its infancy. In making the announcement that this was the fourth of a series of societies which had been called into existence for Masonic charity, it would show to those gentlemen who were unacquainted with the subject that for a considerable number of years they had been practically carrying out the great object of Freemasonry, which was Charity. He was not going to disclose any of the secrets of the Fraternity; but he might safely say that one of the chief watchwords of Freemasonry was "Charity." They were about to inaugurate the Fourth Association under the presidency of their esteemed Bro. Thompson, with Bro. G. Tegg W.M. 1879 (whose absence they much regretted) as Vice-President, and Bro. A. G. Fidler (the guest of the evening) as Treasurer; and last, though by no means least, Bro. W. Binnie, as Secretary. He had said that this Association was as yet in its infancy, but as they went on they would find it develop into robust youth and honourable age. The object of the movement was to accumulate their loose cash into large sums for the benefit of their indigent brethren, who, as in all other institutions, might happen to have been reduced to unfortunate circumstances in life. They need hardly be reminded that in Freemasonry there were three great Charitable Institutions for the Boys and Girls of Masons, for Aged and Decayed Masons or their Widows, and this Association was for the purpose of collecting money for their benefit. They had one of those Charities—the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys—in their immediate locality, of which they had reason to be justly proud. He trusted this Association would go on as successfully as its predecessors had done; and he was sure that, under the presidency of the names he had just mentioned, it could not be otherwise. In fact, he could not see how it could fail to become the greatest of the four. He concluded by again wishing all prosperity to their new venture, and he associated with the toast the name of its excellent Secretary, Bro. Binnie.

Bro. W. Binnie, who on rising to respond, was received with loud applause, remarked that this Association was scarcely three months old, yet it already numbered 84 members, and he hoped they would go on increasing until the time when, according to their rules, it would be closed, excepting to members to be elected by ballot. As they had got so near the century he should like the number to be made up to a hundred by gentlemen who were not already members; and he assured them they could not do better than to join the Association at once. Referring to the vast amount of good accomplished by the three grand Institutions of the Craft, let them look at the boys who walked round Tottenham and Edmonton, and they must admit the little fellows were a credit to the neighbourhood. Go to Battersea Rise, and see how the girls were cared for, educated, and looked after in every way. And what comfort and happiness was provided for the "old people" at their splendid Institution at Croydon. Taking all these circumstances into consideration, they must all admit that their money was not thrown away, but was expended in the most judicious manner. These Institutions were supported, year after year, not only by the most influential men in the country, but also by the middle and industrial classes; and every man who had once taken the Masonic obligation had impressed upon his memory that charity was the first thing that he should observe. He could only say once more that he thanked them very much for the cordial way in which they had received the toast, and if any gentleman present felt anxious to place their names upon the list of members he should be most happy to take them.

The President said the next toast might be designated the toast of the evening, and that was, "The Health of Bro. Fidler, Secretary of the last or Third Association." It had been his pleasure and privilege to have been associated with Bro. Fidler for some years, ever since he came into Freemasonry. During the whole of that time their esteemed brother had worked most harmoniously with himself and those associated with him in the cause of charity, and had left no stone unturned to further the interests and bring to a successful issue these Associations. They all knew the kindness of heart that always reigned in Freemasonry, and Bro. Fidler had proved himself ever ready and willing to further the interests not only of Freemasonry but of every good cause that had come under his notice. If he were to speak for a very long time he did not know that he could say too much in Bro. Fidler's favour. They were all delighted to be his friends and acquaintances, and to know him was to love him. A very pleasing and gratifying task now devolved upon him, as President of the Fourth Association, to present to Bro. Fidler a testimonial which had been subscribed for by the members and friends of the last Association. The first part of it was an illuminated address, the text of which was as follows:—

"This TESTIMONIAL, together with a liqueur stand, is presented to Brother A. G. Fidler W.M. 754, P.M. 1237, P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, by the members of the Third Tottenham and Enfield Masonic Charitable Association, and a few friends, as a mark of their esteem and in appreciation of his services as Secretary of the Association. (Signed) J. Maller P.M. 754 President, E. Poore P.M. 1237 Vice-President, J. H. Thompson P.M. 1237 and 1707 Treasurer, James Garrod P.M. 754, M.E.Z. 1237.—May 21st 1886."

The address was accompanied by a liqueur stand, and in asking Bro. Fidler's acceptance of the gifts, he wished him, on behalf of all present, long life and happiness, and that he might be spared many years to use that stand with the best creatures which he could put into those bottles. He wished Bro. Fidler and his family health and happiness, and might he long continue to help them in the good work of charity in the future as he had done in the past. He trusted they might long have Bro. Fidler amongst them as a Mason and a friend. (The toast was received with enthusiastic cheering and musical honours).

The address was beautifully engrossed on vellum, illuminated, and embellished with Masonic emblems, by Bro. H. V. Clements, of 7 Mark-lane, and was enclosed in a handsome gilt frame and glazed. The electro silver liqueur-stand was very massive, and fitted with superb bottles of cut crystal glass, supplied by Bro. A. Money, of 49 King's-square, Goswell-road. On the stand was inscribed:—"Presented to Bro. A. G. Fidler W.M. 754, P.M. 1237, P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex.—May 1886."

Bro. Fidler, who was heartily cheered on rising to acknowledge the compliment which had been paid to him, felt he could not adequately thank them for the cordial reception they had given to the toast of his health, for the very kind and eulogistic manner in which it had been proposed from the chair, and for the splendid gifts they had been good enough to present to him; but he begged them to accept his grateful thanks for these tangible proofs of their esteem, which he should highly prize and cherish as long as he lived. They were pleased to appoint him Secretary of the Third Association, an office he was proud to hold; and he should have been sadly wanting in regard had he not carried out the duties of that position in as satisfactory a manner as he possibly could. He had tried to do so, and he was glad his efforts had met with their approbation. He regretted the last Association was not able to show quite so good a balance-sheet as its predecessors, but he supposed that bad times and other circumstances militated against it. But sufficient was done to show that the spirit of charity beat warmly in the hearts of the brethren in this neighbourhood. That spirit had again blazed forth brightly, and what they were unable to accomplish in the Third he hoped would be more than achieved by the Fourth Association, which had been started under such favourable auspices. It would, he was sure, stimulate them in furthering the interests of the noble cause they had so much at heart, in assisting those who were placed in less fortunate circumstances than themselves, in rendering the declining years of the aged happy and comfortable, and educating and maintaining their children. As their worthy Secretary had told them, a very small sacrifice on their individual parts would achieve that object. He hoped they would all do that they could to render the new Association a success far exceeding those which had preceded it. He thanked them again for their kindness, and assured them that he highly esteemed and valued their good wishes.

Bro. H. V. Clements, in proposing the "health of the President," said Bro. Thompson had been associated intimately with these charitable Associations ever since they were started. He was the Secretary and pioneer of the First, and was one of the main causes of these movements being originated in Tottenham. He had gradually risen from the rank of Secretary to that of Treasurer of the Second and Third Associations, and was now President of what promised to become the largest of the four. That was something for him to be proud of. He (the speaker), together with some of the friends around him, had been associated with their esteemed President for a number of years, and they had had many happy meetings, whilst promoting the cause of charity. He hoped Bro. Thompson might be spared for many years to help them in the good work, and to see the younger ones rising up and following in his footsteps for the benefit of the Charities of the Craft.

A draw here took place for five life governorships, which the President pointed out, meant fifty guineas to the funds of the Masonic Charities. The gentlemen who drew the numbers were entitled to life-governorships in either of the Charities, and had two votes in the elections for boys or girls, and four votes for the old people. Ladies drawing successful numbers had double that number of votes. The draw resulted in favour of Master Knightley,

Mr. E. Lovell, Mr. J. Rosenfeld, Mr. S. M. Southwell, and Mr. Milbourn.

The President, in responding to the toast of his health, said he could only echo the wish which had been expressed, that he might long be able to assist in the work of the Association. Bro. Clements had not taken to himself sufficient credit for what he had done for Freemasonry, for he had rendered great and valuable service, in more than one Lodge, on behalf of the Charities. He had often filled the office of Steward, and had always taken up a most creditable list. He was again Steward for the Boys' School at the coming Festival in June, and he would no doubt render a fair account for the Province of Middlesex, as representing the Enfield Lodge. He (the speaker) thanked the company for the kind way in which they had received the toast, and said a great honour had been conferred upon him by his having been elected President of this Association. As their Secretary had told them, this Association bade fair to outnumber and outdo its predecessors. The First Association, of which he had the honour of being Secretary, sent up £446 to the Charities. Twelve or fifteen years ago Freemasonry was in a very different position to what it now occupied. When the Prince of Wales came into Freemasonry it grew in a most wonderful manner, and under his Royal Highness's presidency as Grand Master it had continued to flourish. On looking over the list in Bro. Oddy's room this evening he saw that Brother served as a Steward in 1873, when the united efforts of the Stewards to the Benevolent Institution reached £6,300. He (the speaker) had the pleasure of representing the Enfield Lodge in 1885, when the united efforts of the Stewards reached £17,000. That showed what great strides the Order was making, and this progress was in a measure due to such Associations as their own. Few people felt disposed to put their hands in their pockets and to pay ten guineas all at once; but they did not miss the small contributions monthly, which, after a short time, attained the same results. He mentioned this in order that those who did not belong to the Association might form an idea of how these things were managed. It was on the same principle as a building society, and in four years produced the same result as if they had put their hands into their pockets and put down ten guineas. In the end he trusted this Association would reach the number suggested by Bro. Binnie, namely, a hundred, which would represent an addition to the funds of the Charities of one thousand guineas.

Several other toasts followed, including the Visitors; the Vice-Chairmen, responded to by Bro. Clements and Bro. Garrod; the Masonic Charities, for which Bro. Knightley replied; the Local Lodges, High Cross, Enfield, and St. James's, responded to by Bros. H. Stephens P.M., A. Bryant P.M., and J. Howlett; the Stewards, by Bros. Wilson and Birkin; and the Host, by Bro. J. Oddy. Before separating the health of Mr. J. H. Thompson jun. was most cordially drunk, and hearty thanks given to him for his great assistance as accompanyist to the songs. Mr. Thompson jun. suitably responded. The pleasures of a very enjoyable evening were materially enhanced by some excellent singing by the members and Visitors.

NEW CONCORD LODGE, No. 813.

A REGULAR meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held on Thursday, 20th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, City, when there was a numerous gathering of members and Visitors, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master Bro. Chas. Weeden. He was supported by Bros. A. Perl S.W., F. Perl J.W., Rev. C. Stevens P.M. Chaplain, John Stilwell P.M. Treasurer, R. R. Harper P.M. Secretary, J. E. Chubb S.D., E. Conrad D. of C., A. Kish Org., J. R. Cordell Steward, Alfred J. Potter I.P.M., P.M.'s L. C. Haslip, H. J. Gabb, and T. J. Cusworth; A. K. Turbefield Tyler. The Visitors included Bros. J. Osborn P.P.G. Sword Bearer Middlesex, T. Smyth W.M. 2069, E. F. H. Von Bribau 1069, W. Goad 1178, C. Jenkins 860, E. Lazarus 185, W. Hunter 205, E. Kirr 241 (New York), H. J. Amphlett, J. W. Bastone 1861; and others. Lodge having been opened, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, was advanced to the third, when Bro. R. Gosheron was raised to the sublime degree. Resuming to the second, Bro. L. Wild, who had been initiated at the last meeting, answered the questions with remarkable accuracy, he being a German, and was entrusted, after which he was passed, this rite being also admirably performed. Subsequently Mr. Lewis Henry Brown, who had already been approved on the recommendation of his brother, who is a member of the Lodge, was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Craft. Some routine business having been transacted Lodge was closed. The brethren and visitors then partook of a sumptuous banquet, provided in first-class style, under the personal superintendence of Bro. J. Marchant. The Loyal and Craft toasts having been given, the health of the Grand Officers, Present and Past, met with a cordial greeting. The Immediate Past Master, in proposing the health of the W.M., said it needed no words of his to remind them of the excellent work performed by Bro. Weeden in the Lodge-room; those who had witnessed it had a sufficient guarantee that in their present Worshipful Master they had a good man and true. All who knew Bro. Weeden knew that he was a true brother in every sense of the word. He could say a great deal more, but as time was on the wing he would ask them to unite with him in heartily drinking to the toast. The Worshipful Master in responding assured the brethren that during his year of office he should do all he could to advance the prosperity of the Lodge. In proposing the toast of the initiates, Bro. Weeden expressed the belief that the two brethren who had just been admitted would prove an acquisition to the New Concord Lodge. Bro. L. Wild asked permission to thank the brethren for the welcome manner in which they had admitted him into their ranks; he should do his utmost to attain proficiency in the science. Bro. Lewis Brown also replied; he had long wished for the moment to arrive in which he should become a member of the Craft. He did not feel altogether a stranger amongst them, as he had a brother in the Lodge; he thanked them most heartily for the warm reception they had accorded him. In reply, Bro. T. Smyth deemed it a very great piece of good fortune to have been invited to visit the New Concord Lodge; he had been delighted with the work which he had seen performed. Bros. J. Osborn, C. Jenkins, and E. Von Bribau next responded, in suitable terms, and Bro. Goad remarked that he had visited many Lodges, both in London and the provinces, and he could confidently say that the New Concord working would compare favourably with any he had had the honour to visit. The W.M. next proposed the Past Masters, the toast being heartily received. Bro. Potter I.P.M. thanked the brethren most heartily and sincerely for the cordial reception they had given to the toast. He should do in the future, as he had done in the past, all he could to promote the interests and to sustain the prestige of the New Concord Lodge. Bro. R. R. Harper, after returning thanks as a Past Master and Secretary of the Lodge, said he might as well save the proposal of another toast, and return thanks on behalf of their Treasurer. He hoped that when they met again in October next the same New Concord feeling would prevail as they enjoyed at the present moment. Bro. L. Haslip thanked the brethren very sincerely for the way in which the toast had been received. The Past Masters felt a deep interest in the cause they had at heart, and hoped they would always continue to do so, and to keep up the status of their Lodge. In proposing the Officers, the W.M. said he was pleased to have such a goodly array in the Lodge; all of them tried to do their duty conscientiously. The toast was duly acknowledged, and the proceedings were fittingly closed by the Tyler. During the evening some capital songs were sung. Bro. A. Kish presided at the pianoforte.

ENFIELD CHAPTER, No. 1237.

A CONVOCATION of the above Chapter was held at the Court House, Enfield, on Monday evening, 24th instant. Present—Comps. James Garrod M.E.Z., E. G. Lewis H., Jas. Linzell P.Z. acting J., J. R. Rignall Treasurer, H. J. Adams P.Z. S.E., F. Eastwood S.N., A. Bryant P.S., A. G. Fidler 1st A.S., H. V. Clements P.Z., J. D. Birkin, G. Messenger, J. Oddy, C. Handley, F. Skelton, J. Smith, T. Jones and others. The minutes of the last Convocation having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken and proved unanimous in favour of Bro. Geo. James 749, who was duly exalted to this supreme degree by the M.E.Z. in a way that gave great satisfaction to all present. The next business was to elect the Officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows:—Comps. E. G. Lewis M.E.Z., W. M. Tegg H., A. Bryant J., J. R. Rignall Treasurer, H. J. Adams S.E., A. G. Fidler S.N., J. D. Birkin P.S., and J. Very Janitor. A P.Z.'s jewel was unanimously voted to the retiring M.E.Z. Comp. J. Garrod, for the able manner in which he had conducted the business of the Chapter during the past year. Several brethren were then proposed for exaltation, after which the Chapter was closed and the Companions adjourned to the George Hotel, where an excellent dinner was provided by the host, Comp. Mathison. On the removal of the cloth the usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and a very pleasant evening spent.

EWELL LODGE, No. 1851.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the "Sun" Hotel, Kingston-on-Thames, on Saturday, the 22nd inst. There was a good attendance of members and Visitors; the W.M., Bro. Wm. Parker, being supported by, amongst others, Bro. G. W. Saul P.M. 1201 S.W., F. C. Rush J.W., E. A. Baber P.M. Treasurer, Arthur E. Taylor P.M. Secretary, H. Youens S.D., H. H. Room P.M. J.D., Dupree I.G., J. O'Connell D.C., C. Cooke and G. Hards Stewards; Past Masters Moss and Paddle, W. Walkley Tyler, Dr. Tomlin, Lemon, &c., &c. The Visitors were Bros. James Stevens P.M. 720. 1216, 1426, W. H. Wingfield W.M. 1360, Richard Poore W.M. 1949, W. H. Hawkins 1201, J. Foxley Norris J.D. St. Augustine Lodge, New Zealand, J. G. Green 158, Kift I.G. 1791, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been approved, a ballot was taken for Mr. Samuel William Rowen, which proved clear, and that gentleman received the benefit of initiation at the hands of the W.M. Bro. Lemon was passed to the F.C. degree, and at the request of the W.M. of the Eclectic Lodge 1201, Bro. Lemon received similar advancement. The installation of Bros. G. W. Saul P.M. as W.M. of the Lodge, was undertaken by his predecessor, Bro. W. Parker, who performed the ceremony in a highly satisfactory manner. The newly installed Master appointed and invested his Officers in the following order, viz.:—Bros. F. C. Rush S.W., Youens J.W., E. A. Baber P.M. Treasurer, A. E. Taylor P.M. Secretary, H. H. Room P.M. S.D., Dupree J.D., J. O'Connell I.G., C. Cooke D.C., G. Hards W.S., Dr. R. Tomlin A.W.S., and W. Walkley Tyler. The addresses, which completed the entire ceremony, were respectively and impressively delivered by Bros. W. Parker I.P.M., A. E. Taylor P.M., and James Stevens P.M. Subsequently a very handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented in open Lodge to Bro. Parker, in recognition of his services during the past year; the W.M., Bro. Saul (whose presence in the Lodge on recovery from his late very severe accident, and prolonged convalescence was warmly recognised by all present), bestowing high commendation on the manner in which the Lodge had been ruled by his predecessor in the chair of K.S. A well-served banquet awaited the brethren at the closing of Lodge work, and the several toasts having been disposed of with commendable brevity, both in regard to introduction and response, a most harmonious and enjoyable evening was spent in social intercourse. Without professional assistance, and consequently without encroachment on the Lodge funds, songs and recitations were numerous, and evidenced the musical and oratorical ability of a large proportion of the members of No. 1851, whose Secretary, himself a vocalist of no mean pretensions, led the way and excited emulation amongst his brethren. We cordially join in the hope, so earnestly expressed by members and Visitors alike, that health and strength may be given to our, at present, scarcely convalescent Brother Saul, that he may be enabled to still further increase the honour and reputation of the Ewell Lodge, by frequent opportunities during his Mastership of displaying that ability which has heretofore characterised his Masonic work, and secured for him well deserved respect.

HAMPSHIRE LODGE OF EMULATION, No. 1990.

THE annual meeting of this Lodge for installation of W.M. and appointment of Officers, took place on Saturday, the 8th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Landport. This Lodge, which is composed exclusively of Past Masters in the Craft, has effected good service in the Province. Amongst members who have recently joined is Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, Grand Deacon of England, and Deputy P.G.M. of the Province, and it is interesting to note that this distinguished Mason has expressed his approbation of the Lodge, by accepting the junior office. The ceremony of installation on Saturday was performed by Bro. Charles Fitzgerald Matier P.G.W. Greece and P.G.S. of Scotland, who gave an eloquent enunciation of the ritual, and was awarded a special vote of thanks. Bro. Asher Barfield P.P.G.D., who had been unanimously elected as W.M., was duly installed in the chair, and appointed his Officers as follows:—Bro. R. L. Loveland I.P.M., R. J. Rastrick S.W., F. Newman J.W., Rev. J. N. Palmer (Grand Chaplain of England) Chaplain, T. H. Williams Treasurer, John W. Gieve Secretary, T. Francis S.D., J. Brickwood J.D., James Gieve D.C., R. W. Beale I.G., G. Bond and J. E. Le Feuvre Stewards, W. Miles Organist, G. Carter Tyler. There were also present at the meeting:—Bro. E. S. Main, J. W. Willmott, E. Nayler, G. L. Stobbs, Edgar Goble P.G. Sec., R. Boughton Smith P.P.G.D. Leicestershire, A. J. Firth, Lewis Bryett P.P.G. Sup. Wks. Berks and Bucks, J. M. Foster, and W. D. Parkhouse. The brethren subsequently dined together, and a smoking concert followed.

GEORGE PRICE LODGE, No. 2096.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, on Tuesday, the 25th inst., the day of meeting having been altered on this occasion by dispensation from the R.W. Provincial Grand Master. There was a large attendance of brethren, presided over by Bro. Joseph D. Langton Worshipful Master, while the Lodge was specially honoured by the attendance of General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., P.G.W., the Masonic ruler of the county. The minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, the ballot was taken for two candidates for joining. Bro. Frederick J. Blake P.M. 410, 885 P.P.G. Reg. Surrey, P.P.G.S.D. Gloucestershire, and Bro. Reginald William Wilson, M.R.C.S., 2054; the former of these brethren was proposed by the W.M. elect, and seconded by the W.M., while the latter had Bros. Matthey and Oates as his sponsors. Both of the candidates were elected, whereupon Mr. Ernest Christopher Leaver was introduced as a candidate for initiation. He was duly admitted to Masonic light, and the charge of the first degree was delivered to him by the Worshipful Master. The Lodge was then advanced, and on being resumed to the second degree the R.W. Prov. G.M. presented Bro. Hugh Marcus Hobbs W.M. elect, for the benefit of installation. The Board of Installed Masters being formed, Bro. Hobbs was regularly placed in the chair, and was subsequently saluted in the three degrees. He appointed the following as Officers of the Lodge for the ensuing year:—Bros. F. T. Ridpath S.W., E. Samuel J.W., J. Langton P.M. Treasurer, J. S. Fraser P.M. Secretary, M. L. Levèy S.D., W. G. Goode J.D., F. Cambridge P.P.G. Organist I.G., W. G. Oates D.C., S. Oxenham and J. C. Leaver Stewards, W. Lane Tyler. The remaining portions of the installation ceremony were then completed by Bro. Langton, and the ceremony of the day brought to a conclusion. During the meeting the Report of the Audit Committee was submitted, duly approved, and ordered to be recorded in the usual manner. Before the conclusion of the day's work, the Provincial Grand Master was obliged to leave, but before doing so he expressed his great gratification at the very handsome sum which the Lodge had sent up to the Festival at which he recently presided, and the further support he had received on that occasion from the Province generally—the whole sum contributed by the disttict being no less than £1,300. General Brownrigg then announced that he should hold Provincial Grand Lodge this year under the banner of the George Price, and as to the date of meeting, either the fourth or the last Wednesday in June would suit him equally well; he would leave it to the George Price Lodge to say which day they would prefer. After the Lodge was closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where they dined together, in a style which did the utmost credit to Bro. T. H. Bentley, the manager of the hotel. On rising to propose the toasts, the W.M. reminded the brethren that during the present month Her Majesty had taken part in two public ceremonies; perhaps of greater importance than any that had taken place since the death of the Prince Consort. As Masons they could congratulate themselves upon the Queen coming among her people again as in former times. In speaking of the Grand Master, the W.M. said it must be of great advantage to Freemasonry that His Royal Highness took so great an interest in all its several degrees. The health of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers came next; it was proof of the interest that Grand Officers took in the Craft that as many as five or six had that evening come to see the working in the George Price Lodge. In proposing the health of the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master of Surrey, Bro. Gen. J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., P.G.W., Bro. Hobbs said Surrey Masons could but be proud that they had such a man to preside over them. It must increase the pride of those especially belonging to the Lodge that General Brownrigg had sanctioned the holding Provincial Grand Lodge under its banner, only one year after the consecration. Many of the members of the Lodge met a week ago, at the Festival of the Girls' School, on which occasion they had sent up a very handsome sum, and the amount of support given to the President by the Province of Surrey showed that their Provincial Grand Master was a very popular man. The success of the Festival was remarkable, and he thought it was marvellous that the amount—£13,000 and upwards—only fell short by £1,000 of the amount realised last year. The V.W. the D. Prov. G.M. Bro. C. Greenwood P.G.S.B., and the Prov. Grand Officers, Present and Past, was the next toast given. There were plenty of brethren present who could respond for this toast. First they had Bros. George Price P.G. Treas., Horsey P.P.G.D.C., Ridge P.G.D.C., W. Foulsham P.P.G.J.W., and Woodward P.G.S. The toast would not need many words to recommend it. The name of George Price was one they all venerated. To show what they thought of him they had named their Lodge after him, and they thought it a high honour thus to hand down his name. Bro. Greenwood, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, unfortunately, was not present. They sympathised with him deeply in the bereavement he had recently sustained, and also in the illness from which he had lately suffered. Bro. Geo. Price regretted extremely that the Deputy Provincial Grand Master was not with them to respond. Personally he had heard of the illness that Bro. Greenwood had been afflicted with with a great deal of grief, and the domestic bereavement which had befallen him in the loss of his wife demanded from him the greatest sympathy. They were very old friends, and had been associated as officers of the Province for the last thirty years. During that long period there had been nothing but love and harmony prevailing between them. Bro. Greenwood's exceptional abilities as a man of business, his even temper, and his genial manner had secured him troops of friends, who honoured and loved him. He was sure that he need not take up further time upon the matter of returning thanks for the Prov. Grand Officers; Bro. Greenwood was one of them. The Provincial Grand Officers were now a large body. Years ago, when he was a young man, they were a small number; he was quite sure from what he had seen of the Prov. Grand Officers that whenever the Grand Master required their services they would rally round him and give him assistance, and discharge their duties to the very best of their ability. On behalf of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master and Prov. Grand Officers, he thanked them for the very kind compliment they had paid them. One word with regard to himself. At the time the Lodge was consecrated he felt highly flattered at the Lodge being called after him. Honours were showered upon him, and he expressed the opinion that such a Lodge was wanted in Croydon—that it would be a convenience to the Freemasons of the neighbourhood, and he hoped to see members of the Corporation join it (many members of the Corporation were Freemasons—several Aldermen and Councilmen). He thought it likely, though the present Mayor was not a Freemason, the coming Mayor, who was one, would give the Lodge some standing in the Province. The Lodge had increased in a remarkable manner, and stood in a high position. It had made its mark within twelve months, and was a Lodge of reputation already. The Provincial Grand Master had told them that he intended to hold his Provincial Grand Lodge here. He was sure that the pride which he felt twelve months ago was not diminished at the present time. Bro. John G. Horsey said he must think himself very highly honoured indeed to have his name coupled with that of Bro. George Price. It was perhaps a mark of friendship so to couple it; but it enabled him with great pleasure to say one or two words on the subject. He regretted Bro. Greenwood was unable to be with them that evening, on account of the domestic affliction to which Bro. Price had alluded. Respecting the further remarks of Bro. Price, he could but reiterate his expressions as to the extraordinary success of this young Lodge; that it should within fourteen months of its consecration be selected to entertain a meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge was indeed an honour which had never occurred in the history of the province. It reflected credit upon the I.P.M., whose endeavours at the Festival last week raised the George Price to a prominence never previously enjoyed by any Lodge in the Province of Surrey. Bro. Langton, in proposing the next toast said, during his occupation of the chair he had had to propose toasts which were familiar favourites with the brethren, and which required hardly any words of his to ensure their hearty reception. But he had now to propose a toast which was different from that which had been proposed by any Past Master of that Lodge—it was that of "Their Worshipful Master." They all knew how Bro. Hobbs had worked his way up to the high position he held in Masonry. Not only had he qualified himself for the various offices he had filled in that and other Lodges, but he had made himself master of the ritual; and had brought his labour and perseverance to assist others; he was Preceptor of two Lodges of Instruction. He had only been a few years in Masonry, but he was now Master of a Lodge that he (Bro. Langton) thought was not second to any other. He would conclude by asking them to drink most heartily to the health of their W.M. Bro. Hobbs in reply said he never in his life so much regretted he was not naturally eloquent as he did on the present occasion, because he could not convey what he felt to the brethren. Bro. Langton, in proposing the toast, had said there was no doubt he did take a deal of interest in Masonry. The brethren had placed him in the position of Master; he thanked them for the honour they had done him, and assured them he would strive to do his best. The idea of this Lodge first occurred to him, and when he looked at the past and the future of the Lodge, he might be pardoned for feeling both pride and satisfaction in contemplating what they had done and what they intended to do. When he asked Bro. Langton to be the first W.M. he felt he was doing something that would be very much to its advantage, but it had made his own task a much more difficult one. It might not have been difficult for him to occupy the chair if he had not been preceded by Bro. Langton; but the brethren would observe a marked difference between their first and second Masters. He intended, however, to do his best, and should rely upon the brethren to support him in his year of office, and should trust to the Past Master to keep him right. The health of the Immediate Past Master was the next on the list; Bro. Hobbs felt great pleasure in proposing it. After the strong expression of their feeling displayed he might sit down, but there was something more to say about Bro. Langton, who, as they knew, had thoroughly performed the duties of his office as Master. No one in the room knew better than he did how much the Lodge was indebted to Bro. Langton, who, notwithstanding his professional duties, had found time to go into every detail of the consecration. Since then he had spared neither time nor trouble in the service of the Lodge. On one occasion he had initiated five, and had made his year of office remarkable by what he had done for the Charities. He had already stated that the amount of £13,000 had been taken up to the Girls' Festival. Of that £1,300 was taken by the Stewards of the Province of Surrey, while of the sum Bro. Langton had collected the magnificent total of £400. Two years ago he had himself got together £221, but Bro. Langton had nearly doubled that. He, however, felt nearly as pleased as if he had taken up the amount himself. He had now the pleasant duty of presenting to Bro. Langton the first Past Master's jewel of the George Price Lodge. The banner behind him showed what the members thought, and he felt sure, considering Bro. Langton's position in the Grand Master's Lodge, that he had a brilliant future before him. Still, he felt assured, the jewel he now presented would be valued by Brother Langton beyond all those which he might have a right to be decorated with in the future, and they must all pray that he might have a long life in which to wear it. Bro. Langton, in the course of his reply, after thanking the Worshipful Master and brethren for the toast, said that what he had done for the Lodge had been undertaken with an infinite amount of pleasure; but the greatest pleasure of all had been the duty of installing Bro. Hobbs, and to that he had long looked forward. Any trouble he had experienced had been counterbalanced by the readiness the members had shown to assist him in carrying out the duties. He felt assured they would all continue to work hand in hand under the Mastership of Bro Hobbs, and that the following year would be equally successful as that just brought to a conclusion. For the toast of the Visitors, Bros. Woodward, Foulsham and others replied. The initiate was next complimented. The toast of the Charities brought forth a hearty acknowledgment from Bro. Hedges, but the lateness of the hour compelled curtailment of his and other speeches. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. J. A. Brown, who was assisted by Bros. J. Hanson, F. Bevan and Dalzell. The well-known ability of these artistes is a guarantee of the excellence with which their selections were rendered.

Amongst the Visitors present were Bros. H. J. P. Dumas Past Grand Deacon, J. T. H. Woodward P.G. Secretary Middlesex, W. Foulsham P.M. 1790, F. R. W. Hedges P.M. 1900, W. W. Morgan P.M. 211, R. W. CONSECRATION OF THE HUGUENOT LODGE, No. 2140.

THE consecration of this Lodge took place on Monday, the 10th instant, at the Criterion, Piccadilly, when Bro. Hervé Girard P.G.D. P.M. No. 1 was regularly installed as the first Worshipful Master of the Lodge. There was a large gathering of brethren to witness the proceedings of the day, among them being Bros. Colonel Shadwell H. The usual preliminary proceedings having been disposed of Bro. Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg P.G.C., who acted as Chaplain during the consecration, delivered the following Oration:—

BRETHREN,—The task you have imposed upon me to-night is honourable, but it is difficult; honourable, because I am speaking to men of eminence in the Craft, who have requested me to assist in the formation of a new and important Lodge. Difficult, because the name of that Lodge recalls to our minds many things of which it is hard to speak without treading upon the forbidden ground of party politics.

Still I attempt the work, hopeful that I may say nothing that will offend.

When we reflect that two hundred years ago your ancestors came to our shores, "French Strangers," seeking an asylum, and that now as we look around we see in you fellow-countrymen, one with us in all things—we are led to ask, "How came this to pass? Why did we receive you with so much sympathy? How is it that you are now so thoroughly identified with the English nation—that you are indeed part of ourselves?" I will endeavour to answer both these questions.

When you came to us, asking for shelter and for protection, we did not stop to inquire whether your Faith was identical with our own. We knew that it was not. We knew that in many points your religious belief differed from ours; but we felt this—that you were contending for a principle that was dear to every Englishman's heart—I mean toleration. Coercion and breach of faith have never found favour in our country. The solemn concordat under which you had for many years lived in comparative peace, was being ignored by France. The attempt was being made by undue means to force you to accept a religious system other than your own. It was not for us to sit in judgment either on your religion or on that of your opponents, but the same principle which many years before had made us, in Magna Charta, insist upon the freedom of our own Church, led us to feel that the liberty we had won for ourselves we sought to help others to secure. Thank God, this has ever been the principle of English citizens. When any one seeks refuge under our flag we ask not whether he gets his Faith from Rome or Geneva, from Constantinople or Canterbury, but simply whether he will be an honest, loyal, and industrious citizen. This is all we ask of you; and we have never regretted the permission we gave you to sojourn amongst us.

And so I come to my second question. What has made you no longer "strangers," but our fellow-countrymen? The answer is plain. You have not abused our hospitality. Content to be allowed freedom to your own Faith, you have not attacked ours. Your enemies said that you were actively aggressive, and that you were attacking unduly the Faith of others. We have not found this to be the case. The English Church stands to-day uninjured by Huguenot refugee. Neither of us sought to disguise the fact that on many points there was a difference. We did not ask you to conform to doctrines which we held to be of the first importance, and you with an honourable gratitude abstained from controversy. Indeed, I think that many of your people have been drawn to us. As you lived amongst us, and married into our families, the English Church won, by love and sympathy, souls who would never have been gained by harshness and persecution, and to-day many a staunch and distinct member of our English Church has Huguenot blood in his veins.

But there is another tie which binds us. For years we have been brethren in arms for the defence of a Common Empire. Wherever English armies have gone, or English fleets have sailed, the Huguenot and the Englishman have fought side by side. You helped us to reconquer Ireland, when, very shortly after your arrival amongst us, the integrity of the Empire was threatened; you stood by our sides in the Peninsula and at Waterloo—in the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, Huguenots and Englishmen have together shed lustre on the English flag. Our interests have become yours. Our honour you have made your own. In England's hour of need, you have never stood aside mindful only of your own welfare,—and we are proud to share with you our sorrows and our joys. And further, you have been useful to us. Englishmen are said to be a nation of shopkeepers. I am proud as an Englishmen to be so designated, because to excel in trade implies the giving of the best possible value for money received. That Englishmen have been able to do this is due in no small degree to Huguenot skill and enterprise. At a very important period in the history of commerce, when many nations were competing for supremacy in commerce, you brought into our country what we wanted, Skilled Workmen. In two branches of trade you specially helped us; and, I believe, the undisputed fact that England stands easily first in the goldsmiths and weavers' art, is due in no small measure to your handicraft.

Rightly then do I say that you have earned the right to be no longer strangers to whom we grant an asylum, but brother citizens of the first Empire of the World.

Let us gather then, in conclusion, this lesson. Difference of opinion in religion and politics need be no bar to brotherly intercourse. We are right each of us to contend for our Faith. Religious conviction to be worth anything must be strong. It is cowardly to buy peace by the sacrifice of principle. But let us ever grant to others the liberty we claim for ourselves, and let us ever remember that by mutual toleration that want of harmony, which in our present imperfect condition mars the beauty of God's fair universe, may be softened until He shall see fit to bring us all to One Fold under One Shepherd, when all discord will be gone for ever.

In due course the Officers of the Lodge were invested, among them being Bros. Charles J. Shoppee P.M. 382 and Arthur G. Browning, the Senior and Junior Wardens named in the Warrant. Bro. Major George Lambert P.G. Sword Bearer J.W. 969 is the Secretary of the Lodge, for which we predict a future of prosperity. The Consecrating Officer of the Lodge was V.W. Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Grand Registrar, who was assisted by Sir John B. Monckton P.G.W., Ralph Clutton G.J.D., Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg P.G.C., and Frank Richardson P.G.D.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—None except the uncommonly hardy can hope to escape continued, unsettled, and inclement weather, without some bodily discomfort or actual disease. Holloway's remedies have won a name and fame previously unknown in medical science for their ability of successfully contending with colds, coughs, quinseys, rheumatism, and neuralgia. This formidable list of dangerous and painful affections is completely under the control of these inestimable specifics, which, used according to their accompanying directions, will soon mitigate the tortures, suppress all inflammatory tendencies, and secure the soundest health. The very moderate price charged for these never-failing remedies place them within the reach of the most humble sufferer

Grosvenor Gallery.—Everybody is suddenly discovering that the Grosvenor is a far better exhibition than the Academy. Probably the reason for this caprice of fashion is that the number of bad pictures is greater in the latter than in the Grosvenor, and it seems to be forgotten that so also is the number of good ones. Still there is little doubt that many eminent artists have sent their best works here, leaving to the Academy their more popular romantic illustrations. Mr. Orchardson's "Master Baby" is almost masterly; it is both refined and strong, while the baby is not an advertisement for Pears' soap. Mr. Waterhouse's "Flower Market," Mr. T. Reid's "Calm Evening," Mr. Alfred Parson's "In a Cider Country," all appear to us to show marked improvement on their Academy works. On the other hand, there are not a few daubs that would disgrace a young ladies' seminary in a country town. There is really little in the Grosvenor of engrossing interest beside Mr. Burne Jones's work. We have two fine portraits—one by Mr. John Collier, of Miss Nettie Huxley, which is about the best thing he has ever done. It may be remembered that his portraits of the three Miss Huxley, some years ago, were generally considered most successful. This portrait is almost realistic in its vividness, while it loses nothing of charm or distinction. The other portrait, that of Miss Annie A. Beebe, is to us the most interesting in the Gallery; moreover, it is the work of a newer man—Mr. J. J. Shannon—although he is by no means new to the galleries. The attitude of the sitter reminds us a little of Mr. Gregory's portrait of a lady, some years ago; but there is no similarity in the painting, which is quite personal, although it shows the best side of the French influence. Mr. Shannon has made a decided "hit" in this portrait. Mr. Richmond is, as usual, very prolific, and is evidently urging his versatility, as he exhibits a classical picture and a landscape, besides ten portraits, in which we also can see an intention to differ. Mr. Richmond's art never rises above lady-like prettiness, and there is here and there apparent a tendency to scribble and take refuge in clothes—a fatal tendency in prolific artists. Moreover, he washes character out of his subjects with soft soap, and then tries to force it back again with a pitchfork. Thus the portrait of Miss Burne Jones is quite commonplace, and he thinks to make it characteristic by an open-air tone and a listless attitude. Some of the portraits are crowded with details, and others, as this, are severely simple. But all this does not solve the difficulty; accessories will never become essentials, in spite of Mr. Richmond's efforts. Mr. Burne Jones's work has an ever-increasing interest, as being that of an artist who is continually improving, refining, and developing. He has acted gracefully in sending one large picture to the Academy, but is not deserting the Grosvenor for the bulk of his works. His "Flamma Vestalis" is tender and full in colour, and is a surprise to those who imagined that Mr. Burne Jones' people are never warm-blooded. "The Morning of the Resurrection" is very reverend and touching, and much of the charm of it lies in the human character of the Saviour's figure. His Christ is a sweet, spare man, with a gentle face; the very folds of his robe justify Mary's hesitation. The imitators of Mr. Burne Jones are more than usually to the fore,—Mr. Strudwick, Mr. A. Spencer Stanhope, Miss Pickering, and Sir Coutts Lindsey, all showing large works, which vie with each other in grotesque absurdity. Surely it is the height of falseness to base one's art on that of Mr. Burne Jones. He is more of a poet than an artist; there is absolutely nothing in the method to recommend itself to the student desirous of learning to paint. He is not, he does not pretend to be, a master of method. Then, what is there left? His conceptions are his own, his types are his own, his ways of looking at life his own. It is true that the treatment is in many respects that of the Italian painters before Raphael, but much of this is superficial, for the thought is perfectly nineteenth-century. But the peculiarity of the man is that he is absolutely unique. Where else can we find an artist with such child-like simplicity of treatment such a pure delight in the work merely for its own sake (for they singularly misunderstand his genius who attempt to discover any elaborate symbolism), such a depth and sweetness of melancholy thought? To be like him you must be—himself. His followers lack his simplicity and directness. They are complicated, bewildered, distracted, elaborate, torn asunder by conflicting sympathies. It is the highest eulogy of the man to admit that to follow in his footsteps is futility itself. Mr. Spencer Stanhope's quotation is an unconscious satire on his own art—"Why seek ye the living among the dead?" That is the sum of the matter. Why, indeed? To return to the Gallery, every one should notice Mr. John S. Sargent's wonderfully powerful "Study." Mr. Herbert Snell shows a beautiful landscape called "In Chancery," a harmony in lilac and grey. Scattered all over the gallery we find Mr. Meapes' charming little panels, which will bear looking at either quite close or at a distance. We doubt whether such perfection could be obtained save in the tiny spaces which Mr. Meapes affects.

Mr. Bull's Orchid Exhibition.—Among the spring shows to which Society, fashionable and æsthetic, looks forward, there is one that never falls below its ideal. The Academy may be dull, the Grosvenor pragmatic, Kensington an exhausting scramble; but a mile away, close to serene Fulham, there awaits us a wonderland of soft beauty. Mr. Bull's orchids this year seem to excel the lavish profusion of former years. Especially beautiful is his own particular pride and favourite, the Chelsoniense, with its tall sprays, headed with lovely white flowers, sprinkled as it were with the brown dust from a butterfly's wing. One of the most striking flowers now in perfection is the Cattleya grandis, a visitor from Colombia, possessing great silky mauve blossoms. The fantastic red orchid, with its Mephistophelian feather cap, is very attractive; then its delicate "gold cradle," fit for Titania's nursery; the fantastic Jonesianum anchors itself to a scrap of dry bark, and lives and blooms in mid air. Delicate and ethereal as the orchids appear, they are willing to bloom for us in the smokiest city suburbs; they ask but for a little carefully regulated warmth through the winter, and shelter from the hot sun of summer, and they will be satisfied to bloom in the meekest suburban conservatory. We, in conclusion, can warmly recommend our readers to study these most beautiful of our colonial productions, and take Mr. Bull's as an obligato accompaniment to their Colinderies.

Royalty.—It is with feelings of genuine satisfaction we have once more to record a thoroughly artistic success by our young friends "the Dramatic Students," a society of youthful actors, constituted for the higher dramatic education of its members, through the study and interpretation of the drama in its literary aspect. Their previous performance of Dryden's "Virgin Queen" excited much interest, and their present one of "The King of the Commons," though less important, was a very crucial test of the "Students'" histrionic powers. Miss Santley badgeneously lent her pretty little theatre for the occasion, and on Friday afternoon, the 14th inst., the Rev. J. White's romantic play was produced, so mounted and costumed, so smoothly run off, that it was difficult to believe that the artistes who filled the parts created by Macready, Compton, and Leigh Murray are but aspirants—"Students," but in the highest sense of the word. Mr. Foss, as King James V., gave a very spirited embodiment of the Scottish monarch. His first act was somewhat marred by a hurried and nervous delivery, but he quickly overcame this, and was dignified, with the right ring of cordiality. He rose to very genuine power, holding the house hushed in listening expectancy, in the fine scene where he believes his brother-in-arms, Lord Seton, has betrayed him. Young Malcolm, who has been forced by his treacherous uncle to enter a Dominican cloister, was most impressively acted by Mr. Treschar; this gentleman made a striking picture, in his white robes, and achieved the love scene with his cousin Madeleine (Miss Dickens) with true artistic delicacy of touch, never forgetting his priesthood in his agitation at her confession that she returns his passion. Mr. Eric Lewis was excellent as the old Laird Smaill—most amusing in his fatuous simplicity. Mr. Ben Greet, as the Laird's son, young Mungo—a kind of Master Slender—proved very amusing. Miss Dickens, as the heroine, showed a notable improvement in method, and acted with touching simplicity and earnestness. The play warranted the judgment of those who had selected it; the interest was maintained with unflagging spirit, and several times the applause rose to genuine enthusiasm. We shall look forward with great expectation to the Students' promised "Love's Labour Lost," in which performance Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and Mr. Hare take so much interest that they have consented to give the use of the St. James's Theatre for its production.

Alhambra.—The success that has attended the ballets produced at this establishment since it was converted into a Theatre of Varieties is generally recognised. "Cupid," produced last Monday, will, we think, achieve even greater success than its predecessors. As on many previous occasions Monsr. J. Hansen has invented and arranged the ballet, which is in four tableaux. The last of these represents the Temple of Mirth, where a grand procession takes place, in which Zulus, North American Indians, Nautch Girls, Turkish Warriors, and New Zealanders take part. The scene is one of the grandest and most effective pictures that has been produced on the modern stage. Signorina Bessone (Cupid), who was so popular last year in the ballet "Excelsior," danced splendidly, while her by play was especially good. She was ably supported by Miss Lillie Lee, who is a most graceful dancer. Miss Marie also deserves praise; she is one of the best exponents of pantomime on the stage. Mr. T. E. Ryan is to be complimented on the beautiful scenery he has provided for the ballet. Mons. G. Jacobi has not been idle with another necessary adjunct to the performance—the music. He has given us some of the best of his recent ballet successes; his style is always fresh, and never commonplace. At the conclusion of the ballet all the principal dancers, accompanied by Mons. Hansen and Mons. Jacobi, with the popular manager, Mr. Charles Morton, were called before the curtain and complimented on their work. The other part of the programme was of the usual character.

We have pleasure in recording a gratifying episode in connection with the visit of our colonial brethren to this country in association with the Indian and Colonial Exhibition. Sir. Wm. Clarke, Bart., District Grand Master of Victoria (English Constitution), and also Provincial Grand Master of the same colony for both the Scotch and Irish Constitutions, whose presence in our midst is due to the Exhibition, was among those present at the recent Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and as a result of the appeal then made, he has contributed a sum of one hundred guineas to the funds of the Institution. This is a very acceptable gift, and if other of the Masonic visitors who are now amongst us could see their way to follow his example, a handsome "colonial" memento would be the result. Doubtless many of them have been associated, at one time or another, with English Masons; is it going too far to ask them to lend an ear to the claims of the English Masonic Institutions?

Our attention has been called to an omission in our report of the consecration of the Surbiton Lodge, No. 2416 (which appeared in our last issue). The compliment of honorary membership was conferred on the Consecrating Officer, General Brownrigg, and the brethren who assisted him in the ceremony, viz.: Bros. W. H. Perryman, Thomas Long, Rev. Geoffrey Hughes, Charles Greenwood jun., John G. Horsey, James Squire, and W. W. Morgan.

Bro. James Terry P.M., P.P.S.G.W. Norths and Hunts, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, will rehearse the ceremonies of Consecration and Installation in the "Percy" Lodge of Instruction, held at the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, N. (near Mildmay-park and Dalston Junction Stations), on Saturday, 12th June, at 7 o'clock. Morning dress and Masonic clothing. Brethren are cordially invited.

Bro. T. B. Whytehead has been appointed Clerk to the Chapter of York Minster and Registrar to the Deanery of York, in the place of Mr. C. W. Thiselton, who has retired after a service of forty-seven years.

The following Festivals were celebrated at Freemasons' Tavern during the week ending Saturday, 29th May 1886:—

Monday.—Royal Somerset House Lodge, De Grey and Ripon Lodge, 15th Hussars, Spelling Bee Club Ball. Tuesday.—Tuscan Lodge, St. James's Union Chapter, 34th Regiment, 39th Regiment, 82nd Regiment, 53rd Shropshire, Joppa Lodge. Wednesday.—Noviomagus, Smeatonian Society of Civil Engineers, Lodge of Antiquity, Evening Star Lodge. Thursday.—St. George's Chapter, Mount Moriah Lodge, Bedford Chapter, 95th Regiment, 19th Regiment, 9th Regiment, 12th Regiment. Friday.—60th Rifles, Jerusalem Lodge. Saturday.—Her Majesty's Tradesmen.

The final meeting of the Board of Stewards of the recent Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will take place on Tuesday next, at Freemasons' Hall, at 4 p.m. The accounts of the Festival will be submitted, and general routine business disposed of.

A Convocation of the North London Chapter of Improvement was held at the Alwyne Castle Tavern, St. Paul's-road, Canonbury, on Thursday, 27th instant, at 8 p.m. Comps. F. Brasted M.E.Z., W. H. Dean H., T. E. Edmonds J., J. E. Sheffield S.E., G. Skeggs S.N., W. Radcliffe P.S., T. C. Edmonds Preceptor. Notwithstanding the unfavourable state of the weather there was a good muster of the Companions. The ritual was rehearsed in a very careful manner, and a very harmonious time was spent.

THE OVERPRODUCTION OF MASONS.

WE do not assume to be skilled political economists, nor to have the power to untangle knotty questions of national finance; but we know something about Masonry, and there are analogies between certain plain aspects of political economy and Freemasonry which are eminently suggestive. A certain famous French economist, Jean Baptiste Say, maintained that there could not be a "universal glut;" that "we cannot have too much of everything," and that "supply is demand." We are not prepared to admit this in political economy, but we are prepared to deny it in Masonic economy. Masonry deals only in Masons, and Masons may be produced so rapidly as to cause a "universal glut" in Masons.

Let it be understood that Masons are made not for the profane world, but exclusively for Masonry. We have, or should have, an eye single in this matter. The world is Masonically nothing to us, and Masonry everything. When we appear before the world, it is of necessity, not choice. When we bury our dead, we must go to the house of mourning, and thence to the resting-place of the departed. When we lay a corner-stone, we must go to the site of the building to be erected, and exercise the ancient prerogative of our Craft in the presence of whoever is in the vicinity. If we are celebrating some notable Masonic event, such as the centennial of a Masonic Body, and require a place of meeting which will accommodate thousands of brethren instead of hundreds, we must have a procession of the Craft from our Masonic Temple to the public hall which has been selected as the place where the Craft universal shall congregate, and the public may see us as we proceed from Temple to hall. But unless we, unwisely, and in violation of the manifest teachings of Freemasonry, invite the public to come and join us in a distinctly Craft ceremonial in the Lodge-room, we are guilty of no indiscretion in appearing before the public in the manners above mentioned. We do not make Masons, therefore, for the world, nor do we ever appear in public "to be seen of men," nor can the profane world charge us with the overproduction of Masons, simply because they have nothing to do with it, and no right either to approve or condemn. But Freemasonry itself has a right to complain of the overproduction of Masons, and it does often complain, in the language of its wisest thinkers and writers.

Which are the periods when the Fraternity is most in danger from this peril? From experience we should say, first, in time of war. We recently quoted an extract from the announcement of a Scotch recruiting officer, that enlistment carried with it the "freedom of Masonry." This has never, to our knowledge, been the case in our country, and should not have been the case anywhere; but all who recall the circumstances of our late civil war will remember the "rush" into the Craft that occurred then. Men put on Masonry as they would a helmet, to protect them from peril. The demand for the degrees of Masonry was prodigious, and the supply was equal to the demand. Even Military Lodges were warranted, and Masons were hastily made to order on the field of battle. That was a period of overproduction. Many rough ashlars were received then, which to this day are rough enough. Not a few of the personal stains on the escutcheon of Masonry have been owing to a period of war, the perils of a field of bloody conflict, and the consequent overproduction of Masons.

Another period of overproduction is when a country is eminently prosperous, money plenty, and candidates everywhere ready to pay handsomely for the right to share in the secrets of the Craft. Shoddy rich men usually make shoddy Masons. Gilding, under these circumstances, has often been mistaken for refined gold. An applicant for Masonry should be refined, for if he be not so upon entering, he will likely never be so thereafter. Freemasonry is not a hospital for the cure of moral ills, but an aggregation of sound men, physically, mentally and morally. But all men are not sound in all these particulars—very far from it. The scrutiny of a committee of inquiry, and the test of the ballot, are intended to ascertain the qualifications of a candidate, and ordinarily do ascertain it, but not always. Masonry does not claim to be infallible, and it is sometimes imposed upon, but its purpose is always to detect the unworthy, before initiation, if possible, and afterwards, if such unworthiness manifest itself afresh. But it is difficult to be guarded against them when times are "flush," candidates plenty, and great financial prosperity knocking at the doors of all our Lodges, demanding admission.

Still another period of overproduction is, singularly enough, during "hard times," when money is scarce, the Lodges poor, and candidates comparatively infrequently offering themselves. Then it is, also, that poor material is built into our moral edifice. Then it is that there is an overproduction of Masons, even when but few in the aggregate are being added to the Craft. Lodges are too anxious for members. Brethren drum up recruits. The money of a candidate is looked at more closely than himself.

It will thus be seen that Freemasonry is always in danger of a glut of Masons—in time of war and in time of peace, in time of commercial prosperity and in time of financial distress. We cannot, therefore, be too careful in scrutinizing the qualifications of every applicant for Masonry. As the Kansas Light says, "There is not one man in five that is of the right material to be made a Mason," so that if we take the whole five, where are we? Covered in with rubbish. Let it not be. Let the Masonic crop be not large, but good. Let us have Masons who are true to their obligations, active and earnest in sharing in the work of the Craft, and life-long lovers of the Fraternity, through sunshine and storm. Let us restrict our production of Masons, carefully select our material, and the result will be that the high character of Freemasonry will be fully maintained, and its repute so spotless than even no one in the profane world will dare to cast a stone at us.—Keystone.

Lodge of Joppa, 188.—An emergency meeting was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, on the 25th inst., for the purpose of initiating Messrs. Henry Harwood, Jas. Harwood, and Henry Green. Bro. J. W. Dewsnap W.M., L. Wall S.W., George M. Lion J.W., James Lyon Treasurer, L. Lazarus P.M. Secretary, I. Botibol S.D., Gardner J.D., M. Lenzberg I.G., Martin I.P.M., P.M.'s A. Dodson, M. Spiegel, M. Alexander, L. Alexander, L. Myers, O. Roberts, and a numerous attendance. Visitors—P. Pardoe P.M. 1585, A. Benabo 212, D. C. Berg 1613, and Louis Joseph 975. After the business, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, the loyal toast being proposed, and the initiates, who each subscribed £1 1s to the Joppa Benevolent Fund. The brethren spent an enjoyable evening.

Royal Military Lodge of Instruction, No. 1449.—On Monday, 17th inst., at 7.30 p.m., at the Masonic Temple, 38 St. Peter's-street, Canterbury. Present—Bros. Abbs as W.M., R. D. Simms (Secretary) S.W., Beckett J.W., Blamiers W.M. Preceptor, Passmore S.D., Cockersell J.D., Tomblings I.G., Blake Tyler; P.M. Brogar 730. After preliminaries, the working tools of the 1st degree were explained by Bros. Simms, Tomblings, Passmore, Abbs, Beckett, McClintock, Cockersell, Simms, Tomblings and Passmore. The questions leading to the third were put by the W.M., and correctly answered. The Lodge was lowered to the first degree. Hearty good wishes from No. 730 (I.C.). Nothing further having been offered Lodge was closed in due form.

Creaton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1791.—At the Wheatsheaf Hotel, Gol'hawk-road, on Thursday, the 20th instant. Bros. W. W. Williams W.M., Austin S.W., Child J.W., Altman S.D., Rogers J.D., Wittle I.G., John Davies Preceptor, Chalfont P.M. Secretary, Spiegel P.M., and Cavers. Lodge was opened; Bro. Chalfont offered himself as a candidate for raising, and having answered the usual questions, was entrusted; the Lodge was opened in the third, and the ceremony rehearsed. The second section of the first lecture was worked by Bro. Davies, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Austin S.W. was elected W.M. for next meeting.

GRAND MASONIC BALL.

A GRAND Masonic Ball took place at the Assembly Rooms, Ventnor, on Thursday, 6th inst., under the auspices of the Yarborough Lodge, No. 551, in aid of the Charities. There was a large and fashionable attendance, 133 in number, the dresses of the ladies being particularly attractive, and blending well with the gay decorations of the room. Amongst those present were Bros. Edgar Goble P.G.S. I.G., S. Coghill, M.D., G. A. Mursell P.G.S.D., Samuel Wheeler P.G.J.D., F. Topham Jones W.M., Mark Linfield P.M., A. Houston P.M., &c., Alfred Scott P.M., &c., T. H. J. Petherick P.M., Theo. R. Saunders P.M., W. T. Way Buckell P.M., T. H. Clough J.W., and T. P. Ansle, R.A., who acted as Secretary of the Ball Committee. Bro. Jones opened the ball, and dancing was kept up with spirit till four o'clock. Bro. Tolman catered for supper, which was served up in elegant style.

GREAT PRIORY OF CANADA AND SCOTTISH TEMPLARS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have received from the Great Prior of Canada an important statement relative to the position of the National Great Priory and certain local bodies of Knight Templars under the jurisdiction of the Chapter General of the Order in Scotland.

Great Priory claims absolute jurisdiction in Canada, and the Scottish Knights do not seem to see their way clear to give up their independence—or allegiance to Scotland.

It seems to me, as I think it will to your readers generally, that the Scottish Sir Knights are now in a false and an anomalous position, and it would be much better for them and for the Order in Canada if they would seek to be absolved from their allegiance to the Grand Master of Scotland (which absolution I feel sure would be as readily granted by the Earl of Rosslyn as a like request to the Grand Master of England the Prince of Wales when asked for by the Great Priory of Canada), and then they might throw in their lot with the English Canadian Templars, remembering that union is strength.

I trust you will be able to find room for the statement of both the Scottish Knights and the Great Prior in your valuable paper.

Yours in the bonds,

EMRA HOLMES, K.C.T.
Representative of Canada in Great Priory;
Hony. Prov. Prior of Canada.

THE SURREY MASONIC HALL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—May I be allowed to call the attention of your readers to a somewhat extraordinary phenomenon. There is in the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, a Foundation Stone, laid by our much esteemed Bro. Col. Sir Francis Burdett. This stone has his name inscribed upon it, along with the names of other worthy brethren of lesser note. Now, one of these names always appeared to be haunted, if I may use the term, by another, on which it had apparently been superimposed, and the ghastly name was always more or less indistinct, influenced, probably, by atmospheric changes, and leaving one in the depths of conjecture as to what the nomen in quo was. However, on looking at the stone on the last occasion I visited the Hall I was surprised to find that the prominent name had disappeared in toto, while the underlying one had, doubtless by some molicular disturbance of the stone, come boldly up to the surface. Perhaps some of your readers may be able to offer some solution of this problem. Meanwhile I remain,

Yours fraternally,

P.Z., S.D.

THE MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Referring to the letter of "P.M. 1607" in your edition of the 24th ult., I notice the data upon which he relies has been gathered from the Festival Reports. This no doubt is where the error arises when he speaks of contributions from this Province during seven years. It was natural to suppose the sum named represented all this Province had sent during those years, whereas he apparently left out of consideration the money sent through the ordinary channels, securing annual and life votes (but which should surely go to the credit of the Province), and has only dealt with sums contributed at the Festivals. My figures include the contributions through these ordinary sources, and so represent the total contributed during seven years, which the Financial Tables profess to do.

I am glad to have convinced "P.M. 1607" of his error in relation to the "Oliver Memorial Boys," although he endeavours to make out that there is yet a liability in connection with them of £45 each; this is, I think, going rather too far. The purchase was the result of a contract, the sum paid being considered sufficient by the School authorities. How can the Province have further liability in such case. Then the payment of £180 each on the boys entering the School was worth, say £20, to the Institution in the way of interest, and if either or both boys had died the balance would have been retained. These points were duly considered when the contract was made, and it is rather too bad now to be told that there is further liability.

Just one other correction. "P.M. 1607" errs as to the voting power of the Province. Boys' votes are, Life 575, Annual 41, and not 413 Life and 39 Annual. Girls' are 266 Life, and 23 Annual, and not 275 Life and 21 Annual. These give 1810 available votes per annum, sufficient to secure the election of either a boy or a girl should we always require this, which we may not, but the past is what "P.M. 1607" refers to in his criticism, and as our elections have been secured by the legitimate use of our voting power, occasionally aided by loans from other Provinces, which is not an unusual practice with the Provinces, I hardly think the remarks made by "P.M. 1607" in his communication will conduce to the attainment of the object he doubtless has in view.

Yours fraternally,

B. VICKERS, P.G. Secretary.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE APPROACHING FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE closing day of the present month will witness the last of this year's Festivals on behalf of the three great Institutions of Freemasonry, and on the result of that celebration much of the future conduct of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys depends. Is it then to be wondered at that, as the time draws near for the Festival, anxiety increases, and speculation is rife as to what may be in store for the Charity. If we may take the result of the two Festivals already held this year—on behalf of the sister Institutions of Freemasonry—as a basis on which to found our speculations, we may perhaps be justified in anticipating a success for the Boys, for both the Benevolent Institution Festival in February, and that on behalf of the Girls' School last month, proved to be successes in the fullest sense of the word; but are we justified in settling the question in our minds thus easily? Would it not be far more politic to assume that the mere fact of two successful Festivals having already taken place this year is more likely to detract from, than add to, the success of a third; and that the last of the celebrations might suffer from the good fortune of the other two? This certainly appears the more reasonable inference, and is one which leads so many of the well-wishers of the School to experience grave anxiety, year by year, until the result of the Festival is made known. There are many who consider the Boys' School particularly unfortunate in regard to the time at which its Annual Festival is held, as compared with the other two Institutions, and the arguments adduced in support of this inference are certainly very strong. It is urged that the Boys' Festival comes at a time when the majority of the Lodges have been closed for some two or three months, and that, therefore, many of those who undertake the office of Steward on its behalf experience exceptional difficulties in addressing the brethren of their Lodges, while, in a very large number of cases, they are really debarred from personally canvassing the members as they would be able to do during the period the Lodge was in session. The remedy for this is,—we may be told,—for brethren to give in their names and commence the work of their Stewardship some months before the Festival; but we know, by experience, this is not done; besides which, brethren so acting have sometimes to meet the argument that they are taking the ground from other Stewards who may be working for an earlier Festival. Again, as we have said above, there are two similar Festivals preceding it each year, and if they prove to be successes many brethren assume the third will be equally fortunate, and relax their efforts on its behalf; while if the two first should prove failures a scare would be created which would frighten many from supporting the third.

We have often wondered that it has not been found possible to introduce some novelty which should in a measure counteract these drawbacks; but at present there is really nothing, if we may except the fact that at the Boys' the ladies take a more prominent part than at either of the other Festivals. The prominence of the fair sex is, however, only for the day; there is nothing to refer to afterwards—from a "matter-of-fact mercenary" point of view—as a memento of their patronage, and to this fact we again refer at length in the hope that some of our fair sisters may read these lines and be induced to inaugurate something like an innovation. The ladies will excuse us telling them, that they could do something on behalf of "our boys" if they would, and as the Festival of the Boys' School is to many of them a red-letter day, we would earnestly ask them to give the matter their consideration. A few guineas collected by each of the ladies present at the approaching Festival would make a very handsome addition to the total then to be announced; but, unfortunately, all these matters want some one to make a start, and the ladies seem behindhand in securing a leader. Who, then, shall earn the honour of inaugurating a ladies' list for our Boys' School? Remember, it is on behalf of an Institution which does an immense amount of good, and which provides at least two days' enjoyment each year for those ladies and brethren who may be able to avail themselves of it. A little done by each lady who attends the Festival would make one or more poor lads happy, if not for the rest of their life at least for a few years. We may remind our sisters, should they attempt anything in the way we have suggested, that they must confine their operations to their own sphere; they must raise their funds themselves, and not let their husbands do it for them, as in that case the husband would not act as Steward, excusing himself on the ground that he is working on behalf of "his wife's list." There must be no poaching; there is ample room for all; and if the ladies would only attempt to gather the crumbs—considered, perhaps, too small for their husbands' lists—they would do a good service in a quarter where it is much needed. As a special inducement for the fair sex to attempt something, we may say that the approaching Festival of the Boys' School is to be held at Brighton, and if only the day be fine, a more enjoyable trip than that with "our boys" it would be difficult to find. Those who participated in the Festival of 1881, which also was held at Brighton, must remember the pleasures of that day too well not to desire another such outing, and if the celebration to take place on the 30th of the present month be only as successful as that one, there will be nothing to lament over.

The Chairman of this year's Festival, the Right Hon. Lord Suffield, is a Mason well fitted to the post he has undertaken. As ruler of the Masonic Province of Norfolk he has shown his ability as a Craftsman in many ways, and nothing will be wanting on his part that is likely to add to the success of the meeting. He will be supported by upwards of two hundred and sixty Stewards, among whom are to be found the names of brethren who have done well in the past, and are doubtless striving to do better in the future; while many who have now undertaken the duty of Steward for the first time are doubtless anxious to do as well as those who have gone before, even if they are not striving to excel. Then we must not forget that the fact of holding the Festival at Brighton takes the company into a Province which will then have as its Installed Master one of the best loved men in England—H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, who is to be installed as Provincial Grand Master of Sussex by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., on the 22nd inst. We hope that the new ruler of Sussex will find it convenient to be at the head of his brethren to welcome the many Masonic visitors to his Province on this occasion; his presence would add an additional charm to what promises to be a pleasant gathering.

Much of the bright side of the picture we have painted of course depends on the result of the appeal now before the Craft, which will culminate on the day in question, and although thus far we may appear to have taken a sanguine view of the matter, we are far from sure we ought to have done so. There is much to be achieved before the Boys' Festival of this year can be said to have provided what is actually required from it, and although we hope for the best, we cannot shut our eyes to the fact of there being many counteracting influences at work. For this reason, and on behalf of the Institution itself, we earnestly urge on our readers the absolute necessity of their doing what they can to assist in the work. The needs are great, and the deeds of the workers must also be great. The Institution has recently made large additions to its capacity, and the Committee would willingly go further if only they felt justified in so doing. The number of candidates is great, and almost every day the cry of distress is heard which might be relieved by this Institution were it not for the lack of funds. The Craft has done well on its behalf in the past, and no doubt will continue to do so for many years to come—for all time let us hope; but at the present there is an absolute need of assistance, which can only be secured by united and persevering work on the part of all who are in a position to give it. There are surely some among our readers in such a position; we appeal to them, and trust our appeal may not be made in vain.

THE FRIENDSHIP OF FREEMASONRY.

From a sermon preached on the occasion of St. John's Anniversary 1885, before the members of Acacia Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Pugwash, Nova Scotia, by Rev. A. D. Morton, M.A.

FREEMASONRY is a brotherhood, not designed for the bestowment of charity, as many would suppose, but for the promotion of the highest ends of earthly friendship. As a type of what that friendship should be, I draw your attention to the instance cited in my text. The brotherliness of David and Jonathan has become proverbial. Let us glance at the distinguishing features of the relationship subsisting between them.

It appears to have been based upon congeniality of temperament. It is difficult to analyze those subtle influences which pervade our natures and exert an attracting or repelling power over us in the social intercourse of life. To these influences in their attracting power is doubtless due the organization represented here to-night, and now diffused as a network over all lands and among all nationalities. When David first came into the presence of Jonathan, the heart of the latter experienced the strange magnetism of love, and on that same day they plighted their mutual troth. It would be too much to suppose that between each member of this fraternity and every other member there was perfect congeniality of temperament, but I am only affirming what is universally admitted when I say that the atmosphere of Masonry tends to develop and cement friendship on this basis. Meeting as strangers, representing different walks in social life, separated by denominational and political lines, there is that which, in continuous intercourse, creates a common bond of union, and a common ground of friendship. As there is the shibboleth of domestic, social, political and religious life and relationship, so there is the shibboleth of Masonry. We may not analyze the friendship of the Brotherhood; we only know it exists, and is marked by characteristic features of its own.

The friendship of which we are speaking was pre-eminently practical. Sentiment is a fine thing; but friendship which is all sentiment is not suited to this hard world, when experiences are rough and interests involved. The friendship of sentiment is the pleasant intercourse which is begotten of bright skies and smooth waters, but the friendship which serves and ennobles us in the combined endeavour to tread the rough and weary paths of life and to outride its fierce and frequent storms. At the time to which my text refers it was in the power of Jonathan to render important service unto his friend. This opportunity he nobly improved. Self-interests might have interfered, had he allowed them to do so. There was the possibility of compromising himself in the favour of his father; there was the more than probability of being superseded in the throne, by serving his friend; but if base and unworthy thoughts suggested themselves to his mind, he spurned their control. Not once did considerations such as these interfere with the sacred obligations of covenanted friendship. As he would serve himself or as he would be served by another, so served he David. He interceded with his father on one occasion, until he was propitiated and danger was temporarily averted, and when this mode of service would no longer avail, he aided David in effecting his escape to some place of safety.

It will be noticed that Jonathan imperilled his life in the sacred cause of friendship. In the face of the shams and pretences which characterize every age, and are manifest in every institution, what a noble type of friendship and brotherhood is here displayed, a model and incentive for all time. Brothers, you are bound to friendship, to the most sacred ideas and duties which this term implies. Never forget it. I need not remind you that your obligations do not involve utter improbabilities or mere possibilities, but certainties, actual experiences. Every brief interval of time discovers opportunities for fulfilling the obligations of this covenanted friendship. Do not regard them in a selfish or cynical spirit, but rising above what is base and unworthy of a man and brother, do that which the demands of the hour may seem to require at your hands. Do not say, "depart in peace, be warmed, be filled," but relinquish ease, consecrate wealth, jeopardise life, if necessary—in a word, let the practical character of your friendship be its grand feature. I speak not thus because I think you need to be instructed or even exhorted in these matters, but that the pronounced features of your brotherhood may be brought into prominence and may command universal recognition and admiration.

Full well I know your readiness to serve those whom the vicissitudes of life may have thrown upon your sympathies, and the unwritten records of your history will furnish many an evidence of the spirit of brotherhood by which you are actuated and which constitutes the crown and glory of the institution itself in all its world-wide ramifications. But in our endeavour to serve, let us not forget the dignity that inheres in this institution which we represent, and which we are bound to maintain. Ours is not a benefit society. For the advantages which such may offer, men may look elsewhere. Neither is it a refuge for the indolent, whither they may resort to escape the consequences of idleness or improvidence. But such services as are born of love, as are bestowed in accord with the merits of the case, and as fully recognise the dignity of true manhood, be it ever ours to render. To the brother who, amid the storms of life has suffered the wreck of fortune, give the needed help, and his destitution shall redound to your moral and spiritual enrichment. To the brother whom sickness may overtake in a land of strangers, let your presence be that of a ministering angel, and your silent and unostentatious offerings as the gentle and refreshing dews which the heavens distil upon the dry and parched earth.

This friendship had its aspect of exclusiveness in a given instance for mutual advantage. A sign was agreed upon, by which Jonathan conveyed to David certain intelligence intended for his benefit alone. There was no moral principle involved in this sign. The whole thing was a matter of expediency. It is sometimes objected to Freemasonry that it is a secret institution. Be it so; there is no relationship, whether domestic or social, or political or religious, affected thereby. In this there is no invasion of any right, no violation of any principle. Secrecy is more or less a characteristic of every institution. To some extent it enters into the economy of life in connection with all classes and callings. As well inveigh against the private marks of the merchant, the hieroglyphics of the cablegram, or the cypher by which the postal-card writer would seek to impart his most precious intelligence. That the signals of the Masonic code may be perverted to unworthy ends we do not doubt. That such has been the case it might be reasonable to suppose. In like manner, fire-arms, intended for purposes of maintenance or defence, have furnished instruments for the destruction of life and property. Religion itself, designed to promote the highest ends of individual and social life, has been made a mantle to cloak designs the most sinister and base. If the theoretic Craft into which you have been initiated has put into your hands implements intended for high and beneficent ends, that thereby the individual and organic good of the Brotherhood may be promoted, it only remains for us in the use of these implements, to regard the grand moral principles underlying all manhood, and evidently symbolised in the ceremonials of our Order. In harmony with these principles let us prize the facilities afforded for the recognition and service of a Brotherhood which knows no geographical bounds, no national limitations, which ignores the distinctions of caste, and overleaps the barriers of creed.

This friendship involved relationships. Thus we hear Jonathan stipulating with his friend, "Thou shalt not only while yet I live show me the kindness of the Lord, that I die not: but also thou shalt not cut off thy kindness from my house for ever." There is an exclusiveness about Freemasonry which to the profane world constitutes a distinguishing feature of the Craft; but so far as its sympathies, its benevolent aspirations, as expressed in its obligations, are concerned, there is a breadth and inclusiveness that ought not to be less manifest. It is not to your brother alone you are to look, not to his interest alone you are to be mindful, but the interests of those dependent on him or related to him. A brother may die, may pass beyond the reach, personally, of your sympathy or your help. When in his open grave you cast the apron, the essential badge of a Mason, the acacia sprig, which, to the initiated, symbolises our enduring faith in the immortality of the soul, you may have rendered to him, personally, the last tribute of a brother's respect and affection, but his claims upon you have not ceased. Your covenanted obligations are not necessarily all fulfilled. He may have passed to the heavenly sanctuary, where the mystic light, unmingled with darkness, diffuses an unbroken and perpetual brightness, and his name be removed from the roll of the lodge's membership; but in the persons of his widowed wife or orphaned children you recognize the sacred reminders of claims which, while they bind you as with chains of adamant, are to your heart like the tenderest embraces of a maiden's love. We do not say that these ideals of virtue are realized in the life of every brother; where and by whom are ideals realized? but we do say that they are enshrined in the obligations and traditions of our Brotherhood, and in so far as they are realized in personal life and endeavour, Freemasonry becomes the adumbration of those essentially divine qualities which distinguish our holy Christianity.—Liberal Freemason.

CHARITY ORGANISATION.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In a recent article in your valuable journal you described the Charity Organisation Society as what I have long been of opinion it is—"a huge blot upon the name of charity." May I relate to you an instance which, to my own knowledge, is by no means a solitary one? A widow lady, by the death of her husband, lost the advantage of a pension which he had deservedly enjoyed after forty years of service in a public institution in the City. Having no other means of support, she was eventually compelled to give up her house, and to cast about her for such employment as one who had been brought up in that position could undertake; but I suppose that situations, even of a superior character amongst women, are as scarce as those adapted to our own sex. Anyhow, she was compelled to seek for assistance amongst those by whom she was known—the vicar of her parish, the medical man who had attended the husband and family, and so on. But in an unlucky moment she listened to the kindly advice of a minister to apply to the Charity Organisation Society; and, buoyed up with hope, she sought the officer of her district, and explained that both she and her family were in most urgent need, even of the common necessaries of life. A hundred questions were asked, and she was told to come again. Meanwhile, an official of the Society called upon the widow, and asked a hundred other inquisitorial and unnecessary questions, promising, as before, to "do something for her." This process was repeated for five or six weeks, and, after the paid inquisitor had discharged his functions with painful ostentation, after repeated visits to the unfortunate applicant, she was ultimately rewarded by the truly magnificent gift of five shillings! This beats the Mansion House Fund, as the saying goes, "into fits." I happen to know the family well, and feel assured the lady would never have stooped to so abject an application unless compelled to do so by positive want. This prying into private affairs, and the miserable holding out of false hopes to half-starving poor persons seems to be the especial function of the Charity Organisation Society, which, I repent, is a "blot upon the very name of Charity." God forbid that such a system should ever be "innovated" into Freemasonry, as correspondents in certain journals not long ago suggested; for such an abominable delusion would destroy the vitals of that system of benevolence of which we are proud, and are happy to administer under the motto of "Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth." I can furnish you with other instances, if need be, of the tyrannical, cruel, and callous conduct of Charity Organisation agents, who fatten upon the bounty of a benevolent public, and swallow up the funds kindly contributed for the relief of the really deserving poor. While they get fat on the money subscribed, true Charity is diverted from its intended channel, and the deserving poor are sent empty away. This is a shameful anomaly, that should open the eyes of the large-hearted, for heaven knows there is plenty of real poverty around us without engaging overbearing, hard-hearted and overpaid officials to discover it for us.

Yours fraternally,

INDIGNANT.

P.S.—Since the above was written I note the following appeal, on behalf of the widow in question, published by a well-known minister in the columns of the Christian World:—"£10 to Save a Home.—An urgent appeal is made on behalf of a widow who is in great distress, being left quite unprovided for. The help of a few pounds would now save her home, and enable her to start afresh. References to ministers and others can be given. Subscriptions would be thankfully received by Rev. J. Morley Wright, Wickham Road, Brockley."

Comment is unnecessary.

THE SURREY MASONIC HALL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The letter of P.Z. S.D. in your last week's number has induced me to make a personal examination of the Memorial Stone placed in the Masonic Temple of the Surrey Masonic Hall.

I have been literally astonished by what I saw. The stone has been tampered with, and, I may almost say, desecrated, by the treatment it has received.

I remember the occasion on which it was laid by Colonel Sir Francis Burdett, in May 1874, and have in my possession full report of the ceremonial, published by your contemporary at that time. The worthy Brother who then bore the "heat and burthen of the day" as Chairman of the Company was the hero of the hour, and deservedly received the warmest acknowledgments of all concerned. His name was then engraven on the Temple face of the stone, in its proper place amongst the names of other Directors. It has been ruthlessly removed, and the name of some unknown brother substituted. Why? Can any reason whatever justify interference with a truthful record. I think not; and it grieves me to see so startling an evidence of anti-masonic feeling exhibited in a place which had been solemnly dedicated to Brotherly love and Truth.

Yours fraternally,

E.J.G., W.M.

CAN IT BE TRUE?

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A remarkable incident has been related to me, the circumstances of which are of such rare occurrence in Masonic circles that the episode is eminently deserving of record in our annals, unique though it be, happily, in modern Craft history. A week or two since a numerous company of brethren and Visitors attended a regular meeting of one of our City Lodges, when some excellent working was succeeded by an equally enjoyable banquet. I am told that "the brethren enjoyed themselves in brotherly love;" but, immediately the toast list was opened, it would seem that the harmony of the gathering was "ruthlessly disturbed" by a scene which is almost incredible in connection with a Masonic banquet. The toast of the Queen and the Craft was proposed with the loyalty and affection which ever characterises it in our Lodges, and all the brethren present, save one, rose to a response which is only due from those who own the position of her Most Gracious Majesty as the Patron of the Craft. This brilliant specimen of a disloyal Mason and Englishman shall be nameless—at any rate, as far as I am concerned; yet, let the fact be immortalised that disloyalty and disrespect for the Monarchy are not confined to the rag-tag and bobtail of Socialism and Revolution, but has dragged its miserable and unwelcome presence into a Masonic Lodge. I am told that "this one brother would not rise, even after he had been requested by the whole of the assemblage,"—"an instance," my informant writes, "which never before occurred, I believe, in any Masonic Lodge." I have been asked to express an opinion as to how the Master of the Lodge in question should have proceeded in so awkward a predicament as that in which he was placed by this breach of loyalty and etiquette on the part of an individual member of a Lodge. I am not aware that the defaulter is liable to any further punishment than the shame and ignominy which should cover him by his wretched want of good taste and of consideration for the feelings of his more cultivated brethren, whose only course is to send the un-Masonic cad to "Coventry." We have heard of cases in which revolutionary scoundrels who have vented their puny dislike for Royalty at political meetings by "hissing" at the mention of the names of members of the Royal family have been kicked out from the company which they have thus disgraced; but this would be unseemly in a Masonic gathering, where brotherly love is a principle equally observed with the Masonic watchword of Loyalty to the Throne and devotion to the Craft.

I am very loth to employ harsh words, even in relation to such a flagrant act of obstinacy and ignorance as that perpetrated by our recalcitrant brother at the banquet alluded to; but no expression of indignation is too strong in respect of so paltry an exhibition of disloyalty to the Queen and Craft, or so glaring and gratuitous an insult to the other brethren who participated in the festivities of that eventful evening.

In dismissing this "incident" with the hope that it will never be repeated in the annals of our Order,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

A LOYAL MASON.

HALF-YEARLY COMMUNICATION OF GRAND LODGE.

THE Half-yearly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales, and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown, was held on Tuesday, the 1st inst., in the Hall (Room 21), Holborn Restaurant, Little Queen-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields, London. The Right Hon. the Earl of Kintore, Most Worshipful Grand Mark Master Mason presided, and was supported by the following Grand Officers:—Bros. William Kelly G.M.M.M. Leicester as Deputy Grand Master, the Marquis of Hertford G.S.W., W. J. Hughan P.G.W. as G.J.W., Colonel A. Somerville Burney G.M.O., J. S. Eastes G.S.O., Ralph Gooding, M.D., G.J.O., Revs. H. Cummings and T. W. Lemon, M.A., Grand Chaplains, James Moon Grand Treasurer, Frederick Binckes Grand Secretary, F. Richardson Grand Registrar, P. Wallis G.S.D., G. Mickley and R. P. Spice G.J.D.'s, Robert Berridge G.D.C., Miles J. Walker Grand Sword Bearer, W. P. Collins Grand Standard Bearer, E. J. Hoare Grand Organist, George Graveley G.I.G., Jabez Church, J. W. Fuller, G. Edwards, D. P. Cama, J. Ramsay, E. H. Thorne, W. B. Williamson, P. A. Scratchley, C. A. C. Jones, Grand Stewards, and a large attendance of brethren. After Lodge had been formally constituted, the Grand Mark Master was saluted in ancient form, and the minutes of the meeting of 1st December 1885 were read and confirmed. The Report of the General Board was then formally presented, as follows:—

REPORT OF THE GENERAL BOARD.

In submitting their Report to Grand Lodge, the Board feel justified in prominently alluding to the election of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Most Worshipful Grand Master, an event which cannot fail to exercise a very important influence on the interests of the Order. While in no way involving the possibility of a recognition of the Mark degree as an essential portion of Ancient Freemasonry—from which position it is absolutely debarred by the Articles of Union, of 1813—the fact of having at its head the illustrious Prince who occupies a similar distinguished position as the supreme head of English Craft Masonry, is sufficient proof that there is nothing inconsistent in the principles of the Mark degree with the principles of Craft Masonry.

The number of Certificates issued during the six months to 31st March last is 781, the total number of registered members being 21,657.

In the degree of Royal Ark Mariner the Certificates issued during the same period were 72, the total number on the Register being 1258.

Warrants for Mark Lodges have been issued:—

No. 361.—Onslow, London.
No. 362.—Wouldhave, South Shields, Durham.
No. 363.—Raspini, London.
No. 364.—Gordon, Gravesend, Kent.
No. 365.—Hesperus, Bourke, River Darling, N.S.W.
No. 366.—Hertford, Hertford.

Warrants for Lodges of Royal Ark Mariners.—Calthorpe, attached to Mark Albert, 270, Gwalior. Prince of Wales, to Mark Lodge Prince of Wales, 4, London.

A new Province, that of Hertfordshire, has been constituted, and Right Worshipful Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., appointed as the first Provincial Grand Master.

In three Provinces the following changes have taken place:—

Staffordshire—R.W. Bro. Col. Geo. S. Tudor has been appointed Provincial Grand Master, vice R.W. Bro. Col. Foster Gough.

Monmouthshire—R.W. Bro. Capt. S. G. Homfray, J.P., as Provincial Grand Master, vice R.W. Bro. L. Homfray, J.P.

Warwickshire—R.W. Bro. The Most Hon. the Marquis of Hertford, as Provincial Grand Master, vice R.W. Bro. Lord Brooke, resigned.

To meet the increasing requirements for the business of the Office, and the demands for accommodation by various Masonic Bodies for meetings, the Board have entered into an agreement with the original lessees of the premises in Red Lion-square for a lease of additional rooms at a further rental of £40 per annum, for a term concurrent with that of their existing tenancy. This arrangement will considerably increase the facilities for the conduct of the business of the Order, and also will add to the accommodation already extensively recognised as suitable for Masonic purposes.

The relations between the Grand Chapter of Quebec and this Grand Lodge remain in statu quo. Those relations are, however, unhappily affected in no inconsiderable degree by the hostile action taken by the authorities in Quebec and by Grand Chapters of the United States against the United Grand Lodge and Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of England, of which bodies all Mark Master Masons under this jurisdiction are members. While this Grand Lodge, in common with the other Supreme Bodies in Great Britain and Ireland, is unable to concur in the American theory of exclusive territorial jurisdiction, as contrary to Antient landmarks, and to historical fact, it absolutely disclaims all right to interfere with the exclusive jurisdiction of the Grand Chapters of the United States. And as regards the Grand Chapter of Quebec, it has every desire that some modus vivendi should be found by which an amicable arrangement of the points in dispute may be arrived at.

The revision of the Constitutions has been a work of considerable labour, now happily concluded, and it is believed that the Text Book of the Order as now presented will be accepted with satisfaction by those for whose guidance it has been prepared.

The Board have to acknowledge the receipt of Proceedings of Grand Chapters of South Carolina, Nebraska, Arkansas, Michigan, Ohio, and Illinois.

The Board have relieved the following cases:—

This report was formally adopted, and then, in reply to inquiries made, Bro. F. Binckes stated that though some six months had elapsed since the adoption of the New Constitutions, they were not yet ready for general distribution. There were some elaborate engravings of chains and jewels to be prepared; these had taken a considerable time, much longer than had been anticipated. A few copies had been printed, but the bulk were not complete, nor in a condition to be issued at present. Every Lodge, however, under the jurisdiction of Grand Lodge had had a proof. Bro. Strahan could see a copy; in about a fortnight they would be ready for general distribution. The Earl of Kintore then rose: It was his pleasing duty to put forward for election the name of the Grand Master designate, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. He thought he might assume that this nomination would be endorsed by the brethren with acclamation. He had to put formally that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales be elected Grand Master for the coming year. This having been seconded by Bro. A. F. Godson Prov. G.M.M.M., of Worcestershire, was carried unanimously. The Earl of Kintore added that he had this morning received a letter from the Secretary of his Royal Highness, informing him that in the event of his election the Prince of Wales would present himself for installation on the 1st of July, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. His Royal Highness was then formally proclaimed Most Worshipful Grand Mark Master Mason.

Bro. James Moon was unanimously re-elected Grand Treasurer for the ensuing year, and then the Earl of Kintore announced that the Grand Master had appointed Canon Portal, P.G.M.M.M., President of the General Board, and Bros. F. Davison, W. Roebuck, Pearson, A. Williams, R. P. Spice, and T. Cubitt members of the Board. The following brethren were elected on the Board:—Bros. G. Cooper, C. H. Driver, A. F. Godson, R. Loveland Loveland, and John L. Mather.

Several letters of apology for inability to attend having been read, the Earl of Kintore said with respect to the above list he had met Canon Portal that morning, and was shocked to learn that his absence was caused by the melancholy news of the sudden death of his eldest son, in India. He had no details as to the manner of his death. Considering the rank Canon Portal held in Mark Masonry, and the affection in which he was held, he thought it would be the opinion of one and all present that it would be fit, proper, and gratifying to them to pass a vote of condolence with their esteemed brother in his affliction. Bro. Kelly seconded the motion; Canon Portal had been of great service to Mark Masonry ever since he had been in Grand Lodge. As representing Leicestershire, he (Brother Kelly) had a vivid recollection of Canon Portal coming to that Province, and of the great interest he had always taken in the Order. He had endeared himself to the brethren; he need not say one word as to the interest they all took in Canon Portal.

The announcement was made that full particulars as to the installation of the Grand Master would be given. The ceremony would take place in one of the large halls at Freemasons' Tavern.

Bro. Binckes stated he had received an invitation for the Grand Master to hold the Moveable Grand Lodge at Dorset, in 1887. The Rev. W. Mortimer Heath, Provincial Grand Master, was present, and would be happy to address the Grand Master on the subject. In reply, the Earl of Kintore said he should be pleased to hear Bro. Heath, but he would remind him that he was no longer Grand Master. Bro. the Rev. W. Mortimer Heath stated, in the name of the brethren under his rule, that they were unanimous in desiring that the Moveable Grand Lodge of 1887 should be held in their Province. The Earl of Kintore said he should be pleased to make a note of what had been said by Bro. Heath, but it would be for the M.W.G.M. to decide as to the acceptance of the invitation.

Grand Lodge was shortly afterwards closed.

At the conclusion of the banquet, served under the personal superintendence of Bro. Hamp, in the Venetian Salon, the usual toasts were proposed. In speaking of Her Majesty the Queen and Mark Masonry Lord Kintore referred to the universality of the empire embodied under her sway, and compared it with the universality of Mark Masonry. Her Majesty was beloved by her people, and the toast was always loyally received by Masons. Bro. William Kelly proposed the health of the M.W. Grand Mark Master, the Earl of Kintore. He did it with some diffidence, but remembering that good wine needs no bush, his task was rendered easy. He (Bro. Kelly) had held office under every Grand Master in the Mark as yet, and in no instance with greater pleasure than under Lord Kintore. They were sorry to lose him; but they were consoled by the fact that they had H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to succeed him. Lord Kintore, in reply, said the director of music had been good enough to provide a song in connection with the toast, "Good Company;" this he hoped would apply all round. For two years they had been pleased to entrust him with the office of Grand Mark Master, and they had on all occasions greeted him with cordiality. One reason for gratitude on his part had been unknown to them; at the time of his election he was high in office in Scotland, and he thought this significant of the fact that they might consider the hatchet was buried; he hoped so deep as never to be seen again. In both Scottish and English Masonry they should only have one thought—the prosperity of the Order. His term of office had been most gratifying; the Order had increased, and he had drawn from its ranks many friends. He had thought that on the advent of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master he should retire; but it was considered fitting he should remain. Therefore, he would place himself at their disposal for another year, and in the capacity of Pro Grand Master it would give him the utmost pleasure to render all the aid he could to the Mark Degree. The next toast was the M.W. G.M.M. elect, the Prince of Wales; to this the G. Master would add the Princess of Wales and the other members of the Royal Family. He felt sure they would all do their best to support him loyally when it became his duty to instal his Royal Highness in the chair, his occupancy of which would unquestionably cause Mark Masonry to advance with still greater strides. The toast of the Past Grand Masters was next on the list. The Mark Degree as it at present existed was founded in 1856, through the exertions of those who occupied the position of Past G. Masters. They now numbered 382 Lodges, and their success was mainly due to the zeal of the Grand Masters who had occupied the chair. In this connection he desired to refer especially to their first Grand Master, Canon Portal, whose absence they all so deeply regretted. With the toast of the Grand Officers Present and Past was coupled the names of Bros. Robinson, Prov. Grand Master of Kent, and Colonel Somerville Burney. Brother Rev. T. Robinson thanked the brethren for their hearty reception of the toast. He especially thanked the Grand Master for the truly Masonic sentiments that had been uttered by him, especially as to his reference to Scotland and the burial of the hatchet. Scotland had been a birthplace and home of Masonry, and the fraternal association at present existing must be gratifying to all English Masons. Colonel Burney remarked that he could speak very feelingly as to the bond of union existing in the Craft. He was initiated in Madras, and had been connected with Masonry in Scotland. He had lately come from the latter country, where he had been greatly interested in the subject of Masons' marks, some curious copies of which had been shown him. Amongst them, several from the ruins of Pompeii most curiously corresponding with emblems well known in Speculative Masonry as at present existing. He would not anticipate the fuller description which his friend Bro. Russel Forbes would shortly submit to the public; but he mentioned the fact as another instance of the universality of Masonry. Bro. Baron De Ferrier, in speaking to the toast of the Mark Benevolent Fund, called special attention to the object and need of such a fund. For some years it had modestly relieved distress, and helped the education of children; now the Mark Benevolent Fund had been established, and from the commencement of a few hundreds they were in hopes of seeing it run to thousands. Bro. C. H. Driver responded. Bro. De Ferrier had reminded them of the success of the last year's Festival; he would remind them that their motto must be "Excelsior," and with the accession of the Prince of Wales this year as Grand Master, he looked forward to a marked increase in the amount to be realized at the coming Festival. Bro. Binckes, G. Secretary, proposed the toast of the Visitors. This was a toast never absent from the list, and he hoped it never would be. Their motto was—in addition to loyalty and charity—hospitality. The M.W.G.M. had made touching allusion to the Sovereign. In that assembly the fair rose of England was well represented; the thistle and shamrock had all their representatives, in the persons of the Grand Master, and Colonel Sir Francis Burdett as representative of the Grand Lodge of Ireland. On the right and left of the Grand Master were two distinguished Masons—Bro. Lord Saltoun and Bro. Duncan Dalrymple; with their names he would couple the toast. Lord Saltoun thanked the Grand Secretary for his very kind remarks. This was the first banquet connected with Mark Masonry he had ever attended, and it had imbued him with the strong desire to do his utmost to bring together the two great bodies of English and Scotch Masons. Bro. Duncan Dalrymple also replied; he had much pleasure in being present. For many years he had taken great interest in Mark Masonry. He deplored the present unsatisfactory state of Mark Masonry in Scotland. Its anomalous position caused it to be looked on only as a preliminary step, and under these circumstances the Mark degree in Scotland had not taken that position to which it was entitled. They hoped that this would shortly be remedied. The result of the Prince of Wales taking the position of Grand Master would cement still further that union between the two Grand Lodges which had been so happily begun. The next toast was in recognition of the Grand Stewards, whose exertions had tended so materially to ensure the success of the meeting. After this compliment had been acknowledged, the parting toast was given. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Edward John Hoare, Grand Organist, who was assisted by Bros. Edwin Moss, Wilford Price, and Edwin Bryant.

PROVINCIAL G. LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, AND DERBYSHIRE.

A Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, 27th ult., under the presidency of Bro William Kelly, F.S.A., F.R. Hist. Soc., R.W. P.G.M.M.M., supported by Bros. S. S. Partridge P.P.D G.M. P.G.D. England, Percy Wallis P.G.S.W. G.D. Eng., H. Brown P.G.J.W., S. Cleaver P.G. Treasurer, Clement E. Stretton P.G. Secretary, W. L. Marshall, F. Griffith, J. Fisher Edgar Horne, T. Emery, &c. The Provincial Grand Lodge was held under the banner of the Fowke Lodge, No. 19, and was received in due form. The roll of Officers and Lodges was called, and duly responded to. The minutes of the last P.G. Lodge meeting, held at Derby, on 11th May 1885, were received, confirmed and signed. The Report of the Committee of General Purposes was read, confirmed and signed. It showed the Lodges in the Province to be in a satisfactory condition. The report of the Provincial Grand Registrar showed a gain in numbers. The P.G. Treasurer then presented an abstract of his accounts for the past year, which showed a good balance in hand. The accounts were approved and adopted, and the best thanks of the P.G. Lodge given to the P.G. Treasurer, Bro. Cleaver, for his services. Bro. Cleaver was re-elected P.G. Treasurer. The R.W. P.G.M.M.M. then delivered the following address:—

BRETHREN OF THE MARK PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE,—The whirligig of time, in its rapid gyrations, has again brought us to the usual period of our annual assembly, and with it the 28th anniversary of my rule over the Mark Degree in Leicestershire. Before proceeding to notice the events which have taken place in our own Province, I cannot refrain from mentioning that at the meeting of the Mark Grand Lodge of England on Tuesday next (at which I hope to be present) H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is to be elected Grand Master of the Degree, which cannot fail (flourishing as it is at present) very greatly to enhance its prestige, and still more rapid progress and popularity. But to come to home matters. Since our last annual meeting, at Derby, the Degree has been steadily progressing with us, the chief event being the founding of a Fourth Mark Lodge in Derbyshire—"The Dove Valley Lodge," at Ashbourne—consecrated very shortly after we last met. In Northants the most noteworthy event has been the recent advancement in the Simon de St. Liz Lodge, No. 245, of the W. Bro. Butler Wilkins, Past Grand Standard Bearer of England, the highly esteemed Deputy (and in reality the acting) Provincial Grand Master of the Craft Province of Norths and Hunts. Many of the older members of the Craft in different towns of that Province have hitherto stood aloof from Mark Masonry; but, doubtless, the accession to its ranks of so popular and distinguished a Past Grand Officer as Bro. Butler Wilkins will have a great effect in making the Mark Degree more popular in that Craft Province. With respect to Leicestershire, the only noticeable event to record has been that the Howe Lodge, No. 21, which since the year 1868 has met at Melton Mowbray, having members resident in those towns, has been authorised by the Grand Lodge to hold its meetings also at Market Harborough and Oakham, each in turn. By this arrangement the County of Rutland has been brought into the Mark, as it has long been under the Provincial Grand Lodge of the Craft. This leads me to remark that the seal, which has long been in use in the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Leicestershire, as it still is, is quite inappropriate heraldically, and is quite unworthy of the present Province, having on it the arms of the Masons' Company of London, in use before the Union of 1813, and having only Leicestershire upon it. It was formerly an old silver seal of St. John's Lodge, No. 279, Leicester, which, after being lost for many years, and the present seal substituted for it, was altered to suit its present purpose. I have been in communication with the Grand Mark Secretary on the subject of a proper seal, and it has been suggested that, as the County of Rutland has been just brought into this Province we should adopt the arms of Leicestershire, Northants, Derbyshire and Rutland in a Keystone quarterly, surrounded by the names of the four counties. This would be a very appropriate design, and if the assembled brethren agree in this view I should be very happy to superintend its being carried into effect. Turning to the abstract of the Treasurer's account, it will be seen that beginning the year with a balance in hand of £43 0s 1d, after paying the ordinary expenses, and in addition a grant of £10 10s to the Mark Benevolent Fund, and £4 4s for the very handsome state sword, used to-day officially for the first time, we end the year according to the account, as audited, with a balance of £48 6s 10d, but which has since been increased to £56 8s 10d, by the receipt of fees in arrear. The Registrar's Report shows an increase during the year ending 31st December 1885 of twenty-five members. Hitherto the work embodied in what is nominally termed the Provincial Grand Registrar's Report has really been one by the Provincial Grand Secretary, the Provincial Grand Registrar having merely signed his name to the Certificates of Appointments. Bro. Stretton, who during the years which have elapsed since the death of our lamented Bro. McAllister, has so efficiently discharged the duties of these two Offices, now, by the pressure of professional engagements, feels compelled to retire, much to the loss of the Province; but he has suggested that for the future each of these two Officers should perform the duties of his office. I have accordingly arranged that for the future the Provincial Grand Registrar shall keep the register, receive the returns of the Lodges, and do all the work of his office, and thus relieve the Provincial Grand Secretary, whose duties of late years have of course greatly increased. The thanks of the Province are justly due to Bro. Stretton for his valuable services. The only way in which I can mark my high appreciation of them is by appointing him to the office of Provincial Grand Senior Warden for the ensuing year. With regard to the highest office in my gift, that of Deputy Provincial Grand Master, held for the past three years by W. Bro. the Rev. Dr. Sanders, as representing Northamptonshire, I have now a few observations to make. In the County of Derby, as remarked in my address of last year, the Mark Degree has spread so rapidly that it already has four Lodges (as many as the old Province itself), with the probability of a fifth Lodge being founded very shortly at Ilkeston. With every desire on my part to do my duty as the ruler of my Province by visiting as many of the Lodges as possible, I now find that, from my advanced age and somewhat impaired health, it is beyond my power to do so much in this way as I formerly did, and could wish to do so still. I therefore feel it due to the Derbyshire brethren, so long as they may honour me by remaining under my rule as a constituent part of this Province, that they should have an efficient and respected Past Master of their own as the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, to take a general supervision of, and to pay those visits to their Lodges which I should be pleased and feel bound to do if I were able. The Past Master whom I have selected for this honourable and important office is our W. Bro. Thomas Cox, Past Provincial Grand Junior Warden, P.M. of the Derby Lodge, No. 302, and who, I believe, was the first Brother advanced to the Mark Degree in Derbyshire. I will now request the two Provincial Grand Deacons to conduct our Bro. Cox to the front of the pedestal, and the Provincial Grand Secretary to read his patent of appointment.

Bro. Cox was then conducted to the East, and his Patent of appointment having been read, he was duly obligated, installed and saluted as D.G.P.M.M.M. The Officers for the year were then appointed and invested by the R.W. P.G.M. as follows:—

Bro. Clement Stretton	-	Senior Warden

It was then proposed and carried by acclamation that R.W. Bro. W. Kelly be re-elected Prov. G. Master for the ensuing three years. A Committee having been formed to revise the Bye-laws, and the sum of £5 5s voted to the Mark Benevolent Fund, the Prov. G. Lodge was closed. The brethren then dined together, under the presidency of the R.W. P.G.M.M.M.

A YEAR OF LIFE-BOAT WORK.

THE Sixty-second Annual Report of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution has just been issued, from which it appears that, although during the past year, there was a slight falling off in the receipts in some directions, owing to the badness of the times, the Committee were yet, as a whole, able to hold their own, and to carry on the great work committed to them with even increased activity. Notwithstanding the unusual absence of continued violent gales, hundreds of valuable lives were rescued by the Life-boats, and many a family thereby saved from desolation and ruin.

Between the 1st January and the 31st December, 30 new Life-boats were sent to the coast, nearly all of which were furnished with transporting carriages. 28 of these boats were fitted with water ballast-tanks and other improvements, and numerous reports have been received from stations where they were placed, stating that the old boats were not to be compared with them. The sliding-keel boat sent to Clacton last spring has given the greatest satisfaction to the crew and fully realised the expectations which had been formed as to its efficiency. Besides the new boats which were stationed, several old ones were improved, or replaced by partially used boats refitted.

During the year new Stations were established at The Lizard, Southend, Totland Bay, Montrose, Cloughey Bay, and Peel, and others are in the course of formation. New boats to take the place of old ones withdrawn were also despatched to Appledore, Barmouth Blackpool, Bridlington, Brixham, Clacton, Ferryside, Fishguard, Llanddulas, Llanddwyn, Newbiggin, Plymouth, St. David's, Solsey, Sidmouth, Silloth, Tonby, Ballywater, Blackrock, Courtmacsherry, Drogheda, Groomsport, Youghal, and Castletown, Isle of Man.

At the close of 1885 the number of Life-boats under the management of the Committee was 290, through the instrumentality of which 371 lives were saved during the year, besides 20 vessels. Rewards were also granted by the Institution for the rescue, by shore-boats, of 184 other persons, making a grand total of 555 lives rescued within the year by means of the Society.

In 1885 the Life-boats were launched on service 190 times, and about 760 times for inspection and exercise, and the Committee state with the greatest thankfulness and satisfaction that there was not a single fatal accident, nor indeed a serious accident of any description connected with the service. The Institution has granted rewards since its establishment in 1824, for the saving of 31,910 lives, a fact which should alone be sufficient to secure proper support for maintaining the great work of the Society.

Two silver medals, one binocular glass, seven votes of thanks on vellum, and £3,644 in cash were awarded by the Committee in 1885 for the saving of life. The total expenditure for the year on the Life-boat service was £52,649, while the receipts in subscriptions, donations, and dividends amounted to £47,035 only. All the items of receipts and expenditure are detailed as usual, and have been audited by Mr. Lovelock, Chartered Accountant.

Throughout the year there was a steady demand for the invaluable aneroids supplied by the Institution at a very low price to fishing vessels and small coasters, showing how much the liberality of the Committee in this matter is appreciated by those whom it is intended to benefit. Altogether 2,238 of these instruments have been distributed since 1882.

The valuable help given by the Branch Committees and their Honorary Officials, the Press, the Coastguard and the Customs, is gratefully acknowledged, as are also some liberal contributions to the funds of the Institution.

In conclusion, the Committee make a strong appeal to the British Public for pecuniary help to enable them to carry on their most responsible work, and they ask more particularly for annual subscriptions. The services which have been rendered in the past and are now being rendered by the Life-boat Institution are of national importance, and the Committee express their belief that, in view of these services, the work will not be allowed to languish for want of funds to properly sustain it.

Criterion.—Once more Mr. Charles Wyndham has made his appearance at the Criterion, but this time in a play that was originally produced at Covent Garden Theatre, in 1791. Mr. Wyndham has appeared in "Wild Oats" before, at the Royalty in 1873, when he played Rover to Miss Henrietta Hodson's Lady Amaranth. The management has selected an exceptionally good company, and all do credit to their parts. Mr. Wyndham's Rover is as gay and mirthful a piece of comedy acting as may be wished for; and in the words of Lady Amaranth he is "of a happy disposition." Happily this gentleman avoids the constant use of the word "quotation" at the end of the poetical selections which he makes use of, and with such effect that he carries his audience with him. We welcome to these boards Mr. David James, who here is in his element. His "John Dory" was farcical comedy of an old type exactly. He is the rough sea dog to the life, breezy, but never boisterous. As Sir George Thunder Mr. Edward Righton was capital; while equal praise should be given the Ephraim Smooth of Mr. William Blakeley. The last-named gentleman makes his part as droll as it well can be. Mr. W. E. Gregory was good as Harry Thunder; and the part of Sim was well realized by Mr. George Giddins, who made this rustic lout very amusing. The sweet manner in which Miss Mary Moore portrayed the part of the Quakeress was so natural that she entirely won the favour of her audience. It is a pleasant surprise to witness an actress almost unknown show to such advantage. Miss Annie Hughes was very amusing as Jane; but she would do better if she were not quite so boisterous; while Amelia was feelingly played by Miss Ffolliott Paget. "Wild Oats," although somewhat off the regular lines of this theatre, will, we feel sure, draw good audiences for some time to come.

Opera Comique.—The laughing festival "Our Strategists," a modern comedy of errors, written and acted "Just for Fun," is the title of the piece which Morton and Bell's American Comedy Company have commenced their performances in London with. Although "Our Strategists" has been running continuously in America for the past seven years, we scarcely think it will become popular in this country. Anything more dreary or tame has not been presented on the London stage for a long time. The laughter depresses where it should elate, and by the time the piece is over the audience have had "enough" of "The Laughing Festival." If the pruning knife were used, and the piece allowed to run for about an hour and a-half, instead of two hours and a-half, it might be made into something. The authors try to get fun out of a juvenile lover, who first disguises himself as his own father, and after as his father-in-law, in his endeavours to secure the girl he loves. The probability of being discovered is altogether lost sight of, while the persons imposed on, without an exception, fall into the trap thus clumsily laid. Mr. Henry B. Bell impersonates the "quick-change" lover creditably, and he is fairly well supported by Miss Katie Gilbert. No good purpose will be served by speaking of the others engaged. We advise the management to change its programme at once; the present one will, we fear, result in bitter failure.

Grand Lodge having been formally opened, the papers for the election of the Board of General Purposes were distributed, and Scrutineers of votes were nominated, Brother Robert Grey being appointed Chairman. After the minutes of the Quarterly Communication of March and of Grand Festival had been read and confirmed, the Rev. J. N. Palmer, M.A., who was unable to be present at the Grand Festival, was invested; the Earl of Carnarvon remarking it was a pleasing duty to place the Grand Chaplain's collar on. Although he was not connected Masonically with the Province from which Bro. Palmer came, it was one for which he entertained feelings of the greatest respect and affection. The recommendations of the Board of Benevolence were confirmed. The Earl of Carnarvon next announced that the Grand Master had been pleased to appoint Bro. Thomas Fenn President of the Board of General Purposes for the ensuing year. Bro. Knyvett P.G. Steward proposed Bro. John Smith, P.M. of the Athenæum Lodge, No. 1491, as Grand Lodge Auditor. Bro. JOPPA CHAPTER, No. 188.

A MEETING was held on Monday last, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, E.C. Companion W. Littaur M.E.Z. took the chair punctually at 5.30. The Chapter was opened in ancient style, when the M.E.Z. was assisted by the following Officers: Comps. Da Silva H., J. W. Dewsnap J., J. Lazarus P.Z. Treasurer, J. M. Emanuel P.Z. S.E., Liebman 1st Assistant, John Gartley 2nd Assistant. Several other Companions were present. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The election of the principal Officers for the ensuing 12 months took place. Comp. Lewis Lazarus P.Z. was re-elected M.E.Z.; other Officers were advanced according to their previous position. It was proposed by Comp. J. Lazarus and seconded by Comp. S. Jacobs P.Z. that a sum should be voted for a jewel to the M.E.Z., for the excellent and able manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of his honourable office for the last twelve months; this was unanimously agreed to. On account of important matters which occupied the Chapter for the greater part of the evening, other business had to be postponed until next meeting. The Chapter was closed in due form. Afterwards the Companions adjourned to Comp. S. Jacob's establishment, 201 Bishopsgate-street-without, where an excellent repast was provided at short notice.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, Belvidere Works, Hermes Hill, Pentonville, London, N.

—10:—

Ye Old Cheshire Cheese. Traits and Stories originally edited by the late Thos. Wilson Reid, but now revised and enlarged. London: C. Moore, 145 Fleet-street, E.C.

THE praises of Ye Old Cheshire Cheese, one of the most antiquated, and yet the most favourite, resorts in the city of London, have been sung by historians and poets through the whole of the last century, and quaint stories have been handed down to us of scenes and incidents that have from time to time been enacted within the age-begrimed walls of this historic "chop-house." These were collated and strung together in the form of a handbook some years ago, by the late Mr. Wilson Reid, a well-known figure in journalism who has been gathered to his rest; they have now assumed a more complete and comprehensive shape, through the exertions of the late Bro. Beaufoy A. Moore, whose demise was recorded in our columns a few months since. As proprietor of the "Cheese," actively superintending for many years the interior economy of that trysting place of the most eminent men of the Press, the Bar, and other professions in Fleet-street, Bro. Moore had ample opportunity of "takin' notes" of the interesting episodes which are constantly taking place there; and the "traits" are now presented to us in chatty and homely phraseology which cannot fail to entertain even the casual reader. In these days of progress, when the links connecting us with the by-gone history of Old London are being snapped one by one, and once familiar landmarks are being improved off the face of the City by modern innovations, it is refreshing to be able to sit down and con over the sayings and doings of eminent men who have left "foot-prints on the sands of Time," and whose names are immortalised in literature and song. This little volume brings us tête-à-tête with such sturdy intellects as those of rare Ben Jonson, Boswell, Reynolds, Goldsmith, Burke, and a host of other "men of the time," who in their periods of leisure sought ease and refreshment at "The Cheese," and set the tables often in a roar with their pungent criticisms and flights of mirth and satire. The halo of departed greatness still sits upon the ancient tavern, whose precincts have not yet been invaded by the modern builder and decorator—or rather desecrator; and it is to be hoped for the sake of the happy associations that cluster round the spot that they will long continue to be barricaded out. The charm that clings around the old "Cheese" would be dispelled the moment the stiff-backed "settles" and old-fashioned tables were removed, the sanded floors obscured by carpet, or the "peculiarities" of the cosy interior even in the slightest degree molested. It is because "The Cheese" retains its own historic stamp that legal, literary and professional men "most do congregate" there, and linger about its precincts with a sense of homeliness which attaches to no other hotel or restaurant in the City. Strange as may be the tales of old fogies who have reminiscences of "The Cheese" for half a century or more, the traits so racily portrayed in the little volume before us carry back the history of ye olde tavern to still more interesting periods, when Shakspeare was a frequent looker-in, as he wended his way to, or returned from, the Blackfriars Theatre in Playhouse-yard; when "Charles II. ate a chop here with Nell Gwynne; while you can now have pointed out to you the seats used by Dr. Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, even to the marks on the wainscotted walls made by their greased wigs; the corner where the author of "Pendennis" and the "Newcomes" sat; or where Charles Dickens, Mark Lemon, Shirley Brooks, Douglas Jerrold, John Leech, and a host of others enjoyed their 'arf-and-'arf and toasted cheese. These recollections impart a flavour to the quaint old rendezvous such as cannot possibly be acquired by any modern tavern or restaurant, however gaudy and glittering may be their internal embellishments; for like old paintings and old wine "The Cheese" improves by keeping. Long may the modulated sun-rays gleam in through the ancient lights upon the dingy floors and walls, whose presence has been lit up by the most famous men of letters whose names are emblazoned on the history they helped to make; and may the savour of the toothsome viands, familiar to habitués of the Cheese as "mutu" and "kids" and "sos," steaks and shalots, and the glorious rump steak and kidney pie—dolce far niente of the princes of diners—ever hover around the sacred portals of the uninviting-looking chop-house in Wine Office-court. It is not our province to recapitulate the versatile "stories" which have been strung together, like so many literary beads, in the late Bro. Moore's collection: they must be read to be appreciated. And, if we detect a certain amount of repetition, amounting almost to plagiarism, in the testimony bequeathed to us by home-chroniclers and visitors from America and the Continent, we scarcely see how the reiteration could have been avoided. All agree, however, that the steaks served up at the "Cheese" are not "bits of fried cork," the ale supplied does not painfully remind you of the "washings of brewers' aprons;" and that they have never yet got a bad article in the way of food, from a sausage to a rump-steak pudding, or in drink from a half-pint of porter to a bottle of Périnet et Fils, from a glass of bitter to a beaker of Marcobrünner. At a period when City tradesmen for the most part lived on their places of business our old taverns were the scenes of merry nights passed, when there was no "thought of care or woe," and when the guests "blew their clouds" amidst a running fire of mirth and genial conversation. One writer says:—

"There is a similar character pertaining to all these haunts—an antique room with a sawdust floor, and adorned with a smoke-discoloured paper, which, if removed at any time with a view towards beautifying the apartment, has invariably injured the business of the house, and driven away the Mooners. Some have failed certains between the feeding stalls: and on the mantelpiece, before the old looking-glass, may possibly be placed two tumblers full of wooden pipe-lights—allumettes is the more refined term—and a pewter ink-stand, containing a black, dry coagulum, which was once ink, and a nibless pen. There is a clock that ticks with a solemn and subdued beat, and a weather-glass of grave aspect, celebrated for its inverse predictions of coming change. Even the flys that linger about these localities have an antique air; they are evidently not of the same race that bustle about Verrey's windows among the cakes and bonbons; but these march about the table amidst the crumbs with an important gravity, induced by their having used the house a long time, and thus established themselves upon terms of the most intimate familiarity with the frequenters."

The celebrated old waiter at the "Cheese" forms the text of many a well-told tale, and a disquisition on tavern waiters and their idiosyncrasies generally; while the subject is handled in a way calculated to provoke many a smile. In the run of the pages of this work we also come across some curious folk-lore, which is dished up in almost as savoury a fashion as the immortal rump-steak pudding itself; whilst the stranger will be agreeably introduced to the "guardian nymphs of the lemons and lumps of sugar," who manipulate so dexterously and so palatably the "Cork" and "Rack," which being interpreted means the finest of Irish whisky and English gin. Visions are conjured up of jolly, rubicund guests of bygone times, the unique bets made by bon vivants whose names are left upon the club rolls of the "Cheese;" the adventures of those who underestimated occasionally the potency of the good old port or the spirits purveyed; and the roysterings of the hail-fellows well met who beguiled their leisure hours in this "sort of dark den," with its "grimed windows," but whose interior is the "essence of snugness and cosiness," and of hospitality peculiarly its own. The grill is still heard hissing in some back region, where the chop or small steak is being prepared; and here the flavour and treatment of the chop and "small dinner steak" are quite different from those newer and more pretentious grills that have since sprung up. The "Cheese" has still its habitués; and on Saturday there is the famous rump-steak pudding, which draws a large attendance, for it is considered that you may search the wide world round without matching that succulent delicacy. Although we miss the genial form and face of our late Brother Beaufoy, whose prerogative it was to preside over this chef dœuvre of the culinary art; yet his place is filled by a worthy scion of the race, and the company, if not so garrulous or so boisterous as of yore, is still permeated by a sense of deep and affectionate loyalty to the "old shop." The "traits and stories" are embellished with portrait sketches from the pen of W. A. Allen, and interleaved with snatches of poetry and epigrams, the impromptu effusions of gifted men who in earlier times have left their imprint upon one of the oldest resorts of hospitality and conviviality in London. The book is altogether one over which a pleasant hour may be expended, especially by those who have a taste for antiquated lore, such as is only to be found in the history of tavern life in the greatest city of the world.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, MAIDENHEAD, No. 795.

THE first meeting this year was held at the Ray Mead Hotel, Maidenhead, on the 19th ult. Present: Bros. John Greenfield W.M., E. W. Allen S.W., F. Foxley J.W., E. J. Withers S.D., J. Cutbill I.G., J. Finch Treasurer, C. Dearing Assist. Secretary, J. Soper P.M. 1769, W. Deacon, G. Waterhouse, W. Fenton, and others. Visitors—Andrews P.M., and R. Garner I.G. 1602. A. Sheppard Tyler. Lodge having been opened in due form, with solemn prayer, minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Ballot was then taken for the election of Bro. William Francis Hurling, Rose of Denmark, 975, as a joining member, and declared unanimous in his favour. The W.M. then addressed the Lodge on the said loss it had sustained in the removal by death of P.M. H. H. Hodges P.P.G.S.W., and P.M. J.R. Foulger P.M. 177, 795, 1613. The former, he stated, had been the Secretary of the Lodge for a quarter of a century, and had faithfully discharged his duties. The latter had proved himself in every way a worthy brother, and it was out of respect for their memory that the Lodge had been draped, and the members appeared in full mourning. Bro. E. W. Allen S.W. then moved a vote of sympathy, in very feeling terms, which was seconded by Bro. Foxley J.W., and carried unanimously. The W.M. reported that he had had the honour of representing the Lodge as Steward for the Girls' Institution, and that a considerable sum would be added to its funds as the result of the contributions of members of the Lodge, two of the Initiates, viz. Bros. Waterhouse and Fenton, having contributed most liberally. In addition to the loss of the two P.M.'s the lodge had to regret the decease of Bro. host Deacon's much respected wife, and for him and his family deep sympathy was expressed. Brother Garner, I.G. 1602, was proposed as a joining member. The Lodge was then closed, when the brethren adjourned to a plain dinner. The principal toasts were given, and the brethren returned to town by an early train.

GREY FRIARS LODGE, No. 1101.

A REGULAR Lodge meeting was held on the 12th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Reading. Present—Bros. Richard C. Prickett W.M., J. H. Hawkes I.P.M., W. Ravenscroft S.W., H. Creed J.W., J. T. Stratcom Treasurer, Frederick Brown acting Secretary, B. W. Bennett acting S.D., W. Hickie J.D., C. Slaughter I.G., J. Sparrow Steward, P.M's R. C. Hurley, W. G. Flanagan, E. J. Blackwell, and E. Margrett. Bros. Henry D. Jones, W. E. Parkes, S. Knight, G. S. Smallwood. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The report of the Permanent Committee in reference to Bro. Hickie's motion was received, and a discussion thereon was adjourned; P.M. Palley's motion, in reference to P.M. Freeman's son, was adopted. The Ballot was taken for Mr. Robert Eli Hodder, and he was declared to be elected, as a candidate for Freemasonry. After the usual ceremonies the Lodge was closed and adjourned till the 2nd Wednesday in October.

Great Northern Lodge of Instruction, No. 1287.—Held at Bro. Pellatt's, the Berwick Arms, Berners-street, W., on Thursday, 3rd inst. This well-appointed Lodge was opened in due form by Bro. P.M. W. Cleghorn Preceptor. Present—Bros. Hill W.M., Paul S.W., Rowe J.W., Cane S.D., Reed P.M. J.D., Bell I.G.; also Bros. P.M.'s Kempton and T. E. Bathard, and Bro. Ridout, &c. &c. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed; 1st section was worked by Bro. Paul. The ceremony of initiation was next rehearsed, Bro. Ridout candidate. The S.W. Bro. Paul was duly elected W.M. for the ensuing week. It was resolved unanimously that a vote of thanks be recorded to Bro. Hill for having occupied the chair for the first time, he having conducted the business of the evening in a most efficient and masterly manner. To this Bro. Hill ably responded, thanking the brethren for their kind attention and assistance to so young a Mason. Bro. P.M. Bathard, in a few well-chosen words, moved the following resolution:—"That the members of the Great Northern Lodge of Instruction desire to express their sincere and fraternal sympathy with Bro. P.M. Thomas Owen in the loss he has sustained by the death of his wife, and to assure him of their deep and brotherly affection in his hour of trial." Bro. P.M. Reed, in seconding the resolution, expressed in feeling terms the sympathy of the brethren to one so popular as Bro. Owen. Bro. Richard Cane, the W.M. of the Mother Lodge, also supported the resolution. All Masonic business being ended the Lodge was closed in due form and adjourned.

Creaton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1791.—At the Wheatsheaf Hotel, Goldhawk-road, on Thursday, Bros. Child W.M., Chatwin S.W., Wood J.W., Austin S.D., Perdue J.D., Cross I.G., Chalfont P.M. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Sores, Wounds, Ulcerations and other diseases affecting the skin, are capable of speedy amendment by this cooling and healing Ointment, which has called forth the loudest praise from persons who had suffered for years from bad legs, bad breasts, piles, abscesses, and chronic ulcers, after every hope of cure had long passed away. None but those who have experienced the soothing effect of this Ointment can form an idea of the comfort it bestows by restraining inflammation and allaying pain. Whenever Holloway's Ointment has been once used it has established its own worth, and has again been eagerly sought for as the easiest and safest remedy for all such complaints. In neuralgia, rheumatism, and gout, the same application, properly used, gives wonderful relief.

YORK COLLEGE.

ON the 19th ult. the regular quarterly meeting of this active College was held at the headquarters of the province. The college was called for 3 p.m., but according to previous arrangement the members met the Chief Adept, Fra. T. B. Whytehead, at noon, and under his guidance visited some of the places of interest in York, including the Merchants' Hall, with its subterranean chapel, the meeting place of the extinct Grand Lodge of All England, and of the Apollo Lodge. Mounting the city walls at Wallingate Bar, the party traversed the ancient fortifications to the Red Tower, and again from Lazerthorpe Postern to Monk Bar. Here the interior of the Bar was inspected, which is very interesting, being most perfect in all respects, the old portcullis hanging from the windlass, in the position in which it was for the first time elevated, whilst the view of the cathedral and city from the leads on the roof was thoroughly enjoyed. Thence the party made their way to the Black Swan Hotel, where they partook of luncheon. At 3 p.m. the party assembled in the Freemasons' Hall, St. Saviourgate, York, which had been lent for the occasion by the Trustees of the Eboracum Lodge, 1611. At the last meeting Fra. Major Moore had been elected Celebrant, but had not been installed owing to his absence through ill-health. Fra. Tudor Trevor, the outgoing Celebrant, therefore took the chair, and was supported by Fratres Major Moore, W. H. Cowper, J. M. Meek, Wm. Brown, Col. Monks, T. J. Wilkinson, C. H. Locking, W. H. B. Atkinson, J. W. Monckman, J. R. Dore, C. Palliser, and Dr. Mills. Fra. T. B. Whytehead, Chief Adept of Yorkshire, was also present. Several technical matters were disposed of, and apologies were read from 30 members, who from various causes were unable to be present. Successful ballots were taken for Bros. F. Laxton, P.M. 1301; A. H. J. Fletcher, M.A., 275; and H. E. Cousans P.M. 297; and these brethren, as well as Bro. S. Chadwick, P.M. 1040, previously accepted, were duly received into the M.C. by Bro. Tudor Trevor, who also gave the lecture in the First Grade. The Celebrant elect, Fra. Major Moore, was then inducted into his office by Fra. Tudor Trevor, and appointed his Officers, as follow: Fras. C. Fendelow IV. Deputy, W. H. Cowper II. Assistant Deputy, J. M. Meek V. Treas., W. Brown I. Sec., Col. J. Monks II. P.A., S. Middleton IV. S.A., J. J. Wilkes II. T.A., W. F. Tomlinson I. Q.A., J. L. Atherton II. Precentor, J. W. Monckman I. C.N., W. Flockton I. Organist, Dr. Drury I. T.B., J. R. Dore I. G.T., R. Craig I. Herald, and G. H. Locking I. Medallist. The Celebrant, Fra. Moore, then read a most interesting paper on the Runic stone found during the restoration of Leeds Parish Church, in the course of which he explained the various theories held by experts as to the interpretation of the symbols carved upon the stone. His address was illustrated by large drawings and plans, and a vote of thanks was accorded to him. It was arranged that Durham should be the next place of meeting of the College, Wednesday, 18th August, and Frater Col. Monks undertook to make preliminary arrangements for viewing the Cathedral, and other places and objects of interest in that ancient seat of learning. General satisfaction was expressed at the result of the resolution passed at the last meeting to issue a quarterly journal of the transactions of the College, and it was resolved to reprint the whole of the previous transactions of the College, to enable members to obtain a complete series. The Chief Adept announced that he had made the following provincial appointments: Fras. Tudor Trevor Suffragan, Chas. Fendelow Provincial Treasurer, and W. H. Cowper Provincial Secretary. The M.C. was then dissolved, and the Fratres met at the Black Swan Hotel, where they dined together, and passed a pleasant and social evening in Masonic converse.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE MASONIC PROVINCE OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

IN many ways the town of Leicester might be held up as a pattern worthy of imitation, from a Masonic point of view, by others, for although there may be some which equal it in the thoroughness of their Masonic arrangements, there are few which excel, or which enter more heartily into the true spirit of Freemasonry than does this busy Midland town. For several years past it has had in its midst men who have made a name for themselves, not only in the immediate neighbourhood, but wherever English Masonry is practised, and while they have devoted themselves to subjects of general interest they have not forgotten the district nearer home. The result is that Leicester now enjoys many Masonic comforts which other towns of equal size have not yet even dreamed of, while it is far in advance of others which might be expected to do more than it is capable of. With such a town in its midst, the Masonic district of Leicestershire may be expected to make a good show among its neighbours, and a brief perusal of the details given in the Calendar and Directory of the Province for the current year will, we think, prove it quite capable of holding its own.

In Craft Masonry the Province has at its head the Rt. Hon. the Earl Ferrers, who is supported by Bro. Wm. Kelly, F.S.A., F.R. Hist. Soc., Past Prov. G.M.; Bro. Samuel S. Partridge D.P.G.M., and the usual array of Provincial Grand Officers. There are twelve Lodges under the rule of his Lordship, with a total membership (as given by this year's Calendar) of 506, made up as follows:—

No.	Lodge	Meeting at	Members
279	St. John	Leicester	86
50*	Knights of Malta	Hinckley	21
523	John of Gaunt	Leicester	82
779	Ferrers and Ivanhoe	Ashby-de-la-Zouch	32
1007	Howe and Charnwood	Loughborough	46
1130	Rutland	Melton Mowbray	19
1265	Vale of Catmos	Oakham	19
1330	St. Peter	Market Harborough	25
1391	Commercial	Leicester	73
1560	Albert Edward	Leicester	42
2028	Granite	Narborough	31
2081	Golden Fleece	Leicester	30

* No. 50 having been transferred from Cheshire in 1803, ranks after No. 279.

It will be seen from the above that Leicester has five Lodges (all of which meet at the Freemasons' Hall, Halford-street), with a joint membership of 313, thus proving the truth of our remarks as to the popularity of Freemasonry in the county town. There is a regular Lodge of Instruction, attached to the Granite Lodge, which meets monthly at the Narborough Hotel, Narborough, on the second Thursday after the regular meeting of the mother Lodge, at seven p.m., while the five Leicester Lodges have given joint sanction for "the Union Lodge of Instruction," meetings of which are held at the Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on the second Friday in each month, September to April inclusive, at 7·30 p.m. Special attention is directed by the compiler of the Provincial Calendar (Bro. S. S. Partridge) to the usefulness of the Union Lodge of Instruction, which is held under the superintendence of Preceptors, one being appointed by each of the local Lodges. The ceremonies, lectures, charges, sections, &c., of the three degrees are worked from time to time, and valuable instruction afforded to those who are enabled to avail themselves of it, while any who are desirous of taking part in the work are invited to communicate with the Secretary of the Lodge. In this Lodge of Instruction we have an arrangement which might well be adopted in other Provincial towns, where, as a rule, the Lodges are hardly strong enough to maintain independent schools of Masonry.

The Grand Chapter of the Province is under the rule of Comp. W. Kelly, the Past Provincial Grand Master referred to above. He has five Chapters under his guidance, but no particulars are given as to the number of Companions subscribing to each. The Chapters are as follow:—

No.	Chapter	Meeting at
279	Fortitude	Leicester
779	St. Augustine	Ashby-de-la-Zouch
1007	Charnwood	Loughborough
1130	De Mowbray	Melton Mowbray
1560	St. George	Leicester

The district is included in the Mark Grand Lodge of Leicestershire, Northamptonshire, and Derbyshire, which is also under the Provincial Grand Mastership of Bro. Wm. Kelly, and furnishes four of the nine Lodges embraced in the Province, namely,

No.	Lodge	Meeting at
19	Fowke	Leicester
21	Howe	Melton Mowbray, Market Harborough and Oakham alternately.
30	Knight of Malta	Hinckley
194	Simon de Montfort	Leicester

To the first named of these is attached the William Kelly Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners, which meets three times a year. In the higher grades, Leicestershire is well represented, the several degrees being worked from time to time in Leicester.

The Freemasons' Hall, to which we have previously alluded, is under the direction of a committee, consisting of the chief Provincial Officers, together with representatives of Prov. Grand Lodge and the several Masonic bodies accommodated at the Hall. There is also a library committee, which is presided over by Bro. Kelly, while as regards working officials, it is only necessary to pay a visit to the hall to know that every detail is attended to.

The Charity work of the Province is under the direction of a committee, formed of the heads of the district, representatives of the several Lodges, brethren who have acted as Stewards for the Institutions, and others. The work performed by this committee is of the usual description, and is doubtless fully appreciated by those who, from necessity, are compelled to appeal to their brother Masons. In addition to this, there is a Provincial Charity Association, which is under influential patronage, and the object of which is to increase the number of Life Subscribers to the three Royal Masonic Charities. An annual subscription of one guinea or upwards constitutes membership, the whole of the subscriptions being handed to the Institutions. A ballot is taken half yearly for priority of nomination, but any brother subscribing for five years becomes entitled to a nomination without ballot. Thirty-two Life subscriberships (representing, of course, one hundred and sixty guineas) were drawn last year, so that some really good, substantial work is being done by this Association.

The Calendar from which we have gathered the above particulars also contains a list of Lodges in adjoining Provinces (Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire, Northamptonshire, and Huntingdonshire), and some useful Masonic notes, &c., and concludes with a summary of the votes for the Charities possessed by brethren and others in the district. From this list we gather that the total voting strength of the Province is as follows:—Girls, 204 votes; Boys, 428; Benevolent (Male Fund), 172; do. (Widows' Fund), 235; total, 1039.

In concluding our remarks, we take the opportunity of congratulating the brethren of the district on the apparent prosperity of their several Lodges, and wish them continued and increased success in the future.

PROVINCE OF SUSSEX.

THE next few weeks will undoubtedly be active ones, so far as Freemasonry in Sussex is affected. Tuesday, the 22nd instant, is the day appointed by His Royal Highness the Grand Master for the installation of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, Earl of Sussex, K.G., &c., as Right Worshipful Grand Master, in place of the late Sir Walter W. Burrell, whose death occurred in January last.

The Provincial Grand Officers, with the Worshipful Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens of the Lodges in the Province will attend an especial Provincial Grand Lodge, to be holden in the Dome at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, on the day we have named, at twelve o'clock noon, for the Installation ceremony, which will be performed by the Most Worshipful Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, KG., in person.

These periodical Masonic celebrations, in which our Grand Master takes so lively an interest, offer many inducements to those Craftsmen who have time and opportunity at their disposal, and we look forward to the gathering at Brighton on this occasion commanding as large, if not even a larger attendance, than the meeting at York, in 1883, when the Prince of Wales laid the Memorial Stone of the New Institute there, with Masonic honours.

In order to further the efforts of the Committee who have charge of the arrangements it is requested the following regulation will be fully considered by those who intend to present themselves:—"No one will be admitted to the Royal Pavilion on this occasion without a Ticket," application for which should be made not later than this day (Saturday), the 12th instant, to the Provincial Grand Secretary, Brother V. P. Freeman, 9 St. George's-place, Brighton.

The following memorandum has been issued from the Grand Secretary's Office:—

There will be a special train for the conveyance of H.R.H. the Grand Master, and the Grand Officers, &c.—leaving Victoria at 10.15 o'clock a.m., and arriving at Brighton at 11.30 o'clock.

The return special train will leave Brighton at 4.25 o'clock p.m., arriving at Victoria at 5.40 o'clock.

Brethren desirous of travelling by the special train, are requested to inform the Grand Secretary as soon as possible, in order that seats may be reserved for them, for which he will transmit a voucher.

The fare by this train will be first-class single for the double journey.

SHADWELL H. CLERKE, Grand Secretary.

Freemasons' Hall, 9th June 1886.

The June meeting of the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held at Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday, Bro. Edgar Bowyer P.G. Standard Bearer in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the Warden's report for the past month was read and approved. The petitions of seven old people—five men and two widows—were considered, and ordered to be placed on the list of candidates for election in May next year. The members of the House and Audit Committees were re-elected, and a vote of thanks to Bro. Bowyer for presiding closed the proceedings.

We have been requested to make a correction in the list of Bro. W. B. Ackerman J.W. 317; the amount was put down at the time of the Girls' School Festival as £10 10s, whereas it should have been £52 10s. We congratulate Bro. Ackerman on his having secured so large an amount.

MASONRY'S ASPIRATION.

An Oration by Rev. Bro. George McClellan Fiske at the Dedication of the New Masonic Temple in Providence, Rhode Island, 3rd February 1886.

THIS day's event is one which will be kept for ever green in the annals of the Masonic Order within this jurisdiction. The expert craftsmen of Rhode Island have distinguished themselves in their day and generation by rearing this edifice, which will long remain to be at once a rendezvous for those at labour and a monument to those who shall be called, from time to time, from labour here to refreshment everlasting. In the rapidly developing prosperity of Providence, as she stretches out her branches unto the sea and her boughs unto the river, this temple rises, no insignificant memento of principles which keep the teeming city pure and sweet, with peace within her walls and plenteousness within her palaces. Well and wisely have you wrought here, my brothers, and in the completion of this fair and unblemished work we all rejoice.

Praise to that Father, in whose house are many mansions! Praise to the Lord, thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob! Praise to that Holy Spirit, who enriched your hearts with the inspiration of His counsel, and guided your hands to perform your heart's desire! Praise, praise, thrice praise to that Thrice Holy One, under whose Almighty Shadow as a Column of Cloud by day and a Pillar of Fire by night, we would, as Masons true, always abide!

With such ascription, first of all to the Supreme Architect and Master, and then, with every sentiment of congratulation to the august Fraternity assembled here—I greet you—counting it an especial honour, hailing as I do from a sister jurisdiction, the Grand Lodge of New York, to be present here and to be a spokesman at an hour like this. Were it not one of the landmarks of the Order that every Eastward, stepping traveller finds welcome awaiting him in every Lodge, I should feel as if the gladness of to-day were so entirely yours that unfamiliar voices should be silent as in the presence of that joy with which the stranger intermeddleth not. But as is is, the echoes of your rejoicings will send a kindred joyous thrill through all the Lodges far and near, and all Masonic work will be the better, the stronger, and the more enduring, because you have built solidly and well.

As we stand here together and survey the thronging Craft, sheltered beneath the canopy of this fine building, we cannot but be conscious that public attention is naturally attracted towards us in a new degree. Under these new circumstances we begin a fresh and larger epoch of Masonic life. We rise to a more exalted station before the eyes of the world. We come forward to the front on the platform of the civic life of Providence. Enshrined in its own imposing habitation, the Masonic Order invites observation, and provokes inquiry as to its mission and its message. Has it any noteworthy mission to fulfil? Has it any edifying message to deliver? A personage or an institution appearing in the arena of an industrial, inquisitive, and practical country, must have some definite aim and purpose to propose. To an age critical, incredulous and unsentimental, credentials of identification and usefulness must be shown, if respect, sympathy and admiration are to be commanded. What has Masonry to say for itself? What account of its past can it render? What promise can it hold out to us for the future?

We, of course, believe that the Masonic Order has a distinct mission to discharge, and a definite message to impart—a mission and a message pertinent to and needful for these times.

The Masonic Order, I make bold to announce and characterise it, faces the world as a prophet. A prophet, you will remember, was entrusted with two great functions—one was to urge and expound truth in its application to the present time, the other was to foretel the things which should be hereafter. Both of these functions the Masonic Order is, in a sense, concerned with. It is an exponent of that truth, divine and heavenly, which alone can beautify and irradiate our daily lives and make us truer men; and it continually holds up before us the prospect of the life of the world to come. In its own graphic manner, with its own dramatic eloquence, it admonishes us of death momentarily impending, of that resurrection victory, in which death is swallowed up, and of the eternal bliss which we shall know, face to face, when brought to light in the blazing splendour of that orient for which the heart of every Mason yearns, and whitherward his feet are ever tending.

Masonry stands ranged beside the Church of God, as one of the great interpreters and monitors of human life. It bears to that Divine Society a relation much like that which the Holy Saint John Baptist, whom Masonry ever delights to honour as a patron, bore to the Prophet of Prophets, Jesus, the Prophet of Nazareth of Galilee. It goes before the Church's face, to prepare her way, to be a herald and forerunner of the fuller truth, and of the mightier office, of which the Church is the sole and only instrument, of reconciling human souls to God.

Masonry does not profess to make men saints. The Church does that. She is the preceptress, the mother, the alma mater of the saints. But Masonry can and does profess to inculcate that morality—not the cold, ethical abstractions of the philosopher—but that evangelical morality; that glowing religious morality—if I may use a term like that—which will prepare men for those transforming and sanctifying powers of the world to come, which the Church will bring to bear upon them. Masonry does a preparatory work in bringing men into a state wherein they will be more readily susceptible to the motives of the Spirit of the Lord, and the animation of the spiritual and supernatural life.

Addressing us then in such prophetic guise, in such prophetic speech, we next inquire,—Whence came this Prophet, dealing so aptly with the stern realities of the life that now is, and so earnestly predicting that which is to come? What is its nativity? Masonry is of ancient and venerable extraction. It is truly an offspring and descendant of the instincts and strivings of the human mind. Its lineage is most honourable, representing men's best, most upward, and most enlightened tendencies. The probabilities of its origin declare how men began to esteem the triumphs of intellectual power above brute force, mere possession or animal gratifications. In reflection and invention they found something to charm them, something to really take pride in. Prizing their ingenuity and skill, and making the most of their gifts as artificers and artists, they shielded the processes of their achievements and acquisitions as secrets from the vulgar gaze and from idle curiosity. They kept their arts to themselves, out of honour to their avocations, and for the protection of their interests. The reputation which they sought and the fame which they held dear were based upon the excellence of the work which they produced. Masonry, in its inception, was the nobility, the knighthood of skilled and proficient labourers. Men treasured the conceptions of their minds, fertile in design, and their handiwork of rare and exquisite execution. Not every one could carve the column or lay the wall, or plan the roof, or cause the metal to bloom into life in delineations fit to cover the breast of an Achilles. Not every one could do these things. These were the arcana, the mysteries, the heritage of precious knowledge, belonging only to the few, and they were things, too, only to be acquired by persevering and severe apprenticeship. These organisations of the higher grades of labour perhaps were not the direct ancestors of our Order, but they were its historical precedents and analogies, and they furnished the suggestion, the similitude, and the image of the Order as it exists to-day. They were the roots of Masonry deep down in the past, from which this wide-spreading and fruit-laden tree of philanthropy and benevolence has grown. The associative instinct is no new faculty, and its instances, always abundant and innumerable, are found in large proportions in the sphere of the constructive arts. There was art and science and organised employment among the builders who did their work in the forenoon of the world. In Assyria, in Bashan, in Egypt, they have left memorials of their marvellous ability. The building of the ark, the erecting of the Tower of Babel, the orderly array of Tyrian and Jewish workmen on the Temple at Jerusalem, the Roman Collegia or Guilds—all these, apart from each other in time and place, were monuments which, though not concerted or unified, were so many protoplasms of their later Masonic life.

FUNERALS properly carried out and personally attended in London or Country by Bro. G. A. HUTTON, 17 Newcastle Street, Strand, W.C. Monuments erected. Valuations made.

JURISDICTION.

A REVIEW of the decisions of Grand Masters and Grand Lodges present some curious anomalies in what is generally called Masonic Jurisprudence. Thus, for instance, a gentleman having presented his petition to a Lodge was in due course elected to receive the degrees. Before doing this, however, he removed to the jurisdiction of another Lodge, to which he applied for initiation. While entirely willing to receive him this second Lodge deemed it proper to apply to the other for waiver of jurisdiction, to which response was made that not having conferred any degree there was no jurisdiction to waive.

This action precisely expresses our own view, namely, that when a Lodge agrees to accept a candidate it simply expresses its opinion that the party in question is fit to be initiated, and that on his personal appearance it will proceed to the ceremony, but the transaction is not complete until the party elected shall fill the contract by presenting himself for the degree or degrees. It takes two to make a bargain, and such a bargain as relates to initiation after election depends upon the individual and not upon the Lodge. The well-known rule is that a candidate must come of his own free will and accord, and when he is notified of his acceptance it remains with him to say whether he will or will not accept the privilege accorded him by the favourable vote of the Lodge.

This proceeding involves the question whether the election of a candidate, or technically the acceptance of his petition for initiation, gives the Lodge petitioned jurisdiction over him. We insist that it does not; that there is no law to compel an unwilling candidate to present himself to a Lodge which, notwithstanding his petition and acceptance, he upon afterthought finds himself unwilling to join. He may remove to another jurisdiction, or he may prefer a Lodge having concurrent jurisdiction, for reasons of his own, but in either event he is his own master and may rightfully follow his own inclination.

This is one of the questions still befogged by the ideas of brethren who assume to decide without knowing, but which will gradually submerge into the sunlight of personal privilege.

Nevertheless it would be entirely proper to inquire of the first Lodge as to the status of the individual, and whether any good reason could be advanced why he should not be initiated.

The result is that jurisdiction is not acquired by the mere fact of petition and acceptance, but only by the act of the party in interest presenting himself for initiation. A due regard to these facts would save many disappointments and subsequent heart-burnings, and prevent Lodges assuming rights to which they have no legitimate claim.

As already said, the whole subject is undergoing a change, and we trust the time is not far distant when there shall be a better understanding than now prevails.—New York Dispatch.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys held its monthly meeting on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Brother Raynham W. Stewart P.G.D., occupied the chair, and there were present Bros. Paas, Richardson, Miller, Powell, Parkhouse, Cooper, Faulkner, Soppet, Webb, Gladwell, C. H. Webb, Saunders, Cumberland, Imbert-Terry, Mather, Bowyer P.G.S.B., Perryman A.G.P., Adlard, Murray, Hogard, Dr. Morris, Williams, Griffiths, Belton, Cubitt P.G.P., Motion, Maple, Eve, and Binckes Secretary. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and verified, those of the House Committee were read for information. Bros. Bowyer, Miller, Gladwell, and Webb were appointed Scrutineers for the election of nine out of a list of ten brethren nominated in May last to serve on the Finance and Audit Committee. The result, afterwards furnished, was as follows:—Bros. Gillard, Cubitt, Goodall, Cooper, Hogard, Soppet, Maple, Richardson, and Griffiths were elected. The House Committee of last year were re-elected. Four petitions were next considered, and the names of the candidates ordered to be placed on the list for election in October next. Grants of £5 each were made to three ex-pupils, but the appeal of a lad, educated in the school, seeking assistance, was ordered to lie on the table, as not coming within the scope of the purposes of the Institution; moreover, some time had elapsed since the lad in question had left the School. Votes of thanks to the Scrutineers and Chairman terminated the proceedings.

A SPIRITUALIST'S REVELATION ON ANCIENT MASONRY.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

A BROTHER recently showed me a lecture, by W. J. Colville, a spiritualist, which also contained some poetry. Mr. Colville claimed that the poetry was due to his mother's spirit; the brother referred to informed me that Colville was an uneducated Englishman; that all the quotations he cited, from books, came to him by inspiration, and that he was not a Mason. Since then my friend lent me a pamphlet, containing three lectures by the same spiritualist, on "The wonders of Egypt," and as these lectures give new revelations, about "our ancient Egyptian brethren," I shall, therefore, make these revelations known to my English readers, that, if found worthy of credit, they may be incorporated into a future history of Masonry. Mr. Colville believes that the hieroglyphics on the Egyptian pyramids are nothing more nor less than prophecies, and he says:—

"That it needs only an adequate knowlege of the antiquity of Masonry and hieroglyphics to decipher the history of the past and prophecy of the future, clearly written upon them (the pyramids) in symbolic language; employing objects in material nature as correspondences to spiritual and national events . . . Outwardly, all the pyramids are similar, the great pyramid being outwardly distinguished from the rest only by its superior size; but when an entrance has been effected, the likeness vanishes, and this one pyramid stands alone as the past Grand Masonic Lodge of the earth; the seat and centre of supreme knowledge of earth and heaven, of the numberless worlds in space, and of the relation of each to each, and each to all. . . . The great pyramid has, doubtless, stood between 20,000 and 30,000 years (what a pity that the spirits could not give the exact age), and has been submerged in time of the great and general deluge; but the record of its pre-historic career is entombed in such chambers, galleries, and vaults as have not yet been explored, but mention of which is made in occult literature, to those who can understand the references. These discoveries were made by the ancients, and, familiar to the highest adepts of the Orient, will become public ere long. . . . Whatsoever is discovered externally by scientific process, has been first announced by spiritual revelation. . . . The utter unreadiness on the part of mankind at large to receive occult knowledge, without the evil of mysticism, lay at the root of all the Masonic institutions in the world. Every Lodge of Masons professes some secret, carefully shrouded from the world; on the plea that the world is not ready to know what the initiated hold in their grasp; while in ancient days secrecy was enjoined on the members of such orders as a safeguard. . . . The tone of secrecy to-day is largely sentimental, often morbid, and frequently the result of an inordinate love of power.

"The secret orders of the world, as generally known to mankind, are very inferior connections of these grand old august Lodges, of which the highest of all is the Order of Melchisedec. This Order, so ancient that its birthday is lost in unfathomable depths of soundless antiquity, was certainly known to Abraham. . . . . The Order of Aaron and that of Melchisedec are certainly mentioned in the Old and New Testaments, as entirely distinct, but not as in opposition to each other. The great difference between them was, that one was temporal and the other eternal. That of Melchisedec, like its founder, had neither beginning of life nor end of days, while the other was related to outward customs and observances, both religious and civil. The Order of Melchisedec was known to David, as he mentioned it in the Psalms. The 110th Psalm is usually considered prophetic of the Messiah. The words, 'Thou art a priest for ever after the Order of Melchisedec,' are said, by all orthodox Christians, to refer to Jesus Christ, while the orthodox Jews regard them as typical of the unending reign of the Messiah who is yet to come.

"But who was Melchisedec and his Order? are questions asked by scholars and their pupils alike. The ordinary commentaries on the Bible have no more satisfactorily explained Melchisedec than they have the Apocalypse, and there is indeed no satisfactory solution of the mystery of this most mysterious Order other than that familiar to those so far acquainted with Oriental antiquities and occult literature that they possess a clue, yea the very key to the origin of religions and Masonry on earth, and who therefore know what the designer of the great pyramid evidently knew. . . . . The grand pyramid is evidently a temple of science, philosophy, religion and art. It is fourfold, and yet it is a perfect unity. . . . . The four sides of the square signify universal brotherhood, and eventually the universal dissemination of truth. . . . . There are four great sciences which were known to the ancients, upon which they based all their calculations, and in accordance with which they reared their temples, arranged their ceremonies, and predicted the future."

As astrology was one of the Egyptian sciences, our lecturer entered into a defence thereof; not indeed the vulgar kind of fortune telling astrology we hear of, but about a science which is "the esoteric side of astronomy." He says:—

"Whatever affects one world in a system affects all, and whatever affects one system of worlds, affects all the worlds in the universe. . . . . Therefore, the past few years, when several planets have made their prehelion passages almost simultaneously, have been years of great commotion, energy and strife. Not only the predictions made by the instruments of the spirit world, in this country, and elsewhere a few years ago, have been literally fulfilled with the most startling accuracy; but none save those who blindly shut their eyes to facts, and are held in the unyielding vice of senseless prejudice, can hold other than one of the two theological opinions and defensible explanations of these prophecies and their fulfilments, which have yet been offered to the world." [It can be shown] "how in an especial sense at the present moment, the unsettled weather, the light before the sunrise and after the sunset, which has recently perplexed the astronomers so much, the numerous earthquakes, eruptions, storms, accidents, wars, rebellions, sickness, &c. &c., are all results of the present position of the four planets."

Hence, as the Egyptian Masons were adepts in the astrological science, they have not only calculated the conjunctions of the planets that will take place to the end of the world, but have also inscribed the predictions they signify for all time coming, on the stones of the great pyramid; and, when all these stones are brought to light, then we shall know—what we shall know. Our lecturer also said:—

"This Order [of Melchisedec] is altogether spiritual, and exists in the spirit world, though it is represented on earth by a Lodge whose members are mediums of the twelve angels who form it in spirit world; as angelic life is dual, the members of this Order are twenty-four in number, twelve males and twelve females always constituting it.

"Masonic Orders which exclude women are untrue to the most ancient Masonic Orders of the world, and so far as masculine monopoly has tyrannised over the rights of the female sex, Masonry has degenerated; but the most ancient mysteries in the world are hidden under a veil of ceremonial mystery in the highest Lodges. The majority of modern Masons ignore magic, and know little, if anything, of the true spiritual significance of the ceremonies performed at their meetings. . . . . Masonry has a certain value, its principles are moral, and its general influence good."

Now, I must candidly confess that I believe Mr. Colville is sincere, and that he is not as uninformed as my friend who called my attention to his lectures supposed him to be. Of course, I can say nothing about Mr. Colville's spiritual Lodge, but I think that either the spirits or himself were mistaken about an Order of Aaron, or Melchisedec, that had been known to the writers of the Old Testament; for this I shall give my reasons—not, indeed, because I fear that Bro. Gould will insert the above revelations into the second edition of his "History of Freemasonry" as "Gospel truth," for his mind is too logical for believing in such dreams; but I do know that we have a number of credulous Masons, who are as eager for accumulating Masonic degrees as misers are for piling gold; and their appetite for more and more Masonic degrees is such that even Mr. Colville's dreams will not be too tough for their belief; hence, I consider myself in duty bound to show that Mr. Colville's spiritual Masonic revelation is not reliable.

First.—Aaron and order are conjointly given in the Old Testament only once. In Leviticus xxiv. 2 and 3, it says: "Command the children of Israel, that they bring unto thee pure oil olive beaten for the light, to cause the lamps to burn continually . . . in the tabernacle of the congregation shall Aaron order it," &c. Surely, no one can suppose that the above refers to a kind of Masonic Order of Aaron, or any kind of an organisation which is called "An Order."

And second.—Melchisedec is mentioned in the Old Testament only twice, viz. in Genesis xiv. 18, I find as follows: "And Melchizedeck, King of Salem, brought forth bread and wine, and he was the priest of the most high God." According to the above, Melchizedeck was not a spirit, but a man, and no "Order of Melchisedec" can be inferred from it. Abraham then was not acquainted with an Order of Melchisedec. In Psalm cx. 4 is the following: "The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent. Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek." In order to show that the word "order" in the above verse is a mere blunder of the translator, I refer the reader to the Hebrew Dictionaries] of Gesenius and of Parkhurst;—both were orthodox Christians. The first makes it read: "after the manner of Melchisedec," and the latter "after the matter," &c. Such being the case, there is no evidence that David knew anything about an "Order of Melchisedec."

In the 7th Epistle to the Hebrews, I find indeed both "Order of Aaron" and "Order of Melchizedeck" mentioned; and as the said Epistles are ascribed in the Bible to Paul, people imagine that Paul was the author of those Epistles, and as Paul was called "an Apostle," he of course wrote by inspiration; and hence Paul's inspired testimony to a former existence of an Order of Aaron, &c. cannot be doubted by any one.

The truth, however, is, no one knows who wrote the Epistles to the Hebrews. The question puzzled the early Christian Fathers as much as it did the modern critics. The authorship of the said Epistles were ascribed to Clement of Rome, to Barnabas, to Luke, to Silas, and Paul; and as somebody must have written them, it was finally concluded that it would give the said Epistles greater importance if they were ascribed to Paul, and Paul remained their unquestioned author for about a thousand years. But for some reason, Cardinal Cajetan, the opponent of Luther, was the first to disturb the old tradition of Paul's authorship; hence, Calvin and Beza also began to question the authorship of the said Epistles, and Luther demonstrated to his own satisfaction that Apollos was the author. In short, no one knows by whom the Epistles to the Hebrews were written, where they were written, and to whom they were written. It is claimed, that internal evidence demonstrates that the writer to the Hebrews did not understand the Hebrew language; the probability therefore is, that he got his notion of the Order of Aaron, &c., from a corrupt copy of the Septuagint.

But that is not all; Abraham's host was neither named at his christening or baptism "Melchisedec;" nor was he king of a country or town called Salem. Indeed, there seems to have been no such a place as Salem during Abraham's lifetime, and Biblical commentators have assigned as many localities to old Salem as others did to the authorship of the Epistle to the Hebrews. In short, "doctors differ" all round; and as Mr. Colville had no doubt that the Orders of Melchisedec and of Aaron are mentioned in the Old Testament, and that they were known to Abraham and to David, I must come to the conclusion that the spirit who inspired Mr. Colville was unreliable.*

The next question however is, have Masons been really foolish enough to have Masonised Messrs. Melchisedec and Aaron? And I am sorry to answer they have. Thus, in 1824 the Cerneauites at New York chartered a Masonic concern, called Aaron's band, a continuation of the old Order of Aaron most probably; and Kenning's Cyclopædia informs me that there is a Melchisedec in the fifth (degree I suppose) of the Asiatic Brothers. Also in the sixth of the Bavarian Illuminati; and, if I understand right, Melchisedec was an officer in the old degree of Templar Priests, and Melchisedec, of course, cuts a figure in the American high Masonic degrees.

I shall only add, that whenever I look into a Masonic Cyclopædia, and see in it the quantity of ridiculous stuff that has been foisted on Masonry, I cannot help exclaiming, after the manner of Madame Rowland:—

Oh, Masonry! How many tomfooleries are propagated in thy name!

With regard to astrology, the reader will find, in Roger De Hoveden's Annals, two letters by Christian astrologers, predicting disastrous events, even the destruction of the world, but a Mahommedan philosopher in Spain ridiculed their predictions.

REMINISCENCES OF A SECRETARY.

MASONRY does not always "take" with the newly initiated, it does not always strike in, that is to say the impressions given and received by the candidate are various; sometimes the beautiful lectures, the elaborate ritual, glides off the mind of the recipient and he thinks no more about the real meaning of the symbolism than he would had he been to some show or some minstrel performance. Oftentimes the moral teaching of our work impresses the neophyte more than aught else, and few there are, very few indeed, on whose mind the initiation, passing and raising make a lasting and deep impression, so deep indeed that they take hold in earnest and become sincere and zealous workers in the Fraternity.

By these I mean the real workers, those who never tire, though they have received all the honours, have been through and through again, still they adhere to the then Masonic love, and work for the love they bear the Craft. Often the various impressions given and the result attained is due to the officer conferring the degree, often to the kind of material the newly-made member finds in the Lodge. Sometimes this is congenial, other times not; in the former case the new-comer will stay and become interested and be interwoven in the work of the Lodge, until he sees and appreciates its beauties; sometimes again a sudden enthusiasm is developed which is not always lasting. Like a veritable straw-fire, a sudden flame bursts forth, spreading its lurid light far among friends and acquaintances, and then as suddenly goes down and disappears, leaving nothing behind but a little heap of malodorous ashes. The cause of this is also various, disappointment, first in office, second in not attaining that mercenary gain many expect, for it cannot be denied many do expect gain through the Fraternity; the merchant expects customers, the newly-fledged physician expects patients, the lawyer clients, and so on through the long list.

One case I remember different from all the above: Bro. James A. Houdnaugh became a member of my Lodge about the year 18—, and was very enthusiastic. He studied the ritual carefully; he never missed a meeting of his own Lodge and was a constant visitor in sister Lodges, yet I could not say that he was ambitious for office. While he was capable and always ready to fill the place of any absent officer, he never expressed a desire to hold office himself. He was always very profuse in praise of the Fraternity, and I thought certainly that the impressive ceremony through which he had passed had made a deep and lasting impression upon him, yet I found very soon that his enthusiasm was most emphatically of the straw-fire kind, and was not lasting; but the cause of his falling off was the queerest I had ever heard. Masonry was not pious enough for him; there was not salvation enough in the ritual, and the Craft was altogether too easy in the matter of admitting men of all creeds. He came to my desk one evening and told me he felt greatly disappointed; he thought Masonry ought to be remodelled, put upon a different basis, and built upon a better plan, so as to bring men nearer to everlasting salvation. I walked home with him that evening and questioned him about his religious beliefs—a subject I always carefully avoided in and out of Lodge, believing, with Frederick the Great, that every man ought to be allowed to go to heaven in his own way, and choose the road by which this all-desired goal may be reached. But I had taken a liking to this Brother, and thought by entering into his ways I could convince him that Masonry was all right, and that we had better not remodel it, and leave its grandest feature—universal tolerance and charity—just as the fathers had handed it down to us.

I found that Bro. Houdnaugh's parents were of the highest of high church Episcopalians, and of course his early training was from that source, but like the famous Josiah Davidson, who tried to live the life of Christ in the nineteenth century, he had asked the rector many unseemly and naughty questions, and incurred the displeasure of that stiff and haughty dignitary. As soon as he was old enough he became a Dissenter, much to the disgust and chagrin of his old parents. He said he was a searcher after truth, and it seemed to me he had been a good while searching. He attended the Presbyterian church awhile, but this hard and cold band was not congenial to our kind-hearted Brother, and for a while he drifted along without any Church connection. Then some Methodist friends "converted" him, and he became a loud and earnest shouter in the "amen corner." But the evangelical work of these good people did not exactly suit him. He thought it was low to go everywhere and preach, and thereby allow everybody to become a minister; and while he believed in teaching the Gospel to every creature, he did not think every creature should teach the Gospel. He had also tried all kinds of Baptists—hard-shell, soft-shell, total immersion, partial immersion, and no immersion at all—only sprinkling. In fact, I found this earnest searcher after truth had almost boxed the religious compass. Yet, among all these people, he could not find what he was so earnestly seeking, and when he joined the Lodge he thought he would find among his Brethren only truth and honesty, and that comely order—

> The soul's calm sunshine, and the heartfelt joy."

But, alas! for poor weak human nature, there were flaws and defects found even among Masons. Masonry was all right, as were the various churches, but human nature is the same in the Lodge as in the church, and is far from being perfect in either. And now Bro. James was drifting and groping among Spiritualists, and invited me to go with him to one of their meetings. They were then all the rage; they held séances at a dollar a séance, and I agreed to go with him on the following Sunday.

The place of meeting was at Hope Chapel, on Broadway, somewhere near Eighth Street, which was at that time the headquarters for every crank in the city; every ism in religion, commerce, or politics was aired there. Every itinerant with a "theory" would find a lodging here and air his vapourings in Hope Chapel.

The following Sunday I accompanied Brother Houdnaugh to this "church," with the faint hope that possibly I could be of use to him in his ardent search after truth, but the audience I met in the place did not encourage me much. A motley crew indeed.

Men with their hair parted in the middle. Women who parted their hair on the sides. Men with cloaks and capes and shawls, and women with coats, high hats and bloomer pants. Men with long hair down their shoulders, and women with hair cut as short as a Fourth Ward heeler at a primary. Women with high standing collars, and men with long rolling collars.

And while they all spoke English, so-called, you could hear the broad H'english, "you know," of the Queen's subjects, intermingled with the nasal twang of the Yankee, and he with the sweet brogue of the Green Isle would discourse with his neighbour, von der Vaterland, midst the very lively gesticulating of a little Frenchman, who seemed to be just in his element.

And cranks of all sorts were here; each one had a "theory" of his own—social theories, religious theories, patent ways to reform all mankind, improve the climate by decree, fasten the moon so as to have it full all the time, hence increase vegetation, crops plentiful, living cheap. Result—no poverty, no crime; in short, millennium.

The odour of these people was as eccentric as their theories, and as varied as their apparel. The garlic of the Frenchman intermingled sweetly with the sauerkraut of Hans, and the fumes of tobacco were as strong as both combined.

After considerable buzzing and desultory talking, the little bandy-legged Frenchman clambered upon the platform, and, as was meet and proper for such an assemblage to do, he nominated a woman as chairman of the meeting. This lady, I found out afterwards, was his wife. She weighed about two hundred and fifty lbs. avoirdupois, and her hands and feet were twice the size of those of her little man. She had a deep, guttural voice, which sounded very funny when she was talking to her husband, who squeaked in a sharp falsetto voice. Her subject was, "The Protection of Infants." The small baby now was at the mercy of its mother. It was only last week she read of a dead infant being found in an ash-barrel; hence, all babies should be taken away from their ignorant and crue mothers, and the State should take care of them all, &c., and much; more of similar twaddle. The audience, however, were very listless; they were waiting for the "medium," who was behind a little curtain drawn across one corner of the platform, and was supposed to try very hard to go to sleep, which I thought was indeed a very hard thing to do, hearing this big woman and her sonorous voice, and occasionally, to emphasize her words, she would stamp her big feet. When at last the medium was thought to be asleep, or, as it was termed, in a trance, the two hundred and fifty pounds of petticoat subsided, and her little Frenchman drew aside the red cotton curtain, and exposed to view the most beautiful woman I had ever seen.

Upon a large easy-chair sat, or partially reclined, an angel, attired in earthly female attire. Her eyes were half-closed, and her shapely waxen hand and tapering fingers hung listlessly by her side. The inevitable little Frenchman rolled the chair forward and towards the front of the stage, and then politely stood aside. Solemnly and slowly the ethereal apparition arose, and as she stood up before that vulgar assemblage, the contrast was most striking. Clad in light and becoming dress, showing a beautiful symmetry of shape and figure, she looked the very picture of Raphael's Madonna, and when she opened her eyes, of the purest dark blue hue, full of sad and melancholy expression, I did not wonder that the people before her believed in her, and it seemed to me they would have endorsed anything, any doctrine, however absurd, that came from the lips of this angelic creature.

After looking over the heads of her audience awhile, she sank down again on her chair, and closed those beautiful eyes, her long silken eyelashes showing upon her face, which was partly hidden by long, fair golden curls, hanging down below her waist. She sat awhile, breathing heavily, and finally a woman from the audience stepped toward her and began to question her about the spirits, known and unknown ones; American, English, German, French, Greek and Roman spirits passed in quick review before the closed eyes of the angel on the stage; every one asked questions about the departed—about their welfare, their doings, their occupations, &c.

My Bro. Houdnaugh was very much interested, and seemingly believed thoroughly in the manifestations, and during a lull in the proceedings he asked me what I thought of it. I told him I thought the girl was very beautiful, and was being used by some one to impose upon a credulous lot of fools, and if he was searching for truth in Hope Chapel he got on the wrong track.

The "medium" finally sank down exhausted in her big chair, and the little red curtain was drawn to hide her from the audience, when other speakers arraigned the present system of about everything in existence. The whole was interspersed by occasional music, hammered out of an old organ by an elderly gentleman, with very long hair, but with very little musical talent. Before the audience was dismissed, a collection was taken up by the general factotum, the little Frenchman.

We left together—Bro. Houdnaugh and I; and when we reached the street I asked the question, how it was possible that sensible men and women could be carried away by such unsubstantial humbugs?

The angel of Hope Chapel figured afterwards prominently before the people in a celebrated divorce suit, she tried to win from her husband, a Professor H——, and truth was very sparingly handled by both sides.

And Bro. Houdnaugh dropped from the roll for non-payment of dues.

He gradually lost interest in Lodge affairs and ran behind in his dues, and I tried to collect these from him but could not. I tried to show him that truth and honesty usually go hand in hand, and that his dues were an honest debt, but it was no use. In his earnest and ardent search after truth he lost sight of us and his Lodge, and when finally his name was called out and the Master asked for any reason why this Brother should not be suspended (the term then used), no one answered, but as usual all eyes turned towards the Secretary and I answered the silent queries by moving the "usual course," and out he went, out in the dark, out from among us, out with the great army of non-affiliates.

It was only another case of straw-fire enthusiasm; another instance where men expect too much. Whenever a perfect man can be found who will bring perfection to his Lodge, he will surely find perfection within the Lodge, and among his Brethren, but that perfect man has not yet been found, and those who honestly and earnestly search for truth will find it, if they are only capable of seeing it; and our system is all right. Masonry teaches Divine truths, which can never, never be controverted, and is as near perfect as poor weak human nature will allow it to be. If any improvement is wanted or needed, let us commence with ourselves.—N. Y. Dispatch.

WHAT MANNER OF MEN ARE THESE?

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

"Are things what they seem;
Or is visions about?
Is our civilisation a failure?"—BRET HARTE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I read in your pages last week, with sad regret, the two letters signed respectively "E. J. G." and "A LOYAL MASON," and am at a loss to reconcile our boasted Freemasonry with the particulars your correspondents set forth.

In the one case we have an example of the commission of one of those sins "for which we affirm with our mouths the curse of God to be due," that of removing a neighbour's landmark; in the other a specimen, unique in every respect, of that hitherto underatood anomaly, "a disloyal Mason."

We read that in the olden days, and in the Primitive Church, there was a godly discipline, and such persons as he of the one case were "put to open penance and punishment;" whilst he of the other found in the pillory the fitting reward of his disobedience to the command, "Honour the King."

Your correspondent, "E. J. G." tells us of a memorial stone "tampered with and desecrated" by the presumed unwarrantable removal of a Brother's name originally inscribed thereon. Can such a thing be done without remedy? In common fairness I ask for the full corroboration of the statement in such a manner as to enable honest members of the Craft to "spot" the transgressor, and show him, by their open contempt, their strong opinion of his dastard deed. And if the chivalry of Freemasonry be not a thing of the past; if there really be a meaning to the promise to support and defend an injured brother; then I maintain that the Brotherhood should not rest until restitution is made to him whose "landmark" has been so "ruthlessly removed," whoever that Brother may be.

As to the "Un-Masonic cad" referred to by your correspondent, "A LOYAL MASON," his associates will doubtless let his name be known wherever he is likely to be met with, and "Coventry" will assuredly be his reward for his unseemly conduct. For such is the strength of Masonic loyalty, as well to the Crown as to our Grand Master, that all Freemasons but the one mentioned would unhesitatingly echo Emilia's wish:—

"O, Heaven, that such companions thou'dst unfold;
And put in every honest hand a whip,
To lash the rascal naked through the world."

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

JUSTITIA.

SURREY MASONIC HALL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—So it is more dreadful than I thought in regard to the Memorial Stone at the Surrey Masonic Hall. Your correspondent E. J. G. says it has been tampered with and "desecrated." I imagined that by some mysterious process the stone had merely resumed its primitive inscription.

Stones when "carved, marked, indented on," especially with names, become historical and should not be tampered with.

What if the historic stones of a city, which are preserving from Lethe some of its magnates, were to be visited in dead of night by Brown, Jones or Robinson, and the name obliterated for that possessed by the B., J. or R. in question. The future archæologist would like myself be

ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 167.

A REGULAR meeting of this Lodge was held at its new quarters, Jack Straw's Castle Hotel, Hampstead, on Tuesday last, under the presidency of Bro. John Potter W.M., who was supported by the following Officers and members, viz. :—Edwin Storr I.P.M., H. E. Coffin S.W., C. H. Fry J.W., J. T. Rowe P.M. and Treasurer, J. R. Thomson P.M. and Secretary, Fred. Freeman S.D., W. A. Scurrah Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works Middlesex J.D., N. Goodchild I.G., T. Bowler Tyler; F. Adlard P.M. Hon. Mem., J. Yeomans P.M., Jonathan Ware P.M., J. G. Humphreys P.M., J. H. Fielding, T. Hearson, A. W. Lane, John Madvery, W. Butt, J. A. Buchanan, &c. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. W. R. Nelson, E. A. Nixon and J. W. Ryder of the Henry Levander Lodge 2048, James C. Smith W.M. 1744, James Stevens P.M. 720 1216 1426, W. Morrill 704, John Lane 1288 and John Pritchard P.M. 167. Lodge having been opened and previous minutes confirmed, Bro. J. H. Fielding was passed to the second degree, and at the request of the W.M. of the Henry Levander Lodge, 2048, Bro. W. Scurrah, Prov. G.S. of W. Middlesex, Bros. Nixon, Nelson and Ryder were also passed as F.C.'s. The agenda was in other respects clear of work, and opportunity was afforded, after Lodge had been lowered to the first degree, to discuss a charitable proposition, on behalf of the widow of the late Bro. Shury, who, as a candidate at the late election of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in May, just failed to secure a successful position, and was declared the highest on the poll of unsuccessful candidates. The St. John's Lodge had worked well and heartily on the widow's behalf, and it having been determined by the mother Lodge of our deceased brother to make up to his widow the annuity she had only just missed, until she could be placed in due course on the funds of the Institution, it was suggested, and subsequently unanimously determined, that St. John's Lodge should contribute a sum of five guineas to the amount which would be required for that purpose. Propositions for initiation were received, and hearty good wishes having been offered by the Visitors, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned for awhile to enjoy the beautiful surroundings of the hotel, and a stroll along the "Vale of Health." On their return they reassembled at dinner, and subsequently enjoyed a very pleasurable and informal meeting, the toasts being given with commendable brevity, and as briefly responded to. Bro. W. Smith, W.M. of the Savoy Lodge, displayed his ability as a pianoforte accompanyist, and Bro. Edwin Storr and others gave "proof of proficiency" as vocalists. Bro. Stevens delivered two Masonic recitations, "The Three Great Lights" and "The Level and the Square," to the manifest satisfaction of his hearers; and generally the entire proceedings of the evening were of a most sociable and pleasurable character. We congratulate the Lodge on having secured, on their compulsory surrender of their hitherto admirable suite of rooms at the "Holly Bush," such excellent quarters as they now enjoy, and in such an attractive position alike for their members and their Visitors.

OLD ENGLAND LODGE, No. 1790.

THE installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Thornton Heath, on Thursday, 3rd inst., this being the first time the brethren have been able to meet here since the destructive fire which occurred in March last. Bro. H. Baber the W.M. not being present at the commencement of the proceedings, the Lodge was opened by the Installing Officer Bro. W. H. Foulsham P.P.J.G.W. Northumberland, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. W. H. Ranson S.W. and W.M. elect was then presented by Bro. C. Daniel P.M. 65, who acted throughout the ceremony as D.C., and a board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. Ranson was regularly installed in the chair of K.S. and greeted in ancient form. The Audit Committee's report was received and adopted, and the sum of ten guineas having been voted to Bro. H. M. Hobbs' list, as Steward to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, the Lodge was closed in due form; after the following had been invested Officers for the ensuing year :—Bros. C. Tarry S.W., F. T. Kidpath J.W., W. Foulsham P.M. Treasurer, H. M. Hobbs Sec., J. Kilvington S.D., E. Samuel J.D., R. G. Fleming I.G., G. S. Horsnail D.C., and W. Lane Tyler. There was a strong muster of the members and of visitors. The brethren subsequently repaired to the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, where an excellent banquet was served under the personal superintendence of Bro. T. H. Bentley the manager. The usual toasts were given, and during the evening Bro. H. Baber, the I.P.M., was presented with a P.M.'s jewel, which had been voted as a mark of the brethren's appreciation of his able conduct during the past year. Bros. Laxton, Streeter, Langton, Hopekirk and Holdsworth responded for the Visitors. An excellent programme of music had been arranged by Bro. J. B. Shakespeare, whose singing, as well as that of Bros. Wilson, Haskins, Kilvington, Ridpath and others, greatly added to the success of the meeting, Bro. Laughlin kindly presided at the piano. The following were among the Visitors —Bros. F. Tarry S.W. 1790, Gordon Smith J.W. 2041, J. Kilvington S.D. 1790, and F. Carter 14. The Lodge having been opened Mr. F. A. Holdsworth was balloted for and duly initiated into Freemasonry, the charge being afterwards given. Bros. Dr. Matthey and D. Gnedalla were passed to the second degree. The Lodge was then closed and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

Creaton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1791.—Held at the Wheatsheaf Hotel, Goldhawk-road, on Wednesday, 10th instant. Bros. Chatwin W.M., Austin S.W., Cavers J.W., Sims S.D., Wittle J.D., Craiggs I.G., J. Davies Preceptor, Chalfont P.M. Secretary, Spiegel P.M., Jennings, Child, Altman, Ridgley, Curtis, Stonsell, Colville, G. Williams, Breitbart and Head. Lodge was opened and the minutes were read and confirmed. With Bro. Altman as candidate, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed. The Lodge was called off and on, and opened in the second degree; Bro. Spiegel worked the fourth section of the lecture, assisted by Bro. Davies. Later on Bro. Austin S.W. was duly elected W.M. for next week. A vote of thanks was passed to the W.M., who, for the first time, had taken that position. It is gratifying to us to be able to state that this Lodge of Instruction has £13 11s 6d in hand, which will be placed on the list of the next Steward who shall represent the Lodge at one of the Festivals.

Chiswick Lodge of Instruction, No. 2012.—On Saturday, 5th inst., at the Windsor Castle Hotel, Hammersmith. Present—Bros. Chas. Dopson W.M., A. Williams S.W., H. F. Williams J.W., Wm. Johnson Sec., J. Lodge was opened and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Questions leading to second degree were answered by Bro. Thos. Sims, and the second ceremony was rehearsed; Lodge opened in the third, and Bro. Preceptor Davis, assisted by Bro. P.M. Purdue, worked the first and third sections of the third lecture, assisted by Bro. Davis; afterwards, assisted by Bro. G. Brown, he worked the first section of the second lecture; and with Bro. H. F. Williams the first section of the first lecture. Lodge closed in perfect harmony.

Grand.—During the past fortnight Miss Farren and Mr. Fred. Leslie, assisted by an exceptionally strong company, have had possession of the boards here, crowded houses being the result. We advise our readers who have not yet seen this really funny burlesque, "Jack Sheppard," to pay a visit to the Grand to-night, as this will be Miss Farren's last appearance in London prior to her provincial tour. On Monday Mr. Charles Warner will appear here in "Storm Beaten;" he will be supported by a selected company. It is worthy of note that Mr. Warner first made his appearance in London at Sadler's Wells Theatre, so that Islingtonians will now have the opportunity of once more welcoming an old friend to their neighbourhood.

Empire.—To-night (Saturday) will witness the first performance of the new musical spectacular extravaganza, "The Palace of Pearl." In consequence of the elaborate preparations required in connection with this piece, its production was postponed from Wednesday until to-night. The managers have secured a strong company, and they have our heartiest wishes for their success.

Royalty.—Messrs. Frank Holmes and E. J. Henley will reopen this theatre on Monday, with a new four act comedy, entitled "Jack," and a new and original burlesque, "Mephisto." The casts will include the names of Messrs. Wm. Plympton, H. Proctor, M. Cackles, M. Drew, P. Cunningham, W. Compton, Fenton, Burton, and E. J. Henley; Mesdames Dorothy Dean, Carlotta Leclercq, M. A. Gifford, Maria Williams, Madge Stavart, and Constance Gilchrist. We wish Messrs. Holmes and Henley a successful season.

WESTWARD HO!—Two hundred boys from Dr. Barnardo's institutions will leave on Tuesday, June 15th, for Canada, under the personal care of Mr. A. B. Owen, of Dr. Barnardo's Distributing Home Peterborough, Ontario, and two experienced assistants.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MIDDLESEX.

IN every respect, save one, the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, at the Town Hall, Twickenham, on Saturday last, the 5th instant, was attended by circumstances of a most gratifying nature. Beautiful weather, spacious accommodation, a grand muster of enthusiastic Masons, interesting proceedings in Grand Lodge, Divine service in the fine old parish church, cool refreshment, brief but pertinent speeches, and most excellent music, combined to render the gathering of the Middlesex Lodges on this occasion an event to be well remembered by those who were privileged to attend. The one and only drawback to the full fruition of great expectancy was the unfortunate and deeply-regretted enforced absence of the esteemed Provincial Grand Master himself, who, suffering from a bronchial attack, was forbidden by his medical advisers to venture on the discharge of duties which for many years have been so regularly performed by him in connection with the Grand Lodge over which he holds a firm and genial sway. The expressions of regret and sympathy with the Rt.Wor. Colonel Sir Francis Burdett were frequent and earnest, and when conveyed to him, as doubtless they will be, will certainly serve to prove to his mind that of which probably there has never been a doubt, the continued regard and esteem of every brother connected with the several Lodges hailing him as their Chief. In his absence, and by his express authority, the large assembly of Masons was most efficiently presided over by the V.W. Brother Raymond H. Thrupp P.G.A.D.C., the Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

The Provincial Grand Lodge, which on this occasion met under the auspices of the Francis Burdett Lodge, No. 1503, Bro. J. T. Briggs W.M., was opened in the Assembly Room of the Town Hall, kindly lent by Lady Freke, and handsomely decorated with flags, ferns, and flowers, by the united aid of her ladyship's agent, Bro. J. K. Gwyn, of The Great City Lodge, and Bro. Poupart, of the Albion Lodge, both of whom were amongst the visitors. The elevated platform at the upper end of the Hall was a mass of beautiful evergreens, amongst which some large and rare specimen ferns raised their graceful foliage, and set off to advantage the splendid bloom of many and varied flowering plants. Towering over all was the banner of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and smaller banners (one of them a recent present from the Sub-Urban Lodge, 1702, and the Citadel Lodge, 1897, united), surrounded the Grand Master's chair. The general effect of the decorations and the regalia of the brethren, when all were assembled, was enhanced by the perfect lighting of the spacious Hall, and afforded opportunity for strong contrast with other gatherings for similar purposes. "If a thing is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well," appears to have been the motto observed by those who had any concern in the preparation for the reception of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, and the conduct of its proceedings; and they fully deserve that meed of recognition and praise which it is sometimes the province of a journalist to render as a duty, and without favour or affection. At the time of opening the Provincial Grand Lodge, and during its proceedings, there were present:—

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master V.W. Bro. Raymond Thrupp in form, and the roll of 37 Lodges was called. Of these all but three or four were fully represented. On a subsequent call, by command of the Deputy G. Master, prior to votes on resolutions, this number of absentees was lessened. The minutes of the previous Prov. G. Lodge were read for verification, and the reports of the Audit and Charity Committees were read for confirmation. Three respective sums of fifteen guineas each were voted, on the motion of the Prov. G. Master by his Deputy, to the several Masonic Institutions for Girls, Boys, and aged Masons. On the motion of the Deputy Prov. G. Master, seconded by Wor. Bro. Japheth Tickle P.P.G. Reg., it was resolved:—"That the two Provincial Funds, viz., the Fund of Benevolence and the General Purposes Fund be merged into one Fund, in accordance with Rule 104 Book of Constitutions. The proposal of the Prov. G. Master, seconded by Wor. Bro. H. J. Buss P.G.A. Sec.:—"That the sum of £20 a year be allowed the Provincial Grand Secretary for clerical services, instead of £10 as in the past," was unanimously carried. The election of Provincial Grand Treasurer, being the next business, was preceded by the reading of a letter from the Prov. G. Master highly extolling W. Bro. Archer the Prov. Grand Treasurer for the manner in which he had hitherto discharged the practical duties of the office, and recommending his re-nomination. Amidst applause Bro. Archer was consequently re-nominated and re-elected. The Prov. Deputy Grand Master then proceeded to announce the appointment by the Prov. Grand Master of the following Officers for the year, viz.:—

A petition for assistance from the widow of a late highly respected brother, a Prov. G. Steward for the past year, was read, and an immediate grant of thirty guineas was unanimously agreed to. Votes of thanks were passed by acclamation to Lady Freke, for the use of the Town Hall; to the Francis Burdett Lodge, 1503, for the use of furniture; and to the Sub-Urban and Citadel Lodges, for their kind presentation of a banner to the Provincial Grand Lodge. It having been remarked that the proper display of the new banner suggested a necessity for another as companion thereto, Bro. W. A. Scurrah, Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works, stated that the Lodge over which he now presides, the Henry Levander, 2048, would supply the suggested deficiency without delay. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master then addressed Provincial Grand Lodge, congratulating the members on the great success which had attended the proceedings of the past year, and especially the present meeting. He desired, however, to make it known that several of the Secretaries of the respective Middlesex Lodges were very lax in the performance of that most essential duty, the making of returns at the proper time to the Provincial Grand Secretary—and he had the authority of the Provincial Grand Master to state that, if he had occasion to find fault for similar neglect in the future, he would most assuredly suspend the offending brethren from their functions. It was to be hoped that this intimation would prove sufficient to prevent the exercise of that power which the Provincial Grand Master held, but which it would cause him great regret to enforce. The Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Woodward, directed the attention of the brethren generally to the great trouble and difficulty in which the officials of Grand Lodge, and himself particularly, were placed by the neglect of attention to the request that intimation should be given in proper and stated time by those who intended or desired to partake of the banquet. On this occasion, he regretted to say, from 30 to 40 of the brethren who, within the past hour or two only had made up their minds to dine, would have to depart unsatisfied. It was impossible for him to help it; provision had been made, to the fullest extent available, for those who had taken and paid for their tickets, and he could not take money for that which could not be supplied. He hoped that the disappointment to some which this neglect on their part would occasion now, would in the future induce the brethren to attend to the requirement expressed in the summons, for the purpose of preventing such disappointment. A sub-committee having been appointed to revise the Bye Laws of the Province, Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in form, and the Provincial Grand Officers left the hall in procession.

The fine old Parish Church of Twickenham, St. Mary's, which, with the exception of the ancient tower, was rebuilt between the years 1714 and 1720, the roof of the previous Church having fallen in in the former year, at which date the celebrated artist Sir Godfrey Kneller was Churchwarden, is full of interesting historical associations. It is the last resting place of the poet Pope and his parents; and Kitty Clive, the actress, and many other celebrities of the olden days are buried here. To this sacred edifice a large majority of the brethren wended their way immediately after the closing of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and were received with every mark of respect and attention by the Church officials. Prayers were read by the Rev. Willoughby Flower, M.A., the Curate. The lesson was the 3rd Chapter 1st Corinthians, and was read by Bro. the Rev. S. Saunders P.P.G.C., and the following interesting sermon was preached by Bro. the Rev. Spencer R. A. Buller, M.A., the Provincial Grand Chaplain. Mr. Walter G. Alcock, F.C.O., presided at the organ, and gave great expression to the solemn music of the proper Psalms xlviii. and cxxxiii., and the usual accompaniments of the service generally. Bro. Spencer Buller took his text from Col. iii. 23:—"Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men," and said:—

BRETHREN,—Religion is not a matter for the Church and stated times of devotion only. It is for the whole of life, its business and pleasures, its cares and joys. Therefore, the poet Cowper says, "Mine be the friend less frequent in his prayers." Therefore the Apostle speaks so strongly, "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin," "Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men." If ye are true servants of God, our daily life is our religion—our religion is our daily life. And this is in a marked degree true of the Order of Freemasonry. I do not propose to deal with Freemasonry historically, nor of course to speak of things unsuited to a general congregation, nor of things better known to many of my hearers than to me. But this is a practical age, and asks not so much what a man's antecedents are as what is his present value. And though Freemasonry is a historical institution, it is also, notwithstanding criticism (to which all are exposed), a practical institution. Though I do not claim for it that it is a new Gospel or another faith, I do hold that it is, in its precepts and principles, in accord with Christianity, and if with Christianity, à fortiori, with all religion natural and revealed of which Christianity is the climax and crown. And I take this line for two reasons. First, that others may have a juster knowledge and appreciation of Freemasonry, and, secondly, that Freemasons themselves may be reminded that though users of forms they need not be formal, and that their ancient usages of rites and ceremonies, if the life does not carry out what the lips profess, become meaningless, nay, deserve to be called solemn hypocrisy. Freemasonry gives many proofs that this is not so; and my few words to-day have for their second object to deepen our sense of the spiritual and practical meaning of our Order. Religion has two sides, described in the Prayer Book as the duty towards God and the duty towards man; the first of cardinal importance, as being the foundation of all religion, the second declared by Christ to be like unto the first, the chief result and test of the first. What does Freemasonry teach about the first? It teaches reverence in the use of the holy name of God, thus being in agreement with the Jewish commandment,—Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; and the Christian prayer,—Hallowed be Thy name. It teaches the authorship and ownership of God in the world. His is the power and wisdom that made and rules all. In studying the laws of nature we are studying the mind of God. The very art of Masonry itself is an instruction, for there is no true art or science that does not obey or study the laws of nature, and the pursuit of art or science is therefore the exploring of the mind of God. "The Lord by wisdom has formed the earth; by understanding hath He stablished the heavens." It teaches the duty and inculcates the practice of invoking the assistance and blessing of God upon all labours; to which agrees the Psalmist's declaration—"Except the Lord build the house, their labour is but lost that build it." It teaches the duty of devoting to prayer to God, as the Father who hears and answers, again to be paralleled by a thousand passages of Scripture. "The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and His ears open unto their prayer." Such are some of the teachings of Freemasonry about the duty towards God, obviously most thoroughly in accord with the spirit both of Old and New Testaments. But it is when we come to the second part of religion—the duty towards man—that we find the teaching of Freemasonry so definite and Scriptural. The highest authority that ever spake on earth declared, "This is my commandment, that ye love one another." This is the test and proof of genuine and sound religion—usually the best—often the only—proof that man can see.

"There is—there is—one primitive and sure
Religion pure,
Unchanged in spirit though its forms and codes
Wear myriad modes,
Contains all creeds within its mighty span,
The love of God displayed in love of man."

HORACE SMITH.

Our Order teaches what some call the old-fashioned virtue of loyalty. It teaches allegiance and obedience to the laws. Both are paralleled in Scripture. "Fear God, honour the king." "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers, for there is no power but of God." Our Order teaches the brotherhood of men of different nations. It embraces men of varying race, language, and even creed. "Homo sum, nihil humani a me alienum puto," said the ancient Roman poet. He was in those days one crying in the desert. But now our Order, among many other associations, declares the return of the world to the truth revealed of old, "God hath made of one blood all nations of men." Again, Freemasonry teaches both that some are to be in authority and others under it, and also at the same time that social distinctions are not to be unduly pressed. Both of these are important truths. For one can only learn to rule by learning to obey, and at the same time the acknowledgment of the equality and brotherhood of men of various grades of society, and the consequent diminution of class feeling, are of manifold advantage to the body politic. The body of the Church, says Scripture, is "not one member, but many." If the whole were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling? But now are they many members, yet but one body. Freemasonry teaches the duty of friendly help, company and sympathy. The words might have been written for us:—

"No! 'Tis not here that solitude is known,
Through the wide world he only is alone
Who lives not for another."

ROGERS.

The Masonic duties of courtesy, consideration, respect for the feelings and prejudices of others; of liberal distribution to the poor; of charitability, hospitality, of respect for the rights of others; are also Christian duties, and go to make up that virtue which St. Paul calls charity, "The very bond of peace and of all virtues;" the jewel of great price, without which the Christian, though he had all gifts and powers, is nothing. For the ardent belief in, and realization of God, which is faith, shall one day be lost in sight. The story and beautiful grace of hope, the assurance of the saints, the "anchor of the soul," shall give place to fruition. But "charity never faileth," and the humble plant that in the poor soil of earth, amid the storms and heats of temptation and times of dangerous prosperity, produced a little crop of fruit, little, yet acceptable to God, when transplanted to a better world, watered by the river of life, sunned in the presence of God, shall bring forth much more abundantly fruits worthy of heaven itself.

I have said these few words by way of illustration, not in exhaustive treatment of my subject. It is not to be denied that there are dangers in Freemasonry. Even its virtues may pass into vices, for a vice is often but a virtue exaggerated. There is the danger of formality; of regarding the forms, to the exclusion of the spirit. There is the danger of the virtue of sociability, and friendliness, and hospitality, being turned into luxurious and excessive feasting. There is the danger of the admiration of our Order, and the practice of the liberality it inculcates, being converted into self-complacency and Pharisaism; your very gifts to the poor partaking of this nature. There is nothing in this world, however good, that may not be perverted. Ours be it, however, to adorn our Order by a virtuous life, that though modest cannot be hid, that Freemasonry may be held in honour of men, and much more, that we may please Him who seeth in secret.

A fervent appeal on behalf of the St. John's Hospital, Twickenham, founded by Miss Twining, which is doing a great work in the neighbourhood, concluded this admirable address, and was responded to by a contribution of Ten Guineas to the Hospital Fund.

The banquet was held in the Town Hall, where about 120 brethren were seated. The exertions of Bro. Woodward Prov. G. Sec., and of his assistant Grand Secretary Bro. Lee, to both of whom our especial thanks are due for courtesy and attention paid and information given to our representative, had fully secured the comfort of all the guests in respect of accommodation, and it could have been wished that the caterer on this occasion had more generously seconded their efforts in respect of supply and service. A few complaints were heard here and there, as to certain wants and wishes usually accompanying an unsatisfied appetite; but good temper and a friendly allowance for probable difficulties occasioned by non contiguity to hotel reinforcements prevailed over slight disappointments, and by the time the cloth had been (figuratively) cleared, the company generally were genially disposed to forget shortcomings and to enter upon an hour or two of social enjoyment. This was provided for in no mean measure, by an excellent programme of toasts and music, the latter under the direction of Bro. Chas. Stevens P.M. P.P.G. Org., who presided at the pianoforte, and is to be congratulated on the services rendered by such well-known musical brethren as Bros. W. Sexton, T. W. Hanson, Arthur Cranch, C. E. Tinney, and W. W. Lee. Grace having been sung, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, prefacing his observations by stating that "good music" would take the place of "long speeches," gave in due order the principal Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were honoured in Masonic manner and by musical accompaniments. In giving the toast The Pro Grand Master the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, and Officers of Grand Lodge, Bro. Thrupp very pertinently referred to the services to his country which had been rendered by Lord Carnarvon as Viceroy in Ireland, and that whilst acting in that capacity he had not failed to keep touch with the Craft, who generally admired and respected him as a most courteous and able ruler. Referring to the Grand Officers, Bro. Thrupp welcomed the presence of Bro. Buss, Past Assistant Grand Secretary, whose "dear old face" was so familiar to the present company; and also that of Bro. D. P. Cama, now the Grand Treasurer for English Masonry, and whom he knew well Middlesex would receive in terms of hearty congratulation on his recent election to that office. The toast generally, and the two distinguished brethren named particularly, were received with much enthusiasm. In response, after a few brief remarks from Bro. Buss, Bro. Cama said that such a graceful act on the part of the presiding Brother as that of recognising his presence so cordially would cement feelings amongst Freemasons at home, and in his native country, which could not but benefit the Craft. This was the first time he had been called upon to reply on behalf of Grand Officers, and for the privilege of the present moment he had to thank those whose suffrages had raised him to so distinguished a post of honour. He desired to say that he thought more highly and proudly of his elevation by such means than many might suppose. In his humble person had been proven the cosmopolitan character of Freemasonry; and the universality of its principles had been distinctly shown by the fact that difference of race and creed had not prevailed to prevent the inevitable result amongst Masons of just recognition of "the tongue of good report." The thanks he now offered were sincere and heartfelt; his future actions should prove their strong hold upon his mind, and the brethren might rely that the confidence which had been reposed in him should never be abused. On the conclusion of his most excellent speech, delivered in fluent English, and without the least hesitation, Bro. Cama received an ovation from the brethren which must have afforded him much gratification. In the absence of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Col. Sir Francis Burdett, and in proposing his better health, the Chairman found an opportunity for saying much that could not have been said so freely in his presence. To repeat the laudatory remarks so justly made as to the performance of his duty as the Masonic Chief for Middlesex is equally unnecessary here; for the superlative of excellence in that respect, as well as in those of geniality and courtesy, in private association with his brethren, could not exceed that which is his "just due." A most cordial reception was given to the toast; as also to that which followed, by Bro. Buss, in honour of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master and President of the day, V.W. Bro. Raymond H. Thrupp P.G.A.D.C., than whom it may be fairly said, without detraction from any of his predecessors, no better Mason has ever filled such position. Bro. Thrupp, in his response, held to his decision of the earlier part of the meeting, and made his reply of the briefest, in order to propose the toast of the Provincial Grand Officers, whom he congratulated on their appointments, believing that the Provincial Grand Master had made a good selection, and that none of their associates would "envy them their preferment." In the course of his speech, Bro. Thrupp referred in eulogistic terms to the special services of the present Grand Wardens, and more directly to the excellent sermon or oration delivered that afternoon by their Grand Chaplain, W. Bro. Spencer-Buller, than which he might say, though he had heard many, he had heard none better. To this toast Bro. Montgomery replied, congratulating his colleagues on their accession to rank in one of the largest Provinces in England, thereby securing as it were a greater honour to each individual brother, at the same time that it imposed upon them stronger reasons, if such were needed, for the strict performance of their Masonic duty. The Visitors next received a hearty welcome, the Chairman naming several, but more especially, in consideration of special services, Bros. Poupart, Dean, and J. K. Gwyn. Alluding to the former, Bro. Thrupp remarked on his many excellent qualities, and characterised him as liberal and generous to friends and neighbours alike in his parish of Twickenham. Bro. G. S. Graham having been requested to perform his organophonic solo, whistled away the interval before Bro. Poupart responded on behalf of the Visitors, and expressed their sense of pleasure with the entire proceedings of the day. Bro. James Stevens answered repeated calls, and also responded, with congratulations upon the entire success of the meeting, and the harmony and concord which had prevailed throughout its proceedings. After further musical entertainment, the "Tyler's Toast" was given, and "road, river, and rail," were speedily requisitioned to effect a separation, the brethren carrying away with them the memory of a most happy day spent in connection with the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex.

The Consecration of the Henry Levander Chapter, No. 2048, in the Province of Middlesex, will take place at the Railway Hotel, Harrow Station (London and North Western Railway), on Saturday, the 19th instant. The ceremony will be performed, at three o'clock, by the Most Excellent Grand Superintendent of Middlesex, Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., who will be assisted by Most Excellent Companions R. Thrupp Prov. G.H., W. Taylor Prov. G.J., W. H. Woodward Prov. G.S.E., H. Lovegrove Prov. D.C., and other Provincial Grand Officers. Comps. W. M. Stiles P.Z. 1507 is the M.E.Z. designate, W. A. Scarrah J. elect 749 the H. designate, and J. Willing P.Z. 1507, &c. the J. designate.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best in remedy for curing the multifarious maladies which attack humanity, when wet and cold weather gives place to more genial temperature. In short, these Pills are of real value, if they fail of benefit under any circumstances of circulation, digestion, and secretion, which at the present season affect a vast portion of the population. Under their wholesome, purifying, and reconstructive powers exerted by these excellent Pills, the appetite becomes clear, the means to improve digestion is quickened, and assimilation rendered perfect. Holloway's medicine possesses the highly estimable property of cleansing the whole mass of blood, which, in its renovated condition, carries purity, strength, and vigour to every tissue of the body.

LIFE-SAVING FISHING VESSELS.—An appeal having been made, through the medium of the press, for funds to provide a new service of life-boats of 40 tons burden, proposed to be used for life-saving and fishing purposes, the attention of the Committee of the Royal National Life-boat Institution, who are always on the alert to recognise and thoroughly consider any proposals bearing on the great and important subject of saving life at sea, has been directed to the scheme. The Committee, having the advantage of a large experience in such matters, and exceptional opportunities of obtaining technical advice, have come to the conclusion that vessels of the type suggested will be quite unfitted for the purposes described, and that the scheme generally is impracticable. Further information can be obtained at the Offices of the Institution, 14 John Street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

SECOND APPLICATION.

OCTOBER ELECTION, 1886.

TO THE GOVERNORS AND SUBSCRIBERS OF THE

Royal Masonic Institution for Girls,

Your Votes and Interest are earnestly solicited on behalf of

LILIAN GERTRUDE RAWLINGS,

(Aged 9¼ Years),

Whose father, Bro. ALFRED CHARLES RAWLINGS, late of 78 Church Street, Edgware Road, was initiated in the St. Luke's Lodge, No. 144, in 1879, and continued a subscribing member till December 1884. He was elected W.M. of that Lodge, but during his term of office a long illness ensued, which resulted in his death. Bro. A. C. RAWLINGS died in December 1884, leaving a wife and four children totally unprovided for. He was a Life Governor to the Girls' School.

THE CASE IS STRONGLY RECOMMENDED BY THE

ATTENDANCE AT LODGE BANQUETS.

IN our report of the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, which appeared in our last issue, reference is made to a complaint of the Provincial Grand Secretary, concerning which he will receive, as he is justly entitled to receive, the sympathy of a large number of his brother Masons. The complaint of the Provincial Grand Secretary of Middlesex was rendered necessary by the great trouble and difficulty in which the officials of the Province, and himself especially, were placed by the neglect of attention to the request that intimation should be given in proper and stated time by those who desired to partake of the banquet. This cause of complaint is one which has arisen, we may almost say, in every Lodge where a banquet has followed labour, and for which it has been necessary to give some prior notice. Of course the inconvenience to which the Provincial Grand Secretary of Middlesex has drawn public attention is not so marked where meetings are held at one or other of the large establishments of the metropolis, or more important Provincial towns, as in such cases an unexpected influx of visitors is usually met without any apparent difficulty, but even then we can form little idea of the trouble entailed on those who have to provide, and it is questionable if some such cause does not account for the lack of comfort or attention of which members have occasionally to complain, at really the best establishments. At small, or even moderate sized hostelries, however, it frequently happens that everything is upset by this neglect on the part of those who intend to be present to take any notice of the request that they will signify their intention a day or two before the meeting, although we imagine there cannot be any reason to excuse them from complying with so modest a request. By their neglect they not only upset every arrangement, but they make themselves and every one else uncomfortable, while they may even go so far as to inflict actual wrong on those who have been more observant of the regulations framed for the general comfort. A banquet at which it is expected some thirty or forty will sit down is not usually intended to satisfy fifty or sixty, and the forty present who gave notice of their intention to attend have a just cause of complaint against their less careful brethren, who are really interlopers, if they run short of what they consider their due. We are afraid that little improvement will result from any words we can write on this point, but in directing attention thus pointedly to the subject, we would suggest that a hard and fast line should be drawn as a means of creating an improvement. At the meeting to which we have specially referred, some thirty or forty brethren, who only made up their minds to dine within an hour or two of the banqueting hour, had to depart unsatisfied, and so it should be with all who do not comply with the rules which they are asked to follow, not with the view of binding them to an unreasonable course, but simply in the interests of good order and regularity. We have often been present at meetings where a larger number of brethren have sat down to banquet than were provided for, and we can look back on some of these as the most uncomfortable hours we have spent in Masonry. The opposite view of the question applies with equal force, only that in such cases the Lodge is often a sufferer from a strictly financial point of view. The officials of many of our Lodges have to name a minimum number when they give the order for a banquet, and as it has come to be recognised as almost impossible to get a definite reply from those likely to attend, they are forced to make a guess at the number to be ordered for. The result is that perhaps six, ten, or more dinners have to be paid for than have been supplied, and although this may appear a hardship on the members of the Lodge, it is no worse, nor so bad, as throwing the loss on the caterer. If forty are ordered for, provision has to be made for forty, and the custom is to furnish so amply that if four or five more attend there shall be no lack of provisions, but if only thirty-five set down there must be a positive loss, which in justice should be borne by those who cause it. Brethren would do well to remember, then, that if they have no consideration for their own comfort, they ought to show some consideration for the comfort of others; further than this, they have no right to so far neglect their duty as to cause a loss, either to their Lodge, their friends, or the caterers. Most undoubtedly the neglect of brethren to notify their intention to be present or otherwise, whenever properly requested, is productive of loss, and may well be considered as a grave neglect of duty. It is only by following the plan adopted at the recent Middlesex meeting that any improvement can be hoped for. If brethren will not reply, no provision should be made for them, and they should not be allowed to attend the banquet to the inconvenience of others, and the creation of general confusion.

"DESECRATION," OR SACRILEGE?

IT is not often that we obtrude matters of a personal nature upon the attention of our readers, but there are times and circumstances which sometimes render it necessary that they should be brought into prominent public notice, especially when, as appears to be the case in the present instance, vital principles are involved. We are prompted to this observation by the correspondence that has appeared recently in our own and other columns respecting an act of Vandalism alleged to have been perpetrated at the Surrey Masonic Hall, which, if proved to be true, demands, and should receive, the most searching examination and inquiry. The history of the Surrey Masonic Hall, and the inception of the movement which led to the erection of that useful and stately edifice in the Camberwell New Road, may be here briefly reviewed in connection with an episode that has grown into serious, if not scandalous, proportions. By reference to the files of the journals of the Craft we note that on the 29th of May 1874 an interesting and imposing ceremony was witnessed, under the auspices of a Company that had been formed for the purpose of providing a "local habitation" for many of the Lodges whose meetings were held in inconvenient rooms on the southern side of the Thames. We know the objection that many of the brethren entertain to the assemblages of the Order being held at public houses—an objection which, by the way, is far more pronounced amongst the members of the Craft in America and the Colonies; and with the view of obviating this necessity, and at the same time of organising a commercial enterprise which gave every promise of pecuniary success, the Surrey Masonic Hall Company was formed. It was reasonably assumed, after due deliberation by the promoters, that such a building, if not confined exclusively to Masonic purposes, might be made to pay a substantial return upon the outlay involved; besides which, it would be the means of placing within the reach of several of the Lodges who chose to make use of it, a veritable "home" and most suitable Temple, in which the ancient ceremonies of the Craft might be carried on reverently and in order. By the accounts published at the time, and to which we have already briefly alluded, it would appear that the "plans of the ground buildings and all the details of the inner arrangements betokened an anxious desire to make the structure alike suitable and fitted for our Masonic ceremonials and the comfort and convenience of the brethren;" and those who have had an opportunity of visiting the Hall within the last ten or twelve years will not fail to admit that all these conditions have been amply verified. Those who have met there most frequently have realised how much the privacy, the independence, the comfort, and the self-respect which a freehold Lodge building affords, and that the Hall has reflected the highest credit in all respects upon those who planned and carried its arrangement to a successful issue. True, the history of the undertaking has been somewhat chequered, like the histories of many such institutions are, but nevertheless in the result it has developed into a system of convenience of which the brethren and many outside the Craft would be very sorry to be now deprived. We have frequently had the pleasure of assisting in some of the important ceremonies enacted there, and whether in the Lodge room or in the convivialities that followed, we have been impressed with the entire suitability of the whole interior economy of the establishment.

Returning to the subject more immediately under consideration, however, namely, the laying of the foundation-stone of the Hall, now just twelve years ago, we find that a numerous and distinguished company of Masons assembled on the occasion, all of whom appeared in Masonic clothing, for which a special dispensation was granted to Bro. James Stevens, by the then Most Worshipful Grand Master the Marquis of Ripon. Bro. Stevens, who is better known now than he was then in the Masonic world, as an author and lecturer, was at that time Worshipful Master of The Great City Lodge, No. 1426, and was moreover Chairman of the Directors of the Surrey Masonic Hall Company. In those positions he naturally formed a prominent figure in the gathering around which such a vast amount of interest and importance clustered. We are told that the display of bunting in the vicinity of the site was "lavish in the extreme," and the assemblage of a vast crowd in Camberwell New Road bespoke an attraction of no ordinary character. Many of the brethren whose names we observe amongst those who were present on the occasion will doubtless retain vivid memories of the scene presented along that much frequented thoroughfare, when the labours of the Company assumed such practical and gratifying shape. The interior arrangements were very complete; and these, the report goes on to say, "generally fell very well on the shoulders of Bro. James Stevens, to whom the greatest praise is due for the admirable manner in which they were carried out." Amongst the selections of music played by the military bands was a march founded on Bro. Stevens's now familiar Masonic song, "What better theme than Masonry?" and the ceremony of laying the stone was performed in perfect manner by Colonel Francis Burdett, as Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex. In the course of his address the gallant Colonel (now Sir Francis) spoke of the building as one which they hoped would last for a great many years, and be a benefit not only to those who prompted it, but to the Order in general. He hoped the Craft would support the building, which had been undertaken by several members of the Craft—most enthusiastic men and Masons. The "perfect stone" having been well and truly laid, well squared, level and perpendicular, Bro. James Stevens presented the Provincial Grand Master with a drawing of the building, and expressed the hope that the proceedings of the day might make a very lively impression upon all who had attended them, and on other members of the Craft, and lead them to do all they could to render the structure thus commenced a credit to the Craft, a useful building for the neighbourhood, and an honour to all concerned in its construction. They adopted one of the principles of the Craft's teaching, namely, Faith, without which they could not be Masons at heart; and they adopted it in the same spirit that actuated Sir Christopher Wren in the erection of the great metropolitan cathedral of St. Paul's, who acted as a true Mason should, and never rested till the building was completed. The Provincial Grand Master having received the picture at the hands of Bro. Stevens, with "lively satisfaction," the proceedings were completed in form, and at the subsequent banquet the latter occupied the seat of honour on the right hand of Col. Burdett, who proposed Prosperity to the Surrey Masonic Hall Company, coupling with the toast the name of Bro. James Stevens as its Chairman. The customary amenities, of course, followed, and the name of Brother Stevens was throughout a theme of the utmost laudation and congratulation. In one of his speeches the Provincial Grand Master observed that they all knew he (the speaker) had done a great deal in Freemasonry, but still if it had not been for the support he had received from such brethren as Bro. Stevens and other members of the Province to which he belonged, he should never have held the office he now did.

Having recounted, probably at as great length as necessary, the proceedings which characterized the laying of a memorial-stone under such brilliant and stirring auspices, the grave and important question now presents itself, as alluded to by our correspondents, how and by what means the "extraordinary phenomenon" occurs that the name of the Brother who tooked so prominent a part in the movement, should have been erased from the stone, and supplanted by another? The question is so startling in its character, that at the first blush it might well cause men to pause, and answer it by another, "Can such really be the case?" One writer, whose letter appeared in our issue of the 29th ult.—curiously enough the twelfth anniversary of the laying of the stone—observed that the stone has the name of our much-esteemed Bro. Colonel Sir Francis Burdett inscribed upon it, along with the names of other worthy brethren of lesser note. He adds, "now, one of these names always appeared to be haunted, if I may use the term, by another, on which it had apparently been superimposed, and the ghastly name was always more or less indistinct, influenced, probably, by atmospheric changes, and having one in the depths of conjecture as to what the nomen in quo was." Underneath this satire, the drift of which is readily comprehended, by those who have read what looks like a Masonic romance, we have a clue to the problem which is just now puzzling so many of the brethren and ourselves. He adds, "On looking at the stone on the last occasion I visited the Hall, I was surprised to find the prominent name (Bro. James Stevens's) had disappeared in toto, while the underlying one had, doubtless by some molicular disturbance (!) of the stone, come boldly up to the surface!" It scarcely needs the aid of a microscope to see the hidden meaning of sentences so pithily put, but in plain language it means, that the name of the then Chairman of the Company, the prime mover in the scheme, the Worshipful Master to whom the special dispensation alluded to was granted, and the honoured guest at the ceremony, has been expunged from the stone, and another substituted for it. No Vandalism surely could go much further than that!

But another correspondent writes to say that the letter above quoted induced him to make a personal examination of the Memorial Stone, and we can scarcely be surprised to hear that "I was literally astonished by what I saw. The stone has been tampered with, and I may almost say desecrated, by the treatment it has received." After giving an outline of the ceremony of laying the stone, the gist of which appears at the commencement of this article, the writer observes, "the worthy Brother who then bore the heat and burthen of the day," as Chairman of the Company, was the hero of the hour, and received the warmest acknowledgments of all concerned. His name was then engraven on the temple face of the stone (the italics are our own), in its proper place amongst the names of other Directors. It has been ruthlessly removed, and the name of some unknown brother substituted. Why? Can any reason whatever justify interference with a truthful record? I think not; and it grieves me to see so startling an evidence of Anti-Masonic feeling exhibited in a place which had been solemnly dedicated to Brotherly love and Truth."

Here, but for the principle involved, one might leave the matter in the hands of impartial judgment and the moral responsibility of those "whom it may concern" to clear themselves from a stigma of the most dishonourable and scandalous character. The charge is laid in plain language, and is made with no uncertain sound. On a memorial stone dedicated to sacred and solemn purposes (for we hold that Masonic purposes are as sacred and solemn as those of the Church itself) the name was engraven of a brother who had taken the most active part in the erection of a "stately and superb edifice." That name has been "ruthlessly removed, and the name of some unknown brother substituted." Well might our astonished correspondent ask the reason why, or by what reason, such a wanton act of spoliation can be justified. We unhesitatingly and emphatically answer none; and it is now incumbent upon those who have had any hand in the shady transaction to clear themselves of the imputation which has been cast upon them. We should like to know what would be said by the Craft were any sacrilegious finger laid upon any of the honoured names inscribed on the memorial stone at Freemasons' Hall." And the same principle applies to every building in the land dedicated to the same "sacred and solemn purpose." This is not a merely personal question, but one which affects the Craft, and indeed society at large. There is no justification for the defacement of any foundation stone, however humble may be the structure, or to what purpose it is dedicated, and we regard this instance as the most flagrant one—the only one in fact—which has ever been brought under the notice of an indignant public. It will not be sufficient that this act of some Goth, prompted no doubt by private pique, should be exposed; it must be explained and atoned for in order to prevent a scandal on the Craft. Even the restoration of the stone to its original condition would not relieve the culprit who perpetrated such a sacrilege from the contempt of honourable men and Masons. We have no idea who the "evil disposed person or persons" may have been, but it is the duty of those who are most deeply interested in the Surrey Masonic Hall, and in the Craft generally, to take care that no such a blot as this should longer remain upon their escutcheon. We shall expect to hear considerably more of this unpleasant matter, unless some explanation is at once forthcoming, which we sincerely hope may be the case, for the satisfaction of all concerned, and especially for the sake of the individual who has the greatest reason to feel insulted and aggrieved.

MASONRY'S ASPIRATION.

AND then, as in the course of time the true religion dawned and lighted up the world, the workmen found that its teachings, its sympathy, its hope, its faith, its charity, its glorification of labour in divine injunction and by divine example, its common bond of life, could embellish and intensify their fellowships, so that religion came to lend tone and colour and sacredness to their union.

Under the consecration of the world-wide faith, we came into that almost weird and shrouded history of the mediæval builders, knit together in societies wherein prayer and labour went hand in hand, and faith wrought with their works, and devotion breathing on all they did, made all their fabrics acts of worship and belief. The spirit of the Masonic Order, as it lives and speaks to-day, in grave and reverential ritual, in offices and precepts, is hereditary from that era. Let Masons all remember this, for it is the glory of our Order.

A distinguished writer says that the founding of Freemasons' Lodges introduced a distinct style of architecture, the Italian-Gothic. It is not faultless. What human work is such or can be so? But listen to his description of the exceeding glory of that style. "The characteristic defects and excellencies of the style might be fairly illustrated, if any one had the heart to stand in the square at Milan and lecture on that glorious marvel, unawed by the four thousand glorious sentinels that keep their eternal watch upon the roof, through the haze of summer's sun, and the wavering gleams of the full nightly moon, which seems to multiply the shadowy figures, with her unsteady illumination. But Milan in the moonlight disarms criticism. When the moon's full splendour streams on Milan's roofs, and overflows upon its lofty buttresses; when the liquid radiance trickles down from the glory-cinctured heads of the marble saints, like the oil from Aaron's beard, and every fretted pinnacle, and every sculptured spout ran with light as they might run with rain in a thunder-shower, who could dare to say there was a fault in that affecting miracle of Christian art?"

Remember, my brothers, the spirit which inspired a work like that is the spirit which by just inheritance ought to reign in this Masonic Temple; nay, more, in every Mason's heart to-day. Let us not repudiate such a past, nor trifle with it, as if it were but a painted piece of histrionic scenery that forms a becoming background to our acting. Let us not do despite and dishonour to such a glorious past. Let us make something more of Masonry than a mere masquerade, which only looks like and talks about the past, while it really disowns the spirit which left in that past much that was glorious and divine.

Thus, the Cathedral at Milan, is but one instance out of the many trophies which our progenitors have left. They adorned the world, and brought succeeding ages as pilgrims to behold, to wonder, to believe, to adore, and to be taught by their mighty works.

Masonry was the brotherhood of scientific labour reformed and inspired by the power of the revealed truth of Almighty God.

To these traditions have been added the reminiscence of the lofty exploits of the Crusaders' warfare, connecting with the arts of peace the heroism, the self-sacrifice and burning love of the Christian soldier. Those wars subsided. The palmer, with sandals, staff and scallop shell, was seen no more along the highways leading to the Holy Sepulchre. The Templar, with legs crossed and the cross-hilted sword by his side, lay down in his last sleep. Masonry ceased to be a society of literal masons. But the order passed into another and sublimer stage. The spirit of Mason and Templar lived and still lives, and gathering together the golden threads of memory, the Order takes up the legend of craftsmen and of warrior, and retaining implement, weapon, habit, insignia and language, relates the parable of human life phrased in these outward symbols of the inner and imperishable truth.

These are the antecedents of Masonry—this Prophet which has so many followers in the swift current of our prosy modern life. It stands among men freighted with all this wealth of men's best deeds for man and God. Its mantle is that of piety and its heart is a house of prayer. It is alive in this new world—on these western borders of the earth—still living because its creed of faith in God and of dependence on His aid and grace is the same now as when Masonry was operative—the same now as when its tools, the gavel, the trowel and the square were in literal use on material substances of stone and marble.

The occupancy of a temple of this magnitude is an evidence that Masonry is a force—a progressive force, keeping pace with other forces that surround it. It is a power—a growing power. It is no antiquated or obsolete institution, which new thought or fresh activities have supersede or made useless. We are not compelled to seek for laboured eulogies of the Masonic Order. The uninitiated may smile or sneer as if Masonry were some solemn child's play, some sombre farce, enacted with over-much varied ceremony. Such know little whereof they affirm. Masonry is not pastime, mere spectacle, or scenery, nor is it a society existing for the shallow reason of mere society. Masonry exists and flourishes in the vigour and the grace of an immortal youth because it has to do with eternal things. It does not treat of time entirely, nor does it bind its sons together to enjoy and use things temporal. It is ever pointing stedfastly toward the realities unseen, but for that reason all the more truly realities, because they are eternal. As the world grows in security, in comfort, in culture, in refinement, we do not find the Masonic Order retiring to the background or diminishing in interest or in numbers. It has and holds its place among the choicest buildings, wherein men garner carefully their material treasures and the jewels of their affections. Among the massive piles where commerce buys and sells and gains and loses; among the academic groves and porches where Art and Science calmly meditate in learned leisure; among the consecrated aisles where religion seeks and finds, and bends the knee before its God; among the costly mansions where men bestow their household gods and find the reposeful sweetness of domestic life; among all these are found, conspicuous for size and elegance, the fanes of Masonry. The exchange, the cathedral, the college, the mansion—as features in the grouping of the picture of a great town—are now incomplete without the Masonic temple. This means something. It means that Masonry has taken its place as one of the dignitaries, as well as one of the utilities of human society. It has become one of the representative interests of society—even as the forum, the university, and the workshops are interests of society. And society, admitting the Masonic Order into the circle of its great and most important interests, may indeed look on this noble Order with grateful eyes. I will now speak of the munificent benevolence of those merciful ministrations in which Freemasonry cheers and relieves the weak and suffering members of society.

These benefactions are known to all men, and need no sounding trumpet to proclaim them. I would prefer to call attention to a fact not so often heeded, viz.: the protection which Masonry affords society. Some of quick ear are thinking that they detect the mutterings of social revolution beneath the surface of our republican life and manners. If there be such menace, and if it be a determined or a formidable one—let him who discerns its signs or hears its curses—let such an one glance up at this Masonic Temple as he walks our streets, and read in its outlines of at least one antidote of Anarchy or Communism, or any other form of rampant and selfish individualism. Masonry is a guardian interest in society. It calls together men, the heads, the rulers, the leaders—the bone, the brain, the sinew and the muscle of mankind, and trains them to realize the meaning and the purpose of life, and how to discharge duty in the spirit of responsibility to God and man. Any agency which does this is an agency for good—an agency for good order and fidelity. Such a school of allegiance to law and constituted authority is the Masonic Fraternity. Such a school of obedience, and industry, and fraternal harmony and kindness is something to be valued, and as such ought to be cherished by the world, which enjoys and appreciates its fruits.

The perpetuity of Masonry is conditioned on its maintenance of its illustrious past—or rather on its loyalty to the spirit which has made that past illustrious. With its enduring influence before it—in its prominent position as an element of life, and with all the questions bearing on life, and thought, and character, and conduct, which this age is asking. Masonry has a mighty mission opening before it. If we would have the world outside our walls understand and estimate us aright, we must properly understand and estimate ourselves. Let us try to comprehend the gravity of the mission on which Masonry goes forth among men. She goes out in the name of God—as a religious institution. We ought to realize this fact, and live as if it were something that we thoroughly believe, and as if it were something profoundly worth the living for and the believing in. God forbid that one should use the name of God, as a form, as a convenient name to conjure with before the world, while we practically ignore it, and allow it no place or power in our thought or our affections. Let us use the Order in a high-minded way—as a missionary to the lives, the immortal lives, of men. Masonry, even as the Church, suffers from the intrusion of unworthy motives, and of glaring inconsistencies. It is used as a means of acquiring worldly influence—for the accomplishment of selfish ends, for the fading crown of a short-lived personal popularity.

Let us not, my brothers, so degrade this sublime society. It is a society of men. It is an apostle going out—sent out from the Holy Church of God, to persuade men to love God and love each other more. Let us so perceive the mission of the Masonic Order, and so labour in and for the love of God to win men—the manly nature—to God. That, my brothers, I apprehend to be the real truth, the fullest truth as to the mission of the Masonic Order. It is embarked upon a mission to men—to preach true manhood, not the counterfeits and imitations of it, which pass for genuine in common circulation, but true manhood, that manhood which deems its greatest glory to be measured by its fear and love of God. Be Masons for the good which you can do by being such. Be Masons for the love of God, which you may thereby spread abroad among your brother men, making them men of faith, men of devotion, men of honour, men of charity, men of good-will, to whom the peace of God came in the accents of a song from heaven.

The Masonic Order is again a loud rebuke, a protest and remonstrance against the hard, materializing spirit of the age. The whole Masonic system of teaching, the records of its whole career emphasise the fact that there is a soul in things and an inner meaning within life, and in all we see and are, and have, and use—a higher lesson than the most facile mechanism of being successful in the struggle for subsistence—and a happiness superior to the low, terrestrial enjoyment, after getting.

Masonry has spiritualised the common fact of work, and taught that life is not to "nourish a blind life within the brain," but, "knowing God, and lifting hand of prayer, both for themselves and those who call them friends.

> For so the whole round earth is every way
> Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.

Masonry had been suspected unjustly, and accused most falsely of hostility to the Church of God. Whatever grounds men may have for forming such opinions, those grounds were formed in individuals, and not in any avowal or disposition of the Order. The Masonic Order is the ally and the handmaid of the Church. Only in such a position can it do its work freely and as master workmen ought to do it. There is no rivalry between the two. There can be none. The Church is a society formed by God. Masonry is a society formed by men. When we have said that we have uttered the best possible disclaimer of anything antagonistic to the Church. Masonry is not a religion, and whoever would attempt to substitute it for the Church has misconceived its intention and its spirit, and will never rise into the strength and glory of its teachings.

A moment's thought will tell us that the Masonic Order can be strong, and deserve and receive confidence only as it works stedfastly with the Divine Society. It owes so much to the Church. The boast of Masonry is that it takes the Bible for its guide. It founds itself upon those oracles of God, the Law, the Prophets and the Gospel. The Bible is the central object, and the chief illumination of the duly constituted Lodge.

But what institution is the guardian and custodian of Holy Scripture? Where can we find a witness old and reliable enough to assure the Masonic Order that there is a Bible, and of what the Bible is? There is no institution from whose custody the Masonic Order received the Bible—there is no witness which can be brought as a reliable one, as to what the Bible is, and as to the certainty of its inspiration, save the Immemorial Church of God—the keeper and witness of Holy Writ.

Once again, the best writers upon Masonry tell us that Masonry in its present form includes as one of its especial ideas the idea of Cosmopolitan Brotherhood, and that this fact alone is enough to show that Masonry, as it now is, could not have been of very remote antiquity, because that idea of Cosmopolitan Brotherhood was unknown to and impossible in the ancient world. When and where, my brothers, did the world acquire that idea of Cosmopolitan Brotherhood on whose broad reputation Masonry has thriven? There is but one reply—on the day of Pentecost and from the Church of God. The idea of the Church, unlimited by race, or nature, or territory—the universal, Catholic body, embracing all the earth, and every creature, wherein was neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free. This idea is the teaching of the Christian faith which has levelled all barriers, and made the world to recognize itself as one flesh and of one blood, as sharing a common humanity; this idea, which the Church of God communicated to the world, has made the expansion of the Masonic Order a possibility and an actual fact.

My brothers, if the Masonic Order be true to itself—true to those influences which have made it great and good—if it continue to drink of that sacred fountain of its purest and sweetest inspiration, it will lose none of its beauty, its magnetism, or its energy. It ought to be a mighty influence for the things which are above. It depends for the present on us to see that it give no uncertain sound, and that it rise to and act in the true sense of what it is, of what it has been, and of what, please God, it shall for ever be.

One of the greatest traces of Masonry in architecture is, we are told, the pointed arch. The pointed arch, my brothers, you all know, at first sight, means aspiration. It points to heaven. It is the flaming upward of man's heart and soul to reach his God. Let us keep that allegory of his Pointed Arch continually before us as the ever-to-be-repeated triumph of our art. The Pointed Arch!—Aspiration—towards heaven and God. Aspiration toward that hope which He holds out, Who said, "O thou afflicted, tossed with tempest and not comforted, behold I will lay thy stones with fair colours, and lay thy foundations with sapphires; and I will make thy windows of agates, and thy gates of carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleasant stones. And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord." To that bright consummation will we aspire. Aspiration be our watchword amid all the storms and discouragements of life; aspiration beneath the heat and burden of the day; aspiration toward the perfect Masonry of the City which hath foundations, which lieth foursquare, and whose length is as large as the breadth; the city measured by the angel's golden reed; the city wherein no temple might be seen because the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the Temple of it, and the Lamb is the light thereof. To that we will aspire—

"As wheeled by
Seeing spirits towards the East—
Where faint and far,
Along the tingling desert of the sky,
Beyond the circle of the conscious hills,
Where laid in jaspar-stone as clear as glass
The first foundations of that new, near Day,
Which should be builded out of heaven to God—
Jasper first—
And second, Sapphire; third Cholcedony;
The rest in order—last an Amethyst."

Voice of Masonry.

MASONIC REQUIREMENTS.

REV. BRO. D. J. McLEAN, of Arnprior, Ontario, in a recent discourse to his brethren, gave expression to the following excellent thoughts: One important object of our Society is to minister instruction; to teach men how to live pure and noble lives; to lead men to feel the importance and blessedness of cultivating moral habits. We seek to inculcate truth as opposed to falsehood in all its forms; honesty and integrity in all our dealings with our fellow-men, such as will stand the test even when subjected to the scrutiny of the All-seeing Eye. We seek to inculcate purity in thought, word and deed. We are instructed in such virtues as these by studying patiently the lessons suggested by the humble and common implements of daily toil, such as the square and compass, but more especially by scanning the perfections of the great Creator, as revealed in his works and words. We speak of the book of Nature, and what a book; every page is full of the glory of God, and well repays our careful study; fitted to inspire our minds with noble aspirations. We speak of the temple of nature; and what a magnificent structure; with the wide expanse of land and sea for its tessellated pavement floor; with the spacious firmament for its vaulted roof; with the everlasting hills for its massive pillars. Is not the contemplation and study of such a structure well fitted to raise our thoughts in adoring gratitude to the great Creator, saying: "All thy works praise Thee, O Lord, and thy saints shall bless Thee?"

But in order that we may interpret Nature aright, and learn the lessons which she inculcates, we must take the God of Nature as revealed in His Holy Word with us. We must hear his voice echoing on every side, and see His glory gleaming from all His works, the smallest as well as the largest. And if we are, as the principles of our Order require us to be, daily, patient and earnest students of God's works and words, such study will beget within us virtuous principles, which cannot fail to hallow and bless the world. A pure and virtuous spirit will purify and glorify everything it touches. A meek heart in which the altar-fire of love to God and man is burning, will lay hold of the most common things in daily life, and transmute them, like coarse fuel at the touch of fire into a pure and holy flame. Whilst our Order seeks to inculcate good and noble principles for the regulation of daily life, it cannot but prosper in the future as it has done in the past.

The only thing which can impair or injure our ancient and honourable Order, is our own unfaithfulness to the principles which we profess. Let us be true to our principles, and let us seek to commend them to the world by our honest, industrious, and moral lives. Our Order has not been weakened by its hoary antiquity. Marble, and porphyry, and bronze, have yielded to the effects of time, but passing years have only consolidated and strengthened our institution. It has generated and grown benevolent energies which have blessed mankind. Our Society needs no eulogy from my poor lips; it needs not that I should sound its praise. Let us only be true members of it—true to the principles which we profess—bound together in the bonds of a loving brotherhood—engaged in labours of love, and deeds of charity—living pure and noble lives; that will be the best eulogy, the best way to sound the praise of our Order.—Freemasons' Repository.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

AMHURST LODGE, No. 1223.

A LARGE number of Brethren assembled on Saturday, the 5th inst., at the Amhurst Arms, Rivershead, near Sevenoaks, where Bro. E. S. Strange W.M. presided; he was supported by the following Officers:—T. T. Birch S.W., W. Sparrowhawk J.W., E. Dartnell P.M. P.P. Supt. of Works Treas., J. H. Jewell P.M. P.P.G.O. Sec., A. H. Lee S.D., J. Hamlin J.D., F. P. Lee I.G., P. Darnell D.C., C. Hooker A.D.C., Pascoe Org., S. Hall, A. W. Lloyd, and T. Baker Stewards. The following members and Visitors were also present:—Bros. A. W. Duret P.M., T. Baker P.M., E. J. Dodd P.M. P.P.G.O., C. Craig I.P.M., C. J. Dodd P.M., H. S. Strange, J. Fyfe, D. J. Kent, H. Crane, G. Dixon, G. J. Thornes P.M., J. F. McGeagh, Stevenson, P. Hamner, W. Barfoot, Pilliner, Townend, B. White 1637, J. Robinson 960, H. C. Jeffreys P.M. 902, N. H. Turner 1826, Wilson, G. A. Boyes, J. Wynman 188, &c. Lodge was opened in due and ancient form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. Harry Crane and T. F. McGeagh were passed to the second degree. Messrs. Nicholas Strange, N. Grimwell, and E. M. H. Staite, having been balloted for, were regular initiated. Both the ceremonies were performed in a most able and impressive manner by the W.M. Hearty good wishes having been given by the Visitors, the Lodge was closed in due form. The Brethren then adjourned to a first-rate banquet, provided by Bro. Waller. The usual toasts were given and responded to. Bro. Jeffries P.M. and Sec. of the Burgoyne Lodge, and Bro. Turner replied for the Visitors. Both expressed their pleasure at the working they had witnessed and the cordial reception they had received; and hoped they should repeat their visit. Some excellent singing was contributed by Bros. Crane, Pascoe, G. A. Boyes, Thornes P.M., Lloyd, T. Baker P.M., P. Dartnell P.M., and a recitation by Bro. E. J. Dodd P.M. P.P.G.O. So ended, in every sense, a most pleasant and enjoyable evening.

PRUDENCE LODGE, No. 2069.

THE last regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Saturday, 12th inst. Present—Bros. Rev. T. C. Smyth P.M. P.D.D.G.M. of the Eastern Archipelago W.M., C. L. Mason P.M. P.P.G. Treas. S.W., Tudor Trevor P.M. J.W., W. M. Watson P.M. Secretary, Rev. H. S. Butler Chaplain, Rev. J. E. Player S.D., S. Scott Young J.D., J. J. Fretwell I.G., Chas. Middleton Dir. of Cers, Burrand Tyler, Tom Atkinson Steward, H. Milling, M. W. Jameson Assist. Sec., Arthur Butterworth, T. B. Robinson, B. Sykes Bailey, Lewis Howarth, and the following Visitors:—Thomas Myers W.M. 304, W. Cockerlyne 304, John Thrippleton W.M. 306, Thomas Dodds 289, Rob. Dayson J.W. 456, John W. Turner P.M. 521, Henry Shaw P.M. 521, John Dawson J.W. 521, A. W. Youings W.M. 1211, Charles Scriven P.M. 1211, W. J. Gwillam 1211, John Jacques P.M. 1211, Wm. Smith J.W. 1211, T. H. Good P.M. 1221, Robert Lees W.M. 1221. After Lodge was opened the W. Dep. Prov. G.M. Bro. Henry Smith P.M. 302, 387 entered, attended by the following Prov. Grand Officers:—Bros Thos. W. Embleton P.M. 1513 Prov. G.S W., Edwin Woodhouse P.M. 2069 Prov. G.J. Warden, Rev. W. S. Turnball 1462 G. Chap., J. Binney P.M. 139 Prov. G. Registrar, John C. Malcolm P.M. 306 P.P.G.R., Rev. E. W. Makinson 289 P.P.G.C., James Bedford P.M. 301 P.P.G.D., Robert Craig P.M. 304 2069 P.P.G.D, W. F. Smithson P.M. 1001 P.P.G.D. Chairman Prov. Charity Committee, John Barker P.M. 1102 P.P.G.S. of W., H. T. Gardiner P.M. 458 P.G.A.D.C., Thomas M. Holmes P.M. 1515 Prov. G.D.D.C., Thomas Crossley P.M. 1311 P.P.G.P. The minutes of the last Lodge having been confirmed, the first work to be done was the passing of Bro. Robinson, which was admirably performed by Bro. Mason, the working tools being explained by the I.P.M., and the charge delivered by the W.M., who followed in his masterly exposition of the Charge and Tracing Board in the second degree. Since the last regular meeting of the Lodge, the wife of Bro. Wilton Jones had died, and the W.M. moved, in a touching speech, a vote of condolence to Bro. Jones, which was seconded by the S.W., and carried. Lodge being resumed to the first degree, the W.M., in the name of the Officers and members of Prudence Lodge presented to Bro. Woodhouse P.G.J.W. an elegant P.M.'s jewel. In performing this duty, with his accustomed tact and ability the W.M. first recapitulated the circumstances which had led to the formation of the Lodge. It had long been thought desirable by a number of the leading Masons in Leeds that the success of the Craft would be materially forwarded if there were in existence a Lodge meeting on Saturday afternoon. Another idea of these brethren was, that if such a Lodge were conducted on temperance principles many gentlemen would be secured to the ranks of Masonry who otherwise might remain outside the Order. There was no desire on the part of the promoters of the Lodge to cast any slight on the existing Lodges; it was felt that there was room for all. The success of the temperance principle in Masonry was borne witness to by the fact that since the consecration of 2069, Lodges had been opened in various parts of the country as temperance Lodges. The choice of the founders for the first W.M. wisely fell upon Bro. Woodhouse, who at that time occupied the exalted position of chief magistrate of the large and populous borough of Leeds. He had indeed proved a tower of strength to Prudence Lodge. He first saw Masonic light in Lodge 521 (Truth), of Huddersfield, in 1861, and in 1868 he became W.M. of that Lodge. Increasing business calls caused him afterwards to retire from active Masonic work, but as the first W.M. of the Prudence, he showed that his Masonic faculties retained their pristine vigour, and whether in the administrative or operative duties of his office, he gave pleasure and satisfaction to all his brethren. Under his sway the Lodge had wonderfully prospered: the goodwill of the sister Lodges was handsomely given, and at th present moment the most cordial and amicable relationship existed—a relationship it would be his pleasure and pride to preserve. Prudence Lodge was second to none in the Province, considering the short time it had been in existence. The fact that the R.W. P.G.M. had instituted two of its members to high positions in the Province showed that at headquarters the Lodge was favourably regarded. He himself was Senior Grand Chaplain, and Bro. Woodhouse was Grand Junior Warden. He trusted that the jewel would remind Bro. Woodhouse of the esteem and affection in which he was held by his brethren; that it would also remind him of the two years he was Mayor of Leeds, in which office his wise and honourable principles endeared him to the whole town. In pinning the jewel on Bro. Woodhouse's breast, he reminded him that there was another and a brighter jewel, which he hoped he would ever retain—the love and friendship of his brethren and fellows. Might he retain in all its lustre that jewel until the Great Architect of the Universe was pleased to call him from these transitory scenes to that Lodge above whose Grand Master was the Great Jehovah. Brother Smith D.P.G.M. West Yorks expressed his pleasure at being present on so interesting an occasion. He trusted Bro. Woodhouse would long be spared to wear the jewel. There was no wonder that the Prudence Lodge was so successful seeing that it had so able and zealous a staff of Officers. Bro. Shaw having also born testimony to the regard that was entertained for Bro. Woodhouse in the Huddersfield Lodges, Bro. Woodhouse briefly and feelingly responded. He expressed his great satisfaction that the Prudence had been so successful, and that her relations with the sister Lodges was of so cordial a character. He had received many presents, but none would be more highly priezd by himself and his family than the P.M.'s jewel he had just received. The following is the inscription on the jewel:—

Presented by LODGE PRUDENCE, No. 2069,
to its first Master,
BRO. EDWIN WOODHOUSE P.M.
Provincial Grand Junior Warden of West Yorkshire.
May 1886.

The jewel was of chaste gold, designed by Messrs. Spencer. In the centre of the ribbon the Arms of Leeds were finely cut and engraved, the upper bar bearing the word "Founder," and the lower one "Prudence, No. 2069" in white enamel. Hearty good wishes having been exchanged, the Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to "high tea." After which a very pleasant time was spent.

SUB-URBAN LODGE, No. 1702.

THE installation meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held on the 11th inst., at the Abercorn Hotel, Stanmore, when the following brethren attended:—Bros. G. H. Carter W.M., W. R. Shutt S.W. W.M. elect, C. Winstanley J.W., J. Tickle P.M. Treasurer, J. Hill Secretary, E. C. Kilsby S.D., F. J. Tyler J.D., J. M. Draper I G., A. J. H. Goldney, A. J. Oliver, G. Robinson, and J. Davenport Stwds., C. S. Buck I.P.M., J. F. Hepburn P.M., W. T. Buck P.M., R. W. Bilby, R. Coffee, J. J. Schloss, A. Bird, H. J. Forster, J. Tregaskis, and J. Very Tyler. Visitors—Bros. J. F. H. Woodward P.G. Sec. Middlesex, T. Vincent P.P.G.S.B. Surrey, R. Ousey I.P.M. 59, H. W. Ruff P.M. 95, Howard Ruff P.M. 95, J. H. Thomas P.M. 101, G. Brown P.M. 140, J. Fraser P.M. 174, J. Ellwood W.M. 179, J. Kew P.M. 179, L. Hart P.M. 180, F. J. Jeffs W.M. 435. F. S. Turner S.D. 534, H. Massey P.M. 619. 1928, T. Gordon P.M. 753, J. T. Crawford 766, G. Warren 813, G. J. Westfield 813, A. Hartman 907, J. J. Bell P.M. 1178, G. J. Thompson 1457, A. Weil 1540, S. Scherer 1540, R. S. Scherer 1540, R. Larchin P.M. 1541, H. W. Schartau 1549, W. Job P.M. 1632, G. Parrett 1259, A. James 1706, F. Bevan 1706, J. Dixon Past Master 1720, J. Best 1613, and J. Gibbs W.M. 1613. The business, after the opening of the Lodge, consisted of the reading and confirmation of the minutes and the reception and adoption of the report of the Audit Committee, which report, having been read by Bro. Bilby, called up some observations of a highly complimentary character on the ability and energy of Bro. J. Hill, Secretary, and the Brethren passed a unanimous vote of thanks to that brother in recognition of his energy on behalf of the Lodge. This done, Bro. Carter W.M. installed in admirable style Bro. W. R. Shutt as Master for the ensuing year; and the following brethren were invested as Officers: Bros. Carter I.P.M., C. Winstanley S.W., E. C. Kilsby J.W., J. Tickle P.M. Treasurer, J. Hill Secretary, F. J. Tyler S.D., J. M. Draper J.D., A. J. H. Goldney I.G., J. F. Hepburn P.M. D.C., A. J. Oliver A.D.C., G. Robinson, J. Davenport, W. T. Buck P.M., and J. Tregaskis Stewards. The addresses to the Master, Wardens, and Brethren were given respectively by Bros. J. Tickle P.M., C. S. Buck P.M., and J. F. Hepburn P.M. Bro. W. T. Buck P.M., acted as D.C. After the closing of the Lodge, a banquet of the choicest description was provided by Bro. Charles Veal, the proprietor of the hotel, who personally superintended the serving, and the brethren heartily enjoyed the repast. The usual toasts followed. Bro. J. F. H. Woodward, Prov. G. Sec. Middlesex, responding to the toast of the Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, said (the W.M. having announced the intention of electing him an honorary member at next meeting, the compliment having been inadvertently omitted in open Lodge) that when he accepted the invitation to be present he had no idea of such an honour being about to be conferred upon him; but he accepted the honour with the greatest pleasure, as a mark on the part of the brethren that the work he had endeavoured to do in the province, under somewhat trying circumstances, had met with the satisfaction of the brethren of their Lodge. He had the gratification of telling them that a similar honour had the day before been conferred on him in another Lodge. He could not let the opportunity pass on this, his first visit to Stanmore, without thanking the Lodge for their kind reception of him. With 50 Lodges and Chapters in the province it was quite impossible for any one to visit them all, because if he visited them all, it would take him about 200 nights a year away from home, and he would be obliged to give up his business. He was sorry Sir F. Burdett was not present. That distinguished brother, he regretted to say, was ill, and in a very weak state, and had only just been able to leave his bed-room. He hoped this Lodge would annually send up the names of those brethren whom they wished to receive Provincial honours. As there were 38 or 39 Lodges in the province and only 25 offices, it was most difficult for the Provincial Grand Master to select suitable men—men who would give satisfaction to the Lodges themselves. If the Lodges would send up the names, he should have much pleasure in submitting them to the Provincial Grand Master. Bro. Tickle P.M. said he was pleased they were going to add Bro. Woodward to the list of members of the Lodge. He was much esteemed and a most popular Mason. He knew the brethren would make him welcome, and give him the reception his merits deserved, and he hoped Bro. Woodward would frequently come among them. There was no Lodge in England, let alone in Middlesex, which had his (Bro. Tickle's) solicitude so much as the Sub-Urban Lodge. Bro. Carter I.P.M., in proposing The Health of the W.M., said he and the W.M. had worked side by side for a good many years. The more he knew Bro. Shutt the more he esteemed him, and he believed that was the experience of all the brethren. The Worshipful Master said, in reply, that he was very grateful for such flattering remarks. He took it as a great honour to occupy the Master's chair, and he should do his best to perform the duties appertaining thereto, he trusted to the satisfaction of the brethren, and to the credit of the Lodge. Bro. T. Vincent P.P.G.S.B. Surrey, in response to the toast of The Visitors, proposed by the W.M., said there was a great affinity between the Provinces of Surrey and Middlesex. The counties of Middlesex and Surrey were united in the Mark Degree, and if they were not actually united in the other Degrees, they were in sentiment. It had been his pleasure on many occasions to be associated with the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex. When he was first installed in the Claremont Lodge he had the pleasure of being supported by very many brethren of the Province of Middlesex, and especially by some of his esteemed brethren of the Sub-Urban Lodge. There seemed to be quite a friendship between the Sub-Urban and the Claremont Lodges; they visited one another; they were friends both in and out of Masonry, and he was quite sure they would always so continue. It was a great pleasure when two Provinces so nearly allied met together, and thoroughly appreciated the working. Whenever he visited this Lodge he seemed to receive a most hearty welcome, and he would, indeed, be ungrateful if he did not say he looked upon the Sub-Urban Lodge as a dear brother, and all the brethren as members of his Province. If he was to speak the sentiments of the brethren of Surrey he should say, long might the Provinces of Middlesex and Surrey continue brethren, and in every sense advance the great and glorious work of Masonry. Bro. G. Brown P.M. 140, said he came from a foreign county—Kent—and by selecting a foreign brother to return thanks for this toast the W.M. had done wisely. That being his first visit to the interesting and delightful Province of Middlesex, and associating with so many genial spirits and hearts, and so many clever Masons, he hardly felt himself capable of thanking the W.M. and brethren. When he received an invitation from Bro. Tickle, twelve months ago, it was a cause of grief to him that he was not able to come. However, the invitation being repeated this year, he could say he had never enjoyed himself either in or out of London more than he had that day. The brethren of the Lodge all appeared to have met with one common object, the enjoyment of themselves; but the pleasure of their visitors had been secured by them as a primary consideration, and it commended itself to the visitors in a very marked manner. He trusted at no very distant day that some of the Surrey and Middlesex brethren would find their way into Kent, where they flattered themselves they could do a good bit of Masonry if they put themselves to it. The W.M. in proposing the Past Masters, said the brethren all knew the very effective, business-like, and able manner in which the Masters of the Lodge had discharged their duties in past years. He could say a great deal in their favour, but time would not permit. To Brother Carter he had now the pleasure to present a very pretty Past Master's jewel as a small token of the regard of the Lodge, and he trusted he would enjoy good health and live long to wear the same. Brother Carter I.P.M. in reply said he thanked the W.M. for the very kind manner in which he had proposed the health of the Past Masters, and for the appreciative way in which he had spoken of himself. He also thanked the brethren for the gift of the jewel. He should always look back on his having occupied the chair of the Sub-Urban Lodge as an honourable event of his life—one of them, at any rate—of which he should always be proud. Brother C. Buck P.M. assured the brethren that the Past Masters fully appreciated the kindness of the brethren, and they would do their very best in years to come to forward the interests of the Sub-Urban Lodge. They had that interest greatly at heart, they had had it in the past, and they would have it in the future; and any assistance they could render the younger members to come forward, one and all would be happy to give. The W.M. in proposing the Treasurer and Secretary said the brethren knew the great interest Brother Tickle had taken in the Lodge—in fact, he was one of the Founders, and the Father of the Lodge. He had been its mainstay and had promoted its welfare and prosperity. Bro. Hill, the Secretary, had always carried out his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren, and had also greatly promoted the Lodge's prosperity. Brother Tickle P.M. Treasurer said, in response, that if there was one thing more than another that afforded him pleasure to say, it was to express the pride he felt in filling the office of Treasurer of such a distinguished Lodge as the Sub-Urban. It had, perhaps, a humble name, but what it was short of in big sounding titles it made up for by the quality of its members. There was no Lodge in the Province where the P.M.'s, Officers, and rank and file did so much, and had done so much in the past, to fulfil the tenets of Masonry, and so long as the brethren strived in the future to do so the Lodge must hold its own in the Province. He must confess to a sense of great gratification at the result of that day's proceedings. They had had installed in the chair a brother who for a quarter of a century it had been his privilege and pride to call a friend, and he was only echoing the sentiments of all the brethren of the Lodge, and the Visitors, when he expressed the pleasure he felt in seeing such a good citizen and so good a Mason occupying that distinguished seat. They had had a few good and worthy Masons precede him, but if he might make use of an old saying, he might remark that Bro. Shutt had outheroded Herod. The W.M. had almost shut the other P.M.'s up in the efforts he had made for the brethren's pleasure that day, and he warmly thanked him for it. They had proposed that day to enrol among their ranks a most excellent brother, whom they had looked since his appointment as the Provincial Grand Secretary with the greatest pleasure, and the brethren might rely upon it that the Lodge would not be forgotten in the distribution of Provincial Grand honours. At the last meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge a Committee was nominated for the purpose of revising or framing bye-laws for the province. He (Bro. Tickle) was nominated on the Committee, and so was the Provincial Grand Secretary, who said he could not get on without Bro. John Hill; so it was evident that the Sub-Urban Lodge was beginning to make its way, and although it had experienced a full share in the past, it would not be ignored in the future. Himself and one other Past Master would do all they could to promote the success of the Lodge, and contribute to the happiness of the brethren. Bro. Hill, Secretary, while thanking the W.M. and brethren for the toast, said that, to borrow the words of a very popular play of the day, performed at the Savoy Theatre—"The lot of a policeman is not a happy one." Well, the lot of a Secretary was not a happy one. However, the brethren of the Lodge, he was sure, would do their best to help him carry out his duties. Whatever he had to perform he hoped they would not take it rough, for he loved them all, and he loved Masonry; and if the brethren would help him they would be helping the W.M. to have a most successful year of office. The Worshipful Master hoped the Officers, whose health he now proposed, would do their best to assist him in his duties, that they would make themselves perfect in their duties, and aim at filling the chair he now occupied. Bro. Kilsby J.W. (Bro Winstanley S.W. having been obliged to leave early) assured the Lodge, on behalf of all the Officers, that they would strive their best for the working of the Sub-Urban Lodge, in which they took so great a pride. It was his mother Lodge, and there was no Lodge he was so proud of. Whenever he had a chance of doing anything for it he did it, and he intended always to do so. They had a distinguished body of visitors, and everything assumed the colour of the rose. They always said there were great things in store for this Lodge, and no doubt there were. With Bro. Shutt in the chair the Lodge was bound to get on; with Past Masters like Bros. Charles Buck and Tickle, and with the many honoured Past Masters who had occupied the chair, the Sub-Urban Lodge must, in time, be the premier Lodge in position, and working in the province, for the members had always tried their level best to make it so, and it was quite certain that the best result must wait upon them in the long run. Bro. Bilby also responded. Bro. Tickle proposed the Masonic Press, for which Bro. H. Massey replied; and Bro. Tickle then proposed the Health of Bro. and Mrs. Veal, to whom the brethren were indebted for a beautiful ball, and for all the comforts they enjoyed at their meetings at Stanmore. Mrs. Veal was a most amiable and accomplished lady, from whose presence they had frequently derived great pleasure. Whenever the opportunity occurred she was always pleased to come and charm the brethren with her beautiful music, and her exquisite voice. She had exceeded herself that day in providing the banquet, and the brethren would wish both Bro. and Mrs. Veal long and prosperous years. Bro. Charles Veal said he need not tell the brethren this was not a Masonic toast. When he came into the room he was not at all prepared for the very kind reception the toast had met; but he could assure them that to him it was a very flattering one, and one that would convey not only to himself, but to his good wife and all belonging to him, that satisfaction which he knew the brethren would wish to convey to them for all their energies in contributing to the brethren's comfort. For his wife, his family and himself, and all belonging to them, he might inform the brethren that the red-letter day of the year to them was the installation meeting of the Sub-Urban Lodge. They had been the last three days and nights preparing for it, and their greatest delight and recompense was if they had given satisfaction. If it had realised the brethren's expectations, that was all they wanted. They had always looked on the Sub-Urban Lodge as really the mainstay of their establishment,—in a very great measure,—inasmuch as in a Masonic way every member of that Lodge had been their best of friends, and contributed in every way to assist them. He thanked Bro. Tickle for the kind way he had put the toast. As far as the efforts of himself and family went, they reciprocated every word he said, and they appreciated it. If any members of the Lodge came on any other occasion they would give them the same amount of assistance and attention as they had on that day. It was not only on great gatherings they bestowed their energies, they gave them also on small occasions, thus endeavouring to maintain the credit of the establishment. The Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings, which were enlivened by musical arrangements, under the direction of Bro. H. Schartau

Creaton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1791.—A meeting was held on Thursday, 17th June, at the Wheatsheaf Hotel, Goldhawk-road, Shepherds Bush. Bros. Austin W.M., Cavers S.W., Sims J.W., Chalfont P.M. Secretary, Whittle S.D., Breitbart J.D., Jennings I.G., J. Davies Preceptor, Spiegel P.M., W. Williams, Molloy, Cross, Head, Wood, Craggs, Purdue P.M., Gilbert. After preliminaries, Bro. Molloy, a candidate for passing, answered the usual questions, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Bro. Cross, a candidate for raising, answered the questions, and the Lodge being opened in third degree, the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. Bro. Cavers S.W. was elected W.M. for next Thursday. Lodge was closed in harmony.

JUVENILE EMIGRATION TO CANADA.—Yesterday (says Wednesday's Liverpool Journal of Commerce) the Beaver line steamer, Lake Superior, the favourite steamer connected with this enterprising line, took out to Quebec another batch of youthful emigrants, consisting of 200 boys from Dr. Bernardo's Homes, and 150 boys and girls from Mr. Middlemore's Home, in Birmingham. The boys and girls, who were all smartly dressed and healthy-looking, and had the appearance of having been well cared for, were marched down to the steamer—the former from the Central Station and the latter from Lime-street Station. En route they attracted much attention, and upon their arrival on the landing-stage were loudly cheered, the stage at this time presenting a scene of great activity, owing to its being high water, and a large number of excursionists thronged to bid them a hearty farewell. Dr. Bernardo, with his assistants, and Mr. Middlemore, were present, the latter accompanying the children to Canada to superintend the placing of them in situations. He stated that, from reports he had received, he expected immediately on their arrival to have places for every child, the demand being so great. The character and conduct of each boy and girl had been carefully inquired into, with a view of making them citizens of whom Canada might be proud. Certainly, judging from their physique, they were all that could be desired, and will receive a hearty welcome in Canada. It was a noteworthy fact that all the children wore the blue ribbon. Mr. Roberts, the indefatigable manager of the company, with Mr. Wilson, the passenger superintendent, were present, the former most carefully superintending all the arrangements for the comfort of the youngsters on the voyage. The Lake Superior is evidently a great favourite, several batches having already been sent by her, and the efforts made by the Beaver line to meet this traffic are such as to ensure a very large share of the trade. Besides these, the Lake Superior took several hundred saloon and steerage passengers, with an average cargo.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF EAST ANGLIA.

THE annual Grand Lodge of the Province of East Anglia (which comprises the counties of Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk, and Cambridgeshire) was held at Cambridge, on Monday, the 7th inst. The Right Hon. the Lord Henniker R.W. P.G.M. presided, supported by the V.W. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn D.P.G.M.; and there were also present most of the P.G. Officers for the year, several Past Officers, and the Lodges in the Province were all represented. The minutes of the last meeting (held at Norwich) having been read and confirmed, the P.G. Secretary (Bro. N. Tracy) called the roll of the Lodges, the W.M.'s giving a satisfactory report of their several Lodges. The representative of the Albert Victor Lodge (Bro. Anness) said he was empowered by his Lodge to invite his Lordship to hold his next Grand Lodge at Ipswich, and should their invitation be accepted he promised to give P.G. Lodge a hearty reception. The report of the Board of General Purposes was also highly satisfactory, showing a slight increase in the number of members, and the Treasurer reported a small balance in hand, and no outstanding debts. On the motion of Bro. Graveley P.G.S.O., seconded by Bro. S. R. Anness P.G.D.C., Bro. Colonel Bignold was re-elected Treasurer. The P.G. Officers for the year were then appointed and invested, as follows:—

Bro. C. Geldard P.M. 112 - -	Senior Warden
S. R. Anness P.M. 70 - -	Junior Warden
B. Anningsón W.M. 112 - -	M.O.
E. H. Crate P.M. 145 P.G.C. Eng.	S.O.
A. H. Moyes W.M. 334 - -	J.O.
Rev. F. B. Shepherd 342 }	Chaplains
Rev. R. Peek 70 - - - }
J. Bond W.M. 317 - -	Registrar
N. Tracy P.M. and Sec. 70 -	Secretary
C. A. B. Bignold M.O. 92 - -	Senior Deacon
F. Hallows W.M. 205 - -	Junior Deacon
Thos. G. Mills W.M. 145 - -	Inspector of Works
J. C. Chittock J.W. 92 - -	Director of Ceremonies
E. Hills S.W. 334 - -	Assistant Director of Cer.
A. C. Durrant S.W. 213 - -	Sword Bearer
G. B. Courtney J.W. 115 -	Standard Bearer
T. Winnatt Smith Organist 213 -	Organist
Richard Clowes S.W. 145 -	Inner Guard

V.W. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, D.P.G.M., nominated the Right Hon. the Lord Henniker for reappointment by the M.W. G.M.M.M. as Provincial Grand Master for the ensuing three years. He remarked that he thought if they searched the world through they would not find a brother for the important post of P.G.M. in whom they had greater confidence, or who had done more for the furtherance of Mark Masonry. The nomination having been seconded by Brother Colonel Bignold, and carried by acclamation, the R.W. P.G.M. thanked the Brethren for the heartiness with which his name had been received by them. If their recommendation was confirmed by the M.W. G.M.M.M., he promised, as he had done in the past, to do all he could for the welfare of Mark Masonry in the province of East Anglia. He had been pleased to hear so satisfactory an account of the condition of the Lodges under his rule, and he had no doubt that the acceptance by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales of the position of Grand Master of the Order would have the effect of increasing their prosperity. H.R.H. had appointed the 1st. of July, in London, for his installation, and he trusted that their Province would be well represented on the occasion. He reminded the Brethren that the Grand Lodge of England would hold a moveable Grand Lodge at Norwich during the Show Week in July, and he hoped that the Brethren would show their appreciation of so distinguished an honour by attending in large numbers. The Prince of Wales would be at Sandringham at the time, and it was hoped he would be present at the meeting; but H.R.H.'s engagements were so numerous that it was not yet certain if he could find the time convenient to do so. As regarded the cordial invitation of the Ipswich Brethren to hold the next P.G. Lodge there, he should be happy to accept it, unless the P.G. Lodge saw any reason to the contrary. His Lordship then mentioned that the revision of the Book of Constitutions would necessitate the revision of the Bye-laws of the Province, and he thought that should be done without delay. He thanked the Worshipful Master and the Officers of the Isaac Newton University Lodge for their reception, and also thanked a brother, who desired to be nameless, for presenting a handsome set of collars. He likewise commended to the support of the brethren the Mark Benevolent Fund, and said he trusted that the Stewards who had undertaken to represent the Province would be well supported. A conversation then took place in reference to the arrangements for the Moveable Grand Lodge, at Norwich, the burden of which, his Lordship said, ought not to fall entirely on the Walpole Lodge. Colonel Bignold, as representing that Lodge, said they had been unable at present to ascertain what would really be required of them; and it was eventually decided that, as soon as this was known, a circular should be sent to the Lodges in the Province asking for their support. P.G. Lodge was shortly afterwards closed; and between twenty and thirty brethren dined together at the Lion Hotel, a sumptuous repast being provided by the host, Bro. Moyes. In the course of the evening a subscription was inaugurated on behalf of the Mark Benevolent Fund; it realised the sum of £10 10s.

On Tuesday, a deputation from the Porchester Lodge of Mark Masters, consisting of Bro. Stephen Knight W.M., and Past Masters John Bance, George M. Knight, and George J. Cosburn, waited upon Lord Carnarvon, Past G. Master of the Mark Degree, at Highclere Castle, for the purpose of consulting his Lordship on several matters connected with the arrangements for the Annual Grand Lodge for the Province of Berks and Oxon, which is to be held in the Town Hall, Newbury, about the middle of July. The deputation was received in the drawing-room by Lord Carnarvon, with his accustomed geniality and courtesy. Having been introduced to the noble Earl by Bro. Cosburn, the W.M., Bro. Stephen Knight, proceeded to address his Lordship, who, in reply, expressed the pleasure it had given him to receive the deputation, and stated that he should endeavour to attend, either the Provincial Grand Lodge, at Newbury, or the cold collation which will, by his Lordship's kindness, be served beneath a marquée to be erected in the park. It is expected there will be a large attendance of Mark Masons on the occasion, and arrangements will be made for conveying them to Highclere immediately after the conclusion of the Provincial Lodge business. The interview having closed, the members of the deputation were, on the invitation of Lord Carnarvon, entertained at luncheon.

In connection with our report, last week, of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex:—for Bro. W. Tron 1573, as one of the Prov. G. Stewards, read Bro. W. Iron. At this meeting Bro. E. Gilbert was appointed Prov. G. Pursuivant, and Bro. W. S. Dunkley Prov. Assistant G. Pursuivant.

PRAYERS IN OUR LODGES.

HAVING been consulted by the Chaplains of some of our subordinate Lodges, in reference to their official duties, we take this opportunity of saying a few words in answer to the question, "Does the Institution of Freemasonry ever require or expect from any of her members the sacrifice of their religious convictions?" To this question we answer, without hesitation, No! never. As you all understand, every candidate for our mysteries, having professed his faith in God, is assured that nothing will be required of him incompatible with any duty he owes to his family, to his country, or to his Maker. Yet, notwithstanding this, we fear that there is more or less misapprehension in relation to this subject—some holding the view, that because a candidate is only required to profess a belief in God, therefore our religious services and work should never rise above an elementary belief in Deity. This is a great mistake, and entirely at variance with the past history of our Order, and of all her teachings and practice. While Freemasonry is not a religion, it is a profoundly religious Institution, having in all ages, according to our traditions, from the days of King Solomon, our traditional founder, down to the present hour, walked close beside the Immemorial Church of God. Thus, as the Handmaid of True Religion, she has become vitalised with Divine Truth, and in her teachings has ever followed her Heavenly Guide. The foundation-stone, as we were all taught upon first entering the Lodge, is Faith in a personal God, who hears and answers prayer; and all our Ritual, Symbolism, and Work, is intended to conduct the candidate by reason, by science, and by revelation as far as a human institution may, up "the World's great altar steps that lead from darkness up to God."

While we do not forget that by the exercise of Brotherly Love "Freemasonry unites men of every country, sect and opinion," yet we also remember, that guided by this same principle of Brotherly Love, she never represses and fetters the soul, nor seals the lips of any of her loyal sons in their aspirations and devotions to God their Maker. On the contrary Freemasonry impresses upon the neophyte, at every step, that great fact that he was created for the worship and glory of God; and not as "some would say, if they dared, that God exists for the sake of man."

Hence governed by these principles, but bound in the practice of them by the Rule of Charity:—whenever a Jewish brother, as he stands at our altars waiting for the promised Messiah, offers his prayers to the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, the Christian brother recognises the Ancient Faith of the chosen people of God. In like spirit, the devout Israelite joins with those who on bended knee offer their devotions to the Great Jehovah through the merits of the Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Jesus Christ our Lord. Again, although the religious convictions of some of our brothers have not brought them within the fellowship or communion of either of these organisations, yet these brothers profess the belief that from the youngest Apprentice to the Master who presides in the East, it is the duty of all to bow in lowly and adoring worship before that God in whom they have put their trust.

My brothers, let us urge upon you to guard this foundation principle of Freemasonry; for it is only in the exercise of the Spirit of Charity that we can hope for the perpetuation of our Order in a Christian land. If that sad day should ever come—which God forbid—when all reference to the Christian religion is eliminated from our Work and Ritual, and Christian prayers are no longer allowed in our Lodges, then genuine Freemasonry will disappear from among the Institutions of every Christian country; or if perchance it remain for a time, it will only be as a dead and putrefying body, alike offensive in the sight of God and man.—G.M. Lyman Klapp.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—It is difficult to determine what is the more trying to health, intense cold or excessive heat, though everybody knows that sudden transitions from the one to the other term with disease, which may in most instances be staved off by an early resort to these purifying, regulating, and strengthening Pills. This well-known and highly-esteemed medicine affords a safe and easy remedy for almost every constitutional wrong which climates, changes, or dietetic errors can engender, and effectually removes any weakness self-indulgent habits may have induced. In all conditions of the system bordering on disease indicated by apathy, listlessness, and restlessness, Holloway's Pills will prove especially serviceable in begetting a vivacity appreciated by both sound and sick.

The Masonic enthusiast who boasted he made a rule of attending at least one hundred celebrations during the year would find no difficulty in gratifying his wish during the next few weeks. This day (Saturday) the Provincial Grand Chapter of Middlesex meets at Harrow. On Tuesday next Brighton offers the attraction of the visit of the M.W. the Grand Master, who will instal his brother the Duke of Connaught in the chair as Provincial Grand Master of Sussex. On Saturday, the 26th instant, the prizes will be distributed to the scholars at the Boys' Institution, at Wood Green. On Monday, the 28th instant, the enthusiast may visit Aylesbury, to attend the Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks, or he may join the Mark Master Masons of the Province of Middlesex and Surrey, at Red Lion Square. On Wednesday, the 30th instant, away to Brighton again, there to celebrate the Festival of "Our Boys." The following day H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is to be installed Grand Mark Master Mason, the ceremony to take place at the Freemasons' Tavern. On 7th July a choice can be made—Surrey or Kent—both these Provinces having selected that day for holding their annual meetings. Further particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight (Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre) has been presented, by the members of his mother lodge (Royal Gloucester, Southampton), with a Grand Deacon's jewel, as a mark of their gratification on his appointment to office in the Grand Lodge of England.

Bro. George Gardner, W.M. 2012, will be installed W.M. of the Chiswick Mark Lodge, 357, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge, to-day (Saturday), the 19th inst.

The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed at the Fidelity Lodge of Instruction, No. 3, held at Bro. Silvester's, the Alfred Tavern, Roman Road, Barnsbury, on Wednesday, the 23rd inst., at 8 p.m. Bro. L. Solomon, P.M. 1732, will act as Installing Master, and Bro. W. J. Ferguson, P.M. 177, &c. (Preceptor), as Director of Ceremonies.

The Domatic Lodge, No. 177, will celebrate its summer festival on Friday, 2nd July. Kempton Park, Sunbury, has been selected for these festivities, and it is anticipated there will be a large and influential gathering to support the Worshipful Master in this the one hundredth year of the Lodge's existence.

Bro. Spiegel P.M. has accepted an invitation from the Ranelagh Lodge, to deliver his lecture on "The Origin of Freemasonry," on Friday next, the 25th instant, at the Seven Bells, Queen-street, Hammersmith.

Here we are clannish. The Frenchman hates the German; the Irishman plots against the English; the Yankee suspects the Briton; mountain chains limit our sympathies; rivers determine our antagonism, and imaginary lines sunder us. There nations, kindreds, peoples and tongues dwell together in happiest fellowship. Here caste rules us. Patrician cannot mix with Plebeian; the one cries with sneering contempt "common people!" the other mutters "privileged classes!" There, the prince and the peasant, the capitalist and the hodsman, the merchant and the menial, meet in fellowship. Here, sectarian feelings alienate; the Jew and the Gentile still stand apart; the Catholic and the Protestant are but resting on their arms; the Episcopalian gives over the Dissenter to uncovenanted mercies; the Calvinist hedges himself in with the five points, and the Baptist dwells in castellated isolation surrounded by a moat whose waters no drawbridge ever spans; there, heaven's charity has fused those diverse masses into a divine kinship, and behold how beautiful the unity in which they dwell! Such is the spirit of Masonry. It was born in the heart of God. Like the Pentecostal fire, it fuses Parthians and Medes, dwellers in Mesopotamia, Cretes and Arabians, Jews and Gentiles, unto unity. Oh that it might burn more fiercely until the antagonism of race, the hatreds of creed, and the rivalries of business shall disappear, and the pure gold of brotherly love remain.—Bro. R. K. Smith.

GRAND LODGE OF NEW YORK.

THE one hundred and fifth annual session of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons in the State of New York was opened on Tuesday, the 1st instant, at two o'clock, with the full and impressive ceremonial of the Craft. While the great organ, reinforced by a military band, pealed forth the strains of a grand processional march, composed specially for the occasion by Brother George W. Morgan, the Grand Officers, with Grand Master Frank R. Lawrence at their head, entered and marched in solemn procession up the centre aisle, and assumed their respective places in the Grand East. All the Officers were clothed in the imperial purple of the Fraternity, while many were decorated with magnificent jewels, blazing with precious stones. Among the distinguished dignitaries in attendance were General Charles Roome; J. Edward Simmons, president of the Board of Education; ex-Mayor Edmund L. Judson of Albany; Speaker of the Assembly, James W. Husted; Clerk of the Senate, John W. Vrooman; Jesse B. Anthony, William A. Brodie, James Ten Eyck, John Hodge, Washington E. Connor, Justice John J. Gormain, Frederick A. Burnham, Colonel Edward M. L. Ehlers, and Past Grand Masters John L. Lewis, Clinton F. Paige, Joseph D. Evans, Benjamin Flagler, and James Gibson. The Rev. Robert Collyer, one of the Grand Chaplains, offered an impressive prayer, followed by the overture to "William Tell" on the great organ. The opening ceremonies concluded with the "Hallelujah Chorus" (organ and military band). After Grand Master Lawrence had declared the annual communication of the Grand Lodge opened in ample form, the entire assemblage of over nine hundred persons joined in singing "Old Hundred." The effect was grand; the great organ and the band of St. Cecile Lodge, in unison with the voices, producing a volume of sound that rolled through the hall and could be heard distinctly in the street. The large Grand Lodge room was filled to overflowing, delegates from every Lodge in the jurisdiction being present; in addition to these were the representatives of nearly all the Grand Bodies with which the Grand Lodge of New York is in fraternal relations. Grand Master Lawrence in his address commented on the bitter quarrel existing between the Grand Lodges of England and Quebec. He said:—"While fully believing in the American doctrine of the supreme and exclusive jurisdiction of a Grand Lodge within the territory which it controls, I do not consider that that doctrine should extend to the length of rendering Masonic bodies previously enjoying a lawful existence within such territory clandestine and illegal, because of their refusal to abandon their original allegiance and place themselves under the authority of the newly-created Grand Lodge. The Grand Master of Masons in this State in 1879, in addressing this Grand Lodge upon the subject of the somewhat similar issue then raised by Quebec as against the Grand Lodge of Scotland, expressed the opinion that the general current of authority is opposed to such a construction of the rights of a newly-created Grand Lodge, and in that view of the subject your present Grand Master entirely concurs. If this is the correct view of this question involved in this controversy, we cannot endorse the action of Quebec, but must deplore the fact that that Grand Body should have thought it necessary to proceed to the severance of fraternal relations, rather than await the time when the Lodges in question should find it for their interest to place themselves within the folds of its protection." The Grand Master detailed the numerous public ceremonials performed by him during the year, and paid feeling tributes to the distinguished brethren who had passed away since the last meeting of the Grand Lodge. A résumé of the business of the year was also given. The Grand Master referred at length to the determined effort made to wipe out the enormous debt with which the Fraternity was burdened. For this object, he said, he had received contributions amounting to 76,000 dols., and out of the ordinary revenues the trustees had paid about 36,000 dols. of the total indebtedness. The Hall and Asylum Fund was therefore better by considerably over 100,000 dols. than it had been a year before. If the good work was to continue, it was the duty of the Grand Lodge to devise some practicable method whereby individual effort should give place to concerted action, to the end that the debt may soonest and most rapidly be paid, the Craft relieved from its labours and the great purpose undertaken accomplished. The address, which included a number of other topics, occupied nearly three hours in delivery. After receiving the annual reports of the Grand Officers, John C. Graves was appointed Commissioner of Appeals in place of William T. Woodruff deceased.

Empire.—The increasing popularity of an entertainment comprising a musical spectacular extravaganza was fully shown last Saturday, when the "Palace of Pearl" was received with every sign of appreciation. Messrs. W. Younge and Alfred Murray are responsible for the libretto, and Messrs. Jakobowski and Stanislaus for the music. A fanciful story illustrates how a long existing feud between the King of Etheria and the Queen of Idyllia cannot be terminated—

> "Till once again on earth is seen
> A living, loving Fairy Queen;
> Till brother can his sister wed
> This hateful feud shall ne'er be dead."

This happy result is brought about by a young prince and princess belonging to the rival nations, becoming attached to each other. The King and Queen also arrange to marry, and by this means eventually a declaration of peace is brought about. Although there is no assumption to dramatic interest in the plot, there is no lack of interest for both ear and eye. The scenery is pretty and picturesque, while the duets, songs, and concerted pieces revive pleasant remembrances. The most attractive items in the programme are, however, the two grand ballets, which take place respectively in the second and third acts. The Moorish ballet is a happy combination of scimitars and symmetry; while the graceful formation of groups add greatly to the attraction of the scene. Here Mdlle. Luna figures prominently, and dances with that grace and ease that is always a prominent feature in connection with the ballets at the Empire. The grand Lace Ballet in the final act, with Mdlle. Pertoldi as the principal dancer, is even more novel than the former; the dresses and decorations showing the materials employed to the greatest advantage. At the conclusion of each of the ballets Monsieur Rertrand was called before the curtain to receive the congratulations of the audience. The support accorded to the extravaganza was well sustained. Mr. Charles Cartwright was exceptionally funny as the King, while unexpected vocal powers was shown by Mr. M. Calico as the Troubadour. Miss Grace Huntley, the Prince, was as graceful as ever. The best songs undoubtedly are allotted to Miss Wadman, as the Princess, and she played the part delightfully. "O, Bird of Love," was exceedingly well given by this lady, as also was the duet that follows, with the Prince, "They rave about the beauties of the night." Miss Susie Vaughan displayed her talents as Queen Amarath; while Miss F. Wentworth sings prettily. Mons. Marius, as the Prince's tutor, has a good part, from which he elicits much humour. Other parts are well sustained by Mr. A. B. Tapping, as the King's Adviser; Mr. George Temple, as the Moorish Governor; and Miss Agnes Oliver, as his European Wife No. 1. The scenery, by Messrs. Perkins, Spong, Banks, Bruce Smith, and C. C. Brooke, is admirably painted, and with a good chorus and orchestra, everything that is possible has been done to ensure success for the "Palace of Pearl." At the conclusion of the extravaganza the principal artistes and the authors received a most enthusiastic call.

Royalty.—The summer season at this cosy little theatre has been inaugurated by Messrs. E. J. Henley and Holmes, and they commenced proceedings with a new four-act comedy, entitled "Jack." The comedy is one in which old materials have been freely used, but the work has been written up to date. However, the basement of the story seems hardly vigorous enough to sustain all that rests upon it; still, on the opening night, such strong support was afforded the piece that the weakness of the foundation seemed perceptible to but a few. Two young fellows—Jack Beamish, artist, and Noel Blake, composer—living together, have, prior to the assent of the curtain, made the acquaintance of an eccentric baronet, of whose death news is brought during the first act. The two young gentlemen, with Blake's cousin Madge, have been summoned to attend the reading of the will; this duly takes place in the second act. The result showing that the baronet has disappointed his relations—Lady Blanchmayne, her daughter, and Major Spotswhyte, and has left his estate to Noel Blake, whose genius he recognises; he also makes some substantial acknowledgment of his good wishes towards Jack Beamish and Madge. In the first act Noel Blake has been promised the hand of Madge, and his love for her we take to be genuine; but when he comes into the fortune that has been bestowed on him, he throws over the girl to whom he has plighted his troth. Some excuse, perhaps, may be found for him in the fact that he desires to get into society, and this desire makes him fall a victim to the scheming of Lady Blanchmayne and the Major. Blake insults his earlier friends, and gives the order to shoot a favourite dog belonging to Jack. This results in his old friends leaving him, and Madge, accompanied by an old housekeeper, returns to their old lodgings. In the last act the lawyer visits Jack, and announces that another will of the baronet's has been found, which disinherits Noel Blake and leaves the money to a son of the deceased's sister. This son proves to be Jack, who has by this time been successful in gaining the affections of Madge. The last act may be considered the stumbling-block of the piece, but as it is short the audience may feel inclined to overlook its weakness. At the conclusion of the play loud calls for the author were given, and Mr. Eben Plympton introduced Mrs. Harry Beckett. In this case the success of the piece was undoubtedly attributable to the acting. Mr. E. J. Henley, as Noel Blake, was somewhat too forcible; but Mr. Eben Plympton played the part of Jack Beamish with much power and feeling. Great praise is due to Miss Dorothy Deane, who was most earnest and effective as the simple-minded Madge. Miss Carlotta Leclerq imparted a due amount of self-conscious dignity to the match-making mother, Lady Blanchmayne, and the housekeeper was ably sustained by Miss M. A. Gilford. Other parts were allotted to Messrs. A. White, M. Crackles, P. Cunningham, M. Drew, W. Compton, and Miss Marie Williams. "Jack" was followed by a travestie, by Byron McGuiness, entitled "Mephisto." This trifle is framed in a prologue and three scenes. New music has been supplied by Messrs. J. Caldicott and Ernest Bucalossi; but "Mephisto" turns out to be but a tame affair, the burden of sustaining it falling on the two principles. Mr. E. J. Henley's imitation of Mr. Irving was far below the average of such attempts; not nearly so good as that of Mr. Dixey's, at the Gaiety. Miss Constance Gilchrist was warmly received, as Marguerite, and earned several encores for her singing and graceful dancing. Other parts were entrusted to Messrs. M. Crackles, M. Drew, and Miss Madge Stavart. At the conclusion of the travestie a call for the author was responded to by Mr. E. J. Henley coming forward and announcing that that gentleman was not in the house, an announcement that was received with some slight expression of dissatisfaction.

Avenue.—The genial manager of this theatre, Mr. R. D'Albertson, announces his annual matinée; this will take place on Wednesday, the 23rd instant, when the beneficiaire will receive help from several well-known artistes.

Tuesday—University Chapter. Thursday—Mr. Merrion's Ball, Commissariat and Transport Staff Dinner.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO BRIGHTON.

AMIDST "ten thousand" welcomes from the loyal residents of Brighton, and of the crowds of visitors who at this time of the year flock into the queen of southern watering places, our Most Worshipful Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales paid his promised official visit, on Tuesday last, for the purpose of installing his august brother the Duke of Connaught as Provincial Grand Master of Sussex Freemasons. Everything combined to render this royal visit an event to be remembered in the annals of Brighton history, and in the history, too, of the Craft in which the Heir Apparent and other members of the Royal Household take so deep and genuine an interest. This solicitude for the welfare of Freemasonry is so frequently alluded to in the post-prandial speeches to which it is our lot to listen at Masonic banquets that the brethren need nothing here to impress them with the fact in a general way. But when an event of such imposing magnitude as that of Tuesday last occurs, something more than a passing reference to it is demanded at the hands of a journal especially associated with, and essentially representing, the welfare of the Craft. Nearly ten years have elapsed since it was our privilege to assist at a ceremony similar in its character, though scarcely so momentous, as that which is reported in our columns of to-day, when the Grand Master visited Norwich for the purpose of installing Lord Suffield as Provincial Grand Master of Norfolk. Many of the "veterans" will recollect that during that self-same week the late Duke of Albany honoured the Prov. Grand Lodge of Wiltshire with his presence, at the annual meeting of that Province held at Warminster, under the presidency of its respected chief, the Lord Methuen. Ever since that time, up to the date of the initiation of Prince Albert Victor at the Royal Alpha Lodge, some twelve months ago, our Grand Master and his royal brothers have manifested a desire on every available occasion that has presented itself of personally identifying themselves with the Order; and we have it still fresh in our memories how that the Duke of Connaught—who on Tuesday was installed as Grand Master of the Province that bears his name—has likewise displayed his zeal and assiduity in Masonry by presiding at Festivals, both of the Boys' and Girls' Institutions. These auspicious occasions are even yet looked back upon as pleasant reminiscences by those who were fortunate enough to witness them, but all have been far eclipsed by the splendid and brilliant gathering of the present week. Brighton broke into the most beaming of smiles on the day appointed for the pageant which, other than in a purely Masonic sense, was to render it one of the most memorable in the history of the town. "Royal weather" in its truest form graced the whole of the proceedings from beginning to end, and amidst the most genial gleams of sunshine that have been vouchsafed to us in this one of the coldest of "leafy months" we have experienced for many years; the whole place was bathed in a flood of colour, sunshine, animation, and enthusiasm. From end to end of the route traversed by the Royal Party, the utmost loyalty was exemplified by the dense masses of spectators on either side of the two miles of "front"—as Brightonians endearingly call their grand and unrivalled Esplanade—and this is all the more significant, from our own point of view, from the fact that the visit was not in its usual way a municipal one, but essentially Masonic. True, the local municipality was represented by the presence of the Mayor and several members of the Corporation, by whom the Royal guests were most cordially welcomed to the town; but, after all, the occasion was one of intrinsic interest, and exceptionally so, to the Craft. On their arrival at the railway station the Royal visitors were presented with an address of welcome from the Corporation of Brighton, which was read by the Town Clerk (Bro. F. J. Tillstone), the text of which was as follows:—

To His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G.—May it please your Royal Highness,—We, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Brighton, respectfully offer to your Royal Highness a sincere and cordial welcome to our town, and we desire to express the great pleasure it affords the people of Brighton that you are on this occasion accompanied by your son H.R.H. the Prince Victor Edward of Wales, and your brother H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Earl of Sussex. The inhabitants of the county of Sussex generally, as well as those who are members of the Masonic body, were much gratified on learning that H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught had been appointed to, and had accepted, the office of Grand Master of the Freemasons of this Province, and it is a great additional gratification to them that your Royal Highness has been graciously pleased to intimate your intention of personally performing, in this Borough, the ceremony of installing in office the new Provincial Grand Master. We beg, in our name and that of the inhabitants of Brighton, to assure your Royal Highness of the loyalty and affection which we, in common with all Her Majesty's subjects, entertain for Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, for your Royal Highness, and for the other members of the Royal Family.

The Prince of Wales made the following reply:—

Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen,—I thank you sincerely for the cordial welcome which you have given me here to-day, and for the kind words in which you allude to the presence of my son and brother. I had great satisfaction in offering for my brother's acceptance the post of Provincial Grand Master of Sussex, and it has afforded me much gratification to be able to perform the duty of installing him into his important office. I have to express to you my warm acknowledgments for the loyal terms in which you allude to the Queen, and the members of my family; and let me add that these sentiments are in perfect harmony with the kind reception which has invariably been accorded to me by the inhabitants of Brighton on all of those occasions upon which it has been my good fortune to visit this town.

Then, amidst the cheers of the privileged ones upon the platform, and the larger crowd outside, the procession moved away to Hove, by way of Queen's Road, West Street, and King's Road, travelling as far as The Drive, Old Steine, Castle Square, and the Pavilion. As we have said, all along the route the royal and Masonic party was received with every demonstration of welcome, though perhaps the enthusiasm at no point of the route broke into the boisterous ebullition we are accustomed to in London and other large towns. The Dome and Corn Exchange were elaborately decorated, and the spectacle presented at the installation when Bro. His Royal Highness Arthur William Patrick Albert, Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, and Earl of Sussex, was installed amidst the full blaze of that ceremonial, and in the presence of over two thousand members of the Craft, was imposing in the extreme. The opinion expressed by the residents in Brighton accustomed to take part in public demonstrations there is, that "nothing heretofore witnessed in the Dome has surpassed the picturesqueness of the scene at this period, and it will long live in the memory of those who were privileged to be present." The ceremony attracted to itself an interest and importance quite unique from the spectacle of the installation of one Royal brother by the other; and our Grand Master in his speeches touched the keystone of sympathy of all when he declared that while Freemasonry confined itself to its grand principles of Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth, and free from the entanglements of religion and politics, it was "bound to flourish throughout the realms of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen." Every credit is due to the brethren upon whose shoulders devolved the duty of making the arrangements necessary for so important an event. On the arrival of the procession at the Pavillion grounds a numerous company, consisting principally of ladies, attired in the prettiest summer costumes, had taken up "coigns o' vantage" whence a view of the approach could be commanded, and the scene presented was of the most picturesque and animated description. The guard of honour was appropriately supplied by the 1st Sussex (Brighton) Volunteers, under the command of Bro. Captain Hallett, and the band of the regiment kept up a running fire of excellent music prior to the arrival of the guests. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, and Prince Albert Victor, with their attendants, alighted at the main entrance to the Pavilion, and some little time was spent there in clothing for the ceremony of the day. Soon after after half-past twelve the Royal party, with a perfect galaxy of Grand and Provincial Grand Officers, crossed in procession from the Pavilion rooms to the Dome, amidst strains of martial music, the whole of the brethren being uncovered with the exception of the Grand Master, who frequently raised his hat in acknowledgment of the waving of handkerchiefs by the ladies and other demonstrations of loyal feeling. Inside the Pavilion, the whole of the property of which had been placed at the disposal of the Craft, the scene was one of imposing and picturesque grandeur. The Committee, which included the Provincial Grand Officers of Sussex for the year, and the Worshipful Masters of the twenty-five Lodges in the Province, had furnished and embellished the apartments in a sumptuous manner, befitting the occasion, the details being carried out by a sub-Committee, consisting of Brothers J. Henderson Scott, Gerard Ford, J. M. Kidd, C. J. Smith, V. P. Freeman Provincial Grand Secretary, and B. Burfield Assistant Provincial Grand Secretary. The entrance hall and vestibule were embowered with a perfect parterre of flowers, foliage plants and ferns, whilst the corridors and entrances to the Dome were draped with old gold lace curtains, and rich blue lace draperies. The staircases at both ends of the corridor were veiled by large mirrors, in which were reflected pretty groups of flowering and foliage plants of dazzling colour and beauty. Provincial Grand Lodge was fitted and appointed in the most approved manner for the carrying out of the ceremonial, of which a report is given elsewhere in our columns, and it is only necessary for our readers to glance over the names of the most prominent and distinguished Officers present to enable them to form an idea of the magnificent and imposing spectacle that was presented when Prov. Grand Lodge had assembled. The Grand Lodge Officers in their splendid regalia and resplendent jewels filled the orchestra, forming a coup d'œil such as has perhaps only been surpassed once, namely—at the Installation of our Grand Master himself, at the Royal Albert Hall, in 1875. To say that the ceremony was perfectly rendered would be to make use of a trite and hackneyed phrase to those who can realise the character and composition of such an assemblage; even those who were not present can readily form an idea of the effect which such a gathering must inevitably have produced. On being proclaimed and saluted with the customary Masonic honours, a flourish of trumpets echoed the fact that the Duke had been duly installed as Provincial Grand Master of Sussex. The investiture of Prov. Grand Officers was then proceeded with, and the ceremony, which lasted about an hour and a half, was concluded with the ancient rites so familiar to, and appreciated by, the Craft.

It was no matter for surprise that the event should have produced quite a flutter of pleasant excitement amongst the brethren of the Province of Sussex, for no appointment could have been presented to them so agreeable to their feelings than that of the Earl of Sussex as the successor of the late lamented Sir Walter Burrell, whose decease in February last caused so wide and genuine a sense of regret. There is, of course, something peculiarly appropriate in the Duke of Connaught holding the office of head of the Masonic body of Sussex, and it calls vividly to mind the services rendered to the Order by the First Duke of Sussex during the thirty years he held the position of G. Master. The first Royal Duke of Sussex was initiated at the close of the last century, and was elected grand Master on the resignation of the Prince Regent in 1813. In that year he united under him all the Freemasons in England, and the Craft made steady progress, though of course little in comparison with the strides it has made since the accession to the supreme Head of our present Most Worshipful Grand Master the Prince of Wales. As soon as the date of the installation was fixed there was an eager solicitation for tickets, and thus the assemblage was of the most numerous and representative character ever witnessed in this part of England. All parts of the United Kingdom and, indeed, the Dependencies of the British Crown were represented, and in its general conception and management the ceremony and attendant rejoicings were carried out in the most splendid, dignified, and befitting manner. The luncheon which followed was a pattern of elegance, luxury, and refinement, and the after speeches, though brief, were interesting, as reflecting the credit that was justly due to the hospitality of the Province of Sussex, and the excellence of the arrangements made by the Prov. Grand Officers and all by whom they were associated. After the departure of the Royal visitors a garden party, on a most extensive and récherché scale, was given in the Pavilion Gardens, the varied character of the entertainment furnishing a most enjoyable finale to a day of bright and conspicuous splendour and interest in the annals of Sussex Freemasonry.

A SUGGESTION.

WHILST all Sussex is tingling with the glow of enthusiasm and satisfaction aroused by the installation of his Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught as its Provincial Grand Master, a thought occurs to us, in view of the Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, which is to be held next week at Brighton, under the presidency of Lord Suffield. Not only were the whole of the twenty-nine Lodges in the Province represented at the stirring event of last Tuesday, but members of the Craft from all parts of the Kingdom and many of the Colonies were also present; and, seeing that the Boys' Festival is so speedily to follow, at the same town and place, what better or more fitting opportunity to immortalise the occasion than to seal it by some lasting memento of the Duke's acceptance of office, by raising a permanent addition to the funds of the Boys' School, the Festival of which is fixed to take place on Wednesday next? We venture to suggest to the brethren of the Province that a more graceful or practical outcome of Tuesday's gathering could not be imagined than that some substantial aid should be ensured to the approaching Festival, nor one that would give more real and genuine satisfaction to the executive of the Institution at Wood Green, who are not too "strong" in funds at the present time. Surely amongst the "two thousand" distinguished members of the Craft who were privileged to be present on the occasion we have described there might be found a sufficient number to subscribe collectively a sum amounting, at any rate, to a thousand pounds, in order to create a fund which might be appropriately entitled the "Sussex pile," or perhaps better still the "Connaught pile," in honour of the recently-installed Provincial Grand Master, whereby the Province could secure a "Perpetual Presentation" to the Boys' School. Lord Suffield, the Right Wor. Provincial Grand Master for Norfolk, has not only kindly consented to preside over the Brighton Festival, but also at the Annual Distribution of prizes amongst "Our Boys" at Woodgreen to-day; and it may not be beyond the bounds of possibility—his Lordship being a personal friend of our M.W. Grand Master and of the Duke of Connaught—that one of those illustrious Rulers of the Craft might be able to spare a brief space, amidst their multitudinous engagements, to pay another, though flying, visit to Brighton in connection with the Boys' Festival. Of course, we do not lose sight of the lavish and unstinted hospitality extended by our brethren in Sussex to the large number of visitors who crowded into Brighton, on their invitation, last Tuesday. The splendid reception accorded to them must have involved no inconsiderable expense, both individually and collectively; but in order to signalize the event, which was undoubtedly the most momentous and auspicious that has ever graced the Province, would it not be a grand result to mark it by some substantial and perpetual monument in the shape of a distinctly special addition to the funds of the Institution whose Festival is to be celebrated in their midst next week? We know of many who would gladly subscribe towards such a scheme as we propose, and we earnestly suggest to the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. J. H. Scott, that in the event of his undertaking the office of Treasurer to such a fund, he would be readily and liberally met by members of the Craft, not only in the Province of Sussex, but throughout the country, who are solicitous for the welfare of the Boys' School. Bro. Freeman, the Provincial Grand Secretary, would not begrudge the extra labour imposed upon him by acknowledging contributions to the Fund—although we opine that the additional work would be somewhat heavy; but in view of the lasting credit which would be reflected upon the Province by the embodiment of such a scheme the reward would be amply sufficient to compensate for any such temporary effort on the part of the Provincial Grand Officers who might assist in carrying it to a successful issue. It is urged that in these days of "universal depression" the brethren cannot be expected to be constantly diving their hands into their pockets for special purposes; but it does seem to us that this would be a peculiarly proud result for Sussex to achieve,—to mark the accession of a member of the Royal Family to the Grand Mastership of the Province, and as a graceful compliment to the Duke who was installed under such brilliant auspices a few days ago. We sincerely hope the matter may be taken up actively in the few days that remain prior to the Festival, and that we may be enabled to congratulate Bro. Binckes, the indefatigable Secretary of the Wood-green Institution, upon a "whip round" amongst the brethren of Sussex and their friends which will strengthen his hands, and those of the executive generally, in carrying on the admirable work which they have so closely at heart. It may be that an exceptional phase of the subject is that which is shadowed forth in a letter by Bro. Binckes, published in another column, namely that the political crisis now at hand might have a prejudicial effect in relation to the support likely to be accorded to the Boys' Festival. We sincerely hope such may not be the case, and that Brother Binckes's apprehensions may be unfounded. At any rate, such fears may be in a great measure dispelled if the suggestion we have ventured to offer in the above remarks is taken into the serious consideration of the brethren, not only of Sussex but of the Craft generally.

MASONRY POINTS EVER UPWARDS.

An Address delivered by Rev. R. W. Hill, D.D., at the Dedication of the New Hall of Multnomah Lodge No. 1, at Oregon City, Oregon, 22nd February, 1886

IT is eminently proper at such a time as this, when we have assembled to dedicate a hall to the purposes of Masonry, to speak somewhat of the aims and purposes of the Order. It has numbered among its adherents so many of the wise and good men of the past, and has at the present time so many of those who are counted worthy of honour, that there must be something in Masonry worthy of regard. Men of the stamp of "the father of his country," whose natal day we have chosen for our ceremonies, would never consent to Masonic fellowship were the Institution not doing good in the world. What then is Masonry in its work and aim?

It may be said that the character of Masonry has been so often made the theme of oration and argument that it would seem as though the time has passed when it were necessary to speak as to its works or its principles. It has been well said that "from its origin to the present hour Masonry has been a true friend and servant of humanity. Philanthropy has been the guiding star in its firmament, and its whole career has been an effort to more firmly establish virtue and morality as the dominating forces of life." How could it be otherwise when we strive to inculcate in the hearts of all a love for God and for fellow-man? The first of the charges laid down in the old constitution says that "A Mason is bound by his tenure to obey the moral law; and if he rightly understands the art, he will never be a stupid atheist nor an irreligious libertine." The second charge pointed out the fact that the Mason must be "a peaceable subject to the civil powers, wherever he resides or works, and is never to be concerned in plots and conspiracies against the peace and welfare of the nation, nor to behave himself undutifully to inferior magistrates." Then, too, the sixth charge enjoins the Mason to "act as becomes a moral and wise man." From these charges it will be seen that no man can be a true Mason without being true to his Creator, his family, his neighbour and his country.

Masonry rests upon three strong pillars: Justice, Brotherhood, and Truth. With these its sure supports it is no wonder that the Institution has been enabled to enlist in its support good and true men in every age, and to withstand the storms of time, and the efforts of adversaries to overthrow it. It matters not what may be the age of Masonry, whether we trace it to those older mysteries which held and concealed the truths of God's nature from the multitude, or whether we find the origin in the middle ages, when modern civilization was coming to the birth. In any case Masonry has transmitted to us a system which contains much to benefit humanity, and confer a blessing on its votaries. It could not be otherwise than of service to humanity, when we reflect that its cardinal principles are those which have done most for the advancement of liberty and law. To do good to man, and to seek the uplifting of the race through the exercise of the general arts and the broad diffusion of truth to those who are worthy to receive it—this has been its aim and this its work. When the race was struggling upward from barbarism to the heights of present civilization one of the chief forces in its advancement was the presence and power of the highest truth. When the people have felt the importance of knowledge, and of noble things, it has been an indication that the struggle has resulted in a victory for the better elements of humanity. It is one of the evidences of civilization that men turn from the pursuit of selfish ends and give themselves to the contemplation of that which is for the benefit of the race rather than of the individual. Masonry has exemplified this, and has been a leader in the path of true progress. When the balefires of error were burning most brightly, leading men to darkness and gloom, Masonry set on high the light of truth, and won men to the "True Light," which lighteth to the Temple of God all who receive its blessed influence. It can be said, without fear of successful controversy, that it has been always helpful when men most needed the strong hand of a mighty power to hold them safely amid the temptations which would turn them to error and ungodliness. In the critical hours of European history, when the hearts of men failed them for fear, and when with bated breath the wise and good looked for the overthrow of the institutions on whose existence the welfare of civilization was dependent, then it was that Masonry gave comfort and hope to those who else would have despaired. The doctrines of a pure theology were so intertwined with the dogma of Masonry, that for a time leaders of the church itself found in the shelter of the Lodge a deposit and safe-keeping of many most precious truths. It is within bounds to say that the spirit of inquiry fostered by Masonry gave added impetus to the keen thirst for knowledge which was a feature of the Middle Age, and it will perhaps also be admitted by the student of history, that, in the tyled precincts of the Lodge, truths were taught, which uttered elsewhere would have been the signal for the exercise of all the honours of the auto d' fe. To such men as Roger Bacon and his fellow-mystics much of the progress of to-day is due, for they opened the paths which have led us to light, and these were the men who upheld the mysteries in the Middle Age.

Masonry in Oregon occupies to-day a commanding position with an ever-widening circle of influence. Thirty-seven years ago, when this Lodge first received its charter, the members of the Craft resident in Oregon were few indeed. But the handful they gathered here in Oregon City has become the host who to-day bear up the Masonic institutions. What wondrous changes the surviving brethren of this Lodge have witnessed since that first meeting in 1848! The dim trail of the pioneer has broadened into the mighty highway of empire, and those of that little band who still are with us have seen Oregon become a name worthy of place in the roll of States. No longer so remote from the remainder of our nation that months of weary travel are required to reach these shores by the sundown seas, as when the pioneers came, but closely linked by the ties of steam and electricity to the east, so that one may take part in this dedication to-night and in a single week be with his brethren and friends in the States on the Atlantic seaboard. In those days we were the extreme west, but now, as we look from these shores of the Occident still far to the westward, we realize the growth of our country and know that far onward around the great Alaskan arch the star-spangled flag is the symbol of liberty and progress. Now from the mystic Orient there comes to us the returning wave of the human tides which have swept around the earth. Our peerless State has developed into all that those who struggled here in the early days to save it to our country promised it would become. Yes, and they now say that even their prophetic vision saw not one-half of all that we have since become.

The few people who then were here as the pioneers of American civilization have become a great multitude, and with the tide of humanity which has flowed to this region have come all of the comforts and conveniences of the far east. The rude architecture of those days has been displaced by beautiful and finished workmanship on every side. The dreary distances which separated the Willamette from the unforgotten homes and friends of the east have been annihilated by the railroad, and the trail which the pioneer made with so much of toil, but so much of courage as well, has served to conduct to us the monarch of the rail—the iron horse. To-day we are in direct connection with the heart of our country, and in some respects we have greater facilities for rapid travel than any one then could command. And still with rapid strides we move along the pathway of progress. As the States along the Atlantic now dominate all the regions which must reach the nations through them, so we in time will control the trade of all the vast interior whose natural route for foreign commerce lies through our seaports.

Our mineral resources are beginning to add largely to the wealth of the State; our fertile soil is becoming a very garden by the skilled labour of our farmers; hundreds of thriving towns and villages are dotting our State like "the stars which stud the universal dome," and what with the other resources of the State, and the many enterprises reaching out in all directions, we can surely see the marks of prosperity and promise for the future. Hail to the pioneers! for all of this bright present has been won by the toil and self-denial of the hardy men and women who came here in those early days.

In this retrospect we have seen that there has been a splendid growth in all directions, but in nothing has that growth surpassed that which lies inside the pale of Masonry. The feeble band who first secured the memorable charter from Missouri have grown to be a mighty host, and with each year the influence and power for good has increased, until to-day there is no portion of the great North-west which does not feel the beneficent influence of Masonry. Its charities are not to be measured by the limits of County or State, but in even the remotest regions to the north, and the islands to the westward, where our brethren have gone, or from where the cry of distress has been heard, there, too, has been felt the blessed effects of a true and pure charity. It is not necessary to remind you that our charity is broad and far-reaching, for you, my brethren of Multnomah Lodge, have felt and participated in this beautiful and blessed act. It is for those who ask of us a raison d'être that I have spoken of Masonic charity. One of the first lessons taught to the Masonic candidate is this one of relief to the distressed and worthy, and that it is taught in a solemn way which can never be forgotten, is proven by the breadth and sweep of Masonic relief. Faith and Hope and Charity are the blessed trio to the true Mason, but we know that when faith is lost in sight, and hope ends in fruition, then still endureth charity, the noblest bond of union between earth and heaven.

In dedicating this hall to Masonry we desire to bear our testimony to the faith which has been handed down to us since Masonry began; that all things which are pure, and all things which are lovely and of good repute should constitute the chief stones of the Masonic edifice and occupy the chief place in the Mason's affections. If there is anything which is low and vile, and of the earth earthy, of these things Masons are taught to beware. To lift up the poor and distressed, and extend the hand of charity to those who are in need of sympathy, to bring gladness to the hearts filled with sorrow, and to lighten the burdens of care and toil, these are the things which Masonry teaches, and these are the things which the examples of the best and wisest always illustrate. We set this Masonic home apart from the busy rush and whirl of life, that here we may come for a brief season and rest in the society of kindred spirits, and here shake off the trammels of business and give ourselves to the pursuit of wisdom. By our close connection with all that pertains to humanity, we are enabled to perform something which will be of benefit to those who are looking to us for aid and enlightenment. It is the pride of Masonry that is ever at work for humanity, and in the hall here set apart the teaching which is to be given to those who come knocking at its door will be in the line of that which is most effective for human advancement. Alas! that the lessons are not always remembered, and that in some cases they are altogether lost; but we rejoice that in almost every instance men are made better for the instruction which Masonry gives.

Masonry is the friend of all phases of truth, and the Mason who is true to his vows is always an unflinching advocate of that which his conscience and his researches have taught him to be the truth. Masonry therefore dedicates this hall to Truth. In the whole round of human life the tenets of Masonry have a place, and must do their part in the development and perfection of human character, and when that work falls short of this ideal of excellence, we who are Masons are certainly not using to the full the advantages which are put within the reach of the Craft. There never was a time in the history of the race when it was more necessary to be true to our highest convictions than the present, for with the march of intellect there have been many things promulgated which are apt to harm him who does not look at all sides of what ispresented. I think that the temptations of this age are greater than those of any that have hitherto dawned upon humanity, and for this reason it is necessary to be on guard, lest we be led into error.

But can it be said that we have an influence which is religious in its nature? Masonry can know no tenets which are divorced from true religion. From the youngest Entered Apprentice to the Mason who is crowned with years and honours the members of the Craft feel the influence and acknowlege the necessity of a pure worship of the Creator. Prayer is the alpha and omega of the ritual, and in every great and important undertaking in life Masons are taught to invoke the Divine blessing. When Masonry is divorced from true religion it will be a sad day for all who love the Craft, and should such a time ever come it will herald the speedy dissolution of the Order which nothing else can destroy.

Perhaps you will accuse me of propounding a novelty when I say that Masonry has dealings with political science; but Masonry has relations with all sides of human life, and as much of our weal and woe depends upon proper government, it is one of the privileges of Masonry to instruct men in all their duties, so that they may do a good part in the organization of governments founded on equal rights. No one doubts that true statesmanship seeks to place intelligence and patriotism in the forefront of good citizenship, and it is an old saying that the best citizen is that one who knows enough about his country's institutions to admire them. And this it is which Masonry strives to teach. Men are to be made familiar with the great cardinal doctrines which underlie good government, that they may be hearty supporters of law and order; for you will remember that Masonry has no countenance for anything which has the flavour of treason or riot. It is a principle which every Master is required to inculcate, so that no man can be a good Mason and not at the same time be a good citizen. Here, then, is the relation which Masonry sustains to political science, not to use it to build up the fortunes of any man or set of men, but to strive through it to make men better for the Service of the State, and more fit for usefulness in every capacity. By making the state secure and by inspiring a love of country, because country is governed by laws of justice and equality; by discountenancing all that savours of disorder, or that is calculated to inflame the passions of the mob; by doing these things Masonry is doing her true work in educating to citizenship.

And here let me say, in the name of Masonry, that any man who calls himself a Mason, whatever his rank or honours may be, who participates in acts of treason or riot is false to his vows. No word can fitly express the contempt of Masonry for those who for selfish purposes join hands with the subverters and destroyers of justice and right. False, stained with the guilt of treachery and wrong, for such men Masonry can have no shelter, and when these things are clearly established the temple gates will close against them for ever.

So, too, in the line of social truth, the progress of knowledge has led to the amelioration of many woes, but there still remains much to be accomplished before it can be truly said that this earth is an Eden. "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," said the Scottish bard, and it still remains a sad truth. If, then, so much of evil exists, and so much of wrong is worked, is it not the duty of Masonry through its representatives to be up and doing? If we are able to relieve any of the evils incident to life, and fail to do so, it will be evidence that we are behind the spirit of the times, and far behind the true spirit of Masonry. It is well to ponder upon the principles of the Order. We have a right to ask sharp questions and require straightforward answers; and whenever the Institution is either unable or unwilling to give such answers it will be time to seriously consider its further continuance. We have no reason for existence beyond those things which were embraced in the purposes of the founders, modified to harmonize with the purest light which advanced thought is able to bestow. It argues poorly for any society when it falls below the rising tide of progress, and it will prove no exception to the rule should Masonry ever forget the principles which hitherto have led it onward in the van of those who work for humanity. It is not enough that we are able to make a show for the public when, on some occasion like this, we come together to do a work which will command the attention of the people; we must always be at work which will tell for good to the needy and suffering, whether that work is done in the "bright sunlight of publicity," or in the quiet and retirement of every-day life. Social truth should have much of thought. Masonry regards no man merely for his worldly wealth or station, and should care as little for that applause which is so freely given to those who are willing to make public display. It is unusual now for any year to pass without some great gathering of the members of the Fraternity, at which the parade is the principal feature, when, with bright banners and long array of marching men, the clamour of many voices mingling with the music of bands, we seek to impress the people with the idea that Masonry is a mighty power in the world. Is this altogether in accordance with that simplicity which was the original characteristic and peculiar beauty of Masonry? Like sweet charity, its deeds are better for the flavour of privacy, and especially is this true when we consider that the work which enters so largely into the every-day life of the Order is relief.

We are taught that in many things the left hand should not know what the right hand does, but I fear that were the odour of publicity withdrawn many would feel that it was a sad day for them. Let us do what we can for humanity, but let us also do it in that manner which will most surely win for us the good opinion of the wise and worthy, not caring for the applause of the fickle crowd, but rather seeking to merit the approval of conscience.

And here let me bring to your thoughts our first Grand Master, who is not able to be with us to-night, much as he would love to see this consummation of his hopes. The first Grand Master of this jurisdiction, as well as the first Grand Treasurer of California, he occupies a unique position, and it is with profound sorrow that we learn of his long illness. For him we fear the journey of life is almost over, and he but waits for the summons to enter into rest. In these last hours the love and regard of his brethren have been to him as a sweet incense, the very smell of a field which the Lord hath blessed. But the long life will soon be ended, and the scenes which have known him so long will know him no more for ever. But, in this moment of sadness, we can say with the poet:

"How full of dread, how full of hope, looms th inev t able death;
Of dread, for all have sinned; of hope, for One hath died to save;
The dread is lost in joy; the hope is filled with immortality."

May his declining days be full of the comfort and consolation which cometh from above, and when his call shall come may he go to that home on high, "where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

You have listened to the solemn service of dedication, and have heard the invocations which thus attend the opening of this hall to Masonry; but all of these ceremonials will have failed of their object if they do not influence you, one and all, to the better life.

Masonry points ever upward, and in all its ceremonies the one desire is to lift up humanity to its true position and highest honour. It is for this reason that we have begun the Masonic uses of this hall to-night, in the way which directs the hearts of all to the Creator, and I were untrue to my duty and untrue to myself did I fail to remind you that it is to make you better that you are summoned here. The little band who first organized this Lodge are almost all departed to that bourne whence no traveller returns, and the generations who are to follow us must examine our work and our life to see whether we have been true to the high trusts committed to us, even as to-night we have remembered the work of those who have preceded us, may be be counted worthy, in the years to come, of remem rrance for faithfulness. If this dedication marks new e solves to noblest and purest lives, then humanity is the gainer and the work is truly well done. When the crowning day shall come may all respond to the call of the Master who shall summon his faithful servants to receive the reward of service. May the memory of good accomplished cheer the soul when the lamp of life burns dimly toward its close, and when already the ear is beginning to catch the mystic whispers which come from the land beyond the river. For the faithful the sounds wafted will be those which shall cheer and comfort the heart, we are assured.

And now, my brethren, remember this begins anew your work. Press forward with renewed courage, and let the words of the poet inspire and encourage you—for

"Not on swords and spears
Is the reliance of the coming years;
Not by the cannon's mouth shall truth proclaim
Her mighty mission: not with blood and flame
Inscribe her lessons in the book of time;
Her strongest weapons shall be words sublime.
Her armies thoughts; her banners printed sheets;
Her captains' voices crying in the streets:
'The earth is good and bountiful and fair,
Her choicest blessings are the destined share
Of all her children, who in Christly love
Wisely combine to work—and look above.'"

Voice of Masonry.

After the installation of Bro. His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught as Prov. Grand Master of Sussex, at Brighton, on Tuesday last, a report of which appears in another page, a photograph was taken of the Royal visitors and many of the distinguished Grand Officers in a group by Messrs. Russell and Sons, of 199 Brompton-road, South Kensington, photographers to the Queen and Royal Family. We have not yet received a copy of the group, which doubtless many of the brethren will be glad to preserve as a memento of the event, but shall be glad to notice it at the earliest moment it reaches us from the eminent firm to whom the duty was entrusted.

Amongst the favourite resorts visited during the recent Royal installation at Brighton was the Albrmarle Hotel, which is pleasantly situated, facing the sea and Aquarium. This hotel is on the best part of the Marine Parade, within a few minutes of the Pier, Theatre, and Steine Enclosure, and also the railway station. The excellence of the appointments and tariff at this admirable establishment is only equalled by the courtesy and attention displayed by the proprietor, Mr. Alfred Collins, and his staff of assistants.

On the 10th inst., the ceremony of installing Bro. Wm. E. Scott, D.L., as Provincial Grand Master of Derry and Donegal, was performed by the M.W.G.M. of Ireland, his Grace the Duke of Abercorn, in the Free masons' Hall, Derry. There was a large assemblage of the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge and many visiting brethren.

Tuesday—Society of Architects. Wednesday—Staff College.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Counsel for the delicate.—Those to whom sea-air or changeable temperatures are protracted periods of trial should seek the earliest opportunity of removing all obstacles to good health. This cooling Ointment persevered in rubbed upon the skin, is the most reliable remedy for overcoming all diseases of the throat and chest. Quinsey, relaxed tonsils, sore throat, swollen glands, ordinary catarrh, and bronchitis, usually prevailing at this season, may be arrested as soon as discovered and every symptom banished by Holloway's simple and effective treatment. This Ointment and Pills are highly commended for the facility with which they subdue and conquer influenza; they allay in an incredibly short time the distressing fever and teasing cough.

INSTALLATION OF THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT AS PROV. GRAND MASTER OF SUSSEX.

BRIGHTON was all astir on Tuesday last, the day fixed for the installation of his Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught P.G.S.W. as Provincial Grand Master of Sussex, in succession to the late Sir Walter W. Burrell, Bart., whose demise, in February last, was duly recorded in the columns of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. We have dealt elsewhere with the general features of the Royal visit, which, without partaking of a character usual to such events, when Royalty is invited to inaugurate or assist in the promotion of any public object, was essentially one of Masonic interest and importance. The arrangements of the day were most efficiently carried out by a Committee, including the Grand Officers of the Province, and the Officers of the twenty-five Lodges of which Sussex is composed, and the "heat and burthen of the day" fell upon the shoulders of a sub-committee, consisting of Bros. J. Henderson Scott Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Gerard Ford, J. M. Kidd, C. J. Smith, V. P. Freeman (Provincial Grand Secretary), and B. Burfield (Provincial Assistant Grand Secretary). These brethren worked with a will, and the manner in which all details were carried out reflected the highest credit upon all concerned. The M.W. Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Duke of Connaught the Prov. G. Master-elect, and Prince Albert Victor, travelled down to Brighton early in the forenoon, the special train being preceded by another containing a large contingent of London Masons, the company including many of the most prominent and distinguished members of Grand Lodge in England and the Colonies. For a full hour before the appearance of the Royal train at the Brighton terminus, the crowd of people inside the station pressed upon the barriers which kept the down platform clear. Under the direction of Mr. Perry, chief inspector of the permanent way and works, whose experience of decorating stations on the Brighton line has been well maintained by occasions of Royal visits, the enlarged and improved terminus was bright and gay as flowers, flags, and red carpeting could make it. The weather could scarcely be called "Royal" in the strict sense of the term, for the atmospheric conditions attendant upon His Royal Highness's inauguration of the Tower Bridge on the preceding day had somewhat changed, and even in "sunny" Brighton old Sol was not disposed to manifest his wonted fervency. Still there is a certain light in colour, and the display of bunting, though not lavish, was sufficient to imbue the same with gaiety and animation, while the loyal demonstrations, everywhere abundant, must have conveyed to the Royal and Craft visitors that the welcome extended to them by Brighton was genuine and hearty in the extreme. It was evident that the Masonic body in the Province had been warmed into enthusiastic interest in the auspicious event; and the Grand Officers of the Province were ably seconded by their assistants, by the Grand Stewards, and by other brethren who on such important occasions are usually told off to discharge their respective and essential duties. The special train arrived punctually at half-past eleven o'clock, the carriages being appropriately attached to an engine named the "Connaught." On either side of the locomotive, and immediately above the name, were the Prince of Wales's Feathers. The Royal driver and stoker were indicated by the gold lace about their caps and the flowers in their coats. The train was in charge of Mr. Richardson, the Traffic Superintendent. The decorations at the station, to the platform of which a large number of privileged spectators were admitted, were most récherché and appropriate. The splendid circular group of flowering and fine-foliage plants, with a graceful, broad-leaved musa springing up fountain-like from their midst, seemed to catch all the radiance overhead, and to concentrate its best effects, in emerald green, varied shades of red, and golden yellow. This floral arrangement, which filled a large bed of greenery in the midst of the smooth, well-swept expanse of crimson cloth, was the principal object opposite the saloon carriage, from which the Prince alighted when the train drew up at the station. Nor was the central display by any means the sole adornment of the platform, which blossomed with tastefully disposed clusters and hanging baskets. As soon as the Royal visitors alighted from their saloon carriage a hearty cheer was given by the spectators, and the Band of the 1st Sussex Volunteer Artillery struck up the National Anthem. Their Royal Highnesses were received upon the platform by a deputation from the local Lodges of Freemasons, by Brother W. T. Marriott, Q.C., M.P., who had come down by the train, by the Mayor of Brighton (Alderman E. J. Reeves), in his robes of office, the Town Clerk, and several Aldermen. An address of welcome was then presented to the Prince of Wales, His Royal Highness replying in suitable terms. After this display of loyalty and introduction, a procession was formed, and cheers were raised as the Royal visitors entered their carriage. After the Royal barouche came more carriages, containing military and naval officers in uniform, and the Officers of Grand Lodge who had come down with the Royal party. The decorations along the route were somewhat sparse, and the Brighton population kept up its repute for stolid, undemonstrative bearing, the cheers being partial, and nowhere enthusiastic. Not that there was any coldness in the reception of the Royal party; it is Brighton's way to take these things quietly,—that is all. A drive as far as Hove—taken at a considerately slow pace, so that the public had a fair opportunity of seeing Royalty, while at the same time Royalty was enabled to judge of the improvements which are being effected in Brighton—occupied a brief half-hour in going and returning, the Pavilion being reached punctually at noon. In the vicinity a large number of people awaited the approach of the procession, having begun to gather as early as eleven o'clock. Admission to the Pavilion Grounds was confined to ticket holders only, who were allowed to promenade the western lawn, the majority being ladies. The principal Officers connected with the Craft tassembled in the Pavilion rooms at half-past eleven, and, wearing he regalia of their office, marched in procession to the Dome, the band of the 1st Sussex Artillery Volunteers playing as they filed past. Here the installation was held, the spacious interior being elegantly decorated. Chairs for the Grand Officers were arranged on the dais, the area in front being reserved for the Past and Provincial Grand Officers. Behind these were the Master Masons. The balcony was reserved for Worshipful Masters and Past Masters, and from it were suspended the handsome banners of the several Lodges in the Province. At twenty-five minutes to one the M.W. Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales entered the Dome, accompanied by the Grand Officers and Provincial Grand Officers Present and Past. The Grand Master was saluted in the accustomed form by a fanfare of trumpets. He took his seat in front of the organ, the Provincial Grand Senior Warden, the Lord Chancellor and the Provincial Junior Warden Bro. Lord Charles Beresford occupying their respective chairs on the ground floor. Prayer was offered by the Provincial Grand Chaplain, Brother the Very Rev. E. R. Currie, Dean of Battle, and the M.W. Grand Master was saluted in ancient form. He was then presented with the following address:—

To His Royal Highness Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, K.G., &c. Most Worshipful Master of the Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of England,—

May it please your Royal Highness, we, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the Provincial Grand Officers and Brethren of the Province of Sussex, beg leave to offer to your Royal Highness our hearty Masonic welcome on your first visit to this Province since your assumption of the high office of Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Freemasons of England. We desire to express to your Royal Highness our respectful thanks for the distinguished honour you have been pleased to confer upon the Province by the appointment of your illustrious brother, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, &c., Past Grand Warden, to rule over us as the Provincial Grand Master, in the room of our highly esteemed and lamented Brother Sir Walter Wyndham Burrell, who so ably presided over us for a lengthened period with the happiest results to the Craft. Specially do we appreciate the fortunate circumstance that your Royal Highness is able to be present with us to-day, and to confer additional lustre upon this occasion by so graciously undertaking to perform the impressive ceremony of installation. In conclusion, we fervently trust that under the Great Architect of the Universe your Royal Highness may be spared for many years to rule over the Masonic Brotherhood, to whose welfare your beneficent sway has already so largely contributed.

Dated at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, Sussex, this 22nd day of June A.D. 1886.

JOHN H. SCOTT P.G.D., Deputy Provincial Grand Master.
GERARD FORD, Provincial Grand Registrar.
V. P. FREEMAN, Provincial Grand Secretary.

The routine business usual on these occasions having been concluded, and Bro. Spark's well known anthem, "Behold how good and joyful," having been admirably sung by Bros. J. A. Brown, Montem Smith, Sidney Tower, and Chaplin Henry, the M.W. Grand Master said:—The Province of Sussex have recently experienced a severe loss in the death of Brother Sir Walter Burrell, who had ruled over it for nearly ten years with great energy and ability. They all deplored his loss, and after due consideration he (His Royal Highness) had thought it advisable to fill the vacancy by the appointment of his brother, the Duke of Connaught, who in his titles bore the name of the old county of Sussex. He knew him to be a zealous Mason, and fully believed that he would not fail to do his duty, but would endeavour to promote the success of the Province. He expressed the great pleasure it gave him personally to come amongst them for the purpose of installing his brother as the future Provincial Grand Master. The arrival of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master designate, Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught P.G.S.W., was then announced, the Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies, Brother E. W. J. Hennah, presented the patent, when a deputation of seven Past Masters — Brothers Lord Arthur Hill, M.P., Sir Raymond Burrell, Bart., Lieutenant-General Randolph, Major Sergeson, Major D'Albrace, W. Dawes, and H. Hallett conducted the Duke to a place before the Pedestal, opposite to his brother the Grand Master. The Provincial Grand Secretary (Bro. Freeman) having read the patent, the Provincial Grand Chaplain offered prayer, when the Grand Master addressed H.R.H. the Provincial Grand Master-Designate, and inquired if he could conscientiously undertake the duties of the office. Assent having been formally given, the ceremony of installation was gone through, the Dean of Battle offering up the Prayer. The Provincial Grand Master was then proclaimed. Bro. John Henderson Scott P.G.D., though in enfeebled health, was conducted between two Deacons to the front of the pedestal and invested, and addressed by H.R.H. the Provincial Grand Master on the duties of his Office as Deputy Provincial Grand Master. The other Provincial Grand Officers, appointed at the last meeting, in October, were then formally re-invested, as follows:—

An anthem, composed by Bro. Shield, having been sung by the four brethren whose names we have already given, and Bro. the Rev. W. A. Tooth, Provincial Grand Chaplain, having offered up a suitable prayer, his Royal Highness closed the Provincial Grand Lodge, and the ceremony was brought to a termination, Bro. A. King, Mus.B., A.P.P.G. Organist, playing in admirable style several voluntaries while the Brethren were leaving the Dome. An adjournment was then made to the Corn Exchange, close to the Dome, where upwards of 800 brethren sat down to a sumptuous luncheon, provided by Bro. J. Sayers, of Western-road, Brighton. The salon was tastefully decorated for the occasion with flags, trophies, and floral embellishments. The Duke of Connaught presided, supported by the Grand Master (the Prince of Wales), Prince Albert Victor, and the principal Grand Lodge Officers. After the luncheon, the Chairman called upon the assembly to drink to the time-honoured toast, "The Queen and the Craft," which was duly honoured, Miss Bertha Moore singing the solo of the National Anthem. H.R.H. the Provincial Grand Master then proposed "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master," and said he was sure the toast would meet with a hearty response from so large an assembly of the Craft. Ever since that memorable day at the Albert Hall, when the Most Worshipful Grand Master was installed into his high office, he had never lost an opportunity of showing the deep interest he had taken in the Craft. From that moment he had acted in a manner befitting the ancient Order, and all would agree with him that he had rendered eminent service to the Institution. The Craft had steadily increased under his guidance, and he called upon them one and all to be upstanding, and drink the toast with three times three. The toast was drunk amidst the greatest enthusiasm and cheering. The Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, on rising to respond, was received with loud and prolonged cheers, accompanied with the waving of handkerchiefs and other manifestations of enthusiasm. He said he was not likely to forget the cordial manner in which the toast had been received. From the time when the Craft conferred upon him the honour of selecting him as their Most Worshipful Grand Master, he had not met with a more cordial or kind reception. He took a great interest in all that pertained to Freemasonry, and regretted that the many calls upon his time did not permit him to do more for the Order. In thought and heart he was with them, and always ready to come forward and assist their noble institution, an institution possessing as its chief characteristics religion and charity. So long as these principles were borne in mind the Order was bound to flourish throughout the realms of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen. The Order had made great and rapid strides. The Grand Lodge was founded in 1717, when it numbered about 650 Lodges. In 1875—the year of his installation as Most Worshipful Grand Master—the number had increased to 1520, while at the present time the last warrant issued bore the number of 2155, being a gain, since his high office was conferred upon him—of 635 Lodges. Royal Arch Freemasonry had also progressed, and about 8000 brethren were annually enrolled—a further proof of allegiance to the principles of the Grand Lodge of England. Before sitting down he had a toast to propose—namely, that of the health of the Junior Provincial Grand Master of England. He need hardly tell them the pleasure he derived from installing his brother and visiting their beautiful town. He felt sure that his brother would carry out the duties he was called upon to perform to the best of his ability. His military career would possibly take him thousands of miles away, but on his return he would be as happy to meet them as on the present occasion. He had experienced especial gratification in installing their Provincial Grand Master, and entrusting to his care one of the oldest Provincial Lodges in the country—a P.G. Lodge which dated from 1774. It possessed twenty-five Lodges, of which seven were in Brighton, the oldest being the Union Lodge, No. 88. Again thanking them for their very cordial welcome, he called upon them to drink with three times three the health of their Prov. G.M. The toast was received with the utmost enthusiasm. The Provincial Grand Master His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, on rising, said he was sensible of their great kindness in receiving the toast so heartily, which had been proposed in such kind and flattering terms. He was also sensible of the high honour bestowed upon him; he was aware that he had many arduous duties to perform. In taking the office of Provincial Grand Master he was succeeding one who had been respected and beloved, the late Sir Walter Burrell, who had always shown the greatest interest in the Province. He felt most grateful to the large assembly for their kind attention, and hoped to carry out worthily the necessary and important duties of his high office. If his military duties called him away his interest in them would not be lessened. In heart and feelings he would be with them, and from the bottom of his heart he thanked them for their reception of him as their Provincial Grand Master. His Royal Highness next proposed the health of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. J. Henderson Scott P.G.D., and said he did so with the greatest cordiality, knowing that he had laboured most assiduously in the cause of Freemasonry. In the Sussex Province he had held the post of Provincial Grand Secretary, and for many years that of Deputy Provincial Grand Master. To three generations the name of Scott had been familiarly associated with Freemasonry in Sussex, and in Brother John Henderson Scott they had a thorough Freemason at heart. It was, therefore, with the greatest satisfaction that he appointed him his Deputy. Before sitting down he desired to express to him his appreciation of the admirable arrangements for the ceremony of the day. They had been satisfactory in every respect. Brother Scott, who was warmly received on rising, thanked the Provincial Grand Master for the kind manner in which the toast had been proposed, and the brethren for the cordial manner in which it had been received. He deeply felt the honour conferred upon him, and trusted, with restored health, to prove equal to the duties which would devolve upon him. The remaining toasts were the Visitors, proposed by Bro. H. Hallett P.S.G.W., and the Provincial Grand Officers. Their Royal Highnesses left Brighton at half past four, having been conducted through the Dome and the Pavilion proper. Before leaving the Prince of Wales took the opportunity of thanking Miss Bertha Moore for her musical contributions (one of which was "God Bless the Prince of Wales"); the entertainers in the luncheon-hall, and also to Bro. Sayers for the admirable manner in which the luncheon had been served. All being ready, they re-entered the carriages in which they had arrived, and, once more joining the company of the Mayor and other Corporate representatives, they were driven, by way of North-street and Queen's-road, to the railway station. There was a string of occupied carriages along the Queen's-road, while the windows and balconies of the houses were crowded by persons anxious to obtain a glimpse of the Royal party. At the terminus a number of people were admitted to the platform, where the special train was drawn up in readiness. The guard of honour was formed by about sixty men of the Brighton Brigade of Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers, under the command of Lieutenant Fry. As soon as the Royal visitors arrived at the station the band of the Naval Artillery played a portion of the National Anthem. The remaining formalities were of a brief description. The railway carriages were entered, Mr. Richardson (the Traffic Superintendent) resumed control of the train, and within a few minutes it steamed out of the station amid the cheering of those present. Over two thousand guests attended the garden party which was held in the evening at the Royal Pavilion. The concert in the Music Room commenced at seven o'clock, the vocalists being Miss Bertha Moore, Miss Kate Norman, Miss Annie Tate, and Mr. Chaplin Henry's quartette party. Miss Evelyn Gates took the violin, and Miss Lottie Millar and Miss Ethel Savery the pianoforte. The conductors were Bros. Ardley P.G.O., W. N. Ros P.P.G.O., King P.P.G.O., and Roworth. The room was crowded during the whole of the evening. Dancing was commenced in the Music room long before daylight had departed, and was continued with zest throughout the evening, the music being provided by Bro. H. S. Gates' band. Refreshments were served in the two Drawing rooms and in the King's apartments, the salon being used as a retiring room. The arrangements, which were absolutely perfect, were carried out by a Committee of the Worshipful Masters of the Lodges in the Province of Sussex, consisting of Bros. W. H. Barratt 38, F. H. Hallett 40, E. Collings 56, H. Longton 271, J. H. Every 311, R. Reeve 314, W. Anderson 315, C. Nye 732, W. Ardley 811, C. Paine 851, G. R. Green 916, C. H. Haine 1110, L. B. Henderson 1141, H. Kimm 1184, T. P. S. Lee 130, C. B. Warre 1465, H. E. Price 1466, A. M. Bitchley 1619, H. S. Gates 1636, T. Dalton 1723, W. Pratt 1797, Rev. W. A. Tooth 1821, H. Cheal 1829, J. J. Allinson 1842, and C. J. Smith 1947. Brother V. P. Freeman Provincial Grand Secretary, and Bro. B. Burfield also took an active part in the work connected with the party, and the latter was most energetic in his efforts to secure the comfort of the guests. Bros. G. S. Godfree and Kemball Cook also worked very hard during the evening, and it may safely be said that the combined efforts of the brethren were productive of one of the most successful gatherings ever held at the Royal Pavilion.

EMPIRE LODGE, No. 2108.

THIS Lodge entertained their Colonial brethren at the Criterion, on Wednesday, the 23rd inst., when, after the formal proceeding in the Lodge had terminated, about 100 members and guests sat down to dinner, including, in addition to the members of the Lodge, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, General Brownrigg, Sir J. Monckton, Bros. T. F. Halsey, M.P., P. de Cama, Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, W. Wood, A. S. Watts, C. J. Parkinson, C. W. G. Hutton, and representatives from nearly every Colonial possession of the British Empire. In proposing the Queen and the Craft the W.M. Sir Philip Cunliffe Owen, C.B., expressed his pleasure at meeting so many of his fellow-citizens from every part of the Empire presided over by their Empress Queen. In proposing the toast of the Grand Master he said they all knew how much interest His Royal Highness took in the assembling together of so many representatives of every part of the Empire, and how much gratified he would have been had his engagements permitted him to be present. The toast of the Grand Officers having been duly honoured, the Wor. Master proposed the Visitors. He bade them a hearty welcome, and hoped they would carry back with them when they left the "old country" the remembrance of the hearty good feeling with which they were always ready to receive them. The Empire Lodge was founded with the express purpose of welcoming brethren from all parts of the Empire, and he was glad to see so many of them there that evening. There were, he believed, about ten thousand colonists at present in London, and he wished they could have them all there together that night. In coupling with this toast the names of several Colonial brethren and of Bro. T. Tilton P.D.G.M. 7th District, New York City, he said he could not look on any American as a stranger, but would speak of him as their American Cousin. Among those who acknowledged the toast were Bro. the Hon. Sir W. J. Clarke District G.M. Victoria; Bro. A. M. Saunders District G.M. Madras; the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe; Bro. A. M. Broadley P. Dep Dist. G.M. Malta; and Bro. Theodore Tilton, New York, the latter of whom spoke of the interest they in New York took in every thing done in England, and of the progress which Masonry had made in the United States. The other toasts were the Worshipful Master and the Officers, the latter toast being acknowledged by Bro. C. W. Eves and Bro. Dr. Lennox Brown, Secretary.

Woodward 1381, T. C. Edmonds 1507, W. W. Lee 1524, and many others.

The Chapter having been duly opened, the M.E. Grand Superintendent addressed the Companions on the nature of the meeting, and said they were assembled for the purpose of consecrating a new Chapter, the Henry Levander, No. 2048, the founders of which were Companions W. M. Stiles P.Z. M.E.Z. designate, W. A. Scurrah J. elect 749 H. designate, J. Willing jun. P.Z. J. designate, J. L. Mather P.Z., C. J. Axford, G. Gregory P.Z., T. C. Edmonds, C. J. Knightley, and F. Davison P.Z. They all greeted the new Chapter with a most hearty welcome, as those who had been instrumental in its formation were excellent and zealous Companions, and it was on this account that their petition had been granted. He concluded by wishing the Chapter a long and successful career. The petition and charter having been read by the Prov. G.S.E., and the Officers named in the latter being unanimously approved, the ceremony of consecration was proceeded with, the working being carried out in masterly manner. Comps. W. M. Stiles P.Z., and Jas. Willing jun. P.Z., were inducted into the chairs of Z. and J. respectively. Comp. W. A. Scurrah was installed into the third chair by Comp. Taylor, and afterwards into the second chair by Comp. Thrupp. Comp. H. Dickey was elected and invested as S.E.; Comp G. Gregory as P.S.; and Whiting Janitor. Comp. Axford was elected S.N.; but being unavoidably absent his investment was postponed; on the motion of Comp. Stiles seconded by Comp. Scurrah, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to the Consecrating Officers, and they were elected honorary members of the Chapter. In acknowledging the compliment, Col. Sir Francis Burdett Grand Superintendent said it had afforded him and the Grand Officers sincere pleasure to have been present on this occasion, when a new Chapter had been started under the auspices of such eminent Companions. He looked to the time when the Henry Levander Chapter would occupy a foremost position amongst the Chapters of the Province, and would prove an example to other Lodges that had not already Chapters in connection with them. Several propositions for exaltation and joining were then handed in, and the founders were appointed a committee to frame the bye-laws. Letters of apology were read from Comps. Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke Grand S.E., F. Philbrick, Q.C., Sir A. Woods, J. Terry, and others. Chapter was adjourned. The Provincial Grand Chapter was then duly opened, the Grand Superintendent, Companion Col. Francis Burdett, Bart., being supported by Comps. Raymond H. Thrupp 2nd Provincial Grand Principal, and Dr. J. Beresford Ryley 3rd Provincial Grand Principal. After calling over the roll of the Chapters in the Province, all of which were responded to, the report of the Audit Committee, which showed a balance in hand of £33 8s 9d, was received and adopted. In felicitous terms the Provincial Grand Superintendent re-appointed Companion Thrupp as 2nd Provincial Grand Principal, and Comp. Rev. S. T. H. Saunders was appointed and invested as 3rd Provincial Grand Principal. Companion H. Lovegrove was unanimously elected Provincial Grand Treasurer, and the following Officers were appointed and invested by the Provincial Grand Superintendent :—

Comp. J. F. H. Woodward (re-appointed)	...	S.E.
R. Clay Sudlow Z. 1194	...	S.N.
J. T. Briggs P.Z. 1326	...	P.S.
J. H. Hawkins Z. 1777	...	A.S.
J. S. Fraser Z. 1449 ...	...	A.S.
H. Lovegrove P.Z. ...	...	Treasurer
P. C. F. Tatham Z. 778	...	Registrar
C. H. Webb P.Z. 1549	...	Sword Bearer
J. Garrod Z. 1237 ...	...	Standard Bearer
T. W. Ockenden S.E. 1326	...	D.C.
W. H. Lee P.P.G. Standard Bearer	...	A.S.E.
J. Gilbert	...	Janitor

It was then resolved that each Chapter should contribute one shilling per annum to the funds of the Province for each member of the Chapter. An Audit Committee having been appointed for the ensuing year, Provincial Grand Chapter was closed in form, and adjourned. An excellent banquet was provided, at which the Grand Superintendent presided, but he being obliged to leave early the toasts were proposed under the presidency of Comp. Raymond Thrupp. After the Queen and Royal Arch Masonry, the First Grand Principal H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Pro Grand Principal the Earl of Carnarvon, the Second and Third Grand Principals and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past were given, suitable responses being made by Comp. Cama Grand Treasurer, and Comp. Buss P.P.G. Treasurer Middlesex. Reference was then made to the admirable manner in which the M.E. Grand Superintendent had performed the ceremonies of the day, and the hope was expressed that Comp. Sir F. Burdett might be spared for many years to preside over the Province as he had done in the past. Comp. Stiles, in giving the Second and Third Provincial Grand Principals, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers Present and Past, expressed the pleasure felt by the Companions to see Sir Francis Burdett sufficiently restored to health to be able to be present to consecrate the Chapter. He had a valuable coadjutor in their esteemed Comp. Thrupp, to whom they were indebted for the excellent manner in which he had installed them into their chairs. They were all deeply sensible of the honour conferred upon them by his presence that evening, and he had been supported most ably by Comp. Saunders, the Third Provincial Grand Principal, Comp. Taylor P.P.G.J., and many other distinguished Provincial Grand Officers. Companion Thrupp in reply said it was always a pleasure to him to visit in the Province, for he was there sure of a hearty welcome. He asked them to drink success and prosperity to the new Chapter. He trusted that they would emulate the late Companion Henry Levander, and try to walk in his steps. If they did that, [illegible] of Sir Francis, and would become [illegible] Chapter to the credit to the Province. Comp. [illegible] replied; it was the earnest wish of his [illegible] that their Chapter should be a success. They were anxious to carry out their duties in a satisfactory manner, and if the Grand Officers or any other Companions attended in the future, he hoped they would be able to show them by their working that they revered the name of the Companion who had gone before. Their Chapter was founded by a Lodge that had made rapid strides in the Province, and he was sure he would be supported in a manner worthy of that Lodge. The Second and Third Principals of the Henry Levander Chapter was next given by Comp. Stiles, who said that in proposing this toast he was but giving honour to whom honour was due. Those two Companions had worked very hard to start this Chapter. Companion Scurrah, who is Worshipful Master of the Lodge bearing the same name, had rendered valuable service, and Comp. Willing was, as they were all aware, a most earnest worker. Comp. Scurrah thanked them most heartily for the manner in which the toast had been proposed and received. He admitted he had taken considerable trouble in the foundation of the Chapter. Being Worshipful Master of the Henry Levander Lodge, and taking into consideration the fact that there was no Chapter in existence in the neighbourhood, he thought it his duty to do his best to support the formation of this Chapter. He would take the deepest interest in it, and he hoped to continue for some time to be as energetic in Freemasonry as he had been in the past. Comp. Willing also responded, and the toast of the Visitors was suitably acknowledged by Comps. the Rev. S. T. H. Saunders, Levander, Dean, and Webb. Other toasts followed, including the Scribes E. and N., and the other Officers, and the official list was closed in fitting manner by the Janitor. An excellent selection of music was given under the direction of Comp. John Read P.Z., and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

CONSECRATION OF THE ZETLAND CHAPTER, No. 1603.

THE consecration of this Chapter took place on Saturday, 19th instant, at Tofts, Cleckheaton. Although the warrant was granted some months ago, unavoidable delay has taken place. The Chapter was opened by M.E. Comp. C. Letch Mason P.Z. 304 P.P.G.H., the consecrating Principal acting for and on behalf of M.E. Comp. T. W. Tew, J.P., Prov. G. Supt., assisted by E. Comp. Tyers 304, Samuel Barrand 304, E. Lord P.Z. 495, William Allatt P.Z. and Tudor Trevor P.Z. 71 S.C. Chapter being duly opened, and the Petition and Charter of Constitution having been read by the Prov. G. Registrar Comp. Heaton Cadman P.Z., the Prov. Grand J. the Rev. T. Smyth, D.D., delivered the following address:—

It has ever been the rule among Freemasons, from the earliest period to the present time, to inaugurate and dedicate, with solemn ceremonies, our mystic rites; and consequently we, after the manner of our ancient brethren, have met to-day to lay the foundation of a moral edifice, based on the principles of our Holy Order—Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth. Having been called on by the Consecrating Officer to deliver an address, as part of the ceremony, I have thought it well not to enter into any elaborate description regarding the antiquity and probable origin of Royal Arch Masonry (upon which so many learned conjectures have been brought forward by Oliver and others), but rather to select a single character—that of Nehemiah—as a pattern to our Order, which commemorates his name, connected with the high and holy work to which he devoted his substance and energies. We read in the Volume of the Sacred Law that the pious restoration of the walls of Jerusalem under his zealous superintendence soon roused the hostility and fierce opposition of the neighbouring tribes. Old enmities were awakened, new jealousies stimulated; and everything done to prevent and retard the progress of the work. The subtle opponents of Judah's prosperity plotted, intrigued and threatened by turns, nay, even concocted a treacherous plan to seize Nehemiah, in order to kill, or keep him a prisoner. "Now it came to pass," are his own words, "when Sanballat and Tobiah, and Geshen the Arabian, and the rest of our enemies, heard that I had builded the wall, and that there was no breach left therein . . . . that Sanballat and Geshen sent unto me, saying, Come, let us meet together in some one of the villages in the plain of Ono. But they thought to do me mischief." Too wise and wary did he prove, however, to be duped by their artifice. "I sent messengers unto them," he proceeds to state. "I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down. Why should the work cease whilst I leave it and come down to you?" Earnest and zealous in the sacred object which the providence of the True and Ever-living God Most High had committed to his care, he set about it and steadily adhered to it, with all his might and soul and strength. Duty, in a word, to him was everything: and no device of God's or Judah's cunning enemies could frighten, or win, or turn him from it. Well, then, Companions, may his name be commemorated in our most impressive and beautiful ceremonies; and would that all of us were more imbued with his self-denying and earnest spirit. First, I would point to his stedfast maintenance, by example and precept, of "that virtue, which may justly be viewed as the distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart, the grace of Charity." "There were at my table," he declares in the fifth chapter of the book which bears his name, "an hundred and fifty of the Jews and rulers, besides those that came unto us from among the brethren that are about us. Yet required I not the bread of the governor, because the bondage was heavy upon the people," and again in the reading of the law, "Go your way, eat the fat, and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared." Let us further notice Nehemiah as adding to the practice of benevolence, the fulfilment of that Masonic duty, so beautifully urged in the earliest rites of our ancient Fraternity; not only did he render to his needy neighbour "those kind offices which justice and mercy required at his hands by relieving his distresses, by soothing his afflictions and by doing to him as in similar circumstances he would wish that others should do to himself," but combined with these graces "such a prudent and well regulated course of conduct as best contributed to the development of his mental and corporeal faculties in their fullest energy, thereby enabling him to employ those talents with which God had blessed him, to His Glory and to the welfare of his fellow creatures." Instead of bewailing, with folded hands, the long captivity of his exalted nation and the ruin of that holy and beautiful house, where his fathers had worshipped, he set himself earnestly and with self surrender to do the will of the God Most High, in repairing the desolate places of Zion, and displaying the lustre of a holy life to his humbler countrymen. Surely in this, I well may say, that he reads an enduring lesson to us. He shews, in these our own days of turbulent controversy, that whatever may be right, or whatever wrong, we cannot be wrong in doing justice, in loving mercy, in walking humbly with God Most High, in denying our wills, in building up others as well as ourselves in the noble principles of our ancient Fraternity, and in practising that obedience to self-surrender by which alone we gain a knowledge of that which cannot be seen nor felt. Companions, the subject of Jerusalem's restoration, and our own connection with the grand Brotherhood of which we to-day appear as members, may well remind us of the solemn duty incumbent on each of us to repair the temple within ourselves. Let us seek, with all diligence, as well as sincerity, to beautify this sanctuary; let us ever be careful that it may not be neglected or stripped of its ornaments, lest Jehovah in grief of our delays and long perversity, withdraw at length from its desecrated ruins. Let us earnestly labour to drive away old enmities and frailties, old habits of indulgence and self-degradation, old cherished sins, presumptuous and secret. Old things, however, there are which our Order, and the bright example of good Nehemiah, bid us emphatically not to part with; things of necessity, which must be retained if we wish to preserve the Temple within us in all its integrity. Old warm friendships are still to be preserved; old habits of truth, of kindly affections, of faith and love and fervent prayer; these should be carefully watched and adhered to, as the props and buttresses of the spiritual building. For "who shall ascend unto the Hill of the Lord, or who shall rise up in his holy place? Even he who has clean hands and a pure heart, and that hath not lift up his mind unto vanity, nor sworn to deceive his neighbour. He shall receive the blessing from the Lord, and righteousness from the God of his salvation." And now, Companions, let me add a few words regarding that which forms the peculiarity of the work that Nehemiah undertook to execute, and the memory of which has been perpetuated in the ritual of our Order. The work of life is the battle of life, and the true and honest worker is a soldier. For we are not called to run its course over a clear and open field, but over one that is barred by obstructions, and infested by enemies. And thus, as those did who wrought at building the walls of Jerusalem and the second Temple, "from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared," so must we, if we would truly labour well and finish the task which is given us to do, with one hand toil in the work, and hold with the other a weapon. Life is all work, inasmuch as we have something to do to fulfil its ends and secure its reward; something in itself that is not pleasurable, nor immediately profitable, and this work is all warfare, for it has to be done in the face of opposition, inward and outward, with manly resolution and determined energy, in strenuous battle with ourselves and with all the powers of evil. With one hand we must toil in the work of our calling, wield with the other the weapons of warfare. Still, although our earthly existence must prove a scene to us more or less of fatigue and battle, let us be of good cheer, knowing that He whose sacred and mysterious name we guard with so much reverence will be ever with those who strive to honour Him in truth and sincerity. As this Chapter to-day will be dedicated to the service of our Holy Order, may the Gracious and Supreme Ruler of the Universe dedicate your souls to His blessed service both here and hereafter, and animate you to respond, in the words of our Grand Master David, "O sing unto God, sing praises unto His name; magnify Him that rideth upon the heavens, as it were upon an horse." Praise Him in His name Jah, and rejoice before Him. Even the God who maketh Companions to be of one mind in the house of their Masonry. So mote it be with you and every future member of Chapter Zetland till the hour shall come, in His good time, when if faithful to the end you and they shall join in the jubilant strain—

"All hail to the morning that bids us rejoice,
The Temple's completed, exalt we each voice;
The copestone is finished, our labour is o'er,
The sound of the gavel shall greet us no more."

The ceremony of consecration was then proceeded with, being rendered the more impressive by the services of the musical Companions, the Prov. G.J. Comp. the Rev. Dr. Smyth giving the concluding benediction. E. Comp. John Booth P.Z. 258 P.P.G.J. was then regularly placed in the chair of Z, the consecrating Principal stating the pleasure it gave him to instal such a veteran in Masonry as the first Z. of the Zetland Chapter, and trusted that under his kind and genial sway the Chapter would prosper. E. Comp. Samuel Holdsworth Stocks P.Z. 258 was then regularly placed in the chair of H., and Comp. William Thomas Flather was regularly installed into the chair of J. The following appointments were made: Comp. J. C. Wharton P.Z. as S.E., J. R. Sampson S.N., Thos. Pickles P.Z. as P.S. Several propositions were then made of brethren for exaltation, and a hearty vote of thanks having been accorded to the Consecrating Principal E. Comp. C. Letch Mason P.Z. 304, to E. Comp. the Rev. J. C. Smyth, D.D., Prov. G.J., for his admirable address, and to the other Companions who had rendered kind services; the Chapter was closed.

THE TRESTLE-BOARD OF MASONRY.

TO insure success in any undertaking, there must be first a well defined plan of action. To produce such a plan, it must be drawn out in detail, so that all its parts may be readily understood by those who have the work in charge. It is never best to leave anything to chance if we would not be disappointed in the result. First decide what is to be done, and then go to work in a systematic manner to accomplish it. The man who starts out to make a fortune by buying lottery tickets will be pretty sure to end his days in a poor house. He might as well attempt to sail around the world without chart, compass or rudder. He is at the mercy of the winds which blow from all quarters, drifting hither and thither without a knowledge of his course or the power to follow it.

We read with wonder and admiration the grandeur of King Solomon's Temple, or perhaps gaze upon the cathedrals of Strasbourg and Cologne, or some of the mighty monuments of architectural skill that furnish examples of how great things may be accomplished. Need any one be told that all the plans and designs for these edifices were first delineated upon the trestle-board of the master workman?

The trestle-board of the Architect is the starting point, and upon it he formulates in detail all that is required to carry out his grand designs. The Mason understands how the Grand Master Architect, at the building of the Temple, placed upon its trestle-board each day the designs necessary for the Craft to pursue their labours. So perfect were these plans that we are told that when the Temple was completed its several parts fitted with such exactness that it had more the appearance of the handiwork of the Supreme Architect of the Universe than of human hands.

The importance of the trestle-board to the Operative Mason needs no elucidation. It furnishes him all the information necessary to complete the task assigned him. In the transition from Operative to Speculative Masonry the trestle-board was very properly retained as one of the emblems to teach a Mason his duty. The Great Light of Masonry is given him as a Masonic trestle-board, and he is taught to erect his spiritual building agreeably to the designs there laid down by the Supreme Architect of the Universe. The Mason who does not build by these designs can never become a Master workman.

We want to ask every Lodge and every Masonic organisation: What designs have you on the trestle-board? You have a great work before you. Are your plans carefully drawn, so that it may proceed without interruption or confusion? Are they in harmony with the grand principles of Freemasonry? Do they illustrate fully the noble tenets of your profession? Are you building an edifice that, like the work of the Ancient Masters, is the wonder and admiration of the world?

The beginning of a new year is a proper time to consider these questions. You have made choice of those who are to preside over and conduct your affairs for the ensuing term. Now is the time to delineate upon your trestle-board what you intend to do, that each Craftsman may take of his part, and all go to the work in harmony. Make your designs worthy of the noble cause in which you are engaged and require all to work by them. By so doing your labours will produce results that will reflect credit upon your skill as Master Workman, and you will enjoy the great satisfaction that comes from a faithful performance of duty.—Masonic Advocate.

Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson's new story, "Kidnapped," will be published early in July by Messrs. Cassell and Company.

So great has been the demand for Messrs. Cassell's new serial, "The Life and Times of Queen Victoria," that although an exceptionally large edition of part I was prepared, the copies were all exhausted within a few days of publication.

"Mistress June," the summer number of Cassell's Magazine, which will be published on 25th June, takes its title from the leading story which occupies the greater part of it. The number includes also an account of a co-operative holiday on the Continent, and papers on pocket refreshments, dress for travelling, and hints for the prevention and cure of sea sickness. Among the other contents are a paper on house-boating and two short complete stories.—Academy.

BOY'S SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am daily in receipt of evidence of the prejudicial effects, so far as our interests are concerned, of the present political crisis. Under these circumstances, though I fear an appeal, however urgent, will now be too late to be of service, I feel constrained to submit for the sympathetic consideration of our friends the peculiarly unfortunate exigencies of our position, in the hope that those who may have hesitated in giving us their support will be inclined to extend that help which we at this juncture so sorely need.

Very truly and fraternally yours,

FREDERICK BINCKES, Secretary.

6 Freemasons' Hall, W.C., 24th June.

THE SURREY MASONIC HALL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The Craft ought to be grateful to you for your honest outspoken remarks in your last week's impression in relation to the flagrant act which has been committed in the Temple so solemnly dedicated to Truth and Justice. I hesitated to mention in my letter, which you quote, the name of the worthy and distinguished brother who, as you rightly say, has "reason to feel insulted and aggrieved." But his name having been now publicly announced, it behoves all those who "know the man" and what his great services to the Craft have been, to see that a righteous atonement be made for the sacrilegious act which inferentially attacks the "good name" he has ever sustained amongst his brother Masons. He has been for others, in many instances, a devoted champion for the maintenance of right, and deserves, and should have from us, the strongest possible support in defence of his Masonic character. Whether that be perfect or imperfect nothing he may have done can possibly justify the spoliation of the foundation-stone of an edifice "solemnly consecrated" to the glory of God, and the welfare of our fellow-creatures.

I shall be glad to take my share in any movement which may be promoted to wipe out this intolerable "scandal on the Craft," and enclose herewith my full name and address for reference if required.

I am, &c.

E. J. G., W.M.

22nd June 1886.

DESECRATION AND SACRILEGE.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—Your leader on the above subject, which appeared in your issue of the 19th inst., has caused me no little surprise. I am not a member of the Masonic Craft, and therefore cannot express my opinion as to what such an offence deserves from a Masonic point of view, but that it could be perpetrated by a Mason at all seems so surprising to me that I am inclined to doubt whether, after all, your honourable Society is quite so sincere in its principles as it professes to be.

I always, until now, understood that one of your greatest aims was "Brotherly Love and Charity." Well! I fail to see any Charity or Brotherly Love in such an act as you speak of. For some time past I have been thinking of joining the Masonic Craft, as it has always seemed to me to be so much above other Societies in good and pure principles, but your leader has set me wondering whether you really do carry them out in the Craft after all.

In the "Odd Fellows," with which I am connected, the treatment a brother would receive for such an act of Vandalism would be so severe and so marked by his fellow brethren that he would be glad to make himself scarce for ever after.

Yours, &c.

A NON-MASON.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have read with some interest the various letters that have appeared in your Journal about the alteration and defacement of the Memorial Stone of the Surrey Masonic Hall; wondering whose name had been erased and for what purpose such an act could have been done. I have never been in the Hall, as it is out of my district, and as it was built and opened just before my admission amongst Masons, I had no knowledge of who took part in its erection or opening. Judge then of my astonishment to read, in your leader of this week, the name of my esteemed Father in Masonry, Bro. James Stevens, the first W.M. of "The Great City" Lodge, whose last initiate of his year of office I was. I have since had the honour of filling the chair in that Lodge, the proud position held by Bro. Jas. Stevens at the foundation of the Surrey Masonic Hall, and have had the further honour of serving on the Board of General Purposes with Bros. Jas. Stevens, and although, like many others, I have had frequently to differ on some point of proceeding, I have always had, and continue to have, the highest respect for Bro. Jas. Stevens, as a thorough working Mason, whose zeal, by-the-way, often outstrips his discretion to the sacrifice of his own personal comfort and interest. Nevertheless, I believe all who know him, will give him full credit for a strong desire for the good of Freemasonry in general, and it is hard to believe that any substantial reason can be given for such an act as that of removing the name of one who, whatever else he may have done before or since, was certainly on the occasion of the opening of the Surrey Masonic Hall holding the honourable position of first W.M. of a prominent London Lodge, and was honoured by the association and favourable notice on that occasion of the presiding Officer, the highly esteemed Provincial Grand Master Sir Francis, then Col. Burdett, than whom no better Mason exists, and who is fully able to judge of the qualifications of those around him. I trust, for the credit of the Craft, it will be found that this insane and dastardly act was committed by other than Masonic hands.

With many apologies for the length of this letter.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

FREDERICK T. C. KEEBLE,

P.M. and Secretary 1426.

TESTIMONIALS.

My Dear Sir,—Allow me to express my sincere thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,
By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.
G. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

Scientific Department. Laboratory of Experimental Science.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.
