The Philosophy of Mental Healing,

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The latest work upon the subject of 'The Philosophy of Mental Healing,' by Leander Edmund Whipple, stands almost alone as a clear and consistent explanation of the science of mental cure. The author seems to have a well-defined and well-grounded idea of the principles that underlie it. He meets squarely and answers logically the questions which are always asked by sceptics and investigators: 'What is mental or metaphysical healing?' 'How does it heal and why does it heal?' 'What proof is there of its power, and how is that power exercised?' 'Is mind cure mesmerism or hypnotism?' 'Has it any foundation in science, philosophy, logic or reason?' 'Are the theory and working power capable of scientific demonstration?' Mr. Whipple does not evade any of these questions, but takes them up one by one, and answers them point by point.

"A remarkably interesting chapter of the work is that entitled, 'How mental action causes disease,' in which the effect of the mind upon the body is illustrated by familiar examples. There is a constant temptation to quote, in turning over the pages of the volume, but we must leave interested readers to enjoy the work as a whole. Meanwhile, we commend it as the most valuable contribution to the literature of mental healing yet given to the public; dignified in tone, clear and definite in statement, and logical in its conclusions." —Boston Evening Transcript.

"The book is much the most logical and comprehensive effort that has as yet been made in print to furnish a practical exposition of the theories of the mind-cure people. Readers of this magazine who pin their faith on drug poisons as the only possible remedies for diseased conditions of the body will be disposed to dismiss it as a humbug, or at best a fad of unbalanced minds, but there is a growing class of people who are disposed to look deeper than material conditions, and to find in mind or spirit the real potency which builds up and animates the human body. Such people will be glad to read a brief account of the main thesis of mental healing. One thing the mind-cure doctors can safely assert—their percentage of cures is certainly as great as that of the drug doctors."—The Northwest Magazine, St. Paul.

"It is but just to our American mind-curers of the various sects to say that for years past the notion that all sorts of morbid symptoms may spring from subconscious fixed ideas, such as old fears, griefs and remorses, has been the basis of their treatment. Mr. Whipple's book sets forth this notion in an earnest way, in the good English of an educated man. * * * The most striking feature of the book is a list of cases which the author gives at length. Neuralgia, rheumatism, bronchial catarrh, debility, nervous agitation, chronic diarrhœa, insomnia, dyspepsia, and chills are shown, in as many patients, to have arisen from subconscious or conscious fixed ideas, which being scattered, recovery ensued. The author well says that, in patients of this sort, to treat the mere external symptom would be as bad practice as for an engine-driver to slow his engine by scotching the wheels and pistons rather than by regulating the steam-box or the boiler. Yet in cases of refusal to eat, like those quoted from Janet in the last review but one, the only practice known at an ordinary asylum is forcible feeding by the stomach-pump. * * * In most 'metaphysical healing' it seems to involve something like the telepathic action of one subliminal self upon another; but with this we navigate in full wonderland, where, without safe guidance, we had better not proceed."—Prof. Wm. James, in The Psychological Review (Macmillan), New York.

THE SCHOOL OF PHILOSOPHY.

ORGANIZED APRIL 29, 1899.

HALL, LIBRARY AND READING-ROOMS:

463 and 465 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Is a general rendezvous and headquarters for those interested in development of knowledge in all lines of Philosophy, Metaphysics, Occult Research and Psychic Phenomena in any of their branches.

The School has been organized for literary purposes along these lines, by men and women who are thoroughly in earnest, acquainted with the necessary modes of investigation and pledged to work in impersonal ways, for free and open experiment and study for the purpose of acquiring universal knowledge and extending it to the world.

Meetings are held semi-monthly for the reading and discussion of papers, and for dealing with both the facts and theories of any subject presented.

Committees study special subjects and report to the School in regular meeting.

A Library has been established which is calculated to become the foremost philosophical and scientific library in the world.

Reading-Rooms are maintained in connection with the Library.

Papers, speeches and proceedings of the School and of its committees will be printed for the benefit of members and associates.

The School is the outgrowth of "The Metaphysical Society," originally organized in 1891, and will derive the benefit of the experience gained in work along similar lines by the earlier organization.

Membership is provided in several classes to meet the requirements of all, and non-residents may share practically all of the benefits enjoyed by resident members.

There is no initiation fee.

Full membership, including voting power, is placed at $10.00 per annum. Associateship is $5.00 per annum.

All members and associates receive the publications of the School and have the privileges of the Library, Reading-Rooms and meetings.

The School of Philosophy already includes and possesses more advantages for conducting such a work as this than any other similar organization in the world.

It begins with seventy organizing members. A large membership will necessarily increase its working forces, and it is hoped that earnest people in all parts of the world will combine in the work, which, being universal, must prove of importance to all.

An Executive Committee of twelve capable and experienced men has charge of the business affairs of the School, and every precaution has been taken to make the Corporation a thoroughly sound financial organization for permanent conduct of affairs to any extent that may be required.

A substantial Board of Trustees will have charge of all the surplus funds, including legacies received in trust for school work.

The procuring of rare and valuable books and MSS. from the East will be a special feature of the work of the Library Committee.

Blanks for application for membership and full particulars may be obtained by addressing

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

This work classifies all important words in common use expressive of the attributes and activities of Being, explains the meaning and importance of each in correct understanding of principles, and demonstrates the relative bearing of one idea upon another in Science, Philosophy, Logic, and Reason.

It is calculated to facilitate the conception of metaphysical principles which, in ordinary use of the English language, remain obscure, as well as to correct some erroneous opinions in regard to life, which act as obstructions to the full enjoyment of health.

As a ready help to immediate realization, and for practical use in the act of treating patients on general principles, it is thought to have no equal in any printed publication.

The results of demonstration prove that a clear understanding of the activities represented by the nature and relation of ideas, as expressed in the several divisions of this Chart, develops the power so to control the forces of mental concentration as to perform the act of mental healing with scientific accuracy.

The work has received the highest commendation from those familiar with both Metaphysical and Christian Science principles.

The Chart, fifty-six inches in length, is printed on superfine bond paper, prepared for endurance in handling.

The explanation pages are printed with marginal lines in color, and the volume is handsomely bound in leather.

The Religious Training of Children.

By ABBY MORTON DIAZ.

CONTENTS:

CHAPTER I.—"Our Heavenly Home."
" II.—"Restraint and Guidance from Within."
" III.—"The Divine Indwelling as a Dependence."
" IV.—"Our Human World."
" V.—"What is it to LIVE?"
" VI.—"A Few Home Suggestions."
" VII.—"The Ideal and the Practical."
" VIII.—"The Influence of Ideals."

THE chief purpose of this book is to aid in freeing children from theological falsities, and to give them the true scriptural idea of an Infinite Presence as immanent in each and all. The value of right thinking in the religious instruction of youth cannot be over-estimated. In this work the necessity of correct ideas is pointed out in the clearest possible manner; and the responsibilities of the home in regard to the individual, and through the individual to the State, are considered in a new light and methods suggested.

The author is Vice-President, Woman's Educational Union of Boston, and is a writer of note well fitted for intelligent treatment of this important subject. Her book should be read and studied by every mother and every educator in the land—indeed, by all who are charged with the care and instruction of the young.

UNIVERSAL TRUTH
for 1900.

The publishers take pleasure in announcing that, beginning the January (1900) issue, UNIVERSAL TRUTH was changed to regular magazine form, and while its policy and teachings remain practically the same, a much broader field has been covered than heretofore. As a live periodical, filled with everyday metaphysical thought, it stands pre-eminent among its competitors. Able authors have been engaged to write for its pages. Its editorials are crisp and entertaining, and the news of the thinking world is to appear in concise form from month to month. Among the important features for the new year is Alwyn M. Thurber's great optimistic story,

"NOTHING EVER HAPPENS,"

To begin with the February number and to continue throughout the year. You should not miss the opening chapters.

Fanny M. Harley, the much-beloved and able editor of UNIVERSAL TRUTH for so many years, is still to remain in the work, along with other competent editorial writers.

The price of the magazine remains unchanged—$1.00 a year; six months, 50c.; three months, 25c.; 10c. a copy.

"The author being a man of manifest learning, his subject cannot fail to arouse deep interest in the minds of those who love truth and welcome every work evidencing thought and study."—Boston Ideas.

"The argument upon which the book rests is that in Christianity we possess the religion of prehistoric men, and that it is now being re-established upon its ancient foundations largely by the involuntary agency of modern science."—Boston Transcript.

"Augustine, Eusebius, and other early Christian writers are cited to show their belief that the Christian religion was anciently known, and that its founder appeared far back in the days of the patriarchs."—Freemasons' Repository.

"Dupuis, Gerald Massey, and other writers have gone over somewhat similar ground many years ago, but this new work is in many ways superior to the writings of those authors, by reason of its greater lucidity of statement and the absence of all harsh prejudice or attempt to deny historic or biographical elements."—Banner of Light.

"In this day, when men are turning from materialism and seeking a deeper spiritual meaning beneath the words and symbols of the past, works of this character will be appreciated. This work might well be called 'New Light on Cosmic Religion.' The author's collected evidence, viewed in these lights, shows that historic Christianity is the new expression of the ancient cosmic science and religion."—The Woman's Tribune.

"It was perceived that the globe was related to a universal system in which the order-producing, restoring, and maintaining power predominated over the forces temporarily working disorder and destruction. Thus the cosmical early became the symbol of the ethical. It is evident that the ancients had a highly developed scientific knowledge of astronomical relations, which were also their religious relations, man's relation to the cosmos being his relation to the Creator. The author regards the Hebrew Bible as a great symbolic history of the world-wrecking cosmical calamity which crucified the Divine Man and destroyed the world's Edenic equilibrium."—Minneapolis Progress.

"The weight of evidence is brought to bear upon the structural connection of the Bible, and in fact of all known religious systems, with the evolution of the Cosmos in the Divine Image, and of man as its microcosmic representative, both in body and spirit, having solar radiance as its central and all-pervading symbol, with its key of interpretation in the zodiac. The sublime and vital deduction is that all the religions of the world are linked together by descent from a perfect pre-diluvial system in which Messiah—God in man—is immanent from the beginning to the end, of which the Bible is the purest and clearest written revelation, and of which Christianity shall yet be the complete restoration. The work is of great value as a collection of interesting and pertinent material for reflection which could not otherwise be reached without consulting many volumes."—The Home Journal, New York.

The work contains a map of the surface of the Globe and the constellations in the heavens with numerous rare and significant illustrations of great value.

The Gospel of Jesus According to St. Matthew,

As interpreted to R. L. Harrison by the light of the godly experience of Sri Parananda.

In this day of commentaries by well-known writers in the English tongue, a still later work—and an exhaustive one at that—coming from a deeply spiritual Hindu mind, must be greeted with exceptional interest everywhere. Sri Paránanda, the author of the work now before us, has evidently followed a most profound line of intuitional reasoning. Every phrase of importance in the book of St. Matthew is given a lucid and rational interpretation. Thus are symbols changed to pleasing verities, obscure passages to semblances of beauty and love, and not that the Gospel of St. Matthew contains even a tincture of the wormwood which the literalist would have us believe.

The Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanitarium, Kingston, New York, is most beautifully situated at the foothills of the Catskills, near the banks of the Hudson River, the Rhine of America. It is the only sanitarium in the United States conducted for the treatment of all forms of mental and nervous diseases and drug addictions by psychology. Dr. Sahler recently enlarged the sanitarium, besides having two large cottages across the square in front of the sanitarium. Dr. Sahler has devoted a number of years to occult study, and all those wishing to know about this special method of treatment, and more particularly those who are afflicted by ailments or disease, all other methods having proved failures, will find it to their interest to write for a special circular issued expressly for the enlightenment of suffering humanity. The Philosophy of Mental Healing,

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The latest work upon the subject of 'The Philosophy of Mental Healing,' by Leander Edmund Whipple, stands almost alone as a clear and consistent explanation of the science of mental cure. The author seems to have a well-defined and well-grounded idea of the principles that underlie it. He meets squarely and answers logically the questions which are always asked by sceptics and investigators: 'What is mental or metaphysical healing?' 'How does it heal and why does it heal?' 'What proof is there of its power, and how is that power exercised?' 'Is mind cure mesmerism or hypnotism?' 'Has it any foundation in science, philosophy, logic or reason?' 'Are the theory and working power capable of scientific demonstration?' Mr. Whipple does not evade any of these questions, but takes them up one by one, and answers them point by point.

"A remarkably interesting chapter of the work is that entitled, 'How mental action causes disease,' in which the effect of the mind upon the body is illustrated by familiar examples. There is a constant temptation to quote, in turning over the pages of the volume, but we must leave interested readers to enjoy the work as a whole. Meanwhile, we commend it as the most valuable contribution to the literature of mental healing yet given to the public; dignified in tone, clear and definite in statement, and logical in its conclusions." —Boston Evening Transcript.

"The book is much the most logical and comprehensive effort that has as yet been made in print to furnish a practical exposition of the theories of the mind-cure people. Readers of this magazine who pin their faith on drug poisons as the only possible remedies for diseased conditions of the body will be disposed to dismiss it as a humbug, or at best a fad of unbalanced minds, but there is a growing class of people who are disposed to look deeper than material conditions, and to find in mind or spirit the real potency which builds up and animates the human body. Such people will be glad to read a brief account of the main thesis of mental healing. One thing the mind-cure doctors can safely assert—their percentage of cures is certainly as great as that of the drug doctors."—The Northwest Magazine, St. Paul.

"It is but just to our American mind-curers of the various sects to say that for years past the notion that all sorts of morbid symptoms may spring from subconscious fixed ideas, such as old fears, griefs and remorses, has been the basis of their treatment. Mr. Whipple's book sets forth this notion in an earnest way, in the good English of an educated man. * * * The most striking feature of the book is a list of cases which the author gives at length. Neuralgia, rheumatism, bronchial catarrh, debility, nervous agitation, chronic diarrhœa, insomnia, dyspepsia, and chills are shown, in as many patients, to have arisen from subconscious or conscious fixed ideas, which being scattered, recovery ensued. The author well says that, in patients of this sort, to treat the mere external symptom would be as bad practice as for an engine-driver to slow his engine by scotching the wheels and pistons rather than by regulating the steam-box or the boiler. Yet in cases of refusal to eat, like those quoted from Janet in the last review but one, the only practice known at an ordinary asylum is forcible feeding by the stomach-pump. * * * In most 'metaphysical healing' it seems to involve something like the telepathic action of one subliminal self upon another; but with this we navigate in full wonderland, where, without safe guidance, we had better not proceed."—Prof. Wm. James, in The Psychological Review (Macmillan), New York.

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

This work classifies all important words in common use expressive of the attributes and activities of Being, explains the meaning and importance of each in correct understanding of principles, and demonstrates the relative bearing of one idea upon another in Science, Philosophy, Logic, and Reason.

It is calculated to facilitate the conception of metaphysical principles which, in ordinary use of the English language, remain obscure, as well as to correct some erroneous opinions in regard to life, which act as obstructions to the full enjoyment of health.

As a ready help to immediate realization, and for practical use in the act of treating patients on general principles, it is thought to have no equal in any printed publication.

The results of demonstration prove that a clear understanding of the activities represented by the nature and relation of ideas, as expressed in the several divisions of this Chart, develops the power so to control the forces of mental concentration as to perform the act of mental healing with scientific accuracy.

The work has received the highest commendation from those familiar with both Metaphysical and Christian Science principles.

The Chart, fifty-six inches in length, is printed on superfine bond paper, prepared for endurance in handling.

The explanation pages are printed with marginal lines in color, and the volume is handsomely bound in leather.

PARSIFAL

THE FINDING OF CHRIST THROUGH ART.

A Wagner Study.

By ALBERT ROSS PARSONS.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"By the creation of 'Parsifal' Wagner is shown to the world as the exciter of the deepest religious emotion, a guide to spiritual heights through new paths, a modern reviver of the extasis of the Neo-Platonists, through the unconditional power of music."—Home Journal, New York.

"A thoughtful work on Wagner's last masterpiece 'Parsifal,' showing great sympathy with the composer's intentions."—Detroit Free Press.

"A very full and enthusiastic exposition of the views Wagner held at the close of his life as to the reality and power of Christ's relations to men. A valuable appendix contains much additional matter."—Public Opinion, Washington.

"Many will be amazed at the new Wagner Mr. Parsons presents to us, although it is a Wagner accessible to all of us in his collected writings. It cannot be denied after reading Mr. Parsons' more than interesting volume, that Wagner was a profound thinker on Christianity."—Musical Courier, New York.

"Mr. Parsons' clever and stimulating essay on 'Parsifal' will repay perusal."
—The Churchman, New York.

"It has evidently been a labor of love to present Wagner in this way, and the work deserves respect. It is published with an appendix which is even larger than the body of the text, but it is all well worth reading and ought to make Wagner even more popular than ever before."—Boston Post.

"A profoundly interesting and instructive writing, and in a comparatively new field."—Portland Oregonian.

"These utterances of Wagner are quite original, and the citations are cleverly arranged to show the progressive steps by which he reached an understanding of the Light of the World. 'Parsifal' will reward attentive perusal."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"The course of thought followed in this study evinces profound mental and spiritual research on the part of the author, whose work is calculated to ennoble and enrich the best conceptions of both art and religious truth."—Minneapolis Progress.

"Those to whom Wagner's music brings uplifting, spiritual thoughts, will deeply rejoice in this earnest, loving presentation of the words of a great man."
—New Haven Palladium.

"An addition of an unusual kind to the multitudinous Wagner literature. Wagner has been presented to us in many shapes. Here he is shown as a theologian, and Mr. Parsons' ingenuity and analysis will no doubt be appreciated. The earnest and moving words used by Mr. Parsons seem entirely justified. It is altogether a very suggestive and interesting record."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

INDEPENDENT LITERATURE ASSOCIATION,

ANNOUNCEMENT.

This magazine was called into existence, originally, to satisfy the popular demand for the publication of the discourses of Henry Frank, which are delivered each Sunday morning in Carnegie Lyceum. These discourses are expositions of The New Thought, founded on the most rigid scientific facts. If you have been bewildered and disappointed by expositions of Christian Science, Mental Science, mystifying metaphysics and muddy materialism, read Mr. Frank's discourses, and you will find a Philosophy to live by and a Religion that cannot be laughed down or refuted. Besides the discourses, contributed articles from able authors appear in each issue.

A VISIT TO A GNANI.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A vivid pen picture of Oriental thought and teaching, containing in a few pages what one often fails to find by searching many volumes. Gives the practical esotericism of the East, divulging points of likeness to Western philosophy. Man loses his life to gain it, loses his consciousness of and dependence upon physical and material life to gain a consciousness of the greater or universal life—a Cosmic consciousness.

Illustrated. Bound in Vellum de Luxe.
Prepaid $1.00.

TOWARDS DEMOCRACY.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A masterpiece, the work of a seer. One of the great, if not the greatest work of the nineteenth century. Is full of vivid pictures of the soul's enlightenment. Its perusal gives the reader a realization of the divine in man—"the divine life which encloses and redeems all souls." Through this life every soul finds itself akin to every other soul; brotherhood is more than a myth and Democracy ceases to be a dead letter. People of the nineteenth century may be deaf to the poetic strains pealing throughout in clarion notes, they may be blind to the universal truths flashed in scintillating lights, but illumined souls of the coming centuries will honor the author as one of the chosen and will understand the message of deliverance he has given to imprisoned souls.

UNIVERSAL TRUTH

for 1900.

The publishers take pleasure in announcing that, beginning the January (1900) issue, UNIVERSAL TRUTH was changed to regular magazine form, and while its policy and teachings remain practically the same, a much broader field has been covered than heretofore. As a live periodical, filled with everyday metaphysical thought, it stands pre-eminent among its competitors. Able authors have been engaged to write for its pages. Its editorials are crisp and entertaining, and the news of the thinking world is to appear in concise form from month to month. Among the important features for the new year is Alwyn M. Thurber's great optimistic story,

"NOTHING EVER HAPPENS,"

To begin with the February number and to continue throughout the year. You should not miss the opening chapters.

Fanny M. Harley, the much-beloved and able editor of UNIVERSAL TRUTH for so many years, is still to remain in the work, along with other competent editorial writers.

The price of the magazine remains unchanged—$1.00 a year; six months, 50c.; three months, 25c.; 10c. a copy.

All books known to the trade furnished at publishers' lowest prices.

"Trusts and the Public"

is the title of a book just published by D. Appleton & Co. for Mr. George Gunton. It is the result of years of thought and investigation on the subject of TRUSTS—the most vital question of the hour.

The volume contains two hundred and fifty-six pages of well-digested matter, abounding in practical illustrations, facts and statistics.

Here is to be found all of the best that Professor Gunton has written upon the subject, and he has made it a special study for fifteen years. While the trust principle in the organization of industry is vigorously defended, its abuses and dangers are indicated with equal vigor and frankness.

BANNER OF LIGHT PUBLISHING CO., 9 Bosworth St., Boston, Mass.

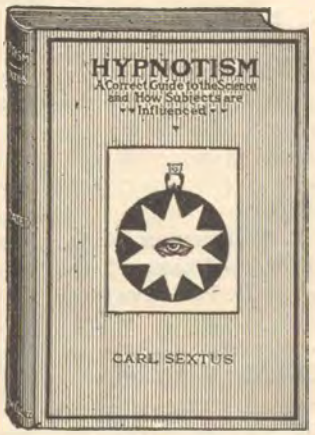

The Gospel of Jesus According to St. Matthew,

As interpreted to R. L. Harrison by the light of the godly experience of Sri Paránanda.

In this day of commentaries by well-known writers in the English tongue, a still later work—and an exhaustive one at that—coming from a deeply spiritual Hindu mind, must be greeted with exceptional interest everywhere. Sri Paránanda, the author of the work now before us, has evidently followed a most profound line of intuitional reasoning. Every phrase of importance in the book of St. Matthew is given a lucid and rational interpretation. Thus are symbols changed to pleasing verities, obscure passages to semblances of beauty and love, and not that the Gospel of St. Matthew contains even a tincture of the wormwood which the literalist would have us believe.

The Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanitarium, Kingston, New York, is most beautifully situated at the foothills of the Catskills, near the banks of the Hudson River, the Rhine of America. It is the only sanitarium in the United States conducted for the treatment of all forms of mental and nervous diseases and drug addictions by psychology. Dr. Sahler recently enlarged the sanitarium, besides having two large cottages across the square in front of the sanitarium. Dr. Sahler has devoted a number of years to occult study, and all those wishing to know about this special method of treatment, and more particularly those who are afflicted by ailments or disease, all other methods having proved failures, will find it to their interest to write for a special circular issued expressly for the enlightenment of suffering humanity. For full particulars concerning system of treatment, terms, hours for consultation, etc., address all communications to

The Philosophy of Mental Healing,

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The latest work upon the subject of 'The Philosophy of Mental Healing,' by Leander Edmund Whipple, stands almost alone as a clear and consistent explanation of the science of mental cure. The author seems to have a well-defined and well-grounded idea of the principles that underlie it. He meets squarely and answers logically the questions which are always asked by sceptics and investigators: 'What is mental or metaphysical healing?' 'How does it heal and why does it heal?' 'What proof is there of its power, and how is that power exercised?' 'Is mind cure mesmerism or hypnotism?' 'Has it any foundation in science, philosophy, logic or reason?' 'Are the theory and working power capable of scientific demonstration?' Mr. Whipple does not evade any of these questions, but takes them up one by one, and answers them point by point.

"A remarkably interesting chapter of the work is that entitled, 'How mental action causes disease,' in which the effect of the mind upon the body is illustrated by familiar examples. There is a constant temptation to quote, in turning over the pages of the volume, but we must leave interested readers to enjoy the work as a whole. Meanwhile, we commend it as the most valuable contribution to the literature of mental healing yet given to the public; dignified in tone, clear and definite in statement, and logical in its conclusions." —Boston Evening Transcript.

"The book is much the most logical and comprehensive effort that has as yet been made in print to furnish a practical exposition of the theories of the mind-cure people. Readers of this magazine who pin their faith on drug poisons as the only possible remedies for diseased conditions of the body will be disposed to dismiss it as a humbug, or at best a fad of unbalanced minds, but there is a growing class of people who are disposed to look deeper than material conditions, and to find in mind or spirit the real potency which builds up and animates the human body. Such people will be glad to read a brief account of the main thesis of mental healing. One thing the mind-cure doctors can safely assert—their percentage of cures is certainly as great as that of the drug doctors."—The Northwest Magazine, St. Paul.

"It is but just to our American mind-curers of the various sects to say that for years past the notion that all sorts of morbid symptoms may spring from subconscious fixed ideas, such as old fears, griefs and remorses, has been the basis of their treatment. Mr. Whipple's book sets forth this notion in an earnest way, in the good English of an educated man. * * * The most striking feature of the book is a list of cases which the author gives at length. Neuralgia, rheumatism, bronchial catarrh, debility, nervous agitation, chronic diarrhœa, insomnia, dyspepsia, and chills are shown, in as many patients, to have arisen from subconscious or conscious fixed ideas, which being scattered, recovery ensued. The author well says that, in patients of this sort, to treat the mere external symptom would be as bad practice as for an engine-driver to slow his engine by scotching the wheels and pistons rather than by regulating the steam-box or the boiler. Yet in cases of refusal to eat, like those quoted from Janet in the last review but one, the only practice known at an ordinary asylum is forcible feeding by the stomach-pump. * * * In most 'metaphysical healing' it seems to involve something like the telepathic action of one subliminal self upon another; but with this we navigate in full wonderland, where, without safe guidance, we had better not proceed."—Prof. Wm. James, in The Psychological Review (Macmillan), New York.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

This magazine was called into existence, originally, to satisfy the popular demand for the publication of the discourses of Henry Frank, which are delivered each Sunday morning in Carnegie Lyceum. These discourses are expositions of The New Thought, founded on the most rigid scientific facts. If you have been bewildered and disappointed by expositions of Christian Science, Mental Science, mystifying metaphysics and muddy materialism, read Mr. Frank's discourses, and you will find a Philosophy to live by and a Religion that cannot be laughed down or refuted. Besides the discourses, contributed articles from able authors appear in each issue.

A VISIT TO A GNANI.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A vivid pen picture of Oriental thought and teaching, containing in a few pages what one often fails to find by searching many volumes. Gives the practical esotericism of the East, divulging points of likeness to Western philosophy. Man loses his life to gain it, loses his consciousness of and dependence upon physical and material life to gain a consciousness of the greater or universal life—a Cosmic consciousness.

Illustrated. Bound in Vellum de Luxe.
Prepaid $1.00.

TOWARDS DEMOCRACY.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A masterpiece, the work of a seer. One of the great, if not the greatest work of the nineteenth century. Is full of vivid pictures of the soul's enlightenment. Its perusal gives the reader a realization of the divine in man—"the divine life which encloses and redeems all souls." Through this life every soul finds itself akin to every other soul; brotherhood is more than a myth and Democracy ceases to be a dead letter. People of the nineteenth century may be deaf to the poetic strains pealing throughout in clarion notes, they may be blind to the universal truths flashed in scintillating lights, but illumined souls of the coming centuries will honor the author as one of the chosen and will understand the message of deliverance he has given to imprisoned souls.

Form Changed. Quality Enriched.

for 1900.

The publishers take pleasure in announcing that, beginning the January (1900) issue, UNIVERSAL TRUTH was changed to regular magazine form, and while its policy and teachings remain practically the same, a much broader field has been covered than heretofore. As a live periodical, filled with everyday metaphysical thought, it stands pre-eminent among its competitors. Able authors have been engaged to write for its pages. Its editorials are crisp and entertaining, and the news of the thinking world is to appear in concise form from month to month. Among the important features for the new year is Alwyn M. Thurber's great optimistic story,

"NOTHING EVER HAPPENS,"

To begin with the February number and to continue throughout the year. You should not miss the opening chapters.

Fanny M. Harley, the much-beloved and able editor of UNIVERSAL TRUTH for so many years, is still to remain in the work, along with other competent editorial writers.

The price of the magazine remains unchanged—$1.00 a year; six months, 50c.; three months, 25c.; 10c. a copy.

All books known to the trade furnished at publishers' lowest prices.

"Trusts and the Public"

is the title of a book just published by D. Appleton & Co. for Mr. George Gunton. It is the result of years of thought and investigation on the subject of TRUSTS—the most vital question of the hour.

The volume contains two hundred and fifty-six pages of well-digested matter, abounding in practical illustrations, facts and statistics.

Here is to be found all of the best that Professor Gunton has written upon the subject, and he has made it a special study for fifteen years. While the trust principle in the organization of industry is vigorously defended, its abuses and dangers are indicated with equal vigor and frankness.

In a very entertaining and facetious way has the author given currency to the thoughts embodied in this book. The narrative is unique, wholesome, and full of up-to-date teachings. The style of the book is suggestive, and interests the reader from the opening sentence to the end.

The Gospel of Jesus According to St. Matthew,

As interpreted to R. L. Harrison by the light of the godly experience of Sri Parananda.

In this day of commentaries by well-known writers in the English tongue, a still later work—and an exhaustive one at that—coming from a deeply spiritual Hindu mind, must be greeted with exceptional interest everywhere. Sri Paránanda, the author of the work now before us, has evidently followed a most profound line of intuitional reasoning. Every phrase of importance in the book of St. Matthew is given a lucid and rational interpretation. Thus are symbols changed to pleasing verities, obscure passages to semblances of beauty and love, and not that the Gospel of St. Matthew contains even a tincture of the wormwood which the literalist would have us believe.

The Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanitarium, Kingston, New York, is most beautifully situated at the foothills of the Catskills, near the banks of the Hudson River, the Rhine of America. It is the only sanitarium in the United States conducted for the treatment of all forms of mental and nervous diseases and drug addictions by psychology. Dr. Sahler recently enlarged the sanitarium, besides having two large cottages across the square in front of the sanitarium. Dr. Sahler has devoted a number of years to occult study, and all those wishing to know about this special method of treatment, and more particularly those who are afflicted by ailments or disease, all other methods having proved failures, will find it to their interest to write for a special circular issued expressly for the enlightenment of suffering humanity. The Philosophy of Mental Healing,

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The latest work upon the subject of 'The Philosophy of Mental Healing,' by Leander Edmund Whipple, stands almost alone as a clear and consistent explanation of the science of mental cure. The author seems to have a well-defined and well-grounded idea of the principles that underlie it. He meets squarely and answers logically the questions which are always asked by sceptics and investigators: 'What is mental or metaphysical healing?' 'How does it heal and why does it heal?' 'What proof is there of its power, and how is that power exercised?' 'Is mind cure mesmerism or hypnotism?' 'Has it any foundation in science, philosophy, logic or reason?' 'Are the theory and working power capable of scientific demonstration?' Mr. Whipple does not evade any of these questions, but takes them up one by one, and answers them point by point.

"A remarkably interesting chapter of the work is that entitled, 'How mental action causes disease,' in which the effect of the mind upon the body is illustrated by familiar examples. There is a constant temptation to quote, in turning over the pages of the volume, but we must leave interested readers to enjoy the work as a whole. Meanwhile, we commend it as the most valuable contribution to the literature of mental healing yet given to the public; dignified in tone, clear and definite in statement, and logical in its conclusions." —Boston Evening Transcript.

"The book is much the most logical and comprehensive effort that has as yet been made in print to furnish a practical exposition of the theories of the mind-cure people. Readers of this magazine who pin their faith on drug poisons as the only possible remedies for diseased conditions of the body will be disposed to dismiss it as a humbug, or at best a fad of unbalanced minds, but there is a growing class of people who are disposed to look deeper than material conditions, and to find in mind or spirit the real potency which builds up and animates the human body. Such people will be glad to read a brief account of the main thesis of mental healing. One thing the mind-cure doctors can safely assert—their percentage of cures is certainly as great as that of the drug doctors."—The Northwest Magazine, St. Paul.

"It is but just to our American mind-curers of the various sects to say that for years past the notion that all sorts of morbid symptoms may spring from subconscious fixed ideas, such as old fears, griefs and remorses, has been the basis of their treatment. Mr. Whipple's book sets forth this notion in an earnest way, in the good English of an educated man. * * * The most striking feature of the book is a list of cases which the author gives at length. Neuralgia, rheumatism, bronchial catarrh, debility, nervous agitation, chronic diarrhœa, insomnia, dyspepsia, and chills are shown, in as many patients, to have arisen from subconscious or conscious fixed ideas, which being scattered, recovery ensued. The author well says that, in patients of this sort, to treat the mere external symptom would be as bad practice as for an engine-driver to slow his engine by scotching the wheels and pistons rather than by regulating the steam-box or the boiler. Yet in cases of refusal to eat, like those quoted from Janet in the last review but one, the only practice known at an ordinary asylum is forcible feeding by the stomach-pump. * * * In most 'metaphysical healing' it seems to involve something like the telepathic action of one subliminal self upon another; but with this we navigate in full wonderland, where, without safe guidance, we had better not proceed."—Prof. Wm. James, in The Psychological Review (Macmillan), New York.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

This magazine was called into existence, originally, to satisfy the popular demand for the publication of the discourses of Henry Frank, which are delivered each Sunday morning in Carnegie Lyceum. These discourses are expositions of The New Thought, founded on the most rigid scientific facts. If you have been bewildered and disappointed by expositions of Christian Science, Mental Science, mystifying metaphysics and muddy materialism, read Mr. Frank's discourses, and you will find a Philosophy to live by and a Religion that cannot be laughed down or refuted. Besides the discourses, contributed articles from able authors appear in each issue.

A VISIT TO A GNANI.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A vivid pen picture of Oriental thought and teaching, containing in a few pages what one often fails to find by searching many volumes. Gives the practical esotericism of the East, divulging points of likeness to Western philosophy. Man loses his life to gain it, loses his consciousness of and dependence upon physical and material life to gain a consciousness of the greater or universal life—a Cosmic consciousness.

Illustrated. Bound in Vellum de Luxe.

TOWARDS DEMOCRACY.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A masterpiece, the work of a seer. One of the great, if not the greatest work of the nineteenth century. Is full of vivid pictures of the soul's enlightenment. Its perusal gives the reader a realization of the divine in man—"the divine life which encloses and redeems all souls." Through this life every soul finds itself akin to every other soul; brotherhood is more than a myth and Democracy ceases to be a dead letter. People of the nineteenth century may be deaf to the poetic strains pealing throughout in clarion notes, they may be blind to the universal truths flashed in scintillating lights, but illumined souls of the coming centuries will honor the author as one of the chosen and will understand the message of deliverance he has given to imprisoned souls.

UNIVERSAL TRUTH

for 1900.

The publishers take pleasure in announcing that, beginning the January (1900) issue, UNIVERSAL TRUTH was changed to regular magazine form, and while its policy and teachings remain practically the same, a much broader field has been covered than heretofore. As a live periodical, filled with everyday metaphysical thought, it stands pre-eminent among its competitors. Able authors have been engaged to write for its pages. Its editorials are crisp and entertaining, and the news of the thinking world is to appear in concise form from month to month. Among the important features for the new year is Alwyn M. Thurber's great optimistic story,

"NOTHING EVER HAPPENS,"

To begin with the February number and to continue throughout the year. You should not miss the opening chapters.

Fanny M. Harley, the much-beloved and able editor of UNIVERSAL TRUTH for so many years, is still to remain in the work, along with other competent editorial writers.

The price of the magazine remains unchanged—$1.00 a year; six months, 50c.; three months, 25c.; 10c. a copy.

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

This work classifies all important words in common use expressive of the attributes and activities of Being, explains the meaning and importance of each in correct understanding of principles, and demonstrates the relative bearing of one idea upon another in Science, Philosophy, Logic, and Reason.

It is calculated to facilitate the conception of metaphysical principles which, in ordinary use of the English language, remain obscure, as well as to correct some erroneous opinions in regard to life, which act as obstructions to the full enjoyment of health.

As a ready help to immediate realization, and for practical use in the act of treating patients on general principles, it is thought to have no equal in any printed publication.

The results of demonstration prove that a clear understanding of the activities represented by the nature and relation of ideas, as expressed in the several divisions of this Chart, develops the power so to control the forces of mental concentration as to perform the act of mental healing with scientific accuracy.

The work has received the highest commendation from those familiar with both Metaphysical and Christian Science principles.

The Chart, fifty-six inches in length, is printed on superfine bond paper, prepared for endurance in handling.

The explanation pages are printed with marginal lines in color, and the volume is handsomely bound in leather.

PARSIFAL

THE FINDING OF CHRIST THROUGH ART.

A Wagner Study.

By ALBERT ROSS PARSONS.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"By the creation of 'Parsifal' Wagner is shown to the world as the exciter of the deepest religious emotion, a guide to spiritual heights through new paths, a modern reviver of the extasis of the Neo-Platonists, through the unconditional power of music."—Home Journal, New York.

"A thoughtful work on Wagner's last masterpiece 'Parsifal,' showing great sympathy with the composer's intentions."—Detroit Free Press.

"A very full and enthusiastic exposition of the views Wagner held at the close of his life as to the reality and power of Christ's relations to men. A valuable appendix contains much additional matter."—Public Opinion, Washington.

"Many will be amazed at the new Wagner Mr. Parsons presents to us, although it is a Wagner accessible to all of us in his collected writings. It cannot be denied after reading Mr. Parsons' more than interesting volume, that Wagner was a profound thinker on Christianity."—Musical Courier, New York.

"Mr. Parsons' clever and stimulating essay on 'Parsifal' will repay perusal."
—The Churchman, New York.

"It has evidently been a labor of love to present Wagner in this way, and the work deserves respect. It is published with an appendix which is even larger than the body of the text, but it is all well worth reading and ought to make Wagner even more popular than ever before."—Boston Post.

"A profoundly interesting and instructive writing, and in a comparatively new field."—Portland Oregonian.

"These utterances of Wagner are quite original, and the citations are cleverly arranged to show the progressive steps by which he reached an understanding of the Light of the World. 'Parsifal' will reward attentive perusal."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"The course of thought followed in this study evinces profound mental and spiritual research on the part of the author, whose work is calculated to ennoble and enrich the best conceptions of both art and religious truth."—Minneapolis Progress.

"Those to whom Wagner's music brings uplifting, spiritual thoughts, will deeply rejoice in this earnest, loving presentation of the words of a great man."
—New Haven Palladium.

"An addition of an unusual kind to the multitudinous Wagner literature. Wagner has been presented to us in many shapes. Here he is shown as a theologian, and Mr. Parsons' ingenuity and analysis will no doubt be appreciated. The earnest and moving words used by Mr. Parsons seem entirely justified. It is altogether a very suggestive and interesting record."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Philosophy of Mental Healing,

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The latest work upon the subject of 'The Philosophy of Mental Healing,' by Leander Edmund Whipple, stands almost alone as a clear and consistent explanation of the science of mental cure. The author seems to have a well-defined and well-grounded idea of the principles that underlie it. He meets squarely and answers logically the questions which are always asked by sceptics and investigators: 'What is mental or metaphysical healing?' 'How does it heal and why does it heal?' 'What proof is there of its power, and how is that power exercised?' 'Is mind cure mesmerism or hypnotism?' 'Has it any foundation in science, philosophy, logic or reason?' 'Are the theory and working power capable of scientific demonstration?' Mr. Whipple does not evade any of these questions, but takes them up one by one, and answers them point by point.

"A remarkably interesting chapter of the work is that entitled, 'How mental action causes disease,' in which the effect of the mind upon the body is illustrated by familiar examples. There is a constant temptation to quote, in turning over the pages of the volume, but we must leave interested readers to enjoy the work as a whole. Meanwhile, we commend it as the most valuable contribution to the literature of mental healing yet given to the public; dignified in tone, clear and definite in statement, and logical in its conclusions." —Boston Evening Transcript.

"The book is much the most logical and comprehensive effort that has as yet been made in print to furnish a practical exposition of the theories of the mind-cure people. Readers of this magazine who pin their faith on drug poisons as the only possible remedies for diseased conditions of the body will be disposed to dismiss it as a humbug, or at best a fad of unbalanced minds, but there is a growing class of people who are disposed to look deeper than material conditions, and to find in mind or spirit the real potency which builds up and animates the human body. Such people will be glad to read a brief account of the main thesis of mental healing. One thing the mind-cure doctors can safely assert—their percentage of cures is certainly as great as that of the drug doctors."—The Northwest Magazine, St. Paul.

"It is but just to our American mind-curers of the various sects to say that for years past the notion that all sorts of morbid symptoms may spring from subconscious fixed ideas, such as old fears, griefs and remorses, has been the basis of their treatment. Mr. Whipple's book sets forth this notion in an earnest way, in the good English of an educated man. * * * The most striking feature of the book is a list of cases which the author gives at length. Neuralgia, rheumatism, bronchial catarrh, debility, nervous agitation, chronic diarrhœa, insomnia, dyspepsia, and chills are shown, in as many patients, to have arisen from subconscious or conscious fixed ideas, which being scattered, recovery ensued. The author well says that, in patients of this sort, to treat the mere external symptom would be as bad practice as for an engine-driver to slow his engine by scotching the wheels and pistons rather than by regulating the steam-box or the boiler. Yet in cases of refusal to eat, like those quoted from Janet in the last review but one, the only practice known at an ordinary asylum is forcible feeding by the stomach-pump. * * * In most 'metaphysical healing' it seems to involve something like the telepathic action of one subliminal self upon another; but with this we navigate in full wonderland, where, without safe guidance, we had better not proceed."—Prof. Wm. James, in The Psychological Review (Macmillan), New York.

A VISIT TO A GNANI.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A vivid pen picture of Oriental thought and teaching, containing in a few pages what one often fails to find by searching many volumes. Gives the practical esotericism of the East, divulging points of likeness to Western philosophy. Man loses his life to gain it, loses his consciousness of and dependence upon physical and material life to gain a consciousness of the greater or universal life—a Cosmic consciousness.

Illustrated. Bound in Vellum de Luxe.
Prepaid $1.00.

TOWARDS DEMOCRACY.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A masterpiece, the work of a seer. One of the great, if not the greatest work of the nineteenth century. Is full of vivid pictures of the soul's enlightenment. Its perusal gives the reader a realization of the divine in man—"the divine life which encloses and redeems all souls." Through this life every soul finds itself akin to every other soul; brotherhood is more than a myth and Democracy ceases to be a dead letter. People of the nineteenth century may be deaf to the poetic strains pealing throughout in clarion notes, they may be blind to the universal truths flashed in scintillating lights, but illumined souls of the coming centuries will honor the author as one of the chosen and will understand the message of deliverance he has given to imprisoned souls.

367 pages, cloth, Prepaid, $2.25.

The Doom of Dogma and the Dawn of Truth

By HENRY FRANK

Will instantly demand the attention of universal and progressive thinkers. Mr. Frank herein sets forth the results of the labors of a lifetime in the field of Theological Research. He gives a resume of the investigations and criticisms of scholars for the last half century, showing how the old dogmas have been absolutely overthrown, and introduces unique and original interpretations which present an IDEAL THEOLOGY that should appeal with peculiar force to the present Age of Culture.

Besides tracing the growth of every Dogma from its naturalistic origin through the Ethnic Religions to its evolution into the Christian system, he reviews, with scholarly satisfaction,

The Making and Decaying of the Creed,

in the Historical period, from the first vestiges of Christianity to the prevailing discussion on "Revision."

BEING:

HISTORY OF THE SUBJECT FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES.

By C. H. A. Bjerregaard.

Philosophers and theologians of the past have generally treated Being as a mere intellectual conception. Hence its study has usually failed to bring either life or enthusiasm, and has rarely been of an uplifting nature. The present volume, while a comprehensive history of the idea itself, is also an attempt to bring Being to the People—to those who are sick in mind and body and need such communion for their salvation. The author treats the subject, not as an abstraction or the plaything of philosophy, but as the great Reality in and by which we live and move.

The introductory chapters open a vista of views into Being never before attempted in the literary history of the world—showing that the "openness" of mind necessary to its proper comprehension is to be found chiefly among those simple minds which historically antedate our present civilization. Then follow in chronological order all known definitions of "Being" and philosophies of the Absolute, with lucid and instructive commentary. As Librarian of the Astor Library, New York, Professor Bjerregaard has especial facilities for the obtainment of such knowledge.

The author concludes with an historical summary of the various conceptions of the subject and gives what is thought to be a new form for "Being" suited to the needs of present-day humanity.

SECOND EDITION—REVISED AND ENLARGED!

NEW LIGHT FROM THE GREAT PYRAMID!

THE ASTRONOMICO-GEOGRAPHICAL SYSTEM OF THE ANCIENTS RECOVERED AND APPLIED TO THE ELUCIDATION OF HISTORY, CEREMONY, SYMBOLISM, AND RELIGION. . . . . .

By ALBERT ROSS PARSONS.

"A curious book which will greatly interest the votaries of the occult and mysterious."
—Detroit Free Press.

"From the story of the Pyramid, as the author reads it, the myths and legends of all ancient peoples become plain."—The Arena.

"The author seeks to prove that the Christian religion is a spiritualization of the cosmic religions of the elder world."—New Orleans Picayune.

"Every one interested in a better knowledge of the Bible, and of much which geology unveils, should procure this book."—Pacific Unitarian, San Francisco.

"It brings together ideas on the subject of zodiacal religion, worthy of careful consideration. We would refer particularly to the 'Table of Sacred Chronology.'"—Philosophical Journal, Chicago.

"A notable contribution of correlated facts drawn from the Hebrew Bible, the Hindu Scriptures, and the religions of the civilized nations of antiquity."—Boston Traveler.

"The author being a man of manifest learning, his subject cannot fail to arouse deep interest in the minds of those who love truth and welcome every work evidencing thought and study."—Boston Ideas.

"The argument upon which the book rests is that in Christianity we possess the religion of prehistoric men, and that it is now being re-established upon its ancient foundations largely by the involuntary agency of modern science."—Boston Transcript.

"Augustine, Eusebius, and other early Christian writers are cited to show their belief that the Christian religion was anciently known, and that its founder appeared far back in the days of the patriarchs."—Freemasons' Repository.

"Dupuis, Gerald Massey, and other writers have gone over somewhat similar ground many years ago, but this new work is in many ways superior to the writings of those authors, by reason of its greater lucidity of statement and the absence of all harsh prejudice or attempt to deny historic or biographical elements."—Banner of Light.

"In this day, when men are turning from materialism and seeking a deeper spiritual meaning beneath the words and symbols of the past, works of this character will be appreciated. This work might well be called 'New Light on Cosmic Religion.' The author's collected evidence, viewed in these lights, shows that historic Christianity is the new expression of the ancient cosmic science and religion."—The Woman's Tribune.

"It was perceived that the globe was related to a universal system in which the order-producing, restoring, and maintaining power predominated over the forces temporarily working disorder and destruction. Thus the cosmical early became the symbol of the ethical. It is evident that the ancients had a highly developed scientific knowledge of astronomical relations, which were also their religious relations, man's relation to the cosmos being his relation to the Creator. The author regards the Hebrew Bible as a great symbolic history of the world-wrecking cosmical calamity which crucified the Divine Man and destroyed the world's Edenic equilibrium."—Minneapolis Progress.

"The weight of evidence is brought to bear upon the structural connection of the Bible, and in fact of all known religious systems, with the evolution of the Cosmos in the Divine Image, and of man as its microcosmic representative, both in body and spirit, having solar radiance as its central and all-pervading symbol, with its key of interpretation in the zodiac. The sublime and vital deduction is that all the religions of the world are linked together by descent from a perfect pre-diluvial system in which Messiah—God in man—is immanent from the beginning to the end, of which the Bible is the purest and clearest written revelation, and of which Christianity shall yet be the complete restoration. The work is of great value as a collection of interesting and pertinent material for reflection which could not otherwise be reached without consulting many volumes."—The Home Journal, New York.

Minutely Indexed, with Appendix and New Illustrations.

The work contains a map of the surface of the Globe and the constellations in the heavens with numerous rare and significant illustrations of great value.

The Religious Training of Children.

By ABBY MORTON DIAZ.

CONTENTS:

CHAPTER I.—"Our Heavenly Home."
" II.—"Restraint and Guidance from Within."
" III.—"The Divine Indwelling as a Dependence."
" IV.—"Our Human World."
" V.—"What is it to LIVE?"
" VI.—"A Few Home Suggestions."
" VII.—"The Ideal and the Practical."
" VIII.—"The Influence of Ideals."

THE chief purpose of this book is to aid in freeing children from theological falsities, and to give them the true scriptural idea of an Infinite Presence as immanent in each and all. The value of right thinking in the religious instruction of youth cannot be over-estimated. In this work the necessity of correct ideas is pointed out in the clearest possible manner; and the responsibilities of the home in regard to the individual, and through the individual to the State, are considered in a new light and methods suggested.

The author is Vice-President, Woman's Educational Union of Boston, and is a writer of note well fitted for intelligent treatment of this important subject. Her book should be read and studied by every mother and every educator in the land—indeed, by all who are charged with the care and instruction of the young.

The Ideal of Universities.

By ADOLF BRODBECK, Ph.D.

Cloth, $1.50.

This book is intended to serve a threefold purpose:

(1) It gives a concise history of Philosophy, Law, Theology, and the Physical Sciences, showing how each department of learning became in turn the dominant ideal of educational institutions, and tracing their descent from the ancient Greeks, through the Roman period and the Middle Ages, down to modern times.

(2) On this historic basis it explains the present state of academic study and teaching, pointing out defects and suggesting remedies.

(3) It outlines a true and consistent ideal for the Universities and Academies of the future; to which is added a brief encyclopædia of all sciences, theoretical and technical.

This work is indispensable to the student seeking a safe guide amid the existing chaos of science and art; to the academic teacher who would know his proper place in the growing organism of sciences; and to the philanthropic and intelligent reader who desires advice as to the best method of realizing a true educational reform.

"The Ideal of Universities" is the result of twenty years' study, observation, and travel. It has been translated from the German by the author, who, in the English version, has made many additions and improvements on the original.

Dr. Brodbeck was originator of the World's Parliament of Religions (Chicago, 1893) and a member of its Advisory Council. He and his work have received the indorsement of the Royal University of Stuttgart, Professor Wundt of Leipzig University, Professor Zeller of the University of Berlin, and many other leading educators throughout the world.

No library is complete without this valuable contribution to the cause of education.

WORKS BY
URSULA N. GESTEFELD.

The Science of the Christ.

Cloth, $3.00.

This is an argument from the premise, "All is Mind," which shows the Christ to be inherent in every man as the logical necessity of his nature, and ultimately to be developed by all. It makes application of this deduction to the book of Genesis, correcting the error which supposes the first two chapters to be differing accounts of the creation of the world, and showing them to be the continuous and consecutive illustration of the nature of Man, both microcosm and macrocosm. An invaluable work for students of metaphysical thought, as it consists of clear, logical deductions from premise to conclusion.

A Statement of Christian Science.

Cloth, $2.00.

A most helpful book for those who wish to gain an understanding of the basic principles of the Science of Being and how to apply them in demonstration. Full directions for treatment of disease are given, with directions for its prevention also. The student of this work can virtually become his own healer.

A Chicago Bible Class.

Cloth, $1.50.

A view of the leading incidents of the life of Jesus, as given in the Gospels, which translates them from the past to the present as the experiences of those who have discerned the Son of God in themselves, and by which they practically prove their dominion over all things through the God-power they have found and can use.

A Modern Catechism.

Third Edition. Paper, 25 cents.

"A very modest little book, but for good common sense it is one of the brightest and best we have ever seen. Whoever can read and think (and this little book is a perfect generator of wholesome thinking) cannot fail to relish the pungent questions and admire the author who condenses in so small a space such an abundance of revised religion and philosophy. A mere review cannot do it justice; it should be read in every home." —Boston Budget.

The Leprosy of Miriam

Cloth, $1.25.

The characters in this story typify the consequences of living up to one's best, or down to one's worst qualities, as aspiration for the higher enables us to rule the lower nature. The power of thought in creating environment and opportunity, and, according to its quality, the molding of circumstances by conscious and trained, or merely impulsive thinking, is most interestingly illustrated.

How We Master Our Fate.

Third Edition. Cloth, 75 cents.

A series of articles, descriptive and explanatory of human experience, and what we can do to make it satisfactory.

It is full, complete, and it is our conviction that no greater book has ever been written. It deals with abstractions to the absolutely practical extent that it compels the reader's thoughts inward by reason of its living, essential power. Judged from any standpoint, the book is an artistic piece of work; judged merely by the fair intellect, it is a superb exposition of Truth.—Boston Ideas.

The Breath of Life.

Third Edition. Cloth, 50 cents.

One of those delightful little books that are exactly the thing to offer to a friend who asks you all sorts of questions concerning mental treatment, and who desires some definite directions how to go to work to apply metaphysical theory in practical action.—W. J. COLVILLE, in The Faith and Hope Messenger.

The Metaphysics of Balzac as found in "The Magic Skin," "Louis Lambert," and "Seraphita."

Cloth, $1.00.

"The author of 'The Metaphysics of Balzac' is heartily in sympathy with the subject, and is to be congratulated upon her manner of handling it. Lovers of Balzac will enjoy and appreciate every page, while those who have held aloof from this French master can in no better way, than by reading this little volume, get an insight into his grasp of human life and action, and the incisiveness of his analytical power."—Boston Times.

REINCARNATION OR IMMORTALITY.

Cloth, $1.00

A valuable and timely book. Void of assertion, all arguments presented are logical deductions from a stated premise. To the many looking for "more light," who accept the theory of reincarnation in lieu of a better as explaining many of the problems of human existance, this book will be welcome, will prove a valuable guide and counsellor.

The Gospel of Jesus According to St. Matthew,

As interpreted to R. L. Harrison by the light of the godly experience of Sri Paránanda.

In this day of commentaries by well-known writers in the English tongue, a still later work—and an exhaustive one at that—coming from a deeply spiritual Hindu mind, must be greeted with exceptional interest everywhere. Sri Paránanda, the author of the work now before us, has evidently followed a most profound line of intuitional reasoning. Every phrase of importance in the book of St. Matthew is given a lucid and rational interpretation. Thus are symbols changed to pleasing verities, obscure passages to semblances of beauty and love, and not that the Gospel of St. Matthew contains even a tincture of the wormwood which the literalist would have us believe.

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

This work classifies all important words in common use expressive of the attributes and activities of Being, explains the meaning and importance of each in correct understanding of principles, and demonstrates the relative bearing of one idea upon another in Science, Philosophy, Logic, and Reason.

It is calculated to facilitate the conception of metaphysical principles which, in ordinary use of the English language, remain obscure, as well as to correct some erroneous opinions in regard to life, which act as obstructions to the full enjoyment of health.

As a ready help to immediate realization, and for practical use in the act of treating patients on general principles, it is thought to have no equal in any printed publication.

The results of demonstration prove that a clear understanding of the activities represented by the nature and relation of ideas, as expressed in the several divisions of this Chart, develops the power so to control the forces of mental concentration as to perform the act of mental healing with scientific accuracy.

The work has received the highest commendation from those familiar with both Metaphysical and Christian Science principles.

The Chart, fifty-six inches in length, is printed on superfine bond paper, prepared for endurance in handling.

The explanation pages are printed with marginal lines in color, and the volume is handsomely bound in leather.

PARSIFAL

THE FINDING OF CHRIST THROUGH ART.

A Wagner Study.

By ALBERT ROSS PARSONS.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"By the creation of 'Parsifal' Wagner is shown to the world as the exciter of the deepest religious emotion, a guide to spiritual heights through new paths, a modern reviver of the extasis of the Neo-Platonists, through the unconditional power of music."—Home Journal, New York.

"A thoughtful work on Wagner's last masterpiece 'Parsifal,' showing great sympathy with the composer's intentions."—Detroit Free Press.

"A very full and enthusiastic exposition of the views Wagner held at the close of his life as to the reality and power of Christ's relations to men. A valuable appendix contains much additional matter."—Public Opinion, Washington.

"Many will be amazed at the new Wagner Mr. Parsons presents to us, although it is a Wagner accessible to all of us in his collected writings. It cannot be denied after reading Mr. Parsons' more than interesting volume, that Wagner was a profound thinker on Christianity."—Musical Courier, New York.

"Mr. Parsons' clever and stimulating essay on 'Parsifal' will repay perusal."
—The Churchman, New York.

"It has evidently been a labor of love to present Wagner in this way, and the work deserves respect. It is published with an appendix which is even larger than the body of the text, but it is all well worth reading and ought to make Wagner even more popular than ever before."—Boston Post.

"A profoundly interesting and instructive writing, and in a comparatively new field."—Portland Oregonian.

"These utterances of Wagner are quite original, and the citations are cleverly arranged to show the progressive steps by which he reached an understanding of the Light of the World. 'Parsifal' will reward attentive perusal."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"The course of thought followed in this study evinces profound mental and spiritual research on the part of the author, whose work is calculated to ennoble and enrich the best conceptions of both art and religious truth."—Minneapolis Progress.

"Those to whom Wagner's music brings uplifting, spiritual thoughts, will deeply rejoice in this earnest, loving presentation of the words of a great man."
—New Haven Palladium.

"An addition of an unusual kind to the multitudinous Wagner literature. Wagner has been presented to us in many shapes. Here he is shown as a theologian, and Mr. Parsons' ingenuity and analysis will no doubt be appreciated. The earnest and moving words used by Mr. Parsons seem entirely justified. It is altogether a very suggestive and interesting record."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Philosophy of Mental Healing,

By LEANDER EDMUND WHIPPLE.

EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The latest work upon the subject of 'The Philosophy of Mental Healing,' by Leander Edmund Whipple, stands almost alone as a clear and consistent explanation of the science of mental cure. The author seems to have a well-defined and well-grounded idea of the principles that underlie it. He meets squarely and answers logically the questions which are always asked by sceptics and investigators: 'What is mental or metaphysical healing?' 'How does it heal and why does it heal?' 'What proof is there of its power, and how is that power exercised?' 'Is mind cure mesmerism or hypnotism?' 'Has it any foundation in science, philosophy, logic or reason?' 'Are the theory and working power capable of scientific demonstration?' Mr. Whipple does not evade any of these questions, but takes them up one by one, and answers them point by point.

"A remarkably interesting chapter of the work is that entitled, 'How mental action causes disease,' in which the effect of the mind upon the body is illustrated by familiar examples. There is a constant temptation to quote, in turning over the pages of the volume, but we must leave interested readers to enjoy the work as a whole. Meanwhile, we commend it as the most valuable contribution to the literature of mental healing yet given to the public; dignified in tone, clear and definite in statement, and logical in its conclusions." —Boston Evening Transcript.

"The book is much the most logical and comprehensive effort that has as yet been made in print to furnish a practical exposition of the theories of the mind-cure people. Readers of this magazine who pin their faith on drug poisons as the only possible remedies for diseased conditions of the body will be disposed to dismiss it as a humbug, or at best a fad of unbalanced minds, but there is a growing class of people who are disposed to look deeper than material conditions, and to find in mind or spirit the real potency which builds up and animates the human body. Such people will be glad to read a brief account of the main thesis of mental healing. One thing the mind-cure doctors can safely assert—their percentage of cures is certainly as great as that of the drug doctors."—The Northwest Magazine, St. Paul.

"It is but just to our American mind-curers of the various sects to say that for years past the notion that all sorts of morbid symptoms may spring from subconscious fixed ideas, such as old fears, griefs and remorses, has been the basis of their treatment. Mr. Whipple's book sets forth this notion in an earnest way, in the good English of an educated man. * * * The most striking feature of the book is a list of cases which the author gives at length. Neuralgia, rheumatism, bronchial catarrh, debility, nervous agitation, chronic diarrhœa, insomnia, dyspepsia, and chills are shown, in as many patients, to have arisen from subconscious or conscious fixed ideas, which being scattered, recovery ensued. The author well says that, in patients of this sort, to treat the mere external symptom would be as bad practice as for an engine-driver to slow his engine by scotching the wheels and pistons rather than by regulating the steam-box or the boiler. Yet in cases of refusal to eat, like those quoted from Janet in the last review but one, the only practice known at an ordinary asylum is forcible feeding by the stomach-pump. * * * In most 'metaphysical healing' it seems to involve something like the telepathic action of one subliminal self upon another; but with this we navigate in full wonderland, where, without safe guidance, we had better not proceed."—Prof. Wm. James, in The Psychological Review (Macmillan), New York.

The Religious Training of Children.

By ABBY MORTON DIAZ.

CONTENTS:

CHAPTER I.—"Our Heavenly Home."
" II.—"Restraint and Guidance from Within."
" III.—"The Divine Indwelling as a Dependence."
" IV.—"Our Human World."
" V.—"What is it to LIVE?"
" VI.—"A Few Home Suggestions."
" VII.—"The Ideal and the Practical."
" VIII.—"The Influence of Ideals."

THE chief purpose of this book is to aid in freeing children from theological falsities, and to give them the true scriptural idea of an Infinite Presence as immanent in each and all. The value of right thinking in the religious instruction of youth cannot be over-estimated. In this work the necessity of correct ideas is pointed out in the clearest possible manner; and the responsibilities of the home in regard to the individual, and through the individual to the State, are considered in a new light and methods suggested.

The author is Vice-President, Woman's Educational Union of Boston, and is a writer of note well fitted for intelligent treatment of this important subject. Her book should be read and studied by every mother and every educator in the land—indeed, by all who are charged with the care and instruction of the young.

A NEW AND COMPLETE EDITION OF

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll's Works

Known as the DRESDEN EDITION, in twelve octavo volumes handsomely illustrated, with photogravures, etchings, fac-similes and half-tones.

Published with the authority and supervision of the family from his manuscripts, notes and literary memoranda.

THIS Edition of the writings of Robert G. Ingersoll justifies its description as "complete." Besides including all of Col. Ingersoll's famous lectures, addresses and orations already issued in book or pamphlet form, the volumes contain some thousands of pages of matter not hitherto published Among his inedited writings, now first appearing, may be mentioned the author's first lecture, entitled "Progress," delivered in 1860; the lectures on "Robert Burns," "The Great Infidels," "My Reviewers Reviewed;" an answer to the Rev. Lyman Abbott's article, "Flaws in Ingersollism," published in THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW; an answer to Archdeacon Farrar's article "A Few Words on Colonel Ingersoll," published in the same magazine; an answer to the Dean of St. Paul's article on "Cruelty;" many new pages on Divorce, after dinner Speeches, Magazine articles on the Chinese Question; essays on Art and Morality, "Three Philanthropists," "Is Avarice Triumphant?" "Some Interrogation Points" (on the labor question); Prefaces, Tributes, Fragments, etc., etc.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are fifteen pictures and two fac-simile reproductions of Col. Ingersoll's manuscript. As a frontispiece for Volume I. a photogravure of the author has been prepared from a photograph taken in 1890. This faces a picture on the engraved title page, of the Birthplace of Robert G. Ingersoll, at Dresden, New York.

In Volume II. is an etched engraving of Attorney-General Ingersoll of Illinois, showing the Author as he appeared in 1868 when holding the office indicated.

Volume III contains the well known standing portrait of 1890, a photogravure. In the same binding is a manuscript fac-simile of the poem "The Birthplace of Burns," written in the Burns cottage at Ayr, August 19, 1878.

The photogravure frontispiece of the fourth volume is from 1897, a profile, taken when the hand of time was feeling for the tardy furrows in cheek and brow.

In volume V. we again have the orator represented in his prime, (1877) standing at ease with left hand pocketed. This is a fine half tone, and there is another in profile taken in 1884.

The favorite 1876 picture, in which the artist returns to the photogravure process, ornaments the sixth division—the book of Discussions.

Volume VII. presents the interior of "Chatham Street Theatre, where Robert G. Ingersoll was baptized in 1836"—a view that is full of interest considering the infant's subsequent career.

"With daughter's babes upon his knees, the white hair mingling with the gold," the Author is shown in the photogravure preceding the title page of Volume VIII., the only group in the series. The picture fulfills the words.

CONTENTS AND INDEX.

Notice is attracted to the full contents and elaborate Index of this edition. These useful adjuncts have been prepared not only at the expense of that labor and time necessary to all such compilations, but with an intelligent appreciation of the needs of those who would consult the writings of this Author.

The twelve volumes contain NEARLY SEVEN THOUSAND PAGES, printed in large type, on finest of laid rag paper, wide margins, gilt top, uncut edges, and bound library style, in olive silk cloth, gold back titles. Packed in a neat wooden box, ready for shipment.

A VISIT TO A GNANI.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A vivid pen picture of Oriental thought and teaching, containing in a few pages what one often fails to find by searching many volumes. Gives the practical esotericism of the East, divulging points of likeness to Western philosophy. Man loses his life to gain it, loses his consciousness of and dependence upon physical and material life to gain a consciousness of the greater or universal life—a Cosmic consciousness.

Illustrated. Bound in Vellum de Luxe.

Prepaid $1.00.

TOWARDS DEMOCRACY.

EDWARD CARPENTER.

A masterpiece, the work of a seer. One of the great, if not the greatest work of the nineteenth century. Is full of vivid pictures of the soul's enlightenment. Its perusal gives the reader a realization of the divine in man—"the divine life which encloses and redeems all souls." Through this life every soul finds itself akin to every other soul; brotherhood is more than a myth and Democracy ceases to be a dead letter. People of the nineteenth century may be deaf to the poetic strains pealing throughout in clarion notes, they may be blind to the universal truths flashed in scintillating lights, but illumined souls of the coming centuries will honor the author as one of the chosen and will understand the message of deliverance he has given to imprisoned souls.

The Doom of Dogma
and the Dawn of Truth

By HENRY FRANK

Will instantly demand the attention of universal and progressive thinkers. Mr. Frank herein sets forth the results of the labors of a lifetime in the field of Theological Research. He gives a resume of the investigations and criticisms of scholars for the last half century, showing how the old dogmas have been absolutely overthrown, and introduces unique and original interpretations which present an IDEAL THEOLOGY that should appeal with peculiar force to the present Age of Culture.

Besides tracing the growth of every Dogma from its naturalistic origin through the Ethnic Religions to its evolution into the Christian system, he reviews, with scholarly satisfaction,

The Making and Decaying of the Creed,

in the Historical period, from the first vestiges of Christianity to the prevailing discussion on "Revision."

BEING:

HISTORY OF THE SUBJECT FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES.

By C. H. A. Bjerregaard.

Philosophers and theologians of the past have generally treated Being as a mere intellectual conception. Hence its study has usually failed to bring either life or enthusiasm, and has rarely been of an uplifting nature. The present volume, while a comprehensive history of the idea itself, is also an attempt to bring Being to the People—to those who are sick in mind and body and need such communion for their salvation. The author treats the subject, not as an abstraction or the plaything of philosophy, but as the great Reality in and by which we live and move.

The introductory chapters open a vista of views into Being never before attempted in the literary history of the world—showing that the "openness" of mind necessary to its proper comprehension is to be found chiefly among those simple minds which historically antedate our present civilization. Then follow in chronological order all known definitions of "Being" and philosophies of the Absolute, with lucid and instructive commentary. As Librarian of the Astor Library, New York, Professor Bjerregaard has especial facilities for the obtainment of such knowledge.

The author concludes with an historical summary of the various conceptions of the subject and gives what is thought to be a new form for "Being" suited to the needs of present-day humanity.

SECOND EDITION—REVISED AND ENLARGED!

NEW LIGHT FROM THE GREAT PYRAMID!

THE ASTRONOMICO-GEOGRAPHICAL SYSTEM OF THE ANCIENTS RECOVERED AND APPLIED TO THE ELUCIDATION OF HISTORY, CEREMONY, SYMBOLISM, AND RELIGION. . . . . .

By ALBERT ROSS PARSONS.

"A curious book which will greatly interest the votaries of the occult and mysterious."
—Detroit Free Press.

"From the story of the Pyramid, as the author reads it, the myths and legends of all ancient peoples become plain."—The Arena.

"The author seeks to prove that the Christian religion is a spiritualization of the cosmic religions of the elder world."—New Orleans Picayune.

"Every one interested in a better knowledge of the Bible, and of much which geology unveils, should procure this book."—Pacific Unitarian, San Francisco.

"It brings together ideas on the subject of zodiacal religion, worthy of careful consideration. We would refer particularly to the 'Table of Sacred Chronology.'"—Philosophical Journal, Chicago.

"A notable contribution of correlated facts drawn from the Hebrew Bible, the Hindu Scriptures, and the religions of the civilized nations of antiquity."—Boston Traveler.

"The author being a man of manifest learning, his subject cannot fail to arouse deep interest in the minds of those who love truth and welcome every work evidencing thought and study."—Boston Ideas.

"The argument upon which the book rests is that in Christianity we possess the religion of prehistoric men, and that it is now being re-established upon its ancient foundations largely by the involuntary agency of modern science."—Boston Transcript.

"Augustine, Eusebius, and other early Christian writers are cited to show their belief that the Christian religion was anciently known, and that its founder appeared far back in the days of the patriarchs."—Freemasons' Repository.

"Dupuis, Gerald Massey, and other writers have gone over somewhat similar ground many years ago, but this new work is in many ways superior to the writings of those authors, by reason of its greater lucidity of statement and the absence of all harsh prejudice or attempt to deny historic or biographical elements."—Banner of Light.

"In this day, when men are turning from materialism and seeking a deeper spiritual meaning beneath the words and symbols of the past, works of this character will be appreciated. This work might well be called 'New Light on Cosmic Religion.' The author's collected evidence, viewed in these lights, shows that historic Christianity is the new expression of the ancient cosmic science and religion."—The Woman's Tribune.

"It was perceived that the globe was related to a universal system in which the order-producing, restoring, and maintaining power predominated over the forces temporarily working disorder and destruction. Thus the cosmical early became the symbol of the ethical. It is evident that the ancients had a highly developed scientific knowledge of astronomical relations, which were also their religious relations, man's relation to the cosmos being his relation to the Creator. The author regards the Hebrew Bible as a great symbolic history of the world-wrecking cosmical calamity which crucified the Divine Man and destroyed the world's Edenic equilibrium."—Minneapolis Progress.

"The weight of evidence is brought to bear upon the structural connection of the Bible, and in fact of all known religious systems, with the evolution of the Cosmos in the Divine Image, and of man as its microcosmic representative, both in body and spirit, having solar radiance as its central and all-pervading symbol, with its key of interpretation in the zodiac. The sublime and vital deduction is that all the religions of the world are linked together by descent from a perfect pre-diluvial system in which Messiah—God in man—is immanent from the beginning to the end, of which the Bible is the purest and clearest written revelation, and of which Christianity shall yet be the complete restoration. The work is of great value as a collection of interesting and pertinent material for reflection which could not otherwise be reached without consulting many volumes."—The Home Journal, New York.

Minutely Indexed, with Appendix and New Illustrations.

The work contains a map of the surface of the Globe and the constellations in the heavens with numerous rare and significant illustrations of great value.

THE LAMP.

People who read THE LAMP are expected to have a point of view of their own. Sanctified common sense is the keynote of the aids to thought which it presents. It is wide-awake, practical, mystical, literary. There is a good deal of Walt Whitman's theosophy in it, and something of pretty nearly everything else. Heiterkeit purveyed.

The Empire of the Invisibles.

By H. E. ORCUTT.

Price, Cloth, 75c.

In a very entertaining and facetious way has the author given currency to the thoughts embodied in this book. Few could have made the subject appear so fascinating, and at the same time clothe it with facts and fancies of interest to everybody. The narrative is unique, wholesome, and full of up-to-date teachings. The style of the book is suggestive, and interests the reader from the opening sentence to the end.

UNIVERSAL TRUTH

for 1900.

The publishers take pleasure in announcing that, beginning the January (1900) issue, UNIVERSAL TRUTH was changed to regular magazine form, and while its policy and teachings remain practically the same, a much broader field has been covered than heretofore. As a live periodical, filled with everyday metaphysical thought, it stands pre-eminent among its competitors. Able authors have been engaged to write for its pages. Its editorials are crisp and entertaining, and the news of the thinking world is to appear in concise form from month to month. Among the important features for the new year is Alwyn M. Thurber's great optimistic story,

"NOTHING EVER HAPPENS,"

To begin with the February number and to continue throughout the year. You should not miss the opening chapters.

Fanny M. Harley, the much-beloved and able editor of UNIVERSAL TRUTH for so many years, is still to remain in the work, along with other competent editorial writers.

The price of the magazine remains unchanged—$1.00 a year; six months, 50c.; three months, 25c.; 10c. a copy.

All books known to the trade furnished at publishers' lowest prices.

"A Weekly Feast to Nourish Hungry Minds."—N. Y. Evangelist.

FOUNDED BY E. LITTELL IN 1844.

THE LIVING AGE

A Weekly Magazine of Contemporary Literature and Thought.

A Necessity To Every Reader of Intelligence and Literary Taste

"THE SIEGE OF THE LEGATIONS"

THE LIVING AGE will begin in its issue for November 17, and will continue for several successive numbers, a thrilling account of "The Siege of the Legations," written by Dr. Morrison, the well-known correspondent of The London Times at Peking. This narrative is of absorbing interest in its descriptions of the daily life of the besieged legationers, and it is noteworthy also as containing some disclosures relating to the inside history of what went on at Peking in those stirring days, which are altogether new and of the utmost importance. The unusual length of Dr. Morrison's narrative has precluded and probably will preclude any other publication of it on this side of the Atlantic. In England it has attracted wide notice.

"The London Spectator" remarks concerning Dr. Morrison's narrative of the siege:

The Times has at last received and published a full narrative from its correspondent, Dr. Morrison, of all that preceded and accompanied the siege of the Legations. Gibbon could not have told the story better It is obviously impartial, full of detail, yet clear and consistent, and it has been accepted throughout the Continent as the history of that strange episode in the relations of Europe with Asia.

Each Weekly Number Contains Sixty-Four Pages

In which are given, without abridgment, the most interesting and important contributions to the periodicals of Great Britain and the Continent, from the weighty articles in the quarterlies to the light literary and social essays of the weekly literary and political journals. Science, politics, biography, discovery, art, travel, public affairs, literary criticism and all other departments of knowledge and discussion which interest intelligent readers are represented in its pages.

Each Number Contains

A short story and an instalment of a serial story; and translations of striking articles from French, German, Italian and Spanish periodicals are made expressly for the magazine by its own staff of translators.

THE LIVING AGE has ministered for over fifty-six years to the wants of a large class of alert and cultivated readers, and is today perhaps even more valuable than ever to those who wish to keep abreast of current thought and discussion.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT $6.00 A YEAR, POSTPAID. SINGLE NUMBERS, 15 CENTS EACH.

FREE FOR THREE MONTHS. Until the edition is exhausted there will be sent to each new subscriber for 1901, on request, the numbers of THE LIVING AGE from October 1st to December 31st, 1900. These numbers will contain The Siege of the Legations, as above, Heinrich Seidel's attractive serial, The Treasure, and the opening chapters of A Parisian Household by Paul Bourget. These serials are copyrighted by THE LIVING AGE and will appear only in this magazine.

The Ideal of Universities.

By ADOLF BRODBECK, Ph.D.

Cloth, $1.50.

This book is intended to serve a threefold purpose:

(1) It gives a concise history of Philosophy, Law, Theology, and the Physical Sciences, showing how each department of learning became in turn the dominant ideal of educational institutions, and tracing their descent from the ancient Greeks, through the Roman period and the Middle Ages, down to modern times.

(2) On this historic basis it explains the present state of academic study and teaching, pointing out defects and suggesting remedies.

(3) It outlines a true and consistent ideal for the Universities and Academies of the future; to which is added a brief encyclopædia of all sciences, theoretical and technical.

This work is indispensable to the student seeking a safe guide amid the existing chaos of science and art; to the academic teacher who would know his proper place in the growing organism of sciences; and to the philanthropic and intelligent reader who desires advice as to the best method of realizing a true educational reform.

"The Ideal of Universities" is the result of twenty years' study, observation, and travel. It has been translated from the German by the author, who, in the English version, has made many additions and improvements on the original.

Dr. Brodbeck was originator of the World's Parliament of Religions (Chicago, 1893) and a member of its Advisory Council. He and his work have received the indorsement of the Royal University of Stuttgart, Professor Wundt of Leipzig University, Professor Zeller of the University of Berlin, and many other leading educators throughout the world.

No library is complete without this valuable contribution to the cause of education.

WORKS BY
URSULA N. GESTEFELD.

The Science of the Christ.
Cloth, $3.00.

This is an argument from the premise, "All is Mind," which shows the Christ to be inherent in every man as the logical necessity of his nature, and ultimately to be developed by all. It makes application of this deduction to the book of Genesis, correcting the error which supposes the first two chapters to be differing accounts of the creation of the world, and showing them to be the continuous and consecutive illustration of the nature of Man, both microcosm and macrocosm. An invaluable work for students of metaphysical thought, as it consists of clear, logical deductions from premise to conclusion.

A Statement of Christian Science.
Cloth, $2.00.

A most helpful book for those who wish to gain an understanding of the basic principles of the Science of Being and how to apply them in demonstration. Full directions for treatment of disease are given, with directions for its prevention also. The student of this work can virtually become his own healer.

A Chicago Bible Class.
Cloth, $1.50.

A view of the leading incidents of the life of Jesus, as given in the Gospels, which translates them from the past to the present as the experiences of those who have discerned the Son of God in themselves, and by which they practically prove their dominion over all things through the God-power they have found and can use.

A Modern Catechism.
Third Edition. Paper, 25 cents.

"A very modest little book, but for good common sense it is one of the brightest and best we have ever seen. Whoever can read and think (and this little book is a perfect generator of wholesome thinking) cannot fail to relish the pungent questions and admire the author who condenses in so small a space such an abundance of revised religion and philosophy. A mere review cannot do it justice; it should be read in every home." —Boston Budget.

The Leprosy of Miriam
Cloth, $1.25.

The characters in this story typify the consequences of living up to one's best, or down to one's worst qualities, as aspiration for the higher enables us to rule the lower nature. The power of thought in creating environment and opportunity, and, according to its quality, the molding of circumstances by conscious and trained, or merely impulsive thinking, is most interestingly illustrated.

How We Master Our Fate.
Third Edition. Cloth, 75 cents.

A series of articles, descriptive and explanatory of human experience, and what we can do to make it satisfactory.

It is full, complete, and it is our conviction that no greater book has ever been written. It deals with abstractions to the absolutely practical extent that it compels the reader's thoughts inward by reason of its living, essential power. Judged from any standpoint, the book is an artistic piece of work; judged merely by the fair intellect, it is a superb exposition of Truth.—Boston Ideas.

The Breath of Life.
Third Edition. Cloth, 50 cents.

One of those delightful little books that are exactly the thing to offer to a friend who asks you all sorts of questions concerning mental treatment, and who desires some definite directions how to go to work to apply metaphysical theory in practical action.—W. J. COLVILLE, in The Faith and Hope Messenger.

The Metaphysics of Balzac as found in "The Magic Skin," "Louis Lambert," and "Seraphita."
Cloth, $1.00.

"The author of 'The Metaphysics of Balzac' is heartily in sympathy with the subject, and is to be congratulated upon her manner of handling it. Lovers of Balzac will enjoy and appreciate every page, while those who have held aloof from this French master can in no better way, than by reading this little volume, get an insight into his grasp of human life and action, and the incisiveness of his analytical power."—Boston Times.

The Gospel of Jesus According to St. Matthew,

As interpreted to R. L. Harrison by the light of the godly experience of Sri Paránanda.

In this day of commentaries by well-known writers in the English tongue, a still later work—and an exhaustive one at that—coming from a deeply spiritual Hindu mind, must be greeted with exceptional interest everywhere. Sri Paránanda, the author of the work now before us, has evidently followed a most profound line of intuitional reasoning. Every phrase of importance in the book of St. Matthew is given a lucid and rational interpretation. Thus are symbols changed to pleasing verities, obscure passages to semblances of beauty and love, and not that the Gospel of St. Matthew contains even a tincture of the wormwood which the literalist would have us believe.

WRIGHT & COMPANY'S PUBLICATIONS

Include a seventh edition (40th thousand), beautifully illustrated, of that charming novel, ☞ "Chickens Come Home to Roost," by L. B. Hilles, described by the New York Times as "A book without a single dull line; with a horse race far surpassing in vivid description and thrilling interest the famous chariot race in Ben Hur."

Robert G. Ingersoll said: "The boldest and best of the year."

Hon. T. B. Wakeman says: "It is the greatest novel I have ever read.'

W. L. Stone, author and critic, writes: "It is most admirable, beautiful and vivid in style. A great accession to American fiction."

Judge John Rooney, of the New York bar, says: "It is equal to the best masters, and the horse race is even better than the one in Ben Hur.'

Hon. M. L. Knight, of the Chicago bar, says: "This is the most realistic and remarkable book of the age. A greater book than Uncle Tom's Cabin. Written with the realism of Defoe, the grace of Addison and the pathos and gentle sweetness of Goldsmith."

More than five hundred letters have been received from delighted readers.

THE ROMANCE OF ROBERT BURNS,

By JON TEMPLETON.

In all the wide realm of literature there is nothing more unique or more original than this book. The trite saying, "There is nothing new under the sun," is here delightfully denied. This is NEW. The name of Robert Burns, though old and familiar wherever human language finds expression, is in this volume more real, more lifelike, than all the countless books that have been written about Scotland's sweetest Bard. This is the life story of Robert Burns, the heart story, around which circle the sweet and noble characters made famous by his immortal verse. Here, moving and acting like human beings, the reader will meet the real Highland Mary, whose sparkling eyes dwelt on the Bard sae kindly.

This book is now in press, printed on elegant paper, clear, large type, containing, with portrait of Robert Burns and one of the author, twenty-four beautiful drawings and views of Scottish scenes, The Bridge of Doon, The Winding Ayr, The Birthplace of Burns and others. The binding is in taste, substantial, elegant. The price of the book is $1.50, postpaid, and soon ready for delivery.

CHICKENS COME HOME TO ROOST.

The Greatest Novel of the Age.

WRIGHT & COMPANY'S PUBLICATIONS

Include a seventh edition (40th thousand), beautifully illustrated, of that charming novel, ☞ "Chickens Come Home to Roost," by L. B. Hilles, described by the New York Times as "A book without a single dull line; with a horse race far surpassing in vivid description and thrilling interest the famous chariot race in Ben Hur."

Robert G. Ingersoll said: "The boldest and best of the year."

Hon. T. B. Wakeman says: "It is the greatest novel I have ever read.'

W. L. Stone, author and critic, writes: "It is most admirable, beautiful and vivid in style. A great accession to American fiction."

Judge John Rooney, of the New York bar, says: "It is equal to the best masters, and the horse race is even better than the one in Ben Hur.'

Hon. M. L. Knight, of the Chicago bar, says: "This is the most realistic and remarkable book of the age. A greater book than Uncle Tom's Cabin. Written with the realism of Defoe, the grace of Addison and the pathos and gentle sweetness of Goldsmith."

More than five hundred letters have been received from delighted readers.

The book is on sale everywhere, or sent postpaid for $1.25 in cloth or 50c. in paper.

THE ROMANCE OF ROBERT BURNS,

By JON TEMPLETON.

In all the wide realm of literature there is nothing more unique or more original than this book. The trite saying, "There is nothing new under the sun," is here delightfully denied. This is NEW. The name of Robert Burns, though old and familiar wherever human language finds expression, is in this volume more real, more lifelike, than all the countless books that have been written about Scotland's sweetest Bard. This is the life story of Robert Burns, the heart story, around which circle the sweet and noble characters made famous by his immortal verse. Here, moving and acting like human beings, the reader will meet the real Highland Mary, whose sparkling eyes dwelt on the Bard sae kindly.

This book is now in press, printed on elegant paper, clear, large type, containing, with portrait of Robert Burns and one of the author, twenty-four beautiful drawings and views of Scottish scenes, The Bridge of Doon, The Winding Ayr, The Birthplace of Burns and others. The binding is in taste, substantial, elegant. The price of the book is $1.50, postpaid, and soon ready for delivery.

JUST OUT.

Thou Art the Man:

A suggestive story for the Christian Church.

By FREDERIC W. PANGBORN.

Crisp, clean, wholesome and straight to the point. A story that appeals to churched classes and unchurched masses with absolute impartiality.

Sparkling with wit and humor, yet filled with seriousness and deep sincerity of purpose.

It is for everybody to read it Get it.

Price, 25 cents, postpaid.

Or at all dealers.

THE SCHOOL OF PHILOSOPHY,

ORGANIZED APRIL 29, 1899.

HALL, LIBRARY AND READING-ROOMS:

463 and 465 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Is a general rendezvous and headquarters for those interested in development of knowledge in all lines of Philosophy, Metaphysics, Occult Research and Psychic Phenomena in any of their branches.

The School has been organized for literary purposes along these lines, by men and women who are thoroughly in earnest, acquainted with the necessary modes of investigation and pledged to work in impersonal ways, for free and open experiment and study for the purpose of acquiring universal knowledge and extending it to the world.

Meetings are held semi-monthly for the reading and discussion of papers, and for dealing with both the facts and theories of any subject presented.

Committees study special subjects and report to the School in regular meeting.

A Library has been established which is calculated to become the foremost philosophical and scientific library in the world.

Reading-Rooms are maintained in connection with the Library.

Papers, speeches and proceedings of the School and of its committees will be printed for the benefit of members and associates.

The School is the outgrowth of "The Metaphysical Society," originally organized in 1891, and will derive the benefit of the experience gained in work along similar lines by the earlier organization.

Membership is provided in several classes to meet the requirements of all, and non-residents may share practically all of the benefits enjoyed by resident members.

There is no initiation fee.

Full membership, including voting power, is placed at $10.00 per annum. Associateship is $5.00 per annum.

All members and associates receive the publications of the School and have the privileges of the Library, Reading-Rooms and meetings.

The School of Philosophy already includes and possesses more advantages for conducting such a work as this than any other similar organization in the world.

It begins with seventy organizing members. A large membership will necessarily increase its working forces, and it is hoped that earnest people in all parts of the world will combine in the work, which, being universal, must prove of importance to all.

An Executive Committee of twelve capable and experienced men has charge of the business affairs of the School, and every precaution has been taken to make the Corporation a thoroughly sound financial organization for permanent conduct of affairs to any extent that may be required.

A substantial Board of Trustees will have charge of all the surplus funds, including legacies received in trust for school work.

The procuring of rare and valuable books and MSS. from the East will be a special feature of the work of the Library Committee.

Blanks for application for membership and full particulars may be obtained by addressing

SECOND EDITION—REVISED AND ENLARGED!

NEW LIGHT FROM THE GREAT PYRAMID!

THE ASTRONOMICO-GEOGRAPHICAL SYSTEM OF THE ANCIENTS RECOVERED AND APPLIED TO THE ELUCIDATION OF HISTORY, CEREMONY, SYMBOLISM, AND RELIGION. . . . . .

By ALBERT ROSS PARSONS.

"A curious book which will greatly interest the votaries of the occult and mysterious."
—Detroit Free Press.

"From the story of the Pyramid, as the author reads it, the myths and legends of all ancient peoples become plain."—The Arena.

"The author seeks to prove that the Christian religion is a spiritualization of the cosmic religions of the elder world."—New Orleans Picayune.

"Every one interested in a better knowledge of the Bible, and of much which geology unveils, should procure this book."—Pacific Unitarian, San Francisco.

"It brings together ideas on the subject of zodiacal religion, worthy of careful consideration. We would refer particularly to the 'Table of Sacred Chronology.'"—Philosophical Journal, Chicago.

"A notable contribution of correlated facts drawn from the Hebrew Bible, the Hindu Scriptures, and the religions of the civilized nations of antiquity."—Boston Traveler.

"The author being a man of manifest learning, his subject cannot fail to arouse deep interest in the minds of those who love truth and welcome every work evidencing thought and study."—Boston Ideas.

"The argument upon which the book rests is that in Christianity we possess the religion of prehistoric men, and that it is now being re-established upon its ancient foundations largely by the involuntary agency of modern science."—Boston Transcript.

"Augustine, Eusebius, and other early Christian writers are cited to show their belief that the Christian religion was anciently known, and that its founder appeared far back in the days of the patriarchs."—Freemasons' Repository.

"Dupuis, Gerald Massey, and other writers have gone over somewhat similar ground many years ago, but this new work is in many ways superior to the writings of those authors, by reason of its greater lucidity of statement and the absence of all harsh prejudice or attempt to deny historic or biographical elements."—Banner of Light.

"In this day, when men are turning from materialism and seeking a deeper spiritual meaning beneath the words and symbols of the past, works of this character will be appreciated. This work might well be called 'New Light on Cosmic Religion.' The author's collected evidence, viewed in these lights, shows that historic Christianity is the new expression of the ancient cosmic science and religion."—The Woman's Tribune.

"It was perceived that the globe was related to a universal system in which the order-producing, restoring, and maintaining power predominated over the forces temporarily working disorder and destruction. Thus the cosmical early became the symbol of the ethical. It is evident that the ancients had a highly developed scientific knowledge of astronomical relations, which were also their religious relations, man's relation to the cosmos being his relation to the Creator. The author regards the Hebrew Bible as a great symbolic history of the world-wrecking cosmical calamity which crucified the Divine Man and destroyed the world's Edenic equilibrium."—Minneapolis Progress.

"The weight of evidence is brought to bear upon the structural connection of the Bible, and in fact of all known religious systems, with the evolution of the Cosmos in the Divine Image, and of man as its microcosmic representative, both in body and spirit, having solar radiance as its central and all-pervading symbol, with its key of interpretation in the zodiac. The sublime and vital deduction is that all the religions of the world are linked together by descent from a perfect pre-diluvial system in which Messiah—God in man—is immanent from the beginning to the end, of which the Bible is the purest and clearest written revelation, and of which Christianity shall yet be the complete restoration. The work is of great value as a collection of interesting and pertinent material for reflection which could not otherwise be reached without consulting many volumes."—The Home Journal, New York.

Minutely Indexed, with Appendix and New Illustrations.

The work contains a map of the surface of the Globe and the constellations in the heavens with numerous rare and significant illustrations of great value.
