The work of the President, Secretary-General and Council, embracing the whole responsibility during the last year, has been onerous, and the responsibility heavy. Outside the work of the Covenant Publishing Company and NATIONAL MESSAGE, somewhat over £10,000 have been expended in pushing our work at home and abroad. For this we have to thank a comparatively small group of liberal contributors; never did they invest money to such great purpose; they have made possible all that has been achieved, for, in spite of personal devotion and devoted energy, the world is so commercialized as to lay a financial barrier to be surmounted in the pathway of every enterprise, sacred as well as secular. It has been the function of the Council and Executive, made up of large contributors, to translate the amounts so furnished into the intellectual and spiritual force of the Movement. We are safe in saying what many practical men have assured us, that no other such organization has accomplished such great results with such limited means.

We are facing the future with faith in God and faith in you, that the £10,000 required for the year's work will be forthcoming.

Secretary-General Garrison, with rare courage personally undertook to raise this amount, trusting in God's help and the generosity of our people to enable him to do so. Our slogan again this year is and, so reigning, He has honoured us with a place among the ministers of His Kingdom and of His Grace. This applies to the most humble follower of His, and worker in His vineyard.

May God make the Congress year upon which we have entered tenfold more fruitful than the last.

THE BRITISH-ISRAEL CONGRESS.

OPENING MEETING,

MONDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 1ST.

MAJOR J. KNOWLES, O.B.E. (President of the B.-I.-W.F.), said: Ladies and Gentlemen,—There is one thing I am sure you would like us to do before we proceed any further with this meeting, and that is to send a telegram of loyal, respectful greeting to His Majesty the King and to Her Majesty the Queen. (Applause.)

To-day we are commencing our Ninth Conference. We are particularly fortunate this year in having a number of speakers whom many of you here to-day have not had the opportunity of hearing. Among them I would mention Professor E. Odlum, of Vancouver, who delighted us all with his addresses at our Congress of 1921, and with whose writings many of you are familiar. Then I would mention Dr. Lincoln McConnell, who gave us such an eloquent address here last week, and who has postponed his return to the United States in order to be with us to-day and to-morrow. Next I should like to mention Mr. W. H. Blackaller, President of the Canadian British-Israel Federation; the Rev. E. J. Springett, President of our Winnipeg Branch; and Mr. S. J. Frame, Vice-President of the Canadian British-Israel Federation. Then, of course, there is the Rev. Pascoe Goard. He is our great teacher and writer in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, who has just returned from Canada, and whom we are always delighted to see amongst us. We are sorry that Mrs. Goard was unable to accompany him this year.

Now I expect there are some in the audience who are new to this teaching, and who may have come to find out just what it is. Unfortunately it is not possible to say all there is to say on such a vast subject in one short address, and most of our speakers necessarily assume that the majority of their hearers are familiar with the Truths on which our teaching is based. For example, we do not, as a rule, during Congress week devote much time to proving that Britain and America are the modern representatives of the Israel of the Bible. We maintain that that thesis has been proved to the satisfaction of all, or nearly all, of those present. Any who are not yet satisfied on this point are recommended to study the literature which can be obtained at the bookstall. What we are mainly concerned with now are the consequences of that identity. One of the consequences which is of vital importance is that all the promises made by God to His people Israel have been, or are in course of being, fulfilled. We are, therefore, justified in believing that the writers of the Books of the Bible were inspired by God, and foretold events of which they could, otherwise, have had no knowledge. By showing how and when the prophecies of the Bible have been fulfilled, we are able to meet the critics who deny that there is anything in the Bible beyond a record of myths and legends. Many critics of the Bible are found amongst so-called scientists; and I was delighted to read a sermon preached by Sir Oliver Lodge, one of the greatest living scientists, during the visit of the British Association to Glasgow last August, in which he said, "To say anything else than truth is blasphemy to the spirit of science. But the great man of science never pretends that he is denying the other side of things. Modern discoveries do not throw away or discredit this accumulated witness of humanity." He went on to say, "When we detect rational arrangement under a complete system of law and order in the inorganic world, the world of atoms, planets, and suns, when we perceive that the laws of mind and spirit are followed throughout the whole extent of the universe, most of us are led to postulate the existence of some great Mind which governs and understands it all." That is Sir Oliver Lodge's testimony to the Bible. In other words, the universe is governed by definite laws which must have originated from God Himself. Now God made certain definite promises to Abraham, Jacob, David and their descendants, which we can show have been literally fulfilled in our race. We are, therefore, justified in claiming that the Bible is inspired, and we can feel confidence that its critics will, in due course, be forced to admit their error.

The Rev. Wm. Pascoe Goard.

Mr. President, Fathers and Brethren of the Movement, Fellow Citizens of the Great Commonwealth of Israel. I am sure that it is with delight that we gather after a wonderful year of experience and activity to meet again in our Congress week in this remarkable geographical centre, from which radiate activities and interests such as do not radiate from any other centre on this earth of ours. That wonderful Scripture that has been so beautifully read in our hearing this afternoon might strike the keynote of our Congress: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, night unto night showeth knowledge." And surely in all the recorded history of the earth no days utter more profound speech in clearer language than the days in which we are living now.

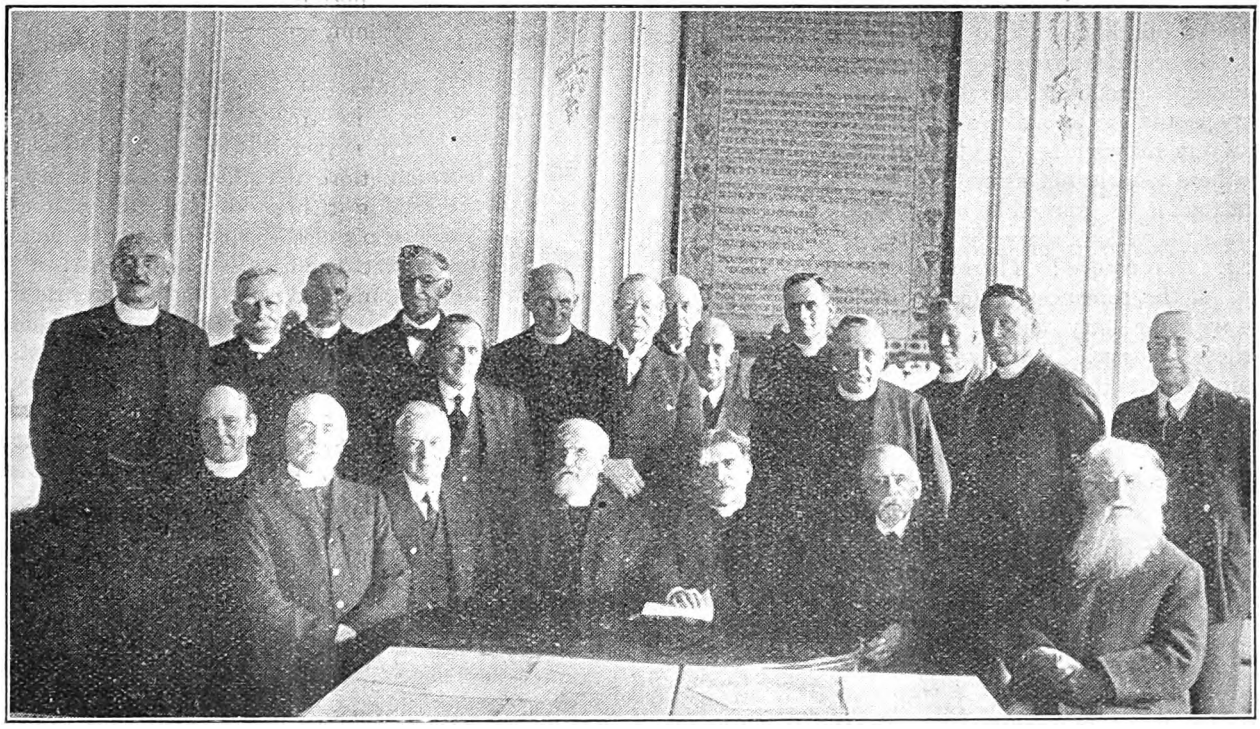
We have been busy during the last years, and are busy still, in presenting anew a forgotten fact to the company of nations that form the Anglo-Saxon community of nations, and to the rest of the nations of mankind; and that fact is this—the Celto-Saxon of to-day, pivoting upon Great Britain and the Empire, constitutes the Israel of prophecy.

I am quite aware that many will put a question note, at first, to that statement, and will say, "If that be the case, where does the Jew come in?" Well, from this particular standpoint, and just at this particular time, the Jew does not come in! Why? Because the Jew forms the basis of another national organization. That is historic. Every scholar, and especially every professor and minister, should know it. In fact, every theological professor and minister does know that in 975 B.C. two nations were organized. The one was the Kingdom of Judah; the other was the Kingdom of Israel. Everyone knows the fact, whether he has related it, or not, that in the Kingdom of Israel, so constituted, there was not a Tribe of Judah, and never has been since. Now that is fact. Let all the dust possible be raised, but you can no more stir that fact than you can stir the Rock of Gibraltar. In the Kingdom of Israel established in 975 B.C. there were Ten Tribes, amongst which was not the Tribe of Judah. The Tribe of Judah was the basis of another of God's national organizations.

To that nation Israel prophets were sent with a national message, a wonderful message. Part of it was given to them in their dwelling-place in Palestine. Part of it followed them, for instance, by the prophetic missionary journeys of Ezekiel, to the land of their captivity in Asia. Part of it fore-ran them into "the Isles," north and west from Jerusalem, which history and prophecy unite in telling was the dwelling-place in which we are gathered to-day.

Keeping the line of prophecy clearly along the track of God's Ten Tribe Kingdom Israel, we are able to take secular history as one column, and sacred prophecy as the other column, and demonstrate that in outline and detail every covenant, every promise, every prophecy made to Israel has been fulfilled, or is in process of fulfilment in Celto-Saxon history. The critic may talk, without these elements being taken into consideration, until he goes down into the grave in darkness, believing in his soul that there is nothing in the history and the prophecies of this Book that is vital to us—but that will not affect the fact one iota. The fact is that ours is a Covenant-keeping God and He makes good His word in every case.

Religious Revivals in Israel and Judah.



We turn to the Word of God, and read of wonderful revivals in the times of the prophets. For instance, there was a wonderful revival in the time of the good King Josiah. It may be that we shall take up a consideration of that. It was a revival of the knowledge of God and of the worship of God. It was a revival of the consciousness of the Spirit of God in the midst of the nations. But what was the course the revival took? It was this—that the good King Josiah leading that revival in Judah established in every city two judges. Not two preachers. He commissioned these as Supreme Court judges, acting in his name, to judge between blood and blood. That is to say, if one man had slain his brother, and the avenger of blood was after him, the judges intervened, weighed the situation, and gave judgment, which involved capital punishment. But there was a greater matter than this, viz., to judge between the law and the commandments, statutes and judgments of Jehovah. Take in the consequence of that. The great revival called the law of the land before the bar of God, and here judgments were rendered between the law and the commandments, statutes and judgments of the Lord. Think you, friends, that in these days it is not necessary to have some governing principle that shall defend the rights of God's people in the courts of justice, and the administration of law? Think you, is it not necessary that this authority shall control irresponsible statute-making organizations and Parliament?

There is again a tremendous revival sweeping over the world. Nothing has been like it since the Day of Pentecost. What is it? The revival of the law of the Lord, the spreading of that law among the nations of mankind. In 1800 Anglo-Saxons alone held the Common Law. The Jews had it in their synagogues as a sacred thing to be preserved in their books. But because they were subject to the laws of every country, and had not the power to administer, they kept it as a sacred trust, not administered by them. But in the Anglo-Saxon countries it has existed from the beginning, for the law of the Lord was administered upon this very site one thousand years before Christ. In 1800, just yesterday, 128 years ago to be exact, some sixteen millions held to the Common Law of the Lord. What to-day? Those sixteen millions have become 160 millions administering that law in every court of justice, and by their influence they have spread it among the nations of the earth until to-day 650 millions take the Book in hand, and call upon God to help them to speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

The remaining nations of the world to-day are holding counsel together with a view to making the Common Law of Britain the universal law in the earth.

And then let us consider the absolute matter-of-fact presence still of Jehovah, the God and King of Israel. Friends, there has been a great Church gathering in this land, and their conclusions have gone into the public Press, in which they have denied the supernatural and the miraculous. We affirm and believe in the supernatural and the miraculous. But if that is all we can do, then God help us. If that is all we can do, we are in a worse position than those who deny the supernatural and the miraculous.

What, then, is our position? In the Name of Almighty God we undertake to administer the living power of the supernatural and the miraculous, and God has called His ministers of the Gospel to nothing less. A loved one is sick; for that loved one we kneel to pray. What do we mean? We mean that by faith we lay hold upon the superhuman God to make bare His arm in the restoration and healing of the sick one. Do we make that prayer and, making it, deny the supernatural? Then ask the question of your own heart—what kind of persons are we? for such an action coupled with such a denial would appear to be hypocrisy. May God help us this week to kneel before the Lord our God with the prayer that He will endue us with that Christian heritage which makes prayer, for instance, a living reality; a reality which moves the arm of Almighty God, and administers the power of the supernatural. Also, in connection with the nation, let us pray our way through dangers, pray our way in the midst of enemies, and, in the Name of Almighty God, "run through a troop, and leap over a wall." Thank God, something of the reality of the Gospe of the Old Testament and the New Testament has come back to us again. May we breathe that reality until our spirits are renewed and filled with the consciousness of the Divine presence and power.

The Rev. Dr. LINCOLN MCCONNELL.

I have looked forward with keen anticipation to attending this Congress. I do not know just what I am going to say, for these men have stolen my thunder. I am reminded of a Georgian farmer who advertised for summer boarders. He had a big place, but he did not have much money, so he opened his home, and some people came. And, among others, a scholarly gentleman, who was always reading Plato. This old farmer saw this man continuously engrossed in a book, and one day when the gentleman laid the book down and went for a walk, the farmer sat down and began to read it. When the gentleman came back he said, "How did you like that book?" "Well," the farmer replied, "I like it fine. I did not know of that fellow Plato before. But he has got hold of some of my ideas somehow and somewhere." And I think Mr. Goard must have got hold of some of my ideas; or shall I put it the other way round?

There is just one phrase that is prominently in my mind which I would like to be the basis of what I am going to say. The greatest story in the world is the subject in my mind. A compatriot of mine wrote of "The Greatest Romance of all History." I had experience in my earlier manhood in the law business. I have attended the trials of a great many important cases—I mean just as a spectator. Those I participated in were not so important. And I could not but think of this Congress as a pleading to Great Britain as a jury, and of these admirably-equipped attorneys for the case day by day presenting their arguments and their facts to you. All I would hope to do to-day would be to make a little preliminary statement, as the lawyers are wont to do. It is just possible that there is someone here who is not as well informed as your splendid President took it for granted he or she was.

This is a marvellous story that I myself never get tired of reviewing. A romance! There is no romance like it in all history. All the romances of history rolled into one do not compare with the story that you will hear from this platform during these six days. Nothing has ever come to the mind of man comparable to it. No human mind ever invented such a story. No man was dramatist enough to conceive of such a plot. No man was intellectual enough, capable enough, highly-informed enough, to put into words and to conceive the action that is found in this marvellous drama that we know to-day as the recovery of the identity of the Lost Tribes. It starts far back in the mind of God Himself. We can look back and see that the great God not only had planned for every planet as well as ours, but that He had a definite plan for the conduct of mankind on this planet; and He took out the best possible of the whole human family, and selected them, and said, "I am going to bless the earth through you." Follow this story. I am speaking from the standpoint of at least one who claims to know the rules of evidence. I happen to have had a good many years' experience in formulating cases, and presenting them for trial, but I have never, in the many years I have been connected with courts, seen any case so easily proved as is the case for British-Israel. I could take a jury of twelve Modernists of the ripest kind, and, if they were honest, they would step into the jury box, and would say, I have no bias or prejudice resting on my mind for or against, and I am willing to know, and anxious to give my verdict in harmony with the evidence adduced as it shall be such by the principles of the law applied. There is no such thing as an absolutely honest, unbiased mind considering the data concerning the identity of British peoples and not see that the case is made overwhelmingly clear, that despite their submergence in the days behind, despite the many blunders they have made, and the black stains they have upon their British history, yet they are, after all, those very people whom God destined to be an ultimate blessing to the families of the earth. No case could be so easily proved as that is.

I am assuming you know the ordinary principles of the Common Law. I am not going to accentuate it by restating them. It was this that convinced me, a sceptic and an agnostic, that there is more than mere accident in this thing. Many years ago I got hold of Professor Totten's book, "The Romance of History." People said to me, "You do not think there is anything in that, do you?" My reply was, "Don't say there is not until you have investigated it, unless you would convince yourself of being an ignoramus or a fool." All you need is just simply to be willing for it to be true. I want to take that as a little touchstone. Are you willing for this to be true? That is the first point in honest mentality. No one can ever hope to see anything clearly unless he is willing that it might be true. How many are there here who would be willing for the statements and the arguments concerning British-Israel to be true? That is the first thing.

I am glad indeed to have a place sitting alongside these great men here; it will be a keen delight to me to listen to them.

Professor E. ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc.

Mr. Chairman and Israelites from many parts of the world,—We may be many things that we do not know we are, and there are many Israelites in the British Empire and in the United States, and in other parts of the world, who do not know it, and who refuse to believe it when they are told. But I address you as Israelites, whether you know it or not, and whether you like it or not.

Now as I have to speak many times during this Congress, I have planned to begin at the foundation, and go slowly from step to step. I have been speaking on this subject for nearly forty years, and my people over on the other side know that I have never got to the end of any one speech yet, so you need not expect me to finish up any address over here! The first thing I want to bring before you is this: I have learned long since that the attitude of the audience is even more important than the attitude and condition of the speaker. Now I want that attitude to be right, and there is only one way of getting it right, and that is by meeting in an attitude of prayer. We cannot accomplish anything great on this earth without prayer in some form or another. Prayer is universal. There is no sane being on earth that does not pray; for asking for the thing that we do not now possess is prayer. Why, the birds pray; the animals pray; and if you were observing botanists you would know that the plants pray daily, reaching out with their leaves, with their roots, after something to nourish their body and to nourish their fruit. Oh, yes, prayer is universal. The scientists readily admit, if they understand language—and they do—that they pray. When a man goes into the realm of chemistry or zoology, or any of the other sciences, and begins to search for some truth, that man, that woman, is praying. There is nothing more universal amongst men, and in the realm of organic life, than prayer. So I ask you now in your hearts to give me your prayers that I may give to you the best that is in me.

The next thing I would ask you to do—and I hold myself to a certain line this afternoon—is this—empty your heads. Don't come and listen to me, making up your minds all the time that you know everything, because you don't, and I don't. If you conclude at the beginning that you know this whole proposition, then you should not have come here. So, for the time being, don't come and listen, having your heads already filled, and having no room in them for what I say. If I had a glass of water, which was full, and I started to put some more in, you can easily see that there would be some spilling around.

The third step brings me a little closer to the particular subject. I see clergymen and ministers on the platform and in the audience, and I meet them constantly in my travels, and I co-operate with them in my own city and province and country. And all the Protestant denominations in Canada open their churches and, most of them, their pulpits to me; and I have been talking in these churches and pulpits for sixty-two years. That is some time! The ministers of my own land know that I do not say anything to hurt them directly or indirectly. I have a tremendous reverence in my heart for the ministers of the world in general. For nineteen hundred years the ministers of the Gospel have stood out as the vanguard for the uplift of humanity and the spiritualization of millions. I say, God bless our ministerial representatives in every part of the Empire, and in every part of the world. God bless our ministers wherever they are. So I want you to know at the beginning that while I know, and you know, that there are a good many ministers at the present time who are bitterly opposed to British-Israel Truth, they are not any further away than I was when a large book was handed to me by a British-Israel teacher. I said to that great, big, Irish Methodist preacher, when he handed me that book, and gave me a little inkling as to what it meant, I said, "You will hear from me a little later." I meant, "You will catch from me something that will trim you down a little." Well, I took it away, and began examining the statements on their own merits. Why should I want to show that a thing was a lie from the beginning? I said, "I will read this, and see how it tallies with the Scripture on the one side, and how it tallies with history on the other." I got about half-way through the book, and came to the conclusion that that man knew more about the subject than I did. And I have been following the subject ever since. It, to me, is one of the biggest propositions I ever touched. It was made clear before my mind, and I have never had a shadow of doubt about it since. One marvellous thing in connection with it at the present time is this—I see it as clearly as I see the argument concerning the first proposition in Euclid or Geometry. Given a straight line it is required to construct on that straight line an equilateral triangle. The majority of you have been over that little proposition. We do a little drawing, and when we are finished we know that the thing is true, and never in all our lifetime have we any further doubt about it. So with any proposition in Geometry or in Algebra, or in the higher realms of mathematics, we know that the thing is true. But the other fellow who does not study it does not know and cannot know till he does study it. And you will be sure to find when you are studying this matter that you are not studying a little subject, but that you are studying something based on the rock of Eternal Truth. Now I could go on for an hour on that line, but I must not stay.

The next matter before me is under the word "design." We know that there is design in the world. The man or woman who denies design denies the object of putting on his or her shoes, or taking food. Look at the little desk on the top of this table. We know without arguing about it that it has been put there, that it has been made a certain shape and a certain size for a purpose. The design is manifest; we do not have to argue about it. And when we look out upon the world of humanity, and upon the world of beasts and birds, and into the celestial regions above us, we know that there is design; it is everywhere manifest. If there be design there in that little desk, there is design too in the universe. Don't you see, it is there. And there must have been a Designer behind it; and there must be a Designer behind all this marvellous work of the universe and the things pertaining to this earth on which we live. If there be a Designer who planned out this earth in connection with the solar system, and gave it its movement round its own axis, and round the sun as the centre, giving us day and night, and the seasons; if there be such a Person, and we admit and believe there is, then, surely, in His designing He would have some plan concerning this portion of His creation, namely, the human family. If He had any design concerning the human family, it would be most natural for Him to make a revelation of His own design or plan concerning that family. And we know that He did give an account of His plan, an outline of His plan concerning the human family from the beginning down to the present time.

Well, when we get to that place we begin to find it easy, we who are teaching on this platform and writing to the Press. We take this Bible to be true, and a revelation to us by the great Architect of the universe. When we look outside of this Bible we look outside to the big Bible produced by the same God; and this Bible must harmonize with the big Bible outside as revealed in the sun, the moon, the stars, the earth, the mountains, the rivers, the valleys, the plants, the animals, and mankind—they must harmonize, because they came from the one great Architect. You see how natural that is. He would not produce something contradictory to Himself; so that He is giving to us a clear notion of what He is doing, and will do in the future. And it is laid down here. I have received a letter from my own home, and I have in that letter an account of the development of the work in my office since I left it. The writer knew that I would understand, and I understand English well enough to have a peep into my own office at Vancouver six thousand miles away from here. Do I doubt that revelation given me in that letter? Our great Heavenly Father has given us a revelation of His will concerning humanity, and it does not contradict anything in the big Bible outside.

The next point I come to is this, and we cannot lay too much emphasis upon it. Men and women constantly, and good men and women too, friends of our Movement, and opponents of our Movement—and one may be as honest as the other—they have said to me again and again, "Why, if what you are teaching is true, God is doing the whole business, and we have nothing to do with it. It is a form of predestination. If He made a people away back yonder, and purposed to do a certain work through that people, then He is going to go straight ahead, and they have no voice, and other people have no voice in the matter, and it is just unconditioned predestination. So far as I read in this Book, so far as I read history, so far as I understand the movement of our people in the Empire, in the United States, and in other parts of the world, I recognize one thing, that the people who make legislative enactments for the nations, those who are working in Town Councils, and making by-laws in their cities and towns, the judges on the Bench, and the jurymen sitting listening to the evidence, all proceed on the ground that each man has a free will. We are judged on that ground. Legislation proceeds on that ground. This Book indicates free will at every turn. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." At the very beginning of the Old Book it is made clear to Adam and Eve: "Do this and live. Do that and die." Is not that the choice of a free will? From the beginning of the Book you build on that. The nations are building on that. Fathers and mothers deal with their children on that line. Teachers in the Colleges, in the lower and the higher grades of education, proceed on that line. Our Heavenly Father makes it very clear to us that whether we are nations or individuals or communities we must proceed on the ground of a free choice for ourselves.

The first feeling in my heart thirty-nine years ago was that God deals with all alike; that He has no selected people, no pets, as some people put it. Well, now, we shall look into that and see. First of all, let us look at ourselves. Does the father or mother in the home deal exactly in the same way with all their children, or do they deal with their children on different lines according to their nature? I taught all grades of children, boys and girls, and those of higher ages. And when I started first I remember well the mistake that I made—I began to deal with the boys and girls as though they all were thinking and living on the same plane. I soon changed that whole plan and adopted the method of dealing with Mary and Johnnie and Tommy and Jack on the ground that there were four different individuals. You see, we are dealing with them as different persons, differing in intellectual value, differing in spiritual value, and differing in physical worth. If we want a certain thing to be done, we find Johnnie or Mary the best we can put our hands on at the time. Now, then, you have some person called the Lord Mayor in this city. I wonder if he got into that position just by chance, or if there was a process of elimination by which one was put on one side, and another, till at last there was one man brought up to stand higher than all the rest in an official capacity. We do not believe in the principle that all are equal; they are not. Our elections, whether they are for cities, or for kingdoms, for empires or for republics, are based on the principle that one man is better than another man under certain conditions and circumstances. I am dealing with the foundation of this whole principle. If you and I are determined to select one man for one work, and another man for another work, if we are determined to do that, then, surely, we would let God do the same thing, and not condemn Him for selecting one person or one nation as against another person or nation for a particular work! We try first to select by careful comparison, and having put our finger on that man, or woman, by the same process we elect a man or woman to a particular work and lay the responsibility upon him or her, according to the conditions at the time.

I want to bring before you another difficulty, and it is a big one in the minds of some. I remember a lady saying to me after I had given an address, "Why, what odds to me where I came from? What odds to me who were my ancestors." Well, now, let us look at that a little. The big, wise men among the farming community of the world all try to up-breed their stock. They try to have better animals than their parents had twenty or thirty years ago, and all over the world the wise men and women pride themselves on having animals that have been up-bred, and thus they produce the prized pedigree. There was a line of uplifting instead of a process of down-dropping. You can see what I am at. We take pride in cultivating our grain fields in order to get better grain this year than in the preceding years. In Canada we have followed that business to such an extent that we have done a wonderful thing, we have pushed back northward our grain fields, going farther north now than they did twenty-five years ago. Evolution under the control of the will guided by the mind is a pretty high kind of evolution.

Now we come to another thing. Every little while I see some of those who oppose British-Israel teaching use this kind of statement. Just before I came away, when in the city of Toronto, there was a professor, a minister of the Gospel. He wrote three articles to one of the papers in Toronto attacking our teaching. I had cause to take it up on the platform two or three times. I am only referring to it for one purpose. In one of his articles he quoted a portion from Acts x, 34, where Peter says: "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons." Now you know that sounds very good. Peter must have been writing truly if he was speaking under inspiration; but he did not stay there. He said: "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with Him." Now do you see what that but introduces? God is no respecter of persons. The first thing by itself is not true. It takes the whole statement to convey the truth that Peter was inspired to make. It is all perfectly right when put into its proper environment. It is the same with the words of Christ: "Come unto Me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden." There is no respecter of persons there—all may come. "Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." All are treated alike there. But if they say, "I will not come," what then? That is where the "but" comes in. God then is a respecter of persons; He cannot be otherwise. And the man who says, "No, Lord" is in a different relation to the man who says, "Yes, Lord." They are in two different relations. God is a respecter of one, as against the other. So when you quote such a phrase then be sure and quote the whole statement that is in the mind of the Holy Spirit when given to us through some particular prophet or other person.

Again. I am going to bring before you rather a subtle and difficult proposition. It would be more easy to bring it before a college class than a meeting where there are large numbers that have not specially studied those deep and subtle things pertaining to the effect of the mind upon the body. But you all know enough to get this idea, that according to the prevailing condition of the mind, according to the prevailing condition of the spirit, the body changes and is affected.

Digitized by Google

The body must be made a better body if the mind be a better mind. And if the mind is rightly related to God, there must be uplift; it cannot be otherwise. Now we teach that God has called a people out on this earth to go amongst the other peoples of the earth to serve and to uplift, and to give spiritual insight and spiritual power and spiritual life. This, then, brings me to this wonderful subject. There was a time, long ago, when a few men and women and children went from the old Land of Canaan down into Egypt, less than a hundred of them, and their descendants occupied Egypt, and for hundreds of years they lived there until it was time to come out. Abraham's descendants were under promise, under covenant. They went down into Egypt and they lived there, and the time came when God called them out. We must tie up two things here together. God had said to Abraham, "In thee, and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Don't you see when He said that all the families of the earth should be blessed in Abraham and in his seed that it necessarily ties up this thought that Abraham through his seed should be in active communion and relationship down through the whole ages of human existence. How could it be otherwise? "In thee, and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." And all the way down through the human family Abraham and his seed must be present, and must run parallel with the families of the earth in order to bless them. They were down yonder in servitude, and that is why God sent them down yonder. But in due time He says to Moses, "Bring them out," and they were a big population. Some of our sneering critics say they were just a few tribal peoples who built up a tribal God. They had 600,000 fighting men. The Lord said to Moses, "Go and bring them out." Moses went, and you know all about the story. How that Pharaoh and his courtiers would not let them out. And the Lord says to Moses, "Go and tell them that Israel, My son—that was the whole nation—must come out to serve Me. They are serving you there. I want them out as free people to serve Me." God had said to Abraham, "In thee, and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed," therefore He had to bring these people out of that kind of service where they could not serve humanity, where they could not get into the big realm of service. Now get that clear in your mind or else you will not understand me. God said, "These people I have selected for Myself, to be My servants." Are they going to be very much puffed up in themselves when they know they are called to be His servants? I have held many responsible positions. Do those positions cause me to become proud? God, my Father, knows that when responsibility came to me I ran away, and hid myself in my little prayer chamber, and talked to Him, and asked Him for help. What man had greater responsibility and higher honour than Moses? He was one of the mightiest men in the history of humanity, yet he was one of the meekest men. I am meeting an argument, because again and again we are told that if we realize our destiny, that we are going to be a proud, high-spirited, vain people. God selected Isaiah, Ezekiel and Paul to do a work for Him. Did it puff them up, or did it bring them down to their knees before their God? These people were being called out for service. Now do you remember the terrific struggle that took place yonder in Egypt? God said to Moses, "Go back once more, and say to Pharaoh, Let My son Israel go free. Let My first-born son go free. If My first-born son be not freed by Pharaoh and his people, Pharaoh's first-born son, and the first-born of his people, and even of his animals, must die."

I want to deal with the word first-born. I have emphasized that so as to give you a peep into that strange struggle of the first-born in Egypt. God's first-born son was held in bondage. Pharaoh said, "I won't let him go free." God said, "You will. Your first-born will die, then you will let them go." "First-born"—I want to deal with that. I wonder if you can see anything in the history preceding that will indicate the first-born of that people. Was this a people in any sense "first-born"? Have you a picture of these people down in Egypt? Go back to the time of Abraham, and from Abraham to Isaac, and from Isaac to Jacob. Jacob runs away from Esau. And in the course of twenty to twenty-five years he comes back to his own land. His father is still living, and on his way back he gets to the little brook in the mountain, called a ford, or a rivulet, Jabbok. And he learned that down yonder, in the Jordan Valley, his brother, Esau, with four hundred armed men, was near at hand. Esau had learned that Jacob was coming back, and was immensely wealthy. Jacob had good reason to be terrified up yonder in the mountains of Moab. And he did what you and I have done many a time in trouble and fear, he ran away to his Heavenly Father, and he sought His help. He had a terrible night up there in the mountains all alone with his Lord. Oh, how he prayed and struggled, because the lives of his wives and children were dear to him, his property, and his own life, all were at stake; and he told the Lord all about it. At that time he was Jacob the deceiver. Jacob the supplanter. Jacob the keen, hard, cold business man. But as the night passed he got nearer and nearer to the realities of life. He got to understand the deeper principles of living. He got nearer to the heart of the Eternal God his Father, as you and I sometimes have in our best hours. And at last he said, "Father, I cannot let Thee go, I will not let Thee go, unless Thou bless me." Then what a great blessing came to him! He passed from death unto life. He became a new man. He was born again. He was God's first-born son. And so the nation was called God's son because up yonder at the ford Jabbok their ancestor, Jacob, had passed into a new condition of life; he became a new man, and was God's first-born son. Then the Lord said to him: "I cannot call you Jacob any longer. You will not be Jacob to Me any longer. You are Israel from this time. You are going to rule with Me from henceforth." That is the work of Israel in the earth to-day. Side by side with the Saviour, as the servant of humanity, ruling in the spiritual world; side by side with God, for the purpose of uplifting, but not proud or uplifted in spirit, not puffed up, but very lowly at the feet of the Father. And that is where we should all be this evening.

CONGRESS NOTES.

BY THE COMMISSIONERS.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

THE outstanding event at each Congress for many years past has been the public lecture given by Mr. Herbert Garrison, our Secretary-General, on some Empire subject. This year was no exception, and large numbers gathered to hear Mr. Garrison speak upon "Cameos of Dominion." With a double lantern and two screens the pictures were shown in pairs, generally depicting Empire scenes in early and modern times, and thus showing the great progress made. Mr. Garrison took us to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and other Empire possessions, and in his accustomed graphic and charming descriptions entertained us while he instructed our minds. Lectures of this nature are most valuable as evidences of the purpose and power of God in the world, and no one could fail to realize that the British Empire was established and developed by God for a great Divine and world-wide purpose.

Our thanks are due to Mr. Garrison for this and other outstanding efforts he is continually making in the interests of our Movement, and for the enlightenment of the British people.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The Rev. Commander Roberts occupied the chair at the afternoon session on the Friday, and made an earnest plea for a sympathetic attitude towards the Jew, especially towards those Associations which are doing such splendid work in seeking the conversion of the Jew throughout Christendom. He pointed out that the Jews, if his source of information was correct, and he had no reason to question that, are coming into the Kingdom by thousands. He gave figures to show that in Poland and elsewhere the Jews are acknowledging Christ as their Saviour and Redeemer. Judah was in this way being prepared "to walk with the House of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers." (Jer. iii, 18.) "We want," said he, with great earnestness, "sympathy with them and for them. If they had only known the Lord of Glory they would never have crucified Him. Many of the children of those who, in ignorance, put Our Lord to death are now seeking Him and acknowledging Him, and in that we do greatly rejoice."

The Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A., took the place of the Rev. Arthur Pritchard, M.A., who was prevented by illness from attending, and gave the first address of the afternoon. He pointed out that Jacob's trouble is not Armageddon, but is before it. Jacob's trouble began in 1914, and would go on until 1934 unless the nation Israel turned to God in true repentance and prayer, in which case the trouble might be considerably shortened. "The foundations of God standeth sure." What God says can never fail. Three points he stressed with great emphasis:

1. God's Word, which was sure and would ever abide.
2. The Empire's witness to that sure Word of God.
3. The work of the Empire, and everyone in the Empire, to establish that sure Word of God in all the nations of the world.

Mr. J. J. Morey, our Southern Commissioner, was the second speaker. He said that he was very often asked all kinds of questions, and suggested that some people might have come to the meeting that afternoon with some of those very questions in their minds and upon their hearts. He dealt with two such questions:—

1. "We cannot understand your materialistic kingdom, for the Kingdom of Christ is spiritual." When these good people speak of the Kingdom of God and the Kingdom of Heaven being spiritual, what did they mean? Did they mean something in the realm of thought without any material expression? Mr. Morey proceeded to show, with his usual clarity, that it was quite impossible to have a spiritual Kingdom without a materialistic expression. He referred to the beautiful material world all round about us, and said that this materialistic world was the means by which God is expressing Himself. The curse of sin is indeed upon the world, but it is going to be lifted one day. The world of nature will come into its place in the spiritual Kingdom of Christ. "A nation, a race, a kingdom; the day is coming when it will be filled with the Spirit. It will then be a Spirit-filled nation, race, kingdom."

"I cannot think of any realm of unclothed spirits. Some body they must have. There must be an outward expression. That is the Kingdom."

"God's method of building His Kingdom in the world is set forth in the Bible. First the king, then the law, then the nation."

Another question with which Mr. Morey dealt was the Second Coming of Our Lord. What do we believe about the rapture of the saints? There is much confusion among many good Christians on this matter. Some hold that Christ comes and takes away His Church from the tribulation. This is not to be found in the Bible. The tribulation began in 1914, and still the Church is here. He went on to show that the purpose of the tribulation was to lead Israel to repentance and faith in her God. After that, Armageddon, the day of God Almighty. "That is what you are going to be saved from," said he. "This is plain enough."

He used the parallel of Israel in Egypt and the Passover night with telling effect, and quoted in that connection Isaiah xxvi, 20-21. This was, doubtless, to many a new quoting and application of that passage, at the same time quite convincing.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard followed with a very telling address based upon the opening verses of St. John xiv. He enlarged, in his inimitable way, three points:—(1) The testimony of Jesus Christ to Himself; (2) The testimony of Christ to the Holy Ghost; and (3) The testimony of the Holy Ghost to sin, righteousness, and judgment to come.

A very profitable session was brought to a close by the singing of the Doxology and the National Anthem.

FRIDAY EVENING.

Major Richard Rigg, O.B.E., presided. Prayer was offered by the Rev. W. H. Stuart-Fox, M.A., and Scripture read by the Rev. David Oake.

The Chairman was a firm believer in the British Empire, and paid a tribute to Mr. Garrison's Empire Lectures of the last twenty-five years. B.-I. teaching had strengthened his belief. Evidences abound that Britain is Israel, to do Israel's work, to remain a nation for ever, and never to be moved. We possess the precious Israel stone ; we are proud to have the House of David on our throne ; we have the Israel heraldry ; we hold the gateways of the world ; we control the seas ; we hold the symbol of Ephraim, the birthright tribe. The Covenant promises are being fulfilled in our land. The first Christian Church was built here, and the British Church became the Mother-Church of the world. As in Israel of old, our Church is national, and the Bible is our national Book. Our people have lost their Israel ideals, are being led into scepticism, communism and modernism, and the nation needs to be called to prayer.

In British-Israel Truth there lies the remedy for our national ills ; it will bring us back to God, and we must stand firm in our faith until our nation is aroused to its heritage and responsibility. He looked forward with assurance to the return of Our Lord, when the Israel race will come to its true place in the life of the world.

Prof. Odlum, M.A., took the rostrum and addressed us on the subject of the wanderings of Israel from Palestine to Britain.

A historian writing British history 2,000 years hence would find in his researches Londoners, Cornwallians, Lancastrians, Yorkshiremen, Vancouverites, Winnipeggers, etc., etc., and might wonder who all these sections or races were. Precisely similar conditions existed 2,000 years ago, when Israel and Judah were divided into sections upon emerging from their captive lands. As the British people to-day are known by many names, so were the Israelites of long ago.

The speaker showed that some of the Israel people were known as Kumri, others as Sacæ, Scythians, Goths and Getæ. Herodotus, Huxley, Rawlinson and other historians were quoted to prove that all these were known to be one and the same race. This list brings Israel into Europe down to A.D. 1100.

When Israel went into captivity they went to Assyria, Media, Armenia, and some of that region became known as Saacland or Sakland. The name of Isaac or Saac is found in many forms in that early period, from 720 B.C. onward. " In Isaac shall thy seed be called."

In 705 B.C. they got their liberty and began to spread out westward. They were a powerful, fighting race ; they fought many battles, and in 619 B.C. conquered and destroyed Nineveh. Israel was breaking the Assyrian Power about the same time as Nebuchadnezzar was attacking the Kingdom of Judah.

They were known as the Sak Goloths at that time. They trekked westward, and in Europe came into contact with other sections of Israel, and the speaker showed how they again sub-divided into sections which bore names well known to modern historians. Some were known as the Hill Saxons, the Highlanders of their day. Here probably is the origin of the term. Prof. Odlum traced some of the Saac peoples eastward, and showed that ancient Parthia was built by them and was, therefore, an Israel kingdom. Others fled before Alexander's army to Siberia, but later they returned through China and formed the kingdom of Afghanistan. The speaker believed that it is no accident that an Israel race is adjacent to India, and that the Afghans will doubtless join with Britain in the coming world struggle. Others were traced into the Western Roman Empire, led by Theodoric, the Goth, and eventually conquered Rome. The Visi Goths obtained power in Spain and Portugal, and others came over into the British Isles. Various sections of these people came into Britain as Anglo-Saxons, Danes, Jutes and Normans.

The Professor gave us a most exhaustive and learned statement, which was followed closely and greatly enjoyed by all.

The Rev. Joseph Gay followed, and spoke upon " The place of Jesus in British-Israel teaching."

Some of our opponents say we obscure Christ or give Him a secondary position. They ask, " where does Christ come in ? " No school of thought places Him so high as we do. He has been both Alpha and Omega from the beginning. " Before Abraham was, I am," said He.

We must therefore expect to find Him in the Old Testament as well as the New.

Abraham was called that God might create a seed through him. Isaac was miraculously born, and Israel was created before he was called. God found in Isaac a seed capable of bearing a race which could produce a Saviour and Redeemer. The speaker saw Christ also in the stranger who spoke with Abraham at his tent door. He was evidently the Controller of Israel's destiny. In Exodus, 33rd chapter, we read, " The Lord spake with Moses as a man to his friend." Who can this be but Christ, still the Controller of Israel through Moses. Again, the " Captain of the host of the Lord " met and declared Himself to Joshua. He used the same words to Joshua as God in the burning bush used to Moses.

Isaiah saw Him as the Redeemer of Israel in his 53rd chapter, and as a Conqueror in chapter 63.

If down the ages our Divine Leader appears in the Israel story, how is it we are charged with neglecting Him or misrepresenting Him ? He is the chief character in all our story. You will find the same great character in British history, in our national religion, transferring in the first century the centre of His Christian Church from Palestine to Britain.

In the outstanding events of British history, events which have influenced the world were surely under the control of our Divine Captain. Our great men of the past were men who had great visions of Christ—missionaries, statesmen, explorers, reformers, men who built our Empire and the Christian Church, controlled by Israel's Divine Captain and Leader.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Chairman, the Rev. Canon Savage, M.A. We were led in prayer by the Rev. Gregory Bestall, and Scripture was read by the Rev. Kenneth Dodds.

The Chairman announced himself as a convinced British-Israelite, and the President of a new Branch of the Federation at Bexhill. He congratulated the Secretary-General on the very successful Congress meetings held during the week. The high tone of the speeches had pleased him ; they were full of information, and were marked by a consecrated spirit. He hoped many blind eyes had been opened. He thought Mr. Davidson's address ranked among the finest he had ever heard. The names "British" and "Israel" are synonymous terms. He compared the certainty of our Congress message with the vagueness of another Congress held this week in the West of England.

The Rev. Dr. James Mountain commenced by referring to the Federation as a great Bible Society—there is none greater. From Genesis to Revelation there is a thin red line pointing to the Messiah and to His people Israel. The speaker quoted Isaiah, chapter ix, "For unto us a child is born," etc. He saw in this passage the advent, mission and qualifications of the Messiah. Speaking upon the mission of the Messiah, Dr. Mountain said Christ came to be both Saviour and King. His Kingdom was of God, had come down from Heaven, and was therefore a Divine Kingdom. It was also a visible Kingdom. Christ's words, "The Kingdom of Heaven is within you," really should be read, "The Kingdom of Heaven is in your midst." It is a national Kingdom. Israel was a Kingdom as well as a nation, for Jehovah so established it. "Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation."

Many other texts were read showing that Israel was the Kingdom of God in a literal sense.

It is an everlasting Kingdom. Psalm lxxxix declares it so to be. The angel's message to Mary stated it (Luke i, 33). John the Baptist announced it, and Jesus Christ confirmed it.

The disciples were sent out to preach the coming of the Kingdom to the "lost sheep of the House of Israel." and St. Paul expounded it to the early Christians. There is a spiritual aspect to it, and only those who are born again will have a place in it when the King comes.

Where is it to-day? There are no signs that any nation but Britain is fulfilling the conditions of the Kingdom, but in our great Empire the fruits of the Kingdom are being brought forth.

The speaker concluded with a telling reference to the words of Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus." "The kingdoms of this world are become the Kingdoms of Our Lord and of His Christ. Hallelujah! and He shall reign for ever and ever."

The Rev. W. Turpitt, B.A., said this had been one of the most remarkable weeks of his life.

He had found that the writings of our teachers were quite up to the level of the scholars of other schools. An old Welsh preacher once prayed at an Annual Convention: "Lord, bless the big guns from London, but don't forget the little pistols from Wales." So pray we, not only for our great men, but also for all our workers in the ranks.

A true British-Israelite believes in a big God, and he could see in the various names of God much light upon God's character and activity. Jehovah was God's chosen name for Israel, His covenant name, tied up with the new names given to Abram and Sarai. It means, "I am," during past, present and future—God's Now.

It implies God's personality, morality, unity, independence, eternity, unchangeableness, mystery, and upon these points the speaker enlarged upon the character of Jehovah as revealed to ancient Israel and to us to-day. The sovereignty of God, the wrath of God, which is the necessary companion to His love, were also dealt with. The speaker would not value a love which cannot be angry with wrong-doing. Not half has ever been told upon this great theme, and the speaker felt that God had probably concealed as much as He had revealed concerning Himself. Some people refuse to believe what they cannot understand, and perhaps that is why the great truths concerning God and Christ are being set aside. We know but little at the most, and God's secrets are more profound than we have ever known.

Prof. Odlum, M.A., then continued his wonderful story, and reminded us that God had made a covenant with Abraham, that in him and in his seed all the families of the earth should be blessed. Therefore the whole world came into that covenant, and are to receive blessing at the hand of Israel to-day. Further, Christ came in Old Testament times, and took all the old Hebrew teachings and carried them forward with new light and power into our age.

Further, all the sons of Isaac are Saxons, though they live in other lands and are known by other names. He instanced Denmark, where some of the tribe of Dan settled. They and others are therefore British, but do not know it. This may have far-reaching results in the near future.

He told us that the Indians of North America were originally North Europeans, and some of them belonged to Israel.

Then a few words concerning "the Stone Kingdom." It was to stand for ever, and therefore now exists. There is ample provision made whereby a man of any nation may become a citizen of the Israel Kingdom to-day as of old. The disciples were sent out to invite all men into the Kingdom, and the one condition was "Ye must be born again." All Christians of all nations belong to the Israel Kingdom. Reading Isaiah li, the speaker pointed out that some people have been hewn from a rock; these must be the "stone" people. The next clause limits them to children of Abraham and Sarah. Later, Isaiah speaks of them as a nation. Formerly the Church and the nation were one, and they will soon be so again. The speaker believed God would see that the Church will never be severed from the nation, but they would eventually be more closely united. He showed that no existing nation without a king can claim to be the actual Kingdom of Israel to-day. Even America must come back to the Union Jack before she can claim the full blessings of the Kingdom.

SATURDAY EVENING.

Mr. John Leech, K.C., presided. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Kenneth Dodds, and Scripture was read by the Rev. Gregory Bestall.

Mr. Leech made a few appropriate remarks concerning the very successful week's meetings, and was assured that the criticisms which come from all quarters will only strengthen the Movement and give it virility and power. Our parish is the world, and our Message is already travelling far and wide. We must open our arms and embrace all mankind.

Prof. Odlum then spoke, and made a few interesting introductory remarks in reply to questions concerning Edom and Amalek. To understand Edom we were exhorted to read of

Digitized by Google

Esau and his descendants in the Old Testament, of Idumea in the New, and European history concerning the Esaurians, who are the ancesors of the Turks, or Ottomans, of to-day.

This nation, according to the prophet, is to be broken by modern Israel. Obadiah leads us to a specific statement as to the time when this will be accomplished.

During the last war large portions of the Turkish Empire came to Britain, and the prophecy was partially fulfilled. Israel and Judah actually combined in the conquest of Turkey, as prophesied. The speaker gave us interesting details relating to these operations, and said he had expected that before the war closed Britain would be fighting Russia, and this forecast came true. They have not been great lovers since. He went to Palestine, and in Jerusalem asked to be shown a Turk, but throughout the land not one was to be found. Obadiah said not one of Esau should be left in the land. The speaker then dealt with a plea which came to him from a Levite in Jerusalem. "We have lost our brother Israel," said he, "I want to find him before I die."

Prof. Odlum wrote to him and is awaiting his reply. The writer was one of the great priests of Judah, and his confession is valuable.

Referring to the present times, the speaker said there are many powerful, secret organizations striving to destroy Christianity and the British Empire. We need to know what God has said concerning these things, that we may help and comfort others when the dark days come. After sketching our organization in Canada, Prof. Odlum referred to Japan and its relation to our subject.

After years of travel and study, he came to the conclusion that the Japs had originated from Western Asia, and had reached Japan about 600 years B.C. He gave us references from ancient history indicating that portions of Reuben, Gad and Manasseh had gone as far east as China.

Examples of pictures and customs were given supporting this belief. He thought the Japs were no doubt to fulfil a great destiny.

Mr. J. J. Morey spoke upon the events which might be expected to transpire in our day according to Bible prophecy. (1) The fulfilment of the "times of the Gentiles." He claimed that this took place in 1917. (2) The emerging of a Christian Israel nation to prepare for the new age. The prophets speak of an Israel nation which is undoubtedly Christian in the latter days. The speaker referred to the many evidences of the finding of the lost House of Israel, especially since the Great War. (3) Old systems will become chaotic, and will pass away, giving place to the new. The house-breakers are smashing many things in order that the sons of God may build the new Kingdom. Thrones are falling, ancient religions are passing, international chaos exists, all marking the time of preparation for the Coming of Christ. (4) Jacob's trouble. This began in 1914 and is rapidly developing. (5) The cleansing of Israel. This is to be the result of our tribulation, and is clearly foreseen by the prophets and foretold by Christ Himself. (6) A permanent Kingdom will arise which will be used to build the new world. Concerning this Kingdom the speaker showed that it must be the nation which

(a) Fulfils the Abrahamic Covenant;

(b) Is administering the law of Jehovah;

(c) Breaks the Gentile Image of Daniel ii;

(d) Is ruled by the Throne of David;

(e) Controls the Promised Land, from the Euphrates to the Nile;

(f) Teaches the Gospel to the world;

(g) Is the home of the Christian Church.

Britain alone fulfils these conditions, and it is, therefore, our destiny to build the new world and to prepare the way of the Lord.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard began by complimenting Mr. Leech and Prof. Odlum upon their association with our Movement. He went on to say we had demonstrated the truth of Scripture from Genesis to Revelation. We had also co-ordinated the Scriptures, for many people only read scraps of the Bible. We show that the Book tells one story only, and tells it perfectly. You cannot destroy any part of it without breaking the chain which now perfectly binds the parts together. When the Christian world understands that Israel-British history demonstrates the truth of the Bible, it will come back to God's Word.

Turning to the Epistle to the Ephesians, Mr. Goard spoke of the redemption we have through the blood of Christ. Redemption is national, salvation is individual. "He hath made known unto us the mystery of His will . . . that in the dispensation of the fulness of times . . . being predestinated . . . according to the purpose of His will."

Predestination, fore-ordination of the onward marching of empires and nations—not to lose their souls, but concerning their right to rule the world.

When their times expired the Gentile nations fell. When Israel's period of punishment expired she emerged a great British nation. The "stone" became a great mountain and filled the earth.

That is to be completed, in spite of all human combinations against it. The speaker quoted the opening passages of the 103rd Psalm in this connection; "The Lord hath set His throne in the heavens, and His kingdom ruleth over all."

It is the predestination of a race and nation, and not of an individual. Free will for every man; and if Calvin had seen this, the false doctrine of so-called predestination of individual souls would never have been taught. Individually God invites each soul to "incline your ear, and come unto Me, hear and your soul shall live."

Mr. Goard went on to speak of Christ as the great King and Administrator in His Kingdom on earth. He is the Commander of the people, a military office, the Lord of Hosts, the great Captain Who has been fighting with His Israel hosts all down the years. Here is the secret of Waterloo, Trafalgar, the Spanish Armada, and the last Great War.

The same will again be proved true when the last great opposition of the devil comes.

Christ must reign for ever and ever.

Mr. Herbert Garrison referred to the British square which had withstood all attacks, and he believed that the great British-Israel square will withstand all the attacks of Bolshevism, Modernism, and the powers of the enemy.

He believed we should do our work of renewing the world.

He invited all interested people to link up with the Federation, and join the forces of those who are endeavouring to educate our nation.

A message of sympathy was sent to the Rev. J. Lumley Davies, who was unable to come through illness. Regret was expressed at the absence of Rev. Guy Waddington, M.A., our Commissioner in Yorkshire, who was acting elsewhere on Federation business.

Thanks to the lady stewards and the ushers were warmly expressed. Everyone felt that the Congress had reached a very high level. The speeches had been marked by inspiration and power, and it is evident God's blessing is with us.

We have rejoiced in a warm, sincere fellowship; delegates from all parts of the Empire have enlarged their circle of friendships, and the morning gatherings which have been held at our Headquarters have been most profitable.

We dispersed with grateful hearts to Almighty God for the rich blessing He has bestowed. J. J. M.

that was made for man

BY

J. G. MODIN

With a foreword by Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.

This little work, dealing with one of the important marks of British-Israel identity, is by far the most valuable contribution yet made to the all-important subject of Sabbath keeping. It should be read and digested by every clergyman and every layman who loves our National Day of Rest, and who sees the urgent need for the observance of the Fourth Commandment.

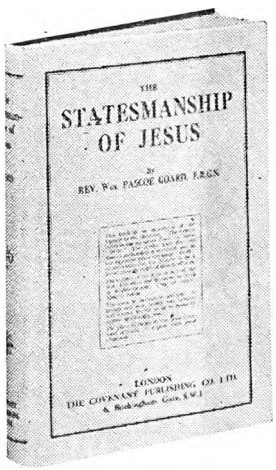
BOOKS BY REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

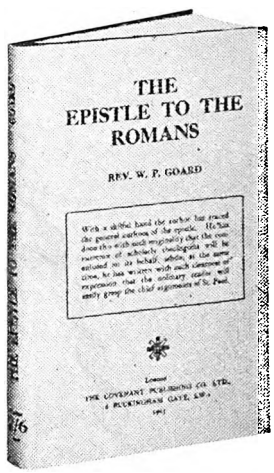


THE LAW OF THE LORD OR THE COMMON LAW

Anglo-Saxon Common Law is based on the laws given to Israel at Sinai. If statesmen would get back to those laws peace would ensue.

This is a book which should be carefully studied. It is a most valuable contribution towards the settlement of many of to-day's perplexing problems.

Price 3/6. By post 3/9.



STATESMANSHIP OF JESUS

A brilliant exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews—a letter having the direct inspiration of God. The book brings out new facets of the truth with striking vividness, and enhances the already great reputation of the writer.

Price 3/6. By post 3/9.

THE EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS

With a skilful hand the author has traced the general outlines of the Epistle, and, as Mr. Goard usually does, he has thrown new light on dark places.

Dr. Mountain writes, "Mr. Goard is, indeed, a brave man to endeavour to analyse and expound the Epistle to the Romans within the limits of a hundred pages. But he has succeeded where many would have failed."

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE LOW PASSAGE OF THE GREAT PYRAMID.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, F.R.G.S.

I am not a Pyramid expert. It has been my privilege to listen to and to read Mr. Davidson and others, who are students of the Pyramid. Conviction has come to me that the chronology of world history has been built into the structure of the Great Pyramid, and that such chronology has kept pace with the mighty things of history for nearly six thousand years. For four thousand years or so this chronological scale has been in existence. Thus we see the downward progress of the race under the influence of the Dragon star until the Exodus. At that point we have the way opened for those who choose the ascending path. This continues, a "low passage" ascent, to the date of the first Advent of Our Lord. Still the ascending passage continues, but from this point the height of the Grand Gallery gives plenty of head room, until the night of the entering of Britain into the Great War. The ascent ended at the Great Step, and on level ground we move forward. From this time to the end of the Great War it is again a "low passage" forward movement, now on a horizontal plane. At the time of the signing of the Armistice there is another lift of the roof line, and we move forward with plenty of head room, but with a roof lower than that of the Grand Gallery until the date of May 29th, 1928.

Then begins another "low passage" progress for a hundred inches. There is nothing to indicate the twenty-ninth of May as being different from the thirtieth of May or any other date of the hundred inches which follow, which are calculated to indicate a hundred months. The present low passage is little, if any, lower than the passages which represented millenniums of history in the descending and ascending passages. The upthrust of the roof of the Grand Gallery indicated the first Advent of Our Lord, and all the blessings which followed His Coming. The upward thrust of the antechamber marked the era of cessation of the physical war. What else will history say that it marked? Perhaps it marked also the entrance of those ideals which presage the principles of the Millennial reign. For such ideals have been much in evidence, intermixed with other matters, during the period of the Armistice; such, for instance, as the banishment of war from the earth.

But while there have been such indications, and while the head room has been sufficient, and more, to enable men to walk upright, still the roof line has been lower than that of the Grand Gallery. It has been a period of lower spiritual ideals and of less spiritual achievements in the Christian world than was the period of the Grand Gallery. Education and culture of the natural man have progressed. Spiritual vision and achievement have retrograded. The Christian life of the antechamber has been less triumphant than that of the Grand Gallery. This we see clearly by the fact that the Grand Gallery commences at the birth of Our Lord and in connection with His dispensation.

Digitized by Google

Let us look at the doctrinal field which has been occupied during the two periods, and mark the difference.

The Christian faith of Britain has become symbolic to a degree. Men have given through the symbol that veneration and adoration which in the former period were given to the Lord directly. So much for the ritualistic and ultra-sacramental wing of the Christian Church, and of the Israel nation.

The Christian faith has become materialistic in the hands of the Modernist ; and the triumphant faith of the former generations has very largely died out. Christianity in the last ten years has not achieved the height of faith and truth that it did through previous generations of the dispensation.

Enemy propaganda has been effective also. This has given to the period the obstacles of the "triple veil." There has been the concrete obstacle of the "granite leaf," and there has been the indication of similar obstacles. Day after day has been indicated in the antechamber as critical points in the progress through this pregnant period, and each and every day thus indicated has written its story on the pages of the last decade of history.

Now comes the last low passage. Christianity in Israel will not walk with head erect, and the nation will walk with bowed head and with difficult steps. There is just head room for the nation upon its knees.

What are the present facts connected with the period of Israel-British history which we have now entered upon ?

Let us be assured that the Pyramid in no way affects or controls the progress of world history, or national history. It but marks the passage of the ages and of the years and months. The things which are ahead during the next indicated years will be the natural sequence of the events through which we have been living, and the natural fruit of the works which the nations have been carrying forward during the years of the last decade. We shall see things move logically forward during the indicated period. May we look at things as they are to-day, and so be able to estimate what they will be to-morrow ?

We are still in a period of international struggle. He must be blind indeed who fails to see that fact. There is no promise of an immediate end of strife.

We simply point out that facts we find in the great field of world events will be found to be chronologically indicated in the Great Pyramid, provided we are able to rise above detail and take our stand upon the greatest outline of world events ; such an outline as marks the progress of dispensations.

We have often pointed out that the method of warfare changed with the Armistice. Doctrine took the place of the sword. Propaganda took the place of military drill. Revolution, brought about by propaganda, took the place of organized international war.

Consider these things ; for herein is the key to the facts of the period.

What Germany attempted to do by physical power the Bolshevik influence is attempting to do, and has largely done, by doctrine.

Germany sent forth a military force. The Bolshevik organization sent forth an army of propagandists.

Papal and Moslem propaganda have also been active in the field, and each has been carrying forward a contemporary campaign, looking each to a revolution in its own favour.

The Bible speaks of this latter as the going forth of "three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty."

This form of warfare has been quite as manifest and quite as far-reaching as was the physical warfare of the Great War.

What is the aim of the present war of propaganda ?

1. Subversion of the Common Law.

2. Destruction of the administrative authority and organization, which the propagandists call "Imperialism" and "Capitalism," etc.

These are the chief aims of the present psychical attack.

Before the psychical attack by propagandists Russia fell. Its Czar was slain, and the law and its administration were both subverted. It should be noted, however, that the law so subverted was not the Anglo-Saxon or Common Law. Before the doctrinal attack by the propagandists the Empires of Russia, Germany, Austria and Turkey fell. The administrative machinery was removed, and a new administration provisionally set up in each of these Empires ; or, rather, in the room of each of these Empires.

Thus far the work of conquest by doctrinal weapons has progressed.

"Root and branch work" has been the order of the day. In Russia and in Turkey the classes in whose hearts and minds resided the law, and in whose hands had been for ages the administrative authority and power, were ruthlessly slain ; and in Germany and Austria they are firmly suppressed.

The same type of doctrinal propaganda is honeycombing the U.S.A. and the Overseas Dominions ; has caused the cleavage in Ireland ; and is producing uncertainty and unrest in England and Scotland. This is the state of affairs through which we have passed during the last decade.

THE ERA, NOW ENDING, HAS BEEN A NEGATIVE ERA.

It has been a time of pulling down and clearing away the debris of Empires ; and the destructive work has been thoroughly done in Continental lands. At the beginning of that era there were six great Empires, six great administrations having Imperial status ; administrating four great systems of law.

The Empires and Administrations were :—

Empires.	Law Systems.
China.	Confucian—Buddhistic law.
Turkey.	Moslem law.
Russia.	Autocratic law modified by the Greek Church Council of Grand Dukes.
Austria.	Civil law.
Germany.	Civil law.
Britain.	Common or Divine law.

Now mark what has happened. We represent this by striking out the Empires, administrations, and systems of law, which have suddenly passed away under the propagandist attack.

Digitized by Google

Mark that not one of these things were removed through the agency of the Great War. The question of the form of government of the Central Powers did not even arise in the council of nations which ended the war. The governments fell before the propagandist attack.

Britain.	Britain.	Common or Divine law.

One Empire—Britain—and two systems of law remain.

Is it possible for the minds of men to grasp the scope of the tremendous destruction indicated by the above diagram? Most certain it is that the post-war generation does not realize the magnitude of the destruction thus wrought, or the great vacuum thus left in the world situation. Things of such magnitude as to cover the earth, and of such antiquity as to cover the historic ages, are gone. Imperial dignity was swept away, with its holders. Imperial authority was rent from the hands of Emperors and governments, leaving the whole governmental services, military, naval and civil, going abegging. What a huge field for exploitation by ambitious men and organizations!

This represents the domestic position in each Continental country where an Empire has been.

THE INTERNATIONAL FIELD.

In the international field, the void left by the fall of Empires is just as clearly manifest. Manchuria looms out of the fog which covers the battlefield. The Southern forces of China have been driving towards it. The Soviet activities of Russia have been directed towards it; and now, in no uncertain tones, Japan has declared her active protectorate over it. Three nations in contest for Manchuria! How will the matter be settled?

Again: In the eyes of Russia, China, India, Afghanistan, Persia, Turkey, Mesopotamia and Palestine have seemed like ripe cherries to be plucked at will. They might remain but a dream but for the fact that Russia is under compulsion of circumstances to act abroad, or to fall at home. The Bible foretells Russia's ultimate action.

Again: In the eyes of Prussia, backed by Germany, it seems to be a foregone conclusion that the existing government of Russia will fall; and it has become the hope and purpose of Prussia, plus Germany, that she shall have the reorganizing of Russia, and an outlet for her population and enterprise there. But Poland is in the way sadly. What will Germany do?

In the eyes of Mussolini, the Mediterranean is an Italian lake, and the lands bordering thereon the natural sphere of Italian colonization and enterprise.

Thus nations are organizing for expansion on lines which must carry conflict of interests and of races.

One must not assume that because nations desire to expand that therefore they are yielding to a needless ambition. Germany is confined within limits which we should consider to be altogether too strait for the needs of our race: seventy millions of people within the compass of a country no larger than a Canadian Province. Italy with a rapidly increasing population is also confined within too narrow limits. Her children are saying to her "give place that we may dwell." In time past the United States received the overflow of these and other countries. But the United States has now closed the door to the overflow of the nations. Therefore they are seeking outlet elsewhere. And who shall blame them?

Thus there are real points of danger through the natural increase of people which must find an outlet for expansion.

Thus it is in the international situation. No amount of preaching and of peace propaganda can obviate these dangers. They must be met and overcome by some means. But, how shall it be done?

It is true that in the British Empire there is room enough and to spare. But against the free flow into the Empire there are two major obstacles. These are: national patriotism on the part of the people whose need is to migrate; and the matter of faith, or rather of creed, and of Church association.

COMPETING ORGANIZATIONS.

This brings us to another set of facts which enter vitally into the present situation. These facts are: not nations, but racial and creedal organizations.

There are two great organizations which are partly founded on race, and partly on creed, namely, the Roman Catholic Church and the Jew. The former, in its political aspect, may be classed as a Latin organization founded on the Latin race. The great ecclesiastical organization, the Papacy, has not as yet laid aside the thought of temporal power. The official journals which speak the mind of the Church makes that clear. The Continental field from which Imperial authority has been swept, as we have seen in the last ten years, offers a very attractive field for active striving after the temporal power which Emperors wielded until yesterday, and to which the Papacy might become heir to-day, as the Popes became heirs to the Cæsars some twelve hundred years ago. The preparation for a drive in the psychical world to this end is very widespread and powerful. It is a factor to be taken account of in the present condition of world affairs.

Again, founded partly on race, and chiefly on creed; nay, this time it will be safe to say, on faith; being a distinctive and non-Christian religion, is the activity of the international Jew. The time of the budding of the fig tree has come, and the Jew is forging to the front in the affairs of the world. In his mind is the hope, and in his heart the conviction that he will attain to the hegemony of the world, and that in the immediate future. To this end he is making use of the literary, scholastic, political and economic machinery of the nations, to create the condition and the attitude of mind generally which will enable him to step into the ruling position in the earth in the place of the Emperors and their governments which have so lately fallen.

These things are not dreams of what may be in the future. They are the things with which statesmen and governments have to reckon at the present time. And statesmen and governments are laying their plans and carrying them out to meet this condition of affairs. In these things are wrapped up explosive elements which will soon shake the world.

Such, then, is a glance at the facts of the present world condition as they are related to the non-British and American peoples, that is to say, the non-Israel peoples.

The last decade has been, in part, taken up with the removal of the Continental Empires and all that they stood for. Accordingly the Continental Empires which are not of Israel are gone. More and more the activity of the nations and of the organizations mentioned has been turned to preparation for the moment when each will aim at taking over the things which remain and which each has desired. Combinations—national, allied and institutional—have been carried forward to great lengths; soon the time of preparation will give place to the time of action in various lines. There will be negotiations, alliances, oppositions, and finally blows. Such is the only course that the movements now under way can be expected to take.

In the midst of all this flux and change one Empire has stood firm. Of course we refer to the only Empire remaining, namely that of Britain. It is unique in this, it is an Empire without an Emperor. It is an Empire which is united in loyalty to the King.

Now the King is declared to be the King of each separate Dominion and Commonwealth. Loyalty to an Emperor is not expressed. Why is this? It is because that by Divine appointment David and his successors are given the dignity of King, but not of Emperor. An Emperor is a King of KINGS. In the British Empire there is only ONE KING. Where, then, is the justification for calling the British "company of nations" an Empire? Its justification lies in the fact that in the Empire there is, in deed and fact, the "King of kings." He is the centre of authority and of government. He is the fountain of honour and of worship. "He is a great God and a great King." "He is our God, and we are the people of His pasture and the sheep of His hand."

This Empire has stood, and still stands, with all its administrative machinery, intact. It has stood contrary to the expectation of the world. But it has stood according to the revealed plan and purpose of Jehovah, the King of kings, in Israel-Britain.

While other nations have been passing through the crushing and grinding process, Britain, intact, has been carrying forward her administration within all the boundaries which were hers before the war, and over other lands and people which have come within the scope of her administration since the war. Thus by Britain and by the United States one-third of the human race has been made partakers of the freedom and equality of the Common Law. That this branch of the human family has preserved its organization and stability, and has extended its influence over all the oceans and over so much of the earth, is a fact which should attract and hold the attention of the people. The course of this expansion has in no way been stayed by the events of the time. What shall be the place and part of the Anglo-Saxon in the struggle for expansion and supremacy which is now imminent?

The Divinely-declared purpose is that the Kingdom of God, as manifest in, and administered by, the Celto-Saxon race according to the principles of the Common Law, shall be extended to all the earth. It is the declared purpose of God that each nation shall find its place within that Commonwealth of nations, that each shall be subject to His rule, and that each shall accept and obey the Common Law. This is inevitable. How soon, time only will tell. In the meantime we shall be daily moving towards that event. No one race shall rule over another race. But God shall rule over all; the system of law which He requires to be obeyed and enforced must be the Common Law, and the administrative authority must be in the hand of His servant David.

Now, then, the stage is set for the great act of the drama through which we are now living. In it nation after nation, combination after combination, and institution after institution, will make attempts to gain the position dreamed of and desired by each. The struggle does not so vitally affect Britain and America as it affects the other nations, for our Empire organization stands as firmly as ever it did, and occupies the position appointed for it of God. Its administration is seen to be easily the most desirable and efficient in the earth. This is the judgment of other nations, expressed again and again in general literature. The loyalty of the people is beyond question, as has been manifested again and again during the times of stress through which we have been called upon to pass. Therefore, the field of the Empire is not open to ambition nor to exploitation as is that of the other Empires which fell.

INTO THIS TIME OF STRUGGLE FOR POSSESSION WE HAVE NOW ENTERED.

This is not a prophecy, drawn from the Pyramid, nor from the prophecies; but is a conclusion arrived at from the consideration of the facts of the case. Preparations have been made, and are in progress, of which we have certain information. Plans have been formed and await the moment of opportunity, of which the governments and their departments know. Strategic positions have been taken up and are now occupied by rival forces, who watch each other over the boundaries. Treaties have been entered into, and their contents are well known to the responsible parties. What shall be the final upshot of all this?* It is stated in the following specific prophetic statement:—

"BUT THE JUDGMENT SHALL SIT, AND THEY SHALL TAKE AWAY HIS DOMINION, TO CONSUME AND TO DESTROY IT UNTO THE END.

AND THE KINGDOM AND DOMINION, AND THE GREATNESS OF

*There was such an extraordinary error in the present article in June 30th issue, which, on account of the absence of the author, was not detected, that the request has been made that the whole article should be re-published. The article ends with the climax of the Kingdom, expressed in Daniel, chapter vii, verses 26, 27, and part of 28:—

"But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end.

And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him.

Hitherto is the end of the matter."

What appeared in the former issue was as follows (Daniel viii, 27):—

"And I Daniel fainted, and was sick certain days; afterward I rose up, and did the king's business; and I was astonished at the vision, but none understood it."

We think our readers will agree that a more annoyingly ludicrous anti-climax was never pulled off the press!

Digitized by Google

THE KINGDOM UNDER THE WHOLE HEAVEN, SHALL BE GIVEN TO THE PEOPLE OF THE SAINTS OF THE MOST HIGH, WHOSE KINGDOM IS AN EVERLASTING KINGDOM, AND ALL DOMINIONS SHALL SERVE AND OBEY HIM.

HITHERTO IS THE END OF THE MATTER."

This is the end to which we are coming.

Finally, to this Kingdom the Lord shall come, bringing Divine wisdom and authority to bear on the circumstances of the world, and under His reign the nations shall dwell in peace.

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

MONDAY EVENING.

PROFESSOR E. ODLUM (Chairman) said: Most of you know, perhaps, that the word "British" comes from two Hebrew words—Brit (sometimes pronounced Brith) meaning covenant; and ish—a man; words which are used hundreds of times in the old Hebrew Bible of which this is a translation. It means, a Covenant man. The man of the Covenant pre-eminently was Abraham. And every man along the line from Abraham down to us here to-night, every man and woman of that stock was, and is, British. Now our good friend, Dr. Lincoln McConnell, comes from across the ocean, from a Republic, and the people over there in his land who are dealing with the question of what we call British-Israel Truth very frequently use the term "Anglo-Israel," because, in a sense, in that country they feel they are not British in the relationship of nationality. Now the word does not mean a nation; it means a covenant. And if our good friends south of the 49th parallel line of North America have come down the line of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and the patriarchs, if they are true descendants, they are British, whether they like it or not.

The next point I wish to deal with is the compound word "Anglo-Saxon." Anglo is a proper adjective used to modify and to qualify the word Saxon—a particular kind of Saxon, the Anglo-Saxon, the John Bull Saxon. And if our friends over yonder wish to call themselves Anglo-Saxons, instead of British-Israelites, they are still John Bull! I will show you now that the word "Anglo" is properly used by them in the United States. If they be Manasseh, as they are inclined to believe, then we know that Manasseh came from Joseph, and Joseph's crest was the Bull. The Bull was Engl, or Anglo, and when they call themselves the Anglo-Israel people, it is equivalent to Joseph-Israel people, equivalent to saying Manasseh, the first-born of Joseph. Manasseh was the Bull, just as truly as Ephraim became the Bull.

THE REV. DR. LINCOLN MCCONNELL.

I consider the greatest menace in the world to-day is the menace of Modernism. I am quite convinced that Anti-Christ has a threefold manifestation of activity. There is an intellectual phase to Anti-Christ activity, there is a political phase, and there is a religious phase. I cannot conceive of any device that could ever have been originated by the super-human mind of Satan—(for it is a superhuman mind certainly)—that would be quite as effective in this day in which we see the culmination of human egotism, the worship of mind. This egotism has been accentuated doubtless, and very largely stimulated, by the actual discoveries that have been made in such amazing fashion in the last few years in the realm of physical science. Have you ever preached a sermon on "What I should do if I were the devil"? Some of you ministers try preaching on that. What would you do? And you could not think of anything quite so powerful as the destructive weapon of what we speak of as Modernism. I want to speak to you who are scholars and perhaps not converts to British-Israel, I want to speak to you of that which is known as Fundamentalism, meaning by that a belief in those old fundamental truths that our fathers believed as to the inspiration of the Bible and the origin of man. We have quite a conflict on in America between the two parties—the minority party called the Fundamentalists, who are rather sneered at and derided—and one of whom I am; and that great majority of our ministerial brethren who are what they call Modernistic. I had heard a great deal of the open forum of Hyde Park, and as I listened to what was said there, I understood the Englishman better than I ever had before. I mean his tolerance, his willingness to let the other fellow have his say. I have been trying to see all I can of England during my stay here, as I have been trying to understand it intellectually and mentally for a long time. But I want to say to you fair-minded people that when we Fundamentalists—and they include the British-Israel folk—speak of Modernism, understand that we are not making any slurring allusion to science. We are not talking about science, about progress. We are not attacking real learning or actual discovery. The Fundamentalists with whom I am acquainted are fairly intelligent folk. They believe in knowledge, and appreciate scientific discovery, and understand quite as well as the average man the benefits that have come to mankind through the discoveries by man in the scientific world. We are enjoying all those things. But we are simply insisting on accurate definitions and the right use of words. I have heard the term "evolution" applied to all kinds of things. The evolution of automobiles, for instance, is talked about. The Ford cars have been greatly improved upon, but a Ford cannot evolve into a Rolls-Royce.

When I speak of the menace of Modernism, let me say what it is. I am talking about a philosophy of life that would explain conditions in the world. Modernism is a system of belief. Modernists have accepted things that are wholly different from the Bible teaching. The Modernist does not fully believe in the God of the Bible, or in the Bible of God. It is not possible, and I speak, I think, fairly, for a Modernist to believe fully either in the God of the Bible, or in the Bible of God. I am acquainted with many hundreds of Modernists. I have among them a great many intimate friends with whom I have associated for nearly thirty years who are sincere Modernists, and I do not know one who even claims to believe that God created man, as the Bible says He did. I do not know one who believes in the Fall of man, according to the Bible account of how man sinned and fell. I do not know one that believes sin entered into the world by virtue of the fall of a perfect man, and that the conditions of the world to-day are attributable to the sinful nature inherited from Adam, and because of the Adamic Fall. I do not know one single Modernist who believes in the Divine conception. They use the words "Our Divine Lord," but they are speaking of the same kind of divinity with which they believe man is invested. My Modernist friends do not believe in the miraculous, they do not believe in the supernatural. They do not believe, therefore, in the Resurrection of the Body of Jesus Christ from the dead. They do not believe in the Ascension of Jesus Christ into the heavens. They spurn the thought of a personal Return of the Lord Jesus Christ from the heavens to this earth. They simply do not believe in any of these things because Modernism makes it impossible for them to believe things absolutely contradictory to itself. You cannot believe these things and yet call yourself a Modernist at the same time. You cannot believe things that are diametrically, intellectually opposed to each other; the laws of your mind will not permit you to do that. The Modernists have imbibed the idea of Evolution. They acknowledge that there must have been some great Cause somewhere, that everything that now is is the result of the operation of laws that are operating consistently. They do not believe at all that anything of an extraordinary nature ever happened to this world. For instance, I had a friend, Dr. Smith—that will not convey much to you, for there are many people who are called by that name. He used to address the same audiences that I did in America. He was a fine fellow. The Methodists over in America refused to appoint a certain gentleman who insisted on preaching his doubts all the time rather than his beliefs, and the particular Bishop under whom he was operating simply declined to give him an appointment. A great many of our papers took it up, and it started quite a controversy. A tolerant liberality was insisted upon. I read that same word in one of your English papers. I wish that those who are for ever impressing upon us the need of tolerance would only be a little more tolerant themselves! They are insisting that we should be so tolerant that we should allow them to take away from us those churches and great institutions that our forefathers gave us with their blood—and that we should not even enter a protest. Oh, this specious plea for tolerance! Be broad-minded, or, in other words, keep silent. Let us do what we choose to do. That is what they are actually saying. Some of us have difficulty in keeping silent all the time. Well, my friend, Dr. Smith, who was a minister, but not of that particular denomination, saw an opportunity, and he preached a sermon in his church. The editor of one of our papers thought so highly of it that he gave a whole front page to Dr. Smith's wonderful address. Dr. Smith was mainly contending against the idea that there ever had been any such thing in this world as the Flood, and this and that. That was one of this preacher's chief contentions. All I am getting at is this, that then my friend entered the realm of ridicule. Why, anybody knows very well there could not have been a Flood. Possibly there was a big rain, quite a deal of water in a sparsely-settled region; they had the biggest fall of water they had ever known, and perhaps a few cattle were drowned, and dwelling-places were flooded, and so Noah thought the whole world was under water. And as Noah outlived all the other old men, there was no one to dispute him when he told the story. And the preacher said that the story of the Flood just grew into a legend. And then he went on, "But who would believe that in these enlightened days? Who would believe in the possibility of the world being submerged by a Flood? Who would believe that the Missouri could ever get over the hills here?" Well, it just hurt my feelings to think that a man should so prostitute his real talents. And I wrote two or three columns, presumably for the paper, and then I altered my mind, and went down and re-addressed what I had written to him, and I told him that he could publish it if he wanted to. But he never published it! I said, "Frank, for Heaven's sake, have you forgotten every physical fact you ever learned as a child about the world? You are ridiculing the people who believe in the Word of God. Jesus Christ stood for the fact of the Flood. And I say to you, it is a question of authority. That is all there is to it. You settle this in your mind—To whom shall I look as an authority? That is all. Either look to these speculative, scholarly gentlemen who say 'I think—I suppose—I conclude'; or else believe in Jesus Christ and in what He says." This friend of mine said that the world could not be inundated, that there was not enough water to cover the earth. As a matter of fact, there is three times as much water as land. And not only that, but the average depth of the sea is five times as great as the average height of the land that is above the sea. And there are four or five holes in the Pacific Ocean that are 31,000 to 32,000 feet deep. Then I took another illustration, quite a homely one. Suppose you take a vessel like a tub, and you put water in it, and then add a shovelful of earth, and allow that earth to stick up above the water. You will have there a pretty good illustration of the proportion of land to water—28 per cent. land, and 72 per cent. water. Then you begin shaking the water until all the earth in it is level. What will happen? Every bit of the earth will go under the water. There is enough water on this earth to drown Noah, or Smith, or anybody else when once God begins to shake it. A great majority of the scholars disbelieve in the supernatural. Now I am not posing as a scholar. I have visited nearly every University in America, and I have asked hundreds and hundreds of genuine scholars what about it, and I say to you that the vast number of them are not willing to commit themselves as having a single scientific fact that actually disproves the Bible. To be sure they disbelieve it because they have accepted the theory of Modernism, and Modernism will not allow them to believe this thing. It is a straight question which system you will accept. Why don't you call it a menace? It is a menace. I became an infidel for exactly the same reason. I was attending a splendid institution, a Presbyterian College, going to get my classical education, and I got hold of Haeckel's books, and a good many others of a similar sort, and I swallowed the whole thing. Why? The professors in our College simply did not know, and I found it was utterly impossible to believe those things and to believe that Book. About five years ago now I was asked by the Ministerial Alliance in the city in which I was Pastor to give them a lecture in the Ministerial Conference on Modernism and Fundamentalism. I told them the difference, but they said, "We want you to give a clear-cut presentation and statement concerning the thing in dispute as you see it from both sides from where you have been." And I told them what the Modernists believe and what the Fundamentalists believe, and I tried to be absolutely fair. That the Fundamentalist believes in the fact of a personal God Who created the heavens and the earth. That the Fundamentalist gives unlimited time between the first and second verses of the first chapter of Genesis. I do not know how long. No Fundamentalist with whom I am acquainted ever believes that the Bible insists that every creature on this earth was created in seven days as we understand that period of time. We are profoundly convinced that like begets like. The evolutionist believes that like begets like until it does not, and then it begets something else. The Fundamentalist believes in a Personal God Who personally superintends, not an absent God. Why, it takes as much wisdom to maintain and sustain as it did to create a universe. We believe in the imminence of God. A blind force has no plan and no purpose. I showed them at this Conference what the Modernists believed. As soon as I was through, the meeting was opened for discussion, and a minister jumped to his feet. The back of his neck was red! He said: "Mr. President, I resent the attitude of this cocksure Fundamentalist towards us Modernists. I am a Modernist, and proud of it. I used to be in that other ignorant category, but I thank God I have gotten over it. The speaker would have you believe, if he could, that Modernists are not honestly seeking the light. We are seeking the light as much as anyone. The only difference between them is that the Modernist knows where not to look for it, and the Fundamentalist has never found out that thing. The Modernist is searching for truth, but he is not expecting to find it in the Bible. The Bible is full of absurdities and contradictions, and no intelligent man believes it was ever Divinely inspired at all. It is erroneous in its scientific presentations, it is in error in its statements, and no really scientific man can believe it. The Modernist believes that Jesus of Nazareth did not have all the truth. Jesus misled His own disciples into believing that they would not die till He returned again from the heavens. Paul was an ignoramus who did not know anything about the truth. Paul misled the entire Christian Church, and for centuries it was looking for a catastrophe, of an imminent coming of something from the skies." And that man was a trusted elder of the Southern Methodist Church in that district. Some of you will be compelled to think that must have been some rank Unitarian of some kind. No. He was the head in one big district of the great Evangelical Southern Methodist denomination, as Evangelical and as soundly orthodox a Church and body of believers as our country has. What does it mean? The menace of Modernism. I have associated with ministers for many years by the hundreds in my lecture work. I have talked with them by the hour. I have met them by the score, men who have lost their faith in Jesus Christ. The Attorney-General of Oklahoma, who was a member of my congregation, said to me one day, "What is the matter with Dr. ——?" I said, "What do you mean, Judge?" "Why," he said, "last week I travelled nearly all day with him across the Oklahoma State, and he was discussing with me some of your so-called extreme Fundamentalist statements which you have broadcast over the radio, and Dr. —— told me that he was not sure at all that there was any Heaven or future life."

Friends, if there is any one thing that convinces me beyond anything else of the absolute soundness and truthfulness of this British-Israel Truth it is that I have found—and I have been watching them more closely than they know—that they believe every great cardinal doctrine in God's Book. They believe in Jesus Christ, in prayer, in the Holy Ghost, and in the return of the Son of God. They believe in future punishment, and in future rewards. Their doctrine has kept them close to the Book of God. Just what a Modernist minister can preach I do not know. Let me tell you of a thing that burned into my soul. In Oklahoma, about two o'clock in the morning, my telephone bell rang, and when I answered it I heard a tremulous girl's voice sobbing out this: "Pastor McConnell, could you come to our house?" "Where is your house?" She told me where it was; it was about a couple of miles away. I said, "When do you want me to come?" "Just as quickly as you can get here." "What is the matter?" "Mother is dying, and she is in an awful fix, and she has asked me about you a lot, for we hear you over the radio. She has never been to church, but she has just asked me whether I reckon you would come out here." I said, "I will be there just as soon as my car can take me." When I drove up to that poor little house, that little shivering girl was standing outside the front door, and, with the snow blowing, she ran out to the gate and said, "This is the place." I went in and saw an emaciated woman propped up in her bed, dying of cancer. She said, "Dr. McConnell, I am dying, and I know it. I am without God and without hope. I used to be a Christian, but I became worldly-minded, and I got reading those books there." And there were some cheap, trashy books that some publishers in America send out by the ton.

Many infidel books have been reproduced in America in a cheap form. Of course there is propaganda behind it. "I have been reading those books," she said, "I do not know what to do. And I am leaving my baby girl behind." I knelt by the side of the woman telling her what to do. And as I went out of that house I had the joy of seeing her face relax, and a look of great resignation and contentment and hope was there. I put her away later on, assuring her before she died that the spirit of Christ acting through genuine Christians would guarantee a Christian home to that girl. When I went away from that Ministers' meeting I wondered what my dear Modernist friend would have said to that dying woman. Oh, friends, we are travelling to Eternity, and anything is a deadly menace that robs you of faith in God, or that puts a barrier between you and the Saviour. I thank God for these British-Israel people who have been raised up. They offer to you, not merely theories, not merely opinions, not merely a testimony of their own heart's experience when they have accepted Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour—they do that. But you cannot escape the actual evidence of history corroborating the prophecies of God, and God has thrown this mighty white light of Truth across the pathway of the British Empire and the people of the world. And one day the question will be asked you by the King, "Why did you refuse to accept the testimony that I sent to you?"

THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

The course open for me to-night, after the strong, splendid things we have heard, is to give the positive side of the question. There is only one voice that should be heard, and that is the voice of THE APOSTLE OF OUR PROFESSION. Succeeding Him, there were twelve Apostles who repeated His words. Since that time there has been an ordained ministry, called, trained, ordained to pass on the words of the Apostle of our profession. In the ranks of the ministry we know, all of us without exception, that the man who fails to pass on the word of the Apostle of our profession is untrue to his ordination.

Our faith rests upon fact, thank God. There is one extreme wing of the Christian ministry, so termed to-day, who are determined to rest upon fact, exclusive of faith. There is another wing of the Christian ministry that is content to rest upon faith, not based entirely upon demonstrable fact. Standing in the middle ground, by the grace of God we practise faith based upon fact; and when the two, faith and fact, go hand in hand together, there are not forces enough in the spiritual, mental or physical field to bar the progress of the truth.

Now, to illustrate that our faith is built upon fact, let me point out some truths to you from the words of Our Lord. Turn to the 14th of St. John, and read rapidly those wonderful chapters, in which the very spirit of Jesus Christ is breathed. The passage is luminous with the personality of Jesus. This is the way He introduces this particular phase of His theme. "Let not your heart be troubled." Why? Because of the facts upon which your faith rests. What are they?

"Ye believe in God." There is the basis. Let us stop and think of that for a moment or two. What did Our Lord mean? There came a voice from the Cathedral at Johannesburg the other day, and that voice was repeated by the Press Association to the world—"I have no use for the God of the Old Testament." In that case we say: "Let your heart be troubled," for you are not resting upon the basic fact that Jesus Christ introduced.

"Let not your heart be troubled. Ye believe in God." What God? Jesus Christ knew only one and revealed only one. He is revealed to us under different names, but as one Person. Elohim, the Creator; Elyon El, to Whom all the human family approach; El Shaddai, the head of the Abrahamic family, which constitutes the household of God on earth; Jehovah, the God, the King of Israel. Many names, but one Person, and each name indicates a phase of activity.

I say to you all to-night, it is impossible that you completely believe in God if you do not believe in God's Israel. Let it be true that Israel has failed; then God has failed. Let it be true that Israel has merged into Judah, then God's plan has crashed. "In Him there is no variableness, neither shadow of a turning." The Divine Personality is not absent in Heaven, but present in Israel to-day, and is active in administering the affairs of His Kingdom. He is revealed in Moses, in the prophets, in the Psalms, in the life of Jesus Christ Our Lord. "Let not your hearts be troubled. Ye believe in God." That is the basis of your faith.

"Believe also in Me." Now Jesus Christ is putting the second test side by side with the first. "Ye believe in God, believe also in Me." He said to the disciples: "Whom do men say that I, the Son of man, am?" They answered: "Elijah, one of the prophets; the mighty wonder worker; wonderful teacher; the greatest exponent of ethics that the world ever saw; the Son of man." Yes, He is all that.

"But whom do ye say that I am?" Simon Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God." Now, do you believe in the supernatural and the miraculous? If not, you do not believe that statement; you cannot. Why? "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father which is in Heaven." All honour to the scientists that have led us forward in the physical world as we have been led forward in the last few generations. But do not ask of science a thing that it cannot compass. Do not ask the scientist and the scholar to reveal to you that Jesus Christ is the Son of the Living God. He simply cannot do it. It is no use to seek for that information in the University. That is not part of University education. It is of no use to ask that of the scientist. "The world by wisdom knew not God," nor Jesus Christ, the Son of God. How, then, shall I know as Simon Peter knew? Only by opening my mind and my heart to the miraculous revelation which comes from Him Whom Jesus termed "My Father, which is in Heaven." Have we received that? There are millions that would join me in testimony to the affirmative. The theologian is a peculiar person; I have been one myself for many years, and I know the type. The theologian is doing to-day what no scientist will do. What is that? Refusing to accept knowledge on the basis of testimony. That, of course, is absurd. Here is the testimony of millions to-day, many of them scholars as broad and as profound as walk this earth, who will tell you, "By Divine revelation, I know Jesus Christ to be the Son of the Living God." Listen again. "No man can say that Jesus is Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." This is why St. Paul, the greatest of the psychologists, said, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." Jesus Himself said, "Except a man be born again he cannot see . . . he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God." If we will fulfil our ministry, that to which we are called, and for which we are ordained, we shall lead every individual to that personal contact with the supernatural and miraculous; and into the heart of such person, from the Person of God, will shine the light and knowledge which will enable him to join with St. Peter in declaring, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God."

"Ye believe in God, believe also in Me. In My Father's House are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you."

Was Jesus Christ an impostor? Did He claim too much in asserting a knowledge of all things positive and all things negative in all the universe? He herein claims to tell of positive facts, and to be Master of all negations: "If it were not so I would have told you." Nay, He is the Truth Himself. "In My Father's House are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you. I go." Oh, these wonderful Scriptures, and the wonderful men that live and move before us in these Scriptures! What had been the tone of their song through the preceding ages? Jesus Christ is coming! Jesus Christ is coming! And men questioned, "How is He coming?" "Coming in the spirit." "Coming in the flesh." Is it true in very deed? "Behold, a Virgin shall conceive and bear a Son, and shall call His Name Immanuel. Butter and honey shall He eat. For before the child shall know to refuse the evil, and choose the good, the land that thou abhorrest shall be forsaken of both her kings." Is it true? They looked forward, they expected, they argued as to the manner of His coming.

MR. HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., Secretary-General of the British-Israel-World Federation, at his desk.

Then there came the morning of the Nativity. Angel voices sang, and the messenger of God proclaimed, "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people, for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord." What a day, the day of the Nativity! Jesus was come, and in His Person and Life were fulfilled hundreds of the Messianic prophecies.

AT LAST JESUS WAS COME!

Now Christ was there with His disciples; looking into their eyes, smiling upon them, and then He said, "I GO." A wonderful thing that Jesus should be in a position to say on earth, "I go." The whole thought had been of His coming. Now, "I go." For what, Lord? "To prepare a place for you." One wonders, what kind of a place? When a lad, about eight summers old, I had very clear visions of these things, I used to wonder what kind of a place the Lord was going to prepare for me. Down yonder in Cornwall there was a beautiful meadow valley. The opposite slope was crowned at the top with a growth of evergreens, and standing in front of it stood a residence, white against the background of dark green. I spent many hours looking at that picture, and used to think, That is exactly the kind of home the Lord is going to give to me in the life that is coming! One's mind has changed a little since then. What kind of a place is He going to prepare for us? We do not know. Because we do not quite know what kind of people we are going to be, and what our need will be. For we read this, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." We do not know what He is preparing, but we know something about what He has prepared. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." In the earth God planted a garden eastward in Eden. In the garden He planted every tree that was good for food and pleasant to the sight; and there He put the man. There He set up the home life of humanity. It was a wonderful preparation. I have followed the horizon on and on towards the sunset, day after day, and day after day, and with Professor Odlum, and others, have examined the hills and the valleys; the wide sweeping plains; and the wonderful vistas of mountains; and every new horizon that has opened up has been an extension of the beauty of the glory of the garden that God made. A wonderful place! Wonderful beauty!

Then we read, coming away down in historic time, "I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more." He was speaking of these very Islands.

"I go." What to do, Lord? "To prepare a place for you." I have entered for a homestead there. My American and Canadian friends know what I mean. Have you? Now, mark, up to the point when Our Lord said "I go," every statement of the Lord has been verified; fact answering to prophecy every time. There is only one thing remaining:—"If I go, I will come again." Thousands of years of fulfilment! Is God going to begin to break His promises now? Dr. Driver sent out a wail from Oxford, and this was it, speaking of God's covenants and promises made to the northern Ten-Tribed Kingdom of Israel, "It must be manifest to all that many of these promises have never been fulfilled, and now conditions have so changed that they never can be fulfilled." No! No! Before men and angels it is demonstrable by British-Israel Truth, the facts of this glorious Bible answering to the facts of history, that every covenant, and every promise, and every prophecy so far has been fulfilled in outline and in detail, and the small margin of prophecy remaining is being fulfilled before our eyes. Is God going to begin to break His word now? Never!

"I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again." What for, Lord? "To receive you unto Myself," so that you may be lifted to the place I have prepared for you. And He is coming soon, thank God.

He said also, "A little while, and ye shall not see Me, and again a little while, and ye shall see Me, because I go unto My Father. And they said, 'What is this strange doctrine? A little while, and ye shall not see Me, and again a little while, and ye shall see Me, because I go unto the Father. We cannot tell what He saith.'" No, they could not tell, but the event did. What was it, "A little while, and they could not see Him"? He was in the rock-hewn tomb. A stone was rolled before the mouth of the sepulchre. The seal of Pilate was upon the stone, and they sorrowed, and they said, "We trusted that it had been He that should have redeemed Israel." "A little while, and ye shall not see Me." And then there came the glory of the Easter morning, and the word rang from one to the other, "He is risen." And that was the greatest morning for the earth since the morning of the creation of man. For forty busy days He came and went, teaching, instructing, completing their knowledge, and finally giving them their commission to go into all the world, and to preach the Gospel unto every creature: "He that believeth shall be saved." And then He went to the Father. Why? "To prepare a place for you."

He is coming again to receive us unto Himself, that where He is there we may be also. What is all that to the Modernist? Foolishness. What is that to the experimental Christian? Revelation from the Father Who is in Heaven shining into the heart. Believe in the miraculous? Why, friends, we are living in it, moving in it, we have our being in it; and we testify to these men that have voluntarily put out the eyes of their spirit, that they are shutting themselves out from the glorious light of Heaven which is ready to shine into their hearts. "Let not your hearts be troubled. Ye believe in God, believe also in Me. In My Father's House are many mansions. If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto Myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." What a heritage! What an array of historic facts giving assurance of the final fulfilment of the outstanding prophecy—the coming again of Our Lord Jesus Christ!

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD (Chairman).

THERE is present here an honoured member who was in the horrors of the siege of Paris in 1870. During the siege one of the household going abroad found a piece of paper in the street. On it was printed the 91st Psalm, which has just been read. The family took it, amidst the turmoil, the hunger and the pestilence, as a direct message from God, and so dwelt securely under the shadow of the Almighty.

By the way, where is the secret place of the Most High? You know, by the grace of God, we have been privileged to have one of the duplicate keys of the "safety deposit" place of the Most High. Do you know where it is? "The secret place of the Most High" is where His treasure is hidden. Our Lord said something about that. He said, "The Kingdom of Heaven is as a treasure hid in a field." That field is "the secret place," is it not? That is the abiding place. "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." There was a people who, from the beginning, was overshadowed by a pillar of cloud by day, and a pillar of fire by night. They abode under the shadow of the Almighty.

It is a wonderfully precious Psalm. And then, further, "to enter into the holiest, by a new and living way, even by the blood" of the everlasting covenant. That will not be "a secret place." There will be no "hiding" there. The necessity for hiding will have gone for ever. What privileges are yours! What privileges are ours! In the spirit of that Psalm I am going to call on our brethren this afternoon.

This day marks a step forward in the progress of our Federation, and this is that which marks the progress. The Executive has handed over to the clergy and ministers the responsibility for the activities of this day, and these brethren of the Christian ministry are here to face and to bear that responsibility, and to seize that opportunity. I am not going to stand between you and them, but shall call upon them in the order in which they are placed on the programme for this afternoon.

In the United States there is a wonderful upspringing of knowledge and enthusiasm concerning British-Israel Truth.

I received a call to go to a city some fifty to sixty miles west of Chicago ; almost a continuation of that great city on the shores of Lake Michigan. I was astounded to find in that place no less than 1,000 readers of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE; not a thousand subscribers, unfortunately, but readers, and they are feeding on that which our splendid staff of correspondents are giving to them from year to year.

There is amongst us on the platform one of that staff of writers whose voice has carried comfort and love—Mr. Henry D. Houghton. His messages have carried with them restoration of faith to not a few. With him there are two hundred devoted men and women who are giving of their best freely, and the Covenant Publishing Co. is scattering their messages to the ends of the earth.

THE REV. DR. LINCOLN MCCONNELL.

We quoted a prayer a while ago that has had a great deal of influence in my own thinking, and especially one particular passage in it. I am referring to the prayer known as the Lord's Prayer, or the Disciples' Prayer. In dealing with that great utterance I only want to say this—the disciples had unquestionably connected the power of Jesus with the prayer life of Jesus, and they went to Him, and asked Him, saying, " Lord, teach us to pray." And they went to the right source. For one to properly teach must not only know his lesson and know his scholar, but have the ability to communicate the lesson to the particular scholar before him. Jesus had all these, and many other qualifications. In order that there may be teaching, there must be not only the teacher and the lesson, but there must be the scholar as well. And a man must be open-hearted, and willing-hearted, and receptive. Too often I am convinced that we throughout the ages have been saying, " Lord, teach us to pray," and all the time we have been trying to show Him how well we could do it. We have done nothing but make an exhibition of ourselves. We have not gone to Him to learn. I consider that this utterance that we call the Lord's Prayer is not a recitation, but it is a declaration of great cardinal and fundamental principles. It is the platform upon which all belief must stand if we are to prevail with God. Prayer is prevailing with God, not a mere reverent utterance of so many words. The first great question is, Do you believe in God? Do you believe that God is your Father, not because of the universal Fatherhood of God, or the brotherhood of man, but because of the fact that you have been born again, and have the answer in your own soul—Father! Father! Father! You have got to believe, not only that, but to believe that there is a Kingdom.

Let us visualize this for a moment. I could not do you greater service than to present it to you as it came to me. I could not wish you greater blessing than that which came to me wi h this revelation. Here were the disciples saying, " Lord, teach us to pray." Yonder is the Great Teacher. The learner assumes the attitude of humility, the attitude of the learner. Now the Master says, " Do you believe in God? " " Yes." " Is God your Father? " " Yes." " Are you willing to forgive, even as you would be forgiven? " " Yes." Now, coming to the last clause, " Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the Kingdom and the power and the glory for ever and ever." Have you ever taken your place at the feet of Jesus, and said, " Lord, teach me to pray," and heard Him announce each of those great platform planks which, put together, will make a platform upon which you may stand in the finest atmosphere of God's presence? Have you ever done that? Apply each of the things He said to your own lives, and see whether you can say " Yes." Then you will come to the last clause.

Now Jesus said to these men who had asked Him, Are you willing to put your hand in My hand, in God's hand, and confessing your utter impotence, your utter ignorance, are you willing to say, Now, Father, you lead me not into temptation, for I desire to be delivered from all things that are evil. For I know that Thou hast the Kingdom in which there is power and knowledge, and in which there will be glory for ever. What is it? Let me treat you as though you were scholars this afternoon. What is temptation? Temptation is the suggestion, or the invitation to do something that promises pleasure or profit. I pause that you may digest that. I wondered for a long time after I was a preacher why I should pray to God not to lead me into temptation, for to my mind temptation was synonymous with sin. Was there any danger of God leading me into sin? But I had a misunderstanding of what temptation is. Temptation is the suggestion, or the invitation, coming from within, or from without, the suggestion that promises—though it does not always fulfil—pleasure or profit. You cannot tempt me to do that that does not promise me some pleasure. You cannot tempt me by asking me to have a drink of liquor, because I do not drink, and never did. There are folk, and if you were to ask them to take a glass of whisky it would be a pull, and would be to them a temptation. It would not be a temptation to me if you asked me to have a cigar, for I do not smoke. Now there are things that are presented to me that appeal, that have a pull. Temptation is threefold. " The tree was pleasant to the eye, it was pleasant to the taste, and to be desired to make one wise." The temptation in the Garden of Eden was a threefold one. It struck at each of the three points of human vulnerability. There are three avenues—one is the lust of the flesh, the other the lust of the eye, and the other, which is far more dangerous and subtle, the pride of life, intellectual pride, natural pride, the pride of intellectual achievements. That is where Satan has got so many folks to-day. The disciples said to Jesus, " Teach us to pray." " Very well," said Jesus in effect, " Do you really desire to have prevailing influence with God? " " Yes." " I have shown you," says Jesus, " that prevailing prayer must stand upon a platform of principles," and Our Lord's Prayer is simply the great platform of principles upon which human beings can stand and prevail with God. You have been ready to agree to each of the planks up till now. Are you willing to obey this last one? Are you willing to put your hand into God's hand, and to say, " Father, lead me "? I do not say the Lord's Prayer as you folks say it, and as it is printed. I intrude a comma after " Lead us." The original Book was not punctuated at all. I read it this way. " Lead us "—do you want to go into the way of pleasure and sin? " I have elected to go along the highway of intellectual achievement, please enlighten my mind that I may shine above my fellows. I have decided to live a social life," you say. Are you willing to put your hand into His hand, and to say

" Lead me away, or around and past everything that may have any evil in it, that will interfere with my occupancy of and blessing in the Kingdom of God. I am so concerned to have a place in the Kingdom. For Thine is the Kingdom and the power and the glory for ever and ever I am willing temporarily to miss a great deal of the honour and the glory of the temporal kingdom life of the earth." You notice this fact. Every single one of them did that very thing. You have not got a single instance in your English or American history of a prevailing, prayerful person, save that of an individual who was willing to put himself into the hand of God, and run the risk of any kind of temporal loss, or pleasure, or profit, or honour, or intellectual acclaim that might lead him away from being and doing what God wanted him to be and to do.

What has that got to do with it? Just this. It is just a straight question as to which company you are going to walk with. I happen to know a great many ministers who would have to separate themselves from their brethren if they accepted the Kingdom truth as it is in the Book of God. But the reason that they do it, the reason that they are willing to say I will put my hand into God's hand that I may be instructed as to the teaching of the Book, is because they do not want to get out of harmony with the doctors of divinity, with the theological seminaries. And a lot of you are in just the same condition, and the result is that you are unwilling to put the last plank in the platform.

What is the personal application? Why just this. I am constructed in such a way that I do not know what fear is. I have had a delightful liberty when I have preached the whole truth anywhere and everywhere, and I have had this experience, and I say this to my ministerial brethren—you put your hand whole-heartedly, with full acceptance, into the hand of Jesus, and say, " Lord Jesus, lead me." Let the Author of the Book teach you the content of it. A farmer friend of mine, who was for forty-eight years a missionary, said to me, " They used to drive goats to my door, and milk them that we might be absolutely sure that we were getting the pure, unadulterated milk." The pure milk of the Word. One day he thought he would see if that was the kind he was giving out, and he decided to read the Bible again, and to forget every commentary, and every boundary that had been placed around his mind. And he said, " Lord, you wrote it, and you lead." And he was surprised to find that he did not come out in the neighbourhood where he had formerly supposed the whole truth to rest. I thank God for an increasing number of folk who are willing to let God's Book be the actual authority for their lives. " Lead us." There is nothing in the world so needed as absolute confidence in prayer. You do not have to strain when you know you have the ear of the Father, and you are praying in harmony with His will. " Lord, teach us to pray."

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

DEAR SIR,—At a meeting of the Modern Churchmen's Conference, Cambridge, Dean Inge is reported as saying," Although the ultimate doom of our planet is certain, it is highly probable that we have hundreds of thousands, or perhaps millions, of years in which to work out our salvation as a species. The notion that civilized man is a very new experiment of nature has hardly yet sunk into our minds." Assuming that the Dean means a continuation of world activity without a manifestation of Divine Intervention, let us consider the probability that " we have hundreds of thousands of years in which to work out our salvation as a species."

Such a postponement in the development of God's plan in relation to man as forecast in Holy Scripture would be out of scale with what we already know historically of the world's progress towards that development. God is a great Artist, and we may be sure that all His structural works are in perfect proportion. Even if we were to agree with the Modernist, which there is no sound reason for doing, in regarding pre-Abrahamic chronology as unreliable, we have indisputable chronological history from the time of Abraham on to the Birth and Sacrificial Death of Our Lord. Can we believe that the period of this Dispensation will bear no relation whatever to earlier construction? And is it not significant that Christ, Who is the centre of all our hopes, stands midway historically between Abraham and this present generation? Further, is it fanciful to imagine that as God created the universe and man in six " days," and rested on the Seventh Day, so, following immediately after six millenniums of man's probation will come a seventh millennium. The Millennium, under closer Divine direction, in which man, after being sifted, will go forward towards perfection. It seems to me that to talk of hundreds of thousands of years is to reject the Bible en bloc, for the New Testament is inseparably bound up with the Old, a connecting chain running throughout. The day, month, or year for the close of this Dispensation is not foretold, but undoubtedly a period is indicated, more or less definitely according as we have insight to interpret prophecy. And taking either a near view or a relatively distant view there is no question of hundreds of thousands of years.

Without looking so far ahead, let us try to imagine the state of the world much less than one thousand years hence, supposing the world is left to run its course. A well-known journalist in close touch with life as it is lived to-day reviews the outlook with despair. In the domain of politics he sees the attainment of Democracy, but that after centuries of travail Democracy has produced a Robot, lacking the breath of life. She is uninterested in her child, and listless. What next? Will a return of animation come in the form of fiery and uncontrollable fever? In the domain of science he sees gigantic strides; stored wealth of discovery in physical science, and physical science on the verge of further great discoveries; perhaps also discoveries in a domain beyond the physical. But with all this he sees civilized man with ill-regulated passions, and unfitted to control the forces in his hands. Failing some hitherto unmanifested restraining influence he sees him rushing to destruction. The best this writer can hope for is that mankind will stop short of entire self-extermination, and that after a clearing of the ground, Man, retaining the knowledge he has gained, may start again on a higher plane.*

We have reason to be more hopeful than that, for Holy Scripture promises us better things. Yet anyone with his eyes open may see the signs of the times, and the rapid converging to a crisis both of material and of spiritual forces. If our clerical Modernists would study the Bible itself, and not only the exegesis of it, side by side with the daily newspaper, they would see much to which their eyes are now closed. They would find that Scriptural prophecy and the happenings of the present day are in accord. Prophecy is a true witness.

Another witness is the Witness in Stone—the Great Pyramid—which is also a true witness, though it has met with even more scepticism than other warnings. Perhaps the reason is that it is startling, to those who think that we have evolved ourselves, to be offered evidence that events pre-ordained of God in remote ages have taken place with meticulous exactness. With the same exactness we may be sure that future events are indicated. There may be errrors, of more or less importance, in the interpretation of symbolisms, but we may be sure that the datings indicated are unerringly correct. And the reading of the Pyramid is that we have entered a final stage of this Dispensation. Is it not inexcusable folly to disregard all signs and warnings, and to encourage the expectation that all things will continue as they were since the beginning of the world?

Yours, etc.,
O. B.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—Will you please explain Rom. iv, 13, in connection with British-Israel Truth? Also in the same connection, what is the meaning of Gal. iii, 16? These verses have been quoted as affording reasons against this doctrine.

E. M.

ANSWER.—(1) There is no difficulty about the understanding of these verses, if they be interpreted in the light of dispensational truth. Dispensational truth is a very important subject, and an intelligent study of the Bible depends upon it. The whole secret of the call of Abraham, inclusive of the Covenant promises, lies in the fact that the law was not given until the Mosaic period, which was long after the time of Abraham. For this reason the Covenant promises (Gen. xii, 2, 3, etc.) were absolutely unconditional. The word "if" does not appear in them; God said, "I will" . . . "I will" . . . . "I will" . . . etc. The Covenant dispensation is older than the Law dispensation, and far greater than and superior to it. The law was necessary ("as our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ," Gal. iii, 24) in order that Israel redeemed might be justified by that very faith which Abraham had in righteousness. But Christ came—not to destroy the law, but to fulfil it, and, above all, to confirm these very promises made unto the fathers (Rom. xv, 8). Thus Christ confirmed the Old Covenant dispensation through His blood, and reinstated it in the form of the New (Christian) Covenant (Heb. ix, 11-28; cf. Jer. xxxi, 31-37).

Hence the promise that Abraham should be heir of the world was made to him long before the law was given, and entirely independent of any influence which the law might have in later days, or of any rebellion or disobedience which Israel might and did practise in after days.

The above verse (Rom. iv, 13) brings out therefore the superiority of the call of Abraham through the righteousness of faith, over and above the weakness of "the law which made nothing perfect" (Heb. vii, 19). The whole secret lies in the fact that "Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness" (Rom. iv, 3; Gen. xv, 6; Gal. iii, 6), and that Abraham thus became the "Friend of God" (2 Chron. xx, 7; Isa. xli, 8; James ii, 23).

(2) Gal. iii, 16. This verse must be understood in the light of its context, and in the general trend of the Covenant promises given to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and their seed for ever. The one seed promised to Abraham was the covenant-birthright-seed, which eliminated the seed of Abraham through Esau. But this one seed—the birthright-seed—only came into its inheritance through Christ. Hence, as the next verse explains, the Covenant was confirmed "before of God in Christ," so that the law which was given 430 years after had no power to cancel or disannul it. "For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise: but God gave it to Abraham by promise" (Gal. iii, 18).

Can we not see the wonderful fulfilment of this great Covenant promise before our very eyes to-day? Our British Empire, with its vast possessions in the world, a "fulness of nations"; America, the greatest democracy on the earth, together standing for God's righteousness, and invincible (Isa. liv, 17; Luke i, 71). The marvellous prestige of Anglo-Saxondom; the world-wide recognition of our historic Throne, with its Davidic dynasty; the moral and spiritual influence of British character and justice. Our inheritance of the Promised Land (cf., our mandates in the Near East); our Protestant Faith—these are only some of the indications that the promises made to Abraham before the law was given are being fulfilled in Christ through Abraham's seed, so that even yet the day may not be far distant when Abraham's seed shall literally become "heir of the world," and not only a limited portion of it.

JOSEPHUS ON ISRAEL'S FUTURE.

"HAPPY is this people on whom God bestows the possession of innumerable good things and grants them His own providence to be their assistant and their guide; so that there is not any nation among mankind but you will be esteemed superior to them in virtue and in the earnest prosecution of the best rules of life, and of such as are pure from wickedness and will leave those rules to your excellent children, and this out of the regard that God bears to you, and the provision of such things for you as may render you happier than any other people under the sun. You shall retain that land to which He has sent you, and it shall ever be under the command of your children; and both all the earth, as well as the sea, shall be filled with your glory, and you shall be sufficiently numerous to supply the world in general and every region in particular with inhabitants out of your stock. However, oh blessed army, wonder that you are become so many from one father, and truly the land of Canaan can now hold you, as being yet comparatively few; but know ye that the whole world is proposed to be your place of habitation for ever. The multitude of your posterity also shall live as well in the islands as on the continent, and that more in number than are the stars of heaven. And when you are become so many God will not relinquish the care of you, but will afford you an abundance of all good things in times of peace, with victory and dominion in times of war. May the children of your enemies have an inclination to fight against you, and may be so hardy as to come to arms and to assault you in battle, for they will not return with victory nor will their return be agreeable to their children and wives; to so great a degree of valour will you be raised by the providence of God, who is able to diminish the affluence of some and to supply the wants of others. So did Balaam speak by inspiration as not being in his own power, but moved by the Divine Spirit."—From "The History of Josephus."

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

Meetings will be held at H.Q. each Wednesday afternoon at 3, and each Thursday evening at 7.30, until further notice. All are invited.

The four meetings held last week in the Great Hall, Church House, Westminster, were successful, we are glad to say. Many new enquirers attended. Valuable addresses were given by Professor Odlum and the Rev. Pascoe Goard, and they made a profound impression upon all. Major Knowles, President of the B.-I.-W.F., presided each afternoon. The Rev. J. Lumley Davies presided on Thursday evening, and Mr. John Leech on Friday evening.

We have engaged the beautiful Town Hall at Oxford for a meeting on Friday, November 2nd, at 8 p.m., for addresses by Professor Odlum and the Rev. Pascoe Goard. We ask all our readers in that city and the district around to attend, and to make the meeting known to their friends. Leaflets will gladly be sent to all who can use them.

On Thursday and Friday of this week Professor Odlum is at the Town Hall, Folkestone, for meetings at 3 and 8 each day. On Saturday he goes to Dublin for a series of meetings in the Diocesan Hall on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next week. On Sunday, November 4th, at 8 p.m., he will speak in the hall attached to St. Saviour's Church, Crouch Hill; also on Monday evening, November 5th, at 7.30, in the Jubilee Hall, Hanley Road, Crouch Hill.

Mr. John H. Tench, of Darlington, visited the Liverpool Branch on October 11th, and gave a very interesting lecture on the "Gates of Empire." He pointed out that most of these "Gates" had been obtained peaceably, and the fact that Great Britain is holding them supports our identity with Israel.

Our Dover Branch was favoured with an instructive lecture on the "Passover" by the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A., on October 11th. At the second meeting Lt.-Col. Smythe lectured on "Who are the Celts?" This was also much enjoyed.

In the third Annual Report of the Hull Branch, recently issued, attention is called to the success of the weekly meetings which were inaugurated at the beginning of the year. Sincere thanks were expressed to all those who have so greatly helped by lecturing. The responsibility of opening Branches at Beverley and Hornsea has been undertaken, and it is expected the coming year of increased effort will give a result far surpassing that of the very successful one under report.

The Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., gave an instructive lecture on "Palestine," illustrated by magnificent slides, on October 8th, in the Mechanics' Institute, Bradford. Mr. J. Foster Beaver presided.

The many friends of Mr. H. A. Marchant will learn with sincere regret of his great bereavement in the loss of his devoted wife on the 18th inst. We tender to our good friend our deepest sympathy, and we pray God to comfort and sustain him.

The Fellowship of the Kingdom.

or, The Triune Kingdom of the Triune God.

By J. G. MODIN.

This book is chiefly addressed to clergy, ministers and theological students. It should especially be read by all Christians who, through misconception, are fundamentally at variance with B.-I. teaching. Send it to your clergyman.

By an entirely new way of approach it opens up an essential aspect of the Divine revelation which no reverent mind can lightly put aside, nor any logical mind gainsay, viz., the revelation of a Triune God working out His purpose in and for the world, in and through His Triune Kingdom.

A Scottish Minister writes: "The threefold aspect of the Kingdom and indeed of all the manifestations of God is a matter of which I was aware, though dimly . . . Your book has developed the theme in directions I did not dream of. I have, and can have, nothing but praise for it."

PREHISTORIC LONDON

BY

E. O. GORDON.

With two appendices by Rev. John Griffith.

Here is a book which gives food for much thought. Of all the books we have published on the early history of the British Race, this proves, perhaps, more deeply than any.

¶ Read herein of the coming of Brutus the Trojan, and the connection between his landing and the twentieth-century customs of Totnes in Devonshire.

¶ Read of the foundation and the growth of our great city.

¶ Read of the development of Druidism, the belief of our early forefathers in the Divine Creator, and in the life Eternal.

¶ Read of the customs of these ancestors, and find in them the true explanation of many of our present ways and ideas; seemingly inexplicable, yet inevitable when their origin is understood. Altogether a most fascinating book.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE KINGDOM LAW OF DIVINE HEALING.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, F.R.G.S.

This particular series has been called for—I think I may safely say—not by our choice. There is a long story behind, telling of cumulative pressure, which ultimately resulted in the arranging of this series. Letters from, literally, all over the world asking for a step forward in study and in claiming the blessings of the Covenants for ourselves. To move out of theory, into fact; out of doctrine, into experience. That evidently is the desire in the minds and hearts of a very great number of our people.

And so we have come to get directly into touch with the God of our Fathers and of us, so that we may see the going forth of His power, so that we may experience the gracious touch of His hand, and realize something of what St. John realized when he said of our glorified Lord: "He laid His right hand upon me."

If we are to move safely, sanely, led by the Spirit of God, along these lines, the foundation of such movement must be actual knowledge of truth. It is possible for our experience far to outrun our knowledge. Everyone of us, from day to day, is enjoying experiences far beyond our understanding. That is true in the physical world, and it is true in the Christian life; yet if we are to build safely, if we are to advance securely along the lines that God has indicated, we must walk along the line of actual constructive knowledge.

We are going to speak of "God in action, in the matter of physical healing."

The conditions for Divine demonstration of healing power are constantly present. But what are the results of efforts to realize this fact? The results may be individual strengthening and healing and glory. But if so, the manifestation often brings confusion in the Christian community among Christian workers; and I believe it is because we do not go back and build from the beginning upon the foundation of sure knowledge.

Where shall we find that sure knowledge but in this Book—the Bible?

Pilate asked the question, "What is Truth?" Jesus had already given the answer—"Thy Word is Truth." So we will try and build our knowledge upon the Truth, which is the Word of God.

If we are to do that, where shall we find the beginning of the pathway in the sacred Scriptures? We shall find a fountain-head in the Book of Exodus. There we shall begin a study of the Divinely-given ordinances which are the laws of the Church; and of the Divinely-given statutes which are the laws of the Kingdom. This is a broad-based foundation, you see: of Truth ecclesiastical, and Truth national. Here we are led by the Spirit of Truth to a contact with three elements, which contribute to make up the Kingdom of God on earth, of which I have written again and again—the nation; the King in the nation; and the law as promulgated to the nation, and through the nation to the world.

Let us walk on the solid rock of Truth, taking Our Lord's definition, "Thy Word is Truth."

We do not concern ourselves with those who call it fable and folklore. We are going to follow the greatest Scholar of all the ages; that is to say, Our Lord Jesus Christ. "Thy Word is Truth." There are many things that are true, but only one that is Truth; that is the Word of God.

That Word will not teach you anything in regard to these things—God's handling of the physical life of His people; His instruction of the mentality of His people; His saving the souls of His people—except along the line of Israel Truth. "Beloved for the Fathers' sake." What a wonderful expression that is. Who are the Fathers? We have a long line of distinguished ancestors commencing with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and in these ancestors we are "beloved for the Fathers' sake." It all leads there. "Look unto the rock whence ye are hewn; the hole of the pit whence ye are digged. Look unto Abraham your father, and Sarah which bare you."

Shall we put that in as the foundation-stone of our study?

Our predecessors put it in the Prayer Book. Shall we take it out? I think if that great foundation had been clear before the eyes of our leaders, they would not have moved to expunge the reference to Abraham and Sarah from the Marriage Service. Is it not a wonderful thing?—El Shaddai; Abraham and Sarah, constituting and instituting the Divinely-established household of God from which you and I have sprung. Let us keep the foundation there. Thank God, no power in the universe can take it out of the Bible nor out of the life of Israel. The Divine foundation stands.

We see God relating Himself to Israel, His people, and giving to them a revelation of the law: not creating a new law, however. Jesus said, "No new commandment give I you," and Jesus is Jehovah incarnate. He might have said exactly the same thing with absolute truth in connection with the Sinai code of law—"No new commandment give I you," but only a re-statement of the old principles of righteousness which have been from the very beginning. For the commandments, statutes and judgments of the Bible are the presentation of the eternal law of righteousness, which was before man became, and which was before the material creation sprang into existence at the Word of God.

Israel had gone down into Egypt 70 souls strong. In Egypt they had multiplied into their twelve tribes; and they had emerged from Egypt a strong nation. What wonderful things had happened in Egypt to bring them forth—how the waters of the Red Sea had separated; how the oozy quicksands of the sea bed had been "congealed to its very heart," so that they marched over on firm ground, dry-shod. But now the waters of the Red Sea had closed up behind them; the pursuing hosts of Pharaoh had been overthrown; the desert was open before them; and they moved off into the desert.

Have any of you been there to experience the dust, sand, blazing sun, scorching rock, mountains reflecting heat and light? Oh, the weariness of the burden! and of the march of the aged and youthful—men, women, children, infants, cattle. The march of an army of strong, trained men would be bad enough, but the march of a nation of refugees carrying their substance, leading their children by the hand, carrying their infants in their arms, driving their cattle all day, with toil, weariness, thirst, heat; then to find night settling down and no water! The next morning on again along the fearful pathway; struggling people, wailing children, moaning women, lowing cattle, murmuring of strong men who could not give refreshment to their children, until night came again, and no water! The third day, blindly stumbling forward; early morning, blazing noon, evening, and then came the cry, "Water!" Think of the rush, the scramble; but alas, they could not drink the bitter water. What now? Death? There could be no retracing of that pathway, no advancement further. There seemed nothing but death for Israel. Is it any wonder that the men rebelled and said to Moses, "Why hast thou brought us to perish in the wilderness?" And Moses cried to God.

Mark, friends, God had brought them there. He was responsible for that position, with its physical weariness, pain, suffering and agony. Why? In order to bring about a mental conviction that could be brought about by no other means. That situation did what a generation of teaching failed to do—it brought home to them the consciousness of the fact that the whole people were shut up to one of two alternatives: Divine interference; OR DEATH. You see it? Is it not dramatic?

> "So Moses brought Israel from the Red Sea, and they went out into the wilderness of Shur; and they went three days in the wilderness, and found no water.
> And when they came to Marah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah, for they were bitter; there, the name of the place was called Marah.
> And the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink?
> And he cried unto the Lord; and the Lord showed him a tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet."

Let us reproduce that scene. Just a tree flung into the water, and I think the cattle understood first, and made a rush; then the children, and then halting, doubting, not believing their own senses, the men stooped and drank. Oh, the refreshment, and the removal of the deadly danger, and the wonder that the hand of God had so intervened.

> "There He made for them A STATUTE and AN ORDINANCE, and there He proved them."

He made a statute. What is that? We should call it an Act of Parliament, passed by the Commons, passed by the Lords, signed by the King. That is a statute. He made a statute for them. I think we should have erected a statue to commemorate such a wonderful occasion, but He did better than that, He made a statute for them; and, mark, that was among the very first statutes on the books of the British-Israel nation; for the Ten Commandments had not yet been uttered, and God had not yet manifested Himself in Israel at Sinai. It was between the Red Sea and Sinai. But the health of the people could not wait the three intervening months for the law and practice of Divine healing, therefore the Lord expedited matters as we have seen, and made that statute and ordinance for them.

A statute is a national law and a national doctrine.

An ordinance is a law and a doctrine of the Church.

The Magistrate would adminster the statute in the Court. The Minister of Religion would administer the ordinance in the Church; and the people, as citizens and as members of the congregation, would enjoy both the statute and the ordinance which the Lord thus set up.

Digitized by Google

It was among the very first of the statutes in Israel, the Ten Commandments not yet having been given. It was among the very first ordinances. The priesthood had not yet been ordained; the Tabernacle had not yet been constructed; the altar had not yet been erected; the first Mosaic sacrifice had not yet been offered.

The statute and ordinance reads as follows :—

"If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord thy God, and wilt do that which is right in His sight, and wilt give ear to His commandments, and keep all His statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians; for I am Jehovah that healeth thee."

That is the law of the land, and that is the doctrine of the Church.

A PRODIGAL DAUGHTER'S RETURN.

BY THE REV. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A.
(VICAR OF ROWINGTON, WARWICK).

THREE hundred years ago a human spirit was sent down into mundane conditions and given the name of John, meaning "the gracious gift of God" who, at the age of fifty years, passed on to the world another gracious gift of God known as the "Pilgrim's Progress," which has been published or partly published by the Religious Tract Society, not to mention other Societies, into 120 languages.

A few months ago my lady Churchwarden put into my hands one of the first 100,000 copies of the tercentenary edition "as John Bunyan wrote it," and my eye was at once arrested by a Bible text on the title-page: "I HAVE USED SIMILITUDES," a quotation from long-lived Hosea, in Chapter xii, 10; and the thought flashed into my mind, Why, there's your subject for the next B.-I. "Study," for if the book of Hosea is not exactly a "Pilgrim's Progress," it is yet a Prodigal Daughter's Progress with a happy ending.

"By the ministry of the prophets I have used similitudes" God said when He was using Hosea, whose name significantly enough means Salvation.

In the Hebrew it is the same as Joshua's original name and that of the last Palestinian King of the "Ten Tribes," known to us as Hoshea. And not one of these three Hoseas can reasonably be said to have been of the tribe of Judah. Most certainly Hosea, the prophet of the Northern Kingdom, traditionally declared to have been of the tribe of Issachar, belonged to that Kingdom, though he may have been in Judæa when God first spoke to him; but there are some Commentators of repute (e.g., Wellhausen and G. A. Smith) who tell us that the dozen or more references to Judah in his writings are interpolations by an editor who felt the exclusive references of Hosea to the Northern Kingdom unsatisfactory.

Certainly the first three chapters, which form a sort of first book of Hosea in themselves, do seem somewhat mixed up, nevertheless they can be interpreted as we have them, and though as the experts also tell us, that "the text of Hosea is one of the most corrupt in the Old Testament, the number of passages which defy interpretation being extremely large," yet is the prophet's concluding thought intimated to us in these words: "A man who desires wisdom will study such things as these that are found in Hosea's prophecy."

For Hosea, "the Jeremiah of the Northern Kingdom," as Dean Stanley once termed him, being also "one of us"—a typical Israelite, complex, resolute and religious—and his book being almost wholly about us and our ancestors, cannot therefore be studied too much and too often by those of us who would be among the wise and sagacious.

SOME SIMILITUDES.

Now, the outstanding and most suggestive similitude or comparison God uses appears in the second verse of Hosea's prophecy, where the distasteful word "Whoredom" is used as a synonym for gross idolatry, the worship of idols being regarded as spiritual adultery, or unfaithfulness on the part of the Bride-Nation of Israel to her Heavenly Spouse, Jehovah.

And the similitude is apropos, for just as the breach of the tenth Commandment leads to a breach of the eighth Commandment, so a breach of the second much more surely, owing to unclean diabolical influences, leads to a breach of the seventh Commandment. And therefore the use of the word "jealous" in the second Commandment is APROPOS too. But of course the use of the term whoredom in Hosea, and even the word jealous in the second Commandment, is used figuratively. When therefore the young prophet, Hosea, was divinely directed to go and marry a wife of the kingdom and children of whoredom, he doubtless went to the respectable house of a fellow Israelite, Diblâim by name, and arranged to marry his maiden daughter, whose name, Gomer, let it be at once understood, is not an Asiatic or a Semitic but European cognomen, originally borne by the eldest son of Japheth. Bishop Titcomb, who found out for himself after years of close investigation that the British were really racial Israel, makes a good point of this in his twenty-sixth letter in "The Anglo-Israel Post-bag," and adds among other things that the similitude "Gomer" meant that, in God's good time, the Mother-Nation of Israel which Gomer was to symbolize would lose its Semitic nationality and be found as European. Which is certainly a good reason for God's choice of the name Gomer; but another is, that God foresaw that the great non-Hebrew nations like Egypt, Assyria and Greece, would employ and establish, by phonetic changes, the name of the founder of Israel's chief non-Davidic dynasty, whom we call 'Omri, but which, because the initial Hebrew letter had then a guttural sound, his subjects, the Beth-'Omri, would pronounce as Ghomri, and the nations write of as Gomer, 'Omri's subjects and their descendants being variously Gomerians, Gimura, Ghumri, Khumri and Cymru (pronounced Koomree) which the Welsh rightly and properly call themselves to-day. Now the typical Gomer's first child was significantly called "Jezreel, prophetic both of judgment and mercy," wrote Bishop Wordsworth in his commentary, "of judgment, because it means 'God will scatter,' and thus foreshadowed the dispersal of Israel; of mercy, because it also means 'God will sow,' and pre-announces that the dispersal of Israel would be a dissemination and a sowing of themselves in mercy, and also a sowing of God's truth in all lands."

"God will make to grow the people whom God will sow" is how the Speaker's Commentary prettily puts it.

Gomer's subsequent children were a girl and a boy, the girl being divinely called Lo-ruhamah, which literally means "not-compassionated or pitied," the boy, Lo-ammi, meaning "not My people," that is for the time being, for in the mercy of God, "Lo" the negative particle, should ultimately be excised, and the children of Gomer, Mother Israel's female descendants, should at length be Ruhamah, "compassionated," and her male offspring, Ammi, "My People."

"Observe the climax in the names," Dr. Cheyne wrote: "'Jezreel' announces the judgment: 'Lo-Ruhamah,' the withdrawal of Jehovah's affection: 'Lo-Ammi,' the treatment of Israel as a foreign people."

It is at the ninth verse of Chapter i that, with dramatic suddenness, the door of hope is banged to against Gomer and her offspring; but, as if to take away all excuse for the blindness of future commentators and preachers who might declare it to be barred and bolted as well, the narrative is interrupted by a gracious prophecy which some day will be completely fulfilled.

Yet (when the Saviour-judgment or ameliorative discipline has done its beneficent work) Israel of the Ten Tribes shall be multitudinous as the sands and be recognized as "the sons of the living God"—Christians of course, for what else can it mean?—and eventually the Judahites or Jews will join them under the same Prince (possibly David by name) in their representative return from the land of their long exile to the land of their fathers, and "great shall be the day of Jezreel," that is the House of Israel which we believe and claim shall be Great Britain when God has made her "mightier yet."

"Truly God IS LOVING UNTO GOMER—Jezreel, Israel."

HOSEA'S "FIRST BOOK."

Just now I used the word dramatic, and I think it is justifiable, for really the three opening chapters of Hosea seem to be three Acts in a Drama, with two long intervals.

During the interval between the first and second Act we must understand that Gomer, representing the whoredom nation, has crowned her unfaithfulness to her loving husband by becoming somebody's slave-concubine, and also to have been divorced by Hosea, who yet remains the woman's "friend," ready to show undying love when opportunity serves, to his "desolate wife of youth"—a wife no longer, but still beloved by one who is husband no longer, though still a friend, all this being symbolical, as shown, of the God of Israel's dealings with His idolatrous nation; for His loving-kindness is such that when disciplinary trials somewhere out of Palestine have brought her to her senses and re-awakened her desire for betterment, she will find a "door of hope" in the "valley of troubling," and on returning to her Divine Spouse shall call Him "Ishi, my husband," who will eventually re-engage or re-betroth her unto Himself in faithfulness or "by faith" as Margoliuth suggests, and Heaven and the Israel earth shall answer to each other's calls.

So, in Chapter iii, which most B.-I.'s interpret, for good reasons, as referring to a second wife, but which practically all our learned commentators, for better reasons, I think, interpret as referring to the same woman, Gomer, we have not only a re-betrothal but, after many years of waiting, a re-marriage of the divorced wife, though Hosea finds her in such a destitute, slavish condition that he has to redeem her and to bring salvation to her as his name suggests, in fact, as the sequel shows, to save her from continuing in sin.

Now, the Bible translation at the beginning of the third Chapter is rather confusing, and various commentaries should certainly be consulted by those who cannot read the original. The translation I recommend is Fenton's, which like other translations gives this meaning: "Go yet (that is again, as in Zech. xi, 15) pointing back to a foregoing story that was interrupted at Hosea i, 9, love a woman, or rather, give thyself to the love of a woman although an adulteress, still loved of her old friend who was once her husband, love her as she is," may be said to be the command of the Lord to the prophet. And so he went and demonstrated his love by sacrifice, in providing first, enough money and rations to last her for many days, and second, in keeping her in safe seclusion, and himself from marital relations during those "many days" of testing and salutary discipline. How long these were we are shown later.

The interpretation of this similitude is at once shown at the end of Chapter iii, when we are told that the same "children of Israel," referred to at the end of Chapter i, shall abide many days—here I embody various versions—"without king, and without prince or leader, without sacrifice, without altar, idol, pillar, or a Capital, without a priesthood or an ephod, and without teraphim or manifestations." Which I suppose simply means, that in their slavish condition and subsequent tribal separations, they, AS A WHOLE, would necessarily have to be without Royalty and Ten-Tribed leadership as well as the old heathen worship and its accessories to which they had accustomed themselves.

And this, in truth, was the case for many century-days of the House of Israel. But it was no longer so when these "children of Israel" turned from idols to serve the living God in these "latter days" of the Christian dispensation, enjoying the goodness of the Lord under the Davidic dynasty which their fathers forsook in the Revolution of 975 B.C.

I cannot now multiply arguments to prove that this interpretation is the right one, but having carefully weighed all the arguments on both sides, I think, even from a B.-I. point of view, it is much better exegesis to have the outcast, the divorced and desolate Gomer of Europe redeemed, re-married and reinstated, rather than leave her to her fate and, at the same time, ignore the fact that she was divinely chosen to be a prophetic similitude of what the All-loving Father in Heaven would, and will yet do, for His national spouse, the Mother-Nation of Israel.

For, since the Divine Husband of the unfaithful mother-Israel had declared in Chapter ii that He would betroth her again, naturally Hosea would be called upon to do the same with the typical Gomer who, after a long interval of time, comes once more upon the scene in Chapter iii.

As Bishop Allen, when speaking on this subject at the Kensington Congress, declared: "God is going to take that divorced woman back"; and, thank God, He has done so or there might have been no "England's green and pleasant land" for Gomer to live in. And such exegesis, although the authors of our Handbook did not favour it, is an impregnable argument against many ministerial opponents who, following each other, teach that the Israel Bride has been finally rejected by the God of Israel, and that a Gentile-Church Bride has been chosen instead.

With great skill Archdeacon Hanan and Dr. Aldersmith, in Chapter iv of the Handbook, show that the Galatians were Gentilized Ephraim-Israel who once "were under the law" but had been redeemed from its curse. Then they add that the Galatians were part of the "outcast or divorced House of Israel," and that the quotation in Galatians iv, 27, from Isaiah liv, proves that the "desolate wife of youth" is no other than the outcast "House of Israel," and that the national redemption of this House was effected by the death of the Lord Jesus.

With this I cordially agree; but the logical conclusion, to my mind, is that the divorced House of Israel was redeemed by the Divine Spouse in order that He might re-marry her. And that, I strongly urge, is what Hosea wishes to teach us by writing of Gomer in his third as well as in his first chapter. The unnecessary introduction of a second woman (and she was an adulteress beloved by her paramour) whom Hosea, by divine command, was to steal away for himself is, in my opinion, alike derogatory to God as well as to our B.-I. claim.

OBJECTIONS CONSIDERED.

Now let me anticipate two possible objections against applying the whole of Hosea iii to Ephraim-Israel.

Of course I know that there was always to be an Israel Kingdom in the earth overruled by a descendant of David; but this was fully secured all through the turbulent centuries by the pioneering sea-faring Danites who had colonized Ulster, joined by Zedekiah's daughter, the Princess Royal—all of whom, in a wonderful providence, escaped captivity, passing on and down the Seed Royal and the Seed Racial which, together in unity, was to last as long as the sun and moon endure. Therefore the Unity exists to-day. Wherefore we British-Israelites praise the God from whom all our blessings flow.

And of course, too, I am aware that, according to the old world custom, the Deity was supposed to be married to any nation which worshipped Him, and that the inhabitants were frequently known and named as God's SONS. Even the land could be married, as Isaiah lxii shows, in that the land of Israel should be called Beulah, which means married. And so it is not surprising to find that Ezekiel, alike in Chapters xvi and xxiii, personifies the Twelve-Tribed nation as the mother of two daughters, Samaria and Jerusalem, both of whom were adulterous in the mystical sense.

But the similitude in the Ephraim-book of Hosea probably applies to Ephraim-Israel only; and for this cogent reason that Ephraim-Israel, unlike Judah, was not only to be mystically disowned, and divorced from her Divine Spouse, but to be redeemed, re-betrothed and re-married, the mystical union bringing reflex blessings alike on Judah-Israel and the world at large.

Therefore again, I affirm, the typical woman of Chapter iii is the same as in Chapter i, and is indicative of the glory that the Divine Spouse would effect in and through her.

GOMER'S FUTURE.

How terribly she had departed from her heavenly Husband is shown in Ezekiel xvi, yet He would remember the Covenant made with her in the days of her national youth. Now, what the Bridegroom's coming would do for Gomer is shown very forcibly in Isaiah liv—the chapter already alluded to, which, rightly understood, is also a message to our Gomer or Israel nation:—

"Sing, O barren, desolate wife, spread abroad in all directions, forget the name and reproach of thy youth and widowhood, thy Maker is thine Husband, The Holy One of Israel is thy Redeemer."

"For the Lord hath called thee as a wife forsaken—even a wife of youth when she is cast off. For a small moment have I forsaken thee. I hid My face from thee for a moment, but with everlasting kindness will I have mercy on thee, saith the Lord thy Redeemer."

Then follow the promise and prophecy of national blessings, heaps upon heaps, which shall be the heritage of Gomer after being bought back by the advent of the Bridegroom when, as Isaiah lxii shows, Gomer should become "Hephzi-bah" (my delight is in her), for as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride of his choice, so should God rejoice over His Israel bride.

Now, when the Redeemer came, He called Himself the Bridegroom, and His forerunner described himself as the "friend" of the Bridegroom, whose privileged work was getting ready, as a bride adorned for her husband, the racial representatives of the discovenanted, lost bride of the House of Israel whom her ancient Bridegroom, Whose love could never die, was coming to seek and to save, to redeem and restore, to re-marry and reinstate; and all this is plainly foreshown in the suggestive story of Gomer in Hosea i and resumed in Hosea iii.

Will therefore those who hitherto have been led to think otherwise, carefully weigh the strength of my contention and its reasonableness?

HOSEA'S "THIRD DAY."

But though the redemption of Gomer, the Israel bride, was an absolute certainty when the Lord God of Israel originally thought or purposed it, as the aged Zacharias seems to hint to us by using the prophetic past or completed tenses in the Benedictus, yet what was divinely purposed had to be wrought out in time, and the time was when He came to earth to seek and to save her, emptying Himself of His riches in glory to redeem her.

Moreover, the fact that He was raised on the third day after His supreme act of love was surely a proof that His bride's redemption was gloriously effected.

But her restoration had to be wrought out in time too, and that also was not to be until "the third day," as is Hosea's similitude for the third thousandth year from her downfall. Hosea, after his third Chapter, I know, drops the mother-Israel name of Gomer, meaning completeness, and uses instead, when writing very many years later, the name of Ephraim, and this about forty times, mostly indicating thereby, like the cognomen Gomer, Ten-Tribed Israel, which is just as suggestive.

For, as the early tribes of the Saxon Octarchy were called

Digitized by Google

English after the leading tribe, the Angles, so was the Israel Decarchy, after the leading tribe, often referred to as Ephraim, around whom, when in Christ, the tribes of Israel would, as prophesied, find their "fullness" or "completion" in a commonwealth of kindred nations.

Thus we may take it that the mother-nation, whether called Gomer or Ephraim, having been redeemed, was to return and be restored on the third day of her long career.

This is so well worked out and explained by Dr. Thomas in his valuable book, "The Restoration of Israel," and so convincingly applied by P. W. Thompson, M.A., in "Israel in Prophecy and History," that I need say little more than what Hosea, "one of us," intimated :—

"After two days He will revive us :
In the third day He will raise us up and we shall live in His sight." (vi, 2.)

On which passage the Speaker's Commentary remarks that it must have been the Holy Spirit Who "suggested the designation of time."

"Torn" and "smitten" during 2,000 years of discipline and training, but the third thousand years would witness the Israel bride's resurrection to national life, even as the third literal day witnessed the resurrection of her blessed Redeemer to His Kingship.

Reckoning from the Captivity era of Israel in the seventh century B.C., her second thousand year-day would begin in the third century A.D., and the resuscitation, third thousand year-day period in which we now are, would begin in the thirteenth century, in an era starting in the year 1198 and ending in 1325—the year Wycliffe was born to be one of the foremost upholders of our national independence and of Bible truth.

It is in the thirteenth century when, according to Macaulay, "We must seek for the origin of our freedom, our prosperity and our glory," and when, as Hume words it, "Not only were the foundations laid, but much of the superstructure was reared of those liberties which are still the glory and the safety of the English Nation."

Historical Facts.

Now consider a few historical facts. King John began his reign in 1199, and, like James II, seems to have been destined to be, what Mr. Thompson terms, "a negative blessing" to the nation. For just as the misdeeds of James II resulted in the "Bill of Rights" of 1689, so did the folly of John issue in Magna Charta, in 1215.

By the way, I think I am right in saying that these two were the only English Sovereigns whose Coronation was not consummated by the New Covenant Feast.

In 1216, Henry III came to the throne, and his reign of fifty-six years was a marked epoch, alike for England and for Westminster Abbey.

Priding himself on his descent from Alfred through Matilda, "the heiress of the right Royal race of England," he was the first really English King, and his sons were the first of the English Princes who were called by Anglo-Saxon names.

His firstborn, born at Westminster, received his name from the Anglo-Saxon Patron of Westminster; and the name Edward, you will all agree, is still borne with distinction by a Prince among his descendants. Well, Henry III, like Edward the Confessor before him, built or rebuilt Westminster Abbey as a Royal gift, and, as he was determined that this new church should be incomparable for beauty, he started a new epoch in English architecture; and the result is still before our eyes.

Now for some more important dates.

In 1217, the hope of Louis of France of becoming King of England was finally frustrated in the English naval victory at Sandwich. In 1265, there was the first regular "Parliament," followed thirty years afterward by the first complete representative Parliament. In November, 1272, Henry III's body, minus its heart, was interred at Westminster, and Edward, his eldest son, was crowned there on his return from abroad, August, 1274.

Without doubt he was the best King since William of Normandy conquered Harold, who loved and was loved, and served his people with a high sense of duty.

In 1283, Wales was permanently united to England; in other words, the Khumri, Gomri or Gomer people of Wales became nationally interlinked with the Saxons or Isaac's sons of the Gomer Israelites of England, the Princes of Wales henceforward being eldest sons of the King of England.

In 1296, the unity of Scotland was begun, and Edward I transferred Jacob's Pillar-Stone—the Patriarchal title-deed to the Holy Land—from Scone to Westminster. On it, at Dunbar, Edward himself was crowned as King of the Scots; and over it everyone of his twenty-nine successors have sat, including Mary Tudor, but not Cromwell. And, if all goes well, as please God it will, Edward I's thirtieth Royal successor to be crowned over it will be, officially, Edward VIII, or maybe David the First.

Having this panorama of English History freshly before our minds when, as Macaulay states, the great English people was formed as well as their language, when our fathers became islanders in their politics, feelings and manners, when our sailors made the flag of England terrible in the seas, when our great national seats of learning were formed and the first dawn of our noble literature appeared, can we reasonably doubt that Hosea's "third day" was then beginning, and that the Divine Spouse was once more taking His National Israel bride to His heart, accompanying her and leading her on to her destiny as His Helpmeet, in bringing back the whole family of mankind to sanity and to God?

Surely those of us who know ourselves to be God's racial people Israel, and who therefore the better appreciate our Old Testament Prophets, having had our inner eyes open to see that their prophecies, all through the centuries, have been and are now, through the decades, being translated into veritable happenings, have grander ideas of the Bible and of the God of the Bible than any other school of thought; and therefore with the oil of readiness for use, in season and out of season, though always humbly and tactfully, we must endeavour to be Israel-"lights" indeed, amid the increasing mental and spiritual darkness and the consequent slumbering and sleeping that the Master forewarned us would precede His appearing, and herald the glorious "day for which Creation and all its tribes were made."

In conclusion, may I strongly urge all conscious B.-I.'s to read and re-read, study and master Hosea's short book of Israel-British History written beforehand—their own special book, most certainly written by one of themselves—always remembering that it teaches by similitudes and, learning its great concluding lesson that, whatever happens, the ways of the Lord of guiding, guarding and governing His people Israel are right, and that the just—nations or individuals—that keep to them, shall never fall therein.

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

THE REV. W. H. STUART-FOX, M.A.

MY brethren, fellow Bible students. The great conviction that has come to me in this British-Israel teaching is that you cannot get away from the Truth; if you won't have the Truth, the Truth will have you. Now during last week I was ministering and doing a little for the Cause of the Kingdom in Lancashire, and I was struck with the extraordinary enthusiasm for this Truth in that county. It is not only deeply rooted in our cities and towns, but it has penetrated into our villages and outlying hamlets. It is leaping over the seas, and it has swept through our Dominions, and our great sister nation of America —as witness these grea stalwarts in scholarship and devotion and enthusiasm who are with us here to-day. Now this is the fact that I want to bring home to you, that, whatever barrier, whether it is of the devil, or of man, that is raised against this teaching, is ultimately bound to fall, because this is of God. It is Truth, and because it is Truth, it is binding, it is penetrating, and it will blow into smithereens, not only the lies of the devil, but the theories and the speculations of man. If only there be an open mind, and an honest and receptive heart, there is not one person need go away unconverted, unconvinced of this Truth. Down yonder in Scotland Yard they have books of the finger-prints of criminals. No two are alike. Let a criminal duplicate his crime, and he is sure to be found out. The prophecies of God's finger-prints are duplicated in history. You put the two together, and you have an infallible proof of identity.

I was standing on the docks recently at Liverpool with Mr. Steele, the energetic Secretary of our British-Israel Branch there, and we were watching the loading of one of our outgoing liners with the luggage of the passengers. It was a fascinating sight. There was a kind of carrier on which the luggage was placed, and carried over into the ship, and was caught by the deft hand of a porter as it dropped, and carried away to the several cabins. And it just set me thinking something like this. God has a rich cargo of precious truth He wants to store away in the vessels of our mind. Every prophecy chest is packed with historic truth. All we have to do is to present to God the carrier of an open mind, and God will lay upon it His prophetic truths, and we must fit them into their place in His prophetic plan. And there is not one, who is not a British-Israelite, who would fail to be convinced if only they accepted the Word of God as He presents it to them.

THE REV. CANON C. J. HOLLIS, M.A.

It has been a tremendous delight to listen to these stalwarts and experts who have preceded me, and a very great encouragement to me, and, I am quite sure, to those who will follow. I fully agree with the last speaker, and with Dr. McConnell, that what we long to see is a great access and increase in its ranks of the ministers and clergy of the Church of Christ. I was preaching at a church near to Worthing, and quite unexpectedly the Vicar of the church said to me, "I have been looking into this British-Israel teaching, and I think there is a great deal in it, and I am practically persuaded of its truth, and I want to have a meeting as soon as I can." I believe he has been asking Mr. Goard and Mr. Garrison to come and testify in his parish.

Now this is a day of unlimited pretensions, and unabashed worldliness, and forsaken ideals, and forgotten pledges, and forfeited promises, and sub-conscious fears. And if I were not a British-Israelite, I should be a pessimist; but I feel that we have a priceless possession, a store-house, a safeguard, and a stronghold in the Book. There we have God's law, God's love, God's revelation, God's message, God's prophecy; and I find there is one thing that strengthens my belief in this Truth—I find that British-Israelites stand on the Book, stand by the Book, and stand for the Book. We stand for the Book as a people and as a nation. It puts them in a very special place in the history of the world, and gives them a very special work to do for God. Now what I want to say is this—that the Book needs re-discovery, re-finding, and obeying. We find, on the one hand, Modernist claims. Some of you must have been aghast at the amazing utterance of some of the members of that Modernist Conference in Cambridge the other day; one man—and characteristically he was only ordained to the ministry a few months ago—dared to say that we needed to have the courage to create a new Bible, a Bible from which certain parts of the present cherished, venerated, inspired Word of God should be discounted. He would allow us to retain, as being beautiful and suggestive, certain parts; and then he capped the whole by saying, "Then we should bring in selected passages from the books of other religions." They told us a few months ago that we ought to have a new Bible; but now we are to have an adulterated Bible! We stand on the Book, the Word of God.

Also we stand for the Book as against Roman and ecclesiastical Roman claims, which bring in another authority ostensibly side by side with the Book, the teaching of the fathers of the Church, who assume a greater position of authority than the Book itself. We want to get back to the Book, to study and believe it, to proclaim the teaching of the Book, not only as to the salvation of souls, but as to the purpose which God had in view in calling out this special people for a special work of witness to the world. And we want to get back to the old paths, and not to new ones. We want to get inside the Book, and not outside it.

When selecting a text for a sermon a short time ago, I chose one, and then remembered that I had preached on that same text the previous year. But I decided to preach on the same text again because I realized that it needed tenfold more emphasis than it did the year before. "And Hilkiah the high priest said unto Shaphan the scribe, I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord." You remember that the priest took it to King Josiah, and said, "I have found the book of the law," and he read it to the king. And the king said, "But we have not done it. We have not kept this law. What shall we do?" Then he said, "Summon the people." And he had a great concourse of people, rich and poor, young and old, and the king read in the ears of the people, and he said, "We must do it." And they stood in covenant to the Book, and then the king said, "We must sweep away the idols," and they swept them away. That was getting back to the Book. It was the same in Edward the Sixth's time. What was the Reformation? It was the same story over again—a getting back to the Book. You know what kind of services we had in the Church then. It was the priest, and the Mass, and the chancel, and the Latin tongue, and the hours of service which the people could not possibly attend. And then came the Reformation; and the people got back to the Bible, and the minister, and the Lord's Table, and the nave of the church where the people were, as well as the chancel where the priests used to be, and there were the services, morning and evening, held at times when the people could attend them. They got back to the Book. That is what we want—to get back to the Book. And that I believe is at the back of the twofold rejection of the Deposited Book by the House of Commons—that God wants us to get back to the Book. He does not want us to whittle away His Book until at last there is hardly a vestige of it contained in the service books of our Church. We have been getting away from the Book. That is one of the things that you will find to be your comfort in this Truth, that it will help you to get back to the Book, and then you will see what is God's will for this British-Israel people. This is our mission—to tell the world of the Gospel of Salvation through Jesus Christ, and of the Gospel of the Kingdom, that we may keep His laws.

THE REV. DR. J. MOUNTAIN.

It is a great pleasure to me to address this grand meeting. And as I look upon your happy faces, indicative of a surpassing intelligence and courage and devotion for the service of the Lord Jesus Christ, I feel that nobody can estimate tne spiritual power and influence that may go forth to the ends of the earth, if only each one of us will consecrate himself and herself entirely to the Lord Jesus Christ. All through the Bible from Genesis to Revelation there is one grand theme—the Messiah, and His Chosen People Israel; and I thank God that forty years ago I was led to make the full surrender to the power of the Truth of Israel that has been brought before us in the meeting to-day. I have been giving my testimony off and on in various parts ever since those forty years began, and if I could broadcast my voice at the close of this day I would utter this invitation to the extreme ends of our Commonwealth, and say, "Come and hear, all ye that fear God, and I will tell you what He hath done for my soul through the British-Israel Truth." It has been to me an untold blessing, though it has brought to me ridicule and sneers and jeers, and though it has closed many a door to usefulness, much to my regret. Prejudice, abuse, and higher criticism are very active at the present time. But let us have patience with one another. Let us exercise charity towards each other. Let us pray, and I have not the faintest doubt but that victory will crown the work in which we are engaged. As I understood, when the invitation was sent to me to address this meeting for about ten minutes, I was requested to speak to you on what the British-Israel Truth has done for me. In other words, how has British-Israel affected my life? Well, I could give you several facts which, I daresay, might be interesting, but you cannot say much in ten minutes; I could speak to you for an hour on the subject, and then begin all over again! However, I will mention just two things that British-Israel has done for me. I thank God it has strengthened and perfected my faith in the Bible as the Word of God, its full inspiration, its absolute integrity, its Divine authority. In the early days of my ministry, I am sorry to say, I began to suffer from an attack of German Rationalism. I got into Doubting Castle, and I remained in that Doubting Castle for a considerable time. I often feel very thankful to my Heavenly Father that He did not permit me to lead others astray. He laid me aside by a serious illness for three years and three months, and I never preached a sermon during that time. Do you know why? God was saying to me, "My child, I have silenced you that you may sit at My feet, and learn the Truth about which you are now hesitating." And I thank God for the silence, as I thank Him that ever He set me apart for this great work. I was living at that time on the Continent, where I lived for about three years, and when I began to recover from my illness, I thought, I have heard a great deal about Heidelberg University, about its learned men, and the Rationalism taught there, and, with the permission of my devoted wife, I decided to spend six months at Heidelberg University. I determined that I would see for myself the effect of their teaching upon their students, and I determined also that I would sit at the feet of the professors, and hear what they had to say. I was acquainted with German, and had been for some time, and so I gave myself over for six months absolutely to the study of Rationalism as it was taught at the Heidelberg University. Well, when I left I had the pleasure of telling the chief Theological Professor there that I was leaving the University much more Evangelical than I was when I came. Do you know what it was that cured me completely? It was British-Israel. For seventeen years I had been off and on studying it, and wherever I had gone on my tour round the world during seven years I had met with devoted men and women who believed in the British-Israel Truth, and at length, by the study of Bishop Titcomb's book and Mr. Aldersmith's book, I was led straight to the foundation—the Bible, and I surrendered completely; and that was the death of my higher criticism and my incipient Modernism. I have been for some time a member of various Bible Unions for the defence of the Bible. There is the Bible League. There is the Wesleyan Bible Union. There is the Bible Witness League. All these Unions, and others I might mention, are doing a splendid work for the Bible; but if you ask me what is the most efficient and the most effective defence of the Bible, I would say it is to be found on this platform, it is in this Federation. We stand upon the Bible, the whole Bible, and nothing but the Bible. We stand upon the great Apostles' Creed, and the Nicene Creed, and all the great fundamentals of the Christian faith. And if any of you have had any hesitation about receiving to your hearts and your intellects the teaching of these meetings, permit me to assure you that if you follow our example the Bible will become stronger, more virile, more powerful in your life, and you will say, as I say, in the second place, that this British-Israel Truth has given me, not only a stronger Bible, but it has given to me an illuminated edition of the Bible. The Bible is lit up to me now as it never had been before. I neither understood parts of its history, nor parts of its prophecy. I never could understand how Judah did not mean Judah, and Israel did not mean Israel, but that they both meant the Church in some period of its existence, and I came at last to see what the great Bishop Ryle saw, that Judah means Judah, and Israel means Israel, and that Zion means Zion, and Jerusalem means Jerusalem.

I passed through an experience very similar to that of a Dutch minister who attended the great Oxford Conference in 1874. That was a marvellous Conference. I daresay there are some ladies and gentlemen here to-day whose hearts warm as I mention the very name. For ten days clergy and ministers and prominent laymen assembled together at Oxford to wait upon God in prayer, and to study the grand old Book. Now this Dutch minister was suffering from German measles—higher criticism. And somehow or other he was invited to that Conference, and the Lord spoke to him day by day. And when the last day came, the day of testimony, he stood up and said, " I go to my Church and my people with an illuminated edition of the Bible." And then twelve months afterwards I was Secretary of a Committee in London for another Conference, and we invited this gentleman, and Pastor Monod of Paris, to be two of the speakers. I sat beside this Dutch gentleman while he told us what he did when he arrived at his home from the Oxford Conference. This is what he said, " When I got home, after greeting my wife and four boys, I went into my study, I shut the door behind me and locked it, and then I went to all my drawers and shelves and other places where my old sermons and essays were, and I gathered them all together, and I put them into the grate, and I set them on fire. My word, they did burn, for they were so dry. The only heat that ever came from those sermons was that which went up the chimney." Well, something of that experience was mine. I had to put aside a great many of my old sermons. I should call them cold porridge now. Well, they are gone, but I remain—a new man, with new light, new love, new grace, a new knowledge of this grand old Book, and in my 86th year I have definitely dedicated myself, with whatever energy God may favour me, whether I live long, or whether my career be short, it shall be laid upon that one altar of God and His Truth, Jesus Christ and Him crucified, and His Chosen People, represented by the great Commonwealth of Great Britain.

THE REV. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON.

My dear brethren of the clergy, brothers and sisters of the laity, and fellow British-Israelites. I begin now a new period of my life's history. The other day I was talking with the Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, and I said to him, " Well, I had twenty-six years at home, and I have now had twenty-six years in the Mission Field," and he replied, " And now you are going to begin another twenty-six years ! " Well, as I look upon the great stalwarts behind me, it is quite easy to imagine, if it is God's will, that I may have another twenty-six years, if not more, in the British-Israel Truth. I speak as a minister of the Church of England, and I think the position of the ministers of the Church of England to-day is a most unenviable one. As we are gathered here to-day I suppose the battle royal has commenced between the two great menaces of the present day—Mediævalism and Modernism, and they are going at one another as hard as they can go—Mediævalism and Modernism. The minister of the Church of England to-day has to try and steer the vessel of his personality between these two great menaces, and the safest way of achieving that desirable object, to my mind, is to take on board a British-Israel pilot. " B " and " I " are the two first letters of the word " Bible," and they stand for " Bible Inspiration " ; and that is what the British-Israel Truth does stand for.

A little over twenty-six years ago, when I was in a Theological College here in London, it fell to my lot to write an essay on Higher Criticism, and I got the name at college of the man who smashed up the Higher Critics. When I left college, before I started out for Ceylon, I had the great privilege of sitting at the feet of that prince of expositors, also from America, Dr. A. T. Pierson, and the memory of those three days' Bible Readings which he gave has been with me all those twenty-six years. He took a passage, and you will understand how exactly it fits in with the present day, " For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye witnesses of His majesty." And when he began his first address he referred to a verse in the same chapter. There are two pillars of the temple of truth, which for the last fifty years modern intellectual Samsons have laid unholy hands upon, and are endeavouring to pull down, wilfully forgetting, in so doing, that they are bringing down the whole temple of truth. Those two pillars are the Word of God written and the Word of God incarnate, the two are inextricably bound up together, so that if one falls the other falls. And in that memorable passage in St. Peter you will find how they are inextricably bound up together. For twenty-six years I have been trying to preach that Gospel message in three or four languages in India. Canon Hollis just now spoke of that Modernist gathering at Cambridge, and of the young man suggesting the incorporating into the Bible of some quotations from the old religions. I might tell you of people away in India bringing together whole libraries of books dealing with their particular faith, and burning them, and taking up the Word of God because it had become to them the Light that shines in the darkness, or, as St. Peter says, a " Light shining in a dark place."

When I was quite a boy I studied with increasing interest the Word of prophecy, and I remember spending a fortnight away up in the hills of Derbyshire with that great exponent of prophecy, Dr. Grattan Guinness, and I remember reading with tremendous enthusiasm his " Divine Programme of World History," and it seemed to me a wonderful thing that in the Word of God there had been written down God's plan for the ages. And as I read on, and read of the history of Assyria and Persia and Greece and Rome, I said to myself—for I was a little Britisher—"Well, but where does the British Empire come in? Surely it is the biggest Empire that the world has ever seen." And I began to wonder whether I should find it some day. Then I went out to Ceylon, and I had not been in Ceylon very many months before I was brought into touch with British-Israel Truth, and I said, "Here is what I have been looking for; this is God's plan for the British Empire." And then I got into touch with my friend, Commander Roberts, and corresponded with him, and joined the Imperial British-Israel Association, and took in "The Covenant People," and I came home in 1910; and I remember meeting with the stalwarts of those days in a little tiny meeting in the Caxton Hall. Then I returned to Ceylon, and came home again in 1920, and was drawn into the great British-Israel-World Federation Movement, and attended great meetings then. And now I can say with St. Paul, "I come to you for the third time." As I look upon this great meeting, and think of those little gatherings, I am constrained to say, "What hath God wrought." Oh, great things have happened in those twenty-six years. Wonderful things in the history of the world, wonderful things in the history of the British Empire, and one of the greatest events which has happened in the history of the world in our time may be summed up in the words, "Jerusalem, 1917." I was out then in Ceylon reading the history of the War, and trying to do my little bit away there on the confines of Empire, and watching the career of the different armies, and particularly watching the work in Palestine, knowing that that was the year that Dr. Guinness had pointed out as being one of the greatest years in the history of Jerusalem, and knowing that it was to be the year when Jerusalem was to pass out of the hands of the Turks. I had the privilege of preaching sermons, and I pointed out to a C.M.S. Conference when the armies of Britain were entering Jerusalem, "They are entering upon the Promised Land, not only of Palestine, but the whole of the Promised Land from the River Nile to the River Euphrates." I suggested to them that the Race which was entering upon the possession of Palestine must be God's Israel. Near about that time when Allenby entered Jerusalem there was a great gathering here in St. Paul's Cathedral, and there were present our King, many rulers in high places, and representatives of the Army and Navy, and they sang words of wonderful prophetic import:

"Mine eyes hath seen the Coming of the Glory of the Lord,
He is tramping out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored,
He hath loosed the fatal lightning of His terrible swift sword.
His truth is marching on."

The words of the Bible. And thinking of it over and over again, I have drawn the attention of people to this wonderful fact of history. Nineteen hundred years ago outside Jerusalem three crosses were silhouetted against the sky; and on the centre Cross there hung the Son of man, and darkness was upon the world, and the enemies of Christ thought that all was over. Nineteen hundred years passed away, and to-day there flies over Jerusalem that flag, the banner of the greatest Empire that the world has ever seen, and that flag is the banner of the Cross; and these men of intellect are saying to-day that Jesus Christ has had His day, and it is done! No. There are two facts of history which are inextricably bound up, the Word of God written and the Word of God incarnate, and this is what St. Peter said, "We have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye witnesses of His majesty. For He received from God the Father honour and glory when there came such a voice to Him from the excellent glory, This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased. And this voice which came from Heaven we heard, when we were with Him in the holy mount. We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts." Suppose you take that challenge of St. Peter, will you have any doubt as to whether that Word of God is inspired? Will you have any doubt as to whether He Who has come to dwell in your hearts is King of kings and Lord of lords? I would like the higher critics to take that to their hearts. We look out upon history to-day, and we listen to the song sung by the King and his people in 1917 as it comes rolling down the years, and we read the Master's words as He says, "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. Then shall they see the Son of man coming in power and great glory." Surely you and I can sing to-day, as we gather together in the presence of God:

"He is coming like the glory of the morning on the wave,
He is wisdom to the mighty, He is succour to the brave;
So the world shall be His footstool, and the soul of time His slave;

THE REV. E. J. SPRINGETT.

I am quite sure that those of us who come representing in person that great Dominion of Canada know—and you, too, realize it—that we are no longer one of the Colonies, but we are one of the great commonwealth of nations, and as one of the great commonwealth of nations of the British Empire shall soon learn to be, I trust, full of the knowledge of the fact that we are also one of the great company of nations honoured by the Eternal God.

We are supposed to testify this afternoon as to what the British-Israel Truth has meant to us and to our work. I am here also as a representative of the Church of England. With all her faults, and they have been many, the British Church is the mother of you all, and many a one will yet come in when the Church is found to be standing four-square upon the Bible, the whole Bible, and nothing but the Bible, with her doctrines illuminated by that which is the Light that lighteth every man coming into the world.

In the year 1916 I was in charge of a Church of England Mission in a small town of Manitoba, which included three other stations. I travelled Sunday by Sunday and week by week in the circuit; I used to drive forty miles in all weathers, and Mr. Goard knows what it means when the weather is a number of degrees below zero. But in the course of my work I met a man who last month passed his ninety-second birthday, and who all his life has been a stalwart exponent of British-Israel Truth. He heard me begin my ministry in his district, and before very long, calling upon him in the course of my pastoral work, I met him in his home, and he immediately asked me if I knew anything about British-Israel Truth, and I had to confess to him that I knew very little. He then gave me some copies of the old "Banner of Israel," and he put me upon the mailing list, and week by week the periodical used to come to me. Enlightenment came to me as a result of the study of God's Word afresh, and from the year 1916 I have gone on endeavouring to study, endeavouring to understand, and to realize more of this wonderful Truth as it is contained in God's Word; and enlightenment came to me through the never-failing help and inspiration of the Holy Spirit, and I have been able to go on from strength to strength in my ministry, and to give to people that for which they and the whole world is hungering—the Word of Life.

Someone has said that there are many clamorous voices shouting at us to-day and attacking us on all sides, because of the position we hold. Let me close with a simple illustration with regard to what should be our attitude towards these outside clamouring voices. There were met together in the city of Winnipeg in 1919 or 1920 the Synod of the Diocese of Rupertsland in Canada, and at that gathering there were, of course, all the clergy and lay delegates of the diocese, including some Indians who belonged to some of the Indian Missions connected with that diocese. Discussion went on during the days of the Synod. And then one of the Indian chieftains, who was there representing an Indian Mission, with his missionary, expressed a desire to address the Synod. The missionary asked the Archbishop if he might be allowed to speak. Permission was given to the old man, and this Indian chieftain came from the back of the hall to the platform, and stood to address the gathering, the missionary by his side to interpret. The sound of his voice was like that of the proverbial bull as he began to address the audience; and sentence by sentence his speech was interpreted. And what he had to say was to this effect, that he desired to thank those officials of the Church who had provided for his tribe the services of the missionary, and who had provided for them a school. Then he went on to say how many other sects had come to the Mission, endeavouring to get them to join up with them. And in a strong sentence this is how he finished, "We have heard their noise, and we have been true to our Church." Brethren of the British-Israel Movement, we shall continue to hear the voice of the clamorous parties which are attacking us, but we shall continue to remain true to our Cause, and remaining true to our Cause, we shall be sure of the ultimate triumph of that for which we stand, because we have the eternal, abiding promise of Our Lord and Master, the Captain of our salvation, Jesus Christ, the Incarnate Son of God, that no weapon that is formed against us, who are believers in His Truth, shall prosper.

THE REV. CANON C. J. HOLLIS, M.A. (Chairman).

If there should be any enquirers into British-Israel Truth here—and we very much hope that there may be some who do not know very much about it—and who may say, Well, we do understand a little more as to what it stands for, and why it came into existence, and what it is proposing to do, and what is God's message for it. Let me say that we British-Israelites—and it may sound a commonplace thing to say—believe in the Word of God from cover to cover. Then perhaps somebody will say, And so do a great many other people. I know they do, but not all religious people, not all good people. We have that in common with a great many good, religious people—we believe in the Word of God from beginning to end. I emphasize that, and I repeat it.

Next we believe in the faithfulness of God to His promises. Somebody says, You are not alone in that. There are countless numbers of people who believe that God answers prayer. Well, I would say that we believe in the faithfulness of God, with a difference, because we believe in the faithfulness of God concerning not only the prayers that we offer to Him, but we believe in the faithfulness of God in connection with His promises to nations, and we believe that far back in old times He did give certain wonderful promises to His Chosen People, and He did say that as the world went on nation after nation would crumble, and throne after throne would totter, but that His People should endure, and that they would inherit the waste places of the earth, and colonize this and that territory; that they would set the slaves free, that they would be a sea-faring people, dwelling in a place from which they would never be moved, that no weapon formed against them would prosper. We believe that when God made those promises He intended to carry them out to the letter, and we believe He has been faithful in this sense, that we of the British-Israel, the Anglo-Saxon people, are exactly filling the bill, and are exactly doing the things that He promised His people should do, and we believe in the identity of the Celto-Saxon race with Israel. Here we beg to part company with so many other good Christian people; here we stand alone on separate ground, and here we believe we have a message to the Church and to the world. We stand alone, but there is a growing number of other good people who are beginning to see the truth and the power and the inspiration and the glory and the privilege of this inheritance.

Then we believe in the twofold Gospel, we of the British-Israel persuasion. If anybody says, What is the twofold Gospel? It is the Gospel of Salvation, the Gospel of a Saviour; and the Gospel of the Kingdom, the Gospel of a King. A Gospel which tells us, not only that we are saved through the blood of Jesus Christ, but that, when saved, we are meant to keep the laws of the Kingdom. We are suffering to-day from a lack of obedience to look into and to carry out those laws. That is very briefly, and in a skeleton outline, something of what the British-Israel Truth stands for. May our faithfulness rise to meet the faithfulness of God. May we believe in our destiny, and be worthy of our trust.

THE REV. DR. LINCOLN MCCONNELL.

I am exceedingly glad that I have had the opportunity of staying these two days at this Congress, and I greatly regret that the pressure of my engagements, and the calls for my presence in Florida, my home, make it virtually impossible for me to delay sailing after to-morrow. I am a speaker at several Conventions in the States, and I cannot possibly defer my departure longer. If it had been a personal matter merely, or a matter concerning my own congregation—though I have been away for three months, and they are extremely loving folk—at the same time I might have put off my departure for another week. But before I say what I want to say, I want to express my high appreciation of the splendid spirit I have found among you beloved folk. Naturally I expected to find cordial people in England. I have known a great many of your illustrious platform and ministerial men, as well as quite a good many other public men who have come to the States in my long platform experience, and I naturally have met a great many of them. But I have been more than delighted to find that the heart and the brain and the faith of these British-Israel leaders at Headquarters are so nearly balanced that I hardly know which is the better. I have known and loved Mr. Goard for his clear vision, his logical power, his understanding of, and evident belief in, the Word of God, and the concise manner, and sweet manner, in which he presents the Truth without compromise. I had been looking forward with keen pleasure to meeting Mr. Goard. I have read Professor Odlum's splendid books, and naturally I had him classified among the senior men, and I find he fills the picture in every sense, except that he has a geniality and a sweet disposition of spirit and nature that is very delightful. It has been my observation in meeting many of the really big men of the world, that the really big folk do not have to put on much. Really great people are not afraid to lift up the blind, and to raise the curtain, and to let you see right into their simple souls, and you will admire what you do see there. I had correctly sized up Mr. Garrison, your Secretary-General, and I loved him before I met him. God Almighty has blessed the world through the long head. Those who have studied those things know that it is indicative of the general mentality, and it is an absolute index to the disposition as well. I have been delighted with the spirit of these splendid men. I have read Commander Roberts' vigorous articles again and again. And I had him as a square-shouldered military man of about forty-eight. Well, he may have lived a little longer! Therefore I am carrying home with me, if I am privileged to reach my home, most delightful impressions, and a keen sense of gratitude to God that I have been privileged to meet you good folk. You are quite nice folk. The people I like in America so much are of your stock. I do not know whether you are acquainted with it or not, but down in the Southern part of America we have a pure-blooded people of English, Scotch and Irish descent, and a great many of the words that are obsolete with you now are still in common use in those Southern mountains. And having myself descended from an old Scottish-Irish family, therefore I do not feel exactly strange among you. But I hope you will come to America, and I suspect you would have just as much to learn if you came down South in America as we do when we come over here.

I have been thinking a great deal, and naturally lately, as I have thought for many years in a cursory manner, of the marvellous providence of God in directing the affairs of our twin nations. No one can look at the British-Israel teaching without taking a long view of the plan of God for the race of man. It has been a matter of great interest to me to read British history. You have had so many kings, and we folks have to remember which did that and which did this. Therefore I do not claim to be very well versed in English history, only in just a very casual way. But I know something of your struggles. And some of us in America believe that it was the providence of God that kept the United States, our American Continent, from being colonized. It was not until this Bible was permitted to do its work that God permitted the people to successfully colonize in the United States. And God selected families who went there to found that new Republic that He had in His mind.

Now we who understand something of the American Constitutional law know this, that there are three great ideas underlying our Constitution. I was asked by several Bar Associations a few years ago to address them on something appertaining to the Constitution, and I chose for my subject, "Back of the Constitution." A good many people wondered why our fathers could get together and in a few weeks and months formulate doctrines that the greatest economists of England, and that means of the world, describe as one of the greatest documents from the hand of uninspired man. That has been the pronouncement of several of your greatest Englishmen in regard to that document known as the Constitution of the United States, that a people so primitive, without the background of a long Governmental history, could formulate a document like that, a structure that could be as abiding, and as well qualified as it has proved itself to be, of sustaining the weight of the gigantic United States, that has been built upon the foundation first laid for an infant nation. For when the Constitution was born there was only a population of 3 million; now there are 110 million, and it supports it to-day quite as well as it did then.

The first great cardinal principle underlying our Constitution was the belief on the part of our forefathers in a personal God, a God Who did care for men, and Who was the Father of men, a God to Whom all men had the right to approach without any intermediary. That was the concept of the forefathers in our country, and they kept that concept. If it had not been the belief in a personal God, deep down in the souls of our forefathers, our Constitution would never have had its first corner-stone. The second great cardinal principle was individualism. Our forefathers loved this land, but they left these shores for three primary reasons. First, the right to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience. These men learned this in British history. Here is another fact. They wanted their children to grow and expand as their natural abilities would enable them to expand and grow. We believe that all men have the right to liberty, and to the pursuit of happiness, and they are given the opportunity to grow and expand as their natural abilities enable and qualify them to grow and expand. Well we started with that concept. England has arrived at that concept. Everybody who understands now knows that the child born in the cabin can go as high as his abilities will enable him to go. You have done away with all the artificial limitations that used to be so offensive to the father who looked at his child and understood the hopelessness of his life's opportunities. But there was a third great concept that made a trinity of doctrine; and it was this trinity of ideas that has made America stand so unshakable, despite the storms that we have had to encounter. The third of the great concepts was democracy, not in the terms of political terminology, but a democracy that meant the reign of law. You have been developed because you had the germ of the thing back yonder in the Common Law. Our forefathers believed that the highest intelligence possessed by people would be found in the majority of that people, and, therefore, the best laws that might be evolved would be those laws that emanated from the best brains selected from all sections of the country, and that would represent the highest intelligence of the democracy. There was a complete submission to the reign of law. Where did we get that idea? We got it from the grandest nation under God's sun, the nation that was born a people under the Common Law of Almighty God, the Law of Israel. That is how it happened. A good many of our younger men do not understand our kinship, but admire and appreciate the old English Common Law, and they know the draw and the pull, and how to proceed to get their case somehow.

The reason that I refer to these things is just this. I am absolutely sure that these things are not accidental. How do you account for the fact that a certain people are found in possession of certain principles, and a certain disposition, and certain habits? How do you account for that? The intelligent man knows very well that like begets like, that effects must have causes adequate to produce them, and he must be forced to the conclusion that people of kindred ideas must have had a kindred origin. Here and there we differ in our political opinions, but there are not any two people under the shining sun that ever were as completely in heart and soul the same as the people who make the real America and the people who make the real Great Britain as you understand it. We recognize in America a tremendous menace. Each of our three great fundamental stones upon which our Republic rests, each of them are being assaulted in the most deadly manner—and yours are too. From whence comes this atheistic antagonism to the fact of God? Where does it come from? It comes from a people who cannot trace their origin to any of the Biblical races whatever. It comes from a people who ancestrally were the enemies of Almighty God. I do not want to speak offensively of anybody here who may be of German extraction. But Germany that is anti-British is of Assyria. Germany and Russia, the one political, and the other intellectual, those are the people that are assaulting the fundamental stones upon which the foundations of Great Britain and America in their grandeur rest. Some of us know whence comes all this agitation against the law of God. It is a clear-cut exposition that we see before us to-day of the fulfilment of the prophecies of Almighty God, that the very people whom God had designated and separated and consecrated to do a certain work among the children of men are doing that work, and the very people who were the enemies of the ancestors of those people are the ones who are doing their utmost to prevent the doing of the very thing that God said His people would do and must do in the days to come. I have been reading in the evening paper that one of your Bishops has said some strong things as to the chaotic condition of this time, and I would suggest that you should get that paper, and read what he says. If ever a man truly describes the condition, that man certainly does. That clear-minded, brave man dared to interpret the condition of present society in burning language in which he photographed it, without retouching the photograph. But I did wish that that man might know that there was an explanation for these things, and that the conditions were not only actual, but the cause of them were understood by people right here in London. When men leave God out, when men leave part of God's plan out, when men try to build the structure of a Church, or a great civilization, cutting out the major part of the plans of the Architect of the building, they need not complain if the building that they erect is not as beautiful and as abiding as they would have hoped it to be. God Almighty had a plan for the building of Great Britain and America, and just in proportion as we folk harmonize with God's plan will the building be erected speedily, soundly, firmly and beautifully. There is no getting away from that. And the British-Israel Movement and its teaching is nothing more nor less than the flooding of Biblical light penetrating into the dark recesses of social and political and industrial conditions in both our countries, which will be a marvellous luminant, explaining these things to the people of our twin nations, if they will only be willing to see them as such. I am not surprised that we had thirteen colonies in place of fourteen. Massachusetts had a pine tree for its emblem and a rattle-snake, and the snake had thirteen rattles on its tail, and over the head of the pine tree was a motto with thirteen letters in the word; and down beneath the rattle-snake were the words, "Don't tread on me," and there are thirteen letters there. At the time of our so-called Civil War God would not allow America to break into two nations; and the Lord saw to it that the right side won. Though we were Southerners in our heredity and location, we were Union in our sympathies. So it goes on through our history. We are not surprised that Woodrow Wilson had thirteen letters in his name. We are not surprised that the first fleet of ships engaged in the War had thirteen ships, that it took them thirteen days to get across, and that they landed on the 13th day of the month. We are not surprised that General Pershing, our Commander, had thirteen letters in his name, that he was born on the 13th of the month, and on a Friday. And that when General Pershing turned his boys loose for the first time that the American Army operated in the War, that they won their first best victory on a Friday, the 13th. And when Mr. Woodrow Wilson came over to Paris the name of the ship that carried him contained thirteen letters, and he landed on a Friday, the 13th. When Mr. Lindberg flew across he landed on the 13th. We also have our next President, Mr. Herbert Hoover, with thirteen letters in his name. I am not surprised at these things. If you good folk are not going as deeply into British-Israel Truth as you might go, then let me urge you to go as deeply as you can go. Do not allow yourselves to be repelled. It is true, and your disbelieving of it will not affect its operation; it is going straight on. I want to be with God on this matter. I would rather believe too much about God's power than believe too little. It gives me a great deal of joy and comfort in my soul to believe in a personal God, One Who is personally interested in Lincoln McConnell. I was conducting a meeting one midnight in a Rescue Mission that I did something to help to start in Georgia. We were going to give a supper after midnight to the poor, and the rooms were packed, but we insisted that they should come not later than eight o'clock, and, sitting there by the big warm stoves, should listen to some preaching and testimony and singing, and that then they should have a big feed between twelve and one. Among those present I saw a man whose general appearance was miserable, and he had attracted my attention even in that miserable crowd. He looked very anæmic, and was clad very poorly, and was evidently consumptive; and driven there by hunger and the bitter cold. After a while that man got on his feet, and he said something like this: "Well, folks, there ain't none of you know me, I reckon. As I look round there ain't none of you know me, except my own folk here; and if you did know me you would not know much. I am illiterate; I ain't got no education, and I ain't got no money, and looks like I never shall have any. I have had no chance to do anything, and I reckon I never shall, and I shall never be of much account anyhow. And now I am sick, and know I am not going to live long. But there is one thing I do know—God loves me!" I have heard many statements made. I have conducted largely-attended meetings, but I never heard anything that shot such a thrill through my soul as the statement of that man who stood up there; no one knew him except those who happened to meet him there, and yet that man knew that God loved him. And as he said that, his form seemed to fill out, and his body straightened up, and his head went back, and there came into his face a great peace. "God loves me." He repeated it after a while. "I do not know why He does. But I have read in the Bible that He does, and down in the depth of my heart I just know that God loves me." Oh, friends, do you know that, that God cares? That not only does He watch the sparrows fall to the ground, but that He watches you, and that if you are willing He will keep you from falling. I thank God for the revelation of One Who cares, and not only a God Who cares for us individually, but a God Who has planned a mighty movement, not only of the planets, but of mankind on this planet. I thank God that there are a God-loving, and a Bible-believing, and a consecrated body of people in this great throbbing heart of the world who dare to teach that, and to preach that.

MR. HERBERT GARRISON (Secretary-General).

I think it is eminently fitting at this juncture—seeing that this is, unfortunately, the last occasion on which Dr. McConnell can address this Congress, he having to sail to-morrow for the United States—that we should unite in wishing him and his wife, and Capt. and Mrs. Ward, a good voyage, and that we should send, through them, greetings to the great congregation to which he ministers. He has a congregation that fills a building capable of holding nearly four thousand people. His sermons and addresses are also broadcast, so that he addresses millions of people over in America. He not only has a crowded church on Sundays, but he has audiences as large as this on week-nights. Now you have noticed that his name is Lincoln, obviously after the great Abraham Lincoln. And I think you will agree with me that Dr. McConnell possesses some of the characteristics of Abraham Lincoln. He is brave; he is courageous; he says what he thinks. He has the courage of his convictions, and he has the courage in America to stand up and proclaim the British-Israel Truth to his brother ministers. I say with all my heart, God bless Lincoln McConnell. He has been a blessing to us. How we have enjoyed his fine addresses and that American humour of his. I want to drop into his church some day. I want to hear what he has to say about the folks at home. I want to have a chance of telling his congregation what we think of him; and I hope to be spared to do it.

(The vast audience rose in response to Mr. Garrison's call and gave Dr. McConnell a great ovation.)

In responding, Dr. L. McConnell said: "I find it difficult to express my heart's appreciation of your splendid friendliness. All I can say is, God bless you fine folk, and may everyone of you be spared to see the Coming of the King Immanuel."

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

MRS. ZOE BELL and Miss Alexander conducted the meeting at Headquarters on Wednesday afternoon last week, and Miss Gladys Modin gave the address on Thursday evening. Meetings will continue each Wednesday afternoon and each Thursday evening, at 3 and 7.30 respectively. At the close of the meeting on October 24th a pleasing little ceremony took place. Major Knowles, President of the B.-I.-W.F., presented to Professor Odlum, M.A., a very beautiful watch of a novel kind as a token of esteem and affection, and an address signed by himself and the Secretary-General, expressing deep gratitude for the great service the Professor had rendered to the British-Israel Cause in Britain, Canada and elsewhere. A touching and delightful reply was made by Professor Odlum, who said he would never forget the kindness he had received, nor the many friends he had made. He would continue to devote himself to the work of spreading the Gospel of the Kingdom of God wherever he felt called to go.

A magnificent audience greeted Mr. Garrison in the King's Hall, Herne Bay, on October 25th, when he gave his Lantern Lecture on "New Zealand." Colonel Sir William Wayland, M.P., was Chairman, and he was supported by George Cursons, Esq., M.B.E., J.P., Chairman of the District Council. Both made charming speeches of appreciation. The proceedings were marked by the utmost enthusiasm. Our congratulations are offered to Miss Cook, Hon. Secretary of our Branch there, and the members on their most excellent organization.

The Inaugural Meetings of the Oxford Branch were held on Thursday, October 25th, in George Street Congregational Church. At 3.30 p.m. a service was conducted by the Rev. Joseph Gay, assisted by the Revs. T. Sparshott Johnson and T. Edwin Grout. Tea was served in the Church Hall at 4.45 p.m., after which the President, Lt.-Gen. Sir Arthur Phayre, K.C.B., expressed the deep appreciation of the members of the Branch to the work the Rev. Joseph Gay had done during his three years' Commissionership. Sir Arthur, on behalf of the members, presented Mr. Gay with a token of their esteem, and wished him all success in his new sphere of labour. Mr. Gay suitably responded and then introduced his successor, the Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., who was given a hearty welcome. At 6 p.m. a public meeting was held, presided over by Mr. G. H. Edwards Palmer, in the unavoidable absence of the Rev. J. H. Mortimer, M.A., through illness. Three splendid addresses followed. Rev. Joseph Gay spoke on "The Houses of Israel, their Origin and Subsequent Development"; Rev. T. Sparshott

Johnson on "The Present Truth"; and Captain Rev. T. E. Grout on "The Portents of the Future and the Shadows of To-day." The meetings were a great success.

On October 16th, Leamington Branch enjoyed a most interesting lecture given to a large audience by Mrs. Bloxam, and illustrated by slides of Palestine and Egypt. Alderman Mason, J.P., was in the chair. Preliminary to this and the winter session, a devotional meeting had been held by members and friends.

The Rev. Canon Sidney Savage has addressed our Branches at Chudleigh, Teignmouth, Paignton and Exeter; all excellent and encouraging meetings.

Professor Odlum addressed four meetings in the Town Hall, Folkestone, for our Branch there on October 25th and 26th. He was supported by Col. Smythe and Mr. Garrison on Friday afternoon, when by special request the latter gave a brief address. Col. Du Pres presided. Keen interest was manifested.

Our good friend, the Rev. Arthur Pritchard, M.A., a Vice-President and a Member of the Council of the B.-I.-W.F., underwent a severe operation on October 24th, in Bushwood Nursing Home, Birmingham. Many prayers were offered for him by our members, and these we rejoice to say have been answered. The daily reports are favourable, and we are thankful to know that our friend is going on well. His fine article in this issue was to have been given as his address at the Congress.

Our readers will continue to pray that he may be completely restored to health.

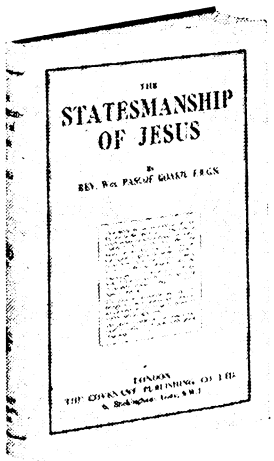
BOOKS BY REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

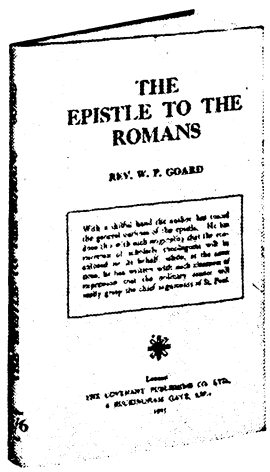


THE LAW OF THE LORD OR THE COMMON LAW

Anglo-Saxon Common Law is based on the laws given to Israel at Sinai. If statesmen would get back to those laws peace would ensue.

This is a book which should be carefully studied. It is a most valuable contribution towards the settlement of many of to-day's perplexing problems.

Price 3/6. By post 3/9.



THE STATESMANSHIP OF JESUS

A brilliant exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews—a letter having the direct inspiration of God. The book brings out new facets of the truth with striking vividness, and enhances the already great reputation of the writer.

Price 3/6. By post 3/9.

THE EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS

With a skilful hand the author has traced the general outlines of the Epistle, and, as Mr. Goard usually does, he has thrown new light on dark places.

Dr. Mountain writes, "Mr. Goard is, indeed, a brave man to endeavour to analyse and expound the Epistle to the Romans within the limits of a hundred pages. But he has succeeded where many would have failed."

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

"KEEP SILENCE BEFORE ME, O ISLANDS."

Isaiah xli, verses 1–4.

"Keep silence before me, O islands; and let the people renew their strength: let them come near; then let them speak: let us come near together to judgment.

Who raised up the righteous man from the east, called him to his foot, gave the nations before him, and made him rule over kings? he gave them as the dust to his sword, and as driven stubble to his bow.

He pursued them and passed safely; even by the way that he had not gone with his feet.

Who hath wrought and done it, calling the generations from the beginning? I the Lord, the first, and with the last; I am he."

Isaiah li, verses 1–3.

"Hearken to me, ye that follow after righteousness, ye that seek the Lord: look unto the rock whence ye are hewn, and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged.

Look unto Abraham your father, and unto Sarah that bare you: for I called him alone, and blessed him, and increased him.

For the Lord shall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody."

It is remarkable that the Lord should once and again have called upon Israel dwelling in the Islands to "keep silence" before Him and "to hearken" to His message.

Was it in line with this startling call, made by the ancient Hebrew prophet concerning these modern days, that the nation decided to commemorate the Armistice by keeping two minutes of absolute silence with bowed head and reverent mien before the God of our fathers?

Connected with that call to "keep silence" before Him is the exhortation once and again given to look back to the fountain-head of those great forces and movements which have been the controlling factor in world history for ages, and have furnished the driving force of history to the present day.

In the first call above presented in the inset on this page the question is asked, "Who called the righteous man from the east?" The answer to that question is given in the second quotation from the 51st chapter of Isaiah, when speaking of the righteous man from the east by name—that is to say, Abraham—the Lord says, "I called him alone."

In the call of Abraham then, and the establishment of his seed in Isaac and Jacob, their development into the nation Israel and their progress through the centuries, and the generations of family and national life, we have the unfolding of God's plan for the establishment and development of His Kingdom in the earth.

Concerning the Saxon race thus established, the Lord says in very striking terms:

"I THE LORD, THE FIRST,
AND WITH THE LAST."

Digitized by Google

Consider this for a moment. How is God the first of this particular race? The answer that would leap to one's mind is, as the Creator He is the first of all races, but this answer can scarcely suffice. He definitely declares in connection with the sons of Abraham, "I . . . . the first."

It is necessary to go to the 17th chapter of Genesis and there to consider "the rock whence ye are hewn; and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged. Look unto Abraham your father, and unto Sarah that bare you," there to see the establishment of this particular household of God in the earth. There are brought together three persons as the founders of the household: the first is El Shaddai, translated in the English Bible "God Almighty"; Abraham and Sarah.

It is from the miraculous interference by an act of Divine quickening in the life of Abraham and Sarah that Isaac is born. Thus the whole seed of Abraham in all their generations look beyond Abraham to the immediate GOD FATHER of the race, and in so doing understand what He means when He declares, "I . . . . the first, and with the last."

In the great charter which is there given as the recorded foundation charter of the race we see that a multitudinous seed, organized into nations and ruled over by kings, possessing wide territories of land as a gift from God, are indicated.

Reading further in the 22nd chapter of Genesis we find that the seed of Abraham, as it comes in contact with other races and nations, is granted as a perpetual possession "the gates of his enemies," by which to control their comings-out and their goings-in, thus dominating the physical situation, and possessing the judicial and administrative authority which was always administered in "the gate."

Again the Lord asks the question, "Who hath wrought and done it, calling the generations from the beginning?"

Let us consider this for a moment.

We are quite well acquainted with "the call of Abraham." This is accepted by all Bible expositors as a starting-point from which the great story of the Scriptures depend.

But are we acquainted with the fact that the Lord calls just as distinctly each succeeding generation of the sons of Abraham? That is manifestly the meaning of this solemn exhortation to remember His "calling the generations from the beginning."

He called Isaac just as distinctly as He called Abraham.

He called Jacob just as distinctly as He called Abraham and Isaac.

He called His firstborn Israel out of Egypt just as distinctly as He called the patriarchs.

He has called each succeeding generation to play their part in carrying forward the establishment of the State and Church of the Kingdom of God in the earth as He called the early Fathers.

This leads us to the inevitable point that as we are the descendants of the Fathers, heirs of the promises "MADE UNTO OUR FOREFATHERS ABRAHAM, ISAAC AND JACOB," as we remind Him from Sabbath to Sabbath in our use of the Book of Common Prayer, He has called our generation with just as clear a voice to take up and carry on our part of the great task of establishing both State and Church of the Kingdom of God in the earth.

Let the leaders of the Church call to memory the fact that not only was the Church organized in the Wilderness, and its ordinances set forth in the Book of Leviticus, what time the nation met its God at Sinai; but at the same time, and just as much a part of the great spiritual organization, with God presiding, the national organization in outline and detail was by Him established, and its Statutes recorded in the Book of Numbers.

If the leaders of the Church intent upon ecclesiastical matters forget to instruct the nation that it forms God's Kingdom of priests in the earth, and that its national organization is equally Divinely established and equally vital to the interests of God's Kingdom, they will have failed in their duty and been recreant to their trust.

By the law of the land they have been constrained to lead the prayer of the nation in the set form of service as contained in the Book of Common Prayer, but they have disregarded the meaning both of the lessons they have read and the prayers they have offered to a terrible degree in this regard.

May the God of Israel lead them to repentance, and to a restoration of the verity and life of the lessons and service.

If the leaders of the nation forget that they are brought into national combination, as a nation, with Jehovah, their God, and with His constitutional law most clearly recorded in the Bible; if they assume that their authority springs from a majority of their elected representatives and not from God; if they assume the right to make basic statutes for Israel, and to put them in the place of the Commandments, Statutes and Judgments of the Lord, they also will have terribly failed in their task, and been recreant to the trust God has placed in their hands.

When we look back over the red years from 1914-1918, and the vital part Britain has been called upon to play in the disturbed years since the Armistice, we say surely no generation of the seed of Abraham was ever called to face a greater crisis, or to meet greater dangers to the Kingdom than has the generation now keeping two minutes of silence before the Lord. The dead who died have fallen in His service; the wounded have suffered in His service; the workers have laboured in His service, and still the word is "Carry on."

In this two minutes of silence let us bow our hearts as well as our heads before Jehovah the God of Israel, and recognize anew that we and our associated nations form the basis of His Kingdom; that His presence and throne are with us still, and we are supporting His government, and that His law is supreme in our land and in our hearts.

Thus we hear the Apostle say:—

> "Now we are labourers,
> Now we are labourers together,
> Now we are labourers together with God."

The call comes to the generation preparing to take up and carry on the task in succession to the present generation. Let them begin by consecration of life to the service of Jehovah, the King; in obedience to His law, remembering His declaration, "I . . . the first, and with the last."

THE KINGDOM LAW OF DIVINE HEALING.—II.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

HEALTH FOR THE NATION.

LET us now come to the 7th chapter of Deuteronomy, and see the LORD'S challenge to His whole nation:

"And the Lord will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee; but will lay them upon all them that hate thee."

This is an enlargement of the statute and ordinance we considered in our last. You say our God is a God of Truth. But has He taken away all sickness? No. Why? Let me take you to the 26th chapter of Leviticus:

"Ye shall make you no idols nor graven image, neither rear you up a standing image, neither shall ye set up any image of stone in your land, to bow down unto it: for I am Jehovah your God."

Command 1.—Have we kept that commandment? If you examine the archæology of the British Isles, you will find, for instance, Stonehenge and many other stone productions, but you will not find a carved stone. It is said that our forefathers were fearful idolaters, offering human sacrifices to idol gods. Search your British Museums; you will not find an idol from ancient Britain. It is not there. Search this land from the 5th century, or thereabouts, and downwards, and you will find it encumbered with images!

"IF."

IF ye do these things and keep my commandments and laws, I WILL BLESS YOU.

"BUT."

"But if ye will not hearken unto me, AND WILL NOT do all these commandments;

And if ye shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that YE WILL NOT DO all my commandments, BUT THAT YE BREAK MY COVENANT;

I also will do this unto you; I will even appoint over you terror, consumption, and the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart; and ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it.

And I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies; they that hate you shall reign over you; and ye shall flee when none pursueth you.

And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you seven times more for your sins."

There is no dodging that. This was a sentence of punishment that began on a certain date. It could not overrun the seven appointed times. Thank God, the seven times ended at the end of the 18th century. That is of infinite importance.

Therefore we accept the statement that it was by God's appointment the people suffered. Suffering was His means of bringing about the required mental condition in the nation when He shut them up to death in the wilderness at the waters of Marah.

In the history of the Christian Church many a person has been turned to the Saviour, and by Him been transformed from a sinner to a saint by the influence of suffering and approaching death. That was the means by which God reached the hearts and psychology of Israel the nation; but in the Name of God I say to you, the sentence has ended with the lapse of time; Israel has also been redeemed, and now the Lord waits to show Himself gracious.

I read the other day of a life prisoner in one of the great prisons of the United States. He had become "a trusty," a servant of the Governor of the prison, and was trusted to go and come. Then suddenly the Governor of the State issued a pardon, and he was set free. The next day he came back to the prison and begged to be taken back again. He had been away from the outside world so long that he could not adjust himself to the new conditions.

Don't you think we, as a people, are doing much the same thing? Our prison doors, as a nation, have been open for a century. Our Christian leaders should have proclaimed it from one end of the Empire to the other, and from one end of the United States to the other, and we should have been leading our people to claim immunity from sickness and so on under the covenant, and we have not, because we do not know the simple things, the Divine things, of God's dealing with His people. We have gone on suffering when we should be free. By REPENTANCE and by REDEEMING GRACE we come back into the relationship which Israel enjoyed at the feet of God at Sinai; and we may take that statute and that ordinance as applicable for the nation, and as applicable for us individually in this our day, if we will obey and claim it for ourselves.

So much for the law. Of the nation we know something, and of the law we know something; what about the Lord? What is His Will? "I am Jehovah; I change not: therefore, ye sons of Jacob are not consumed." Therefore our changeless Lord still appears in the statute books of Israel, as it is written: "I am Jehovah that healeth thee"; "I change not." Therefore in the doctrine and ordinance of the Church His declaration stands: "I am Jehovah that healeth thee"; "I change not."

We wish that it would be wise and convenient to ask who among us have claimed and received Divine healing. That time may come. We want to face the matter first from the national standpoint, because we have a first duty there. First for all; and then for each.

As surely as we believe on the Foundation upon which our soul's salvation rests, with just such assurance do we believe that we have entered into the period in which it is the privilege of God's people Israel to call upon Him to take away from the midst of us all sickness. A minister among whose congregation there had been some wonderful cases of healing said, It is not fair; those that are healed are rejoicing, and those that are not healed are feeling the bitterness of death! That is true; and it is not fair. But where is the unfairness? The unfairness is with the leader that has not known, and so has not presented, the truth; or with those persons who hear the truth, but will not whole-heartedly believe.

The leaders of Church and State can place the LORD God

Almighty in a position where, in order to honour His Word, He must of necessity purge the people from their sickness. That is to say, they may place themselves right in obedience to His law ; then they may claim the fulfilment of His covenant for physical healing of the nation, and He has bound Himself then to heal. The trouble is this ; we have put away thee Commandments, Statutes and Judgments of the Lord, and hav, insisted on making our own. Just as long as we do that, nationally it is useless for us to look, nationally, for a Divine purging from sickness. But just as soon as, nationally, we restore the Commandments, Statutes and Judgments of the Lord, without change, as the law of the land, that day the last cot in our hospitals will be empty. That day will come. God is still in the midst of Israel. The statute and the ordinance still remain, declaring " I am Jehovah that healeth thee." He would have healed Babylon, but she was not healed. He would have healed this nation, but she is not healed.

" I will cleanse their blood which I have not cleansed."

What a wonderful task for the great Physiologist Who has pledged Himself to that. It will be done in due time. There is a wonderful day coming for the nation in that regard.

The individual. A dear friend of ours wrote that he would not be able to come to these meetings, but that he would be with us in spirit. He said, " I know that God is active in physical healing. One of my experiences was to have my skull smashed." He went on to give details. " They rushed for a doctor, but when he got there he found my head normal." Psycho-therapeutics healing a broken skull in minutes? No; it was Divine action.

A wonderful veteran whom you love and have followed for years gave the testimony. His wife was at death's door twelve years ago ; then he laid hold of God in prayer, and she was healed and lived happily many years.

And yet the wonderful touch of healing comes to some and not to others. We cannot explain these things, but for the individual and for the nation our God stands in the midst of us saying, " I am Jehovah that healeth thee."

Letters have been sent appealing to me ! It is useless ; I am not a healer. Jesus Christ said, " The words I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." . . . " The Father that dwelleth in me, He doeth the works." Thus Jesus was the manifestation of the Father's power. In Him you must find your contact with God.

To what shall we tend in this study? Let each of us look simply and immediately into the eyes of our Heavenly Father ; let us stretch out our hand to Him and be healed. That is our privilege ; our privilege now. The Lord is not going to allow His children to continue under the load of suffering much longer. Everything makes that clear, but now as this theme develops, and we find what is the Will of God in the matter, we shall pray " one for another " that the Lord may heal. In the meantime God is crying out to Israel,—" Hearken unto me, my people," " I am Jehovah that healeth thee."

The Bible Class for Women was conducted by Mrs. Zoe Bell on November 3rd. Notice of the next meeting of the Class will duly be given.

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

THE REV. CHARLES W. COOPER, F.G.S., said :

I THINK I cannot do better than just say a few words about what led me to accept the British-Israel Truth, namely, my desire to know and to understand the Bible. From the time of my conversion about 1885—which came after some two years of study and prayer, wrestling with Unitarianism in which I was brought up—I have always accepted the Bible as God's revelation, and it seemed to me that if there was a God, and a God Who cared for His people that He had made, that it was reasonable to suppose that He would reveal Himself, and that He would reveal Himself through human needs. I have always accepted the Bible as being God's Truth, and while being always on a quest to understand the Bible, praise God, this led me to keep an open mind. So I always kept an open mind for the elucidation of God's Word ; not an open mind to receive the opinions of men, but an open mind for the actual interpretation of the written Word, that interpretation where one text helped to explain another of God's messages.

I was privileged to come under the influence and leadership of Mr. Goard, and I found not only a teacher, but a reverent scholar of these Scriptures, one who was consistent in all his teaching. And I found in Mr. Goard such a teacher and scholar, with a profound grip of the Bible. I know something of the clergy of the Church of England, and I do not know any man who has got such a consistent, clear grip of the Scriptures as Mr. Goard. I had my own Bishop in my study, and I asked him for an explanation and direction concerning the Lord's Coming, and his words to me were : " Cooper, I know nothing about the subject." I asked another Bishop the same question, and he said, " I know nothing about the subject." On another occasion I had the privilege of listening, as I often did, to that wonderful man whom we had so much respect for, Dean Wace, and I asked him a question on the subject of the Lord's Coming, and he said, " I know nothing about these things." It was my privilege to take a share in a Mission conducted by Canon Aitken, and I asked him to explain this and that text, but he replied, " I know nothing about the subject." And that is what we are suffering from to-day. The clergy do not know what we stand for, and that is why we are up against so much terrible prejudice, and our great desire is that everyone of you who are privileged to go into this matter of British-Israel should do your utmost to make plain what we do believe. I find that at the bottom of all the prejudice that exists is the ignorance of what we believe. I hear men charging us with taking away from the glory of Our Lord, and teaching the nation to work out its own salvation. I have often said to my brother clergy, " What you cherish as most dear, and what you believe, and what you preach concerning the Lord Jesus Christ—I accept it all. But where you leave off there I go on." I have been a student and a preacher now for over thirty-seven years, and I know something of the false interpretations that are put upon many passages of Scripture to make them square, and I say to-day that the interpretation which British-Israel Truth puts upon the Bible is the most natural, and the most honest and straightforward interpretation that I have ever yet met with. I have lived long enough, and I have studied long enough, to know that there are very few original thinkers among religious writers. You find that most of them have taken their commentary, and just built upon that a little original thought. I can understand how immensely difficult it is for a clergyman of the Church of England to be drawn over readily to the British-Israel position. He thinks that he has the truth; I thought I had the truth. But I am finding now every day that the Bible becomes more and more precious to me, and more and more clear. Do you not see how wonderfully God is fulfilling His Word? Speaking to a missionary last week I said, "Do you not realize that we as a nation are chosen, as you are, to carry God's message of salvation to the whole world, and God is only waiting for us to realize His purpose?" May God help us to realize that He has called us for a purpose, and that purpose can only be served as you and I are cleansed by the blood of Jesus Christ. A man can only be strong in the Lord when he is found in the Lord, and when we are found in the Lord, then shall we be strong in the Lord. May the Lord help us to realize that He has chosen us and called us to serve Him, and to bring the knowledge of His salvation to the whole world.

BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH, A WORKING HYPOTHESIS.

THE REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S., said:

British-Israel Truth, a working hypothesis. What do you mean by hypothesis? The lexicographer shall reply:

"Hypothesis:—A supposition; something not proved, but assumed for the purpose of argument. A system or theory imagined or assumed to account for what is not understood."

I am, for your sake, asking you to assume that British-Israel Truth, which is established knowledge, is a theory to be demonstrated by experiment.

I am asking you then, for the purpose of argument, to assume that the British-Israel theory or system does account for what is not understood, and further that it is the only theory or system which can account for that which is not understood.

I will tell you why I am asking you to do that; because you have, like myself, neither the time, nor the patience, nor it may be the ability, to enter the field of elaborate investigation, travel down the lengthy and involved labyrinths of research and enquiry. I am free to confess that if I had waited until every avenue of research had been explored to my satisfaction, every "t" crossed and every "i" dotted, I should be still waiting.

A master-key is put into your hands. You do not proceed at once to argue the key, but to use the key. If it functions correctly then it is itself correct.

Now what is our theory? What is our supposition? What is that something which, for our present argument, is not proven, but which will nevertheless account for what is not understood?

It is this, that the Anglo-Celto-Saxon Race, as the lineal descendants of the ten tribes of Israel which, after the days of Solomon, composed the Northern Kingdom of Israel, confirms history, fulfils prophecy, and proves the Bible to be in very truth the inspired Word of God from Genesis to Revelation, disposing of the necessity for explaining away any portion of the Bible, or denying the truth of its supernatural origin and development.

Will you take that as a working hypothesis, as a master-key, and apply it to your reading of the Bible, and see if it does account for what is not understood? It would help you, I think, to take one or two other hypotheses side by side with this one. For example: it is stated that the Church, as the spiritual descendant of Israel, accounts for that which is not understood. Where Israel of the Northern Kingdom is referred to in the Old Testament the Church is to be substituted, for the Kingdom has passed into the Church. Very well, take that as a working hypothesis side by side with the British-Israel theory and let their functioning determine their correctness or otherwise. Or yet again you may take another working hypothesis, viz.: That the Jew, being all that now remains of ancient Israel, accounts for what is not understood. That during the same captivity, "under the most tragic circumstances," to quote Dr. David Smith, Professor of Theology in the Belfast University, Israel of the ten tribes and Israel of the three tribes merged together and came out as the Jews. It is a working hypothesis; take it and apply it and let its functioning determine its correctness.

I would now offer one or two suggestions to you by way of helpfulness: (1) Take the Patriarchal period, and you will find certain very definite promises which God is said to have made to the Patriarchs. They are repeated with such frequency and with such precision that you cannot possibly ignore them. Did God really make those promises? One thing is very certain, that if God did make them then He has kept them, for God cannot lie. Postulate a lie of God and He at once ceases to be God. If those promises have not been kept then they have not been kept because He never made them. That also is equally clear. But the Bible says He did make them. That is true, is it not? But if you cannot find where those promises have been fulfilled then the Bible has lied, and the Modernist is correct in cutting it up and destroying it.

Let me take one or two of these promises and apply to them these three working hypotheses and see which accounts for what is not understood.

Genesis xxii, 16, 17, 18: "By Myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing," etc.

All three fit more or less. The Jews have certainly been multitudinous. But can they be said to possess the gate of their enemies? Can it be said that they have been a blessing to all the nations of the earth? The Church has been multitudinous and has been a great blessing to all nations whither she has gone, but here again one doubts whether she has ever possessed the gate of her enemies. Of Israel-Britain these three statements can be surely accounted for, since she has been very multitudinous, she has most certainly possessed the gate of her enemies, and wherever she has gone throughout the world she has been a blessing not to individuals merely but to nations.

Take another passage, viz., Genesis xxxv, 11: "A nation and a company of nations shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins." The Jews? The Church? It only needs to be stated to be refuted. Israel-Britain? The hypothesis accounts for what is not understood. Once more. 2 Samuel vii, 10: "I will appoint a place for My people Israel," etc.

Digitized by Google

The Jew? The Church? Nay! Israel-Britain? Well, we have an appointed place have we not, a place from out of which no power on earth has ever or can ever remove us. The key fits. The hypothesis accounts for what is not understood.

Yet again. Matthew xxi, 43: "The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof."

Who, according to this Word of Christ, was the Kingdom of God taken from? There is only one answer; the Jews, upon their rejection of their Messiah in Jesus of Nazareth. Has that Kingdom been given back to the Jews? If it has, when was it given back? You know quite well that it has not been given back to them, for they are to this day anti-Christian. So the Jewish hypothesis does not work here at all, and cannot account for that which is not understood.

Has the Kingdom of God been given to the Church? Ask yourself this question. Is the Church a nation? You know it is not. Here then the Church hypothesis utterly fails to account for what is not understood, unless you subscribe to the pretentious claims of the Roman Catholic Church to be the temporal Kingdom of God upon this earth, and the Pope God's vicegerent. Is this statement warranted by the history of our nation that "If the British Empire be not the Kingdom of God upon earth, it is the highest expression of it that we possess"?

The British-Israel hypothesis accounts for what is not understood. Go through your Bible as I have here suggested to you, and you will see that every time the B.-I. hypothesis fits the case. If it functions correctly then it is in itself correct.

When you have thus satisfied your mind that it is correct, what then? You will have a Gospel to proclaim to your nation, and through your nation to the entire world, with sufficient fulcrum in it to lift the entire world of men and nations to God. How so? Because you can demonstrate, beyond all reasonable doubt, that God has kept every promise He has ever made, according to the Bible, so that the entire Bible is true, and that, and here is the blessedness of it all to my mind, having never failed of His Word, all He has ever promised to do in and through the Atonement of His well-beloved Son for the redemption of Israel and the salvation of the world He will keep for all time and through all eternity. He is faithful Who has promised.

THE REV. W. TURPITT, B.A., B.D., said:

Although I have been in the Christian ministry for nearly twenty years, it was but recently that I became acquainted with B.-I. Truth. I know that the Movement in a bigger sense is just an individual growing bigger and bigger every day. And it will soon be a Samson able to carry away the gates of prejudice and ignorance and infidelity. I think the Movement has done wonders, considering the few years, comparatively speaking, that it has been in existence. The knowledge of this Truth has made a big difference to my life as a minister.

What is the wonderful thing about this great and beautiful Movement that appeals to me as a minister of the Word? I have been doing a good deal of reading. The historical argument is quite convincing. The ethnological argument is quite convincing. All the phases of this subject are convincing. But there is one side of it that appeals to me more than anything else, and that is the Bible argument. And if I understand the Movement, what is going to happen as a result of it is that there is going to be a re-enthronement of the Word of God. There is going to be a re-enthronement of God, and of righteousness, and of the Kingdom promises. You know that for the last twenty-five years there has been a movement away from the Bible, with consequent anarchy in the world—war and misery. But here is a Movement which is bringing us back to the Bible. And don't we need it? We have had to listen to such talk as this: "Blessed are the war-makers. A new commandment give I unto you, Be hard. Christianity has nothing at all to do with international issues; it is purely personal." All of which is unbiblical and ungodly. And anarchy and rebellion rise to-day in the world as a result of this movement away from the Bible. I am heart and soul in the B.-I. Movement, because I do not know of any people more likely to get the Bible re-enthroned in our land as those people who are devout British-Israelites.

Not only has there been a movement away from the Bible generally in the world, but there has been prejudice among those who minister the Word. Is it not sad to think that for the last twenty-five years theological students that have left, for the most part, our theological colleges, have been leaving those colleges with a prejudice against the Word of God? As I was coming up to London to-day my thoughts went back to my own college days, and I remember some of the things that were told us there, and I remember the prejudices against the Bible, the literal interpretation of it, which I carried out with me into the ministry. We were told that there was no Christ in the Old Testament. Of course, we were told that the Bible is a purely Jewish Book. That Abraham was a mythical person. But concerning the covenants we were told nothing; and of Isaiah's messages to Israel in the Isles we heard never a word. How many Isaiahs there were I could not tell you. Everything was spiritualized. We were told to enforce the moral interpretation of the Biblical teaching, but never did they tell us that the Kingdom of God would take a material form as well as a spiritual. There was nothing about the literal return of Our Lord. As to prophecy—every time I asked, "What do you know about prophecy?"—they had to own up that they knew nothing. But I was in the same position until recently. Of course, we were taught prophecy, but only one phase of it—Messianic prophecy; but of the prophecies that had to do with the building of the Chosen Nation we were told nothing at all. And yet the Bible is full of them. Is there any wonder, when men are going out into the Christian ministry with such an imperfect knowledge of God's Truth, that the world and the Church are in the state they are to-day? Let me say a word to my fellow ministers; I believe they are honest men; but very many of them have their minds made up; they will not look at this thing; they are prejudiced and blinded. But there are men in the Christian ministry who, if they had some of your good books before them, I am sure would do them a great deal of good. If anybody has more money than he knows what to do with, why not use it for supplying these ministers with some of the best books dealing with British-Israel Truth? I want to save my brother ministers. They are being thought of as men whose eyes are shut to new Truth.

Digitized by Google

But I am not sure that is true. They have never had a chance of knowing this thing. I believe that if they had the right kind of literature that we should have many a convert. You know what they say when an old man is brought into the Kingdom of God—"There is one brought in." But when a boy is brought in—then it is a multiplication table. And if we can only win the ministers, then this Truth will spread like wildfire. It will go forward in any case, but it will go quicker if only something can be done to put good literature into the hands of the ministers.

Well, I am heart and soul in this Movement because it stands for the re-enthronement of the Word of God. The old world is not a very nice place with all the lights out—it is a dark old world. But that is just what happens when the Word of God has become obsolete. There is no word of direction when it is without God and without hope. It would make a world of difference if we could only get these Truths permeating the community. It would do good to individuals, and to the nation. I was glad that one of our speakers represented our Heavenly Father as a God Who cares for us. There is a tendency to forget that He is God of the individual. "I am the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob." In a text like that you have the great universal purpose and plan of God. This reminds me of a story that Mr. F. W. Boreham, the Australian author, tells about a census man going around taking the census. He went to a certain house, and it was washing-day. "How many children have you?" he asked. "Let me see," said the woman, "there's Tom, and Jack, and Will, and Joe, and Edward, and then there's Lucy, and Mary, and Nellie." "Will you give me the number," said the man. "I want you to understand," she said, "that we have not got to numbering them yet. We haven't finished with the names yet." There was a mother who loved each one as if that one were the only one. God cares, and with the re-enthronement of the Bible, the Word of God, will come back that great idea that love is being directed towards each individual man and woman, that God is not outside His world, that the Deity is not like the mechanic outside the watch who winds it up and waits for it to run down. He is the very life and soul of history, the God of providence and of grace. We are trying to bring that home to the world through this Movement.

You have heard the story of the two scientists—one was a believer, and the other was an infidel. They worked together in the same laboratory, and they often argued about their beliefs. And one day the one who was a believer brought to the laboratory a beautiful globe with a map of the world on it. "Does not that look very nice?" said the believer. "Excellent," said the unbeliever. "Who made it?" "Nobody made it; it made itself," replied the believer. "Don't be absurd," said the unbeliever. "It is no more absurd to say that," said the believer, "than for you to say that this wonderful world made itself." We argue like that about this wonderful British nation of ours. We remember the Armada. We remember the Napoleonic Wars. We remember the last War in particular. How very near we came to being defeated, but we were not. Some people call these things "accidents." God has chosen this nation, the descendants of His ancient Chosen People Israel, to carry out His great purpose. The late Queen Victoria said, pointing to the Bible, "Herein lies the secret of England's greatness." We repeat every word of it, and we say also, "Herein lies the secret of the origin of the British Empire. Herein lies the secret of the development of the British Empire." We are allied with God in a great Cause. As a minister of the Word I feel now that I have a bigger and more spacious and more beautiful Gospel to preach than ever I had before, and the Bible has become to me a new Book, and I cannot help reading it and loving it. It has done wonders for my personal life—the knowledge of these great Truths which are embodied in the British-Israel teaching.

THE REV. J. LUMLEY DAVIES said:

Dear Friends,—That is the best word I can find because I have found real friendship among the British-Israel people. I might say, "Fellow Israelites," but I feel I can use no better word than that word "Friends." I think all the other speakers have expressed their pleasure at the opportunity of speaking. But I may tell you a secret—I have tried to get out of speaking to-night, but the Chairman has said the word, and so I have to obey. I have one advantage, and that is, I have not to consider that I am trespassing on the time of the next speaker, but I have to consider very seriously whether your patience will last for a much longer time. So I am not going to give what I would call an address to-night, but I should like to say why I have associated myself with the British-Israel Movement. It is really for the same reason that has been mentioned more than once here, and I make no apology for mentioning it once more. I am a British-Israelite to-night because that great Movement is founded on the Word of God. Having been what people call a Modernist, I found it very difficult to fit myself in with the various views characteristic of the British-Israel Movement. But, by God's help, I have succeeded in doing so, and although I may not be so eloquent as some of the speakers here, yet I am as firmly convinced in my own mind of the Truth of British-Israel as any of them.

No one, I think, has mentioned the bringing up of the children in these days. I am very keen on the teaching of little children. I have six hundred of them in my Sunday School. I feel that some of the teachers in my school are young people who have been reading many of the Modernist books published to-day, and I am not certain whether they are not too much inclined to bring before the little ones modern thoughts, and to depart from the Word of God. This is a thought which is troubling me very much. Older people ought to be wise enough to form their own opinions, but the teacher can mould the lives of the children to a large extent. The child is learning much from the teacher, and if the teacher has not a firm faith in the Word of God, how can that teacher teach the right things? I have had serious thoughts of writing out a series of lessons for fifty-two Sundays to be given to the children. I would feel guilty before God if I allowed those children to be taught what I consider is not in harmony with the Word of God. I am keen, not only on presenting a full Gospel to those who have formed their own opinions, but I am even more keen on presenting a full Gospel to the little ones who have not yet formed their own conceptions. What will this land of ours be like in twenty years' time, and where shall we be in twenty years' time? And who will be carrying on the work? Let us pray God that we may have growing up amongst us boys and girls who, in the years to come, will be the pillars of God's work in this land of ours. I do feel that the work amongst the children is of the greatest possible importance. The child mind is being moulded to-day, and it is being moulded by many who have not faith in the Bible, or in Christ. It is for you and for me to tell these little ones of God, and of Christ, and of the superiority of the Word of God over every other Book. In God's Name, and in God's strength, we are going to do that. I am going to close to-night by just reading to you some lines I read some years ago. They illustrate the way in which the Bible must eventually triumph. We dare not, as Christian people, believe anything else than that goodness must be eventually triumphant, and the Bible too. These are the lines, showing how the Word of God will wear out all the criticism that is levelled against it to-day:

"Last eve I passed beside a blacksmith's door
And heard the anvil ring the vesper chime.
Then, looking in, I saw upon the floor,
Old hammers worn, with beating years of time.

"'How many anvils have you had?' said I,
'To wear and batter all these hammers so?'
'Just one,' said he, with twinkling eye,
'The anvil wears the hammers out, you know!'

"And so I thought the anvil of God's Word
For ages sceptic blows have beat upon,
Yet, though the noise of falling blows was heard,
The anvil is unharmed; the hammer gone."

GENERAL COVENTRY WILLIAMS, C.B. (Chairman) said:

I expect that most of you have been reading a great deal about ecclesiastical matters lately. The papers have been full of them, especially since the Church Congress at Cheltenham. You have doubtless been reading the speeches, and various notes about the meetings there. It has all been very fully noted in the papers. In addition to this, you may also have seen a report in the papers about a certain Bishop and his views; and also the views of another individual not in accordance with the Gospel.

When I came into the British-Israel-World Federation nine years ago I learned at once that the Bible was our foundation, and all the lectures I have heard by the Rev. Pascoe Goard and others have been based on the Bible. And that was one of the reasons why I was so keen to take up this teaching. It interested me at once to know something about the Old Testament. The Bible itself, and nothing else, that is our foundation. I believe in it from cover to cover. We are meeting here in large numbers again this year. It is really wonderful to me to think of all that has happened in the last nine years. When I first joined there was a little company of us in Fetter Lane, and there seemed then little prospect that we should ever get into a larger place. But things have changed. In those days I happened to be the Chairman of the Directors of the Covenant Publishing Co., and was also a member of the Council of the B.-I.-W.F., and I knew a good deal of what was going on behind the scenes; and there are many who know that all these things have come about through the efforts of a few persons, led by two individuals. They put their backs into it, and they brought about all these improvements, and what has happened in the Federation is largely due to their efforts. It was through them that the funds were found to take over those magnificent Headquarters in Buckingham Gate, where there is that large staff of efficient workers. In the old days there were only a few men. Now they have a large staff. And these improvements are all due to these few individuals, led by your President and your Secretary-General. They procure all the great speakers who come over from many parts of the world. Well, now, if they have done all this, then I am sure it is up to all of us to do what we can to spread this Movement. I am doing what I can in my small way. If every member would get half-a-dozen people to join, we should then be able to carry out one great wish—to have a hall of our own. That is a big thing, but it is a great need. Think of all these discussions going on in the Church. People are really being driven from the Church in these days. As I said before, it is the Bible which is our foundation, and you cannot go far wrong if you preach the Gospel, and if you have the Bible to go upon.

PROFESSOR E. ODLUM, M.A., said:

Before beginning my theme I wish to say something. It is this, that the papers that refuse to tell about our work now, before a very great while will rejoice in the opportunity of telling the nation that the foundation element in the strength of the people's souls belongs to the British-Israel work and the British-Israel people. When the nations of the earth are engaged in a terrific turmoil, they will be glad that there is a people in the country with a message of hope and faith and encouragement. Those days are coming. The Press will find a voice for us after a while.

Having said that, I begin with my subject. In the olden days the Lord was looking for a man with whom He could co-work on the human side in this old world. He found a man yonder by the River Euphrates in ancient Ur of the Chaldees, and having examined the best men of that race He selected Abraham, and called him over to another country. In effect He said, "You cannot stay here and do what I want you to do. There is too much accumulation of immorality and depravity and down-grading. Come out and be alone. I have a great work for you." And Abraham said, "Yes, Lord, I will go." Then He meets him yonder north of Jerusalem, and talks with him, and tells him many wonderful things. And amongst the rest He says, "I am going to make a nation of you. Your people will multiply and will become a great nation, and therefore you and your people must have a habitat. Look, Abraham, away north, east, west, south. There is the horizon, and as far as your eyes carry, all that land have I given thee and thy seed for ever." A great land gift. A wonderful land transaction; and the deed is registered in Heaven, and not registered in a mere registry office on earth. It was to be a safe place. And He tells him that his people would inhabit that land. And do you know that that prophecy, that covenant, was held up in the heavens for four hundred years before there was a fulfilment. And in due time, under Moses, these people came out of the Land of Egypt, and, under Joshua, they went in and took possession of the land. Then there came a long period of rule under the Judges. A long period of rule under the Kings. And there came a time when the people had to get out of the land for various reasons; one was because of their transgressions in the land while they were there. Before they went into the land promises were made concerning their eternal possession of that land; eternally, in relation to the human or earthly time. And when David was on the throne, God made a definite contract with him, and He said, "David, you and your seed will rule over the people of Israel for ever. Therefore there shall be your line of rulers, people over whom you rule, and there shall be a perpetual throne, so that your descendants one by one can sit upon that throne and rule over that people Israel." There is the outline. Since that line of David was to rule for ever, and sit upon the throne of Israel, the throne of the Lord, for ever, it follows that there is a royal line to-day sitting on that throne ruling over that people Israel to-day somewhere on this earth. Find that people.

Now we have that as a setting. No misunderstanding here; everything clear. And in due time these people disappeared from the land of Israel, and their brother kingdom, Judah, disappeared from the land of Judah; the first kingdom, the kingdom of Israel, was carried away into the north-east lands of Assyria, Persia, and that land we now call Western Siberia. That is where they went. In due time I will deal with that more closely historically. Judah went over into Babylonian captivity in another direction, and under another people. That is well worth remembering. Two definite, separate peoples in the Land of Canaan, and into two separate directions and areas of the world they went, and they went into captivity. I will not follow that, for that is a big chapter by itself. Now when these northern people were away up yonder, the Lord sent one of the first missionaries ever selected on this earth for missionary work. He sent His servant Ezekiel to give them specific instructions, specific promises, and a clear outline of certain things yet to come to them which they must have understood. Now you have that setting. A missionary went to them; he talked to them; he instructed them; and he committed the God of Heaven in their presence, to hold to, and to work out, His promises and covenants. When this missionary Ezekiel is making clear some of his wonderful revelations Divinely given, he says to Israel and to Judah (because he had also messages to Judah), "The time is coming when you two people who are separate and have been separated for a long time, and will be separated for a long time to come, there is a time coming when you two people, Israel and Judah, shall unite in the land of your fathers, the land that I have given unto Jacob your father; you will unite there, and make one kingdom, one nation; not two nations any more; and instead of there being two kings, two royal lines, you will have one royal line down through the ages, and that the line of David." The 37th chapter of Ezekiel makes that very clear. The prophet says, When you come into that land, and are a united people under one king, you and your children, and your children's children, shall hold possession of the land, and shall remain in the land for ever under your king of the Levitic line. Now there you have got a clear enunciation by the prophet, inspired by the Holy Spirit, of a permanent, enduring kingdom.

Have you got that clear? You will easily match it with something I am now going to bring before you. If you turn to the prophecy of Daniel, and read concerning Nebuchadnezzar's dream, you will find this, that in the interpretation of the dream there was to be a combination of four heathen kingdoms, one following the other, starting with the Babylonish, headed by Nebuchadnezzar. And when it came to the interpretation, we are told, "Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands. And that stone became a great kingdom, a kingdom that fills all the world, a stone kingdom." And a little later on he says, after having given a description of the four sets of kings—the Babylonian-Assyrian, the Medo-Persian, the Grecian-Macedonian, and the Western Empire of Rome—he says, "And in the days of these kings shall the God of Heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." There was to be a fifth kingdom contemporaneous with the other kingdoms, a kingdom number five paralleling all these other kingdoms; because that kingdom was to be built up even in the time of the Babylonian and Assyrian kings, that it should take a part in breaking the head of gold, therefore it had to be contemporaneous with the head of gold kingdom; and to take a part in the Medo-Persian kingdom, the silver kingdom, and in the Grecian-Macedonian, the brazen kingdom, and to finish up the Western kingdom. Those who with an open mind will take time to follow that all the way through will find that the thing predicted through that dream of Nebuchadnezzar, and interpreted by Daniel, actually took place, and is an historic fact. In addition to breaking up these kingdoms, this kingdom shall never be destroyed. Many kingdoms have tried to destroy it in the ages that have fallen between then and now. But God says that that particular kingdom shall never be destroyed, that it is a kingdom that is to last for ever. Ezekiel tells us that the kingdom made up of Israel and Judah is to be a united nation. Now you see what this kingdom is; it is the kingdom of Israel and Judah united into one. If you turn to the 7th chapter of Daniel you will get a most remarkable statement. And the statement in plain language—I give it just from my own wording—is that the kingdom of Him Who ruleth in the heavens is an everlasting kingdom, and that kingdom is to be given to the saints of the Most High, and they shall rule, or it shall rule for ever, and all the other dominions shall be governed by it for ever. Now we have the kingdom as given by Ezekiel in chapter xxxvii, and the stone kingdom as given in Daniel ii, and the kingdom of the saints as given in Daniel vii. And all are to-day the same kind of thing, and live and act the same length of time, namely, for ever. If you turn to Psalm cxlviii you will find there in the plainest language a definition of the kingdom. The kingdom shall be given to the saints of the Most High. Not St. Patrick, nor St. Bridget, nor St. Athanasius, nor anything of that sort. Not to our good and holy men that we speak of as the saintly men of God. The Psalmist is not speaking of those in the Church of God who are regarded as saints. He says, "He also exalteth the horn of His people, the praise of all His saints; even of the children of Israel, a people near unto Him." Now you find out who the saints of the Bible are. Let the Bible tell us ; it will be sufficient.

We understand now that the Israel peoples are to be the ruling peoples of this world. It is not my judgment ; it is God's judgment. Otherwise we must lay the Book aside. Again Jesus talks to a young man of wealth, a young man who had kept the law, and wanted to know what still he should do in addition to what he had done. The Lord told him in a loving, kindly way to get rid of material things, and "Come, follow Me." The young man could not see the meaning of giving up everything and following the Man of Nazareth. He did not understand the meaning of the tremendous honour to which he was called, and he went away sorrowing. And the disciples got talking about it, and they wondered. Oh, how they wondered what this all could mean, and they said, "We have given up everything. We have thrown aside our fishing tackle, our nets, our boats, and we have followed the Lord. I wonder what we are going to get." Peter says, "I will find out." And he goes to his Lord, and says, "Lord, we have given up everything. What are we going to get?" That sounded a little like Jacob in the olden days, bargaining for something in return for service. Well, what did the Lord say? "Verily, I say unto you, That ye which have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of His glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." They who had followed Him in the regeneration, in the wonderful process of rebirth, passing into the kingdom of the living God, passing into the new life, "Ye who have followed Me, co-wrought with Me in the work of bringing men and women into the Church of the Living God, shall sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. I will be the superior King, when I am seated on the throne of My glory, and you will be twelve kings under Me, governing, ruling the twelve tribes of Israel." If that is so, then the twelve tribes must be somewhere on the earth. Israel must be somewhere. You go and find Israel. Gabriel was sent by the Lord to Mary, and Gabriel said, "He Who is coming shall be called Jesus. And the Most High shall give unto Him the throne of His father David." There you get the Davidic throne. "And He shall rule over the House of Jacob." There is your Israel again "for ever." "And of His kingdom there shall be no end." The kingdom that lasts for ever, and the "for ever," meaning no end, must necessarily mean a kingdom that rules eternally in connection with God's great plan for humanity on this earth in its present condition and future condition.

MR. JOHN LEECH, K.C., said :

If I were to tell you that I was going to speak upon the third Commandment, you would probably say, "Surely we are not profane people ; we do not take the Name of God in vain. We do not use it unnecessarily, or without reverence." But that is not the meaning of it. The third Commandment is a Commandment given to Israel, and it is one of the utmost importance for Israel, and it concerns everyone of us, and it is broken again and again. "Thou shalt not take the Name of the Lord thy God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His Name in vain." What does it mean? Does it mean merely the taking of the Name of our God upon our lips? No, certainly not. It has a much bigger meaning than that. It means that God has put His Name upon His people Israel, and it means that because we bear that Name we must live up to the standard of that Name, and we must not disgrace the Name of our Heavenly Father. The Hebrew word that is used there means to lift, or to bear, or to carry. You have it in a number of verses. For instance, in the 4th Psalm, we read, "Lord, lift Thou up the light of Thy countenance upon us." The word is the same, and you have it frequently translated "bear," such as, "Aaron shall bear their names before Jehovah, upon his two shoulders." And again, "Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breast-plate." It is the same word, and the meaning of it is this—that we are bearing God's Name as His children, and there is no other nation in the world that God has placed His Name upon, but upon Israel. We are called to a wonderful place of privilege and glory by having the Name of Jehovah put upon us. Is it possible that upon sinful people, Israel, that nation that so often denied and wandered from their God, He actually put His Name upon them? Yes, He did. And the Word tells us that God called Israel out from the other nations to be a peculiar nation unto Himself, to be a holy nation. No other nation was ever called to be a peculiar people. And then He put His Name upon that nation that He called out. You know that when a young lady marries a young man her name is gone. She takes the name of the husband, and from that time forward she bears his name. She may do honour to that name, or she may disgrace that name, but that name has been put upon her at her marriage. I understand that in America some of the ladies want when they marry to keep their own names, and I daresay before long they will want their husbands to take their names. But that is not God's way, I am thankful to say. On Mount Sinai God married Israel, that nation which He brought out from under the bondage of Egypt. He entered into a wonderful relationship with Israel. We find that He married Israel, and thereupon Israel took the Name of her God. I wonder how she has honoured that Name? Alas, oftentimes she has brought dishonour upon the Name of her God. Let me give you two or three verses in connection with this. Numbers vi, 27. God said to Moses, speaking of Israel, "And they shall put My Name upon the children of Israel ; and I will bless them." Yes, we have been called to that wonderful position ; let us rise to it. And attached to that there is a blessing. God said that He would bless them.

Then not only has He given us that Name, but He wants that Name to have its fragrance and its power right over the world, amongst other nations. So we read in Deut. xxviii, 10: "And all people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the Name of the Lord ; and they shall be afraid of thee." That was if they walked in His ways, and kept His Commandments, they were to be so conformed to their God, Whose Name they bore, so like Him in their character, and in their walk, that all the nations of the world were to see and know that Israel bore the Name of their God. I wonder is that the position? Thank God, this is a righteous nation, and yet how far short we have come of that wonderful Name that we bear. Have we risen individually to the position of holiness and righteousness which that Name implies and demands? We must each ask ourselves that. But there it was to be seen by the nations abroad; and what was the result? "They shall be afraid of thee." I believe that if Britain had only lived up to the position that she is called by the Name of her God, no nation in the world would have dared to go to war with her; not one. No, they would have known that God's Name was upon that nation of Britain, and that no power could prevail against that nation. Now are you going to bring disgrace upon that Name that we bear? Are you going to take it in vain? You remember in Proverbs xxx, 8, 9, we have that same expression: "Remove far from me vanity and lies; give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me; Lest I be full and deny Thee, and say, Who is the Lord? Or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the Name of my God in vain." Yes, every time that we sin, whether it be by stealing, or whatever it be, we take the Name of God that has been placed upon us as His children in vain. And we need to walk very, very carefully.

Now that Name has wonderful results. It is a plea for forgiveness. We read in 2 Chron. vii, 13, 14: "If I shut up heaven that there be no rain, or if I command the locusts to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among My people; if My people which are called by My Name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." Why, because God's Name was upon them. And we can come with that wonderful plea to our God, and we can confess our sin, and claim forgiveness and healing because we bear His Name. And we are in a position of privilege and blessing that no other people on the earth possesses.

Then it is also a Name which means that gathering by God of His people back to Himself. Here you have the simile of a family—a father and his sons and daughters. And those sons and daughters have been scattered from their father because of their waywardness, scattered right over the world, and yet the heart of that father yearns for his wayward children, and he will never be satisfied until he has them back with him again. That great gathering process has to take place, and the time has to come when once again God the Father would have the children clustered around Him in the appointed place, after they had been scattered to the places to which they had been scattered. We have it in Isaiah xliii, 5-7: "Fear not; for I am with thee; I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west; I will say to the north, Give up, and to the south, Keep not back; bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; even everyone that is called by My Name; for I have created him for My glory, I have formed him; yea, I have made him." God says that no power can keep them away, and while we have been sleeping, and know nothing about it, God has been saying to the north, Give up, and to the south, Hold not back. And He has been gathering His people together, His children; and they have been put in that appointed place, gathered around their Heavenly Father. So it goes on. "Bring My sons from far, and My daughters from the ends of the earth." The simile is changed there. It is the Father and the children, and because they bear His Name He is going to bring them back again, to gather them from the north and the south, the east and the west, and no power can keep them away, and the family is going to be reassembled, the sons and daughters, everyone that is called by the Name of Jehovah.

Then it is also our claim to God's inheritance. We read in Isaiah lxiii, 17: "O Lord, why hast Thou made us to err from Thy ways, and hardened our heart from Thy fear? Return for Thy servants' sake, the tribes of Thine inheritance." Now the inheritance spoken of here is God's land, as you will see. God calls that land His land, and His inheritance. "The people of Thy holiness have possessed it but a little while; our adversaries have trodden down Thy sanctuary." Yes, Israel was brought into the Promised Land hundreds of years ago. They were there, yes, but it was only for a little while, and they were banished. And then it goes on: "We are Thine; Thou never barest rule over them; they were not called by Thy Name. . . ." We are His sons and daughters, and we have the right to it. The League of Nations had no power to give that Land to us, or to anyone else. Their supposed title would not stand for five minutes in any Court of Justice. They have no title to give it to us; they are usurping their authority. The Land belongs to us, given to us by God as His inheritance, because we bear His Name.

"GOD'S VENTURES."—I.

BY THE REV. W. A. BAKER (U.S.A.).

THE greatest adventure recorded in the world's history is that of Abraham; he went into a strange country on a promise given him of God.

Let me read you the promise: "Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee: and I will make of thee a great nation: and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

This covenant promise and the others made to Abraham by Almighty God have become so commonplace that we seldom stop to consider the courage, strength of purpose and steadfastness required to start on such an undertaking.

Abraham as a child was brought up to worship the moon, for his people were worshippers of that satellite. No man was ever called to a bigger adventure.

Paul has sized up the various covenants made with Abraham in these words: "For the promise, that he should be heir of the world, was not to Abraham or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith."

He is the father of the Israelitish people, who are finally to possess the earth. His name outranks Washington's and Lincoln's, our immortals of the same stock.

The Abrahamic line was cleft into three distinct and separate Houses; the first cleavage came about 1042 B.C., when God established the House of David for ever. The throne of the Lord and the throne of David are the same, and were to continue as long as sun and moon should endure.

Washington, Lincoln, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses and David are all immortals, either as pioneers, or lovers of their country and God. Patriotism is something more than emotion. It is purpose. It is spiritual.

The second cleavage came about 975 B.C. Henceforth the ten tribes are known as the House of Israel, and Judah as the

Digitized by Google

House of Judah or Jews ; this cleavage should remain to the end of this age, when they should be reunited under the throne of David.

Israel or Saacs-sons were to be a nation for ever, the final outcome reads the throne of the Lord, and the reunited nation Israel. A faith that would build upon a naked promise such as we read to you is tremendous.

This promise shows us that life is altogether too great to be easy. Phillips Brooks bade men "not to pray for easy lives, but to pray to be stronger men."

"We are here in this world not to doubt or to hesitate about things, but to live our own lives once for all with all our strength." We shall only pass this way but once, and it behoves us to make a record.

Abraham made one on a naked promise which is the envy of the world. By the acceptance of that promise he ranks high among the men of all time.

God has given him a unique place in history, there is no one to dispute with him. With Abraham's acceptance, a new factor entered the world's history and life.

The adventure of Abraham made possible the adventure of a whole nation upon new and untried lines. Abraham believed God, and from his loins there arose a great people, who centuries afterward marched out of Egypt to found a government after God's pattern.

This great national undertaking was mobilized by the Almighty, and was led and trained by Him ; for forty years He disciplined them in the Wilderness, and when they came out there were 600 thousand men trained to bear arms. No mean army for those days.

The Almighty is not a pacifist, there is nothing in the Old Testament that indicates that position. "Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him."

As an army they had few tests of their fighting ability before entering the Promised Land, but before their enemies were driven out they became seasoned soldiers.

A study of their written constitution, the first one of record in history by the light of the statutes and judgments, shows that God's idea of a perfect government is a theocratic democracy ; the best example of this extant is the British throne.

Living up to the requirements of this constitution, they were promised every temporal blessing that heart could wish, and the most honoured place among the nations of earth. The next best example is the United States of America.

This second adventure went well for a season. During the regime of Samuel the prophet, they by a majority vote repudiated the theocracy and demanded a king like the nations around about them.

The constitution, the statute laws and judgments defined the rights of all, they wanted a king who would define his own rights and make his own laws. Samuel was deeply grieved.

The Lord answered their request, and told Samuel they had not rejected him, but "they have rejected Me." God called Saul to sit on His throne, and later on said David should never want for a man of his seed to sit on the throne of the Lord, and he never has.

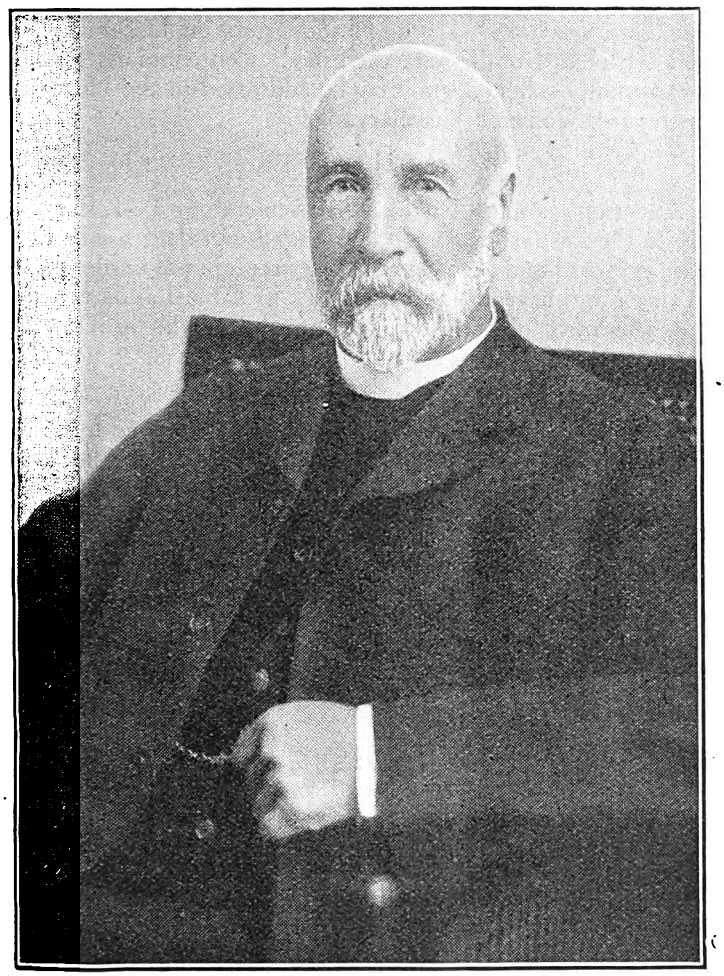
OBITUARY.

THE LATE CANON W. D. SPRINGETT, D.D.

WE regret to record the death, which occurred at Worplesdon Hall, near Woking, on Friday, September 21st, of the Rev. William Douglas Springett, D.D., Hon. Canon of Canterbury Cathedral, of 7, Ethelbert Road, Canterbury.

Canon Springett, who was seventy-eight years of age, was a Graduate of Queen's College, Oxford. He held a curacy at St. Mary's, Nottingham, from 1873 to 1876, and came to Hackington, Canterbury, in 1876. Here he remained until 1883, when he was offered and accepted the living of Hernehill, Faversham. In 1892 he became Vicar of West Tarring with Durrington, and after six years' service went to Brixton as Vicar of St. Matthew's, where he remained until 1905. Then he went to Pluckley and remained as Rector of Pluckley with Pevington until 1924. He was also Rural Dean of East Charing from 1914 until 1924. Several years ago (1919) he was appointed an Honorary Canon of Canterbury Cathedral. During his active ministry, which extended over half a century, he wielded an influence that will be lasting. He was almost as busy after his retirement, for he assisted at the services of the Cathedral and undertook duty at one or other of the churches nearly every Sunday. His charming manner, coupled with his attractiveness as a speaker, made him one of the most popular of Kent clergymen. It was always a pleasure and an education to hear him speak on the many subjects with which he was so familiar and on which he was a great authority. Being so well known and always ready to give his valuable services in the extension of God's Kingdom, many calls were made upon him. He attended numerous meetings of women's institutes in the County and also village gatherings. He was prominently identified with the Church Reading Union and was a great authority on British-Israel teaching—a subject of which he made a special study and upon which he lectured in a most fascinating way, not only in Canterbury, Dover and Herne Bay, but also in London. He took no small part in the formation of a Branch of the Federation at Canterbury a year or so ago, and gave addresses on the Pyramid.

A Vice-President of the Church Guild of Musicians, Canon Springett composed a number of hymns and wrote both words and music of the patriotic song, "Good Old Kent." A witty and original speaker, Canon Springett will be sadly missed at many of the gatherings held in the City of Canterbury. Canon Springett was a descendant of an old Sussex family, one of whose members, Gulielma Maria Springett, daughter of Sir William Springett, was married to William Penn the Quaker, after his first religious visit to the Continent. Canon Springett, about a year ago, took a prominent part in the celebrations at Canterbury of Quakers, the name usually given to that religious body more properly designated the "Society of Friends."



Canon Springett married in 1887 Katharine Harriett Dawes, second daughter of Mr. (afterwards Sir) Edwyn Sandys Dawes, of Mount Ephraim, Faversham. Canon Springett's wife survives him.

One striking and most noteworthy point in his character was this, that he never spoke ill of anyone; but always that which was good. One who has known him for over forty years once said to him, "It is no use asking you for anyone's character, for you will be sure to say it is good."

The universal esteem in which the late Canon Springett was held was evinced by the representative congregation held at the service in Canterbury Cathedral on Tuesday, September 25th, and at the interment at St. Martin's, Canterbury, and by the large number of floral tributes, one of which was from the British-Israel Federation (Canterbury Branch). QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.

QUESTION.—Your Question has been forwarded to me from Headquarters, as follows:—"Will you kindly explain to me how it is the Chinese have a record of the Flood, as the Bible definitely states the waters covered the whole earth."—H. W.

ANSWER.—I am wondering if there be a slight error in the wording of your Question, for it seems to me that it should read, "Will you kindly explain to me how it is that the Chinese have no record of the Flood . . . " etc.?

It is certainly very remarkable that stories of a flood, which sometimes covers the whole earth, while at other times it submerges only that country in which the story is related, and from which only a few people escaped, are told in many different parts of the world. Quite naturally similar features—sometimes identically the same—often recur in these stories; but in other respects the details vary considerably, some of them being exceedingly grotesque.

The chief countries in which these Flood-stories are found are Greece (Deucalion's deluge), Lithuania, Australia, Hawaii and other islands in the Polynesia, Cashmir, Thibet, Kamchatka, various parts of India, and America (where such stories are very numerous); but they do not appear to be found in Northern and Central Asia, while they are absent in Egypt, China, and Japan, and generally speaking in Africa, except where they are due to Christian influence. Probably the traditional accounts of these Flood-stories in various localities are due to the operation of different causes. Frequently they are the exaggerated and highly-coloured tradition of some historical event, or some extraordinary natural phenomenon—such as tidal waves, volcanic eruptions (and volcanic eruptions nearly always occur near the sea, cf. Vesuvius, Etna, Stromboli, Galilee, Japan, Martinique, etc., etc.), the overflow of a river, the formation or disappearance of a lake, or even the melting of the winter snows, or the bursting of a glacier dam. It is known also that some of the Flood-stories originated in some artificial desire to account for some otherwise unexplained fact, such as the early dispersion of peoples and differences of languages, together with the finding of fossil remains on dry land and even on hills.

Certain geological indications have suggested that in prehistoric or early historic times—even after the appearance of palæolithic man—there was a submergence of the crust of the earth, chiefly in Western Europe, but also in N.W. Africa, and even extending possibly as far East as Palestine, causing a great inundation of the sea, which, though of short duration, destroyed a vast amount of animal life, and a percentage of human life. This accounts for the extinction of certain animals (e.g., the hippopotamus in Sicily) and species in regions which they formerly inhabited.

However, in reply to your question, so far as is known, the Chinese have no record of the Flood. As a matter of fact the Book of Genesis does not definitely state in so many words that the waters covered "the whole earth," although it certainly implies it (cf. in another sense Isa. xi, 9; Hab. ii, 14).

On the other hand certain expressions in the Bible must be understood relatively. An instance of this will be seen in the words, "And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Cæsar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed" (Luke ii, 1). This obviously is a relative term, referring to the district in the world governed by Caesar Augustus, i.e., to the Roman Empire, which was considered, periphrastically speaking, as "all the world" at that time. The purpose of the Deluge was to show God's dealing with sin, and His provision of salvation by grace through the ark of hope and obedience, the preservation of Noah and his sons, and so the preparation of Shem's seed for the Covenant promises to be given to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and their seed for ever, in order that ultimately all the world, literally, might be saved (John iii, 16).

It traces the genealogies, by direct succession, of Their Majesties King George V., Queen Mary, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, back through the Royal House of David to Adam. It shows how the British Coat of Arms is built up from ancient emblems given to our race some 4,000 years ago. The Chart illustrates the contemporary history of the Houses of Judah and Israel.

Some independent comments which have reached the Author read as follows:—

"I think your chart and volume the best collection of B.-I. data that has ever been published. The chart is an excellent idea and gives the whole mass of evidence at a glance."

"I have your wonderful chart and key book. It is the most comprehensive study I have yet read. A joy to the Believer and an arresting study to an outsider."

"My husband is so delighted with your book that he announced it from the platform as one of the best books on B.-I.—the consequence was I sold out at once."

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE KINGDOM LAW OF DIVINE HEALING.—III.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

IN the last two issues we have considered the foundation of the Truth of the doctrine of Divine healing.

We saw that the Statute and Ordinance which established it were passed before the giving of the Commandments and the remainder of the Statutes and Judgments. With the Passover Ordinance these form the very foundation of Israel law.

We saw that the law of Divine healing was confirmed to the nation forty years later—in Deut., chapters 5–7.

We are now to look at

THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE LAW OF DIVINE HEALING IN ISRAEL.

The first national covenant made in the Wilderness with Israel contained this proviso:

> "I will even appoint over you terror, consumption, the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart."

And so on. Here was provided punishment by the appointment of diseases. That proviso was made reversible at all times, subject to Israel's repentance, and her return to the Commandments, Statutes and Judgments of the Lord. If Israel rebelled against God as a matter of settled national policy, then that punishment should run for a period of 2,520 years. That period is made very specific. There never was an act in criminal law which provided a more specific term of punishment than this. Its term was set, subject to Israel's repentance; its end was also definitely provided. When a prisoner is sentenced to prison, the governor of the prison dare not keep him one hour after the day upon which the sentence expires; but on good behaviour he may be, and usually is, released before the sentence is ended.

Israel came under the proviso and was so sentenced to punishment for seven times, or 2,520 years. During that period the Lord ceased to be, nationally, Israel's Healer; Israel during that period was divorced from the Lord. She was divorced from the Lord because she put away His Statutes, and among them the Statute of Divine healing. She put away His Ordinances, and among them the Ordinance of Divine healing. Stepping out from under the protecting wings of the Lord she has suffered horribly from indemic and epidemic diseases.

Israel did not repent; has not yet repented; but the time of Israel's punishment ended; it is not something that shall happen in the future—it is ended, thanks be to God. Let us get that into our minds. There is no legal barrier in the way of our resuming or attaining our national immunities under the new covenant to come into force "after these days" of punishment.

There is a wonderful thing here, and it might help some of you practical, hard-headed business men if we examine for a moment how that 2,520 years is measured.

JEROBOAM put away the Divine ordinances of worship, and established the worship of the golden calf. Hosea immediately prophesied, and if you will read the first chapters of Hosea, you will find Hosea, under strange figures, declaring that Israel was divorced from God. Divorced!

Let us put that down as one date, 975 B.C. Measure along the period, first of Israel history, and then of British history, for 2,520 years; and at the end of that period what do you find? You find Henry VIII divorcing the English Church from the Continental Roman Catholic Church and separating the universities of Britain from the universities of the Continent. Over what question? DIVORCE. Before he could reach the end that he desired, the authority of Rome must be divorced; and appealing from the authority of Rome to the authority of the scholarship of Europe and Britain, all the universities of the Continent went with the Pope, and the English universities went with the King, and there was an absolute divorce. 2,520 years!

Omri put away the Statutes of Jehovah. That precipitated the matter of the Captivities, and from 740–721 B.C., or thereabouts, Israel marched out into captivity. Measure along the line of Israel-British history from 740–721 B.C. to A.D. 1799–1818, and what do you get? The French Revolution on the Continent, and Britain's bid for freedom from European dominance and power; the rise of Napoleon—as he fired on British ships in Toulon Harbour, where he first met the British; and ending with Waterloo where, for the second and last time, he again met the British, and with them his Waterloo. There the 2,520 years, by the grace of God, finished. Some time we will take an hour to see how Israel went into the period of its captivity and punishment—and marched through the intervening period; then emerged from it about 1800–1820. Since that time, living in a miracle world, she has been marching on to achievement after achievement, doing a task which she was too blind and deaf to see or understand, led forward by Almighty God.

That period of punishment has gone. In the meantime ISRAEL WAS REDEEMED—mark the word—FROM HER DIVORCED CONDITION. How wonderfully Isaiah tells that story In the 50th chapter of Isaiah he begins:

> "Where is the bill of your mother's divorcement, whom I have put away?"

referring directly to Hosea's prophecy concerning Israel's divorce; then he sweeps on to the revelation of the Coming of the Redeemer to the great Redemption wrought out upon Calvary—as stated in the 53rd chapter of Isaiah—and to the glorious and immediate national results which follow the Redemption as set forth in the 54th and 55th chapters, the former ending with this verse:

> "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper, and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of Me, saith the Lord."

What has this to do with the law of Divine healing? That Jehovah Ropheka—"I am the Lord that healeth thee"—Statute and Ordinance were laid aside during that period. Israel divorced went out from under its privileges and advantages. In the Name of the ETERNAL GOD, I proclaim that period has gone; that Israel has been REDEEMED from her divorced condition; Israel only needs to return to the LORD her God and to obedience to His LAW, and Jehovah is the Healer of the nation again. Do you believe it? That doctrine is only less important than the doctrine of Salvation through the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. The law of Divine healing rests upon the Redemption, as individual salvation rests upon the Atonement. Without the Atonement there is no salvation; without the Redemption there is no national healing; but thanks be to Him Who so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, and we have both the Redemption and the Atonement.

It is now Israel's privilege, by the grace of God, to march up so close to the Throne that the fire of the Holy Ghost will burn all sickness away, individually and nationally.

In the Old Testament there were two men who very clearly understood; two men who took hold and administered the great covenant of Divine healing: viz., Elijah and Elisha. These two challenged God to cleanse the leper and to raise the dead, and He did not fail. That should have been the normal thing in Israel, but it was not. Then came Our Lord Jesus Christ. Is it not a strange thing that Our Lord declared that the power that healed was not primarily centred in Himself:

> "The word that I speak, I speak not of Myself; but the Father that dwelleth in Me, He doeth the works."

Why should Our Lord say that? Was it because He was not Divine? Certainly not; He was Divine. Was it because He had not the power in Himself? Certainly not; He had the power in Himself. As we study the Gospels carefully we find this:—Our Lord did not use His own power to save His own life; and He did not use His own power to heal or raise others. The power that He administered was the power of the Father. Jesus makes that clear.

What a wonderful ministry that of Jesus was! How our mind dwells at one time and another upon the activities of His ministry. With what crashing suddenness His healings came into the life of people. Think of that poor wretch by the Pool of Siloam—waiting, hoping, struggling, until hope was gone. I wonder what the Lord saw in his eye as He walked up and said, "Wilt thou be made whole?" "Master, I should love to be, but I am crippled, I am helpless; only one can be healed at a time, and when the angel troubles the water, while I am coming somebody else steppeth in before me." Then, suddenly, with amazement in his heart, he was walking away, praising God, healed through the ministry of Jesus Christ.

Then that woman who was following her only son out from the little village of Nain, broken-hearted, and the Master and His disciples stepped aside in the narrow path to let the cortège pass. He never could see sorrow without wanting to relieve it, and so He commanded them to stop. He said, "Young man, I say unto thee arise," and the young man stood upon his feet. What a marvellous ministry!

Let us try to understand. That ministry was not born with Our Lord in Bethlehem; that ministry did not develop with Our Lord in the years of His growth; that ministry did not come to Him at His anointing at baptism. That ministry was here all through the preceding ages from Moses to Jesus Christ. The Lord took the ministry that was provided in Israel and administered it. Is that clear? He tapped the same great stream that Elijah and Elisha did, and then He said to His disciples:—

Digitized by Google

"The works that I do shall ye do also; and greater works than these shall ye do, because I go to My Father."

That power was here before Jesus came; He "cut in" on it and administered it. He did not take it away; He did not rob the world of it; it has been here ever since, and it is here still. That power—the mighty current of the Father's power—has been here since He made the Statute and the Ordinance for ever in Israel. It is here now then. We can make the contact with that power—and there is no reason why we should not. By God's grace His people are about to be re-united to the great stream of the Divine power which makes for healing of the body, of the soul, and of the spirit.

THE GREAT ELECTION.

THE Presidential Election of the United States has just passed into history for the present quadrennium.

For the first time in the history of the Republic there was introduced the question of religion. Governor Al Smith represented the Roman Catholic political influence. For a long time this has been an active minority influence, constantly exercising pressure altogether out of proportion to its numbers upon the administrations of City, State, and the Federal Government. This time it felt itself to be within reach of attaining, with adventitious political aid, the election of a representative to the Presidential Chair.

Governor Al Smith was their selected candidate, and he went out with all the power and influence of the Roman Catholic political machinery behind him. That is to say, he went out with all the machinery of the Church, plus certain organizations and wide-reaching political agencies which are not directly a part of the Church organization considered as a religious institution, but which act under the Church's direction and control. For instance, The Knights of Columbus, many educational institutions, many great commercial organizations which employ multitudes of workers, and so forth. Every one of these influences was worked to the limit, and entered into the calculation.

Estimating these resources the Roman Catholics of the U.S.A. challenged the electorate to elect their representative to the White House.

But these resources alone could not have held out a sufficient inducement to the Roman Catholic hierarchy to risk its influence upon the general direction of affairs in an open fight at the polls. They must have other sources of vote-getting power. Nor were these wanting.

They made their influence sufficiently felt in Democratic circles to swing the PARTY NOMINATION for the Presidency to the Roman Catholic candidate. This was a far cry from Wm. Jennings Bryan. This swing-over was partly by holding out to the Democratic Party the probable opportunity of electing a Democratic President by the help of the Roman Catholic Party, if that Party could be united with the Democrats on the matter. The Convention was sufficiently united to give to Governor Smith the nomination. A similar position holds in Canada. The Liberal Government holds its tenure by the aid of the Roman Catholic vote. In return for this the Roman Catholic interests are the great care of the Liberal Party.

In addition to this factor it was hoped to lead the "wet" vote, the anti-Prohibitionists into the Roman Catholic—Democratic—anti-Prohibitionist Union camp.

With this threefold combination it was hoped to pull off the Election for the Democratic Party; the President-elect of which Election should be the chosen representative of the Roman Catholic Church—who should be pledged to a change in the Prohibition law.

The combination was a strong one in numbers, and they rolled up a large number of popular votes. But they lost out in the "Electoral College," which casts the final and effective votes for the President.

So the Democratic candidate is once more turned down; the Roman Catholic representative has been "snowed under"; and the "wet" candidate has been left standing at the post.

The result seems to say that Protestantism is safe in the United States; and that Prohibition stands unshaken. This is all that will interest our readers, for we know nothing of Party spirit in our goodwill to the great U.S.A. and all our Brethren of America.

Mr. Hoover is well known to us in Britain, and he is certainly well known in his home country. We have not the pleasure of personal acquaintance with Governor Smith. We wish him well in every direction. But we heartily congratulate Mr. Hoover and the United States on such a great Anglo-Saxon being elected to the great responsibility of the White House, and we pray God to bless him and the great people it falls to his lot to lead.

The task which has fallen upon him to take up is that of leading one mighty wing of the people chosen of God to serve and to bless the families of the earth; for the groundwork of the United States is an Anglo-Israel groundwork. The Covenants made by God with the Fathers, and the Law delivered by Him through Moses to Israel, form the basis of America's Constitution and of the administration of her laws. She also is of Israel; and Jehovah, the God of Israel, is also her God and her "great King above all gods."

May the God of our Fathers guide the progress of President-elect Hoover, and bless his administration to the people of his own land; to Anglo-Saxondom generally; and to the world.

The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., has been appointed by the Council of the B.-I.-W.F. as a Commissioner. The following resolution was adopted by the C.M.S. Committee on October 24th last:—

"That in placing on record the retirement of the Rev. T. S. Johnson after twenty-six years of Missionary service the Committee recall the varied tasks which he has undertaken alike among Sinhalese and Tamils in most of the main centres where the C.M.S. is at work in Ceylon. Acquiring a knowledge of both the chief vernaculars of the island, and also of Malayalam, Mr. Johnson has ever been ready to go where the need was most imperative, and has served ungrudgingly in pastoral and evangelistic work and in the education of the young. Mrs. Johnson, with an hereditary missionary interest in South India and Ceylon, has had an even longer term of service, having worked with the C.E.Z.M.S. for six years in Tinnevelly before commencing thirty years ago her long connection with the C.M.S. in Ceylon.

"The Committee bid Mr. and Mrs. Johnson God-speed in all future work for the Master here at home."

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

MR. HERBERT GARRISON said :

I want to begin by expressing thanks on my own behalf, and on behalf of the whole Council of this B.-I. Federation, for the excellent, devoted and loyal support given to us in this great work during the past year, and, indeed, through all the years since the Federation was founded. It has been most remarkable, and I can assure you we are deeply grateful for the wonderful things that have been done. We admire the sacrifices which we know some of you have made. I think it is right here and now to give you some slight idea of what has been accomplished, and to tell you something of what we are doing.

This is our Ninth Congress. The Federation as such has been in existence since the 3rd July, 1919. Of course many Associations existed for years before that, but the actual inauguration of the Federation took place on that day. Since that time the Movement has progressed by leaps and bounds. Since putting our hands to the plough as leaders and workers in the Movement we have never looked back. Charged with a great responsibility we have gone forward to greater things, and to greater attempts every year, and every month. We have our Headquarters in a wonderful and ideal position, right opposite Buckingham Palace, and there we have a large and devoted staff, who never strike, and who are always happy in this glorious work. Some of us can say that we would not work for any commercial concern the long hours that we work for this great Movement. We have numerous Branches over the British Isles, and in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, Africa, and the United States of America. Our Movement is extending more rapidly in all directions than ever before. In Canada they have formed a Federation within this our Federation. In the United States there is a greater activity than ever. A real effort is being made to cover that vast area, and that enormous population of some 120 millions. Our NATIONAL MESSAGE is going to large numbers in that great Republic, and the number of members there is increasing. We stand for goodwill and co-operation with the U.S.A. We have nine Commissioners, and we are constantly being called for the appointment of still more. We have divided the country up into areas. We are working systematically, and, I may say, scientifically, so to speak. We are sending lecturers all about the country and over the Empire, and hundreds of meetings are being held every month. We have issued ten million books and pamphlets, and we have circulated unnumbered leaflets in all directions. Altogether the work may be said to have made most remarkable progress, and we feel that the Hand of God is controlling it, and blessing the Movement in a marvellous way, so that it is not too much to say that now it is one of the great Movements of modern times. It is an Interdenominational Movement. Lord St. John of Bletsoe said that this was the greatest Bible Society in existence. He admitted that the British and Foreign Bible Society was supreme in the field in circulating the Scriptures, but, he said, "here is an organization that is not only circulating the Scriptures, but is giving a Scriptural interpretation thereof." We must extend the circulation of this marvellous body of literature. It has been said from our platform, and it can never be said too often, that this organization stands upon the Bible in its entirety and full authority ; the Bible first, last, and all the time. We all endorse that. I ask you in all seriousness, Tell me : is not this Movement specially needed at this time in our land ? We had a remarkable address from Dr. McConnell on the menace of Modernism. Some people, perhaps at first, were rather startled at the word "menace," but he justified the use of that word. I ask you to ask yourselves this serious, solemn, heart-searching question—What is Modernism doing to convert the masses to Christianity ? Let them show the figures and the results of their work. I will tell you what some results of their work are—they have caused such confusion in the minds of young people especially, that they have turned away from the Churches, and they are saying what the costermonger says, "We dunno where we are ! " And it is a very serious and very terrible state of affairs. It is a menace right enough, and we are right up against it. We do not say we are up against true scholarship. True scholarship we admire, and are glad to get all it can give us. "By their fruits ye shall know them." What with the menace of Modernism, and the menace of Communism, and the confusion all around, there is urgent need for our Movement, and that it should be pressed forward in the Name of the Lord God of Israel. Let us say, everyone on this platform and in this audience, "Israel, go forward in the Name of the Lord Jehovah. Follow His lead and guidance, and obey His commands. Turn not to the right hand, nor to the left. Go straight ahead. Convert the race to the Lord Jesus Christ. Tell them the story of their heritage and their birthright, and beg of them to rise to the heights of the majesty of that heritage and that birthright."

The testimony as to the value of our Movement comes from the four quarters of the globe. Thousands of atheists have been brought to Christianity by this Movement, who have declared that they could not have been brought by any other teaching. There are in our various Branches to-day quite a number of men who occupy official positions who will tell you that they were agnostics, but that they turned to the Christian faith because of the teaching for which we stand on this platform. There are hundreds of clergy and ministers, not yet in our Federation, who are entirely sympathetic with us. There are some clergy and ministers who are unsympathetic for the simple reason that they do not understand our position, and some of them are, unfortunately, misrepresenting it. But remember that the opponent of to-day may become the friend and supporter of to-morrow. There are a number of Bishops who have been with us, some of whom have passed on to the other life. There are Bishops living to-day who are standing by us, and there are many dignitaries in the Church, and some of the highest people in the land, who are supporting this Movement, and who accept our teaching. I was staying in the house of a Canon who presided at my meeting in that particular town that night simply because the Secretary of our Branch there and some of its members were members of his church, and he said this to me, "I have no more devoted, loyal supporters and no better Bible students in my congregation than those people who are members of your Branch here. I do not understand your teaching quite, but if that is what it does for the people, then more power to you." I said, "God bless you, Canon, for those noble words."

I have said that the Lord God commands His Israel to go forward. You know perfectly well that if an organization stands still, it becomes stagnant very quickly. We must go forward all the time. Now we cannot go forward without what is commonly called the sinews of war. On previous occasions I have, during the Congress, appealed for funds. I am going this year to present my appeal in a different form. I have consulted the President and the Financial Secretary, and it is agreed that our needs for this year, put at the lowest, amount to at least Ten Thousand Pounds. What a tiny sum that is by comparison with the wealth of this mighty Empire! I am going to say to you this—in the Name of the Lord God—I say it with all reverence, and with the most earnest sincerity, and as a humble instrument on the human side, I undertake and promise before God that I will be responsible personally for raising that Ten Thousand Pounds. What I ask you to do is to back me up. Let us remember the money is not ours; it is the Lord's. We have a solemn trust as stewards. All the money in the world is the Lord's, and we are His. Therefore let us realize that we are bound to do nothing less than our duty, and we may like to do even more than what might commonly be called our duty, and enjoy the privilege of doing something that may mean sacrifice. And sacrifice is the great principle of life. Let us all be prepared to sacrifice some luxury in order that money may be put into the B.-I. treasury to carry on this great work of God. I ask you to stand by me as I undertake solemnly before you all to keep this promise.

PROFESSOR ODLUM, M.A., said:

Mr. Chairman, sons and daughters of Isaac,—If you are Israelites, then you are the sons and daughters of Isaac, sure.

Now this afternoon for a while I shall talk to you about prophecy fulfilled. Very often we say there are prophecies that have been fulfilled, and prophecies that are being fulfilled, and prophecies that are going to be fulfilled. I remember when I was a boy I used to hear preachers talk about a covenant-keeping God, and I often wondered what it all meant. But as time passed I began to learn something about the covenants that God had made with certain peoples of past times. Then, later on, I began to examine for the purpose of finding out if any of these covenants had been made good, had been kept. Well, in reading I found that the Book itself indicated that many of the prophecies had been fulfilled. Let me take a case. God promised Abraham, and his people, his seed, what we call the Land of Canaan, the Holy Land, the Promised Land. Abraham was told to look to the south-west, and he would find the limits of that land, the land that was given for a national habitat. Now about four hundred years or more after that Abraham's seed came in and took possession of the land; so that the promise was fulfilled. That is one case in point. God also said to Abraham, "I have given thy seed all the land from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates." Now that land was given in the days of Abraham by the Almighty to Abraham's seed. A thousand years passed by. Jesus Christ came on the earth. A thousand years passed by; nine hundred years more passed by, and that promise was not made good. That is a long time. Now get that clear, that there was a promise made in the days of Abraham not fulfilled in the year A.D. 1900. I am not going to explain anything there at present, but I will later.

I am taking the 19th Isaiah. There is not time to deal with the whole chapter. I will cut out a great deal of what I would most sincerely like to take in order to give you a glimpse of promises not yet fulfilled. Let me begin the chapter: "Behold, the Lord rideth upon a swift cloud, and shall come into Egypt; and the idols of Egypt shall be moved at His presence, and the heart of Egypt shall melt in the midst of it." Now this is a prophecy made in the days of Isaiah, perhaps about 700 years B.C., and the Lord tells about the punishment He is going to give Egypt. He is talking to Egypt only in this chapter. After indicating many of the terrific punishments that are coming to Egypt, He then turns in another direction, and that is where I will start. "In that day shall there be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the Lord. And it shall be for a sign and for a witness unto the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt." The Lord is making a covenant of a definite character, and He is now making a covenant concerning the future of the people of Egypt, setting forth what is going to happen. He says, There is a sign; look at it. Let me illustrate that by another thing. When the Flood was over, the Lord drew the attention of Noah to a purpose in His heart, and that purpose of the Lord was that there would be no other Flood to destroy the earth, and He made a covenant with Noah and his people and his descendants down through all time, that there would not be another Flood. And He said to Noah, "I do set My bow in the clouds. Whenever you get falling rain in right relationship to the sunlight, you will see the cloud; I have provided that through the forces of nature. Now when you see the cloud you, and your descendants for all time to come, will recall My oath, My promise, that I will never bring another Flood upon the earth." I often look at the rainbow, and I remember God's promise, God's covenant. Now just turn to this great pillar in Egypt. The Lord says to the Egyptian nation, "Listen to Me. There is a pillar that you thoroughly know about; you know it to be there, and that is going to be a sign to you that I am making covenants and promises concerning you as a nation down through the ages, and when you look upon that pillar in the heart of Egypt, then recall My covenants, My promises of punishment and of blessing in the land of Egypt. You Egyptians look upon it, and remember I have made this promise in its multiplicity."

Now having that before our minds we can go forward. "It shall be for a sign, and for a witness unto the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt—for"—and you do not get that unless there is something coming—because I want you to know that a great event is coming. "For they shall cry unto the Lord because of the oppressors." Now then there was a time coming to Egypt when they would be down deep in sorrow and in trouble, and when in their trouble they would cry out for mercy and for help. Did a time ever come when the Egyptians cried out for a saviour, for a great helper, and received that saviour, that helper? Let us see. Some of you are good students of Egyptian history, and you know that from the days of Isaiah down to the year 1882, the last century, Egypt had never received a saviour. Get that history before you. There was to be a saviour come to Egypt, and there was to be a great saviour. Did he come? Let us see.

You know that about 1881-1882 Arabi Pasha and a gang of confederates forced the Government of Egypt, and began murdering the high-class people right and left. They murdered about five hundred foreigners, as well as people of our own race. And while that process was going on, the Christian papers of the world, and the Christian pulpits of the world, called to the nations of the world to interfere and save Egypt. The nations of Europe at that time that were in a position to act so feared one another, so mistrusted the purpose of one another, that they waited for some nation to lead. And the time came when out of the confusion of Europe appeared two nations—Great Britain and France, and they said to Arabi Pasha and his confederates, and in the presence of all who might hear, "Change your tactics. Get out of the position you are in and let the proper rulers of Egypt take possession of the land and have a stable Government restored." Arabi Pasha defied France and England. They sent him an ultimatum, and when it reached Arabi Pasha, he and his co-workers despised it, and defied those nations. When the time limit was up, Arabi Pasha, with his city fortified, and his armies multiplied, thought he would be able to withstand anything these two nations could do on the Mediterranean Sea. The day came when the date of the ultimatum expired, and the Fleets were getting ready for a bombardment of Alexandria. But there came to the British Admiral a message from the shores of France, and the French Fleet put up the signal to return home, and they left Britain there alone. Britain had given her ultimatum, and the time arrived, and the hour of safety was passed for the Egyptians, and the bombardment began, and the bombardment succeeded. What then? They sent sailors and marines and troops down, and they took Arabi Pasha by the neck, and lifted him up, and put him on a British warship, and took him to the Isle of St. Helena, and placed him there in safe keeping, as they had done with Napoleon earlier in the century.

I was talking about the grammar of the Bible. Do you notice it says, "He shall send them a saviour"—not saviours. Two saviours apparently appeared on the horizon of the Mediterranean Sea, but God had said saviour, therefore the French Admiral and his Fleet had to return to France. God said saviour, and there would not be saviours permitted in the transaction. I mentioned a little while ago that God gave to the seed of Abraham all the land from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates, and that land had never come into the hands of Israel, the seed of Abraham. In 1882 Great Britain took possession of Alexandria and Cairo, and placed a Governor there to rule in equity and for the salvation of the people of Egypt, and they have ruled directly and indirectly from then down to this hour. The saviour stayed there. The nations of the world wanted that saviour to get out. Yes, and the process of national salvation is going on there now, even though there are some people that are doing their best to break British rule in the land. "The Lord shall smite Egypt; He shall smite and heal it; and they shall return even to the Lord, and He shall be intreated of them, and shall heal them." That prophecy is not fulfilled; they have never returned unto the Lord. They have not come to Him yet. Therefore in the midst of the fulfilling of various parts of that wonderful prophecy there are several parts clearly indicated that have yet to be fulfilled.

"In that day shall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian shall come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians shall serve with the Assyrians. In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt and with Assyria, even a blessing in the midst of the land." If you go back here and follow through that chapter you will find that Isaiah under inspiration is specifying a great prophetic day, and the word "day" is the same word as is used when twenty-four hours are intended. But it is also used as sometimes three days are mentioned, or a week is mentioned under the term many years, and even a thousand years. And here is a case. If you add 700 B.C. to 1,900, you would get 2,600 years in that day. You cannot tie up the word to twenty-four hours only, but it may mean thousands of years. Well, now, in that prophetic day of Isaiah, "In that day shall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria," that prophetic day is running along now. Was that highway ever built? Take the first 700 years after the prophecy down to the Coming of Christ, there was never an attempt at building it. The Great War came in 1914, and the saviour of Egypt that had gone there in 1882 had to save Egypt from the Turks and the Germans and the others that were coming in. Our British troops started out, and pushed them away from the Red Sea, and away through the Arabian Desert, and in order to do that very work they had to make the means whereby they could carry their commissary department and the ammunitions and the soldiers northward from Egypt, and to do that they had to build a highway. And they built a highway, and pushed them back, and continued the highway. And side by side with that highway they constructed water pipes to carry the water from the Nile for the troops moving north, and the highway proceeded northward to Gaza and to Jerusalem, and to Haifa at the base of Mount Carmel, across into the Jordan Valley, at the south of the Sea of Gennesareth, and across Moab and on into the land of Assyria. 1,900 plus 700 years—2,600 years—and the highway not undertaken. Great Britain comes in, and the war starts, and Turkey enters the war, and then the highway begins. And I had the pleasure and the honour and the supreme satisfaction of travelling on that highway prophesied by Isaiah, the highway of the Lord. And I slept comfortably in a sleeping car, and I ate a satisfying meal provided in the dining-car, and I saw them going on their journeys from Egypt in the direction of the land of ancient Assyria, and coming back with them on the journey into the land of Egypt. Isaiah was inspired to say something, and the time came when that something, at least in part, was fulfilled. I told you about the promise made to Abraham concerning the mighty gift of land from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates. There is only one river of Egypt, the Nile river. Just get that clear. I said that in 1882 Israel-Britain, the seed of Abraham, began to take possession of that land. They went in to be governors over the people, and ruled in harmony with their rulers appointed by the people. But the Promised Land had not yet come into the hands of God's ancient people, for it took all the land from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates. What happened when our men were driving back the Turks and their confederates up through Arabia, and out of Palestine from Egypt? Our other troops were over yonder by the river Euphrates in the valley driving our enemies back to Bagdad, and the British Army, going up by the two journeys, captured the entire Turkish enemy army. There was none of them left in the land; and the whole Land of Promise, from the river of Egypt to the mighty river Euphrates, came under the rule of British-Israel, the seed of Abraham, according to promise.

"In that day shall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian shall come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians shall serve with the Assyrians." They are not only to serve with one another, and to serve their masters, but to serve with and through them their great Master in Heaven which is to come according to the other promises. There is the land of Assyria; there is the land of Egypt. And in that day when the great highway would be built and operating, Israel was to be in the midst of these people, the Assyrians and the Egyptians. Now, who is in the midst yonder between Assyria and Egypt at the present moment of time? Why, it is our Israel Empire that is there, co-operating with the Ishmael, the seed of Abraham also. It is a proof that the British people are Israel, and Israel is Britain. And there is Israel's brother Judah, and Israel's brother Ishmael, the Arab. "Whom the Lord of hosts shall bless, saying, Blessed be Egypt My people, and Assyria the work of My hands, and Israel Mine inheritance." Egypt My people. Have any of you read that, and thought about it? I look away back to the days of Joseph and his father and others who went down there, and I watch them there for hundreds of years, and I see them there being protected from the enemies round about. They were treated properly by the old Egyptian ruler of the shepherd kings. "Egypt shall return even to the Lord." There was a time when Egypt served the Lord in the days of Joseph, in the time of the shepherd kings. But the Lord says that they will come again; they are "My people Egypt." And then He says, "Assyria is the work of My hands, and Israel Mine inheritance." Is He that? God's inheritance on this earth, His own people Israel? That is His word, not mine. I have a people who are Mine inheritance. At the time that highway was built Israel was God's inheritance, and that prophecy was fulfilled by Israel, His inheritance. Did you notice that there was not one portion of the French Army permitted to go over to help reclaim that land from the Turk, not one portion of the Italian Army, nor of the Russian Army, or any other nation of the world; only our own men of the British Isles, and of the other parts of our great Empire; they, and they alone, went and took possession of the Land of Promise; and the other nations had not one finger in the pie, so to speak, in reclaiming that mighty inheritance for our people

THE REV. W. H. STUART-FOX, M.A., said:

Fellow Citizens of Israel,—I want you to go back in your thought over the centuries to a great night in the history of Babylon. There has been a great feast, and it is the closing stage of a scene of drunken debauchery, and when profanity has gone the length of using the sacred vessels from the Temple in the City of Jerusalem, there comes forth the fingers of a man's handwriting upon the wall. That act of writing on the wall has become proverbial. We speak of the writing on the wall. Our Lord rebuked the Churchmen of His day because they failed to read the writing on the wall, and the blindness of the Churchmen of our day is equally reprehensible and guilty, because they do not see the writing on the wall, and the many indications in the world to-day that we are living in momentous days. And not least solemn and impressive amongst the signs of the times is the religious outlook. The forces of Communism are closing in their ranks in every country to-day, and are only kept in check in several of the nations in Europe by strong dictatorship, who suffer Christianity, not because they love the Founder, but because they realize that Christianity is the mainstay of morality and social order—and the only mainstay. In 1925 a Modernist missionary leader in China published and sent broadcast through the Press to every mission station in China the words that Lenin, the Russian Red leader, and the Soviet Chinese Red leader (men who had performed abominable cruelties amongst their own people), that these men possessed those very qualities that were admired most in Jesus Christ. And scarcely was the print dry upon the page before there broke out that great anti-foreign and anti-Christian movement in which ninety-five per cent. of the missionaries had to evacuate their mission stations, and in which hundreds of thousands of pounds' worth of British mission property was destroyed. The field of pure doctrine is nowhere left intact to-day. On every side it is invaded, as St. Paul foretold in his Letters to Timothy long ago, by seducing spirits, and doctrines of demons, such as Spiritism, paralysing speculations of an unsanctified scholarship, such as Modernism, and by the conscience-enslaving and soul-destroying power of Romanism.

Then how many of our scholars, so-called, and theological professors, have given themselves over body and soul to that interpretation of the Bible that goes by the elastic name of Modernism. You know Our Lord had His own way of dealing with the Modernist and Traditionalist of His day. He did not address them as "Rev. Sir," or "Dr." He said: "Woe unto you, hypocrites." One of His pungent sayings was: "You strain at a gnat, and you swallow a camel." There are many men who are swallowing Evolution; there are those who are swallowing Transubstantiation. But all alike they choke over the sure Word of prophecy. At a Modernist Church Conference the other day we were told that a large part of the Old Testament had gone into liquidation, and if the Church cries out, What are we to do because of this semi-bankruptcy, they tell us we are to invest our faith in heathen stock, and that we are to substitute for the Scriptures (they say that have failed us) the best writings of heathen religious literature. Why common-sense, altogether apart from conviction, should cry a halt against that perversive and abusive propaganda against our British-Israel teaching that is seeking to destroy one of the most convincing weapons in the Christian arsenal against the Modernist attack.

And just another thing. Cardinal Bourne says we are going to do away with the Act of Succession, and make Roman Catholicism on a level with Protestantism.

We have been hearing a great deal to-day about Tribulation, and the days of darkness through which we are passing. All who are students of the Word of God, and who watch the signs of the times, must realize that this nation is passing through a dark and straitened period, but to be obsessed with the thought of the Tribulation is to be a pessimist, and pessimism cuts the nerve of all endeavour. A man met a friend one day, and he asked him how he was. He said he was all right under the circumstances. His friend told him he had no right to be under the circumstances, "you must be on top of them," he said. What we want is to get on top of the Tribulation. We want to keep our faces towards the triumph that is coming, and our eyes shall see the glory of the Coming of the Lord. You remember how in that great manifesto of the King that we call the Sermon on the Mount He told His disciples to pray like this. Let me give you the translation of Fenton: "Our Father, Thy Kingdom must be being restored. Thy will must be being done on earth as in Heaven." There is no question about it; there is no "if" mark about it. Just before He departed Jesus said to His disciples, "Go and teach all nations, and lo, I am with you, I, the King, am with you." The disciples said, "Wilt Thou at this time restore the Kingdom to Israel?" His reply was, "Never mind about that. You are My witnessess; witnesses to the King, and that is enough. Lo, I am with you all the days." And they went out, and the Lord went with them, and confirmed the word with signs following. What was he working at? The restoration of the Kingdom. Amid the battle smoke there arise the towers and walls of another Empire that has been perpetuated by the oath of Jehovah, and that bears upon it the marks of God. "God is in the midst of her; therefore she shall not be removed." But looking round to-day we realize that as Ephraim once turned to idols, Ephraim is turning again to idols. But will God permit that? I do not believe He will. It may backslide, but He will save it from apostasy. He will bring it through the fires of tribulation, and will purify it. He has undertaken to bring this nation back to Himself, and to do all He has promised to do. It is our part as we go out from this meeting to get to the work of witnessing, to get to our knees in an act of intercession, and then "let God arise, and let His enemies be scattered, and let all that hate Him flee before Him."

"GOD'S VENTURES,"—II.

BY THE REV. W. A. BAKER (U.S.A.).

THE promise given them was, if they obeyed the constitution and its requirements, that God would make them the head of all nations. If not, they should be scattered for a period, and then redeemed and re-gathered. All these statements and more have been fulfilled in the history of the House of Israel and the House of Judah.

Judah has no national life, but Israel has become the dominant power of earth. The Jew, descendants of Judah, are found in every land on earth, there are several millions of them.

Their decline and fall was a gradual one, and covered several centuries, but the siege of Jerusalem about A.D. 70 completed their ruin as a nation. They did not recognize their King when He visited them, they refused Him and His rule, and chose Barabbas, the robber, in place of Him.

And the leadership of the world passed to Israel of the Isles, where the throne of the Lord awaits the Coming of David's greater Son.

Autocracy, whether ecclesiastical or temporal, has always been the enemy of God. Autocrats make use of God to further their aims and purposes, but do not render Him either service or obedience if it conflicts with their purposes.

Our last war was the most tremendous indictment against autocracy that the world has ever known, as exemplified by the Kaiser. They always have and always will be antagonistic to civil and religious liberty for the mass.

Israel of the Isles is the nation that Our Lord referred to when He told the Jews that the Kingdom of God should be taken from them and given to the nation bringing forth the fruits thereof. If you will turn to the last part of the Book of Isaiah, from the 40th chapter on to the rest of the Book, it treats very largely on Israel of the Isles, and what she is to do, and what she is to accomplish nationally and internationally down to the end of the age.

While Israel of the Isles was gathering strength hidden away in the hollow of God's hand, He was shaping things so as to fulfil the promises made Ephraim and Manasseh 1,689 years before Christ.

Up to A.D. 1607 Britain had no Colonies. A great event happened in 1492, when Christobal Colan, popularly called Christopher Columbus, a Spanish Jew who had become a Roman Catholic, sailed westward and became the opening wedge for adventure number three.

In the year 1750 there were three constitutionally-governed countries in the world: Sweden, Switzerland, England and the thirteen American Colonies.

When God began to mobilize His forces for a third constitutional government under the commandments, statutes and judgments of His chosen people, He went to Israel of the Isles, and gathered from the English-speaking Anglo-Saxons the choicest of the spiritual and natural seed of Abraham.

With this gathered handful, who considered the right of worshipping God according to the dictates of their own conscience of more value than life itself, the Lord set out to form a new nation.

Like Abraham, they left their own land, their kindred and father's house, and journeyed across a stormy ocean, and landed upon the rocky shores of New England: a tractless forest confronted them, savage people were north, south and west of them.

Storms, wintry blasts and insufficient shelter decimated their numbers during that first awful winter, but the spirit that upheld Abraham kept them firm, steadfast and immovable. A noble band, none nobler in the world's annals. They builded better than they knew.

When they were marching down to the seashore at Delf

Haven, before embarking from England for America, their pastor, Rev. Robinson, led the procession with an open Bible in his hands, and as they marched he read these words:

"Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land I will shew thee; and I will make of thee a great nation, and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Prophetic words!

The first national undertaking mobilized by the Almighty marched under four standards, a flag or standard was carried at the corners of their square formation; they corresponded to the four zodiacal groups of stars forming a square in the sky.

For Judah and its group, the Lion (or Leo); for Joseph or Ephraim and its group, the Bull (Taurus); for Reuben and its group, a Man and a River (Aquarius); for Dan and its group, a Serpent or Scorpion (Scorpio); also the Eagle (Aquila), not in the zodiac.

The third national undertaking mobilized by the Almighty bore its standard: the Cross of St. George. For 156 years we were sheltered and cradled by Old England, and then the German despot, George III, forced us to rebel against his tyranny. We split apart on the same rock as Israel and Judah.

The first split was of the Lord and the second was also, as you will see by turning to Isa. xlix, 20. How Israel or the ten tribes reached the Western Isles and became Israel of the Isles is too long a story to dwell upon now.

Israel of the Isles has had several children, but she has never lost but one of them, the United States of America, whose Biblical name is Manasseh. It is said that 300 out of every 400 prophecies found in the Book refer to Israel or the ten tribes, and have no reference to the House of Judah or the Jew whatever.

George III was singularly narrow-minded. He has been aptly called a German drill-sergeant. He was a non-representative ruler, who held the reins and obstinately drove counter to the national conscience.

By 1770, six years before the Declaration of Independence, King George succeeded in forming a ministry, with Lord North at its head, which was completely submissive to his will. This held to 1782.

Having secured the control of the ministry and Parliament, George III proceeded to lead the British Empire straight towards what Goldwin Smith has justly called "the most tragic disaster of English history."

The policy initiated by the King and his tools led swiftly and inevitably to civil war, for that was what the American Revolution was. If George III had triumphed, not only would we have lost our liberty, but the right of Parliament to be predominant in affairs of State would have vanished also.

Let us not forget that many Englishmen from the very first, and in the end a decided and very large majority, were in favour of the Colonies.

Nor that, in the year 1782, the English people solemnly and deliberately abandoned the attempt to reconquer America, on the ground it was both wrong and foolish.

Lord Chatham, whose son, Lord Pitt, had joined the Army in 1774, withdrew him from the Service in February, 1776, so that he might not fight in the unhappy war with our fellow-subjects of America.

Some of the English officers flatly refused to serve against America. Here was the place where we met German Despotism. We saved England and ourselves at that time from German autocracy, and to-day we should rejoice together.

The revolutionary war saved liberty for the world, and left England free to sow its seeds in every land. No great organization of history has been more consistently successful in its efforts than the British Government and nation.

The successes of this loose-jointed Empire has been particularly galling to its rivals. The fight against German Despotism made us a free and independent country. German autocracy from the beginning has been the foe of Sinai's platform of government; it still is, and it is one of its most malignant enemies. The German slogan, "Might is Right," is a repudiation of that platform.

In a world like this, Sinai's platform, God's chosen form of government, must be under His particular care. This is the real reason why we as a people always have and still have the right to feel that we are under God's special care and guidance.

That fact, however, will not save us from chastisement if we deserve it. We have much to be thankful for. In spite of our laxness and carelessness, and the failure to gird our loins and go forward in 1914, He has protected us at our forefront and our rearward; He was better to us than we deserved.

Armistice Day, and the treaties, agreements since then, have not cleared the atmosphere of its thunder clouds. The American Commission reported six years ago that there were more causes existing at that time for war than in 1914.

The Sinai platform of government is God's ideal of governing. Autocracy came up out of the pit. When the Kingdom of God invaded the world with this platform it had to fight for its existence. Its foes have been as virulent within as without, and are still.

The invasion of the world by the Anglo-Saxon, God's Kingdom race, with the platform of Sinai as its guide and mentor, thus far has been a great success. Its stiffest battles lie ahead of us, the greater part of the world hate the platform of Sinai.

In 1914 Satan offered the Kaiser the world, but he did not deliver the goods. He has now offered it to the proletariat, that portion that believe in Socialism, Radicalism, Bolshevism and Atheism.

The Kingdom of God represented by Israel of the Isles, the United States and some scattered portions of Europe have a great task before them. Since the Kingdom of God was established in Sinai, His throne has always been on the earth somewhere.

It has more than one mission, it is the great carrier of the Gospel, and it is also God's fighting force to subdue nations. Speaking of Israel of the Isles, Isaiah says "No weapon formed against thee shall prosper." And again "They that strive with thee shall perish." Jer. li, 19, calls Israel God's battle-axe.

When Israel passed out of the Wilderness it was to fight for God, home, and promised land. The mobilization of 1914 was to save the platform of Sinai, so that mankind could still live under the Commandments, Statutes and Judgments of the Most High.

Prussianism meant a world without God. The Sinai platform means a world governed by the Almighty, and one great national life; it means the return of the King in power and glory to possess the throne of God and His father David.

God has been training His people for this present page of history. The last war did not settle the status of the platform of Sinai, the gathering forces of the hour are determined to destroy it; to accomplish it they must destroy the Anglo-Saxon race or Israel.

This race is the keystone of the platform of Sinai; that platform with its Commandments, Statutes and Judgments is hated and always has been by the seed of the serpent; the seed of the woman furnishes its earthly support.

Prewritten history shows these forces have only been sparring thus far, the final conflict has not yet arrived. If we do not rise to the calls of the hour, we are not worthy of our earthly inheritance, nor of our heavenly one.

The Kingdom of God is the world's garden spot; there are things in it, still, that offend; the enemy has sowed many a tare in the course of the ages, but the time is near at hand when the tares will be gathered up and burned, and all things that offend be destroyed.

In the year 1486 B.C. God called a great people out of Egypt; they travelled to Mount Sinai, and the Lord established the Kingdom of God on the earth, with them as its subjects. He has never done that with any other people. That wonderful event made them a peculiar people.

There they began their national life, it was a nation born in a day. In the Old Testament we have a historical record of this Kingdom and people; a large part of this record is prewritten history, much of this has been fulfilled.

The Kingdom of God established at Sinai is the key to the New Testament; a part of the New Testament is prewritten history, it elaborates and fills out things that are to occur in the Last Days.

Most of the record given, however, had transpired when written, except the prophetical, and these prophecies are mainly found in the sayings of Christ and St. John's Revelations.

No careful reader of the Holy Scriptures and of history can fail to see that amongst the nations there has been one which, in a very special sense, has been under the Divine care and protection.

We refer to Israel. Its origin took the form of a miracle. They were led out of Egypt miraculously, they were sustained in the Wilderness for forty years by direct Divine and supernatural means.

Miracle, signs and wonders have been attendant on this race throughout their history; they are the miracle of history. It has become a proverb that it spells disaster to the nation or people who seek to hurt the House of Judah, that part of Israel who have lost their national life.

There was a second mobilization of a part of this race by the Almighty. This second mobilization was called by Isaiah "Israel of the Isles"; this mobilization covered a period of seventeen centuries—a long, long time.

It was done secretly, so that the people might gather their strength. Britain, this second section, has been as wonderfully preserved, and kept and sustained in their hours of danger as when they marched into the Promised Land under the leadership of Joshua.

When Israel of the Isles organized as a nation it was under the platform of Sinai. (In the reign of King Lucius Britain became a Christian nation.) 2 Sam. vii, 10, speaks of an appointed place for Israel in his time.

"Moreover I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more as aforetime."

There have been, according to one English writer, seventy-five attempted invasions since the Romans quitted Britain's shores A.D. 409. All failed, as guaranteed by that verse in Samuel just quoted.

"When Francis of France in 1645 came with his Armada, he dared not land until he destroyed the British Fleet. The wind dropped to a persistent calm, the hot weather produced a pestilence that destroyed thousands, the rest returned."

What happened to the Spanish Armada in 1588 is history. "Some 200 years later the great Napoleon planned for the invasion of England. Armed wagons stood outside the Bank of England ready to move the treasure inland to Worcester."

"Wagons were also ready to remove those in the coast towns. At Edinburgh the sentry stood ready to light the beacon fire. 'Do you think we can effect a landing?' asked one of Napoleon. 'Yes,' replied the great man. 'I think we can get in, but I question if ever we shall get out again.' And he wisely did not attempt the same."

Here are three cases among many. Our national life is the third mobilization of a part of Israel; this took 156 years, no one was consulted, it was planned by the Lord of Hosts, in fulfilment of the promise that Manasseh should become a great people.

The prophecy has come true, God has prospered our undertakings. He has helped us marvellously. We have fought with John Bull (Ephraim) twice, disagreement among brothers is a frequent occurrence.

Manasseh north and south of Mason and Dixon's fought each other; it was a cruel war, but the result was the freeing of the black slaves of the south. No alien race has planted their flag on our shores, our land is free from the tread of the alien victor, no weapon that has been lifted against us has prospered.

Israel in all her mobilizations has always been planted under the platform of Sinai, she always runs true to form. She is not only ruled by that platform, but all her possessions acquired by war or otherwise are placed under the same benignant rule.

Autocracy in its varied forms, material and spiritual, will again open its mouth against the Kingdom of God for its overthrow; in this last great battle all Israel here and in other lands will be tested as never before. If we are too proud to fight we shall perish.

God's Kingdom was established at Mount Sinai; as the "host of God," we are His battle-axe. He met Joshua, as the captain of the Lord's host at Jericho, and they were a conquering army in His hands as they swept into the Promised Land.

The forces of good and evil are approaching the final struggle which closes the period of time in which our lot is cast. We cannot be neutrals. Yesterday Rum and Rome raised their standard to capture this part of the Kingdom of God.

They are both haters of our constitution and of civil and religious liberty. Rome is the most intolerant religious body in the world, but they want us to be tolerant while they tie our hands and feet.

I think our past Election is the most important and momentous one since that of Abraham Lincoln before the Civil War. Anglo-Saxondom has three internal foes besides the nations that hate the platform of Sinai.

They are Rum, Rome and Russianism. Why has God planted the platform of Sinai so that it belts the world, and holds under its rule one-third of the habitable earth? If not to establish the Kingdom of David for His Son, the rightful heir and ruler.

Rum and Rome have planted their standard here in order to capture one of the greatest strongholds of Protestantism; it is the most daring assault yet attempted upon our liberties. Every lover of his country should rally for its defence.

Every patriotic citizen should vote for the continuance of the Sinai platform in our national life. The Common Law of the Kingdom is antagonistic to Roman Law. The Common Law says of the prisoner that he is innocent until he's proved guilty; the Roman Law says the prisoner is guilty unless he can prove himself innocent.

Roman Law suits the Papacy; Common Law Protestantism.

In 1776 a new flag was born, it had 13 stripes, 7 red and 6 white; in the corner was a square painted with heaven's blue, and on that blue ground were 13 stars, every one of them stars of hope.

Think for a moment of the land of our birth, as it stretches from coast to coast, with its ten thousand miles of water front, its fruitful plains and valleys, its thousand miles of inland seas, its great rivers bisecting our land north and south.

Of the majestic Rockies, with their snow-clad peaks, the Sierras, and that wonderful chasm, the Grand Canyon. And then think of Old Glory, sun-kissed and wind-billowed in the sky, from Plymouth Rock to the Golden Gate, from our northern border to the Gulf of Mexico.

And then remember this vast domain, this beautiful land, is God's present to Manasseh, Joseph's eldest son. Rejoice I say to-day, and again I say rejoice, "and all within you bless and praise His Holy Name."

B.-I. IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

MR. E. E. RICHARDS, Organizing Secretary of the Victoria British-Israel Association, has had a very successful trip through the Okanagan Valley and West Kootenay in Southern British Columbia.

He spent a month in the various towns speaking on British-Israel facts, and says that in all places visited there was unmistakably a dawning consciousness of the true origin of the British race, and its identity with the long-lost track of "House of Israel," the consensus of opinion among many clergy and laymen interviewed being that when this is more widely known and accepted it will form common ground on which the various sects of the Christian Church can meet and adjust their differences. It would thus provide a basis of lasting unity and strength. It would also revive the nation's faith in God, and in the Bible as the Word of God. This, in turn, would create clarity and vision, which would enable the Empire —the Nation and Company of Nations—to move forward to its God-given destiny, and to become the "powerful" blessing to all nations it was, and is intended to be.

Mr. Richards began his itinerary in Armstrong, where there is a good working Association, with an energetic Executive; a well-attended meeting was the result. The lecture given was "Throne of David in Britain," illustrated by lantern slides. Going on to Vernon—a more populous place—he preached morning and evening in the Baptist Church, and gave two addresses on the Monday and Tuesday following. While here he received a visit from the Bishop of the Diocese (Dr. Doull), an old and valued friend.

In Rossland, by the goodwill of the Rector (Rev. C. A. Blay), he preached in St. George's Anglican Church at the morning service. Gave two illustrated lectures in the Armouries, at which the Rector presided, and one in the Salvation Army Headquarters. Many B.-I. friends worked hard in preparing the way here, and the fine turn-out was entirely due to their efforts.

At Trail arrangements were made whereby Mr. Richards was able to give an illustrated lecture on the "Early British Church" to the Men's Club. This is a very useful and much-appreciated institution, organized by Rev. Norman Larmonth, Vicar of St. Andrew's Church, on non-sectarian lines for the benefit of the men employed at the large smelting works here.

Nelson was reached on Thursday and a meeting held the same night, the outcome of which was that the privilege of the Baptist Church pulpit was extended to him for the next Sunday morning, also the use of the Church for the following two days, at which illustrated lectures were given. Trinity United Church did its bit in kindly announcing these latter at their Sunday services. The attendance was very good, and the Pastor's closing words very encouraging. He is taking steps to have a selection of B.-I. books placed in the Public Library. An illustrated address was also given in the Anglican Church of The Redeemer, the Rector presiding. Returning homeward, a stop-over was made at Princeton, friends found, and promises of co-operation from the clergy for a series of meetings in the near future received. 1,432 miles were travelled, 17 addresses given, in most places for the first time. The promise for the future is great.

DESPERATE STRAITS.

AS a result of sifting the news over a period of months—always a difficult business, since a great part of it is propaganda —we arrive at the conclusion that things in Russia grow worse rather than better, and that being in desperate straits the Bolsheviks incline more than ever to desperate counsels. The root of their trouble is, as usual, economic. In the spring, under the lead of Stalin, they took fanatical and extremely foolish action against the kulaks, or rich peasants; the only people in Russia who can produce grain for export or town consumption in large quantities. This war on the peasants is a kicking against the pricks; the inevitable result is a decreased supply of grain, and increasing discontent in the industrial population. A great part of Russia is again in a state approaching famine; the food queues in the towns have become informal indignation meetings which are thought so dangerous that women-spies have been introduced among the people who wait for bread, so that "anti-revolutionists" may be discovered.

Stalin, who is General Secretary of the Communist Party, is at feud with the old gang, in particular the followers of Trotsky, and appeals against them to their own doctrines, from which he says they have fallen away. His policy, obviously, is to maintain himself upon the fanaticism of the Communist rank and file, and in following this expedient he is driven to more and more desperate measures. To support the revolutionary cause against the ever-growing discontent of the people he has increased the pay both of the Ogpu, or Terrorist organization, and the Red Army, and, as some diversion from the ruin at home is urgently required, the Soviet presses on with measures for creating that often-promised and long-delayed revolution in "Capitalist countries." These measures include "penetration" of the Imperialist forces of defence, and here we see the necessity of closing our arsenals and dockyards against Communist agents. The Armies and Navies of the West are, of course, special objects of attention, but the programme includes all "Capitalist" organizations—railways, factories, political parties, Government offices, any place, in short, in which the seed of revolution may be sown. Nor does it stop there, for the actual wrecking of plant and transport is advocated as a means of promoting unrest and training recruits in the class war to come. For war of one sort or other Soviet Russia is evidently preparing. Her Press boasts that the Red Army and Air Force are ready, and claims that she has the means, in her world-wide network, of so disabling her enemies that they will be paralysed when the moment comes for her to strike. We have had such experience of her power for evil that it would be folly to dismiss these open warnings as mere idle boasting. It is an old and true maxim of statecraft that foreign wars are to be expected from Governments which are bankrupt of credit and support at home.

That war on "Imperialism"—by which is meant Great Britain—might come as the last throw in a desperate gamble is an eventuality which we cannot afford to ignore. It is no secret that the attack launched by Afghanistan on the frontiers of British India in the spring of 1920 was both prompted and supported by Bolshevik influences, which were not confined by the Pamirs, but were so strong in the plains of India that they nearly brought off a revolution in the Punjab and in Peshawar, and threatened the peace of Bombay and Calcutta. Checked for a time by energetic military measures, they were never uprooted, and are probably as strong as ever at the present time. These are some of the considerations which should make the British Government and the British public more than usually vigilant. We do not fear an attack as long as Great Britain is guarded by a Government united and strong on this issue; but were the electorate to be so foolish as to deny support to the present Administration in favour of a Party which has toyed and flirted with Bolshevism, this peril of a revolutionary offensive would at once become imminent. In the face of such threats as are being freely made in the Soviet Press to-day, it would be madness to take risks or relax precautions.—From The Morning Post.

OBITUARY.

THE LATE MR. JAMES MONCRIEFF.

A WIDE circle of friends will receive with deep regret the news of the death of Mr. James Moncrieff, Glasgow. Mr. Moncrieff had been associated with the British-Israel Movement in the West of Scotland for about forty years. His activities had been mainly associated with the Scottish-Israel Identification Association which meets in the Christian Institute on Sabbath evenings, and here for the greater part of his life he laboured and served. He invariably led the praise, and of late years was its principal mainstay. It is on record that when the speaker failed to appear, he was conductor, chairman and lecturer. Upon the reconstitution of the Northern British-Israel Council—of which he was a valued member—he became active in the work of the other two Branches in Glasgow, the South Suburban and Hillhead. In the latter he was leader of praise. His papers to the Associations mentioned were always full of matter which revealed the careful student and much painstaking research. This, together with a clear, resonant voice, made him at all times an interesting speaker

Mr. Moncrieff, however, will always be associated with the later developments of Great Pyramid study. Mr. Clemishaw in the introduction, and Mr. Davidson in the preface to "The Great Pyramid: Its Divine Message," both refer to his part in that great work. The present writer had the full story from Mr. Moncrieff some years ago. About the year 1900 Mr. Davidson as a young man had been carried away with the teachings of Mr. Robert Blatchford and others. The hold upon him was so great that, as stated in the above-mentioned work, he was "studying Egyptology as accessory to agnostic criticism of the Scriptures." This was a terrible blow to Mr. Davidson's mother, and her whole theme to Mr. and Mrs. Moncrieff was—her boy. Turning to Mr. Moncrieff upon one of these occasions she said: "Mr. Moncrieff, can you do nothing for Dave?" What a volume is written in these pleading words; the outpouring of a mother's love. Mr. Moncrieff had at that time a little penny book on the Pyramid by the late Col. Senior. Knowing the mathematical tendencies of Mr. Davidson, he handed it over in the prayer and hope that it would accomplish its purpose. Mr. Davidson saw the great possibilities contained in the small book and at once took up the subject. Both were busy men, and it was only on Sabbath evenings that there was time for talk. Week after week they met and, with the Bible for text-book, they searched the Scriptures, their only desire being to get at the Truth. On many occasions it was 1 a.m. before they separated. So began that twenty years' life study which has given to us the Great Pyramid as we know it to-day. Its message has gone to the ends of the earth and who shall measure its effects? Eternity only will reveal the magnitude of it.

We have stated that Mr. Moncrieff was a leader of praise. Music seemed to be a part of his being, and at the early age of eighteen he was leading a choir. In Hawick he was precentor in different Churches under the late Rev. Duncan Stewart and the late Professor Orr. Coming to Glasgow, he was precentor in St. Columba U.F. Church, Govan, for the long period of twenty-two years. This he relinquished in 1912. During the Great War period he was employed in the brass foundry of the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Co., Ltd., and in 1917 raised the Fairfield Male Voice Choir. Hearing of this, the ladies in the firm asked him to conduct a Ladies' Choir. An Association was formed to aid the Douglas Haig Fund, and in its second year handed over the sum of £62. In 1918, at the Munitions Festival, he was led on to the platform to receive the Gold Medal for his Ladies' Choir, and amidst great enthusiasm was led on again to receive the Silver Medal for his Mixed Choir. Two years later, at the Glasgow Musical Festival, he won the Bronze Medal as first prize for his Mixed Choir. Commenting upon this trait of his character, Mr. Davidson writes: "It is extraordinary that he was my father's friend, and my mother's friend after father died, and then my friend. He taught my father the theory of music and then, about twenty-five years later, introduced me to the Great Pyramid. He has trained some wonderful singers and some wonderful choirs."

The giving, however, was not all on one side, for Mr. Davidson's mother, as a member of Mr. Moncrieff's Choir in its early days, brought to him one evening a new contralto singer, who later became Mrs. Moncrieff. Had both been spared until the summer of next year they would have celebrated their golden wedding.

Mr. Moncrieff had for many years been troubled with bronchitis, and about a year ago retired from active work. His activities, however, could not lie idle, and he was always alive to opportunities of service. A week before his death he delivered a lecture to some old men who had formed a club. On his way he contracted the chill from which he did not recover. He lived his life and it was full of service. To those who knew him, the greatest trait was his humility. His disposition was bright and wherever he went he brought sunshine. Those who had the privilege of spending an evening with his family felt the full force of this influence. To his widow in her indifferent health, to his family at home, and to his daughter in far-off Canada, the prayers and sympathy of their Israel friends are extended. To them may be given the old blessing to Israel, "The Eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." A. B. B.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

DEAR SIR,—On leaving the shores of dear old England, I wish to say a few words to my many new and old friends of the British Isles.

First: These friends gave me more honour, and a more royal welcome than I deserved. To me this is a veritable fact, and with all my soul I am truly thankful.

Second: One thing forced itself upon my attention, and naturally imposed upon me duties beyond my expectation on coming to London. It is this. Many strong, cultured, well-trained speakers, lay and clerical—especially the latter—in a most unselfish manner, stood aside and set me forward beyond what I deserved.

These splendid, devoted men and women manifested a bigness and unselfishness of a striking and magnificent character.

Third: While in the British Isles, and this includes Ireland, the home of my ancestors, I strove to give my best in the Cause of manifest Bible teaching. These personal labours were undertaken and given by me on the ground that the British Isles, the British peoples, and many who are of Israel stock, but at present no part of the British Empire, are men and women of the ancient covenants made with Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and their descendants. These personal labours spring from the belief that it is highly important and necessary to spread the great Kingdom Truth among our people, and also among the other nations.

Fourth: I was struck and much impressed with the candour, the directness, the simplicity of deliverance, the caution, the forbearance, the scholarship concerning the topics discussed, and the Godly zeal of all whom I listened to on the platform and otherwise.

Fifth: The advancement made by the Federation during the last seven years has been marked, and the Covenant Publishing Company has accomplished wonders in that period. The work is truly going forward in all directions in a manner that undoubtedly encourages the observing visitor, and furnishes him with material of high value for use elsewhere.

Sixth: I have been specially pleased and encouraged to note that in the main our British-Israel teachers and leaders are keeping close to the main line, to the necessary facts, and are not running into sidelines and by-paths that are not in any way a part of our work as B.-I. teachers.

In closing I may say that my love for, and admiration of the British Islanders have greatly increased as a result of my visit to, and work among these sincere, clear-visioned, high-spirited Christian people.

Through them and vast numbers of similar character and spirit one gets the notion that our British people are very much alive, deeply in earnest, and are ready to go whither they are led by their Master.

Sincerely yours,

EDWARD ODLUM.

PREHISTORIC LONDON

BY

E. O. GORDON.

With two appendices by Rev. John Griffith.

Here is a book which gives food for much thought. Of all the books we have published on the early history of the British Race, this proves, perhaps, more deeply than any.

¶ Read herein of the coming of Brutus the Trojan, and the connection between his landing and the twentieth-century customs of Totnes in Devonshire.

¶ Read of the foundation and the growth of our great city.

¶ Read of the development of Druidism, the belief of our early forefathers in the Divine Creator, and in the life Eternal.

¶ Read of the customs of these ancestors, and find in them the true explanation of many of our present ways and ideas; seemingly inexplicable, yet inevitable when their origin is understood. Altogether a most fascinating book.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE KINGDOM LAW OF DIVINE HEALING.—IV.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

LET us see how Our Lord presented this great Truth. To that end let us come to the 5th chapter of St. Luke's Gospel. May the Holy Spirit lead us as we read these printed words. With what wonderful light and power they are charged. 5th chapter of St. Luke, 16th verse: "And he withdrew Himself into the wilderness, and prayed." I have always had a sense of wonder in connection with that statement; and yet when you think of this, that He was not putting forth His own inherent power, but administering the power of Jehovah Ropheka —"I am the Lord that healeth thee"—we can quite understand why the Lord should want to separate Himself even from the company of His loved disciples, and go into the wilderness and pray. He wanted to "cut in" anew on that source of power. What a wonderful lesson for you and me there. If we can do in our lives and our hearts what the Saviour did then, and make that contact through prayer, how wonderfully it would come into our lives.

I have a friend who is the head of a large financial house. He and his wife are a stalwart couple in middle life. One day he said to me: "A wonderful thing has happened in our home. My wife became ill; our family physician sent her to a specialist, who pronounced that she was suffering from a 'cancer' in a very dangerous position." He told me that a few nights before he was wakened by his wife's movements. She was evidently passing through a period of excitement. He was about to ask what was the matter, but hesitated lest he should interrupt what apparently was not addressed to himself. He lay there quietly, and then heard a whisper, "Praise the Lord, Praise the Lord"; in the morning the cancer was gone. She was healed. In the shadows of the night she had "gone into the wilderness and prayed," and had made contact with that great central line of power.

Jesus went into the wilderness to pray. The Saviour made contact with the Jehovah Ropheka power that night. I am sure that the heavens were hushed when the Father and the Son met.

The next day was a great day in the ministry of Our Lord. He had secured a hall in Capernaum; He had announced His meeting to all the ecclesiastics and scholars of Galilee and Judea, and that on "a certain day" He would present the great doctrine of Divine healing, and demonstrate its power. He was preparing Himself for that occasion.

"It came to pass on a certain day." Not any day, accidentally, but an appointed day. As He was teaching, there were Pharisees and Doctors of Law (LL.D.'s) sitting by, "which were come out of every town in Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem."

Now that was no small gathering. Josephus tells us that there were over two hundred cities in Galilee of over 10,000 inhabitants each—but these came out of every town, great and small. If that was true of Galilee, what of Judea, and the city of Jerusalem? There came AT LEAST ONE out of every town in Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem. It must have been a large gathering, and they had evidently come by invitation. Our Lord was a travelling preacher; now here and now there; and in order that they should leave their dwelling-places, cancel their engagements, and gather at an appointed place, there must have been a great deal of organization. They came, and it was to meet that occasion that Our Lord had gone into the wilderness and prayed.

> "It came to pass on a certain day, as He was teaching, that there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem: and the power of the Lord was present to heal them."

You know how they felt, don't you? You have stepped inside the doors of buildings where congregations have assembled in the Name of the Lord, and you have been conscious of the presence of the Lord. "The power of the Lord was present to heal them."

> 18th verse: "And, behold, men brought in a bed a man which was taken with a palsy."

He had probably fallen on the street outside, suddenly afflicted, and men rushing to his aid had said, "Why, the great Healer is here; let us bring him in."

> "And they sought means to bring him in, and to lay him before Him.
> "And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in because of the multitude . . ."

What multitude obstructed their bringing the man to Jesus? Pharisees and doctors of the law. Was it to-day by any chance? Is history repeating itself to-day?

> "When they could not find by what way they might bring him in because of the multitude, they went upon the housetop, and let him down through the tiling with his couch into the midst before Jesus."

They had to break up the church to get him there. There was no other way. I can see the faces of the Pharisees and doctors of the law, and hear them say—"Those fellows are crazy, interrupting the service and covering us all with dust! Why could they not have waited till the service ended?"

The great thing that Jesus Christ needed above everything else at that moment was a subject upon whom He could exercise His power and thus demonstrate that the DOCTRINE could be translated into EXPERIENCE. Doubtless there were many among the doctors of the law and the Pharisees that needed healing, and we have it recorded that "the Spirit of the Lord was present to heal them"; but they were not healed. Now was brought to Him this man, fallen on the street. . . . I wonder if there was any connection between the need of Christ and the need of the man "taken with a palsy"? He was a man, spelt with a little "m," brought by men, spelt with a little "m," and he was let down into the midst before Jesus; Jesus, the Demonstrator of the Father's power to heal: in the presence of Pharisees and doctors of the law come to examine into the doctrine. Our Lord wanted to demonstrate the healing power, and here was a paralytic man let down into the midst. Oh, these dramatic scenes of the Bible. What happened?

> "And when He saw their faith, He said unto him, Man" (and the 'Man' is spelt with a capital 'M,' for that man now represents all Israel), "thy sins are forgiven thee."

What a bombshell! These scholars had not come to take up the doctrine of the pardon of sins. They were there to consider the matter of healing; and this poor fellow that had fallen outside was not primarily concerned about sin, he was concerned with his physical condition; and the men that brought him there were concerned for his physical healing. But the Lord went to the root of the matter, as He always does, and He said: "MAN, THY SINS ARE FORGIVEN THEE." Those words thrilled to the innermost soul of that poor fellow.

> "And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?"

These reasoners put their conclusion before their premises. How many are doing that to-day? "This man speaketh blasphemies"; that was the conclusion; and now, after that, the premises, "Who can forgive sin, but God alone?" They reasoned backwards, as the scholars are doing to-day, and they reasoned wrongly. Here is the syllogism:

> "None can forgive sins but God alone. But this man forgives sins. Therefore this man is God. They said in effect 'None can forgive sins but God alone.' But this man, being only man, professes to forgive sins. Therefore this man is a blasphemer."
> The Saviour proves them to be wrong in their premises, namely "being only man," therefore their conclusion was wrong. Jesus answers by demonstration of Divine power, proving Himself to be God.
> "Who can forgive sins, but God alone?" Hear the murmur.
> "But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, He answering said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts?
> "Whether is easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk?
> "But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (He said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house.
> "And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God."

Are you stumbling over one of these Divine functions, friends? Have you also reversed the order? Is there a man or a woman who does not believe that Jesus Christ has power on earth to forgive the sins of every sinner that comes in penitence to Him? Is there one who does not believe Jesus Christ, by the Grace of God, speaks pardon to him? And yet are you stumbling over the question, "Has He power on earth to heal the sick, and will He use that power to heal me?" There is the deadlock. We have reversed the emphasis, that is all.

A clergyman friend of ours, doing a wonderful work, said to me, "I should so like to be with you in those meetings next week, but I am not good enough; I cannot touch the matter of Divine healing." I said, "My brother, can you touch the matter of leading the sinner to Jesus, for the pardon of his sins?" "Oh, yes," he said, "I can do that." "Is not that the greater work? Is not that the holier work? If you can engage in the greater, may you not in the lesser?" Our minds are in a tangle. I sympathize with him. Unless there had been a whip on my conscience, I should not be handling this subject now, but the letters and appeals that have been made to me have forced my hand. Let us confess together that we have been entangled in these things, but God grant us to come out on the right side. Which is easier to say unto a man, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk? Oh, that God would give to us the power to preach both sides.

"And they were all amazed."

That is a pity, you know. Because this had been a Statute and an Ordinance in Israel for fourteen hundred years; and it should have been in constant application, but because they had forgotten, and left the Divine power idle, when the Lord started the Divine machinery of grace going again, "they were all amazed." And have not we been amazed? I was amazed one morning four years ago last summer to get a letter from Southampton from a B.-I. of many years' standing. What a letter that was; it was filled with alleluias. This was the substance of it. The writer had suffered for twenty-four years with paralysis agitans; he had only one limb under his control, and he shook so that he had to be wrapped in blankets at times to give him a rest. He read of this presentation and caught the spirit of it. He said, "Why am I sitting here when the Lord is ready to heal me?" And instantly he stood upright, well. Then, following the first impulse that occurred to him, he started off down the street to see an aged relative, who, when he appeared, was overcome with astonishment, and exclaimed, "What! Have you risen from the dead?" He was rejoicing in his healing and in his renewed strength. "They were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear."

Can you sympathize with them? Yes; it is fine as a doctrine. We believe that the Lord has prepared the machinery. But we often say, "I am afraid it is not for me." Do we feel that way? What a fight we have with our own hearts. Those four that broke through the roof were filled with faith; but these scholars who looked on were filled with fear, and that fear killed their ministry. There was the Priesthood of the Order of Aaron represented before the Lord that day, and they went back to Jerusalem and the cities of Galilee and Judea. They knew regarding the Saviour, but finally decided He was too troublesome, and put Him to death. Forty years after their Order was scattered, never to be set up again. This was the critical moment; fear entered into their hearts, not faith. "They were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to-day. . . ." That was all as far as they were concerned. The meeting seemed to be a failure, but there was an "after these things. . . ."

> "After these things he went forth, and saw a publican, named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he said unto him, Follow me. And he left all, rose up, and followed him."

Mark this. Get the social position of the publican—an outcast, scorned, hated. These scholars and doctors of the law, passing him, pulled their garments aside and looked with disdain. Not one of them was healed; not one of them followed Jesus; not one of them is named in the record. The only name given, next to Our Lord, is Levi, the publican who was sitting outside at the receipt of custom. Levi arose, left all, and followed Him—and subsequently gave to the Christian world the Gospel of St. Matthew. The Pharisees and doctors of the law received nothing but amazement and fear. They gave nothing but false reasoning and opposition. Levi received the call of Jesus, left all, and followed Him; and gave to the world the magnificent evangel of St. Matthew.

Well, friends. Jesus Christ said, "Wheresoever two or three are met together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." Here is the doctrine that He taught; here is the power that He administered, and here are we. He has two things to offer—Pardon, Healing. In a few minutes it will be "after these things" as far as we are concerned. What have we to say to Him? His presence is real, although we cannot touch Him. His voice is real, although it comes through the pages of this Book. The Spirit is as real now as it was at the meeting Jesus presided over. Now, if we can make the contact! It is the old power, instituted when the Nation was organized, administered by Jesus Christ Our Lord during His ministry; administered to-day by the Holy Ghost, and it is amongst us still. "Come, let us kneel," although scattered abroad over the earth, and let us follow the instruction of the New Testament. This is the Lord's teaching; this is His doctrine and His administration, and this is for you, and this is for me.

Let us read how Enoch died. "He was not, for God took him." Beautiful, isn't it? Then let us read how Moses passed. The Lord indicated to him that the time had come. He went out of the camp of Israel, forbidding anyone to approach. He went up into the mountain, and God took him.

Prior to that, there had come the time when his elder brother, Aaron, should go, and the Lord named the day; Aaron was clad in the garments of his high priesthood, and with him were his son and successor, and Moses. They went together to the mountain top. There Moses took the garments from Aaron and put them on his son; then they laid him down, and his spirit went to God. There was no sickness. That is how the Lord would have us go. One of the most beautiful characters among my friends out yonder walked into his house one day, hung up his hat and coat, talked cheerily, and then suddenly he was gone: No illness, no pain.

We must leave this matter just there suspended. It seems to me that our Saviour, and the Father that He represents and reveals, is coming near to His nation, with forgiveness of sins, and with healing of disease. In the next issue we are taking up the "If" in this connection. For there is an "If." It will be found in the 8th chapter of Romans, and this is how it reads:

> "If the Spirit of him who raised up Jesus from the dead . . . ." that is the greatest of miracles. "He is the first begotten from the dead." Lazarus was raised, but he passed again: it was temporary, transitory.
> "If the Spirit of him who raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you . . ."

What a wonderful word:

> "He that raised up Jesus from the dead shall also quicken your mortal body . . ."

We know He will quicken the immortal body; that has been basic in our faith since childhood, but:

> "He shall also quicken your mortal body by his Spirit that dwelleth in you."

There are many of us that are abounding in health. Let us trust our physical health to Him, that He will keep it so. But not all of us are rejoicing in abounding health. "Cut in on the power," friends; but mark this: The Lord will not begin by saying, "Arise, take up thy bed and walk." That is not His way. First of all He will say, "Man, thy sins be forgiven thee." That is where He begins. Do not let us try to reverse that process; it cannot be reversed. "Man, thy sins be forgiven thee." I will cast thy sins behind Me, into the sea of My forgetfulness, to be remembered no more for ever. I am glad to get under that promise.

Radio developments are raising some startling questions. I was told that they got some strange reaction the other day when tuning in; they began to catch something, and as they listened they found it was something they themselves had distributed two weeks ago. The scientist in charge said in regard to that, that when they had got their developments further on, we shall be able to recover out of the air again, for instance, the speech Queen Elizabeth made to her soldiers when they marched off to meet the Spanish Armada.

If that be the case, I can quite understand what the Old Testament means when it says every idle word shall be accounted for. I am very glad that I can get behind that promise —"I will cast them behind me . . ."

And then we are coming to photo television. Tell me, friends, would you care to see thrown on the screen in the presence of assembled Israel the thoughts and the imaginings that have passed through your mind, hidden from all eyes but God? And yet that seems to be within the reach of science almost. How much more then in the reach of God. It means a great thing when He says, "Man, thy sins are forgiven thee," and all that is wiped out for ever. Then, "Rise, take up thy bed, and go into thine house."

I believe there are those now who will be able to cut into the stream of Divine power which saves and which heals.

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

The Rev. E. J. Springett said:

I BELIEVE God. Do you? I want you to notice what I said. I believe God. There is a great deal of difference between making a statement such as that, and making what I may call the conventional statement and to say, "I believe in God." Because there are a great number of people who say they believe in God, and who by their conduct, and by their speech, and by their lives, show very plainly that they do not believe Him. I want you to notice very briefly the difference that is implied in those two statements of the fact that you who are believers in British-Israel Truth, and those of you who may not yet be believers, but who are earnest enquirers, must realize and understand that we must verily and indeed, if we are true to our high calling and not simply giving an intellectual assent to the being and nature of God, absolutely trust Him to fulfil all that He has promised, and believe that He will do so. The Bible is full of promises. It begins with a most tremendous promise made by God that could possibly be made. The promise was this, briefly, and in my own words. When man who had lost his position by virtue of his own choice, and by the exercise of his own free will (that position of full communion and fellowship with his Eternal Creator), God promised that that position which man had lost should be restored through the Coming and by the life of that One Whom we recognize to be the Eternal, Divine Son of God, and the apex of the seed whom God had chosen, and through whom all the nations of the earth must be called. That is the first promise, and it is contained in that wonderful verse in Gen. iii, 15: "And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." And all down through the pages of Holy Scripture there is the unfolding of the fulfilment of that promise, until the time came when upon the Cross of Calvary the Divine Son of God, having paid to the full man's penalty, having borne to the full the sins of the whole world, having poured out His whole soul unto God, won for man once again that high position of fellowship, and made possible for man to have access to the highest of all. That is the beginning of the promise.

Notice how that promise has been fulfilled according to the Divine plan through the co-partnership of God and man.

A FAMILY WAS CHOSEN.

The appointed seed first was chosen; and from that appointed seed, that family, that race grew, and at the beginning, at the genesis of that race, the progenitor of the race and his seed for all time were consecrated to the service of the Eternal God. Think just for a moment of the tremendous significance of that scene upon Mount Moriah. Put from your mind for a little while the test of Abraham's faith, or the trial of his obedience. We must bear testimony to the other lessons which are contained in that scene. Think, for a moment, of what actually occurred when Isaac was laid upon that altar in willing submission to the will of the Eternal God; then and there in His presence did he consecrate himself, and not only himself, but the unborn seed within his loins to the purpose and the service of the living God for all time. That is why we should rejoice to realize the truth of the prophet's declaration, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called." That is why we realize that we who bear the name of Israel are God's servants as individuals, and God's servants as a nation. And we realize also that He requires us to carry out in His realm, and for His purpose, that service of witness, of life, of conduct, and of character which shall make others realize that not merely as individuals but as a nation we are indeed the people whom God has blessed.

I began by saying "I believe God," and I want to conclude by a reiteration of that statement in terms more or less up to date, for that which I have just hurriedly unfolded before you is something which is well known to you all, and I want you to understand and to realize this, that God's purpose and God's promises do not conclude with the Coming of Our Lord and Savious Jesus Christ; that they do not conclude with the Resurrection; that they do not conclude with His Ascension into Heaven. There is something yet more to be done. Just exactly as every one of the promises that led up to the Coming of the Son of Man, just exactly as every one of the promises that were concerned with the life of the Son of Man, with the One Who is the fairest among ten thousand, and the altogether lovely, have been fulfilled, so exactly are also the other promises which have not yet found their fulfilment to be fulfilled in and by us in the present, and not in the distant future, because He Who came according to the promise, He Who has revealed Himself as the Saviour of His people Israel, Who has revealed Himself as the Redeemer of Israel,

HE SHALL COME AGAIN.

We had this pointed out to us in a very wonderful fashion the other night, the tremendous significance of the promise made by Jesus when He said, " I go, and if I go, I will come again."

There are vast numbers of people who are ready to give that intellectual assent to the being of God, but who are not prepared to accept the fact of His Second Coming. But God has promised, and Christ has promised that He will come again. God has promised that His Son shall sit upon the throne of His father David, and Christ has promised that He will in the fulness of time occupy that seat, and that which the Lord has promised He will also perform. I believe God, and because I believe God, I believe that all the promises that yet remain to be fulfilled shall yet be accomplished.

I wanted to give you something for your consideration with regard to your own consciousness and your own attitude toward these great things which are of such vital importance to us, and to remind you all that what is necessary is that you and I should commit ourselves absolutely and wholly to the providence and purpose of the Eternal God, realizing that that which He has promised He will perform, and that our whole life—individual, social and national—depends upon our conduct, and upon how we act as we believe Him.

Mr. W. H. Blackaller said:

We cannot fail to see that the thing that moves people and empires is the character of the people, and we read in this Word that if you train a child up in the way he should go when he is old he will not depart from it. Now the Author of that wisdom is surely putting it into effect when He chose a people to carry out His purpose in the earth. And so I want to carry you in thought back to some of the history of the people of the long ago that we may observe the training of God in order that they might be prepared for the work that He had for them to do. Is this great commonwealth of people, this nation, to become a people who shall autocratically, by their might, make things come into conformity with their will, or will they observe that righteousness is the force, and not power? So the Lord Himself takes in hand these people, as we can readily see in this Book, and you will remember how often it is remarked of them, and to them, that they are to be kindly to the people with whom they come into contact. Why? That they may remember that they also were in subjection at a certain period of their history in Egypt. So that you see that the training they had was to instil into their hearts and minds a kindliness of disposition towards other people who may be in like circumstances, for they were required later on to free the slaves. Here is part of their education. And now we look around, and see what the character of this British-Israel people is in the world to-day. We have been reading a great deal, and talking a great deal about treaties that are being made in the earth. And to the amazement of the world we discover that some mighty people were only willing that a treaty should bind them while it was satisfactory to what they considered to be their interests, and that immediately the treaty came into conflict with that interest of theirs, that they were at perfect liberty to tear it up. But not so the British people. They, through their young manhood, by the hundred thousand, went into the breach to carry out the word that had been written on that treaty. Now then we have that character. How does it come about? A few years ago, in the city from which I have come, I saw in a window a flag, the Union Jack that we love; it was in the window of a merchant. He was not one of the Anglo-Saxon race; he was one of a foreign origin; and at the foot of this flag was a legend, and the purport of it was:

" THE FLAG OF THE COUNTRY THAT KEEPS ITS WORD."

And there you have the character of the British people. I was speaking to a merchant friend of mine in Montreal. He was speaking about the business he did with this land, and he was referring, in the course of conversation, to a bill of lading which he had not received. But he said: " That does not matter: that is a mere detail; if I once get the word of that firm I know it is all right." The honour of that firm was at stake. He said, " I know the things will come; I am absolutely sure of it."

How does this characteristic come to be in the hearts and minds, forming a part of the character of Israel? Let me go back. Read the 9th chapter of Joshua, and there you will get a record of the first treaty that Israel ever made as a people. I have read that chapter, and it has struck me as very peculiar; for many years I could not undersand why a chapter like that should be put into the Word of God. But we know that the Bible is a guide to us in all our generations. You remember that Israel had just begun to go into the Land of Promise. The children of Israel had subdued their enemies, and they were resting in their tents, and looking up they saw some travel-stained people, their asses laden with things that seemed to be old and travel-worn. Their accoutrements were rusty, and the clothing that these people were clad in seemed to have stood a long journey. Their shoes were not of the latest wear. And when they spread themselves in their tent, the only provision they had was musty bread. The Israelitish people asked them from whence they came, and they said, " We have come a long journey; we have heard about the exploits of Israel, and of their Jehovah God; and we have come to make arrangements with regard to our people." They looked upon those people, and took them at their face value, and they made a treaty with them. And the Book is careful to note that they did not enquire of Jehovah in regard to it. Is there any word here to the statesmen of this great Empire to-day? If we would only in our transactions seek the guidance of Jehovah many sad mistakes would be obviated. But there is the record. Well, they made this agreement with them, and lo and behold, within seventy-two hours they found they had been deceived, and that these people, instead of having come from a long distance, were practically living right in their midst. The people said, " This thing must be annulled; we have been deceived." But Joshua, and the princes of Israel, said, "No, we have sworn to this treaty by the Name of Jehovah, and that TREATY MUST STAND.

We have this treaty gotten under false pretences, but sworn to in the Name of Jehovah." There it was. Read the history of those people. We hear nothing about it for four hundred years, more than 435 to be exact; and then what do we read? David was upon the throne. There had been insurrection. Absalom had come upon the scene, and had departed. The aftermath of that revolution had been put down. Then we read this significant thing: "There was famine upon Israel for three years. The first year there were no crops; the second year, no crops; the third year, no crops." Then David began to wonder what this meant. Certainly God was speaking to them about something; and he went to enquire of Jehovah, and Jehovah told him that it was because of the blood-guilty house of Saul, who wanted to break this treaty by the annihilation of those Gideons: the treaty recorded in the heavens above by Jehovah. He was careful to see that the honour of that people should be observed. It was no light matter to enter into a treaty. It was not to be torn up, but it was to be observed. You see how Jehovah takes care of His people, and enforces their wishes and wills and honour. So that we have this characteristic, and we see the explanation of it to-day. What is the lesson of all this?

Can you think for an instant that Jehovah would insist upon the carrying out of the treaty by the People of Israel and forget His own word to them? Such a thing is inconceivable, and yet I have a book in my possession, by a gentleman of Evangelical fame, who has written concerning the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. He says that we are in possession of the great covenants of God, "although we are not the people to whom they were promised." Can God change His word that He has sworn to keep for ever? No. Jehovah Himself says, "I am Jehovah, I change not. Therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed." The very throne of God Himself in righteousness stands because He keeps His word. Therefore it behoves us that we should walk warily as becomes the people of God. That we should put our trust in God, and should ask Him to direct us in the performance of the things to which we lay our hand, that we may not be sorry through not seeking His counsel, that we may know in all truth that He will carry out His behests to His people for ever.

The Rev. Commander Roberts, R.N. (Chairman), said:

The Day of the Lord cometh. Our Lord Himself told us that "of that day and of that hour knoweth no man"—not even the Son. The Father had not revealed it to His own Son to speak it out.

Supposing the Pyramid had given us that day exactly to date. Without any distortion whatever in the Pyramid, we should have known, by the sequence of events as they are related in the 16th Revelation, that Our Lord was just at the very point of coming. But we are not to know, and therefore the great Maker of that Pyramid, the Divine Instructor of those who built that Pyramid, had a certain plan in His own mind which was to reveal all dates up to a certain time. But if the Pyramid is to exactly agree with the Bible, then of that day and that hour knoweth no man.

We may know by the signs around us that it is near. The three unclean spirits go forth as frogs deceiving the whole earth, "which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame." It is a warning, and we are in the midst of that very warning. The three unclean spirits, the beast, the false prophet—Russia, Turkey, Rome—they are deceiving the people, getting together for the great battle of the Lord God Almighty, to break up the British Empire, and to pull down God from off His Throne, and to rob the Lord Jesus Christ of His Deity.

Well now, in the long past ages there was

which affected the Pyramid, and you will find that the earthquake distorted the antechamber, and especially that part which marks May 29th. I have got the distortion of that Pyramid as it was drawn by Mr. Davidson himself in July, 1921, and the whole of the platform, from the antechamber, right into the narrow passage is dislocated. What does that mean? God Himself limited the earthquake, and these passages which are to tell us the day and the hour—research may give them their proper place. But what says the Word of God? It says that we are to account that the long-suffering of God is to repentance, because God is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. Who is the Apostle writing to? He is writing to the strangers scattered in the dispersion throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father. He is willing that the whole of His elect people should be saved. Israel shall be saved in the North. He is going to pour out His Holy Spirit upon them, so that they may be ready for the great work which He has appointed for Israel to do when the judgment comes upon the nations. But Israel is not yet complete. The Jews are away. Many of them have not had the opportunity of knowing the Lord Jesus Christ until just very lately. I have seen letters from the Secretaries of the Jews' Societies telling of the wonderful work which has been going on within the last three or four months amongst the Jews. Thousands are flocking into the Mission Rooms in different places, especially in Poland, where there are nearly a million Jews. And there are large Mission Halls now built at Warsaw and other places, and these are crowded with Jews, and they are willing to hear the message of salvation, and many of them acknowledge that they were guilty of crucifying the Lord Jesus Christ. The number of missionaries working amongst them some time ago was only fifteen. To-day I hear that one Society alone has got forty missionary workers.

THE WORK IS GROWING.

There was a large meeting at Hamburg the other day, and there were Jewish delegates from the nations all over Europe who assembled together, and there they partook of the Lord's Supper after the manner of the Church of England, acknowledging the Lord Jesus Christ as their Messiah. I also hear that a large number of Jews in Roumania and in other parts of the Continent have been brought to the Lord Jesus Christ; some say there are 200,000, and others say there are 800,000. The Jews are coming in. You notice it is a quick work which God says He will do in that day. He is preparing Judah to join with the House of Israel, in order that the whole number of God's elect people may be complete. Now what we want is sympathy; we want love and affection. We want to remember that the Jew has suffered the same as we should have deserved to suffer. We know that they all forsook Him and fled, even His own disciples. God spared the whole nation, and merely allowed a few to be witnesses of that terrible suffering and to crucify their Messiah; "for had they known it they would not have crucified the Lord of Glory." Only the other day in Russia there was a great bonfire outside the Kremlin, and there they placed an effigy of the Lord God Himself in the fire and burned Him! The Jews have now the Word of God as they never had it before, through the instrumentality of a Jew who has translated the Word of God into the Yiddish language. Oh the power that the Jews might exercise for the good of our religion, and the lifting up of the Lord Jesus Christ, if only before the whole world they would acknowledge that Jesus is the Christ! Let us in sympathy and love do all that we can to aid these people who are trying to bring the Jews to our Saviour, and when that is done it will be as life from the dead.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON,

The Rev. W. Pascoe Goard said:

Fathers and Brethren, Fellow Citizens of the Israel Commonwealth,—The gatherings which have taken place in this Hall this week have been remarkable because of their very wide representative character—Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the United States of America, Canada; Asia, Europe, Britain, we have all gathered here representatively, first to encourage each other in the prosecution of the presentation of the Truth of God; and, secondly, to bring out of each other's treasury things new as well as things old, and to catch the spirit from the central fire to equip us for the work of the year that is now coming.

The year that has passed has been very wonderful because of the spread of the Truth, and because of the intensity of the spirit which has accompanied it.

In the meantime I have been asked to say just a word or two as to the message of the Pyramid, and the position in which we find ourselves to-day. The British-Israel-World Federation have said this concerning the Pyramid, and say it still, without one word of change:—"The Pyramid is a pillar of witness unto the Lord in the Land of Egypt." It is a testimony to the carefully-thought-out plan along which the Almighty has been working in the past, and is working still. I have not yet seen in the public Press any statement that the Pyramid has fallen—have you? I expect if we went to the Land of Egypt we should find the pillar of witness still standing upon its thirteen-acre base. In the meantime its presence there has probably been a permanent object on the landscape for upwards of four thousand years.

Into the structure of that building there was incorporated by the architect and his engineers a system of historic chronology which stretches over six thousand years. Certain outstanding events conspicuous in the outline of history find their place there. (The zero date of Adamic history: Certainly the moment of the crossing of the Red Sea, and the Exodus of Israel out of Egypt.) From that point began an ascending passage, continuing uniformly until the day of the Nativity of Our Lord. There a second passage branches off horizontally, the other continuing to ascend. The one uniform in height with the other low passages; the other with all the head-room of the grand gallery.

Then came the period of the great step connoting the time when British influence began to make itself felt authoritatively in the Holy Land. Then came the moment of the outbreak of the last Great War, and then the moment of the ending of the last Great War. This period is clearly marked by the first low passage. A wonderful testimony to the chronology of history! Challenge it; discuss it; disbelieve it; believe it! It does not matter in the slightest degree. The pillar of witness stands. As it has unfolded with the years and ages, and has said, "This is that" at the various points indicated, looking forward through the present to the future, we have no doubt whatsoever but that history will interpret all that part of the design of that great structure which is not yet made manifest on the pages of history. We have never gone any further than that. As far as I am concerned personally, I am not aware of a single sentence that I should have to write differently, but, of course, I have not been a Pyramid writer.

Now if the Pyramid stands, and is demonstrated by future history as it has been in the past, it is all to the good. But supposing it did not, what then? We are not building on the Pyramid, but on the more sure foundation. Our mission is to declare the whole counsel of God as written in the Bible—historic, prophetic, evangelical—that is our mission; for that purpose our organization was put together, and to that task we stand fully committed to-day. That is our task. The other is simply a sign-board by the way.

Now in regard to this Movement itself, its progress and its importance. We are challenged by the scholars of to-day, and we are rightly challenged by them. We have no complaint to make on that line, providing it is a challenge for the discovery of fact. If we have one hypothesis, and our friends have another, and we each struggle to give precedence to our hypothesis, well, then, it simply means squabbling. If we are both after truth, and find it in the facts of nature, and in the revealed Word of God, then the challenge is welcome in every case. We are challenged by scholars to-day. Now the best way to meet a challenge, as every military man knows, and as our distinguished soldier in the chair knows, is by the offensive—defensive. So we come to the authorities which are quoted against us in the realm of the sacred Scriptures.

Let us for a moment look at this. During the time of the World's Fair in Chicago there was a Congress of the world's religions, and we heard through the sacred Press very largely in that day that some religious systems cannot stand because its literature contains absurd geography. Now I am not going to use the word "absurd" in this connection, but I am going to say this: Accepted authors' presentations of what is called the second Book of Isaiah cannot stand because they go wholly wrong in their geography. That is a matter that the scholars did not take into consideration, but it is a primary matter that lies at the foundation of the literature of the Old Testament prophets—and the New, for that matter. For instance, here is a map of the world of Isaiah's day. Let those scholars say that the Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Daniel literature was all prepared after the Captivity. Then let them explain the moving picture of the geography that is caught in the sacred pages. Let them explain the rapid succession of geographical outlines that are incidentally incorporated in the various Scriptures.

Isaiah gives to us the geography of the east end of the Mediterranean. Facing the Mediterranean he gives to us Judah, Ephraim-Israel, Syria: three kingdoms. Behind that, as one row of counties lie behind another row of counties in English geography, Ammon, Moab, Edom—off yonder Arabia. Down on the Euphrates, the independent city of Babylon; north to the Caspian and the Black Seas, Assyria. Now take your literature of Isaiah, and on the map pin a little flag for each country that Isaiah addresses by name and address, and you will find that he covers the Middle East and Western Asia.

Then take the 18th and 19th chapters of Isaiah, and you will find that in those two chapters he covers all of Africa.

Then he goes on as a true geographer to talk of "Israel in the Isles." In the 24th chapter, which counters the idea that you can cut the Book of Isaiah into two, he begins to talk of a civilization just about being born in "the sea"—that might refer to the sea just off the Palestine coast. But he carries on to the "Isles of the sea"—that might be the Mediterranean islands. So he again sets the geographical pointer ahead:—"From the uttermost parts of the earth," and that thrusts you out beyond the pillars of Hercules, and will land you of necessity in the British Isles.

Then when he talks about the return of these people, he says, "They shall come from the north and from the west." I put a question to certain professors, the heads of theological colleges, who were before me. "Taking our stand at Jerusalem," I said, "where is the north?" One replied, "The Crimea." Again I said, "Taking our stand at Jerusalem, where is the west?" He replied, "Gibraltar." Now then, I said, "You have there the quadrant of a circle. Fill in the diameter; what have you in the centre?" "The British Isles." This is simply applying high school geography—north to the Crimea; west to Gibraltar. Fill in the section of the map of the world that you have there, and what have you? Not Asia, but Europe. A message to a civilization that was just being born "in the Isles of the sea." I say to you, I do not care how scholarly a man may be who has undertaken to give an exposition of the Isaiah literature; UNLESS HE HAS FOLLOWED ISAIAH'S GEOGRAPHICAL FOUNDATION, HE HAS GONE ASTRAY. And certainly standard commentators have gone astray when they have applied those glorious messages to the peoples dwelling in Asia which were in reality given to our fathers in Britain and to us.

In the light of geography and ethnology, read the sacred Scriptures, and every scholar in re-reading his work will write "Israel in the Isles" to be "Israel in the British Isles."

Well, now, we are tendering to the scholars of to-day the consideration of that geographical fact, and we invite the most careful consideration of it. Let every fact that has been discovered be recognized and acknowledged, and let it have its due place in reaching conclusions on the sacred Scriptures; and if any can bring to us new facts we will thank them in the Name of God. Let us turn to the realm of law. If we had no other sure evidence to prove that Britain is the modern descendant of ancient Israel, the Law Libraries of the Anglo-Saxon people would prove the matter to the hilt. There is no other system of law in the world like the Common Law of Great Britain.

The great Indian Empire was under Indian law prior to the introduction of the Common Law of Great Britain. There never was a greater achievement worked out than when the Common Law of Britain was introduced as the law of India, and given as a priceless gift to three hundred million people; leading them into what St. James calls "the perfect law of liberty." The Continent of Europe is governed according to the civil law. Here is the principle lying at the basis of the civil law—every man is guilty before the law until he proves himself to be innocent. It is being taught in our schools that our law came from Roman law. There never was a greater fallacy. Our great jurists tell us that they have searched with the utmost care and have not found a vestige of the influence of Roman law in the Common Law. The principle underlying the Common Law, as opposed to that of the civil law, is, "Every man is innocent before the law until he is proved to be guilty." The one is the law of faith; the other is the law of suspicion.

In 1800 there was one people that inherited the Common Law and administered it, namely, the British people. Our forefathers—skin-clad savages? Nonsense. The Law Libraries will tell you that the Common Law was codified and administered in England a thousand years before Christ was born. It has come right down through the ages. The Anglo-Saxons brought in their contribution, for they were of the same people and held to the same law. Go back to King Alfred. His code and the code in Deuteronomy are identical, except for the change of names. So convinced was he that, in writing to the twelve tribes scattered abroad, St. James wrote to the British, that he incorporated the Epistle of St. James in the British code, and it is good law in Britain to-day.

Let us go back from King Alfred to Malmutius. Now, strangely enough, I have searched every encyclopædia that I could get my hands on in ordinary literature, and I do not read his name. Why? Because scholars do not know his name? No, that is not the reason. There has been a conspiracy of silence to bury everything prior to the Roman period in Britain. Go to your encyclopædia, and you will not find the name: but go to your Law Libraries, and you will. Living in Cornwall, five hundred years before Christ, he codified the Common Law, and has been called "the bulwark of British liberties." There is a little booklet on sale, on our bookshelves, named "The Law of the Lord; or the Common Law," and there you will find a part of his code, if you care to read it.

From five hundred years before Christ; leap back another five hundred years and you have the founder of this city (London), King Brute, from Troy. He also gave a codification of the Common Law. And when you have gone back to the founder of this city, in, say, 1100 B.C. (circa), you will have got as near to Moses and Sinai as we are now to the period of Queen Elizabeth and King Henry VIII.

I am not talking to you in fables. You will find that the greatest jurists that have written on the Common Law of Britain make good the statements that I am making now. Thanks be to God, the legal fraternity are waking up to their heritage.

In 1800 there were about sixteen millions that had the privilege and the liberty of the Common Law. Only 128 years ago. To-day that sixteen millions have multipled themselves into 160 millions, and these, with the two flags that are before me, have carried the freedom of the Common Law to other peoples sufficient to include some 650 millions of the earth's inhabitants, or one-third of the human family.

This is the forward movement of the Kingdom ; for long ago the prophets declared "The law shall go forth from Zion "—the place of the administration ; "and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem "—the centre of the worship of God in the earth. The "Zion" and "Jerusalem" named being not geographical, but the national centres of modern Israel-Britain.

I will take one other thing. We are met upon the field of controversy as to the Bible—is it a human production? Is it historic? Is it to be literally taken and followed? Our answer is in a demonstration of the facts of the case. Opinions are worthless.

In this Book we find one story, one prophecy, and only one ; there being many phases of it, and many contributions to it.

Beginning with Seth, the son of Adam, who was the son of God, down chronologically and ethnologically to the Coming again of Our Lord Jesus Christ, there is the forward march of the unfolding of one story. In outline and detail that story was told in its fulness by the major prophets.

We find Isaiah prophesying at Jerusalem. A century or so later we find Jeremiah prophesying at Jerusalem. We find Ezekiel prophesying up amongst the Israel captives ; and Daniel down in Babylon. What a wonderful civilization had been built up in Central and Western Asia at that time.

In the midst of that civilization, while all the world was thinking Asia, and acting Asia, the prophets of the Most High indicated a nation and its development ; and with it the development of a civilization about that time being born in "the Isles of the sea" ; telling the story of modern history in Britain, America and the world. This prophetic voice came from the very centre of ancient history in Asia.

Now anyone that can recognize the fact that in Asia, amidst an Oriental civilization, the story of the birth and development of British civilization and Continental European civilization was told, and still say that the Bible is only a human production, should see a specialist on mental disorders. We are not following any cunningly-devised fables, but, by the grace of God, we are resting upon fact, and that fact has carried us to the position where we are to-day. We believe that the Anglo-Saxon peoples in the earth to-day form God's Israel of prophecy, inheriting the privileges and carrying out the destiny pre-written in the Book of God.

"I have no use for the God of the Old Testament." How familiar that slogan has become in the pages of the Press and the pulpits of the Church in the last year or two! What such a person means is that he has no use for his own inner concept of the God of the Old Testament, which concept is entirely imaginary. Friends, did you ever have a visiting card by which the Lord introduces Himself? Here it is: "Jehovah ; Jehovah Elohim ; merciful, gracious, long-suffering, and of abundant goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands, and forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin." And yet, while that is written clearly and plainly as the self-introduction of Jehovah, a reverend gentleman, high in the Church, said, "He is a God of fiendish cruelty." Oh, no! He it is of Whom Jesus spoke: "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

God and Israel march together down through the ages ; on into the appointed lands ; the pillar of fire by night, the pillar of cloud by day, accompanies the camp of Israel. Have you lost Israel? Then you have lost Israel's God. Do you know Israel as a going concern? Then you abide consciously under the shadow of the Almighty. You may know God manifested in Jesus Christ, Our Lord. Thank God that is true. But the overshadowing presence of the God of Israel is not yours if you have lost Israel.

How wonderfully it is all developed in the 95th Psalm :—

"O come, let us sing unto the Lord : let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation.

Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms.

For the Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods.

In his hand are the deep places of the earth : the strength of the hills is his also.

The sea is his, and he made it : and his hands formed the dry land.

O come, let us worship and bow down : let us kneel before the Lord our maker.

For he is our God ; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. To day if ye will hear his voice,

Harden not your heart, as in the provocation, and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness :

When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my work.

Forty years long was I grieved with this generation, and said, It is a people that do err in their heart, and they have not known my ways :

Unto whom I sware in my wrath that they should not enter into my rest."

Let us hear His voice, let us open our hearts, let us kneel before His throne, in loyalty to our God and King.

Now I must close with this word, "Keeping mercy for thousands, and forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin." "But that will by no means clear the guilty." Now why? Because that is the function of the Son. Do not go to God to clear you from guilt except by way of the Cross, and through the merits of the atoning Blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. Otherwise—no! Keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity, transgression and sin. "But that will by no means clear the guilty."

"How then shall the guilty be cleared?" "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." And thus by the appointed Lamb which taketh away the sin of the world the guilty is cleared before God.

The Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A., said:

I want to give you a message this afternoon based upon the foundation, the only one solid true foundation God has given to us Himself in the 1st chapter of the Epistle to the Ephesians; and I love that Epistle. "According as He hath chosen us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before Him in love." The Book of Ezra tells us, "And they sang together by course in praising and giving thanks unto the Lord; because He is good, for His mercy endureth for ever toward Israel. And all the people shouted with a great shout, when they praised the Lord, because the foundation of the house of the Lord was laid." God's foundations are absolutely firm and secure, sure and certain, "which hope we have as an anchor of the soul" as we have it in the Epistle to the Hebrews. What God says can never fail. God's foundations are sure.

A fortnight ago I was at Piza, and I wanted to see the wonderful Leaning Tower. Why is that a Leaning Tower? Because the foundations are not sure. Are the foundations sure with regard to Israel's call? Yes, the foundations are sure with regard to Israel's redemption, through the blood of Christ. Are the foundations sure upon which the British-Israel-World Federation is built? Thank God, they are. Because God has given to us a great knowledge of this Truth, that "God shall bless us, and all the ends of the earth shall fear Him."

Milan Cathedral has three doorways; the central doorway is the largest; and over one of the smaller doorways there is a sheaf of roses, with these words, "All that which pleases is for the moment." On the other side there is the symbol of the Cross, with these words, "All that which troubles is for the moment." And over the central arch, which has no decoration, there are these words, "That only is important which is eternal." God's foundations are absolutely eternal, and they are the only things which are going to count in this life and in the life of the world to come, both in regard to Israel, and to the salvation of the whole wide world. Now my messages are these:—

First,

WE HAVE GOT GOD'S WORD;

second, we have got the Empire witness; and, third, and by no means least, we have got our work to do. God's Word is sure and certain. We have got the more sure Word of prophecy. "Behold, He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep," was the text that came into my mind very early one morning a few weeks ago, when I was climbing to the top of one of the highest mountains of Switzerland. I had to leave my hut about one o'clock, but for two or three hours before that I had been sleeping on the floor, because I gave up my room to a Cabinet minister, a fellow member of the Alpine Club, and we climbed together part of the way; which reminds me—when you travel abroad you have got to sign a book in the hotel when you arrive, giving your life history: when you were born; who your parents were; where you have come from; and where you are going to; and then you have got to put down your profession. Now I found that very difficult. For if I put down "clergyman" they do not understand; and if I put down "Clerk in Holy Orders" they think you are probably an office clerk. I won't put down "priest." But I put down "minister," and at once I was taken, or mistaken, for the Cabinet minister. But the truth behind it is this, that we are all ministers unto our God, a kingdom of priests. I do not believe in sacerdotalism. But I do believe in the priestly call of the nation and the Empire. We are the Church nation of Jehovah, and God has called us to minister and administer His truth and message and the eternal sacrament of His love to the nations of mankind. "Behold, He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep." I was saying that that text came to me when I was climbing to the top of one of the highest mountains in Switzerland. And on top of that mountain, what a wonderful view! Every peak in Switzerland, many of them climbed, as I knew well; and there were the deep valleys below. And overhead what had been but two or three hours before a star-spangled dome of darkness was now a glorious, ethereal blue telling me of the love of God. And I thought then of that text. And the time of Jacob's trouble; it is a bitter moment, causing much sorrow to the whole nation—unemployment, sickness, gambling—I know what gambling and betting are in the East End—the drink traffic, and other great sins may come to our minds. "If My people which are called by My Name shall humble themselves and pray and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from Heaven, and I will forgive their sins; then will I heal their land." We want a great universal day of humble prayer and thanksgiving; then I believe that God will remove unemployment and distress, and those great economic problems which are causing such suffering to thousands, if not millions of His people in all parts of the world. God's Word can never fail. Secondly:

THERE IS THE EMPIRE WITNESS.

I would give much for the opportunity of going out to see the Empire. I have visited Gibraltar, where in a foreign land last year I rejoiced to see the Union Jack flying over at least a small part of our Empire. It is always a marvel to me why it is that people are so blind to the witness of the Empire and its great Truth. We do not teach the facts of the Empire enough in our schools and colleges and universities and institutions. Lord Meath, the founder of Empire Day, had the greatest difficulty in getting the Governmental buildings to fly the Union Jack by authority on Empire Day. But now they do it. Why are we so slow? Go to Germany, and see the people's pride in their Fatherland. I know that within the breast and bosom of Englishmen there lies a love for country and Empire which is not always worn upon the shirt sleeve, but which is there still by instinct. There is an Empire of witness which none can deny even though some may try so to do.

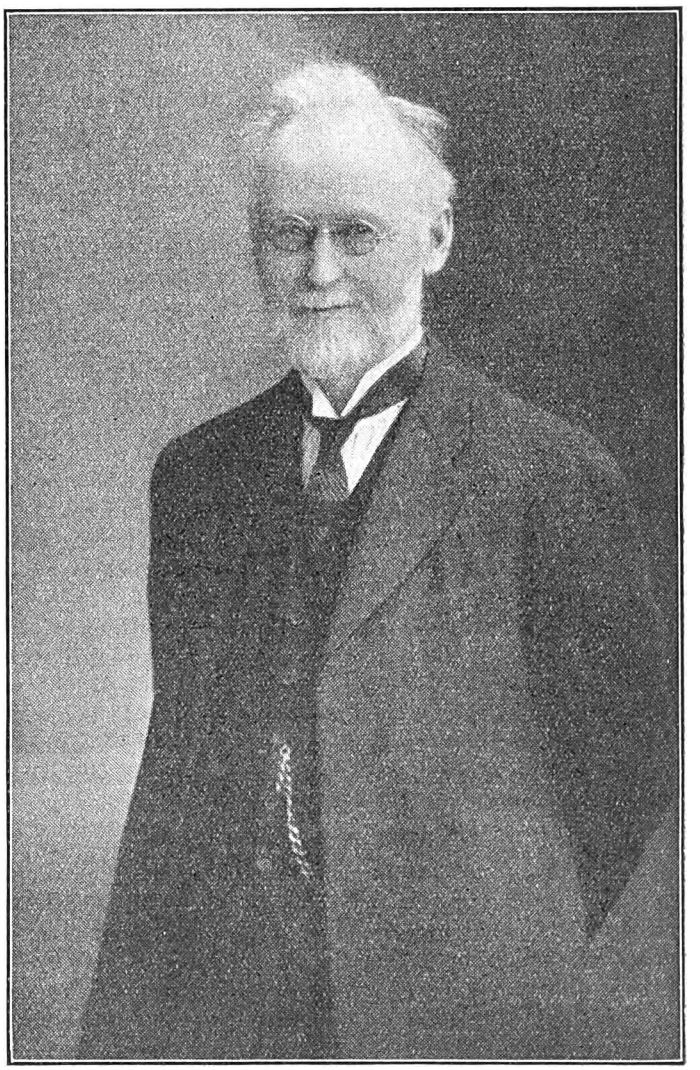
Now God has so constituted His Kingdom, and the Gospel of His Kingdom, that God wants us to do, with His strength, the work whereunto He has called us.

HE HAS MADE US LABOURERS TOGETHER WITH HIM in His vineyard. In those words in Ephesians i, 4, where we are told that God has chosen us before the foundation of the world, the Greek word for "chosen" does not mean just exactly a mere haphazard choice or caprice, or just a chance decision of a moment. But the Greek word there means God has chosen us for Himself and once for all. We cannot get into English the actual translation of the Greek. But having once chosen for Himself, it is a selection, a choice, that stands for ever. Jesus Christ met the devil with the words, "It is written." A better translation in the Greek would be, "It stands written," indelibly written. There are messages that you can write, and then cross out. But the Greek word means, "It stands written." Nothing can gainsay or alter it through time and eternity. God has chosen us for Himself, and that choice stands through time and eternity. Nothing can destroy or interfere with God's selection of His own Chosen People, and God has called us, and chosen us, and appointed us our work to do for Him. You have got your work, and I have got my work; but we are all members of our great Federation, and our work is to spread our great Truth, that all men may see how sure and certain our foundations are; and then to hold fast to our Truth, and even, if needs be, to be willing to die for it, as did the martyrs in days of old, as faithful servants of Jesus Christ.

ERRATUM.

ON PAGE 690, column 1, line 29, I wrote "Jesus said, no new commandment give I you." In doing so, quoting from memory, I assumed a sentence in St. John which is found in 1 John ii, 7. It is John who writes, not Jesus who speaks in this instance. The full quotation is "Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment which ye had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning.

"Again, a new commandment I write unto you, which thing is true, because the darkness is past, and the true light now shineth."



Jesus had said much the same thing in much the same way. In the Sermon on the Mount He declared that not a jot nor tittle of the law should pass until all be fulfilled. He added there no new commandment. Yet to His disciples later He added a new commandment, "that ye love one another."

Why should it be said, "I write no new commandment unto you . . ." and after that the words "again a new commandment I write unto you . . . "?

The reason seems to be clear to the careful reader. The first referred to "The old commandment . . . which ye have heard from the beginning." The commandments which we have heard from the beginning deal with actions. To these commandments no new commandment was added by Our Lord.

This is the field we were dealing with in the article referred to—the new commandment is in the deeper field of the spirit. It governs the underlying spirit which controls the attitude of one person towards another. The first says, in effect, "Do not injure your brother." The second says, "Love one another."

In the first field there is no new commandment, but a re-stating of the old. In the second field there is the command to do that which only the regenerated can do in the sense indicated; therefore it is commanded to the followers of the Lord. It is gratifying to know that letters from widely separated places have called attention to this erratum, showing how closely the MESSAGE is read W. P. G.

BRITISH-ISRAEL TEACHING VINDICATED.

By HENRY PROCTOR, F.R.S.L.

DURING the last decade British-Israel teaching has made leaps and bounds. All the opposition which has arisen is the natural outcome of its prosperity, but it only tends to further publicity, and consequent propagation of the teaching among those who have never heard of it.

There are many, however, who do not oppose it, and see no reason to disbelieve it, but at the same time they imagine that it can be safely neglected as not being a sine qua non, or vital to Christian doctrine. But we desire to point out that it is not a side issue, but essential to the establishment of the truth of the Prophetic Word, for, apart from the fulfilment of prophecy, how is it possible to prove the Bible true to the satisfaction of logical minds?

But if the Scripture prophecies be fulfilled, then the Scripture must be the WORD of GOD.

No one can possibly deny that the prophecies concerning the Jews have been fulfilled, but there is another class of prophecies concerning Ten-tribed Israel which are entirely different from those which concern the Jews. According to Dr. Driver these have never been fulfilled, and in the present state of things never can be. And this dictum is true unless it can be proved that Israel exists somewhere.

Apart from British-Israel teaching there is no proof of this. "But if England is Ephraim, then I can see the whole book of prophecies living to-day, and being fulfilled in our midst. If England is not Ephraim, there is no nation answering to this description, nor is there at present any promise of such a nation appearing." (Rev. Mark Guy Pearse.)

British-Israel teaching is essential to the confirmation of the truth of prophecy, because from the pulpit continual attacks are being made upon the Old Testament; indeed, the very Scriptures to which Our Lord referred as Words proceeding out of the mouth of God, and which He said, "Cannot be broken" (John x, 35), meaning the Old Testament, was actually stated at a Conference this year to be

AS OBSOLETE AS AN ANTIMACASSAR.

If the Scripture prophecies are not being fulfilled, then indeed this statement may be correct, but British-Israel teaching demonstrates, as no other teaching can, that the prophecies are being literally fulfilled before our very eyes.

Everything that we predicted before and during the Great War has been fulfilled at the very time that the Bible indicated.

Many of the fulfilments are peculiar to British-Israel, and not common to all prophetic writings. For instance, in February, 1914, we published in the BANNER OF ISRAEL an article on "The Signs of the Times," in which we stated that: "It seems probable that during this period (1914-1934) Palestine will come into possession of the British nation (who represent Ephraim among the lost tribes) (ten) just as Egypt did at the time appointed beforehand of the FATHER, that is, in A.D. 1882, which was exactly 1,260 solar years from the Hejira, or year one of the Mohammedan era (A.D. 622)."

Again in February, 1917, the deliverance of Jerusalem was clearly predicted in the BANNER.

"The year 1917 is doubly indicated in prophecy, as a final crisis date in which the 'Seven Times' during which Jerusalem should be trodden down of the Gentiles, run out as measured from two opening events, both of which are clearly critical in connection with Turkey and Palestine, and whose dates are absolutely certain, and unquestionable."

So that we may expect to see the initial fulfilment of the prophecies regarding the fall of Turkey, and the restoration of the Holy Land in A.D. 1917. (Published in U.S.A., April-May, 1917.)

Now these are strictly British-Israel fulfilments, because if we are not Israel, then Jerusalem did not emerge from Gentile domination in 1917.

Another statement made at Oxford Congregational Conference is refuted by British-Israel Truth. We say that Bible history is a part of our history, and that later histories of our race are simply continuations of the history of God's dealings with Israel. But the Modernist has no use for the Old Testament. "There would be no great harm," he says, "if many parts of the Old Testament were lost to the sight of men, and preserved only in museums or for the delectation of students. Their religious value is negligible; in fact, they have never been of the least help to true religion." "We should tell our congregations quite frankly that the history of the Bible has no more meaning in religious truth than any other history."

It may be said, however, that there are many devout students of prophecy who are not British-Israelites, who yet think it rank blasphemy to take up such a position as this, but by their opposition to British-Israel they are nevertheless helping others to maintain such a position. For there are several prophecies which have had a striking and undeniable fulfilment if we are Israel, but otherwise are NOT fulfilled. Take, for example, one of the oldest in the Bible, made to Abram, before his name was changed. In Gen. xv, 18: "The Eternal made a compact with Abram. To your descendants," He said, "I am giving this land, from the river of Egypt to the great Euphrates river" (Moffatt). Has not the whole of this territory been given to Great Britain?

Can it possibly be disputed that God is doing for us all that He promised to do for Israel?

The ordinary prophetic student is looking forward to the Millennium to see these things fulfilled, but we cannot blind our minds to the fact that they should be fulfilled in the consummation of the (PRESENT) age, and are being fulfilled NOW in the order indicated in Scripture, beginning in A.D. 1699 and extending to 1936—and possibly to A.D. 1957.

Everyone must admit that a Fifth Great World Empire is in existence as predicted by Daniel, and that from time to time it has been "breaking in pieces" all those kingdoms which composed the first four Empires. It is scarcely possible that such an Empire could be left out of the Daniel programme, and it can be found nowhere but in the Stone Kingdom, which the Lord is now using: "A stone hewn out by no human hands, to break in pieces, and consume all these kingdoms." If, then, it is the Fifth Empire, it must be the Kingdom which the God of Heaven has set up, which shall never be destroyed.

This can be true of none other but Israel, for to her must come the "First Dominion": "For in days to come, He shall cause them that come of Jacob (Judah and Israel) to take root:

Digitized by Google

Israel shall blossom and bud, and they shall fill the face of the world with fruit" (Isa. xxvii, 6). This is just what Britain is doing now, and with the U.S.A. fulfilling (ad literatim) the rôle of Ephraim and Manasseh.

REVIEWS.

"THE PRINCIPLE OF INTERPRETATION OF THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS."

BY THE REV. ARTHUR CLEVELAND DOWNER, M.A., D.D.

THIS great and yet small work of an aged Divine is worthy to be had in honour, being, as it is, the outcome of a life-long devout study, resulting in a courageous application, in detail, of a principle of interpretation which is claimed to be unique. As he wishes his book to be reviewed and even criticized, the Secretary-General has entrusted it, for that purpose, to another Oxonian truth-seeker like its author.

The suggested principle consists of two factors:

1. The Epistle is addressed to Hebrew believers only, Hebrews by race and believers in Christ by conviction, Gentile believers not being in contemplation.

2. It has no reference to contemporary worship in the Temple and very little to that of the Hebrew believers themselves; but refers to the Tabernacle and the books of the Old Covenant, and especially to Lev. xvi, which describes the ceremonies of the annual Day of Atonement.

So, in the opening verses . . . "God . . . hath . . . spoken unto us" does not mean the Gentiles or the Christian Church; that is to say, the last complete revelation of God in His Son has been given in the first instance to the Hebrew nation in order that by means of the nation it may be made to all the world.

Accordingly, the constant application to Gentile Christians by commentators of what was designed for Hebrews is denounced as an unwarrantable course of interpretation—a protest with which the readers of this journal will cordially agree, although Dr. Downer, who makes it, doesn't seem to recognize the difference between the uncircumcised, Greek-speaking, non-Judah Hebrews and the Judah or Jewish Hebrews. Everything, it seems, from Moses onward is purely Jewish, although, as Josephus tells us in Antiquities xi, 5-7, the House of Judah was not generally known as Jews until after the Babylonian exile. Moreover, Dr. Downer blindly deems himself and his readers to be "Gentiles" who can only inherit the original rights of Israel by partaking of believing Israel's faith, albeit he has to find such teaching elsewhere than in the exclusive Epistle to the Hebrews.

DR. DOWNER'S UNIQUE MASTER-KEY.

As a matter of fact his master-key is so unique that it locks out much and many that other keys have hitherto been used to lock in. Perhaps the most amazing part of this theoretical master-key is the assumption that the Epistle has very little reference to the contemporary worship of the Hebrew Christians. Which doesn't seem like fitting the master-key to the "locks," but rather a preliminary adjustment of the "locks" to the simplified key.

Manifestly the whole Epistle is a "Word of exhortation" with the endeavour to get his fellow Christians from the wilful sin of apostasy from One Who was better than the angels and the Aaronic priests, and the Surety of a better Covenant, enacted on better promises—to a worthier conception of Christian belief and worship.

Conscious British-Israelites will not agree with Dr. Downer's ideas in regard to the new and better Covenant foretold in Jer. xxxi, and announced in Heb. viii.

This Covenant, it is contended, is locked up to the comparatively few believing Jews or Hebrews, and has no national application in the dispensation to come; and, of course, the difference between Israel Hebrews and Jewish Hebrews is ignored, also that it is the Covenant made with the House of Israel and not with the House of Judah that should be in full evidence in the Christian dispensation.

Two other instances of "locking up" have reference first to the "cloud of witnesses" of chapter xii, which, it seems, is only the collective testimony given by absent Old Testament Saints; and, second, that the "Altar" of xiii, 10, doesn't refer in the least to the Cross or to the Sacrifice thereon, but only to the Altar which the Hebrews had in the Wilderness.

Dr. Downer glories in this and other contentions because it "leaves absolutely no room for sacerdotalism of any sort in the ministry of the Christian Church"; but surely one can hold the view that the writer to the Hebrew Christians actually believed and said that he had an Altar-sin-offering superior to the Mosaic one with which they could identify themselves, without thinking that he and his readers were sacerdotalists!

ADDENDUM.

The present reviewer can only add, in a hurried conclusion, that despite his sufferings and on the eve of a surgical operation he has honestly tried "to follow up the clue courageously from the beginning of the Epistle to the end"; but though the main arguments are captivating, only, in part, do they carry conviction to him.

Students, however, should read the book for themselves as well as the Epistle and then draw their own conclusions.

As regards the authorship of the Epistle, the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, in his enlightening book, "The Statesmanship of Jesus," tells us that "The wonderful Epistle to the Hebrews" bears, as it were, the signature "God"; but the human writer, Who is he? Dr. Downer thinks Apollos.

"LIVES AND LEGENDS OF APOSTLES AND EVANGELISTS."

BY MYRTLE STRODE-JACKSON.

THIS volume of two hundred pages, published by "The Religious Tract Society," price 6s. net, shows wide and careful reading by the author, and the result is a valuable condensation of what is known in Scripture, History and Tradition of the activities of the Apostles.

The tremendously widespread work of the early Church is forcefully brought to the reader's notice. Such amazing travel and work in those days under the conditions then prevailing should be a wonderful stimulant to missionary activity in these days.

Faithful unto death the Apostles and early Evangelists preached the Gospel in Asia, Africa and Europe, laying the foundation of a work which still lives and grows year by year.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Herbert Garrison are to lecture on "Jerusalem," with lantern pictures, in the Town Hall, Birmingham, on December 10th; in the Church House, Westminster, December 11th; and in the Town Hall, Bedford, December 14th; celebrating the eleventh anniversary of the deliverance of the Holy City.

The Rev. Commander Roberts, R.N., has removed from Richmond to Devonshire. His address is "Madeley," Upper Hermosa Road, Teignmouth. We are indebted to him for a valuable gift of books for our library; also to Mr. William W. Craig, of Edinburgh, for a large Bible, one of the finest we have ever seen. We are very grateful for these presents. Mr. Gerald Modin has most kindly given us a very nice Reading Stand in memory of his mother, and we tender to him our best thanks.

We rejoice to be able to report that the Rev. Arthur Pritchard, M.A., who recently underwent a severe operation, is making good progress towards recovery.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard is preaching twice to-morrow (Sunday), at 3 and 8.30, in the Royal Hall, Harrogate, and twice on Sunday, December 2nd, in the same Hall at the hours named. During next week he is to address meetings in Bradford, Church House, North Parade, Monday and Tuesday, at 7.30; Halifax, Wednesday; Sheffield, Nether Chapel, Norfolk Street, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at 3 and 7.30, assisted by the Rev. R. G. F. Waddington.

A number of ladies and gentlemen have intimated their intention to join the B.-I. Pilgrimage to Egypt and Palestine, starting on December 17th. The itinerary is a very attractive one of great educational value, embracing sacred, historical and classical sites of the world. Through the kindness and generosity of Sir Henry Lunn, Ltd., the Rev. Pascoe Goard, and Mr. and Mrs. Garrison are included in the party, and they will undertake research work for the benefit of the B.-I. Movement. After their return they will engage in a vigorous campaign (D.V.) in the large centres.

On October 31st Southampton enjoyed a lecture by Mr. J. J. Morey on the "Book of Genesis." The chair was taken by Mr. W. F. M. Copeland, the children's evangelist. One gentleman remarked after the meeting that he had only attended for curiosity, but he had found that there was more in British-Israel teaching than most people think.

The Rev. T. H. Whitehouse gave an address at the Bradford Branch on November 2nd, his subject being "The Power behind the Red Menace," a follow-up of two previous lectures. Rev. Guy Waddington, M.A., was in the chair, and gave an outline of the British-Israel position.

"Inspiration" was the title of the address given at Leicester on November 6th; the speaker, Mr. D. D. Smith, showed by historical proofs that the only tenable position was absolute belief in the truth of the Bible, and particularly indicating how inscriptions proved the truth of the Exodus story. Mr. I. E. Wesley acted as chairman.

The Liverpool Branch had a visit from the Rev. W. Brown Pollock, M.A., on November 8th, when he gave an address on "Are we the Remnant of Israel?" Questions were answered by the lecturer.

Good audiences followed with great attention and interest the remarks of the two speakers at Brighton on November 8th. At the afternoon meeting Mr. H. A. Marchant spoke on "How British-Israel Truth Destroys Higher Criticism," and in the evening Dr. W. Gornold dealt with the fulfilment of the prophecies contained in the Old Testament.

November 21st, 1928.

TO OUR READERS EVERYWHERE.

Dear Friends,

We earnestly appeal to you for help in carrying on the great work of proclaiming the GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

As you will see by reference to page 725 of our last issue, I have personally undertaken to raise the £10,000 required for the current Congress year, that is from October 1st, 1928. In response to my appeal at the Congress meeting on October 3rd many noble gifts and promises were made by those present. Now, scores of thousands of our readers and supporters were for geographical and other reasons unable to attend any of the Congress meetings. You are now enjoying the reading of the addresses there delivered as now appearing in these columns, many of you have by letter told us this, making mention of the joy and stimulus they have been to you. May I appeal to you especially to come generously to our aid? We need assistance from every one of you. Every donation, large or small, will be very gratefully welcomed, and you know the proverb:—

"HE GIVES TWICE WHO GIVES QUICKLY."

You will realise, I think, that I have taken upon myself a very great responsibility in guaranteeing to raise the amount above named. Frankly, I can only succeed through your help. I could only make the promise in the name and strength of the LORD, and in the confidence that you as His instruments would stand by me. The vast majority of you are, alas! unknown to me personally, and I can only address you through these columns.

I have given my life wholly to this glorious work, and my one desire is to promote it to the glory of God. I have no other ambition. I am here in my arduous Post to serve God and to help you. Will you help me?

While the great majority of our workers are VOLUNTARY and unpaid, a considerable number of responsible officers of the Federation have no means beyond what we can pay them, and we cannot do without them. Our whole work is carried forward on a rigid and prominent business men of the city have declared that they know of no organisation better managed, nor one which has accomplished so much with such moderate means.

Our Council and Executive is composed of over forty experienced and representative men and women.

Our Treasurers are retired Bank Managers.

Our Financial Secretary is highly trained and meticulously careful.

Our auditors are one of the best known firms in the world.

No organisation is doing such a work as we are doing to-day, nor ever has done.

We need your help and every ounce of it that you can give.

We MUST keep our FORWARD MOVEMENT going at full strength.

THE NATION NEEDS THE B.-I. MESSAGE MORE THAN EVER.

Donations can be sent anonymously if preferred.

Please cross cheques or Postal Orders "B.I.W.F., Midland Bank."

Believe me,
Dear Friends,

The Fellowship of the Kingdom.

or, The Triune Kingdom of the Triune God.

By J. G. MODIN.

This book is chiefly addressed to clergy, ministers and theological students. It should especially be read by all Christians who, through misconception, are fundamentally at variance with B.-I. teaching. Send it to your clergyman.

By an entirely new way of approach it opens up an essential aspect of the Divine revelation which no reverent mind can lightly put aside, nor any logical mind gainsay, viz., the revelation of a Triune God working out His purpose in and for the world, in and through His Triune Kingdom.

A Scottish Minister writes: "The threefold aspect of the Kingdom and indeed of all the manifestations of God is a matter of which I was aware, though dimly . . . Your book has developed the theme in directions I did not dream of. I have, and can have, nothing but praise for it."

THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES

BASIL STEWART (Discipulus)

A clear and deeply interesting exposition of prophecies respecting the great "Seven Times," showing how the events therein foretold have been precisely fulfilled in history, and how little now remains to be determined. Of special interest to-day is the author's forecast of the immediate future, in which he makes clear that the terrors of Armageddon are reserved solely for those anti-Christian forces which have, from platform and press, carried war into Heaven and challenged God Himself! Working to-day all over the world to bring about our downfall, they are rapidly digging their own grave in "the valley of Hamon-gog." Many people are trembling as to what the next few years may bring forth. Read this remarkable book and share the writer's optimism. The Second Advent is also dealt with at length. A large and instructive Chart illustrates the letterpress.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE KINGDOM LAW OF DIVINE HEALING.—V.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

THE circle of our lives is divided into three parts, thus: Part I we will call Biology; part II, Jurisprudence, and Part III, Ethics; or, if we want the familiar terms, we will call Part I, Life; Part II, Law; Part III, Service; or, if we prefer theological terms, we will call Part I, Generation and Regeneration; Part II, Justification; and Part III, Consecration. These are the same things, called by different names, according to the branch of study from the standpoint of which we approach them.

The last generation of theologians, and the preceding generation back to John Wesley, were considering the matter of jurisprudence, or Divine law; and they were talking of sin and of consequent condemnation; of atonement, justification and pardon; and of the witness of the Spirit. What a glorious testimony they gave. That testimony stands.

In this day and generation men are speaking about life: where it came from; whether descended from God, or evolved from monkeys. How warm the discussion is as to the origin of life.

Others are preaching ethics, brotherhood, service, equality, righteousness in action. This is splendid as far as it goes. But if you take the study of life, and the study of ethics, and put them together, and leave out the study of law—well, remember, we must all stand before the Judgment Seat of Christ. The study of life origins, and the study of ethics or service, will not help us in the Judicial Court of Eternal Righteousness. There the study is, not of life origins, but of how to escape the sentence of death under the law.

When it comes to the question of life and death in the Court of Eternal Righteousness, God help the man that is not under the shelter of the Atonement.

"Himself took our infirmities."

GOD'S RIGHT TO PARDON AND TO HEAL IS SECURED BY THE ATONEMENT.

This is the basis of the law of Kingdom healing.

Now "infirmities" may be looked upon as mental disease, mental incapacity, mental unrest. It is ours to claim healing for all who are troubled "IN MIND, BODY OR ESTATE." We shall now think of Divine power applied to the healing of mental "infirmities." The command rings out in the tones of the Voice which brought Lazarus back from physical death. "Let not your heart be troubled." Arise free from mental infirmity.

HEALING A NATION'S "INFIRMITY."

What is true of the individual is true of the nation and true of the race. To illustrate:—In Canada we have a native race: a race that once stood high in the scale of civilization. Then it went "Red" and adopted Communism, and it worked out the Communistic processes until it had very nearly destroyed the race. In those processes, which are unavoidable, it wrought infirmity in the Indian mind, and the infirmity is this: You never can command an Indian to do anything; if you command him to do something, he will refuse. Generations of Communism have taught him that no man has the right to command him; his chief cannot command him: he can lead him, but he cannot command. That has become a racial infirmity. Now Canada gathers the boys and young men into what is called an Industrial School. The girls, too, are gathered into their schools. These institutions undertake to train them to take their place in our civilization. Of course, it became necessary to put them all under discipline. But they refused to be subject to discipline. Principal and staff after principal and staff took charge of that institution. They did everything up to the point of having stand-up fights with those young men, but they made little headway. There went out from Liverpool a young boy; in his early days he became my associate, did pastoral work in a neighbouring new community, and made his home with us while he got his preliminary studies through.

He went to college and was ordained, and by and by that splendid boy, as a forlorn hope almost, was set at the head of that industrial institution. With wisdom that was of God he recognized the infirmity; he saw also that the only way to cure that infirmity was to bear it for the Indian young men.

The Indians were not subject to discipline, and, in order to prove it, they would do outrageous things at times. Punishment had to be inflicted. One of these outbreaks took place on the part of a young man. Punishment became necessary. The whole school was gathered to see the imposition of the penalty, which in this case was flogging; a most unusual remedy. How the fires of hatred, racially inherited, burned in the eyes of those students. Then the principal came in. He had given the chief of his staff instructions. He said, in effect, to the assembled scholars, "It is not a question of imposing the will of the white man upon the red man. It is a question of obedience to a law that is of God and is eternal, a law for the punishment of disobedience. The law is the same for the white man and for the red man. This young man has deliberately broken the law, and punishment must be inflicted; the law requires that it should be so, not the white man. Because this young man did not understand, and because the law must be carried out, the punishment is going to be inflicted to the letter, but I am going to bear it for the offender." And so he stripped, and, having already given orders, he bent his back and took the flogging himself. It was a revelation to those Indian boys. It demonstrates that there is a law to which the white man subjects himself, and if the white man could do it, the red man might also become subject to it without the loss of his dignity. That is long ago, but the tradition remains and the discipline of the school is established. He bare the infirmities of the Indian race to this extent, for Communism had become a racial infirmity.

In the sight of our Heavenly Father we also are scholars, and the law is our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ. As a race we also have infirmities which would exclude us from the society of Heaven. We read in the 50th chapter of Isaiah that HE took our infirmities. "I gave my back to the smiters, and my cheeks to them that plucked off the hair." This is a prevision of Pilate's Hall. He was scourged and spit upon and buffetted; "the chastisement of our peace was upon Him." Why? To appease an angry God? Nonsense. To heal infirmities of our minds. That is it.

As a nation, all we like sheep have gone astray. Do you know how sheep go astray? Out in the Dominions there are flocks of sheep which a man will have charge of numbering four thousand. It is dangerous to have them near a cliff-edge, for the leaders of the flock are not very wise, and if the leaders, in a sudden panic, spring over the cliff, nothing can prevent all the flock from following. Many and many a flock has been lost following its leaders.

"All we like sheep have gone astray"—that is the flock movement; "we have turned every one to his own way"—that is the individual movement; "and the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." What would happen if He had not done so? It is indicated in the last clause of the following declaration:—"I am Jehovah; I change not; therefore, ye sons of Jacob are not consumed."

Listen again: "He was wounded for our transgressions; He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and by His stripes we are healed." That is a glorious statement, isn't it? All this is in the realm of jurisprudence. Our pardon and healing are made possible by atonement.

The 1st chapter of Job records the assembling of the sons of God. We still see the sons of God appear before Him from time to time. How they have increased beyond counting; and still Satan appears among them; acting in his official capacity as "accuser of the brethren." He begins to enumerate our transgressions:—This man broke the law, so; that woman broke the law, so. Yes, the charge is true; the plea is "guilty"; but the punishment was borne by Christ, and we therefore walk free. In the realm of jurisprudence the path is clear; "by His stripes we are healed."

NOT HEALED FROM THE EXPERIENCE OF DEATH.

Let us go a step further: Healed from sickness of the body and infirmity of the mind and soul. What next? Healed from death? No. Next to the gift of life, death is the gift of God. One of the most dramatic chapters in this wonderful Book is that which immediately precedes the expulsion of Adam and Eve from the Garden, in which was the Tree of Life, and this is what we read: "And now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

"Therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the Garden of Eden."

Why?

Could there be a more horrible doom than to live endlessly, immortally, while cursed with sin?

Let us get into the realm of physiology a little.—I wish I could have my friends, the doctors who are here present on the platform, tell this part of the story, but I must try to tell it myself.

God has made this body fearfully and wonderfully, and He has made it, first, for life; and, secondly, for death.

In forming man of the dust of the earth, and breathing into his nostrils the breath of life, that man might become a living soul, He furnished the body with a principle that controlled and developed it in life. Under the urge of the life principle, every cell, active and vibrant with life, comes to maturity, and goes on to age; but "it is appointed unto man once to die."

A secondary principle e.g., "chemical repulsion," is established in the body, which, when the life principle fails, takes control and brings about dissolution. The body returns to dust. Think for a moment of the endless weariness of an endless life from which the pleasure had gone on account of satiation, of "awareness," and of sin. How one would long for an ending of infinite weariness and pain! How one would pray for the gift of death! Think what the earth itself would have been like if with death we had not the gift of dissolution for the body. The earth would then have been cumbered with the bodies of the generations that have lived and died. The ancient Egyptian endeavoured to make the body everlasting by embalming processes, but God had better wisdom. When the spirit leaves the body, then the body, for the sake of the earth which it occupied, which others must continue to occupy, must return to the dust that gave it, and so there was the principle of life to hold dissimilar and antagonistic elements together, and then as soon as the life principle had departed, chemical repulsion brings about dissolution, the body returns to the earth that gave it. Can you imagine anything better balanced? Can you imagine anything showing Divine wisdom better than the rapid dissolution of that which had been the tabernacle of the soul? Thank God for the life principle, but thank God, also, for the dissolution principle; otherwise, the earth would have been so cumbered that it would not have been worth living in.

I find it in my heart increasingly to thank God that as soon as this wonderful frame—this frame which He makes whole with His Presence—shall have served its purpose, it will go back to the earth again. It is only a tent, a tabernacle; that is to say, a temporary dwelling.

But we know that if the earthly house of this tabernacle be dissolved, we have a BUILDING of God—A HOUSE not made with hands—eternal in the heavens. The life principle prevails for ever there: the death principle ceases for ever there.

But in the meantime, between this very moment of our present life and the moment when the Lord calls us to Him, the life principle, reinforced by the life of God dwelling within, shall quicken this mortal body, so that it will triumph over disease, and be immune from it. Thus the life principle in our bodies will dominate the death principle always latent therein.

There will come the time when the heart, or the brain, or the vital organs, will give an indication that they have finished their service. When that time comes, when it is right that it should come, what a glorious day it will be! Such indication will form an "invitation card" from our Father's Presence, bearing the legend: "Come up higher; enter into the joy of your Lord." That card will come to some of us perhaps this year. What an anticipation!

We will follow the "body" idea further, because even in the next life the Lord is still concerned with the body. When this earthly tabernacle is finished, and is put away, what then? Shall we be unclothed? By the grace of God, no, not unless we miss our way and miss contact with the house that is waiting for each of us.

The Apostle Paul says:

> "For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better."

By the grace of God we shall step out of this tabernacle—intended only for a temporary dwelling-place—into our house, which is eternal in the heavens. When we meet friends over yonder, there will be a warm hand to grasp, and a pair of flashing eyes to look into, an embodied spirit to form a part of that great felllowship; "for if the earthly house of this tabernacle shall be dissolved, I have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." What a word that is. But it is "in the heavens"; and I must get to the heavens in order to enter it. Think of the pity of those that miss their way; spirits that are unclothed. The New Testament shows us regarding such seeking even to enter into the bodies of swine, because they missed their way home to their house.

The Lord is ready to take care of this body while we need it here, and then He has an abiding one ready for us to step into there.

The house "eternal in the heavens" is of such a nature that it will respond to heavenly conditions.

What about the resurrection of the dead? This Book is logical, and God's purpose is reasonable. "My house," "my building of God not made with hands, eternal in the heavens," is of such a high, immortal, spiritual nature, that it is not designed for contact with earth; but I am not finished with the earth yet, for the Lord shall come back, and bring His saints with Him. By the grace of God, we shall come back with the saints; and when we come back with the saints, we shall need a body that will respond to earthly things again. It will not be a mortal body, but still the resurrection body will be prepared to enter into what Drummond called "correspondence" with the earth. So, up from the dust, re-formed, immortal, God again will raise our body, through the medium of which we shall be able to re-enter into contact with earthly things during the reign of Our Lord in the earth. That is reasonable and right, and it is as sure as is the Word of God.

We hear the Saviour say, "Lo, I come. In the volume of the Book it is written of Me, I delight to do Thy Will, O God; Thy law is in my heart; A BODY HAST THOU PREPARED ME." It is a wonderful statement of fact that, prior to His coming to the earth, God prepared a body for the occupancy of Jesus Christ Our Lord on the earth. It did not partake of the nature of angels, but it was "of the seed of Abraham." Now, as He prepared a body on the earth for the occupancy of Jesus Christ, that would provide Him with hands to work wonders, eyes with which to glance in pity on the world, features with which to smile His kindness upon the multitude, a heart to be broken with human woe; as He prepared for Christ a body in the earth, so, by the grace of God, has He prepared a body for us, eternal "in the heavens." What is it like?

We do not know. "It doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." And so, right on to death, and right on to the resurrection morning, and right on during the millennial reign of Our Lord, and right on throughout the eternities, He will not only take care of our spirits, but He will also take care of our bodies. It is a glorious Gospel, isn't it?

The first healing statute and ordinance, made for ever in Israel, His family and nation, is this: "I AM JEHOVAH THAT HEALETH THEE." By it He makes Himself responsible for our bodily life, now, later, and eternally. Can we accept Him as our Healer? How much bigger that question is than, "Can we be healed by His power?" It is the accepting of Him as our Healer, the Quickener of our bodies; that is the eternal thing which never ends. He is our Healer just as much in the moment of death, in the dissolution of the body after death, as He is in the resurrection morning, and the triumphant glory that follows on later. For death is a process necessary to our eternal health. In it all that is mortal and corruptible dies utterly and finally; and the resurrection body will arise immortal and incorruptible.

A doctor came to see a patient a few days ago, and he asked a question as to the treatment ordered; his orders had not been quite followed. Genial man as he is, he stamped his foot, and said, "I will be obeyed." Was he not right? What about the Great Physician? Will you obey Him, keep His commandments, statutes and judgments, and will you from this moment trust Him?

Our Lord is amongst us, closer than we have imagined, ready to take our bodies, our minds, and our spirits, and tune them absolutely to Himself, and I think that we are going to let Him.

ISRAEL IN THE NEW TESTAMENT.

BY THE REV. COMMANDER L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N.

PART II.

"ISRAEL in the New Testament" is a theme which one may find very difficult to harmonize with the Church ideas of the present day. As long as people are misled to think that the Jews comprehend the whole of Israel, or that the Church is Israel, so long will the difficulty remain. But we assert Israel to be quite distinct from Judah in all the prophecies of the Old Testament. Yet the Jews present in Palestine at the time of Our Lord are admitted to belong to Israel, and are sometimes addressed as Israel, but those who rejected the Lord Jesus Christ are emphatically called "Jews" when referred to by St. John, who wrote after the siege of Jerusalem, and are never distinctly called Israel by him.

All Jews may become Christians if they believe on the Lord Jesus Christ as their Messiah; in which case they are again grafted into the twelve-tribed Israelites. St. James addresses the twelve tribes of the dispersion as such; if they are begotten by the Word of Truth. St. Peter's Epistles are also to Israel, more especially the "not a people" who are "begotten again unto a lively hope by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." The Epistle to the Hebrews is emphatically to Hebrew Christians. All the Epistles are addressed to the Saints (Israel) and faithful out of every nation, both their Lord and ours. Besides which, on the face of each, it is to them that know the law. St. Paul tells us there were the twelve tribes instantly serving God, looking for that Hope of Israel (Jesus Christ) risen from the dead. This we know the British Druids were looking for. Here was the Kingdom set up by the God of Heaven, the only place where the light of the Gospel has never been extinguished. It is on comparing the Gospel by St. Matthew with the Old Testament prophecies we find it is Israel that is spoken of in the New Testament. "He shall save His people from their sins" includes Israel. In Matthew ii, it is Rachel weeping for her children, when the innocents were cruelly slain by Herod's order. These were Benjamites, or maybe a few of the tribe of Joseph, for Galilee was in the mercantile highway of trade from East to West, and vice versa. And as the ten tribes we know were about the region of Euphrates and Asia Minor, how feasible it was for some, even for Joseph or even other tribes, to become intermixed in this locality. This, I think, answers a very great question arising out of Isaiah ix, 1-6, in connection with Matthew ii and iv, first, that the Galileans were Benjamites and trading communities of the Northern Kingdom. We have sufficient faith in the prophecies to know that what is there stated most assuredly came to pass, so we are not surprised to read in Matthew iv, 12-17: "Now when Jesus had heard that John was cast into prison, He departed into Galilee; and leaving Nazareth, He came and dwelt in Capernaum, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Zabulon and Nephthalim: That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying, The land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthalim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles; the people which sat in darkness saw great light; and to them which sat in the region and shadow of death light is sprung up."

Therefore it is evident that in this region of Galilee there were at any rate some of the Israelitish kingdom, for Benjamin was not associated with Israel, but with Judah; and it is the Northern Israelites who are the subjects of this prophecy, for its fulfilment is in "Galilee of the nations," or Galilee of the nations to come to Abraham. Now seeing this, we can understand Isaiah ix, 1-6, pointing to Israel of the Northern Kingdom, attracted by trade through Tyre and Sidon into Galilee of the nations: we see them at Antioch, at Tarsus, in the churches of Asia, "Ye men of Israel," children of the stock of Abraham, "unto you is the Word of this salvation sent." Let us remember also Josephus tells us they were "beyond Euphrates." Isaiah xxiv, 14-15, says they were in the Isles of the West. "From the uttermost parts of the earth," they traded as Tarshish with Tyre and Sidon; thus making Syro-Phœnicia their emporium for trade. "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do their business in great waters," made Galilee of the nations their highway of commerce from Euphrates into Britain or Spain. "Thou hast multiplied the nation," as we say now, was their theme in Isaiah ix, 3; they joyed as in the time of harvest, their traffic was abundant. But what was the burthen of their theme? "For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given, and the government shall be upon His shoulder; and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon His Kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with justice and with judgment from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this. The Lord sent a word into Jacob, and it hath lighted upon ISRAEL; and all the people shall know, even Ephraim." The conflict, Isaiah ix, 4-5, is a spiritual one which prevails over the material, because it is kindled by enthusiasm. "This shall be with burning and fuel of fire." Search where you will it is in Britain the Gospel took root, good ground prepared before by Druid faith. It is here that we understand Our Lord's words in Mark ix, 1 and Luke ix, 27. The Kingdom of God came here with power, as it never did elsewhere, to remain and never to be overcome, even by the gates of hell. The Jews (Matthew xvi, 28) saw the Son of Man coming in His Kingdom when at Pentecost "3,000 were added" to Jesus Christ at the preaching of Peter; also "5,000 men," "and a great company of the priests": but they did not see His Kingdom, for that was given to another nation. (Matthew xxi, 43.) However, Israel sees it in power, as no other nation as yet has seen it; and there were some of the disciples standing around Him, when He spake those words, who saw it come into Britain.

Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and His righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. Do your best to bring in the Jews for whom also Jesus prayed, and together with them we should soon convince the world that God had them also in His plan when He sent His only begotten Son, and Israel My son and Ephraim My firstborn, as His Witnesses to this great Truth. (John iii, 16.)

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

Mr. J. J. Morey said:

As I go about the country I meet with all sorts of questions. One great question which often comes to us is this. They say, "You are talking about a literal nation and a literal kingdom. We have always been taught to believe that the Kingdom of Christ and the Kingdom of God is spiritual." I wonder what they mean when they say that the Kingdom of God, the Kingdom of Heaven, the Kingdom of Christ is simply spiritual. It either means it is something up in the realm of spirit without a bodily expression, or something in the realm merely of thought; spirit without material. It is unthinkable. Think for a moment. We live in a beautiful world. Do you despise it, the scheme of material things, which God has created? I love the world; the world talks to me. It is a beautiful world, but it is material. Is it common? Is it to be despised? It is a means by which God is expressing Himself; He is talking to us through material things, and you can read the wisdom and the power and the character and the love and the beauty of God through material things. I almost said it is filled with spirit. It is God's world. Are you going to talk it down? Are you going to put it aside as something common and unworthy? You cannot. God is expressing Himself through His creation. But it is material. Now I know that the curse of sin has affected the world of nature; the curse of sin is upon it, and I can read of a day when that curse is going to be lifted from the world of nature, and the world is going to be purified and cleansed. Paul saw that, for he said that the world of nature groaneth and travaileth in pain until the manifestation of the Sons of God.

THE WORLD IS GOING TO SHARE IN THE REDEMPTION.

The world of nature is to come to its place in the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ, and many things which have come into the material world through sin are going to be taken out of it, and it will be a more beautiful world still when Christ comes to reign on earth. Take your body. Do you despise it? Your body is a bit of the world. Your body is composed of the same elements as the grass and the air and the water; it is a bit of the world of nature, and when you have done with it it will go back to the realm to which it belongs. You would get on badly without it. You are a spirit; your body is filled with spirit. I am not talking to your bodies now; I am talking to something I cannot see, and my spirit is expressing itself through the material part of me, and your body is your means of expression. You cannot think without it. If something came along and annulled the power of your nervous system you would simply be unconscious. Your mind, your spirit, as you are at present constituted, cannot express itself without the material thing called your body. But are you going to despise it? It is God's way of giving you power to speak, to act, and to influence other people. Don't talk it down. You know very well, if you are wise, that you will keep it clean and healthy and strong, that your spirit may have a better tool with which to work, and your spirit can only act through your material body.

Again, look at this Bock,

THE WORD OF GOD.

This is a bundle of paper and ink, in a leather cover; that is the body, and behind it there is the thought and the Word of God, and this is its means of expression. There is something behind this which is almighty, and there is the Spirit of God behind the Word written. We call it the Bible, but the real unseen Word of God is behind it and through it. This is the material thing in which is written the Divine revelation. And that is how you have to look at the word Kingdom. There is, I believe, a day coming when there will be on earth a nation, a race, a kingdom filled with spirit, as your body is filled with spirit; your body kept filled with the Holy Spirit. Your body is to be the temple of the Holy Ghost. And there are some things God wants to express through a nation, through a kingdom, which He cannot express through an individual, and He is going to build a perfect society, a perfect community, a perfect national life, and the other nations of the world will see it, and they will say, "This is what we want, let us come in." But you cannot have it without an outward means of expression, which is a nation, a people, a race. It is not up there in the realm of spirit. God must give the spirit some means of expressing itself, and we shall then have a new body, a higher body, through which we may more ably express that higher form of life. But there must be an outward means of expression, and that is the Kingdom.

I want you to see that the story of the Bible is the story of God's method of building that human kingdom over which Christ is going to reign. This Book contains God's revelation to man. It is the story of the Adamic race, and then chiefly the story of Israel, and He introduces the people through Abraham. That race is a literal people, and along the line of that people He is going to develop this outward national life, and He is going to fill this people with the Spirit of God when Christ comes to reign. He gives that race a national law, touching their lives—their family life, their national life—in order that they may develop along the right lines of a perfect society which can be filled with the Spirit of God in the Kingdom age when Christ shall come. The whole Bible is the story of the Kingdom of Christ, the Kingdom of God on earth. When at Sinai God said to Israel at the foot of the mountain, "Ye shall be to Me a kingdom," I claim that that was the first instance in the Book where the Kingdom of Christ was referred to. It is the beginning of the ideal; we have not reached it yet. We are not truly the Kingdom of Christ until the elements come together. Now there are three elements in the Kingdom—the King; the Law; and the nation. I think we are the nation, and when the nation takes the King, and is prepared to obey him, and takes that Law, and is prepared to live up to it, and the King comes to the nation to administer the Law, you will have the completion of the idea of the Kingdom with which God started, and we are the Kingdom-nation, and He is working upon that nation, that is, the nation of Israel. The story of that nation is literal, and I cannot understand the term, a spiritual Kingdom. I can understand the thought of a Spirit-filled Kingdom, as I can understand the thought of a Spirit-filled man; and I believe that the Spirit-filled man is the model of the Spirit-filled Kingdom, and that is the one and only sense in which you can speak of it as a spiritual Kingdom. It is a literal, material Kingdom on the highest realm, with sin eliminated, perfectly obedient to its King, and controlled by the Spirit of God. I take it that is the story of Israel in the Bible as we have it to-day.

Another point. I think that one of the great questions in the minds of Christian people to-day ranges around

THE COMING OF THE LORD.

That is what we are all looking for. The great event that is coming is the Coming of Christ. We are drawing near to the Day when this Kingdom is to be realized. The King Himself is coming to administer His own law which He made and gave to His Israel, and it can never be perfectly administered until the King Who made it comes to sit upon the Throne. In connection with the Coming of Christ I am often asked what we believe about the Rapture of the Church and of the saints. I do not think I ever speak about the Second Coming without somebody coming to ask me about it. I think there is more confusion around that subject of the Rapture than anything in connection with Our Lord's Coming. There are teachers to-day, they are good Christian men whom we admire, and who are going about the country telling people that the Lord is going to take away His Church before the Tribulation. A lady came to me in a southern seaport town the other day, and she said to me at the end of the lecture quite emphatically, "Oh, but don't you know that Christ will take away His Church before the Tribulation?" "Are you sure?" I said. "Yes," she replied, "I have been taught it from my youth." "Now," I said, "There is no one wants to know the truth about that more than I do, and I am prepared to learn; here is my Bible. Will you show me the passage? Tell me where it is, and I will sit at your feet and listen." She fumbled over the leaves for a while. I said, "You are excited now, but go home and find it for me, and then come again to-night, and show me the passage." She came to the evening lecture, but she went out before it was over. She has attended every lecture in that town since, but she has never approached me again. You cannot find it; it is not in the Book. The Bible teaches me that the Lord will take away His Church when the first resurrection of the just takes place; and there is nothing to show that this is going to happen before the Tribulation. To begin with, the Tribulation began in August, 1914, and the Church has not gone yet. Does anybody say that that was not a Tribulation? God knows it was a Tribulation for thousands of homes in this land. What is the teaching of this Book? What is there here about the Rapture? Let me say that I think you are confusing the Tribulation with the great Day of God's wrath; they are two different things. The Tribulation is upon Israel; Jacob's trouble, when Israel may come to repentance, and come back to God. Read the prophet Joel. You do not get through the first chapter before you are in the last War; and the Book of Joel is about this age and this period. Joel sees Israel coming into the House of God. Joel sees the Tribulation, touching the homes of the people. He sees actual trial and difficulty and sorrow; it will take all this to arouse our people, and bring them to their knees. But he sees Israel come to her knees; then the Tribulation ends. That is Jacob's trouble; and after that is the period you can call Armageddon; Armageddon is not in the period of Jacob's trouble, and there will be international strife. But the great day when God is going to gather the nations to the great valley yonder is a special day which comes after the great Tribulation; and that is what you are going to be saved from, and I think that is plain enough. You remember when Israel was in Egypt the day came when they were going to be delivered. And they had to slay the lamb, and to dash the lintels and the door-posts with the blood of the lamb. I guess every head of those households made a great splash on the lintels and door-posts. He did not want his house to be missed. Then they went in and shut the door, and when the door was shut they ate the Passover lamb, and while the door was shut the avenging angel passed over, and the first-born of Egypt were slain. He says to us in the Isles, "Come, My people, enter thou into thy chamber, and shut thy doors about thee, and hide thyself as it were for a little moment until the indignation be overpast." It is the last phase before the deliverance of Israel. Israel is going to be delivered as a result of this great Tribulation, and you can see very well that any man, any family, who have not repented, are not going to be saved during that indignation. God is going to pour out His wrath upon the wicked, upon those who will not have this Kingdom, who will not have this Man to reign over them. And that is the period that you are going to be saved from. In every land where there are groups of people who have come into Israel by grace through Jesus Christ, the Door, they are going to be saved during that terrible day, as the people of Israel were when they retired behind the closed doors ; it is the day of indignation. You must not confuse the period of Jacob's trouble in which she is going to come to her senses with the day of God's wrath which comes afterwards. I suggest to you that you ought to think about that ; you have got the solution of more than one difficulty there. I want you to let me read a verse or two from two Psalms ; we have never yet reached the point in the world's history to which this Psalm directly applies. It is that day of God's wrath ; that day of indignation. We read it, and we sang it during the last War, but it did not precisely fit. " God is our refuge and strength ; a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea." This is Israel in hiding from the indignation. There is the great earthquake. There is the mighty upheaval which will come. " Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof." Then farther down. " The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved ; He uttered His voice, the earth melted." " He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth ; He breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder ; He burneth the chariot in the fire." There is your last war, but it has not come yet. There is your total disarmament. Then the devil will be overthrown, and God and His Christ will make His enemies His footstool. " Be still, and know that I am God." This is Israel in hiding and in safety. We shall see this Psalm perfectly fulfilled when we see the wonderful deliverance which will come to us during that day of indignation.

Just another Psalm :

THE WELL-KNOWN NINETY-FIRST PSALM.

I have pictured Israel behind her closed doors in this land, and I think it must apply to any Christian people in any part of the world during that terrible time. God will have them under His wing in His secret place. " He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." " Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night ; nor for the arrow that flieth by day." There is the Armageddon. " There shall no evil befall thee." It is the great deliverance of Israel, and we shall see the meaning of it, and probably of other great messages, when we are saved during that terrible time of the Armageddon trouble. Now I think without a doubt the Rapture of the Church will take place before that day. The resurrection of the Church must take place after Britain's repentance, and then those who are accounted worthy will be caught up to meet Him in the air. And there is abundant proof that there will be millions of men and women, remaining human with the present human body, perfected, cleansed, made holy, down here in the human Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. I have not time to give you all the evidence of that to-day. That is a picture, to my mind, and I think you will see that the Kingdom is not only an earthly, literal, material Kingdom which God began to build from Jerusalem along the line of Israel, but that He is going to cleanse it, and to purify it, and to use it to build a new world. And there will be those who will come into it by grace. And He will build His final Kingdom in the Millennium age.

There is very clear evidence that the Christian people of all the world

WILL LIVE IN THAT KINGDOM.

There are people all over the world who are looking for the Coming of the Lord. Some of them, surely, will be caught up to meet the Lord in the air. And when He returns His saints come with Him, and they will come back into the Kingdom to which they belong by the grace of God. And there will be on earth a great multitude of people who have not experienced the Rapture, but who are entitled to be in the Kingdom of Christ ; and wherever they are He is going to send out His messengers, and He is going to gather them, and they will come to live in the Kingdom to which they belong, for He Himself said : " They shall come from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south, and shall sit down with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom of God." This talk about a Kingdom which is just spiritual—it is impossible. We are told that the kingdoms of this world shall become the Kingdom of Our Lord and of His Christ. But you cannot have the Kingdom without the King. That is the trouble with certain people to-day—they want the Kingdom without the King. He took it away from the Jews because they rejected the King. Some of them will want the Kingdom without the King. We have to preach to them the Gospel of Jesus Christ the Saviour, and when they will take the King they can come into the Kingdom.

Major Richard Rigg, O.B.E., J.P. (as Chairman), said :

My mind harks back to-night to some twenty or twenty-five years ago, when on the public platforms of this country I listened with rapt attention to the voice of Mr. Herbert Garrison, who called us to a proper recognition of our duties and responsibilities as Imperial citizens.

I have ever been a firm believer in the British Empire, looking upon it as the symbol of freedom, as the friend of the oppressed. Mr. Garrison had a marked effect on my life in stimulating that Imperial factor, but to-day, as one who has always felt there was a closer association between religion and patriotism, I go forward with a more fervid patriotism than ever since I embraced the teaching of British-Israel Truth. I hold firmly to the view that the British Empire is indestructible ; that the British Empire can never fall because of the promises of God.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE IS ISRAEL.

As I look around, I see on every hand evidence which substantiates up to the hilt the fact that the British are God's chosen people, Israel. We have been elected by God for the purpose of blessing the world. When I take up the Book of the prophet Jeremiah, and look at the 36th verse of the 31st chapter, I see there that we are never to cease from being a nation before God for ever. I turn again to the second Book of Samuel. What do I find recorded there ? That the British, as Israel, are never to be moved from their position. Hard by here, in our national Valhalla, Westminster Abbey, we have the precious and priceless heirloom of the Stone of Israel, which our forefather Jacob set up for a pillar. His son

Digitized by Google

Joseph was made the shepherd or guardian of that precious Stone. I see in our British Royal House the descendants of King David of Israel.

As I look at the symbol of my nation, as an Englishman I see St. George of England symbolizes Michael, Israel's saviour from the dragon.

What more conclusive testimony have we than the promise made to our forefather Abraham, that we should possess the gates of the world, which verily we do to-day—Cyprus, Malta, Gibraltar, etc.? We are in very sooth a seafaring nation, whose business is done in many waters, as it was foretold of Israel in the latter days. British ships are the ships of Tarshish, and our sailors are known as Jack Tars. The emblem of Ephraim was a bull, the Hebrew Engl; hence we have Engl-land, or England. Brit-ish in Hebrew means Covenant Man. As I look upon our Royal Standard, I see there the lion and the unicorn that Balaam ascribed to Israel in the latter days, and also the Harp of David. The ensign of King George V is a lion, which always belonged to the tribe of Judah.

Slowly and surely we see the promises made to our fathers being

FULFILLED IN THIS OUR LAND.

Do we not see how splendidly favoured we have been as a nation? The first kingdom to receive Our Lord's teaching was Britain. The British accepted the New Covenant very shortly after the Resurrection of Christ, for we are told that in A.D. 35 the Gospel was preached here by Joseph of Arimathea.

The Bible is the inspired Word of God, from Genesis to Revelation. The call comes to us to-day, never more urgent, for loyalty to God, the Bible, King, Country and Empire.

We are faced to-day with very great dangers as a nation. Carry your minds back to the Great War. Then we were faced primarily with menaces of a material kind. To-day the dangers which face us are not merely material; they are largely of a spiritual nature, and spiritual declension must involve material disaster for this people.

I look around and see on every hand a mad rush for pleasure and amusement. Witness the wilful desecration of God's Day; and I see selfishness naked and unashamed. I see the growth, to my keen regret and great anxiety, of the Communistic peril, and the desire for Red Republicanism: and I see more than ever to-day the pressing need for a religious revival in this country, and for a deepening of the spiritual life of our people. I see to-day that the nation must be called to prayer, and that that prayer must be followed by service, and I realize that in British-Israel Truth you have the solution for practically every present economic and political problem which faces our land to-day. Many of us have seen from our own personal experience the veritable transformation which has taken place in the lives of individuals through British-Israel Truth. What British-Israel Truth has done for individuals it can also do for nations. Make no mistake about it.

WE ARE FIGHTING IN A WINNING CAUSE

in this matter. I have seen the remarkable progress which our Movement has made. It is a glorious thing when you think of it.

Let us stand firm in our faith.

On December 8th, 1917, Palestine passed under the ægis of the British Empire, and that brings nearer Ezekiel's glorious revival, of Israel's coming home, and brings us nearer to the time when Our Lord Himself will return and reign on Israel's Throne.

Let us go forward, as true British-Israelites, firm in our faith. We are doing a wonderful work, and slowly, yet surely, our Gospel spreads abroad. The atheist will be confounded; we shall find throughout the length and breadth of our land the Bible being treasured and being read. We shall realize we are chosen, especially as messengers for the purpose of blessing the world. Our Cause rests on the bedrock of Holy Writ. As I am convinced of the soundness of British-Israel Truth, so I am convinced of the ultimate destiny of our Race.

THE PLACE OF JESUS IN BRITISH-ISRAEL TEACHING.

The Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S., said:

"The place of Jesus in British-Israel Teaching." That is my subject, and the reason for presenting such a subject for your consideration lies in the fact that there are not a few earnest Christian people who are let and hindered in the acceptance of our great Truth by the feeling that, in the glorification of a race, and the advancement of a nation, Christ is obscured, or relegated to a secondary position. After you have presented the case for identity, and marshalled your facts, mainly from the Word of God, these very admirable people will turn to you with a remark something after this fashion: "Well, it is all very interesting, and may be true, but where does Christ come in?" Now it shall be my purpose this evening to show you that Our Lord occupies in British-Israel teaching a more prominent position, if that can be, than in any other school of religious thought and opinion.

He is to us the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the ending, the first and the last. He is Omega while He is Alpha; the ending while He is the beginning; the last while He is the first. That is to say, there is no point in time when He is not. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." That is Alpha. "And the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth." That is Omega. Realizing the fact of the eternal, "Now," in Christ Jesus Our Lord, we can understand the striking phrase relative to His rule among the unwilling nations of the earth at His reappearing. "And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship Him, whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." (Rev. xiii, 8.) "Your father Abraham rejoiced to see My day: and he saw it, and was glad. Then said the Jews unto Him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast Thou seen Abraham? Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am." (St. John viii, 56-58.) Here then is as far as the vast majority of Christendom is concerned. "From everlasting to everlasting Thou art God." The Deity of

Digitized by Google

Christ, and all that it stands for in the Virgin Birth, the Atonement, His Kingly Priesthood after the Order of Melchizedek, His Redeemership in Israel, and His Saviourhood in the world, rests in the eternity of His personality; through all time. This eternity is not a link in the chain, it is the chain itself; it is not a strand in the cable, it is the whole cable from beginning to end. A straight line lies between any two given points. If the points are not, the line ceases to be.

There never was a point in time,
When Thou, Our Lord, Our Saviour, Friend,
Was not in earth, or heaven, or hell.

"Whither shall I go from Thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from Thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, Thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, Thou art there." (Ps. cxxxix, 7-12.)

Having established this indisputable fact, let me now endeavour to show you how British-Israel Truth builds itself up upon it as upon an eternal foundation of impregnable rock.

"Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and to-day, yea, and for ever." (Heb. xiii, 8.) (R.V.) If this be true, and if the Old Testament be the revelation of God to men, then we must expect to find Him in it, at once its source and its consummation, its inspiration and its ordination. If, as we assert, and surely nothing can be more obvious, the Old Testament is occupied with the life-story of Israel, then in that life-story Christ must appear, ipso facto, "the beginning and the ending, the first and the last."

The Divine Objective.

Let me then focus your thought upon the Divine objective. "A lamb slain from the foundation of the world." "Thou shalt call His name Jesus: for He shall save His people from their sins." (Matt. i, 21.) Paradise regained, that is the Divine objective.

Now take your point in history. For our present purpose we need go no further back than our father Abraham, called from Haran by the Word of the Lord. Why? That in him and through him a Divine seed might be created by the same Word of the Lord. The purpose of the creation of Isaac is soon revealed. "Take now thy son, thine only son, whom thou lovest, even Isaac, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of." (Gen. xxii, 2.) (R.V.)

Why this test? Is not the answer clear? Is not the purpose obvious? God had created a human seed in whom and through whom, in the fullness of the time, His only begotten Son should offer Himself a sin-offering. This word may be spoken of Isaac, as of Isaac's so illustrious son, "He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth." (Isaiah liii, 7.)

There you have, stated in terms not to be questioned, the Atonement of Christ. Without Christ, therefore, this incident, to which British-Israel believers attach supreme importance, becomes meaningless. That seed, created in Isaac for sacrificial purposes in the centuries which were yet to be, through all the travel of those centuries, passes on in the Israel nation.

Israel nation; so then that sacrificial element persists, and so persists that it is as if the whole Israel race were that day, by our father Abraham, placed upon the altar of sacrifice. But if Christ be not, my brethren, then Israel is not in this sacrificial sense. And if Israel be not sacrificial, then it were utterly vain to prove her to be anything else. "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, the first and the last."

An Outstanding Personality.

I have often pointed out to you a person running through the Old Testament from Genesis to Malachi who can be none other than Christ Our Lord. Let me bring Him before you once more as He reveals Himself in Israel.

First to Abraham. As a man the Lord appears. (Gen. xviii.) "Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do; seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him?" (Gen. xviii, 17-18.) Christ takes Abraham into His confidence because he is to become a great and mighty nation: because in him, through that great and mighty nation, all peoples who dwell upon the face of the earth shall be blessed. You see Christ becomes thus early the author and finisher of our faith. He reveals Himself not only as the controller of Israel's destiny, but the destiny of all the nations of the world. He is, therefore, centrifugal and centripetal.

In close association with the tent of the Tabernacle, or the tent of meeting, we have these words:—"And the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. xxxiii, 11.) Yet in the selfsame chapter we read:—"And He said, Thou canst not see My face; for man shall not see Me and live." (Ex. xxxiii, 20.) (R.V.)

Who then is the Lord, to whom Moses talks face to face as a friend talketh with a friend, if it be not Christ? And who is the Lord Whose face mortal man cannot behold and live if it be not Jehovah, the Father? "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, He hath declared Him." (St. John i, 18.) The tent of meeting was not only Israel's religious centre, but also her civic centre. Does not governmental authority in Israel centre around the tent of meeting? If the Lord, with whom Moses spake face to face as a friend talketh with a friend, be as I hold, Christ, then again, as in Abraham, so in Moses, Christ is the Controller of Israel's destiny. With what wonderful pathos the writer to the Hebrews lingers over the symbolism of the Tabernacle in order to show that Christ is its life, and light, and spiritual reality. "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, the first and the last."

Once more, in the life-story of Israel this Man, the Lord from Heaven, appears. It is the familiar scene before the walls of Jericho when He announces Himself as "The Captain of the hosts of the Lord." Henceforth Joshua knows himself as second in command; the Commander-in-chief is none other than the Lord from Heaven. Again the Controller of Israel's destiny.

Now let me ask you to turn to the prophets, there to see one outstanding person, the suffering servant of Jehovah. Who is this suffering servant? Some have suggested the prophet himself. Not so, for no prophet could fulfil the rôle of this suffering servant of God. Isaiah writes of Him in wonderful detail. Who can read the 53rd chapter without deep emotion; or the 63rd chapter without joy in his heart and song in his mouth? What thinkest thou of this, my friend? "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given," etc. (Isa. ix, 6-7.)

"Unto us." The Church? No! Israel, the whole House of Israel. Jeremiah writes:—"Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and He shall reign as king . . . and this is His name whereby He shall be called,

THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS."

(Jer. xxiii, 5-8, R.V.) Whether in Abraham, or in Moses, or in Joshua, or in the Prophets, He is always the Controller of Israel's destiny, the Captain of her salvation, the Redeemer of Israel, and the Saviour of the world. With all this I am perfectly sure every right-thinking Christian will agree. This is British-Israel teaching as far as the Bible is concerned. We give to Christ first place always and every time.

Where then is the point of departure? Why are we assailed as perverters of the Word of God? Because we venture to assert that the British or Celto-Saxon race to-day passes on the traditions of Israel and is the temporal Kingdom of God upon the earth. Let the place of Christ in the life-story of Britain testify to the Truth of our distinctive teaching. In no other race under Heaven has Christ glorified Himself as in this Anglo-Celto-Saxon race.

The story of Christianity outside the New Testament is so closely associated with the life-story of Britain that they become almost one and the same. If our ancient chronicles lie not within a decade after the Resurrection of Our Lord the first Christian Church was built in these Islands. The history of the English Bible is sufficient in itself to convince the unbiased mind that in our nation, as in ancient Israel, Jesus Christ is the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the ending, the first and the last. It is not too much to say that if it had not been for the English-speaking peoples, in which Our Lord has seen fit to glorify Himself, the Christian religion would, ere this, have passed away. Who brought Christianity to these shores? The Roman Catholic Church? Nay! Let the old Lucien Church of St. Peter's on Cornhill, and the old Lucien Church in the grounds of Dover Castle, which can be visited by any of you, bear testimony to the fact that 400 years before St. Augustin, the apostle sent by Pope Gregory the Great, landed in these Isles, Christ was glorified among our people. Just as one person, principally, brought Christianity into Asia Minor, namely, the Apostle Paul; so one person, principally, brought Christianity to these shores, namely, Joseph of Arimathea.

Did not the great and glorious work of the Reformation, whereby our holy religion was rescued from the strangling grip of Roman Catholicism, and which swept through Europe like a living flame, begin in Germany? Nay! We would not belittle Luther's work, nor subtract from the glory of that solitary monk who, single-handed, shook the world of his day. But that movement did not begin with Luther. It began with John Wyclif, who is rightly called "the morning star of the Reformation." Was it not three young men of Cambridge University who took that translation into Germany and began that Bible revival which lay at the foundation of all which Luther was subsequently able to do? Are we claiming too much when we assert, in the light of authentic history, that, with the advent of Queen Elizabeth, the Bible which holds forth Christ crucified to a perishing world passed for ever from the power of those who would destroy it and became the permanent possession of our people and, through our people, the permanent possession of all peoples? Whence comes America? From out the Book, for was it not our fathers who left these shores on September 6th, 1620, in the Mayflower, because they were determined to worship their God according to the dictates of their conscience, who, in the little cabin of the Mayflower, laid down the American constitution on the Israel foundation, upon which simple constitution Alexander Hamilton built up the constitution which governs that great people unto this day?

Whence comes modern Britain? From precisely the same source, since Oliver Cromwell laid deep the foundations of our constitution in the Israel nation according to the Word of the Lord; and Pitt, the elder, one hundred years afterwards, built up our present constitution upon that sure foundation. Hence our possession of the Common Law of Israel.

The selfsame personality, so strikingly outstanding in the Israel nation of the Bible, is the selfsame personality who outstands in the life-story of Great Britain. Can anyone acquainted with the life-story of both nations doubt that for a single moment?

The pioneers of the world have been, especially with regard to our Holy Religion, overwhelmingly British. Dr. Morrison in China, Dr. Carey in India, Dr. Livingstone in Africa, may alone suffice as proof of this fact.

Christ was to these men the "Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the ending, the first and the last." Yes! and to hundreds more who followed in their train. Let the conclusion of the matter grip your mind, your soul, your heart. Since He, who was Alpha and Omega in ancient Israel, is Alpha and Omega in modern Britain, the one is the other by the same Divine Personality.

Let no man say henceforth that British-Israel obscures the Christ or relegates Him to a secondary position. If there be one Christian person more than another who can exclaim with the heart of him, and the soul of him, and the mind of him, "God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of Our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world," that Christian man is a British-Israel believer. But why glory in the Cross of Christ? Because it focuses in itself the redemptive purposes of God in Israel from the foundation of the world.

The Rev. W. Pascoe Goard said:

In giving my contribution to the one story that we have all been telling this week, I shall call attention, first, to the testimony of Our Lord Jesus Christ concerning the Comforter, the Holy Ghost; and, secondly, to the testimony of the Holy Ghost concerning Our Lord Jesus Christ and His Return again.

I am only going to give you an indication; you may find for yourselves all these wonderful things in this most wonderful Book.

It delights me on occasion to sit down there in this Hall and hear Dr. Dinsdale Young say, "Let us read from the infallible Word of God."

We know the value of testimony as a source of knowledge, and we are able to say, I know, not simply because I have experience, but because I have been brought into touch with those who also have experienced and have given their testimony to me. That is knowledge, knowledge acquired by direct testimony. That is the type of knowledge on which the administration of justice in our courts, which are superior among the courts of the world, is carried forward. The Judge will not condemn a criminal until he knows him to be a murderer, and his only means of knowing that is upon the testimony of eye-witnesses. The jury know nothing of the crime, but they will not give a verdict until their knowledge is assured; and that knowledge is obtained by testimony. It is only in the ranks of the arm-chair scholars, who are in very deed withdrawn from the ordinary affairs of the world and of men, that you will find the repudiation of testimony. It is not practical; it is not scientific. By the grace of God, we understand the value of testimony; and we take knowledge from it as a source of knowledge.

With regard to Our Lord Jesus Christ's testimony concerning Himself: I ask you to turn with me to the 14th of St. John's Gospel, and the following chapters. This is what He said. In view of the disturbed conditions among which His people would find themselves,

"LET NOT YOUR HEARTS BE TROUBLED."

He now begins to build the structure of their faith with regard to God.

"YE BELIEVE IN GOD."

We sing with such impressiveness from Sabbath to Sabbath· "Holy, Holy, Holy, is Jehovah, God Almighty." Wonderful words! But what do they mean? Pure and sinless? No. That question never arose in connection with God Almighty. Sin cannot come near His Person; that goes without saying. What is it then? What is the other meaning of that term Holy? "Set apart; set apart; set apart is Jehovah, God Almighty." Set apart to what? To the administration of the affairs of His Kingdom.

In His Jehovah manifestation He knows no other interest. Therefore, why should we worry? Why should we be troubled? "Ye believe in God." He is absolutely devoted to the administration of the affairs of His Universe—and of His Kingdom in the earth—in His Elohim manifestation. But Jehovah is God and King in Israel.

To illustrate great things, infinite things, by small things in comparison: Our Gracious Sovereign is King of Great Britain and all the Overseas Dominions—a widely extended interest. But he is the father in his own family circle. So God, as Elohim, is the Creator of the Universe; but as Jehovah He is King of His people Israel.

We are in trouble domestically as a nation—I do not like the word "tribulation" in connection with it—we are in trouble—why? Because we are foolish; utterly foolish. Let me give you a picture of something we passed through the other day, and although we have known that kind of thing for a long time, it impressed us this year as never before. Travelling at the rate of forty miles an hour, all day long; and then the curtains were drawn and we lay down and slept a fairly long night, and awoke again. FORTY MILES AN HOUR for a full day and night, speeding through one field of wheat that God had provided to feed His Israel in the Canadian Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba—only one field in the great Empire. East London might be living in plenty if transplanted to where food grows. God said, "March forward"; and that was a physical march forward. East London, and everywhere else says, "No, we will stay at home."

Bring the people, and the provisions which God has made for them, together, and there would be no hunger. "Thou hast prepared a table before me." Where? Not in East London. I tell you, friends, God will send you marching out of these overgrown cities, as surely as He sent Israel marching out from the Land of Egypt. Crossing the Atlantic the late Sir William Glynn-Jones, M.P., said to me, "Mr. Goard, do you know that human government has become too great a task for human wisdom?" After we had talked a little about that, I said, "Sir William, are you not telling me that the time has arrived when Jesus Christ must come and bring Divine wisdom to bear upon the problem of human government?" He looked over the tumbling waters of the North Atlantic for a while, and then he said, "As a boy I used to believe in the Coming again of the Lord Jesus from, for instance, the standpoint of the Plymouth Brethren." "Yes," I said, "right as far as you went. Your thought was that He would come and take His people out of the world to meet Him. That is true; but that is not all. I find that "He is seated at the right hand of power, from henceforth expecting until His enemies become His footstool." I find that "He shall sit upon the throne of His Father David and shall rule over the House of Jacob for ever, and of His Kingdom there shall be no end."

God is now shaking us out of impossible conditions, in order to bring us out "into a large place"; as He has said again and again, "to the end that there be no poor among you." We are on the up-grade. Think of that wonderful golden harvest over there; 550 millions of bushels of wheat! God has provided that with the help of a handful of men. And in that wonderful country of Canada there are less than ten millions to eat it. Are we going to wake up to a sense of our folly? There the pillar of fire and the pillar of cloud by day and by night is leading outward. We are as an Empire endowed with all the wealth that He has designed for His Israel, but we have not yet learned how to use it to the best advantage; not even to advantage.

Now for the second course in the structure of our faith: "Let not your hearts be troubled . . . believe also in Me." We have not time to deal fully with this here. We will return to it later.

The third course is as follows:

"In My Father's house are many mansions." The after-death future is all right.

This also we must leave for the present.

THE HOLY GHOST.

But now He said this to His disciples, and it was a strange thing for Him to say:—

"IT IS EXPEDIENT FOR YOU THAT I GO AWAY."

Now, my brother ministers, think of that. Think of the Lord telling poor, sinful men that it is expedient that He should separate Himself from them. There is a word going out among my brethren, "I do not believe in the Second Coming. I believe that Jesus is here now."

IN THIS SENSE

Jesus said differently. There is a sense wherein, in His Omniscience, He declares, "Wheresoever two or three are gathered together in My Name, there am I in the midst of them." And wherever one walks along in the pathway of life, closer than brother He walks with us. But that is not it.

"It is expedient for you that I go away." Why? His mission as Saviour is finished; we are not yet ready for Him to take up His ministry as King. "If I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I go away, I will send Him unto you. And when He is come

HE WILL CONVINCE THE WORLD OF SIN, AND OF RIGHTEOUSNESS, AND OF JUDGMENT."

It is expedient for us that He go away that the Comforter may come and teach us the lessons necessary to prepare us to stand before Him at His Second Coming.

What was the Holy Ghost to convince the world of? Of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. Jesus must go that there might be an opportunity for the Holy Ghost to teach those lessons. What have you here? The whole scheme of Divine jurisprudence administered in the supreme court of eternal righteousness.

"Of sin, because they believe not on Me." God help us this day in Israel! Even ordained ministers of the Word are proclaiming, "I do not believe in Jesus Christ as God, the Son." "I do not believe in Him as the vicarious Sacrifice that takes away the sin of the world."

"Of sin, because they believe not on Me." So great is this sin of unbelief that it absorbs all other forms of sin, and stands alone.

"Of righteousness, because I go to My Father, and ye see Me no more." How does that produce righteousness? The wonderful Epistle to the Hebrews tells us that He entered into Heaven itself with His own blood "once offered." Is someone telling you that there is no sin, and that, therefore, there need not be an atonement? It is not the voice of the Holy Ghost. Is someone telling you that the love and the mercy and the kindness of the Father is all-sufficient, and that the Atonement is not needed? The Father, speaking of Himself, says: "Who will by no means clear the guilty." Oh, what a system of fact is here, the whole system of Divine jurisprudence. My brethren of the ministry, and you of this British-Israel way of thinking, let me say that it is only lack of knowledge of the whole system of universal moral law that could enable anyone to say there is no sin, and that, therefore, no atonement is needed.

"He shall reprove the world of sin and of righteousness, because I go to the Father."

"It is expedient for you that I go away." Then He came as Saviour, born of a woman, born under the law, born under authority, suffering even to the death: When He comes again He comes in the glory of His Father, with all the holy angels, clothed with authority; for the administration of judgment.

So we must be made ready.

The Holy Ghost has been teaching these lessons for nineteen hundred years. In the 3rd chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, the Holy Ghost in turn, at the commencement of His ministry, at the Pentecostal period, cries to Israel, "Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord. And He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you; Whom the heaven must receive until the restitution of all things." Jesus said, "I will send the Comforter"; and the Comforter points to the completion of His task, and the restoration of all things in His Israel and then the Coming again of Jesus Christ Our Lord. Oh, the wonderful progress! The Holy Ghost, the Comforter, "shall take of the things of God, and shall show them unto you." He has been doing that through the ages. There come to us questions regarding voices from beyond the veil, with specific names of angels, and names of departed persons. These are not the appointed messengers. There are LIVING MEN gathering in the rooms in this city to-day whose life is devoted to producing upon the minds of receptive men and women impressions that those who receive such impressions believe they are coming from the other side. Why ask us to put our trust in such things when God has given to you and me the Holy Ghost to guide us into all truth; and to take of the things of God, and to reveal them unto us. Seeing that we can go into our closet and with the Word of God before us ask for that voice of God to instruct us—and thank God, you and I can do that—we will accept no other voice. "He shall guide you into all truth." The wonder of it; the glory of it; that the voice of the Holy Spirit should speak in our heart through the Divine Word, and give to us Divine revelation. "No man can say that Jesus is Lord but by the Holy Ghost." Thank God, we can say that.

For nineteen hundred years the Holy Ghost has been busy through the agency of the Church, and other agencies, convincing the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. Now men are enquiring, and are preparing to restore "all things spoken of God by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began."

As soon as that restitution is come, "He shall send Jesus Christ." This is as sure as the sunrise to-morrow. We have a task ahead. Sir William Glynn-Jones, who represented one of the London constituencies, said to me in the last conversation we ever had, "Human government has become too great a task for human reason." That is true. He never came back home again; God called him to Himself over yonder in the city of Vancouver. And when I came next on the boat his devoted daughter was bringing the body of her father home to lay him to rest.

Let us work and pray for the restoration of the Divine law, and then will be the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. Whether in the body as it is now, or in the body resurrected, we shall as assuredly see Him, and shall join in the procession of those who follow Him, as that the seasons in their course will continue from this day on.

Jesus said, "I will send the Comforter." The first message of the Comforter was "God shall send Jesus Christ."

The first promise was fulfilled when the Comforter came.

The second will soon be fulfilled when Jesus shall come again.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard is addressing several meetings in the North this week. On Sunday he was at Harrogate, Monday and Tuesday at Bradford, Wednesday at Halifax, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Nether Chapel, Norfolk Street, Sheffield, at 3 and 7.30, assisted by the Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A. On Sunday (to-morrow) Mr. Goard preaches again at Harrogate, in the Royal Hall, at 3 and 8.30.

A great audience assembled on October 3rd to hear an address by Mr. Aubrey Bond, Barrister, who spoke for our Toronto East Branch.

The Rev. Maxwell Carnson, our Missioner in South Africa, is carrying on a great work, and meeting with much encouragement.

A series of six successful meetings in the Masonic Hall, St. Leonards, took place last week; all were addressed by the Rev. Pascoe Goard, and four by Mr. Garrison, who deputized for Professor Odlum, who had been announced to speak before he was called back to Canada. Colonel Gosset, Canon Sidney Savage, Mr. Holbrook and the Secretary-General respectively presided. The utmost interest was manifested and a high spiritual tone was reached. A large number attended every meeting. After the closing gathering, a minister thanked Mr. Goard for having brought back to him the faith he had lost.

The Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., is doing most useful work in the North by his visits and addresses in various centres, and he has invited a number of the clergy to meet the Rev. Pascoe Goard in Bradford.

On November 15th the Dover Branch thoroughly enjoyed the lectures given by Rev. T. H. Whitehouse. The evening subject was "The Kingdom Conflict through the Ages, and its approaching Crisis." The chair was occupied by Lieut.-Colonel Smythe, supported by Rev. Hugh Simeon.

Our Barking Branch was visited on November 16th by the Rev. Stuart-Fox, who gave a very interesting address on "Signs of the Times." Mr. L. W. Nock took the chair. A weekly prayer meeting in connection with this Branch has been started.

"The Place of British-Israel in the Universal Plan of God" is to be the subject at the next study circle meeting of the Watford Branch, to be held at 20, St. Albans Road on December 14th, at 7.45.

Mrs. Hamilton Short will be glad to hear from any ladies willing to help the Sale of Work by making up cushion covers, etc., from materials supplied to them. Will those ladies able to help in this way please communicate at once with Mrs. Hamilton Short at 11, Motcomb Street, Berkeley Square, S.W.1?

With the commencement of the Fall activities and signs are appearing everywhere of great progress in Canada. News is reaching us of great activities in British Columbia and the Western Provinces. It is hoped that in the near future the Maritime Provinces will be organized. Mr. Howard Rand, the Commissioner for the U.S.A., is helping in this work. It is expected that many new Branches will be formed soon in Ontario. Every indication points to a year of remarkable growth, and the Spring, when the first nation-wide Conference of the British-Israel Federation of Canada is held, should see the Federation well established.

The Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S., our South Wales Commissioner, lectured at Pembroke Dock on November 12th; at Tenby, November 14th and 15th. The meetings were well attended and deep interest was awakened. Mr. Gay will pay another visit later on, when he will introduce British-Israel Truth to new towns and districts. He had planned to visit St. Florence on the Friday evening, but the terrific gale, which caused much damage, made it impossible for him to hold the meeting. Mr. Gay lectured at the Y.M.C.A., Neath, on November 19th, when there was a good attendance. Mr. Frederick Thomas has been working in this district for a number of years, and doubtless the interest evinced at this meeting was largely due to his untiring efforts.

The Cardiff Branch gave Mr. Gay a warm welcome to their meeting on November 20th, when he gave an address which was much appreciated. This Branch is steadily growing.

The Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., gave an excellent address on "God's Covenants" on November 20th, in the Literary Society's Lecture Hall, Sunderland, to an appreciative and attentive audience. Mr. John H. Tench presided.

Owing to the Bradford Diocesan Synod meetings, Mr. Waddington was unable to visit Stockton on November 21st. His place was taken by Mr. Tench, who spoke on "The Four Gospels." Mr. H. F. Joselyne presided.

On November 22nd Mr. Tench gave an inspiring address on "The Gates of Empire," at the Lecture Hall, Trinity Presbyterian Church, Middlesbrough. The chief elder, Mr. John H. Burn, presided. The Pastor took the opening prayer, and gave the Benediction. With the aid of a splendid chart, the lecturer demonstrated to the audience that the Old Testament prophecies were literally fulfilled in the British Empire, both historically and geographically.

A very successful address was given on November 15th at the Alexandra Hall, Bedford, by the Rev. A. C. Cooke, who spoke on "The Chosen Race." He pointed out that all through the Old Testament it was apparent that Almighty God had chosen one Race—Israel—to be a peculiar people, set apart by Him.

Those who criticize British-Israel teaching on the ground that it was wrong to think that God would specially set apart any one nation should be made to realize they were criticizing God's own clearly stated plans. The lecturer quoted "You only have I known of all the families of the earth" as being quite uncontroversial, with many other texts of a similar character.

Owing to the generosity of an anonymous donor, who has promised the rent for a year, a Reading Room and Library has been opened for our Bedford Branch. Many members have responded to the appeal for gifts of furniture. It is hoped that many residents of Bedford will use the rooms and study the literature.

We are glad to hear that our beloved friend, the Rev. Commander Roberts, is very comfortable in his new home at Teignmouth, where, as ever, he is active in our great Cause. He is conducting a largely-attended Bible Class in the Temperance Hall. He desires us to announce that "Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union" cards for 1929 are now ready; also leaflets to accompany them. Members are invited to send 6d. for these cards and leaflets to the Commander's new address: "Madeley," Upper Hermosa Road, Teignmouth. We are glad to say that 362 new members have joined during this year.

The late Archbishop Benson once called the attention of the clergy to the danger of forgetting "that every age does and ought to shed new light on truth. To refuse to admit such light and its inherent warmth is to forfeit the power of seeing things as they are, and to lose the vigour of growth. It is, in fact, to limit ourselves to a conventional use of hard formulas."

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE KINGDOM LAW OF DIVINE HEALING.—VI.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, F.R.G.S.

Let us return to the 15th chapter of Exodus. Israel, God's people, had just been delivered from Egypt; they had just crossed the Red Sea. The hours in which they were then living were packed full of miracle. Any person who puts miracle out of the Bible puts the Pentateuch out of the Bible. There are many who are doing both to-day, and they are wrong in doing so, for both the Pentateuch and the miracle—which is Divine interference in the affairs of men—stand; thank God, they stand as an established institution in Israel and in the earth.

Israel had been delivered from Egypt and had crossed the Red Sea. The waters had been divided, the depths had been "congealed to their very heart," so they walked through on firm footing where otherwise would have been slimy ooze. The waters had then closed behind them—forming an effectual barrier against their pursuing enemies. Then they had been led straight away into the desert three days, and in all that weary journey they had found no water. They were shut up to death; their strength would not permit them to retrace their steps; they could not go on to new water, their strength would not permit it. Only two ways were open before them —Divine interference on their behalf, or death—and every man, woman and child, and the cattle, were in that position; a position ordained by Divine Providence. Why?

The Lord had shut that whole nation up either to death, or miraculous deliverance. But they had neither hope nor expectation of such deliverance.

Then the Lord showed Moses a tree, and he cast it into the waters of Marah; they were healed, and the people drank and lived. Divine interference on their behalf had again been demonstrated; as it is being demonstrated in Israel-Britain to-day.

Taking the occasion when the whole nation had been turned back from death, we read in the 15th chapter of Exodus that "there God made for them a statute and an ordinance for ever." The circumstances of that manifest Divine deliverance of the nation from wholesale death burned the reality of that statute and ordinance into their minds for generations to come.

A statute is a national law; an ordinance is an ecclesiastical law. The foundation of Church and State was in part the statute and the ordinance there made. This statute and ordinance, with that of the Passover, antedated even the enunciation of the Ten Commandments at Sinai.

What was that statute and that ordinance so made? "I AM JEHOVAH THAT HEALETH THEE." There is the basis of the law of healing; that is the foundation of the nation's health. It is a basis and a foundation which never can be shaken.

Forty years later the statute was confirmed. Turn to the 5th to 7th chapters of Deuteronomy. "And the Lord will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee." That provision is on the national scale. These things are basic and immovable; they stand. But the statute and ordinance were qualified. God entered into a covenant with Israel; that covenant was this in essence. "If ye will keep my commandments, statutes and judgments, then I will bless you with health, prosperity, invincibility of defence, and every material and physical blessing; but if ye refuse and rebel, then I will appoint over you terror, consumption, the burning ague, which destroys the eyes and brings sorrow of heart, and ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it . . ." "IF" and "BUT." Unfortunately, Israel chose the pathway of disobedience, and the Divine appointment was made: of terror, consumption, fever, the white man's plagues. What then are we talking about if that is Divine appointment, and we are to glorify God in suffering! Wait a minute. "I will appoint over you that punishment during a period of seven times—or 2,520 years." Was that appointment made? Yes; for Israel, in 740 B.C. to 721 B.C. that appointment was made. Israel was thrown out of her land for her sins, and exposed to all the diseases which the nations were subject to.

Is that sentence still in existence? IT IS NOT. The seven times of punishment are ended, and the specific appointment of disease, etc., has lapsed. Therefore, what was true prior to the end of the 18th century is not true to-day. Thanks be to God; for by Divine appointment we have passed out from under that sentence, and have been and are being restored to the Divine relationship and to the Divine favour.

Because the time element is not recognized, many good men and women believe that we are still under that Divine appointment of punitive disease. Is it clear, and do you agree that the appointment is ended? Then the statute and the ordinance have resumed their full sway: "I AM JEHOVAH THAT HEALETH THEE."

Reading from the 49th to the 54th chapters of Isaiah you will find that 750 years or thereabouts B.C. the prophets were singing of the glory of the Redemption. Jesus Christ in His ministry of the Kingdom took up and administered the statute and the ordinance of healing in Israel, having obtained the right for such administration by the shedding of His own blood.

Our Lord declared: "The words that I speak unto you, I speak not of myself; the Father that dwelleth in me, He doeth the works." Why was it that, in Himself Divine, being Himself God, Jesus Christ did not use His own power, but His Father's power? Because the Father had declared, "I am Jehovah that healeth thee."

Of Himself the Father declared, "That will by no means clear the guilty." This was the prerogative of the Son of God, by the death that He should accomplish at Jerusalem, therefore the Father would not clear the guilty. Of Himself Jesus declared, "The words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself, but the Father that dwelleth in me, He doeth the works." For the work of healing His people is the prerogative of Jehovah.

Our Lord did not alone personally administer these things: He called His twelve disciples, and He said to them: "Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not, but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and as ye go, preach, saying, The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils. Freely ye have received, freely give."

They went out accordingly, hesitant, trembling, and began their ministry. They came back saying, "Lord, even the devils are subject to us." Our Lord said, "Rejoice not that the devils are subject to you, but rather rejoice that your names are written in Heaven." He also sent the seventy out, with the same message and the same commission. Do you not see that the twelve represent the Church administering the ordinance, and the seventy represent the nation administering the statute?

Jesus went away into Heaven, but He did not take the healing ministry with Him. The Apostles took up that ministry, and carried it on.

That undertone of power has never halted. The Church forgot it, that is all.

The great power-house of God to heal has been running during all the ages. We have looked at it as a thing of beauty written in the Scriptures, and wondered over the ages in which it was connected up. Now God is calling on us again to harness the power.

The power is national. It is a statute and an ordinance in the nation, but it is not unconditional; it is decidedly conditional. What is the condition? That we, as a nation, "Keep My Statutes, Commandments and Judgments" as the law of our land.

Before the nation can demand or can make application that the nation shall be cleansed by Jehovah that healeth it, the nation must return to the law as it is written in this Book. Conservative, Liberal, Labour, Socialist; for every politician of every stripe and every colour, all political issues must be merged into one thing—the re-institution of the statutes of the Lord. When the nation comes to that, national healing will be the natural result of that action. It would be unthinkable that the Almighty should say, "If ye do these things, I will take all sickness from among you," and then leave one single case of sickness in the land.

Let us come to the individual matter.

It is our privilege to so relate ourselves to the law of the Lord that we can cut in, individually, upon this great stream of power. We can, but again it is conditional.

In the 12th chapter of Romans we read: "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." There is a sermon preached in few words. It would be better for us that we should definitely and positively accept the Lord as our healer than that we should witness an act of individual healing. The one that takes the Lord as healer wakes up every morning with the consciousness that his life is being sustained and renewed by God; and the one who takes the Lord as healer hears Him say every night, Fear not, seed of Abraham, "the Eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the Everlasting Arms."

It is our privilege to have the Lord as our healer; but there is an "IF" in it, and this is the "IF." See the 8th chapter of Romans, 10th verse: "And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you . . . he shall also quicken your mortal bodies . . ."

There is the temple—your bodies are the temple of the Holy Ghost "If the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you." How shall we know that He does so dwell in us? Listen again. "Behold I stand at the door and knock. IF ANY MAN hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." Have you ever thus had supper with the Lord in your own heart, alone with Him?

"If the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, ... he shall also quicken your mortal bodies." You know "quick" means "living" as opposed to "dead." It was a long time before we could step out upon the assurance that that did not mean the resurrection from the dead, but it is "the mortal body" that will be quickened.

> "He shall also quicken your mortal body by his Spirit that dwelleth in you."

That is a wonderful statement; it has the force of the Eternal behind it. Some of us walk with the Lord, step by step, and shoulder to shoulder; but He is outside. Some of us know that the Lord has come in and taken up His abode, that He has mingled His Spirit with our spirit; His vision with our vision; His life with our life; His eternity with our temporality; so that St. Paul was able to say, "I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

How may we attain to this? "Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have spoken in the Name of the Lord, for an example of suffering affliction, and of patience." (St. James v.) You say, Does not that upset your theory; did not they suffer? Yes, they did, but they suffered at the hands of their fellow-men; not by disease, not by sickness, they suffered persecution. They were stoned; they were sawn asunder; they were slain with the sword. How the prophets were made to suffer because they spoke in the Name of the Lord. Isaiah, it is said, was sawn asunder. Jeremiah was put up to his armpits in the ooze of the prison dungeon. Zechariah was slain between the Temple and the Altar. Patience, suffering affliction by their fellow-men!

> "Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have spoken in the Name of the Lord, for an example of suffering affliction, and of patience.
> "Behold, we count them happy which endure."

Yes, that kind of suffering and endurance.

> "Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord; that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy."

Job suffered at the hands of evil men and of the Devil.

> "But above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation.
> "Is any among you afflicted? Let him pray. Is any merry? Let him sing psalms.
> "IS ANY SICK AMONG YOU? LET HIM CALL FOR THE ELDERS OF THE CHURCH, AND LET THEM PRAY OVER HIM, ANOINTING HIM WITH OIL IN THE NAME OF THE LORD:
> "AND THE PRAYER OF FAITH SHALL SAVE THE SICK, AND THE LORD SHALL RAISE HIM UP; AND IF HE HAVE COMMITTED SINS, THEY SHALL BE FORGIVEN HIM.
> "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

That is simple, isn't it? Let us follow that process for a moment. Is any sick among you? Let him call for the elders of the Church. That is the patient's responsibility.

But who are the elders? Senior men and women, who have approved themselves before their associates as men and women of God.

The responsibility now goes to the elders. "Let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the Name of the Lord." What does this mean? They are servant substitutes for their Master; they are men of like passions as ourselves, merely lending a physical hand to the Lord. The anointing is to be in the Name of the Lord; and the patients are to be anointed with oil, always the symbol of the Holy Ghost. What is it, friends? It is symbolically the Lord anointing the patient with the Holy Ghost for healing. Forget the servants acting as substitutes; they do not count. The anointing is to be done IN THE NAME OF THE LORD; the oil is the symbol of the Holy Ghost, and that which is symbolized is done by the Lord and the Holy Ghost.

> "And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him."

We have traversed the ground step by step. This individual ministry committed to the Christian Church is among us to-day. It has lain dormant. The elders have been afraid to exercise it. The elders are conscious of sin; no wonder they fear. And yet they have no right to say, We are unworthy, or we are worthy,; all they are asked to do is to pray over them, and then to lend a hand to the Lord, to do the anointing. If we can get our eyes away from ourselves and our fellows, and get them fixed right upon the Face that shone out from Calvary, and upon that Person Who suffered at the hands of sinners by the nails, and the spear, and realize that the anointing is by Him, and that He anoints with the Holy Ghost, healing will follow in body, mind and estate.

We have traversed this doctrine from the organization of the nation down to the present time. In our hearts we can say to Jehovah Ropheka, "I accept thee as my healer, for my body, my mind and my spirit."

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

Professor Odlum, M.A., said:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND FRIENDS,—Let me begin by using an illustration or two. Supposing an historian were to come along in about one or two thousand years from now, and begin to read up the history of the people of these Islands, gathering up books, British-Israel pamphlets, magazines, newspapers, etc., in the City of London, and the other cities throughout the kingdom. Such an historian or historians would have difficulties. They would find that in this land there had been a people that were known as Londoners, and there had been a people pretty nearly at the same time, as far as the historians then could make out, known as Cornwallians, and they would find there had been people known as North Waleans and South Waleans. They would read of people from Manchester and the Black Country, and the Hop Country down in Kent. They would wonder what kind of peoples all these were, how many nations and tribes had been represented in these little Islands. In Canada, if there were such men writing or reading history 1,500 years from now, they would run across Torontonians, Vancouverites, Winnipeggers, Quebecers, and they would wonder what it all meant. They would, no doubt, come to the conclusion that there had been many different nations in the land. Such a conclusion would not be right. The Vancouverites and the Torontonians are the same race. The Londoners and the Yorkshiremen are pretty much the same race; it cannot be otherwise.

Now then, would it not be natural, since this is the state at present, viz., that these British Islands are represented under very many names, would it not be natural that the people in past days were represented under many names? You see where I am coming? I have roamed over these Islands and I know the names of very many of the districts of the country. I had the opportunity, thirty-two years ago, of travelling through the British Islands for the Canadian Government for two years. I naturally learned something about the names of the people, and that helps me to-night. If we Israelites are carrying so many names now in the British Islands, over in Canada, Australia, and elsewhere, would it be strange if our ancestors carried many names in the olden days? I think not. It would be natural. We ought to look for it and expect it, and our historic studies ought to bring us just such a classification. That gives me a chance to begin!

We find that our people, about 750–721 B.C., were carried into captivity out of the Northern Kingdom, in the land of Canaan; carried from the land of Samaria and from the city of Samaria after three years' siege. They went into Assyrian captivity, and were scattered around by Assyrian authority and regulations in many portions of that Empire. Shalmaneser, then king of Assyria, and his co-workers were very joyous over the fact of having conquered these very stubborn people and carried them into exile. He decided to put the story on stone, so that the statement, the historical aspect of it, would be there down through the ages. And in ordering his engraver to engrave certain engravings on a rock, Shalmaneser did me a very great service to-night! When he was talking, and his engraver was putting on the rock certain statements ordered, he was telling about the Israel people of Samaria, and, strangely, while he was talking of them he did it under the name Kumri. Take it for granted that he had a good reason for putting it in the Kumrean form. Thus, then, these Israel people were Kumri.

Some of the British people are Welsh. Now in the time of Darius Hystaspes a marvellous thing occurred. The descendants of these Kumri-Israel people were hard to manage. Darius Hystaspes found a people that bothered him very much. He had to make war upon them and put them into the right category of citizenship. He defeated them and he thought it would be a good plan to inscribe on a rock something concerning these Kumri-Israel people. He inscribed his story in three languages: one in the Persian, one in the Babylonian, and one in another that has not been read, likely Elamite. In that inscription in the Persian he called these people the Sacae—the origin of our word Saxons—and in the Babylonian inscription Kumri, the word used by Shalmaneser, 721 B.C. It could be read either as Khumri, Kumry, or Ghimiri. It comes from Omri, king of Israel. The initial letter is the Hebrew Ayin, sometimes used as an aspirate as seen in Gomer or Gomorrah.

Thus we get these people as Israelites, Kumri and Sacae. That is a step forward. Let us watch for them later.

We find, further, by the history of Herodotus, Pliny and Pomponius-Mela, that these people, known as Sacae and the other names, were also known as the Scythae or Scythians. Herodotus is very particular about that, and he knew them in both lands personally. Hence we have Israelites, Kumri, Sacae, Scythae or Scythians.

We have a list of writers, numbers of them, indeed. I will give you the names of a few. Dion Cassius, Pausanias, Justin, Appian, Humboldt, Rawlinson, Bruce Hannay, Sharon Turner, and our own historical writer, Gibbons, say that the Sacae, and the Scythae or Scythians, and the Goths are the same people.

Now, do you see where we land? We get Israel over into the heart of Europe, under other names. Herodotus tells us that the Scythians called themselves Getae, and the Getae of Herodotus were the fixed or settled Getae of the land, and those that were the wandering Getae were known as the Massagetae. The Goths later on divided into the Ostro-Goths and the Visi-Goths.

Let us recapitulate: From the above we get the following Israel names: Sacae or Saxons, Kumry, Scythae, Getae, Goths, Ostro-Goths, Visi-Goths, Massagetae and Gepidae.

The historians I mentioned also tell us that the Dacians were of the same people as the Goths and the Scythians. I could go on further at this point and enlarge it, but I think I have gone far enough to illustrate my point, because when I come to the Scythians, Goths and Massagetae, I am coming down to comparatively modern times, as in that list I come down to the eleventh century A.D.

The Israelitish people were carried by the Assyrians into Northern Asia, in the direction of what we now know to be Western Siberia and Armenia, also into those districts eastward into the land known as Siberia to-day. They occupied parts of the following: The Armenia of later history, the great city of Van, the region of Dahia, Turania, Aria, sometimes called Aryania, and Sakland, a land in which the people called themselves, and were known by the historians of the day, as the Sak-Goloths. I emphasize this because it simply means two Hebrew words, the Saxons of the Exile. Translated into ordinary language it means that a nation was building up yonder in the north-west of Asia, known as the Exiled Saxons.

You will remember that God told Abraham before Isaac was born that the seed of Abraham would be named in Isaac, and if you go to the minor Prophets, you will find that Israel was spoken of as the "House of Isaac" before they went out of the land. No wonder we find the word Sacae under many forms over yonder in Asia, the very region into which the Israel people of the ten tribes had been carried as captives. They knew they had been carried into captivity, and they called themselves and were called by others the Saxon Exiles, Sak-Goloths. In due time they built up a powerful nation.

They were carried away about 721 B.C. By the year 705—that is not a great while after—they had broken free. Assyria had so many difficulties in other directions that the Sak-Goloths, the Israelites, had broken out into freedom, and began to build up an independent nation.

Let me give you a little bit of Bible prophecy. God had said to Assyria through the prophets: "I called you to punish My people Israel. You came in your own haughty strength; you boasted that your organization, that your military power and generalship, and that your gods had triumphed over them and their Jehovah. You in turn will be broken down, and you will be broken down by these same people who are your captives now." These very Sak-Goloths, these very Kumri, these Sacae, these Israelites, were to conquer Assyria in the near future.

I have said that in 705 B.C. they were free. They began to make themselves strong, and developed various centres of power. Each district was given authority to govern itself under the main authority. Very much the same as we are doing all over the Empire to-day.

In due time, as they spread westward—because they had the westward urge, whether they knew it or not—they spread out and came into contact with the mighty city of Van, perhaps the biggest city in the world at the time outside Nineveh and Babylon. They besieged Van. Cambyses, at that time the head of the Persian forces, went up to relieve Van, but was beaten by the Sak-Goloths. They turned upon him and his army, fought a battle, defeated the Persians, turned back, besieged, conquered and captured Van, and put it under their control. Then they turned and went down south-eastward into the land of Assyria, broke down the armies of the Assyrians, captured Nineveh, and burnt it to the ground about 619 B.C.

It took a long while to build up that nation of Sak-Goloths, or Saxon Exiles, from their small groups until they were able, as one mighty army, to go down and destroy their conquerors. In 619 B.C. they did that, remained there, and triumphed over and ruled the land for twenty years, until they began to trek into South-East Europe by the Caucasus Mountains.

I have something now to say that will tie up another great event. You know that it was about 600 B.C. that Nebuchadnezzar was fighting against the other kingdom, the kingdom of Judah; about 600 B.C., finishing up about 585 B.C., when Jerusalem was destroyed and the Temple of Solomon taken and destroyed. Take that fifteen years from 600 B.C. down to 585 B.C. Just north of them, a little preceding that, the army of the Sak-Goloths, under King Urza, captured Nineveh, 619 B.C.—619 B.C. to 600 B.C. is not far apart. Israel that had been taken into captivity broke the Assyrian power almost at the same time that Nebuchadnezzar was breaking the power of Judah. Now I leave this phase of the topic. I want you to get another matter clear which comes out of that.

About 599 B.C., twenty years after 619 B.C., the Sak-Goloths, later known as the Skolotoi or Skoloti, decided that they would leave that land and go westward. Not by any means all of them, but large numbers of them went westward. They went westward under the name of Sak-Goloths, but they are written of by the Grecian writers as the Skolotoi. A remarkable thing now occurs. As they were moving westward, they had to go a long distance from Assyria over into South-East Europe. In their movements as a nation, from where they were at the time, they had to go through the Caucasus Mountains, and through Albania and Iberia, between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea. The spies of the people over in the other land, in the South-East of Russia, part of them known as Scythians, heard of their coming. They, in Russian Dniester, were Israel peoples, and they knew who were coming as an army. They had taken possession of the country known as Russia, the Don, Dniester and Volga regions. In the Valley of the Dniester these people held a council to consider whether they would permit the Sak-Goloths to come into their region and settle there or not. That was an immigration question! Do you see that? I want to break off for a moment. Over in Canada and other parts of the British Empire we have very insidious anti-British teaching, from one end of the country to the other, by the enemies of Britain. They are raising every opposition they can raise to prevent the Englishman, the Ulster-Irishman, the Welshman, the Scotchman, the Manxman, and other men and women from coming into Canada. They do not want them; they want other breeds and nationalities. There is a tremendous propaganda against the immigration of our British people from the British Isles. But the sensible voice of Canada is saying,—"Come on, by thousands and tens of thousands and hundreds of thousands." We have only a population of about ten millions at the present time. Our country will hold one hundred millions with comfort, as easily as the United States, for we have a bigger area by many hundreds of thousands of miles than has the United States. Our troubles amongst our peoples at the present time along the immigration lines are somewhat similar to those along the Valley of the Dniester 599 B.C. that I have referred to.

They held a council of the different tribes; the leaders argued and got so heated in their argument that the result was they fought a regular battle, a real fight, trying to decide whether they would let their brothers come in or not. One party triumphed over the other. That led to something which was then important, and is now important to you and to me. One of the great leaders of that people said, "Well, then, our party will get out of the country; we will not stay with you." They did not start east, north or south, but went west—west—west, and later on they began to make it north—north—north.

They went over to the Danube; and as the time passed they passed on through the land of Germany, Switzerland, Gaul, Belgium, and into what we call Ireland to-day. They were known as the Brithon, the Belgae, Senones and Loegry. I will not follow that, but when you are reading the history of the different countries in Western or Central Europe, make up your mind that these were people from over yonder, in the north of Canaan; Israelites, under many different names.

Now I want to go back a little to clear up another matter, because I am going to introduce a people of another name, and give you a little of their movements. Large portions of the Israel peoples did not leave on these other treks or migratory movements of which I have been speaking. Great numbers of our people in those times did their fighting on horseback. They were a marvellous cavalry people away back before the time of Christ, and up in the mountains of Central and Western Asia, in the upland pastures, they had a tremendous proportion of horses and cavalrymen, and they were known as the Arsaces or Hill Saxons, the Highlanders of the day. At the head of these Highlanders was a king called Arsaces, which simply means Mountain Saxons. "AR" is the Hebrew word meaning hill or mountain.

About 248 years before Christ, Arsaces and his cavalry following, established themselves in the Highlands in Central-Western Asia, and they built up a mighty power which lasted for 500 years, the Empire of the Parthians, an Israelitish Empire. Now these people, if you read their history, you will find broke several of the Roman armies, the Fourth Kingdom of Nebuchadnezzar's dream. Something happened a good while before over in Persia, and up in Bactria, and Sogdiana, about 330 B.C. Alexander the Great established himself over all the ancient country of Medo-Persia, Assyria and Babylon. He developed a strong kingdom, and under his rule were some people away up in the north-west of Asia. He found they would not stay conquered. He decided to send up his troops to conquer them and make them submit to his authority. These northern people of Bactria knew they could not face Alexander's Macedonian phalanxes. They decided to trek eastward, and in effect jeeringly said, "Come on; we are on a journey." Men, women and children began to move, and as a nation they left their home in Bactria. They went with all their possessions, moved eastward to North Central China. The Macedonian phalanxes could not catch up with them, so they gave up the chase. These people passed through the Altai Mountains and settled in China, and lived there for four generations. Then they moved back again, because they were impinged upon by the Kiangsu of China, who themselves had been driven north-west by other forces. So when they came out of China and moved westward into the region of Bactria, they came with the Chinese name of Ut-chi, or Yu-Ti. When they came to their brethren in Bactria and other regions close around, they said, "This is our land; we are going to have it." They drove the inhabitants out of the land, and pushed them south. This would be about 190 B.C. When they drove the other peoples south, they pushed them on the north boundary of the Parthians, the Arsaces, or Highland Saxons. Here was a strange combination. The Israelitish people coming back out of the north of China were pushing Israelitish peoples southward upon the Parthians, an Israelitish people, with the result that they had to migrate eastward into a region known in olden days as Sakistan, or Seistan, even into the Highlands we now call Afghanistan. They established themselves in Afghanistan and Cushana, Kashgar, and other places in that region. The scholars of Afghanistan will tell you that they are the children of Israel; they and their rulers and their higher classes are Israelites. Let me tell you that in my opinion God saw to it in early times that He would put right in the top of the world yonder a mighty people that would not let the barbarians of the further East come across into Europe and wipe out all civilization. Divine strategy is wonderful strategy. This is one of the many combinations of the movements of ancient Israel.

We will now go back into the land of Scythia, South-East Russia. The historians tell us that these Scythians had many names, one of which was Goth, under two names, Ostro-Goths and Visi-Goths. We know that about the time of the weakening of the Roman Empire, say, when Theodosius was ready to leave the Empire in the hands of his two sons, Valens and Honorius, the Goths began to go down the Danube Valley from the Baltic regions into the land of Moesia and Dacia.

Other tribes and portions of migrating Israel pressed upon these Goths from the east and the north-east. Thus they were pushed southward in the direction of the Danube River. They made arrangements with Emperor Valens, by which they could cross over the Danube southward into major Moesia and into lower Dacia. They got into the land, and then Valens and his courtiers, and his military men, began to operate along lines different from the treaty that had been made between the Goths and the Romans, with the result that there came about a great battle. The Roman army was destroyed and Valens was killed. This was one of the beginnings of the breaking of the Fourth Empire of Nebuchadnezzar's dream by the Gothic peoples of Israel. These were important movements, because they were carrying out prophecy at every turn.

I am following along ethnological lines just now. A little later other Goths came, and the pressure began to move out west and south to different parts in the west of Greece and the eastern side of the Adriatic, and eventually across into North Italy. In due time the Goths under provocation paid their attention to the Western Empire of Rome. Their great leader at that particular time was Alaric, later followed by Theodoric, one of the mightiest generals in the history of the world. After Alaric had taken Rome three times he died and Atawulf followed him. Theodoric the Great was a highly civilized man, and a Christian withal. He does not get justice from the historians of ancient days. This is too true of modern times.

When Honorius was Emperor, Alaric came into conflict with him and his courtiers and his armies. He beat down his armies, and took possession of the city of Rome. Now you see where we are. These Kumri, these Scythae, these Sacae, these Goths—all the same people—came over and took Rome. Daniel interpreted the dream about 580 B.C., saying that just such things would happen to the Fourth Empire. Alaric took the city of Rome the second time and a third time, and he appointed his own Emperor, even though Honorius was Emperor at the time.

I could go on westward to Gaul and South-West Europe, where the Visi-Goths raised up a mighty kingdom, taking in Portugal, France and Spain.

From these ancient peoples and other preceding Israel stock came the people of the River Valley; the River of Heber the Hebrew. From these people, doubtless, came the Basques of the Pyrenees Mountains. These are big questions, and require much careful study. Until about the 10th or 11th century, the Goths of the west controlled a lessening part of that great district I have mentioned, until they finally disappeared as Goths. But something remarkable was happening in the meantime, running through some hundreds of years. Little by little the Goths were passing over into the British Isles. We find them pushing in their movements westward, followed and accompanied by the Angles, Saxons, Jutes and Danes. They appeared over yonder east of the North Sea or British Ocean, British since the War. It used to be called the German Ocean; it is not! Another sign and finger-point! In due time they passed over into the British Isles under different names, which we follow no farther to-night.

I would like to have had some time to show you their inter-relationships, but they were all Israel peoples, and doubtless some others. The last influx into this land by a big group of invaders, a portion of a nation, was that which happened in A.D. 1066, when Benjamin came home, and in all likelihood a portion of the Tribe of Dan. Benjamin belonged to Judah, as you know. Benjamin, in part, came back from captivity with Judah from Babylon about 530 B.C. Benjamin was with Judah down to the time of Christ. Benjamin was with Judah down to A.D. 70. Where did Benjamin go? While Titus besieged the city, he took his besieging soldiers away from the walls of Jerusalem for a short time, and gave permission to those who would go free to go, and a large portion went free. It was not Judah. Judah would not go, but Benjamin departed, to some extent at least. Jeremiah had told them to go free hundreds of years before the event. He mentioned them by name, and told them they must leave their brothers of Judah. They in part passed west, and settled in the mountains of Cappadocia, and they were known by the Greek writers as the Leuo Syrians, the White Syrians. The time came when Probus was Emperor of Rome. He had people on the north-west of his European Empire who were hard to deal with. They were known as the Friesians. Probus could not keep them quiet. He sent his ships and his soldiers, and packed them, the little nation, upon the ships, commercial transports and military ships. The fleet carried them through the English Channel, through the Mediterranean Sea, to the south of the Black Sea. They were shipped ashore, and did not know they were being landed in the presence of Benjamin. Benjamin saw his relations and doubtless knew them. They and the Friesians captured the Roman ships and did as they liked with them. They made the Roman sailors turn around and take them back again. They returned and landed in the rivers near the shores of Holland and Belgium. Their descendants are there now. What about the others, the Leuk Syrians or Benjamites? They sailed north. The major portion of them went up along the west coast of Norway and settled there. They built up the Norse people of Norway. In after years, Rollo, the sea-king, moved with his Vikings down to the north of France, took possession of the north of that land and ruled it. They became the Normandy people of France. When William of Normandy saw later a chance of coming to England, he came over and landed at Hastings near Senlac Hill, fought a great battle, and won his way into Britain in 1066. That was the home-coming of Benjamin, the light that had belonged to Judah from 975 B.C. until the Coming of Christ.

What wonderful movements from Headquarters above! Our God has been taking care of us down through the ages, and we can sweep forward in spite of all obstacles, and go forward in our task of blessing humanity and uplifting ourselves.

Whatever may come in the future, Britain is guaranteed safety, success and permanent Divine protection.

The Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A. (Chairman) said:

Just now we had read to us one of the most beautiful of the Psalms, although are not all the Psalms beautiful? But sometimes there are certain Psalms that appeal to us on one or another occasion, and which we love to dwell upon. I was greatly saddened this afternoon when I was informed by telephone that one of my choir men passed away at three o'clock, a lad to whom we were all devoted, as he was to all of us. I sat down and wrote to his father and mother, and found comfort in one of the verses from one of the Psalms, the 67th Psalm. As you all know, it comes in the Marriage Service of our Church of England. And the last verse in that Psalm is the keynote of the whole story of British-Israel, and of God's purpose in His Chosen People. "God shall bless us; and all the ends of the earth shall fear Him." Not for nothing has God put His seal upon Israel, upon Great Britain, upon the people whom He has called after His Own Name to be a chosen inheritance unto Himself. God has given us our work to do in the world, and we are going to do it; and "if God be for us, who can be against us?"

Through the kindness of two friends my wife and I this year, after a strenuous year of unbroken service, were able to spend a wonderful holiday on the Continent, from the North Sea to the Mediterranean, going through Germany. I knew Germany well before the War, and I have been there since the War. And I noticed in a certain shop, whether in Hamburg, or Munich, I cannot quite remember, a large map. Its purpose was to show Germany's grip on the world, and the output of German trade and commerce. How by peaceful penetration she is getting her foot in all the corners of the earth again. My friends, I believe the Bible teaches about Israel's grip of the world. We have got to win the whole world for the principles of Jesus Christ. That is the work that God has given Israel to do, and God is going to bless us, as this Psalm says, in order that all the ends of the earth may fear Him.

May I say what a great joy it is year after year to see the way in which our Federation is growing and extending to the uttermost parts of the earth. I remember, and others of my brothers and sisters remember, when we had to struggle hard in order to get only very small meetings. Those days are past. I believe the time will come when this Hall will not be big enough for our Annual Congress. We want to spread our Truth, God's Truth. We want to enlarge our borders, God's borders. We want to bring all Christian people into closer touch with their Bible, into a closer knowledge of the Truth of Our Lord, that they may see that Our Lord is not only their Saviour, but also Israel's Redeemer. God has given to us each one our work to do. Never mind the opposition of those who do not know better. You remember the story of the lady who went up to Dr. Johnson, and said to him one day, "Dr. Johnson, why have you given such and such a word such and such a meaning in your dictionary?" "Ignorance, madam," he said, "pure ignorance." I do believe there are lots and lots of people who misunderstand the British-Israel Truth because they are ignorant of their Bible, because they are ignorant of the Bible's spiritual message, and the meaning of our Union Jack, and of God's great and glorious purpose in our wonderful Empire.

The Rev. W. Pascoe Goard said:

Think of the Mount of Transfiguration, and the glory of that historic event. There were there the three disciples, and Jesus Our Lord, Moses and Elias, and the holy cloud, from the midst of which spoke the voice of the Father. It was the beginning of the Kingdom of God, fulfilling the statement that Jesus had made six days before, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, there be some standing here that shall not taste of death, till they see the Kingdom of God." The significance of the Mount of Transfiguration is this, that there is the scale on which earthly things shall yet be governed, and these are the personalities engaged in the government. And the three disciples understood this; as they came with the Lord down from the mountain top, they said: "Why then say the scribes that Elias must first come? And Jesus answered and said unto them, Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things. Indeed, the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." But someone says to me, Oh, but Elias came in John the Baptist. Did he? Jesus recognized that. He said: "But I say unto you, That Elias is come already, but they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed." But did he restore anything? On the contrary, did they not wipe him out, and Our Lord after him? With absolute recognition of that fact Jesus said, "Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things."

Now Elias, as a method of working. He began his work in ancient Israel. Sent of God to Israel, and to the king, and to his ministers, and to the people, he said, "There shall be no rain or dew these years, but according to my word." Famine conditions; breakdown of commerce; end of industry; trouble everywhere;—visitations of God. A year passed; another year passed; a third year came. And Elijah went to meet the king, and the king said, "Art thou he that troubleth Israel? And he answered, I have not troubled Israel; but thou and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord." And then there was sent out a call to the people to gather together, and two altars were built—the test of the priesthood against the prophet took place, and at eventime, the time of evening worship, the fire of God fell, and the people cried, "Jehovah, He is the God." And the dislocation of industry and the cessation of commerce ended with the return of the nation to their God. Then Elijah went to the mount of God, and sat under a juniper tree, and then he prayed, "Lord, I am tired of all this. Take away my life." What an unfortunate prayer! The Lord took him at his word, and gave him certain things to do first, and then took him away. And Israel was still away from God in regard to the law. The statutes of Omri took the place of the commandments and statutes and judgments of Jehovah. And so Elias shall come again, and Moses shall come again; the one appeared to smite with plagues, and the other appeared to shut the heavens that they should not rain. And the prophecy is coming down upon God's people now, to the end that Elias may restore all things.

Already the ear of the people is Godward. Now I am not disturbed in regard to these things, because, not only the Pyramid, but the Bible tells us with absolute clearness that these things must be the case. I read those tremendous chapters in the 23rd and 24th of Isaiah, telling of these things. Mr. Davidson was right when he declared that this nation might bring this period to an end if it would mass its prayer to Almighty God. At the end of the 24th chapter of Isaiah we read that Israel in the Isles cries to Almighty God, and then we read, "O Lord, Thou art my God; I will exalt Thee, I will praise Thy Name; for Thou hast done wonderful things; Thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth." That is the watchword of this Federation. "For Thou hast made of a city an heap; of a defenced city a ruin; a palace of strangers to be no city; it shall never be built. Therefore shall the strong people glorify thee, the city of the terrible nations shall fear thee. For thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, when the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall. Thou shalt bring down the noise of strangers, as the heat in a dry place; even the heat with the shadow of a cloud; the branch of the terrible ones shall be brought low. And in this mountain shall the Lord of Hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things, a feast of wines on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wines on the lees well refined." A great banquet for all people. "And He will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations." What is that covering? What is that vail? It is the covering and the vail that hides Israel from the eyes of the nations. And is it not a miracle that under the very conditions, of which Mr. Davidson has been speaking to you, you are gathering in this Hall by the thousand to behold the removal of the covering and of the vail? "He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the rebuke of His people shall He take away from off all the earth; for the Lord hath spoken it."

Now I would like for a moment to look over the world conditions among the peoples of the earth to-day. There is no more active, industrious, enthusiastic people than our brethren of Judah following their ideals. Next to them comes Germany. What is Germany about to do? Capturing the markets of the world by so-called peaceful penetration. What is the Anglo-Saxon world doing to-day from the Pacific to the Atlantic? They are enquiring, Where are the old paths, that we may walk therein. And, mark you, it is true that this nation everywhere is clothing itself anew with the power of the Name of Jehovah, the God and King of Israel. That's it. Now I would rather see gatherings like this to develop spiritual power than I would see a gathering of bankers to take control of the financial power of the world. It is more important to God, and it is more important to you. And this thing is going on. In the North of England, in Durham, in Northumberland, in Wales, there are miners out of employment. Of course they are, and they are going to be. For, mark you, no matter what we may think about the matter, God Almighty cannot spare His Anglo-Saxon kingdom of priests to go down into the earth to dig coal when He wants to fit them for their priestly office in going out and ministering in spiritual things to mankind.

I went to Canada in the '80's, and I saw a kingdom at the parting of the ways, and that kingdom had to decide whether it should become an agricultural nation or a manufacturing nation. I saw Canada gather her young manhood out from the farms into the cities, into the factories. It was an awful mistake. There were the slums in Montreal, and in Toronto, and in Winnipeg, and in Vancouver, when every one of these Anglo-Saxons might have been the free possessors of an estate giving them absolute independence. God has set for this nation the task of developing the greatest material heritage that any people of the earth has ever possessed. Canada is rich in soil, in climate, in forest, in fishery, and is capable of employing a hundred million Anglo-Saxons. Yet there is unemployment in Great Britain! Mr. Garrison can tell you of Australia and New Zealand; and this Book will tell you of the Middle East. Now as the eagle stirs up her nest, and so teaches her young to fly on their own pinions, so the Lord God Almighty is shaking up this population. Now, why? Look over to the land of our fathers. Read what the Lord has said in connection with this very time. "Oh, ye mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to the children of Israel, for they are at hand to come." He is preparing from day to day that territory from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates. "Behold, I am for you, and I will turn unto you . . . and I will multiply men upon you." Lord Balfour knew of that passage, and similar passages, but he did not know the meaning of them. That which God had given to Israel He promised to the Jews. "And the cities shall be inhabited, and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. No armies shall come to the land to defend it, and lose their lives in the defence." Israel is the very heart of the movement of God, and He is leading us on through the very last testing-time to the victory that lies just before us.

Just this closing word. Where lies the great difficulty in Britain to-day? In the Name of Almighty God, not in the economic field, not in the field of science. Not there. Where, then, does it lie? In the field of practical religion. At the basis of all the trouble—and with charity and with pain I say it—is the misleading of the People of Israel by the shepherds of God, who are ordained to preach the Word of God, and who, instead of preaching the Word of God, are preaching the traditions of men. There is in Great Britain and America an army of men that could save the situation, and at the head officially of that army of men, I say it with all respect, I say it with the highest esteem of his office, is the Archbishop of Canterbury, and all the clergy who are behind him. If they would burn their idols; if they would come back to the simple facts of the truth of God, prophecy might be translated into history, and they could lead this nation back to God, and they could lead it up into a period of material and spiritual prosperity that no nation under Heaven has enjoyed in historic times. But if they continue to fail, God has declared that He will raise up other shepherds, and, by the leadership of shepherds appointed of God, He will lead this people to the recognition of His personality and His throne in their midst, and kneeling before Him they will put themselves in such a position that He can pour out upon them all the material and intellectual and spiritual blessings which He yearns to bestow.

The Rev. J. Mountain, D.D., said:

This Federation is a great Bible Society. There is no Society in this country that can so thoroughly and so effectively defend the whole Bible as this Federation; and if you begin with the Book of Genesis and go right straight through to the Book of Revelation, you will find that remark is perfectly true, that all through the Bible there is a thin red line of promise and type and prophecy all pointing to the Messiah. That is what Mr. Moody used to say, but may I add to that this fact, that that red line points, not only to the Messiah, but to the Messiah's people, Israel, especially as to their glorious future, Israel represented by our British Empire. Among the passages which stand out with special relief there is one that I am very fond of speaking upon. "Unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given, and the government shall be upon His shoulders." The reference is to the Messiah. "And His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end." There are set forth there three great points—the advent of the Messiah; the mission of the Messiah; and the qualifications of the Messiah. I wish I had time to deal with the whole of these three points, but I must leave one till, perhaps, the next Congress, when I hope we may have the honour of standing upon this platform once more.

Let me speak of the mission of the Messiah. Why did Our Lord Jesus Christ come down from the heavenly world? Why did He lay aside the glory of the Godhead? Why did He come down to Bethlehem's manger? Why did He come down to the Cross of Calvary? He came that the government might be upon His shoulder as the Redeemer of Israel, and as the One Who should make a complete atonement for the sins of the world. He came to assume a Kingdom, not to start a Kingdom. I want you to notice that; not to form a Kingdom, but to assume a Kingdom and to extend a Kingdom. He came to rule; He came to be a King, King of kings, and Lord of lords. What kind of a Kingdom, and what kind of a King? Well, first of all, it was to be a Divine Kingdom. It is spoken of in the New Testament under two phrases, the Kingdom of God and the Kingdom of Heaven. I believe a great deal has been written upon these two phrases, and subtle distinctions have been drawn between them. I shall not attempt to touch upon those distinctions of thought, save just to say this, that the Kingdom of God indicates the source of the Kingdom. It originated in the far past eternities, in the infinite Mind of God, and in the gracious compassion of God. "Oh, the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God. How unsearchable are His judgments, and His ways past finding out!" The Kingdom of Heaven indicates that the Kingdom has come down from Heaven; it is here upon earth as a heavenly and glorious manifestation of God, and ultimately it will shine in the glory of Heaven throughout the ages of eternity. The Kingdom of God and the Kingdom of Heaven—it is a Divine Kingdom; it is a visible Kingdom.

A few months ago I was lecturing in Leicester, and I had the pleasure of being entertained by some dear friends of mine, leaders in Christian work in that large town. Before I went to the afternoon meeting I entered into conversation about the British-Israel Truth with my kind hostess with whom I was staying, and I was pointing out that the Kingdom is a visible Kingdom. "But," she said, "did not Christ say that 'the Kingdom of God is within you'?" I said, "Yes." "Well, then," she replied, "if it is within us we cannot see it: it is not a visible Kingdom." "Stop a minute," I said, "that is a mis-translation. The word which is here translated 'within you' means 'in the midst of you,' and if you will look in the margin of the Revised Version you will find it is so rendered and so translated." So please get that idea thoroughly in your minds, that the passage should be translated,

"THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS IN YOUR MIDST."

In Dr. Schofield's edition of the Bible there is a very important note; and if any of you have not got that edition of the Bible, then go and buy one as early as you can. It is one of the finest helps to the Bible that I know of. I have used it for many years, and I always feel quite safe with it. Well, this is what he says: "It could not be said for a self-righteous, Christ-rejecting Pharisee that the Kingdom of God, as to its spiritual content, was within him. The Kingdom was actually in the midst of the Pharisees in the Person of the King Himself, and of His disciples."

Now I come to the next point. The Kingdom that Christ came to extend and establish is a national Kingdom. The Kingdom of God is a national Kingdom. Israel was not only a nation; it was a Kingdom. God's chosen people. They were a theocracy governed by God Himself.

Two or three years ago I got a very strong letter from a dear friend of mine, a very godly man, whom I esteemed very highly, and I esteem him as much to-day as when he wrote that letter to me. He said, "I can no longer support you, either directly or indirectly, or your British-Israel teaching. You are speaking of the British Empire as God's Kingdom. I challenge you to prove from the Bible that God had a Kingdom in the Old Testament days." Well, of course, I felt sorry to receive such a letter, and I took a few days to quieten down. It is always well when you have such a letter to answer to wait a few days. It is my custom, and has been for a number of years. I recommend that to all my hearers to-day. Let me tell you what I did. I wrote him a very kind letter, and I gave him the passages that I am going to give you. I have never had any reply. Do you know why? There is no reply, for the reply would have been to deny the teaching of the Word of God.

AT MOUNT SINAI,

when the law was given, God said to the people, through Moses, that if they would be obedient "ye shall be unto Me a Kingdom of priests and a holy nation." Again, "Wherefore David blessed the Lord before all the congregation; and David said . . . Thine is the Kingdom, O Lord, and Thou art exalted as head above all." "And Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as King." That could not mean a throne in Heaven; it could only mean a throne on earth; and a throne implies a Kingdom. The throne of the Kingdom of the Lord over Israel. "The King of Israel, even the Lord Jehovah, is in the midst of thee." Now I put it to this intelligent audience here to-day, Can there be any other interpretation of those words than that the People of Israel in the Old Testament dispensation formed the Kingdom of God? And it was to be an everlasting Kingdom. There were no chances about it. It was to be without end.

Now listen, Jehovah spoke as follows to David in the 89th Psalm, "I have made a covenant with My chosen, I have sworn unto David My servant. Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations." What a statement that is! The oath of the God of Heaven is sure. And that Kingdom is to be an everlasting Kingdom. But there is a still stronger passage than that. I see the archangel Gabriel coming down from the light of the heavenly world. I see him coming to visit the maiden, the Virgin Mary, and telling her that she is to have the honour of bringing into the world the Redeemer of Israel, and the Saviour of mankind, and he tells her about this, and then he says, "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David; and He shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever; and of His Kingdom there shall be no end." Oh, what a promise! What a signal manifestation of the grace of God! What a magnificent Saviour we have got! What a privilege to be identified with Him in any capacity whatsoever!

Now, what does the New Testament say about it? John the Baptist was one of the greatest of men; he was a man of great self-denial, and a man of entire consecration to God. He commenced his ministry with these words, "Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand"—not the Church. The Church has its function; it has been purchased by the precious blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. God forbid that we should say anything to minimize the status or the function of the Church of Christ. But the Church is not the Kingdom, and the Kingdom is not the Church.

If I may say so, as I look back over the centuries to the days of Origen and Jerome, the early fathers of the Church, I see the mistake that they made when they attributed the Kingdom promises to the Church, instead of taking the words to mean what the words evidently indicated.

WHAT DID JOHN THE BAPTIST SAY?

"Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand." And what did Our Lord say? "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God. And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the Kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye, and believe the Gospel." (St. Mark i, 14, 15.) Those are the words that fell from the sacred lips of Our Blessed Lord. When Our Lord sent out His commission to His twelve disciples, first of all, do you know what He said to them? He sent them to preach the Kingdom of God, and to heal the sick. And He sent out the seventy shortly afterwards, and they were to say in their message, "The Kingdom of God is come nigh unto you." What happened after Our Lord's Resurrection? Well, for forty days after His Resurrection He gave infallible proof to His disciples of the Resurrection, and we read that He spoke of things pertaining to the Kingdom of God, and the disciples said to Him, "Wilt Thou at this time restore again the Kingdom unto Israel?" Our Lord did not deny the reality of the Kingdom, but He said, "It is not for you to know the times nor the seasons which God hath put in His own power." And when St. Paul went to Rome, as a prisoner for preaching the Gospel, and there he was a prisoner for God, bound with chains, but still permitted to remain in his own hired house under charge of a guard, he gathered the Jews together, and what was his message? You will find that message in Acts xxviii, 23: "And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and testified the Kingdom of God." So you will see the great importance of the Kingdom. The Church is important.

I trust, dear friends, we are all members of the Church, and that we are all loyal to the Churches to which we belong; and that we are doing all that we can to deepen the spiritual life and to promote the unity of the Church as a whole, until we are all brought into entire agreement on the great fundamentals of the Christian faith. But do not forget this, that the Kingdom is a NATIONAL KINGDOM.

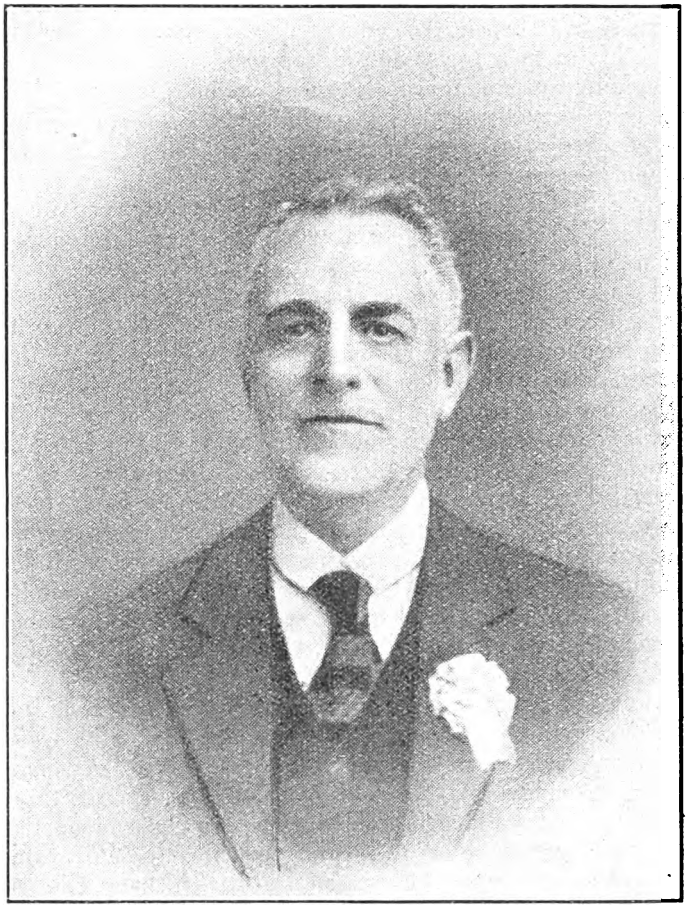
There is a spiritual aspect to it as well. To be British-Israelites will not save you. They are not all Israel which are of Israel. We must be born again if we are to enter the Kingdom of God spiritually. We must be prepared to receive the Saviour, the Messiah, the King, that He may reign upon the throne of our hearts.



Now there is one point more. Where is the Kingdom to-day? I have endeavoured to show you that Christ and His Apostles preached the Kingdom. And, by the by, the word "Church" does not occur in the New Testament until, I think, the 16th of St. Matthew's Gospel, when Our Lord said, "Upon this rock I will build My Church." And there was no Church until the Day of Pentecost. But the national Kingdom—where is that? Is it in France? Is it in Germany? Is it in Italy? Those are great nations—God bless them all—but there is not a single sign that they fulfil the conditions set forth in the Bible. They do not fulfil the prophecies; they do not represent the picture. But take a survey of the great British Empire, and you will find the Kingdom of God. The Anglo-Saxons are the direct lineal representatives and descendants of Israel, and we inherit their honours and their privileges and their glory.

There is a story told that in the days of the old sailing ships sometimes the captain would lose his bearing. And on one occasion a vessel was at the mouth of the Mississippi, and they signalled to another vessel, "We are dying of thirst; give us water." And this was the reply that they received, "Dip up and drink; you are in the Mississippi." So I would say to my brothers and sisters throughout our great Empire—are you asking where the Kingdom of God is? Dip up and drink; you are in it; the living waters of salvation, the living waters of the truth of the Lord are here. Let us magnify His Name. When I hear the Hallelujah Chorus I cannot bear the rustle of a leaf; I cannot bear the movement of a foot; I am in Heaven, and I think I can hear the whole host of the redeemed singing "Hallelujah, Hallelujah, for the kingdoms of this world are become the Kingdom of Our God and of His Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever."

OBITUARY.

THE LATE MR. D. R. GOODYEAR, OF COLCHESTER.

IN many respects the late Mr. Goodyear was a remarkable man. He came to Colchester as Postmaster ten years ago, and he finished his time here, retiring with a fine record of service. An active man, physically and mentally, his leisure hours were fully occupied. He threw himself heart and soul into work for the Wesleyan Church, of which he was so staunch a supporter. He was Trustee and Trustees' Steward of Culver Street Church, Vice-President of the Wesley Guild, Treasurer of the Sunday School, a Society Class Leader, a former Steward, ex-President of the Colchester and District Sunday School Union, and Choirmaster at Culver Street. In this latter position he did excellent service. A keen musical student he had given lectures on great musicians, illustrated with selections of his subject's works well sung by his choir, who rallied loyally around him. He had trained the choir for competitions at the annual Eisteddfod, and won a place in the awards, just as individual members of his choir were always in the prize list.

Mr. Goodyear was an interesting and instructive lecturer, and had addressed Brotherhoods in the district on "The Miracle of the Bible," and on the romance of the post office and telegraphs, and his discourses on music were always well thought out and informative. His love of music was intense, and we recall his opening observations in a dissertation on Mendelssohn which showed his belief in art as an aid to religion. Art, he said, comprised all the imaginative side of man's activities—literature, music, drama, painting, architecture, sculpture and all the crafts. In the Book of Proverbs they were told that where there was no vision the people perish. He believed religion required that a man or woman should rise to the full height of his or her capabilities of body, soul and mind. The Church should, therefore, use art in all its forms so as to benefit the community. They wanted a wholesome life in their towns and villages, and with the return of the piping times of peace—he was speaking a few years after the war—they should endeavour to build up a real culture. Carlyle had said that music was a kind of inarticulate, unfathomable speech which led them to the edge of the infinite.

As a Bible student, too, he was very sincere, and in his addresses he stressed the effect which the grand old Book had upon the nation. Wherever its principles were understood, and its precepts carried into practice, he said, they would find all that constituted the grace, the strength, the purity, the perfection of social and spiritual life. What was it that had laid so deeply the foundations of our national freedom? What had covered our land with seminaries of education, with asylums for the sick and destitute, that had impelled the human intellect onwards in the path of discovery, that had mitigated the horrors of war, that had broken the fetters of the slave, that had elevated woman to that rank in society to which she was justly entitled, and which had secured for the toiling multitudes the inestimable blessing of one day's rest in seven? For all these national and social blessings they were indebted to the influence of the Bible. Let them reverence it, read it, and speak of its precepts to others.

He will be much missed in Colchester, and particularly by the Wesleyan community, with whom, and with the widow and two daughters, much sympathy is felt.—Essex Telegraph.

Mr. Goodyear had held every office in his Church that it was possible for a layman to hold. He was Superintendent of five Sunday Schools in the towns to which the Post Office authorities sent him. He was an ardent British-Israelite, and he had frequently spoken and written for our Cause.

We tender our sympathy to his widow and family in their great loss.

A REPLY TO "BRITISH-ISRAEL UNDER NEW SEARCHLIGHTS," BY AVARY H. FORBES, M.A.

A SECOND edition is introduced by the "Christian" as "Unanswerable," and by a laudatory "Foreword" by the Rev. S. H. Wilkinson. With such sanction, it seems strange that the old, and yet ever new, "Searchlight" of God's Word is evaded. It is admitted that there are "four avenues of evidences"—Scripture, Ethnology, Tradition, Legend and Secular History. Mr. Forbes began his study of the subject with Secular History, and found himself "up against a stone wall which" he "could neither climb over nor break through"; so he concluded that "Scripture" and etc. were not worth considering. His reason, given on his last page, is that the first three "avenues" are open to dispute, "but the facts of history are not open to any dispute." Why then shelter himself under officially "Scripture" advocates, who must hold "Scripture" the final and only infallible avenue?

His claim, that "the facts of history are not open to any dispute," is true; and will be a "stone wall" to many; but to logical thinkers, the "dispute" remains, as to what is fact and what is fiction, Mr. Forbes seems quite ignorant of the conditions under which "Secular History" was written for two and a half millenniums after the disappearance of the ten "lost tribes" themselves, and also on "all nations," as to identities, and as to other historical "facts," will be found in such passages of Scriptures as Lev. xxxvi; Deut. xxvii, 28-29; Romans xi; Isaiah xxv, 6-8. This judicial blindness was part of the course of Lev. xxvi; the "seven times" of which expired about A.D. 1844, since which there has been a wonderful unveiling of blind eyes, as Mr. Forbes admits. It can now be seen, for instance, how the blinded Herodotus failed to distinguish between the racial Scythians and the temporary settlers in Scythia from the Assyria of their captivity. It can be seen also in Mr. Forbes' assertion that British sea-supremacy was "lost long ago." Then the British race and the Anglo-Saxons are the same; and they are now represented by the British Empire and the United States of America; and to-day the Anglo-Saxon sea-supremacy is greater and more secure than ever. The whole is greater than the part. It can be seen also in Mr. Forbes' acceptance of the Rev. S. H. Wilkinson's only contribution to the argument, when he says, the "basis of British Israelism" is "its superficial and flimsy plausibilities." This will be joyfully accepted by the hostile inclination as profound argument and "unanswerable" logic. Let it be unanswered and let us turn to a better form of argument than this Papal-like decree. The few details answered must suffice as examples of the rest, as all the details cannot be answered in a few lines; as they must be dealt with in a more general way.

The only book Mr. Forbes bases his arguments on is "British-Israel Truth." That is a brief summary of British-Israel teaching, but it does not profess to give a detailed history of the "lost" ten tribes of Israel since they disappeared from their Assyrian captivity. Were he to apply to the Covenant Publishing Company, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1, he would find books of further historical detail.

But no British-Israel advocate claims to know everything, and to be infallible; and much darkness still broods over the vast subject of "lost" Israel's wanderings and doings. The only fully trustworthy authority is "Scripture." The amazing system of Bible prophecy regarding them is the only "Searchlight." Bible prophecy is history written beforehand; and it is the only completely true and correct history we have. With all our modern means of securing accurate information, what conflicting records of the "facts" as to the causes and the events of the late Great War became current? The Omniscient made us no mistakes in the prophetic records of His Word.

The opposite certainty is that "Secular History," especially of ancient times, is a dark maze of inaccuracy and uncertainty, and that it is often impossible to distinguish "facts" from fictions. The only reliable "Searchlight" is God's Word. It is the only sure "lamp" to our feet, and the only infallible "light" to our path, through the dark jungle of history. Yet our accredited historians have mostly neglected this infallible "Searchlight," and have written in predicted "blindness."

The recent revelations of archæology are far more trustworthy than our historians; and are doing much to corroborate Bible history, and to confound the fictions of our Modernists. The new light from archæology, and from a better understanding of prophecy, is a growing light of great value to the study of British-Israel questions. Witness also the flood of new light that is being shed from the recent reading of the riddle of the Great Pyramid, certifying the accuracy of Bible prophecy as interpreted by British-Israel advocates, and falsifying all the other systems, such as Futurism. Mr. Forbes refuses to consider "Scripture" because "the arguments from Scripture are open to different interpretations." The Great Pyramid has proved the historical system of interpreting prophecy to be the only reliable system. So the imaginary barrier to Mr. Forbes has been removed; and we cordially invite him to step into one only Temple of Truth, the infallible Word of the Omniscient, "Scripture." This does not mean that the exponents of the right system are infallible. Infallibility is not a human prerogative in any line, or system, or study. British-Israel advocates sometimes err in details, but no reasonable critic would, on that account, condemn their whole system, and refuse it proper consideration.

While Mr. Forbes refuses to consult Scripture because of an imaginary "stone wall," God's Word says, "Let God be true, but every man a liar." (Romans iii, 4.) This is perverted into, let "Secular History" be true, but God . . . How does Mr. Forbes' "Secular History" account, for instance, for the Abrahamic and Davidic Covenants? God, for our assurance, condescended to put Himself under oath as to their fulfilment; and repeatedly and emphatically declared that they were unconditioned, except as to blessing and needed chastisement, and perpetual as the sun and the moon. The opponents of British-Israel teaching have no answer, or they give God-dishonouring answers. For instance, some say God set aside Israel of the northern kingdom, and gave their promised blessings to a Gentile Church, and their curses to the Jews. Pretty fulfilment, is it not? British-Israel teaching, alone in all the world, justifies, honours and glorifies God and the Bible by faithfully showing how God's Covenants have been continually in process of fulfilment through the ages, and are still in course of fulfilment, all exactly as predicted both in letter and in spirit. This is the exalted service, and the glory, of British-Israel teaching, now being given at this appointed time, to warn and to prepare the world for the Second Coming of Our Lord. Its proofs are essentially Scriptural, and are fundamental to human destiny; yet the Rev. S. H. Wilkinson characterizes them as "superficial and flimsy plausibilities." That is not the way to peace, which British-Israelites are charged with breaking. Peace with error means death to truth, and ruin to the world.

DANIEL IX, 25, 26, 27.

By F. S. Dobbs.

The writer has read with the greatest interest Mr. Van Lennep's letter under the above heading in your issue of September 29th, and hopes you will allow space to reply. He correctly quotes from verse 23 A.V. "At the beginning of thy supplications the commandment came forth" in fulfilment of the gracious promise, "Before ye call I will answer," or as Ferrar Fenton renders it, "The command was issued" to Gabriel, instructing him to fly swiftly to Daniel and say unto him, "Now am I come to give thee skill and understanding," etc. (verses 21-22), or as Ferrar Fenton has it, "To teach thee to understand" this vision. This took place as Mr. Van Lennep claims in the first year of the joint Babylonian reign of Darius the Mede and Cyrus the Persian. The "commandment" spoken of in verse 25 is a different one altogether. It could not, however, refer to the permission given to the Jews by Cyrus, during that same year, to go and rebuild Jerusalem, because although the work was then commenced it was not carried out. But the word might apply to either or both of the edicts issued by Artaxerxes Longimanus (I apologize for not having given his name in full) respectively to Ezra on 14th Nisan in the 6th and to Nehemiah on 25th Elul in the 20th year of his reign, because the work undertaken in accordance with these two successive "commandments" was actually completed. Besides this, counting from the date of the former, 483 solar years at 365.24225 days to the year; and from that of the latter, 483 lunar years at 354.367 days to the year, we arrive by both calculations at January 8th, 28 A.D., when the anointing of the Saviour with the Holy Ghost took place, or as rendered in the R.V. "Unto the anointed one, the Prince" (verse 25). Mr. Van Lennep is not correct in stating that the A.V. marginal note refers to the starting date of these 483 years; because, whether intentionally or otherwise, it is attached by its reference letter "f" to the seventy weeks mentioned in verse 24, though of course it may have been meant to apply to the authority given to Nehemiah in the 20th of Artaxerxes, mentioned above. It surely would not have needed much imagination on the part of my critic to identify the Artaxerxes I spoke of with the one referred to in the marginal note, but as to the latter being my

Digitized by Google

"chief authority" for the explanation of the passage that I have advanced, I blush to have to confess that I was unaware of its existence until he drew my attention to it.

The seventy weeks or 490 solar years of verse 24 began to run in the year 3536 A.M., which was the first jubilee to be celebrated after the dedication of the second Temple in 3489 A.M., forty-nine years previously—both dates inclusive. And we read that these 490 years also extended to and terminated at "the anointing of the Most Holy." That is at the commencement of His sixty-two weeks' ministry, the 434 days between the 8th of January, 28 A.D., and the 17th of March, 29 A.D., the date of the Crucifixion. In the face of the written Word it is strange how prevalent is the belief that "the Crucifixion took place at the end of 69½ of these 70 weeks of Daniel, and that during the remaining half week of 3½ years after Christ's death the Gospel was preached to the Jews, after which the period of mercy for them, nationally, came to an end and the door was opened to the Gentiles." This theory to authorize the general conception that Christ's Ministry lasted for 3½ years is ingenious, but we deem it to be not in accordance with the teaching of the Scriptures. The preaching of the Gospel to the Gentiles began, we believe, long before this period expired, and when Christ, just before His Ascension, gave instructions to His disciples "to proclaim the good news to every creature," He did not add, "but don't include the Gentiles till 3½ years have elapsed"!

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

WE are passing through a time of tense anxiety in the suffering of our beloved King, and we pray continually that God will be graciously pleased to raise him up again and restore him to good health. We are thankful that he has such distinguished medical skill at his service. The sentence in the bulletins speaking of the "tax on the King's strength" shows the seriousness of the disease. The universal sympathy and concern so manifest bear eloquent testimony to the unique position which the King and the Queen hold in the affections of their people, to whose interests they have been so unselfishly devoted for many years.

God Save the King.

The Secretary-General has received a beautiful letter from the Queen in answer to his letter of sympathy on behalf of the Federation. Her Majesty may be assured of our prayers in her time of anxiety and strain.

We cordially invite our readers in the London area and those within easy reach of the Metropolis to favour us with their presence on Tuesday next, December 11th, at 8 p.m., in the Great Hall, Church House, Great Smith Street, Westminster, on the occasion of the Celebration of the Eleventh Anniversary of the Deliverance of the Holy City. The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Garrison will be the speakers. Very fine lantern pictures of Jerusalem will be exhibited. We must again emphasize the necessity for obtaining tickets in advance at H.Q. Should any persons desire to attend who cannot afford to purchase tickets we will gladly present them with free tickets.

On November 29th, under the chairmanship of Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C., our Open-air Missioners gave a very interesting account of their experiences during the past season of outdoor meetings. Messrs. Pilcher, Barrow, McKelvey, Tester and Bradbury were the speakers.

Thirty meetings were held during the summer months and eighty-five addresses given. The districts visited included Finsbury Park, Highbury Corner, Brockwell Park, Peckham Rye, Regent's Park, Victoria Park, Hyde Park, Streatham Common, Clapham Common, Barking and Leytonstone. It is estimated that 3,500 people were reached by these means, and the interest shown has been decidedly encouraging, as many as 147 names being handed in for literature and further information. The addresses given embraced a wide range of subjects, special emphasis being given to the Covenants of the Bible, the early history of Britain, the British people and the British Church; also the great benefits enjoyed by nations and peoples subject to British rule. In certain of the districts visited numbers of Jews attended the meetings, and sometimes helped considerably by supporting the facts put forward by the speakers.

The Missioners regretted losing the assistance and guidance of the Rev. Joseph Gay, owing to his appointment as Commissioner for Wales, and they look for additional speakers to be ready for the opening of the next season, for there is a wonderful opportunity by this means of reaching thousands who cannot be attracted to indoor meetings. They point out that some of the greatest revivals have been brought about by the preaching of the Gospel in the open-air. The speakers are in need of a suitable stand from which to address their audiences, and they trust that the Federation will undertake to provide them with one.

The speaker at the meeting at H.Q., 6, Buckingham Gate, on Wednesday afternoon next, at 3, is to be the Rev. J. Lumley Davies, and on Thursday evening, at 7.30, Mr. H. A. Marchant. We hope for full audiences.

Mr. Daniel Farmer was the speaker on November 28th, and his address was very much appreciated.

On November 26th Rev. J. T. Childs, Vicar of St. Saviour's, Birmingham, gave for our Handsworth Branch a fine address on "Satan and the Kingdom." He dealt with the person of Satan, and showed that he was a very beautiful, wise and important being till he tried to assert independence of God, setting himself to rival God, forming and heading a rebellion among angels, not by direct attack upon the Throne, but by insinuation, as Absalom did later on. Satan was not the author of crime, which was yielding to the impulses of FLESH, but was concerned with FAITH. He craved worship for himself, and if he could not secure direct worship, intrigued to get it indirectly. The speaker showed how this principle bore on many Scriptures, and the exposition so given was highly illuminating. He showed how Satan was our great accuser before God; then in a brilliant passage showed how

WE "have an Advocate with the Father" in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The lecturer showed how the Scriptural narrative is a record of the continual warfare Satan has engineered against ISRAEL, to either bring about their suppression, or at least, by inducing departure from God, to make it impossible for "all the families of the earth to be blessed" through the seed of Abraham. We saw many instances in the life of Abraham, Aaron, Saul, David, Solomon, and in the High Priest Joshua, in quite a new and vivid light, all "fitly joined together."

In Herod's massacre of the Innocents, the storm on the lake, and in other Gospel incidents, he saw direct attacks on THE KING of the Kingdom, unsuccessful attempts to kill Him. In the Temptation and other incidents, an attempt to divert Him from the will of His Father, and so make the Coming Kingdom impossible.

In Christian times his great method was to promulgate false attitudes towards God and the Lord Jesus Christ. He showed how St. John's use of the terms true and false are what we should now call genuine and imitation. So in all false systems there is much that is good, but, he added, the more a forged bank-note appears to be genuine the more dangerous it is. The late War was an attempt by wicked spirits in high places to overthrow THE KINGDOM, of which Britain is the centre. The call had come to Britain to be the "means of blessing to all the families of the earth." Satan would do his best to frustrate that purpose. His most successful method would be blinding our eyes to our need of NATIONAL REPENTANCE, or by trying to be independent of God, and seeking to bring in the Kingdom by man-made schemes of social and other reforms. * * *

The Bath Branch greatly appreciated a visit by the Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., Wednesday last week, who lectured to good audiences in the Assembly Rooms. His topics were "The Psalms in British History" and "Truth for the Present Crisis." Two or three influential people who have not yet come into the B.-I. fold confessed to having been deeply impressed, so we are expecting good results.

Mr. Johnson has recently addressed meetings also at Westcliff, Clacton, Croydon, Bedford, Keysoe and Barking.

Mr. I. E. Wesley was the speaker for the Leicester Branch on November 19th, taking as his subject "The Mystery of Israel," and exhorting his hearers not to be ignorant of this mystery that blindness had happened in part to Israel. Mr. A. E. Biggs occupied the chair.

A deep impression was left in Leamington by two lectures given on November 20th by the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse to large and appreciative audiences. "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "The Power behind the Red Menace" were the subjects. Alderman Mason, J.P., officiated as Chairman at the evening meeting.

Miss Makin, the Assistant Secretary of the Liverpool Branch, was the speaker at the Branch meeting on November 22nd, taking as her subject "The King's Highway," which was in the nature of an allegory, leading up to the truth that all mankind must travel along that highway if they wish to reach the goal and obtain eternal life.

A prayer meeting is held every Thursday at the Book Depot of the Worthing Branch, 71, Rowlands Road, at 12 o'clock noon.

Miss Hamilton Hunter has lectured at Horsham, Portsmouth, Richmond, Muswell Hill and Blackheath to deeply interested audiences. She is going during this month to Dover, Herne Bay, Sutton, Sydenham and Stratford, E.

Mr. J. J. Morey has lectured at Dorking, Tunbridge Wells, Horsham, Chatham, Bexhill, Putney, Fittleworth, Bradford-on-Avon, Stratford, E., Leicester and Reigate.

The Rev. Joseph Gay has held a number of meetings in Wales. He writes a sad story of the distress in the mining areas through unemployment.

We were very grateful for a cablegram of congratulations and good wishes from the Rev. Maxwell Carnson and our members at Cape Town, received and read out during the Congress week. We regret this was not mentioned in the Congress notes written by our Commissioners.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard has addressed twelve meetings in the North, four at Harrogate, two at Bradford, one at Halifax, and five at Sheffield. Dr. Rutherford and Mr. Foster Beaver presided at Harrogate, and the Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., at the other places. A high spiritual tone pervaded the meetings and the interest was tense. Great good has been done. The people were shown that the B.-I. platform is one upon which all can stand who acknowledge Jesus Christ as God and Saviour, and that our Message is part of the whole Counsel of God. Further particulars will be given later.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE ILLNESS OF THE KING.

The heart of the nations of the Anglo-Saxon people has been halting in its beating in anxiety at the news of the illness of the King.

How wonderful it is when other thrones have tottered, and other monarchs have fled their realms, that the illness of King George should have called forth such a spontaneous anxiety in all lands, and in all hearts.

Prayer has been more united, and more incessant, for the recovery of the King than has been the case for any one object since the nations of our Anglo-Saxon world and their Allies went to prayer in the black days of the War.

Many a bed has been suddenly vacated in the silent watches, when wakeful subjects and humble friends of the King have arisen to kneel in prayer for one who has endeared himself to his peoples of the many races, languages and tongues of the Anglo-Saxon domains.

Still, at the time of writing, the anxiety prevails. The tide of life still seems to be ebbing and flowing, according to the bulletin reports which come from time to time. Our hearts still go out in prayer that God will restore the King, and remove the threatened cloud of bereavement from the Royal Family and from the nations of the Anglo-Saxon world.

Meantime the world is looking on at the dramatic race of the Prince of Wales, and of his Royal brother, from the ends of the Empire, which is a synonym for "the ends of the earth," to the bedside of the King. From the East Coast of Africa a fast warship is speeding, now at this time of writing, through the Red Sea, having already passed in through the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, the gateway of tears. At Suez a train will be in waiting to speed across the isthmus, and there another speedy warship will be waiting for the run across the Mediterranean. At the port of landing in Europe a fast train will be ready to further the flying Prince on his journey. Thence the Channel will be crossed by water or air, and the few miles which will then remain to be passed will offer little obstacle to the arrival of the Prince at his father's bedside. May he find the Royal patient much better, and far on the way to recovery.

In the meantime, across vast stretches of Africa, the Duke of Gloucester is hastening. He will catch the mail boat from the Cape and will traverse the West Coast of Africa and the West Coast of Europe, racing, as is the Prince of Wales, to the bedside of the King. May God speed their journey, and bring them safely. And may God give to His Majesty the King health and renewal of strength to welcome them home from the most dramatic race that has ever been undertaken in history.

Our Prayers are with the Royal Family.

What a chapter to write in the history of the House of David! What an incident—may it prove to be such by the recovery of His Majesty—to add to the already passing rich chronicles of that Royal House, the progenitor of which was David, the first King of David's line in Israel!

For three thousand years the chronicles of that House have been running. Nowhere else has there been such a history of any family. The early generations have their chronicles in the Bible. The latter have their chronicles in ancient Irish, ancient Scottish, mediæval British and modern British Empire history.

This House alone, of all the families of the earth, have the hereditary anointing with the Holy Oil, as the Divinely-appointed "Chief Governor" of Israel, seated by Divine appointment on "the throne of Jehovah" as King; as we are informed in the Bible, the Kings of David's line were and shall be till the Coming again of Our Lord to take "the throne of His father David and . . . reign over the House of Jacob"—Anglice, St. James'—"for ever."

Thus a dedicated member of the House of David, set aside in somewhat terrible loneliness to an appointed task, occupies that throne which was established for ever by GOD'S PROMISE, supported by GOD'S OATH to David.

What an Empire Kingdom is that over which King George is called to reign! What an influence is that which the Kingdom wields in other lands, and among other peoples, which go to make up the family of nations in the earth! How immeasurable is the extent of those domains which take weeks to traverse, even under the pressure of the present anxious circumstances, when all modern appliances for rapid locomotion are brought into play.

What a promise of future world unity and international fusion is there in the spread of the principles which govern in the Kingdom Empire; and which are rapidly spreading to other lands!

What a wonderful outlook it is which gives promise that all nations shall enter the brotherhood of free, but mutually supporting nations: and thus round out the Kingdom of God on earth! All nations being subject to the rule of the KING OF KINGS, JEHOVAH, the God of Israel; all nations being united by the House of David; administering the Common Law, the law of Divine origin, which obtains in the Empire and the United States of America, and which is in process of adoption by other nations. No nation shall rule over another nation, but all nations shall rule themselves by the Common Law, and be united by the House of David, and the nations shall thenceforth learn war no more.

May the King long live to carry forward this great plan of the Lord of Hosts for the unification of the nations of the earth into the Kingdom of Our God and of His Christ.

THE BASIS OF OUR FAITH.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

As we approach the end of another year's work, perhaps it will be well to open our treasure-chest and look over the documents upon which we British-Israelites rest our faith, and upon which we claim the assent of the world generally to the validity of that claim.

The first package of documents we extract from our treasure-chest consists of a package of little booklets of an unique character.

Originally they were all written in the languages used in a civilization which passed away. It was a wonderful civilization, standing to the world in that long ago time as Western civilization stands to the world to-day—that is to say, it dominated the world.

The centre of that civilization was in Western Asia and in Northern Africa; that is to say, in Mesopotamia, Palestine and Egypt.

In that civilization there were two types organized according to two great systems of religious thought; one type centred on the river Euphrates, namely, the Babylonian type; the other type centred in the exalted city of Jerusalem, namely, the Israel type.

An expansive literature grew up in connection with the Babylonian type of world civilization, and another distinct system of literature grew up around the Israel type of civilization centring in Jerusalem.

Then came the historic crash of that whole civilization; the practical blotting out of its languages; and the destruction of its literature as far as the Babylonian literature was concerned.

Greek language and Greek literature took the place of the ancient language and literature of Assyria.

But the sacred literature which centred around Jerusalem was preserved, translated into modern languages, and has come, in its entirety, down to the present day.

This is the most precious treasure that has come down to us as a heritage from that ancient pre-Christian civilization. In this bundle of documents there are thirty-nine little books, which, bound together, make up what we call the Old Testament.

The books of the Apocrypha have also come down to us, but they are not included generally in this particular bundle of documents.

Reaching again into our treasure-chest we find a second bundle containing twenty-seven little books and letters. These are the most precious documents that were ever produced in the world, and the world would be well advised to purchase them if necessary at the cost of all its material wealth; in fact, all the material wealth of the world would not weigh as the dust in the balance in comparison with the preciousness of this little bundle of books and letters.

These twenty-seven documents, bound together, make up what we know as the New Testament.

These latter books are of great value as fixing the relative value of the preceding bundle; we have said that the preceding bundle—the Old Testament—came down to us from a preceding civilization. These latter books came to the followers of Christ in the first century A.D., while the Greek language was yet in its youth, its classics being only five or six centuries old.

Think back to the literature of England five centuries ago, and no one would call the literature of that, and the immediately succeeding centuries, old.

The Hebrew language in which the Old Testament was chiefly written was still a living language, and original documents were still in existence in the hands of Hebrew scholars when the second bundle of books was produced. Thus the living language of Hebrew and the living language of Greek, with men well versed in both, met and assimilated in Jerusalem, the cities of Egypt, Asia Minor and South-Eastern Europe.

Thus the writers of the New Testament were well instructed in the value, genuineness and authenticity of the Old Testament documents.

Digitized by Google

The Old Testament books had been from the beginning, and still were, the constant study and the constant care of the Israel and Jewish peoples. They were read in the synagogue; taught in the colleges; conversed about and studied in market-place and home, and were scattered to the ends of the earth. They were constantly in the hands and on the lips of Christ and His Apostles, and by Him and them were held in highest estimation.

Now the Evangelists and Apostles set their hands to the writing of the New Testament group of books, and made the Old Testament group of books absolutely the foundation of the New; and the New Testament books positively the sequel to the Old. Thus by the evidence of the New, which was prepared with all the light and learning of the new civilization led by Greece, we know the value of the older documents prepared in the former civilization.

These two groups of documents set forth the revelation of God, such as can be found nowhere else on earth.

They reveal Him as Creator; as God to all the human family; as He Who entered into the covenant relationship with the Abrahamic family; and as Jehovah established in Israel as God and King for ever.

They reveal to us God the Son as active in the creation, accompanying the progress of the appointed "seed" from the beginning; as administering in Israel the power of the coming Redemption; and, finally, they show Him incarnate in Jesus Christ Our Lord, Who is at once the Redeemer of Israel and the Saviour of the world.

They reveal to us the Holy Ghost, active in the material creation before the birth of man, influencing the people of God in every age; and, finally and specifically, poured out upon the Christian Church at Pentecost.

These books reveal the election of a race to co-operate with God in the service of humanity, to which service by Abraham the father of the race, and by God its Creator, they were devoted in Isaac, even all the succeeding generations of his seed.

They reveal the organization of the national life of Israel under Moses at Sinai.

They follow the outworking of God's plan in and through Israel down to the time of the close of Bible history; thence they take up the story and pre-write the history of the various branches of Israel, and of Israel as a whole, down to the Coming of Our Lord Jesus Christ and the consummation at the end of the ages.

Thus in history and prophecy is written the outline of our race down to the present day and on to the end of time.

In connection with all this they tell the wonderful story of the operation of God's grace in the heart of the individual sinner, who turns to Him seeking salvation through the atonement made by the offering of the Lamb of God, Who taketh away the sin of the world!

What an invaluable bundle of documents are these! How wonderful the light that shines from them! What amazing power is static in their pages, waiting only the contact of the human soul to spring forth in infinite energy, revivifying the human heart and life!

Again we dip into our treasure-chest, and we find fragments of stone and of metal upon which have been inscribed items of information connected with the Asiatic civilization which centred upon the Euphrates.

In such fragments as these, which are multiplied in the rooms at the British Museum for instance, we get statements, sentences and names which bear out closely and accurately the more full statements of the documents of the Bible, and which throw light upon the statements of the Bible.

They tell of Israel in captivity in Assyria, and of Judah in Babylon. They tell of Israel at liberty in Northern Assyria, restless, aggressive, and moving to and fro in Assyria, in South-Eastern Europe and in South-Western Siberia. They give to us a list of names under which Israel travelled after leaving Palestine. With these names in hand we go to the next item of our treasure-chest.

We now take from the treasure-chest the books of ancient history, written in Greek, and written in Latin. In these we find the peoples under the names so discovered as we have before indicated; and as we read of them here and there we find them moving westward. For obvious reasons they generally avoided every country included within the Roman Empire. So in Northern Asia and in Europe they kept east of that line which formed the boundary of Roman occupation. And so they passed northward, east of the Roman boundary, and proceeded down to the Baltic, to Scandinavia and into Britain.

The study of the ancient histories and the ancient maps connected therewith enable us with care accurately to plot out the course and the movements of the various sections of the Israel peoples on their journey.

We now dip into the treasure-chest again, and from thence we draw modern histories such as that of Sharon Turner; modern books on archæology such as Du Chaillu's "Viking Age"; De Weldon's "Evolution of Israel," and his "Origin of the English"; and such books on ethnology as Bruce Hannay's "European and other Race Origins"; and Professor Waddell's "Phœnician Origin of the English, Scotch and Welsh"; and such books as these, beginning in the modern days and following back by the same route, find the beginnings of our race in the very lands and peoples indicated by the ancient historians.

When we have examined all these things, and many more in the treasure-chest we have not time to indicate in this article, we are assured of our facts as proved beyond reasonable doubt; indeed, we think beyond any doubt that the Anglo-Saxon peoples are the modern Israel of prophecy, the people of God, chosen and ordained to service of the nations.

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

The Rev. Canon E. Sidney Savage (Chairman) said: BRITISH-ISRAEL FRIENDS,—You may be interested to know that I happen to be the President of a new Branch of the Federation formed at Bexhill, which is a very flourishing Branch, thanks to the lady who has never been able to control me, as I have never been able to control her. I am going down next week to take a course of meetings in the County of Devonshire, and I should appreciate it very much if you would offer up a prayer for me that I may be of some use to this great and wonderful Cause.

Digitized by Google

I wish that more of you would make up your minds to become members of this Federation, and I hope before you leave this Hall that you will join up and work with us, for you will never regret it. I think we must congratulate the President and the officials, and especially Mr. Herbert Garrison, on this wonderful Congress. It is difficult to satisfy Mr. Garrison; he always aims very high, and he generally reaches pretty high. In spite of the attractions and distractions of London, I think the attendance has been wonderful. I suppose on a Saturday afternoon, and such a beautiful October afternoon, we cannot expect the young men and women to come in great numbers, but this is a Movement which ought to appeal to the young manhood of this nation.

I must congratulate the Federation on the high spiritual tone of these meetings. All these meetings have been informative, they have been full of inspiration, they have been full of good fellowship, and they have been meetings of consecration.

Mr. Garrison opened our eyes on Wednesday as to the magnitude of the British Empire. We are not ashamed of those symbols of greatness, those flags.

There has been another Congress in the West of England, but it has been rather of the apologetic, of the destructive kind. You do not quite know what they mean about the Virgin Birth. You do not quite know what they mean about the other great questions, about the impregnable rock of Holy Scripture, for instance, what we call the infallible Word of God. They are not even quite clear and explicit about the Resurrection. Job said long ago, before there was any Church Congress, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." We do not want the truth in chaos in the religious world. What a pity it is that there is all this quarrelling about the Holy Meal, the Holy Communion, the Feast of Love. It was meant to be a great symbol of unity, of communion, of strength; instead of that there has been for years and years controversy and contention over it.

We must go forward after a godly sort. We must hold fast to the Truth. We cannot have this Holy Book mutilated. We believe it and accept it as God's Word.

The Rev. W. Turpitt, B.A., B.D., said:

This has been one of the most remarkable weeks of my life. It is the first time I have had the pleasure of attending a British-Israel Congress, and I have been delighted with the messages I have had the privilege of listening to. I really wished to come and see face to face these magnificent men whose books I have been studying hard lately so as to satisfy the craving for more light upon British-Israel teaching. We have in this Movement men of brains, and men of spiritual power. I am fairly well acquainted with the works of first-class theologians and their writings during the past twenty years, but I will venture to say that the writings of Professor Odlum, Mr. Goard, Mr. Pritchard, and others are quite up to the level, if not indeed better than the writings of the so-called theological professors. I thank them very much for the great help that their books have given me. The Bible has become a new Book to me through this better and newer interpretation, and life has taken on for me a new meaning altogether. God is a bigger reality and is nearer to me than ever He could have been in that remote idea I had of Him that made Him just a Mechanic outside the mechanism of the world, instead of being the very life and soul of the world in which we live.

Do you know all through this week the prayer of an old Welsh minister has been with me, and I cannot rid myself of it. He was a farmer preacher, that is, he was a farmer during the week in the fields, and a farmer for souls on the Sunday. He had two churches and he travelled between them on horse-back so as to conduct the services, and he did a wonderful work, and commanded a wonderful influence in Radnorshire in his day. He prayed a wonderful prayer one day, and that prayer has been with me all this week, and it seems to fit in with my experience. The prayer was offered by the old man at what they call the Association meeting, which meeting would be held once a year, when the farmers for miles around would come together to hear the big guns from London, as they called them. The old farmer opened the meeting with prayer. This is what he said: "Lord, we do thank Thee for this day. We have been looking forward to this day for a long time, and to see the big guns from London. We have been wondering what they would look like, Lord. We expected to see them look like business men, but here they are looking like any others. Lord, bless the big guns from London, but don't forget the little pistols from Radnorshire." I feel like a little pistol.

I have been impressed with this meeting this afternoon. There is a great intellectual galaxy in your Movement, but we never forget the spirituality of the Movement. Dr. Mountain, that irresistible young man of eighty-four, struck a very high note.

Some time ago I gave an address somewhere on the word Jehovah. I met a friend afterwards, and he said, "I wish you had had more time to give us more of that." I simply gave the outline. And I have been asked if I would develop the thought a little more.

THE WORD JEHOVAH

is one of the great Names for God in the Old Testament. You know, if you are real British-Israelites, you will believe in a great God, and such a God that all His plans and purposes and all His Divine programmes, all these things He has promised to do, and has been doing, He will surely fulfil. God has become a bigger God to me because of His bigger purposes as enunciated in British-Israel teaching. The more I study these Names for God, the more I am impressed with them. All these Names in the Old Testament are not mere titles to distinguish God from pagan gods; they are not empty titles. As far as I understand these different Names for God, they are Names which throw some new light upon the many-sidedness of the Almighty. This word Jehovah is a word that I love. It really is a verb in the imperfect tense. Sometimes it is translated the Lord, and sometimes Jehovah. They tell me it is found 6,823 times in our English Bible, sometimes as Jehovah, and sometimes as the Lord. It does throw illumination upon the character of God. I believe that it is God's darling Name in the Old Testament revelation. When Moses was sent to Pharaoh with regard to the Children of Israel, he wanted to know the name of the sender. God gave a magnificent answer to that question. "Thus shalt thou say unto the Children of Israel, The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you; this is My Name for ever, and this is My memorial unto all generations." When God speaks like that about Himself it is quite evident that He thinks a lot about the Name that He has given Himself. It is God's self-appointed Name; His self-chosen Name; I might say God's covenant Name, because the word Elohim, which is the first Name for God in the Bible, the implications of Elohim are not half as high as the implications of the Name Jehovah. Generally speaking, God is simply dealing with material things when He uses the word Elohim. But when He uses the word Jehovah He is dealing with the human spirit, and making a covenant or a promise. And so the word Jehovah seems to me to be the covenant Name for the covenant-keeping God. The Jews looked upon that Name with such reverence that they never flippantly used the Name in a public reading of the Word. They seemed to be in the Holy of Holies of the Divine presence when they came to this great word Jehovah. It is like a Bible within a Bible this word to me. If I understand the meaning of it, it is this, "I AM He Who was." It is a Hebrew word in the imperfect tense. Now the imperfect tense in the Hebrew language is a very loose tense. It covers past, present and future. It comprehends all time, the God of the past, the God of the present, and the God of all the ages that are to come.

I sometimes think that people are wrong who say "Where will you spend eternity?" The implication seems to be that there is an eternity immediately after death, but I do not think that that is true.

ETERNITY IS GOD'S NOW.

Write that in big letters. God fills the whole thing.

I AM.

What do I learn about God? First of all, I learn that God has personality. Only a living person can say "I AM." Only a living person can say "I am alive." I find it easy to believe in a universal principle; I find energy everywhere. I find it easy enough to believe in a universal law. But when you come to speak about a universal Father or Person—well, friends, I do not know that I am clever enough to convince you of that intellectually. It is not a matter of intellectual reasoning; it is a matter of instinct—the Personality of God. I never find that Jesus was concerned in trying to convince people that God exists—but what God is. That was the message of Jesus with regard to God. What are we here for? Are we simply a mixture of atom and matter? How do you like the old world with all the lights out? The moment you put God away you put the lights out. How do you like the world without God and without hope? I do not understand all the deep implications of the Trinity, but I will say this as a believer in the Word of God—you cannot be true to the revelation of truth unless you believe in the Trinity. The Christian revelation definitely does teach of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

GOD IS A PERSON.

And so one might say we are warranted in thinking of intellect at its best, and of imagination in all its glory, and all those qualities that go to make up personality. Think of them in all their perfection, and apply them to the perfect God, then you will realize what I mean when I say that God possesses a Personality.

Personality is one of the deepest things I know. The lisp of a little child is a song sweeter in the ear of God than the song of any static star. God commands the star to shine; but He invites the little child to praise Him. The little child's song is voluntary, because there is a personality behind the song. God has made us in His image. Are we not personalities? I know that I am a personality, and I shall never want a proof concerning the existence of God as long as I carry myself about with me.

GOD IS THE UNCAUSED CAUSE OF ALL THINGS.

There is one setting in which I like that word Jehovah. It is the chapter you know in which God is represented as bringing the Ten Commandments to the Children of Israel. "I am the Lord thy God . . . Thou shalt have none other gods before Me." What is it? God training, educating the conscience of the Israelitish race, teaching them by means of those Commandments that right is right, and wrong is wrong, that righteousness is not something simply on the lips of God, but goes down into the depths of God's nature. The Commandments mean that God is a moral God. There is morality in the Name as well as individuality and personality.

"I AM THE LORD THY GOD."

The moment you talk about a man's God you begin to talk about his religion.

Matthew Arnold says, "All religion is made up of character." "I am the Lord thy God." Not only did those Ten Commandments throw light upon the people, but they threw light upon the Almighty Himself as being a great moral Personality. And even men who have no belief in God have recognized the stern law of righteousness. Take Froude. He was not keen upon spiritual things, but he could read history, and he could interpret the rise and fall of nations. One day he said, "For every false word of wickedness and oppression somebody has to pay the price at last." That is only another way of saying what the old Book says, "Be sure your sin will find you out." Paul speaks about the wrath of God. It is only the other side of God's love; for I would not give a "Thank you" for a love that cannot get angry with what is wrong, and to me it would seem as if there were something lacking in the love of God without that stern note of righteousness and morality which is certainly in it. They are telling us that we do not make much of the sovereignty of God. If we only understood, as we ought to, the term Fatherhood in the light of Calvary's Cross, we should see in that term Fatherhood something to make us more reverent than ever the Puritans found in the sovereignty of God. Many sentimental things are being said about this Fatherhood of God. If I understand the God of the Bible, He is not a mediæval Sultan sitting in a throne-room winking at sin, but a God in the depths of Whose nature right and wrong are realities. And those who can interpret things aright can see plainly that God has so arranged things in this world that right is bound to get at the top at last, and that sin will commit suicide, and it will see that there is no purpose for its future existence. It never pays to sin, and in the long last we shall come to look at it as the Almighty has been looking at it from the beginning. He is a moral God. And one thing that British-Israel is going to do is to bring before the minds of men and women that idea of Almighty God. And is not that wanted to-day, with all the lawlessness, and the revolutionary tendencies of the times? We have got to proclaim the fact that the Lord reigneth, and that He reigneth in righteousness, and that righteousness is, therefore, the basis of His throne.

Elohim is in the plural, and means love. One scholar tells us that the plural is used to denote the majesty of God's love and the abundance of it. But Jehovah is in the singular: the unity of God. Have you ever tried to believe in Polytheism? Isaiah speaks truly when he says that men must have only one God, and so we have that consistent teaching both in the Old and New Testaments. There is one God.

JESUS SAID, "THE FATHER AND I ARE ONE."

I look again, and I find God's independence in the word. I might translate it like this: "I am the only One; I alone am true." Here is God's independence. We depend upon God for everything; God depends upon us for nothing. God is alone One, high and lifted up.

The boy in the Sunday School was right. His teacher said to him, "How many gods are there?" "Only one," he said, "there is not any room for another." He just expressed what the Psalmist said, "Thou inhabitest eternity." Infinite space is God's dwelling-place. And so you have this great idea of God's unchangeableness. They are all in the word.

As I look at the word again I find in it mystery. You have personality, unity, unchangeableness, independence, trinity, and also mystery. We thank God for the revealings of His Word about Himself. We thank Him for what He has told us and shown to us, but not the half has ever been told. The Bible is a big Book, and God is bigger than the Book. There is the mystery of God that I would not be without. It makes one solemn sometimes to hear people say: "I am not going to believe anything unless I can understand it." Well, if you are going to take that position you will never believe anything.

I believe that Tennyson was well up to the average of the rest of us as to his intellect, yet he confessed his limitations when he sought to put into words all the mystery that surrounds the life of even a little flower. People say, "I cannot understand the Incarnation, the Atonement, and the Virgin Birth, and, therefore, they have no interest for me. I cannot understand them, therefore I won't believe them." I do not understand how the food that I eat is turned into physical energy; I cannot understand the process of this mystery of digestion, but am I to postpone eating until I understand it all? I notice that when men philosophize with their eating and drinking, it is the philosophy that is postponed. Thus said Milton, "How wondrous Thou art; of all Thy gifts the best." If you are a Christian you have to be a mystic. Jesus never put down the condition for understanding God along intellectual lines, but He did say, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

A little girl went out with other school children to study nature. "Paint the setting sun," said the teacher. "We cannot paint glory." Who can paint glory? Is there any wonder that one hesitates to talk on these great themes.

That Man on the Cross is ever calling us to stand by Him, but we feel we would rather get away, the theme is so great, so profound and so sacred. But we are here trying to do our best. The secret of this Movement is a deeper realization of the infinite being of Almighty God. There is one God, one in His being and nature, one in His purpose and plan, and we are His special people, chosen to co-operate with Him in this great and mighty undertaking.

Professor E. Odlum, M.A., said:

When I was listening to the two splendid addresses to which you also have been listening I began to say to myself, It is a pity to spoil them by trying to put in a third address. But it seems as though we must follow the order of the day, and that is the reason I am now before you. While I was on my way here I decided to change some portions of the address I was going to give, and since these two splendid addresses have been given I have been forced to make further changes, but I think it wise to make changes at times, because I believe there is a Living Spirit that takes possession of men and women when they are truly and humbly wanting to be guided by that Spirit; and at this very point once more I ask you to bear me up in prayer, in sympathy, and in faith, and you will get from me more than you could get otherwise. Now one thing that came to me with very great force is this—If you go to the 12th of Genesis, where Abraham is definitely introduced, and then follow through the various promises made to Abraham, and then to Isaac, and then to Jacob, you will find this coming out prominently. I have often spoken of it, but I never saw it as I see it to-day. The Lord told Abraham that He had called him for a purpose, and that it was through him and his seed that all the nations of the earth should be blessed.

You remember that the Lord made a covenant with Noah and his family and their future seed and with the entire animal creation that He never would bring a Flood again upon the earth. It was a very comprehensive covenant. Now when the Lord made a covenant with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and through them with their seed, didn't He make a covenant with the rest of humanity? Is not the rest of humanity under covenant? Is not Abraham's seed under covenant? How glorious, how mighty, how tender, how loving, how universal is the great thought of the Eternal Father! Not only Abraham and his seed came under covenant, but all humanity came under covenant through them, "In thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." What a provision! How glorious when we take time to look at it!

Now another thing came to me while I was listening to these two addresses. When we think of Our Master Who came over nineteen hundred years ago, we so often think of Him as belonging to what we call the New Testament times; but He came in Old Testament times, He came under the Old Testament regulations and customs and laws and commandments. When He started His work He took hold of the Old Testament teaching and spirit; and as He started it in His life He carried it forward through His life, and has travelled with it down to the present time. What a glorious, everlasting, ever-present Saviour our Saviour is!

Now taking something out of what I had thought of to say to you, I wish to take the word Saxon. Maybe some of you will not quite see eye to eye with me; but you ought to. All the descendants of Isaac, the son of Abraham, are Saxons. Now that is a statement. They are not all living in Great Britain; they are not all living in the United States, in Canada, in Australia, in New Zealand, in Tasmania. Some of them are in other places in the world. But there are a tremendous number of Saxons in the world, and there are some who do not know it, but they are under the covenant, and He Who knows where they are knows how to deal with them according to His covenants. Take, for instance,

THE PEOPLE OF DENMARK.

Well, I have traced them like many others down through the ages, and I have no hesitation in saying that, primarily, they belong to the tribe of Dan; but they never travelled simply alone; they were always more or less mixed up with their own tribal peoples. But that is a common thing in the process of the migration of the human family. But the people of Denmark, I believe, belong to the Israelitish camp, and therefore they came down along the line of the Saxon people. Now you see what that opens up to us—that there are these fellow Israel people in various parts of the world.

THE STONE KINGDOM.

Now from Daniel we know there is a Stone Kingdom somewhere in the world; for Daniel in giving the interpretation showed that that Kingdom was to remain for ever. Therefore that Kingdom exists somewhere at the present time, and I am going to give you something of the foundation of that. You and I have often been perplexed. I have been teaching a good while on the B.-I. platform, and I knew that there were some difficulties that would necessarily arise in the minds of honest students of this subject. It looks sometimes as though the question of this Israel Kingdom is a question limited just to certain people. How often we get that rather crudely in our minds! You know that in the olden times there were those that came from one country to another, and it provided for them the means by which they could become members of the Israelitish nation in the Land of Palestine; and there was a joining up with the Israel people constantly in the old times.

Is it not a fact that at the present time in Canada, Great Britain, Australia, Africa, and other parts of the British Empire, and in other lands, there is ample provision made by which any man of any nation can come in and join with that particular nation and become a citizen if he be a worthy man and acceptable to the bodies of officials who introduce him by legal processes into the citizenship of the country?

If a German or a Turk or an Arab, or anyone else, should come into this country, or into our country across yonder, if he have the right conditions of manhood, and all the other things necessary, he can become a citizen of the British Empire.

Again, there is a bigger proposition that I now bring before you. You know very well that He Who sent His disciples out to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom, which means the Good News of the Kingdom, told them to go to all the people of the earth, and the burden of the cry is this: "Marvel not that ye must be born again." And the word is carried to all humanity, or should be. And the offer of each man coming before a community of any people on this earth, whatever their colour, the offer is,

"COME INTO THE KINGDOM."

I have been in foreign lands, and have talked with people, and I have felt the pressure of that question, and when I was inviting them into the Kingdom I knew the process was the process of being born into the Kingdom. And our Heavenly Father, through Jesus Christ, has prepared a plan by which any man on this round earth, and any woman, whatever their colour, may be born into the Kingdom of God, so that there is no barrier against those who are not what we call the Saxon peoples. And the way in which they can be born into the Kingdom of God is clearly set forth in the Bible. When I am in conversation with some man of another race, I can give him as ready an invitation as I can give to a member of my own family. You understand what I am dealing with there.

Another point I wish to make is from the reading I am going to give you—Isaiah li: "Hearken to Me, ye that follow after righteousness, ye that seek the Lord." Let us see who He is talking to. "Look unto the rock whence ye are hewn, and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged." They were hewn out of the rock; taken out of the living rock, the quarry; and they must necessarily be a rock people, a Stone people, and if they become a Kingdom, they must be a Stone Kingdom. There is your foundation for the Stone Kingdom. No people can be hewn out of a living rock without being a Stone people; and if they are a Kingdom, they are a Stone Kingdom. "Look unto Abraham your father, and unto Sarah that bare you; for I called him alone, and blessed him, and increased him." There is a limitation, is there not? That shows that the first part of the rock must necessarily be limited to those who come from Abraham your father. But many came from Abraham. So far as that particular limitation is concerned it might mean Ishmael, it might mean Edom—Turkey. It might mean the Midianites. They all came from Abraham their father. But there is this elimination—"and unto Sarah that bare you." That cuts out Ishmael and the Midianites and the Edomites, and all but the line down from Isaac. That is the line that we have now before us clearly marked out. Now we have the Israel people located definitely as the Stone people,

THE PEOPLE HEWN OUT OF THE ROCK.

"For I called him alone, and blessed him, and increased him." He just called one, that one Abraham from Ur of Chaldea, to get located in another habitat, and begin a definite work, and he and his descendants were the people that were being addressed down through the pages of history, and they were being addressed under the term of the rock or Stone people. So one was called, and out of the one came many, and how many there are to-day no man knows.

They were to be numberless as the sand upon the seashore, and there never was a man who could number the seed of Abraham from Abraham down to the present. "Hearken unto Me, My people." Not a scattered people, but a definite nation. It was a nation, not a Church. The time will come, and it did exist a long time when the Church and the nation were one, when the whole nation was serving God; then the Church and the nation were one; and that time is coming again. Now your minds can run just along that line. We have a Church in these British Isles, and it has had a marvellous relationship to the nation from the beginning.

Let me tell you my thought concerning the movement within that Church, and touching upon the nation and the House of Commons, that I believe that nothing will happen that will make a final cleavage between what we call our national Church and our nation. The old British Church, the old Anglican Church from the days of Abraham, is a lasting Church. We have to do some things in it to modify it; but that is not my business; that is a question for the theologians. But God will see to it that the gates of Hell will not prevail against His Church. He started the Church away back thousands of years ago, and the Church is living on and on, and in the organic side, in the material side, we have that Church doing a marvellous work down through the ages in these Isles. I have gone nowhere that I have not been able to go into one of these Churches to worship the God of my fathers. Thank God for that, and for what the Church has been doing in that particular relationship.

A NEW TESTAMENT PROBLEM SOLVED.

By the Rev. J. Mountain, D.D.

About a year ago I received a letter from a prominent Christian friend, in which he vigorously condemned British-Israel teaching as the "sheerest folly." Yea, he even went so far as to say that, in adopting that teaching, I was "believing a lie."

As I entertained—and still entertain—a profound respect for my criticizing friend, I took no offence, but invited him to consider one or two passages of Holy Scripture which I should like to place before him. He expressed his willingness to do so. Here are the texts:

Divine Promises to the Patriarchs.

1. To Abraham God said:

"I will make thee a great nation." גוי, goy.—Gen. xii, 2. "Thou shalt be the father of a multitude of nations." המון גוים, hamon goyim.—Gen. xvii, 4 (R.V.).

2. To Jacob God said, concerning his grandson, Ephraim:

"His seed shall become a multitude—or fulness—of nations." מלא הגוים, melo haggoyim.—Gen. xlviii, 19.

3. I give the Hebrew because, as Dr. C. I. Scofield truly says, in his Notes on the Bible, p. 18:

"From the seven sons of Japheth are descended the goyim—or Gentile nations—translated 'heathen' 148 times in the Authorised Version. The name implies nothing concerning religion: meaning simply non-Israelite, or 'foreigner.'"

Thus Ephraim—the head of the Ten Tribes—was to become a "multitude," or "fulness," of foreign nations, that is, nations outside the Holy Land. The word translated "multitude" or "fulness" evidently indicates a large Empire of many nations.

4. Obviously the word "nation" or "nations" requires to be understood literally; and the promises demand a literal fulfilment. Have these promises ever been literally fulfilled? If so, where are those "nations" to-day?

5. Having forwarded these texts to my critic, I have asked him to give the names of nations in which the promises have been fulfilled.

6. In his replies my friend belittles and spiritualizes the promises; and he states that they "have received their fulfilment in the Church"; and while he contends for their fulfilment in the "Church," he denies any kind of fulfilment to any nation, as such.

7. Moreover, he has given, as an illustration, and also as a proof of the truth of his opinion, the following words from the first Epistle of St. Peter, as recorded in the Authorized Version:

"Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people."—1 Peter ii, 9.

8. When, however, this text is critically examined, it furnishes no proof of my critic's contention; but, on the contrary, it is seen to be an absolute refutation of that contention.

A "Nation"? or the "Church"? or Both?

I have enumerated to my friend seven important considerations:

1. That although the word "Church" occurs 112 times in the New Testament, nevertheless, it is not once mentioned in the verse from which he has quoted; nor, indeed, in the original Greek of any part of the Epistle; nor even in any part of the Apostle's second Epistle.

2. That the Apostle employs the phrase, "an holy nation," not "a holy Church."

3. That throughout the whole of the New Testament the Christian Church is never called "a nation." Nor is the "nation" ever called the Christian Church.

4. That to substitute the word "Church" for the word "nation" is to put a gloss upon the inspired text which has been given by the Holy Ghost.

5. That such glosses are calculated to obscure, neutralize, or even pervert the infallible teaching of the Word of God.

6. That whatever spiritual imperfections pertained to those whom the Apostle addressed, the descriptive phrase, "an holy nation," which is applied to them, must be reverently accepted; for it is part of the inspired Oracles of God.

7. And I would venture here to ask: Is it not possible that there may be a twofold fulfilment of the Patriarchal promises—one, the physical and national, and the other, the spiritual and supernatural; but both in the experience of the people of Israel?

A FATAL SYSTEM OF INTERPRETATION.

1. It will be seen that my critic does not interpret literally the Patriarchal promises which are under consideration; and that he gives an exclusively spiritual interpretation to the words of St. Peter. To him the word "nation" does not mean "nation," but, on the contrary, the "Church."

2. This system of Biblical interpretation is not Apostolic. It dates only from the third and fourth centuries, to the times of Origen and Jerome. It claims Israel's glorious promises for the Church, and it applies Israel's curses to the Jews.

3. For fifteen centuries this false system has rendered large portions of the Old Testament incomprehensible; has obscured and perverted their meaning; and has robbed them of their significance and power. Well might the eminent Bishop Ryle strongly condemn it; for it is as elusive in the realm of Biblical history as it is bewildering and destructive in the realm of Divine prophecy.

WHAT NATION WAS IT TO WHOM ST. PETER WROTE?

This question is vital in our investigation. "What saith the Scripture?" And here we quote from the Revised Version, as being, in this case, in perfect correspondence with the Greek Text.

I.—They were not Gentiles.—This is evident from the exhortation which the Apostle gives to them:

> "Having your behaviour seemly among the Gentiles; that wherein they speak against you as evil-doers, they may by your good works which they behold, glorify God in the day of visitation."—1 Peter ii, 12 (R.V.).

(1) They lived "among the Gentiles," and commingled with them; but the inspired testimony indicates that they did not belong to them. The Apostle proceeds as follows:

> "For the time past may suffice to have wrought the desire of the Gentiles, and to have walked in lasciviousness, lusts," etc.—1 Peter iv, 3 (R.V.).

(2) The Apostle distinguishes clearly between the Gentiles and those to whom he was writing, who—as we shall presently perceive—were Israelites.

II.—They were "an Elect Race."—The Apostle not only calls them "a holy nation," but he also dignifies them by the special title of a "race"—"an elect race." This is the translation given in the Revised Version—"an elect race," instead of "a chosen generation."

(1) Now, there are many races of mankind; and it is well known that the dominating idea of the word "race" is that of physical descent—"a class of individuals sprung from a common stock."

(2) Whether or not the mention by the Apostle of Sarah and Abraham is to be considered as his indication that the "holy nation" had descended from the Abrahamic stock of the Hebrew race is by many disputed. But it is certainly remarkable that when exhorting wives to be in subjection to their husbands, the Apostle should point to Sarah and Abraham as their exemplars, and should proceed to say:

> "As Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him lord: whose children ye now are, if ye do well, and are not put in fear by any terror."—1 Peter iii, 6 (R.V.).

(3) The Church is never called "a race"; nor is a race ever called "the Church." The Greek word for "Church," εκκλησια, ekklesia, the called out ones—indicates a fellowship of a number of men and women who have been Divinely called out and spiritually separated from their several races of mankind to which they still belong, as regards their racial position.

(4) This being the case, surely it is not allowable for anyone to put a gloss upon those Divinely-inspired titles which are conferred by the Apostle, and to substitute the word "Church" for the words "Race" and "Nation." Such a substitution is neither a translation, nor an interpretation, nor a justifiable inference. It is an assumption and an unauthorized, although unintentional, addition. Indeed, to call the "Race" the "Church"—as does my critic—is to controvert the fundamental and essential principle of the "Church," namely, its spirituality, in contradistinction to physical descent from a parent stock.

(5) If arranged in tabular form, the antithesis between the Apostle and my critic will stand as follows:

WHAT THE APOSTLE SAYS.	WHAT MY CRITIC SAYS.
"Ye are an Elect Race."	"Ye are an Elect Church."
"Ye are a Holy Nation."	"Ye are a Holy Church."

III.—They were a Redeemed "People."—The Apostle reminds them of the days of their national apostasy from God, and of their Captivity. He then proceeds to recount the wonders of Jehovah's restoring grace:

> "Which in time past were no people, but now are the people of God; which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy."—1 Peter ii 10 (R.V.).

(1) This reminds us of the prophecy by Hosea, nearly 800 years before, concerning the Ten Tribes:

> "It shall come to pass that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God."—Hos. i, 10 (R.V.).

(2) It naturally reminds us also of the words of Zacharias concerning the redemption of Israel:

> "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel; for He hath visited and wrought redemption for His people."—Luke i, 68 (R.V.).

(3) In the margin of the Revised Version we read of "a purchased people" instead of "a peculiar people," which is a great improvement.

(4) Yea, Israel had been:

> "Redeemed . . . with the precious Blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot."—1 Peter i, 19.

IV.—They were the Tribes of Israel.—St. Peter addressed his Epistle—as we see from the Revised Version:

> "To the elect who are sojourners of the διασπορα, diaspora, the DISPERSION—in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia."—1 Peter i, 1 (R.V.).

(1) Now, who were the people of the διασπορα, or "Dispersion"? St. James tells us in his Epistle. They were

Digitized by Google

Hebrews; men and women of the stock of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. This is how the Apostle James describes them:

> "James, a servant of God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the Twelve Tribes which are of the Dispersion."—James i, 1 (R.V.).

(2) It is evident, therefore, that the first Epistle of St. Peter was addressed to people who belonged to the Twelve Tribes of Israel. How many of them were Jews, that is, members of the Two Tribes of the House of Judah; and how many of them belonged to some of the Ten Tribes, that is, the House of Israel, we have no means of discovering.

(3) The "Dispersion" must have been very extensive, as we observe from the large attendance on the day of Pentecost.—Acts ii, 1-11. There was:

The Asiatic Dispersion.	Cappadocia, Pontus, Asia, etc.
The Alexandrine do.	Egypt, Libya, Cyrene.
The Roman do.	Strangers of Rome, Jews and Proselytes, Cretes and Arabians.

(4) But the Assyrian-Babylonian Dispersion is the most important in the present enquiry; for it included on the day of Pentecost—"Parthians, Medes, Elamites and dwellers in Mesopotamia." These people must have come from the very districts to which the Ten Tribes had been deported in their Captivity in the year 721 B.C.

(5) During the early centuries of their Captivity it is supposed that migrations had taken place from Assyria, and that many of the migrants had settled, for a time, as the "Dispersion" in the Colonies above-mentioned.

(6) We cannot tell whether or not many of the "Dispersion" had heard the Gospel before the day of Pentecost; but we may reasonably assume that after the glorious events that happened on that day the Gospel of the New Covenant would spread rapidly amongst God's chosen people in the Colonies above-mentioned.

(7) We do not know whether any of the Ten Tribes travelled specially from Assyria to Jerusalem for the Pentecostal Feast. They may have done so. If they did, it may account for the first Epistle of Peter being written in Babylon twenty-seven years after; for we learn from Josephus that, at that time, there were still vast numbers of the Ten Tribes who still remained beyond the Euphrates.

THE DOUBLE FULFILMENT OF THE PATRIARCHAL PROMISES.

1. The Holy Scriptures make it perfectly clear that the promises of God to the Patriarchs and to David have been, and now are, and will continue to be, literally fulfilled both as to their physical seed and also as to their national multiplicity and power.

2. But those promises have had, and will yet increasingly receive, a deeper and grander fulfilment, for which the election of the Hebrew race was chiefly a preparation. There was to be:

A Natural Posterity . . .	"as the dust of the earth."—Gen. xiii, 16.
A Spiritual Posterity . .	"look now toward heaven and tell the stars: . . . so shall thy seed be."—Gen. xv, 5.

3. From the earliest days Israel had been both natural and spiritual. As the Apostle Paul says:

> "They are not all Israel which are of Israel."—Rom. ix, 6.

That is to say, they are not all spiritual Israel which are the natural and national Israel.

4. So it is to-day. If we, Anglo-Saxons, are the lineal descendants of the Ten Tribes, we are the Natural Posterity of Israel, and we inherit the wonderful promises which were made to them. These promises we possess nationally. But we can become individually Israel's Spiritual Posterity only by being "born again of the Holy Ghost."

5. If any of those whom St. Peter addressed were racial Gentiles, but had been converted to the Lord Jesus, they had, ipso facto, become Abraham's spiritual "seed"—spiritual Israelites—and were thus proselyted into the Ten Tribes spiritually.

WHY DID ST. PETER NOT MENTION "THE CHURCH"?

1. This question may well be asked, especially when we remember that, in nearly all the Epistles, the word "Church," either in the singular or plural, is mentioned, and, in several instances, frequently mentioned. Now the inspiration of the Bible is verbal, and full in every sense. Therefore, there must have been a purpose in the omission.

2. The Epistle indicates that St. Peter was addressing not only a Christian community, but also a Christian community of a high order, and one which was duly organized with its "elders."—1 Peter v, 1.

3. I venture, reverently, to think that the Holy Spirit omitted the word "Church"—while mentioning their full Church qualifications—in order specially to give additional emphasis to the fact that those to whom the Apostle wrote were a part of God's ancient chosen people Israel, and that their restoration had begun under the "bond of the Covenant"—the "New Covenant of grace."

4. Hence the Apostle quotes for their encouragement and guidance the substance of the ancient and gracious declaration of Jehovah:

> "Thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God: the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto Himself, above—or out of—all peoples that are upon the face of the earth."—Deut. vii, 6 (R.V.).

5. The contrast between the terms employed by the Apostle and those of my critic is complete and undeniable. Had the Holy Spirit desired it, He would have led St. Peter to employ the word "Church." Why, then, did He indicate the titles of "Race" and "Nation"? Surely there must have been some cogent reason for the Divine selection of this impressive nomenclature.

6. In my humble judgment this reason was fourfold. There was the intention of emphasizing:

(1) The Hebrew origin of those to whom the Epistle was addressed, and, consequently, the existence of their national and hereditary connection with ancient Israel:

(2) The fact that the Patriarchal Covenants, to which they were heirs, were still in existence, with all the vast implications of that heritage:

Digitized by Google

(3) The beginning of the National Repentance of Israel, through the operation of the Holy Spirit, and their acceptance of Christ. They were the small firstfruits of an overwhelming harvest :

(4) The prospect that their repentance would ultimately lead to the salvation of multitudes of persons who—not being Israelites by birth—were destined to become spiritually Israel through the preaching of Christ by Israel.

I give it, as my public testimony, that British-Israelites are amongst the most diligent students and defenders of the Bible, and are often the most earnest workers for the Lord Jesus and for the spread of His Gospel.

But, alas ! it is frequently the case that godly men denounce British-Israel as heresy, and that, too, after very slight acquaintance with it. They spread erroneous and damaging opinions regarding its teaching, and refrain from withdrawing those erroneous opinions even when their falsity has been officially and publicly proclaimed. But this is not all. They ostracize and boycott the advocates of British-Israel, and describe and treat them as heretics ! This is deeply to be regretted on the grounds of truth and justice, and especially in view of St. Paul's exhortation to brotherly love.—1 Cor. xiii.

National and spiritual Israel have their place in Holy Scripture and in Britain to-day. Let them both be acknowledged with brotherly love and with thanksgiving to God.

CONCLUSION.

It is evident that my critic has failed to grasp the situation, and that the Divine promises made to the Patriarchs—that they should become " a Multitude of Nations "—require for their fulfilment " A Commonwealth of Nations."

WHERE ARE THOSE NATIONS TO-DAY? WHY NOT BEHOLD THEM IN THE WORLD-WIDE BRITISH EMPIRE?

ADDRESS AT CANTERBURY.

BY THE REV. T. H. WHITEHOUSE.

PASSAGES from the Scriptures so lucidly interpreted that no doubt could exist that the British Empire and the House of Israel were identical were quoted by the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse, of Birmingham, at a well-attended meeting of the Canterbury Branch of the British-Israel-World Federation, held at the County Hall, Canterbury, on Wednesday last.

Canon T. B. Watkins, M.A., presided, and was supported by the speaker and Mr. Pierce (Hon. Secretary of the local Branch).

The Chairman made sympathetic reference to the loss the Branch had sustained since they last met in the spring in the death of their beloved President (Canon Springett), and said all knew what a deep interest Dr. Springett took in the British-Israel-World Federation. He was well-informed upon the subject, and had given some very interesting lectures, not only in Canterbury, but at Dover, Herne Bay, and also in London. They had sustained a great loss, but they felt thankful that up to the end of his life Dr. Springett was able to work for his Master and his God. Only the Sunday before he passed away he was preaching at the little Leper Hospital Church at St. Nicholas, Harbledown, and he (Canon Watkins) had only just completed a service at that Church when he heard of Canon Springett's death. It was a great shock to him, although of course he was not surprised, as he knew the dangerous condition of Dr. Springett's heart. He had known Dr. Springett for forty years. They were connected by marriage and were the greatest friends. God had called him for a higher service, and though all would miss him terribly they were thankful he had received from his Master what was fully deserved—" Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Canon Watkins then introduced the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse, who he said was speaking at Herne Bay the previous day, where he (Canon Watkins) was Vicar for thirteen years. Now he was to speak at Canterbury where he (Canon Watkins) was Vicar of St. Dunstan's for five and a a half years ; and the following day he was going to speak at Dover, where he (Canon Watkins) was Rector for nearly twenty years. (Applause.)

The Rev. T. H. Whitehouse said many people thought it was of little importance that those of the religious world should devote so much of their time to national and Imperial concerns. But this was done because it was found the Bible, which so many were attempting to discredit to-day, was a Book very largely devoted to national and Imperial concerns. Of course, it dealt with the individual positively, but it dealt none the less positively with families, communities, nations, empires, and last, but not least, with this commonwealth of nations which we called, for want of a better term, the British Empire. The British Empire had conferred an entirely new meaning on the word " Empire." The present-day development and operations of our own commonwealth of nations among all the nations of the world were regarded as of supreme importance. He did not hesitate to affirm we were in that period indicated by Our Lord in the parable contained in the 25th chapter of St. Matthew—the judgment of the nations. He was convinced that that parable was receiving its fulfilment to-day.

The speaker proceeded to interpret the parable and, referring to the tremendous gulf between the sheep and the goats, said that nowhere in the Bible should we find sheep refer to any nation except the Israel nation. It was not a meaningless accident that the National Church of this Empire claimed to be " the people of His hand and the sheep of His pasture." In the parable we had two ideals governing two groups of nations. In chapter x of St. Matthew we found that the Divine Lord gave two distinct commissions to the twelve Apostles—one a limited commission and the other a universal commission. One a national commission and the other a commission to all the rest of the people of the earth. One was a specific commission to discharge a particular duty ; the other to baptize all people into the Church of Christ. Although not the same commissions, one was as authoritative as the other given to the same men. When Our Lord sent His twelve Apostles away from the Jews, He said : " Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not ; but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand." On the left was the Gospel of the Kingdom, the Throne, the Crown, the Sceptre, definite rule, definite administration on earth among men. On the right was the calling of men, women and children and every soul that liveth to be united in Christ through reconciliation. We had the Kingdom and the Church, but we must not confuse the two commissions, We must not confuse the judgment of the nation with the judgment of the individual. Less than fifteen years ago there were five great Empires—world powers, each having an eye to world dominion. There was only one left to-day. Germany as an Empire had gone, also Austria-Hungary, Russia and Turkey. Britain as an Empire was stronger than ever. Britain entered into the Great War consistent with her existence as God's servant nation, for the service of oppressed and threatened nations. She resolved that she would not add a single yard of territory to her Empire. Yet God gave her territories all round the globe. Forty-six nations in common and unanimous agreement mandated to Britain three million square miles of territory as the only nation fit and proper to act as trustees of all the other nations for this tremendous responsibility of administration. It was the parable materializing before our eyes—God's judgments on the earth's nations, whose only object was greed at whatever cost to the other nations. Britain became mightier with every tick of the clock.

We should never understand the Bible until we gave proper significance to every symbol used in the Book and always interpreted every symbol consistently.

Dealing with Our Lord's prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem and of His words to the disciples who asked the sign of His Coming, the speaker explained that Jesus pointed out that nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, followed by famines, pestilences and earthquakes. We were now living through this period. In 1914 there was the Great War and a complete departure from the ordinary course of warfare. A score of nations devoted themselves to the business of war. We lived through it.

We were told war was to be followed by famine. In the Great War there were 50 million men consuming everything and producing nothing but death, wounds and horrors. Famine came. It could not be otherwise. The U-boats had done their deadly work. We went into the war with 11 million tons of shipping and came out with three million. In less favoured parts of the world famine swept away more than the actual fighting. Then surely there were pestilences as prophesied. It could not be otherwise. Influenza swept over the whole world, and it was computed that 15 million people died from the disease. Then of earthquakes we remembered the terrible succession starting in Japan, and of the deadly work of Mount Etna.

These were four of the eight signs Our Lord gave us indicative of the nearness of His Own Coming.

His fifth sign was that " The Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations." It was during the last seven years that the British-Israel-World Federation had been called into being to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom of the sovereignty of Almighty God, which would bring about the deliverance of humanity from its great oppression and the setting-up of the Lord Jesus Christ upon earth as indicated by the prophet Isaiah when he said : " For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulder : and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it . . ." The New Testament was no less precise. We had the story given us in the 1st chapter of St. Luke : " And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever." Unless we joined in seeking for the House of Jacob and of establishing or identifying some race upon earth with the House of Jacob, the Lord could not come. That was the terrible mistake that some who were preaching about the Coming of Our Lord were making. They forgot about Israel among whom He was to reign—the twelve tribes of Jacob, that group of nations to whom He said : " Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

The sixth sign we found in St. Luke's (chapter xxi, verse 24) : " Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." On December 9th, 1917, the keys of Jerusalem were yielded up and two days later Lord Allenby walked into the city and Jerusalem became British. The Gentiles ceased to tread down the holy place, now awakening from the age-long desolation, and the land was budding and blossoming as a rose.

The speaker said he wanted to carry the minds of those present back to those foundations, to consider who it was who laid them, and what hope we had that an Empire built upon these foundations should survive. There was a specific meaning in the words in Hebrews which said of Abraham : " He looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." The word " city " was always used anciently for what we called to-day " Empire." Rome, in the height of its glory, was always " The city of Rome."

" A city that hath foundations "—a city of great construction built through the ages by the Divine Architect and Builder—foundations well and truly laid. Isaiah and Ezekiel wrote many documents and letters which had been preserved for the nation and instruction of posterity. Isaiah wrote many addressed to particular people—people in isles afar off. It was gathered from the contents of the letters that the people to whom he wrote, and now settled in the islands, had once lived in his own land. They had witnessed the captivity of their brothers, for they had been refugees in hiding, but when the Assyrians evacuated their country they came forth from their hiding-place and went down to the isles afar off. He bade them " keep silent before me, renew your strength."

After devoting considerable time to the interpretation of the Book of Isaiah, the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse dealt with the promises given to Abraham as the first foundation-stone—" I will make of thee a great nation and will make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing. I will bless them that bless thee and curse them that curseth thee, and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

The second foundation-stone was found in Genesis also. for God said to Abraham : " This land will I give thee, from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates." That was a wonderful piece of geographical teaching.

The third foundation-stone was to be found in chapter xxii : " That in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore." In other places it said "as the dust." The symbolical value of this was that the seed of Abraham was, as to stars, to give light to the dark world; as the sand, to oppose the red forces of anarchy which threatened to sweep us from our homes; and as the dust, to be blown everywhere and settle down and build up great communities where men might live to be free and happy.

The fourth foundation-stone, also to be found in Genesis, was: "Thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies." This race had to go out and find contact with every family of the earth, and no enemy must frustrate their plan. It was the world-wide expansion for God.

The fifth foundation-stone was also found in Genesis: "God said to Jacob . . . a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins."

Mr. Whitehouse went on to say that, despite statements to the contrary, he found the New Testament taught the same truth through and through. St. Paul took up the story and in Romans said: "Now I say that Jesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers."

In conclusion, Mr. Whitehouse dealt at length with happenings in recent years to show that the promises of God were being fulfilled now.

Thanks were expressed to the speaker on the proposition of Canon Watkins, who pointed out that we must realize that a great responsibility rested upon us as members of the British Empire.—Kentish Observer.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.

QUESTION.—Our Vicar said, referring to the Prayer Book crisis, that the Church was first, and that the State emerged from the Church, giving as a proof the fact that the Church crowned the King. This seems to me illogical; may I ask your views on the subject?—S. H. R. (Yorkshire).

ANSWER.—The question of Church and State is a very problematical one, in the light of the trend of modern events, and I, for one, should be extremely sorry to see Disestablishment take place. The Bishop of Gloucester, in his opening address at the Cheltenham Church Congress the other day, said, "I am not ashamed to confess that I should seriously regret Disestablish-f ment. I believe that the partnership which it implies, of Church and State, is for the benefit of both." We are a Church-nation, and I, personally, regard ourselves as being the Church-nation of Jehovah. Hence, in one sense, it is very difficult to say which really comes first—the Church or the State—for it seems to me that there is something more than a "partnership"; there is almost an identity, as if the one could not exist without the other. It was so in the days of the Old Testament, when Israel was God's Church-nation. This Church-nation of Jehovah did not cease to exist on the occasion of the exile; it continued on, and continues to this day, recovenanted in Christ. An example of this will be seen in St. John's wonderful vision of Rev. iv, where the four and twenty elders represent the twelve patriarchs of the Old Covenant, and the twelve Apostles of the New Covenant, thus making the complete Church of God in Christ. God has never had more than one Church, nor has that Church ever been other than the Church-nation of Israel (now redeemed). Being the Church-nation of Israel, it is to be identified with the Kingdom of Israel. The latter has a perpetual monarchy of the "seed royal" (2 Kings xi, 1). This Davidic monarchy sits on "the Throne of the Lord," i.e., "of the Kingdom of the Lord over Israel" (1 Chron. xxviii, 5; xxix, 23). Hence the Kingdom of the Lord and the Throne of the Lord are inseparable; but the Kingdom of the Lord is the Church-nation of Jehovah. It therefore follows that the Church-nation of Jehovah is inseparably connected with the Throne of the Lord and its Davidic King, so that Church and State co-operate together, and are really co-ordinated.

Therefore the Church certainly crowns the King, while the King as "Defender of the Faith" is the earthly head of the Church, so that the position is not really illogical after all.

I was addressing a body of clergy the other day in a certain rural-deanery on the subject of Prophecy and British-Israel Truth. Afterwards we had an hour's very interesting and sympathetic discussion, in which many questions were asked. One Vicar stated that he regarded the Church as a spiritual entity, and failed to see how British-Israel Truth could be true. I pointed out the above argument regarding the Church-nation of Jehovah (Matt. xxi, 43), and showed that while the spiritual number of believers were "the body of Christ" (1 Cor. xii, 27; Eph. i, 23, v. 30), the redeemed nation is also His body, in so far as it is the Church-nation of Jehovah.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

WE are now better able to realize how serious and dangerous the illness of our beloved King has been. The tax upon his strength has evidently been very great. Cause for anxiety has by no means passed at the time of our going to press, but we are hopeful and we continue to pray for the noble patient's recovery. God bless him! We follow with breathless interest every stage of the homeward journey of our Prince David to his father's bedside.

The Paris correspondent of the Morning Post writes to that journal:—"The illness of the King has led France to understand the real character of the British Monarchy, and the place which it occupies in the life of the Empire.

"'In the eyes of the English the King is not a man merely, nor even a Prince. He is England,' says the Petit Journal. 'When he is ill the strongest, the most ancient, most hallowed of British traditions is in question. Whether they be Conservatives, Radicals, or Socialists, the English are united in the same sentiment. The Crown is above party and above passion, as it is above the seas and beyond time. The person of the King is the heart and the corner-stone not only of old and living England, but of the Empire. It represents a never-changing abstract principle. And around this principle revolves the vast British system.'"

The comment of the Gaulois is in very much the same strain.

The speakers for next week at H.Q. are the Rev. W. H. Stuart-Fox, M.A., on Wednesday afternoon, at 3, and the Rev. Kenneth Dodds for Thursday evening, at 7.30. All are welcome. * * *

We most warmly congratulate the Women's Auxiliary on the excellent result of the Sale of Work and the Social Gathering at H.Q. last week. It was an unqualified success. Major Knowles, President of the B.-I.-W.F., opened the proceedings on the first day, and the Rev. Pascoe Goard, Deputy-President, on the second day. Mrs. Zoe Bell kindly provided the tea, and we heartily thank her and her household staff, and B.-I. member helpers, for their devoted work. Mr. Chas. Edmonds planned the stalls with his usual skill, and to him our praise is due. Short addresses were given by the Rev. Dr. Mountain, the Revs. Pascoe Goard, J. Lumley Davies and Gregory Bestall.

Musical selections were rendered by Miss Hilda Morey, Miss Van der Kiste, and Messrs. Turner, Beer and Harrison Hill. Recitations were given by Mrs. Morley Randall and the Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson.

Dutch auctioneering was conducted by Messrs. Garrison, Morey and Sleeman.

Our very best thanks are tendered to all donors and purchasers, and to the speakers, artistes and the splendid band of workers.

The total result when made up will reach nearly £290.

Many new faces were present at the meeting in Church House, Bradford, on November 26th, when the Rev. Pascoe Goard lectured, leading up step by step in his telling way to his final point. The Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., occupied the chair, giving two very forceful talks. Altogether two wonderful evenings.

Watford Branch report that their meeting held on November 26th was an inspiration to the Branch to carry on with renewed enthusiasm. The subject of the lecture was "The Truth for the Present Crisis," given by the Rev. Sparshott Johnson, M.A. * * *

A very interesting meeting was enjoyed at Barking on November 30th, when the Rev. Sparshott Johnson spoke on "Psalms in British History." Mr. Nock, the President of the Branch, was in the chair.

Miss Maud Beck gave an address at Harrow on December 6th, speaking of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, Elijah, Daniel and Paul as outstanding examples of "Israel's line of Intercessors." Mrs. E. M. Powell took the chair. All in the district are urged to support these meetings.

Our members and friends in Dorking and district are specially called to the support of the meetings to be held in the Oddfellows' Hall, Dorking, on Monday, December 17th, at 3 and 8. Mr. J. J. Our Commissioner for the Midlands, the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse, recently gave a course of six instructional B.-I. addresses in a Parish Church in a Northern City. The local Vicar was present at every one of them. He sent the following letter to Mr. Whitehouse:—"It was very kind of you to send me books on B.-I. and I thank you very much. I was greatly interested in your lectures. The Old Testament has become a new Book to me, and my religion has far more life in it now. I hope you will have much blessing in your work."

If all the clergy and ministers would give the same honest, patient and unprejudiced consideration to the presentation of our case for B.-I. Truth, what a difference it would make to the state of religion in our country.

The Winnipeg Branch has lost a greatly beloved member in Captain the Rev. Conway Edward Dobbs, who has passed away. Born in Dublin on December 29th, 1846, Mr. Dobbs had a remarkable career in Western Canada, firstly as a civil engineer, and afterwards for about half a century in the service of the Church of England following ordination in Winnipeg. He was concerned in early surveys for the Canadian Pacific Railway, and in laying out many town sites in the West ; he also founded at his own expense many missions which have since developed into flourishing churches. His pioneer work in the Diocese of Rupert's Land involved almost incredible hardships and privations. He was actively engaged in connection with Holy Trinity Church, Winnipeg, until the final illness in May last, and was an enthusiastic believer in British-Israel Truth, and a frequent attendant at the meetings. He leaves a widow and two children and two brothers to mourn his loss.

Mr. Robeson writes : " The results of the Conference held at Toronto in September last are very encouraging. Splendid meetings are being held by all the Branches. On November 6th, Mr. Thomas Ransom was the speaker at the Toronto East Branch, St. John's (Norway) Parish Hall. He showed clearly that it is impossible to fully understand the Bible without arriving at the British-Israel position. On November 8th, ' The Roadmaker ' addressed a crowded meeting at the Central Branch, 56, Wellesley Street. His subject was ' Was Christ in Britain ? ' and although this thought was new and startling to many of his hearers, he was most convincing."

We regret to record the death of Mr. Ronald Ian Brodie, of Bournemouth, at the early age of 26. He was a brilliant young mathematician. His was a beautiful character, and he was a very keen British-Israelite, as I can testify from a long conversation with him some months ago. His elder brother was killed in the War, leaving him the only remaining son of his widowed mother, to whom we beg to tender our deepest sympathy in her great loss.

R.M. writes :—" The Rev. Joseph Gay is making a good impression in South Wales. His fervent advocacy of British-Israel teaching in Rhymney and district led to an invitation to address a meeting of the unemployed at the Workmen's Institute. Despite the heavy gale, the Lecture Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. Hundreds of men were there—ill-clad, hungry, forlorn, yet eager for any message that will give them hope. The local secretary of the men's organization, an avowed Communist, sought to influence the gathering along his own lines. However, the audience was roused to a high degree of thought as Rev. Joseph Gay addressed them along Biblical lines. He fervently appealed that the only solution for the present distress is to be found in a return to God and a recognition of His National leadership, as did our Israel forbears, and to be guided along the lines He has marked out for Israel's National well-being. His clear demonstration of Bible truths was followed keenly, and he was accorded a patient hearing throughout. From the numerous questions that followed it appeared that quite a number were doubting their present leadership.

" Questions were readily answered, and in one reply Mr. Gay described ' Nationalization ' as a return to a ' House of Bondage.'

" Pyramid prophecies were referred to, and a further demonstration of their fulfilment was promised to the men if they attended the next Local Branch meeting on the following Tuesday.

" A very large number of the men responded, when Mr. Gay gave further proofs, scientific and historical, of the truth of the Bible.

" Following his address, copies of Mr. Davidson's Morning Post article were distributed, and Mr. Gay gave explanations of recently fulfilled prophecies.

" These men have been badly misled, but still listen readily to a Bible message.

" But—there is hunger of another kind among them. An urgent appeal was voiced by them that something practical should be done for them as soon as possible.

" Mr. Gay was not heedless of the call, and is doing his best to get Rhymney ' adopted.' "

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

A CALL TO PRAYER.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

WE have received from as far over the world, as the time limit of postal travel will allow, requests that there should be a call to the nations to prayer on behalf of the restoration of His Majesty the King to health again.

This call has been already officially issued by the heads of the English Church, and the nation and the company of nations, and companion nations other than the Anglo-Saxon ones, have made answer.

The nation has been, and is, at prayer for the recovery of His Majesty.

Should the illness of the King continue, we ask of our people that they will unite in prayer during the opening moments of each weekly meeting, or if there be no weekly meeting, then at the hour of eight o'clock on such evening as may be most convenient during the week.

Inasmuch as we utilize every evening of the week, except Sundays, for the purposes of our meetings, there will thus be a season of prayer every evening during the six working days, and the Churches will carry on the good work on the seventh day. So a wave of prayer will go around the world every evening; and as it takes twenty-four hours for each hour of the day to make the circuit of the globe, there will be a period of prayer in every one of the twenty-four hours of the day from some part of the world.

As it is declared in the 40th chapter of Isaiah, "It is He that sitteth upon the circle of the earth," such an offering of prayer will be present, and we trust acceptable, to Him, in every hour of the week.

It will not be on account of the offering of prayer, however, that restoration will come, if such be the will of God; but it will be of the free grace and abounding goodness of our Heavenly Father. Nevertheless He has said, "I will yet for this be enquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them." So to all who read this message, or hear it from others, we issue the call: "Let us pray."

The following telegram was sent to the President of the United States in response to his courteous telegram to the Queen expressing his pleasure at improvement in His Majesty's condition:—

BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

The President,
The United States of America,
White House,
Washington, U.S.A.

The Queen is most grateful to you, Mr. President, for your kind message, of which His Majesty will in due course be informed as soon as his strength permits. Though the recent operation successfully treated one phase of the King's serious illness, the consequences of the general infection will entail many weeks of slow and anxious progress before convalescence can be reached.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, F.R.G.S.

WHAT a time of gladness for the world is the time in which we celebrate the Nativity of Our Lord.

It has become the general custom to celebrate the Nativity of Our Lord in the last week of the year, and at or as near as possible the winter solstice.

This is a notable time of the year for the northern latitudes. The sun has proceeded far south on his annual journey—really the earth has tilted far to the northwards on its axis—and so the face of the sun is hidden for a maximum period each day from our northern lands. It is a "time of darkness and the shadow of death" for the northern hemisphere. It comes with a feeling of rightness that in the darkest period of the year for the North the midwinter should be cheered and brightened by the coming of the celebration of the birth of the Redeemer.

How brightsome and glad are the long evenings and nights of the Christmas-tide! They are made brilliant with illumination, and gladsome with Christmas carol and song. The anticipation of the coming reunions and festivities of Christmas keep late November, and early December, busy and bright. Factories hum with industry for months ahead to prepare for the Christmas trade. Shops are made brilliant with Christmas display. Folks are abroad and busy buying and preparing Christmas presents and festivals. Armies of shop assistants are absorbed for the nonce to cope with the Christmas rush. All the land is blessed directly or indirectly by the Festival. And before it is realized the back of the winter is broken. The shortest days and longest nights are passed, and the time of singing birds and spring flowers is brought so much nearer. Such are some of the indirect results of the anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ Our Lord.

In the far south of the widespread Empire, the burden of which is borne by our race, the time is marked by the midsummer brightness, and is celebrated at the summer solstice, amid the hum of insect, the song of bird, the ripening crops, and the promise of the fruitage of garden and orchard. In the brightest, warmest time of the year there comes the remembrance of the birth of Our Lord Jesus Christ. As is suitable for the hemisphere and the conditions obtaining, the "Feast of Tabernacles" is kept, often as Israel kept it in the Fatherland, out of doors.

What a blessed thing for the home life of the people is this feast which commemorates the birth of the Firstborn of Mary; the gift of the Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ.

We are not thus celebrating the birth of a stranger. We of the seed of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob glory in the fact that "Verily he took not on him the nature of angels, but he took on him the seed of Abraham." He is of the same race and the same household as ourselves. How true it is that:—"Unto us a child is born, UNTO US A SON IS GIVEN; and the government shall be upon his shoulder. And his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this."

It is our Child which is born. It is our Son which is given. It is in our household that He is named; it is in our Kingdom that He shall reign for ever.

Is it any wonder that we rejoice at the time of the celebration of the anniversary of His birth?

He is born Who was the pre-existent Christ. Ages before His birth the prophet Isaiah declared that in His song of redemption He sang before the Father, "A body hast thou prepared me."

What an anticipation this was to Immanuel. Living in the glory with His Father from before the world was, He anticipated the great adventure when He should "empty Himself" of the glory, and take upon Himself the body thus prepared for Him in the earth, be born into this sphere, and there work out the redemption of Israel and the salvation of all those who call upon His Name.

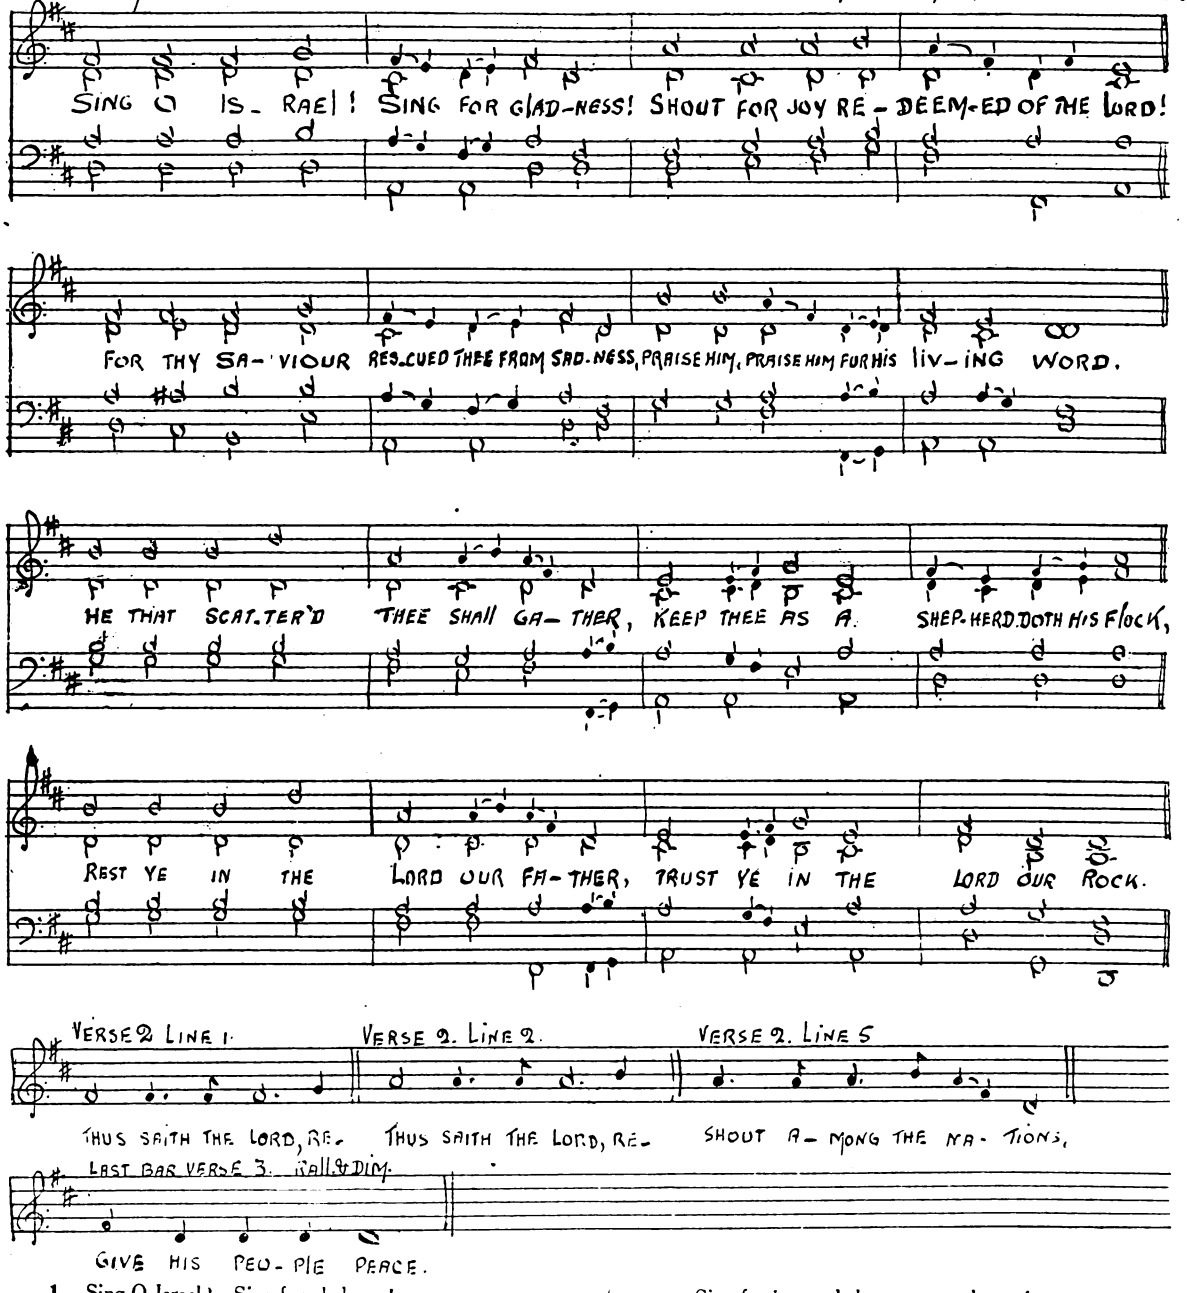
He then "TOOK UPON HIM THE SEED OF ABRAHAM." What perversity of misunderstanding is there in the minds of those who insist on reading as though it were stated in the Bible, which it is not, that being "found in fashion as a man" He took upon Himself Divinity. Quite the contrary. Being Divine, He took upon Himself our humanity, and was in all things made like unto His brethren.

He took on Him the seed of Abraham, not for an appointed time, but for ever. For the incarnation of God the Son abides until and after the heavens and the earth shall have passed away. Such was the great gift of God, and such was the awful condescension of the Son. Because of this it was made possible for the angels to proclaim: "For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

But HE TOOK ON HIM the seed of Abraham. He put it on as one will put on a new suit of clothes to commemorate His birthday. He remained in essence what He was before. What He was before the Father testifies to, when in the first chapter of Hebrews and elsewhere the Father addresses the Son as follows:—"THY THRONE OF GOD is an everlasting throne. A sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy Kingdom." Thus we see that although He "took upon him the seed of Abraham," that which the seed of Abraham was taken upon remained unchanged in essence, even as a man remains unchanged when he has "taken upon him" a suit of clothes.

So we see in the Child that is born to us, the Son that is given to us—in very deed Immanuel—which is "God with us."

What an honour to our humble earthly home and family!



What a glory for our race and the nations into which it has been organized!

SING O ISRAEL!

(JER. XXXI. verses 7, 10, 11, 12, 16, 31-33. Isaiah XII. verses 2-6.)

WORDS BY HARRISON HILL MUSIC BY ROSAMOND GARRISON

1.—Sing O Israel! Sing for gladness!
Shout for joy, redeemed of the Lord!
For thy Saviour rescued thee from sadness,
Praise Him! Praise Him for His living Word.
He that scattered thee shall gather,
Keep thee as a shepherd doth his flock;
Rest ye in the Lord our Father,
Trust ye in the Lord our Rock.

2.—Thus saith the Lord, refrain thy voice from weeping,
Thus saith the Lord, restrain thine eyes from tears:
For thy God His Covenant is keeping,
He delivereth thee from all thy fears.
Sing for joy, and shout among the nations,
Lift up your voice, ye ransomed of the Lord;
For thy God hath heard thy supplications,
God, thy Shield and great reward.

3.—Sing aloud, inhabitant of Zion!
Sing aloud, O Islands of the West!
Sing to Jesus, Judah's Royal Lion!
For the Lord will give His people rest.
Hail! Lord Jesus! King all glorious!
Thou Whose triumphs ne'er shall cease;
Over all Thy foes victorious,

"FOR THE LORD HATH VISITED AND REDEEMED HIS PEOPLE ISRAEL."

Every other nation and Empire has fallen and perished as an organization by the cumulative weight of its transgressions and sin. Israel had been cast off of God, and punished; but Israel has been redeemed, and therefore shall abide before the Lord as a nation for ever.

As every normal man lives in himself in regard to personal things, and lives in his family in regard to family matters, so he lives as a citizen of his nation and rejoices and prospers, or suffers and decays with the life of his nation. So it is with us. Many of us were not within the reach of the physical conflict to feel the smart of physical suffering; but how many of us who were free from physical injury suffered in the life of our family! How we suffered for son or husband or daughter at the Front! How we rejoiced when they escaped! How we sorrowed when they died! All of us who were worthy, suffered in the suffering of our family. Apart from self, apart from family, when the nation progressed in its defence we rejoiced, and lived. When things went against us, we went through the agonies of Gethsemane praying, "Lord, if it be possible, let this cup pass from us and from our nation."

Well, then, at the birth of the Redeemer of Israel let us rejoice with exceeding great joy, in that, through the Redemption now historic, Britain has become in very deed a Kingdom which shall never be destroyed, which "shall not be left to other people, but which shall stand for ever."

Let us further rejoice that she shall not be simply preserved in spite of her sins, but the nation and the company of nations, and the race which forms the nations, shall be cleansed from all her uncleanness and sin as the Lord has declared, for instance, in the 36th chapter of Ezekiel.

What a glory for the Kingdom of the House of David! For the Angel Gabriel makes it clear that when Our Lord shall come He shall find as "going concerns" in the earth—The throne of His father David; and the House of Jacob; and that He shall take possession of both as the basis of His reign on the earth.

"FOR GOD SHALL GIVE TO HIM THE THRONE OF HIS FATHER DAVID, AND HE SHALL RULE OVER THE HOUSE OF JACOB FOR EVER."

What a glory for the world!

"And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I BRING YOU TIDINGS OF GREAT JOY WHICH SHALL BE TO ALL PEOPLE.

"For UNTO YOU is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

Thus was the Message started which should be carried by Israel around the earth. "Give ear, O ye nations." There is born in our House, and of our Race, a Saviour which is Christ the Lord, Who shall save His people (you people, if you will receive Him) from their sins.

And so the bells were set aringing that Christmas morning, in heaven and on earth; and the choirs, heavenly and earthly, were set to singing the glad news over all the earth, of a Saviour born.

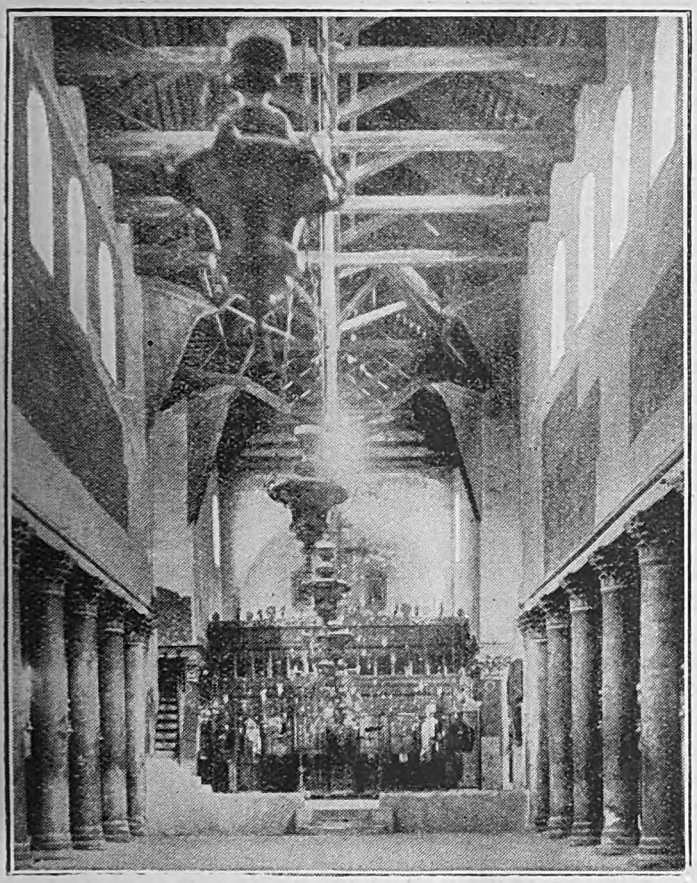
So let us be glad and rejoice again at the anniversary of the coming of the natal day of Jesus Christ, the Lord.

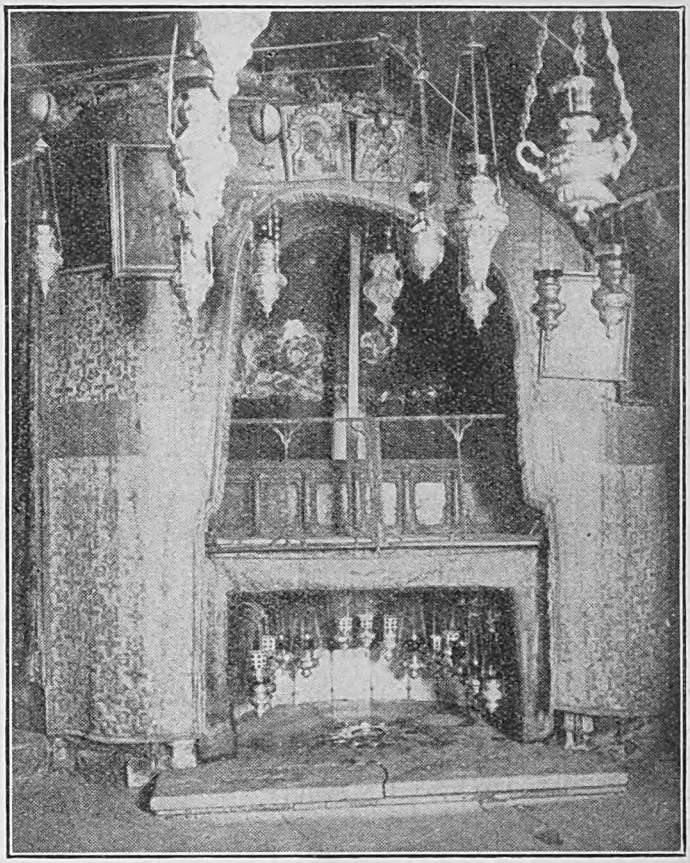
BETHLEHEM.

OUR TOUR IN THE EAST.—VI.

By HERBERT GARRISON.

BETHLEHEM is picturesque in a high degree. It is situated on a limestone ridge about 2,500 ft. above sea level, some five miles south of Jerusalem, and on a main road easily reached in our fast motors, in contrast to comparatively recent times when there were only tracks for pedestrians or those who rode on donkeys Its fortified walls have long disappeared. Its position on a narrow ridge has confined it to the limits of 3,000 years ago, and its houses are probably much the same in appearance as those in the time of David. We have, then, before us an old town such as men inhabited in the Bible ages.





A TYPICAL BETHLEHEM WOMAN.

Few rides can compete in memories and associations with those few miles from the Jaffa Gate of Jerusalem, past Rachel's Tomb, to Bethlehem. By this route Abraham with his Isaac must have come up and got their first sight of Mount Moriah. Two generations later, and on it Jacob made his mournful halt and buried his best-loved wife just after she had given birth to Benjamin. Across the valley David mustered his mighty men of Judah for the assault on the stronghold of the Jebusites. In the peaceful days of his son, by this route Solomon must have often passed on his way to his favourite gardens of Etham. Here, too, after the lapse of a thousand years, the mother of David's greater Son wearily trod the last stage of her journey to be enrolled in her ancestral town, and there to give birth to the world's Saviour. Yonder is the plain of Rephaim, the scene of two of David's encounters with the Philistine army (for the identification of which we have the authority of Josephus), now clothed in spring-time with a rich carpet of flowers. Here and there may be traced on the slopes above us the brook and aqueduct which, under Solomon's rule, once conveyed the water supply of Jerusalem from the pools and springs of El Burak.

Ascending the shoulder of the ridge we get our first glimpse of Bethlehem, and we can see a corner of Jerusalem, though the hill of Evil Counsel, with the tree on which a modern tradition says Judas hanged himself, shuts out the minarets of Moriah. The landscape eastward with rugged hill and deep plain tells us how closely we are skirting the wilderness of Judæa, while a long ruddy line of the mountains of Moab forms the distant horizon.

GENERAL VIEW OF BETHLEHEM.

Digitized by Google

About four miles from Jerusalem we halt by a roadside chapel—a small, square, whitewashed piece of masonry surmounted by a central dome; it is Rachel's Tomb, and a sacred spot it is, an undisputed site. Israelite, Christian and Moslem all agree in recognizing this spot as the one where, when Jacob "journeyed from Bethel, and there was but a little way to come to Ephrath . . . . Rachel died, and was buried on the way to Ephrath, which is Bethlehem. And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave." The pillar has long since gone, though it was there in the time of Moses, but other structures have preserved the memory of the spot. The present building subsequent to the Crusading times is very plain, but it may surely be said that no sumptuous mausoleum is needed to keep in memory the grave of Rachel—beautiful, beloved, and untimely taken away. The spot is mentioned by Jerome in "The Crusading Chronicles," and it was visited by Maundrell over two hundred years ago. We recall how the prophet represents Rachel sitting, weeping for her children, as the long train of captive exiles passed from the south on their way to Babylon, and note how the Tomb is close to the roadside; and when we see Bethlehem we understand how aptly the Evangelist transfers the figure to the massacre of the "Innocents" by Herod.

The hillsides around Bethlehem are scarped with terraces, sweeping round the eastern shoulder, on which are silver-grey olive trees and fig trees in spare corners, and vines trained over the walls of the terraces. Below them is a velvet turf on which the goats are feeding; the loosened earth under the olive trees has brilliantly coloured annuals and bulbs, bewildering in their variety and dazzling in their brightness. Conspicuous is the gorgeous scarlet anemone, pimpernels yellow and blue, hyacinths, and a lovely pink campion.

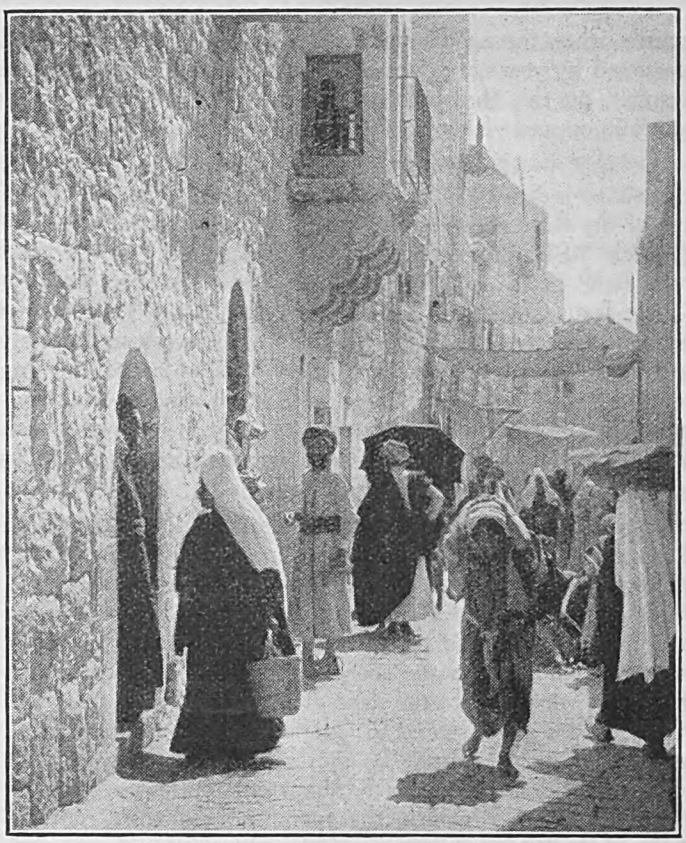
The neighbourhood produces wheat, barley, olives and vines in abundance. Bethlehem was the early home of David and Joab. It was fortified by Rehoboam, and in the neighbouring inn of Chimham the murderers of Gedaliah took refuge. Chimham was notable as being the starting-point for the long and toilsome journey into Egypt. (Jer. xli, 17.)

The birthplace of Christ and of King David, and the scene of the story of the Book of Ruth, is famous for its association with the House of David. Since the time of Constantine Bethlehem has been predominantly Christian, and is remarkable for the number of its Churches and religious institutions of many periods, surrounding an agglomeration of ancient, narrow and picturesque streets. The present population is about 6,200, mostly Christians.

The outstanding monument is the Basilica of the Nativity, erected over the traditional birthplace of Christ. It is the oldest Christian Church still in use, not only in Palestine, but in the world (though, be it noted, not the first Christian Church ever erected; that was built, we believe, at Avalon, now Glastonbury, in Somerset), and although restored and enlarged by Justinian in the sixth century, it is essentially one with the Basilica built by Constantine in A.D. 330. The Church, whose diminutive entrance was intended as a protection against the entry of donkeys, etc., consists of a nave and double aisles, a wide transept and a semi-circular apse. The nave and aisles are separated from each other by four rows of monolithic columns, surmounted by Corinthian capitals. The walls of the nave and transept are decorated with mosaics, with which the Church was endowed by the Byzantine Emperor, Manuel Comnenus, in the 12th century. In A.D. 1482 the roof, which had fallen into decay, was repaired with English oak and lead, given by King Edward IV of Britain.

The Basilica was later surrounded by the three convents successively erected by the Greek, Latin and Armenian Churches.

In 1850 A.D. a dispute arose between France and Russia, in the name of the Latin and Greek Churches respectively, concerning the possession of the key of the chief door of the Basilica, and concerning the right to place a silver star with the arms of France in the grotto of the Nativity. Turkey eventually yielded to France. The disappointment thus inflicted on Russia was a determining cause of the outbreak of the Crimean War.



The Church escaped destruction when the Caliph Harkim laid waste the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and the other sacred sites. It was protected by special efforts of the Crusaders in the first crusade in A.D. 1099, and again in the sixth crusade Frederick II succeeded in preserving it; and within its walls Baldwin I, King of Jerusalem, was crowned on Christmas Day, 1101. We are told that Baldwin refused to be crowned with the circlet of gold in the city where Our Lord had worn His crown of thorns, and, therefore, selected Bethlehem as a holy site, but out of view from Jerusalem, the city of Christ's sufferings. His predecessor Godfrey, in like spirit, had refused to assume the crown at all within the Holy City, and declined any higher title than Baron.

Two flights of steps descend into the chapel of the Nativity and the chapel of the Manger, which are situated below the choir. After passing some rock-hewn chambers we reach the hallowed spot. The glimmering lamps show us that it is really an old cave. A silver star let into the pavement marks the birthplace; a marble trough represents the manger. This grotto is common to all the sects. Adjacent is the Latin chapel, with old paintings. Passages lead to various caverns, the tombs of Eusebius, of Paula and Eustacian, the devout friends and companions of St. Jerome, but most interesting of all the tomb of St. Jerome himself. From it is an opening to another rock-hewn chamber, which must ever have a fascination for the Biblical student. Here for thirty-four years the aged and venerable father studied and wrote. Driven from Rome by the bitterness of theological partisanship, his fiery spirit found rest and employment in seclusion on the site of the cradle of the Christian faith. Here in his cavern-home he fasted and prayed. And here, above all, he carried out and completed what he had years before begun, the revision of the various versions of the Scriptures, and from this dark cave proceeded that precious heritage of the Christian Church for all time, the Latin version so well known as the Vulgate. Besides his great work he was ceaseless as a pamphleteer. Epistles, tractates, commentaries issued with marvellous rapidity from the grotto of Bethlehem, till we possess 150 epistles, 16 treatises, 13 volumes of commentaries, besides his Latin version and his translation and continuation of the history of Eusebius. Nor can we forget the closing scene of all, which Domenichino has commemorated in his immortal picture, when the aged saint, with his mortal frame worn and exhausted by years and labours, but rejoicing and triumphant in spirit, on the threshold of the next world receives the Communion and yields up the ghost.

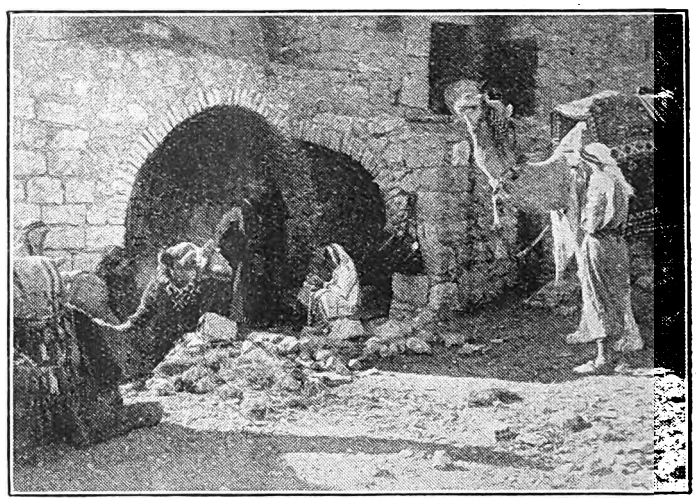
The spot in the grotto marked by the silver star above referred to indicates, it is believed, the point over which the Star of the East once rested—with an inscription at the sight of which " I frankly confess I wept like a child," says a great ecclesiastic. Hic de Virgine Maria Jesus Christus natus est (" Here Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary"). Pilgrims kneel and kiss the silver star, which speaks a story so infinitely touching. Above the star are fifteen costly lamps, burning night and day, and these lamps were from time to time presented by monarchs of Europe and Asia. No words can express one's emotions as one stands by this spot, unspeakably sacred to millions of Christians.



Within 120 years of Our Lord's death, and within 30 or 40 years after that of the last of the Apostles, the beloved St. John—Justin Martyr, himself a man of Nablus (Shechem), speaks of the Saviour's birth as having taken place " in a certain cave very close to the village " ; and this particular cave, now honoured as the scene of the Saviour's birth, was already so venerated in the days of Hadrian that to desecrate it he caused a grove sacred to Adonis to be planted over it, so that the Syrian god might be worshipped on the very spot —a form of idolatry peculiarly abhorrent to the pure morals of Christianity. Origen, in the opening of the third century, speaks of this cave as recognized even by the heathen as the birthplace of the Lord, and in this spot St. Jerome made his home for thirty years, that he might be near the birthplace of his Master ; Hadrian's grove had been destroyed sixteen years before his birth, to make room for the very Church now standing. There seems little reason, therefore, to doubt that in this cave, so hallowed by immemorial veneration, the Great Event associated with it actually took place.

Nothing is more common in a Palestine village built on a hill than to use as adjuncts of the houses the caves with which limestone rocks of the country abound ; making them store-room, say, or workshop or stable, and building the dwellings before them so as to join the two. Canon Tristram gives examples of this.

There are a number of picturesque ceremonies connected with the Church of the Nativity each year which arouse fervent enthusiasm among many thousands of pilgrims. Naturally the most remarkable and the most frequented are those of Christmas-tide, when the ceremonial is very gorgeous and lasts for nine hours. The service continues without intermission until midnight, when the " Gloria in Excelsis " bursts forth with the utmost power of organ, choir and shepherds' pipes combined. Other services follow and continue until after sunrise. The Christmas festivals in Bethlehem are to that town what the Easter festivals are to Jerusalem—the main support of the industries and manufactures of the place, which depend upon the production and sale of pilgrim wares.

There are endless souvenirs in olive wood and medallions in mother-of-pearl. The staple industry of the town is the manufacture of these and various other mementoes, to be sold to the pilgrims after they have been blessed by the priests. There are several hundreds of people engaged in this industry. This being a Christian town, the wives and daughters often sit with their husbands or brothers at their work ; this seldom or never being the case with Moslems.

The women of Bethlehem are considered not only the best-looking, but the best-dressed women in Palestine. It has been suggested that they owe their beauty to the Norman blood in their veins, for there is little doubt the Christian population is descended from the Knights of the Crusades and their followers, but their dress is certainly not Western. Many of the towns and even villages of Palestine have peculiar female costumes, like the different cantons of Switzerland. The female dress in Bethlehem is distinctly peculiar. Maidens wear a light frame on the head, covered with a long white linen or cotton veil, which falls over the shoulders to the elbows ; they have ear-rings, and over the front of the head, showing some of the hair below it, and just under the veil, is a diadem of silver, or silver-gilt, with a band of ornaments of the same material loosely fastened to it at both ends, so as to rest on the brow immediately under the hair, leaving the forehead only partly visible. Their black hair hangs on their shoulders in heavy plaits, just seen beneath the veil, which always leaves the face exposed. Their chief garment is a long blue or striped gown, generally of cotton, loosely tied in at the waist, with open sleeves hanging down to the knees, like those of a surplice ; its front, above the waist, always set off, more or less, with red, yellow, or green patches of cloth, embroidered to the wearer's taste. Over this gown, however, the well-to-do are fond of wearing a bright red short-sleeve jacket, reaching, in some cases, to the waist ; in others, to the knees.

Matrons have a somewhat different head-dress, the veil resting on the top of a round, brimless felt hat, much like that of a Greek priest, its front ornamented, in most cases, with coins. Strings of coins glitter round their necks. The veil is about two yards long and not quite a yard wide—large and stout enough to hold anything the owner may think fit to carry in it, when she turns it, for the time being, to some prosaic use, as when Ruth held out her veil to Boaz while he filled it with six measures of barley.

The south side of Bethlehem looks down as deep a valley as that on the north, with similar terraces, rich in fruit trees. and crowded with gardens and orchards. All round Bethlehem, indeed, the eye wanders over scenes beautiful in their natural charms, or hallowed by sacred memories. On the slopes down the valley to the east the beautiful idyll of Ruth had its scene. The fields in which she gleaned are there, and the path by which she and Naomi, two lonely widows, climbed up to the town is probably the same by which the daughters of Jerusalem still come up to the town from the glen. In the Wady Kaharubeh, and on the hillside beyond, lay the fields of Boaz, where he allowed the Moabitess to glean after the reapers, as we may still see girls and women doing in harvest-time.

From the outskirts of Bethlehem we are able also to see the slopes of the hills close at hand where the shepherds were watching by night when the Angel and the Heavenly Choir appeared to announce the birth of Him Who was Christ the Lord. Old, gnarled olives, their trunks riven, twisted, pierced by age, and disproportionately large for their crown of silver-green leaves, give a touch of beauty to the landscape, and afford shade to the peasant while tending the long-eared, broad-tailed sheep, and lively black goats, that browse among them; and here and there are red anemones, tulips and poppies.

CONGRESS ADDRESS.

Professor E. Odlum, M.A., said:

I HAD a short letter handed to me to-night concerning Edom. The question involves the idea of the covenant. The statement is made here, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called." "In Isaac shall thy seed be named." That is right. Those of you who are Hebrew scholars, look at that; then take it all the way through the Hebrew Bible, and you will find most assuredly that the conviction will grow that it means name; called in that sense. This is important, taking every word in the Hebrew Bible bearing upon that matter, and I affirm it as my deepest conviction that it means, "In Isaac shall the descendants of Abraham, through Isaac, be named." Now as to the covenant side. The seed of Abraham entered into a covenant, because God Himself made a covenant with Abraham and his seed; and if you will look carefully, say, at Ishmael, and the promise made to Ishmael, you will see that in addition to what might be called the general covenant made with Abraham, Ishmael had a special covenant, and then Isaac had a special covenant. This is exceedingly important. Now then, take Esau. Jacob and Esau brothers, twins. Take the Esau side. There is not a shadow of doubt in my mind that Esau, because of being a son of Abraham through Isaac, has been under covenant down through the ages. But he was a rebellious son, a rebellious man, and his nation was a rebellious nation; and, notwithstanding, he was a son of Abraham, through Isaac, he put himself largely outside of the covenants. In examining into it we find that from Esau we had a nation, Edom, and from Edom we got a people known as the Edomites. Herod was one of them. You know that Herod when he heard that there had been born one, King of the Jews, he said, "No, this won't do. We cannot have any King of the Jews coming from the Judah line, or any other line." Herod was of this line of Edom, and he claimed that which Edom, Esau, claimed a long time before; and that there might be no King over Judah in Jerusalem he decided to have all the baby boys killed. You can easily see now what came into the mind of that man, carrying the spirit of his ancestors. In that connection I wish to draw your attention to the people called

THE AMALEKITES.

If you read the account of their history you will find that they came along the line of Esau, the brother of Jacob. And when Israel was come out of Egypt, and through the wilderness, the Amalekites, the nation descended from Esau, decided that they would attack Israel in the wilderness, and take away their birthright blessing, claiming that they, the nation coming from Esau, the first-born, should possess that birthright blessing. They desired to capture the Stone of Israel, there called the throne of the Lord, the Stone of Jacob his father. This Stone represented the throne that Esau had rejected when he despised the birthright blessing in the far-away days of Jacob. Therefore the Amalekites made war upon Israel in the wilderness. You know something about it. You know how Moses sat upon a stone, and the princes of all Israel and Aaron held up his two hands while Joshua was leading the armies of the Lord to fight against the Amalekites, the first-born nation of Esau. They had come to possess themselves of the throne of the Lord. They knew what it was; they had not any doubt about it. Some of our people over here have a doubt about it, but they had not.

We remember that at the end of the battle between those two nations that Moses put up an altar in commemoration of the event, and gave a remarkable name to it; and then set forth a most wonderful statement concerning the mind of the Lord in relation to the Amalekites. Those of you who are ministers, be so kind as to look at that. I might tell you I have read all the Bible translations I could get and many commentaries, because the statement made in the last verse of the chapter, that gives the account of the Lord's dealings with Amalek in the future, seems unfinished. If you read it just as it is in our King James' translation, you will find that it is an unfinished statement, and it struck me that it would be a remarkable thing if in the Hebrew there was that unfinished statement. With very great labour and much consideration, and after reading all the translations I could get, I took this translation, and I would be glad if you would examine into it. Those of you who are particularly interested in the interpretation of the Bible, you will know whether this translation is reasonable and exact, or not. I have not the exact wording before me, but I can give it to you fairly accurately. "With his hand upon the throne of the Lord he said that the Lord would have war with Amalek from generation to generation." Now, my ministerial friends, kindly examine into that, and if you do not agree with me, I would be glad if you would send me a letter because it is one of the most important things in connection with the history of the Esau people.

Since I have taken up Esau in relation to this question that has been asked, I wish to go further with Esau. If you want to get track of these people read the Old Testament as far as it will take you, and get out the lines that came from Esau, and in addition to that read the New Testament dealing with them. Then read the older histories before the time of Christ, histories concurring with the beginning of this dispensation, and you will find that throughout Western Asia, and sometimes right down to Egypt, and out and around the Black Sea, they became so powerful that they needed very extensive military companies under Rome, and their best generals, to break the power of those people, and they were known as the Nestorians. Grecian history will show you that there were Nestorians down to the time of Christ being on the earth. These people, and the Edomites and the Amalekites, were the forerunners of the people who are known as the Turks to-day. The Turks came down the line that I have indicated.

Now I have said this much in order to bring before you something exceedingly important. Because of the hate that Edom down through the ages carried against Jacob, Israel, and that his people carried against Israel, the Lord told them that He would bring His vengeance to bear upon them in the days of punishment by the hand of His people Israel. Now I am after an important thing here. Several times since I have been speaking to you I have tried to make clear that that Book we call the Bible has been showing prophetic statements for a long period of time, and many of these prophecies did not come into fulfilment until a very late date. I am now dealing with one of that sort. "I will lay My vengeance upon Edom by the hand of My people Israel." I have examined into that in many ways, covering a period of and later down to the present time. If you read Obadiah you will find specific statements concerning practically when this event would take place in almost its entirety. That chapter has just one message, and that message is concerning Edom—the Turk. "The house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau for stubble, and they shall kindle in them, and devour them, and there shall not be any remaining of the house of Esau; for the Lord hath spoken it." Now there you have a strong statement made hundreds of years before the time of Christ, and it was nineteen hundred years after Christ before we could see the fulfilment of that marvellous statement.

During the Great War it came to pass that Turkey cast his lot in with our enemies; and immediately Great Britain took possession of Egypt, the Sudan, Arabia, all, normally at least under the rule of Turkey at the time, and later on, Palestine, all the land of Mesopotamia, until the Turkish Empire at last had to put their hands into the air and call for mercy. That was the beginning of the breaking of the War on a gigantic scale, for when Turkey gave up fighting, and held up her hands, then Bulgaria saw at once that it was helpless, and rather than have the armies of Britain overrun that State, they called for mercy and threw down their arms. And immediately after that Austria also called for mercy and threw down their arms, and at once Germany called for an Armistice, and they said, Let us find some way by which we can settle this matter. The real definite final conquest was over in the land of Edom.

Now I went over into the Land of Canaan after that War passed. I had read Obadiah many times; I had read history on a large scale. I had followed the different items of history for a long time, and I said, "I want to see the results of this War." And I saw some very remarkable things. God had said through the prophet that the work would be done by Israel and Judah. And we do know that a regiment of Judah in the Land of Canaan and helped to bring about the defeat of Turkey. We do know that when the War started and Turkey threw in her lot with the enemy forces, a great Treaty was made in this city between the executive of the Zionists, the international Zionists, and an executive of the rulers of this Empire; and in this Treaty it came out afterwards it was set forth that organized Jewry that was looking to Canaan for a national home decided to co-operate with the British Empire in the complete breaking of Turkey. And the international Press, very strangely at the time towards the end, when they saw how things were going, more and more moved over in the direction of Britain. I understood the meaning of that; it was the sending out of the strong arm of the associated Press to aid Britain and to break Turkey, that Britain might eventually become the overlord of that land, so as to make it a national home for the people of Judah. And that is what happened. You know the Balfour Declaration. You know that when the War would be over, and final rule would be given in the Land of Canaan, the rule had to be under a representative of the British Empire, and, at the same time, of international Jewry. And that is the reason why Sir Herbert Samuel was chosen, for he filled the bill in both directions. Now you get a remarkable thing. When the War was going on over the territory of Turkey, in the eastern part of Western Asia, and in Palestine, down through Arabia into Egypt,

BRITISH TROOPS ALONE DID THAT WORK, those of the seed of Abraham, and those associated with them in the Empire, and not another nation had a hand in the matter.

Now early on in that War a very marvellous thing occurred. During the period of the War I was called upon to speak on the coming results of that awful struggle; and I was speaking in a large hall in Vancouver to a tremendous audience, and I made it clearly known to them that before the War would be over we would find overselves fighting Russia. Now, go very slowly here. You remember, those of you who watched the War, that early on, when our men were going up from the mouth of the river Euphrates making for Bagdad and other places up there, when Germany was threatening the very life of Russia, that for some strong reason Russia sent a large army under one of their biggest generals to the waters of the Tigris and the Euphrates, presumably to help Britain, and to break Turkey in the land of Mesopotamia. I said on the platform that underneath that thing was a determination to head on Britain, so that when the War was over Russia would be in the land of Mesopotamia with her forces holding it. That is what was intended. And Britain knew it. Well, you know before the War was over we were fighting Russia in various directions, and we have not been very keen lovers since the War has passed, for very good reasons.

An English gentleman who was President of the Chamber of Mines in Vancouver came to me after the War was over, and he said, "I have an apology to make to you. When you told us that Britain and Russia would be at war before the whole matter was over, I said to a friend that you were talking through your hat, but I now know that you knew more about it than I did." My authority was that Book.

Now I went to Palestine and I said to some of my friends, "I want to see a living representative of Edom here in this land the Turk held for so long. Where shall I go?" I was in Jerusalem at the time. An Englishman who had been there for about thirty-five years laughed at me, and others in his presence laughed good-naturedly. "Why," they said,

"THERE IS NO TURK IN THE LAND."

"But," I said, "surely somewhere there is a Turkish family; I want to see some Turkish men and women and children." I travelled over ancient Palestine pretty fully, but I never once found a Turk. All the Turks that had not left voluntarily were dead and buried; the others had cleared out of the land except those who were taken prisoners, and those that were taken prisoners were afterwards let go when there was an exchange of prisoners. But there was not one left in the Land of Palestine. Read that verse in Obadiah again. "And there shall not be any remaining of the house of Esau; for the Lord hath spoken it." The Bible rings true. Prophecy was fulfilled in that particular at that War.

The next item I wish to bring up is the plea from Jerusalem. I have had this in my possession for a good while, and I wanted to use it in the City of London; and I will try and use it in the way I would like. There has been put into print a very interesting letter by a man who came down the way of Aaron, one of the Levitical peoples of ancient Israel. Levi was a tribe. And Levi was taken out and put in as the teacher, the law-giver, the theologian of the tribes of Israel. Moses and Aaron belonged to the tribe of Levi. And from Aaron, the high priest, came this man, who signs himself as Cohen; that is equivalent to saying, the priest. He held a position of high priest yonder in Jerusalem, and when I was in the land, he said, "We have lost Israel." Now,

I WISH THIS VERY CAREFULLY FOLLOWED.

"We have lost our brother Israel. I am an old man, and I would be delighted to find him—our brother Israel—before I die. If the British-Israelites are of the Ten Tribes, show us and I shall be delighted and made happy." I took pains to write him a letter from Vancouver some time ago, and I indicated to him by various methods where Israel is, and how he could find his brother. I have not heard from him yet, but we shall wait and see. He writes as an honest man. He writes most earnestly and humbly, and is not sarcastically referring to the British-Israelites.

Now why am I telling you this? Because there are thousands of people, and teachers in high places, who are telling us and telling the world that Israel is Judah and Judah is Israel, and that there is no Israel anywhere in the world outside of Judah. And here one of the great priests, and there are many of them, of Judah, says, "Israel our brother is lost. We want to find him." And he knows the truth a good deal better than those who say that Judah is Israel and Israel is Judah.

The next thing I wish to deal with shortly is this. There is a connection in it with what I have said to-day and on other occasions during this week—the marvellous relationship in the national and international modern movements. We do not know all the terrible organizations that are operating against us out of sight. We know some of them; we know something about these great organizations—anti-British and anti-Christian. There are scores of organizations and millions of people in dead earnest for the destruction of Christianity and the destruction of the British Empire, and we may as well recognize that fact. Now we have been told by God, Who makes no mistakes, wonderful things concerning the future yet to come, and we ought to know a little about ourselves in relation to the future.

First of all, several great and terrible catastrophes may come to humanity somewhere in the future, and we ought to know that our Heavenly Father has said that the people of His choice, whom He has selected to be servants to serve humanity, are going to be cared for, and that they will come out safely in the end. We ought to know that.

WE OUGHT TO HAVE A TRIUMPHANT FAITH

in our hearts, and we ought to go out to those around us with a clear vision of what our Heavenly Father has given us, so that when any dark days come, as they are likely to come some time in the future, we ourselves will not be in the darkness; we shall be able to give light to millions around us in the different centres where we are operating. That provides me with a little illustration before I deal with the subject.

You are doing a marvellous work here in the centre of the field. You are representing many different branches in different lands. I am just one, and you are many. I have come from a far-away part of the Empire. Now I happen to be the President of the British-Israel Association of Vancouver. That is one. And there is the British-Israel Association of North Vancouver, and of West Vancouver, and so on round about the city of Vancouver. In that quarter of the world we have all these British-Israel Associations, each one a light in the neighbourhood, and all as busy as bees. On fine summer days they are out gathering honey, and busy trying to build up this thing that we call British-Israel. That is an illustration of what is going on in Vancouver; of what is going on in Toronto; of what is going on in Winnipeg; and also in the United States, and in Africa, and in New Zealand, and in Australia. We have a lot of men and women who are working for the purpose of educating their neighbours, and for the purpose of laying the foundations deep for the success, the honour and the faith of humanity. And the Bible, thank God, is being studied I believe more earnestly than ever it has been in the past.

When we look around at the nations we want to know how they are standing in these very dark and confusing days. We would ask ourselves about this country, and that country, and the other country. What will it do? How does that one stand in relation to Great Britain? How does the other one stand in relation to Great Britain?

Now, a word as to Japan, the Empire of the Pacific Ocean. I lived there for years. I travelled through Japan more than any living man in Japan at the time I was there, and the big men who knew said so. I studied it from every standpoint. And after years of hard study, and very much travel, and very much reading of ancient history and mythology, I came to that these people in the Pacific Ocean, the Empire of Japan, are people who have their origin over in the west of Asia, who went from the west of Asia, over across the south of Siberia, till they landed in Manchuria and Korea, and in the Island of Japan about 150 years before Christ. Their fathers had gone into captivity between 750 and 751 B.C.; that would bring us down to an hiatus of seventy years giving time for two generations to come on to the earth from the exiles; and they began to move eastwards.

Now we have very much material to show that these people actually went from the western part of Asia. After they became established in their new land they sent periodically a commission of their people back to the west of Asia to their brethren yonder that had been left behind, and it took over three years to make the journey, to go and come. To whom do you suppose they sent their greetings?

In the Crimea in the last century there were found tombstones, yes, many tombstones were found, engraven in the Hebrew language, and strangely enough on those tombstones in the Crimea north of the Black Sea were statements made concerning the persons as belonging to a certain tribe of Israel. The very year is given. Another tells of one belonging to another tribe of Israel, and so on. They give the history showing the places to which their ventures were carried. Reference is made to the tribes of Reuben and Manasseh and Gad. Now put the two things I have told you together, and you begin to get some illustration of what might be a very great national fact, a wonderful, Divine, international arrangement. Do you know that in one of the ancient temples there is a wonderful picture put there long before any Christian man went into the land, a picture setting forth the lion and the unicorn. Just think of that. In addition to that, the Twelve Tribes are represented in twelve lines. In one of the temples there is a picture of a queen coming with a retinue of women servants, presenting presents to a king who is followed by male servants dressed up in courtly dress. And in the background of the picture there is the desert, and just behind there are the camels on which this queen and her retinue came from that distant country. That is remarkable, especially when you remember that Japan never had camels in the land, so that you know it does not refer to something that happened in Japan. It happened over at the other side of Asia before the days of the people of the tribe of Manasseh, Gad and Reuben started on their journey from the land of their then captivity, and there they have the picture of King Solomon being visited by the Queen of Sheba. I could give you concerning those peoples. Those people have been planted in a land for a Divine purpose. Our people were planted in these British Isles for a Divine purpose. God makes no mistakes. And those people were planted yonder on the isles east of China, and others away up yonder in the mountains of Afghanistan, and they know who they are. The great Strategist of this earth has been handling matters in love and mercy and gentleness and patience for the purpose of using His own people in different parts of the world to bring His enemies into nearer relation to Himself. We want to bring them and present them before the Lord our God so that they can enjoy His love as we do. "Ask of Me and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." God has given us millions of heathen and they have come under our banner, the grand old Union Jack, and in the Name of the God of Heaven, and in the Name of Christ, we are trying to bring them closer and closer to the feet of the Lord Jesus Christ.

THE HEBREW CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 1928.

BY THE REV. COMMANDER L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N.

One of the great movements of modern times took place in July, 1928, at Hamburg, when 153 delegates of Jewish communities assembled together with others, out of 12 branches and composed of members from 18 different nationalities.

The movement had its origination in small beginnings in Britain, America and elsewhere, but it has now come to a head as the "International Hebrew Christian Association," for the uniting together of all Hebrew Christians into one compact body. It has for its object the union of all Christian Hebrews. It has no denominational tie, but a simple faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as their Messiah, an implicit belief in both the Old and New Testaments, that Jesus, Who was rejected when He came and was crucified by those in authority at Jerusalem, is their Saviour, and will come to reign over the House of David and to be King of kings and Lord of lords. That the promises of their Messiah found every fulfilment in the history of the life and death of Jesus. Also that the prophecies concerning Israel must have as literal a fulfilment in Israel as those concerning Jesus were realized in Him. They have instituted a Hebrew-Christian Magazine which will come out quarterly from August last.

We are glad to see that the four most important of the Societies for Missions to the Jews are in cordial sympathy with this organisation. The London Jews' Society (Church of England) has a large hall constructed at Warsaw, and it is now open to Jews studying to become missionaries to their own people, and all are invited whoever have the desire to learn more of the Truth as it is in Jesus. Here large meetings are constantly going on every day almost without intermission. The students' department is conducted on interdenominational principles, founded on belief in the integrity of Old and New Testaments.

There is a keen interest felt among Jews in Hungary for a spiritual awakening, not merely to study the Gospel but to live it. "We live in magnificent times. Never before were so many Jews converted, never before have so many influential men in Israel spoken and written of Jesus with such respect and admiration." "If we can show to the Jews of these two countries (Poland and Austria) true Christianity, by our lives and by our deeds, there are possibilities of receiving into our midst, not merely hundreds or thousands, but tens of thousands of Jews." There are nearly 400 Jews in Christian Orders, and most of these in the Church of England. Speaking of the Hebrew Christians assembled at Hamburg, the President said:—"You have given life, you have given courage, you have given new hope to thousands of Hebrew Christians, and it has been made possible to have letters from scores of Rabbis about their secret belief in the Lord Jesus Christ." "I have received from the different Presidents of the Alliance the names of other learned Jews who are anxious to come out for Christ."

The President also stated that during his visit to America he was very forcibly struck, that in some universities the percentages of Jewish students were as high as eighty, while in others they were sixty, forty and over thirty-five per cent.

Jewish missionaries should have an equal training and be able to meet these on as good a footing.

"The leaders of Jewry feel that power is slipping out of their hands, and they should seek to provide the means by which they prove their patriotism to their people. Besides this, they perceive in the Hebrew Christians a conquering power, which by their strong faith exercises an influence over their surroundings, and is taking deep root among the nation."

United prayer has ascended to God to bring back His people by His grace. We are sure a very great many of our British Israelites join heartily in this prayer, which forms one of the bases of our "Scripture and Prayer Union."

It is stated that in one of these countries (formerly of the "Russian Pale") there are 40,000 Christian Jews; this number is stated by others to be 80,000.

It would seem as if God had especially drawn together these Jews in Central Europe into what formerly was known as "The Russian Pale," for a very special purpose. (Jer. xvi, 15.) The three Great Powers of Europe (1772, 1793, 1795)—Russia, Prussia and Austria—were responsible for this, by their iniquitous partition of Poland. It should be remembered that Poland was very partial to the Jews.

The late war has completely changed the condition of these people, the Balfour Declaration has raised their hopes. But it may be that they are centred here in order that we British Christians may lead them to their Messiah ere Jer. iii, 18; xxiii, 8; Mic. vii, 15 takes place.

Let us look into this matter. Zech. ix, 13 and x, 3, with Gen. xlix, 11, 12 point to the ultimate conversion of Judah, though some are evidently like the disciples at first.

The unconverted seem mainly to be some of those in Palestine at the last siege. (Zech. xii, 4-7.) But a great exodus takes place from the "north country." (Jer. xvi, 15-16.) These with Israel have elected ONE HEAD and come together out of the north parts to their own land. (Hos. i, 11.)

God will hear the voice of Judah and bring him to his own people; (Jer. iii, 18.) Judah now walking with Israel, as before they representatively walked To Israel and sought their assistance, are now permitted the concession they asked for.

But our Lord said, "Verily ye shall not henceforth see Me until ye can say Blessed is He that cometh in the Name of the Lord."

The Hebrew Christian Congress last July clearly points to the budding of the fig-tree, and tells us Our Lord is nigh. Shall we help our dearly beloved in the Lord to bring Judah to Him? Let each one of us answer, Yea! Come, Lord Jesus!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—Will you kindly explain the following words to me, spoken by Our Lord? "Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, shall He find faith on the earth?" (St. Luke xviii, 8). I do not know what they mean.

J. S. (Nottingham).

ANSWER.—These words occur, as you will notice in the Parable of the Importunate Widow, sometimes known as the Parable of the Unjust Judge. It is peculiar to St. Luke, not being found in the other Gospels. It is addressed to the disciples, and stands in closest relation to what has gone immediately before (Luke xvii; Matt. xxiv), with the description of the sufferings and distress of the last times, even when the disciples "shall desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and ye shall not see it." (Luke xvii, 22.) It also stands in close relation to the following Parable of the Pharisee and the Publican, which, it will be noted, is followed by the beautiful incident of Our Lord with the children.

The meaning of the word "faith" in the above sentence or question is not the same as the meaning attached to the expression "the Christian faith." It does not mean that when Christ comes "shall He find Christianity—or the Christian faith—on the earth?" But shall He find that special form of faith which is commended in the Parable, i.e., patience and confidence, the faith which is the great subject of Heb. x, 35; xii, 13. It is that faith which is to be understood in reference to the object of the Parable, faith which has endured in prayer without fainting. The above Parable is somewhat similar to that of the Unjust Steward, both of which appear to be paradoxical in character. In each case an action itself immoral or not commendable becomes the vehicle of moral and spiritual teaching. The single point of comparison is the immediate efficacy of instant prayer, persistent and confident.

Similarly, "shall not God avenge His own elect?" Hence, "I tell you that He will avenge them speedily." The elect of God are Israel redeemed through the blood of the eternal Christ. The words, "though He bear long with them," should be better translated, "and is He not long suffering in respect of them"? Surely, since God says, "Since thou wast precious in my sight thou hast been honourable, and I have loved thee" (Isa. xliii, 4); also, "Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with lovingkindness have I drawn thee." (Jer. xxxi, 3.)

Hence the widow is a type of Israel, and her avenging a type of Israel's redemption.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

NEVER has there been for the nation such a prolonged period of suspense and anxiety for the life and well-being of a monarch as that through which we are now passing, and never surely has such universal sympathy been evoked, or such manifestation of affectionate solicitude. From the four quarters of the globe, and from remote corners thereof, messages of sympathy pour in daily. Our own correspondence from the United States tells of the anxiety there, and of prayers being offered all over the land that the life of our gracious King may be spared, and that his health may be re-established.

From our windows at Headquarters we see each day the anxious crowds which gather around the Palace waiting for the bulletins.

If the strain for us is tense, what must it be for our beloved Queen and members of the Royal Family, and the doctors and nurses? Millions are praying for them as well as for the King. The fortitude of the Queen is wonderful.

We all rejoice that our Prince David has come safely back. Was there ever such a remarkable journey as that which in record time brought him to his father's bedside? Very soon we hope the King's two sons now speeding across the oceans will be here to complete the family circle.

Under all the circumstances, our readers will hardly be surprised to learn that the Rev. Pascoe Goard, and the Secretary-General and Mrs. Garrison, have postponed their visit to the East. We feel that our place is here. The other members of the party for Egypt and Palestine, etc., left on Monday last for Folkestone, Boulogne, Marseilles and Alexandria.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Herbert Garrison lectured to deeply-interested audiences in the Birmingham Town Hall on December 10th, and in the Great Hall of the Church House, Westminster, on the following evening, in celebration of the Anniversary of the Deliverance of the Holy City from Gentile domination. The audience in the Church House was the largest we have yet had there. Our President, Major Knowles, O.B.E., presided, and reviewed the military situation in early December, 1917. Mr. Goard showed how the war pivoted on Jerusalem. Mr. Garrison declared that no organization could more suitably celebrate the epoch-marking event, so fully fulfilling prophecy, than the British-Israel-World Federation. He exhibited a very fine series of photographic and hand-painted lantern pictures of Jerusalem and its environs, and described them from personal knowledge and observation.

On December 14th the Secretary-General lectured on the same subject in the Town Hall, Bedford, for our Branch there. Captain James presided over a good gathering.

The Secretary-General desires by this means to convey to all our readers his very best wishes for a Happy Christmas, made so this year, please God, by the placing of His Majesty the King beyond danger and speedily on the way to complete restoration.

The Executive Committee of the Council of the B.-I.-W. Federation met on December 12th, and went through a long agenda of important business.

The Rev. J. Lumley Davies and Mr. H. A. Marchant were the speakers at Headquarters last week. This week they are the Revs. W. H. Stuart-Fox, M.A., and Kenneth Dodds. There are no meetings next week.

A general meeting of the B.-I. Federation of Canada was held at Toronto on November 30th. Gratifying reports were received showing the progress since the Federation was formed. The following Branches are now part of the Federation:—Toronto (3), Scarboro', Hamilton, Peterborough, Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria. (Calgary has intimated its intention of joining as soon as the Constitution is amended.) The Provincial leaders are now completing their organizations, and it is expected that in May next, when the first Annual Convention is to be held in Winnipeg, every Province will be represented and the final organization will be completed. The present officers were re-elected provisionally to hold office until the Spring.

The Branches in Ontario are all holding regular and well-attended meetings. On November 27th the Hamilton Branch held a public meeting in the Presbyterian Church. The Rev. R. J. Campbell was the speaker, and he spoke on "Sir Austen Chamberlain's Picture of World Peace."

Great interest is being shown in B.-I. teaching by Hebrew Christians, and many enquiries are coming for literature.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE YEAR OF OUR LORD—1928.

BY general acknowledgment the years through which we are passing and through which the preceding generations of our dispensation have been passing for ages are, and have been, the years of our Lord.

What a tremendous thing it is that such influence is exercised by Him Who was born at Bethlehem, as to cause to be recognized in every department of individual and national life, that the years are dominated by our Lord.

Deeds, leases, contracts, bills of sale, notes of hand, bank notes, wills, and every other document known to law and to commerce in the western world, are dated according to the year of our Lord. Administration of nations, of law systems, and so forth, measure time by the years of our Lord. Correspondence of every kind: social, commercial, political, legal, all recognize the years of our Lord.

HIS PERSONALITY DOMINATES TIME.

1928 has been a year of our Lord. Anno Domini ——.

It has been on the whole a good year for us and for the world. The work of stabilization of the things of the nation, and of the nations, is going on.

At home it has been marked by a spirit of peace between capital and labour. In the political world it has been free from upheavals. In the religious world it has seen the final act of the Prayer Book controversy as far as the proposed Book is concerned. The controversy brought to the front, as has not been otherwise done for generations, the solidarity of British religious opinion. However the surface may be rippled and broken by wavelets of varying thought and opinion, in the great substratum of religious faith there has been a wonderful demonstration of solidarity among the people. This has been a surprise to many Christian leaders who, secluded within successive circular walls of ecclesiastical structure, not built of bricks and mortar, but of habits of thinking, have been out of touch with the thinking of the outside multitude. In fact, many believed that practically all the religious thinking went on within such ecclesiastical walls. Such is manifestly not the case. The man on the street is alive to, and is practising religious thought of quite an intense character. The result was the repeated vote of the House of Commons on the Prayer Book.

Those who have lost in the Prayer Book effort should be well repaid by the discovery that the people of England are intensely interested in religious questions, and in religion.

THE CONTINENTAL EMPIRES—AND ISRAEL BRITAIN.

God gave to the Continental Empires their charter of rule. Jesus Christ, in view of that fact, said "render therefore unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's."

Jesus Christ, the great Founder of the Christian religion, gave the statement of Christian practice for the Continental Empires. He said: RENDER THEREFORE UNTO CÆSAR THE THINGS THAT ARE CÆSAR'S, AND UNTO GOD THE THINGS THAT ARE GOD'S. This was the basis of Christian doctrine and practice in the Continental Empires. Their Imperial charter will be found in the second chapter of Daniel, vs. 36-43.

What, then, was due to Cæsar from Christian citizens within the Empire of the Cæsars? "Repentance towards God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ" is their duty towards God; loyal service to Cæsar, as citizens of the Empire, is their duty towards Cæsar, or the equivalent of Cæsar in modern days.

But when our Lord set forth the basis of Christian faith and practice for the Israel nations, He made a different statement for them. He Himself preached "the gospel of the Kingdom": and it was neither the Kingdom of God in Heaven; nor a spiritual regeneration for His body which is the Church, but it was the Kingdom of Heaven established on earth. He also sent forth twelve disciples to preach the gospel of the kingdom, and these were His restrictive instructions to them:

"GO NOT INTO THE WAY OF THE GENTILES, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not, but go rather to THE LOST SHEEP OF THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL. And as ye go preach saying THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN IS AT HAND. . . ."

He further sent forth the seventy to preach the same good tidings.

From other Scriptures we know that the kingdom He preached was the kingdom established by God in Israel at Sinai in 1496 B.C., when the nation Israel, Jehovah the King, and the Divinely-proclaimed law were brought together by Him, and organized into the Kingdom of God or the Kingdom of Heaven. See Exodus xix—xx.

Notice of the "setting up" of the kingdom anew is put into the charter granted by the Most High to the Cæsars, in the second chapter of Daniel, as a notification that the Cæsars' empire would not be the only kingdom in the earth; and that their power will not extend to the kingdom which the God of Heaven set up "in the days of those kings." Thus the Empire of the Cæsars never extended to all the earth.

Now the duty in the Kingdom of Israel is repentance towards God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ; and loyal service to the House of David.

A common faith is required in both kingdoms. A separated loyalty marks the divided organizations: Loyalty to Cæsar on the one hand; loyalty to the House of David on the other.

The Anglo-Saxon nations are Israel. Of that, sufficient has been written and spoken in these columns, and in the organization this organ stands forth to establish that point fully.

The Christianity of these nations requires repentance towards God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, and loyalty to the House of David.

The ecclesiastical organization of the Cæsar Empires has sent many missionaries into these nations, from St. Augustine down to to-day, and they have brought the Cæsar claims. This is in effect the claims of the Papacy. They claim to be the heirs of the Cæsars, and the administrators of Christianity within the Cæsarean Dominions; so they claim temporal and spiritual power.

Like the Cæsars they claim both phases of power to be universal in the earth, and so are demanding the loyalty of Anglo-Saxon people to the successors in temporal and spiritual power of the holy Roman Empire. Manifestly, this can never be. It is a demand that does not come within the scope of the charter granted to the first of the Czars, namely, Nebuchadnezzar. Indeed, it is distinctly guarded against in that charter, for the Anglo-Saxon nations are the "stone cut out without hands."

The Papal forces have organized to capture all the overseas Dominions from Britain. To this end, in accord with prophecy, the dragon has sent a flood out of his mouth to swallow up the seed of the woman, Israel; but the earth helps the woman, and swallows up the flood. The flood is a multitude of people, who go out flaming with zeal for the Papacy and its power. They die in due course, and the earth swallows them. Their sons and grandsons do not follow in their steps.

They tried their utmost to capture the Presidency of the U.S.A. this year. Their failure, against which they felt assured, has marked the year deeply. It is the most crushing blow that power has had for generations. Israel, and Israel's type of Christian citizenship, prevailed. This event has deeply marked the year.

In the meantime the charter of the Empires has run its full seven times' period, and the vitality of it is gone. Never again will Jesus, in the national sense, say "render therefore unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's." For Cæsar's holdings were not "freehold" but "leasehold," and the term of the lease has lapsed. The results of this are beginning to show, and will be more and more manifest as the days go by.

The stand of the Commons on the Prayer Book, and the results of American Elections are two phases of the many-phased question of the Papal activity.

Let us pray for a purified Church on the Continent, to stand in fellowship with a purified Church in Anglo-Saxondom; and an unbroken loyalty to God on the part of the citizens of all nations.

Western Europe is talking disarmament. BUT RUSSIA IS ARMING. Her war budget has increased enormously this year. Russia, whatever she may do afterwards, is not likely to make any move to alarm the British electorate before the coming elections. We believe that Britain will be defended by whatever British representation may be elected. Perhaps not with equal zeal; because there is not an equality of real knowledge. Some are working by ideals, determined to believe that things are what they would like them to be. Others are working by realities, knowing that things are not what we all should like them to be. The one believes that "The strong man unarmed is sufficient to keep his house." The other does not so believe but, with our Lord, declares "THE STRONG MAN ARMED KEEPETH HIS HOUSE"; but that of the unarmed man is broken up. So it may be of importance as to great matters of detail who is elected.

Russia believes that she has more chance with one Party than with the other Party. Perhaps she will find herself mistaken in this. Therefore, lest she mar the Party of her choice, she will not move until after the British election, about which she is more anxious than we are.

But Russia is arming, and she declares her enemy is Great Britain. This preparation, which is world-wide in its activities, is as well known as was the preparation of Germany before the last war. The matter stands so for the present, and is not likely to be otherwise for some months to come.

Mussolini is developing a great national machine. We are of the opinion that it will not be detrimental to Britain. Perhaps it is being allowed by the great Overlord, the Lord of Hosts, for the very purpose of checkmating our potential enemies. Perhaps the event will show that all these things have happened "that the Scriptures might be fulfilled." We believe it will be so, and so we are greatly interested at the development of the power of Italy or, rather, of Mussolini. Once formed, all these things are at the disposal of Jehovah, Who is still the King of Israel, and Who neither slumbers nor sleeps. Britain may sleep, deeply sleep, but "He Who keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep." So these things are moving forward, and the end will glorify God.

A dangerous situation developed in China. Canton challenged the north, and the armies of the two parts of the once great Empire met in armed conflict. The man of the north is not of the rugged type that is found in the south. The man of the north remains by the graves of his ancestors. The man of the south is cosmopolitan in his wanderings. He is in every land, and is engaged in many kinds of work; thus developing efficiency in Western enterprise and methods.

So far apart are they that while they read the written Chinese characters, they speak different languages. So much is this the case that in a certain city known to the writer the Consul, a Mandarin, cannot converse with the Cantonese population whose interests he is there to represent. He can lecture to the Japanese in their own tongue, but he must speak to the Cantonese through an interpreter. Canton, of course, is a Province of China.

The Cantonese bid for supreme control of China. The matter came to a rest, however, and it looks as though a Government representing the nation may be formed. The spirit manifested by the British in the troubles quieted the spirit of China; even as the spirit of Communism, led by Russian agitators, stirred the people up to war. In that, we —as the representatives of the Kingdom of God on earth— won a war with Russia, a war of the first magnitude, without firing a shot. The war was won by showing a preparedness to strike without the disposition to do so.

DISARMAMENT would have been fatal in this case. ARMED READINESS, with the spirit which was manifested when our soldiers at the barrier, menaced by hostile multitudes, passed the rifle into the left hand in order to pat the head of the little Chinese child with the right hand, won the day.

* * * *

Danger on the Afghan frontier was manifested on a major scale. Russian agents had enlisted the tribes, and the day was set for an outbreak which should have shook India. King Amanullah visited this land. His welcome, and the spirit of warm-hearted friendliness with which he was greeted and entertained to the last moment of his visit, changed the spirit of the tribesmen, and *the outbreak did not come. It was a very real danger averted by the spirit of the armed man who, while keeping his house, used it as a gathering place in which his guests were made to feel perfectly at home and welcome.

* * * *

Danger in Egypt threatened. The spirit of firmness and of friendliness prevailed to restore the peace in that land which contains the vital pivot point of the Empire East and West.

So by the grace of God we have been piloted through dangers seen and unseen through A.D. 1928.

This year is a crisis year in the age through which we have been passing. The years since the Armistice have been taken up with the clearing away of the wreck of Empires. The present year shows the beginning of efforts of newly-organized Powers to take over the power and the inheritance in lands, people, substance, and dominance which fell from the hands of emperors and imperial administrations. As the years pass the struggle to enter into possession of these things will become intense.

Candidates for possession and power are national: and among them are Prussia, Russia, and Mussolini. This is not a slip in composition. One can scarcely say Italy in this case. Mussolini at the moment swings the nation. The immediate struggle is promised as being between one or other of these Powers and Britain. That is the static thought of the Powers. In reality the struggle will be between claimants to the same European and Asiatic things.

Britain is interested as far as the Middle East is concerned, and will probably be edified or otherwise in seeing two or more Powers struggling for possession of lands and peoples now part of the Empire. After that is over Britain's position as protector and ruler of these lands and territories will be firmly established.

Other candidates are institutional. Thus the Papacy has not laid aside the dream of restored temporal power, and is labouring in that direction as she has not been labouring for generations.

Communism, led by the Third Internationale, is struggling to the same end. These are counteracting each other to a degree.

International Jewry is working through financial, literary, theatrical, political, educational, religious, and other means to the same end.

The low-passage period is being marked by this, and the present sparring for strategical position will give place to more drastic measures as the months and years go on. We know this. But we also know that "the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom . . . for ever."

The sea is stormy. But the ship of the Kingdom is a good one, well manned and secure. It will not only weather the storm, it will keep to its course unvaryingly throughout the remaining years of the age, and will arrive in port in due time.

* The outbreak has come since the above was written; but the forces are divided; and we trust the King will succeed in quelling the rising which is much less serious than was planned last year.

CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C. (Chairman), said :

WE have much to praise God for in reference to this week which is now coming to an end, and I trust that all of you have not only enjoyed the meetings, but that you have derived true spiritual blessing and uplift which may continue with you as you go to your various spheres of labour. Our British-Israel Movement never was so strong and virile as it is to-day. It has withstood all the attacks of our enemies and adversaries, and has come out unscathed, and if in the future the opposition becomes tenfold greater, I believe the Movement will emerge tenfold more powerful and more virile than before. We have a great sphere of labour before us. This Gospel of the Kingdom must be preached throughout the world. We must not limit ourselves; we must remember that our parish is a great parish ; that we have a mighty work before us to-day, and I believe, by the power and grace of God, we shall go forth to do that work. Some time ago there was in Dublin something of the nature of a riot ; that is nothing unusual there. And during that riot one of the great burly Dublin Metropolitan Police brought in nine prisoners. When they were brought before the magistrate he said to the policeman, "How did you bring in at one time nine prisoners?" "Ay, sure, your worship, I just surrounded them!" We have a mighty work to do, and we have to surround, not only this Island, the United Kingdom, the British Empire, but we have to open our arms to embrace the entire world, and to claim it for the honour and glory of God.

Mr. J. J. Morey said :

Have you thought where we stand to-day in God's scheme of things? What are we led to expect, from our reading of prophecy, and our understanding of the Bible, will happen in these days in which we live? I want just to state them, for I have not time to enlarge upon the various points. I believe the times of the Gentiles ended in the year 1917, and that is a great epoch ; many things turn upon it, and if you can establish that, then you ought to understand many things that converge upon that event. If the times of the Gentiles have closed, what next? You are going to see a Christian-Israel nation emerging ; there is not any doubt about that. Men who talk about the Jews only being the Israel of to-day do not know their Bible. I think that in these days the bulk of Israel is Christian. They are going to prepare the way of the Lord. They are going to do many things which I could go on and name. The veil is to fall from their eyes ; they are going to see themselves, and they are going to read the Book. The deaf shall hear the words of the Book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of the obscurity and out of the darkness. I have seen tremendous changes as I have gone about this country during the last six years. I know that there are hundreds of thousands of people in these Islands to-day who know they are Israel, and who knew nothing about it scarcely six years ago. The veil is falling from their eyes, and the Israel nation is emerging from her obscurity.

Another thing which is going to happen. Old systems are to be in chaos and to break away to prepare for the new age and the new world. Study international life since the War. See how thrones have fallen, and crowns have tumbled. See how international chaos has come. Yes, and religious chaos. There are false religions everywhere, and you can see that there is a tremendous turmoil coming all over the world, in which God is going to smash some things, or to allow His enemies to smash them ; and out of the chaos will emerge a new thing, which will be the Kingdom of Our Lord Jesus Christ. I saw one day a large building in London being pulled down, and there was a sign put up, "House-breakers." That is their job. And when they have pulled that building down, they will go and pull another one down. They build up nothing. I am afraid that the house-breakers have come in. God is allowing the house-breakers to come into our politics, into our religion, and into many other spheres ; and they are pulling down ; they will build nothing. But after these will come the builders, and we are going to see a new thing which is to stand, and under Christ the King will come a new world. You have seen how that Mohammedanism is tumbling down. Turkey has discarded the Koran. Her women come out into the streets dressed like Westerners ; the power of the Caliph is broken, and Islam is losing its hold upon the peoples of the East, preparing the way for the children of God, so that millions who have been enthralled by it will come into Christianity. Israel went into captivity into Egypt, and the time came when God set her free, and by means of plagues, and by the miraculous power of God, Israel was delivered. But she has gone into captivity again since then, and the time of her captivity is over, but she is not yet wholly delivered. And now before Christ comes God is going to deliver His Israel people, and He is going to open her eyes, and she is going to stand up, as Ezekiel tells us, a mighty army arrayed for her King and for the new age. Jacob's trouble and Israel's cleansing are together a period of trial and difficulty, which will lead to our national repentance, and to our restoration and national return to God, before the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. Then you are going to see a permanent Kingdom arise. The question will be as to who shall rule the world. That will be the supreme question. There are candidates to-day for world power. There are two figures. Jesus Christ claims the right in His Book to rule the world ; it is His by right. But the devil claims the right to rule the world. Jesus Christ is coming to take His power and reign and to defeat His opponent, and the devil is to be overcome and chained, and then Christ will take His earthly Kingdom and will reign. We have nearly come to that point in the history of the world. And whether the trouble of these days, the tribulation which is coming upon us, is to affect us personally, or not, we must take the larger view, and we must see that great world issues are at stake, that it is a struggle for the supremacy either of good or of evil. The Christian age is closing, and the Kingdom age is dawning, and there is to come a permanent Kingdom. That Kingdom is the Kingdom of God, for Christ is going to rule the world in righteousness. Now that Kingdom is Israel, and the meaning of the name Israel is "ruling with God." They have never yet been entirely fit to do it, and when they went into captivity they dropped the name, and they are shy of it yet. and they will never come back to the name till they are a cleansed nation ready to do the work for which the name stands ; then they will come back to it.

Now where is that permanent Kingdom ? How are we going to recognize it ? I only want to name one or two things. It is the Kingdom which fulfilled, and is fulfilling, the covenants made with Abraham, for it is the seed of Abraham which is to stand for ever, in whom all the nations of the earth are to be blessed. In the covenant that God made with Abraham you see the first sketch outline of the people who are going to reign with Christ, and rule and build a new world ; it is going to be the nation to which God has given His law, for that is to be the law of the new age when Christ comes to reign. Every nation on earth will have to take that law, whether it likes it or not, and it will be the greatest uplift that they ever had in their national life. I hope they will take it willingly. God's people will love it ; it will be written on their hearts, that law which has never yet risen to its fullness is to be the law. To whom has He given that law ? It is the British law to-day, and we are the people who are fulfilling the covenants, and are teaching and administering that law which is to be the law of the new age. If you study the chronology of the Bible you will see that the period of the image of Nebuchadnezzar's dream ended in the year 1918. The Kingdom came and broke the remaining iron in the feet of that image ; headed up in our day in Germany and Austria, people who have descended from Babylon and Assyria, who took our fathers into captivity long ago. It is the emerging of the Israel nation. There again you have the great British people. It will be the Kingdom which is in possession, the throne of David, which is the throne of Our Lord—another great question which we study and teach. Read about it. I believe there is no more tremendous fact for the British people to know than that God has entrusted us with the earthly throne which is to be the throne of the King in the age of the Kingdom. The throne of God, the throne of David, is to be the throne of Christ—all in our possession. It is to be a nation which has charge of the Land of Palestine, for it is theirs. And now at the end of the age Esau has had to leave it, and the seed of Abraham, the real Israel people, are restored to it preparatory to the return of our King, and the coming of the dawn of the new day. From my reading of prophecy I see that that nation will have in its possession the Book of the Kingdom, the Bible. The great Church of the Kingdom will be the centre of Christianity, and there will go forth the preachers of the Gospel before the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. I submit to you that a logical reading of these things should convince you that you have a tremendous heritage, a tremendous responsibility, and that you are called upon to prepare for the Coming of Christ, and for the bringing in of the Golden Age, for which we have dreamed and prayed all our days. It is coming, and I trust that we may be ready to receive the Kingdom, and to take our place when He comes to reign.

"The Gospel of Christ gives faith its object ; hope its certainty ; misfortune an alleviation ; sin its pardon : life its cordial ; and death its comfort."

THE GREAT PYRAMID AND THE EGYPTIAN "BOOK OF THE DEAD."*

By B. STEWART.

(Author of The Witness of the Great Pyramid, and others.)

EGYPTIAN literature, more particularly what is known as the "Book of the Dead," not only contains allusions to the symbolism attached to the passages and chambers of the Great Pyramid, but also explains certain features therein which constructionally are not easy to account for. This identification was first made by the Oxford scholar, Marsham Adams, towards the end of last century, and was endorsed by the well-known Egyptologist, the late Sir Gaston Maspero.

The title, "Book of the Dead," is misleading, as it is not strictly speaking a book at all, but a collection of texts and prayers composed for the benefit of the departed, and to secure the happiness of the soul in the next world. The Egyptians, moreover, possessed many funerary works, which might equally well be called Books of the Dead, but none bore such a title, while the title this particular collection claims for itself is the "Book of the Master of the Hidden Places," the Master being the divine Osiris, and the "Hidden Places" the concealed chambers and passages of the Great Pyramid, which the soul of the departed is portrayed as following during its journey of purification. And so closely does the path embodied in the masonry of the "Secret House" correspond with the path of the departed as described in the sacred writings, that the traveller who to-day penetrates those mysterious recesses may follow almost step by step the mystical progress of the holy departed through the grave and gate of death to the final resurrection of the "Open Tomb."

The descending entrance passage symbolizes the "descent for initiation" into the elements of the mysteries of the universe ; the granite plug at the junction of descending and ascending passages is the "hidden lintel" sealing up the knowledge in the chambers above, only to be revealed through due initiation and guidance. The cramped ascending passage denotes the "Hall of Truth in Darkness" ; the spacious Grand Gallery, to which it leads, the "Hall of Truth in Light (or Splendour)," symbolizing the Gospel age of the Christian era following the cramped era of the "Yoke of the Law," to which Israel was subject during the Mosaic dispensation, for all these identifications of the Pyramid's allegory in the "Book of the Dead" have their counterpart in Scripture.

The Grand Gallery is also described as the "Luminous Chamber of the Orbit" from the shallow groove cut in the third overlap of the walls and running their entire length, which symbolizes the "orbit of the earth," since it occurs precisely in the position relatively to the different overlaps corresponding to that occupied by our own globe amongst the planets.

An ancient prophecy existed in Egypt from the earliest times proclaiming the coming of a Messiah, and the Egyptians later claimed that this promised Messiah had come in the person of Osiris. Hence the birth and passion of Osiris is found associated with the particular structural features of the Pyramid, which define precisely the dates of Our Lord's Nativity and Crucifixion. In the same way Osiris was regarded as the type and emblem of the Resurrection. Hence the King's Chamber, with its lidless chest (not a sarcophagus or coffin) emblematic of the Resurrection, is described in the allegory as the "Chamber of the Open Tombs," a chamber of the living, wherein the divine Osiris is awakened from his slumbers.

Connection between the Great Pyramid and the "Book of the Dead" is also given by the four great angle or gable stones over the inner entrance in the core masonry. As the initiate approaches this gate situate on the seventeenth course, he is described in the fifteenth chapter as about to enter its portals at the fifteenth step, two courses yet above him (i.e., the 17th—precisely its position), and called the "double gate of the horizon," symbolized by the double pairs of stones. As he approaches this gate he invokes the god Harumachis, who is to be his guide on the journey of initiation. This god is described in the Ritual as the "light dwelling on the horizon of heaven," and the hieroglyph—the only one existing anywhere on the Great Pyramid, and originally concealed from view by the casing stones—signifying "the horizon of heaven," has been carved immediately below the lower pair of angle-stones.

Recent interesting discoveries have also been made with regard to the missing apex-stone, and both details of construction and references thereto in the "Book of the Dead," wherein it is described as a "Roofed House," disclose strong evidence that the Great Pyramid always had a blunted summit.

In the Scriptural allegory its top-stone signifies Messiah as "chief corner-stone and headstone of the corner," a two-fold condition which can only be constructionally fulfilled in a pyramid. And even as Christ was rejected of men (Isa. liii, 3), so also was the top-stone of the Great Pyramid rejected, since it has now been discovered that it has been built on a base smaller than its true—and intended—base. This error runs throughout from base to summit, hence the platform to receive the top-stone was also too small, and the latter was consequently rejected. And to carry the allegory a step further to completion, so that the Pyramid becomes a "building fitly framed together," implies that it is the Architect's intention that this error shall be rectified, and the edifice ultimately enlarged and completed so that the apex-stone may be placed in position as foretold by Zechariah iv, 7. Then shall be fulfilled, both in symbol and in actuality, the prophecy of Matt. xxi, 42, "The Stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner."

BRITISH-ISRAEL-WORLD FEDERATION CONGRESS.

QUEENSLAND CONTRIBUTION.

SYNCHRONIZING with the Ninth Annual Congress of the British-Israel-World Federation, the Queensland Branch of the Federation held a special meeting. Mr. Arthur Exley (President) was in the chair.

After preliminary devotions Mr. Victor Rigby (Secretary) read the objects of the Federation, which are as follow:—

1. "To make known to the sons of men God's mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of His kingdom" (Psalm cxlv, 12).

2. To promulgate the belief that the peoples of the British or Saxon race within the British Isles and their offspring beyond the seas, including the United States of America, are of the stock of Israel.

3. To establish as a fact that the said belief is supported and confirmed by the Holy Scriptures (and in particular by the prophetical portions thereof), and by historical events.

4. To demonstrate to the peoples aforesaid the privileges and responsibilities attaching to them byreason of their said descent.

5. To co-ordinate and thus strengthen the work of all British-Israel or Anglo-Israel Associations and Councils throughout the world.

The Chairman said the name of the Society with which they were associated itself was significant. A Federation was a binding together. But in that case who were bound together? A covenanted people called Israel ruling under God's guidance. The membership of the Federation was practically doubling yearly. The Congress in London was being addressed by some of the foremost men in the Empire. The good tidings of the redemption of Israel were being made known, also the fact that the nation of Israel was cast out but never cast away. Undoubtedly it was an elect nation.

THE ELECT NATION.

Addressing the meeting on the subject, "The Elect Nation," Mr. Exley said: "To all who believe in the inspiration of the prophetical books of God's Word written it is evident that somewhere in the world at the present time is a kingdom-nation ruled over by a descendant of the House of David, sitting upon the throne of Jehovah, and ruling till He come Whose right it is to occupy that throne, in fulfilment of the promise made to the Virgin Mary at the hour of the annunciation of the birth of Jesus, 'the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David.'

"What may we learn from the prophetical books of the Old Testament and the teaching of the New Testament concerning this elect nation? From Jeremiah xxxi, 35, 36, we glean the following promise: 'Thus saith the Lord, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which divideth the sea when the waves thereof roar; The Lord of Hosts is His name: If those ordinances depart from before Me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before Me for ever.' From Jeremiah xxxiii, 25, 26, we learn this about David's throne and its connection with Israel: 'Thus saith the Lord: If My covenant be not with day and night, and if I have not appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth; then will I cast away the seed of Jacob, and David My servant, so that I will not take any of his seed to be rulers over the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, for I will cause their captivity to return and have mercy upon them.' The prophet Isaiah in the 65th chapter of his writings, verse 22, speaks thus of Israel: 'They shall not build and another inhabit; they shall not plant and another eat; for as the days of a tree are the days of My people, and Mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands.'

NEW TESTAMENT CONFIRMATION.

"St. Peter, in his First Epistle, writes to the elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, and reminds them, 'But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people, that ye should show forth the praises of Him Who hath called you out of darkness into His marvellous light.' This is recalling to the nation the words of Moses in addressing Israel (Deut. vii, 6): 'For thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God; the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto Himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth.' St. Paul, in his Epistle to the Romans (chapter xi), writes: 'Hath God cast away His people? God forbid; for I also am an Israelite of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. God hath not cast away His people whom He foreknew." This election, of which St. Paul writes, is historic and hereditary, and from the words of Our Blessed Lord Himself we know that the elect nation was not the House of Judah, known as the Jews, for when He came unto His own and His own received Him not He said to the Jews, 'Therefore say I unto you, the Kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof, and whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall it will grind him to powder.' The connection of the symbol of the Stone of Israel of which Joseph was the Shepherd (Gen. xviii, 24) with Christ is set forth in 1 Cor. x, 4, 'They drank of that spiritual rock which followed them, and that rock was Christ.' The power and might of the kingdom whose symbol is a stone is set forth in Daniel's interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's vision of Empires: 'And in the days of these kings shall the God of Heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever. Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it broke in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold, the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter.' 'The stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.' This, again, is a fulfilment of the promise in Deut. xxxii, 8, 'When the Most High divided to the nations their inheritance, when He separated the sons of Adam, He set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel.'

RIVAL HOUSES.

"For the identification of Israel in the latter days we again turn to the inspired Word of God, but to get clearness of vision the difference between the outcasts of Israel and the despised of Judah must be thoroughly understood. Immediately following the death of Solomon, the kingdom was rent in twain. The Northern House, Israel, followed Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, whilst the Southern House, Judah, was faithful to Rehoboam, the son of Solomon. To this day the rival Houses have never reunited. The Northern House, for its idolatrous practices, became divorced from Jehovah, and was outcast, being taken into captivity by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, nearly 100 years before Judah was carried by Nebuchadnezzar into a Babylonish captivity. The House of Judah returned to Palestine, the House of Israel was lost in the heathen races to the north of Assyria, and never returned to Palestine in the course of Biblical history. Of Israel the prophet Ezekiel writes: 'As I live, saith the Lord God, I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face, and I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant,' and again: 'Therefore, thus saith the Lord God, although I have cast them far off among the heathen, and although I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them as a little sanctuary in the countries where they shall come.'

A COMPANY OF NATIONS.

"We learn from the pronouncement of the prophet Nathan to King David that Palestine was not destined to be the constant abiding place of Israel, for he stated, 2 Sam. vii, 10: 'Moreover, I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant them that they may dwell in a place of their own and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more as beforetime.' We know that the outcasts of Israel moved westward, and the prophet Isaiah greets them thus: 'Listen, O isles, unto me, and hearken, ye people from far; thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.' 'Thus saith the Lord, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee; and I will preserve thee and give thee for a covenant of the people to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages.' From the birthright blessing of Jacob to the sons of Joseph we know that in the latter days Ephraim's seed is to develop into a nation and company of nations, and that his elder brother, Manasseh, is to become a great people. Seek through the world of to-day and search the Scriptures as to what is to befall in the latter days, and the problem as to the identity of the elect race will not be one difficult of solution." —The Brisbane Telegraph.

JEWS DEMAND FREEDOM TO WAIL OVER THEIR WAILING PLACE.

Parliament and the League of Nations called upon to intervene through the police action in removing Screen at the Jews' Wailing Place in Jerusalem.

BY HAROLD J. SHEPSTONE, F.R.G.S.

THE decision of the Government to issue a White Paper on the trouble at the Wailing Wall, which subject is also expected to be discussed at the present session of the Mandates Commission at Geneva, calls attention to this unfortunate controversy which has arisen between Jew and Moslem over that strange little courtyard by the Temple area in Jerusalem. It has been brought about by the forcible removal by the police of a canvas screen which had been put up at the Wailing Wall to divide the men from the women in accordance with the Talmudic law during the service on the Day of Atonement. This is the most sacred day in the Jewish Calendar. On that day work is strictly taboo. Its most sacred moments are those devoted to the Amidah prayers, during which one has to stand feet together and concentrate on his devotions. According to Jewish law, in these moments a Jew may not answer a salute by the slightest nod, even if a king were to accost him. It was while engaged in this most sacred rite that the police forced their way among the worshippers in the holy courtyard and pulled down and carried off the screen. The whole of Jewry were so incensed over this insult to their religion and desecration to what is to them their most holy place, that protests were made not only to the governing officials in Palestine, but to virtually every European Government, and petitions sent to the King, the Prime Minister and the League of Nations.

To Jews the Wailing Place is their holy of holies, and they have been in the habit of gathering here as their Sabbath draws nigh to wet the stones that encircle their former Temple site with their tears and breathe out their lamentations. Special prayers are said and litanies chanted. Between the courses of stones may be detected old nails which have been driven into the Wall, in accordance with the passage in Ezra (Ch. ix, 8): "To give us a nail in His holy place," which symbolizes a possession, or a "sure abode."

Technically, the Jews' Wailing Place is a public thoroughfare. It is but 156 feet in length and about 16 feet in width, skirting the side of the Western Wall of the Temple area. The Wall here is 59 feet high, though excavations have shown that it goes down 42 feet below the present surface. The nine lower courses of stone consist of huge blocks and date back to the time of Herod the Great. Above these there are fifteen courses of smaller stones, but they belong to post-Herodian times.

The most sacred service held at the Wailing Place is on the Day of Atonement, when the Jews use a screen to separate the men from the women, as is the Jewish custom, when they also bring into the courtyard certain sacred furnishings, such as an Ark in which the scrolls are kept and a number of petrol lamps. As no Jew may labour on the Day of Atonement, the screen was erected on the previous day. Hardly had it been put up when the Arab local authority for the district made certain complaints to the Deputy Commissioner at Jerusalem, to the effect that the dividing partition had been fixed in the pavement, that there were more petrol lamps than usual, and the Ark holding the scrolls was larger than before. They declared it was an infringement of the status quo and demanded the removal of the offending screen.

The Deputy Commissioner at once instructed the Jewish beadle to have the screen removed and he promised to do so. This he did not do, and next morning the police found the screen still there. Fearing a clash between the Moslems and the Jews the police entered the courtyard and demanded the screen to be taken down. The Jews were then in the midst of their service, and explained that they could not comply with such a demand as it would entail labour on their sacred day, so the police removed it themselves.

This is by no means the only molestation and annoyance which the Jews have suffered while worshipping at their holy site. The narrow space in front of the Wailing Place is surrounded by almshouses inhabited by Moslems from Morocco. They are in a dilapidated condition, and over and over again the Jews have offered to buy these houses or put up better ones elsewhere, but the Moslem administrators have always turned down the suggestion. Of recent years the inhabitants of these houses have been in the habit of interrupting the worshippers by driving donkeys and carts through the narrow crowded space. They have done this during special services, and, what is more, the carts have been loaded with filthy material. One would imagine it should not be a difficult matter to hold up or regulate traffic here on important occasions. Then the reply of the Jews is that they have been in the habit of using a screen for the past four hundred years, ever since Sultan Selim I. gave them permission to worship at this spot. As a matter of fact there is no definite status quo beyond an undertaking on the part of the Jews not to encumber the space in front of the Wailing Wall with heavy pieces of furniture not easily movable. This the Jews say they have strictly adhered to.

Naturally the Government is anxious not to infringe upon the rights and privileges governing the holy places in Palestine, and yet maintain the goodwill of both Jew and Moslem. It is one of those disputes on which much may be said on both sides. It could be quickly settled by a display of commonsense and consideration for one another's religious feelings. But at the moment both sides are determined not to give way, which places the Government in anything but an enviable position. The very fact, however, that both Jew and Moslem have appealed to the League is a relief. The controversy has certainly been the means of calling attention to the strange services at the Wailing Wall and the delicate business of maintaining peace at Jerusalem's holy places.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DEAR SIR,

In the issue of the 8th December, 1928, of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, your contributor, Mr. F. S. Dobbs, replies to a previous letter of mine upon the above subject in a very interesting article. But in that article I cannot but think that he does the very thing that appears to me to be so dangerous to our complete understanding of the gracious words addressed to us in the Scriptures, viz., to try to interpret those words in a sense to force them to agree with preconceived notions of secular history that need not necessarily be correct notions.

Thus, while he agrees that the Commandment came forth in the first year of the joint Babylonian reign of Darius the Mede and Cyrus the Persian (as he so well states the facts), he insists that it was then issued to Gabriel only. That, surely, is special pleading; for it cannot seriously be supposed that Gabriel (who was a "messenger," or, say, an ambassador of the highest rank) was to put that Commandment in his pocket, to be executed at some unspecified future time. Next, Mr. Dobbs considers that the Commandment spoken of in verse 25 was a different one to that of verse 23. If these two ideas are right, what a cruel deception for poor Daniel! But the words of verse 25, "from the going forth of the Commandment," warrant neither suggestion. They can only mean (1) the very same Commandment just before announced as having gone forth, and (2) that it had already gone forth. Mr. Dobbs's argument, as a whole, is that the Commandment, "to restore and to build Jerusalem . . ." was a dead letter until the reign of Artaxerxes Longimanus, or, at least, that another Commandment was issued in his days. But there is no hint, either here or anywhere else, of any such thing, so, in effect, we are asked to believe that a Commandment that came forth in the first year of Darius the Mede was executed only either in the 7th (I presume Mr. Dobbs means the 7th, though he says the 6th), or the 20th year of Artaxerxes Longimanus; 81 or 94 years afterwards. This makes it appear a very inefficient Commandment; therefore it must be our interpretation that is wrong, for no Commandment of GOD can be inefficient.

But I would ask the two following questions of any serious student of ancient history: Is it definitely known that Artaxerxes Longimanus himself and no other "Artaxerxes" or "great king" (for that is what the word means) issued any decree of any kind relative to the Jews? Ezra's "Artaxerxes" was not he whom history calls "Longimanus." Ezra was born more than one hundred years before him: Nehemiah was a contemporary of Ezra. The second question is: Was Jerusalem ever damaged between the days of Nebuchadnezzar and of Longimanus? If not, why should there have been an order "to restore and to build Jerusalem" during the latter's reign, when the restoration had already been accomplished in Zerubbabel's days, as witness Haggai and Zechariah?

No, sir, this notion about Artaxerxes Longimanus can only be based upon the supposition (so firmly fixed in all our minds that even Mr. Dobbs did not know why it is so fixed, because it is so commonplace) that the Fall of Babylon was in 539 B.C. Therefore, when someone comes forward and asserts that the Bible states clearly that it was only just over 483 full years from the Fall of Babylon "unto the Messiah the Prince," he is simply believed to be making a mistake. But when an attempt is made to prove him mistaken, his critics are constrained to place an interpretation upon certain plain and simple sentences that is quite contrary to their obvious meaning. It is said in effect: The Bible says so-and-so, and we know (that is, we think we know) for a positive fact that the order of events was such-and-such; therefore, the Bible's "so-and-so" must mean "such-and-such," and if the ordinary sense of the words is totally different, the words must be used in some sense that is not ordinary. But surely it is most dangerously obstructive to the real truth of any matter to work upon the idea that the Bible's words are used in any but their ordinary sense, except when it is absolutely clear in the context that they are so used in an obvious and special manner. For instance, the word "weeks" in this very passage obviously does not mean ordinary weeks. Mr. Dobbs, and many a famous chronologer before him, would have been better advised to try to interpret that word differently if he were quite convinced that there be no mistake that the Fall of Babylon was in 539 B.C. If he succeeds (others have tried to their own complete satisfaction) he will merely upset the evidential perfection of the timing of our Lord Jesus Christ's birth, which only emerges as exactly 4,000 years to the minute after Adam, if "the Commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem" went forth immediately after Babylon fell and yet only 483 years before the year of His birth. It is that fact that makes me urgent to insist, in this manner, that the Bible's words deny the usual date assigned to the Fall of Babylon. But in pursuance of my contention it were better that the actual words should be quoted here, and, with your permission, I now do so, with the introductory remark that the pertinent verses are: 1, and 21 to 25 of the ninth chapter of Daniel. (1) "In the first year of Darius. . . . (21) Yea, whiles I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel . . . being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation. (22) And he informed me and talked with me, and said: O Daniel, I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding. (23) At the beginning of thy supplications the Commandment came forth, and I am come to show thee; for thou art greatly beloved; therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision. (24) Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most Holy. (25) Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the Commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and three score and two weeks: the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times."

I am, Dear Sir,
Yours sincerely,
C. C. OGILVY VAN LENNEP.

MR. JOHN LEECH AT EASTBOURNE.

"THE British Empire in Prophecy" was the title of the lecture given by Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C., recently. The lecture was given under the auspices of the British-Israel-World Federation, and attracted a large audience. The lecturer set out to prove that the British Empire fulfilled promises made by God to the prophets of old with regard to His chosen people.

God promised Abraham that he should be the father of many nations. This promise, said the lecturer, was not fulfilled in Israel. Nor was the promise that a nation and a company of nations said to come out of Israel ever fulfilled until the British Empire was built up. When a nation was conquered by a stronger nation, it was ground down by the conqueror, taxed to its utmost resources, and deprived of all its own characteristics, becoming absorbed into the conquering nation. Now, and only now, did there exist what might well be called "a nation and a company of nations." The central "nation" referred to was Great Britain, and the "company of nations" was the Empire.

Each Dominion, affirmed Mr. Leech, was a nation on its own, governing itself and taxing itself, but true to the Mother Country. At the outbreak of the war, the Kaiser hoped that the Colonies would seize the opportunity to break away from the Crown, but he was disappointed. They sent their sons to shed their blood, and they poured out their gold for the nation. What, asked Mr. Leech, was the link that bound the Colonies to us?

"The Crown," he said, "is a very powerful link, and one that I hope may never be broken, but it is not this that binds the Empire together. That link is a greater power, the power of Almighty God!" (Applause.)

A FRUITFUL BOUGH.

The lecturer proceeded to trace God's promise to Ephraim and finally to Joseph. Joseph was to be the fruitful bough whose branches ran over the wall. This promise was to be fulfilled in the last days—that is, in the period from the birth of Christ to the Millennium. It is being fulfilled now. The British Isles represent the garden, the seas are the wall, and the British race is the fruitful bough, bearing blossom and seed in every corner of the earth.

"Wherever you go," said Mr. Leech, "all over the world, you will find the Union Jack and the Anglo-Saxon race. God said, 'I will plant them that they may dwell in a place of their own.' Many efforts had been made in past days to invade these Islands—by the Spanish Armada, by Napoleon, and finally by the Kaiser. None had been successful, because God had promised that they should not be afflicted by their enemies as beforetime. He had pledged Himself for our safety."

SEA-POWER.

The British Empire, said the lecturer, would never have existed without its sea-power, and this had been given by God. The ocean was the "gate of their enemies" which had been promised to the chosen people.

The fulfilment of the promises, in accordance with the Book of Revelation, started to take place after the Reformation, in the days when the Bible was open to the people for the first time. This was the most glorious revival, and the greatest blessing the world has ever seen. The sovereignty of the sea was given to Britain.

After the lecture, Mr. Leech undertook to answer any questions that might be put, and many points were explained in this way.—Sussex Herald.

THE TRIBULATION AND ADVENT.

BY DR. W. GORNOLD.

IT appears that there are many views in regard to the climacteric events of the present Dispensation current among Christians of various denominations, and these are so divergent on some all-important issues that it is high time we referred the matter to the only source of information regarding them.

It is well known that the "Adventist" position requires that the "Elect" should be translated or rapt (carried away) prior to the opening of the Tribulation, concerning which latter event there seems little difference of opinion. It is on the cryptic statement of St. Paul to the Thessalonians that this anticipation, called the Rapture, is based. St. Paul, however, does not state that it anticipates the Tribulation. But he makes it quite clear that certain things must happen before the Elect are ingathered. What he told the Christian brethren of Thessalonica evidently gave rise to considerable discussion, and he warns them that nothing that he has said or written, or that they may have heard, should disturb their faith in the Second Advent of the Lord; but that as to it being at hand he would have them be in no error, "for (that day shall not come) except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition . . . . and now ye know what withholdeth that he might be revealed in his time." The "falling away" we know at this day, but it is clear that it was already in process in St. Paul's day, for he says: "the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only that which restraineth will restrain until it be taken out of the way, and then shall that Wicked be revealed." (2 Thess. ii.)

From this inspired prophecy it remains that the Man of Sin must first be revealed, so that the statement that the Lord's Advent "for His people" may happen "at any moment," as is continually preached by the Adventists, has no Scripture authority. That it will happen outside of common expectancy is, however, a definite statement of Our Lord Himself, for He compares it to the Flood which overwhelmed the world in the days of Noah while the people were pursuing their accustomed ways despite the one hundred and twenty years' preaching and warning that the Patriarch had given them.

In his first letter to the Thessalonians St. Paul says that the dead in Christ will come with Him. "Them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him. For this we say unto you by the Word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not go before them which are asleep . . . the dead in Christ shall rise first, then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air." It is this statement which has given rise to the belief that the Lord will first come "as a thief in the night" to take away His Elect, and that afterwards He will "come in glory" with them, the distinction of coming for and with them being insistent.

But unless St. Paul's revelation is subversive of all that "the Word of the Lord" had previously taught us, we must surely be in some degree of misapprehension of its true meaning; and for the following reasons. The great Apostle does not say that this first coming "as a thief in the night" will precede the Tribulation. He does not, in fact, give it any time setting whatsoever. He merely states that when the Lord does come, He will come with those that have passed over, and that those who remain on this plane of existence will afterwards be caught up in a manner similar to that which has already been experienced in the superior plane of the soul-world.

The Word of the Lord was in existence before St. Paul had set his hand to these words. Daniel tells us of "the last end of the indignation" which was to last "seventy cycles" (2,520 years), and reveals that from the Macedonian Empire there would arise four kingdoms, and out of one of them should arise "a little horn" which should become exceedingly great, spreading towards the south and the east. This is identified with Syria, and in the latter time of this kingdom, "when the transgressors are come to the full" there shall stand up "a king of fierce countenance and understanding dark sentences," who makes war upon the sanctified and "even stands up against the Prince of princes. But he shall be broken without hand." It is therefore to Syria that we must look for the latter-day fulfilment of this prophecy, and the political relations of France and Italy must be regarded as pivotal. There are many who think that this prophecy was fulfilled under the Seleucidæ and eventuated in the invasion of Palestine by Antiochus Epiphanes, whose attempt to root out the Jewish religion and to establish the idolatry of the Greeks led directly to the wars of the Maccabees ; and others consider that it was fulfilled under the Saracens in the person of the Caliph Omar and the setting up of the Mosque in Jerusalem in A.D. 638. But neither of these is in agreement with the terms of the prophecy nor with the context, for it is concerning the exploits of the Man of Sin that Daniel writes, " And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great Prince which standeth for thy people, and there shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time, and at that time shall thy people be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book." He then immediately speaks of the Resurrection.

But Daniel also says that during this period of " a time, times and a half " (1,260 days), during the ascendancy of this godless Autocrat, " they who do know their God shall be strong and shall carry on, and they that understand among the people shall instruct many . . . . and some of them of understanding shall fall, to try them and to purge and make them white, even at the time of the end ; for that time is yet appointed."

It is certain therefore that " they who do know their God " and are purified and made white and tried, and have understanding, will go through the tribulation, " but none of the wicked shall understand." They will be under the " strong delusion " since they prefer the way of sin.

Apart from this prophecy of Daniel, and entirely confirmatory of it, we find the Gospels speak to the same effect, that the Elect who remain will go through the Tribulation. In Matthew xxiv, 29, we read : " Immediately after the tribulation of those days " and the appearance of the sign of the Son of Man in the heavens . . . . " He shall send His angels with the great sound of a trumpet and they shall gather together His Elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other." In Mark xiii, 24, we read : " But in those days, after the tribulation . . . . He shall send His angels and shall gather His Elect from the four winds, from the uttermost part of the earth to the uttermost part of heaven."

The belief that the Elect or chosen ones will be taken away before the Tribulation is sometimes made to rest upon the text of St. John in Revelation iii, 10, where it is said : " Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I will also keep thee from the hour of temptation which shall come upon all the world to try them that dwell upon the earth."

The Elect are, however, identified with those that are " sealed," and the injunction that certain of the terrors and torments of the Tribulation should not affect those who were sealed conclusively shows that there will be many Elect of God on the earth in those woeful days, and notably during the infesting of the earth by spirits from the infernal regions who are likened to scorpions. But Christ has said : " Behold I have given you power to tread upon scorpions. Nevertheless rejoice not that ye have power over the spirits, but that your name is written in heaven."

But living or dead, the Elect, the chosen, the sealed, are reserved in Christ until the appointed time, and that this is consequent upon and not in anticipation of the Tribulation, appears abundantly evident from the passages quoted. Moreover, a careful reading of the Gospels will show that Christ identified John the Baptist with Elijah, and it is of this same Elias that He spoke, in full knowledge of John's tragic death, when He said : " Truly I say unto you Elias must come first and restore all things," which restoration (often referred to John the Baptist as the forerunner who prepared the way of Christ in the call to repentance) is very definitely foretold in the last verse of Malachi—" Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord : and he shall turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse," a statement that clearly does not refer to the first Advent of the Lord, and this is further emphasized by the first section of the third chapter of Malachi and the whole of the last chapter. From this we may envisage the ministry of Elias as political, religious and social reformer. A Dictator with a heart of flesh and the love of God in his heart ; not a man of opportunity, an office-seeker, a profiteer ; nor of any loftier ambition than to serve the Lord with all his heart and mind and soul and strength ; not expected merely, but desired, and in his day wholly indispensable ; of whom the Lord Himself has said : " Verily I say unto you, of those born of women there hath not appeared a greater than John the Baptist "—" This is Elias which was for to come "—" who must first come and restore all things " —" my messenger "—" Malachi."

If therefore we believe the Scriptures we must conclude that as the persecution of the Saints—the " holy ones "—the Elect, " whose names are written in the Book of Life," is to constitute an essential part of the Tribulation, they must remain on earth throughout the Tribulation or until such time therein as they are called from out of it. But nevertheless they are under the covenant of God and in the keeping of their Lord and will be saved from the trial that is coming upon all the world. Let this be their faith and consolation.

My excuse for this statement of belief and the grounds for it, is that many thousands of sincere Christians are in daily expectation of a pre-Tribulation Rapture, and the importance of the question can only be measured by the zeal with which that belief is promulgated and by the effects upon the faith of Christendom by the Tribulation coming upon the world while the believers are yet here. The Scriptures make it very clear that before the dawn of the Millennium there must be (1) a falling away from the Faith ; (2) the revelation and ascendancy of the Son of Perdition ; (3) an unprecedented Tribulation all over the world ; (4) a persecution of the saints ; (5) a fierce judgment by the mouth of the Witnesses ; (6) the destruction of the Man of Sin ; (7) a period of revival ; (8) the ministry of Elias in the restoration of all things ; (9) the glorious Advent of the King of kings Who, unto them that fear His Name, He will arise as the Sun of Righteousness with healing in His wings, which is the Dawn of the Millennium.

THE TITHE.

Contributed by H. T. RATCLIFF.

WHEN Jacob took his vow of service to God he promised thus: "And of all that Thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto Thee."

That this was a custom of long standing, if not from the beginning, is proved by the tribute paid by Abram to Melchizedek, King of Salem: "And he gave him tithes of all."

It was an established custom with the Israelites, being the portion allotted to the Levites in lieu of landed possessions.

In Lev. xxvii we find: "And all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's: it is holy unto the Lord," and "Concerning the tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever passeth under the rod, the tenth shall be holy unto the Lord."

Solomon tells us to: "Honour the Lord with thy substance and with the first-fruits of all thine increase."

The custom had been neglected at the end of Old-Testament times, for God tells the people through Malachi that: "Ye have robbed Me in tithes and offerings."

But, we may ask, how does this affect the New Testament and our present day? In Heb. vii, 5, it is confirmed that: "The office of the Priesthood have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law."

The payment of tithes was enjoined in England about 786 and 784. In the year 1200 it became the law of the land, and is extant to this day. Up to within a century ago the tithe was collected in kind.

Does our life of to-day, which has become more commercial and industrial, free us from the obligation? Evidently not. The command: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature" still holds good, and binds every Christian, either personally or by substitute. It is universally recognised that it is our obligation to care for the poor and suffering.

Let us review the matter from a practical point of view. In the ordinary way our giving is liable to become occasional and temperamental. If a portion of our income is set aside regularly, the distribution of it ranks alongside the daily obligation of providing for our own requirements.

A LETTER FROM QUEEN VICTORIA

TO THE LATE JOHN TOWNSEND, WHO WAS ASSOCIATED WITH GEORGE MULLER.

DURING the life of Queen Victoria, articles were published in the magazines and newspapers of Britain giving information of what she said or did. These were always read with interest because she was so dearly loved.

At one time Mr. John Townsend's attention was called to the fact that the Queen had attended a morning service in St. Paul's Cathedral, and listened to a sermon which caused her to ask her chaplain "if one could be absolutely sure in this life of eternal safety?" The answer was that he knew "of no way one could be absolutely sure." Mr. Townsend, after much thought and prayer, decided to write a letter to the Queen. He therefore sent her the following lines as nearly as can be remembered:—

"To Her Gracious Majesty,
"Our Beloved Queen Victoria,
"From one of her most humble subjects.

"With trembling hands, but heart filled with love, and because I know that we can be absolutely sure, even now, of our eternal life in the home that Jesus went to prepare, may I ask your Most Gracious Majesty to read the following passages of Scripture: John iii, 16; Rom. x, 9, 10; 1 Cor. xv, 51, 58. These passages prove there is full assurance of salvation by faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, for those who believe and accept His finished work.

"I sign myself your servant for Jesus' sake.
"JOHN TOWNSEND."

Much prayer from many hearts went up to God concerning this letter. In about two weeks a modest-looking little envelope was received, but the contents were anything but unimportant and were read with excited interest.

"To John Townsend:

"Your letter of recent date received, and in reply I would state I have carefully and prayerfully read the portions of Scripture referred to. I believe in the finished work of Christ for me, and trust by God's grace to meet you in that home of which He said, 'I go to prepare a place for you.'

"(Signed) VICTORIA."

How natural to cherish this brief but precious letter!

Do you wonder it was kept for many years until worn and faded? It was even sent to the son in Buffalo and shown to many friends, one of whom said, "It should be framed in gold." Ah! Do we so cherish the letters contained in God's Word? Are they read with delight and treasured in our hearts? How much more valuable are they than any penned by earthly king or queen! This beloved Queen, to whom thousands bowed in loving subjection, had herself obeyed the call of her King of kings and Lord of lords.

By the Rev. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—Will you kindly explain what Our Lord Jesus Christ meant when He uttered the parable about the patched garment and the new wine in the old bottles (Luke v, 36-39)? I always had the idea that the new garment and the new wine were the New Testament teaching, but Our Lord finishes with the words, "The old is better." Will you kindly tell me what He meant to convey to His hearers?

M. W. (Haywards Heath).

ANSWER.—The exegesis of this double parable certainly presents minor difficulties, but, as I have said so often before, Our Lord's teaching in any individual case must be studied in the light of the context and of dispensational Truth. In this case (St. Luke's account, but cf. Matt. ix, 16, 17; Mark ii, 21, 22) verses 33-35 must be carefully studied, in order to gain a fuller insight into the combined teaching of these two parables, the meaning of which in each case bears the same interpretation.

The general interpretation may be regarded in two lights :—

(1) Dispensational.—A comparison is being made between the Old and the New Covenants. The Old Covenant will not bear just a veneer of Christian Truth. Nor would the former withstand the strength and stay of Christian teaching, if the latter be only applied to it superficially. The Old Covenant is nothing without the New, and the New Covenant is nothing without the Old; together they form a complete and co-ordinated whole. That is why so many Christians who do not appreciate dispensational Truth, failing also to understand the whole fullness of Israel Truth, teach only the New Testament doctrines, and fail to see Christ in the Old Testament, and the fulfilment of the Abrahamic Covenant. Hence, when such Christian teachers lack the vision of prophetic and dispensational Truth, they make a "rent" in Old Testament teaching, or destroy the "bottles" of Covenant Truth. The answer is to see "Christ in all the Scriptures," and to study the inspired and co-ordinated unity of Holy Scripture, and hence the combined and perfected harmony of the two Covenants.

(2) Spiritual.—Our Lord teaches that Christianity is not simply an addition to Judaism. We gather that some teachers taught that before anyone could become a Christian he had first to become a Jew (Gal. xi, 11-21), for which reason St. Paul publicly rebuked St. Peter at Antioch. This shows the fault of Judaizing. Judaism was in fact an error, since it taught that the Law and the Prophets were fulfilled in the Temple ritual, neglecting the greater Covenant teaching of "the promises made to the fathers." Judaism had no outlet, embraced no hope, and entertained no ideals. It looked backward and not forward, downward and not upward.

Hence a Christian "patch" placed upon or added to the surface of a decaying religion makes the latter still more decadent, and the whole garment more than useless. An example of this will be seen in the "Conversion" (?) of the Roman Empire, when through Constantine's edict the Empire became nominally Christian, at the same time retaining its old heathen temples and pagan cults. What is required is the real change of heart, and a full embracing of the way of salvation, which alone can be obtained by "putting on the Lord Jesus Christ," and by adhering to the full and complete teaching of the Bible, which from Genesis to Revelation sees "Jesus in the midst" as the Redeemer of Israel and the Saviour of the world.

It is a mistake to spoil the new garment for the sake of the old, and to waste the new wine for the sake of the old bottles (or skins). Both have to be "preserved," i.e., the Old Covenant (not Judaism) and the New Covenant; both will blend together, and neither is wholly complete without the other.

Regarding Our Lord's words, "The old is better," care has to be taken in obtaining the correct reading. The Revised Version perhaps more correctly translates, "The old is good." According to the best MSS. (Aleph, B, etc., endorsed by Westcott and Hort), the Greek word is χρηστός, which means "excellent," "good," i.e., that which is eminently satisfactory, whose foundation is sure, and whose trustworthiness is secure. Thus Our Lord pays a Divine testimony to the excellence of the Old Covenant, which, together with the New Covenant, contains the fullness of Christian teaching, both in the light of dispensational and of spiritual Truth (Eph. xi, 19–22).

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

SPEAKING at the Edinburgh Road Congregational Church, Portsmouth, Mr. John Leech, M.A., LL.B., K.C., of London, gave an interesting and informative lecture on "Popular Objections to British-Israel Teaching." Mr. A. Grigsby, J.P., presided. Mr. Leech said that one of the most fashionable objections to British-Israel teaching, and yet a most absurd one, was the belief by many that the ten tribes of Israel, the House of Israel as distinguished from the House of Judah, were never lost, and that the Jews were the entire ten tribes. As the Jews, who were the descendants from Judah, derived their name from Judah, it was not likely that they were the entire ten tribes. We seldom hear of any reference to God calling Judah His flock, and yet we repeatedly find it applied to Israel. The House of Israel, to suit God's purposes, were obscured, and God worked out His own plan by the distinguishing of Judah from Israel.

Owen writes to the Morning Post :—"Some three or four years ago I was holding conversation with a prominent Egyptian Pasha, a man with a distinguished career, and who had travelled a good deal in Europe and England, and he said to me: 'You British are the luckiest and most blessed of all peoples in the world, for three reasons: First, you, as a nation, have marvellous health and strength to enable you to work and live in every conceivable climate, good or bad. Secondly, you are the only nation that is really financially sound. Thirdly, and not the least important, you are the only people who enjoy real home life, and really know what home life means, and that is, perhaps, the greatest blessing of all."

BRITISH-ISRAEL.

SIR,—Some time ago you had a short notice in your paper about a book by S. H. Wilkinson, which professed to be a complete answer to and refutation of the theories and beliefs of British-Israel. I had been inclined to believe in the theory myself, but had heard a good deal of criticism of it, and wished to get at the truth of things, if possible, so sent for the book. All I can say is that the book referred to seems to show that there is really nothing to be said against the theory at all. The author is hopelessly unconvincing, and moreover, while frequently, in almost every chapter, professing not to be scoffing, is quite superfluously sarcastic in an underhand sort of way. He has made me a convinced believer.—Yours, etc.,

The Honorary Secretary of our Adelaide, South Australia, Branch writes encouraging reports of the progress and activities there. He tells of members motoring nearly 260 miles to attend the meetings. Large quantities of literature are being circulated. A big parcel of the new SPECIAL NUMBER has been ordered and gladly paid for. A centrally-situated Book Depot has been established. Members are very keen and the Branch is very much alive.

C. M. B. writes:—"Please find enclosed a cheque from my sister and myself as a Christmas offering towards the £10,000 for which you have made yourself responsible. We hope to send more later on. It is a glorious Cause, and so dear to our hearts. May God's richest blessing rest upon it, and upon the noble men and women who are spending life and strength in its promotion. We eagerly look forward to our copy of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER each week. The Congress addresses have been very fine, a feast of fat things indeed.

"May God keep you in health and strength for your arduous work through the coming year, and grant that you may realize more than the £10,000; for is it not the Lord's way to do more than we can ask or think?"

We are always glad to welcome new speakers to our platform and especially clergymen, and we are pleased to notice that the Rev. F. W. Peverelle has become a Vice-President of the Bournemouth B.-I. Association, and that he gave an address at the Y.M.C.A. there on December 11th, our good friend and veteran, Landseer Mackenzie, Esq., the President, in the chair.

The Secretary-General of the Federation wishes to express his deep gratitude to all the kind friends who have responded to his appeal for funds to carry on our great work. He is particularly grateful for the appreciative letters which have accompanied the donations.

CRITICISM BY CRITICS.

The professional reader of books, to whom reading is a duty, is not usually one who lightly expresses his pleasure at what he reads. The following opinions, therefore, are of the very greatest importance, especially when the possibility of the writers not having yet accepted British-Israel Truth is borne in mind.

"ISRAEL IN PROPHECY & HISTORY"

A MODERN TRIBUTE TO JOHN WESLEY.

Mr. P. W. Thompson has a style of his own; enlightened, illuminating, fresh. His latest book, "Israel in Prophecy and History" (Covenant Publishing Co., 5s.), is the work of a scholar, but has no reek of midnight oil. The publisher describes it as an armoury of facts, but it is not merely that. Every page has some arresting phrase, and if we do not always agree with his conclusions we never fail to be instructed and entertained.

We confess that while he has much that is new to say on the old question, "Are the British the lineal descendants of the subjects of the Kingdom of Northern Israel?" it is the two chapters on Wesley and the Methodists which caught our attention chiefly. The thumbnail sketch of John Wesley is remarkably good. In a few pages is compressed the very spirit of the man. He writes from the viewpoint of an evangelical Churchman, and his tribute is ungrudging: "The evangelicals are faced with the memory of the greatest evangelist who has ever lived since the days of St. Paul."

> "The 24th May is celebrated as Empire Day . . . It is the anniversary of the occasion on which a candle was lit. Latimer's was a great candle, and must never be put out. It stands for a pure and primitive faith. Wesley's was equally great. It stands for a living and conquering faith. Let these lights be extinguished, and Britain is done. Let them burn with ever-added intensity, and Britain will conquer the world for Christ."

This is not a book for British-Israelites only, but for all who seek to evangelise the world. It is an inspiration and a stimulant. No student should miss it.

METHODIST TIMES, 17th May, 1928.

This is one of the raciest books we have ever read. The long tale is very brightly told. There are some very acute observations, explanatory of details in the Mosaic Law. There is an admirable section on the life and work of John Wesley. We have much enjoyed the sparkling style of the book.

MORE CRITICAL VIEWS.

The Author is a convinced Anglo-Israelite, who holds that the essential blessing promised to Israel on "the third day" of Hosea vi, 2 was to be found in the life, the teaching, and the spiritual power of John Wesley. He states his case clearly.

LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW.

This book, in which the course of prophecy is illustrated by a survey of British religious history from the Lollards to the Methodists, is a sincere and readable argument.

TIMES LITERARY SUPPLEMENT.

The list of books already to the credit of Mr. P. W. Thompson is one of which any author might well be proud, and Israel in Prophecy and History is in many respects the most remarkable of them all. All those qualities which we have learned to look for in his work—insight and industry, wisdom and wit, argument and illustration—are to be found in the book just issued. All who are not hidebound by prejudice will find here much food for thought.

MID-CUMBERLAND HERALD.

The Author frankly says that his book is intended for the thoughtful individual who is a believer in the Bible, not for the modernist or higher critic. It is a sane and reasonable presentation of the British-Israel case.

METHODIST LEADER.

From all quarters, and in journals of every shade of opinion, come expressions of approval of Mr. Thompson's masterpiece. Almost every post brings its eulogistic comment from some private reader.

"ISRAEL IN PROPHECY AND HISTORY,"

by virtue of its sanity, its clearness of expression, its moderation and its eminent readableness, is making daily converts to the British-Israel Cause.

As a presentation of the British-Israel case, its newness is striking. There is so much that is obvious—when it is pointed out, but only a clear thinker of acute vision would observe it.

It is a book for the serious-minded, for it emphasizes our duties as well as records our privileges. It is a book that YOU MUST READ.

The most vital book yet written by Mr. Goard.

The Law of the Lord or the Common Law

by

Rev. W. PASCOE GOARD

¶ Statesmen of every race and every tongue are seeking a system of government which will give security, establish peace—which is a final expression of ideal law-giving.

Is there such a system?

This book demonstrates that such a system exists, and that that system is at the disposal of every nation.

It is the Common Law of the Anglo-Saxon Races.

¶ When an alien race is brought under British rule it automatically comes under the Common Law of Britain; privilege of class is abolished; personal rule no longer holds sway.

When the Pilgrim Fathers set forth in the Mayflower to escape the personal domination of the Stuarts, next to the Word of God, the old Anglo-Saxon Common Law was their most cherished possession.

¶ Yet the Anglo-Saxon Common Law is older than Anglo-Saxondom, older than Christianity itself. It had its first codification on Mount Sinai when the mouth of the Lord spake unto Moses.

¶ There then is the PRINCIPLE, the root of the only system of laws which can succeed. Its amplification, its application in the form of constructive co-operation, to the needs of the present are all that statesmen need consider. The ideal system is ready-made for them.

¶ Let every thinking man read this book

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

The coloured Chart depicts in clear, simple form, historically and by aid of maps, the amazing story of the Anglo-Saxon Race.

It traces the genealogies, by direct succession, of Their Majesties King George V., Queen Mary, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, back through the Royal House of David to Adam. It shows how the British Coat of Arms is built up from ancient emblems given to our race some 4,000 years ago. The Chart illustrates the contemporary history of the Houses of Judah and Israel. Starting with the genealogy from Adam to Jacob's twelve sons, it shows the beginning of the chosen Race from Hebrew stock; includes the Covenant Promises to Abraham (fulfilled in the Anglo-Saxons, and in no other race); gives the Promises to Judah of the Sceptre; to Ephraim of the Birthright; and to David of the perpetual Throne. Continuing, it carries on the contemporary history of the two Houses of Judah and Israel till each went into captivity—the story of the House of Israel from the reign of David, 1056 B.C. to their deportation to Assyria in 721 B.C., then a consecutive narrative of their migrations (with map) down to their final arrival in the British Isles in A.D. 1066 The contemporary history of the House of Judah, till they also were carried captive, in two sections. Section I. follows the Jewish Race down to A.D. 70; includes our Lord's Life and Death; the final siege of Jerusalem, and the scattering of the Jews all over the world. Section II. traces Princess Tamar Tephi and the prophet Jeremiah into Ireland—her marriage, and the continuation of the Royal Line of David; tells the story of the Coronation Stone and how it was finally deposited in Westminster Abbey.

The history of the Anglo-Saxons in America—the Tribe of Manasseh—is also included in the Chart. The Book (numbered to correspond with the chart) amplifies the history and shows the identity of ten-tribed Israel with the British Empire and the U.S.A.

STILL MORE CRITICAL VIEWS.

A readable book by an author whose previous works on other subjects we have appreciatively reviewed. It shows a fine missionary spirit; in fact the spread of Christianity by the English is the first plank in its platform.

DAILY DISPATCH.

The sponsors of the British-Israel theory are at pains to impress the solemn obligations which devolve upon this nation in consequence, and that is one of the main purposes of this book.

BIRKENHEAD NEWS.

The book is written quite in the style of Macaulay. It is sure to find a place in the study of thoughtful students and of patriots of our world-wide Empire.

KENT HERALD.

This work is characterised by the lucidity, forcefulness, and care for detail which are always a feature of Mr. Thompson's writings. The pages reveal a scholarly and well-ordered mind and a capacity for graphic description which makes his latest book of great value.

KENT AND SUSSEX COURIER.

NOW READY.

GOD'S COVENANT MAN: BRITISH-ISRAEL.

By

EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S. F.R.C. Inst.

(Also Fellow of the American Geographical Society.)

A most amazing book. Its breadth of scope takes away the breath. Authorities of all races, and speaking all tongues, have been laid under contribution. Not by the pen of the writer, but by his researches, by his quotations from these world-famous authorities he proves the British-Israel case. It is unanswerable.

Rev. W. Pascoe Goard writes in his foreword:—

"I know of no man living who has carried on wider research than has Professor Odlum . . . he has brought together in this book samples of the opinions and contributions of the world's great scholars to the great truth that the Celto-Saxon peoples are the people chosen and ordained of God to carry out His great national purposes. . . . . No such compendium will be found elsewhere."

A NEW HIGHWATER MARK

has been reached by two of our recently published works. Both break new ground, approaching British-Israel Truth from a new angle—examining it from a fresh view-point.

Israel in Prophecy and History

By P. W. Thompson, M.A.

Author of "The Whole Tithe," "The Old Book and The New Age," etc., etc.

The Wonder Race

By G. E. Altree Coley.

They are both "first books" on our subject. They build their case upon the events in our history during the past thousand years, and they discover in our rough island story so long a succession of coincidences that they become coincidences no longer, but a sure and certain proof of a Divine and guiding hand directing all our happenings. They are books carefully to be read and studied. They are books which cannot fail to convince.

Some Opinions

concerning one of the most striking works we have published

Happily for British-Israel truth-seekers, "of making many books there is no end," one book succeeding, and sometimes for truth-spreading purposes, somewhat superseding, the other that inspired it.

Such a book is Mr. Thompson's "Israel in Prophecy and History" which I have recently read with profound interest and profit. I think I am justified in saying that it is, in part, an advance of a truth-finder on what appear to be imperfect findings of Guinness, Lancaster and Thomas, besides being a valuable addition to the accumulated arguments of Mountain, the addition being a well-presented vista of the three millennium-days of Hosea that is alike unique, fascinating and thought-provoking.

As the author successfully proceeds along the main currents, religious and economic, which were made use of by Almighty God in preparing Israel for her prophesied destiny, he not only convinces his readers that British-Israel Truth carries with it "a terribly deepened sense of responsibility," but that its rejection (and particularly by those who, from childhood, have been the unconscious victims of a "complex of the sub-conscious mind" as regards their own racial origin) should not be definitely declared without a special appeal to the Holy Spirit for "a right reason." Most interesting are his acknowledgments of indebtedness to certain British-Israel writings and particularly "God and My Birthright," by Thomas, of which he writes "This book is conclusive."—Rev. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A.

We have read very many books upon British-Israel Truth, and some few are what one might call saying the same thing over and over again. This book, however, has most distinctive merits of its own. Its particular object is not simply to put forward a great Truth, but to put that Truth forward in such a fashion that no thoughtful person, and in particular no Christian believer, can possibly resist the application. If the British are not Israel then God's solemn promises to Abraham have utterly failed, and the Bible is a discredited Book!

We are thankful to Mr. Thompson for the clearness of his arguments concerning the reviving of Israel after Two Days. (Hosea vi.) This problem of the Third Day has often appealed to us personally as worthy of attention, but here we have the matter worked out to finality.

His insistence that every Israelite should, for the economic and spiritual uplifting of the nation, seriously ponder the advisability of surrendering to God the tenth of the increase, is worthy of deep consideration. This has been our belief for half a century and more. And in this connection our author might have said something about our responsibility for the evangelisation of our brethren the Jews.

The book contains so much original matter that no student of British-Israel can afford to neglect the opportunity of its perusal.—Rev. Com. L. G. A. ROBERTS.

Mr. Thompson deals with the problem of British-Israel in an original manner. He lays great stress upon Hosea's prophecy of the revival of Ephraim-Israel on "The Third Day"; and he proves, by apt quotation from Lord Macaulay, that this prediction had a startlingly literal fulfilment. We may remark that this "Third Day" prophecy has never previously been dealt with in extenso, which means that every student of British-Israel has now AN ENTIRELY FRESH FIELD for exploration under our Author's guidance.

In our opinion, the mystery of the existence for prophetic purposes of a year of 360 days has now been solved in this book; and students of prophecy in general will read with enthralled interest the pages relating to this topic.

On the whole subject of British-Israel, in all its ramifications, this volume is most illuminating; and there is a freshness of outlook, of style, and of masculine thought which will appeal to a large circle of the reading public.—Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.

Is the Bible credible?

DO you realise that if you accept the Modernist theory of Evolution you deny the Divine inspiration of your Bible?

Modernism and German-made Higher Criticism combine to destroy faith in the truth and the sacredness of our beliefs. God either created man in His own image or He did not, and if not we are as the beasts that perish.

Dr. McCrossan's book comes as a refreshing draught to a thirsty man, to those who truly believe that God's word is in the Bible—that God's word is the Bible. His array of facts and his forceful style chastise the Higher Critic and the Modernist. He takes his stand on God's word and is unassailable.

Everyone who holds the Christian faith should read

By J. G. MODIN.

This book is chiefly addressed to clergy, ministers and theological students. It should especially be read by all Christians who, through misconception, are fundamentally at variance with B.-I. teaching. Send it to your clergyman.

By an entirely new way of approach it opens up an essential aspect of the Divine revelation which no reverent mind can lightly put aside, nor any logical mind gainsay, viz., the revelation of a Triune God working out His purpose in and for the world, in and through His Triune Kingdom.

A Scottish Minister writes: "The threefold aspect of the Kingdom and indeed of all the manifestations of God is a matter of which I was aware, though dimly . . . Your book has developed the theme in directions I did not dream of. I have, and can have, nothing but praise for it."

Second Edition.

If the British Constitution is an accident, one fate is in store for us. In these Islands will be re-enacted the French and Russian Revolutions.

THE WONDER RACE

By G. E. ALTREE COLEY

Is the most remarkable book dealing with this subject which has so far been published.

The expansion of Britain is not the outcome of a chain of fortuitous accidents. Behind it, through the centuries, a Supreme Will and Purpose has worked, unsuspected, yet never wearying. Even as night follows day, the destiny of our race is sure. Would that our leaders, both religious and civil, would recognise this one vital fact, that in that Divinely-ordained destiny lies the solution of to-day's baffling problems. Mrs. Coley proves that the Anglo-Saxon genius for self-government is, and always has been, directed and inspired. She has built her foundations on the rock of the Sacred Word, and on those foundations she has reared an unassailable superstructure. Her book is restrained, yet powerful. Her logic is unanswerable. If it be read by every earnest citizen, its conclusions accepted with humble faith, and its principles personally applied, this nation MUST go on from strength to strength until the Divine purpose reaches its triumphant fulfilment.

Here, then, is a book which we offer to readers in full confidence that they will find every page full of interest and informed with ripe scholarship. It is a book that should be read and passed on. Even the most hardened sceptic cannot reject the ruthless logic of its proven facts.

The Destiny of The British Empire and the U.S.A.

By
"THE ROADBUILDER."

Colloquial and racy, this book has a fascination entirely its own. The Author, a well-known officer, sets himself the limited objective of giving clearly and fully an outline of British-Israel Truth. Full from cover to cover with stimulus towards further investigation, the book forces the reader to seek ever farther into its fascinating theme.

In the Author's own words:—" . . . the side-lines are so many and every one so interesting that other pursuits are apt to be neglected while you search for data."

A BOOK TO READ—

LORD BYNG OF VIMY writes:—

A Book that every B.-I. must possess

¶ BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH is the handbook of our creed. Every phase of British-Israel teaching is dealt with by an expert. In its pages is an answer to every question.

¶ It is one of the first books to read. It serves as an introduction to practically every other book we publish.

¶ The current edition (the thirteenth), containing, of necessity, some revisions, is identical with the first edition as regards the basic facts.

This alone is a proof of the soundness of British-Israel teaching.

THE WONDER RACE.

From the expansion of Britain, the author deduces, in a brilliant and closely-reasoned argument, that a Divine purpose and direction is evident, rather than that our development is the result of a chain of innumerable lucky accidents. The open mind must come to the same conclusion.

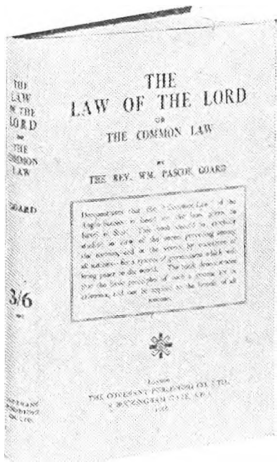
THE LAW OF THE LORD OR THE COMMON LAW

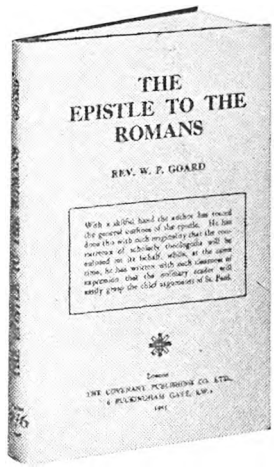
Anglo-Saxon Common Law is based on the laws given to Israel at Sinai. If statesmen would get back to those laws peace would ensue.

This is a book which should be carefully studied. It is a most valuable contribution towards the settlement of many of to-day's perplexing problems.



Price 3/6. By post 3/9.

STATESMANSHIP OF JESUS



A brilliant exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews—a letter having the direct inspiration of God. The book brings out new facets of the truth with striking vividness, and enhances the already great reputation of the writer.

THE ENDURING EMPIRE OF THE BRIT-ISH

This remarkable book, which strengthens every link in the British-Israel Chain, shows the remarkable volume of unconscious testimony, never before used, which exactly fits the picture of Scattered, Wandering Ten-Tribed Israel being led to the safety of these Islands, there to be disturbed no more, but to become a blessing to the entire world.

Price 2/6. By post 2/9.

THE EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS

With a skilful hand the author has traced the general outlines of the Epistle, and, as Mr. Goard usually does, he has thrown new light on dark places.

Dr. Mountain writes, "Mr. Goard is, indeed, a brave man to endeavour to analyse and expound the Epistle to the Romans within the limits of a hundred pages. But he has succeeded where many would have failed."

God's Covenant Man: British Israel.

EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S., F.R.C. Inst.
(Also Fellow of The American Geographical Society)

A most amazing book. Its breadth of scope takes away the breath. Authorities of all races, and speaking all tongues, have been laid under contribution. Not by the pen of the writer, but by his researches, by his quotations from these world-famous authorities he proves the British-Israel case. It is unanswerable.

Rev. W. Pascoe Goard writes in his foreword:—

"I know of no man living who has carried on wider research than has Professor Odlum . . . he has brought together in this book samples of the opinions and contributions of the world's great scholars to the great truth that the Celto-Saxon peoples are the people chosen and ordained of God to carry out His great national purposes . . . No such compendium will be found elsewhere."

"The Heritage of the Anglo-Saxon Race"

BY

M. H. GAYER, O.B.E.

A coloured chart (5 colours), size 40 in. by 28 in., with companion volume, Depicting the thrilling history of the Anglo-Saxon Race all down the ages (i.e., The British Empire and the British-born stock of America).

The companion volume (demy 4to) 96 pages, numbered in sections to correspond with chart.

Price of Chart, including Book, bound limp cloth,

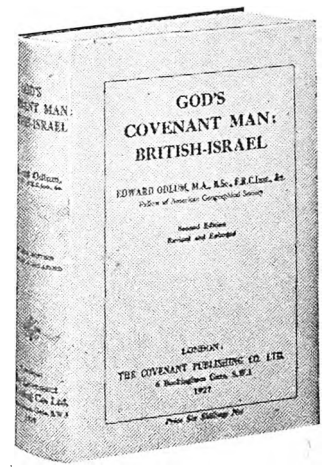
4/6 By post 4/11

Cloth boards 5/6 „ 6/-

It traces the genealogies, by direct succession, of Their Majesties King George V., Queen Mary, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, back through the Royal House of David to Adam. It shows how the British Coat of Arms is built up from ancient emblems given to our race some 4,000 years ago. The Chart illustrates the contemporary history of the Houses of Judah and Israel.

Some independent comments which have reached the Author read as follows:—

"I think your chart and volume the best collection of B.-I. data that has ever been published. The chart is an excellent idea and gives the whole mass of evidence at a glance."



"I have your wonderful chart and key book. It is the most comprehensive study I have yet read. A joy to the Believer and an arresting study to an outsider."

"My husband is so delighted with your book that he announced it from the platform as one of the best books on B.-I.—the consequence was I sold out at once."

FRONTISPIECE. Historic photograph of H.M. King George V. with the Premiers of the British Empire, taken November, 1926.

THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES

BASIL STEWART (Discipulus)

A clear and deeply interesting exposition of prophecies respecting the great "Seven Times," showing how the events therein foretold have been precisely fulfilled in history, and how little now remains to be determined. Of special interest to-day is the author's forecast of the immediate future, in which he makes clear that the terrors of Armageddon are reserved solely for those anti-Christian forces which have, from platform and press, carried war into Heaven and challenged God Himself! Working to-day all over the world to bring about our downfall, they are rapidly digging their own grave in "the valley of Hamon-gog." Many people are trembling as to what the next few years may bring forth. Read this remarkable book and share the writer's optimism. The Second Advent is also dealt with at length. A large and instructive Chart illustrates the letterpress.

THE LAW OF THE LORD, OR THE COMMON LAW

By

THE REVD. W. PASCOE GOARD.

Demy 8vo. 138 Pages.

Showing that the Common Law of the Anglo-Saxon races has its foundation in the Law given to Moses on Mount Sinai. It is the ideal law. Only its amplification and application in the form of constructive co-operation to the needs of the present are needed for the final establishment of world peace.

THE DESTINY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE AND THE U.S.A.

By

"ROADBUILDER."

Eighth Edn. Cloth cover. Crown 8vo. 213 Pages.

SEASONABLE GIFTS

A perplexing problem, often only partly solved by the giving of some article, hastily bought in a crowded shop, and which may be received with mixed feelings. May we suggest a much better and simpler way out of the difficulty, one which, while most adequately solving the problem of what to give, helps the great cause you have at heart. The six books shown on this page are carefully chosen for their eminent suitability as gifts. Moreover, they are moderately-priced—a great consideration in these days. Why not pass on the blessing you have received, in the shape of one of these books, and earn the gratitude of your friends. Remember, a book is of permanent value, more so when it is a B.-I. publication.

A point often lost sight of is, that while The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., is primarily concerned with the publication of B.-I. literature, there is another side to its activities—they are also general booksellers. This means a great deal to you. It means that they can supply, at short notice, any book by any publisher that you may require at any time. We will gladly enclose your greeting card in the book you order, pack it and post it for you.

Bear these facts in mind and let us take the trouble and worry out of your hands. We are here to help you, and if you act on our suggestions you will find that the selection of Christmas gifts is not such a harassing problem as you have hitherto thought.

GOD AND MY BIRTHRIGHT

By

J. LLEWELLYN THOMAS.

Demy 8vo. Cloth. 240 pages. Second Edition, revised.

The author asks the question:—"If the British be not Israel, how then comes it about that they are doing the very work that the unerring Word of God tells us that Israel was to do?" He decides:—"There is only one logical conclusion—namely, that the Anglo-Saxon Race is the long lost House of Israel."

Price 4/6. By post, 5/-.

GOD'S COVENANT MAN

By

PROF. E. ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc.

Demy 8vo. Cloth. Second Edition. 296 pages.

A most amazing book. Its breadth of scope takes away the breath. Authorities of all races, and speaking all tongues, have been laid under contributions. Not by the pen of the writer, but by his researches, by his quotations from these world-famous authorities, he proves the British-Israel case. It is unanswerable.

Price 6/-. By post, 6/6.

THE WONDER RACE

By

G. E. ALTREE-COLEY.

Crown 8vo. Cloth. 209 pages.

This book sheds a strong spiritual light upon the events of secular history and shows the working of a Supreme Will and Purpose. The Anglo-Saxon reader will lay down the book with a fervent thanksgiving that his race has been called to such a high destiny.

Price 5/-. By post, 5/6.

DUTY AND PLEASURE

VERY often these are not in agreement, but when Love unites the two they agree wonderfully well. So that instead of Duty and Pleasure we now have Duty—Love—Pleasure. Love is the cement which binds two not always congruous elements into a unity which, like some chemical combination, produces, when united, something else. Apart, each element has its uses and each its proper place in the scheme of things.

If you have read thus far, you will be wondering what we are driving at. Well, it is this. We think that we can show you how to produce out of the three elements we have mentioned a force which, if acted upon by every reader, will effect a great transformation.

We will place the cement first of the ingredients—To your "Love" for the Cause of British-Israel Truth add your "Duty" to your neighbour who knows little or nothing of British-Israel blessings, and it will be your "Pleasure" and theirs if you send us a subscription for THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER for 1929 to be sent to your friend or neighbour. The combination of—

Love to the Cause and Duty to your neighbour brings Pleasure and blessing to your friend and not least to yourself and to us.

The cost is small—only three shillings for three months, six shillings for six months, or twelve shillings a year. Fifty-two times during 1929 your friend will remember and thank you.
