The New Testament is equally explicit. It is to the Lost Sheep of the House of Israel to whom our Lord was sent (Matt. xv, 24), and it is expressly to them rather than to the Gentiles unto whom He sends His Apostles (Matt. x, 5-6). He afterwards included all the world, every creature, but "the children must first be fed."

But the "Gospel of the Kingdom" is to be preached in all the world for a witness, and then shall the end come. This is the Gospel committed to the Race, that they may impart to all mankind the Gospel of Grace.

"Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He hath visited and redeemed His people." Christ Jesus was the Minister of the Circumcision for the Truth of God to perform the promises made unto the fathers and that the Gentiles also might rejoice in His mercy. The multitude of the Nations (Gen. xlviii, 19) promised to Ephraim having come in, All Israel will be saved (Rom. xi, 25, 26). It is this "ignorance" which has now reached its limit; "blindness in part," not in whole, is happened to Israel. The Jews had the Kingdom taken from them in consequence, and "the Kingdom given to a Nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." Therefore Israel = the British Anglo-Saxon Race.

Test them and see what nation? "By their fruits ye shall know them." "God hath not cast away His people whom He foreknew," for the gifts and calling of God are without repentance (Rom. xi, see ix and x).

We assert that you cannot read the Epistles without seeing that they are written to the Saints (Israel) in Rome, at Corinth, in Galatia, at Ephesus, as St. James, St. Peter and the Hebrews abundantly testify.

The scattering of Israel was in order to their conversion (Isa. xxvii, 6; Amos ix, 9-15). By sending the Gospel by Benjamin into all the world, and by the Jews who believed at Pentecost and after, All Israel has been mercifully gathered (Jer. xxxi).

No Church (for this is composed of individuals out of every nation) has the commission, "Thou art My battle-axe and weapon of war." The Stone Kingdom set up by the God of Heaven is Israel; its destiny is to break in pieces all the four worldly kingdoms, and is itself "the Saints of the Most High" who take the Kingdom, over which the Lord Jesus will reign, sitting in the throne of His father David over the House of Jacob for ever.

"If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to promise." And what is the promise, viz., that the stranger also that joins himself to Israel is to be counted as one born in the land (Exod. xii, 44-49; also see Isa. lvi, 1-8).

Individual salvation is by Grace to everyone that heareth. Redemption is to Israel, that he may do God's appointed work. "This people have I formed for Myself; they shall shew forth My praise" (Isa. xliii, 21). They are the seed of Abraham My friend, and of Jacob My chosen (Isa. xli, 8), and context sets forth their power to effect.

In Christ Jesus individually, to Jew and Gentile, to barbarian, Scythian, bond or free, is alike sent the message of salvation, but to Israel, the Kingdom of Priests, is committed the function of declaring to all the world the glorious news of forgiveness and salvation. Let us not despise our birthright, or say, "I am not my brother's keeper." Woe unto us if we preach not the Gospel.

THE SECRET OF BRITAIN'S STRENGTH.—III.

BY THE LATE REV. PHILIP YOUNG, L.TH.
(formerly Dean of Nassau).

WHAT, we ask, was this strong, irresistible, magnetic influence which drew this people northwards and westwards across the European continent till the Isles of the West were reached? Did they understand it? Assuredly not. Yet was it the voice of God calling upon Israel to accomplish in the western world a higher destiny than ever fell to the lot of nation, the voice of God calling to His people to go forth from those same western isles to colonize and inhabit the waste places of the earth and carry the knowledge of God to far-distant lands.

It should be understood that the blessings, both material and spiritual, which were to be Israel's own possession, are of so wonderful a character, of such far-reaching interest, that it is impossible for any present-day nation to be inheriting them which is not amongst the very foremost peoples of the earth. This truth at once excludes from view any of the small powers of the world. The nation which in these "last days" is fulfilling the promises made to Israel, and fulfilling them all, so far as God's developments for Israel have gone, must be identical with the chosen race. There is no avoiding this conclusion.

A resemblance here or there is not sufficient evidence. Consequently, when we are gravely assured that the Nestorians found by Dr. Grant to be inhabiting the country to which Israel was deported are the lost House of Israel, we at once ask. Are they fulfilling the prophecies which Israel and Israel alone must fulfil? It should be enough to reply that Assyria is the very last place to which we ought to look, for if Israel is to be discovered there, it is evident they could never have been lost. But the Nestorians themselves claim descent from Abraham! They may be right, but in that case they could only be a remnant; possibly a relic of some of the Ten Tribes who did not wander from the place of their exile, and who never wholly gave themselves up to idolatry, like the main body of "Ephraim's Kingdom."

Again, there are fatal objections to regarding the Afghans as the "Whole House of Israel," or, indeed, any part of it. Quite possibly the Afghans are of Abrahamic descent, by Keturah, or some of Abraham's concubines, the children of whom, as we learn from Genesis xxv, 5-6, migrated eastwards. "And Abraham gave all that he had unto Isaac; but unto the sons of the concubines which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and sent them away from Isaac his son, while he yet lived, eastward, unto the east country."

It need be no surprise to us if the claim to Abrahamic descent should be confirmed, but it would be no proof whatever that they were Israel. Israel's descent from Abraham is through Isaac and Jacob, the promise being: "In Isaac shall thy seed be called."

It ought not to be difficult to see what nation is doing the work of Israel. Indeed, the evidence is positively embarrassing in its wealth. There is so much one might bring forward, and yet, perforce, so much one must leave untold.

We have shown that Israel can never cease to be a nation. But we have been told much more than this. If to be a nation is an honour, then is Israel honoured. But by this the imagination is not fired; for there are nations many, and there are nations which are great. Nevertheless, in a world where national ambitions are a tremendous force, driving a people to supreme effort for the mastery, it is of world interest to know which is the most powerful nation, why it is so, and whether it will maintain its supremacy.

This knowledge is easily attained.

By the promise of God, Israel was to continue a separated people. They were not of the Gentile races, and this separation was to be effected by making them "high above" every other nation.

"And the Lord shall make thee the head and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the Lord thy God." (Deut. xxviii, 13.)

And lest it should be thought that the disobedience of the chosen race forfeited the blessing and honour of high position, and that God's covenant no longer stood, it will be sufficient to remind you that God has declared otherwise:

"I will never break My covenant with you." (Judges ii, 1.)

"The Lord was gracious unto Israel, and had compassion on them, and had respect unto them, because of His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob." (2 Kings xiii, 23.)

"Be ye mindful always of His covenant, the word which He commanded to a thousand generations, even of the covenant which He made with Abraham, and of His oath unto Isaac, and hath confirmed the same to Jacob for a law, to Israel for an everlasting covenant." (1 Chronicles xvi, 15-17.)

Now what nation is occupying the most exalted position? Prejudice, even of the most advanced type, can hardly deny to Great Britain this peculiar honour; while historians vie with each other in the endeavour to do justice to the marvellous growth and progress of this kingdom.

How eloquent and how true is Mr. Green's tribute in his "Short History of the English People."

Referring to the American Declaration of Independence, he says:—

"It mattered little whether England counted for less or more with the nations around her. She was no longer a mere European power, no longer a mere rival of Germany, or Russia, or France. She was from that hour a mother of nations. In America she had begotten a great people, and her emigr nt ships were still to carry on the movement of the race from which she herself had sprung. Her settlers were to dispute Africa with the Kaffir and the Hottentot, to wrest New Zealand from the Maori, to sow on the shores of Australia the seeds of great nations. And to these nations she was to give, not only her blood and her speech, but the freedom which she had won. It is the thought of this which flings its grandeur around the pettiest details of our story in the past. The history of France has little result beyond France itself. German and Italian history has no direct issue outside the bounds of Germany or Italy. But England is only a small part of the outcome of English history. Its greater issues lie not within the narrow limits of the mother island, but in the destinies of nations yet to be."

It is a fitting commentary, surely, upon God's promise to Jacob, "A nation, and a company of nations, shall be of thee." No nation has ever answered, or does now answer, to this description as Great Britain does.

It has been pointed out that we have at this moment attached to our Crown "no less than eleven distinct dependencies, having their origin in our own blood, using our language, administering our laws, following our customs, in close affinity with our Empire, governed by Viceroys or Governors of the King's selection, and yet so far independent that their governments are administered by local parliaments, with power of imposing taxes and regulating their own affairs. These still-growing dependencies, or nations, thus in affinity with the British Crown are well known."

The same power is to occupy "the ends of the earth," "the uttermost parts of the earth," "the coasts of the earth." The natural inference is that she will be an imperial and a maritime nation.

"He (Joseph) shall push the people together to the ends of the earth." (Deut. xxxiii, 17.)

"Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout among the chief of the nations. . . . . O Lord, save Thy people, the remnant of Israel. Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth." (Jer. xxxi. 7, 8.) "Ask of Me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." (Psalm ii, 8.)

"Thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and make the desolate cities to be inhabited." (Isaiah liv, 3.)

"They shall cry aloud from the sea. Wherefore glorify ye the Lord in the fires, even the name of the Lord God of Israel, in the isles of the sea." (Isaiah xxiv, 14, 15.)

This nation, then, is to be a strong nation (Micah iv, 6, 7); "high above"; "above and not beneath"; "the head and not the tail"; and "ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people, for all the earth is Mine." (Exodus xix, 5.) "His seed shall be in many waters, and his king shall be higher than Agag, and his kingdom shall be exalted." (Numb. xxiv, 7.) "Thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee." (Deut. xv, 6.)

"When thou goest out to battle against thine enemies, and seest horses and chariots and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them, for the Lord thy God is with thee." (Deut. xx, 1.) "Thou also hast delivered me from the strivings of my people, thou hast kept me to be head of the heathen; a people which I knew not shall serve me. Strangers shall submit themselves unto me; as soon as they hear, they shall be obedient unto me. Strangers shall fade away, and they shall be afraid out of their close places." (2 Sam. xxii, 44-46.)

So might passage after passage be repeated, each showing the power, the high, the dominant power which is the magnificent lot of God's people. What modern nation claims, or has the right to claim, such power and commanding influence? What modern nation has a history which corresponds fully and accurately to this description? We answer, there is but one nation which, in its splendid career, meets all the requirements of the case. That nation is our own.

But again, and more definitely. Israel's seed was to possess the gate of their enemies . . . the gate of those that hate thee. (Gen. xxii, 17; xxiv, 60.)

Bishop Wordsworth, commenting upon this promise, says: "Christ entered the house of the strong man and spoiled his goods, and brake asunder the bars of death, and delivered the captives therein; and He will tread under His feet all His enemies and the enemies of His Church. And He enables His members to do so. Thus Abraham's seed possesses 'the gate of his enemies.' The gates of hell shall not prevail against her."

The Bishop has a singular power of spiritualizing, nor shall we presume to take exception to so spiritual an application of the passage. But it would be idle to contend that this is an adequate comment. The whole is not stated. The promise belongs to a passage occupied with the details of an essentially material progress. True exegesis demands that the exposition be first of all the simple, obvious, and literal one.

So much for comment. What of history? Does any modern nation stand out conspicuously as "possessing the gates of its enemies"? "Gates," says Bishop Patrick, "are cities, consequently the country; for, gates being taken, the cities are entered; and the cities surrendered, the country is conquered." What country possesses them pre-eminently? There is no room for hesitancy. England! England the great, the powerful! Her gates are many. They dominate the world. What wondrous list is this we have?

"IN THE BEGINNING GOD . . ."

(Gen. i, 1).

By Dr. G. H. Bennett.

It is very right and fitting that our Scriptures should open with this statement, for this chapter—and, indeed, the Bible generally—is far more to be regarded as a revelation of God to man than that of the work accomplished by Almighty God.

The position of mankind in this world of ours seems very similar to that recorded in the beginning of our race. God placed our first parents in a garden, in which was provided everything necessary to their sustenance and enjoyment. But He imposed one condition, one thing was forbidden. "Thou shalt not eat thereof . . . ." So is it with mankind to-day; He has caused us to dwell in a world in which the conditions are not only necessary to existence, but we are surrounded by everything which is pleasing to the senses and which cause pleasure and enjoyment. And God bids us partake freely and fully of all these things, for they are placed around us by a loving Father, Who wishes to make our short sojourn on this earth as delightful and agreeable as possible. "Of all these," He says to us, "ye may freely eat, but . . ." there is sin, which will surely lead to our ruin and our death, and is therefore forbidden.

And man rightly probes into all the secrets of nature, and year by year fresh knowledge is added to our store, fresh discoveries are made, and even new sciences become tabulated for our consideration.

We live in a critical age, when every form of teaching is brought down to the bed-rock of fact, and if found to be unsound is abandoned.

Amidst all this intensive enquiry, it would indeed be strange if the great question which has perplexed the minds of men, "How did all this wonderful system of nature begin," had escaped enquiry. Much has been written on this subject and many theories have been propounded. I cannot now discuss the scientific questions, but I wish to say what I can to confirm the faith of those who incline to waver in their allegiance to what Mr. Gladstone once called, and rightly called, "The impregnable rock of Holy Scripture." Busy men and women have little time to examine closely the works of scientists, and of course many of us have not the educational ability to weigh the pros and cons of scientific writings. Their knowledge is largely gathered from brief extracts in the papers and articles in magazines. Thus to the simple mind these theories seem perfectly conclusive and sound. But we must remember that they are only theories and guesses at the truth. It is surely unwise to accept as final any scientific statement which has not borne the test of a criticism of at least fifty years. This is very little to ask; the great question has been answered for us in this first chapter of the Bible, and it has weathered the storms of criticism for thousands of years. Indeed, many scientists now freely admit that the stages of Creation, beginning with Light and culminating in Man, are perfectly correct, though they dispute details. That chapter furnishes us with six separate acts of Creation; therefore, those who would persuade us that there was one Creation only, and that each stage merged slowly into others, must be wrong. There is no continuous chain, but six separate creative calls into existence.

We may here note that the doctrine of the Trinity is clearly to be traced in these creative acts. First, we find God the Creator, Who was later to be revealed to us as God the Father; secondly, "the Spirit of God moved . . ."; and, thirdly, we learn from St. John and from St. Paul that Christ was the Word and the Light which were the origin of created things; "by whom also He made the worlds." It would seem as if this earth of ours were formed by the power of God to be the possession of His Son, Who was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and Who will surely in the fulness of time come again in glory to rule over His own.

No one can read this wonderful first chapter of Genesis (together with the first three verses of the second chapter, which rightly belong to it) without being struck by the sublime dignity and simplicity of its wording. And having once thoughtfully read it, three questions almost naturally at once arise. First, where did this wonderful story come from? Secondly, who can have written it? And, thirdly, How did the writer obtain his knowledge? To the first question there can only be one answer. Either it came from man, or it was a revelation of God made to man. If the story came from man—no matter how learned that man or those men may have been—it is of little value; it could then only be speculation and guesswork, much on the same lines as the work of our modern scientists. But can it possibly be of human origin at all? Let us consider this for a moment.

The means by which events occurring in distant ages have come down to us are by transmission from father to son, from one generation to the next. This is at first oral; later, in the bardic ages, by song; the story then in more modern times is enshrined in manuscript, until fixed, as in our day, by the art of printing. A very notable example of this is the Song of Lamech, found in the fourth chapter of the Book of Genesis, verses 23 and 24. The nature of this song in its completeness and the circumstances which inspired its composition are unknown; but of that song, this little fragment of verse is all that has come down to us from a period before the Deluge. But there can be no question of Legend or Tradition in the story of Creation, for the work of Almighty God during this period came under no man's observation; there was no human witness, no onlooker and no recorder. The events therein stated took place before the first appearance of man on the earth. There was no one to record the original statement, there was no one to carry the story on. Neither can it have been deduced by a learned man or by a company of learned men from a close study of what we call natural forces or the laws of nature. That theory also can be put aside, for the work of Creation preceded—at least in its early stages—all the forces of nature with which we are familiar. Moreover, if we once begin to speak of natural law, the very statement implies at once a Law Maker, a Law Giver, or, as one would say in this instance, a Law Creator. So by whatever line of reasoning we travel we come back at last to the few simple words, "In the beginning God."

Evidently it was a revelation direct from God made to Moses, to Abraham or Melchizedek, to Noah or, possibly, to Enoch. It may indeed have been made to some other saintly and unknown person whose name has not come down to us.

Mankind can only know of God from Himself. It is true the existence of a Supreme, overruling Power can be fairly deduced from a close examination of the natural conditions by which we are surrounded, but "Can man by searching find out God?" No, we can only approach Him and know Him by such means as He Himself has revealed to us.

The second point is the formula with which the account of each act of Creation concludes: "And the evening and the morning were the first day," "the second day," etc. Or, as the Revised Version more clearly renders it, "There was evening and there was morning, one day," "a second day," etc.

That this chapter was a Divine revelation appears to be on the face of it evident. The writer speaks almost as if he were describing events which were transpiring before his eyes. The language used is exact—we might even say dictatorial; there is no hesitation, no laboured explanation, no bewilderment or doubt as to what was happening; he writes as if he were an eye-witness, which we know that in the flesh he could not have been. It is not indeed for us to presume to say what were the means by which God revealed Himself and His work to His servant. We know that dreams have played a very important part, both in the Old and the New Testament, in causing God's will to be done and His work accomplished. We know also that St. Paul, "whether in the body or out of the body" he was uncertain, was caught up into the third heaven, and there saw and heard things which it is not lawful for man to utter. St. John also, while yet in the flesh, had the glorious vision of the Holy City ; and when he was " in the spirit " he saw the ascended Lord Whom he had loved so well, and wrote His message to the Seven Churches.

It may have been by means such as these, or it may not. It would seem more probable that the seer was in the condition attributed to Balaam, when God granted him visions of future ages :—

" Balaam the son of Beor hath said,
And the man whose eyes are open, hath said :
He hath said which heard the words of God,
Which saw the vision of the Almighty,
Falling into a trance, but having his eyes open . . ."

" He hath said, which heard the words of God,
And knew the knowledge of the most High,
Which saw the vision of the Almighty,
Falling into a trance, but having his eyes open . . ."

Such is described to us, as well as we are able to understand it, the manner in which Almighty God imposed His will upon Balaam, and dictated to him the prophecies He wished him to utter. But those prophecies referred to the far distant future, of " the latter days." A vision of the Creation, on the other hand, carried the seer back to the beginning of time, even into eternity.

It would not be difficult to reconstruct what may have taken place. Perhaps this holy man, walking close in the way of the Lord, and in daily spiritual communion with Him, pondered deeply upon the works of the Creator ; like many a perplexed Christian of to-day, he was puzzled by the contradictions seen in Nature, the conflict between Good and Evil, and the mystery of God's dealings with man. Like a modern poet, he might have said :—

" I find Him in the shining of the stars,
I marked Him in the flowering of His fields,
But in His ways with men I find Him not."

And maybe his own faith dimly offered the explanation :—

" But that these eyes of men are dense and dim,
And have not power to see it as it is,
Perchance because we see not to its close."

The patriarch Job was troubled with similar doubts, though his faith remained unshaken under all his trials, and David, " the man after God's own heart," found consolation and enlightenment when he " went into the house of the Lord."

So we may think that the Father had pity upon one who feared Him, and vouchsafed to him this glorious revelation. Let us try and picture to ourselves what it was he saw. He knew that he was looking upon our earth as it was before man existed.

Dim, shapeless and covered with water, it was a dead world. Yet not dead without hope, for there was Life—yes, and Eternal Life too—the Spirit of God, which moved upon the face of the waters. It was the Source of Life, the immaterial acting and reacting upon the lifeless and the material.

With wonder and with awe he gazes on this picture. What would it please Omnipotence to do ? There came the Divine command, " Let there be Light," and behold, the evening was passed, morning had come, and he knew that he was looking upon the world's first Day. How long did the day last ? We cannot tell, for there is no sense of time in dreams and visions of the night. They tell us that dreams which often appear to us lengthy in reality last only a few moments. Be that as it may, there was evening and now there was morning, day one (R.V.). Again the shades of evening fall, the darkness of the newly-named Night follow, the first Dawn breaks upon the waste of waters, the second day begins, " and there was evening and there was morning a second day."

Our world was shaped in circumscribed form to be the scene of the great drama which it pleased Almighty God to enact upon it. It was separated by the firmament of heaven from all other planets, etc. There was nothing new created on this Day, and it may be that that was the reason why the expression, " It was good," is here omitted.

Only on the third day did our earth begin to assume its present form of Land and Water. This indeed was not a new Creation, for both were already existent, the land being hidden beneath the waste of waters ; both Land and Water were now separated, the latter being confined within its own appointed limits. This period is what scientists call the Azotic or Lifeless Age ; there was land and water, but not the most minute sign of life—vegetable or animal—in either. And so the Word again went forth, and vegetable life—grass, plants, trees and herbs—were created at His command. In a short treatise of this kind we cannot enter into the voluminous theories of modern science. But we must here call attention to the fact that here—on this third day of Creation—appears an absolutely new factor. God calls into existence Life. Those who accept the theory of Evolution in its entirety must acknowledge that here the chain of development is completely broken. Not indeed " a missing link," but a large piece of a missing chain. It has been clearly demonstrated by numerous experiments that Life—even in its lowest and microscopic form—can only come from pre-existing life. Dead matter cannot generate living matter : and here the source of life is revealed to us. And God said : " Let the earth bring forth grass . . . and the earth brought forth grass." And so our world was prepared for the ultimate destiny of the creative acts, for the abode of man.

It was on the Fourth Day that there was evening and there was morning upon the Earth in the true sense of the word. Critics have often pointed out that the two lights designed to lighten the Earth are spoken of in almost equal terms—only greater and lesser ; but both created for the same purpose. It is true that there can be no comparison between them, either in size or in light or heat-giving power. It is also correct that other planets in the Solar System are furnished with two and more "moons." "God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness," and He did so ; but it was not on the sixth day, nor for many ages afterwards, that His command was fully obeyed. There was One, and One only, Who in the fulness of time showed Himself to us as God made manifest in the Flesh.

Neither has the human race yet, in all the ages that are past, shown itself fit to have dominion over all created things. Man is still cruel and harsh to his fellow-man and to the lower Creation. Nor will the purpose of Almighty God be fully achieved until He shall come again to rule over His own.

Such, we may suppose, was the revelation made to this favoured servant of God. And for what purpose was it made? Surely to confirm the faith of the seer and to give guidance and understanding to all future ages.

Scientific men come and go, their teachings are promulgated, accepted, revered and abandoned; but the Book remains, and it will remain.

"Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My word shall not pass away."

A HOUSE OF MANY MANSIONS—THE BIBLE.

"THIS marvellous Book may be compared to a magnificent edifice that took sixteen centuries to build.

Its Architect and Builder is God. Like the beautiful world, the work of the same Author, it bears on it everywhere the impress of the hand Divine.

The majestic temple contains sixty-six chambers, capacious, yet in size unequal. The sixty-six Books of the Old and New Testament. Each of its 31,173 verses is a stone, a beam, a panel of the building, which is a temple more glorious far than that of Solomon.

No portion whatever of this wonderful structure will the Lord suffer to be mutilated, misrepresented, or defiled, the punishment for which is 'God shall take away his part out of the book of life' (Rev. xxii, 19). Within the sacred enclosure dwells the whole family of God on earth.

The Bible is the home of the redeemed below . . . the house of many mansions prepared for Jesus' disciples on earth.

Here they have their residence.
Here they are fed.
Here they are strengthened.
Here they are comforted and blessed.
Here they are nurtured for immortality.

The Bible is not merely the dwelling-place for God's people, it is the chosen abode of God Himself.

Would you have fellowship with the Father, you will be sure to find Him within the precincts of this Holy House.

Shall we take advantage of the King's permission and step inside?

We approach by the beautiful Garden of Eden, with its flowers, its groves and its lucid streams. The first part of the building is that of the highest antiquity and bears the name of the Chambers of Law and Justice; these are five in number—

THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

One of these is a sort of vestibule to the others and contains the records of the foundation of God's family, and resembles a long gallery hung with portraits and mementoes of persons and events that had place before a stone of the building was laid.

Then we pass through an extensive range of imposing apartments, in all of which are tables with manna and fruits of all kinds for our refreshment, with water from the fountain of the Waters of Life, and through the many windows shines the light from the face of God.

THE CHAMBERS OF HISTORIC RECORD.

These comprise the library of the edifice: in them are laid up the archives for more than a thousand years. These rooms are twelve in number and stretch from

JOSHUA TO ESTHER.

Then we come to a wide space called the gymnasium of the building, or the Saints' Exercising Ground—

THE BOOK OF JOB.

Entering the right of this we find ourselves in the Music Gallery and Chapel of

with many places for prayer, contemplation and praise, and music of all kinds of instruments. Issuing thence we pass at once into the chamber of commerce—

THE BOOK OF PROVERBS, not far from which is the penitentiary of the place, where sorrowful bankrupts and other defaulters remain for a time with profit—

THE BOOK OF ECCLESIASTES.

A little further on we open into a tiny parlour in the midst of larger rooms. The chamber of sympathy with mourners—

THE BOOK OF LAMENTATIONS.

Interspersed among all these the eye is regaled with such delightful conservatories of flowers as the Books of

RUTH AND OF THE SONG OF SOLOMON.

And next we come to a noble suite of lofty apartments, some of which are of great capacity and are laid out with extraordinary splendour—and one is fitted up as an observatory—no less than seventeen in number. These are the Halls of Ancient Prophecy, and follow in grand succession from

ISAIAH TO MALACHI.

Thence we pass to the portion of the building of more modern construction and we enter four spacious chambers of peculiar beauty. At once the walls arrest us, and on them we see four full-length portraits of the Lord of the building Himself, drawn by the Holy Spirit's inimitable hand; these are the Books

MATTHEW, MARK, LUKE AND JOHN.

Stepping onward our ears are saluted by loud sounds of machinery in motion; entering a long apartment we find ourselves with wheels and shafts and cranks and pinions whose motive power is above and out of sight, which will bring on changes all the world over. This is the Chamber of Celestial Mechanics, the great workroom of the building—

THE BOOK OF ACTS.

Leaving it we are conducted into the stately halls of the Apostolic Epistles, no fewer than twenty-one in range. The golden doors of fourteen of these are inscribed with the honourable name of the Apostle to the Gentiles,

ST. PAUL.

Those of seven others with the names of

JAMES, PETER, JOHN AND JUDE.

Within these halls the choicest treasures of the Lord are stored. And last of all we arrive at that gallery where through moving pictures the history of the Church and Kingdom of Jesus is unveiled till the Bridegroom comes—

THE REVELATION.

And now we have reached the utmost extremity of the building, let us step on the projecting balcony and look abroad. Yonder is a fair meadow through which the pure River of the Water of Life is winding its way; on either side of which stands the Tree of Life, with its twelve manner of fruits, and its beautiful leaves for the healing of the nations; and in the distance, high on the summit of the everlasting hills, the City foursquare, all gold, bathed in light and quivering with glory, our permanent Home—

THE NEW JERUSALEM.

Oh, let us make this beloved house our home, let us dwell in it.

But of one thing make sure, see that you ask for and obtain the aid of the great Interpreter, Who waits at the gate Himself to lead you in and take you all over the building and explain all its wonders to your entranced heart. Say to Him, Whose Name is the Comforter, the Spirit of Truth, reverently and with faith: 'Lord, open Thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy law.'"—[Adapted from "A House of Many Mansions," by A. W. Gregory, F.A.I.]

"A WOMAN CLOTHED WITH THE SUN."

BY JOHN H. TENCH.

"AND there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars." (Rev. xii, 1.)

The woman clothed with the sun is without doubt God's people Israel, for upon her head was a crown of twelve stars.

Joseph was his father's heir and the inheritor of the promises made to Abraham and to his seed for ever. Reuben, the eldest son of Israel, was disinherited. (1 Chron. v, 1-2.)

Now Joseph's father—to show that he was his heir—made him a coat of many colours, and Joseph dreamed a dream and he told it to his brethren. "Behold we were binding sheaves in the field, and, lo, my sheaf arose and also stood upright, and behold your sheaves stood round about and made obeisance to my sheaf. And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, . . . behold, the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me."

If eleven stars did obeisance to Joseph, this corresponds with the text above, for the tribe of Joseph formed the twelfth star and is a proof that the woman clothed with the sun was Israel.

After our Lord Jesus visited and redeemed His people, the prodigal (Israel) comes home to his Father, Who puts on him the best robe [the garment of Christ's righteousness] or, as in our text, the woman is clothed with the sun. Paul in writing to the saints at Rome says, "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ," and when writing to the saints at Ephesus, after telling them to put off the old man, he says, "Be renewed in the spirit of your mind and that ye put on the new man which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness." Paul says also to the saints at Colosse, "Ye have put off the old man with his deeds and have put on the new man which is renewed in knowledge after the image of Him that created Him." All this agrees with our Lord's parable of the marriage of the King's Son, for we read "When the King came in to see the guests He saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment [not clothed with the sun], and He said unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless. Then said the King to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

"And the moon under her feet." Cruden says this represents the world and all earthly things because of their changeableness and uncertainty.

"The woman (Israel) being with child cried, travailing in birth and pained to be delivered, and she brought forth a man child who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up unto God and to His throne."

This child is evidently our Lord Jesus, for St. Paul, when writing to the Galatians, says, "Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed which is Christ." Therefore, if the promise was made to Abraham and his seed, it must certainly be fulfilled in Israel, who, the Psalmist says, are "A people near unto Him."

Now this child was to rule all nations with a rod of iron, so that we see again this child was our Lord Jesus, for what does the Psalmist say?—"I will declare the decree; the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art My Son; this day have I begotten Thee. Ask of Me and I shall give Thee the heathen for Thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for Thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron, thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel." How often in the Scriptures do we find that what is true of the King is true also of His people Israel. For example, in Hosea xi, 1, we read:—"When Israel was a child then I loved him and called My son out of Egypt." St. Matthew, commenting on the command of the Angel to Joseph, saying "Arise, and take the young child and His mother and flee into Egypt," says, "that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called My Son."

In the passage before us, "a man child who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron" was true of the King and was also true of His people Israel. In Psalm cxi the heathen inheritance which God had given to His Son Jesus is transferred to His people:—"He hath shewed His people the power of His works that He may give them the heritage of the heathen." There is not the slightest doubt that the power of ruling the nations with a rod of iron is transferred to Israel, for our Lord says Himself, "He that overcometh and keepeth My works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers, even as I received of My Father." (Rev. ii, 26, 27.)

Commander Roberts, in his book "Israel in the Book of Revelation," says, "The Man Child caught up to God and to His throne is to be nourished by the Woman in the place prepared of God for a time and times and half a time, i.e., 1,260 years, before the man child assumes the position of 'ruling the nations with a rod of iron.' Israel regenerated is the man child."

"There appeared another wonder in heaven; and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads, and his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth, and the dragon stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered for to devour her child as soon as it was born, and her child was caught up unto God and to His throne."

The identifications given in the passage before us tell us that the great red dragon is Rome Pagan.

Again, this Child is evidently Jesus our King, for it was Rome Pagan that was ready to devour this Child. The wicked Herod as king over Judæa was a portion of this mighty empire. Our Lord so often founded His parables on actual events, on facts familiar to His hearers. Our Lord, when telling the Parable of the Ten Pounds, was at Jericho, where the magnificent palace built by Herod Archelaus was a familiar sight. This man had actually gone from Jericho to a far country, even to Rome, for the express purpose of receiving a kingdom from the all-powerful Cæsar. On the death of his father, Herod the Great, he went to Rome, 3 B.C., to receive from Augustus the royal dignity.

Therefore, the great red dragon was ready, in the person of Herod, to devour this Child. He told the Wise Men as soon as they had found this new King of the Jews to return and tell him where He was, as he also wished to go and worship Him.

Bethlehem was only five miles south of Jerusalem, and he would expect to see these men back to tell him where Jesus was in two or three days at the most. How long, then, would he be in finding out that he had been tricked, and that the Wise Men had returned to their homes without returning to Jerusalem? And when he had realized that, how long would he be in issuing orders for the massacre of the children at Bethlehem? Five minutes? Imagine his rage, and call to mind his ferocious character, the murders of his sons and the record of his reign. The reason why Herod included in his order all children up to the age of two years may be explained by the possible difference of opinion among the chief priests and scribes concerning the date when this Child's birth was to take place; so he murdered all the male children of Bethlehem of two years and under. This Child, after His victory over sin and death, is caught up unto God and to His throne. How long will He remain there? St. Peter gives the answer when addressing the people in Solomon's porch: "And He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you; Whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began. For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; Him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever He shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass that every soul, which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people."

That which is true of Jesus is also true of regenerated Israel, the man Child, for see how the great red dragon, Rome Pagan, sought to devour this Child as soon as it was born. "Now about that time Herod the king stretched forth his hands to vex certain of the church. And he killed James the brother of John with the sword, and because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to take Peter also." We have all read of the persecutions of the great red dragon under Nero, but we are told that the faithful ones "overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony, and they loved not their lives unto the death."

"And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and threescore days."

"Wilderness or Desert."—The Hebrews gave this name to all places that are not cultivated, but which are chiefly destined to the feeding of cattle, and on which trees grow wild. So when wilderness or desert is mentioned in Scripture, we are not always to imagine it to be a place forsaken, abandoned, void of cities or inhabitants; as this word often represents the soil near a village or city which was appointed for pasture, and where the plough never came. St. Mark in his sixth chapter gives an account of Christ feeding the five thousand with five loaves and two fishes. In verse 35 it states:—"His disciples came unto Him and said, this is a desert place," and in verse 39 we read, "He commanded them to make all sit down . . . upon the green grass." St. Matthew also describes the feeding of the 4,000 in his fifteenth chapter. In verse 33 we read, "And His disciples say unto Him, Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness as to fill so great a multitude." We read in verse 35, "He commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground."

The woman (Israel) hath a place prepared of God. Where is this prepared place? God is His own interpreter, and it is He that makes it plain.

The seventh chapter of the second Book of Samuel contains some wonderful truths. In verse 16 God promises to David an everlasting throne and kingdom in these words:—"And thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee; thy throne shall be established for ever." (See also Psalm lxxxix, 3–4, 28–29, 34–37; Jer. xxxiii, 25–26), and in verse 10 we read of this prepared place: "Moreover I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as beforetime." This prepared and appointed place could not possibly be Palestine, because both Israel and Judah were removed from thence because of their sins, and whilst dwelling there they were afflicted by their enemies. When, however, all the tribes had arrived in the isles of the west no weapon formed against them has ever prospered, as Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist, said in the Benedictus: "He spake by the mouth of His holy prophets which have been since the world began, that we should be saved from our enemies and from the hand of all that hate us."

Isaiah has something to tell us about the wilderness, for we read in chapter xxxv: "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them [Israel] and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Balaam has a vision of these isles of the west, for he says, "How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel! As the valleys are they spread forth, as gardens by the river's side, as the trees of lign aloes which the Lord hath planted, and as cedar trees beside the waters."

We think also of the many wilderness places in Greater Britain, for God had foretold by His holy prophet Isaiah that He would cause Israel "to inherit the desolate heritages." What was the Dominion of Canada but a wilderness? producing forests and prairie grass, and is now become the granary of the world. Last year something like 10,000 men were required from the homeland to gather one of the finest harvests ever known. Who has made the desert and wilderness of Australia to blossom like the rose, and produce its wool and mutton, and wine and fruits and gold?

Isaiah has something further to tell us about the wilderness and the desert: "For the Lord shall comfort Zion; He will comfort all her waste places and He will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody."

This prepared place of refuge for the Woman (Israel) clothed with the sun is also described by the prophet Jeremiah: "Thus saith the Lord, The people which were left of the sword found grace in the wilderness; even Israel, when I went to cause him to rest. The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with lovingkindness have I drawn thee. Again I will build thee, and thou shalt be built, O virgin of Israel; thou shalt again be adorned with thy tabrets, and shalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry. Thou shalt yet plant vines upon the mountains of Samaria; the planters shall plant, and shall eat them as common things." This prophecy is literally fulfilled now that the British are in possession of the land of their fathers.

Furthermore, the prophet Ezekiel has something to say of this wilderness:—"I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face, like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant."

It is impossible to leave this subject of the Woman clothed with the sun, who fled into the wilderness, without reference to the prophet Hosea. Speaking of the divorced wife in his second chapter, God says:—"Therefore, behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her, and I will give her her vineyards from thence, and the valley of Achor for a door of hope; and she shall sing there, as in the days of her youth, and as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt. And it shall be at that day, saith the Lord, that thou shalt call Me Ishi [husband] and shalt call Me no more Baali [My Lord]. . . And I will betroth thee unto Me for ever, yea, I will betroth thee unto Me in righteousness, and in judgment, and in lovingkindness, and in mercies."

"And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness into her place where she is nourished for a time, and times and half-a-time from the face of the serpent."

The Woman (Israel) clothed with the sun with eagle's wings fled to the appointed place, to the place prepared for her by Almighty God. Israel of old was carried captive to the cities of the Medes, and they were placed in Halah and in Habor by the river of Gozan. But some hundreds of years before Christ they escaped and wandered to the shores of the Black Sea and dwelt at Arsereth [the Sereth is a tributary of the Danube]. There they settled for many years, but about the fourth and fifth centuries after Christ there were wars and troublesome times in the Roman Empire and the Dragon sought to destroy Israel. God, however, would not suffer His people to be destroyed, so that as we read in Rev. vii, 12,000 of each of the tribes of Israel were sealed for protection and for obscuration. God took care of His people and led them safely by various routes into the wilderness, to the prepared place, the isles of the west.

"And the serpent cast out of his mouth water as a flood after the woman, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth."

Thus we see that the earth is one of God's good angels that He uses for the protection of the Woman (Israel) clothed with the sun. When Israel was young, when they were few in number, yea very few, and strangers in the land of Canaan. When they went from one nation to another, from one kingdom to another people, He suffered no man to do them wrong; yea, He reproved kings for their sakes. Another of God's angel hosts that He uses for the protection of the Woman (Israel) clothed with the sun is water. "At the Red Sea He saved them for His Name's sake, that He might make His mighty power to be known; He rebuked the Red Sea also and it was dried up; so He led them through the depths, as through the wilderness, and He saved them from the hand of him that hated them, and redeemed them from the hand of the enemy, and the waters covered their enemies, there was not one of them left."

Another of the angel hosts that God uses for the protection of the Woman (Israel) clothed with the sun is the wind. In the Litany of the Church of England the minister says, "O God, we have heard with our ears, and our fathers have declared unto us, the noble works that Thou didst in their days, and in the old time before them," and the people put up this prayer, "O Lord, arise, help us, and deliver us for Thine honour." How our Heavenly Father heard this prayer in the days of our good Queen Bess. How He blew with His winds and destroyed that proud fleet, the Invincible Armada.

So this Woman (Israel) clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars, can safely trust the One she now calls Ishi [husband], for He says, "I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed."

THE ISRAEL NATIONS ASSEMBLE AT THE CONGRESS.

CHIEF among those who will be with us at the Congress this week are of course the people of the Motherland in all its parts. England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland North and Ireland South, with some from the Isles, will assemble there.

Behind these lie a wonderful history, stretching back through the ages and through the lands to the beginning of the race in answer to the call of God, when Abram took his way from Ur of the Chaldees. What a history! Through what ages, civilizations and lands! From Assyria to Haran; thence to the land of Canaan; thence to the Continent of Africa, the land of Egypt.

From thence it is written "out of Egypt have I called my son." Thence into the desert; and the land of Canaan. Parallel with that a branch of the people marched to the Dardanelles, established the kingdom of Priam, with the capital city of Troy. Another migration proceeded to Greece, and laid the foundation of that imperial people. Others ventured still further, to Spain, Brittany, Cornwall, Ireland, and the remainder of Great Britain.

In the meantime the parent body had broken into two nations—one named Israel and the other named Judah, with an international boundary line as effective as that between Canada and America lying between; thence Israel went into Assyria, and later Judah into Babylonia. From Babylon the Jews returned to Palestine; from Assyria the Israelites, crossing into Europe by a thousand years' long stages, ultimately gathered into the British Isles, forming the Great Britain of modern history.

Out from her shores in modern days her children have taken up the march of migration to Newfoundland, Canada, the United States, Australia, New Zealand, the Africas, and so forth.

To-day, the sons and daughters of the Overseas Dominions gather in the Central Hall, Westminster, to talk and to learn more concerning all these things.

CANADA.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrison, and the Rev. Pascoe Goard, have lately toured Canada, and bring the hearty greetings of this daughter nation. From Vancouver and Victoria, the capital and metropolis of that great Empire Province, they bring hearty greetings from British-Israel adherents in those beautiful cities.

From Calgary and Jasper, in Alberta, the same voice swells in greeting to the people assembled here.

From Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan, and from Winnipeg, the capital of Manitoba, splendid audiences commissioned us to bring the greetings to this Congress.

From Toronto, the capital of queenly Ontario, and Montreal, the metropolis of Quebec, Anglo-Saxon and Celtic-French Canadian join in the happy chorus of greeting.

It was not possible to touch the three eastern Provinces.

Canada sends the word that she is organized from ocean to ocean as a Dominion, and in most of the Provinces as Provincial organizations, and is steadily pushing the work ahead.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

From Mr. Rand, in Massachusetts, speaking for New England; from Chancellor Du Bois, of the Law School in Chicago, representing the Central States in association with George McGinnis; from Taylor, in San Francisco; and Bishop Allen, in Passadena; from Rev. Fowler Ham, in Oklahoma; from Dr. McConnell, in Florida; from Dr. Stephens and Colonel Watkins, in New York City; and from a multitude of others in practically every State in the Union, come greetings from Brother Jonathan to Brother John, whose ensign is "The Bull."

SOUTH AFRICA.

From South Africa our Commissioner—Rev. Maxwell Carnson—brings the greetings which he will himself express.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

From Australia and New Zealand and the Islands of the Sea come voices which remind us of Isaiah under similar circumstances, when he declared in ages long gone by:

"When thus it shall be in the midst of the land among the people, there shall be as the shaking of an olive tree, and as the gleaning grapes when the vintage is done.

They shall lift up their voice, they shall sing for the majesty of the Lord, they shall cry aloud from the sea.

Wherefore glorify ye the Lord in the fires, even the name of the Lord God of Israel in the isles of the sea.

From the uttermost part of the earth have we heard songs, even glory to the righteous."

With one accord the present gathering in the Central Hall, Westminster, receive these greetings, and pass them on in gratitude to the Lord God of Israel.

In the meantime most heartily they reciprocate the greetings from every loyal heart dwelling in the uttermost parts of the earth, and at this time earnestly remembering those who are gathered to worship at the British-Israel Congress in the centre of the land which all delight to call HOME.

"When several successive revelations are given by God, some less, some more extensive, we must conclude them to be parts of one entire dispensation; which, for reasons best known to infinite Wisdom, are gradually enlarged and opened; consequently, every later must not only suppose the truth of every preceding revelation, but likewise their mutual relationship and dependency. Hence there may have been weighty reasons why God, from the beginning, should have been constantly giving a succession of dispensations and revelations."—BISHOP WARBURTON.

THE QUESTION OF LANGUAGE.

By DANIEL FARMER.

IN the study of what is often spoken of as "The Identity" the question of language occupies a most important position. To fail in sufficient evidence here would practically invalidate the claims and conclusions to which British-Israelites have come. Let us listen again to those who have authority to speak on the subject of languages; for in so vast a study, he is what St. Peter calls, or at least assumes to be, a good minister, he who puts his hearers in remembrance of what they had previously heard. (2 Peter i, 12.)

Scholars inform us that there are, in round numbers, some 3,500 languages and dialects in the world. Over 1,000 in America, in Asia nearly 1,000, in Europe nearly 600, and in Africa some 300, to name the four Continents only.

In Shakespeare's day English was spoken by some 15 millions. To-day it is the speech of 160 millions. A French writer said: "The world will not be Russian, German, Spanish, nor, alas! French—but Anglo-Saxon." And a couplet on the matter has it:—

"Mark! as it spreads how deserts bloom, and error flies away,
As vanishes the mist of night before the dawn of day."

About 1890 Professor Grimm, of Berlin, declared: "English has a power of expression beyond all others; it may truly be called a world language."

Canon Lysons, in "Our British Ancestry," has written: "I confess that, but for the almost universal tradition which says our race is Japhetic, I should have said it was Semitic, both on account of the relics of worship, and names of the religious sites." The Canon goes on to name some 5,000 words, which he said were of pure origin—these being derived, according to Max Muller, from 800 Hebrew roots, whilst the Rev. Eliezer Williams writes: "Scarcely a Hebrew root can be discovered that has not its corresponding derivative in the ancient British language."

Well may George Eliot in "Theoprastus" exclaim, "The passionate love of the English for the Hebrew writings can only be accounted for by intellectual affinity."

Dr. Ferguson regretted the dropping of Anglo-Saxon; it became mixed with the Norman-French in the 11th century, the blend giving us English—but in the Bible the Anglo-Saxon predominates to the extent of 96 words per 100. In Shakespeare 85 per 100. In Spenser, Milton, Thomson and Addison 78 per 100. In Pope 50 per 100, and in Hume and Gibbon nearly 60 per 100.

The Rev. Jacob Tomlin, in his "Comparative Vocabulary of 48 Languages," has it that "One fourth of Anglo-Saxon words have affinity with Hebrew." The language of the Early Britons, according to Tyndale and Margoliouth, was practically Hebrew in thousands of its roots.

How profoundly significant is the fact that the Word of God can be translated into English more rhythmically, more literally, and with fewer lapses, than into any other known tongue. In the words of Alexander Geddes, LL.D., the scholarly expositor: "Luckily for an English translator of the Bible, he will not be often under any great necessity of departing much from the arrangement of the Hebrew, especially in the practical parts, where the two idioms are like twin brothers." What shall we say to all this? Scripture informs us that at one time "the whole earth was of one language, and of one speech." (Gen. xi, 1.) The "confusion of tongues" was the Divine method for the dispersion of the race, the defeating of a universal form of idolatry, and the opportunity of escape from one nation to another. The English tongue has been God's principal agent for the overthrow of every form of idolatry, and for the uniting of the peoples. The late Lord Curzon said—in his "Problems of the Far East": "The English language is destined with absolute certainty to be the language of the Far East. Its sound will go out to all lands, and its words to the end of the world." "English has all the elements of a world language" the philologists inform us. The English vocabulary is larger than that of Germany, France and Italy combined, and can be telegraphed 25 per cent. more cheaply.

The descendants of Jacob are to "bind the earth as with a measuring line," and, in the words of M. Le Loyer, "The expectations of the Hebrew prophets are being fulfilled in the English (British) people." No other people do bear, or ever have borne, the marks of identity with the Israel of the Old Testament, and the question of language thus becomes one of the most powerful proofs of our lineal descent.

"Say now, unbiased reader,
As History you unroll,
Has any other people
Fulfilled this ancient scroll?
If not—what else conclusion
In reason can there be
But that in Anglo-Saxon,
Lost Israel we see?"

THE QUESTION OF THE CENTURIES—III.

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?"

"WHAT thinkest thou of the Christ, Jean I. Rousseau, with all the brilliancy of thy intellect, the singularity of thy character and the enthusiasm of thy writings?" Give place to the witness Rousseau; hear his testimony: "How petty are the books of the philosophers compared with the Gospels! Can it be that writings at once so sublime and so simple are the words of men? Can He Whose life they tell be Himself no more than a mere man? Yes, if the death of Socrates be that of a sage, the life and death of Jesus are those of a God."

I summon thee, O execrable Judas. Behold him flinging down the thirty pieces of silver before the chief priests and elders. Hear him speak in the glory of his soul: "I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood."

I summon thee, O Pilate, with thy immortality of shame in the creeds of the ages. The Roman Procurator washes his hands. Strange sight! He speaks: "I am innocent of the blood of this just person." He speaks again: "I find no fault in this man."—MACARTHUR.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THERE is a movement among our Branches in Australia to spread B.-I. Truth throughout the Continent to an extent never before attempted.

We wish our friends in the Land of the Dawning every success in their efforts.

Mr. J. J. Morey paid a visit to the Sydenham Branch on September 25th and gave a most interesting lecture on his tour in Palestine. It was very much appreciated. More strangers than usual were present, and interest was aroused in B.-I. teaching amongst some who had never come into contact with it before.

The Rev. Joseph Gay wishes to thank all friends in many parts of the country who have written him their sympathy in his accident.

We regret to record the death of Mr. J. Vernon Cook, the Treasurer of our Jersey Branch, and we tender our sincere sympathy to his widow and daughter and all members of the family. Mr. Cook had been very ill for some weeks in Westminster Hospital and in a Nursing Home. He will be much missed in Jersey and especially by our supporters there.

A special meeting of the Middlesex County Council is to be held on October 10th to consider the opening of cinemas on Sunday. The Middlesex United Committee for Sunday Defence ask that those resident in Middlesex (not L.C.C. area) will write to their representatives on the County Council asking them to be present and vote against Sunday entertainments. Sunday dancing, music on licensed premises, etc., will also be dealt with.

Mr. J. Wintersgill, Jr., lectured to a full audience for our Southport Branch on "The Days we live in." He pointed out that the conditions prevailing to-day were as prophesied in the Scriptures, and he quoted many passages to prove this.

The Rev. Kenneth Dodds and Mrs. Bloxam were the speakers at the meetings at Headquarters last week, and each gave an excellent address.

Mr. Herbert Garrison addressed two meetings in Bristol for our Branch there on Tuesday last, and on the following day he spoke for our Branch at Bath. At both places he gave an account of his recent travels in Canada and U.S.A.

The Congress is proceeding as we go to press, and the first week's meetings will be half over by the time this reaches the hands of our readers. We would remind all that the meeting on Saturday evening, at 7.30, is to be held in the Great Hall of the Church House, Westminster, on account of the weekly concert in the Central Hall.

Congress continuation meetings will be held at Headquarters, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1, next week, each day at 2.45 and 7.30. All are invited. No tickets are required.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Herbert Garrison will present the case for British-Israel in the Town Hall, Dover, on Thursday next, October 10th, at 3 and 8 p.m.

Mrs. Hamilton Short has arranged for a Ladies' Working Party at Headquarters at 11 a.m. on Wednesday of each week until the Sale of Work, commencing on October 16th. The Sale will take place in the first week in December.

Mr. H. A. Marchant gave an instructive lecture on the "Balfour Declaration and the Palestine Mandate" to a crowded audience for our Worthing Branch on September 24th. It was deeply interesting. Many questions were asked.

The Bexhill Branch held the first of their winter meetings on September 18th, when lectures were given in the afternoon and evening by Miss Hamilton Hunter. Each of the lectures were much appreciated by the audience. "Why Great Britain must be Israel" was the subject of the lecture in the afternoon, when Colonel T. P. Barrington presided.

It was impossible to understand the Bible from cover to cover, said Miss Hunter, without the key of the British-Israel Truth. It was because people had not got that key that they wandered into modernism, atheism and scepticism. Official Christianity, and by that she meant all the Christian denominations, were occupied in preaching a Gospel of Salvation, and that was only part of what God intended should be preached. God's kingdom was a material as well as a spiritual kingdom. The thing that was wrong with the world was that God's Gospel was not being fully preached.

Miss Hunter then turned to the promises of God to Abraham, and to later prophecies in the Old Testament. God had told Abraham that his name would be great; meaning that his heirs would be known as great. There was only one nation in the world which was called great, and that was Great Britain.

If Great Britain was not Israel, then God's promises had fallen to the ground. His promises had been fulfilled and were being fulfilled in this nation. Had He not promised Abraham's seed that they would become a great maritime nation? And was not Great Britain the greatest maritime nation in the world? God had promised also that wherever Israel was there must be a descendant of David on the throne, and it had been proved, Miss Hunter declared, that the present King of England was the descendant of David. There were references in the Bible to Israel in the Isles north-west of Palestine. There was only one set of islands north-west of Palestine, and they formed "Great Britain."

Thanking the speaker, the Chairman said that it seemed rather a puzzle to him why the teachers in the Church did not take up the subject of British-Israel Truth. If they did they would fill their churches.

In the evening the chair was taken by Mr. J. A. Jutsum, and Miss Hunter's lecture was on "The Stone Symbol in Israel."

Mrs. F. M. Cowan, of Clevedon, Somerset, has passed on to the Higher Life. She was the widow of the late Dr. Thomas William Cowan, F.L.S., F.G.S., F.R.M.S., D.Sc., Ph.D., who passed away a few years ago. He was one of the greatest authorities on bees, and was Chairman of the British Bee-keepers' Association since 1874, and Editor of their journal; he was the author of several standard works on bees, horticulture and agriculture, and he was a member of many learned Societies. He and Mrs. Cowan had travelled extensively; both were devoted British-Israelites for many years. Mrs. Cowan attained a great age. She had a very sunny nature, and was greatly beloved by all who knew her. Her letters to the Secretary-General were most encouraging; sweet memories of her will always remain. To her son and daughter we offer our sympathy in their bereavement.

Another devoted British-Israelite—Miss M. P. Mackenzie, of Bath—has gone on before. She bore her illness with Christian fortitude and without a murmur, and she has left a beautiful influence for good. She sent a valuable gift to the Federation by her sister—Miss L. E. Mackenzie, to whom we give our gratitude and sympathy.

An appeal for prayers has been made to us by a member of the Federation, who has suffered from neurasthenia for some years, and is now obliged to relinquish his position. Will our friends and readers kindly remember him in their prayers?

The Halifax Branch opened their winter session on Thursday, September 26th, when the Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., gave an address on "Life from the Dead" to an unusually large audience. We are glad to hear that Halifax has had such a successful start.

STOP PRESS NEWS.

The Congress opened on Monday afternoon under auspicious circumstances. There was a fine audience in the large hall, and an atmosphere of unity and devotion to the Cause. A large and representative company supported the President on the platform. The proceedings opened with the singing of "O God, our help in ages past," led by Mr. Harrison Hill on the great organ. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Commander Roberts. A portion of Scripture was read by the Rev. E. A. Couldrey. The President welcomed back Mr. and Mrs. Garrison and the Rev. Pascoe Goard, and explained the principles of the Federation. Addresses followed by the Revs. Pascoe Goard and Maxwell Carnson, Mr. John Leech and the Secretary-General. The Clerical and Ministerial Conference assembled in the forenoon at Headquarters and was well attended, under the presidency of the Rev. Pascoe Goard. All took lunch thereafter at a restaurant near by. The evening public meeting was presided over by Major Rigg, and the speakers were the Revs. Wm. Brown Pollock, M.A., and Pascoe Goard, and Mr. J. J. Morey. Reports shall appear in future issues.

A coloured chart (5 colours), size 40 in. by 28 in., with companion volume, Depicting the thrilling history of the Anglo-Saxon Race all down the ages (i.e., The British Empire and the British-born stock of America). The companion volume (demy 4to.) 96 pages, numbered in sections to correspond with chart.

Price of Chart, including Book, bound limp cloth, 4/6 By post 4/11

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

The coloured Chart depicts in clear, simple form, historically and by aid of maps, the amazing story of the Anglo-Saxon Race.

It traces the genealogies, by direct succession, of Their Majesties King George V., Queen Mary, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, back through the Royal House of David to Adam. It shows how the British Coat of Arms is built up from ancient emblems given to our race some 4,000 years ago. The Chart illustrates the contemporary history of the Houses of Judah and Israel. Starting with the genealogy from Adam to Jacob's twelve sons, it shows the beginning of the chosen Race from Hebrew stock; includes the Covenant Promises to Abraham (fulfilled in the Anglo-Saxons, and in no other race); gives the Promises to Judah of the Sceptre; to Ephraim of the Birthright; and to David of the perpetual Throne. Continuing, it carries on the contemporary history of the two Houses of Judah and Israel till each went into captivity—the story of the House of Israel from the reign of David, 1056 B.C. to their deportation to Assyria in 721 B.C., then a consecutive narrative of their migrations (with map) down to their final arrival in the British Isles in A.D. 1066. The contemporary history of the House of Judah, till they also were carried captive, in two sections. Section I. follows the Jewish Race down to A.D. 70; includes our Lord's Life and Death; the final siege of Jerusalem, and the scattering of the Jews all over the world. Section II. traces Princess Tamar Tephi and the prophet Jeremiah into Ireland—her marriage, and the continuation of the Royal Line of David; tells the story of the Coronation Stone and how it was finally deposited in Westminster Abbey.

The history of the Anglo-Saxons in America—the Tribe of Manasseh—is also included in the Chart. The Book (numbered to correspond with the chart) amplifies the history and shows the identity of ten-tribed Israel with the British Empire and the U.S.A.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—VII.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

We have now brought the consideration of the Empire—which is our name for the national side of the Kingdom of God—up to date. We have seen the historic background of the British nation, and have glanced period by period at the many changes through which the Lord has brought it.

That we are Scriptural in thus presenting the flexible history of Israël, rather than the inflexible history of Judah and her daughter nation the Jewish nation, as the history of the Kingdom of God, is made manifest if we will turn to the 18th chapter of Jeremiah. These passages are so important and graphically interesting we shall transcribe them in full.

Israel, the plastic nation.

"The word which came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying,

Arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there I will cause thee to hear my words.

Then I went down to the potter's house, and, behold, he wrought a work on the wheels.

And the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter: so he made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying,

O house of Israel, cannot I do with you as this potter? saith the Lord. Behold, as the clay is in the potter's hand, so are ye in mine hand, O house of Israel.

At what instant I shall speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to pluck up, and to pull down, and to destroy it;

If that nation, against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent of the evil that I thought to do unto them.

And at what instant I shall speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to build and to plant it;

If it do evil in my sight, that it obey not my voice, then I will repent of the good, wherewith I said I would benefit them." (Jeremiah xviii, 1-10.)

Judah and Jerusalem, the brittle, inflexible nation.

Please read Jeremiah xviii, 11-23. As the former words were addressed to the House of Israel, so these words are addressed to "the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem." We cannot find space for the full quotation of the verses above indicated. We take up the quotation at the beginning of chapter xix.

"Thus saith the Lord, Go and get a potter's earthen bottle, and take of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the priests;

And go forth unto the valley of the son of Hinnom, which is by the entry of the east gate, and proclaim there the words that I shall tell thee,

And say, Hear ye the word of the Lord, O kings of Judah, and inhabitants of Jerusalem; Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, the which whosoever heareth, his ears shall tingle.

Because they have forsaken me, and have estranged this place, and have burned incense in it unto other gods, whom neither they nor their fathers have known, nor the kings of Judah, and have filled this place with the blood of innocents;

Digitized by Google

They have built also the high places of Baal, to burn their sons with fire for burnt offerings unto Baal, which I commanded not, nor spake it, neither came it into my mind :

Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that this place shall no more be called Tophet, nor The valley of the son of Hinnom, but The valley of slaughter.

And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place ; and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hands of them that seek their lives : and their carcases will I give to be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beasts of the earth.

And I will make this city desolate, and an hissing ; every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished and hiss because of all the plagues thereof.

And I will cause them to eat the flesh of their sons and the flesh of their daughters, and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend in the siege and straitness, wherewith their enemies, and they that seek their lives, shall straiten them.

Then shalt thou break the bottle in the sight of the men that go with thee,

And shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord of hosts ; Even so will I break this people and this city, as one breaketh a potter's vessel, that cannot be made whole again : and they shall bury them in Tophet, till there be no place to bury.

Thus will I do unto this place, saith the Lord, and to the inhabitants thereof, and even make this city as Tophet :

And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah, shall be defiled as the place of Tophet, because of all the houses upon whose roofs they have burned incense unto all the host of heaven, and have poured out drink offerings unto other gods." (Jeremiah xix, 1-13.)

Israel is the plastic clay, to be moulded once and again into another and yet another vessel as may seem good to the Lord, the great Potter, to make it. This process we have seen in former studies of the Empire in solution.

Judah is the vessel which has been fired in the kiln, and has reached that state where once broken it cannot be made whole again. This, of course, has no reference to personal salvation, but to national organization. Judah will be re-formed as a tribe, exalted in importance and position in Israel. But it will never permanently function as a national entity again.

The whole of the succession of stages in Israel's history shows that Israel's national life has been constantly moulded and remoulded into this and that form by the Great Master Hand.

In the present stage of the Empire there are :—

A. The mother country, and all that it contains ;

B. The Overseas self-governing nations which form the Dominions ;

C. The Crown Colonies ;

D. The Dependencies ;

E. The Mandated Territories ;

F. And whatever of other loosely-formed relationships there may be with the lesser nations of Europe and the world, who look to Britain for support, maintenance or aid.

Now, the Overseas Dominions have, by the turning of the Potter's wheel, been formed into a group of separate, and majestic, vessels. They are a " set " of vessels formed out of the " china clay " dug from the parent soil of Britain, as the Cornish china clay is dug and sent out to all the potteries of Britain and the Continent to form the various makes of china ware, and they are at the present time surely " meet for the Master's use."

They form, as a " set," a stately group of inter-related nations. These are now seeking for the best mode of group, or Empire, self-expression. The lines on which this search for self-expression will develop have not as yet appeared sufficiently for us to speak with certainty as to just what form of result will be reached. So we will turn to history to see how the wheel of the Potter has turned in the past to produce similar vessels, and in what manner they have found self-expression.

The Thirteen Colonies.

We turn to America at the end of the seventeeth century and find the thirteen Colonies of America struggling first towards self-government, and then towards Federation into the United States of America. First the local Colonial Government developed. Then such local Governments drew together to meet mutual dangers, and to attain mutual desires. Gradually there formed the idea which at last materialized into the first united executive body of the United States of America. The many had become united into one. The motto " E pluribus unum " was adopted to express this achievement ; and, lo, a vessel of a new pattern, turned out of the old plastic clay of Israel, " as it seemed good to the Potter to make it."

In the eighteenth century we see the divided Colonies of Canada developing more and more perfection of Colonial Government ; and these drawing together for an all-Canada Federation. Delegates were sent from each of the Canadian Colonies to compass Federation, and their deliberations resulted in the British North America Act, and in the Confederation of the Dominion of Canada.

In the twentieth century we see the same process in Australia and in South Africa.

Again and again the foot of the Potter has turned the wheel, and out of the Israel clay the Potter's hand has formed these new Confederations of States, each of which Confederations has reached the status of a self-governing nation.

The first vessel so formed was set in a place of its own outside of the Empire. It was a masterpiece intended, for a period, to stand alone, to grace the table of the Potter's House.

The remaining vessels so formed have been grouped within the Empire as a " set " majestic and usable for the Master's service.

Now, the group of self-governing nations are beginning to be turned upon the same wheel, and are beginning to be formed on the same pattern by the Potter's hand into a larger group of self-governing nations. The self-governing nations thus formed within the Empire are drawing together more and more, and are seeking a way of self-expression as a major unity.

The first steps in this direction are already historic, and they consisted in the Imperial Councils which have been held, and in the Councils of the Premiers.

What they have done is perhaps not so important. But the fact that they have thus met and functioned, commencing a line of action the end of which is beyond the bounds of our vision, but the adumbrations of which are glorious, is important in the extreme.

Before our eyes an embryo Cabinet has thus met and functioned, giving promise of an Empire Council soon to be called into existence.

It will be seen from the foregoing that it is a logical movement following the lines of the moulding of the Empire from stage to stage.

Thus far history has helped us to understand the process going on in the present day in which Empire development is making itself manifest to the careful observer.

Now to go further we must open the pages of prophecy, and read with care and with an open mind that which is written there concerning the continuance of this Divine plan, and the operation of this Empire development law. But this further study must stand over for another issue.

THE SECRET OF BRITAIN'S STRENGTH.—IV.

By the late Rev. Philip Young, L.Th.
(formerly Dean of Nassau).

Gibraltar, Malta, the Suez Canal, Perim, Aden, Socotra, Peshawar, Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Rangoon, Singapore, Malacca, Penang, Sarawak in Borneo, and Labuan; Hong Kong and Cowloon, Wei-Hai-Wei; Cape Coast Castle, Cape Town and Natal, Cape of Good Hope; Sydney in N.S. Wales, and New Zealand, St. Helena and the Channel Islands; Halifax, Quebec, Vancouver, etc. For 500 years Great Britain has been the gate-holder. But of our own "gates" God says, "Therefore thy gates shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night." (Isaiah lx, 11.) And the reason assigned is this, "that men may bring unto thee the forces (the wealth) of the Gentiles." We English act upon it. It is "the policy of the open door."

It should be observed, however, that the nation which is to hold so dominating a position in the world must have this advantage among many others—it must have numbers. As we know, the Jew has neither "gates" nor numbers; has enemies enough, but owns no territory, has no military or naval forces. Twenty centuries have well-nigh passed since the Jewish dispersion. It is estimated that the Jews did not then number more than four millions. The highest estimate to-day places them at not more than fourteen millions.

How amazing is the contrast which Israel—Greater Israel—presents, and how strictly in harmony with prophecy. The nation exists to-day which is in possession of "the blessing of Abraham."

"In blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies." (Gen. xxii, 17.)

Again, "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not My people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God." (Hosea i, 10.)

Hosea is prophesying, not of Judah, but of Israel. It would carry me beyond due limits if I were to trace in any detail the wonderful growth of population which the vigorous Anglo-Saxon race has been manifesting to the world during the last century. It is a prodigious growth, unsurpassed, unequalled by any other people of the earth. By calculation it is discovered that in the Old World "the Anglo-Saxons double their population in fifty-six years; in the New World in twenty-five years; the Germans in 100 years; the French in 140, the Italians in 135, the Spanish in 112, the Russians in 100, and the Turks in 555." We do not, it may be said, argue that simply because the Anglo-Saxon race is multitudinous, it is therefore Israel. Nevertheless, we do assert that, discover Israel where you will, it must be "a nation," it must be "chief," it must be "strong," it must be "above" and not beneath, it must possess the "gates"; and to be and do all this, it must be—as prophecy foretold—a multitudinous people. Nay, more, it must be a nation corresponding in every minute particular to the prophetic forecast. When the promises given to Israel are systematically studied, when history is searched for its parallelism, when each nation is passed in review and subjected to the test of historical inquiry, it will be difficult, if not impossible, to avoid the conclusion that one race, and one only, answers to the requirements of prophecy.

Further; the carrying out of Israel's great mission in the world necessitates the possession of great wealth. This seems a very obvious thing to say. True, but there is a commercial principle involved in the possession by Israel of such wealth which may not be quite so obvious. The lending power of a nation is the measure of its strength; then must borrowing be a measure of its weakness. Now, Israel was permitted by God, even commanded by God, to lend—as a nation she was not permitted to borrow.

The command is exceedingly clear. "For the Lord thy God blesseth thee, as He promised thee: and thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee." (Deut. xv, 6; xxviii, 12.) If, however, the context should seem to demand a conditional entrance only into such material prosperity, if it be said God's people did not keep faithfully the commandments and the statutes which He gave, we can only answer, "Yes, too sadly was this true—but equally true is it that there was to be a restoration of the blessings when the nation should return to the Lord their God."

"For the Lord will again rejoice over thee for good." (Deut. xxx, 9.)

The nation which fulfils this very remarkable prediction must be Israel. It is the simplest logic; and there can be no escape from it. The countries of Europe pass before us. Which of them has lent to many nations, but never borrowed? It is of England alone that this can be rightly said. "The creation of wealth in England, during the last century," wrote Emerson, "is a main fact in modern history. The wealth of England determines prices all over the globe." Is this merely a remarkable coincidence, or is it the working out of God's plans for the benefit of His chosen race? I hesitate to place this alternative before you, not because I have doubts as to the true answer to be returned, but because I have no doubt.

But, with the blessing of wealth came the blessing of power to rule over other races. "Thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee." A speech by the Marquis of Lorne, when Governor-General of Canada, in 1878, forms a remarkable commentary upon this promise to Israel.

"It will not be," he said, "an excess of Chauvinism to observe that the fact of a million of French-speaking people having so long lived and prospered under our rule in the full enjoyment of their religion and their customs shows our capacity for governing alien races. There is not a single community of Englishmen on the face of the whole earth that is subject to any foreign government. We rule Frenchmen in Canada and in Mauritius, Spaniards in Trinidad and Gibraltar, Italians at Malta, Dutchmen in South Africa, Chinamen at Hong Kong, to say nothing of millions upon millions of Asiatics; but where is the smallest strip of territory in which English-speaking men live under a foreign flag, and obey the laws enacted by a foreign Governor?"

What remains to be said will deal, though too briefly, I fear, with the spiritual aspect of Britain's strength. It should hardly be necessary to say that, in regarding the ethnic unity of Israel and Britain as established, our relation to Christ and His Gospel is in no way altered. His atonement is for all, irrespective of nationality; but our relation to God the Father becomes closer and more glorious. Is there nothing inspiring in this—"They shall be My people, and I will be their God"? And does not all that has been said hitherto take on a more wondrous colouring when we know that the nation which has inherited so many material blessings is to crown all by becoming Christian—God's Missionaries—the Messengers of His Covenant of Grace to all mankind? That the message of the Gospel must be carried by the Hebrew race is certain, because God has so ordained and promised. "In thee—and in thy Seed" (which is Christ—Gal. iii, 16) "shall all families of the earth be blessed."

It has been said, and rightly, as we think, that the expression, "In thee" was intended to convey that the chief agency which God graciously meant to use to make known the Saviour's love to the fallen sons of men, was, and is, the stock of Abraham—the literal Hebrew Nation—the nation set apart to take Christ to "all families of the earth."

The evidence for this is overwhelming, but in support of the assertion I may here only quote some few passages.

"Israel shall be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation." (Isa. xlv, 17.)

"This people have I formed for Myself, they shall show forth My praise." (Isa. xliii, 21.)

"Ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord." (Isa. xliii, 10, 12; xliv, 8.)

"Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit." (Isa. xxvii, 6.)

"They shall declare My glory among the Gentiles." (Isa. lxvi, 19.)

All this harmonizes with Hosea's prophecy in which the people who were Lo-Ammi become eventually Ammi. Once—not My people—now "My people," "the Sons of the Living God."

It is not the Jews who can "show forth God's praise," it is not the Jews who can preach "among the Gentiles" the "unsearchable riches of Christ," for they are still under the Mosaic Law, still unconverted and Christless. Yet is it the seed of Abraham which must accomplish this great work for the world; and the conclusion is consequently irresistible. It must be Israel. Thus do we understand the better how our Saviour could say, "Therefore say I unto you (Jews), The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." (St. Matthew xxi, 43.)

Do we ask what nation has been set apart by God to "declare His glory among the Gentiles," there is but one answer that can be returned—Israel—not Judah.

"And I will set a sign among them, and I will send those that escape of them unto the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal and Javan, to the Isles afar off, that have not heard of My fame, neither have seen My glory; and they shall declare My glory among the Gentiles."

This was the honour, greater than ever could have been foreseen, that Israel should be "redeemed," "chosen," "formed," and "selected," to carry the good news of eternal life to the remotest corners of the world; the Jew, even, receiving at his hand the priceless offer of the Gospel. There is a great and powerful nation doing this work to-day, doing it with an ever-increasing zeal, because God has poured out His Holy Spirit upon it. The missionary work of the world is being advanced pre-eminently by the Anglo-Saxon race.

Rome has her agents, it is true; they are active and persistent, but it is not the Truth as it is in Jesus which they so energetically propagate. They go forth, but this is not to carry the Gospel of Christ; it is to uphold a system which has for long centuries done an infinity of harm.

Was it, on the other hand, that God, foreseeing how the Anglo-Saxon would accept the great trust as His witnesses to the world for Christ, gave this people the promise of immunity from foreign invasion, from foreign conquest? Perhaps. "The remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a lion among the beasts of the forest." (Micah v, 8.) "They that strive with thee shall perish; . . . they that war against thee shall be as nothing." (Isa. xli, 11-12). "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper." (Isa. liv, 17.)

Whether we are justified in bringing into association these two thoughts may be open to question; but there can be no possible doubt that freedom from foreign conquest has enabled England to pursue her great missionary enterprises unhindered and unafraid.

How long has our incomparable Liturgy voiced the nation's unconscious claim to its own inheritance! "We are His people, and the sheep of His pasture."

"O God, we have heard with our ears, and our fathers have declared unto us the noble works Thou didst in their days, and in the old time before them."

"O Lord, save Thy people; and bless Thine inheritance."

"O Lord, spare Thy people, and let not Thy heritage be brought to confusion, so that we that are Thy people and the sheep of Thy pasture shall give Thee thanks for ever."

"Mercifully forgive the sins of Thy people."

"That he (our King) may study to preserve Thy people committed to his charge, in wealth, peace, and godliness."

Nor may we overlook the Pre-Advent Epistle, the Epistle for the 25th Sunday after Trinity:—

"Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, that they shall no more say, The Lord liveth which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but the Lord liveth which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land."

Truly, "He hath not dealt so with any nation."

"In the Light of Christ's Coming," how important it is to foresee the national movements which are to precede the Advent. Before Christ can come, Israel must be nationally identified—must gather the dispersed of Judah together; for "in those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers." (Jer. iii, 18.)

Israel and Judah must return together to their own land—a return graphically portrayed in "Ezekiel's" prophecy (chap. xxxvii), there to resist the Russian invasion of the Holy Land.

It is the time of "Jacob's trouble"; but it is also the time when God, miraculously destroying the forces of Russia, gives peace and rest to the "whole house of Israel."

I have touched but the fringe of a great and interesting subject; but I have been moved by the absolute conviction that while the position assumed throughout, and upheld by argument, may be challenged, it cannot be refuted. It is in the recognition of this truth that I have learnt to understand my Old Testament Scriptures. Whereas I saw dimly before, or did not see, now the great purposes of God unfold themselves with clearness and precision. Whereas I found contradictions as they seemed to me, all so puzzling and disappointing, I now see the lovely harmonies of God's Holy Word. Whereas I used to look with languid interest on the fortunes or misfortunes of an ancient race, my mind now is quickened and my heart glows with a warmth unknown before, to see how God is honoured in the completion of His work. Whereas I wondered greatly that Britain's sons should be unconquered and unconquerable, wondered that to them should be entrusted a mission so lofty and so great, I now no longer wonder. I accept it all, in no boastful spirit, but simply, and with a devout thankfulness that God has placed me where He has. And yet once more—whereas I looked for the secret of Britain's strength and found it not, now do I discover it, where, for centuries it has lain hid—but in these last days revealed—in the Word of God.

CONGRESS NOTES.

By J. J. M.

The Tenth Annual Congress of the Federation opened in the Central Hall, Westminster, on Monday afternoon, September 30th, the President, Major James Knowles, O.B.E., presiding.

A large audience assembled, and the old hymn, "O God, our help in ages past," was sung, after which Rev. Commander Roberts offered prayer.

A telegram was sent to H.M. the King expressing the loyalty of the Federation, and congratulating him upon his restoration to health.

The President congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Garrison upon their recent successful tour in Canada and America, and spoke of the valuable work they had accomplished during their visit. He also welcomed back the Rev. Pascoe Goard.

The President spoke of the various points of our belief. We are not a new sect, but share in all the good work of all the Protestant Churches. We stand for the building of the Kingdom of God on earth, and for the completion of the Kingdom established at Sinai in Israel. That Kingdom is still a going concern in the British Empire. We preach the Gospel of the Kingdom as well as the Gospel of Salvation. The President was glad to report that the number of our teachers and believers are steadily increasing, and when the Church adopts our belief its usefulness will be greatly enhanced.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard received a hearty welcome when he rose to make the first address of the Congress. Assembled from all parts of the Empire and the world he recognized the great importance of the gathering before him. He brought greetings to the Congress from the Branches in Victoria, Vancouver, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal.

Mr. Goard then set himself the task of stating briefly what we stand for in doctrine and truth. He believed God had given to us the keystone of the Theological position of to-day. All true clergymen and ministers are concerned. When he was young there was a recognized standard of belief to which all Churches assented. Not so to-day. We unite in denominations, but differ largely in belief. The recent great law trial in America between Modernists and Fundamentalists was quoted as an example of the great cleavage which exists. The varying belief as to the supernatural birth of Christ, the new birth, and the inspiration of the Bible were referred to. The temple of truth will and must stand, and the speaker believed the keystone of the arch is in our hands to-day. If we demonstrate it, the great differences must disappear.

Mr. Goard dealt with three outstanding leaders in recent times:—

1. Tom Paine led the working-men into scepticism because he said that the covenants, promises and prophecies made concerning Israel were not being fulfilled. He therefore pronounced the Bible to be false, and cast it aside.

2. Charles Bradlaugh followed exactly the same course and influenced the middle classes of England against the Bible.

3. Dr. Driver made a similar confession when he stated that the promises and prophecies had never been fulfilled, and could not now be fulfilled.

All these men built upon the fallacy that Israel had disappeared, and out of that fallacy Modernism had emerged. They had all been taught that Israel simply meant the Jews, and no more. They looked to Judah for the fulfilment of prophecies that belong to the Northern Kingdom of Israel. There was no tribe of Judah in the House of Israel. We can demonstrate Israel to-day in the British Empire, and when this truth is grasped our theological difficulties will melt away.

Rev. Maxwell Carnson, Commissioner for South Africa, brought greetings from many South African B.-I. centres. The restoration of Bible truth will do more than anything else to unite the warring racial forces now existing. The word "Israel" is also a great difficulty. Considerable education is needed before the South African can distinguish the B.-I. from the Jew. The God of the Bible always fulfils His promises, and He will carry His work to completion. Bishop Barnes to-day tells us that Fundamentalism is based on ignorance and fear. He challenged that and similar Modernist statements. Bishop Barnes would prohibit us from taking all the Bible, but only those portions which they prescribe. He racily and sarcastically dealt with the Modernist's position and defended the Fundamentalist position. Our Father has made great promises to us, and just as an ordinary child expects every promise made by his father to be carried out, so we really do expect Our Father to fulfil His word to us His children. If, as our opponents say, God will only fulfil His promises spiritually, what are we to think of God? If God has promised through Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, and the prophets, and has failed, how can we believe what He has promised through Jesus Christ? No, if British-Israel teaching be not true the basis of our faith is gone. But this cannot be, for God's promises are "Yea" and "Amen" to those that believe.

Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C., announced the formation of a young people's movement, called the British-Israel Crusader Movement. A new paper, The B.-I. Crusader, one penny monthly, is published to-day; and Mr. Leech pleaded for the interest of parents in all their young people. We expect much from this new junior branch of the Federation. Mr. Leech read the Crusader's faith, which was heartily applauded. The annual subscription to the Crusader Movement is 2s. 6d., which includes a copy of the paper monthly. He invited all, young and old, to support this new branch of our work. Mr. Leech went on to speak of the fulfilment of prophecy as the only test that the prophecy is true. He thought the Evangelical clergy were most illogical, for they claim to believe the Bible, but will not accept the actual proof God has provided. He referred to the removal of the Turks from Palestine, and to the subsequent restoration of Israel to that land, and showed that it was absolutely necessary that Israel should be a military power in order that many of these wonderful prophecies should come to fulfilment.

Mr. Garrison spoke of Britain's position in Palestine and showed that we were in possession there because we were Israel.

We shall not give up Palestine whatever certain editors may say, for God has called us to complete the work we have begun.

As to Russia, we should be willing to make friends with that country when Russia has repented of her evil and shows that she is prepared to do the right thing.

Mr. Garrison read telegrams from some friends who were unable to be present through illness.

MONDAY EVENING.

Major Richard Rigg, O.B.E., J.P., occupied the chair, and, after prayer and the reading of Scripture, the Chairman said he felt that our Movement was going forward from strength to strength. He believed in the inspiration of the whole Bible, and he saw therein the formation, redemption and restoration of our race. Tracing the Israel race, he dealt with the Divine self-revelation to His people, the covenants He made with our fathers, the dedication of Israel for the blessing of mankind, the experiences of the race in Egypt, at Sinai, and later in Palestine, as God's organized Kingdom on earth.

The speaker then outlined the division of Israel into two kingdoms in 975 B.C., and showed that the Jews belong only to the southern and smaller House of Judah.

He then showed the removal of the royal House of David to these Islands, and finally spoke of the redemption of Israel by our Lord, Who was also the Saviour of the world. Isaiah saw the regathering of the House of Israel in the Isles, where they would enter into their redemption and take up the work of the Messiah for all men.

He felt that we were nearing the end of the age, and Israel-Britain is called to national repentance to prepare the way of the Lord, Who soon will return to reign.

The Rev. Wm. Brown Pollock, M.A., was called, and announced himself as a firm believer in our Truth. He had experienced a double conversion. First, from the darkness of sin to the light and liberty of the child of God. Then after many years he stepped into the greater light which B.-I. Truth throws upon the Bible. Abraham had a natural seed and a spiritual seed:—the Israel race and the Church of Christ. Our Lord is King of Israel, King of an earthly Kingdom, and also Head of the Church. In Israel both are one. A study of history shows that early Christianity was first planted in the West and North-West—exactly where the Israel race was regathering in the Isles. The Kingdom and the Church have grown together. Our Lord and His disciples had much to say about the Kingdom, and the New Testament clearly teaches that the Kingdom is to be restored in the latter days.

In Exodus and Deuteronomy God called Israel His peculiar treasure, and in Matthew xiii Christ gives us a parable of that treasure. Our Lord is the man Who found His lost treasure in the field of the world. He gave Himself and all that He had and bought it on the Cross. He then hid His Israel treasure, and the Kingdom has truly been hidden until the end of the age.

Oh, what should the nation do which sees such great truth and privilege? We are endeavouring to awaken our nation to these tremendous truths.

Mr. J. J. Morey then dealt with the various arguments for the British-Israel position.

1. The Authority of the Bible as the Basis of Truth.—We believe the Bible, and if it be true, many things must be existent at the present time: The Israel nation, the throne of David, the races called to bless mankind, etc.

2. The Fulfilment of Bible Prophecy.—The fact that prophecy was inspired is an argument in favour of its detailed fulfilment. We are building upon the truth of the great Book.

3. The Argument of Probability.—On the surface there is no nation so likely to be Israel as Great Britain.

4. History and Ethnology.—Many great scholars, Huxley, Rawlinson, Turner, Hannay and others, had traced the Anglo-Saxon race back to the House of Israel, who became the Sacæ, the fathers of our English nation.

5. Elimination.—By taking out the nations stated in Scripture as Gentile enemy nations, which cannot be Israel, we are shut down to the British race.

6. Religion.—The fact that we are a Christian nation is a great evidence of our Israel origin. Christianity is the completed form of the Hebrew religion, and it is natural that the children of the Israel race should take in perfected revelation when it came.

7. The Time Argument.—A study of Bible chronology proves that the time has come when the Israel nation must be revealed. The end of the age has come, and there is no time for an obscure Israel to rise to greatness. The time argument is conclusive; Israel must be the greatest power in the world to-day.

8. Our National Characteristics.—Our laws, our language, our throne, our customs, our national emblems, etc., are clearly based on Hebrew foundations, and all these evidences go to show that we are the nation God has chosen to prepare the way of the Lord.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard recalled a great meeting recently held in Vancouver addressed by Mr. Garrison, with the Lt.-Governor in the chair, and supported by the Prime Minister of Manitoba and the Prime Minister of New South Wales, Australia. The present meeting was a fitting continuation of the same series.

Mr. Goard then showed that much of what is called scholarship to-day is untrustworthy and rests on false premises. Some so-called scholars are speaking on subjects they have never really studied, and are thus leading our people astray.

He dealt with some of the scientific facts which lie at the basis of the Creation story, and showed that they perfectly agree. So also with the Flood, proof of which is being unearthed to-day. He exposed various fallacies put forward by some modern teachers, and gave us logical, scientific explanations of wrong interpretations of passages in the Genesis story. The Bible is reliable and is being vindicated. George Adam Smith, for instance, failed to understand the geography of Isaiah, and so gave the world an unreliable treatise. Isaiah sees Israel trek westward, while Smith tries to find them farther eastward. Mr. Goard then turned to Isaiah xxv, verse 1. God is a great God, and His strong, tireless arms are about Israel. He gave us instances where two friends had rested in the everlasting arms and were perfectly rested, feeling safe and contented, and the turmoils of life were stilled. A young woman with a blind child came to God with simple faith. Mr. Hickson prayed with them for the child and laid his hands on the child, and the little one looks out of two bright, beautiful eyes to-day.

God is a great King. He is to reign on earth, but surely He reigns in Israel to-day. Our beloved King occupies the throne of David as Vicegerent.

We have an Empire, but no Emperor, still a King, because the King of kings is really our King.

"O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our Maker."

"We are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand."

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard presided, and after opening hymn and prayer the Chairman announced that the meetings to-day will be addressed solely by the clergy and ministry who are prepared to bear their testimony to their belief in our teaching. The Chairman was pleased to find considerable numbers of the ministry coming into our Movement, and he prophesied that soon the main body of the clergy would be with us.

The audience stood while the President, Major Knowles, read a reply from the King thanking the Congress for their telegram of loyal greetings sent yesterday.

The National Anthem was then heartily sung.

Rev. T. Lumley Davies spoke of the prophetic statements which teach that the Davidic line shall never be lacking one to sit upon the throne of Israel. It is God's eternal purpose; the promise is clean-cut and clear; it must refer to a temporal Kingdom; it cannot be spiritualized; it cannot be applied to the Jews; it refers to the dynasty which will culminate in the reign of the Son of David on earth.

The speaker referred to the recent illness of our King and of the world-wide interest created thereby. All Churches and sects, Christians, Jews and many Gentiles, prayed for his recovery, and no effort was spared to minister to the King's need.

All this was a great testimony to the greatness of the British Throne, and throws light upon the importance of the Divine assurance stated by the prophets. If the throne was to continue, then Israel was to continue as a nation and empire under that throne.

Mr. Davies gave his experience, and told how he ceased to be a scorner of British-Israel teaching, and became a firm believer. A careful reading of the Bible convinced him that our teaching is true.

Rev. Joseph Gay spoke on "The Witness of Israel to the Deity of Jesus." Euclid taught that "the things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another." Our Lord taught that His disciples would have persecution, and Israel has always been a storm-centre. Probably she will be to the end of the age. Enemies say the Bible has been the greatest cause of bloodshed and trouble in all ages. The clean man always has an enemy in the unclean. Light reveals the darkness and sin, but does not cause them. God disturbs men, bringing a sword, preventing them from settling down in wickedness.

Digitized by Google

Israel was stirred up again and again for her good; she was scattered among all nations until she was ready to learn her lesson. The early Church was scattered in her early days, stirred up and persecuted, kept alive, and active in her witness to the person of Jesus Christ. Abraham and Israel were called to be God's witness, and God has held them to their task. It is the same witness which we are called to bear for Christ to-day, for He is the Jehovah of the old time. God has led Israel to the West, and brought His Church to these Islands, that Israel might take up His work and witness to the world.

The fact that God has brought the Israel nation into living connection with His Church in Britain is a proof that we are His chosen witness appointed in the days of old.

Rev. Wm. Brown Pollock, M.A., gave his personal testimony. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so," wrote the Psalmist, and all God's children should be joyful witnesses for the Redeemer.

His experience was like that of a man led along the corridors of a dark prison and then plunged into utter darkness. While seated alone, dejected, miserable, One comes to him, saying "Man, you are free," and leads him out into the light. That exactly describes the speaker's experience. A new Leader now commands him and gives him great tasks. New light comes to the great Book; new life is given and a new sphere of service opens. Such great experiences led the speaker to devote himself to the Christian ministry. He described his progress through High Anglicanism, hearing confessions, etc., until he saw the greatness of the Evangelical teaching and came into living touch with the Master, Whose glorious Gospel it is his delight now to preach. There is no priesthood to-day but that of Melchizedek, and there is no sacrifice for sin now to be offered. Later he came to see the Truth of British-Israel, and he is now rejoicing in a full Gospel for the nation as well as for the individual.

Referring to the Epistle of St. Peter and the dream image of Nebuchadnezzar, the speaker emphasized the restoration of Israel as a great power in the world, preparing for Christ's glorious reign on earth.

TUESDAY EVENING.

Wm. T. F. Jarrold, Esq., J.P., presided, and, after the usual preliminaries, the Chairman said that the B.I.'s of to-day were custodians of a great Truth, so stupendous and wonderful that many find it difficult to believe. The origin of our Royal House is in itself wonderful. Dr. Guinness prophesied that 1917 would prove to be a terminal year of crisis, and in that year Jerusalem was delivered from the Turk. Many wonderful prophecies are now being fulfilled, and the Abrahamic covenants are being literally realized in the British Empire. Would that the eyes of our statesmen and leaders could be opened to see these great things. Many men are coming back to the Bible as the result of these evidences.

Rev. Arthur Pritchard, M.A., complimented the Chairman on his practical address and also upon the valuable book he has published on our subject.

On July 27th, 1929, Mr. Goard published an article in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE on the Parable of the Ten Virgins, pointing out the two classes which will be found to exist in Israel at the time of Our Lord's Coming. He recommended all to read Dr. Langton Clark's great book on this subject. He teaches that Christ is only a Judge in order to save—a Saviour-Judge. The idea of the annihilation of the sinner is repugnant. Neither this nor universalism is the truth. Christ will judge, and save. Reconciliation does not mean full restoration. That must follow. The speaker urged us to study this great question. God will change His attitude to sinners when they change their attitude to Him. He threatened Israel with many punishments which have never come, for when man repents, God pardons. Reconciliation will continue in the Kingdom age which is to follow the present age. The saints will assist the King in His great work of "judging" the world.

Speaking of the work of Judges in old Israel, Mr. Pritchard showed that many of their customs as to judging the people had become an integral part of British law and government. The King is now selecting those who shall assist Him in the great work yet to be accomplished in the salvation of mankind.

Rev. Maxwell Carnson followed, and referred to his experience in South Africa during the last three years. He had discovered a new interpretation of Holy Scripture. The Book had become a real unity, a message he can understand from beginning to end. No longer a hopeless mystery, every book is now understandable and plain. Each book is a part of one great story, which is connected and consecutive and clear. B.-I. had also brought him new health. The new inspiration had brought new vigour and activity, and the new outlook had been inspiriting and uplifting.

A new Prayer Book also had come to light. It had been found to be full of British-Israel from end to end. A new unity of the Spirit. Look at the platform! A new common ground for all Christians. A brotherhood of Christians.

A new personality in Jesus Christ.

British-Israel had taught him Jesus the King. Not only the suffering Galilean, not the dead Christ; these ideas are being superseded by a living, active, reigning King.

The Christ he had discovered was a Kingly Hero to all men.

Satan recognized His Kingship and tempted Him on that plane, offering Him the kingdoms of this world. Nathaniel recognized Him, and our Lord often acted as Judge and King of men. He challenged them as to their material gains, and as to their philosophy. He confounded the Sadducees by raising three persons from the dead by Kingly power. When He entered Jerusalem they acclaimed Him as King. They then put Him to death and thought they had done with Him, but He rose and conquered, and is now victorious. He was King on the Cross, and I bend my knee before Him in homage as well as in penitence and love.

Rev. Gilbert Davies testified to the great change which British-Israel Truth had brought to him. He was thankful to the fathers who had led this great Movement. He found B.-I. enthusiasm gripping him, and was glad to find the revival of Bible truth really coming to Britain. He was convinced of the Divine government in the affairs of men. He spoke of two books which had brought conviction to him, and he urged all to place good literature in the hands of all their friends.

Rev. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., asked the question, "What business have we got in Palestine?" Certain papers are agitating for our withdrawal from that country, but Zechariah states that the Lord will cut in pieces all those who burden themselves with Jerusalem. We had delivered Jerusalem, and had the most right to be in power there. But we were there by Divine appointment, being Israel.

Winston Churchill has stated that there is no intention to make the Jews the dominant race in Palestine. If we have no right there, has Italy any? The speaker pointed out that the Arabs are descended from Ishmael, and the Jews come from those men of Judah who returned to Judea after the captivity. A large proportion of Jews are still anti-Christian or atheistic, and in our Lord's parables in Matthew xxi their future is outlined. The Kingdom is taken from the Jews. The birthright is Joseph's, not Judah's, and in 1917 God restored Ephraim-Israel to the Promised Land. Nineteen hundred years ago three crosses stood outside the city of Jerusalem, but now the flag of the Crosses, the flag of the King, flies over the Holy City.

Rev. W. T. Medhurst said that he had been a B.-I. for forty years. He firmly believed in our Divine appointment, in our Royal House of David, and in the great fact that Britain had been called to take up the world-task which the Jew failed to accomplish.

Col. the Rev. A. D. Seton said that as a new recruit he was pleased to bear his testimony.

As a soldier he met with an Israel family in Spain who did not resemble Jews in any sense. They knew they were of the tribe of Dan, and said their ancestors came to Spain in the time of Solomon. They worshipped in a separate synagogue and would not acknowledge relationship with the Jews. This was an interesting fact. Evidently they were some of the lost tribes. The speaker then suggested that during the eighteen mysterious years of our Lord's life it is possible He came to Britain with His wealthy relative, Joseph of Arimathea. The speaker called attention to the importance of ancient Glastonbury and to the early introduction of Christianity to Britain.

Our Church came direct to us from Palestine and not from Rome. Kings and saints came from all parts of Europe to Glastonbury, and there is much probability that our Lord had some part in the founding, and perhaps in the building, of that early Church.

OUR ORIGIN AND BIRTHRIGHT IN CHRIST.—I.

By the late John Wilson.

Ques. 1.—Where are we to look for the people upon whom more particularly "the blessing of Abraham" was to come (Gen. xxii, 16-18), and who were to minister the same to all the families of mankind?

Ans.—The descendants of Ephraim and Manasseh, the sons of Joseph, to whom "the birthright" was given (Gen. xlviii, 14-20; 1 Chron. v, 1, 2; Jer. xxxi, 9), were separated from the Jews at the death of Solomon (1 Kings xii, 16), and were ultimately cast afar off among the Gentiles, and scattered throughout the countries (2 Kings xvii, 23; Ezek. xi, 15, 16). When apart from the Jews, they were lost among the Gentiles (Hos. i, 6, 7), and should therefore be looked for, not among the Jews, but among the Gentiles; the more especially as it was promised to Ephraim, that of him a multitude of nations, or Gentiles, should come (Gen. xlviii, 8-20; compare Rom. xi, 25). It was in the view of his "fulness of the Gentiles" that, through the Cross, the blessing of Abraham was by Jacob pronounced upon the head of Ephraim.

Ques. 2.—When were the descendants of Ephraim lost among the Gentiles?

Ans.—About 742 years before the birth of Christ, it was said by the Lord (Isa. vii, 8), "Within threescore and five years shall Ephraim be broken, that it be not a people." Soon after this prophecy was pronounced, Israel began to be removed (2 Kings xv, 19); and within the predicted period, Israel, including Ephraim, were wholly carried forth of their land (2 Kings xvii-xxiii), long before their brethren the Jews were removed to Babylon (2 Kings xxv, 11).

Ques. 3.—Were not the Israelites restored along with the Jews after the seventy years' captivity in Babylon?

Ans.—No; Samaria, which had been the capital of Israel, and the surrounding country, which had belonged to Ephraim, continued after that event in the hands of the people who had been placed there instead of the Ephraimites, showing plainly that the "first-born" had not then returned to claim the inheritance. There was no recognition of Ephraim being any longer a people in the land of Israel.

But out of the land, though as much lost as Joseph was in Egypt, his posterity were still to be fulfilling their destiny, growing up into the predicted "fulness of the Gentiles," unto whom was to be given the kingdom taken from the Jews (Matt. xxi, 41-43; Jer. iii, 11-17), and through whose ministry all the nations of the earth were to be blessed.

Ques. 4.—To what nation has specially been given that which chiefly distinguished the Jews—the keeping of the oracles of God? (Rom. iii, 1, 2).

Digitized by Google

ANS.—To the Anglo-Saxon race in these "Isles afar off," and spread out to "the ends of the earth," is given the unspeakable privilege of distributing the Scriptures in all languages, to all families of mankind.

It is theirs both to testify for Christ, and against antichrist; to proclaim liberty to the captive, and point all men everywhere to the means of health, and cure, and blessing. God "hath not dealt so with any nation." No people have been so liberally dealt with by the God of providence, whether in respect to gold itself, or that which gold represents, or that which is better than gold—the true riches—"His word, His statutes, and His judgments unto Israel" (Psalm cxlvii, 19,20).

QUES. 5.—Is the past history of the English correspondent to their present remarkable position? And is it possible they can be the people unto whom the promises were made, which have been thus far to them so remarkably fulfilled?

ANS.—It is possible. It has been acknowledged that no history presents to our view so great a number of striking pictures as that of England. Even long previous to the time when, as Jutes, Saxons, Angles, Danes and Northmen, they came into England, God appears to have been most remarkably preparing for their coming, by sending in this direction, down through Asia Minor, Greece, and Rome, the messengers of His grace.

Every successive journey of the Apostles was more and more in this direction (see Acts xiii-xxviii), and in the same line seem to have been sent all the New Testament Epistles. The very first of these—that to the Romans—very plainly intimates that through the mercy thus sent, "the outcasts of Israel" were to obtain mercy. The word which was sent away from "treacherous Judah," after "backsliding Israel" into "the north" (Jer. iii, 12), hath been declared to them as bearing the name of "GENTILES" in these "Isles afar off," and hence has been carried out by them to all "the ends of the earth," and from which Israel are at length to be assembled. (Compare Jer. iii, 11-17; xxx, 10; Isa. xliii, 5-12, 21).

The English—as their language itself indicates, and as our best historians have traced—came from the border of the Caspian Sea, to which quarter had been deported the people unto whom the promises were made (2 Kings xvii, 6).

QUES. 6.—Is it possible that the English can really be lineal descendants of ancient Israel?

ANS.—The Anglo-Saxons came from where the Israelites were lost. And, as has been shown in "OUR ISRAELITISH ORIGIN," they possess the physical, intellectual, and moral characteristics of Israel.

In their ancient laws, political constitution, and ecclesiastical arrangements, they give evidence of having been under the training of Moses, and of having been punished, and otherwise dealt with, as Israel was to be when cast out among the Gentiles. They were lost as Ephraim, but, as promised, they are found "the sons of the living God" (Hos. i, 10). To them belongs in truth the responsibility of using aright the privileges of "the first-born."

They ought not to defer acting till they see those privileges in the hands of another which are already in their own. They should have confidence in Him Who put them there, thank God, and go forward.

QUES. 7.—By what great mark may the nations of Abrahamic descent be known, and especially those appointed unto "the birthright"? How may they best prove their right to be considered the heirs of the promises made unto the fathers?

ANS.—By returning in humble penitence to their Father, confessing their unworthiness and guilt; and by their learning to be, like the Son of God, eminent in self-denying service for the glory of God in the good of man; by acting as Joseph did to his brethren in Egypt; and as the men of Ephraim did to the captives of Judah brought into Samaria (see 2 Chron. xxviii, 12-15). God's great purpose in separating a people to Himself was to make them instrumental in conveying good to others. (Compare the Parable of the Good Samaritan, Luke x, 30-35.)

ABRAHAM was to be the progenitor of a race whom the Almighty intended to employ in distributing blessing to all mankind. And when the Lord promised (Gen. xii, 1-3) that Abram should be "the father of a great nation," and be given a great name, the purpose for which this great nation should come into being, and be given extensive influence, was declared in what follows—"And thou shalt be a blessing." THE POWER PROMISED WAS A POWER TO DO GOOD.

When it was intimated that others should have blessing or curse, success or defeat, according as they helped or hindered the people of the God of Abraham, it was that the law of love might have free development among all mankind. This was the promise, "IN THEE SHALL ALL FAMILIES OF THE EARTH BE BLESSED."

The land which Abraham was to be shown, the great nation, the great name, and God testifying of His choice both by mercy and by judgment, were all in order that blessing might be universally diffused. And thus the call of Abraham's posterity was the very opposite of a narrow, selfish pre-eminence. THEIR "GREATNESS" WAS TO BE A GREATNESS OF SERVICE; the widest possible manifestation of the Divine power in bestowing blessing, through whatever means God might be pleased to work.

Here is the birthright—THE WILL TO WORK FREELY FOR OTHERS; not as slaves—not as hirelings, but as the free-born sons of God, doing whatever our Heavenly Father may give us to do for others' good. This, which distinguished the Son of God, should characterize those that are Christ's. "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. iii, 29). True, the promise is to the natural seed of Abram; but it is to them as it was to Abram—through faith, a faith which working by love, bringeth forth the fruits of righteousness. (Compare Gen. xv with Gal. iii.)

When ISAAC, whose name means "laughter," was born, his mother, as if in prophetic anticipation, said, "God hath made me to laugh; so that all that hear will laugh with me" (Gen. xxi, 6).

ISAAC'S POSTERITY WERE TO CONVEY THE GLAD TIDINGS OF GREAT JOY TO ALL PEOPLE. Unto them were to be entrusted "the oracles of God," not that they might hide this precious talent in a napkin, but that they should open it up for the joy of all the earth.

When Isaac was received back as from the dead, and the Lord was pleased to confirm His promises to Abraham, this was the climax—"And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed" (Gen. xxii, 18). ALL NATIONS ARE TO BE MADE BLESSED IN CHRIST. And this is the unspeakable happiness of the children of faithful Abraham—that BEING FOUND IN CHRIST, THEY ARE NOT ONLY MADE TO REJOICE, BUT ARE GIVEN THE PRIVILEGE OF DIFFUSING HIS JOY ABROAD AMONG ALL NATIONS.

When to Jacob, at Bethel, possession of the Central Land was predicted, and a wide diffusion therefrom—west, east, north and south—this is contemplated as the purpose for which Israel were to be raised up and spread abroad (Gen. xxviii, 14): "And in thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

THOSE WHO ARE IN CHRIST SHOULD BE FOUND, AS HE WAS IN THE WORLD, GOING ABOUT DOING GOOD. IF SO FOUND, THERE IS NO OCCASION TO ASK, "WHO IS THEIR FATHER?" THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT THEY ARE THE CHILDREN OF PROMISE, AND HEIRS OF THE KINGDOM.

QUES. 8.—What does the Scripture give us to expect concerning Israel? (See Wilson's "Lectures on Ancient Israel," etc.)

ANS.—Upon taking a view of ISRAEL in their calling and training, we see circumstances leading directly to the conclusion that this people were designed for important purposes in relation to the whole human race. They were a seed to be sown widely over the world, and in whom all the nations of the earth were to be blessed.

For this purpose they were educated in the most wonderful manner in the three great patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, individually, and in the nation generally, during its three great stages—in Egypt, in the Wilderness, and in the Promised Land; under the three grand dispensations of the Tabernacle, the Temple, and the Prophets.

We see also how admirably the circumstances in which Israel was placed were calculated to draw out into healthy and vigorous exercise the several faculties of the human mind, intellectual as well as moral, fitting them for becoming the leading people over all the earth.

And when we look farther, we see these expectations, formed from the calling and history of Israel, amply borne out by the prophetic Word, which abundantly confirms the numerous promises made solemnly to the fathers; that of Israel a multitude of nations should come, who were to be among the chief of the nations, and through whom blessing was to be ministered to all nations. We see that this prophetic Word points directly northward and westward, and particularly to these "Isles afar off" as being concerned in the fulfilment of those promises, and that this is the time when the discovery of Israel may be expected to take place.

In order clearly to understand how all this can be, we must notice that the separation of Israel from Judah, and the subsequent loss of Israel (so that hope with regard to them appeared to be utterly cut off) is clearly contemplated by the spirit of prophecy. But their recovery is also as clearly foretold. It was to "be like life from the dead." And Judah is at length to be joined to Israel; when they shall be made one instrument in the hand of the Lord for the distribution of His grace, and the showing forth of His glory.

We must look for Israel as being in some measure mixed with other people. The portion of the tribe of Judah which inherited the blessing in the days of the Apostles became blended with the Gentiles; and only that remnant which inherited the curse, and had been previously mingled with the worst portions of the Gentiles—the Canaanites and the Edomites—remained distinct.

We are, therefore, to expect blessing from Israel, not as entirely separate from other people, but as being made one with them in the Lord.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD AS PRESENT HERE AND NOW.

BY THE REV. J. C. DALRYMPLE.

THIS is an age of fumbling.

What we need is a new age of creative thought, enabling us to conceive the meaning of Christ's faith in the fact of "The Kingdom of God," as being present here and now.

He as Messiah brought with Himself the Messianic reign of God upon the earth.

He expected "The Kingdom of Light, Life and Love," to spread out fan-like all over the world.

The moral order of the world was not, and is not, what God wants it to be, and what Christ saw it would become, if men could only be found capable of carrying on His concept of the "Kingdom" as being present here on earth.

The Apostolic Church saw the vision after Christ's Death and Resurrection, and rose in the first three centuries of the Christian dispensation to the full height, power and glory of Christ's triumph over sin and death.

In so doing it came into possession of Christ's claim, that sin, disease and premature death could be, in the case of sin, exorcised, and overcome in the case of disease and premature death.

As Dr. John R. Mott said some years ago: "There are powers and potentialities in God untapped by the Church."

The Apostolic Church exercised these powers, and went near to conquering the then known world for Christ.

But automatism dogged the footsteps of the Church; and, after Constantine, became paganized, saturated with the materialism of the world; and so her spiritual vision of God, along with the dynamical power which enabled the Apostles to do "the greater works than these," were lost to the Church and to the world.

Slowly but surely, ever since, the world has had but small regard for the Church.

Science, Art, Literature and certain cults are growing up, entirely independent of the Church.

Two great events, however, mark the History of Religion in Great Britain.

(1) The Reformation Settlement, since when Great Britain has flourished tremendously; and the visit a few years ago of our Dominion Prime Ministers was a revelation of the "solidarity" of the Empire under one King, one Crown, and one Commonwealth of Nations.

Literally fulfilling the words of Jesus: "The Kingdom shall be taken from you and given to an EMPIRE bringing forth the fruits thereof." (F.F.)

(2) The Greatest Racial Discovery of the Age.

Our identity with the Israel of God has been and is being established beyond all historic doubt. And if the Church is failing the Almighty in seeing the destiny and destination of Israel as the Heir of the world, both temporally and spiritually—then so much the worse for the Church.

God has doubtless raised up the British-Israel Federation "to be a Light to lighten the Gentiles; and the glory of Thy people Israel."

"For I will work a work in your days, which ye will not believe, though it be told you," and these words from Habakkuk i, 5, are quoted by St. Paul to the men of the dispersion in the synagogue at Antioch (Acts xiii, 41). We are called upon by Habakkuk to "wonder marvellously"; and by St. Paul to "Behold ye despisers, and wonder, and perish."

Opposition, persecution, unbelief will pale before the magnificent fact that God has given us "a Kingdom" which cannot be shaken; and we shall see that it is to be now the privilege and the province of the B.-I.-W.F. to train men of Apostolic Faith to preach this Gospel of the Kingdom in all the world.

Christ expected us to have an intensely enlightened conception of that "New World," "that new plane of existence, capacity and privilege, in which He Himself habitually lived, and which He called 'The Kingdom of God'!"

"There is little distinction between the Kingdom of Heaven and the Kingdom of God. The Kingdom of Heaven is Messianic, Mediatorial and Davidic, and has for its object the establishment of the Kingdom of God in the earth."

"All who enter the Kingdom of God by the New Birth ('Ye must be born again') become citizens of the Kingdom of Heaven, which is the earthly sphere of the Universal Kingdom of God, the two have almost all things in common." Therefore in calling disciples into His Kingdom of Power, Christ calls them "the salt of the earth," and He means the Kingdom has power to prevent the moral corruption of the earth.

"Ye are the light of the world." He means the Kingdom message to become the moral and spiritual light of the world.

We are Israel. The Kingdom has been restored to regathered and converted Israel; therefore we become morally God's witnesses to the Messianic age and reign of Christ as our King over sin, sickness and premature death. This was Christ's conception of "the Kingdom of God," here and now.

If the Church has failed to realize all that Christ's conception meant and means, is it not because the light that was in her has turned to darkness, and the salt has lost much of its saltness?

For the Kingdom of God is vested in Israel, and, being an organic whole in all its members, is to be manifested in glory upon the earth, and thus to become universal.

The question is: Are we waiting for God to do this? Are we waiting for God to put His Omnipotence behind His Love and Mercy?

Perhaps God is waiting for Israel to be the medium by whom He can get channels through which men may be prepared to rediscover the therapeutic and spiritual laws of "The Kingdom," so as to hear "The King" bring about His Millennial reign of peace and power upon the earth.

Carlyle said: "God does nothing." Perhaps He was waiting for Carlyle to do something!

Perhaps we have to dispel the darkness of doubt from our own minds.

Are we hypnotized by the thought that Christ meant the Kingdom of God to come by a slow process of evolutionary growth? There may be room in our thinking, as also from facts of history, that the progress has been slow, and that "The Kingdom of God" comes not with outward show; but was this always, and Christ's only, conception of the "Kingdom"? Do you not rather believe that were Israel to see her destiny as the heir of the world, and were, as a "Commonwealth of Nations," to yield unto our Covenant-keeping God an unprecedented loyalty and faith ("Have the faith of God"), the Almighty in response would show forth His Omnipotent power on our behalf?

Jesus said: "The Scriptures must be Fulfilled."—Mark xiv, 49.

BRITISH-ISRAEL FACTS NOT FANCIES.

By Major-General C. A. Hadfield.

Introduction.—I.

"Thy Word is True from the Beginning" (Ps. cxix, 160). In considering the question whether or not a literal Israel (other than those known as the "Jews") exists to-day, we must face the fact that "the Scriptures were written for our learning," and that they contain certain "signs" for our guidance and help. Take, for example, Hos. xii, 1, "Ephraim .... followeth after the East wind." This expression shows us that Ephraim-Israel was predestined to move (i.e., from Assyrian captivity) in a Westerly direction.

The mention here of "Ephraim" also denotes for our guidance that the passage does not refer to the race known to us as "The Jews"; they being descendants of Judah, whereas Ephraim is of Joseph's stock: quite a distinct race, and we know "the Birthright" was Joseph's not Judah's (1 Chron. v, 1).

Therefore if Ephraim-Israel moved from Assyria to the "Isles of the West"—the text is fulfilled; and we have proof of an Israel journeying Westward to the "place appointed"—of which more anon. Then, as regards an "Everlasting Throne," and it must be so, because God has told us in the Bible that the Throne of David was established for ever; hence, unless we are going so far as to doubt God's Word, we must believe that the "Throne of David" is still, to this day, in existence. (See Ps. lxxxix, 3, 4.)

Did not our Lord also tell us that He came "to redeem the promises made to the fathers"? i.e., That Israel (apart from the Jews) should be an "Everlasting Nation," sent to an "appointed place," and for safe dwelling? And do not the Prophets reveal that the "appointed place" denotes an Island home?

No wonder many are "blind" when we consider the Words of Christ—"O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken" (Luke xxiv, 25). And then, in the additional remark, "And beginning at Moses and all the prophets He expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself."

Remember—The only "Scriptures" of our Lord's day was the Old Testament.

God's plan was not to destroy Israel, but rather to conceal the Hebrews—other than the Jews—and guard and guide them to a New Country, speaking a new language, and bearing a new name.

Abraham Lincoln said : " The man who will not investigate both sides of a question is dishonest."

The following notes of a rudimentary character are put together in the hope of their being helpful to those who are confused in distinguishing between the term Israel and the term Jew ; and to assist them in coming to an understanding as to what is meant by " British-Israel."

Although the history of Israel—as a nation—ceases in the Old Testament, after the Northern Kingdom—who were known as the " Ten-Tribed House," were exiled to captivity in Assyria—yet the Bible assures us that Israel as " a Nation " will exist for ever, so we know that " the Nation " did not become extinct, but that it was God's Divine plan that, under the name of Israel, the Northern Kingdom should disappear both in the Bible and in history—but only in name. (See Chap. 15.)

We have also many " signs " to guide us that Israel, under a new name, and speaking a new language, would arise, with a great destiny to play in the world's history.

The following notes are to show how clear it is that Israel—as apart from the Jews—the Fifth or " Stone Kingdom " (of Daniel) and the British race—or the English-speaking races—are all identical ! A living literal Israel, thus making the Old Testament History clear and intelligible, and a sound argument with which to confound all infidels, agnostics and scoffers, who are eager to claim that God's promises on oath to Abraham and his seed have never been fulfilled. They have been, and are being fulfilled to the very letter ! " Despise not prophesyings " (2 Thess. v, 20). There are many good and earnest Bible students who have been from their infancy taught—and, unfortunately, are still being taught—that the only Israel we know on this earth are the Jews.

Then, again, how many Bible students are there who are unable to grasp the " past," the " present," and the " future " history of Israel.

At one time God forsook Israel, but He immediately after promised mercy and forgiveness to poor sinful Israel. When they were prepared to forsake idols, they were to become " Sons of the living God," i.e., Christians. Then, finally, the Israelites and the Jews will all be known and recognized ; and, as prophesied, will be rejoined under one head as related in Hos. i. That day is surely at hand—look at events in the world. This must be prior to the Millennium, for Israel now holds the Sceptre of Judah.

There is a Divine purpose in blinding the eyes of the world generally to a living literal Israel. That " blindness " is passing away—the eyes are gradually being opened—" The Scriptures cannot be broken " (John x, 35).

May the day be not far distant when the eyes of our Church leaders will be opened to the need of a revision being made in the headings at the top of the chapters of the Old Testament. They are misleading, for it is quite impossible for " the Church " to accept all the promises made to Israel. The error arose with the ancient commentators, but the perpetuity of such errors in these days, when history has taught us much, is a mistake—nay, disastrous.

When will the British remember that God said : " Ye are My witnesses, and My servant whom I have chosen " (Isa. xliii, 10).

Who does this refer to, if not to the British race ?

We British as a race are woefully and wilfully ignorant of our origin, and of our national heritage and ancestry from " Ephraim-Israel."

Probably this ignorance has been ordained by Divine Will in order to carry out God's plan for Israel to pass through the centuries unrecognized as such.

Now that we approach the " last days " of the Christian era the imposed " ignorance " is being gradually lifted, and much of what has been a " sealed book " is opened. " The eyes of the blind shall be opened " we read, therefore, if we will not take our opportunity of enquiring into our national ancestry, we are wilfully blind ! We are given certain " signs " to guide us. Look at the part and position the Anglo-Saxon race take in the world and in the very life of Mankind ! Who are the English ? Why is it that to the Anglo-Saxon people the Bible takes so prominent a place—and is, by them, so widely distributed throughout the heathen world ? Is it not because of its racial heritage from Israel to Israel in perpetuity ? How is it that the Anglo-Saxons so wonderfully fulfil all the characteristics laid down for Israel ? The only answer is that it is proof that God has kept, is keeping, and will keep, all His promises. He further promised that He would appoint a place (i.e., other than Palestine) " for My people Israel," and He promised that the separated House of Judah should walk with (or as in the margin to) the House of Israel for a reunion of the twelve tribes.

It is impossible for anyone, however much he may argue, to prove from God's Word that " The Church " replaced a living literal Israel, which, upon God's oath, was to be an " everlasting Nation," and, in the " last days," was preordained to possess certain fully enumerated characteristics and to occupy certain parts of the Earth.

True the bulk of Churchgoers accept this vague teaching, but only because they have accepted it from their youth up. It will not bear the test of investigation, and therefore is answerable for much of the confusion in the minds of Scholars, Critics and Bible Students generally ; as it is for much of the unbelief in the Bible. These good people cannot, in reading the Old Testament, manage to " square " the promise of Israel and Judah reuniting because, like the ancient Commentators of the early centuries, they know no other Israel than the Jews.

Those who read the Old Testament as meaning what the written words express, can clearly see a foretold history of an Israel speaking another language than Hebrew—as promised by God. So to them the truth of the Prophets and the inspiration of the Bible is assured.

For this sole reason the study of the subject is valuable because it satisfies students in all respects that the English-speaking races of to-day are the actual descendants of the so-called " Lost Ten Tribes " ; and moreover are the " Stone Kingdom " of the Book of Daniel. This proof is sufficient to prevent anyone from becoming an unbeliever, a Higher Critic, or an Agnostic, which is quite a sufficient reply to those who immediately ask : " Well, even if your view is correct, What is the good of being a British-Israelite ? "

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

OUR Tenth Congress was marked by intense zeal and devotion, and by complete harmony. The attendance was up to standard and even beyond, in spite of the absence of many of our regular attendants owing to illness. A large number of new faces were noticed day by day. Representatives were present from various parts of the United Kingdom, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, United States, India, Palestine, and elsewhere. The addresses reached a high level, and several times evoked remarkable outbursts of enthusiastic applause, as for example when definite pronouncements were made as to our attitude in regard to Palestine and Iraq, and the Mandates therefor; also on the question of destructive criticism.

Two of the clergymen on the programme for addresses were prevented from being present on account of having to conduct funerals at the hour when they should have been with us.

Cablegrams of greetings and best wishes were received from Mr. Robeson, Hon. Secretary at Toronto of the Canadian B.-I. Federation, and from the Rev. Dr. McConnell, of Florida, who was w h us last year. Our venerable friend—the Rev. Dr. James Mountain, who was to have presided on the Saturday afternoon—wrote me :—

"MY DEAR FRIEND,

"As my name is on the programme for to-morrow, will you kindly allow me to explain why I cannot be present? I have been on the sick list since Good Friday, and have had to cancel all my engagements. Having two months ago passed my eighty-sixth birthday, I find it difficult to recover strength. But I am still praying and trusting that God will restore me to public work.

"Permit me to say how dear the Federation is to me, and how I wish I could travel far and wide to give forth its blessed Message.

"The Truth for which the Lord has raised and equipped it is great, timely and momentous. It is spreading rapidly through the world; and ere long it will be publicly proclaimed by multitudes who now attack it, or regard it with suspicion. Personally, I am more than ever convinced of the impregnability of our position; and my life, long or short, by tongue and pen, is dedicated to its service as the Call to me from Heaven. Let us keep close to our Lord, faithful to the Gospel of Salvation and the Gospel of the Kingdom, and loyal to the Bible as the Word of God.

"Complete victory is assured, and it is not far off.

"With kindest regards to yourself and all the Brethren,

"Very sincerely yours,

"JAMES MOUNTAIN."

Last week was one of the heaviest we have ever had—five and six meetings a day. Small wonder that some of us were worn out by the time Saturday night arrived. The last public meeting in the Great Hall of the Church House was splendidly attended—a larger audience even than last year. The concluding address by the Rev. Pascoe Goard was a fitting close to a very remarkable week. Hundreds testified to the great benefit and spiritual uplift they had received, and said they were going back to their respective districts with a new inspiration and a new vision.

A feature of the Congress week was the Clerical and Ministerial Conference Sessions, which were held on four forenoons at Headquarters instead of two, as originally planned, all presided over by the Rev. Pascoe Goard, whose addresses made a most profound impression.

More of this will be heard of presently.

"The British Empire: An Instrument in the Hand of God" was the subject of a lecture delivered in Toronto, Canada, on Monday, September 16th, by the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, who very clearly and convincingly showed to a large and enthusiastic audience that every covenant, every promise made by Almighty God to the House of Israel, is being manifestly fulfilled before the eyes of men and angels in the Anglo-Saxon nation to-day.

A very pleasing and encouraging feature was the large number of clergymen and ministers present, who showed much interest by further enquiries into the Truth after the lecture, some promising their support to the work here.

In further reference to the passing on of Mr. Vernon Cooke, referred to in our last issue, we would add: "He retired from the Imperial Police Service, Bombay Presidency, in 1919, with the rank of District Superintendent. His outstanding gifts of discipline, method and order, his facility for languages, his strong yet gentle personality, were used all his life in the service of God, of the King-Emperor, and of his brother-man. His influence radiated from his home outwards. Our friend acted as Treasurer of the Jersey Branch B.-I.-W.F., while his wife and he shared the duties of Joint Honorary Secretary. His work will long be had in remembrance by his brethren in India, in Bedford, and in Jersey. The funeral took place at Marylebone Cemetery, Finchley. The service was read by Rev. E. H. Mocardi, of Bath, a friend of our late brother of forty years' standing. The Secretary-General of the B.-I.-W.F. was represented by Mr. Harrison Hill.

MANITOBA NOTES.

Mr. Norman Thompson writes :—

June 27th: A most successful meeting was held in the historic town of Selkirk, about twenty miles north of Winnipeg, when the Rev. E. J. Springett gave a comprehensive, and yet suitably condensed, outline of British-Israel Truth. This constituted the first public presentation of the subject in that locality, and resulted in a request for another address, arrangements for which are now in progress.

September 3rd: Rev. E. J. Springett addressed a Winnipeg Masonic Lodge on "The 'Why' of the British Empire," a great deal of appreciation being displayed.

September 13th: Rev. Pascoe Goard gave one of his marvellous addresses to a crowded audience in Trinity Hall, Winnipeg, affording a splendid start to the season's work.

Digitized by Google

September 17th: The opening "Social" of the season was held at the home of Mrs. Etches, with its delightful atmosphere of mellowed charm, proving an entirely successful event. Miss Dighton (vocalist) and Miss M. Jones (pianist) contributed to the enjoyment of the evening, and the genial presence of our indefatigable President (Rev. E. J. Springett) ensured a happy frame of mind for all.

The past summer has been notable for the holding of three public meetings, which means a departure from the usual procedure of a blank interval from spring till autumn. Rev. W. R. Johnson also maintained his Bible Study Class throughout this difficult period of the year.

The inaugural meeting of the Branch at Bolton takes place on the 15th of this month in the Spinners' Hall, St. George's Road, when the Rev. Maxwell Carnson, our Commissioner for South Africa, is to give an address, "The British in the Bible," the chair to be taken at 7.30 p.m.

Our Branch at Bradford had a most encouraging start for the winter season on September 27th, when the Rev. R. G. F. Waddington gave a lecture on "The Law of Sinai," a fine logical argument dealing with both the civil and ecclesiastical law.

The Congress continuation meetings are proceeding at Headquarters as we go to press; the Rev. Kenneth Dodds gave a very helpful address on Monday afternoon, and Mr. Henry Iveson gave, in the evening, a most interesting talk on his Eastern tour, with moving pictures taken by himself, including many scenes around the Pyramid, in Palestine, Baalbec, Constantinople, Athens, etc. Meetings will be held on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday evening next at the usual hours.

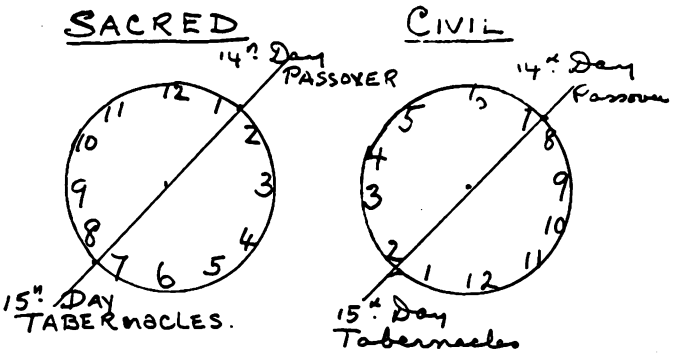
Mr. A. G. Copeland writes:

SIR,—In the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER of January 5th, 1929, you published a most interesting article by F. de P. S., entitled "Theologians Declare Bible Stories are Impossible." The author deals with the Flood, some of its possible causes and the reason for the longevity of the Adamic race prior to the Flood, suggesting that there was then "suspended the water vapours forming a cloak or canopy over the whole earth," and that this "vaporous canopy impeded the action of the sun's actinic rays." Now I take this to mean that the sky was perpetually clouded over, inasmuch as the rainbow was not possible without direct sunlight. I have thought a great deal about this suggestion and mentioned it to several men, but it was not till a few days ago that I thought that it was hardly possible in view of the statement in Genesis i, 14, where "God said, Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven . . . . and let them be for signs and for seasons." This added to the belief, which is strongly held by some, that Enoch was the originator of the signs of the Zodiac, demonstrates that there must have been cloudless times when a view of the sky was possible.

I do not wish to throw the least doubt upon the longevity of the antediluvian people or the Flood, but perhaps some of your readers may be able to throw more light upon this very interesting question.

Miss G. A. Robison writes:



DEAR SIR,—May I point out that, in the issue of NATIONAL MESSAGE of August 10th, in which my article "The Festivals of God in the Ages to Come" appears, the headings and the diagrams have got reversed, and the position of "Passover" and "Tabernacles" in the second.

Passover and Tabernacles should be both in the same position, the difference in the diagram being the number of the month in which it appears.

As the diagram has been printed it contradicts the text.

I was away when the article appeared, and only to-day discovered the mistake.

Trusting that you will print the corrected diagrams as below:

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—VIII.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

WE now turn away from the background of history, and from the foreground of present Empire conditions, to the great and final features of the picture as they have been painted in by the hands of the prophets of Israel. As we do so we shall remember that our Lord declared of the law and the prophets that not a jot nor tittle should pass till all be fulfilled.

In the picture of unfulfilled events we see:—

(a) The restoration of the land of Israel.

(b) The forgiveness of the sins of Israel.

(c) The regeneration of Israel.

(d) The reunion of all the Children of Israel, the companions of Judah.

(e) The reunion of all the Children of Israel, the companions of Ephraim; and—

(f) The final union of the two groups thus formed into the reunited House of TWELVE-TRIBED ISRAEL.

These coming facts are so clearly set forth by the pen of the prophet Ezekiel that we shall transcribe the full text, well knowing that the same space occupied by our restatement of the matters therein contained would fall far short of the brief and emphatic statements of the holy text.

Let it be remembered that the prophecies hereafter quoted have been outstanding now for two thousand five hundred years and more, and that the beginnings of the ful lment of the long-delayed prophecies contained in this text are only now manifestly with us in modern history and contemporary events.

Regarding the restoration of the LAND to Israel. This movement was inaugurated by the Allenby campaign, and was marked by the entry of Britain into possession of the land, and of the Holy City, Jerusalem.

"Also, thou son of man, prophesy unto the mountains of Israel, and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord:

Thus saith the Lord God; Because the enemy hath said against you, Aha, even the ancient high places are our's in possession:

Therefore prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord God; Because they have made you desolate, and swallowed you up on every side, that ye might be a possession unto the residue of the heathen, and ye are taken up in the lips of talkers, and are an infamy of the people:

Therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God; Thus saith the Lord God to the mountains, and to the hills, to the rivers, and to the valleys, to the desolate wastes, and to the cities that are forsaken, which became a prey and derision to the residue of the heathen that are round about;

Therefore thus saith the Lord God; Surely in the fire of my jealousy have I spoken against the residue of the heathen, and against all Idumea, which have appointed my land into their possession with the joy of all their heart, with despiteful minds, to cast it out for a prey.

Prophesy therefore concerning the land of Israel, and say unto the mountains, and to the hills, to the rivers, and to the valleys, Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I have spoken in my jealousy and in my fury, because ye have borne the shame of the heathen:

Therefore thus saith the Lord God; I have lifted up mine hand, Surely the heathen that are about you, they shall bear their shame.

But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people of Israel; for they are at hand to come.

Digitized by Google

For, behold, I am for you, and I will turn unto you, and ye shall be tilled and sown :

And I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, even all of it : and the cities shall be inhabited, and the wastes shall be builded :

And I will multiply upon you man and beast ; and they shall increase and bring fruit : and I will settle you after your old estates, and will do better unto you than at your beginnings : and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

Yea, I will cause men to walk upon you, even my people Israel ; and they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be their inheritance, and thou shalt no more henceforth bereave them of men.

Thus saith the Lord God ; Because they say unto you, Thou land devourest up men, and hast bereaved thy nations ;

Therefore thou shalt devour men no more, neither bereave thy nations any more, saith the Lord God.

Neither will I cause men to hear in thee the shame of the heathen any more, neither shalt thou bear the reproach of the people any more, neither shalt thou cause thy nations to fall any more, saith the Lord God."—(Ezekiel xxxvi, 1-15.)

The next paragraph deals with a phase of fact and truth very important and very interesting to a great many Bible students, and students of British historical development. It deals with the fact of the sinfulness of the Israel nation, and with the LORD'S procedure in that regard. A great many are looking for horrible disasters to fall upon us because of our national sins. God knows we deserve that such should be the case. But the mercy of the Lord is extended without vindictiveness. So we see the provision for Israel's forgiveness and cleansing by an act of Divine constructive Grace.

"Moreover the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

Son of man, when the house of Israel dwelt in their own land, they defiled it by their own way and by their doings : their way was before me as the uncleanness of a removed woman.

Wherefore I poured my fury upon them for the blood that they had shed upon the land, and for their idols wherewith they had polluted it :

And I scattered them among the heathen, and they were dispersed through the countries : according to their way and according to their doings I judged them.

And when they entered unto the heathen, whither they went, they profaned my holy name, when they said to them, These are the people of the Lord, and are gone forth out of his land.

But I had pity for mine holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the heathen, whither they went.

Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God ; I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for mine holy name's sake, which ye have profaned among the heathen, whither ye went.

And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the heathen, which ye have profaned in the midst of them ; and the heathen shall know that I am the Lord, saith the Lord God, when I shall be sanctified in you before their eyes.

For I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land.

Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean : from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you.

A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you : and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.

And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them.

And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers ; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.

I will also save you from all your uncleannesses : and I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and lay no famine upon you.

And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye shall receive no more reproach of famine among the heathen.

Then shall ye remember your own evil ways, and your doings that were not good, and shall lothe yourselves in your own sight for your iniquities and for your abominations.

Not for your sakes do I this, saith the Lord God, be it known unto you : be ashamed and confounded for your own ways, O house of Israel.

Thus saith the Lord God ; In the day that I shall have cleansed you from all your iniquities I will also cause you to dwell in the cities, and the wastes shall be builded.

And the desolate land shall be tilled, whereas it lay desolate in the sight of all that passed by.

And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the garden of Eden ; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are become fenced, and are inhabited.

Then the heathen that are left round about you shall know that I the Lord build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate : I the Lord have spoken it, and I will do it.

Thus saith the Lord God ; I will yet for this be enquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them ; I will increase them with men like a flock.

As the holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts ; so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men : and they shall know that I am the Lord."—(Ezekiel xxxvi, 16-38.)

Now comes the graphic statement of the fact of future history, soon to be present history, of Israel's resurrection.

"The hand of the Lord was upon me, and carried me out in the spirit of the Lord, and set me down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones,

And caused me to pass by them round about : and, behold, there were very many in the open valley ; and, lo, they were very dry.

And he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live ? And I answered, O Lord God, thou knowest.

Again he said unto me, Prophesy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord.

Thus saith the Lord God unto these bones ; Behold, I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live :

And I will lay sinews upon you, and will bring up flesh upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, and ye shall live ; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

So I prophesied as I was commanded : and as I prophesied, there was a noise, and behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to his bone.

And when I beheld, lo, the sinews and the flesh came up upon them, and the skin covered them above : but there was no breath in them.

Then said he unto me, Prophesy unto the wind, prophesy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord God ; Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live.

So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army.

Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel : behold, they say, Our bones are dried, and our hope is lost : we are cut off for our parts.

Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God ; Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel.

And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves,

And shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the Lord have spoken it, and performed it, saith the Lord."—(Ezekiel xxxvii, 1-14.)

The foregoing resurrection from the dead is manifestly caused by the reviving hope of Israel, who had deemed themselves "cut off," produced by a special movement of the Holy Spirit.

And now comes that part of the prophecy which deals exactly with the point we have reached in this article, namely, the unification of Judah; the unification of Ephraim; and then the amalgamation of both.

Let those who have knowledge of the Judah world tell this story in full. Let those who do not fully know the story turn to the Jewish encyclopedias and other sources of literature as he may be able to get access to them. He will find that the present Jewish world is being indeed fully organized and gathered around the "stick in the hands of Judah."

He will find the bulk of the Judah people already Christian, and incorporated in British and other European nations, but still racially one among themselves.

He will find the Jewish communities organized under their Cahilla system, and operating under the directing minds of their race.

He will find the Jews on the march, NOT TOWARDS PALESTINE, but towards the Anglo-Saxon lands. Into these lands they have migrated by the million since the Armistice was signed. The mobilization of Jewry is far on the way.

The prophecy now passes on to state the mobilization of the Anglo-Saxon world under the standard of Ephraim.

Half of the Anglo-Saxon world is now under that standard, i.e., the Union Jack. Half of the Anglo-Saxon world is under the Stars and Stripes. Now there is the beginnings of a rapprochement between the two branches of the people. It is significant that as we pen these lines the Premier of Great Britain is on the sea on his way, by invitation, to visit the President of the United States, with a view to finding a platform of mutual action and mutual expression. Doubtless the daily Press of the next few weeks will have an interesting story to tell.

Thus on the wheel of the Great Potter is placed the mightiest lump of Israel clay that He has ever undertaken to mould into a vessel "such as it pleased the Potter to make it." The wheel is turning at the impulse of the Potter's foot, and the hand of the Potter is beginning to mould the mightiest vessel of the finest ware ever constructed.

Out of this moulding will come ANGLO-SAXON unity. It is the same process we have seen before, but on the largest scale.

Having made these two amalgamations, that of Judah and all his companions, and that of Ephraim and all his companions, these two sticks, Judah and Ephraim, are to be brought together, and the two nations are to become one in the hand of the Lord.

What an unity, of what a nation! All of Anglo-Saxondom, plus all of Judah; and all purified and inspired with the Spirit Divine.

Think what it will mean from a physical standpoint when all the resources of the Empire of Britain and the Republic of the U.S.A. are pooled. Add to this the wealth of both, plus that of the Judah world. Apply to the development of these the energy and experience of all these branches of the race, and these purified and inspired as the foregoing Scriptures foreshow, and the Civilization which will emerge will be of an order not hitherto known upon the earth.

Apply the power and wisdom of this great unity of people to the solving of world problems, and there will soon remain no problems to be solved except such as are inherent in human nature, and in nature itself.

CONGRESS NOTES.

BY J. J. M.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

LT.-COL. G. F. A. SMYTHE presided. After hymn and prayer the Chairman referred to the intense bitterness which is shown by many opponents of our teaching. This is largely caused by our attitude towards the Kingship of Christ. There is a strong hatred and an age-long conflict between Satan's agencies and the throne of David, because that throne is to be the throne of our Lord.

This hatred showed its power at various points in our Lord's life and resurrection, and doubtless is still existent and active.

REV. HECTOR MACTURK, M.A., reminded us that in our Book of Common Prayer we speak of ourselves as "brethren," a term used in the Bible of those who were Israelites indeed.

It is common in our Churches to speak of "the end of the world," but such statements always mean "the end of the age," for the Scriptures never speak of the end of the world, as is erroneously supposed. Several texts were quoted where this correction is necessary. The term "world without end" is often used in the Bible, and gives a contradiction to the usual belief.

We have plenty of modern scholarship; we need more intelligence.

It is plain that the age is closing, but there is another age to follow, and the world will go on.

We believe in the return of the Lord to reign, and the term "life everlasting" means "the life of the age to come."

The Bible is full of references to this great age which is soon to dawn. The early Church for 300 years understood the millennial teaching of Scripture in a literal sense, and our modern teachers will do well to study the writings of the Apostles and early Fathers on this question.

MR. JOHN LEECH, M.A., K.C., spoke of the calling of God to His people Israel. Thoughtless people ask "What good is British-Israel?" They must have a very hazy idea of the blessings God has bestowed upon His people.

The speaker then traced the pedigree of Israel from God to Adam, Seth, Noah, down to Abraham. At Sinai Israel was formed into a nation, especially blessed and called of God, and then raised to the position of "children of the Most High."

Digitized by Google

They were separated from other nations, called out, and made "holy" or "dedicated" to God.

Isolation with God is perfectly safe, and much to be desired. God chose Israel, and He has a right to do so. All down the ages he chose men for special work, and He has chosen one nation and people for His special purpose. Call it favouritism if you like, but it stands. We believe in the choice of Israel because the Bible states it, and the Bible must be true: "Jacob have I loved." Having chosen, God bestowed His love upon Israel. Not for any merit in them, but from pure Divine love, and because He was faithful to the promise made to His servant Abraham. This love brought Israel into the close relationship of father and child. A man cannot live up to his position until he knows what that position is. So with Israel-Britain to-day: called to be God's children, but living carelessly in disobedience. When Israel became prodigals the love of God remained true. He did not wholly cast them off, but disciplined them and brought them back by a way which they knew not. He promised them a re-gathering and restoration. Mr. Leech read many delightful Scriptures illustrating these great truths. The story of Israel's repentance is foretold as the return of a wayward child to his father. The family is restored, forgiven, reconciled, and once more lives in harmony in their own land under Christ their King. In the New Testament the same relationship is taught of Israel. The statement of Caiaphas, St. Paul writing to the Romans, the Parable of the Prodigal Son and other passages show that Israel is still regarded as God's children.

The speaker showed that personal faith in Jesus Christ is necessary to salvation. Some branches of the olive tree were broken off because of unbelief, and so can it be with any who are children of God by their Israel inheritance.

REV. PASCOE GOARD said that the British-Israel ploughshare is ploughing deeply through all the depths of Biblical knowledge. God did choose a race, but He had first created it for a special purpose. History has confirmed the choice, when we compare the life and work of Israel with that of any other nation on earth.

Mr. Goard then read the passage referring to the land of Palestine given in Ezekiel xxxvi. Forty years ago God began to uproot the families of Britain by great upheavals, breaking down of long tenancies, everybody ready for change, for God is going to take them back to their own land. Ezekiel's passage has been waiting for ages for the time to come, and now it has arrived. The Jews will never be a nation, but a leading tribe in the new Israel Kingdom. Palestine for the Jews! No, only in connection with Britain, restored to her own land.

God made no mistake in 1917 when our General Allenby marched into Jerusalem, and He is making no mistake to-day.

The conflict is one between the law of Islam and the law of the Talmud, and the British are bringing in the law of the Lord, which would break down the hatred which exists.

It is a ripple at the present time. God is preparing for a great movement which is steadily but surely coming. Palestine will remain in our possession until the Lord comes.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

A large company assembled to hear Mr. Herbert Garrison's lecture on "CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA." Among the audience were a large number of ex-Service men of the Old Contemptibles' Association, by special invitation. The Rev. Pascoe Goard presided, and in suitable terms introduced Mr. Garrison as a great traveller and Empire lecturer.

Mr. Garrison has an unique experience as a public lecturer for over forty years, and on this occasion rose to great heights in his glowing descriptions of the cities, wheat-lands, rivers, mountains, waterfalls, railways, industries, etc., of the great Dominion of Canada.

He took his audience on a most delightful tour, superbly illustrated by a very fine series of pictures, and described in word-pictures in perfect keeping with those depicted on the screen.

On his recent tour he has been deeply impressed by the vast possibilities of that great country, and also by the U.S.A., of which he also spoke. He has had special opportunities of gathering important information as to actual developments going on in connection with our Movement, and his report of this visit is of great value to us. There is a pressing demand everywhere for our teaching across the whole of the North-American Continent, and considerable progress of our Truth in that land is in sight.

The lecture was a great success, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

REV. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A., next occupied the chair, and spoke of the opening verses of Genesis. He said it should read: "In beginning God created the earth and its environments." His running commentary on the Creation verses was most illuminating, and showed how true the description is to the best science of to-day.

The creative power of God is to be seen in every step of the Creation story.

Thank God for the Bible, and for the great Society which is sending it out to all nations. Thank God, too, for the Covenant Publishing Co., which is spreading clearer light upon the Bible than ever before. Speaking of the term "saints" the Chairman said the word is used in Scripture of Israel and of Israelites indeed, but never is it applied to the departed ones, canonized and worshipped by enthusiasts of a well-known Gentile religion.

REV. PASCOE GOARD said it was truly a wonderful force which had brought us all together from all parts of the Empire. Not human personality, but the Spirit of God had done it; and the Bible, as a powerful magnet, in the midst of us.

THE BALFOUR DECLARATION

can only stand as far as it is in accord with the statement of Jehovah, revealed to His prophets. We are marching on to-day strictly in agreement with those Divine revelations. Mr. Goard then turned to the latter portion of Ezekiel xxxvi, from verse 16. This is God's proclamation, and reiterates the blessing of the New Covenant. It is the promise of salvation and cleansing of the Israel nation of to-day.

Digitized by Google

We are called to repentance by Jehovah. He is going to do it, and Israel will respond. The only condition is that "He will be enquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them." Let us take up God's challenge; let us fulfil the condition. The appeal is not to the leaders only; it is to the people. There are evidences of God's presence amongst us, healing the sick, and proving that He is near to us. He is encouraging us to enquire further, and to take Him at His word. We are calling the nation to repentance that God may bring to completion His great work of salvation and restoration.

Mr. Herbert Garrison was convinced that there was a great need of our teaching in our land at the present time. When we look around at the spiritual declension we are sure there are thousands who want just the uplift and comfort which our teaching brings. God is working His purposes out, and we wait in patience and confidence. The evidences for our Truth are piled up like a lawyer states that it is sufficient to satisfy any Court of Law.

Every British-Israelite is better in many ways for his knowledge and faith in our teaching. The fact that the Divine blessing is upon our work is a powerful evidence of the truth and importance of our Movement.

The keen opposition which meets our efforts from un-Christian quarters is another evidence of the truth of our claims.

Our active critics are often men who admit they have never really studied the question. Mr. Garrison read striking statements from bishops and leading ministers supporting our Movement.

Rev. Maxwell Carnson was proud of the great message God has given to us, and proud of the work entrusted to our care. He was also glad to be the first missionary sent out from the Homeland to South Africa. He valued the Chairman's remark: "Always go back to Genesis." The Apostles did it, and the motto is good to-day. All the New Testament writers go back to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob for much of their argument, and our Lord does exactly the same. The early Apostles preached Jesus from the Old Testament, as Philip did to the eunuch. The Bible is a unity. In the Old Testament a Kingdom is established, and before the Book closes its redemption is foretold. The New Testament gives the story of that redemption and of the return of that Kingdom to God the Father, and then describes the re-establishment of the Kingdom with Christ as King. Mr. Carnson then outlined the many features by which that Kingdom-nation can be identified. He showed that each prophet saw some of those features, and by reading them all the complete portrait can be seen. All these Bible descriptions of Israel exactly fit the British Empire of to-day. If not, some other claimant will arise and claim all the great inheritance God has given to us, and this is evidently impossible.

Rev. Guy Waddington, M.A., spoke of "the Law of the Lord." Numberless beliefs claim the Bible as their foundation; rivals, quarrelling with each other, yet all claiming Bible authority. They cannot all be right. How are we to know what is right?

It does not matter what men say about the Bible; it only matters what the Bible itself says. It alone counts. Our English versions are the most accurate in existence and sufficient. In Exodus xix God says many definite things concerning Israel. Not a matter of interpretation, not of opinion, but a plain statement in which God declares His intentions concerning a literal nation, gathered at Sinai. These things cannot be spiritualized. Israel was there, the land, the law were all there to be seen. And the King, where was He? Jehovah was there too. The Bible says so, and the statement should not be doubted. The Bible clearly says Jehovah was the King of Israel.

If you try to give these words any other meaning you are contradicting the Bible. If you will take the Bible at its face value you will be bound to come to British-Israel Truth.

Let the Bible explain itself. Turn up the references from a Concordance. God is His own interpreter. Take the Ten Commandments. Rome omits the second, and is thus a perverter of God's Word. "Thou shalt not" is a necessity in all wise training. Parents must use it still as God used it. Israel needed definite training, like a child, a lawyer, a doctor needs training. Israel began by being set apart, and God took them in hand and trained them for their special service.

Thursday Evening.

Mr. Herbert Garrison presided and apologized for the absence of Mr. W. H. Hesketh, J.P., and, after some introductory remarks, introduced the Rev. Gregory Bestall as the first speaker.

Mr. Bestall asked the question "What is it all about?" He wanted to start someone on this way, and he was sure they would follow on.

1. It is about you.—You are an Israelite and perhaps do not know. You can be of Israel without being a Jew. Those who mix Israel and Judah fail to understand seven-eighths of the Scriptures, the Word of God, and the final authority on all vital matters.

2. Individual salvation.—There is no truth in the charge that British-Israelites are more concerned in a material kingdom than about individual salvation. We believe in the personal evangel, and preach it.

3. Christ's Kingdom on earth.—We are custodians of a great revelation concerning the Kingdom of God on earth, the throne of David and the reign of Christ, which is fast approaching its consummation.

4. The Stone of Destiny.—The Stone which was removed from ancient Ireland to Scotland, and then to Westminster, where it rests in the British Coronation Chair. It is the Stone of Israel, Jacob's pillow, the emblem of the Stone Kingdom.

5. Faith in God.—In God's faithfulness, in the truth of the Bible, and in Jesus Christ our Lord.

Faith is our sixth sense, and a tremendous power in life.

Not only an intellectual asset, but a vital, active, courageous force which will dare and strive and win the world for Christ.

The speaker urged all to act in faith, and help; do something, push and lift and make God's work go ahead.

MR. DAVID DAVIDSON, M.C., the well-known exponent of the Great Pyramid, then rose to speak and received a great ovation.

For an hour he spoke with wonderful force of the symbolism of the Pyramid, and all were deeply impressed by his unusual skill and his undoubted conviction.

REV. PASCOE GOARD followed, and thanked Mr. Davidson for the wonderful service he has rendered to the world, confirming the Word of God by his expositions of Pyramid teaching. Jacob selected a stone for his pillow, slept and dreamed. He saw a ladder resting on the earth, and we must recognize the base of the ladder still on the earth by which we may climb to Heaven.

Referring to Nebuchadnezzar's image of gold, he said the gold standard of materialism commenced here.

In 2,520 years this image period will terminate, and a great crash of the materialistic standards is imminent. The nobleman in the parable delivered unto His ten servants His goods, or money. He will come to reckon with them to see how much they have made by trading. Israel's auditing time has come. We must turn to spiritual values and cast aside the material.

Taking up again the chapters of Ezekiel already spoken of, Mr. Goard reminded us that we are experiencing Bible fulfilments just as surely and correctly as we are seeing fulfilments of Pyramid prophecies.

Mr. Davidson sees a great spiritual awakening near; Ezekiel tells the same story in chapter xxxvi.

The time of our cleansing is coming. Let us respond to the united call from the Pyramid and Scripture.

Mr. Goard then read the vision of the dry bones in Ezekiel xxxvii, which definitely foresees the coming to life of the House of Israel—just the same story continued.

As a race we are largely dead and dry in materialism, but the wind of the Spirit is beginning to blow upon them, breathing upon them, and a second time man becomes a living soul. New life is possible if we make it possible. In forceful words we were brought right up to the means of grace.

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

MONDAY AFTERNOON, SEPTEMBER 30TH.

RULING WITH GOD.

MAJOR J. KNOWLES (Chairman) said: Ladies and gentlemen, I am sure you would like us to do what we have always done in past years, and that is, to send a telegram to His Majesty King George, conveying our loyal and respectful greetings, and thanking God for his recovery from a serious illness.

The next thing I wish to do this afternoon is to congratulate our Secretary-General and Mrs. Garrison on their recent very successful tour to Canada and the United States. We are delighted that they had such a wonderful trip, and we know that they have done very great work on our behalf on the other side of the Atlantic. We have received many letters of congratulation showing how splendid has been their work, and how much Mr. Garrison's addresses and lectures have been appreciated by our fellow-workers on the other side. I would also like to say, on your behalf, how very pleased we are to see our dear friend and teacher, the Rev. Pascoe Goard, safely back amongst us again; we are only sorry that he was unable to bring Mrs. Goard with him.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, perhaps you would like me to say just a few words on what we British-Israelites stand for. First of all I should like to say that we are not endeavouring to establish any new sect, but we wish to work in harmony with all the great Protestant denominations of this country. I say "Protestant," because we cannot, of course, associate ourselves with the Roman Catholic Church, with which we have nothing in common, though we may have friends amongst the Roman Catholics.

We have the greatest admiration for the work which has been done, and is being done, by the various Churches at the present time, and we recognize that so much of the good which is being done in this country is being done by earnest Christian people, led by the Church.

The Church has, however, so far only promulgated the Gospel of Salvation through Jesus Christ. We, too, lay the greatest stress on this all-important Gospel. Please remember we place that first, as all Christian people must. No individual can attain his own personal salvation merely by virtue of being born an Israelite: the advantages of being born of that race are of a totally different character, though they are very substantial. But we add to the Gospel of Salvation the Gospel of the Kingdom of God upon earth, which Gospel Christ, prior to His resurrection, commissioned His disciples to preach. This Kingdom is the same as that which God set up in the wilderness, as described in Exodus xix. It is an everlasting Kingdom, destined eventually to embrace the whole world. But, owing to the disobedience of the people to God's law, the nation's growth has not been uniform. Up to the time of King David it expanded, but under later kings it fell away for many centuries, until it was at last lost sight of. During this period it went through many trials and tribulations, until at last, in our time, it emerged as the greatest Empire the world has ever known, namely, the British Empire. It is now a going concern, just as much as it was when it was originally set up, and it is of infinitely greater importance in the world. It is by far the most beneficent institution that has ever been formed, and its downfall would be equivalent to the downfall of modern civilization. We teach, therefore, that the Gospel of the Kingdom of God on earth is second only to the Gospel of Salvation. And if, and when, the Church accepts our view, as we believe it will, it will enormously add to its influence among the nations as a whole. When our leaders realize that this nation is indeed God's Israel, a word which means "ruling with Christ," they will immensely increase their influence for good. I am glad to say that many of them realize this fact. The number of those who are accepting our teaching is steadily increasing. It has recently been said that the best workers in the parishes are those who believe in British-Israel teaching. I hope those enquirers who are here this afternoon for the first time will not go away saying that they cannot understand what it is all about. You will understand that it is impossible to cover the whole field in one or two short addresses. It is a very big subject, and one which I would urge you to study for yourselves at home. There are books available at the Bookstall which will be a great help to you in studying this subject. We hope you will attend as many of the meetings this week as you can, when you will have the opportunity of hearing the subject dealt with from many different angles by different speakers.

The Touchstone of the Arch of Truth.

By the Rev. Wm. Pascoe Goard.

Major Knowles, fathers and brethren of the Movement, fellow citizens of the great Commonwealth of Israel,—It is with long anticipated delight that we find ourselves together again this afternoon. We are assembled here from a very wide area of Anglo-Saxondom—from the Dominions Overseas, from the U.S.A., from the odd corners of the earth, and from the various parts of the Motherland. This is not the only kind of gathering in which there are people from such far-distant quarters. Out yonder across the seas we run across friends that weeks before we met in this Hall, in Birmingham, in Liverpool, or elsewhere in the old land. They say, "We are delighted to meet you again." Out yonder in the West we meet with British-Israelites from the South who have come up from Australia and New Zealand to enjoy the hospitality of the Canadian Dominion for a little while. And down yonder in South Africa Mr. Carnson has been meeting wandering Israelites from all parts of the Anglo-Saxon world.

Now, I bring to you greetings from the great Dominion of Canada, which Mr. Garrison will tell you about on Wednesday evening. Let me put it to you like this. Supposing that yesterday morning we started from Montreal, to-day we would be in Toronto; when we gather to-morrow afternoon or evening we should have reached Winnipeg in our progress; and when on Wednesday evening we gather, our train would have reached Calgary, and by Thursday evening or Friday morning we should have arrived in the port of Vancouver; and by Saturday morning we should be at the western gate of the Empire in Victoria. And so the journey would be about equal in time to the length of this Congress which will be held in this Hall during this week. God has given us a wonderful heritage. From that queenly Victoria encircled by the waters of the Pacific, from the metropolitan Vancouver, from that thriving Alberta city of Calgary, from the capital of Saskatchewan, Regina, from the capital of Manitoba, Winnipeg, from the queenly capital of Ontario, Toronto, and from the capital of that Empire State, Quebec—we bring to you this afternoon messages which have been moved and seconded and carried with wonderful enthusiasm, with the demand that I should be the messenger to bring their greetings to you assembled this afternoon. The same is true of America, of Australia, of New Zealand, of Africa, and wherever Anglo-Saxons dwell. The rising chorus of praise to Almighty God is marking the advance of that glorious Truth for which we stand, and, as yet, as an organization, stand alone.

Now, I am of the opinion that this afternoon you are not desirous of hearing of what we are doing, or where we are doing it, but rather of that for which we stand in the way of doctrine and truth; and in the time at our disposal I will try to bring that to your notice. Will you allow me to say, after having carefully considered and discussed the matter with friends of mine on both sides of the Atlantic, that I believe Almighty God has given into our hands—not exclusively, for it is the privilege of all the Churches, but we have taken the privilege, that is all, which they will take to-morrow—I believe that God has given to us in charge the keystone of the arch which constitutes the political situation of the day. Now I could and shall during the coming meetings say something in regard to the national and international situation, but this afternoon I want to face for a moment or two the theological situation of the day. There is not a sincere and well-informed minister of the Word to-day who is not concerned, and greatly concerned, over the theological divisions and contests that are being carried on within the Church of Christ in Protestant and Anglo-Saxon lands. We have been born into a situation where the community was divided into different denominations, but these denominations were very largely the accidents of Church history in our midst. Fundamentally, from the standpoint of theology, all the standard denominations stood for the same field of truth. You could go into any one of the standard churches when I was a boy, and you could depend upon this, that whether the minister of the Word was clothed in white or black, whether he carried through the liturgy of Common Prayer, or no liturgy at all, he would present to you some phase of the truth in which all the denominations agree. But that is not the case to-day. We are uniting as to denominations, but we are being riven from top to bottom doctrinally. The alignment of group over against group, and often of group in conflict with group, is exceedingly important at the present moment to illustrate how far that has gone.

In the United States, a group called the Modernists and another group called the Fundamentalists—names that were chosen by themselves—found themselves in such antagonism that they ended by bringing the matter into the Law Courts. Now what they did in the Law Courts, what the pleadings were, what the judgment was, is not important to us this afternoon, but this is the important thing that one group of Christian believers and another group were so diametrically opposed that they went to a secular Court to settle an ecclesiastical difficulty in regard to truth. We are divided then.

The position of the one group, taken by itself, is ominous. For this group, I won't name it, declares that there is no miracle force operating in connection with human experience or with natural phenomena at the present time, nothing of miracle, nothing superhuman, nothing that is essentially of the Deity, not of humanity, operating in the experience of men or nations or in the realm of natural phenomena. That is a very important statement to make, and a very important position to occupy. Was Jesus Christ miraculously born? They say, It does not matter. Doesn't it? Ask that question again. Is the child of God a miraculously-born person? It does not matter, they say. Doesn't it? Question that once again. Is this a miracle Book? A vital question. And the principle that underlies it is carried out in the realm of nature, in the realm of experience, in the realm of grace. There is the position that has been by some means or another reached and occupied by a strong group at the present moment.

Digitized by Google

Standing over against that is the other position, that everything that is essential is based on miracle power, acting in the realm of individual, national and Church experience, and in the realm of natural phenomena. Is that your declaration of faith? Yes. Then demonstrate it. That is a demand that ought to be made. There is a field of demonstration open. How shall it be demonstrated? There we have a rift in the arch that looks as though the temple of truth were falling.

Now, the position that I take is this, that Almighty God has given into our hands and that the replacing of that keystone of that arch stands foursquare, and that the replacement of the keystone of the arch of truth must be admitted, on the one hand, and from a human knowledge of the facts, and conclusions logically drawn therefrom; and, on the other hand, by the demonstration of the miracle power of Divine grace; so that, by the grace of God, we reach out to these warring factions, and we say, "This is the meeting-place; meeting under this keystone of the arch of truth, you will find that you Evangelicals are Modernists, that is to say, in knowledge of up-to-date facts, and you Modernists must of necessity become Evangelicals and share the experience which comes from a knowledge of this Book, and admit that this is indeed the finger of God."

Now, then, what is the keystone of that arch? Now in order to illustrate this I have selected three men as representing Anglo-Saxon society and leaders of theological thought. Among the working-classes of Anglo-Saxondom on both sides of the Atlantic the voice of Tom Paine rang out. "Here you have a Book, and in that Book you have the record of a nation called Israel. There was, as a matter of fact, an historic nation, of Israel, which continued to occupy Palestine as its dwelling-place from about 1500 B.C. down to 740 B.C. Now in this Book there are recorded covenants made with that nation, not with other nations, not with the world general, but with that nation. In this Book there are promises made to that nation. In this Book there are prophecies made concerning that nation. The importance of the covenants, promises and prophecies contained in this Book and made to that nation is such that this Book itself must stand or fall by modern verification of those ancient documents. Now, then, there was an historic nation over yonder in Palestine; to that nation were made promises, with that nation covenants were entered into, and concerning that nation there were prophecies. Now ages have rolled by. It is time that that nation appeared upon the stage of human history. But where is the nation? Oh," said Tom Paine, "the nation has disappeared. The covenants have gone, the promises have been broken, the prophecies are unfulfilled. No more of that Book for me." You know of the multitude that followed that man in the ranks of the workers of Britain and America.

Then there was another who we will select as representing the professional and middle classes, Charles Bradlaugh. He covered exactly the same ground. "There was an historic nation; there were covenants, there were promises, and there were prophecies. But where is that nation to-day? Gone. No more of that Book for me," said Bradlaugh. And you know of the multitude that followed him.

Let us come to the University world, to the Regius Professor of Hebrew at Oxford—Dr. Driver. In examining these things he reached the same conclusion, and made an admission in his ignorance which has infinitely damaged the Church at large during the last generation, when he said it must be manifest to all that many of the promises made to the Northern Kingdom of Israel have never been fulfilled, and that now conditions have so changed they never can be fulfilled. Because of that position, because of the opening of those flood-gates, the Universities were deluged with Modernism. German philosophy was introduced, and the result is the stagnation from the spiritual standpoint in the Anglo-Saxon Church at the present time.

Well, what is our contribution? We say, Hold on. Examine your facts before you draw your conclusions. You are building upon a fallacy and not a fact. Tom Paine built upon the fallacy that Israel had disappeared. Bradlaugh built upon the fallacy that Israel had disappeared. Dr. Driver built upon the fallacy that Israel had disappeared. Whereas the fact of the case is that Israel has been marching on, clear as the sun, bright as the moon, terrible as an army with banners, sweeping on upon the prophetic pathway, enjoying the covenants, fulfilling the prophecies, and realizing the keeping of the promises to the present day. Why did these men fall into this error? Because they were taught from their childhood that the promises of God were given to Judah. God has given to Judah a place in His plan, a place in the sacred Scriptures, a place in His heart and law, but He has not given them Israel's place. He marches on fulfilling his own prophecies and marching to his own destiny. But just as clearly as there is the invisible boundary line between Canada and the United States, and between France and Germany, so Judah marches in his own nationality, and we march here.

Now let those scholars call to mind the fact, which they know quite well, that in the Israel of Isaiah, of Jeremiah, of Ezekiel, of Daniel, of the Minor Prophets, of the Evangels of our Lord and of the Epistles, there was no tribe of Judah. That is not merely a conclusion, it is a statement of fact. Yet, notwithstanding that fact, this is where they went astray. Tom Paine looked to Judah for the fulfilment of Israel prophecy. Bradlaugh looked to Judah for the fulfilment of Israel prophecy. Dr. Driver looked to Judah for the fulfilment of Israel prophecy. The Modernist world is looking to Judah for the fulfilment of Israel prophecy. And the Evangelicals, more confidently than all of them put together, look upon Judah as Israel. Now Judah is Judah, a diadem in the hand of God, but Judah is not Israel. Said a Jew to me in Toronto, "I am a Jew. I am of the tribe of Levi. You are Teutonic. You are the same as the Germans." "Do you know the Germans?" I asked. He had come from Germany, and he replied, "Yes." "Do you know this," I said, "you can wear an Englishman's hat, but you cannot wear a German's." He knew instantly what I meant. After a few moments of conversation more he said, "We are of Judah and Levi, two tribes." "And we are the other Ten," was my reply. "Then I will shake hands with you on that," he said.

IN ISRAEL THERE WAS NO TRIBE OF JUDAH.

Israel is a non-Judah people. Manifestly to look for the fulfilment of Israel prophecy in the Judah people is fallacy. Paine went wrong there ; Bradlaugh went wrong there ; Driver went wrong there. We are driven back to the fact that the Israel of prophecy, marching out of the histories of the past, is the great Commonwealth to which you and I belong to-day, carrying, as it does, every mark, enjoying every promise, fulfilling every prophecy, and marching on to the glorious destiny of preparing the world for the Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Here we have the keystone of the arch of truth. We find that the history of this race and of this people has been written in outline and in detail in this glorious Book, and it is absolutely impossible for any logical, well-informed mind to read the prophecies here, and the answer of Anglo-Saxon history, without saying, " This is indeed the finger of God." So that the task we have in hand to-day is nothing less than restoring and demonstrating the face value of the Divine inspiration of that glorious Book, and of the fact that God is in His Israel still.

THE REV. MAXWELL CARNSON, F.R.G.S., F.R.S.A.

I have the privilege of bringing to you similar greetings to those that have been brought to you from the great Dominion of the West by Mr. Goard. I bring you greeting from Cape Town, and Natal, and from as far north as the Zambesi. You will find in my vast area an increasing number of people who are beginning to look at history, at modern day life, and at the ancient literature which we call the Bible, through British-Israel eyes. And from all those scattered parts prayers are being offered for the success of this Congress, upon which we in South Africa, particularly, feel so much depends. I am glad to say that in the audience we have other representatives from South Africa, and we are very glad to see them here.

What one has to do with regard to the word " British " in South Africa is continually to emphasize the fact that the word " British " is not so much racial as religious, that the " Covenant People " are very much more important, shall I say, than the British people in the national sense ; that we who by reason of our birth, and increasingly by reason of intellectual assent, are realizing our Covenant relations with God, are the people who will carry out the will and purpose of God on the ground of His Word even more than on the ground of our racial descent. When you can go to the varied sections of a country like South Africa and bring to those warring factions the pacifying influence of the Word of God, on which both sections have been built up, when you go with the pacifying influence of the Word of God to the warring factions of one nation, and begin to see all the political and racial antagonisms dying away, then you have something of the sense of Empire building which comes to us who stand for British-Israel Truth in South Africa.

The second difficulty is with regard to this word " Israel " with which Mr. Goard has been dealing. I was billed to lecture in a seaside town on the Sunday evening at the close of the usual Sunday services, and I was billed to speak on British-Israel Truth. I arrived in the town on the Saturday, and a minister looked me up at the hotel and asked me if I would take the Sunday evening service in his Church. I consented to do so, and at the close of the service one of the Church officials came to me, having noticed the bills in the town announcing my lecture, and seeing that I was a British-Israel Commissioner, and he said, " Mr. Carnson, I am glad to have heard you to-night. You are the second gentleman of your race that I have seen in a Christian pulpit." One could forgive him for making such a mistake in a country where the Jew is so prominent as he is in South Africa. The word " Israel," until you have educated people up to it, is a little difficult to have to deal with.

I have a great belief, based upon personal experience, that the God Who picked me out from the south-east of London and landed me in South Africa is a God Who put me there for a definite purpose, and that purpose He will carry out until it is achieved, either through my personal instrumentality, or through those whom He has also called to work with me. I have made this discovery, that the God of the Bible is a God Who, when He promises, always fulfils.

Bishop Barnes says Fundamentalism is the product of ignorance and fear. To-day, after a fair number of years' study of this question, my ignorance must be colossal, and my fear must be making me tremble in every limb, because I AM A FUNDAMENTALIST from top to toe, and from back to front, and all the way through. I am told also that our young people are dissatisfied with Fundamentalism, and all that Fundamentalism implies, because it does not allow them to go freely to the Bible, to take what satisfies their spiritual needs, and to leave the rest. But it is all a question of how much they are going to leave. It is a question of how far your spiritual digestion works in these matters if you are at liberty to take what you want for your spiritual needs. There are some people who can feed their souls on Plasmon biscuits, and there are others who need a beaf-steak pudding. And you cannot decide for yourselves ; your spiritual advisers do not allow you to decide what you shall leave ; they decide that for you. A minister up in the North told his congregation a short time ago that " You are, of course, at liberty to accept certain of the miracles, but no one can accept the miracle of the Feeding of the Five Thousand." I thought I could, but I am told by a doctor of philosophy that I cannot. I am in a difficulty ; I want to know where I am in these things. It comes to this, you are not allowed to-day to go to the Bible freely to take what satisfies your own spiritual needs ; you must go to the Bible to take just those parts of the Bible that your doctor of philosophy tells you you shall take—and neither more nor less. The unfortunate part of it is that all the physicians of souls who deal with the Bible piecemeal have different dietaries to offer you, and among themselves they are not able to lay down a clear outline of that which shall be accepted and that which shall not. Here, of course, we overstep all denominational differences. But when the Modernist School can come to us as a Church and say, " Thus far shalt thou go and no farther," then we shall see what they have allowed us to keep of the everlasting Word of God, and they will probably put the rest in the British Museum as a monument of the exploded hopes and ambitions of a previous generation. But it all depends on what kind of a God you have, and my God has been revealed to me in His Word and in experience as the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. And I am rather interested in fatherhood. For this reason, my own father, a minister of over fifty years' standing in the Christian Church, finished his life under a cloud of mental difficulty, which arose from the fact that he was conscious that I was being trained in the Modernist way of interpreting the Bible, which he felt himself was not safe, which did not satisfy his own difficulties in regard to the promises and prophecies, all of them in regard to the nation Israel. He looked, as we have heard already, towards Judah to fulfil Israel's destiny, and he looked in vain. He felt, although he could not give up his faith in the Word of God, there must be a good deal for the position in which I, his son, was being trained. And it was a trouble to him which I at that time could not relieve. Had he lived to see the development of British-Israel Truth as it is being manifested in various parts of this country and throughout the world, I am convinced that that would have satisfied all his difficulties and filled his heart with joy in believing. Because of that, on the one hand, and because there are others coming after me, on the other, I have a great interest in the question of fatherhood.

There is a young man, six years of age, over yonder in South Africa, and he is very annoyed with the British-Israel-World Federation because it has taken his daddy away from him and brought him all the way across the sea. He does not like Mr. Garrison, or Mr. Goard, and he says, " It is not fair that my daddy should have to go all the way to England to attend those meetings." He thought you should all come to Cape Town so that I should not have to travel. When I left him to the tender mercies of his mother, of course I had to press upon him the duty of obedience, and I said, " Now look here, if you are a good boy, when I come back I am going to bring you a HORNBY TRAIN, with railway lines and bridges and signals, and everything belonging to that wonderful system." And so I left; but while I am away what is he doing? His mother wishes that such a thing as a Hornby train had never been mentioned. He is dreaming about it, he discusses permanent ways and the signalling system with his bigger brother, and he has got it all planned out on the study floor. Supposing his mother says, " You are a silly boy. Your daddy did not mean anything of the kind," I know what he would say. " Of course father meant it if he promised it." If anybody dared to suggest that his daddy would not keep his promise he would get it straight from the shoulder. Think of his descent to begin with. When I get home, and the baggage is brought in and opened, that young man will probably stand with his hands in his pockets, not pretending to look, but he will keep an eye on everything that is turned out. And as we get lower and lower, and there is still no sign of the Hornby train, his eyes will get bigger and rounder and his lips will begin to tremble, and although he is getting a big boy, the tears will begin to gather and will presently drop down his cheeks. And we get to the bottom and the bag is empty, and there is no Hornby train! What has happened? Has my daddy forgotten after promising? If so, then I will never believe in him again. You fathers, you have got to be very careful what you promise to your boys. If I should happen to forget that Hornby train I dare not turn up in Cape Town and face that youngster. " If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more doth your Heavenly Father." If God promised all this in such unmistakable terms as we have it in the Old Testament, will He forget to keep His promise? No, son, I have not forgotten, but come here. Look here, I did not mean a real Hornby train, with lines and signals and bridges, I meant it spiritually. Is it any use talking about a spiritual Hornby train to a boy of six? God has made certain statements, and He has sworn with an oath, and He has bound Himself with a covenant that this nation shall continue for ever so long as the sun and moon endureth, how can we say, " But he meant it all spiritually "—which He never did say. If I know how to give good gifts to my son, then my Father much more so.

Finally, supposing God has failed in His promises; His promises to Abraham, to Isaac and to Jacob and fails, His promises through David and through Isaiah and through Jeremiah and through Ezekiel and fails, where are we? Don't you see that the very faith in Jesus Christ on which you have been basing your everlasting salvation depends upon the faithfulness of God to His promises? I speak for a moment as a business man. If a man comes to me and wants to make a contract, I want to know the history of that man. If I find out that he has made other contracts and has broken them all, I do not want to have anything to do with him. You have got no ground on which to base your Christian belief save the ground of the faithfulness of Almighty God to His everlasting promises. If any of you are tempted to say it does not matter, you will have to look again at the basis of your faith on which you have been building all your life. The promises of God are Yea and Amen in Him.

MR. JOHN LEECH, M.A., LL.B., K.C.

I would just make, first of all, one or two announcements of importance. We have now, as many of you know, inaugurated a Junior Department of the British-Israel-World Federation, called the British-Israel Crusaders, and in connection with that we have a new monthly paper, called " The British-Israel Crusader." We have procured for this an able editor, who has very kindly given her services for that purpose. It is an admirable paper, and I want everyone of you to get a copy of it. Show it to your young people and interest them in this Junior Movement. It is a matter of the utmost importance to the Federation, and to the great work that we have in hand. We want to get in the young people, we want the energy, and we want the inventive capacity of these young people, and we want their cash, and we are going to have it. And we want you to help us in this matter and to make the paper known. The paper is a penny one, and you will get it post free for 1s. 6d. a year. Those who become Crusaders pay a subscription of 2s. 6d. a year, and they get a copy of the paper each month. Now I want your co-operation in this matter, and I am sure you will give it. We believe that this is the beginning of a great Junior Movement that will sweep over the country before long and, we hope, over the Empire. We have a special badge for the Crusaders, and they will get a nice card of membership when they join. Now this body of Crusaders are an active set of young people, and we—and I include myself among them—we want to do some business, and I think the best thing that we can do is to get down on our knees and ask God, through the Holy Spirit, to prosper and to bless this work.

We are going to have all sorts of activities for the young people. We had the other day, at one of the Branches, a raiding party, and the Crusaders did valiant work there in distributing the bills for the coming meetings, and they enjoyed the work very much.

TWO PROMISED LANDS.

God has given us in His Word the measure by which we can determine whether a prophet is telling the truth or not. In other words, whether God has sent Him to be His prophet and to tell His message. In Jeremiah xxviii, 9, we read: "The prophet which prophesieth of peace, when the word of the prophet shall come to pass, then shall the prophet be known, that the Lord hath truly sent him." There is the test, and we can apply that test. I said to Mr. Goard a short while ago, "The Evangelical clergy, or the Fundamentalists, as we might call them, who have not accepted our Truth, are the most illogical men upon the face of the earth." Why do I say that? Because if they do not accept British-Israel Truth they do not see that we are God's Chosen People Israel, and that the promises and prophecies of the Old Testament are fulfilled in us, and so they cannot prove their position, and they cannot prove the truth of the Bible, and they are assuming a position which they are trying to hold, but which is absolutely illogical, because they cannot prove it, but they can be shown to be wrong. The Modernist is logical according to what he believes, for he does not believe that the promises have been fulfilled; therefore he says, I cannot accept the Bible. That is logical, but it is ignorant and it is foolish. But take the Fundamentalist, the Evangelical, or whatever you like to call him, he tells you that he believes the Bible from beginning to end, and yet when you put up to him the question of the fulfilment of the prophecies, he is unable to answer it. Of course, because he has applied those prophecies which concern Israel to Judah, and of course they do not fit. He has applied to a scattered people over the earth the promises given to a mighty nation, and of course they do not fit. What then? Then I say they are absolutely illogical, and the sooner they go back to school or college and learn a little logic, the better for them and for the people who sit under them and whom they endeavour to teach.

You remember that promise which we often hear about concerning the appointed place, that God would appoint a place for His people Israel and would plant them there, and that they would never be moved out of it. Did it ever strike you, when you hear people talking about the Promised Land, that there are two Promised Lands, and that there had to be two Promised Lands. God foretold in Obadiah and in Ezekiel and elsewhere that the descendants of Esau, the Edomites, or the Turks, would be torn up by Israel. Israel, therefore, must become a great military power in order to drive those people out of the Promised Land, and they have done it. If Israel had continued without a country, a scattered people all over the world, how could they have become a great military power, or have cleared the Promised Land of those military people, the Turks? It would be impossible. So in order to carry out God's purposes, in order to carry out the promises, it was absolutely necessary that there should be some place in which God would re-form His people Israel, but not in Palestine, because the enemy was there; but where He would reform Israel into a mighty nation, and would then send them back to Palestine to clear the country of the Turks, and to restore the country according to God's promises. Did that ever strike you? It is absolutely necessary.

I remember at the last Congress that our friend, Professor Odlum, told us that when he was in Palestine he asked some people there if they could tell him where he could find a Turkish family, that he might learn something of their habits, and so forth. And they burst out laughing at him, and when he asked them what they were laughing at, they said, "There is no Turk left in the whole of Palestine." You remember in Obadiah we read that not one would be left. God's Word has been fulfilled to the very letter. And the Professor could not find a single Turk in the whole of Palestine.

Our God is a faithful God. He is a God Whose love to Israel is everlasting. Not one jot or tittle of His Word can fail. And that is our God, the God of Israel, the God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob.

THE MANDATE IN PALESTINE.

MR. HERBERT GARRISON.

Why is Britain in Palestine? Britain is in Palestine because Britain is Israel. "Ought Britain to give up the Mandate for Palestine? What say you?" "No," and a big loud "No." I have no patience with those journalists who are telling us that we should get out of Palestine because it is too costly, too troublesome. That is not the British way. We do not shirk a thing because it is too costly, or because it is difficult. Britain will not give up the Mandate for Palestine on such grounds. Certainly not. If it is a question of finance, then let the British people at home economize in other directions, some of which I could name and you could name, that we may have at our disposal the money for that God-given work we yet have to do in Palestine. No, we are not on any account whatever going to give up the Mandate for Palestine; it is not the British way, and it is not the Bible way.

Then, what about Russia? Personally, I say we may be prepared to hold out the right hand to Russia when Russia comes to her senses and does the right thing, and repents of the misdeeds and cleanses her blood-stained hands. That will be time enough to welcome her representatives to this country.

The UNITED STATES is ready for Israel teaching. My message was received with such cordiality when I was over there that I was surprised and delighted. After my meeting people said to me, "Mr. Garrison, this is the message the United States needs. Will you give it all through the country? It is the message that will solve our problems." I found that the Anglo-Saxon section of America is becoming uneasy about the alien question; and they are forming leagues, clubs and societies for consolidating the Anglo-Saxon forces, so that the English language, and English institutions and ideals, shall be the governing, guiding, controlling influence in that great country. The British-Israel Truth, they say, is going to be the solution of the problem, the thing that is going to unite and to consolidate all the Anglo-Saxon people of America. There are tremendous possibilities in that direction. They are an open-minded people, and ready to hear the new presentation of those great and glorious truths that we find in the Bible. It is a wonderful Movement of the day.

OUR ORIGIN AND BIRTHRIGHT IN CHRIST.—II.

BY THE LATE JOHN WILSON.

QUES. 9.—What evidence are we given that God has been following up His great designs, as indicated in the Old Testament history and prophecy?

ANS.—When we survey the workings of God in providence, we see His wondrous truth and faithfulness in the fulfilment, to this time, of the prophetic Word. Here in the north, at the termination of the prophetic line of empires, at the time, and in the circumstances predicted, we find the people possessing all the marks of Israel. They have been wonderfully dealt with, and eminently blessed, and their origin is otherwise unaccounted for. They came from that part of the world in which Israel was lost. Their boasted institutions were the appointment of Moses; and their superior intellectual and moral constitution is the result of that training which Israel received from their Great Teacher in the days of old.

Distinctness of race was necessary in the training of Israel, and to show the fulfilment of the prophecies respecting them as a particular people. But these objects being accomplished, the next is the good they are to serve for mankind, as acting with and towards other peoples.

And surely the Lord thus accomplishing His word, in leading His people "by a way they knew not," and in at length making "darkness light before them, and crooked things straight"; in preserving them through so many great and strange revolutions, making an end of all the nations among whom they were scattered, but still preserving and increasing them; from so small a beginning enlarging them even unto all the ends of the earth; and from the gates of death raising them up to be the head of the heathen; in giving to them in these last days all the advantages He promised, so that "there hath not failed one good thing of all that the Lord had said He would do for them"—surely the truth and mercy of God towards the children of Israel should convey no barren lesson to us, in whose behalf God hath so manifested His wisdom, power and goodness.

QUES. 10.—What lesson are we taught by the faithfulness of God in fulfilling to us so far the promises made unto our fathers?

ANS.—Surely we are thus instructed that nothing is too hard for the Lord, and that we may henceforth fully confide in Him in every strait; that we have only to avoid sin and unbelief, which brought such overwhelming calamities upon our fathers. We have but obediently to trust in that Almighty Saviour, Who hath according to His Word delivered Israel thus far out of all their ills, and brought them into that state in which they may reasonably expect the full accomplishment of all the promises. Surely we are taught that there is no wisdom nor might against the Lord; that our wisdom is to have the mind of Christ; and that our strength is in leaving ourselves in His hands to be the instruments of His good pleasure towards the children of men, for good unto all.

If God hath been working in all these things according to His written Word, which we hold in our hands without reading its plain predictions respecting ourselves—daily fulfilling before our eyes, but as doubtfully regarded by us as if there were no unity in the designs of God, nor power in the Almighty to accomplish that which He had promised unto our fathers—if whilst we have been thus in darkness, the Lord hath been light about us, we shall surely henceforth mistrust ourselves, and shall not implicitly confide in any creature, however raised in the world, exalted in wisdom, or honoured even in the cause of God. But we shall say, "Let the Lord alone be exalted"; "God is my refuge"; and "underneath are the everlasting arms"; and as in Isaiah xii, 1-3: "O Lord, I will praise Thee: though Thou wast angry with me, Thine anger is turned away and Thou comfortedest me."

THE RESURRECTION OF ISRAEL, after having been lost, and buried, and scattered, is most appropriately presented in Scripture as the grand pledge of this resurrection of the bodies of individual saints; just as the resurrection of the Saviour was a grand pledge of this resurrection of Israel. And thus the words which are in the Old Testament used with regard to the resurrection of Israel are in the New Testament applied to the literal arising of the saints from the dust of death. (compare Hos. xiii, 14, with 1 Cor. xv, 54-57.) The same omniscience, faithfulness, and power, are manifest in the one instance as in the other. (Wilson's "Mission of Elijah," Lect. viii.)

This grand subject of prophecy has a special hold upon our FAITH, which looks back to the death and resurrection of Jesus, Who, while He made atonement for our sins, was "confirming the promises made unto the fathers" with regard to their children whose national death had taken place, but who, after two days and a half were to be raised up, and made to live in His sight. (Hos. vi, 2.)

It also points forward to the Object of our HOPE:—to the appearing of our Lord in glory, and our own individual resurrection from the grave with the whole body of the redeemed people of God, to share fully and for ever in the glory and blessedness of our already risen Head.

QUES. 11.—What beneficial results may be expected from the knowledge of our origin and birthright?

ANS.—This subject has important aspects. It is calculated to draw the whole House of Israel into love and unity, self-distrust and mutual forgiveness. For all have been blind, and yet all have had some different portion of the truth. It is calculated to combine them in humble and holy effort for the good of the whole human race; for, as we have seen, that is the purpose for which they have been raised up. It was not for proud, oppressive pre-eminence.

And seeing that such must be the results of knowing this important truth respecting Israel, can we wonder that the subject occupies so overwhelming a portion of the Old Testament Scriptures? And seeing that the subject of Israel has not been understood, can we wonder that these Scriptures have been left in comparative neglect? The Bible has been regarded as a maze of sentences, expatiating, as if in rhapsody, upon a subject of which the mind had formed no definite idea, and which sentences have consequently been variously and in all cases but dimly shaped out by the various imaginations of men. But truly, when the Lord hath done His marvellous work—"a marvellous work and a wonder"—He will shame all human wisdom: and "in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book" (Isa. xxix, 18, 19).

Digitized by Google

Most true it is that the intelligent consideration of the subject of Israel is necessary to a right understanding of the great body of the Old Testament Scripture, which chiefly consists of details of the various trainings of Israel, and prophecies respecting what their Lord would do with and by them in after-ages.

This view is equally necessary to an understanding of the course of Providence generally, and of the things that have happened and are happening to these northern kingdoms. The origin of nations, the scattering of peoples, and the revolutions of empires, the formation of many of our most important national characteristics in politics, religion, and familiar customs, are otherwise involved in obscurity. But thus considered they become light; thus the grand connecting links of history are discovered and gathered up; thus all nations are shown to be debtors to Israel, and Israel are shown to be debtors to all mankind.

QUES. 12.—What recognition is made in the Gospel History of the lost House of Israel, and especially of Ephraim, who was appointed to the birthright?

ANS.—Under the former dispensation, Ephraim was not a remarkably "fruitful bough" (Gen. xlix, 22). It was through THE CROSS, it was as being joined to the root of David, that Ephraim was to become worthy of his name "Fruitful." The kingdom taken from the Jews was according to the Gospel to be given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof (Matt. xxi, 43). From the personal history and parables of our Lord, rays of glory are ever pointing to the case of the people He came to redeem. He took upon Him their case; and in "all their afflictions He was afflicted"; so that the same words came to be applied to Israel as to Israel's King.

What thanks do we owe to the "First-born of every creature" Who, when He appeared among men, it was as being in sympathy with the lost—their origin unknown! He who came to gather into oneness "the children of God which were scattered abroad," who came to give life and fruitfulness to the branches which had been broken off and "cast far off among the Gentiles," was Himself called "THE BRANCH," "Jesus of Nazareth," "the Root out of a dry ground."

After "the Twelve Tribes scattered abroad," He sent in this direction the Twelve Apostles, testifying of His grace, and pointing forward to His glory (James i, 1). Let us attend to His messages of love, and "so learn Christ," as to grow up unto Him "who is our Head in all things."

It is by being conformed to the image of God's dear Son, by following in the footsteps of Him who "went about doing good," that "the manifestation of the sons of God" may be expected to take place.

It was predicted of the outcast House of Israel that she should have many more children than her rival sister Judah (Isa. liv, 1). And it was said to her, "All thy children shall be taught of the Lord, and great shall be the peace of thy children."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—Why have Holland and Servia been omitted from the list of Israel nations (God's Commonwealth, p. 33)? The Royal Arms of the former show two lions, and the tricolour is red, white and blue, colours of Benjamin, the covenant tribe.

The Servians came out of Galicia, and dwell in ancient Dardania; they anoint their king at coronation, and the national flag is white, red and blue, resembling the tricolour of Russia before the war. Rurik was a Norseman.—J. R. S.

ANSWER.—I have always been of the opinion that it is quite possible for some of the Israel peoples to be found amongst the Continental nations, since Israel was to be "scattered amongst the nations." But it is doubtful if as yet we have sufficient light upon the subject. We know that Great Britain and America are the "birthright" peoples, Great Britain having the senior (Ephraim) portion of the birthright.

It is quite possible that the Dutch may be Israelitish. The Netherlands flag consists of the three colours—red, white and blue—horizontally, with the red on top. The Dutch Royal Standard possesses the Coat of Arms in the middle white stripe, with a crown on top of the shield, and a lion on either side. But it is doubtful if the colours of the National Flags can be evidential; e.g., Paraguay has exactly the same colours in position as the Netherlands.

The Russian flag was white, red and blue, horizontally, with white on top. The colours of Jugo-Slavia are also red, white and blue horizontally, with blue on top, and white in the middle, while Serbia is, or used to be, red, blue and white, with red on top and blue in the middle, horizontally. I have just been in Jugo-Slavia, and was interested in noting the flags of the various States in the enlarged kingdom of Serbia, Montenegro having red, blue and white, with red on top, and blue in the middle, horizontally; while Dalmatia has blue on top with white in the middle.

The French flag is blue, white and red, vertically, with blue next to the mast. The German flag is black, white and red, horizontally, with white in the middle. Belgium is black, yellow and red, vertically, with black next to the mast. The first mention of the Serbs is in Ptolemy and Pliny. Nothing is known of their earlier history except that they were agricultural people formerly living in Galicia near the sources of the rivers Wissla and Dniester, and must have migrated into the Balkan Peninsula during the seventh century. They are a Slavonic nation, and by language the same as the Croats. It remains to be proved whether the history of Serbia during the past twenty years suggests the possibility of an Israelitish origin. At the present moment there is bitter hatred between Jugo-Slavia and Italy. The ancient Dardania (lying east of Lake Scutari and Albania) was only a small district, and forms only a small portion of the modern kingdom of Serbia.

Rurik was one of the three princes of Rus, invited in the eighth century to found a dynasty, from which many of the Russian princes of modern times trace their descent. A great deal of discussion and controversy has arisen over the origin of these warlike men of Rus, but in all probability these Variags, as they were sometimes called, were simply hardy Norsemen or Normans who at that time, in various countries of Europe, appeared first as armed marauders, and then lived in the invaded territory as a dominant military caste until they were gradually absorbed by the native population.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THE Congress Continuation Meetings at Headquarters concluded on Saturday evening last with a long and most delightful meeting. Mr. Garrison presided, and among the speakers were Mrs. Bloxam, the Revs. Pascoe Goard, Kenneth Dodds, Maxwell Carnson, Messrs. John Leech, J. J. Morey, J. Townend, Harrison Hill, and Edward Pritchard. Mr. Hill gave a beautiful rendering of his well-known "Bow Bells," by request.

Two meetings were held daily during the week. Addresses were given by the Revs. Kenneth Dodds, Pascoe Goard, E. A. Couldrey, Maxwell Carnson, Sparshott Johnson, A. W. Sinden, and Messrs. Morey, Henry Iveson, Daniel Farmer, Basil Stewart, and Mrs. J. T. Wilson. All agreed that it had been a very profitable week. A number of friends from the Provinces stayed on until the close, having been in attendance at the fortnight's series of meetings, and all seemed sorry when they came to an end.

An interesting little ceremony took place on October 4th, when Miss W. MacEwan presented an oil painting executed by herself of our veteran British-Israel champion, the Rev. Commander Roberts, R.N., to the Federation for hanging in the reception room at Headquarters. Mr. Herbert Garrison, the Secretary-General, in a short speech, accepted the gift on behalf of the Federation, and offered to Miss MacEwan the warmest thanks of the Council and all present. Commander Roberts gave some reminiscences of his British-Israel advocacy in the early days and of his association with the late Col. E. W. Bird (Philo-Israel).

Miss MacEwan's first portrait, hung in the Royal Academy, was a full length life-size one of her father, the Very Rev. Dr. David MacEwan. The Manchester Gallery asked for the loan of it for their Autumn Exhibition. The picture now hangs in Westminster College, Cambridge.

A. M. writes :—

Miss Hamilton Hunter lectured in Fordingbridge, Hants, on September 24th, to an appreciative audience. Many were convinced that the British-Israel teaching was the key to unlock many of the Old Testament prophecies.

The lecturer proved from God's Word that the British race was "God's Chosen People Israel."

Interest was aroused, and many are looking forward to Miss Hamilton Hunter's next visit on November 19th.

We were fortunate to secure Mr. Sydney Rakes as Chairman. Several new members were enrolled, and others are seeking the Truth.

The morning sessions for delegates during Congress week proved very interesting and helpful. Mr. Garrison presided at the opening meeting, and stimulated and guided an animated discussion on various matters affecting the Branches and the Movement generally. Several excellent suggestions were made. The keenest enthusiasm and the heartiest good will for co-operation was manifested. Subsequent meetings were addressed by the Rev. Commander Roberts, the Rev. J. H. Satchell, B.A., the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse, the Rev. W. T. Medhurst, Mr. John Leech, K.C., Mr. Wm. Whitton, Mr. J. H. Brenchley, and others.

THE GARDEN TOMB (JERUSALEM) MAINTENANCE FUND.

Recent events in Palestine have brought into greater prominence the question of the authenticity of the site of the Holy Sepulchre.

The Garden Tomb at Jerusalem has strong claims for consideration as the true site, and the Maintenance Fund was instituted so that the Garden Tomb, Jerusalem, may be kept sacred as a quiet spot, and preserved on the one hand from desecration and on the other hand from superstitious uses.

A Lecture, with Lantern Illustrations, entitled : "Evidence For and Against the Garden Tomb as the Tomb of the Resurrection," will be given by the Rev. C. C. Dobson at the Mary Sumner House, Tufton Street, Westminster, on Friday, October 18th, at 2.45 p.m.

Open to the Public. Admission Free. Collection in aid of the Maintenance Fund.

The Middlesex County Council refused Sunday Cinemas by 57 to 5 votes, and also rejected Sunday music and dancing in halls and licensed premises. A deputation of between 40 and 50 attended. The Middlesex United Committee for Sunday Defence, which led the opposition, thanks all who assisted in the campaign and asks that local committees be formed in each area, in order that the position may be maintained in the future. One Councillor in North London received 228 letters urging him to oppose Sunday entertainments.

The Elocution Class for training speakers will reassemble on October 29th, at 7.30, at Headquarters. Those wishing to join are invited to communicate with the Secretary.

The Rev. Commander Roberts gave two addresses for our Bath Branch on October 10th and 11th. He resumes his Bible Classes at Teignmouth on Monday next, in the Temperance Hall, at 3 and 7.30, and hopes to continue them throughout the winter.

Commissioner the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse has now resumed most of his activities, and, besides much organization work, has recently lectured at Derby, Dunchurch, Birmingham, Coventry, Erdington, Burton-on-Trent, Cheltenham and Stourbridge.

The Rev. Maxwell Carnson deputized for the Rev. Gregory Bestall at Harrow Weald on the 4th. His address was greatly appreciated. Mr. W. J. Chandler presided. We regret to record the death, on September 30th, of one of the most valued members of the Harrow and District Branch. Mr. W. A. Upton will be sorely missed, and we tender to Mrs. Upton and family our sincere sympathy. Mr. Carnson also spoke at Oxford on the 8th to a good attendance. The Rev. E. A. Couldrey presided.

Southport reports a very good meeting on the 7th, when the subject, "The Approaching End of the Age," was taken by Mr. J. H. Brenchley.

Mr. W. H. Hesketh, of Manchester, gave an address to the Liverpool Branch on the 10th.

The Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S., visited Portsmouth, Gosport, Southampton and Guildford during October 7th to 10th and delivered six lectures to large and appreciative audiences. The audiences in Portsmouth and Southampton were specially large and enthusiastic, a welcome feature being the number of young men and women present.

Miss Hamilton Hunter gave two very instructive addresses to the Croydon Branch on the 11th, both meetings being well attended. The subject, "The enemies of the Lord and of Israel" opened up a fresh line of thought. Many returned for the evening address, entitled "The King's Daughter." At the close Miss Hamilton Hunter made an appeal for the British-Israel Crusaders' cause, which will result in a group being formed.

The Hastings and St. Leonards Branch had important and successful meetings on the 8th and 10th. On the former date the Rev. C. W. Cooper, F.G.S., was the speaker. The afternoon address was devoted to an exposition of the "Book of Hosea," which the lecturer showed was a parable of the Israel Nation. The subject of the evening lecture was the "Kingdom of God," and Mr. Cooper gave a very comprehensive survey of the principles of British-Israel identity, explaining the time interpretation of the "Kingdom of God," both spiritually and materially.

On the 10th the Branch had the good fortune of hearing the Rev. Maxwell Carnson. Mr. Carnson dealt very fully and explicitly with the impossibility of the Israel promises being fulfilled by the Church, and explained how they have been, and are at the present time, being fulfilled by the Anglo-Saxon race. At the evening meeting the audience was deeply interested in Mr. Carnson's description of his work in South Africa as the British-Israel Missionary. The attendances on each day were unusually good, and many to whom the subject of British-Israel Truth was entirely new, or to others who had not hitherto grasped the full significance of our identity, expressed their great pleasure in having been brought to a fuller knowledge of the subject.

Mr. Herbert Garrison is to give his illustrated lecture on "Cameos of Dominion" in King's Hall, Herne Bay, on Thursday next, October 24th, at 8 p.m. Col. Sir Wm. Wayland, M.P., will preside.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Garrison addressed two meetings in the Dover Town Hall on October 10th. The Mayor of Dover presided in the afternoon and Col. Du Pre in the evening. The audiences were said to be the largest for British-Israel known in the town. Many came in the spirit of opposition, but left convinced of the truth, and purchased literature. Our Branch Secretary, Miss K. A. Hayes, worked at the organization with great devotion and success, and we are grateful to her.

Israel in Prophecy and History

By P. W. THOMPSON, M.A.

Possibly the finest historical survey in relation to the identity that has yet been written. Mr. Thompson's work is well known to our readers through "The Old Book and the New Age," "The Whole Tithe," &c. This, his first, B.-I. book will enhance his reputation a hundredfold.

He shows clearly the raising up during the third day, and his picture of the awakening of England at its close is a masterpiece of historical writing.

The drawing of John Wesley and the part he played is exceptionally fine.

IS THE BIBLE CREDIBLE?

Do you realize that if you accept the Modernist theory of Evolution you deny the Divine inspiration of your Bible?

Modernism and German-made Higher Criticism combine to destroy faith in the truth and the sacredness of our beliefs. God either created man in His own image or He did not, and if not, we are as the beasts that perish.

Dr. McCrossan's book comes as a refreshing draught to a thirsty man, to those who truly believe that God's Word is in the Bible—that God's Word is the Bible. His array of facts and his forceful style chastise the Higher Critic and the Modernist. He takes his stand on God's Word and is unassailable.

Everyone who holds the Christian faith should read

7 TIMES IN CHRONOLOGY
PYRAMID SYMBOLISM HEBREW PROPHECY
THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL
THE HOUSE OF JUDAH.

THE prophecy of the Seven Times applies to all the Children of Israel, and so it must apply to the people or Houses of both kingdoms. But it seems clear that the term "Times of the Gentiles" applies more particularly to the period of the oppression of Judah from the era of the subjugation of Jerusalem to the era of its deliverance. In the case of the Jews, we have a people who have never lost their identity, consequently it is comparatively easy to show how prophecy has been fulfilled in their case. But in the case of the Ten Tribes, we find that their identity was lost. They can be identified now by many signs in the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic race. It is not our purpose to mention these signs in detail, but rather to make a brief survey of certain periods of the history of Great Britain, the British Empire, and the United States, to show that the prophecy of the Seven Times has been fulfilled in their history as well as in the history of the Jews.

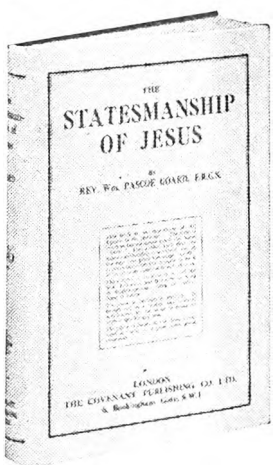
REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

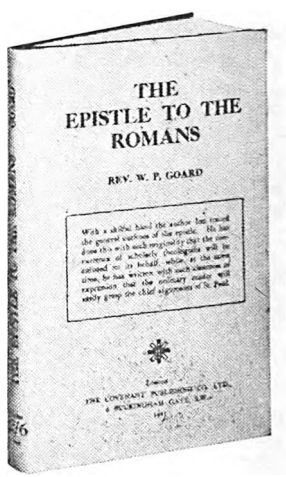


THE LAW OF THE LORD OR THE COMMON LAW

Anglo-Saxon Common Law is based on the laws given to Israel at Sinai. If statesmen would get back to those laws peace would ensue.

This is a book which should be carefully studied. It is a most valuable contribution towards the settlement of many of to-day's perplexing problems.

Price 3/6. By post 3/9.



THE STATESMANSHIP OF JESUS

A brilliant exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews—a letter having the direct inspiration of God. The book brings out new facets of the truth with striking vividness, and enhances the already great reputation of the writer.

THE EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS

With a skilful hand the author has traced the general outlines of the Epistle, and, as Mr. Goard usually does, he has thrown new light on dark places.

Dr. Mountain writes, "Mr. Goard is, indeed, a brave man to endeavour to analyse and expound the Epistle to the Romans within the limits of a hundred pages. But he has succeeded where many would have failed."

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—IX.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

THE ACCESSION OF OTHER NATIONS.

WE have seen the promise of unification of all the Israel peoples of the two nations Judah and Israel under the leadership of Ephraim, and under the rule of the House of David. That is to say, we have seen the foreshowing of the Anglo-Saxon union, and with these the real House of Judah as it is known to God.

We now turn for a moment to the accession of other nations to the Israel combination; that is to say, to the Empire.

We shall quote certain passages dealing with this phase of Empire development. Turn, for instance, to Isaiah lv, 5. The context brings before us the House of David and the everlasting covenant which forms its charter: "even the sure mercies of David." Meeting an objection which will be raised as a matter of course, that this passage refers to our Lord, we say "Yes" in cordial agreement, for our Lord is "the root and offspring of David"; but we say that the reference is not confined to our Lord individually as the supreme Head of the House of David, but to the House of David as represented in the successive personalities who in turn occupy the throne of David. "Behold thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not"—but there is no nation not known to our Lord Jesus Christ; therefore the text is addressed to representatives of the House of David who are not possessed of such knowledge—"And nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee because of Jehovah thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for He hath glorified thee."

It must be understood that the language of the Bible is specific and orderly. It has certain terms which symbolize, or describe, certain outstanding things. For instance, there are two terms used in the prophecies which when used in histories have a geographical significance, but in prophecies, such as we shall quote later, have not a geographical significance, but stand each for a departmental centre of the Administration. The two words we now refer to are "JERUSALEM" and "ZION." Whenever "Jerusalem" is used in this manner, it stands for the centre of Divine worship. This was formerly at Jerusalem, the place of the Temple, the place wherein the Lord had placed His Name. But the time came when "Jerusalem" official was removed from Jerusalem geographical. It followed the migration of Israel to these Isles, and there formed, and still forms, the centre of Divine worship. "Jerusalem" was, is, and always shall be, the religious capital of Israel. Even in the final glory the Holy City, New "Jerusalem," comes down from God out of Heaven to be still the religious capital of Israel through the everlasting glories set forth in the last two chapters of Revelation.

The religious centre of Israel is still "Jerusalem," and it is not geographically centred in Palestine, but in these British Isles.

The other word is "Zion." Historically "Zion" was a part of the geographical city of Jerusalem; that part of the city which formed the place of the throne, and which was the centre of government in Israel. "Zion" is still the place of the throne of David. It is still "the city of the great king." It also is not now in Palestine, but in these British Isles, where the throne of David is.

Digitized by Google

Now " Zion " and " Jerusalem " are never divorced. They are twin cities ; as in history in the past, so in prophecy to the end of time, and beyond. They are where the House of David occupies the throne of David, and where Prophet and Priest still carry forward the service of God. Not the Aaronic priest, of course, which was done away in Christ ; but the Levitical ministry to the people.

With this in view, let us read the promise contained in Isaiah :—

" And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord.

As for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the Lord ; My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the Lord, from henceforth and for ever."—(Isaiah lix, 20-21.)

" Arise, shine ; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee.

For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people : but the Lord shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee.

And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

Lift up thine eyes round about, and see : all they gather themselves together, they come to thee : thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side.

Then thou shalt see, and flow together, and thine heart shall fear, and be enlarged ; because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces of the Gentiles shall come unto thee.

The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah ; all they from Sheba shall come : they shall bring gold and incense ; and they shall shew forth the praises of the Lord.

All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee : they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the house of my glory.

Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows ?

Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the Lord thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee.

And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee : for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

Therefore thy gates shall be open continually ; they shall not be shut day nor night ; that men may bring unto thee the forces of the Gentiles, and that their kings may be brought.

For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish ; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.

The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir tree, the pine tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary ; and I will make the place of my feet glorious.

The sons also of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee ; and all they that despised thee shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet ; and they shall call thee, The city of the Lord, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man went through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations.

Thou shalt also suck the milk of the Gentiles, and shalt suck the breast of kings : and thou shalt know that I the Lord am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob.

For brass I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver, and for wood brass, and for stones iron : I will also make thy officers peace, and thine exactors righteousness.

Violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders ; but thou shalt call thy walls Salvation, and thy gates Praise.

The sun shall be no more thy light by day ; neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee : but the Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory.

Thy sun shall no more go down ; neither shall thy moon withdraw itself : for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended.

Thy people also shall be all righteous : they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified.

A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation : I the Lord will hasten it in his time."—(Isaiah lx, 1-22.)

It is said this refers to the triumph of the Gospel. So it does. But it refers to the triumph of the Gospel in its twofold significance, namely, the Gospel of Grace and the Gospel of the Kingdom. It is at once the triumph of " Jerusalem," the centre of worship, and of " Zion," the centre of government. It is both ecclesiastical and national, and every probability points towards the triumph of " Zion " in the national field reaching consummation before that of " Jerusalem " in the ecclesiastical field.

Now those who have followed the writings of, for instance, the Hon. Mr. Amery, and his reported vocal utterances, will be aware that he expects the beginnings of this particular phase of the moulding of the Empire by the great Potter, by European nations seeking a place in the British Commonwealth of Nations, to appear at once. From his position as the former Minister of the Overseas Dominions he is able to speak with authority in regard to the matter. He has indicated that it goes without saying that the nations of kindred blood to us in Europe will soon move to come in, and that another nation, not usually understood to be of kindred blood, although a section of Israel formerly occupied their land, will soon apply to come into the Empire with Dominion status. Enough that prophecy foretells that such shall be the case apparently before our Lord's return.

Add to all this the climax of our Lord's return to take the throne of His father David, and to reign over the House of Jacob for ever, and the glory of the millennial reign of Our Lord will be upon us in very deed and truth.

It is glorious to read of these things in prophecy. It will soon be our triumph to experience these things as contemporary events ; and it will be our ultimate glory to read of them as accomplished facts of history.

Thus in full glory of the light of the Divine Presence are we, God's Israel, moving to the ultimate unfolding of the destiny ordained for us, and for the world, from the foundation of the world.

The foregoing series of articles on " The Empire in Solution " have been published, first, as a Biblical-National British study, showing British history fulfilling Israel prophecy ; and, secondly, in the hope that it may incite some competent historian to write a British history along these lines—from Ur of the Chaldees to Westminster, England—and from Abraham, Moses and David to George V of England.

Whosoever shall provide our schools and libraries with such a history, on the lines of Biblical history and prophecy fulfilled in British history, will make a valuable contribution to our literature, and will do the cause of God and of Britain vital service.

CONGRESS NOTES.

By J. J. M.

Friday Afternoon.

Our veteran, Rev. Commander Roberts, occupied the chair, and called our attention to the position now occupied by our Church and nation. Archbishop Davidson said yesterday that there is no probability of union of our Church with Rome. We cannot submit to any power but that of our Lord Himself, Who is the Head of the Church. The speaker reviewed the story of the coming of the monk Augustine, and the resistance he met with from the Bishops of the old British Church. When the Saxons came they pushed the British into the West. Rome was successful only in Kent, the rest of the country being Christianized from the early British Church.

The Chairman then spoke to us from Zech. xii, upon the burden which is laid upon Israel. We did not tread down or conquer Jerusalem; we delivered it. The Government of Britain will be just in her treatment of the various races in Palestine.

We ought to have kept possession of that land without the Mandate. He thought some European Powers would endeavour to induce us to give up the Mandate, but we should refuse to do so.

Judah thinks the land belongs to them, and they will struggle to secure it.

A combination of nations will assist the northern army with their ships, and will come against us, endeavouring to take Jerusalem, but they will be broken, as Zechariah tells us. God Himself will stand up, and will defend Israel, and will plant His people in their land.

Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., took up the subject he introduced yesterday. He said that if a man would take Mr. Wilkinson's book and read it along with the Bible, such reading should convince him of the truth of British-Israel teaching. He constantly tries to show that the Bible translations of the Hebrew are wrong and his own better. Continuing the examination of the law of Sinai, the speaker referred to specific and humane laws relating to the duties of man to man, and showed how superior they are to any other. Compensation for assault, restitution to the injured and the defrauded, and other cases were quoted.

Critics ridicule the idea that these laws have to be enforced in the new administration Christ will set up. We are not liberated from the law, but from the curse of the law, and God's law must yet come to its own place. A true Christian feels the obligation of the moral law all the more. The laws which were the types and shadows of Christ have all been superseded in Him, and are done away. The religious ritual is finished, yet many clergymen are more concerned about ritual than in keeping the Ten Commandments. The law concerning food is often criticized as if it had been abrogated, but the speaker felt that if such a law were operative to-day the nation's health would be much improved. A return to an agricultural life and work would also be a great boon.

The happiness and progress of a nation largely depend upon the laws of that nation, and the great example to-day of this principle is found in our beloved land.

A perfect law needs perfect administration, and this will come when Christ is King.

Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A., spoke upon the subject of Palestine. He regarded the Promised Land as the centre of what was going on in the world's life—politically, internationally, strategically and spiritually. Jerusalem stood midway between the eastern and western nations. The things that are happening are of the utmost importance, and are closely related to the Bible story. A fortnight's stay in the Balkan States recently has taught him something of the crisis which is developing. Foreigners cannot understand why we are in Palestine because they do not understand Bible prophecy.

The land is promised to Israel and Judah in union, and not to the Jews only. It is possible, however, that the League would not have given Britain the Mandate if the Balfour Declaration had not been made.

Mr. Lancaster was of opinion that the sinking of the "Lusitania" brought America into the war, and that the Jews helped us in the war because our nation has always befriended them.

Turning to our national flag the speaker thought the Union Jack and Ensign of the Fleet was the most beautiful picture in the world, especially to a man away from home in a foreign land.

The time was not far distant when the two flags of Britain and America would be united.

Rev. Pascoe Goard said the Gospel was a much bigger thing than we had thought it to be. He referred to his personal conversion to Christ at the age of twelve. A wonderful experience, then a call to service. There is more in the Gospel than the new birth, there is the redemption of the nation and the use of that nation for the salvation of the world.

Mr. Goard then continued his study of Ezekiel, and read from chapter xxxvii, verses 15 to 28, the symbolic story of the two sticks, i.e., one stick for Judah and one for Ephraim. The speaker traced the rise of the British Dominions, and showed that Ephraim and his companions are united in one stick, under one sceptre. The visit of our Premier to President Hoover was surely promising of a day when our brethren of America will join up with us in one stick, and the family will be complete. The prophecy clearly sees a day when all the separate sections of Israel and Judah shall be one nation, with Jerusalem as their capital and the centre of their millennial Kingdom.

Friday Evening.

Mr. Herbert Garrison presided, and after the devotional exercises at once called upon Mr. George R. Gair to speak.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Gair took as his subject "Comparative Philology and British Race Origins."

He addressed himself solely to scientific students, and argued his case with great ability. It is impossible to do justice to it in these short paragraphs.

MR. J. J. MOREY spoke of three things which, according to prophecy, must take place between the end of Israel's captivity period (1880) and the Coming of Christ to reign.

1.—The revealing of Israel. The nation is to be discovered, for at Christ's Coming it is the chief defender of Jerusalem, and is opposed by many nations at Armageddon. The shepherds are not trying to find her, as Ezekiel prophesied, but God says He will find His lost sheep and seek them out. We can see this work going on to-day at a rapid rate.

2.—The Gentile powers of the world will be broken. Israel is to be set free from their grip. That grip is very real in Britain. Our finance, our pleasures, our beliefs, our politics, our national forms of worship, are not yet free from the thraldom of our captivity, and God is about to bring us out from our long bondage. Some will call it a tribulation, but it is really a blessing, and with hammer blows God will break the shackles which bind us. We must be willing to be liberated and cleansed.

3.—The return of the prophetic vision. When Israel went into captivity the prophetic vision was withdrawn. (Micah iii, 5-7.) It has evidently not yet returned, or the present confession would be impossible. It will return when the nation has been cleansed and has come to repentance. Joel writes of that returning vision which is to come upon "all flesh." All God's people, not the leaders only, will receive it, and Israel will then be a holy nation, ready for her King, and ready to be the centre of His Kingdom on earth.

THE REV. JOSEPH GAY followed, and pointed out that there are certain fundamental facts, axiomatic in their character, which must be accepted before cogent reasoning can begin. The first was the fact of sin, or, as some would say, moral defect, which the Bible speaks of as a distinct fall from grace. He drew our attention to Rom. vii, 14-25, to show that sin was an alien element, a Satanic product, whereby Paradise was lost to man. That being so, it was easy to see that the ultimate aim and purpose of God was to regain that Paradise.

The second fundamental fact was the Divinely-created Israel seed. Unless one is prepared to discredit the narrative, Isaac was born by Divine intervention. God created that seed. Mr. Gay proceeded to show that Israel was created of God for a purpose. She was a means to an end. As the servant nation God would use her for universal salvation; in other words, that through her Paradise Lost would become Paradise Regained.

The third great fundamental fact was the Divinely-created throne of David. (2 Sam. vii.) All in the same line of God's saving purpose and grace. The Davidic throne was prepared for David's most illustrious son. (Luke i, 32.)

The fourth and greatest fundamental fact was the fact of Christ.

The fact of Christ, God's only begotten Son, becoming mortal man in Jesus (John i, 14) must be accepted before the doctrine of the Atonement could be convincingly reasoned about.

From facts such as these it could be demonstrated beyond doubt that God would win the campaign against Satan and all his sinful hosts, and Paradise would be regained.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

REV. PASCOE GOARD occupied the chair and, after reading the millennial prophecy which sees the ferocity of animal life disappear, gave some remarkable instances from his own experience showing that this is really coming to pass—signs of the coming age. Continuing the reading, he gave proof of actual fulfilment in the fact that a highway is now open from Egypt to Assyria, comfortable Pullman cars now travelling over exactly the region referred to by Isaiah.

REV. DR. MOUNTAIN was expected to preside, but owing to age and weakness was unable to be present. A message from our aged friend was read to the meeting by Mr. Garrison, and the meeting requested the Secretary-General to convey to Dr. Mountain their sympathy and regard.

MR. JOHN LEECH, K.C., referred to the recent Roman Catholic Centenary Celebrations. A noted Roman Catholic leader stated that during the last hundred years they had leavened the whole of Society. Rome was the great enemy of Israel, and occupied a great place in Bible prophecy. Mr. Leech quoted Daniel's statement where he states that "the little horn makes war with the saints." The saints are Israel in Old Testament language. Rome might appear to be making headway, but it is certain Britain will never again be under the heel of the Papacy. References to Rome given in the Book of Revelation were also quoted, notably the great call, "Come out of her, My people." The Primate of all Ireland recently pointed out that Roman Catholic emancipation had been granted by a Protestant Parliament, yet there were again signs of a desire to persecute their benefactors. Mr. Leech spoke of the work of O'Connell, and of the introduction of the Roman Catholic version of the Bible. After the Emancipation Act of 1829 this Bible was suppressed, and every effort made to prevent Roman Catholics from reading it. The introduction of the Bible was therefore a bait to persuade the Protestants to grant them emancipation. Mr. Leech told a most interesting story concerning the Roman Catholic tactics of that time, and how their efforts were eventually foiled. New Testaments bearing the recommendations of the Pope of 1820 are being printed and circulated in Ireland to-day in spite of all attempts to suppress them. Mr. Leech read striking extracts from Papal and official bulls condemning the printing and circulation of the Bible. The free salvation of the Lord Jesus Christ for all men was forcibly contrasted with the purgatorial teaching of the Roman Catholic Church.

We were assured, however, that this iniquitous system is closing its prophetic period, and must finally pass at our Lord's Coming.

REV. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, M.A., had found the last year to be the most glorious year of his life, and so it has been also for the whole Movement.

Digitized by Google

Speaking of the Thanksgiving Service held in our Abbey on July 7th last, it is estimated that this service was listened to by 100 millions of people.

He believed that day to be God-appointed.

The lesson appointed for that day was 2 Sam. vii, a notable British-Israel chapter, referring to the establishment and permanence of the House of David, to which line our beloved King belongs, whose restoration to health we celebrated with thanksgiving.

Many people who profess to believe the whole Bible refuse to accept the truth of that great promise to David. God is consistent and faithful, and we should believe all His inspired Word as consistent Christians.

Mr. Johnson dealt with the history of the Davidic throne from Zedekiah onwards. Striking passages from the Coronation ceremony were quoted, in perfect harmony with the Old Testament narrative of the House of David.

Mr. Johnson also spoke of the appointed place where Israel would be placed, and where the House of David would again be set up.

Many critical periods in our history were reviewed, and God's wonderful protection over His people acknowledged with thankfulness. The service from Westminster Abbey on July 7th confirmed the truth of these things, and there is no wonder that there is an increasing interest in our great subject.

Westminster Abbey contains the famous Stone of Israel in the King's Coronation Chair, and the whole circumstances were therefore most significant.

SATURDAY EVENING.

Chairman, MR. JOHN LEECH, M.A., K.C.

After the opening devotions the Chairman at once called upon the REV. CHAS. COOPER, F.G.S., to speak.

Mr. Cooper introduced the great question of the world-wide discontent which exists. Young and old are turning to many things hoping to find rest of heart. The Archbishop's recent letter is typical, and we must turn back to the Bible and to Jesus Christ if we would solve the problems of our age. This is our special opportunity to bring the real truth of the Scriptures into prominence. Youth is ready to listen to wise teaching, and is eager to learn the truth. We must combine our British-Israel teaching with the Gospel of personal salvation. Mr. Cooper instanced cases where some British-Israel enthusiasts had given the impression that we had made British-Israel teaching our sole Gospel, and exhorted us to remove that impression by a wise combination of both the personal and national phases of the Gospel. Mr. Cooper then gave us an exposition of Isaiah lxii, especially applying to Britain-Israel the call sounded in verse 10. We are to prepare the way along which our race, and all races, may pass into the blessed experience of the salvation of our God.

REV. MAXWELL CARNSON then addressed the meeting and said he believed the Federation emphasized both sides of the Gospel, whereas the Church has emphasized the personal side only.

He wished to speak of Christ the King in relation to ourselves as individuals. Jesus knew He must soon come to the Cross, and He sups for the last time with His disciples, knowing that He had come from God, and that He was going to God; the consciousness of His Divinity was evident, and should be evident to us.

"Knowing that the Father had delivered all things into His hands," He saw His future Kingship. With these great thoughts He took the towel and washed His disciples' feet. Never was the King more kingly than when He so stooped to do humble service to His friends. Peter is surprised: it is too good to be true. Christ tells him he shall understand hereafter.

So with those who come to our teaching with a similar surprise: they shall know hereafter.

Then Peter said, "Lord, thou shalt never wash my feet."

Some people say that to-day.

"I never will believe."

Christ answered "If I wash thee not," etc. It was a matter of the will. Many are not willing to know; they will not let the knowledge enter. Then Peter repented and invited the Lord to wash Him wholly.

So may we take His gift fully, and be altogether in accord with His will.

REV. JOSEPH GAY said he was profoundly stirred by Mr. Carnson's address. He saw also in the narrative a great tragedy. "Ye are clean, but not all." He knew His betrayer was there present. St. Paul felt the danger that he might after all become a castaway. What we do depends on what we are. If we are really in Christ, is not that enough? What advantage is there to be of Israel?

Our teaching proves the Bible to be every whit true. The truth of personal salvation depends on the truth of the whole Book. The Gospel rests upon the truth of Scripture, and our Lord began by confirming the Old Testament and its story of the Kingdom before the doctrine of His Atonement was taught. Joel speaks of the outpouring of the Spirit upon all flesh: the regeneration of the nation. Ezekiel xxxvi teaches the same truth. We must think in terms of nations as well as individuals. "On all flesh." There is no limitation to the Spirit. No nation will have an excuse or a complaint they are omitted. "Your sons and your daughters," etc., evidently means Israel only, for the benefit of the world.

They will, in that power, go out to save mankind. The vision which is now dawning in Britain will charm and win many nations, and the Kingdom will fully come to the world. The Gospel has already a strong foothold in nearly every nation, and the foundations of our Lord's Kingdom is being firmly laid.

MR. GARRISON expressed the thanks of the Federation to all the friends who had so greatly helped, by efforts and gifts, to make the Congress so signally successful.

He had received many expressions of gratitude for the blessing which had come to them.

REV. PASCOE GOARD was reminded of the great revival movement of about fifty years ago. Spiritual things were discussed everywhere, and the Church was alive and active. Then German rationalism came and killed the revival. For a generation we have walked in dark paths, but now once more the full Gospel is being preached, and a great revival spirit is returning. In all classes men are seeking a rock upon which to stand, and there is a serious spirit of enquiry on both sides of the Atlantic. There is only wanting a ministry rightly informed in the Word of God, and endowed with the baptism of the Holy Ghost. In all classes of Society men are drifting into scepticism and worldliness because they have not been told the truth about the Bible.

The destructive Modernism of to-day is the direct result of the fallacy that Israel has been lost amongst the nations. There is a strong disinclination among theologians to consider any position in opposition to their already accepted ideas. The evidences are available, and ought to be welcomed by all who are sincere teachers of Bible truth. With such new equipment our leaders would lead the nation back to God.

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 30TH.

MAJOR RICHARD RIGG, O.B.E., B.A., J.P.

AS Chairman to-night, I feel wonderfully stimulated and inspired. I have within me the feeling that the British-Israel Movement is going from strength to strength. This afternoon we had a splendid send-off to the Congress, and to-night I see before me those who have been loyal and true for many years to British-Israel principles. There is no lack of evidence that we are drawing into the British-Israel fold many Christian men and women, who have never before realized the foundation principles of British-Israel Truth. I take my stand to-night on the British-Israel platform as a firm and fervent believer in the inspiration of the whole Bible, from Genesis to Revelation. We have something which is absolutely and literally true—God's ordered plan for the development, redemption and restoration of our race. Everything in my humble judgment is so logical, so convincing, so clear, so consistent. As you read through the wonderful story which is unfolded in God's Holy Word, how it substantiates, supports and backs up our British-Israel Cause.

First we begin with the Divine self-revelation of God.* He first reveals Himself as the Creator of the Universe, Elohim. Next He reveals Himself as Jehovah Elohim, Who formed Adam and the Adamic family. He further reveals Himself as the Judge of the Adamic family, and of Satan who deceived. Here is the wonderful story of the Creation told in two sequent stages. Now beginning with the last paragraph of Genesis iv, and specifically with the 5th chapter, there is set forth the progress of the appointed seed descending in the order of God—Adam, Seth. This is the beginning of the Biblical history, in the covenant-bearing seed, and to God's purpose through that seed. God reveals Himself through the Name Jehovah. This seed can be traced right away along from Seth to Noah, and from Noah to Shem, and from Shem to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob—Israel. And here you have a part of the narrative of the first eleven chapters of the Book of Genesis. It is quite logical, clear and consistent, leading up so forcibly and plainly to the next step.

Now comes the covenant, the sheet-anchor of our British-Israel Cause, which has been the mainspring of history from that time to this. That Abrahamic covenant was made at a period approximately as far before Christ as we are after Christ, somewhere round about 1927 B.C. God reveals Himself in His relationship to mankind generally at this period as Elohim, the Most High God; but to Abraham, for the purpose of the everlasting covenant, He reveals Himself as El Shaddai, the God-Father of the race. The covenant is all-important, for it establishes the seed of Abraham through Isaac as the medium of Divine blessing to all the nations of the earth. The race was formed, was called in Abraham; it was dedicated in Isaac; it was regenerated and renamed Israel in Jacob. The family under the covenant descended to Egypt at the call of Joseph, seventy in number. The same covenanted family marched from Egypt, twelve tribes. That family was organized into God's Kingdom-nation at Sinai, which is clearly laid down before us in the 19th and 20th chapters of Exodus. In that Kingdom-nation Jehovah established Himself as King for ever. At the same time He gave to that Kingdom-nation that law which still forms the basis of the Common Law of Britain and of the United States. The Kingdom of God was thus organized on the earth, consisting, first, of the nation Israel; second, the covenant; and third, the law. That nation was established in Palestine under Joshua, and in the same nation was established the House and the Throne of the Kingdom of the House of David.

The nation, by Divine appointment, was divided into two nations in the year 975, and those two nations we must keep clearly in view—the House of Israel, ten tribes, and the House of Judah, two tribes. Now in that House of Israel, formed into a separate nation, there was no tribe of Judah. It is an utter fallacy to describe the people of Israel as Jews. The House of David was established over Judah until the captivity of Judah. We see from Holy Writ that other lines of kings reigned over the House of Israel so long as Israel remained in the land of Israel. But, meanwhile, there was the migration of the Israel people to Britain and to Europe generally, which was the means of the foundations of ancient Britain. The nation Israel was carried captive by Assyria between the years 740 and 721 B.C. The nation Judah was carried into captivity by Babylon somewhere round about the years 604 to 587 B.C. The House of David was cut off by Nebuchadnezzar, who killed the male heirs; but unwittingly, in ignorance of the existence of the Israel law, Nebuchadnezzar allowed the female heir to the throne of David to go free. The remnant of the tribe of Judah returned from their Babylonian captivity and formed the nation of the Jews. They rebuilt Jerusalem and the Temple, and re-established the worship of God, but they did not reinstate the rule of David. To those same Jews our Saviour Christ came. He redeemed them, and made atonement for the sin of all mankind. We in the British-Israel Movement to-day, true to the duty and call that has come to us, preach the Gospel of Salvation thus proclaimed to all and every creature, urging men to accept Christ as their Saviour.

In the meantime we find, as we read through the wonderful prophecy of Isaiah, especially as we peruse that wonderful message from the 40th chapter to the end of the Book, that there is a marvellous message transmitted to Israel in the Isles. Israel had already started its process of colonization, and in the Isles the daughter of Zechariah had established there the House and the Throne and Kingdom of David. After long years of weary wanderings of the Ten-Tribed House of Israel, there came also a portion of the House of Judah, not bearing the name of Jews. And here came also the Tribe of Benjamin, which had separated from Judah at the time of the destruction of the nation of the Jews in the year 70 of the Christian era. So you see the reunited colony became Israel, re-gathered from all the corners of the earth as was foretold in Holy Writ, and in fulfilment of the Divine prophecy. And I unhesitatingly assert that that same nation Israel is Israel of the Christian dispensation and the Israel of prophecy. We see every qualification clearly laid down. We have seen the growth, not merely of a nation, but of the expansion of it into a company of nations, including the great people of the United States. And I venture to say that Britain to-day, and the great people of the United States, are blindly carrying out the Divine plan. We are seeking in this Movement to proclaim to the people of this country their mighty privileges and their glorious destiny as the agency for bringing home the blessings of the Kingdom to all the nations of the world. Now may I appeal to-night to those who are present here to come into line with us, and join us in this glorious crusade. The day of the Return of our Lord Jesus Christ draweth nigh. Do you not wish to take your part in the great missionary work of preparing for the Kingdom and for the return of Jesus Christ? We are told that God shall give to Him the throne of His father David, and He shall reign over the House of David for ever. As we go through the pages of Holy Writ, in the Kings and the Chronicles, we see how when Israel's king and people repented and turned to God, He delivered them from the oppression and persecution of their enemies. History repeats itself. There is within the memory of most of my audience to-night that intervention of Almighty God in the year 1918, when Germany was winning the War on the Western front, and when, after three and a half years of war, our beloved King, occupying himself the throne of David, called the nation to a Day of National Repentance and Prayer—and the War, which we were losing, was won in a short time. Is it not our duty, then, as British-Israelites, to use our influence and see to it that this nation is called to national repentance, to a return to Jehovah our God, to His law, and to His administration? Are not these words of warning writ large in God's blessed Book, "Prepare to meet thy God"?

We are moving forward in this great organization. There are not wanting signs of the times that we are living in the latter days and that the day of the Lord is drawing nigh. Let us never forget the great privileges which are given to us here as British-Israelites. The Church in the wilderness was established in the nation, and every citizen of the nation was a member of the congregation. But the Christian Church takes its date from the Day of Pentecost in Jerusalem, when there had gathered there for that great feast men of all nations under heaven, and they heard the disciples speak to them in those tongues in which they were born. It was in Jerusalem that the Christian Church was formed. Let us never forget it; that the Christian Church was formed of Israelites. Let us never forget that Israel, not the Gentile world, is the centre of the Church of Christ. Why, within four or five years after the resurrection of our blessed Lord, we have evidence that when St. James was at the head of the Church, as we read in Acts xv, the Gospel reached these shores and the Church was organized here. I say we have evidence which is indisputable that Britain is the centre of God's Kingdom, and that His Church is organized within that Kingdom. Therefore proud as we are of that faith, knowing that that faith rests on impregnable foundations, we shall go away from this Congress determined to do all we can to proclaim the glad tidings of salvation to all mankind, never forgetting the responsibility which rests upon us as God's Kingdom-nation.

The Rev. William Brown Pollock, M.A.

I am very glad to be associated with the British-Israel Movement as a convinced believer. There are times in a man's life when he is brought to the very end of things, and it depends entirely as to what direction a man takes, whether he emerges into the place which God has for him, or whether he sinks into the outer darkness. It seems to me that God has favoured me with a double conversion; a conversion, first of all, out of nature's darkness into God's marvellous light through the Gospel of Salvation. The conviction and the fact of one's own sinfulness was brought home in all the loving mercy of God our Father, the conviction that one needed salvation, and then the way of repentance and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ was shown so clearly, that it left one no longer in doubt, and especially when one experienced the liberty and the pardon and the peace which the Word of God alone offers, but which it makes intensely sure. And then, after many years of enjoyment of that wonderful Love of His, the Bible became a new Book; it had been a very great puzzle to me. And I want to say something to-night, if God will help me, that I hope will help others that are here, and who may have perhaps the same difficulties about the matter that I once had.

Long years ago I was told about this Movement, but it all seemed so strange to me, so utterly beyond the range of the meaning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and the meaning of the Church of God, that it seemed almost like treachery to accept it, and I did not and could not. And then God spoke through His own Word, and He led me by His own way. What He showed me eventually was this: that the Church and His Kingdom are two different things altogether, and yet they may be one. Abraham had a double seed and posterity, a natural one and a Kingdom one. The Church is never called the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. He is never called the King of the Church. Why? Because He proclaims Himself the Head of the Church, and He talks through His Apostles about the Church which is His Body. You remember when the Jews rejected Him as their King; up till that moment Christ had been preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom, and His disciples had been preaching it. But when His own people, to whom He came, despised and rejected Him, and hurled Him to the Cross, and refused Him as their King, then He sent them out with a new commission: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." "God commandeth all men everywhere to repent, because He hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness by that Man of His own appointment, whereof He has given us assurance, that He hath raised Him from the dead." And so the Church went out to preach the Gospel of Salvation. The Church is entirely distinct and separate. You may look upon the Church as the spiritual posterity of Abraham, as we do in Galatians. All who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ are the children of Abraham by faith. And while the Church was being formed, and the great Apostles and preachers of the Church were going out into all the world, has it never struck you what a wonderful thing it is that the Holy Ghost was carrying the Apostle Paul to the Gentiles who were in the world of that day, because in that world there was hid the treasure of God Almighty, His people Israel; and he is sent out, and the whole trend of the Christian movement goes out into the north-west? Why? Because the appointed place was in the Isles. Then God showed him, as our Chairman has been so eloquently telling us, how that there is a line of continuation, a line of continuity, identifying the people. And so we are here to tell you that Israel does exist, that Israel as a nation is God's people and nation, that God has His throne here. Remember the Jews rejected Him three times. In the early days, the days of Samuel, you remember that the judges had become so wicked, and the administration of the people had so failed, that the people asked the prophet that they might have a king like unto the nations round about them. Surely they had become very blinded and apostate that they had so forgotten God. God told Samuel that he was not to be troubled. "They have not rejected you," God says, "they have rejected Me from being King." You know something of the troubled history of Israel from that time, and what eventually it led to. How few of those kings were truly representative of the Divine over-lord of God, and of the Kingdom of God!

And so the time went on. You have had the gaps filled in, until you come to the time when our Lord Jesus Christ was upon earth, and the Jews rejected Him. You remember the question that was asked Him, "Wilt Thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" And you remember His reply, "It is not for you to know the times and the seasons which the Father hath in His own hand." It is not yet; He did not say that He was not going to do it. Then you know how when Stephen was preaching, and especially when he was preaching to the Jews, to those who had rejected the Lord Jesus Christ—you remember that the great body of the Christian Church was a Jewish body. The Apostles were Israelites, all of them, even at that time, and perhaps unwittingly, and when Stephen preached, and they rejected the Holy Spirit, they rejected the spiritual over-lordship of the Lord God Almighty. Therefore there was nothing left but for those Apostles to go out, and they found that hidden treasure in the Isles. I want to refer to that hidden treasure, because it is one line of continuity. I am just going to give you what God has given me, and I cannot give you anything better than that. Now I tell our people in the North that we clergy of to-day have little time to be lecturers, except in so far as the matter of our lectures concern the great and wonderful ministry that God has put into our hands, and which He has confided to us. It is only lately, since I began to see more clearly the wonder of this great Truth, that I have been able to preach and to teach it to my people.

I want to show this line of continuity in order to link it up with what I have said. In Exodus xix we read: "Now therefore, if ye will obey My voice indeed, and keep My covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people; for all the earth is Mine; and ye shall be unto Me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation." There you have the fact that God calls Israel, He calls them His treasure. You find the same expression used in Deuteronomy and in the Psalms. "For the Lord hath chosen Jacob unto Himself, and Israel for His peculiar treasure." Oh, the love of the Almighty! As He said, "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." And God is true to His own words. The great heart of God is true to His treasure. And again when you come to the New Testament. In Matthew xiii there is a parable that I could not understand. And I searched many libraries and books, and I could not find any explanation that would satisfy me. It is the parable of the man who is digging in a field, and that field is the world, and he finds a treasure, and he goes and sells all that he has to buy that treasure. There you have the picture of the perfect Man, the incarnate God. He leaves all His glory, and empties Himself, and makes Himself of no reputation, and He goes to the tree of Calvary and pours out His soul unto death that the world may be His, and the treasure which is hid there. Oh, wonderful God! Oh, wonderful Saviour!

And then you have that wonderful vision in the 12th Revelation. John saw a wonder in Heaven. He was caught up into the heavenly sphere and he sees this vision of the woman clothed with the sun, the moon beneath her feet, and the twelve stars as her diadem. She travails in pain, and the dragon, the representative of the Roman Empire, is watching the woman in travail, and is ready to persecute the woman, not because of her condition, but because of her possession and privilege and because of the Man Child. And when she had given birth to the Man Child she flies into the wilderness, to the place of God's appointment. We have been hearing about that place to-night; God told Samuel to tell David that He would appoint for him a place for His people. And there you have the Man Child ascending up into Heaven, and reigning there through the throne of His people. And the treasure that is found comes to wonderful fruition and consummation of glory and power and truth and equity and righteousness, that administers the great Common Law of the Empire in its far-flung Empire through the House of David, our great and glorious and noble King. And, oh, what ought to be the soul of the nation, the people through whom God would convey great spiritual truths to this magnificent and glorious Empire, clothed with the sun and the authority of Israel! They ought to be led into the very power of God for the salvation of the whole world, and to that moment when the kingdoms of this world shall become the Kingdom of our God and of His Christ. Are you not proud to be alive to-day? I am glad to know the truth of God to-day and to be able to proclaim it and to see what is our great aim. And though God has to punish His people, and though the tribulation may be upon us, because of our place of privilege and because of our power, but largely because of our blindness and waywardness and our lack of repentance and prayer, and our lack of the value of the Word of God, and of the Day of God, and of all those great institutions which have made our Empire what it is in its glory in the present, by its traditions of the past; beloved, we are here to awaken you, if any of you are not awake to the truth. Our great business is to preserve the Kingdom and to spread and to propagate the Kingdom, and to proclaim the King and to hasten the day of His return, and the bringing back of the King to His lawful place. In the meantime He shares the throne of His Father in Heaven. By and by He is coming to occupy the throne of David. And may it be soon. God help us all, and bless us in this work.

The Bible as the Basis of Truth.

Mr. J. J. Morey.

We have had a splendid address from the Chairman. I want to take up the story, and summarize the various arguments which lie at the basis of our teaching. We believe that the Bible is still the basis of truth. There are some folk who say it is no longer the basis of truth. Where are they going to put it? We believe you cannot find any other authority for truth outside the Bible. Some say that the basis of truth is the Church, apart from the Bible. Well, where has the Church got it from? Upon what was the Church built? Upon the teaching of our Lord, the life and death of our Lord, and the teaching of the Apostles, and these wonderful Epistles which were put into the foundation of the early Church in their day. If you have not got it here, the Church has not got it. No, the Church must not try to usurp the position of the Bible. We believe that the Bible must be retained as the basis of truth. Let us be logical. If you believe the Book you must believe it all. Mr. Garrison showed us this afternoon in a very pointed and telling manner that if our critics can prove—and we know they cannot—that God did not promise to Abraham, to Isaac, to Jacob, and to David, and through the prophets, did not prophesy great things to all men, then half the Book is unreliable; and if half the Book is unreliable, then how are you going to rely upon the other half? I must believe in this Book because I believe in God. The Book is true because God is true. Our arguments are very logical. We take the Book as God has given it to us, and we throw the onus upon Him. It does not rest upon any human authority. You are quite safe in taking the revealed Word of God as it stands and throwing the responsibility upon God. That is what He wants you to do. Why should you quibble about what God has said, as to whether He said it or not, or as to whether He is able to carry it out or not?

Therefore we come to this Book. We believe its history. We believe its prophecies. We believe its message of salvation. We believe it all. And we find that if we believe the Book, there are certain things we have a right to look for in the world to-day. We have been talking about demonstrating the truth of the Book. In other words, we believe God has put before us to-day the actual fulfilment of His Word, and we are as blind as bats if we cannot see it. We do not see it because it seems to be such a revolutionary thought after our upbringing, but if you will see before you to-day the fulfilment of prophecy, then you are bound to come back to the Book, and there is a great deal you are bound to accept which you have hitherto not accepted.

We Believe in the Fulfilment of Bible Prophecy.

I want you to take that as a line of argument; I have not time to work it out, but I assert here to-night that if you can see the fulfilment of this prophetic Word, it establishes the truth of the Book, it proves the faithfulness of God, and it proves the Divine power. The Book demands that there shall be a Christian Israel nation in the latter days. They are here before the Coming of Christ; they are building the Church that Mr. Brown Pollock has spoken about; they are the people who are preaching the Gospel to every creature; they set the world's slaves free; they preserve the national Sabbath; they are the great Governmental power in the world to-day for righteousness and law and justice. The Book says that Israel is going to be all that. Now I claim that if you can argue the fulfilment of prophecy, you have got a line of argument which is unassailable, and I submit to you that if you want to study British-Israel Truth, then get down to your Bible. You cannot learn it in a few lectures; you have to come back to the Book. We are calling the nation back to the Book, and the man who does not read his Bible has no right to criticize our teaching. We put right down as the basis of our teaching the actual fulfilment of prophecy. The throne of David is here. The kingdom of Israel is here, and Christ is going to be its King. And that nation under that throne is doing what the Israel nation was to do in the Christian age before the Coming of Christ. Now there is a line of thought. It will take time to search it out, but if you will do it, I know what the result will be.

I want to suggest another line of thought. Look around the nations to-day and say which nation is most likely to be the Israel nation. There must be one. Where is it? Look at the nations of Europe, look at Asia and South America. There is no nation in the world to-day that is so obviously fulfilling these prophecies and answering to these demands as the British race is doing. I know that Christian ministers and clergy every now and then preach a sermon about Britain having received a great call from God to do a great work in the world. Thank God for that. That is something to go on with. But that is where they stop. If they knew their Bible they would see that that is exactly what Israel is going to do. Why not put the two together? If you will estimate the character of the races, the value of the nation as God's witnesses and servants in the world to-day, it will be plain to see that it is only the British nation and the British race which is carrying out the work which God appointed Israel to do, and which is being made a blessing to all mankind.

Take the argument of history and ethnology. I am very glad that we have men who have dug deeply into history, the history of our race, the ethnology of our race. Professor Huxley did not set himself out to prove the truth of the Bible, but he was able to trace back the origin of the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic people. And he found them—where? Out yonder in Media, where the House of Israel went into captivity, in the same place and at the same period of time where the Bible leaves our fathers when they were lifted out of Palestine, and taken captive by Assyria. The two things fit together. Professor Huxley also said that he was satisfied that the ancient British, the early people of Ulster, the Scotch, the Celts, the Welsh people, the Angles, the Saxons, the Danes, the Jutes, the Normans, were all branches of one common stock who had come together again in these Isles. If you doubt that statement you doubt Professor Huxley. Read his books. There is another work of three volumes, a History of the Anglo-Saxons, by Sharon Turner, a good solid argument proving the same thing as Professor Huxley. We sell you a book for about 7s. 6d. by Bruce Hannay. He was not himself a British-Israelite, but he ended up by becoming one. And his last chapter is one of the finest testimonials which I have read anywhere of a brainy man who had studied this subject, and who was bound to admit that the race to which you and I belong are the modern descendants of old Israel. It is a great study. Sir Arthur Keith, one of our modern scientific leaders, in a great speech which he made a little over twelve months ago, said that we shall have to put away some of the old beliefs that we have been taught as to the origin of our race. He says he is satisfied that a nation came from the East, and they came into Britain, and that they steadily came from the year 2,000 B.C. until the Angles and the Saxons came. Sir Arthur Keith would not make public such a statement as that unless he believed it had some foundation of truth. And scientists to-day are giving their testimony to the correctness of our ethnology.

TAKE THE LINE OF ELIMINATION.

If you will read the Book, and I take it for granted that you are interested in the Book, you will find out the nations that cannot be Israel. What does the Book teach you? It teaches you very plainly that all the nations which were in that image of Nebuchadnezzar's dream cannot be Israel. You must, for instance, strike out all the nations that were part of the old Roman Empire; they are not Israel. The Book goes on to show you that Russia cannot be Israel, and with Russia you must include the Slavs and the Mongols, and there you cut off a big slice of Europe's population. You must take Egypt and nearly the whole of Africa, the home of Ham, the Ham peoples. They are not Israel, for Israel comes from Shem. The Bible shows that Esau cannot be Israel. Go on like that, and see what you have left. You will see the nations which you must eliminate, but you will not touch the Anglo-Saxon peoples at all. You will find that of the nations left they are the only great people who can possibly fit the picture and be the Israel of to-day. Eliminate the other nations, and you will come down to Britain every time.

And then take the time argument. We meet people with all sorts of excuses. I meet people who say sometimes, "Oh, yes, I have no doubt there will be an Israel nation at the Coming of the Lord, but that is a long time off." There is plenty of time yet, they say, for Israel to rise. But if I understand this Book at all, the time has come. We are nearing the end of the age now. The scheme which God is working out is a week of seven days, each day a thousand years. Four thousand passed before the Coming of Christ to Bethlehem. The Christian age is drawing to its close, and the seventh day will be the Sabbath, the Millennium of the reign of Christ on earth. We know that the Christian age is ending according to the chronology of this Book. Now you must not handle an argument like that unless you can talk about the chronology of the Bible. There are in this Book great chronological schemes. There is the great time called the times of the Gentiles, but that ended in 1917, exactly 2,520 years from the time Nebuchadnezzar came to the throne of Babylon. The dream concerning the image took place in the year 603 B.C. Take the Mohammedan ending. The first Caliph was appointed in the year 632 A.D. In 1922 the Caliphate was separated from the Sultan of Turkey. Two years later—in 1924—the Caliph was dismissed altogether, and there is no Caliph to-day. Since then Turkey has put away the Koran, put away the rules and regulations of the Koran. When I was in Constantinople in May you could not find a man wearing a fez, nor a woman with a veil. The men and women there are dressed just as you and I are.

You cannot expect that Palestine is going to be in the grip of the Moslem religion at the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Now what does the Bible say? It says that when all these things end, when the Israel people are all out of their captivity, the Christian age closes. Have you ever thought of this that at the beginning of the Christian age Israel is redeemed? And when the Christian age closes the final phase of the Kingdom is set up, and that is what is coming, and the Lord Jesus Christ is coming to reign on earth; and He is coming soon. All the signs, all the chronological indications, all the prophetic indications, show that we are nearing the end of the age, and

THE LORD'S REIGN IS NOT FAR AWAY.

And when He comes, Israel is here; Israel prepares His way. Israel has built His Church in the Christian age. Do not talk to me about Israel yet to be built up in a few thousand years. According to this Book, Israel begins to build the Church of Christ in the same age as the redemption. Also, if Israel is redeemed, she is going to be released. Let me give you a homely illustration. Suppose I am a business man, and like one of recent times I played ducks and drakes with my finances, and got into a terrible state. And supposing I was sent to Brixton Prison to think it all out. By and by a friend who has got plenty of money and a big heart comes along and says: "I will pay this man's debt," and he sends me a letter saying that he has redeemed me. Am I going to believe it? Not until I hear the warder turn the key of the door of my cell and lets me out. I should want that confirmation. And if I wait day by day and nobody comes to call me out, I shall not believe the letter about my redemption. The Redeemer has come. Has Israel got to wait five thousand years for her release? Never. The release is coming. And if you will read the story of the British nation from the year 1800 onwards, you must see the nation coming up out of its hiding-place. Missionary effort has grown exactly side by side with the development of the Empire which God has given to His nation. And it must be here now according to this Book, and the time argument is in our favour and cannot be gainsaid.

Take the argument of our religion. I think this is one of the strongest arguments I know, the fact that we are a Christian nation is almost conclusive evidence that we are the descendants of the race of the Old Testament. Look at it for a minute. What have you got in the Old Testament? The Hebrew religion, the types and shadows of a perfect thing to come—the sacrifices, the Lamb slain, the burnt offerings, the sin offerings, the atonement for sin. And Jesus Christ comes and is the completion of them all. Now here you have got a race which has accepted the completed form of the Hebrew religion. They are the children of the Fathers. It is in their blood. They are a nation which might be expected to take Christianity to the ends of the world. If that is not so, and our national acceptance of it along that line is not to be accepted, then what have you got? You have got a race trained in the law, the religious law of the Old Testament and of the teaching which they received from God, until they have got the redemption. And then the whole racial thing stops, and you have a heathen race! Have you thought, if you are not Israel, you have come from a heathen race? Which heathen race would you like to belong to? You have come, then, from a heathen nation, you are not Israel, a heathen nation has stepped in and completed the task. It is unthinkable. But when you come to see that our acceptance of Christianity is in keeping with the normal development of a race, then you see that everything is in harmony, that there is no accident in it; it is just what ought to have been expected.

I have time only to mention briefly some other things. Look at our national characteristics. Our great law has been mentioned. Trace it back, you will find it is the law of Israel. Many of our national customs to-day are based upon the laws of Moses. Take, for instance, the seven-year debt clause. If somebody owes you £50 and you have not been able to get it, you will stand a poor chance of getting it after seven years. It is a relic of the old law, when at a certain period of time all debts were forgiven, and every man was given a fresh start.

Take our National Emblems.

We have the lion, and the unicorn, and all the symbolism of the Royal House of David. We have our Union Jack. That flag was instituted in the reign of James I of England, but his name was not James. Last year at the Congress we had a gentleman from South Africa, and one day he took from his pocket a silver crown of the reign of James I and showed it to me. "Now," he said, "find the King's name upon it." I found it "Jacobus," the Latin form of Jacob. And when that union flag, uniting Scotland and England, was set up, it bore the King's name representing the House of Jacob, and it was the union of Judah and Israel, for nearly all the Scottish people are Judah—not Jews.

Take our Royal House.

A clergyman in this city one Sunday morning said, "These British-Israel people tell us that we have a descendant of the family of David upon the throne. Can anything be more ridiculous?" I like to behave in church, but I had a longing to stand up and say, "It would be ridiculous if it was not true, for God has promised it." And if God has pledged Himself, then there is nothing ridiculous in the fulfilment of God's promises. I will tell you why I am proud of the throne of David. I feel safe under it; the nation is safe under it. I am glad to know that my King has come down from the House of David, whom God appointed, for I know that God Himself is behind the affairs of this nation. I could give you instances of wonderful deliverances. I believe that behind the statesmanship of the throne and of the government of Britain there has been the power of Jehovah. That has been the secret of our wonderful rise and of our privileges and of our wonderful position in the world to-day. It is a great honour. And it is something else. It is a tangible evidence that Christ is coming to reign on earth. The throne of David is preserved, and is a pledge of the earthly reign of the great Son of David Whose Kingdom will be established in the earth.

Take our Language.

I know language is not always an evidence of racial origin. For instance, if you go to South America, to the Argentine, in two or three generations you will find that people will speak an altogether new language and will speak it like natives. But if you will read some of our books—I am thinking of one by Mr. Thomson on this subject, in which he says that there are five thousand words in our English tongue built upon Hebrew words. If you use five thousand words in everyday speech you are pretty clever. Most people cannot use two thousand, and there are a lot of people who cannot exceed five hundred. And five thousand words is a large portion of a language. And surely that is some evidence of the origin of a tongue. If you will study philology you will find that the ancient Gaelic, the ancient Welsh, were Hebrew dialects, and are much akin to the old Hebrew tongue of the days of our fathers.

I believe we have an unassailable case. The fact is that the people who criticize us, who write pamphlets about us, and who try to talk against us, are not the people who weigh the evidence. I know this, that if any sane man will weigh the evidence, he will come to see that one hundred per cent. of the prophetical predictions are answered to-day in the great British Empire and its people. If he will examine our life and character and customs, and trace them back, he will find the same evidence. For the Bible is the key to the life of the nation to-day, and the nations to-day are the key to a true understanding of this great Word of prophecy. This is not a small thing. It is not a thing you can easily put aside. If we are Israel, we ought to know it. If we are Israel, we bear a tremendous responsibility. If we are Israel, God will cleanse us, and we shall rise to our responsibility, and we shall establish a Christian civilization in all the nations, and build on earth the Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ.

THE BIBLE AND PALESTINE.

THE following letter was sent by the Earl of Dysart and the Rev. Pascoe Goard to the Editor of the Daily Mail.

SIR,—Under your caption "THE BIBLE AND PALESTINE" a very interesting article appears. It is an article by Dr. Humphry-Davy and purports to show that:—

(a) The Jews as a nation shall not rule in Palestine until our Lord's return.

(b) Thereafter the Jews as a nation shall rule in Palestine.

(c) That in the meantime under British rule, as under Turkish rule, Jerusalem is being trodden down of the Gentiles, and is still under Gentile rule.

May we submit what is more in line with the actual teaching of the Bible, and yet in agreement with Dr. Davy, that the Bible does indeed deal with the present situation in Palestine and its development.

It is an historic fact that Israel was separated from Judah in 975 B.C. Accordingly the Israel known to the Prophets, Major and Minor; the Israel known to the Evangelists, and to our Lord and His disciples; the Israel known to the Apostles, had no tribe of Judah in it. The nation Israel was, and still is, as separate from the nation Judah as is the nation of the U.S.A. from the nation of Great Britain.

The nation Israel was therefore a non-Jewish nation and people; although they were a nation of kindred blood to Judah.

Now Palestine is promised by the Prophets—who knew Israel as a non-Jewish nation without any tribe of Judah in it—to ISRAEL, and is not promised to Judah. It is a fact, arrived at by the knowledge and consideration of a whole series of historic facts, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the Israel non-Jewish nations. To that Israel the land of Palestine was promised, and to that nation the land of Palestine was given in A.D. 1917, when the British took possession of the land. The gift of God, and the Mandate of the League of Nations, coincided.

Jerusalem is not at the present time "trodden down of the Gentiles," but has been delivered, and is occupied and administered by Israel-Britain.

The Prophecies nowhere indicate that Judah shall ever be a nation again. On the contrary, the Prophecies declare that Judah shall "walk to Israel" and be identified as a tribe in Israel; and so shall share in the possession and administration of the land, with Israel-Britain.

Not understanding this, statesmen have been trying to make Palestine a national home for the Jews; and the Zionists have been trying to turn Jewish migration thither. But notwithstanding these efforts, only a few thousand net increase has taken place in the number of Jewish residents in Palestine.

On the other hand, Jewish people have been fulfilling prophecy by "walking to" the Israel nations, Britain and America, literally by the million; and these have settled in the Empire and the U.S.A. since the Armistice.

The Jews will thus first become merged in our nations; then, with us, they will share in the administration and ownership of Palestine.

In Palestine the whole of the tribes of Israel will be "settled after their first estates." Not that the whole body of the people will revert to that land. It would not hold them. But the land shall be owned by them as per the specific statements of Ezekiel and other Prophets. The very boundaries of the tribes are set forth, so that the surveyor can run them with ease.

While Bible interpreters refuse to take note of the fact that the two nations are still separate, Israel organized in the Anglo-Saxon nation, Judah still largely in dispersion, they will never be able to present a statement of prophetic fulfilment answering to the unfolding facts of history which are triumphantly fulfilling the prophetic Word.

The British-Israel-World Federation are making these facts very clear to all who will read and listen to their up-to-date presentation of facts and truth.

Yours truly,
DYSART.
WM. PASCOE GOARD.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—In the article on "The Bible Basis of B.-I. Truth" (August 3rd, 1929), the writer states that consumption (Lev. xxvi, 16, 17) is one of the punishments for disobedience, meaning, evidently, tuberculosis.

May I ask for the literal translation of the Greek word rendered "consumption," as, on reading the context, it seems that a different meaning from tuberculosis is implied?

MRS. D.

ANSWER.—The Hebrew word used in this verse only occurs here and in Deut. xxviii, 22. It is shakh-eh'-feth, and comes from an unused root signifying to peel, i.e., emaciate. Hence it does mean consumption or tuberculosis, i.e., any disease which causes one to waste away. Tuberculosis is common in Egypt and in some parts of Asia Minor, but it is more rare in Syria.

The Greek Septuagint (LXX) uses the word ἴκτερα, which means jaundice; but it is more probable that the Hebrew word meaning tuberculosis is correct. I have not so far been able to ascertain to what extent tuberculosis was known amongst the ancient Greeks, or whether they confused jaundice with it, since it is not clear why the Septuagint uses a word here meaning another disease.

The Book of Deuteronomy is a Bible in itself, dealing most wonderfully with both the national and the domestic side of life. Its laws of hygiene (coupled with those of Leviticus—the Book of Holiness) are amazing. There can be no doubt but that all disease is a result of human sin in general, and many diseases of definite sin or sins in particular. The day should come when the Laws of God are so obeyed that all disease should be stamped out. The modern trend of thought, hygiene, sanitation, housing, etc., apart from the Divine laws against immorality, all tend to reduce the ravages of disease. Disobedience is the root of all disease, though only too often the sins of the fathers are visited upon the children from one generation to another.

Digitized by Google

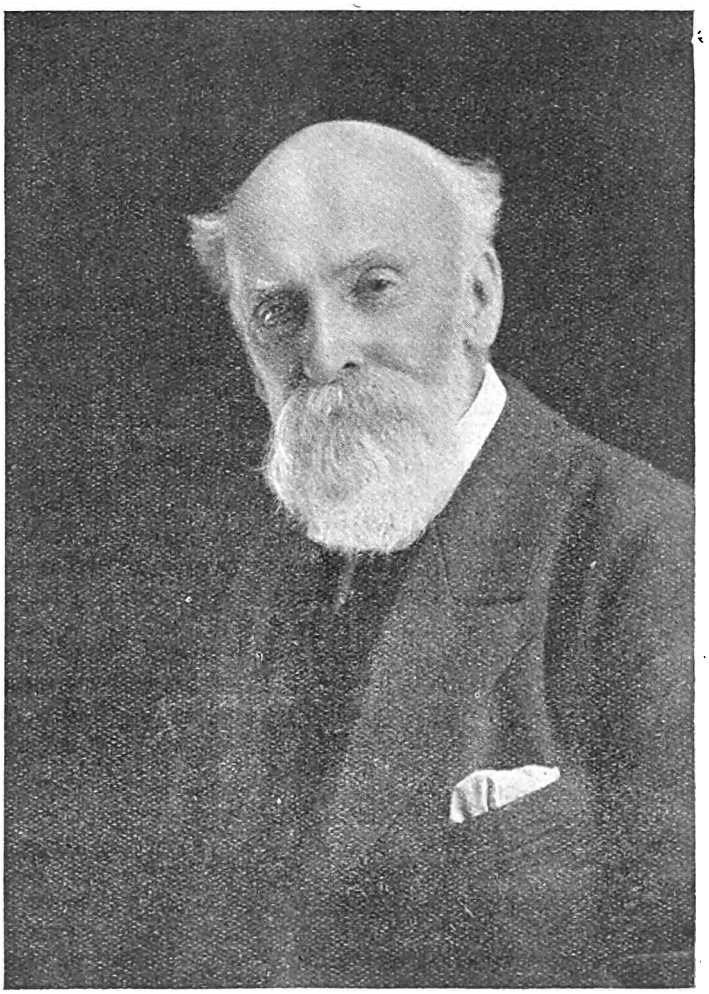
Tuberculosis is aided by, or largely due, to poverty, insufficient food, insanitary conditions, overcrowding, lack of fresh air and of soap and water. Against all national and domestic sins—including those which come under the watchful eye of a healthy social legislation—the Book of Deuteronomy pronounces its unerring judgment. God wants His people to be an A1 nation, dedicated and consecrated spirit, soul and body, of which each member is to be a "temple of the Holy Ghost." Apart from the salvation of the soul and the need for being spiritually-minded in Christ Jesus, the Holy Ghost wants to indwell healthy bodies, which latter are to be subdued to healthy minds—"mens sana in corpore sano." The Gospel of the Kingdom proclaims its message to the physical body, to the domestic home, to the national welfare of the nation (men, women and children), as well as to the spiritual salvation of the soul. The Gospel of the Kingdom therefore condemns national and individual sin, and seeks to promote a nation that is healthy in body (physical and politic), as well as righteous and spiritually-minded. Slums, overcrowding, unemployment, sweating of labour, immorality, etc., etc., all come under the righteous and rigid ban of the Gospel of the Kingdom, whose unfailing message is found from Genesis to Revelation, and not only in Leviticus and Deuteronomy, thus revealing Christ in all the Scriptures.

OBITUARY.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Meath, P.C., G.C.V.O., G.B.E., K.P.

The noble Earl was directly descended from Jacques le Brabacon, surnamed "the great warrior," who was standard-bearer of William the Conqueror. As head of perhaps the oldest noble family in Ireland, the late peer was a worthy upholder of the traditions and associations which the House of Brabazon through nine centuries gathered to itself.

Lord Meath's great public work, and his persistent efforts for improving the social conditions of the people, entitle him to a place beside the late Earl of Shaftesbury—the great philanthropic reformer. He was the president of many public bodies, several of which he was the founder, and he was the author of several books on Imperial and Social subjects.



He was best known as the founder of Empire Day. The watchwords he set before all who take part in the Empire Day celebrations were "responsibility, duty, sympathy and self-sacrifice"; and these have been the lessons imparted to the children of the Empire who gather annually in every quarter of our Dominions beneath the folds of the Union Jack.

Lord Meath was also the founder and president of the "Duty and Discipline" Movement.

He was a man who never tired from good works, and he spent half a century in unostentatious but effectual public effort. At the age of 86 he delivered a vigorous Empire Day speech at Bedford. He passed away on October 11th in his 89th year, after only a few days' illness.

The Secretary-General of the B.-I.-W.F., Mr. Herbert Garrison, is proud to have been associated with Lord Meath in some phases of his public work, and to have served on some of the noble Earl's committees, and to have spoken with him to a number of great assemblies, especially during the War.

On October 4th, when Mr. Garrison and Mr. Goard returned from the afternoon Congress meeting in Central Hall, they found Lord Meath and a companion at the front door of our Headquarters looking at the notice boards. Owing to having been so deeply engrossed in the work of the Federation, the Earl and Mr. Garrison had not met for some years. The Earl made some enquiries, and a profound impression was made on Mr. Garrison's mind by this unexpected meeting after so many years at a place none other than the entrance to our Headquarters. A few hours after this meeting Mr. Garrison was shocked to read in the papers that the noble Earl had had a stroke. From this stroke he never recovered, but passed away, as above recorded, to the Heavenly Home.

His memory will be cherished by millions.

"No endeavour is in vain;
Its reward is in the doing,
And the rapture of pursuing
Is the prize the vanquished gain."

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THE REV. PASCOE GOARD will give two special addresses at Headquarters on Monday next, October 28th—afternoon at 3 and evening at 7.30. Our readers are asked to make this widely known, and to endeavour to bring enquirers to the meetings. Other addresses will be given on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday evening as usual.

The speakers at Headquarters last week were Mrs. Bloxam and the Rev. Joseph Gay, and their addresses were very much appreciated.

The Rev. Canon C. J. Hollis, M.A., who was unable to give his promised address during the Congress, owing to having to conduct the funeral of a member of his congregation that afternoon, writes his greatest regret and disappointment. He says :—" I have always much enjoyed the Congress and felt refreshed and strengthened thereby. THE NATIONAL MESSAGE continues to be a weekly tonic to me, and I am more than ever convinced that British-Israel Truth is like the salt which prevents corruption.

" The steadfast adherence of our lecturers and writers to the Word of God, and their expectation and proclamation of our King's return, are most stimulating and heartening encouragements for these critical days in which our lot is cast.

" We have been given ' a Banner to be displayed because of the Truth,' ' The Truth shall make you free.' We have a glorious message and ' we do not well if we hold our peace.'

" I hope you will ask me again on some future occasion."

The Rev. Maxwell Carnson sailed for South Africa on October 18th, from Southampton, by R.M.S. Arundel Castle. Several members of Headquarters' staff saw him off at Waterloo Station. The Secretary-General regrets that he was prevented from being among the number owing to a lecturing engagement at Kettering. In addition to addresses at the Congress and at Headquarters, Mr. Carnson lectured for our Branches at Harrow, Oxford, Bolton, St. Leonards, Southport, Plumstead, and Wigan (twice). He also preached at Christ Church, Kew Road, Richmond, for the Vicar, the Rev. Kenneth Dodds. In every case his efforts were keenly appreciated. Mr. Carnson has made many friends during his brief visit to England, and he will be followed by our prayers for a safe voyage and for his work in South Africa.

The adjourned Annual Meeting of members was held at Headquarters on October 4th for the election of Council, and the retiring members were re-elected. Immediately thereafter the Council met and elected the Executive Committee for the year.

Col. E. A. Watkins, B.A., M.D., Ph.D., of New York, writes :—

" Will you please give to the Israel of the Mother country the greetings of Israel in the Land of Manasseh, and convey to our brethren the assurance of our love, our loyalty, and our profound concern in the work and welfare of Ephraim on the other side of the broad Atlantic Ocean. It will be a part of our duty to maintain between the United States and Great Britain that Golden Link of Covenant relationship so pleasant and essential to the welfare of both nations, and so indispensable to the peace of the world, and the successful promulgation of the Gospel of Jesus Christ."

WINNIPEG NEWS.

Miss Mabel Harbour addressed the business girls in Winnipeg on " The Royal Standard and the Canadian Coat of Arms " (by special invitation), on September 27th. A Public Meeting of the Winnipeg Branch of the Federation was held on October 1st, when Dr. M. Ellen Douglass, M.A., M.D., gave an interesting account of her travels in Palestine. This was followed by an open discussion on the present situation, in the course of which Miss Harbour outlined the events in connection with the recent troubles, and pointed out their cause and the misconceptions on the part of both Arabs and Jews regarding the future of the Holy Land, and the necessity for the recognition by the latter of their Brother Joseph, under whose care their activities there are being carried on.

Mrs. J. C. McCallum dealt with the prophecies relating to the Arabs, Turks and Jews in these times, stating that a permanent united Kingdom of Israel would be established under the rule of the House of David. Dr. H. W. Wadge presided, and summed up the remarks of the various speakers. The attendance was gratifyingly large.

The first meeting of the session in Durham was held on the 10th, when Mr. Daniel Robertson, of Darlington, President of the Branch, was in the chair. He spoke of the very great loss both the Durham and Darlington Branches had sustained in the passing of their late President, Mr. John H. Tench. All present stood in silence as a mark of respect to the memory of Mr. Tench and of three other members of the Branch—Mr. J. Sanderson, Mr. Bryce and Miss Gibson, who have all been called to Higher Service this year.

Mr. Daniel Farmer gave an interesting and enjoyable address entitled " Down the Stream of Time," illustrated by means of a chart showing the story of our Race.

The Southport Branch held two meetings on the 14th inst., at which Rev. Maxwell Carnson delivered two lectures. At the afternoon meeting Mr. Carnson spoke on " Jesus as the King of Israel," and in the evening his subject was " Is the Bible False or True? " The lecturer dealt very ably with Modernist teaching, and proved to his audience that the Bible was true and inspired from cover to cover. Both meetings were well attended.

On the evening of the 14th inst. the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse, our Midland Commissioner, gave another of his excellent addresses on "The World Situation of To-day." Some of our readers will remember the striking address on this subject that he gave at the Friday morning session in Congress week, and the people in the Midlands are to be treated to a third dissertation early in November on "The Signs of the Times in which we live." Mr. Jones presided over a goodly company, and the proceedings, which were full of interest and instruction, lasted two hours. By request, Mr. Whitehouse gave a ten minutes talk on the fundamentals of British-Israel Truth, an excellent innovation which it is intended to repeat at all the public B.-I. lectures in Birmingham. Both this and the one hour's advertised exposition were much appreciated, and the Vicar of Rowington, who made one of his too infrequent visits to the Ebenezer Church, voiced the general feelings of gratitude and good will to the lecturer, hoping that he would long be spared to carry on his splendid work in the Midlands.

An exceedingly interesting lecture was delivered on October 14th at Royston for the Wesley Guild by the Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., on "The Bible and World Dominion." The lecturer emphasized the Truth of the Bible as against Evolutionists and Modernists, showing the attempts at World Domination by the ancient Powers of Babylon, Greece and Rome—and in modern times by the Soviet of Russia, the Papacy, and International Jewry. Over it all he showed the dominant power of the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ vested in Israel of old, according to God's Word revealed in Daniel and Revelation, and in modern times in the British Empire and its associated Colonies and Dependencies, the descendant nation of ancient Israel, a Kingdom that should never be destroyed.

The inaugural meeting of the Bolton Branch of the Federation was held on the 16th inst. in the Spinners Hall, when a good company assembled to hear the lecture, "British in the Bible," by Rev. Maxwell Carnson, Commissioner from South Africa. A number of questions were asked at the close of the lecture, and some literature disposed of. Several names were handed in for membership of the Branch. It is proposed to hold regular meetings to further intensify the interest aroused in this town.

THE SPEAKERS' TRAINING CLASS.—The new session opens on Friday, November 1st, at 8 p.m., at Headquarters, and will continue to meet on the first Friday in each month. A very cordial invitation is given to all who would like to receive such training as shall qualify them for efficient service as speakers and lecturers. Mr. Gay will personally conduct each meeting. Those intending to join should send in their names to the Secretary, Training Class, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

STOKE-ON-TRENT BRANCH.—The Grand Committee Room of the Stoke Town Hall held on Monday last, the 14th instant, a deeply interested audience, when the Rev. G. W. Plasting gave one of his instructive lectures, entitled "God's Government." Mr. Plasting, a Yorkshireman, is the Seaman's and Boatman's Padre, and had great opportunities for carrying on the message during the war when he was abroad with the troops, and, since then, at home amongst the sailormen and boatmen in this country, continuing to do so by lecture and by personal service. The lecturer gave word pictures of the world under God's Government (Theocracy) in the beginning, when all was well; then, following the falling away, under Autocracy (government by one)—the Pharaohs of Egypt and the Cæsars of Rome, for instance; then following on to Bureaucracy (government by the few)—as the wicked Barons; and now in Democracy (government by the people)—so prevalent in the world to-day. The argument of the lecturer was that the world having gone away from God's Government, and having tried all these other forms of man-made government, is now in a state of perplexity and suffering. We shall have to get back to the Government of God, either willingly, of our own volition and by prayer, or if not by these means, then through pain and suffering. Such, said the lecturer, the Bible teaches us (Deuteronomy), and so it will be. Mr. Gresham Copeland presided.

"England is as a family of prophets which must spread over all nations, as a garden of plants, and the place where the pearl is found which must enrich all nations with the heavenly treasure, out of which shall the waters of life flow, and water all the thirsty ground, and out of which nation and dominion must go the spiritually-weaponed and armed men, to fight and conquer all nations and bring them to the nation of God."—Epistle of Skipton General Meeting, 1660.

THE WORD OF GOD.

THE REV. PASCOE GOARD writes:—

"That the work of the British-Israel-World Federation is urgently needed, if only because it DEMONSTRATES the miracle element in the Bible and thus makes manifest the fact that it proceeded from the Mind of God, and not from the mind of man, let the following item from the daily Press show:—

BIBLE "NOT THE WORD OF GOD."

CANON'S STATEMENT.

Following an address at the Worcester Diocesan Conference yesterday by Canon Raven, of Liverpool, on "The Place and Authority of the Bible in Christian Life," Canon T. A. Lacey, of Worcester, said that he regretted having to strike a discordant note, but it was utterly impossible for him to keep silence.

It was impossible for him to speak of the Bible as one Book. It was not true to the facts of the case. He could not bring himself to speak of the Bible as the Word of God. There was nothing in the Old Testament or New to suggest that they were to be called the Word of God.

What he did find was a vast collection of literature which he loved and which he read as literature. He found in the Bible a broken record of men blindly seeking after God. He could not find anything else.

Digitized by Google

When high dignitaries of the Church make such public utterances as this, and the daily Press make such utterances the one special item for publication out of all the proceedings of a Conference in which this item confessedly struck a discordant note, it is high time that our demonstration should be given to the people.

Let it be said that there is no other viewpoint from which the Bible can be shown to be the Word of God than that obtainable from our position.

We are Evangelical workers, but as Evangelists only we cannot demonstrate the Bible. That is to say, Evangelists cannot show from their position that the Bible has not broken down in what it records concerning the nation Israel. If the Bible breaks down concerning this, the most important nation, in its literature—then the Bible cannot be God's Word.

We are up to date in modern knowledge. Yet we cannot demonstrate the Bible to be the Word of God from the Modernist standpoint.

We are British-Israelite believer and scholars, and from that standpoint we can demonstrate the Bible to be a supernatural Book, telling one continued story from beginning to end, sequent, even con-sequent, each succeeding Book depending upon its predecessors. We can demonstrate that the Bible tells a story of a race which should be divided into specific branches; which should occupy certain territories; which should be formed and re-formed into specific nations at stated periods of history; which should be, now predominant, then subject to other Powers for a stated period, after which it should emerge as a racial nation and company of nations, and reorganize the whole earth into the Kingdom of God. Out of Asiatic civilization such nation should emerge into European civilization. Out of Asia the centre of the nation should migrate to the Western Isles. From thence it should spread to the desolate heritages of the earth. It should receive the heathen as a heritage and the uttermost parts of the earth as a possession.

It is an entrancing story told from the standpoint of what would ordinarily be called prehistoric times in large measure, and the remainder told in the historical period known as "ancient." Its purview stretches to our own day, and on beyond for at least a thousand years.

It might be looked upon as a magnificent library of fiction based upon the religious ideal. If it were such a library of fiction, there are not figures nor combinations of figures enough within the scope of the mathematical mind to express the number of chances against one in favour of such a labyrinth of fiction being realized in real history. The chances against such realization are so unnumbered as to indicate that such realization in history of such involved fiction would be impossible. AND YET the foretelling of the Book has been paralleled by the historic march of the indicated nations. The Bible has been actualized in history.

To say that this is the work of man, to say that it is not demonstrated that this is the work of God, becomes utterly impossible to the sane mind.

The multitude of scholars do not know our standpoint, nor the facts which furnish that standpoint. The Canon does not know what we know of the Bible, and so he is in darkness as to the facts concerning it, and so speaks without light.

We know and we are busy making known the facts which demonstrate the Bible to be the Word of God.

Armies of rejoicing men and women are awakening to the facts as we know them, and are finding the Bible to be indeed a Divinely living Book. Hundreds of scholarly clergymen and ministers are awake and glorying in the facts and truth concerning the Bible.

You can help us make the facts known by the distribution of our literature. Many have done so with results which have already gone beyond estimate. Will you not help us to get out the literature which seems to be so vital at the present crisis in the life of our nation?

Tens of thousands of books are on our shelves awaiting release. There is a charge against every one for printing and postage. That charge holds them to their shelves. Will you not help to set them free, and to send them out upon their great mission? Buy for yourself till your shelves are stocked. But, above all, buy to scatter among your friends. Should you not know just where to place the books, send your offerings to us, and with them we will send to the many clergymen, ministers, librarians and so on, who solicit such assistance to knowledge of the truth, and who are willing to help in making it known."

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

Now that British-Israel Truth is established:—

WHAT OF THE CHURCH IN BRITAIN?

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

Britain is the Israel of prophecy. This is demonstrated by so many cumulative evidences; blindness to the fact is henceforth that of perversity and not of ignorance.

Israel, as presented in the Scriptures from 975 B.C. onward, is a NON-JUDAIC PEOPLE. If anyone is disposed to call this statement in question, let him take a sheet of paper and rule a line, or make a fold down the centre, in the following manner, and on each side of the line write a list of the tribes constituting one of the two nations, thus:—

Israel.	Judah.
Ephraim, Manasseh, Reuben, Simeon, Issachar, Zebulun, Dan, Asher, Naphtali, Gad.	Judah Benjamin.

It will at once be seen that THERE IS NO TRIBE OF JUDAH IN ISRAEL.

Let it be remembered that this division was made clearly and historically. It was no mystic division. The line drawn between the two kingdoms was an international boundary line, as clear-cut and distinct as that which now separates Canada from the United States of America, or Germany from Austria.

Two lines of Kings ruled, the one in Israel, the other in Judah. Two Governments functioned, separate and distinct from each other, and often in antagonism towards each other.

The policies of the two nations were diverse. The histories of the two nations were as wide apart as the poles. Israel was first subjugated by the nation of Assyria; and by Assyria Israel was carried away into captivity.

The Kingdom of Assyria then fell, and the Kingdom of Babylon arose upon its ruins.

Judah survived both Israel and Assyria.

Babylon then moved against Judah, subjugated the nation, and carried the people captive to Babylon.

Thenceforth the movement of the Israel people was separate and diverse entirely from Judah. They went out into their world activity purged of the tribe of Judah. At the time of their captivity they were, and had been for centuries, a non-Jewish people, and have continued to be so to the present time.

Biologically, that is to say, by blood ties, Israel and Judah are descended from the same stock.

Ethnologically, that is to say, as to national organization, Israel and Judah have been separated for nearly three thousand years.

Religiously, while both sections of the people have drifted far from the pure religion of the Fathers, their religious basis is one. They are all the children of the Most High.

The Tribes of Israel were divided into two nations. But the CONGREGATION OF ISRAEL was never divided, for the Church which was in the wilderness continued to embrace all twelve tribes, notwithstanding the national division of the kingdoms.

The Jewish faith rests primarily upon the Mosaic Scriptures and the prophets. The Jew has been "left at the post" as Israel started away on the Christian race. So in faith the two peoples have drawn apart.

The Israel faith, which is Christian, rests wholly upon the Bible, including the Mosaic and Prophetic writings, the Evangelistic histories called the Gospels, the Acts of the Apostles, the Epistles, and the Apocalypse.

The national prophecies concerning Israel must find fulfilment in the non-Jewish people of ten-tribed Israel.

The national prophecies concerning Judah must be fulfilled by the House of Judah, plus the nation of the Jews.

We are dealing with the national prophecies concerning the non-Jewish nation Israel, and we find that they are in process of fulfilment in the life and history of the non-Jewish people of Britain and her daughter nations.

That Britain is Israel is manifested by the testimony of the prophets, and by the national history which fulfils the prophecies, and by many another test.

This being the case, what effect has it upon our estimation of the Church in Britain?

In the ancient Mosaic Church there were three orders ministering in the things of God to the people. They were as follows:—

1. The Aaronic Priesthood.
2. The Levitical Priesthood.
3. The Prophetical Order.

The two first were hereditary offices. The last-named was not hereditary. The Priest was born to the Priestly ministry. It was his by birthright. The Prophet was individually called of God and commissioned for the office.

The proof of the Priesthood was the genealogical table of the family, and the registration of marriage and birth.

The proof of the Prophet was the miracle element in his ministry, by which he was able to tell hidden things, and foretell things to come which ordinarily were beyond the knowledge of men. Thus the Lord distinguished the prophet called of God from the prophet who took upon himself the office without warrant.

"And the Lord said unto me, They have well spoken that which they have spoken.

I will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him.

And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him.

But the prophet, which shall presume to speak a word in my name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or that shall speak in the name of other gods, even that prophet shall die.

And if thou say in thine heart, How shall we know the word which the Lord hath not spoken?

When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously: thou shalt not be afraid of him."—(Deut. xviii, 17-22.)

The Aaronic Priesthood is withdrawn, as the Lord has taken the office upon Himself. (See Hebrews viii.)

The Levitical Priesthood, which is secular in office and duty, and national in attachment, continues and shall continue.

The prophetic office is continued in the New Testament order of things. See, for instance, 1 Corinthians xii, 28, 29, and chapter xiv, 1.

In the Church in Britain, and her daughter nations, therefore, there will be found two orders working: A secular Priesthood, having care of the secular things of the Church and people, i.e., health, order, education, publication of literature; and the Prophetic order, telling and foretelling the things of God. The latter will be known by the fact that they are administering the miracle element of Divine Grace. This will be seen in the conversion of souls, the elevation of ideals and minds, and the healing of the body. The whole Ministry will be marked by the manifestation of the Spirit of God which will constitute an "atmosphere" not to be mistaken accompanying the prophetic ministry.

It is possible at all times to distinguish this Presence immediately on stepping into a building where a prophetic minister, who has been really called of God, is carrying on his ministry. The Prophetic order is spiritual in demonstration and administration, or it is nothing.

These two orders will be found operating in the Church in Israel, and therefore in the Church of Britain; that word Church being understood to mean the whole activity of organized British Christianity in Britain. Whether one or both of these two orders are functioning within the line of Apostolic succession we do not here at all enquire. That is another question which space will not permit of here and now.

The question will be asked, "Why not the Roman Catholic Church also?" Because that Church by its own action dissociates itself from the Church in Britain and proclaims itself a part of the Church of Rome, which is a very different matter judged from the standpoint we are considering. The Roman Catholic activity is a penetration of Israel by a professedly foreign element, which penetration is contrary to all the teachings of the Holy Scriptures. It will be objected, "But the Church is one in the earth, and there is no international division." To this we answer briefly, leaving the full demonstration for another article; our Lord, when He instituted the Church, did place an international division between the Church in the Roman world and the Church in the British or Israel world. The dividing line was in the matter of national loyalty.

To the Christian of the Roman world He said "Render therefore to Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's, and to God the things which are God's."

"To the lost sheep of the House of Israel" He preached the Gospel of the Kingdom, which included loyalty, not to Cæsar, but to the throne of David, and obedience, not to the Civil law which is Roman, but to the Common Law, which is Mosaic and Divine.

Further, the Levitical priesthood carries on in Israel, in conjunction with the House of David. It does not function in a foreign land, nor in conjunction with non-Davidic rule; ergo, The priestly order in Israel-Britain, in so far as it is Levitical, is of Divine ordination a millennium and more older than the "orders" in Rome. And in Rome no such Levitical order is to be found.

Therefore, let the Church of Rome carry on in what remains of the Roman world, subject to the Command of God to the Church in the Roman world; and:—

Let the Church in Israel carry on in the Israel world according to the teachings of the Old Testament and the New Testament, the first of which, the Old Testament, was ratified fully by our Lord in His Sermon on the Mount, and the latter of which, the New Testament, carries the miracle element, which proves on every page that its writings are of the highest prophetical order, and therefore Divinely-inspired.

The Church in Britain will therefore include all branches of Christian work which show orderly descent, and which show the manifestation of the presence of the Holy Spirit.

The activity of these two orders constitutes the Church in Britain.

The ministry officiating therein will be found to be (a) The continuation of the Levitical Priesthood. This must be taken as a matter of faith, on the authority of the Divine record. In it we have the oath of the Lord that the Priests, the Levites, shall continue to function in connection with the throne of David as long as sun and moon endure. (See Jer. xxxiii.) The genealogical tables of the priests are lost, but the oath of God stands. (b) The continuation of the prophetic order formed of individuals called of God and equipped for the prophetic office and ministry.

Are we then to assume that all who are in holy orders in the British Church or who are ministers of the Free Churches are Levites? By no means. It seems to be a matter of certainty well nigh that there have been, and are, many who have thrust themselves, or been thrust into, or admitted into, the Ministry who neither by descent nor by Divine calling should have been there. Perhaps these may be distinguished by their lack of that spiritual vision which should always manifest the true priest and prophet. Perhaps it may be taken for granted that those who are perversely and yet, as to their own views, sincerely striving to lead Israel away from the simple unadorned spiritual Gospel, especially those who would lead Israel people to the Roman allegiance, are of those who should not have been admitted into the holy office. For neither by descent nor by manifestation of spiritual power do they manifest their calling. Perhaps those also who are denying miracle, and are determined to know no truth but that which is demonstrated by human science and knowledge are thereby shown to be devoid of that miracle administration which must ever manifest the true prophet.

We are not judging any. We are only stating what are the established standards of judgment as set forth in the Divine Law.

Priest by descent and prophet by calling, the oath of God in the one case and the instruction of God in the other, assures us that both these will be found active in the Church, as He knows it, in Britain and Greater Britain.

But what of the Church in which these orders function?

It is the Church of God in Israel still.

Now we all know what is the place which God originally gave to the Church in Israel. We all know, who are careful readers of the New Testament, with what care the Apostles couple the Israel peoples in Europe with the Fathers of Mosaic days in Asia. Look, for instance, at the Letter, not to the ROMANS, but to all that be in Rome called SAINTS. Who were "these IN ROME CALLED SAINTS"? They were Israelites. The Bible word SAINT is the equivalent of ISRAELITE, as every careful reader knows.

"To all that be in Rome called Saints" he talks in such language as the following:—

"What shall we say then that Abraham our father, as pertaining to the flesh, hath found?" There can be no spiritualizing this, nor saying the reference is to a spiritual seed by faith. The absolute limitation is set forth: "Abraham our father, as pertaining to the flesh . . ." Therefore he is talking to Israel, the physical descendants of Abraham, and so on throughout the Epistle. To them he talks first of the Jew, and then of Israel. (See "The Epistle to the Romans" by the writer, in which this matter is set forth fully.)

Let us go on to the Corinthians, an European city of Greece. "Moreover brethren I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud and all passed through the sea.

"And were all baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea; . . ." So, again, the Corinthians were also Israelites, of the seed of Abraham and the fathers.

And so on. So with the westward march of Israel the reception of the Divine Word marches—not eastward but westward—with them. True, St. Peter wrote one general Epistle from the seat of his bishopric, not in Rome, but in the ancient city of Babylon. Otherwise the scenes embraced in the Acts of the Apostles and the Epistles were the scenes of Israel activities at that period. The Acts and the Epistles followed the migration of Israel, and not the march of Roman armies.

The Israel nation was then still the basis of the New Testament Gospel; and the history of the Israel race, their genealogical tables, their tribal and family connections, their knowledge of Divine things handed down, not through heathen sources, but through Moses, the Prophets, the Evangelists and the Apostles, formed the basis of the Church in the New Testament days.

The religious centre of the world is not changed. IT is in Israel still. And Israel is Britain!

Now this leads us to the answer to the question, "WHAT OF THE CHURCH IN BRITAIN?" We insist, the Church in Britain is not a foreign mission field of Rome. It is not an independent branch of the Christian Church second to, nor even only equal to, the Church at Rome, or at Constantinople. The Church in Britain is the continuation of the parent Church in Jerusalem, and of the former Mosaic Church, which centred in the Temple of Solomon, and in the earlier Tabernacle in the wilderness. The Church in Britain is the continuation of the parent Church in the earth.

In the midst of the Church in Israel God has placed His Name for ever.

Therefore we look upon the Church in Anglo-Saxondom, the British Church, that is to say, the Church of the Covenant, as being the parent Church in the earth, and all others are but branches of that parent body.

We believe that the Heads of this august body of believers who constitute the British Church, embracing both elements, the Levitical priests and the called and ordained prophets, stand nearest to the throne of God, as did the ancient priests and prophets of Israel. We believe they are ordained to administer a fuller Gospel, equipped with a greater power—alas, laying dormant in great part—and are clothed with a greater glory, namely that of the Holy Ghost. The Shekinah Glory was confined to the Holy of Holies, brooding over the Mercy Seat. The Holy Spirit Glory is scattered through all the Church, for the advancement of the work of the Church, and for the perfecting of its ministry.

Deny the British-Israel position, and you deny the glory of the Kingdom both as to Church and State.

Unveil the Truth of British-Israel, and you unveil the hidden glory of the Church in Britain; and of the nation and company of nations; and of the House of David reigning over them all.

Wherever Israel is—and it is certain that it is not in Rome—there is the appointed centre of the worship of God, and for the administration of the Divine ordinances in the earth.

Wherever Israel is—and it is certain that it is not in Rome—there is the appointed place for the throne of David, and for the centre of the government of the Kingdom of God on earth. The centre of the Babylonian system eventuated in Rome, as the Books of Daniel and Revelation so graphically show. These two systems all through the ages stand in opposition to each other: Israel versus Babylon!

From the centre of Israel worship and government goes forth, by Divine appointment, the Word of the Lord in the message of Salvation; and the Law of the Lord in the message of governmental administration into all the world.

So we see the great administrative activity of Israel-Britain stretching over continents and seas, bringing order and justice to all; and we see the Missionary activity of Israel-Britain reaching out to all nations from this religious centre in the earth.

Let the Church clothe itself with its beautiful garments, which are not man-made robes, but God-given doctrines and truths, supported by Divine power. Let the Ruling House, "Zion," the place of the House of David, put on her strength, which is the Presence of Jehovah, the God and King of Israel, and the power of His Name administered in the affairs of the Kingdom, national and international.

How glorious are the possibilities of the Church and of the nation when examined in the light of British-Israel Truth!

OTHER SCRIPTURE EXAMPLES OF CONVERSION.

By Henry D. Houghton.

How delightfully easy and natural was the conversion of most if not all of those of whose conversion the New Testament speaks.

Take the case of the Pharisee and Publican as recorded in Luke xviii.

The Publican who went down to his house justified "stood afar off": note please, "AFAR OFF": no spectacle was made of him, no urging to do this, that or the other; but only one sentence fell from his lips: "God be merciful to me a sinner." (Verse 13.)

Take the case of Zacchæus. He knew so little about our Lord that he even climbed up into a sycamore tree to see Him go by. It says, very significantly, that "He sought to see Jesus WHO HE WAS." (Luke xix, 3.)

Now when our Saviour stopped at the foot of the sycamore tree and looked up at Zacchæus, He did not begin to preach to him, nor at him, but said, "Zacchæus, make haste, and come down; for to-day I must abide at thy house." Even our Lord did not call on Zacchæus to fall down and confess or worship at His feet! Oh no, His way was quite different to that.

Zacchæus, however, "came down and received Him joyfully."

When Zacchæus climbed the tree he did it to find out "who He was"! And the stopping of the procession at the foot of the tree, and the hearing of his name being called most unexpectedly by this strange Man, seems to have convinced Zacchæus "who He was"; for immediately he addresses Him as "Lord"! "Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor," etc.; and that one word "Lord" shows that Zacchæus had found out "WHO HE WAS"! And that finding was Salvation; for our Lord immediately said to him, "This day is Salvation come to this house"!

Zacchæus did not know who our Lord was when he climbed the tree, but he knew who He was when he came down, for his words showed it, "Behold, Lord."

The saving part of Zacchæus' speech was not in that last portion of his address to our Lord, "The half of my goods I give to the poor"! It was in that first word "Lord."

When did Zacchæus' conversion take place? It took place immediately he saw the indisputable signs of Christ's Divinity, when He stood before Zacchæus' secret ambush and cried out, "Zacchæus, make haste, and come down; for to-day I must abide at thy house."

That was when and how Zacchæus discovered who He was, and that was his conversion!

Now look at another case.

Nathanael, brought into sudden contact with our Lord, was immediately faced with the question of His Messiahship, His Sonship. "Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree I saw thee."

Where was that fig tree? We are not told! What had he been doing under the fig tree? We are not told!

May I suggest that he, like Simeon, had been looking for the consolation of Israel, and had been praying under that fig tree for the coming of the Life-giver, the Son of God, the Christ.

If so, look what a meaning would leap to the heart of Nathanael when our Lord said, "when thou wast under the fig tree I saw thee." And then Nathanael knew that not only were all his heart's secrets known, but his prayers were heard; and there and then there stood before him the Person, Him for whom he prayed.

And immediately there burst forth from his inmost soul the glad cry, "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God, thou art the King of Israel."

Now, was not that Nathanael's conversion? Of course it was! At once our Lord said unto him, "Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig tree, believest thou? Thou shalt see greater things than these" (John i, 49-50.)

The conversion of Nathanael came in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, exactly as did that of Zacchæus; and it came to both the moment they recognized and accepted Christ as the Son of God.

It was exactly the same with the two disciples on the way to Emmaus. They hoped that it had been He. But the tragedy of the Cross had blasted all these hopes, and they were sad indeed when the Lord joined them.

Digitized by Google

But how different when they recognized Him at supper. So glad were they that though they had turned in for the night they immediately started out to return to Jerusalem to share their joy with the disciples.

And if those two disciples were converted at all, it was at the moment when their eyes were opened and they knew Him!

Take the case of the woman who was a sinner, standing abashed and despised in the Pharisee's house when Jesus sat at meat there. So far as we know she never spoke one word to our Lord. She washed His feet with her tears and wiped them with the hair of her head; but spoke never a word!

Nor did He! What passed seems to have been heart to heart, and not at all voice to voice.

If the priest had been there he would have said, "You must come and confess your sins to me."

Other denominations, too, would have applied their distinctive and denominational tests! But our Lord did not do anything of the sort! No humiliation was put upon her, but kindness, and gentleness and deepest compassion; which ended in those blessed words, "Thy sins are forgiven." (Luke vii, 48.) The only sign this woman gave was the washing and kissing of our Saviour's feet, and the wiping of them with her hair; yet she received pardon and forgiveness at His hands!

Take the case of the men of Samaria. "And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on Him for the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all that ever I did." (John iv, 39.)

These people believed on Jesus (though on the testimony of the woman only) and so must have been saved!

Now the testimony of the woman which wrought the conversion of the men was a showing of His Divinity! "He told me all things that ever I did: Is not this the Christ?"

They knew no other thing, the woman expressed no other, but that was enough!

Verse 41 confirms it all. "And many more believed because of His own word; and said unto the woman, now we believe not because of thy saying; for we have heard Him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world"!

That is their confession, and it must have been, if God is true, their conversion: and as yet they had not heard the story of the Cross!

Another strange feature about the New Testament stories of conversion is this: the incidents related in each case all lead up to the climax, the acknowledging of Christ as the Son of God, and, that done, the story is told, and they then disappear from the sacred page!

So it was with the woman of Samaria, so it was with the men; they one and all disappear; the grand work is seen accomplished, the story is told, the new life in them is begun!

If there is anything more said about these cases it is incidentally as they touch the history of others.

The eunuch:—"I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God"—and he disappears!

Nathanael:—"Rabbi, Thou art the Son of God, Thou art the King of Israel"—and he disappears!

The blind man:—"Lord, I believe"—and he disappears!

Thomas called Didymus:—"My Lord and my God"—and his story is told!

Martha:—"Yea, Lord, I believe that Thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world."

Mary:—"Lord, if Thou hadst been here, my brother had not died"—and they disappear from sacred history!

Why? How? Because they had made the great confession: their story is told!

Oh, I wish we could see, as God means us to see it, THE UTTER FREEDOM OF THE PLAN OF SALVATION.

WHOSOEVER WILL, LET HIM TAKE, TAKE, TAKE THE WATER OF LIFE FREELY."

Can we receive that? Can we grasp it? Is it too simple for us?

"FREELY"! "FREELY"! There is no hedge there! Hebrews ii, 9, says: "That He (Jesus Christ) by the grace of God should taste death FOR EVERY MAN"! None are excluded. Every man the wide world over is included in this great amnesty. The black, the white, the rich, the poor, those who know about it, and those who do not. Those who do know are commissioned to tell those who do not!

"But what saith it (the Scripture)? The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart, . . . that if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." (Rom. x, 8-10.)

The heart believing puts the man into the way: the mouth confessing brings the blessing.

There are thousands who believe that Jesus rose from the dead whom no Church admits. Alas, alas, we have taught them that that is nothing!

Please mark, that is the dividing, separating thing, for that is the sign of His Divinity; and the acknowledging of it too; and that is acceptable to God. There only remains the confessing!

Certain men have for ages past traded upon the claim that they have the keys of Heaven—(and not all of the Romish Church either); they have persuaded thousands to believe it, and thus have acquired strange dominance and authority over the people.

The door of Heaven is wide open to all mankind. The great Book finishes with the most glorious invitation the mind of man can conceive: "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." (Rev. xxii, 17.)

"The Spirit and the Bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come." Not a particular Church or denomination is there authorized to invite to the open door, but every hearer! "Let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst, Come"; whether he is invited or not! "AND WHOSOEVER WILL." There is a big constituency there!

It is fair to conclude that all the disciples of our Lord except Judas were converted. Christ said, "None of them is lost but the son of perdition."

That seems quite clear. Yet most certainly when Christ uttered those words they did not understand the Atonement!

For when Christ began to tell them that the Son of man must go up to Jerusalem and suffer, it says, "And they understood none of these things." (Luke xviii, 34.)

Even as they stood at the empty tomb of the risen Christ, it says, "As yet they knew not the Scripture that He must rise again from the dead." (St. John xx, 9.)

The secret was, THEY KNEW AND BELIEVED IN HIM! "Lord, Thou hast the words of eternal life." The full value and worth of the Atonement were all theirs, for they accepted and believed in Him!

Christ our Lord said of His disciples in John xvii, 8: "For I have given unto them the words which Thou gavest Me, and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from Thee, and they have believed that Thou didst send Me."

There is the conversion of the disciples, as verse 12 says, "None of them is lost but the son of perdition." Though none of them knew as yet the story of the Sacrifice on Calvary.

And here is the way of conversion for the whole world, verse 21, "THAT THE WORLD MAY BELIEVE THAT THOU HAST SENT ME."

And again in verse 25 we have the deciding factor in the conversion of the disciples: "O righteous Father, the world hath not known Thee; but I have known Thee; and these have known that Thou hast sent Me."

And again in xvi, 27: "For the Father Himself loveth you, because ye have loved Me, and have believed that I came out from God."

On one occasion the Jews came to Christ and asked, "What shall we do that we might work the works of God?"

Notice the form of the question: "Work the works of God." Plural number!

Christ answered them fully, clearly, unambiguously!

But He answered them in the singular number: "This is the work of God." One work, not ten, nor a hundred! One single work of God. "That ye believe on Him whom He hath sent."

There is the vital point, the testing point, the switch line which we are to take if we are to do any of the works of God!

Any acceptable work of God must begin with this one work! "This is THE WORK of God."

These words of our Lord cannot be without their intense and far-reaching meaning.

Christ would never offer to us an unstable ground for our faith. He would not mislead us.

This very question which the Jews asked our Lord springs spontaneously to the hearts and minds of thousands to-day. We put it in modern form when we ask, "How shall I please God?"

And man answers it in his own foolish and ignorant way when he says, "Be honest, upright, clean living, then you will please God."

Christ did not answer it in that way. On the contrary, He takes us to the very A B C of Christianity, and God-pleasing purposes and work, when He said, "This is the work of God, that ye believe on Him whom He hath sent."

Let us put that question to ourselves. "Heart of mine, Dost thou believe in the Son of God?" And with all my heart and soul I can say "I DO." I may not believe in my hopes, I may not believe in my experience, I may not believe in my righteousness. That is not the question!

Whatever may be my hopes, my experience, my righteousness, my attainments, they are all unimportant and subordinate to this one great central dividing truth which cuts the world asunder, and ever will, "Dost thou believe on the Son of God?"

Man has wrapped up Salvation with all kinds of exterior coverings, priestly forms and ceremonies, ritual observances, and other objectionable usages which have no Scriptural warrant, and can have no virtue or saving operation.

The one great changing, renewing, saving thing is this, "That ye believe on Him whom God hath sent." This is THE work of God, the one thing acceptable in God's sight, and we have the evidence of His Son to tell us so! The Atonement Christ saw to, it was His business, and was made, completed, perfected, and is the ground of the sinner's acceptance with God; and the knowledge of its worth and efficacy is balm and comfort indeed to the sinner.

"God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them . . . . For He hath made Him to be sin for us, Who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him." (2 Cor. v, 19, 21.)

Let us mark well the overwhelming words with which the Epistle to the Hebrews opens, for on these is built up the whole of that marvellous Epistle. "God . . . hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son, . . . by whom also He made the worlds, Who being the brightness of His glory, and the express image of His person, and upholding all things by the word of His power, when He had by Himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high." (Heb. i, 1-3.)

Here is firm ground for our faith. Here is foundation indeed for our belief. It is not belief in a theory, but in a Divine Person. Christ the Son of God, the brightness of God; making the worlds; upholding all things by His word! All showing His supreme dignity and worth as well as His power.

Then it shows this Divine One purging our sins and finally sitting down, His atoning work finished and completed. And only as He is the Divine Son of God, as established by the first part of this quotation, is His atonement or purging of our sins of any value or worth!

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 1ST.

THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD (Chairman).

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Let me call attention to the fact that this day of our Congress has been handed over to the Clergy and Ministers, with the responsibility of carrying it through.

You will agree with me when I say that we have a very good Clerical and Ministerial representation on the platform.

I have to apologize for the absence of our beloved friend, Canon Hollis. He fully intended to have been present with us, but the duty of conducting a funeral prevents him from appearing on the platform according to programme.

I have also to present to you apologies for the absence of such a number of Clergy and Ministers as would have made the attendance over one hundred this afternoon, but parochial duties prevent their being present.

We have now a large body of ordained Ministers of the Word who believe in this British-Israel Truth. While this has been very largely a laymen's Movement during the years that are past—though not altogether, for you have been led by such veterans as Commander Roberts and others—we now thank the Lord for the great company of stalwart Clergy and Ministers throughout Anglo-Saxondom who are rising to proclaim, not only the Gospel of Salvation through the death and resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ, but also the Gospel of the Kingdom; and the administration of the Kingdom through the vice-regency of the House of David. We believe that administration is soon to be taken over by the King of kings Himself.

We have a splendid programme, and I shall not stand between you and the speakers. Let us do our work "as workmen that need not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth."

THE ROYAL LINE OF DAVID.

THE REV. J. LUMLEY DAVIES.

In Jer. xxxiii, 17, we read that "David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the House of Israel." According to Moffatt's translation:—"For this is the Eternal's promise, a Davidic king shall never be lacking to sit upon the throne of Israel." According to the same translation, we read in Psalm lxxxix, verses 3 and 4, "I make a compact with My chosen, I swear to My servant David, to make his dynasty endure, to make his throne last for all time." This is a vigorous translation of these verses. It is wonderful what we can sometimes learn from those who do not altogether agree with us! Here is the compact. Here is the eternal promise made by God Himself, and this cannot be made of none effect by a mere shrug of the shoulder, or a wave of the hand. It is the Eternal's promise that a Davidic line shall never be lacking to sit upon the throne of Israel. The promise is clear, and there is no getting away from it, and it surely refers to a temporal kingdom of endurance and strength, and must not be spiritualized. And, oh, how some of us love to spiritualize, and how cleverly some of us manage to do it! But we cannot spiritualize this without landing ourselves in insurmountable difficulties. For, in order to be logical, we would have to spiritualize other things so as to tally with this one. We cannot very well apply this to the Jews, because that would be contrary to all historic facts as we find them to-day. They have neither a kingdom nor a throne; and yet here we have an eternal promise—the Davidic line sitting upon the throne of Israel; it must be in existence, for God promised that it would be for ever, through all generations. "I make a compact with My chosen, I swear to My servant David, to make his dynasty endure, to make his throne last for all time." I was heartily grateful when I heard the telegram from His Majesty read to us this afternoon. It so happens that I just want to occupy your time for a little while this afternoon upon this very subject, the subject of this great throne established by God Himself. Not very long ago we were thanking our Heavenly Father for the restoration to health of our beloved King. We did it with all heartiness and sincerity. The illness of the King not only stirred us, his subjects, but it stirred the whole wide world; the world was taking an interest in the illness of our King. And we remember well how every arrangement possible was made to expedite the home journey of the Prince of Wales that he might be at the bedside of his Royal father. And some of us said, "Is it not a very wonderful thing that the whole world seems to be taking such interest in the illness of our King?" It was in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, I think Mr. Goard wrote a very significant article dealing with this very point. The whole world seemed to be on tip-toe of expectation—just because the occupant of the British throne was ill, dangerously ill. Every possible help was given to bring the Prince of Wales home to the bedside of his father. And I have read somewhere that in Jerusalem a service was held at the Wall of Wailing, which was presided over by the Chief Rabbi, who ordered special prayers in the synagogues. I read also somewhere that the Greek Patriarch conducted a special service. And in all these places prayers were offered to Almighty God for our gracious King in his illness. Now, we ask, why this world-wide interest in the illness of our King, and why this world-wide praying for the restoration of our King? Is not the answer found here, "Thus saith the Lord, I make a compact with My chosen, I swear to My servant David, to make his dynasty endure, to make his throne last for all time." That seems to me the answer to all our questions. There is no Royal House like ours, after all. Is there any Royal House that can trace itself back and back to the very beginnings as our Royal House can? We find no Royal House like our own, because I believe it is the throne of David established by God Himself.

I remember reading something which struck me very forcibly; it was written, I think, by Dr. Thomas Yates, after travelling roughly about three thousand miles, and this is what he said, or rather wrote: "Nobody could have foreseen the British destiny, and an island people becoming responsible for a quarter of the surface of the globe and a quarter of the world's population. It depends upon something more than government and statesmanship; it depends upon character and religion. We have taken a long time to grasp the fact that we had all this on our hands. If ever a blind people were led by a way they knew not, it is the British people. It is impossible to see how it came about, and not see God in it. Yes, there is a high purpose of God in it, and a high mission for our race in the world. We recognize that the Empire has not been built on economic considerations merely, or on ties of kinship, but on great spiritual values, and I own to a new conviction forced upon my mind of the power and beneficence of that love and justice, of those ideals of freedom, which, in spite of many faults and backslidings, have characterized the British rule." He (Dr. Yates) could see God behind it all; behind the Sovereign, behind the throne, behind the British Empire there is some power, and that power must be the power of God Himself. Shall I repeat those words again; they appeal to me; I wonder whether they appeal to you?: "I make a compact with My chosen, I swear to My servant David, to make his dynasty endure, to make his throne last for all time."

Now, in those glorious chapters in Isaiah, from the 40th chapter onwards—and we all know them very well—the prophet refers to some people in the isles, or in the isles afar off; and years ago you remember well how we asked ourselves and others—To whom did the prophet refer? We have ceased to ask that question now, for we know. Does he not refer to David's enduring dynasty, to his throne that is to be for all time? And if the isles afar off, to which Isaiah referred, be not the British Isles, what isles can they be? But where is the enduring dynasty, that Davidic line that shall not be lacking to sit upon the throne? Now I wonder if there happens to be here this afternoon a brother or sister, sitting not in the seat of the scornful exactly, but in the seat of indifference? Well, I can sympathize very well with the occupant of the seat of the scornful or the indifferent, because I occupied it myself for some time, and I did consider that those who believed the Truths that we proclaim here were, to put it mildly, "simpletons." I used to occupy the seat of the scornful, and I considered British-Israel advocates "simpletons," until I found out that I myself was the "simpleton." I will tell you how I got out of the seat of the scornful: I began to read my Bible. I had gone through my college career years before then, but I began to read my Bible as a man ought to read it. And if there is a brother or sister here this afternoon occupying the seat of the scornful, I ask you, my friend, to begin to read your Bible, not as the critics are reading it, but as a child of God reading a letter from his Father.

Even outside the Bible there is evidence of British-Israel Truth which is accumulative, and the evidence is geographical, ethnological, linguistic, and can also be traced through other avenues of knowledge.

Now if ancient Israel ever settled in these Isles of ours, there must be some indications, there must be some historical traces which they must have left behind them. A large number of people cannot move from one quarter of the globe to another without leaving some traces behind them. The Archæologist demands some proof. The antiquarian is not satisfied with anything we can give him; he must have something tangible. Those who have read widely on this subject know quite well that the evidence is accumulative; it cannot be mistaken. I have read in some of the books published by the Federation, and I think Commander Roberts points out in one of his books, too, the fact that there were tombstones discovered in the Crimea upon which were Hebrew inscriptions proving that the People of Israel had been there. One inscription reads: "This is the tombstone of Buki, the son of Izchak the priest, in the year 702, of the years of our exile." And there are other inscriptions which we cannot now mention. But there are a number, we might almost say a host of traces of the migration of these various peoples, under different names, making their way across Europe on their way to "the appointed place" (of which we read in 2 Samuel vii, 10). These tribes were so very powerful that they even routed with a great slaughter the Roman armies. I have read historical books—I cannot tell how many—and they seem to be increasing in numbers as the years roll on. But I do not read of these exploits in the modern English historical books, though the Roman historians are honest enough to record a battle that routed the Roman army, and they have commemorated that fall in the Roman calendar by calling it the Black Day. We do not read of these things, and our young people to-day are not asked to learn these things; they are kept away from them. There are geographical traces pointing out the march of Israel; there are also indications in point of language. We know quite well that there are many Hebrew roots in the English language; and we know of the similarity between the two. And if you all knew the language spoken in Wales to-day you would be even more astonished to find a still closer resemblance between the Welsh and the Hebrew—their inflexions, their cases, their genders, their idiom, their nouns, and the forms of sentences. In all these points the two languages are remarkably similar. I could give illustrations, but probably if I did I would not be understood. And when we consider the question of the law, we have another evidence. Mr. Goard has brought this matter before us with such force and clearness that no one here can have failed to see the evidence. No one here can possibly believe it when they are told that our law is based on Roman law. No, if we go back to the time of Alfred the Great, sometimes called the King of England (which he never was), what do we find? We find that he promulgated a code of laws, and we find that there was a code of laws already in this Island based not on the law of Rome, but based on the law of Moses. And those of us who have been to the British Museum are able there to make a comparison, and we find how closely related Alfred's code is to the code in Deuteronomy; we know that we owe very little to Rome; and yet this subversion of truth is taught in our schools to-day. I have young people in my neighbourhood who have been taught that politically we owe much to Rome, and that from a religious point of view we owe (they say) even more, ever since A.D. 597 when the monk, Augustine, landed on our shores. I have ceased to believe that now; I have been forced to the conclusion that we have something better than anything Rome could give us; we have the law of God underlying the law of our land.

Now, in closing, may I say this: that nothing will inspire us more to reach forth to all that is good and true, nothing will inspire us so much as to realize that God in His great plan has some great work for us to do. President Harding some years ago said that he was not so much impressed with the glories of the Anglo-Saxon peoples as with the profound duties which God had given them to do. Yes, they are profound duties; we have a message to give to the world. As we think of our Empire, as we think of our King, and we thank God for him, we realize that behind the throne, and behind the Empire, we have the Lord God of Israel. "I have made a covenant with My chosen. I have sworn unto David My servant, thy seed will I establish for ever, and I will build up thy throne for all generations. I swear to My servant David, to make his dynasty endure, to make his throne last for all time." I close by saying, "God bless our King. God bless our Queen. The Queen who, like him, is self-sacrificing and God-fearing, one who has been with him for many years, up the hills and down the vales of life, always by his side in trouble and in joy. And I believe that the mention of His Majesty would not be complete without a mention of the sterling qualities of his Royal consort, Queen Mary. God bless our King. God bless our Queen. God bless our Royal Family. God bless our Empire."

GOD'S DELIVERANCES.

The Rev. William Brown Pollock, M.A.

I have been asked to give a personal testimony, and therefore you will forgive me if my address this afternoon takes on that character. I am conscious of my own weakness to begin with. But you remember that the Word of God tells us that the redeemed are to say so, they are to tell out what God has done for them. We have to remember from what we were redeemed, and to tell out the praises and glories of Him Who redeemed us. And so I want to tell out His praises, as far as God shall help me. And I think I cannot do better than give you the following illustration. Try and imagine you are going through the dark portals of the strong towers of a huge prison, and that you are following the man with the keys, and you pass along a corridor, and down some steps, and as you go the darkness seems to deepen, and you go along another corridor, and down more steps, and along another corridor, and down more steps, until the man comes to a door, and this door being opened you are immediately plunged into great darkness, and when your eyes become accustomed to the darkness you see the figure of a man with his head and shoulders bent, crouched down by the wall, with an utter abject appearance. And then the jailor goes over to him and shakes him, and takes from his pocket a small key, and loosens the shackles from his wrists and ankles, and says, "Man you are free; follow me." And it takes the man some time before he can realize what is being said, and what is being done. But, with the help of his kindly jailor, he passes out of the door and along the corridor, and up the steps, and along the corridor, and out into God's open world; he is led out of the precincts of the prison into God's sunlight. He sees the glowing flowers, he hears the whispering of the wind in the trees, and the singing of the birds, and the laughter of happy children. It is like coming out of darkness into God's marvellous light—is it not? And yet that is exactly where God found me, and what God did for me. I was not in an actual prison, do not think that. I was in a worse prison than an actual prison, a more disgraceful prison than an actual prison, bound hand and foot in my trespasses and sins, under the domination of the prince of darkness; I was one of the children of disobedience.

But God led me out into His marvellous light.

Can one ever forget an experience of that kind? I did not know how bright was the light and how glorious it was, and how great and expansive was the freedom, until with more accustomed eyes, and with guided feet, I came under the control of a new Leader. There are wonderful and great leaders in the world. In the chairs of our universities there are learned men. There are in our pulpits, not only very learned men, but very saintly men. But there is one Leader Whom God gives and bestows upon everyone of us for the asking, and He is the Holy Spirit of God. Here is a Book, the most beautiful of all books. It is a library of books. There seems to be no connection between them all, there seems to be only confusion, until you get the Divine Teacher, the Holy Spirit of God, the Divine Spirit, to be your Teacher, the Teacher of His own Book. When He guides you this Book becomes illumined, it becomes living, it becomes connected. Confusion disappears. We see the workings of the God of all order in the creation of the world. His eternal power is seen in the greater spiritual universe of the Kingdom of God, and the outworking of the will of the Eternal God and Creator of the universe as He brings you a vision of the new creation and the greater world in which He wants you to move. Well, that revelation made a new man of me, and made my ministry a new ministry. I was so thankful to God that He did not cast me off, and I realized that He wanted me to consecrate myself afresh to the ministry of His Church. For during the earlier years of my ministry I was much misguided and misled—I was not only bound in my trespasses and sin, which is the common lot of human nature, but I was misdirected and misguided by all kinds of beliefs and practices which led me the wrong way. I was an Anglo-Catholic. I have known what it is to sit and hear confessions for hours before Easter, before Christmas, before Whitsuntide, and at many other times; and I have seen the pained expressions and the falling tears, and I have heard the confessions of people who have realized and felt that they were so evil, and that they had made no progress along the right path, although they had made many confessions, and many of them came to the conclusion that they had better give it up altogether. And I could give them no better advice, until God showed me the error of my way, and showed me that I was myself in the same case. There was confession after confession, absolution after absolution, but no deliverance from the power of Satan and of sin. But there was something more terrible than sin, there was the domination of self. But God showed me the way, and He brought me out, and He showed me that there was One Who had broken the power of cancelled sin, and Who had washed me white in the Blood of the Lamb, and Who had given me the liberty of the children of God, and all I had to do was to receive His grace. For how many years I wilfully, though ignorantly, refused the way of life. And, oh, I love to tell you this for His sake, and for the glory of the Master Who loved us and gave Himself for us—

I got deliverance.

I got light on the meaning of the ministry of the Church. I realized that the New Testament nowhere supported the idea of a sacrificing ministry in the Church of Christ. And I came also to the light which He gives. I learned that there is no sacrifice of the Mass, and that you have no such thing as altars in the Christian Church, but that there is one Priest and one Sacrifice that has been once offered for the sins of the world, a Priest after the order of Melchizedek—Jesus Christ Himself. There have only been three priesthoods in the history of the world—a pagan priesthood, a Jewish priesthood, and the Melchizedek priesthood. We have nothing to do with the pagan priesthood. The Jewish priesthood vanished in the Sacrifice of Christ. He was not a priest after the order of the Levitical priesthood. No priest came from the tribe of Judah. His priesthood was a continuation of the priesthood of Melchizedek. All the rest disappeared. And we have a sacrifice to offer, but not for sin; we can offer ourselves as a sacrifice unto God. We can offer our praises and thanksgiving unto Him, and we can offer our possessions unto Him, and there is no higher dedication than the dedication of your possessions unto

Digitized by Google

God and His Kingdom. But you cannot offer a sacrifice for sin; that Sacrifice has been offered once for all.

But, you know, that was not the only light that God brought into my life in those days. Very soon after I was told about the Gospel of the Kingdom. I had read about it, but I did not understand it then. God's marvellous light reaches further than to the redemption of the soul, and the bringing of the soul out of darkness into His marvellous light. It brings you to this wonderful Word of God which is the Truth, and the Truth, like Himself, is imperishable; it is the same yesterday, and to-day, and for ever; it is the Truth of God which cannot be broken and which cannot fail, and which liveth and abideth for ever. We are grounded in it; we have light to walk by until the King comes. The light came to me through reading this Book. For many years I was pleaded with about the British-Israel Truth, which I felt I could not accept; I was so taken up with the new vision that I had received, and I did not know that I was a redeemed Israelite also.

BUT I GOT TO KNOW.

I was reading the First Epistle of Peter, and I came across a passage in the second chapter where the Apostle declares that the people to whom he is writing were without mercy, but are now restored to mercy, and are now the restored children of God; in fact, that they are the seed of the people to whom Hosea the prophet wrote. You remember how in the opening chapter of Hosea God tells the prophet that he is to marry a woman, an adulteress woman, and of that woman he is to have three children; and the first child is to be called Jezreel, and He explained to the prophet that He will scatter His people and disperse them. And another child is born, and that child is to be called Lo-ruhamah, and He says that He will no longer have mercy upon the House of Israel, but that He would utterly take them away. And a third child is born, and his name is to be called Lo-ammi, "for ye are not My people, and I will not be your God." That was what was going to happen to them, and we know what did happen. And then we find the Holy Ghost, through the Apostle Peter, writing to the seed of these people, that they are now brought under the mercy of God, and that they are once more restored under the new covenant to the privileges of His people; and that they are the people of God. And that Gospel is being preached and carried throughout Christendom, and wherever the Gospel was preached, until preached in these Isles, to the people of the Isles, they may identify themselves as the Israel of God.

Now I want to come for a moment to the second chapter of the Book of Daniel. And you remember there we have the wonderful dream of Nebuchadnezzar; and there we have the procession of world powers during the time that the people of God had ceased to represent the Kingdom of God in the world. God was ruling through those world powers—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece-Macedonia, Rome; and then a new Empire appeared, a new kingdom cut out without hands. In his dream Nebuchadnezzar only sees a huge image, with a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, trunk and body of brass, legs of iron, and feet part iron and part clay. He sees in his dream a Stone smiting the image, and then these kingdoms being broken to pieces and scattered as it were with a summer wind. And Daniel by the Holy Spirit is able to interpret the dream, and he shows Nebuchadnezzar how he is Babylon, the head of gold which would disappear, and how it would be followed by the Medo-Persian Empire, and how that would disappear; and so also with the Greek and Roman world powers. And towards the end of the Roman Empire when there comes the intermixture of the imperial iron and clay, then there should be set up a Kingdom, and all these kingdoms shall be broken to pieces and will disappear before that Kingdom that would be cut out without hands, the Kingdom of the King of kings, the Kingdom of Israel, and under the throne of David, representing the King of kings. And when Jesus Christ came He came to found that Kingdom. And He is the One Who was rejected; and He tells that wonderful parable of how He is like the nobleman who went into the far country to receive for Himself a Kingdom and to return. But He does not receive His Kingdom until He returns. And, in the meanwhile, the Kingdom is in process of formation, and HE IS TO RETURN, and when He returns all those who have not come in under the dominion of the Kingdom of Christ, through the ruling of the Kingdom of Israel and the propagation of the Gospel of the Kingdom during the present age, will be broken as with a rod of iron and will disappear, and the Kingdom of the King of kings will fill the whole world, will fill the inhabited earth. We are called to be ministers of Christ, and apostles and promoters of that Kingdom, and each one has had committed to him that special task, and we are to occupy "Till He come." And then, according to His own grace and His own Divine wisdom, the faithful are to be made rulers, it may be over ten cities, it may be over five. But everyone who returns with an unused and an unprofitable gift, that gift is to be taken away from him and given to those who already have. May God grant that we may not be found unprofitable servants in the day of His Coming.

I hope what I have said may be useful to you. I hope it will confirm you in the great realities of the work of God in the human soul. Where is the Kingdom? Why, it is here—the British Empire, and the British people. And He is coming to take His Kingdom and to reign, before Whose face all other kingdoms shall flee away.

EXPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

BY THE REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.

VI.—THE FIRST PERSECUTION.

OUR LORD warned His disciples that it would not be all smooth sailing with them. He gave them to understand that they must expect no better treatment than He had received at the hands of the rulers of Judah, and also from the people themselves. "Behold I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. But beware of men: for they will deliver you up to the councils, and they will scourge you in their synagogues: And ye shall be brought before governors and kings for My sake, for a testimony against them and the Gentiles." (Read Matt. x, 16–26.)

Digitized by Google

"Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword." (Matt. x, 34.)

Wherever these first disciples went, carrying the Gospel of Jesus Christ, they became the centre of strife and contention. "These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also." (Acts xvii, 6.) Why was that? Because they insisted upon proving from the Holy Scriptures that Jesus of Nazareth, crucified for the sins of the world, was alive for the justification of that same world, and that He alone could bring world salvation. "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other Name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." (Acts iv, 12.) Such an insistence struck home against all the received beliefs of Judaism on the one hand and heathenism on the other. Such expressions of belief were bound to rouse opposition, and it always happens that wherever belief strikes up against belief then one or other goes to the wall, and in the process the dying faith always seeks, as a last resort, to coerce the faith which ultimately triumphs. The coercion of faith means bitter and unrelenting persecution which passes on from generation to generation. Beliefs are long in the dying, hence the persecution passes on and lengthens itself out sometimes to many centuries. There is one thing man never learns from God, nor does he seem to benefit from past experience, and that is that you can never coerce faith.

God has never done so. There you have the answer to much in the history of men and nations difficult to understand. Why is this permitted and why that, we ask? Why, for example, was the Great War, with all its terrible loss of life, permitted? If God be the God you say He is, He could have prevented it. Why did He not do so? If man be not allowed to reap what he sows of good seed or tares then he becomes automaton, and faith is coerced. That is to say, freewill, God's greatest and choicest gift to man, is for ever destroyed. "Come down from the cross and we will believe." Such belief on such demonstration would have failed of its moral value and would have destroyed its spirit. "Give us a sign from heaven?" "If they believe not Moses, neither will they believe though one rose from the dead." God has never coerced belief; man has always been doing it and with disastrous results. In one form or another persecution, the coercion of faith, has been the method of the vanquished, before the triumph of the victorious has been completed and perfected. This may be illustrated over and over again in the history of the centuries right down to the present time.

THE FIRST PERSECUTION.

Let us take a look at this first persecution, for there is much to learn from it.

(a) Relative to the persecuted.

The disciples, obedient to the command of their Lord, tarried in Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on High. The power came at Pentecost. After that power had descended upon them they were disposed to settle down in the city of their fathers. The Jerusalem Church had been formed with the Apostle James, our Lord's brother, as its pastor. They were disposed to settle comfortably in their appointed place, worshipping the Lord in the Temple.

Man segregates: Sets himself apart in flocks and herds: Then builds himself in, and all others differing from him, out: His principle has ever been to come together and hold together, lest he should be scattered and so destroyed. God has always worked on a contrary principle. God scatters and so spreads out until His truth fills the whole earth. Immediately after the Flood man said:—"Let us build us a city, and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven; and let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth." (Gen. xi, 4.) And God came down and confused their tongue and scattered them.

So was it with the first Church formed in Jerusalem after Pentecost. The Gospel did it. What Gospel? God's Gospel. Then it was God Who did it. "And they were all scattered abroad. . . . Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word." (Acts viii, 1–4.) These persecuted Christians were driven out by the God Who scatters. Side by side with this Divine determination is a natural sequence operating through man's freewill. They went because they could do no other, and in the going they exercised their own freewill because they could have stayed had they so chosen and taken the consequences.

All men, good and bad alike, fulfil the purposes of God. "Surely the wrath of man shall praise Thee." (Ps. lxxvi, 10.) Take one great notable persecutor of that time who became the great Apostle of the Gentiles, St. Paul. He was more instrumental in scattering the first Christian Church than any other. He did it of his own freewill. He did it because he willed to do it. No one coerced him; much less God. And yet in the doing of that which was wrong he was contributing to the accomplishment of God's will and purpose. The people of the Christ were scattered.

Now travel over the pages of history and see how this story has been oft repeated. A governing principle of the Roman Catholic Church has been the coercion of faith. Apart from the mother Church, the soul of man, hence the soul of the nation, is for ever lost. Such has been her teaching, and such is her teaching to-day. It were better to destroy the body if thereby you can save the soul. That was why, from the strictly Roman Catholic point of view, the Smithfield martyrs were burned. Has she denounced that principle? I trow not. If it is in abeyance, as far as the death penalty is concerned, it is from lack of opportunity. God has used in a very significant manner this arch persecutor to scatter His people and, with them, His truth all over the western world. In confirmation of that, one need only mention among a great and mighty host such names as Wycliffe, Tyndale, Miles Coverdale, Martin Luther, John Huss, Latimer and Ridley. The Duke of Savoy, on this very principle, persecuted the Waldensian Christians and drove them from their homes to wander solitarily through their valleys. They were scattered; but the blood of Israel-Britain was stirred to its depths, and found its voice in its freedom-loving soul, through the word of that man of God, Oliver Cromwell, who had made the word of an Englishman to be respected all over the civilized world.

I must say something now which I find it very hard to say. When the Protestant Church of England broke with Rome she reformed herself, but not far enough. She carried forward the vicious principle of the coercion of faith and became in her turn a persecutor. Through her action God once more scattered His people. What did King James the First of England and Sixth of Scotland say? "I will make them conform or else hound them out of the country." Well, he hounded them out of the country, and the modern British Empire began its eventful career. It is the story of the Pilgrim Fathers.

It was the application of this vicious principle which drove the followers of John and Charles Wesley out of the National Church, and the Evangelical truths for which they stood found expression in the great Wesleyan Church. They were scattered to proclaim the Word of the Lord. It is easy to see that at this hour and in this generation God is still working upon this selfsame plan as of yore, and making the wrath of man to praise Him.

Are the processes at work in the National Church tending to this end? It would seem so. We are making gigantic efforts to bring about the union of Christendom, and by union we mean uniformity. We are saying in effect, "Go to, let us build us a city and a tower lest we be scattered." The elements are strangely mixed. Those elements do not blend—they cannot blend. There is no power on earth that can blend them. Those who are contending to-day for the faith once delivered to the saints are being steadily elbowed out. The dominant forces in many of the Churches are disintegrating. Deny the Virgin Birth; call into question the validity of the Atonement; belittle the enormity of sin, and you may remain; but emphasize the validity of these things, contend for the vital fact of sin in man necessitating the sacrifice of the Son of God to remove that sin, and your place in the Church is, to say the least, precarious.

Let the Protestant dictum, "The Bible, the whole Bible and nothing but the Bible," prevail to influence your conduct and behaviour; and if you are allowed to remain within the Churches it is only by sufferance of those who know, or think they know, that they have the power to dismiss you.

And the dominant forces are not less disintegrating in the world at large. I wonder sometimes if we have arrived at that condition spoken of by St. John in Rev. xiii, 11-18 (R.V.), "And that no man should be able to buy or to sell, save he that hath the mark, even the name of the beast or the number of his name." (Verse 17.)

What a tremendous persecution that will be when it has come to full fruition! Even here methinks the wrath of man shall praise Him, for it will effect a tremendous scattering of God's elect people to the end that, among the nations of the earth, in things temporal as in things spiritual, the suffering of His elect people shall be for the establishment of righteousness in the earth.

Persecution may be more refined and less gross than in the olden times; it is by no means dead. We have often heard it said that the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church. There are many martyrs to-day though no blood may be shed. The vital forces of our holy religion are operative in them and through them. They go everywhere preaching the Word. None are in a better position to appreciate that fact than British-Israel believers.

The Product of this First Persecution.

What did this persecution produce?

(a) The open door of a great opportunity.

They were scattered. They went everywhere. The fact furnished the occasion. The door into the world flung open wide its portals. Out went the Christians and out went the persecutors after them. It was like Israel and Pharaoh over again. Out went Israel from Egypt, and following hard upon her heels went Pharaoh. Out went the Christian Church, and hard after her went Saul of Tarsus. As with the one so with the other; the persecutor was destroyed, for his work of scattering God's elect people, thus forcing them into the larger sphere, had been accomplished. Pharaoh was destroyed outright; Saul was converted. Say not that God was unjust to Pharaoh. He gave to him a prolonged opportunity for repentance and conversion; a much longer opportunity than He gave to Saul. If the persecutor is destroyed and not converted it is his own fault entirely.

Through this open door Philip went out to meet the man of Ethiopia and a great conversion took place.

Through this open door Antioch received the Word of the Lord, and from that reception sprang up a great movement of the Spirit of God which, through the elect ministry of Paul and Barnabas, carried the Word of the Lord into Asia Minor, and thence into Western Europe.

(b) Conjunction with Israel in the Islands.

Israel in the Islands? And who may they be, please? They are, according to our thesis, that people who have dwelt for very many generations, and who still continue to dwell unto this day, in those Islands north and west of Palestine, commonly known as the British Isles.

Lest anyone reading this article should, at this point, close the page and read no more, like those of Paul's day at Athens who, when he began to speak to them of the resurrection of the dead, closed their ears and refused to listen any more, our contention being as ridiculous to them as Paul's was to the Athenians when he spoke of the resurrection of Jesus Christ, let me write freely concerning the conjunction which Paul effected for his Gospel with the people of these Islands, be they descended as you may list. We shall see later how such conjunction is set in the life story of Israel.

Our next article will deal in this regard with the Troas vision, and what resulted from it.

BLESSINGS FAR-REACHING.

By Professor Edward Odlum, M.A., B.Sc.

Somewhere we read these words: "In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Remarkable words!

As a boy I read and wondered at these words, and many others of like character.

The promise was made to the man of whom Jehovah said, "I have called him alone." It was told this man that, after some hundreds of years, the promises would begin to have their fulfilment.

Concerning this statement we may make some examination. Has the promised blessing been fulfilled? If not, why not? If so, how, when and where?

At the end of the 300 or 400 years a new nation was born in a day—in the day they crossed from Egypt to Sinai, under their Divinely-appointed leader, Moses.

This nation was given a moral law, and a national law; and for forty years went to the wilderness school, where they had a training such as no other nation ever received.

Thus, a nation, the seed of promise, was launched among the then existing nations of the earth; and its chief characteristic was that of a moral law.

This was the basis of the Abrahamic call, of the covenants with Isaac, Israel and the twelve patriarchs.

From and through this Israel nation came the Law, Prophets, Apostles, the Christ and the Scriptures.

Through these, the nations, all the nations of the earth, have been and are being blessed. So far, so good!

What about the nations during the past 2,500 years? In that time neither Israel nor Judah, until the last century, did much world national blessing, so far as can be readily perceived.

How about all the nations of the earth during those long ages? Let us see. In that time many religions became manifest. Strangely enough, all these religions had their origin in Western Central Asia.

Here is a goodly list of these religions. Shintoism, Brahmanism, Buddhism, Parseeism or Zoroasterism, and Mohammedanism. To these may be added Confucianism.

During the long centuries these religions have undoubtedly uplifted the Asiatic nations to a wonderful extent. Were it not for these moral and religious systems, beliefs and teachings, humanity would have destroyed itself, and any remnants left would have been the mere tattered rags of humanity.

These Asiatic religions have saved humanity from destruction.

Who were the founders of these religions, and among what peoples did they upspring?

Shintoism is the old-time Judaic monotheism of the Hebrew people. The Japanese are descendants of Abraham and are heirs of the promises. So far as Shintoism has blessed the millions of Japan, that far has the seed of the patriarchs been a blessing according to promise.

Buddhism, the system embracing the teaching of Buddha, came from Western Nepaul in the Himalayas, from the heart of an Israel people, known as the Sakyas. Buddha was known as Sakya-Muni or the Saxon-teacher. The outstanding King of these people, who honoured Sakya-Muni, was Asoka, a Saxon or Israelite.

Zoroaster came from the heart of the Israel or Saxon exiles in the region of the Araxes where the Sak-Galuths were at the time of Zoroaster; and Vishtaspa, an Israel King, protected him and became his disciple. Here again we find the seed of Abraham, the heirs of promise, giving to the world a religion of blessing.

Mohammed was of the Edomite and Ishmaelite people. Ishmael and Edom were the descendants of Abraham and of promise, or of the covenants. With all its crudeness, this religion has been a system of ethics which is immeasurably beyond paganism.

Brahmanism came directly from the midst of the Israel and Keturah peoples of India, and in its purer days and conditions was a great blessing to the people. In fact Brahmanism is an uplift to its people to-day.

Add to these the religion of Israel and Judah, and we have the chief religions of humanity to-day. They are all Asiatic in their origin and all are the children of Western Central Asia, the ancient home of Israel and the other Abrahamic peoples during their long ages of struggle, exile, scattering, wanderings and national upbuildings.

Thus, then, we see that in Abraham's seed all the nations of the earth have been blessed, so far as we are able to learn. However, there is yet the future of these religions, and of the humanity influenced by their ethical principles and spiritual uplift.

THE QUESTION OF THE CENTURIES.

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?"

"What thinkest thou of the Christ, burly, brusque, brave and heroic Thomas Carlyle, with all thy marvellous reading, thy profound thinking, and thy contempt of cant and love of truth?" Carlyle steps forward and speaks: "Jesus of Nazareth, our divinest symbol! Higher has the human thought not reached."

Let us summon Dr. Channing, the cultured and eloquent preacher and writer, the foremost man among American Unitarians in his day. "What thinkest thou, O Channing, of Jesus Christ?" He makes reply: "The character of Jesus Christ is wholly inexplicable on human principles."

"What thinkest thou, O Herder, illustrious German thinker, broad scholar and exquisite genius, of Jesus Christ?" Superb is his reply: "Jesus Christ is in the noblest and most perfect sense the realized ideal of humanity."

I summon thee, O matchless Paul. What is thy testimony? "He is the image of the invisible God . . . the blest and only Potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords."

I summon thee, O once doubting but always brave Thomas. Hear the testimony of this witness as he falls at the Master's feet and exclaims, "My Lord and my God."—MACARTHUR.

"Communion with God is not to be obtained by abstraction and asceticism, but by the development of Divine sympathies."—F. W. ROBERTSON.

"It is godliness which, as the diamond to the ring, addeth real value to all natural and acquired accomplishments."—SWINNOCK.

Bunyan was twice snatched from death when in imminent danger of being drowned; and once, when a soldier in the civil wars, he was drawn out to stand as a sentinel at the siege of Leicester, but another having requested, for certain reasons, to take his turn, was shot through the head, and thus was Bunyan preserved.

Professor MacMahon gave a lecture for our Liverpool Branch on October 24th at Hackins Hey, on the "Five-pointed Star of British-Israel Truth." He dealt with the subject under five heads: That B.-I. Truth stands for the cause of humanity; for the nations; for the Church; for the Bible as the inspired Word of God; for Jehovah—the true God.

The Rev. Dr. Fleming, of London, speaking at a University service in St. Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh, on October 20th, said:—"If the Old Testament had been lost we could not have understood the New Testament." He pointed out that our Lord drew His precepts principally from the Old Testament. This is welcome testimony in these times when so many preachers are trying to throw discredit on the Old Testament. Among those present were Sir Thomas Holland, the new Principal of the University, the professors and officials, and hundreds of students.

As a remarkable example of devotion to the B.-I. Cause we quote the following from a resident in a "Home" for retired soldiers:—"I do hereby promise to dedicate a tithe of ten per cent. of all my income be it much or little with which the Lord shall bless me to the British-Israel-World Federation for so long as I shall walk this earth." Shall we all emulate the zeal of this Christian soldier brother? What great things can be accomplished for the Kingdom of God if we do.

The Rev. Gregory Bestall gave an excellent address for the Sydenham and Forest Hill Branch on October 23rd, in the Wesleyan Hall, and several members of the Church were present, anxious to hear what B.-I. really stands for. They expressed themselves as well pleased at the way the meeting was conducted, and said the hall would be available for future meetings when not required for Church purposes. This is in pleasing contrast to the bigotry sometimes met with. There was a good audience and new members were enrolled.

On October 17th the Dover Branch greatly enjoyed two addresses given by Lieut.-Colonel G. F. A. Smythe. At the afternoon meeting the subject was "The History of Esau and his fight for the Kingdom," wherein the speaker traced through the Bible the Esau people's efforts to regain the Birthright Kingdom—

1. The Rabbis tell in the Talmud of the strife at Jacob's tomb.
2. Amalek at Rephedim. (Ex. xvii.)
3. Agag.
4. Edom became free. (2 Chron. xxi, 8–9.)
5. Haman and the Jews.
6. Herod the Edomite tries to exterminate the King.
7. 1917 at Jerusalem.
8. The final struggle to come.

Great pleasure was felt at having Canon Watkins, of Canterbury, on the platform. In the evening Colonel Smythe traced Judah's history, taking each branch of his family and showing how small a portion is represented in the Jews, and that the other branches have come into these Islands under different names and are now mixed with the other tribes. Mr. Sutton, O.B.E., presided at the afternoon meeting, and Mr. Tarrant in the evening.

At the West Belfast Branch meeting on October 8th, Mr. Millar gave a very inspiring lecture on the "Faithfulness of the God of Israel." The President, Canon Walker, M.A., LL.D., presided, and in his opening address told how his father, who was a great believer in British-Israel Truth, had with another friend invited one of the first speakers over to Ireland. The Branch anticipates a very successful session, trusting that God's blessing will be with them in all they undertake.

Canon Head (Archbishop-Elect of Melbourne, Australia), speaking at a meeting at the Central Hall, Westminster, on Tuesday, October 22nd, 1929, said:—"The very thought of our Empire is something that stirs our very heart. Really the Empire is part of my religion. I do believe that God in the most wonderful way has called us as a people, and has trained us up through the centuries to do a great work for Him in the world. From the time that Columbus discovered America, we have been finding our home upon the sea, and our Empire has been growing, and now it is the only Empire left, and it is stronger than ever."

THE PLAIN ARGUMENT
By P. W. THOMPSON, M.A.

This, as the title shows, is the plain argument in support of the fact that we, members of the greatest Empire the world has seen, are the literal descendants of the great body of the Ten Tribes of Northern Israel, flung out of the Promised Land in 721 B.C. Price 2d.; or post free, 3d.

THE BRITISH-ISRAEL IDEAL.
By W. G. DUNCAN THOMPSON.

"The ladder up which the British-Israel Movement has climbed to a perception of a new aspect of the great Christian and British ideal is that of the historical identity of Britain with ancient Israel. This method—whatever may be the individual opinion of it—is gaining force steadily from research into history and other kindred subjects, and from its extraordinary relationship to Scripture, especially prophetical Scripture: this relationship being entirely complementary and harmonious. It has, moreover, the advantage of being able to provide a platform from which the present state of affairs can be surveyed in an historical, logical and comprehensive way, and its answer to modern criticism of the Bible is deadly. This method, therefore, beside possessing the credit for revealing the new aspect of the ideal, is invaluable for the work done in clearing the ground of the present out-of-date confusion and presenting the fresh conception in a perspective easily grasped and retained by the general intelligence."

THE TRAIL OF CAIN

is traced from the Adamic Creation in

SARGON THE MAGNIFICENT

By Mrs. SYDNEY BRISTOWE (Author of "The Oldest Letters in the World").

By a masterly analysis of the translations of the most recently discovered cuneiform inscriptions, the author deduces the identity of Sargon with Cain the murderer. With fascinating logic she describes the alliance of Cain with the forces of evil, and from these premises furnishes new evidence strongly corroborating the Bible Story of the development of the descendants of Adam.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

PROPHECY.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

PROPHECY is a vital fact in Bible literature.

Prophecy is given by God as the credential of the Divine origin of the sacred Scriptures, and as the credential of the true prophet.

Prophecy is God's method of communicating facts, the knowledge of which—past, present and future—is necessary to a full understanding of God's purposes.

It is therefore essential that the people should be instructed in the fact of prophecy, and in the things contained in prophecy.

Prophecy is the forthtelling of the things of God. As the things of God are continuous and progressive, having a beginning, having an unbroken continuance, unto an appointed end, it will be seen that prophecy must include the history of the past movement of the Divine activity; it also must contain prophecy covering every intervening period applicable to current world conditions; and as the time of the end of the prophetic movement has not as yet been reached, it must be evident that prophecy still foretells future events.

Prophecy is national; international; and finally universal in its scope and aim.

Prophecy envisaged the Asiatic civilization, and spoke of the nations existing within it.

Prophecy passed on from Asiatic civilization to European civilization, and spoke and still speaks of the nations existing within it.

Prophecy passes on to the foretelling of the millennial civilization, and speaks of the nations which shall exist within it; and of the reign of our Lord throughout the period of its continuance.

The one great and continuous story of prophecy is regarding the seed of Abraham, and their progress and activity throughout all the ages to the end of time.

Out of that seed is organized that nation and company of nations, around which as a nucleus the Kingdom of God shall be built up on the earth.

The name of that nation is primarily ISRAEL, and under that name the nation shares in the rule of God in the earth.

Of that seed is Jesus Christ, the Redeemer of Israel and the Saviour of mankind.

The chief feature of prophecy, outshining every other feature, is the Person, ministry, death, resurrection, and ascension of our Lord, and its results in bringing salvation to all mankind.

Prophecy foreshows as a secondary matter, yet as one of the major forces in world affairs, that Continental succession of Empires which was established in Babylon, and which was foreshown to be destined to run through a succession of Empires, enduring collectively for a period of two thousand five hundred and twenty years. This period forms a great "week" of prophetic time, each "day" being equal to three hundred and sixty years; seven such days being 2,520 years.

The succession of Empires should be :—

BABYLON.
MEDO-PERSIA.
GREECE.
ROME.

The period during which that succession should run from the military point of view would stretch from (circa) 603 B.C.—

two thousand five hundred and twenty years—to A.D. 1918. Then the military power should be broken. Accordingly it was broken when the "Central Powers" collapsed in that year.

The ecclesiastical-financial system of the Continental Empires, established at the setting up of "the image of gold" on "the plains of Dura" came some years later than the setting up of the Empire. It seems somewhat hard to determine how much later. Usshur seems to think it was twenty-three years later.

The ecclesiastical-financial standards of the Empire may be expected to cease two thousand five hundred and twenty years from the time they were set up.

The Israel nation comes to the front again in world affairs as the dominant influence among the nations when the Babylon military image crashed—A.D. 1918—and from that time increases in power and influence until it fills the earth. It must soon reorganize the world's religious and financial system on the Israel plan.

So the military power of the Continental system has been broken. The Continental ecclesiastical-financial power has been weakened by the withdrawal or fall of the military support, and will be found to be more and more tottering to its fall. This refers to the Continental system of worship, and to Continental finance. It does not refer to the Israel-British system.

In the meantime things foretold are happening to Israel-Britain and will continue to happen. But also certain things shall never happen to Israel again. For instance: Israel will never suffer again under the chastening rod of the Lord. Suffer she may. But if so, it will be through the perversity of her own actions, these furnishing the cause from the effects of which she must suffer in the natural order of cause and effect. There is no guarantee that God will work a daily miracle to avert the effects from Israel which are caused by her own deliberate policy. Be that as it may, it is good to know that the oath of the Lord to Israel from this time forward is, "I WILL NOT BE WROTH WITH THEE, NOR REBUKE THEE."

Great tribulation will be on the earth, but not upon Israel. (See Isaiah liv.)

There is a glory in pointing out the fact that much of ancient prophecy has become history. Much of it has become modern history.

There is safety in watching events as they happen from day to day, and so to be enabled to say: "This is that which was spoken by . . . the prophet."

There is danger in undertaking to specify what details exactly prophecy has in store for to-morrow.

Let us remember that the prophets themselves searched diligently to understand the significance of future prophecy.

> "Of which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you:
> Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow.
> Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into."—(1 Peter i, 10-12.)

The great outlines of prophecy are sure. They are so written that all may read, and the wise may understand. But the details no man may know before the event.

That the Lord will return is surely declared. That He will occupy the throne of His father David we know. That He will "reign over the House of Jacob for ever" is clear. But when, and exactly where, His throne will be established, and exactly how He will administer His Kingdom, we know no more than did the Lord's people two thousand years ago.

Let us avoid specific interpretation of future events and times. We have not even the knowledge of prophets and of angels. How then shall we know what they failed to know?

"Despise not prophesyings," but avoid running ahead of fulfilment. To do otherwise will not only be a betrayal of self, it will also be a betrayal of the Cause.

Let us not say, "We have discovered hidden knowledge which enables us to do this." We have no knowledge of methods that was not known to the Prophets, that was not known to the Angels.

What we know of methods of reading and interpretation they also know. But the application of all methods known to them, which included all methods possible of arriving beforehand at knowledge of the facts foretold, failed to bring to them understanding of the future. Neither does the application of such methods bring such knowledge to us. Doubtless Prophets and Angels now know that which fulfilment has revealed. So do we. They know no more than fulfilment has revealed, neither do we.

Ninety-five per cent., perhaps, of prophecy is now history, and lies open before us. In it we glory, for ancient prophecy answered by modern fulfilment has given to us an invincible Book in the Bible. It gives to us further such knowledge of conditions that we can fill in the outlines of what is yet to be. But we cannot yet fully read the details of the cryptogram of prophecy, the key of which is fulfilment. We are furnished with a new interpretation of an additional page of that Book from day to day, and that new interpretation comes through the daily Press, which unconsciously records events which fulfil prophecy.

Let us keep up to date with the details of fulfilled prophecy. Let us also glory in the great declarations of prophecy relating to the future. But let us wait for the interpretation which fulfilment will give, and call attention to such fulfilment as it comes to hand. By so doing the faith of men will be increased and God will be glorified.

Avoid undertaking to interpret the details of unfulfilled prophecy, lest we, and the Cause, be put to shame.

Do not say that so the faith of men will be increased. It is not so. Men will not know whether our interpretation regarding future events is right until it is tested by fulfilment or non-fulfilment, so they will have to await the event after all.

Digitized by Google

If the event justify our foreguessing of the meaning, we may reap some personal glory. If it fail, we shall justly be condemned, as the Scriptures do so condemn men whose prophecies fail, as a prophet who ran when God had not sent him. But worst of all, the cause of God will suffer, and men will be turned away from Him.

The Bible will justify all its prophecies in the future.

In the meantime let us "watch and pray, for the day is at hand."

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 1ST.

THE WITNESS OF ISRAEL TO THE DEITY OF JESUS.

THE REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.

MY subject this afternoon is the witness of Israel to the Deity of Jesus. Now this word, "witness," is a word which is written in large letters all over the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. There is a little axiom of Euclid which will doubtless drive many of us back more years than we care to count, to the days when we sat in that tight little desk in front of our master and heard him say, "Things that are equal to the same thing are equal to one another." Now it is along that line that I am going to prove my case this afternoon. I have been busy writing my sixth article on the Acts of the Apostles, in which I have faced the question of the first persecution. May I anticipate a little what I have there written? Our Lord did not deceive His disciples. He gave them to understand that their passage was going to be no smoother than His own; that the people who had called Him Beelzebub would not be very particular what they called them of His own household. "Ye shall be hated of all men for My Name's sake." "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword." (Matt. x, 34.) Israel, in all her many phases, has always been a storm centre; she is to-day, and she will be to the end. Why? A question was thrown at me in Hyde Park the other day—they throw questions at you like brickbats, and some of them hit you hard. The question which, on that occasion, was thrown at me was this: "Your Christ says that we must love our enemies. Haven't we to make our enemy before we can love him?" "Quite right, you have," said I. "Yes!" was the retort, "and your Bible has caused more disturbance, and has been responsible for more bloodshed in the world than anything else in existence." "Right again," I replied. These men sometimes hit the nail on the head without knowing it. Our Lord Jesus Christ has always been a storm centre, and when His disciples live up to their high calling in Him they in their turn are storm centres. "For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law: and a man's foes shall be they of his own household." (Matt. x, 35.) What do you make of that? Is it true? The experience of the ages proves it true. There is no fact more clearly demonstrated. Christ, the Bible which is His wonderful revelation of Himself, His disciples whose function and office in the world is to witness to Him, are, on the axiom that things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another, alike disturbers of the peace—storm centres.

WHY? OH! WHY IS THIS?

The clean man will always have an enemy in the unclean. The man who stands for purity and righteousness in the earth will always create, by his very purity and righteousness, the enmity, the bitter hatred of the unrighteous and the impure. He cannot help himself. "These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also." If they had not gone forth as they did preaching everywhere the Gospel, witnessing to both small and great that Jesus, Whom the Jews had crucified, but Whom God had raised from the dead, was both Saviour and Lord, nothing would have happened. If they could have been induced to keep their mouths shut and to say nothing about Jesus, then all would have gone on peaceably as before; the world would have gone on sitting in its darkness quite comfortably.

What reveals the darkness of the iniquity of sin? Is it not the "light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ"? Then the light of such knowledge is responsible for pressing back the unwilling darkness, and that operation cannot be effected without storm, strife, upheaval.

Now there is another factor which must be taken into account in dealing with this somewhat perplexing situation. Man segregates. He sets himself apart in groups and companies. Builds himself in as it were, and all those who differ from him out. God digs him out and scatters him. Our God is a scattering God. There is a very arresting word in the 24th Psalm: "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; The world, and they that dwell therein. For He hath founded it upon the seas and established it upon the floods." You and I would never think of building anything upon the sea and certainly nothing upon the devastating flood. Out of cataclysmic conditions civilization has moved from the lower to the higher levels. Take two illustrations of this. Immediately after the Flood the people came together and said: "Go to, let us build us a city, and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven, and let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth." (Gen xi, 4.) The very thing they feared was the thing God did. He came down and scattered them, and in scattering them He made them a disturbing element in the earth. They did stir things up.

Israel, when she went into her promised inheritance in Canaan, was disposed to settle down. She began to build herself cities to dwell in. Building herself in, she was disposed to build all the other nations out. There is a sense in which Israel was tempted to make her God a tribal God. In that she sinned against the Almighty, and He scattered her abroad, He sent her away among the nations of the earth. In process of time the Southern Kingdom of Judah came back, and rebuilt Jerusalem. Once more she settled down, and God permitted her to settle down until the fulness of the time. After the days of our Lord Christ, God scattered her again and introduced her to a relentless persecution unparalleled in the history of any people. She had to go forth among the nations of the earth. The Northern Kingdom of Israel remained scattered. She was not permitted to return to the land of her inheritance. She was no better than her sister Kingdom.

Digitized by Google

She lacked the opportunity to dig herself in. She was driven from place to place, scattered among the nations. She went hither and thither like Noah's dove, finding no rest for the sole of her foot. So was it with the first Christian Church. God, using the wrath of man to praise Him, drove the first Christians out of their comfortable nest in Jerusalem, and scattered them among the nations. They went everywhere preaching the Word.

NOW WHAT WAS IT ALL FOR ?

For one distinctive witness. Israel was created to witness to the God of all the earth that He is the God and there is no other. The very significant thing about both Israel and the Church is this, that they witness not to a doctrine, or a theology, or a creed, but to a Person. The One Who built the universe is a personal Spirit, Who creates, sustains, and orders all in holy love. God has, from the beginning, been pursuing this policy of scattering His people, moving them out, in order that the truth concerning Himself might fill the whole world ; and just as the leaven in the centre of the meal works until every particle of the meal is leavened, so the witness of Israel, and the Church in Israel, to the one true and living God shall continue along Divinely-predestined lines until the earth shall be filled with the glory of God as the waters cover the sea.

The witness of Israel to the Deity of God, the Lord of Hosts, is the witness of Israel to the Deity of Jesus. Passing out of the Old Testament as the Lord of Hosts, He passes into the New Testament as Jesus Christ our Lord. The personality is one. If that be not so, then there can be no earthly meaning to our Saviour's words when He said, " Before Abraham was I am." The witness of Israel to the Lord of Hosts in the Old Testament must therefore be the witness of Israel, or the Church, in the New Testament, to Jesus Christ our Lord. " Ye shall be witnesses unto Me." " And beginning from Moses and all the prophets, He interpreted to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself." So then the witness of the Church in the New Testament and the witness of Israel in the Old Testament are one and the same witness. Now the Church is resident in the centre of the British Empire. The centre of Christianity moved at a very early period from Jerusalem and settled in these Islands of the West. The British Church is the OLDEST CHURCH IN CHRISTENDOM.

If our thesis be correct, then the Church of Jesus Christ is resident in the centre of Israel to this day. We do not begin to understand why it was that the Apostle Paul moved from Troas westward, in obedience to his vision, until we begin to understand that the witness is one in Israel and the Church of Christ. Every door was closed to the Apostle until he came to Troas and saw in a vision the man of Macedonia standing over against him and saying, " Come over into Macedonia and help us." St. Paul did not fail to realize that the Holy Ghost had flung wide open the door into the West. How can we understand the full significance of that vision of the opened, Western, door, whereby the Christian Church was a witness to the Lord of Hosts through the West, to all the world, until we realize that Israel was in these Isles, and that God was moving His great Church westward in order that she might make conjunction with Israel in the Islands afar off (vide Isaiah xlix and onward).

That is the reason why the centre of Christianity speedily moved from Jerusalem and came to these shores.

Now, then, here is the proof of my axiom—things that are equal to the same thing are equal to one another. Israel standing in the Kingdom for a witness to God, that He is the one true and living God. The Church standing within the same Kingdom to witness to the same God as He visualizes Himself in Jesus of Nazareth. They go together, and are joined in these Isles. Therefore the people of these Isles, the centre of the Christian Church, from which God is scattering on all sides, moving out His great witness and moving out His great truth, must be Israel.

God is still scattering. The dominant forces of to-day are not bringing together, but scattering, and so the purposes of God are being fulfilled. Examine the forces that are controlling the situation at the present time. They are disintegrating forces. God is moving out His people, and not only His own people, but moving out those who are not His own people, to that great consummation and purpose and intention which were with Him from the very beginning. We talk about peace—it cannot be. You may be astonished, perhaps, when I say that there has never been peace since Adam disobeyed His Maker.

When people speak of war the only thing they have in mind is the sword and the clash of arms. But there is a deadlier war than was ever produced by the materialistic sword. Using the terms then in the fullest and broadest meanings, we say that it is useless to cry Peace ! Peace ! for there is no such thing in the wide world, and there will not be until the Prince of Peace comes. Yes ! forces to-day are disintegrating ; forces to-day are scattering ; and forces to-day are witnessing to one controlling Mind, one Divine purpose and intention, one God of all the earth Who will be obeyed ; and the speedy obedience that we render to Him will hasten the day of His Coming. At His Coming there will be peace, and the peace that He will establish, as He sits upon the throne of His father David, will banish all things evil.

TUESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 1ST.

THE FULFILMENT OF PROPHECY.

MR. W. T. F. JARROLD, J.P. (Chairman).

I feel it a very great privilege to be present to-night to take a part in this Tenth British-Israel Congress. Those of us whose eyes have been opened to the fact that the British nation, her Dominions, and the United States of America are the Israel of prophecy, realize that we are indeed custodians of a great Truth, and we know that we have the master-key to unlock much in the Bible that has been difficult to understand. The revelation is so astounding that it is not to be wondered at that many earnest Christian men and women find it difficult to realize and believe it. It is, however, a Truth which is honouring to our God to know that those promises made to Abraham four thousand years ago are being fulfilled in the Anglo-Saxon people, and that the covenant made with David, that he should never want an occupant to sit upon the throne of the House of Israel, is fulfilled to-day in our Royal House. Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary are the ninety-ninth generation from King David of old, and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales is a hundred generations from King David.* At the time of the birth of the Prince, Lady Waterford sent a special request to his Royal mother that her baby might be called David, because, she said, I believe he will be the Prince David foretold by the prophet. The late Dr. Grattan Guinness, writing previously in "Light for the Last Days," said that those who live to see 1917 will have reached one of the most momentous years of crisis. In August, 1917, the Germans proclaimed the old Turkish Calendar for reckoning time in Constantinople nil, just at the end of the predicted 1,335 years (see Dan. xii, 12). On December 9th of that same year, 1917, Jerusalem was surrendered to the British. Our Lord plainly told His disciples in answer to their enquiry that "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles" (Luke xxi, 24). The hour of God's clock had struck. The times of the Gentiles were fulfilled, and to the very day the years of the down-treading of Jerusalem by Gentile nations was accomplished. God promised to Abraham, two thousand years before Christ, that the Holy Land, from the Nile to the Euphrates, should be an heritage for His children. I claim this entry of the British into Palestine as one of the greatest signs of the times. To-day we find our Premier on his journey to our great sister State of America on an errand to promote the peace of the world. May this not lead to the great reunion of the Anglo-Saxon peoples? I believe that is the great League of Nations to bring peace and happiness and justice to the world. Would that the eyes of our statesmen to-day were opened to see God's plan for His nation Israel. This great British-Israel Truth is shedding new light upon the Bible. It is attracting the man in the street, who has never looked at his Bible before, and he is seeing there things that he never dreamed about. We are living in an age of materialism. We find our Churches honeycombed by Romanisn and by Modernism; and I claim that the Truth which we hold here, and which we are trying to proclaim to the world all through this week, are Truths which will help the people of our nation and the peoples of the world. May our meetings here during this week be a great success.

THE KINGSHIP OF CHRIST.

THE REV. MAXWELL CARNSON.

When I appeared on this platform three years ago it was as one who had recently come into the light of British-Israel Truth. Later on it became my privilege to take the new light that had come to me overseas, and for the last two and a half years I have been trying it out in the Union of South Africa. Consequently one is now able to come back and try to review in the experience of this period what exactly it has been like to be a British-Israelite.

In commencing one's tour from Capetown through to the far ends of the province of the Cape, I sent in advance to the editors of newspapers with the request that they would do what was possible to have public meetings arranged; and I made the matter as clear as I could by correspondence, and followed up my letters by a personal interview. I arrived at one place to find the Editor sitting in his office. I passed in my name, and then I said, "Are you the Editor?" "Yes." "Have you had a letter from the Rev. Maxwell Carnson, Commissioner of the British-Israel-World Federation?" "Yes" "Well, he has come," I said. "But you are not the Rev. Maxwell Carnson, are you? I was expecting a gentleman with a long white beard."

It is well that you should ask the question, In what way has British-Israel made any difference to life or doctrine or practice? In the first place, I have discovered, as we all have, that it has given a new interpretation of the Holy Scriptures. It has made what was certainly difficult to be understood—that collection of writings from ancient nations that are now passed away into one unity, which is, from beginning to end, the Word of God. In other words, from Genesis to Revelation I have a definite and decisive message from my Heavenly Father that I can understand. Now I venture to challenge some of you good Church-going, Evangelical Christians—Do you understand the Minor Prophets? And when your minister gives out a lesson from Obadiah or Habakkuk, don't you have to look first in the front page of the Bible to find the Book before you can follow him in his reading? Through the interpretation of the everlasting purpose of God, the Bible, every page of it, has its place in the unity of the revelation of the Almighty God Himself. Now that is a knowledge worth having. In fact, for some people, through this new interpretation,

THE BIBLE HAS BECOME A NEW BOOK.

I was travelling down from Capetown to Durban on one of our coastal steamers, and there was a young man sitting at the dinner-table the first night. He was a modern youth, very well dressed. I was put next to him, and when I sat down, he turned to me and said, "What are you travelling in?" "I am a Commissioner of the British-Israel-World Federation," I said. "What is all that about?" he asked. So I told him. "Are you a parson?" "Yes," I replied. We continued the conversation through dinner, and then we went up on the deck and talked until about eight o'clock. And then he said to me, "I have got a spare bunk in my cabin, will you come and join me?" So I joined him in his cabin, and up till midnight he kept me hard at work discussing British-Israel. The next night he brought in with him a young Dutchman, and we sat up till two in the morning. And by the time we got to Durban I was more or less exhausted. The night before, this young man said to me, "The first thing I shall have to do when I get to Durban will be to buy a Bible." He had got a new interpretation of this Book.

It may seem strange to those who do not know British-Israel Truth, but it brings to me, and those whom I know in the British-Israel camp, new health. Those of you who remember what I was like three years ago will know what I mean. On the Saturday before we arrived in Capetown I was totally unable to get out of the bunk through well-advanced rheumatism, but I managed to hobble ashore on the Monday morning, and I have not had a pain since I landed in Capetown. Where has it gone? I do not know. But I do know that there has come flooding in with the new revelation and the new inspiration and the new work and the new surroundings, there has come flooding into this mortal frame of mine new health. When I arrived back here, and visited Headquarters, I found everyone looking three years younger. Look at Mr. Garrison; look at Mr. Goard; look at our dear old patriarch—Commander Roberts. It is simply amazing to me. For obvious reasons I am saying nothing about the way in which the ladies have grown younger. So we discover, as has been suggested to you already by Mr. Goard, and will be suggested again and again, that there are resources of Divine health waiting to be claimed, the unfolding of the power of the Most High, and the outpouring of the blessings of Heaven upon us with this new health that has come. I have discovered—and I ought to have known it before—I have discovered

A NEW PRAYER BOOK.

You will forgive me if the youngsters of mine will keep coming up. But one Sunday it was suggested by his mother that my elder boy should go with her and her parents to the little Church not far away from where we live, but this boy of ten said, "Mother, you can go to the Church of England if you like, but I am not going." But he went, and when he came back home at mid-day, full of life, he said to me, "Daddy, I did like that service. Why, the Prayer Book is full of British-Israel." If some of you are getting a bit tired of the Prayer Book, if you look at it from the British-Israel point of view, you will soon be shouting, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He hath visited and redeemed His people." The whole of your Prayer Book, and the whole of your Church Service, and the whole of your Bible, will be full of this everlasting purpose of God, which is so great and glorious an adventure for all of us.

I have found also in British-Israel a new unity of the Spirit. Look at this platform. I do not know what Church these various brethren belong to, for I have never asked them. You do not know what Church the person next to you belongs to. As I go about I never dream of saying to anybody, "What Church do you go to?" We have discovered that we do not have to tread on thin ice in dealing with one another; we do not have to go carefully in examining this or that little doctrine, and seeing how far we dare go, because we have found a common ground in the everlasting purpose of Almighty God revealed in the plain language of the Word of God, which we know to be His Word.

I have discovered a

NEW PERSONALITY IN JESUS CHRIST.

I want to put it to you, not dogmatically, but from the point of view of a personal experience—that interpretation of Jesus which British-Israel has given to me; and if you realize where I am getting the force of my preaching and the driving power of my life, I shall be able to say to you, "Go thou and do likewise." I have discovered in the New Testament that He is Christ Jesus the King. I was trained to think of Him as the Carpenter of Nazareth. I have heard Labour Union delegates talking about the horny-handed sons of toil, with whom Jesus has everything in common, because He had to labour as they do. That may be perfectly true if they can get any consolation from that fact, but that interpretation has ceased to be the only one for me. I have lost that interpretation of Jesus Christ which is so common in some circles. I ought to be long-faced and pale and uninteresting because I am a preacher of the Gospel; and yet it is a glorious Gospel of life in Jesus Christ. You see the contradiction in terms. But I do know that so much of the Christianity so-called to-day is associated with that pale-faced Galilean, an aspect of Him which was typified for us in the film shown three years ago, in which a company of players presented the life of Christ as it appeared through certain spectacles, and the one who represented the Christ never smiled, he moved about with a slow and gliding movement; there was nothing of manliness about the figure. That, I submit, is the impression that our younger people, and a good many of our older ones, have got to-day of Christ; and I know where that impression of Him came from, and so do you.

I have a Christ now Whom I can offer to any man, young or old, and to any woman, and say, "There is your Hero in history, in life, and in religion." And you know He was announced as King. "Unto us a Child is born; unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon His shoulder; and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon His kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever." Yet a Bishop tells us in the public Press in South Africa that the prophets did not pretend to foretell that which is going to happen.

CHRIST WAS ANNOUNCED AS KING;

when the angel came to Mary and said, "He shall be great, and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David." Did you know that was in the New Testament? We are accused of living in the Old Testament times. The government shall be laid upon His shoulder. He was announced as King, but was He recognized as King? Satan recognized him as King, because in the temptation, he took Jesus on to an exceeding high mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them in a moment of time. Satan knew He was the Heir when he made that offer of the kingdoms of the world. Do you remember what Nathanael said: "Rabbi, Thou art the Son of God; Thou art the King of Israel." Did He act as King? I think He did. I think we can get a vignette of Him as King if we study His actions. Do you remember how He went into the Temple and overturned the tables of the money-changers and the seats of those who sold doves? He was then challenging one of the big vested interests of His day. Annas and Caiaphas were the high priests of God. Annas, the high priest, must procure the office for his son, and for his son's son; and then, when he had run through them all, he put in his son-in-law Caiaphas, to be the high priest of God Almighty, and as a result of wealth and influence and power he holds the position. And into the centre of this trading comes the King, and He says, "Out with this trading; this is the House of God." Out on the Mount of Olives Annas had built himself a summer house. And the King comes and says, "Give an account of your stewardship. How did you make your money, Annas and Caiaphas?" That is a difficult question to ask anybody.

Digitized by Google

When you ask a man about the contents of his pocket, he either responds as his conscience allows him easily to respond, or else you become his mortal enemy from that day onwards. But that was what was the matter with Annas and Caiaphas, and Christ challenged them in their tenderest spot.

Having taken that moral, outstanding position as King, and challenging the high priests, the ecclesiastical dignitaries, as to how they made their money, He challenged them next in regard to their philosophy. Some of us have learned that it is difficult to run counter to modern ideas. They said, "There is no resurrection; when a man is dead, he is dead." But Christ takes the little girl by the hand, and says, "I say unto thee arise," and He restores her to her parents. But they said, "She was only asleep. It was a case of catalepsy." And then Jesus meets the procession at Nain, and there is the widow's son who has been dead longer than the daughter of Jairus, and He says to him, "Arise," and the young man gets up from the bier, and is given back to his mother. What about that? Then you get the wonderful story of Lazarus, which is put in the story of the Gospel to show you how the King deals with the philosophy of Annas and Caiaphas, who say there is no resurrection. Jesus goes away into the country, and a message reaches Him, "Lazarus whom Thou lovest is sick," but He stays where He is, and He remains there for another two days, and the disciples say among themselves, "How is it He stays, when He ought to be there with Lazarus." But it was not until He heard that Lazarus was dead that He said, Now we are going up, and you hear the King speaking, "Lazarus, come forth."

Here is another picture. On the Mount of Olives is Jesus, and Lazarus whom He had raised from the dead. And here was Annas and Caiaphas, and they are saying, Will He come to the feast? A crowd of pilgrims are coming up the valley, they want to see Jesus and Lazarus. And that procession swings round and comes back again and into the city.

"BEHOLD, THY KING COMETH UNTO THEE, riding upon an ass, and a colt, the foal of an ass." They did not need to be told; they knew their Bible. Christ is riding now right into the very citadel, into the very centre of their stronghold. Yes, the life of Jesus is a constant affirmation of His Kingship. What happens? Will they get rid of Him? They put Him on the Cross, and He dies, and they said, "It is finished," and they went to their homes because it was the Sabbath, and they carry on with their money-making, and with their philosophy; and on the third morning, because it was not possible that the Prince of Life should be holden to death, they were no further on than they were before, because Jesus is risen, and the whole world is at His disposal. And so you go on to the Resurrection and to the Ascension.

I want to bring you back. I left something out when I looked at the King. I want to say, "Hosanna, blessed is He that cometh in the Name of the Lord." I have never shouted so much in my life as I have since I became a British-Israelite. Why am I so enthusiastic about the King? Because when I look at my King I realize that He is not merely the King on the Throne, but He is the King on the Cross. What does that mean? It means that I have to go down on my knees before the King Who comes and dies for me, and the Cross of Christ, which is not the mark and symbol of that conflict only, but the mark and symbol of the King's service for humanity. He died upon the Cross for us and for our salvation. And that salvation is to be given to the whole world with all the force of your belief in the Bible behind you. The Cross comes to be a symbol of Israel, not the crucifix, because the King is not dead; the Cross that we see when we look at our Union Jack, the red cross of St George, and the white cross of St. Andrew. Cross upon cross, and it spells sacrifice, sacrifice. And there in the middle of history stands that Cross. We preach Jesus and Him crucified, risen, and glorified, Who shall yet come again with power to rule over the kingdoms of this world.

ISRAEL—CHANNEL OF DIVINE BLESSING.

THE REV. GILBERT DAVIES, M.A.

I will confine myself to the change that the British-Israel Truth has brought about in my own life. I am a raw recruit, so to speak, from the country. One or two on the platform have kindly come and helped us in our country parish, and to them we are greatly indebted—the Rev. Arthur Pritchard, Commander Roberts, the Rev. Pascoe Goard. We owe them a deep debt of gratitude because they have been seeking to bring the nation back to the Bible. This new Truth has so enthused me that I never miss any opportunities, whether in the railway carriage, or in the street, or in any other way, as well as in the pulpit, of bringing in, I hope tactfully, the Truth concerning British-Israel and the dignity of our calling as Englishmen. I say it with no sense of pride, except to do God's will. I thank God that I have been able to come and take part in this wonderful Congress, in which men and women of one accord consider how they can best take action for the future, and see what can be done to restore our country to its old Bible-loving position, and deliver it from the evils which have largely destroyed the faith of the younger generation. Many of us thank God that we were brought up in Christian homes, but we do regret that so many of the promises of God were spiritualized, and that they did not mean all that they should have meant to us. We had, as it were, a film over our eyes, and we failed to see the great heritage concerning which our Chairman has written. And I would like to thank Mr. Jarrold for his book. The War opened his eyes, as it opened the eyes of many. Through God's goodness we were spared from what seemed to be, humanly speaking, an overwhelming disaster. I believe the War brought a new faith into the lives of many, while there were others who lost their faith because they were not sufficiently cognizant of this wonderful Book. One point which brought me to the truth was this—in the affairs of men. We were not reduced to mere fatalism. We began to see the covenants made with Abraham, and the promises oft repeated to Jacob and to Isaac, and to the Prophets. We are being told to-day that we need not read the Prophets. Someone has declared that the Minor Prophecies might as well be expunged from the Bible, that the Pentateuch might as well be taken out of the Bible. It only shows the very cursory reading which those who are the preachers of God's Word have made. I believe this to be the Word of God from beginning to end. And when we start from that point of view we see the Divine rule in the affairs of men, and we do see the Divine unity in the whole. It was only a few years ago that the light suddenly came to me. The first book I read was from a friend ; and that book I placed in the hand of another friend, who is now doing splendid work in the Cause of British-Israel Truth ; he was a lawyer. That book was passed on, and it resulted in some twenty people coming into British-Israel Truth. And so I would say to you all, place good literature in the hands of as many people as you can. British-Israel Truth changes our interpretation of the Bible, it changes our current of thought. As we read our newspapers side by side with the Word of God, we see the designs of God. I should not be on this platform, and none of the other speakers would be on this platform, if the Gospel of Salvation were not preached—salvation from sin through the Sacrifice of Christ, His Resurrection, and His Coming again. But the British-Israel-World Federation has always preached the Gospel of Salvation, as a matter of course. This is no new sect. There are plenty of Churches to-day. But we want this Truth to be the final basis of authority. It is no new heresy coming in, but the proper and rational interpretation of the Old Testament, giving the words their proper meaning. It is only thus that you get the plain meaning of God's designs. Israel was scattered, but never finally lost. "Now therefore, if ye will obey My voice indeed, and keep My covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people ; for all the earth is Mine." (Exodus xix, 5.) And in the 26th of Leviticus we have the blessings promised, and the punishments which were to fall on the Israel people. I venture to say that chapter is the key-chapter of the Bible. I believe that the majority of the clergy and ministers are not sufficiently conversant with that chapter. But how can we preach the Word of God to our people unless we know this Book from cover to cover? I am learning something every day, and many of you are. Thank God for these gatherings. Those of you who have friends who have not been here, bring them along to-morrow, that they may learn what are the elemental truths concerning British-Israel. So we will go forth, strengthened by the fact that God is our omnipotent God, the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, our personal Saviour, and that we have the illumination of the Holy Spirit, Who takes of the things of God and shows them unto us. We are now coming into the light. We realize that the return of our Lord Jesus Christ is imminent. The Israel people are to be the channels of Divine blessing to the world, for we have been redeemed under the new Covenant. May each one of us take our part. May we stick to the Bible, the secret of England's greatness, in season and out of season, and oppose every message which weakens our faith and casts doubt upon the faithfulness of our God.

THE DIVINE GOVERNMENT

BRITAIN—AND PALESTINE.

THE REV. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, M.A.

"What business have we got in Palestine?" Now you all know that the Daily Mail is conducting a very vigorous campaign with the idea of dragging us out of Palestine. A gentleman not very long ago thought he would help the Daily Mail along, and he wrote to them saying, "There is a quotation in the Bible that will help you all right. In Zechariah it says, 'I will cut in pieces all those who burden themselves with Palestine.'" I was at Headquarters, and a notice of that was brought to me. We decided that that ought to be answered at once, so we just turned up our Bibles, and I wrote a letter to the Daily Mail in which I said, "Your correspondent would do well to quote the whole of the verse, which goes on to say, 'Even all the enemies of Jerusalem.' The latter part of that verse suggests it is protected against the enemies of Jerusalem, and by no stretch of the imagination can Britain be considered an enemy of Jerusalem, but rather has Britain been the greatest benefactor the city has ever known." Well, now, the Daily Mail very kindly published that, and I got a lot of letters from all parts of England thanking me. I took heart at this, and thought we would have another try, and I wrote to the Editor of the Daily Mail thanking him for his kindness, and thanking all those who had written to me. I thanked the Daily Mail for its consistent policy with regard to Russia, and then I said, "With regard to the Mandate for Palestine, it may be true that it touches our pockets rather heavily," but I suggested that this was part of the white man's burden, but which would bring its own reward. Then I went on to say, "But signs are not wanting that we have received our than the League of Nations, who would naturally give the country to those people whose forces delivered the city from her age-long bondage." But that letter was not put in! I tell you to-night what was written, for it may get into THE NATIONAL MESSAGE. Curiously enough the Daily Mail has answered the question for us in a few words if it only knew in one of its issues in which it presses forward this policy of getting out of Palestine, and it draws lurid pictures of what is going on there. In connection with this question the Daily Mail is repeatedly becoming the "Daily Wail." But it answers the question for us in a few words at the head of one of its columns, "British Tommies at Home in Jerusalem." There you see the Daily Mail has answered the question for us. But that will not satisfy us quite to-night, we must get down to hard tacks, so that we can answer the question for other people.

I picked up in the train recently another newspaper with an article which had been cabled across the world on the same subject from Mr. Winston Churchill, and it contained some very wise words. After saying that in 1921 he had the direction of the policy with regard to Palestine, he said that they endeavoured to give the Arab his due, and to give him his kingdom in Iraq, and to provide a national home for the Jews in Palestine; "but there is no intention," he said (and he was quite right) "of making the Jews the prominent race in Palestine." No. Then he goes on to say that what has been happening—and they are very true words—is only a foretaste of what will happen throughout the Nile Valley and from end to end of India after the unifying and beneficent influences of the British race is taken away. Well, now, speaking as I can from an experience of twenty-five years of fairly close touch with India, I can say that as far as India is concerned those words are true, and I have no doubt that they would be true of Palestine also.

But we have got to answer the question, "What business have we in Palestine?" The Daily Mail naively suggested that Italy might be induced to take the Mandate. I ask you, if we have no business in Palestine, why in the world should Italy have any business there? And also, does the Arab want Italy to come into Palestine, or does the Jew? But we have got to answer the question from the point of view of our belief and of the Bible, and in order to do that we must answer two questions. One of them can be answered very briefly; the other will take a little longer.

The first question is this, Who are the Arabs? And the second question is, Who are the Jews? Who are the Arabs? I do not think the Arabs are Modernists, and they believe that Abraham lived many centuries ago, and they believe that Abraham was their ancestor. They are the descendants of Ishmael. If you read the 16th and 17th chapters of Genesis you will see that Ishmael was to be a great nation. "I will establish My covenant with him (Isaac) for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him. And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee; Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation." So there is the Arab, and Mr. Churchill said our policy is to give the Arab his kingdom in the place where God said he should have a kingdom.

NOW, WHO ARE THE JEWS?

Now this question is a short one, but you can take it from me, if you can answer it correctly, you will be able to solve, not only many questions in the Old Testament and in the New, but also many national and many international questions of the present day. So let us get down to it. Who are the Jews? First of all, the British people are not Jews. Now I say that because a great many people who read about our work as a Federation say at once, "That is the Jew," and when we try to present our case before them, they will say, "We do not want to have anything to do with the Jew." Then, again, Abraham was not a Jew. You will be surprised at my saying that. For if you will read some of our religious literature you will find some of our leaders in the Churches speaking of Abraham as a Jew. Isaac was the son of Abraham, and therefore could not be a Jew. Jacob who became Israel was the father of Judah, and therefore was not a Jew. And Judah was not a Jew. Well, then, who are the Jews? Let me give you another key to help you in the solution of these Bible and other questions on the distinction between the Kingdom of Judah and the Kingdom of Israel. You will find in the Second Book of the Kings, just towards the end, the first mention of the Jews. "At that time Rezin, king of Syria, recovered Elath to Syria, and drave the Jews from Elath; and the Syrians came to Elath, and dwelt there unto this day." (2 Kings xvi, 6.) The two Kingdoms, the Kingdom of Israel and the Kingdom of Judah, were carried away to two very different places, and one 130 years later than the other. The remnant of Judah went back to Palestine after seventy years, and only Judah. There are some people to-day who try to prove that the other eleven tribes went back. But if you will read Ezra and Nehemiah you will find who went back, they are described as those who went back of the captivity under Nebuchadnezzar, and Judah and Benjamin are mentioned. Now the Jew to-day is distinguished from all other nations. Sometimes we British-Israelites are asked why we have not got a Jewish face. Well, now, the Jewish face—and I think I am speaking correctly—is not a pure Israelitish face. Many of the tribe of Judah, contrary to the commandment of God, married amongst heathen nations, and that face with which we are so familiar to-day is more Syrian than Israelite. There is, therefore, the distinction between the faces. The Jews of to-day are the descendants of the remnant of Judah that went back after the seventy years of exile. Here is a remarkable fact:—

There are supposed to be in the world to-day about fifteen million Jews, so-called, but half of them are probably of a mixed race. Out of the whole number, after nineteen hundred years of the preaching of the Gospel, there are perhaps about 250,000 who are Christians; so you see this leaves 14,750,000 who are anti-Christian, and a large proportion of them are said to be atheistic. So that the people who imagine that the Jews are going to rule the world, as the Zionists think they are, are faced with the great problem of these atheistic and anti-Christian people who are supposed to be in possession of the Covenant blessing.

Well, we have answered those two questions, Who are the Arabs? and, Who are the Jews? Shall we answer in a brief word the future of the Jew. If you will read the 21st of Matthew, you will find two of our Lord's parables, and you will read at the end of the chapter that "they perceived that he spake of them." The first was the parable of the two sons. "And he came to the first, and said, Son, go work to-day in my vineyard. He answered, and said, I will not; but afterwards he repented, and went. And he came to the second (Judah) and said likewise. And he answered and said, I go, sir; and went not. Whether of them twain did the will of his father? They say unto him, The first." Then comes the parable of the husbandmen, to whom the Father sent first His prophets, and then His messengers, and finally His Son. "And the husbandmen said among themselves, This is the heir, come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance." Then again the Master asked the Jews what their view was, and they said, "He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons. Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the Scriptures, The Stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner; this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes? Therefore I say unto you, The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof."

What business have we got in Palestine? We are those other ten and perhaps eleven tribes. And if a remnant of one tribe to-day represents fifteen million in the world,

WHAT OF THOSE OTHERS?

And where is the nation to whom our Lord said the Kingdom shall be given?

I have not time to go into all the details. I just want to tell you one or two things that have been happening in our day, which will help you to solve the problem, and to answer the question, Why are we in Palestine? There is a prophecy which says, "I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion." (Jeremiah iii, 14.) On the 11th December, 1917, Lord Allenby stood on Mount Zion and issued a proclamation, and there were gathered before him representatives of all the different regiments of the Guards, and probably in those regiments of Guards standing round Lord Allenby there were representatives of the tribes of Israel. So that answers the question, What business have we in Palestine and in Jerusalem? The reason why we have business in Jerusalem is because we have had a vision. Carry your minds back to nineteen hundred years ago. What do you see? Outside Jerusalem three crosses, silhouetted against the sky, and in the centre hangs the King; His enemies laugh Him to scorn. Nineteen hundred years pass by, and Lord Allenby enters Jerusalem, and there flutters out over Jerusalem that flag, the white flag with the red and blue crosses, the emblem of the greatest Empire that the world has ever known. We have business in Jerusalem because the Cross, which nineteen hundred years ago was a badge of shame and derision, to-day is the badge of triumph.

Digitized by Google

"And once again my dream was changed,
A new earth I seemed to see;
I saw the Holy City
Beside the tideless sea.
The light of God was on its streets,
Its gates were opened wide,
And all who would might enter in,
And no one was denied."

"No need of moon or stars by night
Or sun to shine by day.
It was the new Jerusalem
That shall not pass away.
Jerusalem! Jerusalem! sing for the night is o'er Hosanna in the highest! Hosanna for evermore!"

THE ORACLES OF GOD.

THE REV. W. T. MEDHURST.

I have been for forty years a British-Israelite. I was one of the many thousands who took off my hat, and waved my handkerchief and shouted "Hurrah" in 1887, when Queen Victoria celebrated her Jubilee. Later on I had the same privilege when King Edward VII came to the throne, and the same privilege again when King George was crowned King. And perhaps also I may have the privilege in the case of our Prince David. Why do I mention all this? Because being a British-Israelite I recognize in Queen Victoria and her three descendants the continuous line of the Davidic dynasty. And King George as Regent is holding the throne for the King of Israel. I was challenged the other day in Cardiff, and I reminded them of Paul's words: "What advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? Much every way; chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God." (Romans iii, 1, 2.) We have had the evidence. Why are we in Palestine to-day? Apart from the evidence of our being the nation Israel, is the fact of our entrustment and commitment of the oracles of God to-day. What other nation, but this British nation, plus America, have the oracles of God? What other nation is translating the Bible as the British nation is doing; scattering the Word of God all over the world that the uttermost ends of the earth might be blessed; for it was promised that the seed of Abraham should be a blessing to all peoples in the latter days. That is why I am a British-Israelite, and that is why I stand before you to-night.

THE LITTLE CHURCH AT GLASTONBURY.

COL. THE REV. A. D. SETON, B.Sc.

For forty years I was a soldier in the Royal Artillery, and it is only comparatively recently that I took Holy Orders. When I was at Gibraltar, as a young officer, it was my privilege to make the acquaintance of an Israelitish family settled in Spain, and they did a very flourishing business in olive oil. The family consisted of a father and mother, a son, and two extremely beautiful daughters. I probably should not have remembered much about them if it had not been that I greatly admired one of the daughters. In those days, of course, as might be expected of a young officer in the Army, such matters as British-Israel did not interest me very much, although my father and mother were—that was about sixty years ago—very keen on it, but I regarded it more or less as an amiable fancy. But with regard to this family that I knew in Spain, they talked to me a good deal about the matter, but they in no way resembled Jews; they were all of bright colouring, they had no hooked noses, or other characteristics of the Jewish face. The father was a tall man with bright blue eyes, and a most beautiful and handsome auburn beard with a wonderful wave in it. One of the daughters was very fair with blue eyes, and the other one had golden red hair and dark eyes. They were a very handsome family, and knew of the things connected with their history; but, of course, naturally they were spoken of as Spanish Jews. And when I mentioned that to them, they said, "No, we are not Jews; we do not have anything to do with the Jews; of the Tribe of Dan, and we came to Spain in the time of King Solomon. I found that they had their own synagogue, and they did not worship in the Jewish synagogue at all. Of course there are a great many Jews in Spain, but there are also a great many of these Israelites; and these friends of mine, charming people, gave me introductions when I wanted to travel about Spain. I stayed for about three weeks with another charming Israelitish family in the North of Spain, where the great Spanish University is. It was not only in Spain that I came across these people, but I found them in other parts of the world, Jews, as they are usually called, but they do not claim to be Jews, but Israelites. I found some in Sweden, and in other parts of Northern Europe. The other day there was a remark about this very thing, the characteristics of Israelites in Germany who are not Jews; and the writer was referring to their facial characteristics.

WE ARE ISRAELITES

Many of you know that there are people who repudiate the idea of the Lost Tribes having wandered about Europe. But we have evidence that they have been in practically every country in Europe. I remember years ago when at Copenhagen seeing in the Museum there a golden trumpet with a Hebrew inscription on it which had been found outside Copenhagen, and which clearly had belonged to the Temple at Jerusalem. That shows that the people of that race found their way round about there, and, of course, it was an easy matter to come into this country.

There is another thing I have not heard referred to, but which has come to my knowledge. I wonder if it has ever struck any of you what became of our Lord in the eighteen years of His life between His boyhood when He figured in the Temple and His baptism by John the Baptist. Where was He? We know that before His birth, and afterwards to the time of His death, there was a great deal said about Him. But where was He during those eighteen years? Scripture is silent about Him during that time. At His birth much was said about Him, and then there was a blank of eighteen years, and then everyone began again to speak of Him. Where was He? We know that our Lord's earthly family was a humble one, and therefore the question of His education would present a problem to them. It is believed on good authority, and I think we may take it as a fact, that Joseph of Arimathea was a near relation of our Blessed Lord's family; we know from the part he played that he acted as next of kin, which as you know in the East is more observed than in this country. What would be more natural than for Joseph and Mary to have it suggested to them by their wealthy relative, who was a rich tin merchant, travelling himself and sending ships and trading in tin to this country, what would be more natural than that Joseph of Arimathea should undertake the education of Mary's Son, his great Nephew? Many of you probably know about that great and wonderful Abbey of Glastonbury, not far from Wells, and that round about that Abbey there centres the most sacred traditions of that kind in this country, because, as many believe, Joseph of Arimathea and Lazarus and Mary Magdalene and others came there from Palestine, not via Rome, but direct to this country within five years of our Lord's crucifixion. They were thrown out of Palestine, so to speak, after our Lord's death and resurrection, and my Spanish friends told me they came here via the South of Spain and by the West Coast of Spain. The story of the legend of St. Joseph is very firmly based upon Irish and Welsh and English traditions, that he came here and established an English Church here. And it shows that our Church came from the Holy Land here direct, and not via Rome. The Church of Christ was established in this country years before there was any Christian Church at all in Rome. You must realize that is probably the most sacred spot in the whole of this country; to that spot came kings and princes and saints from all over Europe, and many of them were buried there. Why did they choose that particular spot, a spot which was never touched by the Roman invasion? When St. Augustine who came to this country as an emissary from Pope Gregory, in writing to the head of that Church, said, "The first Christian missionaries came to England to the West Country, and found there a Church built, and founded by the hands of our Lord Himself." Now it does not say that it was a tradition, but he said they found there an actual Church. Why did he say that? Because there is a very strong tradition founded very firmly on the most reliable traditions, the Irish, the English and the Welsh traditions, that our Lord came here as a boy and was educated at Glastonbury; it was then one of the great Universities of those days, where there were something like sixty thousand students from all over Europe, and from all over the known world; and the tradition has it that our Lord came there, no doubt brought in one of the ships belonging to Joseph of Arimathea, that He was educated at Glastonbury, and that there He built a little Church, and it was known by an extraordinary name, "The Secret of the Lord." Why? Because our Lord built it, and the secret was the Lord's. St. Paul is said to have come to this country, and the other saints came here, too, to visit that little Church. That is surely an extraordinary thing in connection with our British-Israel position, which it supports.

The trouble that I personally find in dealing with my clerical brethren is this, that they will not distinguish between the Jew and the Israelite. We have heard a great deal about them here, and to my mind it is the one foundation principle. If you do not recognize that, you cannot get anywhere. I always try to point out this distinction in bringing this thing forward, and I have done my best in my own neighbourhood to bring it to fruition, but it is very difficult indeed to get people to look at the matter in its right light. You Church people, do not forget that your Prayer Book is British-Israel from first to last. Every Sunday we sing: "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He hath visited and redeemed His people."

OBITUARY.

THE LATE MR. WM. B. WALLACE.

THE Northern British-Israel Council has received severe losses to its ranks during the past year. First, Mr. Moncrieff and the Rev. Thomas Hislop, of the Scottish-Israel Identification Association; then Mr. Graham Coltart, of the Hillhead Association, and now Mr. Wm. B. Wallace, of the South Suburban Association.

Mr. Wallace's death occurred with tragic suddenness on the Sabbath, 15th September, whilst on holiday in Arran.

When British-Israel was first mooted to Mr. Wallace he, like many others, treated it as outside the realm of Salvation. He was at once antagonistic and yet sympathetic, antagonistic in its relation to Salvation and sympathetic in that he had an open mind. He read the matter up, comparing the whole argument with Scripture and decided that it was sound. To a man of his temperament it was only a matter of time until he went into working harness.

He was chairman at a meeting in Langside Halls on the 19th January, 1917, called for the express purpose of forming a British-Israel Association in the South Side of Glasgow. It says much for the energy of that meeting that within a month the Association was formed and its first meeting held. The late Mr. John S. Todd was its first chairman with Mr. Wallace as vice-chairman, and in recent years he carried on the chairmanship. His work then was carried on with that characteristic thoroughness which was so apparent to all who knew him.

His work, however, was not confined to Shawlands, but to the other Associations in Glasgow, Edinburgh and Ayr he gave largely of his services and advice. His help as one of the vice-presidents at Hillhead was always valued. This service was also readily given to any outside organization desirous of seeking British-Israel knowledge.

He was a ready speaker, fluent and, with his great knowledge of the Bible, a force to be reckoned with in dealing with the Identity. He was particularly gifted in speaking upon the elementary aspect of British-Israel and was often called upon to deal with this phase.

He was Secretary for the Forward Mission Movement, and in this capacity did an enormous amount of work in helping to carry through the British-Israel Missions held in Glasgow a few years ago.

Upon the reorganization of the Northern British-Israel Council some years ago, he was appointed Secretary, and during his tenure of office carried through most valuable work, some of which was of a very delicate nature. It was only in June of this year that he resigned and handed over to the new Secretary

THE LATE MR. WM. B. WALLACE.

(Mrs. Burleigh) his work, which was in such a completed form that the transition was easy. One of the first duties of the new Secretary was to write up the minute of his death.

His activities, however, were not confined to British-Israel. He was one of the founders, an elder and session treasurer of the South Shawlands United Free Church, and here as elsewhere he did valuable work for British-Israel in connection with the young men of the congregation.

His work in the Church was heavy, and he felt that he would require to give up some of the British-Israel work. To the present writer he made the following statement: "I must not give up my Church work, and I feel that I would like to give up the British-Israel to other hands, but I hate the thought of quitting, and I would like to be in harness when the Saviour comes."

As a member of the firm of John Wallace, Ltd., agricultural implement makers, his business activities took him to the Smithfield Show in London during the early part of December. He had friends in Essex whom he had interested in British-Israel teaching. It was the custom for these friends to have everything prepared for an annual rally, with Mr. Wallace as speaker, during the time of the Smithfield Show. It was his earnest desire that an Association should be formed there.

During the years that the present writer knew him, Mr. Wallace had had a constant struggle with ill-health. The heart attacks were so violent that he was prostrated for months at a time. In January of this year the attack was more violent than usual, and all work had to be stopped. It was hoped that he would be able to carry on this winter. He had his syllabus all prepared and his own name down as first speaker. The tragic call, however, came only a fortnight before the session opened, and the opening night had to take the form of a memorial service.

Mr. Wallace had a wonderful personality, a mind of his own, and in illness an indomitable spirit. Yet withal, there shone out the humble aspect of the earnest Christian and simple faith in his Saviour.

To his widow and family, and son in Australia, we convey our deepest sympathy in their great loss and commend them to the care of our Heavenly Father.

ANDREW B. BUCHANAN,
President of the Hillhead Association.

The Council, the Rev. Pascoe Goard, the Secretary-General and members of the B.-I.-W.F. join with our Glasgow friends in the deepest sympathy with Mrs. Wallace and her family. Mr. Wallace was always a very welcome visitor and speaker at Headquarters. The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Garrison knew Mr. Wallace well and held him in very high esteem. They will miss him greatly.

THE DRUIDS OF IRELAND.

ACCORDING TO O'HALLORAN AND OTHER HISTORIANS.

BY PROFESSOR EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc.

IN the days of the Druids, and later, Ireland was the great school of Europe. It will be found that Irish ancient history, like pure gold, the more severely it is analysed the brighter it becomes.

In very remote times there is no doubt that the Druids, like the Patriarchs, exercised all these different functions, such as the Levites performed in Bible times. That these Druids did so in Ireland is certain, for Amergin, a son of Milesius, who was appointed by his brothers Ard-Draithe, or Chief of the Laws, exercised them all.

"Schools and colleges were founded by the Druids, for the education of youth, in different parts of the kingdom, which, on the reception of Christianity, were converted to Christian seminaries. But Tara was their principal university. There the Arch-Druid, chief Brethon, or Judge, Ard-Fhildeah, or Poet Laureate, Historian, Antiquarian, constantly attended the monarch's court. There the general convention of the estates was held every third year, with the literati of the kingdom, to form new laws, examine the registries, and finally determine disputes and lawsuits, just as Cæsar tells us was the custom in Gaul many centuries after.

"The opening of this great assembly was solemn, awful and magnificent; they met three days before the month of Samhuin, or November, and sacrifices being offered, and the holy fires lighted up, accompanied by all kinds of musical instruments, and succeeded by different odes in favour of the Deity, they repaired to the great hall called Moidh-Cuarta, where each person took his place, according to the nobility of his blood and dignity of his sept; for honours and appointments being hereditary in families, no confusion could ensue; and to remove even pretences for dispute, the heralds were careful to place the arms of each chief over his seat.

"Probus and Jocelyne compare the magnificence of this meeting, in the days of St. Patrick, to that of Nebuchadnezzar, when he assembled his princes and nobles, to worship the golden calf on the plain of Dura, in the province of Babylon. 'The king (says Probus) and chiefs of the people, the princes, peers and magistrates, the Druids, inchanters, soothsayers, and doctors in all arts and sciences, being assembled, Loagaire the Emperor, like a second Nebuchadnezzar, had the assembly of Tara opened, with songs and lutes, timbrels and harps, and every species of verse.'"

"Cæsar tells us, 'that the Druids were exempt from taxes, from attending the wars, etc., for which reason only, numbers embraced the profession. The high immunities enjoyed by men of letters here, we have already shown; and so early as the year 3236, the number of registered Druids, Annalists and Poets, etc., royally supported amongst us, exceeded 200 of each order; besides such as were retained by private families. The Ollamb, or doctor, in each science, had in his train thirty subordinate graduates.'"

"It appears likewise that Druidism was first brought into Ireland by these conquerors; for our annals are clear, that when Ith, the son of Milesius, was sent from Spain upon the discovery of the Western or Fortunate island (Ireland), it was in hopes of accomplishing the prophecy of Caircer, the Arch-Druid, who, say they, had predicted three centuries before, that the Gathelian, or Milesian race, would never find repose, till they conquered the most Western Island of Europe, where they would become a mighty nation.' It was in consequence of this prediction, that they directed their course from Greece to Spain, then thought the most Western part of Europe, and not finding there all the security they expected, they sent ships, in order to make new discoveries, under the command of this prince, who appears not only to have been an able navigator for those times, but an astronomer too, since it was by glasses, as we are expressly told, that he first discovered the Irish coasts. Thus, above 3,000 years ago, our histories bear evidence to the existence of the Druids, and their pretensions to foreknowledge."

"Thus, when the Milesian fleet (after the murder of Ith, who had been sent from Spain to make discoveries on the coast of Ireland) had made good their landing; and the inhabitants complained that they came on them ungenerously and by surprise; by the advice of Amergin, their Arch-Druid, the following articles were agreed on: That the Milesians were to retire to their fleet, re-embark, and sail off the coast, and after this, if the Danaan inhabitants could not prevent their making good a second landing, they were to submit to their government."

"By these it appears, that from the most remote antiquity, the Irish were a learned, a pious, and warlike nation; that they were originally a Scythian colony (connecting up with Israel E.O.), who, under Phenius, the famous inventor of letters, first settled in Egypt; that Niul, his son, who was learned like his father, married Scota, daughter to the King of Egypt, and resided near the Red Sea, and had an only son called Gathelus.

"In the days of Sru, grandson to Gathelus, the Egyptians, becoming jealous of these people, expelled them from the country. These exiles landed in Greece, and particularly at Crete, where they resided about fifty years. Some time after this they sailed to Spain, and from thence invaded Ireland in thirty ships; here it appears, they found a people not unacquainted with arts and letters, and such account as these gave of their ancestry, our Senachies transmitted to posterity; this account, however true or false, cannot affect the certainty of the faithful Milesian records."

From the above, we see emphasized somewhat the importance and influence of Druidism in Ireland, and some light-lines indicating the Milesian origin of a goodly portion of the Hibernians. If Milesian, then Ionian, and if Ionian, then Israelitish to some considerable extent.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—In the original text, is there any difference in the meaning of the word translated day as used in the first two chapters of Genesis and in the 17th verse of the 31st chapter of Exodus?—MISS L. M. F.

ANSWER.—No, the Hebrew word in each case referred to above is yowm, pronounced yome, and is the word generally used throughout the Old Testament in the Hebrew. It comes from an unused root meaning "to be hot," hence a day (as the warm hours), whether literally (from sunrise to sunset or from one sunset to the next), or figuratively (a space of time defined by an associated term) as an age, a day or two (used conventionally), hence a period of time.

Hence the Hebrew word might mean a day of 24 hours literally, or a protracted period of time consisting of several days, or several years, or several millenniums or longer periods still.

Similarly we use the word loosely and conventionally, meaning some date or time in the past, such as "a day or two ago," meaning any period of time that is past—possibly a week back for example; "one day I was doing so and so"; or after a long illness it might be said that "so-and-so lived for many a long day afterwards," where the words "long day" do not mean a day long or short, since, if taken literally, a day is neither more nor less than one day.

There is another word in the Hebrew translated day in the English, and that is the word shachar, which comes from a primitive root meaning dawn, hence the early morning, light, etc. This word occurs in Gen. xxxii, 24, 26; Joshua vi, 15, ("about the dawning of the day" only); Judges xix, 25; 1 Sam. ix, 26. It is clear therefore that it is not the word used in connection with the Creation.

The Rev. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., gave an interesting address at Headquarters on October 30th. On the following evening we had the pleasure of welcoming and hearing that promising young man, Mr. Horace Goodchild. He had an encouraging reception from a very sympathetic audience. Mr. Garrison presided, and short addresses were also given by the Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. John Leech, K.C.

Many people have been brought to see and accept B.-I. teaching through copies of this journal sent to them by our readers; a notable instance has just come to our knowledge. Some person unknown has been sending a copy to a clergyman's wife with the result that she and her husband have both become British-Israelites. We have a letter from the clergyman asking to be enrolled as a member of the Federation, and saying he wishes to help forward the Cause in every possible way. Here is distinct encouragement to all who are sending out copies of this journal and other literature, and an incentive to others to do likewise.

Colonel the Rev. A. D. Seton, B.Sc., will be the speaker at Headquarters on Wednesday afternoon next, November 13th. On Thursday evening next the Rev. Cyril C. Dobson, M.A., will give a lecture on "The Garden Tomb at Jerusalem," with lantern pictures. We hope to see a full audience on each occasion. Mr. Dobson has made a special study of his subject, in connection with which he paid a visit to Palestine recently.

THE BRITISH-ISRAEL SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER UNION.

The Rev. Commander Roberts, Honorary Secretary of the above, writes that the cards for 1930 are now ready. He wishes to call attention to the ominous position in which we now find ourselves as a nation:—Our Church partly disrupted; Bishops, Archdeacons, Canons, and many clergymen falling away from the Word of God. Jerusalem in a ferment and the Mandate attacked—Ezekiel xxxvi, 3-12, with context xxxv. The Scripture says: "Judgment must begin at the House of God"; also "Jerusalem shall be a burdensome stone to all people." Yet this burden is given to Israel to bear, and to no other.

We need much earnest supplication that our Jerusalem in her worship may be guided aright, and our Zion establishment—the Throne of David—have wisdom through our Counsellors to a right judgment in all things. Let this be our prayer until our people may come out of Babylon, and our nation become "the righteous nation which keepeth the truth" (Ezekiel xxvi, 2).

Membership cards, 6d. per annum, to be obtained from the Rev. Commander Roberts, R.N., Madeley, Upper Hermosa Road, Teignmouth, Devon, who asks that remittances may be sent by Postal Orders.

At the Clerical and Ministerial Conference held in connection with the Congress last month it was unanimously decided to set apart a period between 10 and 11 each Sunday evening for prayer, that the Lord our God would graciously fulfil His promise as to the cleansing of Israel as set forth in the 36th chapter of Ezekiel; further, that He would bring to pass this promised work at this time, believing that we are now in the very period of this promised Grace. Thus may we fulfil that simple condition imposed by God upon us: "I will yet for this be enquired of by the House of Israel, to do it for them."

We ask our readers to pray for the venerable and beloved Dr. Mountain, who has been ill, that he may have strength to complete the task to which he has set his hand. He writes: "I shall be glad if you will allow me to draw attention to an able pamphlet by Mr. P. W. Thompson, M.A., on "The Plain Argument for British-Israel." It is a masterpiece of condensed and forcible statement. It consists of 16 pages, and costs only 2d., by post 3d., from the Covenant Publishing Company. It ought to be circulated by thousands. It is up to date, is thoroughly scholarly, and withal interesting. In writing my new book I have received some valuable suggestions from its pages, for which I am grateful."

Our Commissioner, the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S., visited the Isle of Wight, October 23rd, 24th and 25th. He delivered four lectures at Ryde and two at Totland Bay. Friends were invited to give in their names as signifying their willingness to join a Branch. Quite a goodly number responded, and steps will be taken for early action. Both Ryde and Totland are striking examples of what we British-Israel believers can do when possessed with the right spirit. Mr. Dixon at Ryde, and Mrs. Brembridge at Totland, have made themselves responsible for Mr. Gay's visit and organized his meetings. At Totland, Mrs. Brembridge has opened a reading-room and library in a splendid position. This has already become a centre of B.-I. influence in the town. With two such centres, enthused by such devoted workers, it should not be long ere the whole Island is leavened with our great Truth. To single B.-I. believers in other districts one would say most lovingly, "Go thou and do likewise."

nd between the Gospel of the Kingdom and the Gospel of alvation. Stress was made of the importance of prayer, ndividual and corporate, and the fact that we are fighting gainst unseen powers, the spiritual forces of evil, that are verywhere present and working against the restoration of the Kingdom. The other subjects dealt with were the "Magna Charta" of the Anglo-Saxon Race, and a history of the Coronation Stone. Miss Hunter afterwards spoke on the B.-I. Crusader Movement, and a Group will shortly be formed here.

Mr. Wm. Whitton spent a successful four days' visit to Hull recently. On the Sunday he preached at the morning and evening services in the Gospel Mission, Wincolmlee, to good congregations, and on Monday he lectured in the same Mission to another well-attended meeting, his subject then being "God's Great Design." On Tuesday, Mr. Whitton addressed the Hull Branch of the Federation in the Church Institute on "What is Truth?" and on Wednesday he was the speaker at two splendid meetings at Beverley.

On Oct. 15th, Rev. E. J. Springett delivered a crashing rejoinder to the recent pamphlet against British Israelites by Prof. Jordan, of Kingston, Ontario. There was a large audience. Dr. G. F. Bush was Chairman.

On Oct. 17th, Dr. H. W. Wadge, B.A., M.D., First Vice-President of the Winnipeg Branch, journeyed to Austin, 85 miles west, and addressed a meeting arranged by the local British-Israe believers, who have been assembling there regularly for a number of years.

J. G. writes:—"The N.M. and B." is by far the best value on anything I invest in. I look for it every week more than I look for my daily food to build up my bodily strength. I scarcely ever retire to rest before I read the whole contents and I re-read it again and again.

The Hastings and St. Leonards Branch are having Gift Stalls and serving Teas on the 12th at the Masonic Hall, when Mr. John Leech, our Commissioner-General, is addressing two meetings, at 3 and 7.30.

Mr. John Leech lectured at Paignton on October 22 in the Pendragon Hotel; twice at Exeter in the Lecture Hall of the Y.M.C.A. on the 23rd, at Chudleigh in the Town Hall on the 24th, and in Teignmouth Town Hall on the 25th. All of these meetings were well attended, and very considerable interest shown.

Mr. Morey's reports contain many interesting and encouraging items, notably the following:—

At Herne Bay the monthly meetings are well attended and the Cause is prospering. It is worthy of note that the afternoon meetings are held in the Wesleyan Schoolroom, and the evening meetings in the Parochial Institute. May this tolerant spirit spread to all districts!

The Cause at Chatham flourishes, a special feature being the large number of men who attend the lectures. The Navy House, which holds 250, is now quite full monthly, and the Branch is a great success.

Brighton is responding splendidly. The Chapel Royal Hall was well filled last month, and the interest steadily grows. Afternoon meetings are held in Hove, where a goodly number of friends are rallying to our banner.

Quiet Salisbury is being aroused, and the monthly lectures are now well attended. A new Cause has been established at Fordingbridge.

A faithful band at Chichester is at last reaping the reward of its labours, and our Cause in this Cathedral city is now well established.

Bognor Regis is holding on in spite of difficulties, and there is much cause for encouragement.

At Fittleworth we meet monthly in a lovely artist's studio, seating about 50 earnest, eager Bible students, who look forward to our meetings as the bright spot in their religious life.

All over the South the Movement is rapidly spreading, and we are greatly rejoiced and truly thankful.

Good audiences gathered at the Assembly Rooms, Bath, on Wednesday, October 30th, both afternoon and evening, to listen to two striking addresses by Miss Hamilton Hunter, the one in the afternoon being entitled "The Stone Symbol in Israel," in which she traced through Scripture the wonderful significance of "The Stone" in Israel's history, ending with "The Stone" in the nation's shrine at Westminster to-day.

In her evening lecture, entitled "The Magna Charta of the Anglo-Saxon Race," Miss Hamilton Hunter proved that the present position of the British Empire in the world to-day is the direct outcome of the covenants and oaths of God to the Patriarchs of old.

On the following afternoon Miss Hunter met a number of members and friends at the Headquarters, 5, Argyle Street, and made a deep impression by her talk on "Some Privileges and Responsibilities of British-Israel Citizens."

A very pleasant time was spent at tea with much helpful conversation.

With a full programme for the coming winter months and much enthusiasm amongst the members the prospects of a successful season are good.

The Chicago Daily News considers that Palestine is displacing Egypt as the spinal cord of the British Empire, and that with the completion of the enterprises now under way there it will become as vital a British interest as Egypt has been in the past and for the same reason. Communication with India, Australia and New Zealand must be kept up. For decades the safeguarding of the route to the East has been a cardinal feature of British foreign policy. For this reason Britain will have to keep a firm hand in Palestine, if for no other.

The Kentish Observer, published in Canterbury, reproduces in its issue of October 31st the letter by the Rev. Pascoe Goard in The National Message and Banner, pages 687–8, word for word.

It is a good sign that a secular paper in a Cathedral city has the courage to publish such a letter. We wish other papers would reproduce the letter.

The American Bible Society, founded in 1816, has done a great work. It has distributed over 205,000,000 copies of the Scriptures in the United States and in many parts of the world. The Society's work is fourfold:—Translation, Publication, Distribution, Service to the Blind. The entire Bible has been translated into 169 languages, and parts of it into 684 other tongues. Last year more than 11,000,000 volumes were distributed. Seventy-five thousand volumes of the Scriptures in Braille and other systems have been issued to the blind since 1835. The daily cost of the Society's work is $3,550. Apart from its agencies covering U.S.A., it has agencies in the West Indies, Mexico, Peru, Argentine, Brazil, Austria, Egypt, China, Japan, Siam and the Philippines.

"Some of the London newspapers seem to be over-reaching themselves in their policy of 'Bag and Baggage.' If England were to give up all its Mandates and Protectorates, it would be a sorry day for the British Commonwealth of Nations. Particularly so is this the case in Palestine, where in the interests of Dominion strategy England must keep control. Palestine now is the British landing-place in the chain of imperial air communications, and as such the high road of the air to India and Australia; it lies the other side of the Suez Canal, and its proximity to the naval base at Malta renders it an effective safeguard upon the canal. Those newspapers which are crying 'Scuttle' actually mean 'Scuttle the British Empire ship of State,' since otherwise their attitude is inconceivable. Their animosity to the Mandate of Iraq is a similar instance of cutting off their noses to spite their faces. Once Iraq leaves British sovereignty, its vast oilfield treasures will be in danger of leaving British control, and once those huge deposits are gone, an important source of supply will be cut off. People who cry 'Scuttle' without weighing the consequences are equally as loud later in condemning the inevitable results of their own irresponsible counsel."—Palestine Weekly.

The Rev. J. Lumley Davies, L.D., Vicar of St. James', Plumstead, writes:—

BRITISH-ISRAEL LECTURE.—The attendance at our last meeting far exceeded our expectations. Our hall being engaged, we threw open the folding doors between the Church vestries thinking the two made into one would give us ample space. We therefore repaired thither in all confidence and commenced the meeting. The people who came in (thus adding to the number of those already without seats) soon convinced us that our accommodation was far too limited. We therefore repaired to the Church. The speaker was the Rev. Maxwell Carnson, F.R.G.S., F.R.S.A. It should be explained that Mr. J. J. Morey, who had been advertised to speak, graciously cancelled his engagement in order to give us the opportunity of hearing Mr. Carnson's last public utterance before returning to South Africa. Mr. Carnson took as his subject "The Stone Kingdom" from the second chapter of the Book of the Prophet Daniel, and proved from the Bible that Britain as unfolded in the pages of history is the Stone Kingdom, in conjunction with our Dominions and the great people of the U.S.A.; together they form the Kingdom that shall stand for ever, the chosen of God, and the modern phase of ancient Israel.

Our next meeting will (D.V.) be held on Thursday, November 14th, in our Mission Hall, Crescent Road, at 8 p.m. The speaker will be Miss Hamilton-Hunter. . . . We hope to see a large audience.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

REMEMBRANCE DAY.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

"KEEP silence before me, O Islands; and let the people renew their strength; let them come near; then let them speak;

LET US COME NEAR TOGETHER TO JUDGMENT." (Isa. xli, 1).

What a passing strange thing it is that the prophet to Israel in the Islands should thus call the nation to silence before God.

What a passing strange thing that by a common decision the whole nation should again and again, as the years go by, halt in the busy rush of the nation's life and stand silent and reverent before the Lord, remembering.

Let us now look at the foreseen and provided-for fact that the people's strength would be exhausted, and that it should require renewal. LET THE PEOPLE RENEW THEIR STRENGTH.

When we look back over the titanic struggle, first in the physical realm; and second in the psychical, social, political, financial, international realms since the signing of the Armistice, none will wonder that the people should need to renew their strength.

Great as the strain has been since 1914 to the present time, and great as it continues to be, this is not the full occasion which calls for the renewal of the strength of the people of God.

The great passage goes on: "Who raised up the righteous man from the east? . . ." The Companion Bible rightly refers this passage to the call of Abraham, calling attention to the fact that Cyrus, who was later raised up of God, was raised up not from the East but from the North. But what had Cyrus to do with that which follows in the context? Without question, as we see the matter, the Lord is indicating the whole range of Israel experience from the call of Abraham down to the present day.

What has there been to exhaust the strength of the people?

There has been the constant struggle with powerful enemies since the nation was first organized at Sinai.

During four hundred years there was the constant struggle of the young nation with the Palestinian powers, resulting in David's final victory over his enemies.

Then came the division and the struggle between Israel and Judah and Syria, as alliance and counter-alliance was made between them.

Then came the move of Assyria from the East against the three nations, Judah, Israel and Syria, and the disappearance of the three, one after the other, before the power first of Assyria and then of Babylon.

This brings us down to the time of the setting up of the two kingdoms, Babylon and the Stone Kingdom, the latter not called by name in the Daniel literature.

It is obvious why the Stone Kingdom is neither named nor located. If it had been, the determined enmity of Babylon would have been directed against it from the first, and all the succeeding ages would have found the whole weight of the Babylonian succession of Empires focussed in ceaseless attacks upon them.

It was not until the fourth phase of the Empires that the Stone Kingdom was discovered at all by the Babylonian succession, namely, by Rome. Even then it was not known that this was the appointed rival Kingdom which should finally bring the whole system of Empires to the ground.

It was in the ordinary lust of conquest that Rome, having discovered Britain, MADE PEACE WITH ALL THE WORLD ELSEWHERE, AND THEN COLLECTED ALL HER FORCES FROM INDIA TO THE BALTIC SEA, AND HURLED THEM ALL UPON BRITAIN. Teutons, Gauls, Spaniards, Balkan peoples, Asiatics, even elephants from India took part in the mighty effort to crush the Stone Kingdom. For over two centuries the effort was sustained and then Rome had to withdraw, leaving the Stone Kingdom unshaken.

As soon as the Babylon system was inaugurated the struggle which should last through the ages began. In fact, it had already begun. For Israel in captivity, before Judah and Jerusalem had been overthrown, had thrown her forces against her captor nation Assyria in the way of rebellion, had captured and burned Nineveh the capital, and had so weakened the State that Babylon, taking her opportunity, overthrew the Assyrian regime and took the Kingdom. From then onward, till the crash of the Cæsars' Empires, before Gothic power, Israel of the Captivity, still upon the Continents, carried on the struggle with Rome. It was the invincible love of freedom in the heart of the Israel-Saxon striving everlastingly against the autocratic administration of Rome.

Then the fight was in part transferred to Britain, and both Israel in the Isles in Britain, and Israel on the Continent, were in constant struggle with Rome. The position had become this, that Rome was attacking Britain in Britain, and Gothic Israel was attacking Rome on the Continent.

It was when the Gothic attack became too strong to be sustained, while the attack upon Britain was going on, which led Rome to withdraw from Britain. She needed all her power to stand against the Continental pressure.

Then came the crash of the Cæsars' Empire and the coming of the Saxons, the one-time Goths, to Britain, and the uniting of the Israel forces there.

Then came the French wars. Then came the Spanish wars. Then came the Napoleonic wars. Then came the Great War against the Central Powers. Then came the Armistice and the nations' call for silence before the Lord.

But why should the call be for silence before the Lord at the end of this present conflict? It is because that which in Daniel is called "the war" is ended. That is to say, the twenty-five hundred and twenty years' war between Israel and the Babylon system of Empires ended when the Empires crashed and finally passed away in 1918.

Daniel says, "Unto the end of the war desolations are determined." The long, long war which was beginning in Daniel's day, which was continuing and still to continue in the day of our Lord, as He showed so clearly in His great prophetic review of history in Matt. xxiv, the Babylon military power is at long last broken, and there is breathing time for the people of God.

Therefore the call, "Keep silence before me, O Islands, and let the people renew their strength."

But how shall the people renew their strength?

Shall they renew their strength by sociological reorganization? Shall they renew their strength by industrial realignment? Shall they renew their strength by financial administration? Shall they renew their strength by international alliances?

We have nothing to say against all these efforts to ameliorate the conditions of the present, and for brightening the prospects for the future. Only we will say that this is not the way indicated by the Lord, and unless we take the Lord's way all these things will be of little avail.

Isaiah, the writer of the message we are considering, indicates in another place God's way of renewing the strength of His people, and this is the way:—

"THEY THAT WAIT UPON THE LORD SHALL RENEW THEIR STRENGTH: THEY SHALL MOUNT UP WITH WINGS AS EAGLES: THEY SHALL RUN AND NOT BE WEARY: THEY SHALL WALK AND NOT FAINT."

It is clear from this and other indications in Holy Scripture, and from thousands of years of history of our people, that the renewal of the nation's strength, of the people's strength, of the individual's strength, comes through spiritual revival. This is the drawing near to God.

Let the leaders of the nation, national and ecclesiastical, know with positive assurance that all their efforts must fall short of ultimate success if they fall short of a spiritual revival in Church and State, expressing itself in a Gospel full of Divine life, and an administration full of Divine power.

"Let them come near, then let them speak"; let them speak in prayer; let them speak in praise; let them speak in the terms of the Gospel of the Kingdom in its administration, and in the terms of the Gospel of Salvation in its saving grace.

And now let me call attention to the step which follows after the Silence, the drawing near to God, and the speaking in His Presence.

God and the people now move forward to a new task. "Let us come near together to judgment." This word, "judgment," as the Rev. Arthur Pritchard has so often called our attention, is one of three synonyms—viz., judgment, rulership, Saviourship. Viewed in this light the Lord is saying to Israel, "Let us come near together to judge, to rule, and to save." Let us remember that the name Israel, as given in Young's Analytical Concordance, means this very thing, namely, "RULING WITH GOD." This is the time when the Stone Kingdom shall become a great mountain (which is a synonym for government) and shall fill the whole earth. The Babylonian succession of Empires and all other Empires and Kingdoms—other than the Stone Kingdom—will soon be but a memory in the earth; for the law of the Lord shall go out from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem, and all nations shall obey and believe.

What is the basis of Israel's right to rule? The very next verse indicates the connection.

"Who raised up the righteous man from the east, called him to his foot, gave the nations before him, and made him rule over kings? he gave them as the dust to his sword, and as driven stubble to his bow.

He pursued them, and passed safely; even by the way that he had not gone with his feet."—(Isaiah xli, 2, 3.)

Abraham was the righteous man "ish" with whom God established His covenant "brith"—that is to say, he is the original covenant man "Brith-Ish," cross-secting the Divine narrative at the commencement of the twelfth chapter of Genesis which narrates the call of Abraham.

To him, as we read in the above quotation, God gave the nations as the stubble to his bow; in himself and his posterity God caused him through the ages to traverse ways that were new, ways that he had not passed with his feet. Thus from Ur of the Chaldees he personally began his journey into a land that he did not know, and his seed through the ages down to the present time have been thus thrusting forth, by unknown paths, to the end of the earth.

The last of the nations to fall as stubble to his bow were the Central Powers in the last Great War. The last new paths traversed by the feet of the marching hosts of the covenanted descendants of Abraham were the mandated territories into which our soldiers marched, and into which our administrators were sent since the War.

It has been a wonderful story enacted by a people "scattered and polished, who have been terrible from the beginning," namely, the Israel people; it has been written on all the Continents, in many languages, over many ages, in the secular history of the world; it was pre-written, as we have seen, in the prophecies of the sacred Scriptures; and now at this late date this advanced fulfilment of prophecy, this 1929th culmination of history, we look back and exclaim, EBENEZER, "Hitherto the Lord hath helped us."

And now with strength renewed by the revival of faith and spiritual power, which we trust has come, and is coming, upon us, we will face the future and together with Jehovah, the God and King of Israel, will come near to judge, to rule, and to save.

THE QUESTION OF THE CENTURIES.

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?"

I summon thee, Apostle Peter, once confessor, then denier, but afterwards penitent witness, and heroic martyr. What is thy testimony? "He is the Christ, the Son of the living God."

I summon thee, O John Bunyan, immortal tinker; thy glorious pilgrim, marching through the ages, telling the story of redeeming love, is thy testimony to the character of thy Lord.

I summon thee, O Charles Spurgeon; and the testimony of all thy volumes, of thy glorious life and of thy peerless ministry is that "Jesus Christ is the chiefest among ten thousand and the One altogether lovely."

I summon thee, O M. de Wette, great Biblical critic of Germany. "This only I know, that there is salvation in no other name than in the Name of Jesus Christ, the Crucified."

I summon thee, O scholarly MacIntosh; the attendants are watching thy last moments, they bend over thee to catch thy last whispers: "Jesus, love—Jesus, love!"

I summon thee, Toplady, and hear thee sing this great hymn: "Rock of Ages, cleft for me."

I summon thee, O Tennyson, immortal Laureate; thou who hast fought thy doubts and found Divine help. Let us hear the result of thy conflicts: "Strong Son of God, immortal love. . . . Cannot prove. Thine are these orbs . . . skull which Thou hast made. Thou seemest human and Divine . . . to make them Thine."—MACARTHUR.

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

THE ETERNAL SAVIOUR-JUDGE.

THE REV. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A.

I SUPPOSE we are all regular readers of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE sent out week by week to subscribers from the B.-I.-W.F. Headquarters. I certainly am, and I should feel that I was neglecting an opportunity for higher and deeper education if I were not a continuous subscriber and reader. Some of you may remember that in No. 395 (the issue dated July 27th) Brother Pascoe Goard, in his third editorial on "The Second Coming of our Lord," threw out a suggestion which must have come to many of my fellow readers as a new vision of God's truth, a vision which needs to be more emphasized on the British-Israel platform as we approach the prophetic Hour of Midnight.

He was dealing with the Parable of the Ten Virgin representatives of the Ten Tribes of Israel, pointing out that, while all bore the Lamp of Bible truth, half of them lacked the illuminating oil of the Holy Spirit in the vessels of themselves to keep the flame of welcome to our Lord continually burning. With the permanent result to themselves that throughout the distant future they would have to plod on in a lower order of life; whereas the wise virgins would forthwith pass with the Lord into the higher state of felicity, honour and life typified by the marriage ceremony uniting the Israel Bride-nation with the Divine Head and mystical Body of the Church, in the bonds of Holiness to the Lord.

Dealing with this subject there is a book by James Langton Clarke, D.D., formerly a Fellow of his University, whom I knew personally when, in his retirement, he settled down in Leamington Spa, and before whom, in a clerical gathering there, I once gave a synopsis of what I consider his valuable, literary contribution to the interpretation of the Parable of the Ten Virgins. Subsequently, after delivering a lecture in Birmingham, a British-Israel stranger from Coventry asked me if I had ever read Dr. Langton Clarke's book, "The Eternal Saviour-Judge." I was able to assure him that I was so familiar with it that I had dealt with it before sixty of the Birmingham clergy; and then we talked together about the epoch-marking book which, although not an intentional British-Israel book, brought out the incentive there is for the "Israelites indeed" to get ready and keep ready their lamps and oil containers for the coming of the Bridegroom.

Digitized by Google

Now, perhaps, you will be curious to know its line of thought and teaching, and I must try and present it to you so far as it bears on the British-Israel position.

ΚΡΙΝΩΝ ΣΩΣΕΙ.

The whole of the book may be summed up in two Greek words taken from a passage in the Septuagint version of Isaiah xix, 20-25:—κρινων σωσει, literally, Judging He shall save, the translation from the Hebrew being "Smiting and healing" that is under the same process and at the same time. The inference, strongly buttressed by many Scripture texts, is that Biblical judging is not mere Assize judging, crime castigating and punishment for its own sake or for example's sake, as we are so apt to think, but disciplinary and ameliorative punishment, smiting to heal and judging to save.

Therefore the Lord Jesus is a Judge in the sense of being a Saviour-Judge, a Saviour Who judges and yet a Judge Who saves; and when we have once grasped this great truth our views on Eschatology, or the future destinies of mankind, become much clearer and much more like what the heart cries out for.

To hold the view of ANNIHILATION that is expulsion of sin by the destruction of the sinner—killing a patient as it were in order to stay his disease, being mended by being ended, would be giving the victory to Sin and Satan rather than to the One, "lifted up" on the Cross and in glory that He might ultimately draw all men unto Him who would be drawn. To hold the view of RESTITUTION OR UNIVERSALISM would be the elimination of the punitive element from the Judgeship of Christ; and to hold the view of ENDLESS RETRIBUTION after sin would be the elimination of the saving element from the Judgeship of Christ. The view of the book before us is neither Annihilationism, Restitution nor Endless Retribution for sinners, but RECONCILIATION worked out for sinners by the Saviour-Judge Who, contrary to the common view, doesn't cease to be the Saviour when He becomes the King-Judge, for He is the same yesterday, to-day and for ever. He now lives to make His work of reconciliation individually effective, for the work of Saviour-Judging has been going on ever since the Ascension, and so we may conclude that as long as His special Kingdom lasts for the subduing of all hostile powers so long will He be the Saviour-Judge.

"This appears to be the middle truth between two extremes of error, which teach, the one, the abolition of the saving element, the other, the abolition of the punitive."

Now, Reconciliation doesn't mean full Restoration. Esau, for example, inherited a blessing but not the blessing he had forfeited and lost for ever. "Reconciliation to God, if accomplished in this life, means salvation in the highest sense, the salvation of the first-fruits (the Wise Virgins, the Israelites indeed) without loss, apart from sin of those who look ('live—looking') for the appearing of the Saviour. But reconciliation which has not been achieved in this life, though it is salvation, is salvation of a lower kind (not the 'so great salvation'), it is salvation with loss, so as by fire—the fire kindled by the punitive element in the Saviour-Judgeship, the fire of punishments corrective in their tendency, and (as we may be permitted to hope, though we may not dare to go the length of positively asserting this) eventually corrective in their result."

God is not all benevolence. He is also just, and an age-long punishment would be unjust, unless God's Prison-house be also a Reformatory.

"The wish that of the living whole
No life may fail beyond the grave,
Derives it not from what we have
The likest God within the soul?"

ANTINOMIES IN SCRIPTURE.

Of course, as all Scripture students know, there are antinomies in the Bible, that is seeming contradictions but not real if we can only get hold of the right point of view. It is the good pleasure of God "to sum up all things in Christ" and "through Him to reconcile all things unto Himself," and yet there is an "eternal sin" and a "worm that dieth not and a fire that is not quenched." Looked at from the human standpoint the consequences seem to be unavoidable and indelible, but from God's how different, for He has the unlimited power of turning away or modifying consequences, changing His attitude to sinners as they change their attitude to Him, and so Eternity to Him doesn't necessarily mean endlessness, and He can quench even the fire that to man, by man alone, is unquenchable.

It is one of Dr. Clarke's leading contentions that Christ didn't cease to be a Saviour when He took on His Judgeship, but that the offices are continually blended. This continuity is shown not by clear proof from any Scripture text but by cumulative evidence, as is the case with the British-Israel belief which, like a rope of twisted strands, however weak the separate strands here and there, is yet too strong to be broken.

And because Christ is the Eternal Saviour-Judge, no matter the threats (and to wrest man from his inertia the Bible is full of them, particularly to the House of Israel, which, thank God, have never been fulfilled), when the wicked man, nation and race turn from their wickedness committed they save their soul alive. The key to all the Bible threatenings is the postulate everywhere assumed that when man repents God pardons. Many instances of the breaches of threat are given in the book and the conclusion is forced upon the reader that unrepented sin alone is unpardonable, and so the denunciations against sinners do not apply to penitent sinners brought to penitence here or elsewhere by the ministry of reconciliation that God has set up under the New instead of the ministration of condemnation under the Old Covenant.

As St. Paul told the Corinthians, God has given to us the Ministry of Reconciliation, which doubtless has a plural comprehension. The R.V. of Roms. v, 11, shows that Reconciliation has been received in this Age by some, and there is every reason for believing that the process of reconciliation will continue in the Kingdom Age, the process of drawing by judgment and mercy, graciousness and righteousness, all who will be drawn to Christ as their King. And, be it noted by British-Israelites in particular, in this stupendous work the Saviour-Judge is actually to be assisted by the Sub-Judges He has chosen, called and empowered for the purpose, those to whom these words apply:—

"Know ye not that the Saints shall judge the world?"
"Know ye not that we shall judge angels?"
"Ye shall sit on thrones judging."

Digitized by Google

"In the Regeneration ye shall sit judging."
"Have authority over ten cities."
"Be thou over five cities."

Such-like "honour have all His Saints"—the New Covenant Israelites by race and grace, whose names are entered on the Celestial roll.

ETERNAL JUDGMENT.

The doctrine of Eternal Judgment, be it further noted, is stated by the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews to be one of the foundation doctrines of the Christian faith, part of the "glad tidings," and as such it needs to be properly understood and explained. Christ our Lord is Prophet, Priest and King, judging being one of the chief functions of the King. All these offices, Prophet, Priest and Kingly-Judge, found their highest significance in Him; and accordingly, those who bore those offices in the Mosaic economy were, in their several degrees, types of Christ. And so the judges of old no less than the priests are types of Christ, the supreme judges and the High Priests being particularly so. From time to time super men were raised up by God as Judges to save the Children of Israel "out of the hand of their enemies all the day of the judges," who governed them in peace as supreme magistrates. So when Christ came, He came to save, though afterwards He was "highly exalted" to be the Saviour-Judge all His days, that is during the whole period of His Kingdom which is to continue till He hath put all enemies, even Death, under His feet.

His superior Priesthood and His Judgeship alike are thus unchangeable, since He ever liveth to intercede and to judge.

The Judge-type is shown forth in Moses, who said: "A Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren like unto me." First, Moses was the Saviour and then became the supreme Judge of the people he had delivered, and remained so all his days, being deliverer, judge, interceder and mediator all the time. He was "for the people to Godward." Then he appointed select men as sub-judges, who were given different degrees of authority, "rulers of thousands, of hundreds, of fifties, and of tens"; and that system was carried on by his descendants; and some of them, namely, sons of Isaac or Saxons, developed the idea for themselves in this dear old land of ours, when they decreed that ten families should make a ward, ten wards a tything or parish, and ten parishes a hundred.

Consequently, nationally speaking, self-governmental training has been going on ever since, and now Saxon or British Justice is not only a name, but an ideal in the world. By centuries of training it has now become inherent in the national and racial soul, and the Divine Trainer will thus be able, in the fast-coming Kingdom Age on earth, to do what He couldn't do three and a half millennia ago, at the time of re-claiming Canaan, "the land of the Hebrews," using His chosen-for-service people as instruments of mercy rather than wrath in the Israel Bride's work of assisting the Divine Husband's Saviour-Judgment, reforming work during the Millennium. The destruction of the demonized Canaanites was inevitable, for Israel, by reason of its own sinfulness and lack of training, was not then competent to reform them, but in the Millennium Age the elect of Israel, resurrected, changed, glorified and exalted, will, in Bible language, "execute true judgment, and show mercy and compassion," "execute the judgment of truth and peace," judge the fatherless, the cause of the widow, the cause of the poor and the right of the needy. This is their high calling of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

But in their glorified state their work will not necessarily be confined to the earth plane, but they will also function in what to us now is the invisible part of the Kingdom of Heaven where, as their exceeding great reward, are given

> "Such great offices as suit
> The full-grown energies of Heaven."

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

Now for some concluding remarks. If God Who is love through and through says, as He has done, "I the Lord love judgment," and is said also to delight in it, there must be something more in judgment, eternal judgment, than endless, hopeless and useless punishment, which are the ideas usually associated with it. As Dr. Edersheim declared, "Divine judgment always bears in its bosom larger mercy," and so everywhere there is the rainbow of mercy spanning the face of the very blackest clouds of judgment.

Judging is nothing less than a process of regeneration, and the time of judging is the time of regeneration.

So my beloved hearers, and particularly those of you who are high-standard, conscious British-Israelites, let us forthwith see to our lamp trimming and oil replenishing. As Brother Pascoe Goard wrote in his article, "Let the lamps be burning and the vessels filled with oil."

"Those who have the oil of the Holy Spirit, obtained according to our Lord's teaching to Nicodemus in the third chapter of St. John, will pass in to the marriage. Those who fail to obtain the oil of the Holy Spirit through the New Birth from above will be excluded from that feast and marriage, and will have to plod on in a lower order of life, and that seems to be a permanent classification." "Israel triumphant will enter in! Israel non-attaining will continue on the lower level of life." Such is Mr. Pascoe Goard's conviction as expressed in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE of July 27th, and it is mine also.

Now let Dr. Clarke have the last word:—

"God is working out His great plan of the redemption of the world by stages. As it was with the generation of this world, so also will it be with its regeneration. The present is the stage in which He is forming His KINGS, the rulers and judges to whom the world to come is subjected. He is now doing in practice what Plato did in theory, but without

> 'A lever to uplift the world
> And roll it in another course.'

He is succeeding in doing what King Arthur failed to do. He is now selecting out of the world under Him their Head—

> 'A glorious company, the flower of men,
> To serve as model for the mighty world
> And be the fair beginning of a time.'

Are not all the miseries and anomalies of the present life allowed to continue for the sake of the education of Christ's elect?

Digitized by Google

Can it be that this is what our Saviour means when, speaking of the time of trouble impending, He says not only that there never was such a troublous time, but adds, 'No, nor ever shall be.' This life is the only opportunity given to Christians for attaining to the prerogative salvation. We shall do well indeed to remember Mr. Latham's advice, to cultivate a healthy distrust of positiveness about God's ways; yet it would seem that if we 'neglect so great salvation' in this life—despising our birthright, making light of our invitation to the marriage feast, sleeping where we ought to be watching, neglecting to provide oil for our lamps—we shall in the world to come seek it in vain, though we seek it carefully with tears."

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 2ND.

CHRIST, THE KING OF ISRAEL.

LT.-COLONEL G. F. A. SMYTHE (Chairman).

There are doubtless many of you here this afternoon who have been surprised at noticing the intense bitterness with which this Movement of ours has been opposed in certain directions. Now this cannot be due to the reason that we trace our origin from the House of Israel nationally. Therefore there can only be one other reason to inspire them, and that is, that we proclaim with no uncertain voice that Christ of the line of David in the flesh is the King of Israel for ever. Our Saviour, with His great knowledge of the hereafter, saw this when He said, "I came not to send peace, but a sword." Now in days gone by when it was announced that David was to be the King over Israel for ever, the sword was drawn, the scabbard was cast aside, and that great struggle commenced that has gone on throughout all ages, becoming more and more intense—Satan, the prince of this world against the House of David. Of course, a great victory that the House of David achieved was when the King's daughter, escaping from Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Babylon, fled to the Isles of the Sea, and there established the Royal House of David through the family line. And another great victory was won when the Infant Jesus, the future King of Israel, escaping from the hands of Herod the Edomite, was carried into Egypt by His parents for protection. But another greater victory still was when Christ the King rose from the dead and ascended into Heaven to receive His crown. And when He comes "in that day His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives." Once more, and only then, will peace reign in this unhappy world of ours.

THE AGE TO COME.

THE REV. HECTOR MACTURK, M.A.

May I mention, first of all, two little incidents. I happened to pick up The Times newspaper to-day, and there, among the arrangements for the day, I was astonished to find "British-Israel Congress, Central Hall, Westminster." The other thing happened at lunch. I was having a meal, and, English-like, I did not speak to the man opposite to me until we reached the coffee stage; and feeling that I ought to say something to him as a brother man, I spoke to him and found out that he was a red-hot British-Israelite, and so we hob-nobbed over our coffee. I asked him to come this afternoon; he said he was returning to Scotland by the 11.45 train to-night, but he promised that he would try to come to hear Mr. Garrison's lecture. As a red-hot British-Israelite, and as a Scotsman, he had some strong opinions to express. We must, in our speaking, lay more stress upon the elementary facts and hammer them in, he said, and, if possible, get on the Wireless. I venture to say that I believe it is our ambition so to do, and I hope the time is coming when one Sunday evening some of our experts will have the opportunity of hammering it in through the Wireless far and wide.

It is my pleasing duty, as a minister of the Church of England, to address, at Morning and Evening Prayer, Sunday by Sunday, my own, and every congregation to whom I am privileged to minister, as: "Dearly beloved brethren." And why? Because the Church of England is the National Church of this country, and as the Imperial Church seems to recognize the fact, unconsciously for the most part, that we are the people of the Bible; and, therefore, brethren of the stock of Abraham our father, the redeemed House of Israel, chosen for service. I believe I am right in saying that in every instance the word "brethren," or "brother," or "brotherhood," when used in the Bible, both in the Old and New Testaments, applies to that relationship within the race of Israel; and St. Peter exhorts us to "love the brotherhood," and St. Paul, St. John and St. Jude add the word "beloved," beloved of God and of one another, in the same connection. So then let me begin my brief paper this afternoon by addressng you on the platform and you in the audience as "Dearly beloved brethren," on the clear understanding that I am addressing, not Jews, but "Israelites indeed in whom is no guile," and that we are most happily conscious of the fact, and glory in it day by day, wherever we are; and not least on such an occasion as this, when we are met together in considerable numbers in Congress, at the hub of the universe, gathered from all parts of the Commonwealth of Israel, and beyond; and may the God of Israel, our God, and the God of our fathers, bless ever more and more our British-Israel-World Federation, at, and from Headquarters, and through all its Branches; for we are out, "all out," in loving and loyal obedience to our Lord and Master to "preach this Gospel of the Kingdom in all the world for a witness unto all nations. And then shall the end come." (St. Matt. xxiv, 14.)

But what end? Most of the bishops, clergy and people of the Church of England, if they have thought of it at all, would say immediately, and without premeditation, "the end of the world," and they would be wrong; for, so far as my understanding of the Holy Scriptures goes, the Bible, when rightly translated, never mentions "the end of the world"; and I fear no contradiction when I say that our Blessed Lord and His Apostles never spoke of, or foretold, "the end of the world." It is true that in the Authorized Version we find the expression, as, e.g., in our Lord's Parable of the Tares (St. Matt. xiii), "the harvest is the end of the world"; "so shall it be in the end of the world." And in the last words of St. Matthew's Gospel our Lord is made to say, "And, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." But for some reason or other, or for no reason, the scholars and divines, who gave us our Authorized Version, have carelessly blundered when translating this expression from the Greek Testament, and they have much to answer for; for the bishops and clergy to-day continue to repeat the blunder, as though they had never seen a Greek Testament.

It is true that the Revised Version translates the expression differently, but only in the margin; and that should be of some help to those who cannot read the Greek Testament; and there are also a number of modern translations of the New Testament, such as "The Twentieth Century New Testament," Weymouth, Ferrar Fenton, and Dr. Moffat, which give us the correct translation; for our Lord did not speak of "the end of the world" (cosmos), but of "the end of the age," (aiōn), which is a very different matter. "The field is the world" (cosmos). He said: but—"the harvest is the end of the age" (aiōn).

"So shall it be at the end of the age" (aiōn).

"And, lo, I am with you, day by day, even unto the close, or consummation (the completed end) of the age" (aiōn).

Moreover, those who continue to think of, and speak of "the end of the world," whether their ignorance is pardonable or unpardonable, as in the case of bishops, clergy and theologians, contradict themselves again and again when they use, as they frequently use, the very opposite expression, as found in the Scriptures, and in our Book of Common Prayer, "world without end." "As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen." "And we worship Thy Name ever world without end." (Te Deum.) "Thou art God from everlasting, and world without end." (Psalm xc.) In the Nicene Creed we are taught to say, "And I look for the resurrection of the dead, and the life of the world to come. Amen." It should be, "the life of the age to come." This is everlasting life. Likewise in the prayer of Chrysostom we should say, instead of "granting us in this world knowledge of Thy Truth, and in the world to come life everlasting"—"granting us in this age knowledge of Thy Truth, and in the age to come life everlasting." The life of the age to come.

We hear a great deal in these days of modern scholarship and Prayer Book Revision, but what we really need from our bishops and modern scholars is more intelligence, the faculty to search, and to perceive that what is true is true, and what is false is false.

Now at this point let me humbly apologize if I am needlessly drawing your attention to a matter well understood by most of you; and may I, therefore, take it for granted that we are all agreed as British-Israelites that when our Lord said, "This Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come," He meant, and said, not the end of the "Cosmos," but the end of this Gospel Age in which we are now living; the close, or consummation of which we are expecting within the next few years. Otherwise, what would become of our Blessed Hope, and the coming Kingship of our Blessed Lord, and His promised Reign upon earth to bring peace and righteousness in the age to come, for which we so constantly pray with our lips, at any rate. There are, we know only too well, many modern high priests, scribes and Sadducees in the Church of England to-day who shamelessly deny in their pulpits and in their writings His coming Kingship. They are more than satisfied to have Him reign as God from Heaven, but they will not have this Man, "the Man Christ Jesus," to reign over them on this earth, in spite of the plain statements of the Scriptures of both Testaments, and in spite of the creeds of the Church which they repeat every day of their lives; but, thank God, we are not of that number, for we believe with all our hearts and minds that, in the words of the Nicene Creed, "He shall come again with glory" to reign, "Whose Kingdom shall have no end"—in extent. For "He shall be great . . . and the Lord God shall give unto Him" [Whose right it is when the right time comes] "the Throne of His father David," established on the earth for that supreme purpose; "and He shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever" (for an age), "and of His Kingdom there shall be no end"—in extent. And so we, as British-Israelites, believe, as many say they believe, and do not in the least understand what they mean when they say they believe in "the life everlasting," which is, the life of the age to come—the Millennial Age; "the Regeneration," "when the Son of Man shall sit on the Throne of His Glory"; the Resurrection Age; "the Day of the Lord"; "the time of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the age began" (Acts iii, 21) on a renewed earth; the Sabbatic Rest which remains to be enjoyed by the people of God, purchased by the Incarnation, Life, Death and Resurrection of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, Son of God and Son of Man; and, as Son of Man, Son of Abraham, our father; and, therefore, our Brother and Redeemer in kindredship of Race; and Son of David, and, therefore, our future King by right, coming, soon we believe, to reign in righteousness in the age to come, on the Throne of David, which is the Throne of the Lord, over Israel. For "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch [shoot or offspring], and, as King (R.V.) shall reign and prosper and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. In His days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely; and this is His Name whereby He shall be called, The Lord our Righteousness." (Jeremiah xxiii, 5, 6.) We believe our British Throne to be the Throne of David, and, therefore, the Throne of the Lord, because it can be no other.

I have spoken of the Millennial Age as the life everlasting (i.e., the life of the age to come), under the Personal Reign of Jesus Christ, Son of God and Son of Man. "Those who lived next to the Apostles, and the whole Church for three hundred years, understood the Millennial teaching of the Scriptures in the plain literal sense," says Dean Alford. "In common with the whole primitive Church, and many of the best modern expositors, I maintain and receive it as an article of faith and hope." "If the preachers of the Word will fling carelessly aside one of the best weapons in the armoury of Truth, can they wonder that their work is not as effective as it might be? If they fain would see conversions numerous as in Apostolic days, let them preach the Apostolic preaching in which not only the past, but also the future Advent of Christ has a grand and prominent place." "That doctrine," as another writer points out, "has its foundation in the promises made by God to the fathers of Israel early in the history of the world. It is delineated in glowing pictures by the prophets, and it is plainly set forth in the teachings of Christ and His Apostles. Not only is the doctrine prominently brought before us in the Word of God, but it occupies a position of the first importance in the plan of salvation revealed therein. Its importance truly is not generally recognized by the religious teachers of the day, by whom it is regarded as a theory of a somewhat speculative character, having no vital bearing on the question of the salvation of man. When, however, the truth of the matter is perceived, the very opposite is seen to be the fact. It is, indeed, the very essence of the Gospel preached by Christ. To be ignorant, therefore, of this doctrine is to be in ignorance of that Gospel which is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

I will conclude with two more brief quotations from the pen of laymen: "The old-fashioned expectation of a Millennium is the sanest, sweetest, truest, humanist bent which the moral idealism of man has ever taken. The hope of a universal and lasting reign of glad innocence on earth began in the third century after Christ, to be replaced by a hope of such an existence in a life after death, and on another scene than the surface of this planet. But never was there such a fall both for the character and the understanding of man. When the expectation of a Second Coming, of a supernatural Founder, of a Kingdom of righteousness was abandoned, and the human heart turned for consolation to the thought of another world, it was the setting in of an age-long night. Since then, only for the briefest periods and among small groups has the Millennial passion burst forth into flame, only to be stamped out by the powers that be. There is scarcely one Christian to-day who is aware that all this interest in another world is not only un-Christian, but anti-Christian, if we take the Personality and Thought of Christ and of the New Testament as the standard. The New Testament is from beginning to end Millennial; that is, its Heaven is one whose scene is to be the earth, whose centre is the very city from where Christianity came."

"As inhabitants of the earth we are living at the very beginning of time," says Sir James Jeans, F.R.S., the Astronomer, in his wonderful new book, "The Universe Around Us." "We have come into being in the fresh glory of dawn, and a day of almost unthinkable length stretches before us, with unimaginable opportunities for accomplishment. . . . . We are still too much engulfed in the greyness of the morning mists to be able to imagine, however vaguely, how this world of ours will appear to those who will come after us, and see it in the full light of day." Though, please God, may I add, if we are "Israelites indeed, in whom is no guile," in the reading of the Scriptures, and in believing God, as our father Abraham believed Him unto righteousness, we will hope to live to see, or rise again to see, that "perfect day," of the Millennial Reign of Christ on the renewed earth, when "He shall sit," as the Son of Man and Son of David, "on the throne of His glory"; and, "the restitution of all things" in the age to come, which is everlasting life, when "the kingdoms of this world" have become "the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ, and He shall reign." Amen.

ISRAEL'S POSSESSION OF PALESTINE.

THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

What a delightful week we are having! Not the least delightful of the meetings have been those held at Headquarters, where the clergy and ministers have been meeting together, to worship together, to study together, as well as to offer thanksgiving for the work of the past. What profound depths there are in this wonderful Book! How strange it is that there is not a fundamental doctrine in all the range of Christian faith that the ploughshare of Israel Truth does not run right through, ploughing up the fallow ground, and resowing the seeds of Divine Truth. What a splendid breeze of robust Calvinism Mr. Leech brought to us this afternoon, and then how splendidly he followed it up by Biblical Arminianism! If those two ancient stalwarts had come together on exactly the same ground, there would never have been that two and a half century-old controversy in regard to the great doctrine of election of race and election of grace, both set forth as clearly as possible in the pages of the sacred Scriptures, and in the teaching of the Epistles.

Mr. Leech will be pleased that I should add a further word or two to what he has said, while agreeing with him absolutely. Yes, it is true that God did choose a race; but that is not all the truth; you know He also created the race for a special purpose. We look back, for instance, upon Esau and Jacob; their history for nearly four thousand years is before us. Which would you choose—the blood-stained Edomite, the Turk, or the constructive, organizing Israel descent? There is no question in our mind, looking back over the pages of history, as to which would be our choice. We should vote for Jacob every time. Why? Because history is before us. And before they were born their history was before our Lord, when, with full knowledge of all the future to the very end, He made His selection.

Now let me read, in addition to what Mr. Leech has read, and on the same lines, "But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and He that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not; for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name, thou art Mine." "In thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Edom was the Dead Sea, that received all the waters of the Jordan of Divine grace, and endeavoured to retain them all, but all that they succeeded in retaining were the impurities. Israel was the Sea of Galilee, receiving the waters of the same river of Jordan, the Jordan of Divine grace, and giving out just as surely as it was receiving, and being the very sea of the waters of life. Oh, yes, it is true that God has chosen us, and has filled us with the waters of His grace; but woe to us if we do not pass them on! "Out of thee shall flow rivers of living water," but not unless first we drink of Him.

And now passing on, suppose for a moment I read from the most up-to-date newspaper in the world a real proclamation concerning

THE LAND OF PALESTINE.

Did you know that there was one out? I venture to say that this will take the place of the Balfour Declaration. I venture to say that if Lord Balfour, strong Christian gentleman though he is, had been fully aware of this proclamation, he would have changed his own point of view to bring it into line with this proclamation. This is a product from Higher Authority than the Balfour Declaration, concerning the Land of Palestine. Ezek. xxxvi: "Also thou son of man, prophesy unto the mountains of Israel, and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord. Thus saith the Lord God; Because the enemy hath said against you, Aha, even the ancient high places are ours in possession. Therefore prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord God: Because they have made you desolate, and swallowed you up on every side, that ye might be a possession unto the residue of the heathen, and ye are taken up in the lips of talkers, and are an infamy of the people; Therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God; Thus saith the Lord God to the mountains and to the hills, to the rivers and to the valleys, to the desolate wastes, and to the cities that are forsaken, which became a prey and derision to the residue of the heathen that are round about."

The description of the country is carefully included in this passage in order that we might know it is in very deed a proclamation concerning that land.

"Prophesy therefore concerning the land of Israel, and say unto the mountains, and to the hills, to the rivers, and to the valleys, Thus saith the Lord God; behold, I have spoken in my jealousy and in my fury, because ye have borne the shame of the heathen. Therefore thus saith the Lord God; I have lifted up mine hand, Surely the heathen that are about you, they shall bear their shame. But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people of Israel; for they are at hand to come. For, behold, I am for you, and I will turn unto you, and ye shall be tilled and sown. And I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, even all of it; and the cities shall be inhabited, and the wastes shall be builded. And I will multiply upon you man and beast; and they shall increase and bring fruit; and I will settle you after your old estates, and will do better unto you than at your beginnings; and ye shall know that I am the Lord." One of the most wonderful passages that I have ever read. It was forty years ago that I began to point out that God was uprooting the population of this land. The agriculturalists were on the land for generations, some of them right back to doomsday. Not now. Take the mass of the population in this land to-day, and there is scarcely an average of a month's settled possession by way of rental. They are mobilized, with loins girt, and staff in hand. Listen to the tramping of their feet. God is going to move them eastward soon; there are great changes to be made there. Men are planning the changes. Engineers are planning the changes. But God planned the changes Himself long ago.

WONDERFUL RICHES THERE,

who will possess them? God's great engineering scheme will work a greater transformation over them than all the nitrates of the Jordan Valley put together. "I will cause men to walk upon you, even My people Israel; and they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be their inheritance, and thou shalt no more henceforth bereave them of men. Thus saith the Lord God; Because they say unto you, Thou land devourest up men, and hast bereaved thy nations, therefore thou shalt devour men no more, neither bereave thy nations any more, saith the Lord God. Neither will I cause men to hear in thee the shame of the heathen any more, neither shalt thou bear the reproach of the people any more, neither shalt thou cause thy nations to fall any more, saith the Lord God."

That is a wonderful ROYAL proclamation. It has been lying there waiting the time of fulfilment during all these thousands of years. It is a document that men have disregarded because it was in the archives, dust-covered through the ages; and then suddenly the great clock of God's chronological period struck, and the proclamation comes into force to-day.

Make a National Home for the Jews? What for? They are not a nation, and on the authority of this Word I say they will never be a nation again. What will they be? Real Judah will be a leading tribe in a re-united Israel, once again standing foursquare in the midst of them all, to acclaim the King of Israel.

There came one of the Zionist Movement to address one of our gatherings, and of course he spoke along the line of Zionism, and the acquiring of Palestine for Judah. Following him, I said, "You know it never can be. Judah will take her place in Palestine under the protection and in association with Israel-Britain."

The marching of the infinite purpose of God along the dusty pathways of material history is glorious. He made no mistake when He sent the representative of our gracious King, Lord Allenby, at the head of Israel-British troops, to take possession of the Land of Palestine in the name of the House of David; and of God Who, in that city, established the House of David a thousand years before Christ. As a nation we are feeling our way blindly, but because we are feeling our way sincerely, I am convinced that God will guide our footsteps, bringing forth a "blind nation" by a path that they have not known.

I have been asked to say a word or two with regard to the present trouble in Palestine. There is no trouble, as I see it, that has not long been present. There are three great outstanding races there—the Arab, the Jew, and the Anglo-Saxon. There are other places where they are dwelling in accord together, and there is no reason why they should not do the same in Palestine. But there is this: There is the introduction of a system of law new to Palestine; the law of Islam had prevailed in Palestine for exactly the number of years that Daniel the prophet declared it should; and the law of Islam, which includes both faith and law—as our Bible should be to the Christian—teaches that it is a meritorious thing to slay the unbeliever. Again and again that land has run red with blood, spilt under Islamic law, and we have cried out in horror. From our standpoint it was fearful; from their standpoint it was meritorious. The Jews, who have gone there in such numbers lately, are taught, quoting, for instance, from Esdras, that the non-Jewish nations "are like unto spittle."

But under the law of the Lord, the Common Law of Britain, the truth taught is that every man is equal, and the basic principle of it along the line of protection is, "Thou shalt not kill." There is the struggle.

There are those three systems of law—the Arab trained in the Turkish school wants to slay; the Jew, trained in his own peculiar faith, wants to establish himself as superior; and the British want to administer "the perfect law of liberty," which is the Divine law. The Arab is ready to fight for his liberty; to slay under the law. The Jew is ready to fight to preserve his superiority of position there. We who have undertaken the administration of that land have said, Now let us accomplish this task by moral suasion, and withdraw every symbol of force. We were exercising authority without power, and we were caught under those difficult circumstances without a force to cause the law to be kept. It comes to this. Jesus said, "The strong man armed keepeth his house," and we have said, "Lord, that was the thought of Thy age, but we know it is the strong man unarmed." Well, that is the experience that has come to us, and I do not suppose we shall learn a single thing by it! We try our experiments over and over again, and get blown up by them; and we pick up the pieces and go on once more. This is but a ripple. The great strategic positions are being occupied, according to prophetic teaching, but the time has not yet come for the great sweep of those movements. When they do, we shall know. Let us remember this, that whatever movements may take place, that Royal proclamation is in process of being put into effect, and not the united vote of all the nations can change it. That land is now in the possession of Israel, and will continue in the possession of Israel without interruption for a period; then will come a period of struggle, and then once again it becomes the very centre of God's Israel in the earth, from which will go forth the light of the Gospel, and the authority of Divine law, and to which centre our Lord Himself shall come. It is a wonderful thing to see the nations, and especially the nation of Israel, marching right out of the prophetic pages of this wonderful Book, and proclaiming those verities which satisfy both the human mind and the human heart, thus leading men back to God.

HISTORIC PEEPS AT IRELAND.

BY PROFESSOR EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc.

O'HALLORAN points out much on church bells, tower building; savage Danes, Abaris the Irishman, Ith the Milesian, the use of telescopes, and other matters.

"In the latter end of the seventh century, Ussher informs us that bells were used in the churches of Ireland; and immediately after, we are told that Turgesius the Dane, amongst other instances of devastation, caused the church of Mayo, covered over with lead, to be burnt to the ground."

"So blindly and wilfully prejudiced have modern writers concerning Ireland been, that our very maritime cities, in which the lofty towers, strong walls, and elegant buildings, bespeak the power as well as taste of the ancient Irish, are all attributed to the Danes—a savage, barbarous crew, whose irruptions, like those of their successors the Saxons, were everywhere marked with blood, rapine, and desolation!"

"It is highly probable then, that Abaris was an Irishman, and a Druid. The name is common and peculiar to us, even to this day. Heber and Heremon were the first Milesian Kings in Ireland; Heber Scot was one of their ancestors, who dwelt in Greece; Heber Fion a successor to him, with many others. This name we find rendered Abarus and Ibarus in Latin. Thus our early Christian writers mention an Abarus, or Ibarus, who instructed his countrymen in the Christian religion before St. Patrick; but on the arrival of the latter, when St. Albe, St. Declan, and St. Kieran submitted themselves to him, Abarus could not be prevailed upon; for, says the great Ussher: 'Abarus would by no means consent to the supremacy of St. Patrick, unwilling that the patron of Ireland should be of any other nation.'"

"Besides, our own history here comes in as evidence, as our early annals tell us that Ith, the son of Milesius, first espied the Irish coasts, by means of glasses." (Telescopes! E.O.)

"After the settlement of the Spanish invaders in Ireland, when they had cleared the country of woods and morasses, and cultivated the ground, their next care was to form a wise and permanent legislation; and this they prudently considered could not be effectually done till the people were divided into different classes, and, of course, that every sept or family knew the particular station they were to fill in the state."

"The remains of the Firbolgs and other ancient inhabitants, being confined to the province of Connaught, the rest of the kingdom was to be governed by the sons of Milesius, and their posterity only. To each of these was assigned his particular province; but to prevent those wars which princes, upon an equality, might be drawn into, a supreme monarch was chosen out of the royal blood, to whom, and to the great council of the nation assembled every third year at Tara, all disputes and appeals from the provincial councils were submitted. Did any prince presume to go retrograde to their determinations, he was admonished; he was interdicted, and if necessary, compelled to submit to the voice of reason and justice."

"As posts of honour and profit became hereditary in different septs and families, purity of blood became, of course, a national object; the literati were, therefore, the ministers of state, and men of the greatest power, as they only could determine the rank and station of the people; and this will prove the necessity for the great number of antiquarians we formerly mentioned. The monarchs and provincial kings, being of the royal line of Milesius only, great care was taken of their genealogy and descents; and every candidate for the imperial or provincial command was obliged to give—first: proofs of the purity of his blood; second: of his having been a knight (for in each of the provinces was an equestrian order; but there was an order superior to these, which it would seem was peculiar to the blood royal, and a necessary qualification to every candidate); and thirdly: that he had no remarkable deformity; so that his person might command respect, as well as his birth and accomplishments.

"As to the first circumstance, namely, the purity of blood, no nation of the world could be more careful of it; and though the monarchy was elective, and seldom went in a lineal descent, yet from the landing of the sons of Milesius to the coming of St. Patrick, including the space of 1,500 years, and from this to the invasion of Henry II, being 640 years more, none filled the throne of Ireland, who did not derive his pedigree from the three sons of Milesius, except three of the line of Ith, uncle to that prince, and an unnatural usurpation of Cairbre Cineait, in the first century, which was but of short duration."

"The second qualification was so indispensable that the election of a prince of the blood royal to the monarchy, who was not a knight, became void; of which we have a striking instance in the fourth century; for on the death of Criomthan, Eochaidh, king of Leinster, repaired to and hastily took possession of the palace of Tara in hopes to succeed to the monarchy; but, on his own Druids and Senachies representing to him the violence he offered to God and the constitution of his country, by presuming to enter the house of Tara, who was never mighted, he relinquished his claim to Niall the great, sir-named of the nine hostages. An instance of moderation and veneration for the laws not easily paralleled from the history of other nations."

"The genealogies of the different families of the kingdom of the Milesian race were preserved with the greatest care, as well as those of the blood-royal; and to secure the literati from any temptation to abuse this great truth, honourable provision was made for them, by the state. From their rank, they were presumed to be beyond the reach of corruption; and the laws secured their persons and properties inviolate."

"To be hospitable, generous, and brave, was the sole business of the princes, the knights, the nobility, and soldiery; to blazon these virtues was the duty of the historian, antiquarian, and bard! Even men of eminence in every station had their share of applause: such was Juchadan, the famous Director of Mines, many centuries before Christ; such were the twenty-four husbandmen, under whose directions so many different tracts of land were reclaimed and cultivated in the very infancy of the Milesian government, and which plains yet go by their names."

"The Brehons or Judges had a language peculiar to the law. So had the physicians and surgeons, the bards, croateries or harpers, etc."

"They were rich in mines of gold, of silver, of copper, and tin, and wrought them to the highest perfection, as our ancient annals declare, and as we shall, in another place, prove. Hence, the very great abundance of all these metals formerly. Precious stones of all kinds were here formerly used as ornaments by our princes and nobility; yet it is only within these thirty years, that our modern Irish have found amethysts in Ireland; the finest and hardest in the world!"

SIFTED AMONG THE NATIONS.

By H. Percy Blanchard.

At the risk of being adjudged a heretic, I am going to set forth the following suggestions or conclusions.

And, first, may I ask forgiveness if I go into matters that may seem largely personal? One of my hobbies is Genealogy. In tracing out the history of our own family of Blanchards, I follow them back to a Huguenot family, refugees emigrating from Normandy. The ancestors of these formed part of a colony who nearly a thousand years previously had settled around Coutances on the French coast, having advanced by way of the Danube, Bezanson and the Loire Valleys, by stages from ancient Byzantium. This latter city was their home about A.D. 400. And primarily they came across Asia Minor from Galilee in the beginning of the second century of this era. The name Blanchard is not French, as generally supposed, but clearly Aramaic or Hebrew; the Hebrew interpretation fully supported by their banner or "arms," as well as by other facts not necessary here to detail. Evidently they were Galilean Benjamites; and the first syllable (with supplied vowels) is "Bela," the name of the oldest son of Benjamin.

Now, of the Montgomerie family. This name is found in ancient history long before the Conquest. The "arms" (closely resembling the royal arms of the Norman-French kings) is a triple fleur-de-lis. If there were nothing to support the assertion, it might seem "far fetched" to derive the place name Mont-Gomerie from the Mount of Samaria or Gomri. But the supporting fact is not only in the "arms" themselves but in the fact that they are the most ancient to bear the fleur-de-lis, a triple flower or bud springing from the tip of a sceptre. Students of heraldry have been puzzled greatly as to the origin of the fleur-de-lis; and among guesses, my own should be as good as another. The earliest record of this symbol is as a triple flower on the tip of a sceptre or staff, and shown on a Norman shield; but a like symbol is stamped on coins of Palestine issued by Herod Agrippa, Judas Maccabeus and others. In one case where this device is found, the obverse shows a chalice; and in another, an ornamental tent is depicted. Evidently then the intent is to portray "Aaron's rod that budded," in conjunction with either the "cup of manna" or the "Tabernacle" itself. With other known evidences that the Normans were Galilean Benjamites, the Mont-Gomeries, bearing this post-exilic Hebrew symbol, naturally drop into place as originating in their name-city, Mount-Samaria, or Gomri, Galilean Benjamites, or at least of Israel.

Another ancient family that carries on its "arms" the fleur-de-lis, as also in some branches the lion rampant, and the stars and crescent moon (the latter the type of the eternal Covenant) is that of the Archibalds. The name "Balder" (son of Odin) means Prince; or at least had that meaning in the fifth century, though changing later; while "Arch" means Chief; hence the whole name—The Chief-Prince.

When we may be inclined to assert (some of us) that we alone—the British Race, are the Chosen Israel, some facts are against us. So far as these three families cited are concerned, certain members are British or American citizens. Their origin is undoubtedly Israelite, and yet (to say nothing of the French Canadians) Normandy and other parts of France are full of Blanchards, some taking a leading part in national affairs. There are a few scattered in Italy and Germany. Montgomerie is by no means an unusual name in France; indeed, one family of the nobility bears that name. The Archibalds appear many of them in France as Archambaults, in Germany as Erchenbald, and in Italy as Archibaldi. If name formation is any evidence, then with this same terminal, "baldi," as a proof, Gari-baldi the Italian patriot (Warlike-Prince) would also be a Benjamite Norman, an Israelite indeed.

From these premises, my postulate is, first, that concededly, and by all the general evidences, the British Empire and America are nationally and officially "Israel." None of the Continental nations, even Denmark, can lay claim to this national destiny; for the simple reason that none of them show nationally the prophetic marks that designate Israel.

The promise was that the seed of Abraham would be a blessing to all nations. Israel would be, and has been, a "battle-axe" wielded against the "image" and Gentile tyranny. While the main stream of Israel was during the ages marching westward into the Covenant Land, contingents went forth in every direction to fulfil God's purposes. One need not cite the destruction of Nineveh, and in turn the smashing of the Persian, Grecian and Roman Empires, largely through the instrumentality of Israelite soldiery. Recall those heroes down the ages: Goths, Gaels, Sumerai, Sikhs, Normans—deliverers of the people, east or westward ; and great contingents of these our brethren are still at the work outside our British boundaries.

But Scripture tells us that while (and according to fact) Israel would be sifted among all nations, yet eventually (when God's purposes have been fulfilled) they will be gathered again and not one of them be lost.

Two centuries ago persecution, as of the Huguenots, gathered many of them into Britain. What circumstances will ere long bring the balance of them into the Covenant bounds? Only the event will declare ; yet God is able to bring to pass all His purposes ; and we must wait the event.

CONVERSION.

MR. HOUGHTON gave us a beautiful article on Conversion in our issue of November 2nd, and showed us how simple and easy the approach to God is made for the repentant sinner. He selected one avenue of approach : one test of Conversion. The test he gave us is that of the Knowledge of Jesus Christ, Who He is, viz., God the Son.

This is a certain test, for " no man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost. To learn to know this in reality is to learn to know the Lord." "And this is eternal life, that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ Whom Thou hast sent."

It is a fruitful subject. St. John deals with it at length in the First Epistle General of John. " In that Epistle he gives many individual signs by which we may know that we know Him. Here are some of them :—

(1) " If we walk in the light as He is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin."

(2) " And hereby we know that we do know Him, if we keep His commandments."

(3) " But whoso keepeth His word, in him verily is the love of God perfected : hereby we know that we are in Him."

(4) " If ye know that He is righteous, ye know that every one that doeth righteousness is born of Him."

(5) " Little children, let no man deceive you ; he that doeth righteousness is righteous even as He is righteous.

" He that committeth sin is of the devil ; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested that He might destroy the works of the devil."

(6) " We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren."

(7) " My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue : but in deed and in truth.

" And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before Him."

(8) " And this is His commandment, That we should believe on the name of His Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as He gave us commandment.

" And he that keepth His commandments dwelleth in Him, and He in him. And hereby we know that He abideth in us, by the Spirit which He hath given unto us."

(9) " Hereby know ye the Spirit of God : Every spirit that onfesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God :

(10) " We are of God : he that knoweth God heareth us : he that is not of God heareth us not. Hereby we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error."

(11) " Hereby know we that we dwell in Him and He in us, because He hath given us of His Spirit.

" And we have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world.

" Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God."

(12) " And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us.

" Herein is our love made perfect that we may have boldness in the day of judgment ; because as He is, so are we in this world."

(13) " Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God ; and every one that loveth Him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of Him.

" By this we know that we are the children of God, when we love God and keep His commandments."

(14) " And we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in darkness.

"And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding that we may know Him that is true, and we are in Him that is true, even in His Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life.

" Little children, keep yourselves from idols. Amen."

Thus we have presented to us the fourteen points of assurance of our acceptance given in 1 John. To have one of these seems to be sufficient to warrant the claim to knowledge of our acceptance in the beloved. To have them all is to be absolutely sure.

W. PASCOE GOARD.

" LAW GIVERS IN WHITEHALL."

UNDER the above heading three important articles have appeared in " The Evening News," by J. H. Morgan, K.C., Professor of Constitutional Law in London University, under date October 3rd, 4th and 7th.

British-Israelites who have studied the Rev. Pascoe Goard's book on " The Common Law, or the Law of the Lord," will find in them much food for serious reflection.

Article No. 1 is a scathing indictment of how Government Departments violate the principles of justice, and have succeeded of recent years in passing a series of Statutes and enactments utterly subversive of justice, and of the provisions of the Common or Constitutional Law, which is based on the Law as given out at Sinai.

The learned author gives a short list of some of these essential principles, such as—

1. All issues of litigation shall be tried in open Court.

2. All British subjects whose rights are in question shall see the other party.

3. That he shall know who is his judge.

Digitized by Google

4. That if the judge is an interested party he shall not decide the case.

5. That the judgment shall be orally delivered and publicly reported.

6. That all documents necessary to establish either party shall be produced in Court for inspection, etc., etc.

The article goes on to give specific cases in which each of these principles is violated, and to show how dangerous to the rights of the subject is the stream of Statutes passed by recent Governments at the instigation of various Ministries (the Ministry of Agriculture and Health are the chief offenders), and he cites numerous instances of arbitrary decisions from which there is no appeal, and which have involved enormous losses both of property and money to the unfortunate victims.

Revelations such as these, coming from so distinguished a source, give rise to some questioning as to whether an organization like the B.-I.-W.F. might not find here an opening for an entirely new line of activity, side by side with its own special work of propaganda.

That is to say, calling the attention of the Federation to the insidious disruption in our own midst of the principles on which the coming Kingdom will be established, and impressing upon our countrymen the necessity for resistance by resolutions and appeals.

Although politics, as such, are outside the circle of B.-I.-W.F. activities, the realization of its ideals is dependent on the keeping of the Divine Law as a nation.

And apart from that, no citizen of any enlightened nation is safe where "Star Chamber" methods prevail.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.

QUESTION.—Can you tell me why all ministers and teachers of religion teach that Mary Magdalene was a "lost" woman? It seems to me such a libel on her, for nowhere in the Gospels can I find her spoken of as such. I have looked up all the references, and can only find "out of whom went seven devils." I can quite understand Mary of Bethany being confused with "the woman who was a sinner." One has to read the accounts very carefully in order to avoid confusion. But I cannot see any grounds for mixing up Mary of Magdala with her. I hope you can enlighten me.—M. H. (Cornwall).

ANSWER.—There has been a great deal of confusion, especially in or since mediæval days, over the identity of Mary Magdalene, as efforts have been made to assume or even to prove that she was the same as Mary of Bethany (the sister of Lazarus), and also the same as the woman who was a sinner (Luke vii, 37-50). This tradition which has been persistent (especially between the identity of Mary Magdalene and the "sinner") was not unknown in earlier Christian times, for we find that Origen rejected the identification, while St. Ambrose, St. Augustine and St. Jerome were doubtful about it. Gregory the Great (who died A.D. 604) was the first to be confidently certain of the identity, whence has arisen the confusing wealth of Christian art on this subject.

The name "Mary" was as common in early Christian times as it is to-day. Stanley says (Jewish Church, iii, 429) that the name probably owes its frequent recurrence in the narratives, alike of the Gospels and of Josephus, not to the memory of Miriam, the sister of Moses, but to the sympathy felt for the beautiful Hasmonean princess, the high-souled and ill-fated wife of Herod. Added to this there is a possibility that the name comes from a Hebrew word signifying "comely," "buxom," "beautiful," which may be supported by the thought that the Mother of Jesus, who was "blessed among women," could not have been other than beautiful herself.

It always seems to me unnecessary to assume that the "sinner" of Luke vii was the same as "Mary called Magdalene" (Luke viii, 2). For if so, why should she be named on the second occasion, and unnamed on the first? There is certainly a great deal in common between the two, both of whom "loved much," but there is no actual evidence in the Gospels with which to prove identity.

Nor is there any specific reason for assuming that Mary of Magdala was the same person as Mary of Bethany. Magdala was a village three miles N.W. of Tiberias (the modern el-Mejdel), which has no apparent connection with Bethany. The sister of Martha, who also "loved much," shows no likeness in St. John's Gospel to Mary out of whom Christ cast seven devils. Further, when St. Luke introduces Martha and Mary (x, 38-42) it reads exactly as if this were the first time that he was referring to the Bethany sisters. St. Luke gives us the Gospel of Womanhood, and so in his delicate and courteous respect for women—and for our Lord's ministry amongst them—there is no reason for assuming that he would lead his readers into confusion, whence it is more than probable that he writes about three different persons, i.e., the woman who was a "sinner," Mary Magdalene, and Mary of Bethany.

Regarding Mary Magdalene's complaint, it may be stated that she was suffering from "possession," a subject frequently referred to in the Bible. This may have been either physical or moral, but not necessarily moral, so it is inexpedient to assume that the Magdalene was a "fallen woman." Possession may be classed as one of the fundamental and universal beliefs of mankind. Homer held that a wasting sickness was caused by a demon, while the Greek dramatists generally attributed madness and quasi-religious frenzy to demoniac or divine possession. Seven evil spirits are grouped in Babylonian mythology (cf. Matt. xii, 45; Mark xvi, 9; Luke viii, 2; xi, 26), which with their subordinate spirits or genii were supposed to keep men in perpetual fear, and were thus thought to be able to occupy the body and so produce any kind of sickness. Hence, all that we know is that Christ cured these complaints, but as to the nature of the latter we must remain in ignorance.

Miss Hamilton Hunter gave two most interesting lectures at Southsea on November 5th to audiences who were immensely impressed both with the subjects and the striking methods of imparting British-Israel teaching. The day should mark a great advance for this Branch. No one could listen without feeling encouraged and inspired for fresh efforts. The main line of teaching throughout was that the only road to success is in the entire reliance on the guidance of God. There were several volunteers for the Crusaders.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THE REV. PASCOE GOARD preached a remarkable sermon at Christ Church, Turnham Green, Chiswick, on Sunday morning last. A profound impression was made upon the large congregation; many were so stirred that they crowded round the preacher after the service to express their gratitude.

A public meeting will be held in the Chiswick Town Hall on the evening of December 11th.

Mr. Goard addressed two full meetings at Headquarters on each of the Mondays, November 4th and 11th. He will give two further addresses on Monday next, November 18th, at 3 and 7.30. On Wednesday next, November 20th, he will speak at the Folkestone Town Hall at 3 p.m., and Mr. Morey will speak in the same Hall at 8.

Mr. Herbert Garrison has lectured at Kettering, Shrewsbury and Oakham. On Tuesday next, November 19th, he gives his lantern lecture on "Cameos of Empire," in the Oddfellows' Hall, Watford, at 8 p.m.

Mr. Nicholson and Mr. McKelvey were the speakers at Headquarters on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Mr. Wm. Whitton, of Sheffield, is the speaker for Wednesday afternoon next at 3, and Mr. Harrison Hill for Thursday evening at 7.30, on "The Bible in Song and Story."

We are requested to remind our readers that the Annual Sale of Work, etc., is to be held at Headquarters on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 3rd and 4th, from 3 p.m. onwards. There will be a musical programme, and tea and light supper each day.

We have arranged to celebrate the Anniversary of the Deliverance of Jerusalem on December 12th and 13th, in the Central Hall, Westminster, with two meetings each day at 2.45 and 7.30. The Rev. Pascoe Goard will be the chief speaker. We ask all to make these meetings widely known. Leaflets will be available in large quantities.

We acknowledge with thanks two donations, each of ten shillings, from "Elizabeth." A full list will be published later.

Mr. W. C. Rowlandson, of Auckland, New Zealand, has sent us a fine picture of Caractacus (Caradoc), for which we tender him our warm thanks.

Mrs. Rowlett, who has been Honorary Secretary of our Worthing Branch for ten years, has found it necessary to resign her post for domestic reasons. We much regret this, and we bear testimony gratefully to her loyal and devoted services and to her ever-ready co-operation with Headquarters. Mrs. de St. Croix has taken over her duties.

We cordially invite all Branches in the Overseas Dominions to send us notices and reports of their meetings from time to time.

We are glad to learn that the historic site—Glastonbury Tor, on which stands St. Michael's Tower—has been saved from the builders. The National Trust has taken over the field area on each side of the Pilgrim Path, and a new oak stile has been erected giving approach to the Tor Field.

The Rev. A. H. T. Clarke, M.A., writes to The Times quoting a letter from Professor Sayce, D.D., on the "bankruptcy of the Higher Criticism when tested by the discoveries and facts of scientific Archæology. The rout—says the Professor—has been complete." The present Professor of Assyrian at Oxford takes the same view. The Churches, says Mr. Clarke, ought to take warning from responsible utterances of first-hand investigators like these.

Mr. Wm. Whitton, of Sheffield, is the speaker at a series of meetings in London, commencing on Monday, the 18th. The places and times are shown in the "Engagement" list. We hope that friends will rally round Mr. Whitton during his week's mission here, and ask for God's blessing on these gatherings.

Mr. J. J. Morey has been busy as usual in the Southern Area. On Monday last a good meeting was held in the Town Hall, Gravesend, where monthly meetings will continue throughout the winter. A new Cause is forming at Woking, and two successful meetings were conducted by Mr. Morey on the 6th inst. A new start for the season was made in the Borough Hall, Guildford, on the 7th inst. A good audience assembled, and the meeting augured well for a successful session. Croydon is one of our very prosperous centres. The meetings are large and enthusiastic, our funds are liberally supported, and there are constantly new enquirers and adherents. Mr. Morey's two lectures on Friday last were much appreciated.

The Jewish National Fund for Great Britain and Ireland has pledged itself to raise £75,000 per annum, as the quota for Great Britain and Ireland, for the redemption of land in Palestine.

Mr. J. Wintersgill writes from Wigan: "The meeting here addressed by the Rev. Maxwell Carnson was so crowded there was not a vacant seat. The power of the Holy Spirit was so manifest as to be awe-inspiring. It is impossible to adequately describe it, but the Lord of Hosts was with us and ed us on to the very gate of Heaven. The people of this town now realize that British-Israel is indeed spiritual. The speaker was inspired in a wonderful way. The meeting finished on its feet with a resolution to serve the living Christ, the King of Israel."

Mr. Carnson went North full of the fire kindled by the Congress, and he has returned to Africa with that fire.

Mrs. M. C. W. asks: "Is it a fact that the main body of British-Israel believers take Britain to mean in Hebrew, 'Land of the Covenant,' and British, 'Covenant man'? The answer is in the affirmative. She also asks, 'Can we not consider that the stick Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, has now been joined to the stick of Judah, since 1917, through our co-operation in Palestine?'" The answer is: Not fully. First, all Ephraim must be united, which means the ten tribes, then all Judah must be united before the two sticks can be fully united.

Mr. W. H. Hesketh, J.P., of Manchester, gave, on October 28th, a very forcible and impressive address for our Southport Branch. Mr. H. Garnett, of Ainsdale, presided and emphasized the vastly important and intensely interesting character of the subject.

C. C. V., a minister's wife, writes from U.S.A.: "I become more interested every day in British-Israel. I have got so much knowledge from THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, which has opened up the Bible in such a wonderful way. Since reading your literature I have been set on fire, and I am praying earnestly that I may be able to spread its Message. I have started an adult Bible Class in our Church, and the members are deeply interested in the subject." Our correspondent asks for literature that she may circulate it in her town and district.

E. J. H. writes from Cornwall: "I thank you for all the Congress has been and is to me—the greatest uplift of my life. The great kindness and attention from you all I can never repay. It was just a happy family; only those who are living for the highest could create such an atmosphere. I am hoping you will let me have some literature for distribution."

B. H. writes: "God's blessing on you all and your work. It has brought me to a knowledge of God's Kingdom here on earth."

An international Congress of women is to be held in Vienna next spring, when twelve hundred women representing forty-four countries are to meet in the ancient Hofburg Castle.

Mr. R. V. F. Taylor, Joint Hon. Secretary of our Hull Branch, writes: "We consider that we have just completed a very successful year's work, more successful in many ways than any previous year.

The Branch has held fifty-three meetings, at which a total attendance of 1,486 has been reached. We have had seventeen public lectures. The best meeting of the year was one addressed by Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., when the attendance was one hundred and twenty.

Thirty-six smaller meetings have been held, including four prayer meetings and four Bible studies.

We have to tender our thanks to the following friends for assisting at the lectures: Mrs. Bloxam 2, Mrs. Foxhall 2, Miss Keer 2, Miss C. Gray 1, Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., 2, Messrs. Whitton 3, Houghton 1, J. Leech, M.A., LL.B., K.C., 1, Steele 1, Bateson 2, Foster Beaver 1, Clark 6, Dale 4, Lythe 6, Wright 1, Jackson 5, and Taylor 4.

Mr. Whitton held a very successful series of meetings at the Gospel Mission, Wincolmlee, and they are looking forward to a return visit. This series of meetings, we believe, benefitted the Hull Branch in no small way.

Much good work has been done at Beverley, several new members having joined. A syllabus of lectures has been arranged for them along with ourselves and Bridlington.

Over 900 copies of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE have been sold during the year.

We regret to record the passing to the Great Beyond of Miss Keer and Mrs. Hadsley."

Mr. Basil Stewart writes: "Dear Mr. Garrison,—A correspondent in New Zealand has requested me to explain in the columns of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, for his benefit in particular and that of your readers in general, how the 'Epact' of seventy-five years in the period of the 'Seven Times' is arrived at. His query arises out of my footnote at page 88 of The Times of the Gentiles, and in the Prophetic Chart at the end. He says he has tried to work this out but has failed, and has seen other figures given in THE MESSAGE and by other writers. (Refer MESSAGE of August 10th, p. 509.)

The 'Epact' denotes the excess of the solar year above the lunar year, and is expressed in solar years only.

The solar year = 365.24 days, which multiplied by 2,520 years (seven times) = 920,404.80 days.

The lunar year = 354.36 days, and × 2,520 = 892,987.20 days. 920,404.8 less 892,987.2 = 27,417.6 days which equal 75.06 solar years. If calculated with astronomical precision the Epact will be precisely 75 years. Owing to the immense period involved, it is not sufficiently accurate to take the solar year as 365 days and the lunar as 354 days only. This gives an Epact in excess of its true value. For this reason it has been given as 77½ or 78 years by some writers.

This Epact is revealed in prophecy as precisely 75 years. To the 1,260 years of Dan. xii, 7, are added short periods of 30 years (verse 11—given as 1,260 + 30, or 1,290 'days') and 45 years (verse 12—given as 1,290 + 45, or 1,335 'days') before the era of blessedness would set in. This gives the end of the "Times of the Gentiles" as A.D. 1936, as set out in above-mentioned Chart (Nos. 12 and 13)."

The Daily Express Correspondent writes from Paris:

"Abbé Theophile Moreux, Director of Bourges Observatory and one of the most distinguished astronomers and mathematicians, denies the theory that the Great Pyramid of Egypt was merely a tomb for the Pharaohs.

He has been checking the investigations made many years ago by Piazzi-Smyth, the English astronomer. As a result of his investigations he advances the theory that the Egyptian priests, who formed a sacred caste of scientists, constructed this vast mass of stone to preserve the mathematical and astronomical formulas they had discovered.

The Pyramids were to be a permanent sundial, calendar and a bureau of national weights and measures.

He suggests that they built the Sphinx in front of it as a sardonic sentinel, mocking and defying the future to discover the secrets.

'It is true,' says Abbé Moreux in a book, 'The Science of the Pharaohs,' 'that many of the pyramids did serve as sepulchres, but this was not the principal reason for building them.

'The greatest of them, that of Cheops, built under the fourth dynasty, or about 2,500 years before the Christian era, disproves the sepulchre theory.

'If the Great Pyramid was not a tomb, what was the purpose of its construction?'

The Abbé suggests that no one can explain how it happens that the sacred cubit that was used for all the measurements of the Great Pyramid is exactly the ten-millionth part of the polar radius of the earth. This is a remarkable linear unit, because of all the dimensions of the globe the polar radius is the only one that remains invariable for thousands of years.

Abbé Moreux then takes up the various measurements of the Great Pyramid and shows how practically all of them incorporate some mathematical formula, or some secret of the stars."

Our Headquarters' Staff assembled in our Reception Room just before 11 a.m. on Armistice Day, and together stood during the two minutes' Silence, after which the Rev. Pascoe Goard said a few appropriate words, and offered prayer.

At the afternoon meeting Mr. Garrison presided, and paid a tribute to the fallen in the Great War, and asked for prayer for all those who had lost their dear ones.

Miss Hamilton Hunter gave two addresses for our Southampton Branch on November 6th. The local Secretary writes in warm terms of praise of the uplift experienced by the members, and expresses thanks for the wonderful revelation by the various speakers from time to time on the great subject of British-Israel.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

"AND in the days of these kings shall the God of Heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." (Dan. ii, 44.)

There lies upon our desk a characteristic letter from Rev. Arthur Simmonds, whose first pamphlets were sent out under the pen name of "Clericus." He is persistently and actively opposed to our work, and the Truth for which we stand.

Mr. Simmonds, who stands for a school, has one fixed idea, which he expresses in the letter above referred to, and we quote his words: " . . . the Kingdom which our Lord preached in His day, and which of course should be the Kingdom preached in our day—a spiritual Kingdom—the universal Church of Christ. It is the only Kingdom which can be universal . . ."

There is the statement. This is a fixed idea in Mr. Simmonds' mind, and in the mind of the school he stands for; not the written Word of the Bible, nor the facts of history fulfilling the written Word of the Bible, can move him or his school from that unscriptural and utterly illogical position.

The Kingdom which our Lord preached must be and is the Kingdom which we preach. But our Lord never preached that the Kingdom was or ever would be an universal Church. Our Lord preached the Kingdom as an existing fact. It was then like a treasure hidden in a field. But the Christian Church had not then been established. As to the "Universality" of the Kingdom; there was in the world, according to the teaching of our Lord, "the kingdom of the beast" at the same time that the Kingdom of God was in the world. Therefore the Kingdom of God could not then have been universal. Wherever two organizations occupy the same world and are rival to each other, neither can be universal during such occupation. The Kingdom of God is still in the earth: so is the kingdom of the beast! Therefore the KINGDOM IS NOT YET UNIVERSAL. But it will become so soon under the reign of Jesus Christ, the root and offspring of David.

The Church is made up of certain specific elements, built up into a certain type of organism, ordained to a certain set of tasks in the world.

The Kingdom is made up of different elements, is built up into a different type or organism, dedicated to carry out a different set of tasks in the earth;

Both of these organizations are required to carry forward the great plan of the Lord for Israel and for the world.

The Church MINISTERS according to the ORDINANCES.

The Kingdom is ADMINISTERED according to the Commandments, Statutes and Judgments of the Lord.

At the head of the Church is Jesus Christ, "The Apostle and High Priest of our profession."

At the head of the Kingdom is Jehovah, the God and King of Israel, and under Him the House of David.

The Church is His Sanctuary. The Kingdom is His Dominion.

The one can never successfully succeed the other in the realm of activity. From the time that Leviticus was ordained as the handbook of worship, and Numbers as the handbook of national organization, these two departments have marched parallel to each other throughout the ages and are so marching at this time. The High Priest carries on his ministry in the

Digitized by Google

Temple. The King carries on his administration on the Throne.

Mr. Simmonds and his school does not understand this. He will not understand this, for he thinks that to do so would be disloyal to the Church which he seems to have erected into an object of worship. We should not trouble our readers with an answer to Mr. Simmonds alone, for long experience has convinced us that his mind is closed upon the subject.

But a strong Christian Society, which we do not care to name, has lent its organization to scatter Mr. Simmonds' booklets, free of cost, throughout the wide field reached by its organization; affording the backing implied by its so doing. This is of sufficient importance to call for some comment.

Moreover, we find that some of our brethren who sit in the chairs of Theology in some of the Colleges have inherited the same idea.

It is strange how one does inherit ideas and doctrines. We drink them in with our earliest nutriment, and take them for granted simply because they have never been challenged so sharply as to cause us to bring to bear our own individual attention upon them. When we do give attention to these inherited things, how many of them we have to cut off from the tree of knowledge which we have cultivated in our minds, finding that they are dead graftings, without either life or truth in them.

No thoughtful man, with his logical faculties in working order, would, after consideration, assume that a Church in one dispensation could succeed a Kingdom in another dispensation in the realm of activity.

If the Kingdom be succeeded by a Church, then the Kingdom activity would cease and give place to ecclesiastical activity. Then statute law would give place to ordinance law. Then Kingly authority would be subverted by priestly authority. The Kingdom would have ceased to be, and that without any successor in its field of appointed activity. Neither could the Kingdom succeed the Church. The King and his ministers of State are not ordained to minister in the Sanctuary.

Men are not very logical. And when such an obsession takes hold of the minds of men it persists through many generations, and at times through many ages, especially if there be an advantage to be gained by the promulgation of the fallacy. That such has been the case in the rivalry between Church and State—which is another way of saying Church and Kingdom—is manifest in thousands of years of history. Let us look at the ancient fallacy and the ruin it has brought to Church and State throughout historic time.

We see how Church and State were erected by God at the beginning of Israel's national history. Leviticus shows the organization of Church. Numbers shows the organization of State.

We see how these two departments started out across the field of history together; Moses administering the affairs of the Kingdom, and Aaron ministering in ecclesiastical matters.

We see how these two departments of the Kingdom of God on earth carried on together through the reigns of David and Solomon until the Captivities.

Then came the return of the Jews from Babylon to establish the nation of the Jews.

They rebuilt the City—Jerusalem. They rebuilt the Temple. They re-established the priesthood.

It seemed that the manifest duty of the people at that crisis in their national history would be to recall the House of David to rule in the Kingdom. But they evidently saw no necessity for so doing. The priests assumed that they were fully qualified to rule the nation. They insisted that the Kingdom was the Church, and that the Church was the Kingdom, and they acted on this assumption. There never was a word as to calling back the House of David, nor of establishing the national administration under the King.

What success had they? They could scarcely have had less success in their effort to do that to which they were not ordained, and that for which they were not qualified.

They, the priests, were not only unable to defend the Kingdom, they were also unable to defend the Church from the desolating abomination introduced by Antiochus Epiphanes. Their failure gave rise to a dictatorship, and the rule of the Asmonean dynasty.

These in turn fell before the Idumean Herodian power, and the power of Rome.

Still madly holding to the claim to the right of power, even under Rome although the power had been taken from them, they seized and brought before their tribunal "The Prince of Life," and, horror of horrors, they—the ecclesia of the Jews—caused to be put to shame and death the Redeemer of Israel, the Saviour of the world. This was brought about by the Church of the Jewish period.

Still holding to the claim of the right to rule, they later raised rebellion against Rome, and brought down upon the inhabitants of the land and of Jerusalem, especially all the self-inflicted horrors within their cities, especially Jerusalem, as well as the much milder horrors actually meted out to them by heathen Rome.

Thus their ecclesiastical experiment in Kingdom administration ended in the blackest page of all history.

The Jews went out into the world after the destruction of their Jewish nation in A.D. 70, still obsessed with the thought that their ecclesiastical organization had, and still has, the right to rule in the earth, and that all other rule is usurpation. Obsessed with this thought they have made trouble for all other peoples with whom they have come in contact; and for themselves they have made trouble a hundredfold.

Still they are obsessed with that thought, and with that thought they are coming into Anglo-Saxondom by millions, still dreaming of upsetting the powers that now are and of establishing Jewish world rule.

This obsession is still with them, and will make further trouble for them in the future; and they will, in pursuit of that idea, make more trouble for the world.

The Roman Catholic Church adopted the same idea. The Pope claims to be the universal ruler in the earth. It is the old fallacy.

This has led the Church of Rome into endless struggles; it has indelibly stained her history with the blood of millions of Martyrs of Jesus Christ, and has raised up against it endless bitterness. It must still do so as it still presses the ancient fallacious claim. For no Church is either ordained to rule, fitted for the task of ruling, nor permitted by God to rule.

The Jew and the Roman Catholic are now each carrying forward political activities on the largest world scale, each aiming at Kingdom rule, and these activities are actually disturbing the peace of communities, of industry on the largest scale, of commerce on the largest scale, etc., and things which disturb these fundamental things are leading to ultimate war between communities and nations.

There is a British wing of the Church, in Anglo-Saxondom, which has assumed the same old fallacy. Of that number, a small minority are ready to strive to realize the fallacy, and to advance the claim of supreme authority, especially in matters of national worship on behalf of the ecclesia. They are not numerous, but they are sufficiently influential to disturb profoundly the community life of the people, even if they do not disturb the larger national and international life.

When we realize that the Church is not and never can be the Kingdom, when we realize that it is composed of different elements from the Kingdom, viz., Congregation, Ministry and Ordinances; that it is organized on a different basis as an organism, and is appointed to a different task; then the restless endeavour to seize for the Church that which God has given to the Kingdom will cease, and there will be peace.

The Kingdom of God is still among us. It is composed of God's appointed Nation, ruled over by God's appointed King, and administered according to God's revealed Law. It is organized on a political basis, and is administered according to the Commandments, Statutes and Judgments of the Lord, which are national. When we realize these things, then we shall direct our energies to the mission which God has assigned to the Kingdom, and to us as citizens in it, viz., to forward the Divine plan for the uplift of the nations of the earth by the agency of His Kingdom-nation.

Let us cease to encumber the Church with that which does not belong to it, namely, the equipment of the Kingdom, and let us cease to strive for that which is unattainable by the Church, namely, the authority and emolument of the Kingdom. Let us devote our energies as ministers and members of the congregation to that which the Church is commissioned to do, namely, "to preach the Gospel of Salvation to every creature, baptizing them in the Name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them all things the Lord has commanded us"; then we shall see the work of God go forward in the Church and in the State, as it never can while the minds of the leaders and people are so confused. Then the revival of God's work in Church and State will be upon us indeed.

We stand by the Church with clearer vision and, we venture to say, with a more efficient service than can those who with Mr. Simmonds and his school hold such mixed and faulty views of the several functions of the Church and of the State. We magnify what is actually the Body of Christ—His Church. We also exalt the dignity of the State to its appointed glory as the national basis of the Kingdom of God on earth.

We pray that God may manifest Himself more and more in both branches of His organization, and that both the Kingdom and the Church may become equally holy and be equally filled with the power of the Holy Ghost.

It is difficult to use the same word for different shades of meaning. Yet, as our English language stands, it must be done at times—so we indicate the following glossary:—

Kingdom of God.—In its widest scope embraces all, both State and Church—both national and ecclesiastical services.

Kingdom.—In its narrower sense this stands for the national phase of the Kingdom only—as distinct from and standing in comparison with the Church. It is in this sense synonymous with the word "State."

Church.—The equivalent of the word ecclesia. It so stands for organized worship in Israel in the B.C. years: in the Israel organization as part of the Kingdom in the A.D. years. In that sense it is Israelitic—it is national.

Church.—The body of believers in all the earth. The context must show in which sense we use these words as they occur.

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 2ND.

THE DIVINE CHOICE.

MR. JOHN LEECH, M.A., K.C.

WE often hear spoken of the difference between Israel and Judah—or the Jews, and very properly, but how seldom do we hear spoken of the difference between Israel and the Gentiles. I want to give you something of the calling of God of His people Israel. How little we seem to realize the wonderful calling of God of His people, the marvellous blessings He has bestowed upon us, the great national mercies that He has given us—how little we seem to study them, or to think of them! I have often heard the question asked, If we are Israelites, what good is it? What ignorance to ask such a question as that. How do they estimate God's blessings and calling! Why there can be nothing more important than the difference between Israel and the Gentile nations, and the blessings that God has given to us above those nations, and the mercies resulting from our being God's Chosen People Israel. Let us, therefore, for a little while, think along this line.

A speaker has referred to the brotherhood, or brothers, spoken of in the Bible; I want to speak to you about children. Now if we look at the 3rd chapter of St. Luke's Gospel we find there the pedigree of Joseph; and that pedigree is traced right back to Adam, and we read that Adam was "the son of God." A wonderful statement. "Seth, which was the son of Adam, which was the son of God." And then later on we have the distinction drawn between the descendants of Seth, who are called "the sons of God," and descendants of Cain, spoken of as "the daughters of men." So we read, "the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair." When Cain committed the dreadful crime of murder he was cursed and cast out from the presence of the Lord. God said, "Now thou art cursed from the earth." And Cain said, "Behold, Thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth; and from Thy face shall I be hid." And further on we read, "And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord." He was cut off, disinherited, no longer a son of God. And the distinction then drawn was between the children or sons of God, the descendants of Seth, and the children or daughters of men, the descendants of Cain. Then we have the Flood as the result of the sin of man. After the Flood we do not read of any children of God for hundreds of years. Then we see God proceeding to form a nation, and that nation was to be brought into a wonderful position of nearness to Jehovah. That nation was to be blessed in a marvellous way. It was to be separated from the nations around and was to become God's nation ; it was to be brought into the relationship of the children of God, and actually to be called the children of the Most High. How wonderful that God should have brought this one line of the human race into such a relationship. Do we realize it? Or do we go on as if we were Gentiles who had inherited none of the blessings which He promised? These blessings we find are connected with, and seem to have their origin in separation from the other nations, or the rest of mankind. When God called Abram, He said, " Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee." That was the beginning, the separation, the calling out to follow God, to be His particular and peculiar possession. May I say that the individual Christian life commences with separation from the world, from the sin, and from the folly around. God called Israel to come out and to be separate, and we read, " I am Jehovah your God, which have separated you from other people." And again, " Ye shall be holy unto Me ; for I Jehovah am holy, and have severed you from other people, that ye should be Mine." What a calling ! I do not want to say anything about the League of Nations, but I do see God's call to a separation unto Himself. I do see that God has a marvellous League of Nations, God-made and not man-made, and I do see that God has called us into a position of isolation, an isolation with Jehovah Himself. And what a grand isolation that is, to be separated from the world, to be called out by Jehovah, and to be separated unto Him and with Him. We need never be afraid of the isolation, if it is an isolation with the Lord God Himself. I have often heard it said, " But God has no favourites. God will not choose one nation above another, and put it in a more privileged or blessed position. God never shows favouritism." I say there is not one particle of Scripture to support such a position as that. God has a right to choose if He pleases, and He has chosen, and the story of that choice runs right through the Bible from beginning to end. And it was the grace of God, and that alone, that called this nation to be His chosen nation, and nothing else. We were no more suited for this service than any others. He could as well have chosen and fitted another nation to carry out His purpose, but He deliberately chose just one nation to be His own ; He showed favouritism. Why, we spend a great part of our lives in choosing. You choose your companions ; you do not take up anyone that comes your way. Formerly a man used to choose his wife, but I am not sure that now it is not the other way about—and that the woman chooses her husband ! But you see it is favouritism running right through the world ; and there is no getting away from it. Let us never admit that God has no favourites. He has, and He has showered wonderful blessings and mercies upon His favourites. And God is the same yesterday and to-day and for ever, and once you are His favourite He is not going to change you for some other favourite. Thank God, He has chosen Israel, and He will never change His mind, and transfer that favouritism to any other. We see then that God made a choice—" In Isaac shall thy seed be called "—not in Ishmael. And again, " Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated." Yes, a glorious favouritism, and to-day we are reaping the results of that favouritism, God's choice of His own people, to be His own possession, and to be the instrument for the carrying out of His great purpose in this world.

Then we come to the love and faithfulness of Jehovah towards His people Israel. " Thou art an holy people unto Jehovah thy God : Jehovah thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto Himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth." (Divine favouritism.) " Jehovah did not set His love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people ; for ye were the fewest of all people ; " (Not any merit in us ; it was the grace of God) " but because Jehovah loved you " (There is the secret of it, that undying love of God for Israel) " and because He would keep the oath which He had sworn unto your fathers, hath Jehovah brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondage, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt." God's love was the motive. God's faithfulness was the driving power which caused Him to single out this one nation, and to bless it in the wonderful way that He has done. It is an everlasting love, and because the Bible says " everlasting " I believe it can never end. " Yea, I have loved thee " (spoken to Israel) " with an everlasting love, therefore with loving-kindness have I drawn thee." And the Queen of Sheba, who had great light, said to Solomon, " Because Jehovah loved Israel for ever, therefore made He thee king." An everlasting choice, the everlasting love of Jehovah for His people Israel, between whom that close relationship of father and child existed. Many people do not seem to know that God has brought Israel into that wonderful relationship, but we have it plainly stated in this Book ; it runs through the Bible, through the Old Testament into the New Testament. We have these words spoken to Israel in Deut. xiv : " Ye are the children of Jehovah your God." What ! Israel the nation, the children of Jehovah ? Yes, thank God. There is no doubt about it, for God has said it ; He has called that nation to be His children. You can never expect a man to live up to his possessions unless he knows what those possessions are. You cannot expect a labouring man to live like a prince until you inform him that he is a prince, that he has marvellous possessions. When he learns that he will be called upon to sit on a throne, then he will endeavour to change his course of life, and will endeavour to live up to the calling, and to fit himself for the position. I fear our nation does not live up to the calling of God. They do not realize the wonders of that calling and of that love and of those blessings which God has bestowed upon them. Of, if the people would waken up. If only they would realize that they are God's children, a nation called out and chosen by Him to be His peculiar treasure, what a people they would be, what a nation this would be, and what an example, and what a blessing to the whole world ! " Ye are the children of the Lord your God : ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead. For thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God, and the Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto Himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth."

(Deut. xiv, 1-2.) Children of the Most High. Could God have done more for us than that? Could He have brought us into a closer relationship to Himself than to be our Father, and that we should be His children?

And then Israel backslid; they became prodigals from their Father and from their home. Did God cut His children off and disinherit them? Let us see. We read in Jeremiah what seems to be almost a despairing cry by Jehovah about His children who had then gone so far from Him, and He says, "How shall I put you among the children, and give you a pleasant land, and goodly heritage of the host of nations?" And then God answers His own question, and He says, "Thou shalt call Me 'my Father,' and shalt not turn away from Me." Through all the wanderings of Israel God followed His children. That is love. We read that Israel was divorced, put away as a people, but we never read that they ceased to be the children of God. Right through their backsliding God calls them His children.

Then again we find the gathering of Israel, the gathering together of the scattered family, for we read, "I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather them from the west; I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back; bring My sons from far, and My daughters from the ends of the earth; even everyone that is called by My Name." Every member of the family; even when they were scattered for their sin, God still looked upon them as His sons and daughters. God calls out to the nations around, Keep them not back; bring them up; let My sons come back to Me, and My daughters; everyone that belongs to My family, that bears My Name. "They shalt put My Name upon the children of Israel; and I will bless them." And again, "All people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the Name of Jehovah; and they shall be afraid of thee." And then we come to the repentance of Israel, and we read, "Thou hast hid Thy face from us, and hast consumed us, because of our iniquities. But now, O Jehovah, Thou art our Father; we are the clay, and Thou our Potter; and we all are the work of Thy hand. Be not wroth very sore, O Lord, neither remember iniquity for ever: behold, see, we beseech Thee, we are all Thy people." And when Israel turned back to Jehovah; when they repented, they came back to Him as a Father, and they said, "O Jehovah, Thou art our Father, we return to Thee, forgive our sins and our iniquities and our backsliding; we have been prodigal children, but, oh, our Father, we come back to Thee, forgive us." What a cry that was! And when that cry went up from Israel, God heard and answered it, and He brought Israel back to Himself. Oh that Israel would again cry to Jehovah, would turn back from their iniquity, and call upon Him for His deliverance.

Then we come to the consummation when this whole family shall be gathered together again, and we read, "It shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not My people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land: for great shall be the day of Jezreel." When that day comes, what a great day it will be, when we are all gathered back to our Heavenly Father; Israel, the whole nation, and when Judah is brought in, and when they are united in their own land, and when they appoint one head, unanimous in their decision that the King of kings is to reign over the nation that belongs to Him. Great will be that day!

Now I want to refer to the New Testament. Has the position changed when we come to the New Testament? Has Israel ceased to be God's people or His children? Let us see. Let us turn to the 11th chapter of St. John's Gospel, where we read: "Then gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a council. . . . And one of them, named Caiaphas, being the high priest, that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all, nor consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not. And this spake he not of himself (the better translation is 'not from himself'): but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation; and not for that nation only, but that also He should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad." Caiaphas was inspired to say that. God can use any instrument. He could speak through Balaam's ass. And God took this wicked high priest, and He spoke through him. Who were those that were scattered abroad? Who were those "children of God" that were not of "that nation" (the Jews), and were not Gentiles? The Gospel had not been preached to the Gentiles then. The Lord Jesus had said, "Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not." Who then were these scattered children of God that were to be gathered together? The Gentiles were not scattered; they were in their own countries. And, again, the Gentiles are never referred to as "the children of God." Who then were these scattered ones? Well, there is one answer. "Not for that nation only, but that also He should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad," or those of the Dispersion, as they were known to the Jews. Let me give you one or two references to show this. You remember that our Lord said to those who had been sent by the Pharisees and chief priests to take Him, "Where I am, thither ye cannot come." And the Jews said, "Whither will He go, that we shall not find Him? Will He go unto the dispersed among the Gentiles?" In the Revised Version the word is the "Dispersion," spelt with a capital "D." It was the name by which the Jews referred to the scattered Israelites of the Ten Tribes. It was known that there were colonies of them (with some of the other tribes) in the different cities to which St. Paul and the other Apostles went, and where the Gospel was preached to them, and many of them became converts. And then again in the Epistle of James, "James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad (or 'of the Dispersion') greeting." Again in Peter's First Epistle, "Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ to the strangers scattered abroad throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia" (or "to the elect who are sojourners of the Dispersion"). Therefore in the New Testament you have Israel spoken of as those who were scattered abroad, the children of God, who were to be gathered together into one. We have seen a great deal of that accomplished. We have seen God working wondrously, calling His people out from among the nations, and for hundreds of years gathering them into the "appointed place," until at last He established His Kingdom of Israel in the Isles. We read of them also in the Epistles. In the 9th chapter of Romans, "They which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God; but the children of the promise are counted for the seed." Now that verse is frequently misapplied. Read the whole context. What does it mean? The whole argument is this, that not everyone that was born of Abraham, or of Isaac, nor Ishmael, nor Esau, and only the descendants of Abraham through Jacob were the children of God, or the appointed seed.

Now I fancy there are some here who are saying, Well, that is contrary to what we always believed; and we are not sure that it is not heretical. But I want before I close to draw your attention to the fact that it does not do away with personal faith in Jesus our Lord. No. God forbid that I should make any such statement as would lead you to believe that. What is the position? God has chosen that nation, and made them His children. But then when you turn to the 11th of Romans, you find that branches of the good olive tree are cut off because of unbelief, and though you are an Israelite of the stock of Abraham, you may be cut off because of unbelief. Let me just refer you to that chapter. We read, "Well; because of unbelief they were broken off; and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear; for if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest He also spare not thee." We want not only to recognize the call of Israel as a nation, but we want to come and have personal faith in our Lord and Saviour, and then we will be, not only nationally, but individually, children of the Lord our God. The Jews were divided into two classes—those who received Christ and those who rejected Him. "He came unto His own and His own received Him not. But as many as received Him to them gave He power to become the sons of God" (or, "the right to become children of God," R.V.). The Jews who rejected our Lord claimed to be the children of God. They said, "We have one Father, even God." What was the reply of our Lord Jesus Christ to those rejectors of Him, "Ye are of your father the devil." There are dreadful possibilities, but there are glorious heights and glorious possibilities for every-one of us. Have we entered into our privileges? Do we realize our calling, and the wondrous blessings that God has bestowed upon us? Let me read you one verse as I close from the Revised Version: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called children of God: and such we are. . . . Beloved, now are we children of God, and it is not yet made manifest what we shall be. We know that if He shall be manifested, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him even as He is." So surely as He comes, so surely will believers in Him be made like unto Him; they shall see Him even as He is.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 3RD.

THE FATHER OF LIGHTS.

THE REV. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A. (Chairman).

In the beginning God had created the earth and its environments, and although Isaiah tells us that God created it not a tohu, it became a tohu, or, as it means, a waste and an emptied place. Thus pre-Adamite "sin," and the consignment to the "abyss" of the discarnate sinners are at once hinted at, for "darkness was upon the face of the deep," but because in the foreseeing and foreproviding of God an atonement had already been purposed (God's purposes being His performances) in the Lamb slain from the foundation of the cosmos, the dove-like Spirit of God brooded over the pre-Adamite flood of waters referred to in the 2nd Epistle of St. Peter. And how long this period of blessed incubation lasted we are not informed. But at length the time came when the thunderous word of power re-sounded through our part of the universe—"Let light become," and light became, suffusing its beneficent influence over all the earth's surface, until at the right period it became Divinely centred in the earth's light-bearer already created, that opaque body which we call the Sun, which was the first of God's great ambassadors of light given to our renovated earth. Some thousands of years passed by, and then another ambassadorial Light was given to us in the Person of a God and Man Who was Christ the Lord, and Who declared Himself to be "the Light of the World," True God out of True God, and Light out from the Father of Lights "for the unveiling of the Gentiles," and the glory of His people Israel.

Here we are summarily introduced to the third and fourth ambassadorial lights of the world, viz., the Scriptures and the Saints, God's people Israel, which they reveal. When Haydn, the musical genius, to whom we are indebted for "passing down" to us the "Creation" oratorio, heard in his old age his "Let there be light" magnificently rendered, he raised his hands to Heaven, and said, "Not from me, but from God it has come." This is just what the Bible says to us on every page. Every page flames with Deity, and the glory of God is seen as in a mirror by the spiritually-discerning, even without the help of commentaries old or "new." Once when listening to Dr. Campbell Morgan I heard him tell a story of a Christian master lending to his negro Christian servant a commentary to help him to understand the Bible. Some weeks afterward the question was asked, "How are you getting on, Sambo, with the book that I lent you?" "Oh, very well, Massa Nolan, thank you, and I find that my old Bible throws a great deal of light on that commentary of yours!" I think I, and don't you, my hearers, recognize that the white employer got from his dark employee an answer which must have surprised him. Thank God for the great Bible Society which is spreading this Bible light all over the world; and also for the Covenant Publishing Co., which, by the lighting-up of many hitherto veiled and obscure Scripture passages in its ever-increasing number of publications, is making the Bible more interesting than the most up-to-date newspaper.

Well, now, time is speeding away, and though I have been saying as little as possible about the Sun, the Saviour, and the Scriptures, I have said nothing as yet about the "Saints," which the Scriptures and the Covenant Publishing Co.'s books reveal or unveil. Who are they? Well, I have examined all the Bible references to them, and find that "saints" is a word by which Israel is known nationally, though individually the word may be applied to true Christians of any race. But there is no Bible warrant for the term "saints" being commandeered for the seductive system of creature worship, creature merits, and creature intercession—the ancient worship f the dead—which a paganized Christianity adopted and acclaimed when it canonized, or caused to be "worshipped," ome of the faithful departed, formerly "miserable sinners" ike the rest of us. Having said this much I advise you, my ellow British-Israelites, that if you aspire to be Israel lights ndeed, make a study for yourselves, by means of a concordance, f all the "saints" passages in the Bible, and thus learn what ou are to be and what you are to do. One of the suggestive Names of God is that of being the Light of Israel (Isaiah x, 17). An "everlasting Light" of Israel (Isaiah lx, 20). And Israel n her turn was to do what every moon does for its sun—to set forth His excellency, His praise, and His glory.

MR. HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

I have come to the conclusion, which I think is the same that you have come to, that there is at the present time a very urgent need for British-Israel teaching in this land of ours. We have only to look around us and see, and read and hear what is coming from the pulpits, the Press, and the platforms, to realize that these are trying times for all people who believe in the grand old Book in its entirety, and who are intensely desirous of obeying the will of God fully, and keeping His laws, as laid down in this Book, as He surely intends that we should keep them. The spiritual declension to-day all around us is saddening and depressing to a degree. To some of us it is so depressing that we say that if we were not British-Israelites, we simply could not carry on, but should be given over to despondency, even despair.

Well, thank God, those of us who have the British-Israel faith and assurance are still going forward bravely, in the full confidence that God is at the helm after all, and is working His purposes out in His own marvellous way and in His own time. We, therefore, are trying to possess our souls in patience, we are trying to be as cheerful and as optimistic as is humanly possible in view of the environment in which we find ourselves, and the difficulties by which we are surrounded. And I have come to the conclusion, after in Christian work in many lands, that there is no faith, no confidence, and no hope like the confidence and faith and hope that the British-Israelite has; and that the British-Israelites are the in Christendom in respect of their zeal and devotion to God and His Word; of generosity in His cause, and the earnest desire to understand His will and to perform it. There are no Christian people to-day, I do not care where you may search for them, who are more truly Bible Christians than are the British-Israelites. And it is gratifying to know that this very same testimony which I have just made to you is the testimony of a number of people in the Churches, who have not yet the British-Israel light, but in their judgment of the British-Israelites they say just what we say here and now together.

I wonder is it possible that there can be anyone in this audience this afternoon who is in any doubt whatsoever as to our position? I mean, Is there anyone here not yet convinced that British-Israel teaching is true? I wonder if I am asking too much if I ask such a person to put up a hand, because if there is such a person I want to say something to that person very pointed and very direct, and which I hope may be helpful. Please do not think that we shall look down upon you; on the contrary, we shall sympathize with you, and do our best to help you. (A few hands were raised.)

Very well, now I want to make some very positive and very definite statements to you, my friends. I want to tell you quite frankly and unhesitatingly that the evidence for our Truth is piled up like that is my positive statement. My next statement is that an experienced lawyer has said that the evidence accumulated for our Truth and the validity of our position is sufficient to satisfy any court of law. Now, those are two positive statements I make to you. Here is another:—In the first special number of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER, some 150,000 or more of which have gone out into circulation, there was half a page or more devoted to the marks of identification of this nation with Israel. There are a hundred and more marks available, but that page contained thirty-nine. Now, a mathematician said to me a while ago, "Do you realize what mathematically that list means?" I said I did not; that I was not a good mathematician by any means. Well, he said, "I have worked it out, and you can take any eight out of those thirty-nine marks that you have published, and the chances that they would apply to any nation of Europe, except Britain, is as one in three thousand, billions."

Here is another thing:—"By their fruits ye shall know them." So says Holy Writ. What are the fruits of British-Israel? Is there a single British-Israelite that has ever been injured by accepting the British-Israel faith?

Is there a single British-Israelite who has ever been less efficient or a less worthy citizen or member of his Church by accepting this Truth? We have never taken a single member out of any Church. On the other hand, according to the testimony of clergymen and ministers, we have been the means of putting thousands into the Churches who were formerly outside it.

This Movement has also been the means of bringing to a knowledge of the truth as it is in our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, a knowledge, that is, of His saving grace, thousands of those who are commonly called atheists or agnostics. Now a Truth that can do this surely must be of God. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Now tell me, if a Movement is able to show things like those I have mentioned, and can show that it has the Divine blessing, what is the logical conclusion to which you are bound to come? Does any Movement that is not well-pleasing to God get His Divine blessing? If it did, would it not be illogical and inconsistent? Will anyone undertake to say to me that this Movement has not the Divine blessing? I cannot imagine any person who would have the audacity to say that. Let me tell you frankly that the manifestations of the

DIVINE BLESSING ON THIS MOVEMENT

have been abundant; they are to be seen and known and felt on every hand. And I am going to say to you that I am content with the Movement that has the Divine blessing, and I would not be content with this Movement if it had not the Divine blessing. I would go back to my Empire lecturing work to-morrow if I did not feel in my inmost soul that God had called me into this work, and had given me the grace to take the responsibility that the coming into this work has meant. There are many others on this platform who can say the same; they know that they have been called into the work, and they know that they would offend God if they dared to give it up. Satan would like to see us all go out of it. It is up against him, and he is busy every moment trying to defeat this Movement. He does not trouble himself about a moribund institution; but he does trouble about this Movement, and he is out to destroy it. We are on the right track. If you are not yet convinced, ask as many questions as you like—we will answer them, and we will do everything we can to help you. Put away prejudice; come to a consideration of it with an open mind. The man who comes to a study of this question with a mind closed will never get anywhere.

PREJUDICE IS THE GREATEST BAR TO KNOWLEDGE.

I want to tell you this, every objection that you have ever read or heard has been answered by our exponents over and over again, but they will go on answering them as long as they live. No objector to this Truth has ever prayerfully and carefully studied it in all its bearings—not one. On the other hand, many who have opposed it publicly on the platform, in the Press and in the pulpit, when they have been questioned afterwards have said, "I did not know much about it"—then why did they attack it? A certain clergyman attacked our position in his pulpit, and mentioned Mr. Goard and myself by name, and when he received a long and courteous letter from Mr. Goard, and when asked to preside at a meeting which Mr. Goard would address, he declined; and when people questioned him about the matter he said, "I did not consent because I do not understand the subject." And yet he opposed it in the pulpit. Where is the consistency of a man like that? I have said that the objectors have never carefully considered it. Here is what says:—"The inspiration of Scripture must stand or fall by the Church's discovery of Ephraim as a company of non-Palestine nations restored to the Covenant of God during the last days, i.e., the Christian Dispensation."

"Thousands who have begun by cavilling at B.-I. Truth have ended with conviction; and for the most part, those who have not become convinced, have failed only because they were without sufficient patience to go through an examination of the subject carefully."

THE BISHOP OF THE FALKLAND ISLANDS

says:—"If the British Empire is not Israel, then none of the prophecies concerning Israel are YET fulfilled!! Then we are on the horns of a dilemma: First, God has failed in His promises; secondly, we shall lose all we have got, and God has been playing with us, for WE hold all that Israel is supposed to hold, and yet there is some other nation not yet developed which is to take all this, as well as our unique character and reputation in the world (for Israel is to have it all), and if we are not Israel, we shall have to give it all up, even the Coronation Stone itself."

We are an interdenominational body.

I have given you a few words from two Bishops; let me quote you from two Nonconformists:—

THE REV. DINSDALE T. YOUNG, D.D.,

says:—"I stand here this afternoon to express obligation to this grand Federation because of the light it is casting upon the Bible, and because of the way it is calling attention to the Bible. Thank God for any man or woman or society that focuses public attention on the Bible. That is what we want everywhere. That is what we want in the Churches to-day, that the Bible should be the central object of people's attention.

"Now I do not know of any Society that is calling attention to the Bible more emphatically and more insistently—yes, and I make bold to say, more successfully—than this Federation is doing. I believe that this Federation has lighted a lamp, the golden beauty of which will never be obscured."

Dr. Young telephoned me his great regret that he could not be with us at all this week simply because he was booked up for every hour of every day. He desired me to give you his Christian love and to say that heart and soul he is with us. Let me give you the dictum of another great outstanding preacher and lecturer:—

says:—"If Britain is Ephraim—i.e., Israel—then I can see the prophecies of the Scriptures being fulfilled in our midst. If Britain is not Ephraim, then there is no such people answering to the prophets' description; nor, as yet, has there been such a people; nor is there any promise of such a people appearing."

This Movement is the greatest movement of the day. Our adherents, thank God, are increasing in great numbers. The organization itself is being strengthened every day in numbers and in influence. We want more members, we want a greater number of adherents, we want more resources of various kinds to help us to carry on this tremendous work. We dare not shirk it. It is the challenge of the Almighty to go forward. And whenever we have taken our courage in both hands God has stood by us, and the greater our faith, and the greater our boldness of policy, the greater has been the blessing, and the greater the result. Stand fast to this Truth to the utmost of your power and in every respect.

Reference has been made to our literature. It is perfectly marvellous what that literature has done; tens of thousands being sent out every week. We have a staff of over forty people working strenuously at Headquarters to carry on this work. We have been doing a marvellous work through our books. A number of friends kindly responded to the appeal in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, and through their generous aid we have sent out parcels of Mr. Goard's books to some and not one of them has sent back those books; a greater number of them have sent cordial thanks for them. If we could have had all the ministers at this Congress who wanted to come, and who have written cordial letters saying they are with us in spirit, we should have had more than a hundred ministers on this platform each day, but they cannot come because of their busy lives.

We receive appeals for help from all quarters. We could put a hundred lecturers into the field if we had the means.

Be prepared to make sacrifices, and you will find it will be the best possible investment you can make because it will be in the Bank of Heaven.

ARMISTICE DAY, 1929.

MRS. BLOXAM writes:—

It was my privilege to spend this day in the ancient little town of Bradford-on-Avon near Bath, and it was an inspiration.

Bradford was the first group of new Young Crusaders to be formed, and to-day these youngsters nobly uphold the traditions of their race of Crusaders' times, in showing they were "on the Lord's side."

Mrs. Barry, the Secretary of the British-Israel Bookroom, to whom these boys owe so much, has confessed to a vision she received one Sunday when in Church. She seemed to hear a Voice from amidst a countless host, saying, "Get the young to lead the young to meet Me in My Sanctuary; get the children to come to Me—your British-Israel Crusaders, leading other children to their Church services and Sunday schools, with the Flag of the Sons of Jacob at their head."

The next day the Bradford-on-Avon Crusaders, on their own suggestions, begged to be allowed to march to Church on Armistice Sunday under their Union Jack. Mrs. Barry asked: "Do you really mean this?" and they replied together, "Yes." She at once wrote to the Chief Crusader, Mr. John Leech, K.C., whose consent she obtained; this permission she showed to the Vicar and he also agreed.

The morning dawned with torrents of rain falling, and one thought of the great disappointment to so many who were looking forward to the Parade Service in which they were to take their place. This was fixed for 11 a.m., and, much to the satisfaction of all, by that hour the sun was shining brilliantly.

Arrangements had been made with the Local Authorities, both "of Church and State"—and all was in order according to plan.

The Young Crusaders met at their Headquarters at 10.30, where Mrs. Barry addressed them in solemn words on the part they individually had to play in taking their places amongst those who had fought on the Lord's side, 1914-1918, and explained how they must prove themselves worthy of the honour of following the Union Jack to be carried by their leader.

In the beautiful twelfth-century Church, seats had been reserved for the Boy Crusaders, and splendidly they entered into the spirit of the Day.

It was truly an "uplift" to hear their voices joining so heartily in the Service of Praise and Thanksgiving, and one's mind went back in thought to the days of long ago, and the little Saxon Church just across the road, where doubtless some of the forbears of these boys, the Old Crusaders, had joined in the prayers and praises from Israel's National Prayer Book when they returned from battle—and it seemed as though "the Spirits of just men made perfect" must be also uniting with their descendants in the great thanksgiving, ascending to the throne for mercies vouchsafed.

On leaving the Church, and after "dismissal," the Young Crusaders returned to carry a wreath to the Town War Memorial, and having placed it upon the steps, lined up and sang Parry's setting of "Jerusalem" and "God Bless our King and Queen—God Bless our Prince Serene," from the British-Israel Hymn.

A great work is being done in Bradford-on-Avon by Mrs. Barry in helping forward the British-Israel Crusader Movement.

May it prove of such blessing to the town in bringing the youth of the place so to realize their responsibilities to God, King and Empire, that others may be encouraged to "Go and do likewise."

FURTHER NOTES ON DEAR OLD IRELAND.

BY PROFESSOR EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc.

THE Fenians were so called after the Milesian Phenius, who lived long in Egypt; the Gathelians from Gathelus; and the Scots from Scota.

"The name of Fion, or Fenius, we find used through all the periods of our history. Fion, a descendant from the great Ollamh Fodla, was monarch of Ireland, A.M. 3302. Fion MacCumhal was general of the Crown army, in the third century. Sir Finigin ô Driscol was famous in the days of Elizabeth. Some tracts of land go by the name, as Fermoigh, in the county of Cork, called Fermoigh Feine, or the plains of Phenius. An Island in the Shannon is called Inis Finne, or the Island of Phenius, etc."

"The attention of the Milesian settlers was not confined to the surface of the ground; they explored the bowels of the earth, and early discovered mines of gold, silver, and copper; and we shall prove, in the second part of this work, that the natural history of Ireland was better known 2,000 years ago than at this day."

"Our writers are unanimous that we borrowed not our letters from other nations. The learned of ancient and modern times agree that Phenius, whom I think we have proved to be our great ancestor, was the first inventor of letters. The Greeks themselves confess that their first alphabet came from Egypt; and I believe it will be admitted, that it could not be the Egyptian. It is, I think, powerfully evident that the Gathelian colony were the first improvers of Greece; and that their first alphabet was the very same we use at this day; but of this I shall offer further proofs in the next chapter."

A curious remark by O'Halloran concerning Crete is the following, found on page 64: "It is to be remarked that at Crete all our ancestors principally resided during their stay in Greece. This Crete was supposed to be like Ireland in that it was free from venomous insects."

Digitized by Google

A note on this statement. Many of the Milesians who lived and ruled in Egypt had to leave under great pressure, and settled in Crete for a good while before sailing for Ireland to join their kin. These Cretan-Egypto-Milesians had entered Egypt long before Christ, and gained great power in that ancient land.

Many early writers show important movements of the Scyths and Goths.

The following statement carries considerable value to the reader who ardently seeks to compare written and traditional history.

"The Scythian colony landed in Spain, under the conduct of Bratha; and by Breogan, his son, was the city of Braganza built; Bille was his successor, from whom came Gollamh, or Milesius; the sons of this prince, with their followers, invaded Ireland in thirty large ships, about eleven centuries before Christ; of this our annals are as positive as of their Egyptian and Grecian migrations, and we, accordingly, find a close and friendly connection between Spain and Ireland constantly kept up, and frequent inter-marriages and alliances among the inhabitants; and whilst these facts are recorded in Ireland, they have been constantly preserved by tradition in Spain."

The close relationship between the early Irish and Spaniards is indicated by the following statement of O'Sullivan:—

"We," says O'Sullivan, Prince of Beara, in his letter to the King of Spain, written in Irish, and intercepted and translated by Sir George Carew, then President of Munster, "the true Irish, long since deriving our root and original from the famous and most noble races of Spaniards, and from Milesius, etc., as the testimonies of our most venerable antiquities, our histories, and our chronicles declare," etc. The early Spanish came from Israel stock.

The following from Diodorus gives an insight into the priestly and Bardic worship at the "temple of a round form," Perhaps Tara is meant:—

"Diodorus Siculus, in the eleventh chapter of his third book, describes, after Hecatæus (a very ancient writer), an island of considerable extent, little less than Sicily, lying opposite to the Celtæ, and inhabited by the Hyperboreans. 'It is,' says he, 'a fruitful, pleasant island, dedicated to Apollo, and most of the inhabitants are either priests or songsters. In it is a large grove, and a temple of a round form, to which the priests frequently resort, with their harps, to sing the praises of their deity, Apollo. They have a language peculiar to themselves, and some Greeks have been to visit this island, and to present valuable gifts to their temples, with Greek inscriptions. From this famous island came Abaris to Greece, who was well known to the Delians. They can shew the moon very near to them, and have discovered in it large mountains, and the priests and rulers which preside over their sacred temple, they call Boreades.'" (Telescopes used then!—E. O.)

"Far westward lies an isle of ancient fame,
By nature bless'd; and Scotia is her name,
Enroll'd in books: exhaustless is her store,
Of veiny silver, and of golden ore.
Her fruitful soil, for ever teems with wealth,
With gems her waters, and her air with health;
Her verdant fields with milk and honey flow,
Her woolly fleeces vie with virgin snow.
Her waving furrows float with bearded corn;
And arms and arts her envied sons adorn!
No savage bear, with lawless fury roves,
Nor fiercer lion through her peaceful groves;
No poison there infects, no scaly snake
Creeps through the grass, nor frog annoys the lake;
An island worthy of its pious race,
In war triumphant, and unmatch'd in peace!"

Dr. MacPherson says: "Never did any nation encourage or indulge the profession of Bards with a more friendly partiality than the Irish. Their nobility and gentry, their kings, both provincial and supreme, patronized, caressed, and revered them! The Bards of distinguished character had estates in land settled on them and their posterity; and even amidst the ravages and excesses of war, these lands were not to be touched. The poet's person was sacred, and his house was deemed a sanctuary."

Note the "Twelve Brazen Idols" in the following:—"Jocelyn the monk tells us that Loagaire, the Irish monarch, contemporary with St. Patrick, adored the great idol Crom, or Cean Croithi, who they believed could resolve all questions, as being the chief oracle, and this Deity, he says, 'was magnificently adorned with gold and silver; and that twelve other brazen idols, or gods of an inferior degree, stood round him, in a bending posture, in token of his superiority.'"

"And sure no one will doubt but that they who built the city of Braganza in Spain, and whose forefathers resided so long in Egypt, must have acquired some knowledge of architecture. Heremon the first Milesian monarch, reared his palace at Airigidross on the Sure, in Offory, and called it Rath-Beothach. Ameregin, his brother, and chief justice of Ireland, built the castle of Turlagh Inhher-more; now called Arcloe. Heber-fion built his in Leinster, and called it Rath-Loambuim; and in imitation of the chiefs, their followers raised lofty places of residence. The palace of Tara, the royal residence of our monarchs, was erected before the days of Ollamb Foldhla, above 2,500 years ago."

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE GREAT PYRAMID'S SECOND LOW PASSAGE.

BY BASIL STEWART.

(Résumé of Address given at Headquarters on evening of October 9th, 1929.)

As an introduction to the subject, it should be explained that the Great Pyramid is not, as still widely supposed, a tomb, a theory not supported, except very vaguely, either by tradition or by the facts embodied in its construction. This idea has been wholly borrowed from the many later pyramids ignorantly copied from it.

The real purpose of the Great Pyramid lay in its upper passages and chambers, which were intentionally made impossible of access so as to confound other imitators as might arise. For had this geometrical chart in stone been available or copying, it might have become lost amongst its three dozen r so spurious copies—there are about thirty-eight pyramids xisting in Egypt to-day—and the true one overlooked.

That Egyptologists, as a body, regard it as a tomb is due o the fact that, the Great Pyramid being constructed on ngineering principles, it embodies the scientific terms and ıethods used in the solution of engineering problems, which onsequently are not appreciated by them.

The true purpose of the Great Pyramid is to convey, in he form of a prophetic forecast—geometrically expressed—message addressed to the present age, and particularly to the 3ritish Race. This forecast is represented in its passages nd chambers, the structural changes therein defining the lates of epoch-making events in world-history, of which the ıutbreak of the late war is the most marked in recent times.

What few appear to understand—even amongst would-be xponents of the subject—is that the whole basis of this fore-ast is geometry. All sorts of dates, solar, lunar, prophetical, nd even astrological, have been assigned to it, whereas but ne date—and only one—as defined by the builder geometrically s the true date for each particular feature of the Pyramid's nternal passage-system. This is particularly the case for he more prominent features of the level portion from the Grand Gallery into the King's Chamber, which constitutes ı special chronology for current times, and to which many :onflicting dates have been assigned. This level portion is nade up of the first low passage, ante-chamber, second low ıassage (through which we are now passing), and King's Chamber.

Many apparently regarded this second low passage, by inalogy with the first passage which defined the late war, is either indicating another and longer war, or some other world-wide catastrophe. This view, however, failed to take nto account the different materials through which the two ıassages are carried. As a result of this "jumping to con-clusions" all sorts of calamities—including the "end of the world"—were prophesied as beginning on May 29th, 1928 (date of entry into passage), and when none of them happened, he whole theory of the Great Pyramid was held up to scorn, whereas, on the other hand, it is the scaremongers who have been discredited. The lecturer himself has always warned against this idea as being greatly exaggerated, and at variance with the warnings of prophecy itself.

Ample, however, did occur on the above date to cause anxiety to all serious-minded people, the results of which are only now being seen, and will be only fully appreciated later. Being of a different nature to the trial of the late war (passage in limestone, a material easily crushed by a heavy load, hence a physical stress which nearly crushed out our civilization), the present trial (passage in granite) is not so immediately obvious, and is operating through different channels, chiefly economic, financial and political, and may later give place to a crisis in the Church on the question of Disestablishment arising out of the Prayer Book controversy, the results of which would be much more serious to the country than is generally realized.

Ample proof was advanced to show that this country—and the world in general—is passing through a serious time of stress in practically all phases of human activity—economic, financial (intensified by recent raising of the Bank rate), and political instability. One reason why the present trials are less obvious on the surface (at least in their opening stages) when compared to the late war, is because they appear to be affecting individuals personally, rather than falling upon the country en masse, as was the case in 1914–18. This does not mean, however, that they are any the less real and widespread.

Conditions to-day clearly point to the fact that, in all spheres of human life, but particularly in finance, the mainspring of modern civilization, the spiritual forces of evil are making a last desperate effort to overthrow that civilization. The Great Pyramid's symbolism, however, shows that limits have been set beforehand within which they will be allowed to operate, and that their purpose—like that of fire—is one of refining. The present trials are sent to purify.

The so-called war of Armageddon (Rev. xvi, 16) is not the burden of the present period of stress, though it undoubtedly forms the climax to it, and is the great scene which closes the era of the "Seven Times" of Prophecy. Matt. xxiv, 29, tells us that "immediately after the tribulation of those days" (that is, the trials through which we are now passing), certain phenomena would become apparent, followed by the sign of the coming of the Son of Man. These signs are clearly indicated in other prophecies as those which also mark Armageddon—"the day of the Lord," His battle. Armageddon therefore comes after the present trials and apart from them, and when Israel is "dwelling in safety under the shadow of the Almighty" as the result of prayer for Divine help.

The lecturer further pointed out that the next date structurally defined in the Great Pyramid was October 13th, 1931, a date to which some remarkable coincidences were attached both from the Pyramid itself and from prophecy, being, for example, virtually the terminal date of "Seven Times" (2,520 years) reckoned from the departure of the Shekinah glory from the Temple (autumn of B.C. 590.—Ezek. viii). This date might well therefore be signalized by a remarkable spiritual renewal in Britain-Israel and an appeal to God Almighty "to do it for them." Quotations were given from the Press showing that both financial and political circles regarded 1931 as a critical year in the near future. The Second Low Passage terminates at the equivalent date September 15th, 1936; a national effort can shorten this period of stress to end in 1931.

The lecturer concluded by explaining that the King's Chamber represented the Judgment Hall of the Nations, and the initial period of real world reconstruction in preparation for the Millennium, its width defining the period from September 15th, 1936, to August 20th, 1953, this latter date being that after which all responsibility is taken out of the "builders'" hands—the limiting date of their "contract," though the contract itself must be completed by September 15th, 1936, but may be completed earlier by national effort.

OBITUARY.

MRS. CARRUTHERS—A PIONEER.

MRS. HARRIET JANE CARRUTHERS, whose husband, Lieut.-Col. George Frederick Carruthers, was a pioneer resident and prominent military man of Winnipeg, died at the family residence in her 79th year on October 14th.

The late Mrs. Carruthers.

When Winnipeg was still a frontier town, Mrs. Carruthers, then a girl in her 'teens, came to Winnipeg from Peterborough, Ontario. She accompanied her sister, Mrs. Kennedy, wife of Colonel William Kennedy, who went in command of Canadian Voyagers on "General Gordon Relief Expedition." Mrs. Kennedy had come west to join her husband, who had previously reached Winnipeg in 1871, as an officer in the Red River Expedition, under the command of Sir Garnet Wolseley.

On June 25th, 1873, she was married to Lieut.-Col. Carruthers by Rev. S. D. O'Meara, who was the Rector in charge of Holy Trinity Church. Mr. Carruthers died in June, 1918. Early last year Mrs. Carruthers' old home on Colony Street was expropriated by the city for the Mall, and since then she had been living with her four daughters. For many years they had a beautiful home on the banks of the Red River at the foot of Selkirk Avenue, at which time the family was prominent in the work of St. John's Cathedral.

Mrs. Carruthers is survived by one sister (Mrs. W. W. McMillan), and four daughters, to whom we offer our sympathy.

A private service was held at the residence, followed by a public service at 2.30 p.m. in Holy Trinity Church. Rev. C. Carruthers, Rector of Holy Trinity, assisted by Rev. G. W. Findlay, Rector of St. James', and Honorary President of the Canadian Guild of Health, an organization to which Mrs. Carruthers belonged, and Rev. E. J. Springett, Rector of St. Patrick's and President of the British-Israel Association, Winnipeg Branch, an Association which claimed a good deal of Mrs. Carruthers' time and energy when she was alive, conducted the Church service.

A QUESTION.

DR. WADGE, of Winnipeg, passes on the following question to Rev. Pascoe Goard :—

"Since Christ was the Great Sacrifice for the world, why is Ezekiel's Temple to be fitted up in the future with all equipment and arrangements for sacrifices, as in the time of Solomon's Temple? Why the need of such sacrifices after the Sacrifice of Jesus?"

"If Ezekiel's Temple is to be built some time in the future, why is provision made for sacrifices, seeing Christ was sacrificed once for all? If the temple is only figurative, what is the central idea in each part of the figure? One might, for example, think of the great waters that flow from under the gate as the growing influence of Christ when His Kingdom is restored, but what about the various offerings mentioned?"

Mr. Goard's answer :—

"The only way to take the last seven chapters of Ezekiel is as matter-of-fact statements of that which shall be, unless there should be anything in the theory that they were intended to be the opening chapters of Ezekiel, and refer to the second temple to be built on the restoration of the Jews from Babylon. I do not think there is anything in that theory; if there is, the Jews fell far short of the specifications.

"The significance of the fact may be sought for with some success. The ancient sacrifices offered in the three temples, although sacrificial, 'could never take away sin,' but impressively and continuously made manifest the need of a Redeemer. It took a constantly flowing river of blood to maintain this continuous impression. These sacrifices summarily ended when the Great Sacrifice had been made, namely, in A.D. 70. Also with them ended all sacrifices in connection with great heathen systems.

"The impression of the need of the Atonement has been perpetuated since then by the preaching of 'Jesus Christ and Him crucified.' His absence at the right hand of the Father where 'He ever liveth to make intercession for us' has made it possible to keep Him before the minds of His people as Redeemer and Saviour during that period.

"The chapters of Ezekiel are written in the full view of His having returned in majesty to reign. There would seem to be every danger that in His Presence, and in the glory of His rule, the fact of His ancient humiliation and sacrifice, and the need for the Atonement, might be forgotten. To obviate this, SACRAMENTAL offerings seem to have been arranged, but, with qualifications.

"Complete offerings, including the slaying of the animal, the sprinkling of the blood, and the burning of the body, takes place by way of dedication of the temple and altar. Thereafter two lines of sacrifice seem to have been ordained.

"1. In the new era the general food of the people seems to be visualized as vegetarian; only on set occasions are animals slain for table use. These are distinctly termed 'sacrifices,' and must be brought to the door of the temple and slain before the priests. It will be a capital offence for an animal to be slain in the open field. Doubtless for sanitary as well as for sacramental reasons the blood is poured out at the altar, and the fat burned upon the altar; the meat is then taken away for table use. The blood and the fat, by the way, are always interdicted in the Old Testament, and the blood in the New Testament.

"2. Specific offerings are made by the Aaronic priests in the temple itself. Again the blood is poured out and the fat burned, but the meat is the food supply for the priests ministering in the temple, and they have no other inheritance than such offerings or sacrifices. So, the 'sacrifices,' both for the table and in the home, and for the table of the priests in the temple, constitute sacramental remembrancers of the Great Sacrifice."

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THE REV. PASCOE GOARD will give two addresses at Headquarters on Monday next, November 25th, at 3 and 7.30. There will be no meetings on Monday, December 2nd, owing to the rooms having to be prepared for the Sale of Work on the following two days—December 3rd and 4th.

The Women's Auxiliary desire to thank all those who have kindly sent parcels for the forthcoming Sale on December 3rd and 4th, and they earnestly ask for more gifts. Comestibles will be specially acceptable, so also will be useful articles of all kinds, fancy goods, etc., suitable for Christmas gifts.

Mr. Herbert Garrison and Mr. John Leech, K.C., will address meetings for the Watford Branch on Monday and Tuesday evenings, November 25th and 26th, respectively. Mr. Garrison will visit the Liverpool Branch on Thursday evening, November 28th.

Colonel the Rev. A. D. Seton, B.Sc., gave a very interesting address at Headquarters on November 13th on "Glastonbury." The Rev. C. C. Dobson, M.A., lectured on November 14th on "The Garden Tomb at Jerusalem," with lantern pictures, in the course of which he brought out many valuable historic facts, and presented forcible arguments in favour of the site. The Rev. Pascoe Goard presided and spoke of the special interest of the Garden Tomb for all British-Israelites. Mr. Garrison mentioned some interesting points within his personal knowledge.

Mr. John Leech has lectured at Bexhill-on-Sea, St. Leonards and Rye. The Rev. Joseph Gay has addressed a series of meetings in Dublin. Miss Hamilton Hunter has visited Dorking, Kingston, Barking and Plumstead. The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., has been speaking at Norwich, Saxmundham, Cambridge, Horsham and Lowestoft. Mrs. Bloxam has spoken at Exeter and Paignton, the Rev. J. Lumley Davies at Oxford, and the Rev. A. E. Couldrey at Highgate.

F. H. L. writes:—"It is always a pleasure to renew the two subscriptions to THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER. I enclose my cheque for 24s. You will be pleased to know that my old friend, L——, of San Francisco, greatly enjoys reading his copy. He says 'it has become intensely interesting, and, to tell you the candid truth, I never realized the wide vision of the Old Testament prophecies until I got this journal.'"

Mr. J. J. Morey continues to find encouraging signs of progress in the Southern Area.

On Monday, the 11th inst., two good meetings were held at Herne Bay, in spite of the very stormy weather.

On Tuesday, the 12th, at Eastbourne, large audiences assembled, and this flourishing centre maintained its high standard.

At Hove, in the afternoon of the 13th, Major Holland presided over a very promising meeting, and in the evening Mr. Morey lectured to a full house at the Chapel Royal Hall, Brighton, under the chairmanship of our old friend and pioneer, Mr. H. A. Marchant.

On Thursday, the 14th, two good audiences gathered in the Dover Institute to hear Mr. Morey's addresses. Col. Smythe presided.

A very fine preliminary meeting was held at Deal on Friday, 15th inst.

Miss Evelyne Haynes had organized the meeting and took the chair.

Mr. Morey spoke on the position in Palestine and the prophecies relating thereto.

It was decided to hold regular monthly lectures in the New Year.

The Burton-on-Trent Branch recently held two successful meetings, when Mrs. M. Bloxam gave a most admirable lecture on "The Union Jack and National Coat of Arms," and Mr. S. E. Steele, of Liverpool, took for his subject "The Druids and their Religion," this also being much appreciated.

A meeting of the Bolton Branch was held on the 7th, when a lecture was given by the Branch President, Mr. J. H. Brenchley, whose subject was "The Potter, the Clay, and the Earthen Vessel." This was the first meeting of the Branch since its formation, and the attendance was very satisfactory.

On the 12th Mr. John Leech visited the Hastings and St. Leonards Branch, giving two very interesting lectures in the Masonic Hall, on "The British Empire in Prophecy," and "Popular Objections to British-Israel Truth." The audiences at both meetings were exceptionally good. The occasion was an interesting one, as the Branch held their Annual Sale of Gifts on this date. Tea was provided for the members and friends, large numbers staying. Afterwards, the Branch President referred to the desire of the Branch members to show appreciation of the services rendered by their Honorary Secretary, Mrs. Modin. At his request, Mrs. Carpenter, one of the pioneers associated with Mrs. Modin in establishing the Branch, in a delightful speech presented Mrs. Modin with a gold wrist watch and a fountain pen, subscribed for by the members as a token of esteem and as a tribute to her untiring devotion to the work of the Branch.

A Memorial to the Prime Minister, expressing the earnest desire that the sale of intoxicating liquor may be made illegal in England on Sundays, as in other parts of the Empire, is arousing widespread interest.

It is hoped to secure at least a million signatures.

The Memorial is being organized by the Central Sunday

Closing Association now incorporated with the Imperial Alliance for the Defence of Sunday.

The Alliance has the full co-operation of the National British Women's Total Abstinence Union, the Church of England Temperance Society, and other religious and temperance organizations.

Persons who would like to sign the Memorial are invited to send for a copy, and offers of co-operation in securing signatures will be gratefully received by Mr. J. Woodford Causer, 1, Palace Chambers, Bridge Street, Westminster, S.W.1.

Special forms for girls and for men who are asked to approve and support the Memorial are also available.

The great boon of Sunday closing of public houses enjoyed by the British Dominions, and by Scotland, Ulster, Wales, Monmouthshire, Isle of Man, and the Irish Free State, should surely be brought to England.

The Rev. T. H. Whitehouse writes :—" It is often said that corporations, companies and committees have neither bodies to kick nor souls to save. And one is so often provoked into believing the cynicism justified that when a notable instance to the contrary confronts the public eye and challenges such wholesale relegation of necessary public bodies to the category of the soulless, it becomes quite a joy to 'turn aside and see this great sight.'

" Throughout the whole land to-day every posting station of the Empire Marketing Board bears magnificent testimony to the reality of the soul indwelling that important organization. Certainly it has a soul, developed and inspired with something immeasurably bigger than mere marketing—though we are far from wishing to belittle that part of the Board's activities. The soul of the Board, responsive to the splendour of the world-spread field of its survey, has discovered the soul of the British Empire.

" On its framed notice boards there appears in many of our principal thoroughfares a set of aptly drawn cartoons illustrative of fishing, agriculture, and other forms of healthful labour compelling the productive seas and lands to minister to man's needs and happiness ; and at the extreme right of the group, as if leading the van of the onward progress of an industrious race of Empire builders, an emblematic figure, roughly clad, but with light-surrounded head, pressing indomitably forward; surely the Christ, Leader of our racial life and destiny; Himself in the days of His flesh a plodding Toiler making for a goal and building a Kingdom mightier than all earth Empires.

" Over the row of cartoons is the legend,' The Empire stands for Peace,' and beneath, running across the top of the series of homely pictures, those inspired words of imperishable hope and beauty, 'they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks : nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.'

" This is noble teaching. Let us give unstinted honour and praise to the big-souled men of the Empire Marketing Board, who have not only the gift of wonderful insight into the mission of our race in the world, and the purposed use of our Empire in the Divine counsels, but, what is more remarkable still in these flippant days, the courage to broadcast their convictions and bravely try to inspire our nation with the grandeur of its high calling."

A correspondent, writing to The Times, says :—

" Inferences as to the truth of certain statements in the Book of Exodus with regard to the Pharaoh of the Exodus having been drawn from certain facts by an eminent surgeon and a notable anthropological scholar, a clergyman writes shortly afterwards to deny them. The same thing occurred some months ago when Mr. Woolley announced the discovery of evidence bearing out statements in the Book of Genesis relating to the Deluge. At once appeared letters from two theologians refuting the evidence. What a strange contrast to the position of last century ! Then theologians were defending their position against rationalistic attacks from without. Now the theologians have turned rationalist and endeavour to refute evidence brought by science in favour of the position they once defended."

The Rev. James Mountain, D.D., writes :—

" What fine addresses at the Congress ; I never read better. Verily, the Lord has honoured us in revealing to us the great Truths of British-Israel. He will sustain us and ultimately grant us His reward of victory."

On November 12th we were favoured at Headquarters by a visit from Captain Mitchell, V.C., of Montreal, who had come with 23 other V.C's. from Canada for the great gatherings in London, and in particular for the Dinner given by the Prince of Wales to V.C's. in the House of Lords on November 9th. Captain Mitchell had heard the Rev. Pascoe Goard's address at Montreal in September last, and was glad of the opportunity for converse with him here. Mr. Garrison, Colonel Wright, D.S.O., Mr. Sleeman and Mr. Harrison Hill also had conversations with him. He expressed keen appreciation of his reception at Headquarters and of all the courtesy and kindness received in Britain. He joined the Federation, and he selected a large collection of our books for his library. He hopes to attend some of our meetings before his return to Canada.

At a meeting of the Jerusalem and the East Mission it was pointed out that one of the primary functions of the Anglican Bishopric in Jerusalem was best described as ambassadorial. The Bishopric was there to represent the world-wide Anglican Communion in the face of its many sister communions and of Islam and Jewry. In the case of Palestinian Jewry, which formed, in process of growth, a very self-conscious national organism, highly sensitive in its attempt at a revaluation of things spiritual, the importance of that ambassadorial work could scarcely be exaggerated.

The Bishop of Jerusalem said the blame for the recent disturbances did not rest on one side alone. There had been serious and constant provocation on the one side and inexcusable violence on the other. The clock of progress had been put back for an incalculable length of time in Palestine by the disturbances. The grievous events had practically not touched the Christian community there at all.

A letter from the Jerusalem Girls' College said that it was clear that British troops would be necessary there for some long time to come, and also more English officials in the administration—for they were the only ones who could preserve impartiality between the various interests.

"Lord Moynihan, President of the Royal College of Surgeons, lectured at Leeds on 'Surgery Ancient and Modern.' He showed some remarkable photographic slides of results of surgical operations performed a thousand years before Christ, and of the actual anatomical remains of the Pharaoh of Moses' time.

"Perhaps the most interesting visceral discovery, he said, was that which afflicted the Pharaoh of the Oppression. The large vessel springing from the heart of this monarch was found in such a well-preserved state that Mr. S. G. Shattock, of the Royal College of Surgeons, was able to make sections of it and compare them with those made from a man recently dead. The two sections were seen side by side on a lantern slide, and no pathologist could tell him which was the ancient and which the modern vessel. Both were attacked by the disease atheroma, a condition in which calcium salts were deposited in the walls of the vessel, making it rigid and inelastic. The vessel did not expand adequately to the stream of blood coming from the heart, blood pressure was therefore high, and the vessel was apt to give way, forming an aneurism, or, if the ruptured vessel was in the brain, a 'stroke.' Mental changes went with that rigid arterial system. There was a narrowness and rigidity of outlook, loss of enthusiasm, or dread of new adventure, and restriction in all enterprise. They had the clearest proof that those mental defects were not lacking in Mer-en-ptah, for the Book of Exodus, chapter nine, verse 12, said, 'And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them.' 'It is interesting,' said Lord Moynihan, 'to have an ocular demonstration of the truth of the Old Testament.'"—The Times.

The speakers at Headquarters for next week are: the Rev. Lumley Davies, L.D., Wednesday afternoon at 3; the Rev. Joseph Gay, Thursday evening at 7.30.

The Rev. Oliver Vince, B.A., B.D., lectured for our Liverpool Branch on November 14th, and for our Southport Branch on November 15th, and both lectures were much appreciated. Mr. S. E. Steele has lectured acceptably at Harrogate and Ilkley.

The Bexhill Observer reports two lectures given by Mr. John Leech, K.C., on November 11th, for our Bexhill Branch. Mr. J. Arthur Jutsum presided on both occasions.

The B.-I. Crusader, the monthly journal of the Junior Department of the B.-I.-W. Federation, is meeting with good success, and having a large circulation. Young people are invited to join the Crusader Movement; the subscription is 2s. 6d. per annum, which includes the journal. Mr. Horace Goodchild has been appointed by the Executive Committee as Honorary Secretary of the Junior Department.

GIFTS OF BOOKS

When making your Gifts this Christmas you would naturally desire that they should reflect your discrimination. A badly chosen gift is often received with mixed feelings by the recipient, who puts the article aside, where it is shortly forgotten. What of a B.-I. book? Do you think your friends would place this aside to be forgotten? We venture to think not. Therefore give B.-I. books as Christmas presents this year!

We append a list below, specially chosen for their suitability as gift books; make your choice from these and remember that we take all the trouble from your hands by packing, posting and, if required, by placing your card inside the book.

Make up your list now and let us have it. We will post in time for your gifts to arrive on Christmas Day.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissi-

BRITAIN AND ITS RELATIONSHIP TO THE BIBLE.—I.*

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

FIRST let us look at two practical objections which have been taken to our work by ecclesiastical officers of some standing and authority in the Church.

The first objection thus raised was that British-Israel teaching is an obstruction to the League of Nations' movement.

If the League preaches the doctrine of the equality of all nations, no matter as to what their relationship to God and the Bible is, and no matter what system of law they are carrying on under, then our teaching, and the teaching of the Bible which is also our teaching, would differ in doctrine from the League of Nations. But we apprehend that the League is not concerned with doctrines, but with administrations.

If it be the attitude of the League of Nations that all administrations are equal, then our teaching that the highest form of administration on earth is the Divine administration under the House of David, which is undoubtedly the teaching both of the Bible and of history, would be also found at variance with the League. But again we do not conceive that the League takes into consideration the rival merits of administrations. It is concerned with the preservation of peace between rival nationalities, rival administrations and rival systems of law.

BRITAIN AND THE BIBLE.

The League of Nations is acceptable to us provided it is under Divine leadership.

God's leadership, national and international, is committed to the House of David. We cannot see that it is possible for the House of David and those who are carrying out the administration of Israel to surrender for one single moment that leadership, which is not their's, but God's. It is a sacred trust committed to their charge. Understanding it for what it really is, then the Anglo-Saxon world dare not for a single moment surrender any part of that leadership.

But the League of Nations is not under that leadership, and there lies a danger which we fear greatly. It is not a new cause of fear; it is as old as Joshua's leadership, which succeeded that of Moses'. Joshua, an enthusiastic young military leader, who had not had long training in diplomatic matters, became entangled in a league of nations, the consequences of which are with us to this very day. Those who made league with him were not careful whether they kept their side of the covenant, but they demanded, at the cost of life and death, that the covenant made with them should be kept by Joshua and the military forces of Israel, and it was in order that that covenant might be kept unbroken that Joshua commanded the sun and moon; and whatever natural phenomena answered his command, it was in order that the covenant so made might be kept unbroken.

It was not kept wholly unbroken, however. Generations afterwards, centuries afterwards, Israel forgot that covenant made by Joshua with the Gibeonites. Israel broke the terms of that covenant under Saul, the King of Israel. As a result Judah, Israel, Jerusalem and the whole population found themselves smitten by a terrific famine. When David, through the Prophet, enquired the reason of the Lord, the unexpected and startling answer was, " It is for Saul and for his bloody house because he slew the Gibeonites." (See 2 Sam. xxi, 1-9.) Thus Israel suffered because Saul had broken faith with the Gibeonites in that covenant made by Joshua four centuries before. Israel suffered constantly through keeping the covenant, but that was the effect of their own action in entering into the covenant. Israel suffered intensely for breaking the covenant, but that was by way of punishment at the hands of God for breach of faith which involved His Name.

Many and many a time has Israel been caused to suffer on account of having entered into unconsidered engagements. Ages of history establish this oft-recurring experience. That is what we fear. Take, for instance, the agreement on the part of Britain regarding war debts. In full confidence in the honour of the other nations, Mr. Baldwin went to America and entered into a covenant binding this country to a burden of taxation stretching sixty years forward. What other nation has put forth the slightest effort to keep the covenants made?

We do fear entangling covenants, our side of which is registered in Heaven, for what covenants we make, we make as the representatives of God's government in the earth, and we make Him responsible for them. He holds Himself and us responsible for them, whether other nations keep covenant with us or not.

The League of Nations has done some good work; it may do more, but there is a danger of Anglo-Saxondom being entangled by its word of honour, while other nations walk free.

Putting pen to what was to Germany a scrap of paper, but what was to us an inviolate covenant, left us without choice whether we would go into the Great War or not.

One dignitary wrote against our Movement because he said, " It is becoming a rallying-point for militant Protestantism, and it is preventing a reunion of the Church in Britain with Rome."

We wonder if it is true that we are? We must go further back than the birthday of our Movement to find the effectual barrier which prevents such an union.

Let us give our most earnest attention to the next consideration.

It is the general opinion that the Church of Christ in the earth is one and undivided. This, however, is not so. It never was so. Let us for a moment put out of our minds the thought that the Lord made Christianity the same for all nations.

When our Lord was on the earth, He sent His disciples primarily through Galilee to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom. You will agree with me that the Gospel of the Kingdom carried with it the teaching of loyalty to the House of David, and obedience to the Common or Mosaic Law. That was included in the Gospel of the Kingdom. Later, after His death and resurrection, He sent out His Apostles to preach the Gospel of Salvation through His death and resurrection. But not until after the great Atonement had been carried out and our Lord had risen from the dead did He commission them to go forth with that particular phase of the Gospel.

Judah was then tributary to Rome, and the lawyers—the constitutional lawyers—came to Him and submitted to Him a vital question, as to the attitude of those of His people who were within the Roman pale towards the authority of Rome. This was the question they put: " Is it lawful for us to give tribute to Cæsar? " What was His answer? " Show Me the tribute money." They brought to Him a penny. He asked: " Whose is this image and superscription? " They answered, " Cæsar's." Our Lord replied, " Render, therefore, unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's; and unto God the things that are God's."

Now, what were the things that belonged to Cæsar? That which, in the second chapter of Daniel, God gave to the first of the Czars or Cæsars. What was it? " The God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory. And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of the heaven hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all." That was God's charter to the Cæsars, to continue during the full period of the " seven times " of the Gentile rule.

Now, can you see a difference? To the lost sheep of the House of Israel, the Gospel of the Kingdom, enjoining obedience to the House of David. To the citizen within the Roman pale, obedience to Cæsar.

To all Christians throughout the world the conditions of Salvation are the same, namely, repentance towards God and faith towards Jesus Christ. In Israel the Gospel of Salvation is conjoined with obedience to the House of David and to the Common Law.

In Rome the Gospel of Salvation is joined to obedience to Cæsar and to the Civil Law.

You cannot serve two national masters; you cannot keep at once two systems of law, for they are opposed in principle. Therefore, when the Lord Jesus Christ introduced and organized His Church in the earth, He made a distinction between the Church in the Roman pale and the Church in the Israel kingdom. and the difference was in national obedience.

These are the straightforward teachings of our Lord Himself. Now, let God be obeyed, let His Word prevail, let His Gospel be preached in both kingdoms, but in the face of that wonderful Word of God, it is useless for any man to say that he has the right, either ecclesiastically or nationally, to hand over our freedom of action, our liberty, our separateness, to any combination that is international or inter-ecclesiastical in the earth.

In considering Britain's relationship to the Bible, we say that relationship is the relationship of the Kingdom of God in which God, the Word of God and the people of God are each basic elements. That Kingdom, its freedom, and the triumph of its principles, form one of the most sacred trusts that the God of Heaven ever committed to any people on the earth during all historic time.

GOD'S PICTURE OF ISRAEL.

THE REV. MAXWELL CARNSON.

YOU have been listening to that wonderful message from Mr. Goard, giving us some of the great things which belong to us as believers in the purpose and providence of God. Don't you envy us who have a message like that to give to the life of the world to-day? Then you have been listening to Mr. Garrison, who has been telling you of the kind of work that s been put in. I envy him. I know he works late at night, t when you become involved in British-Israel work the hours the day are none of them long enough either for making ur speeches, or for doing your work. And, in addition to at, I want you particularly to think of me as being the first ssionary sent out under this Federation from this country South Africa, to express our point of view, because that is great honour. It is an honour to feel that I am your first ssionary sent out from the Homeland to that great country. tart my day at five o'clock in the morning, and I go on until o'clock at night. We keep at it over yonder as you do here. d we have something else to be pleased about, and that is, do not have to come home to plead for money for South rica. We have to raise money, but you will be interested know that in the two and a half years that I have been there u have a missionary station for the whole Union of South rica which is three-quarters self-supporting already; that that all the money we spend on the field—and it is no small m in South Africa—three-quarters of it we raise ourselves, d the rest is your contribution to the work out there. I pe you will realize that our aim and object is to be entirely lf-supporting, so that you may be left to carry on that even eater work of bringing the Home Country to its knees.

Mr. Pritchard took us back to college days when he made that ggestion with regard to preaching that dictum, "Always back to Genesis." I noticed, in studying the sermons ven in the New Testament, that they all go back to Genesis, d what was the model for the New Testament preachers is rely the model for the preachers of to-day. In the 3rd apter of Acts, Peter, when preaching, says: "The God of braham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, th glorified His Son Jesus." And in the 7th chapter Acts, Stephen takes us back to the promise made to the thers as we have it in Genesis; and St. Paul at Antioch in e 13th chapter of Acts takes them back to the promise ade to the fathers, and in the 17th chapter, at Athens, e does the same thing, and he goes right back to the story of reation; and when he is finally brought before the governor the 26th chapter, he says: "And now I stand and n judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our thers." And the y our Lord Himself which He preached by the roadside as e journeyed with the two to Emmaus followed along exactly e same lines. "And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, e expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things oncerning Himself."

There is one sermon in the Acts of the Apostles that does ot go back to Genesis, and that is the sermon that was reached on the Day of Pentecost, but it goes back to the rone of David, and the everlasting Kingdom which is asso- iated with that throne. Now you know what they preached n New Testament times. Occasionally a minister to-day kes us back to Genesis, and preaches a sermon on a text rom the beginning of the Bible. In Capetown quite recently e had a sermon on the story of the Creation, and the preacher roceeded to show, to his own satisfaction, how every one of s had descended from the anthropoid ape. And a young man of twelve, of whom you have heard before, coming out from Church, said: "Mother, doesn't the Bible say that God created man in His own image?" "Yes, it does." "Well, that's that." And so it is. You remember also in the story of Philip and the eunuch. Philip found the eunuch seated in his chariot reading from Isaiah; "then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same Scripture, and preached unto him Jesus." And the preachers of the early Church based their sermons on the Old Testament. They had not then a New Testament to preach from. When I go about, people say to me, "You people Israel are living in the Old Testament times, but we are living in the New Testament times." I wonder if they realize what they are talking about.

I want also to speak to those who put their hands up just now, and I should like to say one or two things in addition to what Mr. Garrison has said. This has been revealed to us, that all these Old Testament Scriptures are one unity in which God has declared His purpose for a nation. That is the unity of the Old Testament, and I want to say that in the New Testament that nation becomes the topic; and the New Testament is a record also of the Coming of the King of that nation, and in the interim period, to seek and to save that lost Israel of which He was so fully cognizant. What is that history of the nation, except that God, in fulfilment of the promises made to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, and to their descendants, first plans, and then brings into existence a nation. Then the nation Israel there is that clear line of demarcation. Then in the story the whole idea and plan of God for the nation seems to drop out of sight because both these nations fail to fulfil His purpose, and just at that period of history, when the clouds of thick darkness are heaviest upon the nation's idea of God, up come the Prophets and they give us those perfect pictures of the Israel that shall yet be, and upon which most of our thinking has been centred during these last few days. Isaiah, Daniel, Ezekiel, and the Minor Prophets simply carry on that idea of the plan and purpose of God.

Let us try to get an idea of God's picture of Israel, the nation that shall be not only one, but many, and yet all united, a company of nations, that shall be the chief nation since it is to do God's work. It must, therefore, be a powerful nation, able to set forth a certain point of view amongst the other nations of the earth. It must be a wealthy nation, able to spread abroad. It must have a large population so that it can occupy many places. It must be in such a condition that no one shall be able to overthrow it. It must be a nation which, though it wanders from God, yet comes back home again with repentance, and is restored, and becomes the great leading Christian nation, greater than the world has ever known. It must be a nation that takes the Word of God and circulates it throughout the length and breadth of the world. It must be a nation after God's own heart, because, after all, God is looking at this picture of the world's history as a whole. It must be a nation that shall liberate the Land of Palestine from the Turk, and later on that shall complete that settlement. That, in brief, is God's picture of Israel. Now here you have it.

Digitized by Google

Think of it as one picture. What is God going to do with that picture? The picture that God has in front of Him is now going to be cut up into pieces peculiarly shaped, yet all fitting together. He is going to let Isaiah and Jeremiah and Daniel and Malachi cut a few more pieces out. So that you have the whole picture in front of you, but in scattered fragments, in all the Prophets, in Genesis, and in Kings. Your problem is to take these scattered fragments, and to fit them in to one another until they make a perfect whole once more, and when you have done that you have got a picture which is the exact picture that God had in mind, that picture of Israel. And if you will look at the British Empire you have got that picture in front of you, detail by detail, point by point, and you will look at it, and you will say, Why, this is the same picture. And when you have taken all the broken fragments of British history, and you have brought them all together, you have done no more and no less than you have done when you have taken all the broken fragments contained in the prophecies of the Old Testament, and you then create a picture which is identical with that picture of Israel—on the one hand Israel complete, and, on the other hand, Britain complete. And there you have the position that we occupy. Britain is Israel, or, if not, she is the biggest highway robber that the world has ever known. For this reason, that Britain is in the position of having gone into the railway left luggage office and picked up a hand-bag that does not belong to her. The bag that is in her hand belongs to Israel. If God is to be believed at all, Israel is coming up behind Britain, and is going to put his hand on Britain's shoulder, and say, "My bag, please." Now the difficulty is, who is going to do that? Who is Israel?—the Jew is coming along and saying, I want that hand-bag. I want Gibraltar, and all the rest of the key positions of the world. I want the gold and the silver that you possess. Don't you see, if that is the case, then you are in for the

this world could possibly know. But someone has got to come and possess all this. Is it the Church? Can you see the Church coming up behind Britain and saying, "My bag." Which branch of the Church? You see how ridiculous the position is. Press it to its logical conclusion. Someone has to do Israel's work, and to occupy Israel's position. And whoever comes along has got to say, "I am Israel. I must proclaim the Gospel of Christ." That is Israel's job. "I must turn the Turk out of Palestine." But they are twelve years too late! It is an absolutely impossible position. And we are driven to the conclusion that Britain is, and must be, Israel. We have got our right hand-bag. Guard well what is in it. Be not like Esau, that profane person, who himself despised his birthright. There is One Who is waiting for you to apply the contents of that hand-bag to the life of the world. There is the King Himself Who calls you into His service. They tell me that outside one of the cities of Egypt there is a monument of General Gordon sitting upon his camel, and the back of the monument is towards the city. Somebody complained about it, and said, "He is facing the wrong way." And the guard said, "No, he is looking out over the desert for which he laid down his life." The King of Israel is looking down over the world for which He laid down His life.

When

was slain by the assassin, the spot which was stained with his life blood was decorated with a silver star, and that spot happened to be the very centre passageway through a waiting room of one of the railway stations, so that day by day people were treading upon that star. Later on that star was lifted up from the floor, and the feet of thousands passed to and fro, but never over the place that was stained with the President's blood.

The universe is studded with stars. There is not a soul, white or black, yellow or brown, but upon whose brow is written "redeemed, purchased, saved," as they may be by the precious Blood of Christ. You and I know what that means. And we are here in the world, and we have to take that and apply that to the life of the world. It is a position to be extremely proud about, but also to be extremely humble about as we go down on our knees before Him Who loved us and gave Himself for us.

THE LAW OF SINAI.

THE REV. R. G. F. WADDINGTON, M.A.

I want this afternoon to give, as a kind of introduction to what I want to say to-morrow afternoon on the law of Sinai as laid down, one or two principles that will be a help in the study of that wonderful law. And I am going to begin by telling you that when I prepared what I have to say this afternoon, I picked up at least half-a-dozen commentaries in order to find out what I could about the Law of Sinai from somebody else's point of view, but I could not find anything except the article by Mr. Goard. These commentaries leave it very carefully alone; they have nothing to say about it. So I was driven back to rely upon Mr. Goard and my own wits.

Now I want to lay down as a principle for British-Israel teaching this fact, that as far as possible we must take the Bible in its plain, straightforward meaning, if ever we are going to get anywhere. There is a good deal in the Bible that is written in symbolic language, but the symbolic language of the Bible is interpreted by the Bible itself. God is His own Interpreter. There are to-day numberless theories and "isms," and they all claim to be founded upon the teaching of the Bible. How are you going to decide which is right and which is not? I am fully aware that this is a tremendous task, but however exacting, however large the task, in it lies our only safe precaution against error. I am also fully aware that, for most people, faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and belief in His salvation, is quite sufficiently simple and complete. And often we British-Israel lecturers are confronted with the challenge that the plain Gospel is sufficient. But, as a preacher of the Gospel of Salvation, and as one who tries to prepare the way for the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, I have to face all the facts of the situation. And here is a fact that I cannot overlook—that there are in the Christian world to-day so many rival doctrines, doctrines that are mutually destructive, that there are many rival Churches, each claiming to hold the truth, and in some cases anathematizing all who do not agree with them. I can give you one or two examples without accusing any one of them of error.

Digitized by Google

Is it not a plain fact that there are Romanists, Russellites, ristian Scientists, Christadelphians, Quakers and Protants of various denominations? They cannot all be ht; some of them must be wrong. If, for example, Christian ience is right; if you have in Mrs. Eddy's handbook, Bible Truth," the correct interpretation of God's will, en every other religion that calls itself Christian is not ly wrong, but hopelessly wrong. Every professing Christian in serious moral danger unless he accepts Christian Science true—if it be true. Or again, if the Roman doctrine be ue, then every other religion is wrong; if it be true that od has relegated to the Pope that power which the Pope aims, and in which the Roman Catholic Church professes believe, then all we others are in a pretty desperate plight. ow can we ever get to Heaven if the Pope really has the keys ereof? I will never acknowledge him to be master of the uation. Now each of these Churches claims the Bible r its foundation, and each uses it more or less to justify its osition. How are we going to decide which is right? And we are going to find out, must we not find out what the ible really says?

I want to establish this principle, first of all, that it does ot matter what people say about the Bible, what really matters what articular and private interpretations are more or less orthless. The fact that what is called Catholic tradition uts a certain interpretation upon a certain Scripture passage ould not weigh with the sensible mind. The fact that Mrs. Eddy puts another interpretation upon the same passage ould not weigh with the sensible mind. That Emmanuel wedenborg claimed special revelation for his interpretations ould not weigh with the sensible mind. What every ensible person will do is what the Bereans did. They ested the theory in the light of Scripture. Modern theologians est Scripture in the light of the theory! I shall ask you to ook at the Scripture itself, and observe the sayings of Scripture. Now I know that some happy critic will want to tell me that cannot give you the actual Scripture, because the original ocuments are not in existence, and that I could not read nem if they were. I would point out, therefore, that the nglish Versions that we have, the Authorized Version and he Revised Version, which are the product of scholarship rought to bear upon both the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures, re as accurate a translation as one could wish, and I may emind you also that these two Versions really do form the ext-book for most of the "isms" to-day. The various Churches use the English translations. Consequently, as ur case is based upon what the Bible says, and not upon he interpretation of the Bible, the English translation is mply sufficient.

I am going to take you, first of all, in the Authorized Version, o chapter xix of Exodus, to the story of the encampnent of Israel before Sinai, and to the receiving of the Law y Israel. There are in that chapter four phrases that strike ne as I read—"I bear you on eagle's wings and brought ou unto Myself"—"a peculiar treasure"—"a kingdom of riests"—"an holy nation." Is it not perfectly clear to the rdinary mind of average intelligence that the Bible is here speaking of a definite people known as Israel? What the Bible says is that a people called Israel, lately coming from the land of Egypt, have come to a mountain in the wilderness of Sinai, and that there Jehovah spoke to them and declared these four things to them. There is no getting away from that. It is not a matter of interpretation. It is not a matter of opinion, but of plain statement which can only have one meaning. The moment we suggest, as do some Modernists, that the story of Sinai is a fable, or that by Israel God means the Church, as some others suggest, or that these phrases come from a mind that has lost the spiritual sense of God, as Mrs. Eddy says—the moment we suggest any one of these things, we are not merely putting an unnatural interpretation upon the Scripture, but we are actually depriving the words of their plain meaning. It must be clear, then, to every sincere and sensible reader and thinker, that in these phrases Jehovah is declaring His intentions towards Israel, a people as definite, as easily distinguished in history, as the Chinese or Turks—a people, a nation in the ordinary, everyday meaning of the word. So, too, when the Bible says that Israel is to be a kingdom of priests, we must put upon the two words "kingdom" and "priests" the exact meaning that they would bear in any other book.

Consider, for a moment, that word "kingdom." What is ordinarily meant by the term "kingdom"? A kingdom is that which is ruled over by a king, and it has, as its constituent parts, a land, a people, a constitution—which constitution is administered by the king. That is the ordinary meaning of the word. A kingdom cannot exist without all four constituent parts. A simple illustration will make this point clear—we speak, in our own history, of the days after Charles I had been dethroned and decapitated as the "Commonwealth"; and when Charles II came to the throne, we speak of the Restoration—the Commonwealth had given way to the kingdom. But the use of the word here in Exodus prompts us to ask the question—where were the four constituent parts then? Israel, the people, we can see, and the land of promise we can see also. The constitution, is also apparent. But where is the King? There is no need for any private opinion on this point, there is no room for any human theory or interpretation, for the Bible makes it plain enough that the God Jehovah is the King of Israel. There is, first of all, the statement, "Ye shall be unto ME a kingdom of priests." "I bare you and brought you to MYSELF." There is also the clear fact that everything connected with the Law, and with the ordering of Israel, was given at God's express word. Please remember that at the moment I am not concerned to argue the point of inspiration—any challenge by a critic that these words were not spoken by God is quite beside the point. All I am concerned with is what the Bible says; and this is the fact that any one of you can verify, that the expressions "The Lord spake," "The Lord said," "The Lord commanded" occur 112 times in Exodus, and 58 times in Leviticus—the two pre-eminent Law Books of the Old Testament. Whilst the expression "I am the Lord" at the end of a command occurs 15 times in Exodus, and 41 times in Leviticus. Therefore the Bible makes God the Law-Giver.

THE LAW OF SINAI,

You have also the undeniable fact that the Bible definitely calls Jehovah the King of Israel, and speaks of the choosing by Israel of a king like the kings of the nations round about as a rejection of Jehovah. Finally, you will find that the Bible speaks of Israel's throne as the throne of the Lord. So, without any straining, without the least theorizing, without the slightest suggestion of any symbolic meaning, we are able to see that all four constituent parts of the Kingdom are here, and that the Bible meaning is plain enough. Consequently, if you put any interpretation on the Bible words here—if you give to the words what is usually called a spiritual meaning, you deprive the Bible of its truth. And therefore you are able to say with complete justification that any doctrine, any theological concept which speaks of the Kingdom in any mystical and symbolical way, and which fails to give due place in that Kingdom to literal, national Israel, is out of accord with Scripture, and is not to be accepted as true by any believer in the Bible. It does not matter what the Roman Church says about the Bible, or what Mrs. Eddy says; what matters is what the Bible itself says. And if you take that position you are bound to come to rest in British-Israel Truth. I speak as one who was saved from Romanism by the British-Israel identity.

Now the point I want to study is the constitution of the Kingdom—the Law of Sinai; and this is declared to us mainly in Exodus and Leviticus, and it is commented upon in Paul's Epistles to the Romans, Galatians and Hebrews. There is impressed upon our minds one vitally important Scripture fact—the fact that we can usually find in one Scripture an explanation of a problem in another Scripture. Do you want to learn what is meant in the New Testament by the expression,

"THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN"?

Very well, get a good Concordance and trace out with its help the passages which deal with the subject, and you will be able to learn that the Kingdom is concerned from one end to the other with Israel. Do you want to know all about the Law? Go through the same process, and you will find that the Law of Sinai, in its religious aspect, is a type of Jesus Christ, and that the Bible itself explains this. So that you are not left to the task of finding an explanation of your own, which would in all probability differ from that of another reader—you are saved, if you will only be guided, from risk of making mistakes, because God is His own Interpreter.

The first part of the Law of Sinai to be given to Israel is that part known as the Ten Commandments. May I pause to point out to you that in the Roman Catholic Catechism the Second Commandment is omitted, a distressing fact that causes that Church to stand self-condemned as a perverter of the Word of God. These Ten Commandments are, in the main, set in the negative form of "Thou shalt not," and because of this many modern teachers find no use for them. A positive law, they tell us, is so much more useful, and they theorize a good deal. Tell a child what he can do—don't tell him what he can't do. Well, this modern theorizing sounds plausible enough, but none the less, it is far better to have a fence at the top of the cliff than either an ambulance at the bottom, or a notice suggesting that an inland walk is really far prettier. Further, the negative command is the natural order and the necessary method of stating Law, and it should be remembered that we are dealing with Law, and not with moral principles. Israel was chosen out by God to be a nation of priests, that is to say, that they were to minister to the world for God, in precisely the same capacity as the tribe of Levi ministered to Israel. Now if you read the Book of Leviticus, you will find that the work of the Levites was concerned with the religious side of Israel's life—the sacrifices and feasts, with the educational side of the people's life, with the health of the people, and with the administration of the Law. Put into modern language, the Levites were the clergy, the teachers, the doctors, and the magistrates of Israel.

Training for the Levites was obviously necessary, and all training involves a set of negative rules. There are always things to be avoided, things that you must not do, if you are to be fitted for your post. If, then, the Levites needed training for their ministration to Israel, so exactly did Israel need training for an identical administration to the world. Consequently the negative Law of Exodus xx was absolutely necessary. The same reasoning follows if we take up the other phrase, "an holy nation." The word "holy" means separated—separated for a Divine use. It does not mean pure and sinless. Let us be quite clear about this. A great deal of misunderstanding and error is simply due to the fact that people are careless about the terms and words they use. Israel is definitely called and in the dispute between Aaron and the sons of Korah, Korah and his companions claimed equal privileges with Aaron on the ground that all the congregation was holy. That was true, but all the congregation was not pure and sinless. The same point is emphasized in the New Testament. The disciples of the Lord are called "saints" in the New Testament, but that does not mean that they were perfect. By no means. Paul addresses the Christians at Corinth as "saints," and goes on to rebuke them for their sins, one of them for the gross sin of adultery. The word "saint" or "holy" simply means "set apart," and the setting apart is the first step in sanctification and service, but it is not the last step. We begin by being "holy," and we grow in grace till we are perfect. So Israel began by being "holy," "set apart," and the Law of Sinai was given them to train them and lead them on to perfection. The Law of Sinai then served for Israel as the grace of God serves for the Christian.

THURSDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 3RD.

THE REV. W. J. GREGORY BESTALL.

The President at the opening meeting on Monday referred to those present who might be asking the question, "What is it all about?" Well, it so happened that I had managed to coax three or four people here who had never been into a British-Israel meeting before; and there is no reason why everyone here should not have done the same. If they had done so, the galleries also would have been crowded. The next Congress must be a full one in that way. I expect there are some here who do not know very much about this Truth.

I want to speak to you, and the learned people in the udience can pick up a crumb or two if they like. I have said o several people by way of giving them a mild shock, "You now you are an Israelite," and they look at me and say, "But am not a Jew. I have not got a Jewish type of countenance." nd I have to say to them, "I did not say you had." The point this, that until a person gets well into his mind that there is n everlasting difference between an Israelite of the Northern Kingdom and a Jew of the Southern Kingdom he will always e befogged about the British-Israel teaching. I am quoting he words now of a Professor in Yale University. "If he mixes p the Israelites and the Jews, however learned he may be in he Scriptures, he is an infant in the understanding of the criptures, and seven-eighths of the Bible are shut up from his nderstanding." That being so, what about it? It is this, hat you belong, if you are an Anglo-Saxon, as I believe you are, o the great race called Israel. If you believe that, then we hall be able to get along very quickly. If you have got that nderstanding, the next thing I want to tell you is this, hat this British-Israel-World Federation teaches the of the Scriptures, that the Scriptures are not simply words of God, but is THE Word of God. I am able to say, while I do not trouble myself about the dotting of every "i" nd the crossing of every "t," which are perhaps the mistakes of some copyist which can easily be understood, and some- hing which may have gone wrong in little details but which can easily be rectified, but whether you believe it or not, I am here o say with great conviction that I believe everything in the Bible, and that is what all the parsons cannot say; and if I did not believe everything in the Bible I would not appear on a British-Israel platform.

I am not firing any shots at those whom we call Modernists or Fundamentalists; I do not like these names, they are apt to lead us to wrong conclusions, because there are a great many people who are called Modernists who are not Modernists in the way that we use that term, for they throw some light on the Scriptures. If a man says that the Scriptures are made up of folk lore and myth and fable, I am not with him, and the Bible Society is not with him. For that Society sends out the whole Bible to all parts of the world, and last year they sent out of the Bible and portions of the Bible, and if they did not believe that it is the inspired Word of God, could they justify the sending out of that Word of God without note or comment if it was full of myth and fable? If you are a British-Israelite you believe in the inspiration of the Bible.

The next thing I want to say is, that you must believe in individual salvation. Now the charge made to my certain knowledge, and it is made by some of the Churches to-day, is that we British-Israelites are very much more concerned with the establishment of a material kingdom upon earth than we are in saving the souls of the human race. That is the charge, and I am here to say that it is FALSE.

If any of you who are British-Israelites are not more concerned about the salvation of the individual in all races and kindreds and nations, then all I can say to you is that you ought to be. The British-Israelite ought to be in the forefront of every great revival in this country. It ought to be the greatest evangelistic force in this land. If that is the idea that people have of us, then we must see to it that by our conduct, as well as by our words, by our prayers and by our influence, that this great Federation becomes one of the

in the whole world. My friends, if you do not know very much about this theme, let me say that when we have secured the salvation of the individual, the chief thing that has come into our hands, there seems to have come a revelation that has not come to the Church of this country nor of any other country to any great extent. We seem to have been made the custodians of the revelation of a great Kingdom which is developed in the Old Testament teaching, and which was consummated by Jesus Christ in the wonderful teaching which He gave in the days of His flesh. The prophets all attest it; they prophesy of the grand time when Jesus Christ shall reign over the WHOLE WORLD.

Now having spoken of the spiritual aspect, of the conversion of the individual, I want to emphasize the fact that we look for a material Kingdom, we look for Jesus Christ in His return in glory to reign on the throne of His father David, to be King of kings and Lord of lords. What is it all about? Well, amongst other things, it is about that picture there (the Coronation Stone). The leaders of the British-Israel Truth have put it there for some purpose. It is called the Stone of Destiny. I know that Mr. Garrison could lecture for an hour and a half on that picture. The Stone of Destiny came to this country from Scotland. Fifty-four Irish kings were crowned on it; it was removed to Scotland, and thirty-five Scottish kings were crowned on it. Then it came to Westminster, and it is said by the late Dean Stanley to be the in England at the present time. Every Sovereign, except the Roman Catholic Queen Mary, has been crowned on that Stone; and if Prince David comes to the throne, he will be crowned on that Stone. I said to Professor Odlum, "Do you really believe that this is the very stone that Jacob slept on?" "From the depths of my heart I do," he said. "I believe that is the very stone that Jacob slept upon when he had his marvellous vision."

I want to speak now on the subject of faith, and it is a tremendous study. It is easy to say that "all things are possible to him that believeth." But I am here to testify that since I began to study this great subject of faith, I found that akin to prayer, and quite as much as prayer, much inspiration is gained. What is faith? Faith is the sixth sense. Through faith there comes the vision of God. Faith is that which sees what the natural man never can see. A very learned man in the City of London not very long ago published a book, and the chief thing in that book, it seems to me, is what he had to say on the subject of faith. Now I am not talking about faith as the assent to a creed, although what I have to say includes that. But, in a word, what I have to say is this, and let me ask, What is the opposite of faith? In a sense it is unbelief. But that is not what I mean. The opposite of faith that I am talking about is cowardice. And when the British-Israel-World Federation and the Churches of this country enter into the region of that faith which is the opposite of cowardice, they will storm citadels, and they will very soon win the world for Jesus Christ. The time is short. We must be up and doing in the years that remain. I am not dogmatic; I simply say with regard to the Coming of our King that He may come at any moment; it may be in the morning, or in the evening, or at cockcrow, or at midnight. All I say to the Federation and to myself is that we ought to be watching.

I want to make a final appeal. We have had a

so far. In regard to the ministers' meetings, they have been a Pentecost. It has been a time of blessing to those who have gathered together, and I have come here in the spirit of that Pentecost. And I am very anxious that everyone here should awaken to his responsibility, and do something for this Movement. You know the other day there was a lorry, the wheels of which had got into a deep rut. There was a policeman taking notes, and there was a crowd of people who seem to spring up from nowhere when anything happens. And when this lorry got stuck in the mud the inhabitants had a grand time. They had a committee meeting about it, and one said, "I says, that if you put a cloth over their eyes, it makes the horses pull." And a young fellow said, "I beg yer pardon, but the way to make those horses move is to blow into their right ear." And so they went on. Then presently two jolly jack-tars came along. I always feel like taking my hat off to a jack-tar. He is the finest sailor that sails the main; he has got the old Viking blood in him. And they come swinging along, and they see this committee at work with their suggestions, and they say to each other, "Ay, mate, over with her," and each of them seize a wheel, and they lift the heavy wheels out of the rut, and soon the lorry was going on its way rejoicing. What I have to say to you to-night is that an ounce of help is worth a hundred committee meetings. I know I have to waste any amount of time at committee meetings, but I can also do some good work in them. If we want the British-Israel Federation to be what we want it to be, then everyone to the work, and when we meet again next year we shall have the galleries filled as well as the area of the Hall.

"GREAT BRITAIN'S TASKS IN THE MIDDLE EAST."

SYNOPSIS OF ADDRESS BY RT. HON. L. C. M. S. AMERY, WINNIPEG, 17TH SEPTEMBER, 1929.

THE Middle East lies between Europe and the countries of Eastern Asia, and consists chiefly of Egypt, Palestine and Irak (Mesopotamia). These lands were once the centre of the world's civilization. On the decline of this civilization, they were for centuries inhabited by peoples of a barbarian class. They are now, however, coming back and are being regenerated by Great Britain. From these countries all our civilization originated. The alphabet, astronomy, mathematics, medical knowledge, land survey, irrigation, science, the three great religions of the present—Judaism, Christianity and Mohammedanism.

It is difficult now to realize how great was the civilization there five thousand years ago. While a Minister of the Colonies, and being in control in these territories, Mr. Amery visited many parts and, amongst others, visited Ur of the Chaldees, after the archæological discoveries there.

Later on he saw in the museums the treasures from the Royal tombs of Ur, some of which would scarcely be equalled by modern artists. The queen's head-dress was still intact. A gold ribbon, with inlaid flowers of gold, looked as though it had been made yesterday, and yet these treasures were buried and forgotten 1,800 years before Abraham lived.

The people of that age had a highly developed civilization. It was highly developed, not in the military state, but in the civil state. They had a marvellous system of irrigation that equalized taxation on the agricultural class. They had a Married Women's Property Act; a banking system with cheques. Many of our ideas of this former civilization are wrongly coloured by the imagination of writers and historians before the disclosures of archæology.

Abraham had lived in a great, busy city. He may have been a master of statecraft. It is quite possible that when he bought the field at Mamre for 200 pieces of silver, that he paid for it with a cheque on his bank in Ur instead of by actual silver. When he left Ur, he travelled through Palestime to Egypt, which was also a country of busy commerce with many princes, specialized doctors, etc.

Palestine, in which Christ was born, was not a simple peasant country, but a focus of all of the civilized affairs of the world. There was a Greek civilization in Palestine before and during Christ's time. Miles of colonnades are still found within a day's walk of the Sea of Galilee. It was a centre of a tremendous political cult as well as of a fanatical Jewish nationalism.

When Christ was asked about paying tribute to Caesar, it was a question to find out whether he was the leader the Jews were expecting to develop their independence and extend their authority over the world.

All that great, active life lived on and made these countries the richest, etc., for many centuries after.

The first decline came when Mohammed commenced his conquest. It was said that he was the means of having 600,000 volumes destroyed in the library of Alexandria. It is claimed that he stated that if the volumes in this library opposed

Mohammedanism, they should be destroyed, and if they avoured it, they were superfluous.

During the 8th, 9th and 10th centuries there was a marellous civilization of the Saracens in those countries, with the hief centres at Bagdad and Damascus; a greater civilization han there has been in that region since. However, their osition for defence was weak.

From the north and west the fierce crusaders of Europe ttacked them, and from the north and east the wild Turkish roops invaded them and undermined their power.

During the Mongol occupation in the 13th century practically everything of value in Mesopotamia, including the whole of the vast irrigation scheme, was destroyed. Previous to that time there was a population of ten to twelve millions in Mesopotamia, but from the time of that invasion the conditions of the previous civilization never recovered. It is said that the Mongols made a pile of 2,000,000 skulls outside of one of the cities.

After the Mongol occupation the Ottoman Empire arose, but they permitted irrigation to die down and a miserable handful of people only lived amongst the ruins of the former glory. Napoleon had a view of what the Mid-East might do and made an effort to conquer the territory, but he was blocked by Nelson in the defeat of the Battle of the Nile, which cut short his expedition.

EGYPT.

Nothing further of importance was done until De Lesseps built the Suez Canal. This canal was the main artery of commerce between the East and West, and brought that part of the world into prominence. Naturally, Great Britain had a great interest in this canal. At that time there was an insurrection in Egypt against the ruling force. Great Britain asked France to join with her to intervene and to produce order. France declined, but England proceeded, and, by a force under the command of Colonel Wolseley, quelled the insurrection and re-established the government of the country. At that time the population was very small, irrigation was nil, and the peasantry impoverished. Egypt was bankrupt and the Khedive was glad to sell his share in the Suez Canal to Disraeli for Great Britain; Great Britain thereby coming into control of the Suez Canal.

Shortly afterwards the Mahdist troops rebelled in Soudan and drove the Egyptian forces out. General Gordon was besieged and a relieving column was sent, but arrived three days too late.

The governing idea, at that time, was to get out of Egypt as early as possible, but the conditions were such that it was impossible then to arrive at an agreement with Egypt and Turkey.

While the British representatives were in charge, they felt that they had to do the best they could for the country in finances, engineering, etc. (Lord Cromer.) The British rebuilt the irrigation works and reorganized the army.

The Soudan was conquered, the Mahdist forces being put to rout, and a government was organized. Before the Mahdists rebelled, the population of the Soudan had been twelve to fifteen million people, but, as a result of the Mahdist wars, this population was reduced to about two to three millions. This province is now prosperous and progressive.

Amazing progress was made in Egypt continually from 1886 to the Great War, but with this prosperity came the natural tendency to forget the source of that prosperity—Great Britain. This was not the first time the Egyptians forgot the reason of their prosperity, as we read that they forgot Joseph. As a result of this forgetfulness and the rise of nationalism, a violent anti-British propaganda arose and continued to be very strong recently.

The British have no desire to prevent the Egyptian people from governing themselves as far as possible. However, there are certain interests which they cannot relinquish. They must control the Suez Canal and the base for air communications, as this is the main route of commerce between Great Britain and India, South Africa, Australia, etc. Also, Great Britain has interests in the Soudan, of which they must insist to remain in control. The recent Government made a treaty through Sir Austen Chamberlain with the Egyptian Government, but the Egyptian Parliament would not accept it. The MacDonald Government has recently made another treaty with Egypt, but it remains to be seen whether it will be accepted.

The British Government feel that they are responsible for all questions bearing on Imperial interests and to some extent responsible for the welfare of the Egyptian people themselves as well as for the large metropolitan population there. Outside the security of the Suez Canal, etc., they have no objection to the Egyptian people governing themselves.

IRAK.

Britain has been greatly interested in the Mesopotamian Valley for over 150 years on account of commerce established by the East India Company.

The Royal Navy has been responsible for the suppression of piracy and slavery, and the British Government has assisted Persia and the Arab chieftains of Mesopotamia in maintaining good government.

Before the war, British interests were particularly in the oil fields in Irak, and the British Government was also interested on account of the importance to the British Navy of the oil fields. An expeditionary force was sent to Bozra. At the beginning of the war the British suffered the Kut disaster. Later on, they proceeded and finally occupied Bagdad and Mosul, the latter being the province containing oil fields. The British had no desire to retain the oil, but they promised the Arabs that under no circumstances would they be put back under Turkish yoke. This was no easy problem, as the Arabs, having been under the Turkish rule for centuries, had no idea of and no form of self-government.

The Arabs were split up by many various tribes and also by several different sects of Mohammedanism, and thus it became difficult to get them to work together.

The British concluded to follow Mr. Churchill's suggestion and endeavour to form an Arab nation. The trouble was to find a ruler who would appeal to the national sentiment and be satisfactory to the British. This they did in Prince Feisal, son of the King of Hedjaz. He belonged to a good family, was a soldier, well educated, eloquent, and of a very dignified manner.

He was placed at the head of the government at Irak and the British assisted him in building up a native administration.

Digitized by Google

The British help consisted of a British High Commissioner and some forty or fifty British experts in various departments of government.

They have achieved a remarkable success. There is a very fine and happy relation between the native government and the British advisers.

They have succeeded in building up a condition of affairs in Irak such as has not been known in that part of the Middle East for thousands of years. Revenue from the oil wells of Mosul will be sufficient to open up irrigation throughout the Mesopotamian Valley for a large population. Agriculture is extending rapidly. The chief obstacle in the way of progress is the demand of the Turks to the Province of Mosul, including the oil wells, which would take away the wealth of Irak. To have surrendered this Province would have involved surrendering every pledge given to the Arabs and would also have involved a very unhappy condition of the people of the Province of Mosul if handed over to the Turks. This question was handed over to the Council of the League of Nations for decision based on justice and, as a result, the Province was left to Irak.

The whole procedure of the government of Irak has raised the British prestige throughout the Near East. They are building up to-day a prosperous country.

Churchill's idea was that they would gradually withdraw their troops and leave a squadron or more of the Royal Air Force. The people of Irak appreciate the co-operation of this Air Force in quelling insurrections, etc. It is also of great service to Great Britain to have the Air Force stationed there, as they could easily be sent from there to emergency calls to India, Afghanistan, Persia, East Africa, Egypt and Palestine.

In 1922, according to Churchill's statement, the cost of the British military force in Irak was £8,000,000 a year. It was gradually cut down by the withdrawal of troops until the expense was £4,000,000 a year. Now the defence of the country is maintained by Irak native force and four squadrons of the British Air Force, with a handful of Syrian troops, and the expense has been cut down to £1,600,000 per year.

PALESTINE.

At the beginning of the war the Turks attacked the Suez Canal. As this canal is not safe if Palestine is in the hands of an enemy, the British determined to drive the Turks out of Palestine.

We all know of the general strategy and work of General Allenby and the British Army in the capture of Jerusalem in 1917 and 1918. We also remember the difference in the manner of Kaiser Wilhelm and General Allenby on their entry into Jerusalem. The former had a part of the wall torn down so that he could enter in state. Allenby, who remembered that the Lord had walked through the streets of Jerusalem, preferred to enter humbly, so he and his staff walked in.

Jerusalem has been besieged by many invaders such as Rameses and Cæsar, and was also besieged in the time of Josiah the good King.

The government of Palestine has a twofold task. First, the establishment of good government in the country as in Egypt and Irak. Secondly, to carry out the terms of the Balfour Declaration; that is to establish in Palestine a national home for the Jews, with due regard to the interests of the local population. For a long time the British people have been greatly interested in the Jews. Oliver Cromwell was probably the first to be interested. Then, in Queen Victoria's time, Disraeli and Chamberlain, and, at present, Lord Balfour; also many others.

What was the meaning of this movement? It was not to import millions of Jews to Palestine and so swamp the native population by establishing and developing a national Jewish state. That is an impossible idea, but in Palestine the Jews have the opportunity to build side by side with the existing population a culture of their own, and at the present they are developing universities, schools, agriculture and engineering and industrial enterprises. That experiment is immensely important from the Jewish culture point of view, and also from the economic point of view.

The dangers and probably the causes of the present trouble are Jewish impertinence and Arab suspicion. The British, however, believe in building slowly but building surely. They are attempting to create a common patriotism between Jew and Arab. Friendly relations between the two were steadily improving for five or six years. The Arab population was increasing as a result of the greatly improved health conditions. The Arab population is about five times larger than the Jewish, and is growing more largely by natural increase than the Jewish population is growing by immigration.

There are now hundreds of miles of roads built by the British where there were none before. Towns and villages are springing up and the Jews have a new city, Tel Aviv, which they have built up themselves.

The British are establishing at Haifa a naval port, at the expense of over £1,000,000, which will be the chief harbour of the Near East, and will be in use for the commerce of Syria and Mesopotamia.

It must be remembered that the peoples of the Near East are greatly susceptible to religious passions and religious rights. They generally know the precise rights of the Jews to the Wailing Place, but the recent trouble between the Arabs and Jews in Palestine cannot possibly affect the British Government or set back the British work of our generation.

To show what the British are doing in the way of developing the land and improving health, it might be stated that the Plain of Megiddo, which is seen south, east and west from Nazareth, is a very fertile plain.

When the British captured the country they found the pestilential swamps were responsible for a great deal of malaria; even the natives did not establish their villages there or sleep over night. The British have installed great works of draining and irrigation. The first year after commencing the work the malaria was reduced to 64 per cent., the next year to 23 per cent., the year after 3 per cent., and the following year one-half of 1 per cent. of what it had been before.

In 1925 Mr. Amery travelled over this plain, and from end to end it was a waving field of wheat or of barley.

Great Britain has done here a wonderful work of regeneration. The British possession of Palestine is vital to the security of the Suez Canal and the British air route to the East.

IRELAND IN FORMER TIMES.

BY PROFESSOR EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc.

As we examine into the ancient products of the mountains, lands, factories, fishing and shipping, we learn that Ireland carried on a very extensive commerce, and much wealth was the result of the export and import trade. Tacitus affirmed, in the first century, that the ports of Ireland were more than those of Britain.

Mr. O'Flaherty tells us he saw the following bequest, which suggests more than the simple statement covers or contains. The bequest made by Cather-more, before the battle of Tailtean, reads :—" To his son Brasil, he left five ships of burthen, 50 shields embossed, ornamented and inlaid with gold and silver ; five swords with gold hilts ; five chariots with their harness and steeds.

" To Fiech, another son, amongst other legacies, he left 50 pied horses with brass bits.

" To others of the nobility, swords, javelins, shields, chariots, rings, etc. And he appointed his eldest son, Roger Failge, executor."

One might make many comments on the above, drawing attention to the many shields and chariots owned by Cather-more, but we pass to the " five ships of burthen."

From much information furnished by many writers reaching over a period of a thousand years or more, we are safe in saying that for a long time Ireland was one of the successful and powerful commercial nations. In addition to this we know, from time to time, their ships of war were numerous, powerful, and commonly successful.

We can readily see that there were close commercial relations between Ireland and the Mediterranean ports, as well as with the Milesians of the Ionian confederacy and the shipping centres of the Lower Nile regions of Egypt, from which land Phenius passed to Ireland. Hence the origin of the word Fenian.

Bear in mind that the Ionians were of Israel ancestry.

It follows that, as they were a successful commercial nation, their imports and exports were extensive, and their population was much greater than it is to-day. As they mined on a large scale, raised the cereals, including flax, operated extensively on the water, cured fish, and produced cattle, sheep, horses and swine, we feel forced to believe that they were truly an industrial people and had factories of many kinds, which we do not now even suspect ever existed in their country.

How natural it is to ask, Why so great a change ? We believe their population was twice or thrice as great as now.

Under the Druids they were the leading educational nation of Europe for a long time, co-ordinating their educational and religious activities with their Druidical brethren of Britain Major.

Be it remembered that there were two Britains in these early days—Britain Minor and Britain Major, i.e., Ireland, and the other island now known as Great Britain, made up of North Britain and South Britain.

We press the question, Why so great a national decadence and calamity ? Why ? Look at Spain, South America and other lands. Perhaps the answer is not too complex. Compare religious ideals and working realities, and therethrough discover answer.

We are told that the Irish taught the English not only the liberal arts, but even instructed them in music and painting, as noted in the life of St. Dunstan.

Let Canadians note the statement concerning shipping " raw hides " in the following :—

" Jocelyn, who lived in the twelfth century, tells us, that, in the days of St. Patrick, Dublin was renowned for the number and magnificence of its inhabitants, the extent of its commerce, etc., and we may form some idea of what the trade of Ireland must have been in better times, when so late as the reign of Brien Boru, notwithstanding the ravages and distresses which a Danish war, of above 200 years' continuance, must have produced throughout the kingdom, the annual duties arising from goods, imported into the single port of Limerick and paid in red wine, amounted to 365 pipes ! Even so lately as the last century, it is scarcely credible, what riches this city derived from the bare manufacture of shoes, which were exported in amazing quantities ; whereas now, instead of shoes and boots, we see the raw hides daily shipped off for foreign markets."

THE WORLD SITUATION TO-DAY.

" ' THE world situation to-day and the current national and international movements under the searchlights of Divine prophetical revelation ' formed the subject of addresses by the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse in the Empire Hall, Cheltenham, under the auspices of the local Branch of the British-Israel-World Federation, of which the lecturer is the Clerical Organizing Secretary for the Midlands.

The speaker said the more closely one observed the great movements of the world the more clearly it was seen that the events foreshadowed some two or three millenniums ago were receiving their exact fulfilment in these days. He touched on the emergence of certain governmental ideas amongst the great masses of population in the world. They had each of these masses elaborating its own race ideals, and they were going to have the most staggering results. One wondered whether our little world would continue to contain these governmental ideas without their coming into clash. The speaker referred to the progress of our commonwealth of nations, with its ideas of political development and self-government, the freedom of the subject, protection of life and property, and the tremendous spectacle of what, before the Reformation, was a little race of four or five millions having now come into possession of the earth's territory and sheltering and schooling the destinies of nearly the population of the world. Throughout the whole Anglo-Saxon world—both the British Commonwealth and the United States of America—the same ideals prevailed, ideals very contrary to those of the Continental nations. Was it merely an accident that the Anglo-Saxon race had steadily absorbed the service of the earth and so great a number of its population ? Did it merely chance that this was so ?

" Throughout the Anglo-Saxon world the principle of unification could be seen ever at work. In the United States it had resulted in the unification of many States into a great Republic ; in Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and elsewhere in the British Empire in the unification of groups of nations and colonies into Dominions ; and the whole of these into our Empire. Recently they had witnessed the wonderful and most thrilling spectacle, to which history could afford no parallel, of the two wings of the race being brought more closely together through the supreme act of statesmanship of the Premier's journey to the United States, and the American President receiving him lovingly in a tight heart-grip. They believed that all made for the same unifying process of the race to which he had alluded. God had declared of this race that they should no more be two nations, but one.

"Mr. Whitehouse next contrasted this unifying principle with the disintegrating principles which had worked the destruction of various great Empires in the past; and he said such facts not merely spurred the patriotic imagination, but the intelligence, and urged them on to inquire why these things were so. It was the exact fulfilment of an outline picture drawn in the Bible some 3,500 years ago; they saw all the details being filled in under their eyes; and there they had their proof of the Bible.

"Passing to a consideration of the emergence of the dictatorial principle as illustrated by Signor Mussolini, he said students of the Scriptures knew that precisely this condition of things was indicated to take place, culminating in the troubles of the great tribulation and antichrist. There were Bible indications of a union of ten powers called 'The Beast.'

"In the evening Mr. Whitehouse dwelt on developments within our Empire—manufacture, rapid transit, etc., as auxiliary to political ambitions; the increase of wealth by some nations arousing the cupidity of others; colonizing jealousies, and the development of imperial aspirations in their relation to the fulfilment of prophecies referring to Israel; or, as he believed, to the British race. The Bible forecasts such movements, and in these developments they were to be seen.

"The Rev. C. C. Petch, Vicar of St. Luke's, presided, and said that the address was really the most wonderful Bible-reading he had ever heard in his life."—Gloucestershire Echo.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.

QUESTION.—Will you please explain why the name of Babylon is used in the Revelation. It seems that Babylon was destroyed long before the Coming of Christ?—T. B. M.

ANSWER.—It is obviously clear that the literal city of Babylon in Babylonia is not referred to in the Apocalypse of St. John. The references to mystic Babylon in the New Testament are Rev. xiv, 8; xvi, 19; xvii, 5; xviii, 2, 10, 21, where in neither case can a literal Babylonian city be referred to. There never has been any difficulty in identifying the Woman "sitting on seven mountains" and having on her forehead the name written, "Mystery, Babylon the Great" with the Roman apostasy. The Woman on the Beast both represents and is the symbol of Babylon the Great, while Babylon itself is a mystical name for the city which is now the mistress of the world as seen in this great vision. Her gaily attired, jewelled, gilded person, and her cup of abominations, proclaim her to be the Mother-Harlot of the Earth. No other city in the world has ever been celebrated, as the city of Rome has, for its situation on seven hills (Rev. xvii, 9). Pagan poets and orators, who had no thought of elucidating the mysteries of prophecy, have characterized it alike as "the seven-hilled city." Thus Virgil says, "Rome has both become the most beautiful (city) in the world, and alone has surrounded for herself seven heights with a wall." (Georg., Lib. ii, 534-535.) Propertius adding to the Apocalyptic picture says, "the lofty city on seven hills, which governs the whole world." Horace addresses "The gods, who have set their affections on the seven hills." (Carmen seculare, v. 7), while Martial the poet speaks of "the seven dominating mountains" (Lib. iv, Ep. 64).

Thus, what Babylon was to the old Hebrew prophets, so Rome was to the Apocalyptic Seer. There is reason for thinking that in the first century in Jewish and Christian circles Babylon was already an acceptable synonym for Rome. Evidence of this may be seen in 1 Pet. v, 13 (although this may possibly be the real Babylon), the Sibylline Oracles (a pre-Christian Jewish book, V.) and the Apocrypha of Baruch (contemporary with the New Testament), which take Babylon to refer to Rome.

Similarly in early Christian days. Irenæus, Tertullian, St. Jerome, all agree upon this point. Later on also St. Augustine, Bellarmine, Bossuet, Dollinger, etc., understand Babylon to mean Rome pagan, while in later times, writers united in the belief that it meant Rome papal—especially in the mediæval period. Similarly in the past centuries, Wordsworth, Elliott, Alford, and practically all the great exponents of prophecy, have come to no other conclusion.

The reason why Babylon was selected as a symbol of Rome was due to the fact that in its first form on the plain of Shinar, Babylon was the living type of the idolatrous city. Shinar, as an ideal land of unholiness, is contrasted with Israel "the Holy Land" (Zech. ii, 7, 12). What Nineveh was under Sennacherib, Babylon was under Nebuchadnezzar. The type remained when a city of the West (Rome) became the ruling power of the earth. Renan once said that it was usual among the Christians, whether through precaution against the police, or from a taste for mystery, to designate Rome by the name of Babylon.

Hence we find that Babylon (Rome) was a type of the great World Kingdom, and Jerusalem (the New Jerusalem, Rev. xxi) a type of the Eternal Heavenly Kingdom. The New Earth required a new metropolis, not another Babylon, but another and greater Jerusalem. If Rome was as dissolute as she was proud, and a source of moral infection to the world, the New Jerusalem was significant of a new holiness, the inner and permanent consecration of the New City of God, of heavenly origin, a city "Whose builder and maker is God." (Heb. xi, 10.)

An Army Officer in India writes:—"Thank you very much for the 500 copies of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE. I shall now start again, sending out copies everywhere, endeavouring to plant them in every town of importance. The time will be ripe for our message, when the people have been thoroughly disillusioned by the failure of their leaders."

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THERE will be no meetings at Headquarters next week, owing to the Sale of Work. Mr. Wm. Whitton was the speaker on November 20th, and Mr. Harrison Hill on November 21st.

We are pleased to report that a very interesting and useful collection of articles is now to hand for the SALE, next Tuesday and Wednesday. We hope that our friends will come to 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W. in large numbers to secure their Christmas presents, etc., and to enjoy the social converse. Proceedings commence each day at 3 p.m., and continue until 9.30. Tea and supper at a nominal charge.

Many of our correspondents in U.S.A. desire that there shall be an all-American Anglo-Israel Conference. We know of several groups working in various parts of that great country, but they have not yet met to arrange for co-ordination of the work. These groups and individual believers are ready to welcome a Conference. It is therefore suggested that the third or fourth week of April next might be a suitable time. We shall be glad to have from all our readers in all parts of the United States their views as to time and place for the Conference.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard, who will (D.V.) be proceeding to Canada in the early summer, has kindly consented to place his services at the disposal of our American friends, and to attend the Conference and give any help that may be desired by them. We invite correspondence as early as possible, addressed to Herbert Garrison, Secretary-General, British-Israel-World Federation, 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1, England.

A Member living in Syria writes that as British-Israelites we should remember that Mount Lebanon, with its wonderful climate and grand mountains, with its ravines and ridges clothed with stately evergreen pines, is as much part of the Promised Land (Deut. i, 7) as the better-known portion from Dan to Beersheba.

The Pinus Haleppensis—called Snubar by the natives—flourishes best at a height from 3,000 to 4,000 feet. It bears a large cone containing many seeds which are an article of commerce, highly esteemed in certain native dishes. To help promote an interest in this "inheritance" (Deut. lv, 21), Mrs. Howie would be glad to mail to anyone a real tangible living souvenir of the land in the shape of seeds of the stone pine tree. For one shilling in stamps she will send twelve or more post paid. These may be planted in the open ground in February or March ; or if sown in pots in the autumn, young sprouting trees might make unique and acceptable Christmas or New Year's gifts. Send to Mrs. G. Howie, Shweir, Mount Lebanon, Syria.

In the welcome return visit of the Rev. Joseph Gay, the South Irish Branch, Dublin, enjoyed a splendid week. Opening on Remembrance Sunday, November 10th, Mr. Gay was the preacher at morning service in Ringsend Methodist Church, by invitation of the Rev. Wm. Coade ; and at evening service in Sandymount Presbyterian Church, by invitation of the Rev. J. S. Crockett.

On the following days, 11th to 14th, Mr. Gay addressed seven meetings in the Hall of the Hibernian Church Missionary Society, and on Friday, the 15th, concluded his visit with two addresses in the Men's Christian Institute, Kingstown. In spite of torrential rain and storm, and many Armistice Night services, Mr. Gay's meeting on the evening of the 11th was very well attended, and throughout the week numbers steadily increased and interest deepened. On several occasions the Hall was quite full. The speaker drove home his points with force and logic. A feature of the meetings was the number of men, mostly strangers, many of whom attended the complete series.

The monthly Bible Study Class for women, under the direction of Mrs. Zoe Bell and Miss Alexander, meets at Headquarters on Saturday, December 7th, at 3 o'clock. A cordial invitation is given by Mrs. Bell to attend these classes.

The Speakers' Training Class, under the leadership of the Rev. Joseph Gay, will be held on Friday evening, December 6th, at 8 o'clock, at Headquarters.

Mr. H. A. Marchant gave a very interesting address for our Worthing Branch on November 13th, on "The Importance of Preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom." It was greatly appreciated.

We appeal to all our readers to study the advertisements regarding our literature appearing week by week in this journal, and to make a special point of purchasing British-Israel books for Christmas and New Year gifts.

The knowledge and belief in our Israel identity brings with it a tremendous responsibility. Do we all fully realize this ?

It means that on us as individuals depends the widespread dissemination of the knowledge of God's Truth as contained in His Holy Word in order that others who do not know of the "good tidings" of God's Kingdom on earth may be instructed.

One of the best ways of doing this work is by means of the printed word. Please call at 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1, or write to the Covenant Publishing Co. They are general booksellers as well as publishers, and their staff is at your service.

A. E. M. writes :—"In my Christian work I find the idea prevalent that Jesus must have been a man because it is thought He had to pray like any other man. This wrong thinking is caused, I am afraid, through the wrong interpretation of the word 'pray.' When the Lord Jesus told the disciples to pray He used a word meaning supplication of a mortal being to the Great God. When Jesus prayed, the word translated 'pray' is a totally different word, which means a request from a person to his equal, and this is in accordance with Scripture, which teaches that Jesus was God in the flesh. What say your Greek scholars?"

Our correspondent is quite right. There are several Greek words used in the New Testament translated ask, pray, entreat, supplicate, etc., but of these, the verb ἐρωτάω, which means to question or to ask, and implies familiarity or equality between the person asking and the one asked, is never used in our prayers to God, while it is invariably used by Christ in His prayers to the Father (John xiv, 16; xvi, 26; xvii, 9, 15, 20), although other words are used in referring to prayer by Him. On the other hand, the verb αἰτέω, which means to entreat, beg and supplicate, implies a distinction in position and circumstances between the parties, and expresses a petition from one inferior to a superior, is never used by Christ in addressing His Father.—J. L.

We regret to announce the passing on of Mr. John F. Mellick, of Nailsea, Somerset, a believer and teacher of the B.-I. Truth for over forty years. Mr. Mellick was a member of our Bristol Branch for many years, but has latterly been prevented from attending meetings on account of deafness. He has, however, carried on ceaselessly the propaganda work of our great Cause. He was responsible for the introduction to our teaching of one of the members of our Executive and Council—who is now the Secretary of our Ealing Branch, Mr. G. P. Stevens. We tender our deepest sympathy to his sorrowing family.

"NEW YORK, November 20th.

"The White Star liner Olympic, which arrived here to-day, reported that 'a trembling at sea' occurred on Monday afternoon. Captain Parker described how the sea was calm and the sky gloomy when a violent and sustained vibration began, lasting just two minutes. The electric lights were extinguished in the mail-room, and a weird sensation was experienced by everybody. Later in the day the wireless reported an earthquake on the Atlantic coast, and the mystery, which had baffled everybody, was solved. The liner was about 640 miles from Rhode Island when the shock was felt."—Daily Telegraph (Own Correspondent).

"HALIFAX (NOVA SCOTIA), November 20th.

"Eleven breaks in the Transatlantic cables due to the earthquake have been located, most of them being south of the Newfoundland coast, while one is near the Azores. A cable ship has been despatched from Halifax to effect repairs. Late reports indicate the severity of the shock on the western coast of Newfoundland, many places being inundated by seismic waves."—Exchange Telegraph.

SOLOMON'S LIGHTNING CONDUCTORS.

"There are few parts of the world where the thunderstorms are more violent than in Palestine. As a city Jerusalem stands at a considerable elevation above the surrounding country, and the taller buildings are quite commonly struck by lightning. Yet there is no record that Solomon's Temple, which for a thousand years stood high above all other erections, was ever damaged by the lightning flash. It is almost certain that the Temple was protected by lightning conductors, although the devices were not designed by Solomon as such. Less than two hundred years ago Benjamin Franklin invented the lightning conductor. Yet Solomon's Temple was so thickly adorned with such extremely efficient lightning conductors that the building was never struck. Josephus tells us that the roof was covered with boards of cedar which, in their turn, were covered with a thick coating of gold. Over the entire area of the roof were placed long pointed iron lances which were gilded. The walls of the Temple were also covered with wood which was thickly gilded, and down their sides ran metal pipes conducting the rain from the roof to cisterns in the courtyards. We are informed that the lances were not there for ornamental purposes but were so placed to keep the birds from settling on and soiling the roof of gold. If these lances kept the birds away they also played a useful part in protecting the Temple from damage by lightning. Down the gold-covered iron the electric current passed harmlessly to the metal pipes and so discharged itself into the earth, or the water in the cisterns. Thus without knowing it, Solomon added the most perfect lightning conductors to his Temple at least 2,700 years before Franklin thought of the idea."—S. L. Bastin, in Home Words.

Our good friend, the Rev. Anderson Watt, M.A., one of the Vice-Presidents of the British-Israel-World Federation, and almost a life-long student of our great subject, has given two very important lectures for the British-Israel Associations in Glasgow, and they have been published in pamphlet form, with a foreword by the late Mr. Wm. B. Wallace, written only a few days before he passed away. The pamphlet may be obtained at our Book Room, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1, price 1s. 6d. The title is, "Before ARMAGEDDON and after." We quote the following therefrom:—

. . . There is no inerrant medium or channel for the flow of prophetic information from the heights of theological learning into the waiting receptacles of men's souls athirst for God's living water. All possible channels from such sources are choked and absolutely nugatory.

I deplore that the Church we love and support is so little interested in what appeals to some of us as the main underlying foundation of the Grand Old Bible's message, namely, the Study of the Prophets and their marvellous predictions.

. . . Unfortunately, and for some inexplicable reason, prophecy is not any more appreciably recognized by our theologians and teachers in the Halls of Learning in our busy centres than it is by our faithful people in the Highlands and Islands. They might just as well have their Divinity Colleges in Mull or in Skye for all the interest they take in, and the knowledge they impart of, the three-fifths of the Bible that are brimful of prophetic thought and teaching, and necessary as the food of spiritually-minded Christians. The very learned classes who translate and expound, and are expert exegetes, and authorities on the Greek and Hebrew text, and the hermeneutic explanations of the Bible, are, for the most part, among the mutest and the dumbest of all interpreters of those portions of the Bible which the people hunger and thirst most to know. An Old Testament prophet dares to say of them what admittedly it would be out of place in another who is not a prophet to say: "His watchmen are blind, they are ithout knowledge; they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark." Isaiah lvi, 10.) But the time is coming, I believe it to be close at and, when the "dumb dogs" will wake up and bark at last, when he blind, the unconscious, and the hostile to all those things, will be ompelled by overwhelming evidence and revelation to admit with onfusion and shame that they who assumed to know, as being wise and prudent," were all the time wallowing in ignorance of hese overdue hidden interpretations of God's Holy Word, which he most godly and saintly-minded in the Church were pleased to eceive at the hands of those considered but "babes" in knowledge nd learning. . . .

The blindness that has happened to Israel, as well as to the Jews, nd the deafness too, are not to be lifted or removed so easily and o soon, not until the end of the days. (Isaiah xxxv, 5; Romans i, 25.) And then the people shall know even as they are known vithout the aid of their accredited teachers; and the Bible in its ntirety will be universally accepted as inerrant and infallible in all ts predictions, to the discomfiture of the rationalists and modernists who have scissored up the Inspired Book to suit their so-called scientific principles in judging the archæological value of its contents nd its sacred and Divine predictions. And the nations and the world at large shall know and recognize that the Lord is God in all he earth! For "He will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering that is cast over all peoples, and the veil that is spread over all nations." (Isaiah xxv, 7.) But by that time the beginning, middle nd end of the Armageddon Passage shall have faded into history, nd the Church of God exalted to the Glory of her Lord in the aerial realms, thereafter to sit with Him on the Throne of Israel while eternal ages roll! . . .

. . . You cannot fully comprehend the Scriptures and see the depth and richness of their teaching except according to what Paul calls God's "Plan of the Ages." (Eph. iii, 11.) The Bible works on a plan, and the material with which God is working it out in the world is His Chosen People Israel, the Church herself being Israelitish—a plan that has stages, we call them dispensations, which mark the progress through the cycles of time of the great grand purpose of the Almighty in relation to this little planet and its countless generations of inhabitants.

WITHOUT SUCH A PLAN

the goal, or salvation of the world, is, judging from the conditions of religion around us to-day, absolutely out of sight, not at all within the far-distant horizon; no purpose is visible, and the salvation of the world thousands and thousands of years hidden away in the black invisible future. One of the first principles of Bible study is to see and recognize the plan running through it, and by the steady working out of the plan, in its developing stages, an intelligible vision of the end in view enables one, under Divine inspiration, to apportion the prophecies to their own proper dispensational relations; and if we could do that perfectly we should have before us in vision the whole complete fabric of God's Eternal Purpose of the Ages. . . .

. . . It is strange that the House of Judah, though said to be praying constantly for reunion with their long-lost brethren of Israel, nevertheless seem to consider themselves the only Israel upon the earth—a seemingly queer inconsistency. The Nominal Church also considers that the only Israel in the world now is Judah the Jews. Judah and the Church are agreed upon that. We can therefore see what encouragement the Jews have to think of themselves as constituting all Israel and therefore rightful heirs to all the promises of Israel, when they have the strong backing in that belief of the millions of the Conventional Christian Church throughout the world. . . . They go the length of saying that they are the owners of Palestine, that they are entitled to it as their national home, and that the world is yet to be ruled by them from the Holy Land. And the Church says that this is to be even so! And so Church and Jews are working together to bring about the same undesirable end. . . . The mistake and blunder of the present-day Jews is that they imagine that the Israel that was lost has never been found, and that, in spite of their prayers for their brethren, they never shall be found. Hence the Jews step in and claim all Israel's promises and hope to rule the world. With that in view they are waiting for their Messiah. For that end they are working. That is the Zionist ideal and goal. "Palestine for the Jews"! But it is a false claim, a spurious slogan, and God means to defeat it in favour of Ephraim-Israel, the real Birthright Kingdom. Israel and Judah, now rival claimants for the Holy Land, must therefore come to terms and be united, Judah no longer vexing Israel. So that when Judah returns officially to the Land of Promise, it will be in subordination to Israel, albeit a leading and powerful tribe in reunited Israel; but not as owner and dictator of the Promised Land. . . .

A NEW PUBLICATION

BY A NEW AUTHOR

". . . the Bible is the only book that tells the whole truth about us, the only book to study for an elucidation of the world problems existing to-day. I believe that the whole of the Anglo-Saxon race, in different parts of the globe, are the descendants of Israel, and came originally out of the loins of Abraham and so are 'children of the Promise.' We are the descendants of the Ten Tribes of Israel. Throughout the ages, from before the time of bondage in Egypt till the Norman Conquest, and, later on, the uniting of the Scotch and English Crowns in A.D. 1603 in the person of James I, we have been working out God's plan of reassembling in 'the appointed place.'"

". . . . . Would you kindly send the 'National Message' for six months to above address, as I often find it sold out when I send for it here?"

This extract from a reader's letter illustrates the popularity of our journal and tends to show its increasing circulation. But we are not satisfied yet. We are quite convinced that there are thousands of potential readers among the friends of our adherents who are not readers of the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER simply because they are unaware of their great heritage. Are you willing that such a state of affairs should continue?

The remedy is simple. Below you will find an order form; fill this in with your friend's name and address, enclosing the appropriate remittance. This will ensure that the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER is forwarded weekly, thus sowing valuable seed. By this means we shall make new friends who would otherwise be out of our reach.

If you are not in a position to send the names of friends, please forward us a remittance and we will commence subscriptions to people whom we hope to interest in the work of the British-Israel-World Federation.

Do not delay. Send your remittance at once, and so enable us to go forward with our campaign.

The subscription rates are 12/- per annum, 6/- for 6 months, and 3/- for 3 months, post free. Canada and U.S.A. $3.00 per annum.

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

BRITAIN AND ITS RELATIONSHIP TO THE BIBLE.—II.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

NOW, with regard to the story of this Book. A certain Canon got into the daily Press the other day with the story of his failure to believe. He could not believe in the Flood! He could not see any continued story in the Book! No doubt he spoke his experience. But it was not the fault of the Bible. The Bible is one continued story. It begins in the first chapter of Genesis and it ends in the last chapter of Revelation. In all the mass of Bible literature, which took twelve centuries or more to produce, there is not a single extraneous thing. It is one story in its various branches from the beginning right down to the end.

The Bible forms the great highway of Israel history. No main street of any city is better or more clearly marked. There are plenty of inviting bye-ways, and promising lines of branching enquiry, but here is the steady highway along which have been marching for ages, and are still marching, the millions of Israel. From Genesis to Revelation it is a great highway of truth. In the main highway of history, in the contemporary branches of history which relate themselves to it, this Book is steadily marching forward, and forms one undivided whole.

Turn to the Table of Contents of the Bible. We do not know any page that is more interesting to the informed reader than just the one-half of that particular page. The book called GENESIS, or of Beginnings. What have you in that? The establishment of God's Household in the earth. There are eleven wonderful chapters; one to eleven, prior to the call of Abram. Scholars are still dealing with those chapters, wondering over them. There is one viewpoint from which the chapters should be read; that is to say, the viewpoint which relates them all to that which follows. In those chapters is given to us a synopsis of all preceding knowledge necessary to make the succeeding chapters and all the succeeding books of the Bible intelligible. Read the first eleven chapters with that in view, never forgetting that which is to follow, and I think it will be clear to every sincere mind that these chapters are exactly what, with our human understanding, with our logical faculties active, we should expect the Holy Ghost to give us in order to prepare the way for the great Revelation that was to follow. It is a marvellous synopsis of all preceding information, contained in just eleven short chapters. There is nothing else like it in all literature or human experience. Read it again and triumph in it. Then there comes the call of Abram and the establishment of the family.

EXODUS. Here the family is organized into the Kingdom.

LEVITICUS. The Kingdom organized for worship.

NUMBERS. The nation organized for administrative purposes.

DEUTERONOMY. The digest of Constitutional Law.

JOSHUA. The induction of the people into the Promised Land.

JUDGES. The functioning of the Constitution for four centuries, without King or Parliament.

I and II SAMUEL. The establishment of the Throne of David.

I and II KINGS. The history of the nations from the standpoint of the Throne and its administration.

Digitized by Google

I and II CHRONICLES. The ecclesiastical history of the nations.

PSALMS. The Hymn Book of the nation.

PROVERBS. The winnowed wisdom of the nation.

THE SONG OF SOLOMON. The Lord's love to His Bride, Israel.

ISAIAH, JEREMIAH, EZEKIEL, DANIEL, THE MINOR PROPHETS, Israel prophets all, sweeping right along the highway and each making his contribution to Israel history and prophecy and to Israel's spiritual life.

THE FOUR EVANGELISTS, beginning with the voice of Gabriel: "He shall be great, and He shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David, and He shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever, and of His Kingdom there shall be no end."

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES. "After that I will return and will build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and will set it up."

ROMANS. The Apostle Paul writes to the people dwelling in Rome, called saints. Who are these? "Saints" and "Israelites" are synonymous terms. A thousand years before St. Paul used the word, "saint" is declared by the Psalmist to be synonymous with Israel. "The children of Israel, a people dear unto Thee."

I and II CORINTHIANS, written to the people at Corinth, and thus he addresses them:—"Brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; And were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; And did all eat the same spiritual meat; And did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ." Whose experience is it? Israel's.

Thus on and on it goes through the Epistles into the glorious Apocalypse. And what have you then? The Holy City, the New Jerusalem coming down out of Heaven, and having twelve foundations, the Apostles; and twelve gates, one for each of the tribes of Israel.

There never was a more complete Book written; there never was a more consistent story presented, and if the Canon cannot find consistence and sequence in it, it simply is because he has not read it in a sequent way. It is not a Book that is diligently read. Why? Because when a young man is sent to the theological college, he is given text-books to read about the Bible, instead of the Bible itself.

Proceeding right through this whole Book there are the marching hosts of Israel. In the Old Testament and in the New; in the Mosaic dispensation; in the Christian dispensation; in the Millennium dispensation, right on to the end, the one unbroken story. Upwards of thirty-five or forty generations have been active in carrying it on, and we are doing our bit to carry it forward in our day and generation. When we fall, and the standards are passed on, our children will take up and carry on the same great story.

Not only is that the case chronologically through all the dispensations and all the millenniums; but this story follows the geographical movements of Israel. Where did the story begin? The story began at Ur of the Chaldees. A mythical place? A dream place? So the scholars said six years ago. But let us go and see what they have in the British Museum from Ur, and realize the historicity of that actual place from which Abraham came. It was our privilege, with others, to see the very remains of the bodies of men and animals that had lived and died in Ur of the Chaldees; we saw their ornaments, their dress, their weapons, their utensils. The Bible story begins there. It goes on to Mesopotamia, to Iraq, on to Canaan. Then down to Egypt; back again to Canaan, swings up to the north-east to the headwaters of the Euphrates, the place of Israel captivity, and goes to Babylon with Judah. It finally marches on westward into Europe with the marching hosts of Israel.

Some of the Bible was produced in Jerusalem; some elsewhere in Palestine; some in the land of the captivities of Israel; some over in the city of Babylon with Daniel; some again in Jerusalem during the Jewish return from the captivity. Then Galilee and Judea made their great contribution in the period of the Evangelists; then Europe—mark it—Italy, Greece, the Black Sea, on the Russian side where the Israel captivity then dwelt. Then with Isaiah, westward and northward with Israel in the Isles, the British Isles. And so on from Asia into Europe, and into Britain. Then, by prophecy, out to the heathen lands, and to the uttermost parts of the earth. This wonderful Book in its geographical movement goes not with the legions of Rome, but with the migratory movements of the Israel people. It is a story that lives. Listen, and you can hear the tramping of the feet of generations, and the inspired songs that began in the homeland of Israel—were taken up and carried on "to the sea"—"the Isles of the sea"—to "the uttermost parts of the earth." The marching feet and the singing voices sweep on over ocean and continent till the seven seas are traversed and the earth is girdled with the Empire of the "nation and company of nations" ordained of God to "establish the earth" and to "raise up again the tribes of Jacob"—and come right on to this very day. It is a marvellous thing, a triumphant thing. Join Britain and the Book together; join Jehovah, the God of Israel, the nation Israel, the House of David in Israel, Jesus Christ, the Redeemer of Israel and the coming King of Israel, and you have the triumphant march of Israel right out of the pages of the Bible in the sight of men and angels.

Let us go back for a moment to the genesis of the "Modernist" movement. You have to go beyond the present generation. The present generation of "Modernists" have forgotten from whence they sprang. Tom Paine was a founder of the "Modernist" movement. He said, There is the Bible with its covenants; the covenants made with the House of Israel—the covenant with the House of David. These covenants are scattered through the Book, in the Old Testament and in the New Testament. In addition to the covenants there were material promises galore; and, above all, there are prophecies filling much of whole books. The Bible is so bound up with the nation Israel, and with covenant, promise and prophecy made to Israel, that it is caused to stand or fall by the continuance or disappearance of that nation. Tom Paine said, Where is the nation Israel o-day? I think he wanted to find it, but could not. I think he was convinced that he was right, that the Israel nation had disappeared ages ago, and that therefore covenant, promise and prophecy had failed. Bradlaugh said the same thing, moving in another stratum of society. Then in the University world came Dr. Driver. He faced the situation after a generation of struggle. In pages 39, 40 and 41 in his book on Jeremiah he said: "It must be evident that many of these promises have not been fulfilled, and that now circumstances have so changed that they never can be fulfilled."

Thus he surrendered to Paine and Bradlaugh, and thus travelled with them.

What then? Tom Paine said, "I do not want any more of the Bible." Bradlaugh said, "The Bible has broken down." Dr. Driver said, "No, transform the promises into ideals. Transform covenants into ideals which God would fain see realized in the life of His people and of all men, and there is your easy way out."

They all built upon the fallacy that Israel had disappeared.

Our reply is: Israel is present. The covenants stand; the promises are kept; the prophecies are fulfilled. Israel is here. What is she doing? Three thousand years ago she began her work of colonial expansion by building Tadmor in the wilderness, under Solomon. That was the first great march out to constructive work in the wilderness.

What has she done in your day and your fathers' day? Sailed across oceans and marched across continents. For instance, she landed on the eastern shores of the American Continent. She found Indian tribes only occupying the measureless forests of North America. She swept right across that continent; and on it has caused to arise such an organized material civilization as the world has never looked upon before. Israel gone? It is like a man standing looking out of a window and asking "Where is the house?" Israel disappeared? It is a fallacy. Israel is a going concern. It is one of the greatest facts on earth, clear as the sun in the heavens, and in the fact that Israel is a going concern among the nations, fulfilling the destiny foretold, inheriting the covenants, enjoying the promises, and carrying out the mission God has ordained she should, is the glorious demonstration that this Book proceeded from the Mind and Heart of Almighty God.

The Bible is necessary to Britain, and you see Britain and the Anglo-Saxon world are necessary to the Bible. The Evangelical says to me, You are making too much of the national. Am I? Think for a moment, my brother. I will go with you all the way to the Cross with just as great zeal and just as great humility as you, and preach the Gospel, that it is the Blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, that cleanseth us, individually and nationally, from all sin. But I say to you that where I can carry on you must stop, for the Evangelical never yet has been able to demonstrate historically that this Book has not broken down with the disappearance of Israel. By the grace of God we can do so.

Trace the lines, then. Let us present a solid front to the enemy wherever he may be; and on the other hand, by the preaching of the twofold Gospel, let us win first the nations of Israel, and through them the whole world, for God and for His Christ.

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

THURSDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 3RD.

THE FULFILMENT OF THE GREAT PYRAMID'S STORY.

MR. DAVID DAVIDSON, M.C.

I WANT to be candid in regard to this remarkable demonstration*, and to say, in the first place, that I wish it to be clearly understood that I am nothing more than a mere interpreter, interpreting the geometical or symbolical language into the English language, and into the terms of modern science, precisely in the same way as a Greek or Hebrew scholar would translate the documents of the New Testament, or the documents of the Old Testament into the English language. The symbolic King of the Pyramid is Jesus Christ, and on all occasions when I speak I always emphasize that. I stand here not as a preacher, but as a scientific man, who has demonstrated to his own satisfaction that these things that the Pyramid by mere translation of terms have revealed to me are true, and that the Bible is true. It has even opened up hidden things in the Bible, and the Bible has opened up hidden things in the Pyramid. Now I have the greatest possible difficulty in conveying my sentiments and my enthusiasm for this subject to an audience as large as this. I always try to express these things in a form of judgment. I have had a lot of experience of the Law Courts in my profession, and in giving expert evidence, and I cannot keep away from that form. I am going to try to keep to my typescript, but with some interjections here and there I will endeavour to make my address as "alive" as possible.

So many rapid and significant developments in Great Pyramid research have taken place during the past year that it is almost impossible to deal with them in an address. Concurrently there have been rapid and astonishing developments in the course of current events—developments of such an abnormal nature that I have had the hardest work of my life to keep pace with them. My difficulties in the latter case were due not to the evidence being meagre or uncertain, but to the overwhelming super-abundance of evidence. This evidence from contemporary history, however, when catalogued and arranged, definitely proves that the greatest and final phase of the Great Pyramid's prophecy is

NOW IN COURSE OF RAPID FULFILMENT.

That is a very serious statement to make, and I make it because I know it to be true.

I will leave Mr. Goard, who follows me, to tell you what to do, but belief will not be stirred until the nation knows that Tribulation is on them. But these are not the only surface ripples of a great movement at the bed of the ocean. Indeed, so rapidly is the rate of fulfilment accelerating that it is already clearly impossible for anyone—whether statesman, economist, financier, industrialist, historian, or journalist, let alone the "man-in-the-street"—to follow with understanding the general trend of current movements without Divine revelation as his guide—such Divine revelation as is given in the Bible and in the Great Pyramid's scientific prophecy. It is being demonstrated that a continuous repetition of shocks, beginning with a mild intensity, and rapidly accelerating to a fierce intensity, can be accepted by humanity with a kind of complacent perplexity, and even with half-hearted optimism. It is this false complacency and this false optimism that are humanity's greatest dangers, that are the signs of spiritlessness and unspirituality, and that must be shaken out of humanity before there can be any change for the better.

We are beginning to understand now the meaning of some of our Lord's predictive statements concerning the conditions preceding the "Great Day of the Lord." For it has always been a difficulty to understand how the abnormal world distress and perplexity that were to precede that Day could fail to be observed by mankind as the "signs" of that Day approaching; and how, as our Lord predicted, that Day may come upon us "unawares" and as "a snare." He therefore told us to "watch" unceasingly, and warned us that only by unceasing watchfulness would the signs of the imminence of the Great Day be recognized. The signs are appearing in increasing numbers from day to day, not only in the newspaper reports of happenings at home and abroad, but in our daily personal contacts and experiences.

THE SIGNS ARE SO DIVERSE and so many that it requires unceasing vigilance to separate them from the context of thrills and hectic happenings that well-nigh obscure them; and unremitting labour to keep pace with the abstracting and cataloguing necessary for correlating "the signs" into a narrative of the current fulfilment of prophecy. I had thought the greatest task of my life was finished when "The Great Pyramid: Its Divine Message" was published. I now realize that I have a still more overwhelming task before me, and it is the task of giving a momentum to others, to convince this nation of ours that it must wake up in spirit; and the only way to do that is to show the nation what is happening. It is not a matter of being a pessimist. I wish you could see me playing with the Rugby boys, or when I meet my friends in other circles of life. I am the last man who wishes to discuss any dismal things. But these things are allowed in order to awaken this nation, to rouse it from its materialism, to bring it into the spiritual realm of things. And the Pyramid issue and the Bible issue portray this, that there will shortly be such a stirring coming out of this Tribulation which will be felt throughout the whole Empire, regenerating the spirit of this great race. Why? To give the initial spiritual momentum to the rest of humanity.

One most fruitful line of development in Great Pyramid research during the past year has been in the field of technical investigation. Although my professional work for many years has been in connection with the design and construction of monolithic structures, I have never been able to make a complete investigation into the development of structural design prior to the Great Pyramid. I saw I had all the data for such an investigation to hand, and that certain conclusions from the correlation of these data were inevitable, but I also saw that the fields of Great Pyramid research were what called for immediate pioneering and developing.

You do not know what these two years meant to me. When I was a youth I was the sole remaining one of both branches of my family that had been pioneers in the Colonies abroad, and always in connection with engineering. I was nearly broken-hearted because I was the only son, and every time I wanted to go abroad to the Colonies for real pioneering work in engineering something always stopped me. And I actually took up this hard study, in the first instance, as a kind of mental relaxation from those worries, and I found myself a real pioneer before I had finished. So that at the present moment I have been getting some sort of relief by getting back to some of these old things that I had not altogether dropped. It was not until the strain of this work began to tell heavily upon me in the course of the past year that I was compelled as a mental relaxation to take up the line of investigation that actually gave me the most satisfaction from the professional point of view. I do not mean that I dropped the old lines of study. I worked in all lines sometimes concurrently and sometimes alternately. In this way I was able to carry on over a period of somewhat unusual psychological strain, and, at the same time, to obtain fruitful results in all my lines of investigation. I do not suppose anyone here can understand the strain I have suffered through those who jump to conclusions about the Pyramid prophecies, and who get those conclusions put forward to destroy the foundations of work that has been going on for years.

The results of my structural investigations appeared in a technical journal and stand apart from any of my other contributions to Great Pyramid literature. I mention this fact since I prefer that my professional work and my studies in Great Pyramid prophecy should remain matters apart. In the present instance, however, the results of my technical investigations have had a singular repercussion in the field of Pyramid prophecy. I was able to show that all the stonework executed in Egyptian constructions prior to the Great Pyramid was carried out for the purpose of training the Egyptian native workmen to attain a standard of workmanship and a knowledge of monolithic construction necessary for the building of the Great Pyramid. This necessarily proves that the geometrical design of the Great Pyramid existed for several generations before work on the Great Pyramid began and before any stonework was built in Egypt. Now in my series of articles published in October, 1927, and entitled "Prophecy and the Great Pyramid," I had shown that ancient Egyptian tradition associated the Divinely-revealed plans for the Perfect Structure with the Architect Iemhotep. Recent excavations have shown definitely that Iemhotep was the architect of King Zoser, who lived less than a century before the work on the Great Pyramid began. Co-ordination of my recent technical work with the facts otherwise known now discloses that the plans for the Great Pyramid were not Divinely revealed in Egypt, but were brought into Egypt by Iemhotep, or were conveyed to him; and that the were passed on by Iemhotep to a successor, or successors. Egyptian tradition definitely states that the ideal plans of Iemhotep had "descended from Heaven," i.e., that they portrayed a Divinely-inspired Design. So we have a foundation in ancient Egyptian tradition.

Digitized by Google

Iemhotep was later "deified" as "the great architect," "the great artificer," and as "the great physician"—the original of Æsculapius. These appellations are significant when we remember that the ancient Egyptian tradition—preserved by the Copts—states that the Great Pyramid contained medical knowledge, as well as prophetic records, and astronomical knowledge and geometry. The medical knowledge is stated to relate to the medicinal virtues or properties of certain plants. The origin of this element of the tradition is very plain. Three parallel allegories run through the whole of the Pyramid's prophecies: (1) the Allegory of the Great Architect's Design for the Perfect Structure; (2) the Work of the Builders in constructing an imperfect structure; and (3) the Vegetation allegory of decay, germination in decay, and regeneration. The last allegory of regeneration relates to Death and Resurrection through the Second Birth, or spiritual Re-birth. The Great Pyramid's geometrical allegory is therefore the Great Physician's "Health" chart of the course of the spiritual malady of humanity.

THE "PERIOD OF RENEWAL" OR "REGENERATION"—

which is depicted as having already commenced—is revealed as the last stage of the "disease" working itself out of the symbolic "Body" under the guiding care of the Great Physician. You will remember that Mr. Arthur Weigall says that Iemhotep was later identified as the "son of God." This was clearly due to the confusion of Iemhotep with the true Great Architect, and with the true Great Master-builder and Physician, the true "Son of God," the "Master of the Pyramid," the Messiah of the Bible, Jesus Christ.

Now I have shown in all my works that the Great Pyramid portrays the year-circle as the symbol of the function of Jesus Christ in the allegory of yearly decay and regeneration in vegetation. The Pyramid's geometrical year-circle is also the geometrical symbol of the ¼ area of an ancient Egyptian land measure, the aroura, for measuring "the fruits" of the year. Four year-circles are therefore required to give the complete symbol of the aroura.

Now, the Pyramid's Antechamber is the chamber of the year-circle, and on the South Wall of the Chamber there are four vertical grooves over the Entrance Doorway to the Final Tribulation Passage. These are equal distances apart and clearly indicate the positions of the planes of four parallel year-circles. The geometry indicates this symbolism as relating to four parallel or concurrent lines of development of the work of Jesus Christ during the Tribulation period and in the King's Chamber or Judgment Period.

I had already shown in "The Great Pyramid: Its Divine Message," over five years ago, that one of these lines of development related to a revolution in industry due to mass-production by semi-skilled and unskilled labour. The new allegorical element—whereby the geometrical symbolism implies a "health" chart of the spiritual "disease" being brought to a head—reveals that the material signs of the present stage of the spiritual "disease" relate to overproduction (an unhealthy condition) leading to high pressure in those arteries of commerce and finance that supply luxury products and other artificial products, and to stagnation in those arteries of commerce and finance that maintain the flow of necessities. I do not need to remind those who have read my series of articles, "Prophecy and the Great Pyramid," published in May, 1928, that the disorganization of the system of international finance was portrayed as the central theme of the Pyramid's prophecy concerning the development of Tribulation from May 30th, 1928.

In a new series of articles, entitled "The Great Pyramid's Prophecy and Its Fulfilment," now in the Press, I have been able to delineate the whole development of the current financial crisis from its inception at May 30th, 1928. I have also been able to show how the prophetic warning indications of the

as I had interpreted them in successive phases of development in my various works and articles from 1921 onwards—accurately revealed the causes from which the current financial crisis originated.

I have said that the Pyramid's prophecy reveals humanity as suffering from a dangerous spiritual "disease," and that the "disease" has now reached its crisis. Let us go back to Jesus Christ when He spoke of these things. Think of His references to gold and to finance. Think of what He did to the money-changers in the Temple.

The British Empire and the United States have proved themselves to be the temple for the dissemination of the Gospel throughout the whole world. Think of that, and think of the analogy implied in that driving of the money-changers out of the Temple. I do not want to scare people about this money question, but I would recall to your minds the words of our Lord, when He said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Nations, however, are like the majority of men, who, fearing that they are suffering from a chronic disease, are afraid to risk a physician's diagnosis. For this reason the Pyramid's diagnosis is not popular. It will, however, have to be accepted and the prescribed treatment adopted before humanity can have any hope of recovery. The Pyramid's prophecy shows that the crisis centres on the British race, as upon a vital organic part of the human anatomy; that the "Great Regeneration" of humanity is impossible until this vital part has been restored to spiritual health; and that the Great Physician must be called in soon to effect the restoration.

A year ago I explained, from this platform, how the crisis had developed from the end of May, 1928, and quoted authorities, financial, economic and industrial, to prove that the crisis began at the latter date. In my new series of articles I have quoted many new authoritative statements that have been made during the past year to the same effect; and I have in my office a collection of such authoritative statements sufficient to stock a

BULKY WORK OF REFERENCE.

One of the surprising features of this collection is the recurrence of phrases descriptive of the nature of the current crisis, that are identical with phrases I had employed prior to the crisis to describe its nature, as this had been revealed by the Pyramid's prophecy.

One of the most persistently recurring types of phrasing, that establish my identity of conditions predicted and conditions fulfilled, relates to expressions descriptive of a "war of attrition," in which industrial and financial "battle-fronts" take the place of the fronts of actual warfare.

Few authorities are in a position better to realize the significance of the current situation than Sir Arthur Balfour, the Chairman of the Committee on Trade and Industry that issued the final "Balfour Report" on March 11th, 1929. In an article on the "Mystery of the Trade Depression," The Times Trade and Engineering Supplement (August 17th, 1929), this high authority states:

"I am convinced that before we get through we shall go through a harder period than we have yet seen, and one which will affect everyone . . ."

"In the end, you can't take more out of production than you can put into it, and, in my opinion, we have been trying to do this for some time. The facts have been hidden to some extent by our large accumulation of capital at home and abroad."

This statement of the situation confirms that the Pyramid's prophecy is being precisely fulfilled. For in the final crystallization of my interpretation of the Great Pyramid's prophecy in my May, 1928, series of articles, an almost identical statement was made. "In the crisis approaching," I then stated, ". . . we shall know that it is what one puts into the world that counts, and not what one takes out of it; that no gold standard or any other fictitious standard can have any value unless there is man-power to give it value . . ."

In this same relation, a leading article on "Self-Help in Industry," in The Times (February 27th, 1929), tritely observes that "There is something amiss in our whole outlook on the world." What, indeed, is amiss is shown, from the Pyramid's prophecy by the completion of my own previous statement in my 1928 series of articles, "In the crisis approaching, material well-being in the aggregate will depend upon spiritual fitness in the aggregate. Then shall we be brought to the realization of true values, and of the true principles of stabilization . . . that man-power is below par or above par in the realm of physical being according as spiritual man-power, in the aggregate, is below par or above par in the clearing house of spiritual values. At present we have arrived at the auditing stage of accountancy in our age of civilization, to find that our CIVILIZATION IS SPIRITUALLY BANKRUPT."

In consequence of our spiritual bankruptcy, attrition and penetration have been proceeding on many vital fronts, until after sixteen months of alternating hope and perplexity, with uncertainty ever present, the sociological framework of civilization is now already exhibiting signs of excessive fatigue and strain from a repetition of shocks and reactions it was never designed to bear. "The war on British trade," says the Referee (June 23rd, 1929), "is at the moment raging with catastrophic fury . . . attack comes from every quarter." The nature of these shocks and their origin in pre-war and post-war history have been accurately portrayed by the Great Pyramid's prophecy. The dates of origin were accurately given, and the critical epoch we have since experienced was accurately dated in this comprehensive and Divinely-revealed prophecy.

Truly, as The Times observes, "There is something amiss in our whole outlook on the world." Perplexity prevails and a bewildering surprise. Yet the eternal optimism of the human spirit makes light of all its crises and is slow to admit affliction. "Business as usual" is ever its slogan until reaction comes. We are still in this initial phase of our current time of affliction. It will be when reaction sets in that the Pyramid's Message will prove helpful and become a true guide. At present most people consider the rapid sequence of crises too complicated for understanding. And in this they are right. Wherein they are in error is that they leave the matter thus. Yet everybody is vaguely beginning to sense that something radically wrong has happened, and that something sinister lies in the background of recent and present happenings. Nevertheless, everybody holds to the hope that the time will come soon when all will be made clear; and that the world will resume its pre-war tranquillity, without further material sacrifice or drastic change in spiritual outlook and environment. It is this present half-hearted optimism that is withholding from humanity the actuality of the Pyramid's prophecy, and veiling from men the truth that this prophecy has been and is being fulfilled.

There is one aspect of Pyramid prophecy to which I find it necessary to direct attention, since none of my critics have seen this aspect, and but few of those who have read my works have appreciated its significance even if the aspect mentioned has been observed by them. This is, that the function of any exponent of the Great Pyramid's prophecy is simply that of interpreter, when he deals exclusively with matters relating to the Pyramid's scientific symbolism. Realizing this, I have striven, from first to last, to keep any matters of personal opinion out of my interpretation of the Pyramid's prophecy. I do not say that this is always easy, or that on all occasions I have been successful in keeping opinion from intruding. I can, however, truthfully say that, in such few cases as personal opinions have unwittingly intruded, their intrusion has been subsequently revealed by my personal opinion having proved wrong. What I wish to emphasize is that the Pyramid's when its own symbolic narrative is accurately translated into literary expression.

Let me give you an illustration of this. Seven years ago I disagreed with some of my friends here concerning a vital element of Old Testament prophecy. I continued to disagree on this particular question for over two years. It then occurred to me that the sphere in which we disagreed was one covered by a vital element of the Great Pyramid's prophecy that I had not up to that time developed. This afforded me an opportunity to test the matter in my own special sphere of study. I accordingly left the Pyramid's scientific symbolism to give its own allegorical narrative concerning this matter, and took special pains to close every possible avenue along which my own personal opinions might intrude themselves into the interpretation. The result of this rigid ruling concerning the principles of interpretation was that I found the Great Pyramid's prophecy confirmed the Scriptural interpretation upon which my friends here had so persistently insisted.

Digitized by Google

We cannot, however, all have things to our liking both ways of going, and so I have observed instances in which the Great Pyramid's prophecy has revealed that some of my friends here are not always right in their interpretative details relating to Scriptural prophecy—sometimes indeed in matters of vital consequence.

A year ago, when I spoke from this platform, certain identities between the prophecy of the Book of Revelation and the Great Pyramid's prophecy were gradually unfolding themselves. I did not realize this at the time. The Pyramid's prophecy had already indicated that finance was to play an important part in the development of the now current Tribulation situation. The Book of Isaiah had confirmed the economic nature of this phase of the current trouble. The next development came from a study of the prophecy of the Book of Revelation concerning Antichrist and his

ANTICHRISTIAN ORGANIZATION.

In following this line of study I adopted the method of excluding personal opinion that I had learned in the course of my study of Pyramid symbolism. In Revelation we have an analogous type of symbolism. I therefore catalogued and abstracted the various symbolic figures until I had all the attributes of Antichrist and his organization, and the attributes of the other related symbolic figures, extending their roots through both the Old and New Testaments. I co-ordinated the various elements of the prophetic extensions, by the Pyramid method of co-ordination, to supply its symbolic narrative. The result was amazing. A partial outline of this result has been dealt with in my series of articles now in the Press. To state the matter briefly, the result of my investigation showed that the Antichristian organization of the Book of Revelation was to gain control over the law of supply and demand by the manipulation of money in the world's markets and exchanges, "that no man might buy or sell save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name." This Scriptural line of investigation was completed in November of last year.

Before leaving this line of investigation I must refer to a remarkable comparison that holds between the Christian system and the Antichristian system. This is only fully seen when we compare St. Paul's predictive description of Antichrist, in 2 Thess. ii, with the symbolic attributes and actions of the Antichristian organization in Revelation xiii. Paul's Antichrist is the head of the Antichristian body of Revelation, and is manifested last—that is, after the body has been completed. This is a reversal of the development of the Christian body, whose head is Christ, Who was manifested first. This is figuratively appropriate, since every attribute, function and action of the Antichristian body and of Antichrist are the reverse of every attribute, function and action of Christ and the Christian body. Now let us translate the comparative terms of the two figures into Pyramid symbolism. Our Lord Jesus Christ, as the "headstone" and "chief corner stone," is the head of the body that is symbolized by the Great Pyramid. The body grows up into Him Who is the head. I am merely quoting St. Paul in saying this. Growth upwards therefore signifies spiritual growth. Growth downwards correspondingly symbolizes the inverse process, a striving towards a materialistic ideal, to an inverted apex. Here we have the symbol of an inverted pyramid. Now Jesus Christ is the standard of man's spiritual values, and gold is the standard of man's material values.

JESUS CHRIST IS THE APEX of the upright Pyramid and the Antichristian materialistic ideal is the apex of the inverted pyramid—the materialistic ideal, gold.

I ask you, therefore, to consider and to weigh carefully what I will quote from the leading article in last Friday's issue of The Times (September 27th, 1929). My own articles were then in the Press, and had been written and my diagrams prepared before the rise in Bank Rate on September 26th. I was able, however, in my final proof, to insert a note on the Bank Rate rise. The leading article in The Times on the day following the rise is entitled "THE RAISING OF BANK RATE." From this I quote the following:—

"The currency system of this country, as of every civilized nation, is based upon gold, and gold therefore forms the technical basis of the credit or banking system. Our gold stock forms the apex of a huge inverted pyramid of currency and credit, and, though small in relation to the whole, it constitutes in the present state of civilization the rock upon which all sound and stable monetary systems are founded. When all other means for making foreign payments, such as the sale abroad of goods, services, or securities, are exhausted, international debts can be discharged in one remaining commodity—gold. It is for that reason, and for that reason alone, that a gold basis is essential to a monetary system."

"In the past twelve months"—the article continues—"the stock of gold of the Bank of England has been reduced by over £40,000,000 . . . In addition in the same period nearly £40,000,000 of newly mined gold which has reached London has gone abroad, so that the aggregate loss of gold in the year has been nearly £80,000,000. . . . The inverted pyramid which rests upon the gold stock is larger than before the War, while the economic position of this country is weaker and its obligations are larger . . . . our great export industries have passed and are still passing through a period of unprecedented depression. For twelve months the foreign exchanges have moved steadily against us, except during one brief period that followed the raising of the Bank Rate to 5½ per cent. early in February last. This movement indicates that our means of foreign payment have been exhausted; hence exports of gold have had to be resorted to. These, however, have had no other effect than to check the decline of the exchanges; that is to say, they have prevented the pound from falling to a heavier discount in terms of foreign currencies."

The article from which I have quoted indicates that the abnormal gold movement of the past year compelled the rise in Bank Rate on February 7th, 1929, which marks a critical epoch for the British financial system, and consequently for the international financial system. The date is given by the Great Pyramid's chronological prophecy and is associated with—indeed it is indicated by—a geometrical portrayal of the symbolic number 666 IN THE BOOK OF REVELATION.

Digitized by Google

This is shown and is fully explained in my articles now in the Press. The number 666 is the number of the beast and is the symbol of the means that the Antichristian organization employs to control the world's money markets so "that no man might buy or sell save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name." That the application to gold is correct is shown by reference to 1 Kings x, 14, where it is stated that "666 talents of gold were brought to Solomon in a year." You will find that the significance of 666 is explained in my articles.

Now we have seen that The Times has applied the symbolism of an inverted pyramid to the current financial system as appropriately expressing the relationship that holds between gold and the credit system of civilization. The gold stock is the apex stone or "rock upon which all sound and stable currency systems are founded." In the upright Pyramid, however, Jesus Christ is the Apex-stone, or Headstone of the Corner, and "the Rock of our Salvation." One system is therefore the antithesis of the other. The symbolism of the inverted pyramid, however, is no new symbolism as applied to the credit system. It is a symbolism that is universally adopted by financial authorities.

At Whitsuntide of last year, the Financial Editor of the Observer (May 27th, 1928) remarked that "the pyramidical position that had been created was reaching the danger point." It proved indeed to be the "danger point" for the normal operation of the gold standard. For three days later, on May 30th, 1928—the date given by the Great Pyramid's prophecy for the beginning of the Final Tribulation—there began the artificially stimulated abnormal movements of gold that have upset the stability of international exchange during the past sixteen months.

The initial movement began with an abnormal shipment of gold from New York to London on May 30th. The continuance of this and the intrusion of other movements are fully dealt with in my articles. These show that whereas the pound sterling rate of exchange on New York had attained its peak or highest value for 1928 on May 30th, it rapidly fell from the latter date onwards, falling below the parity of exchange early in July.

It has remained steadily below par for fifteen months, in spite of two rises in Bank Rate totalling an increase of 2 per cent. in thirty-three weeks.

It will be seen that the situation is serious from the materialistic standpoint. The situation reveals the major cause of the abnormal perplexity and uncertainty that prevails in industry and commerce. Before relinquishing this place to Mr. Goard I must really draw your attention to the numerical symbolism of the numbers that the Pyramid deals with and the numbers that the Bible deals with, for they are REALLY ASTONISHING.

They are written in everyday life, and they are all pointing to this hour, and they are things you have got to watch. You find them in the Prayer Book crisis, even in the Church Assembly voting, the House of Lords voting, and in the House of Commons voting on the original Book and on the Revised Book, and they are all connected up with the Pyramid. The number who voted against the Prayer Book totalled 88—the number of Christ.

"INTERPRETATION."

"Many jump prematurely to conclusions concerning the interpretation of prophecy and the interpretative co-ordination of the 'signs of the times.' Many of the bases of interpretation have been inherited from the antagonisms and intolerances of the Middle Ages. Prophecy is not, however, for premature disclosure. The purpose of it is that it should form the basis of guidance for the age to which the particular prophecy applies and during which age, and not before, it should be interpreted. The current unveiling of prophecy conveys a warning that the fulfilment of prophecy is proceeding along lines divergent from those that many premature 'interpretations' have followed."

ISRAEL'S SPIRITUAL AWAKENING.

THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

We thank God for the overshadowing of the Presence of the Divine this week, and this night. What a wonderful demonstration of service Mr. Davidson has given us, working, as he is, bringing to us the secondary light of the testimony of the Great Pyramid to confirm the first luminary, the written Word of God! Both of these great lights reveal a chronological development, and a succession of circumstances and events which enable us to see the onward march of Jehovah, the God and King of Israel; and of the armies of Israel under His banner.

We are reminded of the time when our forefather, Jacob, selected a stone for his pillow, laid his head upon the stone, and slept and dreamed. In his dream he saw a ladder, the foot of it rested on the earth, and the top of it reached to Heaven. Thank God for the foot of the ladder which rested on the earth. Thank God for the rungs of the ladder that were down within the reach of our tread. Some want to cast the ladder loose from the earth, and spiritualize it wholly. But if we should do that we should never climb up by it. We could not reach the lowest rungs. "First that which is natural: afterwards that which is spiritual." Commence at the base of the ladder which rests upon the solid earth, and climb to the very Throne of God.

From a hundred different directions there come voices, and from a hundred different sources there comes light, the one audible and the other visible, showing to us this, that God's nation, the basis of His Kingdom, is to-day marching out from the pages of Divine prophecy.

For instance, in regard to the Continental nations. We read that Nebuchadnezzar the king made an image. It will not do to say only it was a golden image; it was that; but he made an image of gold. In connection with the dedication of that image he called the princes, the governors, the treasurers, the sheriffs; financial officers all—but not an ecclesiastic, not a priest among them, and he set up that image or standard of gold, of which Mr. Davidson has spoken to us.

The period indicated for the duration of the Continental system is seven times, and at the end of the seven times, as the imperial image crashed, so the image of gold will crash in due time.

When the imperial image crashed in the late Great War it tested all our physical manhood and spiritual courage. When the second image crashes it will test all our wisdom, statesmanship and financial ability to carry on.

WE SHALL HAVE TO CHANGE OVER from a system that is foreign to us, as the people of God, into that system which is Divine and God-given. We are passing through that crisis to-day.

In regard to Israel, when our Lord went away, I read in His own words that He called His ten servants, and delivered unto them His goods or money, and said to them, "Occupy till I come." "After a long time the Lord of those servants cometh and reckoneth with them," to see how much every man had gained by trading. The time of the auditing has come, the time when God's Israel will have voluntarily to surrender those values, putting them upon the altar, and turning to the higher spiritual values.

We will turn from that picture to this, for there are two panels to the picture. As one reads these wonderful chapters, beginning with the 36th Ezekiel and on, step by step, we find that the Lord predicted 2,500 years ago a succession of Divine actions, which we are living through at the present moment. What are they? Last night we read to you the Divinely-royal proclamation in regard to the Land of Palestine. That royal proclamation, in the long run, finally settles the question of Palestine. That land shall be given into the possession of the House of Israel—all of it—and no combination of wisdom, or will, or power, on earth can change that unchangeable purpose of God. Just as surely as Mr. Davidson has been showing to you that we have come to certain days and to certain experiences predicted in the Pyramid prophecies, so we say that we are coming in our national life to experiences definitely indicated in the Word of God. Such experiences are forming the history of our national life from day to day. In a sense we were all Futurists, we see prophecy that must of necessity be but that future has already begun. We do not mean what is usually meant by the Futurist School; we mean to say that there were prophecies in the future to be fulfilled, and we did not know how long. The Great Pyramid showed us the 4th August, 1914, and showed us the year 1917, and so on.

The Bible has pointed out to us the beginning of the fulfilment of that specific prophecy concerning the Land of Palestine. That beginning was when Allenby entered the land, and finally entered Jerusalem in 1917. From that point we have been marching out of, for instance, the 36th chapter of Ezekiel as a great army would march out of the gates of a city, taking possession of the land. What next? Mr. Davidson referred to Israel's spiritual awakening. Israel is to be cleansed from all its uncleanness, from all its idolatry; there is to be the taking away of the stony heart out of the flesh, and the putting within of a heart of flesh. That is the very thing for which God called us. The challenge is that we comply with the condition, the one condition that God has laid upon us as Israel His people. Thus saith the Lord, "I will yet for this be enquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them." We will, by God's grace, in prayer, in confidence, in faith, throw down the gauntlet to our people, to turn humbly to the Throne of God, and to say, "Lord, we pray Thee to do this great thing for us." The Spirit of God is breathing upon the people to-day. The Spirit of God is abroad amongst the people. And we say to our brethren in the ministry, and to ourselves,

IF WE DO NOT LEAD THE WAY to the Throne of God, the people will pass over us, and trample us in the going.

In Ezekiel xxxvii we read: "The hand of the Lord was upon me and carried me out in the spirit of the Lord, and set me down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones." "Then He said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord God, Thou knowest. Again He said unto me, Prophesy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the Word of the Lord. Thus saith the Lord God unto these bones; Behold, I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live." Here is this valley of skeletons, scattered over all the Anglo-Saxon world, a graveyard, with no spiritual life. The breathing and stirring of the Spirit of God comes upon them, and there is a shaking, a noise; then they take on the appearance of beautiful forms, perfect, re-created straight from the hands of God, but lifeless. Then the Spirit of God breathes into them the breath of life, and man, a second time, becomes a living soul. They rise up a mighty army of the living God, to acclaim Jehovah the King, and to enter the service of the Kingdom.

Thus in these majestic passages, step by step, God is leading forward, and His people are moving out. "Then said He unto me, Son of man, say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord God; Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain that they may live." Is it for me? Is it for you? Is it for the millions in this city? Is it for

THE MILLIONS OF ANGLO-SAXONS

—the inbreathing of the Divine Spirit? Is it possible now for Israel to rise as a mighty army to acclaim Jehovah the King and Jesus the Saviour? It is possible if we make it possible. Listen: "To-day, if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, as in the time of temptation in the wilderness; when your fathers tempted Me, proved Me, and saw My works." That is the whisper of His voice to-day in your heart and in mine; the breathing of His Spirit over the multitude of dead souls that they may live.

There came to me the father of one of the Empire's great men. He said, "Mr. Goard, I am a British-Israelite, but that is not enough. I want to know that I am accepted by Him, that I may go to see His face by and by. I want you to pray for me." There came a lady this afternoon, and she said, "I am going to become a member of your Federation, but I am not really a Christian yet. I should like to be." "Then," I said, "listen, it is the voice of the Father, 'Son, Daughter, give Me thine heart.' What is your answer?" and she said, "I will." That does it. May I pass that on to you. Listen to the voice of the Spirit. "Son, Daughter"—lovely words—"give Me thine heart." What is your answer? Let us, each one, make answer to our Father, "I will."

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 4TH.

ISRAEL AND JUDAH IN PALESTINE.

THE REV. COMMANDER L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N. (Chairman).

I should like to call your attention, not only to the definite position in which we have come as a nation, but as a Church. The last time I stood before you we were in that position when we were looking for a special revival in our nation to take place about this time. I think we see now that revival actually beginning. May I remind you of what the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury said yesterday in the Scottish Assembly in regard to the union of the Churches? It amounted to this, "No union with Rome," because we could not agree to any union with anything which does not give Christ the position which is His right position in the Church; and because the Roman system will not help us in prayer. We have done all that we could to bring about the union of Christendom, but Rome would have nothing but submission to herself, and we cannot submit to any such system; we submit only to the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. Some centuries ago the same answer was given to the monk, Augustine, who landed on these shores. We had a British Church then. But in the eastern portion of Britain at that time it was impossible for the people, however good they were, to preach the Gospel during that time, which was a time of devastation and war. And the good Bishop who was at the head of the British in the West told the people that they were to comport themselves in such wise as that the Saxons should say, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord," and that they were to do all they could for the good of those who were their enemies. But, at the same time, the Saxons would have nothing to do with our Church; they tore down the Churches, they destroyed the episcopate, and drove them right into the West. No wonder that for a long time the British people were incapable of doing anything towards the Christianizing of the Saxons. And it was during that time that Rome came in. If you read the greatest authority on the early Christianity of that time, you will find that if Rome was successful at all, she was successful only in one county, that is Kent; the rest of the counties were Christianized by the Celt or the British, and also by the Gaelic Churches. So that even England owes its Christianity mainly to the original British and Celtic peoples.

Now, I wish to speak for a few minutes upon what is, I suppose, the most that our Government has to contend against. You have heard that passage of Scripture read, "The burden of the Word of the Lord upon Israel." If a burden is laid upon you, you have got to bear it. "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." The burden of Jerusalem is placed upon Israel, not upon Judah. God has given Jerusalem into our hands. He has signified thereby to all who have eyes to see and ears to hear that, Jerusalem and the Holy Land being delivered out of the hands of the Turk, the time has come which our Lord alluded to when He said, "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Are those words true? We know they are. But have we trodden down Jerusalem? What have we done? We delivered it. We did not even take possession of it in such a way as to say we were conquerors. We said that we were deliverers, saviours of the people.

Now I am not going into the complex question of the Arab and the Jew, but I will say this—we are not as a nation, as a government, going to give up Jerusalem. That does not mean to say that we are going to support Zionism. It means to say that we are going to protect the Arabs and the Jews—all will have the same treatment under a just Government, under a holy law, and they will learn very soon that, after all, the government of Israel is a true and just government.

Then we come to the struggle. Do you know that Russia is undermining Turkey, is undermining Rome, for the possession of Jerusalem? They are quite sure we are tired of it, and that we are going to yield up the Mandate. That Mandate we ought never to have accepted. We ought to have without the Mandate. But because we yielded to the Mandate, the Word of God tells us that we are to bear the shame of the heathen, that is, of the other nations, that we are yet to be the taunt and scorn of the enemy. We are to be upon the lips of talkers. Who are they? The League of Nations is going to take it into their hands at the dictate of the other Powers, and they are going to try to make us give up Palestine. But we shall never do that. Why? Because God's Word says that He Himself will guide matters in such a way that we shall no more be the shame of the heathen, nor of the residue of the nations round about us. God, in some way or another, will overrule all the deliberations.

But that is not all. "Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of trembling unto all the people that come round about her." Judah is going to be a trouble, because Judah thinks the land belongs to her. We are told in another passage, "In that day Judah shall be a terror to the land of Egypt." You cannot understand that unless you follow the things that are taking place in Egypt, and what is going to take place as a result. It was not Egypt's fault that the British troops went to Jerusalem and to Palestine. But there they are.

Now what is the next great thing that is to take place? I am not going into the complex question as to how this is coming about, but the Word of God tells us. The next great question is this, that the Northern army is to come, with a very great force, and with many ships. Who are they? Which is the Northern army? Micah puts it in this way, "When the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise up against him seven shepherds, and eight principal men," that is, eight great leaders. And if you count the nations which are on our side by the Treaty of Locarno, and the tenth part of the city that is to fall away at this present time, there are eight. Now those nations are to come against us. What nations have got ships, and what nations are wanting to assert power in the Mediterranean? I can number three. I can see also the apparent tranquillity in which we are viewing things that are to come. Suddenly —we shall be taken aback.

Now if you will look at the return of Israel you will see these words: "They shall pass through the sea with affliction, and the sceptre of will pass away." Why? Because the Bible puts it clearly before us that God Himself is going to stand up in the sea because of His oath to the tribes of Israel, because the enemy has secretly combined its forces in such a way as to collect their navies and armies, and at a given moment to come down upon the Promised Land.

If you will look at the return in the 11th Isaiah you will find that Israel on the sea is to come from the West. The Northern army will come down upon God's people in Palestine. And God says that He will rise in His chariots and horses in the sea. We may be small, we may seem to be contemptible. At the time when Napoleon wanted to land in Britain, all our ships were decoyed away, and Nelson thought he had better be quick and come back, and he came back just in time. Something may happen which would decoy our Fleet, but "the Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge." And all the nations that come against Jerusalem shall be destroyed. There are passages also with respect to the nations that come against Egypt. So that God is going to protect both the land of Judah and the land of Egypt. But the Egyptians who break their vow with us are punished by God, and they will see that there is no other Saviour. Israel vowed a vow unto the Lord, and they keep that vow, and they will keep that vow after they have been punished. The mouths of the river dry up, and a way is made to pass over into Assyria, and from Assyria into Egypt. And an earthquake takes place at and all the hosts of the Northern army, however many there may be, will be gathered together there at Armageddon. "Cause Thy mighty ones to come down, O Lord." If you want to know how these mighty ones come, it is all laid down at the end of the 9th chapter of Zechariah: "When I have bent Judah for Me." We have got, through God, to bring Judah to Christ, and when we have brought him to God, then the great battle takes place, and the Jubilee trumpet is blown. The walls of Jericho fell down at the sound of the trumpet.

God shall blow with the trumpet, and the armies that are defending are to come from the South, and the tribes of Israel from the East and from the South, they are to return together with those in the North and in the West, and the mountain of Zion will be for ever in the possession of God's people Israel. You may think there is nothing about Esau in it. It is all about Esau. If you will read the 35th and the 36th chapters of Ezekiel, you will find that you have not done with the Turk yet. But the Kingdom is to be the Lord's; and the Lord shall come, and all His saints with Him. There is a tremendous work being done amongst the Jews. They are turning in their hundreds and thousands to the Lord Jesus Christ. They have actually told me that if we would only build a Church in Jerusalem, or just outside, they will give us the land, and that Church shall be the heritage of both Israel and Judah, to turn the people to God.

THE LAW OF SINAI.

THE REV. R. G. F. WADDINGTON, M.A.

I tried yesterday afternoon to establish this principle with you, that it did not matter what people said about the Bible; what really matters is what the Bible itself says. Some of you may have read literature against our British-Israel teaching. I think I have read practically everything that has been written against us, and I think I should be justified in saying that the only book that is worth reading is that by the Rev. Samuel Hinds Wilkinson, entitled "British-Israelism Examined." I would make so bold as to say, that if you will take the trouble to read his book along with the Bible, if that book does not make you a British-Israelite, I shall be surprised. You will find that Mr. Wilkinson, in his arguments against us, runs on two lines. He takes our texts and he invariably tries to show that the original Hebrew does not mean that, but that it means something else. Now, when a man wants to change the meaning of either the Authorized or Revised Versions, you may be pretty sure that he has an axe to grind. The Authorized and Revised Versions of the Bible are the product of the united scholarship of the best Hebrew and Greek scholars of 1607 and 1881. Are you going to accept the word of a single man against their translations and verdicts? Yet Mr. Wilkinson is everlastingly trying to show you that the original Hebrew does not mean what the Authorized and Revised Versions say it does mean. And his second line of argument is this, that you must not take the Scriptures literally, you must always try to find the spiritual meaning. Well, here is an example. The Bible speaks of "the Isles of the West"—will you spiritualize that? Will you tell me that you can spiritualize any geographical expressions? The danger in Mr. Wilkinson's advice lies in this, that if you are going to spiritualize these passages, which means putting your own interpretation on them, you are going to open the door for every single one of the "isms" that ever existed. We must stick to the plain meaning of Scripture.

There is another point that will emphasize the same idea. A few weeks ago I was speaking at a men's service in a certain parish and the Vicar was there. There was not the least need for him to have said anything at all—but he did. I had been taking for the basis of my address Ezekiel xxxvii, 14, and he would have it that all Israel and Judah were reunited at the end of the Babylonian captivity in 536, and that, consequently, from verse 15 onwards of that chapter of Ezekiel, prophecy had been completely fulfilled. So I asked him, Where was the throne of David reigning over the House of Judah? "That is for the future," he said. He was trying to argue that some of the prophecies were for the future, and that some of them had already been fulfilled. I said he could not have it both ways, so which would he have? "It was all for the future," he said. You must admit that Israel and Judah are still separated if the union is still in the future. "That does not make Britain Israel," he argued. "If Israel and Judah are still to be united, where is Israel?" I asked. "I do not know." "Then why argue with a man who does?" I replied.

Let us examine some of the details of

THE LAW OF SINAI.

I want to give you one or two examples which will show the profound wisdom of the Law, as well as its common-sense justice. In Exodus xxi, 18, we read that if one man injure another, the assailant shall pay the injured one for the loss of his time and cause him to be thoroughly healed. Nowadays the penalty for assault is sometimes imprisonment, and sometimes a fine. But the injured person does not get any compensation and has to pay his own doctor's bill. Our modern critic tells us he has no use for the Law of Sinai, but, tell me, is not its provision here infinitely more just, more sensible, and far more likely to achieve good results in preventing assault than our own "improved" method? Or, if you examine Exodus xxii, you will find out how God lays down the important principle of the rights of property. It is well worth noticing that this principle runs absolutely counter to the principles of Marxian and Fabian Socialism, which are so popular to-day, and it justifies me in saying that no one who truly regards God, and God's Word, can ever be a Socialist. Exactly the same clear, common-sense justice of the Law is seen in Lev. vi. Nowadays people defraud their neighbours, they bring ruin or severe loss to their clients, and our law makes no provision for restitution. We talk about the disgrace of imprisonment and the agony of mind produced by it. But is not this talk mere empty sentimentalism in most cases? If this disgrace, this so-called agony of mind, were a reality, would it not act as a real deterrent in crime? Of course it would. But the fact remains that crimes of fraud are very much on the increase, and our man-made laws are proved to be utterly inefficient, for they fail in their chief purpose—that of preventing crime.

Now we British have the principle of the Law of Sinai in our administration of the Law, for we have the Mosaic principle of innocence till guilt is proved. Why, then, accepting and being guided by the principle, do we not put into practice the enactments and penalties of the Law of Sinai? But we shall be told that any suggestion on our part to return to the details of the Law of Sinai is a retrograde step, and that it is expressly discouraged by Paul, and that if we are to give heed to what the Bible says, to the plain word of Scripture, we shall conclude that the Law of Sinai is done away in Christ. "The Law was our schoolmaster or tutor to bring us to Christ, that we might be justified by faith." Therefore, "how turn ye back again to the weak and beggarly elements" seeing that "as many as are under the works of the Law are under a curse?" Well, those quotations are correct, but we shall be very foolish if we jump to the conclusion that because we are not under the Law we are outside it. We ought not to read into Paul's words something that he did not intend to convey. A moment's thought will show us that Paul was not advocating the setting aside of the Law and its enactments, simply because Christ has come, saving men freely by His grace. Would you dare to say, for example, that the Ten Commandments are not binding upon you because you are a Christian, justified by faith? Of course you would not. Exactly the reverse. You would say that the Law was all the more binding upon you inasmuch as the Lord Whom you serve put a fuller and deeper meaning upon it in the Sermon on the Mount. For example, Jesus took the sixth and seventh Commandments and made them apply, not only to the act, but to the very thought which prompts the act. If Jesus, therefore, made the

and forceful in their application, how shall we say that to return to the Law is a retrograde step? Would it not be far wiser if we had another look at Paul's words to read what he said? And we shall find that what Paul is talking about is justification and salvation. He is not considering the application of the Law to civil life, he is not talking about the penalties of the Law—and we have already seen how common sense is the Law's application to civil life—he is talking about salvation. Up to the coming of Jesus, the safety of the Israelite—and Paul is clearly not considering anybody but the Israelite, for the Law of Sinai was never given to, and never applicable to, non-Israelite people—up to the coming of Jesus the Israelite's hope of safety lay in keeping the Law—and Paul says, what we must all recognize as true, that it was a burden "neither we nor our fathers were able to bear." But when Jesus came, safety lay in faith in Him. That is Paul's argument in a nutshell. Safety is now in Jesus, and not in the keeping of the Law. We can all see, surely, how difficult it is to keep all the details of the Law of Sinai—how difficult even to keep to the principle of it. But breaking even a small detail of it is breaking the Law—isn't it? Even as John says, "Whosoever committeth sin, transgresseth also the Law, for sin is the transgression of the Law." But inasmuch as all have sinned, all are transgressors of the Law, and therefore all have failed to keep the conditions of safety under the Law. Does that mean that by preaching faith and grace we are making the Law of none effect? "No," says Paul, "God forbid; we establish the Law."

So then we shall not rashly conclude that our British-Israel respect for the Law is a retrograde step, a returning to the weak and beggarly elements. But there is a further consideration for us. The Law of Sinai is concerned with two elements, a civil element and a religious element. It has regulations governing the relationships between man and man, and it has regulations governing the duties of man to God. Many of these latter regulations, the ordinances directing Israel's worship, have of necessity ceased to have practical meaning, for they pointed forward to Jesus as our Mediator, and foreshadowed His supreme Sacrifice.

Just a few examples will suffice. In the Feast of the Passover, Israel not only commemorated her deliverance from Egypt, but partook of a ceremony that prefigured sacrificed for us." Again, the Golden Candlestick, which was the one light of the Tabernacle, prefigured Christ the Light of the world. Whilst yet again, the Day of Atonement teaches of Christ; and by its definite ritual shows how our sins are borne away from us by the propitiatory death of Christ. And so it is possible to go through the story of the Tabernacle, noting its details, and through the feasts and sacrifices of Israel, noting their details, and to see in all a picture of Jesus Christ. When Paul speaks then of the weak and beggarly elements of the Law, is he not referring to these things, and telling us that we want none of them now that Christ is come?

"CHRIST OUR PASSOVER,

Digitized by Google

The extraordinary thing about a certain section in the Church is that they delight in ritual and forget all about the Divine Law. They go frantic over incense, but they do not trouble to keep the Ten Commandments. You do not need the Mosaic ritual now that Christ has come. And Paul's reference to this ritual and to these old sacrifices as weak and beggarly elements is a justifiable one, and will be understood if we think for a moment. For however important the ritual law might have been, however prophetic in its pictures of Christ, yet, after all, it gave a very inadequate representation of Christ, and it was feeble in its results. Just as a photograph may be useful as a reminder, but it is very inadequate, very weak as a substitute for the personality represented.

The Law of Sinai then, so far as its religious side is concerned, is done away in Christ, and is no longer appropriate nor applicable. But the Law of Sinai, in its regulations for the conduct of man's relations with his fellow-man, is still appropriate and still applicable, and I am sure that the practical application of it would be beneficial to citizenship in the world of to-day. Of course it is easy for the well-versed Bible student to find details that are not applicable, or which do not seem to be applicable. For example, you may pick out the laws governing the food that was allowable to the Israelite, and you may argue that by the vision shown to Peter in Acts x, and by the words of Jesus Himself, "Not that which entereth into a man defileth, but that which cometh out of the man defileth him"—you may argue from these that the ancient law was abrogated, and that it is, therefore, lawful for man to eat pork, or any other food forbidden by the Law of Sinai. It is, indeed, so argued, but I must confess that I do not find the argument conclusive, and I am distinctly of the opinion that if the Law of Sinai were operative in this matter of food, we should be a healthier people.

It is easy to argue, too, that many of the regulations of the Law of Sinai were made for an agricultural people, and cannot apply to an industrial age. For example, how could the Law of the Sabbath year apply to-day? And I am willing to admit that there are very serious difficulties in the way. But I am not willing to admit that those difficulties are insurmountable. And, further, I would argue, Industrialism has brought so many distressing evils in its wake, that the sooner we get back to the better it will be for the land. Am I not right when I say that one of the greatest curses of to-day is that men are employed in luxury trades, or in non-productive labour, whilst the land, which needs cultivating, and which, in the last resort, is the only true livelihood of man, is being more and more neglected? Having learned then that the Law of Sinai is not completely archaic, but that it is both common sense and practicable, let us see how the Bible develops its use; for, next to the Gospel of Salvation, and, indeed, fundamental to the Gospel of Salvation, is this Law of Sinai.

We shall all agree that the system of Law under which a people lives is vital to the welfare of that people. The happiness and the progress of a people is affected for good or ill by the system of Law, as much as by the religion of the people—as often as not, indeed, the national Law is tied up with the Religious Law—as it was with Israel. Here is an illustration of what that means. The British Government in India have been trying for years to raise the age for the marriage of girls. They have wanted to make sixteen years the limit; and at last, after great difficulty, they have succeeded in making it fifteen years. The opposition has come altogether from Hindu and Mohammedan religious leaders, on the ground that the reform interfered with the religious law of the natives. So you see how the happiness and progress of a people is vitally connected with the Law system of that people.

Now the Law of Sinai was given to Israel to train them for the service of God, and to lead them to Christ. What is the verdict of the New Testament upon that Law? Paul writes not only that it was our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ; but that it was the most commendable Law ever framed for man, "Verily if there had been a Law which could have given life—righteousness would have been by the Law." Evidently, in Paul's view, it was a Law ideally suitable for the training of Israel, a Law whose principles were so upright that at least it tended to pave the way for the more perfect Law of liberty in Christ. And is it not true to say that the excellence of British rule, when compared with the rule of other nations, is due to the fact that, however imperfect, however administered, it is yet built up upon exactly the same principle as that of Sinai; that is to say, it is built upon the principle of holding every man innocent till his guilt is proved.

I am aware that it is possible to criticize the administration of the Law, even in England, that sometimes there is real ground for the proverbial saying that the "Law is an ass"—but do not these criticisms apply to the administration, and not to the Law itself? Do they not arise because even a perfect Law has to be administered by imperfect men, with prejudices and cranks, which it seems impossible to eliminate? We are sometimes told that justice is cold and unsympathetic. Surely it has to be, if it is to be justice, lest sympathy make men blind to actual facts. Yet because, as I have said, men are but men, mistakes and injustices will follow, and no human administration can be flawless.

On the other hand, our British rule, whether at home or abroad, will bear comparison with that of any other people, and in the comparison will far outshine every other rule. And, consciously or unconsciously—more probably unconsciously—the principles of Sinai have entered into the soul of Britain to such an extent that our reputation for justice is recognized by those who are really most competent to judge—the so-called backward races. Here is a single illustration. During the wild rumours reached the Arabs of Arabia to the effect that Jews and British were allied in an attempt to wipe out the Arabs of Palestine, and make wholesale war upon the Moslem faithful. Fifteen hundred of them thereupon set off to fight for their brethren. The Government sent out a single police officer, Major Partridge, to hold parley with the Arabs. Why only one? Because it was realized that to send out a force would have had the effect of convincing the Arabs that the rumours were correct. The one man was sent, and persuaded the Arabs that the rumours were not true—the facts of the case were stated as accurately as possible, and, on the word of a single Briton, the Arabs returned home.

RECENT TROUBLES IN PALESTINE,

So, though the Law as we hold it to-day is not perfect, though we have added to the Law of Sinai rules of our own invention, though we have taken from it many things that are both useful and common sense, yet it remains the best system of Law the world has known. Indeed, you have but to ask yourselves a question or two in order to realize the truth of what I have just said. For which of us would be willing to exchange our system for that which obtains on the Continent? Which of us would care to see the Russian or the Mohammedan system established in place of our own? Who would prefer the principle that every man must be held guilty till he establishes his innocence? Very well, then, let us admit that our system is better, and, in admitting it, let us recognize that it is our inheritance from Sinai, an inheritance which we must share, through our direct efforts, with the other nations of the earth, until all nations come under that system of Law which, given to Israel at Sinai by God, does of necessity express a principle in the eternal truth of God.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

ON Wednesday next, December 11th, at 8 p.m., the Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Herbert Garrison will speak in the Town Hall, Chiswick. Major J. Knowles will preside and will be supported by the Rev. Sidney Osbourne Goodchild, Vicar of Christ Church.

On Thursday and Friday next, December 12th and 13th, we are to celebrate the Twelfth Anniversary of the Deliverance of Jerusalem in the Central Hall, Westminster. The Rev. Pascoe Goard is to give addresses each day at 2.45 and 8. He will deal with "The Divine Proclamation concerning Palestine, compared with the Balfour Declaration," and kindred subjects of great importance. Mr. Garrison will exhibit and describe a series of beautiful lantern pictures at each meeting. Major Knowles, Mr. John Leech, K.C., and Major Richard Rigg will be the Chairmen. Admission is free. All are cordially invited to attend and bring their friends.

Miss E. Haynes will give an address at Headquarters on Wednesday afternoon next, at 3. There will be no meeting at Headquarters on Thursday evening next, owing to the lectures at Central Hall.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. John Leech gave addresses at Headquarters on November 25th, and the Rev. E. A. Couldrey and the Rev. Joseph Gay on November 27th and 28th.

Mr. John Leech, K.C., will commence a new series of addresses on "Prophecy" at Headquarters on January 8th (D.V.), at 3, and continue each Wednesday until further notice.

Mr. Garrison has lectured at Preston, Watford and Beckenham; Sir Murray Hyslop presided at the last named. The Secretary-General has also visited and spoken for the Branches at Liverpool, Watford and Preston.

The Rev. T. H. Whitehouse has had a busy time with meetings in the Midland Area. The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., has been speaking at Ealing, Highgate, Holloway, Stratford and Welwyn; the Rev. E. A. Couldrey at Exeter, Southend and Hornsey; Mr. J. J. Morey at Folkestone, Acton, Earlsfield, Bristol, Bath, Nailsea, Bradford-on-Avon, Portsmouth and Gosport; the Rev. Pascoe Goard at Folkestone; Miss Hamilton Hunter at Chatham, Sydenham and Blackheath; the Rev. Joseph Gay at Salisbury, Fordingbridge, Chichester, Bognor, Fittleworth, Sutton, Worthing and Ealing; Mrs. Bloxam at Chudleigh and Bradford-on-Avon.

To meet the demand expected for this issue of this journal several hundred extra copies have been printed.

An American financial expert estimates that the recent losses owing to the Wall Street slump amount to eight thousand million pounds sterling. This is the amount which the Great War cost Britain.

Two forceful lectures were given by Mr. J. J. Morey at Tunbridge Wells on November 19th to good attendances. After the afternoon address many stated that they now understood much better the Truth we were teaching. Local interest is growing.

At a meeting of the Durham Branch on November 14th the Rev. G. W. Plasting gave a most interesting and instructive address, entitled "The Government of Emancipation." In this Mr. Plasting gave a description of the different forms of government. In the beginning Israel was under God's Government—Theocracy. This was succeeded by Autocracy—government by one—the Pharaohs and the Cæsars, for instance; then Bureaucracy—government by the few—was attempted; then Democracy—government by the people, now so prevalent. "We shall have to get back to the Government of God" said the lecturer, "either willingly, of our own volition and by prayer, or be brought back to it through suffering." Mr. Plasting closed his address by urging all to pray that our King will call the whole nation to prayer.

The Rev. R. G. F. Waddington has given two fine lectures at Bradford recently—"The Abrahamic Covenant" and "Israel's High Priest," in the first showing the force of this Covenant, and in the second that the relationship of the High Priest and the Levites to Israel is precisely the same as that of Israel (Britain) to the world—SERVICE.

An interesting address on "The Druids and their Religion" was given by Mr. S. E. Steele at Ilkley on November 12th to a good attendance, and many expressed the desire that Mr. Steele would come again and continue the theme.

"British-Israel meetings were held at the Town Hall, Folkestone on Wednesday. At the afternoon meeting the Rev. Pascoe Goard, who was supported on the platform by Colonel Smythe, Alderman Dearden, Mr. John Morey and Lieut.-Colonel du Pre, D.S.O., gave an excellent address to a large and very appreciative audience, on 'Events and Portents in Palestine.'

"In the evening Mr. Morey gave a splendid lecture on his trip through the Holy Land. Mr. Morey took his audience step by step in his travels.

"Alderman Dearden, ex-Mayor of Rochdale, gave his reasons for starting his campaign, 'Rochdale for Christ.' As a Christian man, he had always felt the urge to win souls for Christ, and had visualized, when he was elected as Mayor, the possibilities and responsibilities which accrued from such a position. Through the instrumentality of his friend, Mr. Morey, he had been brought to the knowledge of Truth as understood by British-Israel teaching. The further study of the Divine Word opened up such power and force, revealing so many mysteries, and solving so many doubts and problems with a sense of great power, greater responsibilities, and a greater zeal to bring men and women to a knowledge of our Lord and Master. Realising that no one minister, clergyman or layman could undertake the task without having laid to their charge that it was their particular church or chapel they were exploiting, but as Mayor of a town whose word was a command, and to whom no such motive could be attributed, was the opportunity given."—Folkestone Express.

Mr. P. W. Thompson's article, "Giving and Taking," which appeared in this journal some time ago, has been printed in leaflet form, and it has attained a circulation of 200,000 copies. It has been again reprinted for free distribution and may be obtained from us at Headquarters, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1. Will our Overseas readers please note? We shall welcome the aid of all—both at Home and Overseas—in securing a wide circulation for these leaflets.

An illustrated address on the Union Jack was given to the main Sunday School of St. Alban's Church, Winnipeg, on October 27th, about twenty teachers and 450 children being present, the speaker being Miss Mabel Harbour. A public meeting was held in Trinity Hall, Winnipeg, on November 5th, when "Modern Egypt" was the discussion topic. Following a brief presentation of the relations of that country with Britain, Mr. P. J. Perry described experiences in Egypt and Palestine, and also spoke very interestingly regarding the reactions of people and world events to sun-spot maximum periods. Mrs. E. Todd dealt with Scripture Prophecies regarding Egypt. Rev. E. J. Springett presided and replied to a number of questions.

A NEW PUBLICATION

BY A NEW AUTHOR

". . . the Bible is the only book that tells the whole truth about us, the only book to study for an elucidation of the world problems existing to-day. I believe that the whole of the Anglo-Saxon race, in different parts of the globe, are the descendants of Israel, and came originally out of the loins of Abraham and so are 'children of the Promise.' We are the descendants of the Ten Tribes of Israel. Throughout the ages, from before the time of bondage in Egypt till the Norman Conquest, and, later on, the uniting of the Scotch and English Crowns in A.D. 1603 in the person of James I, we have been working out God's plan of reassembling in 'the appointed place.'"

". . . . . Would you kindly send the 'National Message' for six months to above address, as I often find it sold out when I send for it here?"

This extract from a reader's letter illustrates the popularity of our journal and tends to show its increasing circulation. But we are not satisfied yet. We are quite convinced that there are thousands of potential readers among the friends of our adherents who are not readers of the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER simply because they are unaware of their great heritage. Are you willing that such a state of affairs should continue?

The remedy is simple. Below you will find an order form; fill this in with your friend's name and address, enclosing the appropriate remittance. This will ensure that the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER is forwarded weekly, thus sowing valuable seed. By this means we shall make new friends who would otherwise be out of our reach.

If you are not in a position to send the names of friends, please forward us a remittance and we will commence subscriptions to people whom we hope to interest in the work of the British-Israel-World Federation.

Do not delay. Send your remittance at once, and so enable us to go forward with our campaign.

The subscription rates are 12/- per annum, 6/- for 6 months, and 3/- for 3 months, post free. Canada and U.S.A. $3.00 per annum.

THE JOY OF GIVING

Let your Christmas giving this year be a joyous occasion. The act of giving at Christmastide can be a double pleasure if you give the right gifts, the selection of which is often a perplexing problem, not always adequately solved.

What is the right gift? This can only be answered by an intimate knowledge of the likes and dislikes of the person to whom you intend making the gift. This presents difficulties!

Why not get on to safer ground? Most people like reading—then send them books!

What kind of books?—why, British-Israel books, of course!

Remember that every B.-I. publication sold, helps on the Cause in a twofold manner—it spreads the knowledge of our Truth and it helps on the financial side as well. Bear these facts in mind and choose your presents this year from the selection of our publications shown below. Act at once, Christmas draws very near!

REMEMBER B.-I. BOOKS AND ENSURE FOR YOURSELF—THE JOY OF GIVING!

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES...	798

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

ANGLO-SAXON REUNION.*

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

THERE is this very wonderful fact brought out by all the addresses given at the Congress, viz., the essential greatness of the Gospel. How can I give to God sufficient thanks that, at about the age of twelve, the Gospel had commenced to unfold itself to my mind through the teaching of this wonderful Book, and through the agency of the Holy Spirit? Under the impulsion of a stirring sermon preached the preceding Sabbath, when walking one day along one of the beautiful Cornish lanes, I climbed up into a corner of a wheat field, and there, in the midst of the beauties of Nature, knelt alone, accepted Jesus Christ as my Saviour, and dedicated my life to Him. That was a wonderful thing for me, and it has never ceased to be a wonderful thing throughout my life, right up to the present moment. But that was not all the Gospel had for me. There was a Voice, "Whom shall I send? and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I, Lord, send me."

There is more in the Gospel than the salvation of the soul. There is more in the Gospel than re-birth through the Holy Spirit. As soon as a man is born into the world, and has received his training, he goes out to take up his life work. The first experience is a memory. It was a beginning of things not yet finished and which never will be finished. All succeeding life activities have been added to that experience, and still new things and new experiences lie in the future.

And so with the nation. We have come to see that the Gospel deals with the birth and movements of nations, that the Gospel deals with the unfolding of history, the Gospel deals with the great problems of social life and of domestic life in the nation, and with the solving of international and world-wide problems. Thus the Gospel has promise of this life, and, in addition, it has all the boundless promise of the life which is to come.

In this Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ we are marching forward, just as surely as Israel in historic times marched, under the shadow of the pillar of the cloud by day, and the light of the pillar of fire by night.

We have been reading this Divine proclamation, which is superior to the Balfour Declaration, in the 36th chapter of Ezekiel. It is the proclamation of Jehovah, the God of Israel, that He will give the land of Palestine in possession to all the House of Israel, even all of it.

We then passed on to show that, preparatory to taking up that great and new departure in world affairs, God would purge Israel from all its uncleanness and idolatry. The idolatry of this beloved land of ours is a modern thing. Archæologists are agreed that in all remains of ancient British life there is no indication of an idolatrous system of worship.

God will cleanse us from our uncleanness and our modern idolatry.

We read together last night the next step, viz., the resurrection of God's Israel, so that they are to stand up a mighty army for the Lord.

Let me now read to you from Ezek. xxxvii, 15. "The word of the Lord came again unto me, saying, Moreover, thou son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the House of Israel his companions."

The process of Ephraimic amalgamation—or Anglo-Saxon amalgamation—is going on with the regularity of a natural law; for instance, the law of crystallization.

Let us glance back over our history. What did we see in the 17th century? We saw the Anglo-Saxon colonies in America. We saw those colonies moving towards self-government; we saw those colonies draw together for mutual protection against the menace of the Indian tribes, and against other dangers. Finally we saw them sending representatives to a central body, and upon the final action of that central body the liberty bell was rung, and the independence of the United States was declared. In that sense a nation was born in a day. The crystallization of the American nation had taken place.

In the 19th century we saw Canada also made up of a number of colonies. Those colonies progressed towards colonial self-government. Within the memory of those now living those colonies called together a body of representatives who became "the Fathers of Confederation." From their work there proceeded the British North American Act, which was sent forward to the British House of Commons and House of Lords, and for the signature of the Queen in England.

The British North American Act was passed by both Houses of Parliament and was signed by the Queen, and the great Dominion of Canada was born. The crystallization of the Canadian nation had taken place.

In the 20th century we have seen precisely the same process in Australia, and in South Africa.

So these great Overseas Dominions each became unities.

Three or four years ago a COUNCIL OF THE EMPIRE, consisting of the Premiers of Britain and of the Overseas Dominions, was called together, and from it ISSUED FORTH THE DECLARATION THAT EVERY ONE OF THESE OVERSEAS DOMINIONS HAD BECOME self-governing NATIONS WITHIN THE EMPIRE.

His Majesty, who had been the King of Britain, and therefore of Britain and the Colonies, is now directly the King of Canada, and of Australia, and of South Africa, and of New Zealand.

There will be gathered in this city shortly—and the Governments of the Overseas Dominions are now canvassing the matter in order to give instructions to their delegates—representatives from the SELF-GOVERNING NATIONS in the Empire. What for? TO DISCOVER A FORMULA OF SELF-EXPRESSION FOR THE EMPIRE AS A WHOLE. It will be a glorious day for the world when, not as Britain with Colonies, but as an Empire made up of a NATION AND A COMPANY OF NATIONS, that FORMULA of self-expression becomes known, and when the EMPIRE speaks through the HEAD of its Official Central Council, the King, with one united voice. Then crystallization of the Empire will be an accomplished process.

The Premier of Britain has been to confer with the President of the United States. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and Mr. Baldwin visited the Dominion of Canada some time ago. They went like refreshing breezes from God all through that country, addressing the Canadian clubs and people. One gentleman who cared little about the Empire, coming out from one of those clubs, said to me, "What a wonderful thing it is that God has given us such a family as that to be at the head of our nation!" Mr. Amery, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Mr. Thomas, and so on, and so on, former Cabinet Ministers, and Cabinet Ministers of the Motherland, have been calling at Ottawa and at all the capitals right through to Victoria. Why? To draw together the "nation and company of nations." So the Lord declares, "I drew them with cords of a man, with bands of love." Others have gone to the other Overseas Dominions on an identical errand.

When the Empire has learned to speak unitedly with one voice, and is joined by the Great Republic, then will come amalgamation indicated in the text:—"Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them with him, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in Mine hand." Then the crystallization of the Anglo-Saxon world will have taken place.

With my family I sat in Stanley Park, Vancouver, and listened to the last great utterance of President Harding, of the United States. He was visiting our city of Vancouver on his way from Alaska in the North to the United States in the South. I remember him now, a stalwart man, rising high above the people. Loudspeakers carried the sound of his voice to the 50,000 who listened to him. His last words were much as follows; stretching forth his arms, as if to enclose the multitude, he cried: "As the executive head of a neighbourly nation, dwelling with you in peace, I hold out both my arms to you with all my heart." That was the last public sentence that President Harding lived to utter. Speaking to an outstanding American immediately afterwards, I said, "The President made a slight mistake." "Why?" he asked. I said, "He should have addressed himself to us as to the Empire as a whole, not as to Canada. We do not exist separately from the rest of the Empire. If, instead of saying 'Canada,' he had said, 'Empire of Britain, on behalf of the United States, I hold out both my arms to you with all my heart,' there would have been a thrill, and a shout of congratulation all round the world." As it was, the words fell somewhat coldly; the people could not tell why; they felt that it was exceedingly well meant, but not quite rightly expressed. When our brethren of the United States learn that Canada is not a separate nation of ten million inhabitants, but one united Empire of 460 millions, then progress will be made. When the United States recognizes that fact, and the two great peoples come together, then there will be a wonderful step forward for the Kingdom of God and for the world at large.

Finally, when the stick of Joseph in the hand of Ephraim is joined completely with the stick of Judah, and they become one in the hand of the Lord, the final triumph of Israel crystallization will have taken place, and the Kingdom of God will be one in the earth.

Now let us finish this reading: "And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land."

The gathering into "their own land" in Britain and Overseas has been a long process. The gathering representatively into the land of the Fathers will be a shorter process.

Israel's possession of the land of the Fathers began in A.D. 1917.

The cleansing of the people from idols began in the time of Henry VIII and Queen Elizabeth, and took a new step forward when the House of Commons rejected the Prayer Book.

The sanctification of Israel, I believe, has begun, for I have heard a hundred voices calling the people to repentance, and I have seen the people returning, penitently kneeling before their God in thousands in Britain and in Canada. I believe the whole nation is simply waiting for a humble, penitent leadership of the ordained ministry of the Church of Christ. I believe with all my soul that the multitudes are waiting to be led back to God.

Soon there will come the next step, when the kingdoms of this world shall flow together and seek the Lord and the leadership of the House of David, and of the King of kings; and, finally, there will ring out from Heaven that triumphant cry, "The kingdoms of this world have become the Kingdom of our God, and of His Christ." Then will be accomplished the crystallization of all the human family into the Household of God, and into the Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ.

So the process goes forward. It is ours to add to the Gospel of Salvation, so long preached to the nations, the Gospel of the Kingdom, and by so doing to precipitate the solution and bring about the final crystallization according to the sweep and power of that natural law which we see so actively operating amongst us.

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 4TH.

THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A., F.R.A.S.

A FEW months ago some friends of mine said to me, "We want to go to Palestine for a holiday. Will you give us some advice about it?" I said to them, "My advice to you is, Don't go, because at any moment there is likely to be trouble." And, as you know, that has happened. I speak as one having studied the subject for twenty-five years, and I regard Jerusalem and Palestine, and the whole Promised Land, as being the very centre of what is going on in many parts of the world. If you want to study world history, world economics, world religion, world politics, or world diplomacy, you must study the past, present and future of the Holy City, because Jerusalem is the centre geographically, the centre strategically, and the centre spiritually, of all that concerns the welfare of all the nations of mankind. It occupies, as you doubtless know, the midplace between the Eastern and Western nations, which, in itself, is a very striking strategical fact. A point not often noticed is that practically all the handwriting in the Western side of the world is written, as you and I write, from west to east, and therefore points towards Jerusalem. And the greater bulk of the handwriting in the Eastern side is written from right to left, from east to west, and therefore points towards Jerusalem. Jerusalem is the centre of all that is involved in the life of man, in the soul of man, and also, I believe, in the body of man as well. Therefore the study of those factors as elements which are coming to the surface to-day, and have come during the past few weeks, of which we have not heard the last word, is of the greatest and most solemn importance to those who love their Bible, to those who love their Empire, and to those who love the great Truths of our British-Israel-World Federation.

It has been my privilege for many years past always to take a holiday, the only one in the year, in foreign lands. And never do I cross the Channel except with the idea and intention of studying something of the British-Israel Truth, and of trying to see further light upon the work and welfare of our Empire and the prestige of our country, and the foundation causes of the Great War, and each year one comes back with one's mind almost in a maze. And I have not yet had time to digest and to think over and to sift many of the thoughts and experiences of this last fortnight in the Balkan States as they throw light upon Great Britain, upon the Near East, upon the Promised Land, and upon all these facts and factors in religion. I have had the opportunity of discussing many things with naval officers, because, as you have seen by the papers, the Mediterranean Fleet just now is having a summer cruise up the Adriatic, and I have been able to seize the opportunity of discussing the situation with the officers and also with the sailors with regard to the Near East. Some of them cannot understand why we are there. Some of them think that our Mandate in the Near East is a very great mistake; that we ought not to be there at all. Many people take up the attitude, which is being pursued by at least one section of the Press, which is seeking, of course, to develop its own propaganda, and that is, that the interest of the taxpayer is of far more importance than the possession of Palestine. I care much more about what God says than what the taxpayer thinks. I do not care a jot for any editor if he does not think along the lines of what the Bible has to teach. There are many ways of regarding the situation in Palestine. Some think that was a great mistake. I certainly do think it was a mistake in one sense, inasmuch as there is not a word in the Bible which says that God is going to give Palestine, or the Promised Land, to the Jews. There is no verse along that line that ever suggests the thought that God will give that Land to the Jewish people. God has promised it to Israel and to Judah, that they may be reunited in the Land. I do not believe in Zionism; I do not believe that Palestine is to be a home for the Jews only. But the thing which we must not forget is that while we promised to make Palestine a National Home for the Jews, we had already promised that nothing should disturb the interests, civil or religious, of the other peoples there.

Now look at it from another point of view. I am inclined to think that the Balfour Declaration of 1917 was really a very useful thing indeed, and for this reason. Had we not given that Declaration to the Jews, it is possible, politically speaking, that the League of Nations would not have given the Mandate to us. I believe that our Mandate arose out of our promise to the Jewish people. We have made that promise and we have got to stick to it, and whether or not we give up the Mandate—though I do not think we shall—I do know one thing for certain, that we shall never give up our possession of the Promised Land. The question has often been asked, Why did we make that Declaration in 1917 to the Jewish people? Probably it was done for political and economic reasons. You will remember that in the first half of the year 1917 it was a touch-and-go affair in regard to the War. We seemed to be failing in Southern Palestine, and we made very slow progress indeed in what is now known as Iraq and in Mesopotamia. And then the story of the sinking of the Lusitania shocked the whole civilized world. No one could forget the shocking atrocity of sinking a ship containing women and children on the Atlantic seas. The result of the sinking of the Lusitania was that AMERICA BEGAN TO THINK.

Up to that moment America had wobbled somewhat. The sinking of that ship probably, I won't say, saved the situation, but did bring President Wilson to a decision, and he then came to the conclusion that the time was ripe for him to come into the War and to serve on the side of the Allies.

Then there arose the great problem of the Jewish nation and of the Jewish people. The Jewish Chronicle published words to this effect, that, "England has always been good to the Jews; the Jews will now be good to England." But even then you must remember that there is something about the Jewish mind which is quite different from ours. A Gentile can never fathom the depth of the Jewish mind. The people are very interesting, and the study of them is fruitful.

Having given our promise to the Jews, and having given our pledge to the Arabs, we have to be equally fair on both sides. Nothing will disturb our interest in the Promised Land, nothing will ever turn us out of that which is our heritage. It is our heritage; God has given it to us.

I could not help thinking, as I was looking at the submarines and cruisers which were flying the naval ensign, what a wonderful thing the Union Jack is. I think to English eyes it is the most handsome and the most beautiful piece of fabric that you can possibly see. Ladies like looking into the shop windows. You walk down Bond Street or down Oxford Street and you see lovely things. They are beautiful—and costly. But just give me a Union Jack, costing a 1d. or 2d., if it is properly made, and it need not cost you more than that, but I challenge you to find anything in the whole world that is more pleasing to the British eyes than the Union Jack. And still more so when in a foreign country, and you see it flying on a battleship, or over the headquarters of some institution, in a land that is not ours.

When we arrived home last night I switched on the wireless, just in time to hear some English station closing down. I cannot tell you how delighted I was to hear, as it closed down, the National Anthem. I at once jumped up and stood to attention. I had not heard it for a fortnight, and I had missed it, and I thought to myself that it was the most beautiful tune I knew. God bless that tune, and may God bless our Sovereign lord who is sitting on David's throne, and who is reigning over the nation of the Lord's anointed.

That brings me to the closing remarks of my address. On the Continent I found in past years that the peoples—I do not mean the authorities—think much more of America than they do of the British. They probably think that America has a more predominant position than has Great Britain. Two days ago I heard an American lady go up to a Venetian, and say to him, "Do you speak American?" "Sometimes," he said, "but I prefer to speak English." That question to my mind is a very important one, and I believe I know the answer. If anyone knows a better one, I shall be only too pleased to stand corrected. Why has America got no King? And why is America a great Republic? Now I believe most solemnly that we shall see the working out of the answer to that before long. The year 1934 marks the termination, that is, the closing of the fulfilling of the times of the Gentiles. In my study of prophecy—and I have given a good many years to the study of prophecy—I do not think that the times of the Gentiles are yet fulfilled. The fulfilling of the times of the Gentiles covers a period of twenty-one years, a cycle of three sevens. It began in 1914 with the Great War, and it will not terminate till 1934, which is twenty-one years inclusive, a cycle of three sevens. We are in that period of twenty-one years—between 1914 and 1934, and we are now in the closing part of the closing era of the times of the Gentiles, which is the closing portion of what Daniel calls the time of the end which occurs six times in Daniel, and which itself is the winding-up of the GREAT SEVEN TIMES.

The great seven times end on or about 1934: the closing part of the great seven times is called by Daniel the time of the end, which time began in 1699, and terminates in 1934, a period of 235 years; the closing part of that period is twenty-one years; that began in 1914 and ends in 1934, and into that closing part we have now entered; and that is why we are beginning to see this little upheaval in the Near East, and that is why we should focus our attention more and more upon that amity and union that has existed between America and ourselves.

I was in Yugo-Slavia last week, and I saw a shop, where I suppose they wanted to sell things that might appeal to the British or the Americans, and there were two flags, both little ones—the Stars and Stripes, and the Union Jack. Then I said to myself, "The time will come, and before very long, when those flags will become united."

Let me come back to the other question, which I have not forgotten, and to which I will now give the answer—The reason why America is a Republic under a Presidency. I believe it is because she is sub-consciously waiting God's time, until she comes under the House of David as Britain is, when the King shall then reign at the very centre of the whole world, at Jerusalem, at the real winding-up of the times of the Gentiles. As yet our peoples are friendly, but not wholly united, politically speaking, but the peoples of Israel will be united when "they shall choose for themselves one Head, and David My servant shall be King over them all," and they shall dwell together respectively in the Promised Land. But that may be as yet some distance away, and to attain to that we may yet have to walk along difficult paths, to which Commander Roberts has referred, and which are yet going to be fulfilled. But we have got faith because God is calling us, and Israel we know has got to be the Lord's battlement.

There is one question which is causing me a good deal of anxiety and not unmixed with a certain amount of suspicion; I refer to the great

QUESTION OF DISARMAMENT.

It is a question to which we all ought to give our prayerful thought and attention. When I arrived home last night I found a tremendous pile of letters awaiting me, and one was from the Bishop of London, in which he invited me to attend a certain meeting on Disarmament, upon which the Bishop had invoked his blessing. No one more than I wants to have Disarmament, and wants to see war done away with. But I do not think it can come yet, honestly I do not. The nations in Europe are in a critical condition to-day. It is alarming to see the bitter hatred that exists between Italy and the Serbs, between the Jews and the Arabs, between the Germans and the French, between the Russians and many other people. I cannot see that it is possible for Disarmament to take place at this stage. If it does take place, then we know that our God is One Who never slumbers nor sleeps, and even though Israel should have no forces, we know that the Lord Himself is to stand upon the Mount of Olives, and we know that He will grant victory to His own in accordance with His promise.

FRIDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 4TH.

MR. J. J. MOREY.

I want to endeavour to-night to explain three things which I believe must happen between the end of the captivity period and the Coming of Christ. Now, we are agreed, we who study these prophecies, that the captivity period of the Northern Kingdom of Israel reached its close round about the year A.D. 1800, and the captivity of Judah will finally close in the year 1934. It took Israel about 150 odd years to go into captivity; it will take them the same period to come out, and the first portion of Israel closed their captivity period about the year 1800. The last portion—some of the Jews, some of Judah—will come to the end of their term in the year 1934.

Now, if I understand the Bible, I have come to see some definite action, some definite programme, on God's part commenced when the captivity began to close. And I want to name three things which must transpire along that line in that closing period before the Coming of our Lord.

(1) The Book tells me very plainly that immediately after the captivity the revealing of Israel will begin. Wherever the Israel people are, they have to be found before the Lord comes. They are going to be found by the time the captivity closes; or by the year 1934. They are being found, there is not any doubt about it. You must study the prophecies before you can criticize these statements. Isaiah tells us very plainly that God is going to remove the covering which is cast over the face of all peoples. He is going to find them all; He will have to uncover all the ancient peoples, or the problem will not be solved. It will not be enough to find Israel; all the Biblical races will be found—Ham, Japheth, Moab, Ammon, Esau, and the rest. They are alive to-day; they are going to be uncovered, and the mystery will be made plain.

I claim that that work has definitely begun, and when you see a nation waking up to this great Truth, and you see that the Bible has prophesied that very thing to happen, well, it is your duty to put the two together, and to understand what is really happening.

Now, something is written very plainly in Ezekiel upon this point. Ezekiel's writings censured and reproved the "Shepherds." The Shepherds are not going to find Israel. The Shepherds do not care two straws to-day whether there is an Israel nation or not. I am speaking generally. It is true that most of them pooh-pooh the whole question; they write it down as something that does not matter and is not worth troubling about. Then how are they going to be found? God says He will find them. "I will seek out My sheep; I will find them." It is God Who is going to do it, and, therefore, I conclude that they are not going to be found along the line of ordinary Church teaching, or the "Shepherds" would be busy trying to discover them. I conclude that God is going to find them by means of His own. The Shepherds are standing by, criticizing. You are going to waste your time if you trouble unduly about the attitude of the Shepherds. I can see that God is going to bring to pass and the Shepherds will have to follow or they will be left behind. I believe that God is going to prove His case; God has His own methods, and when He begins He will surprise us; yes, and He will surprise the Shepherds, and if I understand Ezekiel aright, Israel will be discovered in spite of them, possibly without their aid. There will be a national awakening.

I believe, as I have said in a former meeting, that we shall see some of these days God's great evidences. The Shekinah is coming back to Israel, and the cloud which led the children of Israel through the wilderness. I believe that when that day comes, national repentance will begin, if it has not begun before, and once more the nation will have to say, "The Lord, He is the God." It is God Who is going to do it, and He has all the means at His disposal. They have to be found before the Lord comes, for when He comes it is Israel, called and chosen and faithful, who are the people standing against the beast and his army. Christ and His army are going to stand for the Bible, and the beast and his army against Christ and the Kingdom, and it is no use trying to put it off. God is finding the lost sheep, and the great awakening is beginning, witness the tremendous meetings we are holding at the heart of the Empire this week.

There is something else. (2) Not only must Israel be found between the termination of the captivity and the Coming of Christ, but God is going to do a great work. In one of the chapters of Isaiah there is a very remarkable word. God is going to rise up and do His strange work. He is going to bring to pass His act, His strange act. What is it? He is going to break the Gentile power over the world and liberate Israel fron her captivity. We have been in bondage for 2,520 years. The time for our freedom has come, but we are not yet set free. We have the shackles of our captivity upon us. Have you ever thought what the grip of the Gentile power is upon Israel and upon the life of the world? They are our captors—Babylon and Assyria; that image of Nebuchadnezzar represents the powers against Israel; they have enslaved us, and that Gentile power has to be broken. Israel must be set free, and that work is beginning.

Now I want if I can to reconcile two opinions which appear to be in conflict, but which really are not. We listened last night to a remarkable address by Mr. David Davidson. He spoke again and again of the beginning of the Tribulation. Now let us be careful. Mr. Goard is emphasizing the fact that there is not another Tribulation for Israel. I think I can see what they both mean. Israel has had her 2,520 years of punishment and discipline, but now she has to be set free from her captors, and the process of setting her free and the process of her cleansing is what Mr. Davidson is calling her Tribulation, and what the Bible calls "Jacob's trouble." What is coming is a great national blessing, an act of love, her national redemption, the rescuing of Israel from her "Egypt"; but it will be so searching, it will be so tremendous, that the process of her liberation and her cleansing will be called the Tribulation by thousands of the British people. Have you thought of the tremendous grip there is of the Gentile powers upon the life of Israel socially? What do we know about our organized pleasures and vices in this nation? Look up the records of those who are behind our cinemas, theatres, dancing halls, organized amusements, yes, and vices, and you will find a very large percentage are aliens, making their fortunes out of the foolishness of our people. If the alien, if the Gentile, had let us alone, we would have been a much cleaner and more decent folk than we are to-day. This power has to be broken, and God will have to break it by hammer blows. You will call it a Tribulation, but what is happening is that

YOU ARE BEING SET FREE.

I was listening the other night to some conference that was taking place of the leading drapery firms in this country, and one man said something about our fashions. He might well! He said—mark it, mothers and sisters—Britain has never had any right to allow France to dictate the fashions of this country. Yes, he was saying a greater thing than he knew. He said France honours sex, but Britain has always honoured woman; and if you do not mind you are going to let the Gentile put over upon you his lower standard and his lower ideal. We have nearly done it. We have got to break it off. Think of finance. We had a wonderful statement last night. It is the grip of the enemy upon our financial position. How is it going to be broken? You will call it Tribulation, but it will be your liberation from the hand of a throttling power which has held us for 2,520 years. God is going to set us free.

We speak of a great religious system which is trying to control and come once again into power in this country—Rome. It is the Gentile Church. We are lamenting the coming of Modernism. Where has it come from? Germany. Another attempt of the Gentile theologian to control Israel, and to break her faith in her Bible and in God.

Politics. Yes. I do not think we know, many of us, what a tremendous power the Gentile in this country and in Europe has upon the politics of this nation.

We will see the breaking down of many existing systems, in order that a new thing may emerge; in order that this nation may come out clean, liberated from the thraldom which has been upon us. There will be chaos first. There is chaos in the Church to-day. There is chaos in belief, for the British people do not know what they believe, and the confusion is getting worse. There is confusion in finance, and it seems to me there is confusion in politics. We must

TAKE THE LONG VIEW.

It may cost us something; it may touch our interests and our pleasures, but we must rejoice and look up, as Christ said, for our redemption draweth nigh, for God is going to break the Gentile power which has gripped every part of Israel's national life, and Israel will be set free. Look and pray for the new day to dawn.

My third point is this. We are going to be not only liberated, but we are to have the return of the prophetic vision. I want to read a verse or two from the prophet Micah, chapter iii. When Israel went into captivity they lost the prophetic vision. It was one of their punishments, the natural outcome of their departure from Jehovah and their going into idolatry. What does Micah say about it? (R.V.)

> "Thus saith the Lord concerning the prophets that make My people to err; that bite with their teeth and cry, Peace; and whoso putteth not into their mouths; they even prepare war against him:
> Therefore it shall be night unto you, that ye shall have no vision; and it shall be dark unto you, that ye shall not divine; and the sun shall go down upon the prophets, and the day shall be black over them.
> And the seers shall be ashamed, and the diviners confounded; yea, they shall all cover their lips; for there is no answer from God."

Notice the times when these prophets lived. They all lived at the time when Israel was going into captivity. There was one solitary voice a little later, a matter of two or three hundred years, Malachi; then there is a blank.

I think you will see that that lack of prophetic vision has been one of the great punishments of Israel, and that we are only just emerging from it. I am not sure that, as a nation, we have yet seen the import of that. I hope I shall not be misunderstood, but it is my opinion that the modern Church has not got the prophetic vision, or there would not be the confusion in the Church there is to-day. The shepherds, the teachers, the theologians, are floundering about, seeking something they know not what, and right down the years until now the day has been dark. Don't you think that has been the cause of our going here and there into all sorts of "isms"?

But at the end of the captivity, and before the Coming of our Lord,

THE PROPHETIC VISION

is coming back. Are we ready for it? The average man in Britain, and the average Christian, is not concerned about it, for he has never been told. He does not understand. I am thankful that we have signs that it is returning. I believe we have in this Movement the rise of some who are as much entitled to the name of prophet as any since that day of which I read in the Book of Micah. It is coming back. Read the Book of Joel. Joel in his argument goes through the experience I have spoken of, the awakening of Israel, and sees the nation come to repentance. When the nation has repented, what happens? The prophetic vision returns, and God pours out His Spirit upon all flesh. Now that is everybody in Israel; it cannot be the beast; it cannot be the enemy, but it is everybody in the nation that has repented, and after the national repentance the vision returns. But, look you, it does not come back to bishops and clergy and leaders and teachers only; it comes back to Israel in its maximum, and all flesh, your sons, your daughters, shall prophesy, your young men, your old men, shall see visions and dream dreams, and it means that there is coming back to the restored, repentant, reconciled Israel nation the personal touch of Jehovah, and all will know the mind of God.

Now, you can see the holy nation emerge. Israel is to be a holy nation, and this great return of the prophetic vision is an epoch in its restoration. I hope I am stirring your thought. Are you prepared to have it? Have you never thought that you ought to have such a nearness with Jehovah that you will know the mind of God? We have been content to expect it for a few; but it is to come back to the people. You will remember that Moses' uncle advised him to appoint twelve men to help him to govern Israel, and Moses appointed twelve men, and called them to a meeting. Ten of them came, but the other two did not turn up. Joshua found them down in the camp, prophesying on their own, and Joshua thought it was out of order, and told Moses about it, thinking they ought to be called into line. And what did Moses say? "Would to God that all the Lord's people were prophets."

Are you prepared to be startled by the coming back to you of the Spirit of God? There is to be the restoration and quickening of Israel before the Coming of Christ.

In Habakkuk there is a remarkable word about that. In one of his chapters he says, "the vision is yet for an appointed time, but it will surely come; at the end it will speak, and not lie. Wait for it." Now, we are at the end, and I claim that the vision is beginning to speak, and when the vision speaks it is going to unfold the Book. It will

it will make God's purposes plain. But more; it is going to be the personal vision. When the day comes when every man and woman in Israel is prepared to receive the Spirit of God and be brought into touch with the mind of God, then we will be ready for Christ to use us to establish His Kingdom in the earth and to bring in the golden age, for Israel will once more be the holy nation of which Jehovah spoke at the beginning, at Sinai.

Now there is a lot of speculation as to one or two things which everybody likes to talk about. A word about the rapture of the saints. Take this as my opinion, if you like, but I believe it is in accordance with the Book. The rapture of the saints will not take place until after the return of the prophetic vision. Who will receive the prophetic vision if the saints have gone? Think about it. There will first be the national awakening, the national deliverance, the national repentance, and then the holy nation, and when that time comes I shall expect Christ to come any day, and I think He will soon come after that great outpouring of the Spirit has come upon the nation. It will make everything possible.

People who say we do not preach the Gospel make a great mistake. I am preaching to you to-night that it is your duty to pray for that return of the outpouring of the Spirit; it is your duty to be willing to be cleansed; but the nation is not willing. Very few people like to be reformed.

England is going to hold tenaciously with both hands to the very things she ought to let go, and God will shake us into activity; He will tear them from us and open our eyes; then repentance, then the blessing of the Spirit, then we shall be ready for the Coming of the King, ready to help Him to establish His Kingdom in the earth.

THE REV. JOSEPH GAY.

I have one book in my library which I value above all others except the Bible. It came into my hands during my student days, and I have never lost my love for it. It is Butler's "Analogy." When I started as a youth to study, that book gripped me to such an extent that I have never lost touch with it in my thinking.

A design, says Bishop Butler, postulates a Designer. That is common sense, is it not, though it is not everybody that possesses common sense. Professor Huxley had not got it when he explained in his scientific research that the world was a veritable charnel house, and that he himself had failed to discover any intention, purpose or design in the universe at all.

Now, what Bishop Butler has been to me in the book world, the British-Israel-World Federation has been to me as an organization. It has kept me in touch with a fundamental fact, that there is design, purpose and intention in this world, and that the Designer is God. I do not know of any school of thought that exhibits, in putting forth to the people the design of the Designer, more excellent, sanctified common sense than this school of thought, and I have to go no further back in justification of that than to the speech of my worthy colleague, Mr. Morey.

Now there are some fundamental facts that we must grip. They are axiomatic in their character, and must be accepted before cogent reasoning can begin. I want to state especially one, which, if it be not a fundamental fact, to be accepted before cogent reasoning can begin, then all that has been said on this platform up till now must go by the board. That one great fundamental fact is the fact of sin, or, what the scientist or the theologian would call moral defect, or what the Bible emphasizes as the Fall of man.

We must grip that and we must let it grip us, or we shall not understand our Bible when we read it. Not all that the prophets have said can give a cogent reason for the development of modern civilization. Man has sinned and come short of the glory of God, and that is the trouble. Now what is sin? I have never yet been able to give myself a satisfactory definition of sin, and I do not think there is a man or a woman in this audience who can do so. I have been trying to look it up recently by consulting some of the theologians, because they are not all bad, you know! And all the "shepherds" are not bad. But they fail to give me a definition of sin. The Apostle Paul comes nearest to it. He speaks of "the law in my members warring against the law of my mind

. . . so that when I would do good, evil is present with me" (Rom. vii). What the Apostle Paul is emphasizing there is that sin—which is moral defect, says the theologian—is an alien element.

Let me ask once more this question. What did actually take place in the GARDEN OF EDEN?

Yes, we have been very busy disputing with one another whether the Garden of Eden is history or allegory; we have been fighting very hard about it, as to whether Adam was the first man or whether there was a man in front of him, that we have lost sight of the true inwardness of that Garden.

Now sin, or moral defect, is Satanic in its origin, and it was Satan who sowed a Satanic seed into the mind of the woman, and through the woman into the mind of the man. Why the woman first? Because it is the right and proper order when you come to consider what was the idea that was sown into her mind. "Ye shall not surely die. Ye shall be as God, knowing good and evil." That is Polytheism. I do not know of any one word that expresses more perfectly the sin which afflicts the world. Man has always been, since the Fall, disposed to worship gods, many. He has tried to represent them, it is true, in idols; but have you not noticed that he has always translated himself into his idols? the defects as well as the good qualities of his own nature. When he has been looking at his idols he has been looking at himself, and so he has been worshipping himself. The disposition of the human family is to create its god, controlling its own destiny—or, to put it into a modern phrase, doing as it likes. When you put it that way, you will find there are a great many people who are polytheists besides those who worship idols. One of the great fundamental facts then which we have to grip is that sin is alien, Satanic in its origin, and that man has fallen from his first estate. It is, as John Milton puts it, "Paradise Lost."

Following upon that first fundamental fact comes another which is quite intelligent when you have gripped the first, and that is the fact of a God-created seed. I said the other day in Hyde Park, in the presence of two or three hundred Jews, "Unless you are prepared to discredit the narrative,

ISAAC WAS MIRACULOUSLY BORN."

They hurled it back at me; they would not have it, because they misunderstood the term "miraculous." It is true that Isaac was born of natural parents, natural progeniture, but Isaac could never have been born without Divine intervention, as the Bible plainly indicates. Natural law was aided by Divine intervention. God caused Isaac to be born. That is a fundamental fact. Why? It comes naturally out of the first fact. At the beginning, when man fell from his high estate, God determined that "Paradise Lost" should, in the end of the day, be "Paradise Regained." And that creation of the Isaac seed is part of the Divine plan for the great restoration.

Moral defect in the individual must be dealt with by the individual. Hence we find running through the Scriptures, until the time of our Lord, the suggestions of Saviourhood in the individual that is emphasized to-day in what is called the Gospel of Personal Salvation. But the salvation of a nation must be by a nation, and not by an individual. For the purpose of the salvation of the whole of mankind did God create Israel, and I beg you always to remember that in the creation of the Israel seed God made Israel, not an end in herself, but a means to an end. That is a fundamental fact I hope we shall never forget.

Another great fact to remember. The Fall of Man, fundamental; the creation of the Isaac seed, sacrificial. As sacrificial, it is linked on to that great fundamental fact. You can have no restoration of the human seed without sacrifice, and what God created in the Israel seed was a seed sacrificial. And if I have read the history of Israel aright, she has been sacrificial from the time of her creation down to this hour, and she is sacrificial to-day. That is the story of Isaac when Abraham offered him up, and in the offering up of Isaac we have the offering up of the seed, always sacrificial, right through until the time of our Lord, and pushing forward with the emphasis of the Divine revelation in Christ to this very hour.

The fundamental fact of that Divinely-created seed moves on to another fundamental fact, that this Divinely-created seed is constituted a nation in the hands of Jehovah, and is a temporal kingdom—the kingdom of Israel. The Kingdom of God, Spiritual, functions in the kingdom of Israel, temporal.

The next fundamental fact is the establishment of the

GOD-CREATED THRONE.

Moving along that line we shall easily discover the purpose and intention of God right along in the captivities of His people. We shall see His purpose and intention in bringing back the Southern kingdom of Judah into Jerusalem, and sending the Northern kingdom of Israel among the nations, not permitting Israel to return. Always one Divine end in view; God never turns from it. Right away from the first hour even until now, God has never swerved from that purpose. Some people think that Judah was highly privileged in returning after the captivity, so highly privileged above Israel in being permitted to get home again, to rebuild their city, to settle down in it and take possession of the land, and together with Benjamin to take possession of the whole land, or nearly so; whereas poor Israel was scattered abroad, to find no rest for the sole of her foot. And yet British-Israelites say that the Northern kingdom, Israel, possessed the birthright and the blessing, and we are right, but with it she possessed the tribulation, the heart-ache, the difficulties; she faced the storm and the tempest—always sacrificial—she was sacrificed in the purpose of God.

When Cyrus permitted the Jews to go back to Jerusalem, he did them a favour; at least they thought he did.

Cyrus sent them back to a cul-de-sac.

In the overthrow of Egypt, the highway of commerce and the highway of civilization moved; it no longer ran from Egypt to the East; it struck, as everyone knows, into Europe. Jerusalem therefore became a cul-de-sac.

Who carried the new civilization into Europe? The Israel people who trekked out from the cities of the Medes.

They who carried the higher civilization through the West made conjunction with those who had already settled in the

that they might become the centre of that salvation which, in the end of the day, would regain the paradise which had been lost. That seems to me a very fair though rapid touching of the situation, revealing the design and the purpose of God in this matter.

Will you remember side by side with all these things, side by side with the great wars and conflicts of races, and peoples and nations, there has been a conflict deeper, more profound, and more significant, between spiritual forces. By the way, do you believe in the personality of the Devil? Some people do not. As far as I can see, there is nothing in this world more highly organized than evil, and if you state an organization you must postulate an organizer; a design always carries with it a designer. He has been very busy keeping man out of his inheritance—out of his paradise—and he is determined to keep him out, and God is determined he shall not keep him out.

And thus the things that Mr. Morey has been speaking about are all significant of the great and mighty conflict that is going on, waging and raging between the powers of evil on the one hand, and the powers of light, goodness and truth on the other. Our Lord said, when the disciples had returned from one of their tours, and were delighted because the devils were subject to them, "I see Satan as lightning fall from heaven." I think that was more a prophetic statement than an historic one, but it runs in my mind like this. Jesus of Nazareth was taken Home after He rose from the dead. At His Ascension two men appeared to the disciples and said, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into Heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into Heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into Heaven." For the first time Man was entering into Heaven, and God was securing His first and well says the Apostle, "He was the first-fruits of them that sleep." Satan challenged the entrance of the Man, "Jesus," into Heaven. He warred and fought to keep Him out, but the Lord Christ knew that he was to fall out of Heaven because He, the Son of Man, was going into it, and Heaven cannot contain pure, wholesome and holy manhood, and Satan with his sin. They cannot live together. So clean, spotless and pure Man entered into Heaven, and Satan had to go out of it. He was cast into the earth. He is warring constantly to keep man out of the paradise into which Jesus has gone. It cannot be done, and I rejoice in this, that Israel, who is being increasingly discovered by God to-day, is going to be that nation, functioning the Kingdom of God upon the earth in righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost, which will save the nations, and in saving the nations, secure that great salvation to the world resident in Jesus Christ our Lord.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 5TH.

THE MENACE OF ROME.

MR. JOHN LEECH, M.A. ,K.C.

We have had a remarkable event occurring in the midst of Israel-Britain quite lately. It is an event of such importance that we cannot close this week of services without reference to it; for it is closely connected with God's people Israel. I refer to what is called the Catholic Emancipation Celebrations, or, more properly, the Roman Catholic Celebrations, celebrating the hundred years since the great Protestant surrender to Roman Catholicism. I am not expressing the view as to whether that was right or wrong. The Cardinal Archbishop, during these Celebrations, stated that during the one hundred years that had elapsed since 1829, when Parliament, and almost every position of State, were thrown open to Roman Catholics, they had leavened the whole of society—mark the words—including Protestant society throughout this country, or, in other words, throughout Israel.

Now why is this event important? It is important in this way—that the Bible represents Rome ecclesiastically as being the chief enemy of Israel. I am afraid that a great many people do not recognize this; Rome ecclesiastically figures big in the prophecies, and we read in Daniel vii of the little western horn, beginning little, but never called little again, which grew and became mighty, which all prophetic students who have gone carefully into the matter identify at once with Rome.

We read that the little horn made war with the saints—and the saints are Israel—and prevailed until the Ancient of Days came. That very thing, which was to occur before our Lord's Return to reign upon the earth, is happening to-day. We look about and we see Rome prevailing in our midst. We see the hundred years of advance in her numbers, in her power, in her influence in our very midst. The little horn has made war upon Israel, and is prevailing. Look at the great Romeward movements, and you see that almost everything seems to be tending in the same direction right away over our country. Rome has been, and is, prevailing, but will she finally conquer? No. Thank God, never. I have heard some people say that they believe we will once again be under the heel or power of Rome. No! Prophecy appears to me to show that we will never be under the heel of Rome. If this western little horn is to prevail until the Ancient of Days comes, it shows that we are now approaching that very period when the Lord Himself is coming, and He will destroy that evil power with the brightness of His Coming. We are drawing very near to that time, thank God, when all this evil will be swept away.

There is a final call given in the Book of the Revelation to God's Israel. The little horn in Daniel is the beast of Revelation; and ecclesiastical Rome is Babylon the great of that Book. There we have the call issued to Israel from the throne, "Come out of her, My people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and receive not of her plagues." I believe that is the last call that God has given to His people Israel, addressed expressly to them. It is a call to have nothing to do with the evil thing, but to come right out from her, to be separate from her, or else she will be partakers of her sins, and will receive of the plagues which are coming upon that system.

Yes, they call it Catholic Emancipation, or the setting free of the Roman Catholics to occupy practically every position in our State. This occurred just a hundred years ago, in 1829. How was that accomplished? Was it procured by fair means? I hope you read what was given in the Morning Post two or three days ago, that address by the Primate of all Ireland to his synod, in which he pointed out—with all this bragging and boasting and rejoicing by Rome—that the very freedom they have got was given to them by a Protestant Parliament and a Protestant Government. Yet he pointed out that they are now already showing signs of a desire to persecute again, and the only thing that prevents them is the lack of the power to do it. Rome never changes. She is the same as she ever was.

Now I want to give you an incident that occurred a little over a hundred years ago with reference to this very question. When the question of Catholic Emancipation was being agitated for throughout England, headed by Daniel O'Connell, there was a great cry by the Protestants in Parliament and elsewhere against the proposed Measure. "Why," they said, "Rome will not allow her people to read the Holy Scriptures." Therefore we should not give them that power. They close the door to Biblical knowledge, and keep their people in darkness and ignorance.

Now Rome is very wily, and accordingly they printed and published a Douay, or Roman Catholic New Testament, with the very purpose of countering the objection raised to the Emancipation Measure. I have a copy of that book in my hand. That Testament was specially printed for the purpose, and it did its work, or partially. In the very beginning of it there is a recommendation signed and sealed by the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Dublin, Dr. Tray, and here it is: "I certify that the sacred books of the New Testament in this edition of it is conformable to that of former approved editions, and particularly to that of the Douay English version sanctioned by me, and printed by R. Cross in the year 1791. Dublin, 5th February, 1820. J. T. Tray, D.D." Below there is an extract from a rescript of the then Pope Pius VII, which reads as follows: "Vicars Apostolic labouring in the Vineyard of our Lord. Direct all your zeal and attention to this, that all the faithful whom we have committed to your pastoral care love one another in charity, sincerity, and truth, that in the present general agitation they show themselves an example of good works, that they obey the king, and be so dutiful and faithful to him, that our adversaries may fear (not having it in their power) to speak evil of us. That they abstain from reading vicious books, by which in these most calamitous times is in all directions assailed, that by reading pious books, and, above all, the Holy Scriptures in the editions approved by the Church, they conform in faith and good works to you as their pattern in precept and practice. While we trust from your fidelity and approved veneration for us that this duty shall be duly performed, we impart to you the apostolic benediction. Given at Rome at the College of Holy Mary the Greater on the 18th April, 1820, of our Pontificate 21."

When the question of this Emancipation was before Parliament, this Bull was read out. Well, they succeeded in getting their Act of Catholic Emancipation. What happened then? As soon as the Act was procured the New Testament was suppressed, and not only was it suppressed, but Dr. Tray, who put that "Recommendation" into the front of the Book, actually denied that he ever sanctioned the printing or publishing of it. Matters went so far that Richard Coyne, the printer and publisher to the Roman Catholic bishops and archbishops of Ireland, was obliged, in self-defence, to bring an action against the Archbishop Tray in the courts of Dublin for libel. That case was tried before a Dublin jury, probably largely composed of Roman Catholics, but at the trial Richard Coyne the publisher produced the original sheets of the Book, and every one of them, with a few exceptions, was initialled and passed by the Archbishop himself, and only a few were not, and they were initialled and passed by someone who had been left to do the business in his stead when he was absent from Dublin. What happened? The Dublin jury returned a verdict for Coyne the publisher against the Archbishop of Dublin. But what about Coyne, who was their official printer and publisher? From that moment Coyne was a ruined man. But the hand of God was in it after all.

Some time later on Coyne became a bankrupt, and his effects were put up for sale, and at the auction a stereotype of that New Testament was put up for sale. Probably nobody knew exactly what it was, or thought that it was of any value. It was purchased by a godly man, a solicitor in Dublin, and he presented it to the Hibernian Society in Dublin. I was a member of the Committee of that Society for years, and when they got it they proceeded to reprint that New Testament by the thousands, with the Archbishop's Recommendation in front of it; and with the help of their colporteurs they distributed it all over the country. The priests did their best to prevent it, and when they knew that anyone had purchased or procured a copy, they demanded that it should be given up to them at once that they might destroy it. But in many cases they were sold and read, and they did their work.

Then a remarkable thing happened. When the Rebellion broke out during the late War in 1915, the stereotype was with the printers, and during the Rebellion the premises of the printers were completely destroyed by fire, and the stereotype was ruined. I do not know, but I think Satan was out to destroy that stereotype, and no doubt he thought he had succeeded. At first we thought that the Book was doomed, that we never again could produce it with that wonderful Recommendation from the Pope and the Archbishop to their people. But we found before long that we could reproduce the Book by a system of photography; and those Testaments to-day are being reprinted from the original stereotype by photography and are being circulated over the country.

TRADITION VERSUS THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

I wish there could be written throughout the country the words of the Lord Himself on this subject, "They substitute the traditions of men for the Word of God." Our Lord reproved the scribes and Pharisees of old because they substituted the traditions of men for the Word of God.

Now let me just give you one or two extracts with regard to this creed of Pius. He says, "I most firmly admit and embrace apostolical and ecclesiastical traditions, and all other constitutional observances of the same Church." But what did our Lord say? "Howbeit in vain do they worship Me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men. For laying aside the commandment of God, ye hold the traditions of men." And again, "Ye make the words of God of none effect through your traditions." Oh, never let any man's words or opinions take the place of the holy Word of God.

THE BIBLE FORBIDDEN.

Rome found it necessary at the Council of Toulouse in A.D. 1229 to pass the following decree: "We prohibit also the permitting of the laity to have the books of the Old and New Testaments, unless anyone should wish from a feeling of devotion to have the psalter or breviary for Divine service, or the hours of the Blessed Mary. But we strictly forbid them to have the above-mentioned books in the vulgar tongue." What does our Lord say? "Woe unto you, lawyers, ecclesiastics, for ye have taken away the key of knowledge." Let me read you from the Pope's Bull, published on September 18th, 1819. He speaks of the circulation of the Scriptures in the Irish schools as sowing tares, and says, "The children are by this means infested with the fatal poison of depraved doctrines," and he exhorts the Irish bishops, to whom the Bull was addressed, that with unbounded zeal they should endeavour to prevent the wheat from being choked by the tares—by the Word of God. We are up against this to-day. How little the English people understand what is going on around them! In Ireland we know a little about it. Oh, I am shocked with the ignorance of the English people in regard to this matter. They seem to regard Rome as being innocent and harmless. The Bible shows her to be the chief enemy of Israel.

There are many other things I might show to you. I could read you something, shortly after that Book was published, showing that it was only published for a particular purpose. It is from Pope Leo XII in his bull or circular letter to the Irish priests dated May 3rd, 1824. "It is no secret to you, venerable brethren, that a certain Society, vulgarly called the Bible Society, is audaciously dispreading itself through the whole world. After despising the traditions of the holy fathers, and in opposition to the well-known decree of the Council of Trent, this Society is collecting all its forces, and directs every means to one object, the translation, or, rather, the perversion of the Bible into the vernacular language of all nations. From this fact there is strong ground to fear lest, as in some instances already known through a perverse interpretation, there be framed out of the Gospel of Christ a Gospel of man, or, what is worse, a gospel of the devil." If a person must read the Bible, and insists upon doing it, then he is given one with notes to-day, and the note generally gives the interpretation which is the direct opposite to the meaning of the text. A poor old woman one day got hold of a Book, and she read the well-known words of John iii, 16, and she said when she read it, "That is perfectly plain; nobody could fail to understand that." And then she saw there was a note to the verse, and she read the note, and the old woman said, "Glory be to God. Who could have understood the verse but for the note!" And of course they could not, according to the translation of Rome.

PURGATORY.

There is one thing I want to refer to as of great importance, and that is, the deadly doctrine of Purgatory. A Roman Catholic priest was discussing with a clergyman the ways and means of raising money, and he said, "If you only had one square yard of Purgatory, it would be worth far more to you than all the means that you have of raising money." So far he was right; it would have been worth far more. If a person believed that their only means of escape from the flames of Purgatory was by paying money to their priests, they would give the very last penny they possessed to escape those tortures. But, oh, the dishonour of that doctrine to our Lord Jesus Christ Himself! Why, our glory is that the work of salvation was once for all completed by our Lord, the Lamb of God, on Calvary, and it is our only hope and our only trust. The Bible says again and again that once for all the Lord completed the work when He said, "It is finished." By one Sacrifice He hath perfected them who are redeemed by His precious blood. But what does this doctrine of Purgatory teach? It teaches that the work of Christ is not sufficient for the salvation of the soul. What a dishonour to our Lord! It teaches that by the suffering of the sinner who has died, the suffering in Purgatory for his sins, added to the sufferings and the finished work of Christ, and to the prayers of the saints, and to the intercessions of Mary, at last that person may be liberated from the tortures of Purgatory. I say it is the most dishonouring doctrine that you could invent to our Lord Jesus Christ, Who came to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself.

But I do ask you to take heart, and to remember that all the signs with regard to this dreadful system point to the fact of the near Return of our Lord. The 7th chapter of Daniel shows that the Kingdom was to be given to the saints, that is, to Israel, and that they were to be the means of destroying that system. And then we read the final thing, that the man of sin will be destroyed by the brightness of Christ's Coming. Shall we not, then, take heart? Shall we not look forward with joy to that day? Shall we not do our part to hasten the time when the King shall come, and when all His enemies shall be put under His feet?

GOD'S PROMISE TO DAVID.

THE REV. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, M.A.

I am very glad that Mr. Leech gave voice to the words he did, because it is well that our people should be awakened to these terrible things that are happening in our land, and it is not done sufficiently. I am very glad Mr. Leech took up your time to open your eyes, if they had not been opened before, to these things. But as I have been looking round on your faces, it seemed to me that you wanted a little cheering up. Now, that is where I come in. Out in the island of Ceylon the Cingalese people down in the villages used to speak of me as "the gentleman with a smile." And they have already given me a nickname here, "The Cheery Spark." It is just a year since I began work in connection with this Federation as a Commissioner, and a glorious year it has been. Mr. Garrison keeps on telling us that it has probably been the greatest year in the history of this Federation. I think that is true. It has certainly been a wonderful year in my history. But it has been also one of the greatest years in the history of our people, in the experiences through which our people have been going during this year, 1929. We, the commissioners and lecturers and workers in the British-Israel Cause, have been trying by every means in our power to bring this Truth home to our people, but this year God Himself has demonstrated to the world His faithfulness, the faithfulness of His Word in connection particularly with His people.

I was preaching in a North London pulpit lately, and I began my sermon by saying, "This is one of the greatest days in our history." It was the 7th July, 1929, the Day of the National Thanksgiving to God for all His mercies. A little later on Mr. Kellaway was speaking of some of the achievements of the British people which had escaped notice, and he said, "Take that Service on the 7th July which was broadcasted from Westminster Abbey. That Service was probably heard by one hundred million people throughout our Dominions." And if it was heard by one hundred million throughout our Dominions on that day in particular, I am sure it was heard by very many millions more in other lands. Well, now, listen to this,

ISRAEL'S GREAT CONSECRATION PRAYER:

"I vow to thee, my country—all earthly things above—
Entire and whole and perfect, the service of my love,
The love that asks no question; the love that stands the test,
That lays upon the altar the dearest and the best;
The love that never falters, the love that pays the price,
The love that makes undaunted the final sacrifice.

"And there's another country, I've heard of long ago—
Most dear to them that love her, most great to them that know—
We may not count her armies; we may not see her King—
Her fortress is a faithful heart, her pride is suffering.
And soul by soul and silently her shining bounds increase,
And her ways are ways of gentleness and all her paths are peace."

I believe that the Day itself was appointed by God. You will remember that the Thanksgiving Service was postponed. Why? Because on that day in the National Church—and I always assume, when I am speaking to a British-Israel audience, that the National Church is yours, whether you are a member of the Free Churches or not, for as British citizens you are entitled to all the privileges of the National Church.

Now see that you British people "possess your possessions." On that day in the National Church the lesson for the evening throughout our Dominions and throughout this country was 2 Samuel vii. Now do you realize why I believe God chose that day? I am going to read just a few verses from that chapter, these words from God to David: "The Lord telleth thee that He will make thee an house . . . He shall build an house for My Name, and I will stablish the throne of His kingdom for ever. . . And thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee; thy throne shall be established for ever. . . . Then went King David in and sat before the Lord, and he said . . . Let Thy Name be magnified for ever, saying, the Lord of hosts is the God over Israel; and let the house of Thy servant David be established before Thee. For Thou, O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, hast revealed to Thy servant, saying, I will build thee an house; therefore hath Thy servant found in his heart to pray this prayer unto Thee . . . . Therefore now let it please Thee to bless the house of Thy servant, that it may continue for ever before Thee; for Thou, O Lord God, hast spoken it; and with Thy blessing let the house of Thy servant be blessed for ever." In the 89th Psalm the promise is referred to in even stronger language: "I have made a covenant with My chosen, I have sworn unto David My servant. Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations." "My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that has gone out of My lips. Once have I sworn by My holiness that I will not lie unto David." In Jeremiah, and in the other prophets, and in other Scriptures, the same promise is repeated, e.g., Jer. iii, 17: "For thus saith the Lord, David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel." Now that chapter from the 2nd Book of Samuel was read throughout the National Church on that day. Now here we are up against a very important problem.

I am continually coming across people who say, What does this truth matter so long as my salvation is assured? There are people who say that they believe the Bible from cover to cover, and yet when they read those solemn promises made by God to David, and confirmed by an oath, do not accept the truth. How they can reconcile their belief in the whole Bible and yet not believe that God has fulfilled His promises to David I do not understand. In the 17th Ezekiel you will find, in the picturesque language of the Old Testament, God draws a picture of the King of Assyria carrying away the tall cedar tree (Zedekiah); carrying away the young twigs (the Princes) into Assyria. And towards the end of the chapter you read, "Thus saith the Lord God; I will also take of the highest branch of the high cedar, and will set it; I will crop off from the top of his young twigs a tender one (i.e., a Princess), and will plant it and eminent. In the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it; and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar; and under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing; in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell." Now tradition, which has a great deal of evidence behind it, tells us that this is exactly what did happen. It tells us that the Lord God took the tender twig of the House of Zedekiah; that the tender twig, the Princess, was placed in the care of Jeremiah, and that Jeremiah brought her round by the sea into Ireland, that there the young Princess was married to the King (Heremon), who was reigning there over a portion of the House of Israel; and to-day our Royal House can trace their descent through those Kings right away down from David. The genealogy is to be found in Windsor Castle, and you may obtain copies of it. In that Service which was broadcasted throughout the world, this passage from Psalm xx was read, "Now know I that the Lord helpeth His Anointed, and will hear him from His holy heaven, even with the wholesome strength of His right hand." And the Lord's Anointed was giving thanks to God Who had restored him to health. When His Majesty was crowned, this is what the Archbishop said, "Be thou anointed with holy oil, as kings, priests and prophets were anointed; and as Solomon was anointed King by Zadok the Priest and Nathan the Prophet, so be you anointed blessed and consecrated King over this people, whom the Lord your God hath given you to rule and govern." And so was broadcasted to all parts of the world the fact that God had kept His promise made to David concerning the Royal line; and so in the Service we said, "God save the King." We next said, "God save this Realm." In the midst of that promise made to David, as we have it in 2 Samuel vii, that he should have a Royal House lasting for ever, there comes this verse: "Moreover I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more as beforetime. . . ." That promise was made to David at the height of his power. His enemies were at rest on every side, and he was reigning over Palestine. Just then God said, "I will appoint a place for My people Israel." It could not, therefore, have been Palestine that was intended.

Digitized by Google

In other Scriptures you will find that the place is to the north and to the west of Palestine, that is, where these Isles are. When the Kingdom had been divided, and had gone far away from God and had turned to idols, God condemned her, and speaking of her as His divorced wife, He said, "I will lure her into the wilderness and will speak comfortably unto her." And in other places this appointed place is referred to as the wilderness. When you come down to the New Testament Scriptures you find a most wonderful chapter given up to this wonderful promise of God—the 12th of Revelation, the figure of the woman, crowned with the twelve stars, the woman who gave birth to the Man Child Who was to rule the nations with a rod of iron. Now all of us recognize at once the Man Child; and we are told that the woman fled into the wilderness, where she is nourished for a thousand two hundred and three score days. The Dragon refers to the pagan world power which began with Babylon and ended with Rome. And it was at that time, in its pagan Rome phase, when they sought to slay that Man Child as soon as He was born. And we have it recorded in the Scriptures that Rachel wept for her children, and would not be comforted, because they were not.

We know also as an historical fact that through the hands of that same pagan nation, that Man Child, when He had reached man's estate, was slain; and we know that He was caught up unto God and to His throne. Then we are told that "the serpent cast out of his mouth water as a flood after the woman, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth." The woman was therefore protected in her appointed place. That was a prophecy which has been fulfilled from that day, and, from day to day and from year to year as the centuries have passed, has been fulfilled with remarkable accuracy before our eyes. Successive invasions have swept across Europe with these Islands as their ultimate objective. The first swept across Europe in the form of the pagan Roman Empire. They came into these Isles under Julius Cæsar, who found here, not a nation of painted savages, but a civilized race, which, to his astonishment and mortification, was the first race to defeat him and drive him back to his own land. Later on the Romans came again into this land, made roads, and effected other improvements. Then when the time appointed came, the floods receded and the earth (i.e., the Continent) swallowed them. Then there came the Saracens and the Turkish hordes which swept across Europe; and the earth again opened her mouth, and they were swallowed up. Then there came the great Papal Roman flood, and swept across Europe and right into these Islands, and for a brief moment had these Islands in its grip. At the height of this invasion there came the Spanish Armada, and Queen Elizabeth had a gold medal struck, on which these words were inscribed, "He blew with His winds and they were scattered." And so that great Papal flood was rolled back, under the providence of God, never to return with the same force again. Then there came the great Napoleonic wars which swept right across Europe, and Napoleon stood on the shore at Calais, looking across the silver belt of sea with greedy eyes upon this land. But at Waterloo God intervened, as most people who study their history know, and defeated his armies, and the earth once again swallowed up the flood. Then there came the great flood under the Kaiser and swept across Europe. And then God's Israel went to prayer, for God had said, "I will be enquired of by My people to do it for them." And back went the flood, and they were defeated, as everyone knows, by the hand of God. And the earth opened her mouth once again, and swallowed up the flood. With that in mind, the fact that God has fulfilled His great promise, and demonstrated it before the world, listen to these words as they come rolling out from Westminster Abbey right across the world:

"Bring me my bow of burning gold!
Bring me my arrows of desire!
Bring me my spear! O clouds, unfold!
Bring me my chariot of fire!
I will not cease from mental fight,
Nor shall my sword sleep in my hand,
Till we have built Jerusalem
In England's green and pleasant land."

So that God demonstrated to the world that He had kept His promise to David concerning his Royal line and concerning this Realm.

Why was that Service broadcasted from Westminster Abbey, and not from St. Paul's Cathedral? Because in that Abbey there is a Stone. And if you go to see that Stone, you will probably hear the guide saying, "This stone is Jacob's pillow." Dean Stanley used to say that when people came from all parts to the Abbey, the one thing they came to see was Jacob's pillar. We know something about that pillar. We know that it came to this land under Edward I; that many Kings were crowned on it in Scotland; and we know before that that many Kings of that Royal line of Israel in Tara were crowned upon it; and we are told, and there is quite enough evidence to satisfy any enquirer, that that Stone was brought to Ireland by Jeremiah those many years ago when the little twig also came. Now there are people who pooh-pooh this. They say that similar stone can be found in Scotland. This may be the case, although it is exceedingly doubtful. The Stone is of a peculiar substance not easily matched. But supposing similar stone can be found in Scotland, history is clear upon the fact that the Stone was previously in Ireland.

Digitized by Google

This effectually disposes of the Scottish origin theory. There are also other excellent evidences that the Stone originated neither in Scotland nor Ireland.

It is a fact that similar stone is found in the neighbourhood of Luz, outside of which city Jacob found the Stone, discarded by the builders, and made use of it first as a pillow, and then as a pillar, and which He declared should become eventually the House of God. This is the type of the Stone which the builders rejected which has become the head of the corner. There is evidence enough for any thoughtful man that the Stone has been hedged about in the providence of God because it is Jacob's pillar. Well now, with that in mind, let us carry our minds back to Genesis, and hear what Jacob says concerning that Stone, "And this stone which I have set up for a pillar shall be God's House." And from that House there went out to all the world that message on July 7th.

I want to refer to just one more item in connection with that great day. It was a Thanksgiving for the recovery of the King. We were holding on December 11th, 1928, a great meeting, over the way in the Church House, of thanksgiving for the deliverance of Jerusalem eleven years before, and we were doing so with chastened hearts and minds because we knew that our beloved King was lying upon what millions thought was his death-bed. It was a critical day in the history of that illness, and our Prince was rushing across Europe as fast as the best trains of the world could carry him, and he was timed to arrive at Buckingham Palace on the 12th December; and he entered the Palace on the 11th December, during the eleventh hour. The next morning I was listening to the wireless report on the King's illness, and the announcer said, "Last night, just before the arrival of the Prince, there was a miraculous rally in the condition of the King." The papers later used the same word "miraculous," which means that God was demonstrating to the world that day that He was a prayer-hearing as well as and that He was the Healer of His people. And so He healed our King. And the same God to-day is yearning to heal the whole of this people; that is the message which we have got for you to-day. God is wanting to heal us and to cleanse us, and to fit us for the great day when the King comes. What does all this mean, this reiterated repetition of the 11th? A great many people, when you speak to them about it, say, It is just a coincidence. I refuse to believe it is a coincidence. It is the Voice of God warning us that we are rapidly nearing that day when the cry shall go forth, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh."

About the time that Jerusalem was delivered there was a great gathering in St. Paul's Cathedral, and a hymn was sung, two verses of which tell us that the prophecies of the Bible from beginning to end are being fulfilled:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord;
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword;
Our God is marching on." (Rev. xix, 15.)

"I have read a fiery Gospel writ in burnished rows of steel;
'As ye deal with My contemners, so with you My Grace shall deal';
Let the Hero born of Woman crush the serpent with His heel.
Since God is marching on." (Gen. iii, 15.)

In the last Book of the Bible, speaking of the message of the Master to the Church to-day, these are the words which He says, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." Outside the door of the Church? Yes, the Presence of Jesus Christ to-day in the official Church is an objective Presence. What He desires is a subjective Presence. I suppose most people here are familiar with Holman Hunt's wonderful picture of the "Light of the World." The story is told that when the great painter was at work on the picture a friend came to see it, and looking at it as it lay on the easel he said, "There is one thing missing." "What is that?" said the painter. "The key," said his friend. "Oh no," said the painter, "the key is inside." That is the great Truth which is being broadcast to-day; the King is standing at the door of people's hearts and knocking, but the key is inside.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

As a "stop press" item, we have to announce that the Rev. Pascoe Goard's address on Friday evening, December 13th, at 8 o'clock, in the Central Hall, Westminster, will be on "SOVIET RUSSIA versus BRITAIN." Major J. Knowles, President of the B.-I.-W.-F., will preside. We shall expect to see the Hall crowded.

THE REV. COMMANDER ROBERTS, R.N., has given a very informative lecture on "The Supremacy of the Sea" before our Exeter Branch. We propose to publish it in a future issue.

The Rev. Pascoe Goard is giving two addresses for our Tunbridge Wells Branch on December 17th, in the Town Hall, at 3 and 7.30.

Mr. Garrison is to address our Worthing Branch on December 18th, at 3 p.m., in the Heene Rooms, Heene Road, followed by a social tea. * * *

It is very gratifying to announce that the Sale at Headquarters on December 3rd and 4th, promoted by the Women's Auxiliary, proved a great success, and yielded a sum far in advance of any previous year. Some particulars shall follow in another issue of this journal.

Mr. J. J. Morey has recently visited Totland Bay, Isle of Wight, where Mrs. Bremridge has opened a Book-room and organized a Branch of the Federation. Mr. Morey's lectures were well attended, and great interest was shown in our subject.

At Southampton large audiences assembled in spite of very stormy weather, and our Cause continues to flourish, especially in the Shirley district.

On Thursday, the 5th inst., Mr. Morey again visited Guildford, and held a very successful meeting in the Friends' Meeting House. On the following day he lectured twice in the Hall of Remembrance, Kingston, to good audiences. The Southern Area is alive with ever-increasing gatherings anxious to hear the Good News we are able to convey.

Mr. J. J. Morey is always welcomed by a Bath audience, and his visit there on November 28th brought together two good gatherings for his lectures on Micah and Malachi. The vivid way in which it was shown how the Prophets' messages applied, not only to Israel of old, but to Britain of to-day, revealing much that is wrong with both Church and State, and pointing out how far short we have come as a people from God's Ideal for us as a "Holy Nation," made a deep impression. We are on the eve, said Mr. Morey, of great happenings, when God is going to purge us as silver until the dross is removed, and we shall be a purified nation, ready to do the work He has for us to do in His new and glorious Kingdom.

A lecture was given at Bolton on November 22nd by Mr. W. H. Hesketh, J.P., of Manchester, on "Is the British-Israel Theory True?" The assembled company were greatly interested, and a number of questions were asked, and replied to by the lecturer.

A Branch was organized at Barrow-in-Furness on November 29th, when a meeting was held at Gardiner's Cafe. The following officers were appointed:—President, Mr. A. E. Timmins, F.C.S.; Treasurer, Mr. J. Hall; Secretary (pro tem.), Mr. J. H. Brenchley. The Secretary addressed the meeting on the subject, "The Potter, the Clay and the Earthen Vessel."

Mrs. Murray, the extremely capable and enthusiastic Honorary Secretary of the Sutton and Cheam Branch, is giving a short address in the Small Public Hall at Sutton on the 16th, the meeting commencing at 3.30. The arrangements are taking the form of an "At Home," invitations to which have been issued by the Chairman and Committee. Besides the address, there will be tea and discussion. We are sure those attending will have a delightful and profitable time.

The Rev. T. H. Whitehouse addressed two splendidly-attended meetings at Leicester on the 3rd, his subjects being "How the British Empire Marches with the Kingdom of God" and "The Assault on Heaven." Mr. A. E. Biggs presided. The Branch continues making splendid progress.

The Elocution Class will be held at Headquarters on Tuesday, 17th, from 7 to 9.

The Belgian National Railways and Dover-Ostend Royal Mail Service have now issued details of their arrangements for visiting Belgium during Christmas and the New Year. A holiday may be enjoyed in this delightful little country during these periods at very little expense.

Special excursion tickets will be issued daily from:—
21st—24th December; and 28th—31st December.

These tickets will be available for return up to and including the 15th day of issue, both from London and Dover. Full details may be obtained from the Belgian National Railways, 47, Cannon Street, London, E.C.4.

Miss Hamilton Hunter gave two addresses for our Hastings and St. Leonards Branch, at the Masonic Hall, on the 3rd inst. The subject taken at both afternoon and evening meetings was "The Vicegerency of Israel, its Privileges and Responsibilities." In the course of her lectures Miss Hunter explained the Priestly offices of the Kingship in Israel, and subsequently in Britain, together with the duties and obligations appertaining thereto.

Arrangements are under consideration with a view to establishing a Young Crusaders' Movement in Hastings and St. Leonards, and it is hoped early in the New Year to inaugurate lectures for young people.

TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN FICTION

by

S. SHUTTLEWORTH KING

A NEW PUBLICATION BY A NEW AUTHOR.

". . . the Bible is the only book that tells the whole truth about us the only book to study for an elucidation of the world problems existing to-day. I believe that the whole of the Anglo-Saxon race, in different parts of the globe, are the descendants of Israel, and came originally out of the loins of Abraham and so are 'children of the Promise.' We are the descendants of the Ten Tribes of Israel. Throughout the ages, from before the time of bondage in Egypt till the Norman Conquest, and, later on, the uniting of the Scotch and English Crowns in A.D. 1603 in the person of James I., we have been working out God's plan of reassembling in 'the appointed place.'"

THE SECOND ADVENT

CONSIDERED IN RELATION TO THE RETURN OF THE TWO HOUSES OF JUDAH AND ISRAEL TO PALESTINE.

By Dr. ALDERSMITH.

About thirty years have elapsed since this little volume first saw the light; but, in view of the apparently near approach of the Second Advent, its reprint without any alteration is not only proof of its sound reasoning, but an assurance to those readers who look forward to the Second Coming of Christ to take over His Kingdom, that they will find herein much help and comfort to the clearer understanding and application of the Bible prophecies relating to it in both the Old and New Testaments.

Dr. Aldersmith's book has stood the test of time in that certain forecasts of events, to mention only one instance, viz., the delivery of Jerusalem in 1917 from the "Treading down of the Gentiles," have been fulfilled.

". . . . . Would you kindly send the 'National Message' for six months to above address, as I often find it sold out when I send for it here?"

This extract from a reader's letter illustrates the popularity of our journal and tends to show its increasing circulation. But we are not satisfied yet. We are quite convinced that there are thousands of potential readers among the friends of our adherents who are not readers of the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER simply because they are unaware of their great heritage. Are you willing that such a state of affairs should continue?

The remedy is simple. Below you will find an order form; fill this in with your friend's name and address, enclosing the appropriate remittance. This will ensure that the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER is forwarded weekly, thus sowing valuable seed. By this means we shall make new friends who would otherwise be out of our reach.

If you are not in a position to send the names of friends, please forward us a remittance and we will commence subscriptions to people whom we hope to interest in the work of the British-Israel-World Federation.

Do not delay. Send your remittance at once, and so enable us to go forward with our campaign.

The subscription rates are 12/- per annum, 6/- for 6 months, and 3/- for 3 months, post free. Canada and U.S.A. $3.00 per annum.

Are all your gifts bought? If not, you have only a very short time in which to procure those you still require.

Do not let this fact drive you into making hurried purchases in an overcrowded shop—there is a much better way than that.

Books are always most acceptable, forming, as they do, gifts that are durable and, at the same time, useful. Naturally, a great deal depends upon the choice of books, but what better choice could be made than British-Israel books?

Below will be found a selection from our list, each group of books forming a valuable addition to any bookshelf or library. The publications can be procured singly at the published prices as shown.

THE SHEPHERDS.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them : and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not : for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you ; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."—St. Luke ii, 8-14.

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

What a startling message to come out of the darkness of the night to any people or to any person.

It is a personal message. Unto You.

It was a new message. Born this day.

It is a present message. This day.

It is a geographical message. In the City of David.

It is a genealogical message. Of the line of David.

It is a message of salvation. A Saviour.

It is a message concerning an historic Person. Which is Christ the Lord.

It is a Royal message. Which is Christ (anointed).

It is a sociological message. Christ THE LORD.

Prophets had dreamed and sung of it for ages, and had thrilled the world, as far as their message went, with anticipation of the event.

Angels had desired to look into the time and the glory of the event, and had found themselves unable to foresee the wonder of it.

The angel Gabriel had been sent from God to announce, once and again, to the astonished Zacharias, "a certain Priest, of the course of Abia, the husband of Elisabeth ; and to Mary, the mother then to be of Jesus our Lord."

It was night-time, and darkness was over the plains of Bethlehem. Out under the darkness there were fires burning, and the drowsy barking of shepherd dogs ; or the frantic barking, as some prowling jackal or more dangerous beast of prey, scenting the flocks, skulked in the neighbourhood of the camp.

There was the occasional bleating of sheep, and the voice of the shepherds as they quietened their charge.

It was manifest that it was a time of unwonted activity in the neighbourhood, as daylight would presently reveal ; and that unwonted numbers of sheep were quartered under the care of unusually numerous shepherds on the plains and hills between Bethlehem and Jerusalem.

The reason for this unusual concourse of sheep and shepherds was the decree of Cæsar that all the world should be taxed. For the purpose of that taxing every man and woman proceeded to the place of his or her birth.

Multitudes claimed Jerusalem as their family birth-place, and doubtless came to the city for the purposes of registration from the ends of the earth. It may be that this was not in the intention of the decree. Perhaps it was an unexpected reaction of the decree. It is probable that the understanding was that from the time of that taxation or registration in a Roman "Doomsday Book," the birth-place of each family and person would be officially reckoned as at the place of registration.

Digitized by Google

This being the case, how eagerly would every citizen of Jerusalem make his way thither, lest he should fail of his registration as a citizen of the Holy City.

How much more every one who could claim to be of the Royal descent of the House of David would make his way to the ancient City of Bethlehem, in order that his registration in the Royal City might not be disturbed. Who knows what might have been the effect of such neglect? Especially when it is considered that every scion of the House of David, no matter how far removed, is eligible for the throne right in the House of David, failing nearer claimants to the throne.

So they came, these thronging people, to be taxed at the House of their fathers.

How to make provision for feeding such a multitude?

Moreover, the thronging people coming to Jerusalem would desire to offer a sacrifice at the Temple at Jerusalem, in addition to the usual sacrifices. Where should lambs be found for such an offering? This was a question of demand so obvious that to supply the demand would create a splendid market, at top prices, for the shepherds of the countryside. Therefore they moved their flocks within reach of the city, and of the multitude attending on this occasion.

In addition to this the feast time which was then occurring created the heavy demand of such festal occasions. So the flocks were concentrated on Jerusalem, and as there were not folds sufficient to enclose them all, shepherds were abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night.

Over them all the brilliant stars of the east bent low and bathed them and their surroundings with what seemed to be the shadow of light.

"And, lo . . ." And see . . . for this is the meaning of the particle "lo." The indication is that the fact to be presented cannot be portrayed in words. It is a thing to be seen, and to that end the imagination must be called into play. Memory of scenes which must have been similar to the one on the plains of Bethlehem, scenes in many lands, observed by many observers, will come from memory to aid the imagination in reconstructing that which took place on this autumn night at Bethlehem. The vivid imagery of the Bible, given here a little and there a little, concerning the Glory of the Lord and the angel ministers who do His pleasure will come to mind and lend us aid in visualizing that which took place. Calling to our aid all past experiences, and all our reading, we answer to the invitation to visualize this great historic happening, when heaven and earth made contact on the plains of Bethlehem, and the eye looked upon the glory, and the ear drank in the sound of the testimony of the angel, and then the harmony of their chanting voices :—

"And, lo." Look, see :—

"The angel of the Lord came upon them,
And the glory of the Lord shone round about them . . ."

How busy are the angel hosts in connection with the family of the Lord in the earth!

One will say: Is it a matter of fact that there is a real ministry of angels? Or is this a way the Scriptures have of illustrating the beauties of an universal Divine Providence which is extended over all the works of God, but which does not particularize in the case of any.

Our answer to that is that we have had personally such evidences of such a ministry as have broken down that scepticism in regard to the PRESENT ministry of angels which held a very stubborn place in our minds for decades. We believed that angels ministered in former generations, before the outpouring of the Holy Ghost. We believe in the ministry of the Holy Ghost, Who particularizes in regard to every single Child of God, as though that particular Child of God were the only one committed to His charge. We believe and know that this is a great and glorious fact. He particularizes in regard to you. He particularizes in regard to me. He particularizes even, and especially, in regard to THE WEAK BROTHER FOR WHOM CHRIST DIED.

But we have also reason to know that there is a further ministry. The handiwork has been manifested, again and again, of an unseen Personality. It has forcefully guided our feet against our judgment and will at times, and at other times has dashed aside impending and sudden death. Yes, there is a ministry of angels still.

How clearly this is manifest in the sacred Scriptures, and how beautifully it is set forth in the Holy Word.

But this is not an Angel. It is "THE ANGEL OF THE LORD."

Look up in the holy Book the Angel of the Lord, and then learn how great a thing it is that happened to the shepherds on this wonderful occasion.

Let us read Gen. xxii, 11 and 15 to 19 :—

"And the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham: and he said, Here am I.

And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time,

And said, By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son:

That in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies;

And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice.

So Abraham returned unto his young men, and they rose up and went together to Beer-sheba; and Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba."

Let us also read Exodus iii, verses 2, 4 and 5, and 14 :—

"And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I.

Digitized by Google

And he said, Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you."

Let us further read Psalm xxxiv, 7:—

"The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."

The Angel Gabriel came to Daniel once and again, with messages from before the throne of God. But, as we read in the 10th chapter, a greater than Gabriel came to Daniel, to cause him to know "what is noted in the Scriptures of truth."

The Angel Gabriel had come to Zacharias as he ministered in the Temple; and to a maid called Mary who was of the house and lineage of David, residing in the City of Nazareth, to foretell the coming birth of Christ the Lord.

But now a greater than Gabriel, even the ANGEL OF THE LORD, came to announce to the simple shepherds the birth of the Saviour Christ.

"And the glory of the Lord shone round about them." Mark well the statement; it is the Angel of the Lord that came upon them, and it is "THE GLORY OF THE LORD" which shone round about them.

Now "the glory of the Lord" in former days was manifest to Israel by the Shekinah, shining over the Mercy Seat. It was the overwhelming glory reduced to its minimum of manifestation which thus shone behind the curtain of the Temple, over the Mercy Seat. Its greater manifestation had been seen by Isaiah the prophet, as described in the 6th chapter of Isaiah; and by Ezekiel the prophet, as described in the 1st chapter of Ezekiel, and later on in the Book.

Its still greater glory had been seen by Moses and the elders of Israel at Sinai, and its magnificence had held spell-bound the whole camp of Israel.

But, alas! The glory of the Lord had long ago departed from the Temple at Jerusalem, and the prophet Ezekiel had borne witness of that departure.

Through long ages of ministry, up to the time of Christ, neither priest nor prophet had seen the glory manifested in, or overshadowing, the Temple at Jerusalem.

But on this auspicious night and occasion the glory of the Lord had once more appeared, and it shone round about the watching shepherds, piercing and putting to flight the midnight shadows.

The foregoing considerations show to us clearly that it was no subordinate angel voice which made the annunciation to the shepherds of the birth of Jesus Christ our Lord. It was the Lord Himself in the midst of the Shekinah glory that made this august proclamation.

Again His Voice was heard at the baptism of our Lord; and yet again upon the Holy Mount of Transfiguration.

In audible tones in the midst of the glory, as in audible tones in the midst of the terrors of Sinai, He caused His Voice to be heard. Then he enunciated the Law. Now He proclaimed the Gospel. "Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto you and to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." He Whom the Heavenly host was praising was in their midst, and it was in response to His proclamation that they burst forth into song. He and the Heavenly host were visible to the eye and audible to the ear of the shepherds.

The scope of the message is twofold: "Unto you," and "unto all people." First to the shepherds on the plains of Bethlehem, the hereditary estate of the House of David. It was here that "David," the shepherd king, "followed the sheep," for the Lord selected His Kingly House from a "shepherd" family. But through the shepherds of Israel should the glad tidings of the Saviour born be unto all people.

It was quite in line with this that He Who that night was born at Bethlehem should say in the days of His ministry, "I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd giveth His life for the sheep."

Therefore with the shepherds we will say encouragingly to each other, "Come, let us go even unto Bethlehem and see this great thing which has come to pass."

"And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child. And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds."

THE SCHOLARS' QUEST OF THE CHRIST

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

"Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judæa in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judæa: for thus it is written by the prophet,

And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel.

Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, enquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt:

And was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son."—St. Matthew ii, 1-15.

When?	Now when Jesus was born—
Where?	In Bethlehem of Judæa—
What?	There came wise men from the east, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews?
Why?	For we have seen his star in the east,
Result?	And are come to worship him.

This is a most interesting incident connected with the birth of our Lord. It is written for a purpose in the Divine narrative.

Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judæa.

There came wise men from the East to Jerusalem in consequence of an object which had attracted their attention in the heavens. That which they saw is called a star. Either the object they saw appeared in the east, and was there seen by them; or the object which they saw appeared in the west and was seen by them, looking from the east.

First let us ask: Where did the object they saw appear to them to be? "We have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him."

It is quite possible that the object they saw was in the eastern sky. It will be remembered that Israel of the ten tribes was, at that time, north-east from Jerusalem. It will also be remembered that the bulk of the House of Judah remained in the east, when that colony of them which established the nation of the Jews returned from Babylonian captivity.

We have a full and complete description of the appearance of THE ANGEL OF THE LORD to the shepherds on the plains of Bethlehem. This is a meaningless statement if it be not a record of a supernatural revelation. We verily believe it to be nothing less than that.

If then it is a fact to be received as an historical happening that the Lord manifested Himself to the shepherds on the plains of Bethlehem, in the land of Judæa, there seems to be no reason to suppose that He would not also reveal Himself, and the great fact of the birth of Christ, to Israel in the north-east, and to the House of Judah in the east.

One must keep this possibility in mind when considering the astonishing things told in this brief narrative.

But there seems to be a more direct and probable interpretation of the events of that particular time.

There are reasons to think that the arrival of the wise men from the East was not on the night of the birth of the Lord. We read:

"Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judæa, there came wise men from the east." That word "came" must take in the whole of the movement. They came because of the birth, they came "when He was born."

Now the coming of the wise men from the East was a process. They had seen a phenomenon in the heavens which led them to believe that the Christ had been born.

After the manner of scholars, they did not jump to conclusions, but consulted together as to what the unusual phenomenon was as a matter of fact; and, secondly, what it portended. Such discussions would have taken an appreciable period of time before a final conclusion was reached.

Then came the preparation for the journey. As all those who have travelled in the wilderness know, this was not a matter of an hour or a day.

Finally they were on the way. We do not know exactly their starting-point, for "the East" is a very indefinite phrase. It is certain that there were no means of rapid transit in those days. We may assume therefore that a period approximating to a month would be occupied upon the journey.

Again we turn to the narrative and find that while Jesus was born in a stable, because there was no room for Him in the inn, the wise men did not find Him there. For we read: "And when they came into the house, they saw the young child with Mary His mother." The sudden pressure, which made accommodation impossible in the inn or in any household of Bethlehem, had passed, and the Holy Family were now established in "the house."

Turning to the narrative given by St. Luke, we find that the shepherds on hurrying to Bethlehem found the Babe lying in a manger.

But the wise men coming from the East found the "young Child" with Mary His mother. Again and again are the words "young Child" used, indicating that He had ceased to be a "babe."

All of these items point to a later time for the arrival of the wise men from the East than the birth night of our Lord.

Now let us ask the question, "What was it that the wise men from the East saw?" And we must proceed, first, by the process of elimination.

Was it a new star in the sidereal heavens that the wise men saw? The answer to this must be in the negative because of one fact among others that, on the reappearance of the "star" at Jerusalem, it went before them and stood over the place where the young Child was. Every astronomer, and every reader of astronomical literature, nay, every observer of the heavenly bodies, will know at once that this was no star set in the sidereal heavens. In its annual swing around the sun, the earth changes its position so that at one equinox it is at one end, and at the next equinox it is at the other end of a line of orbital diameter approximating to two hundred million miles. That is to say: the change in the earth's position twice a year amounts to that immense distance. And yet, so far distant are the sidereal stars that it requires instruments of precision to note even that change in the earth's position in relation to such stars.

How then should such a star lead the way over a route of approximately six miles? No, it was not a star in that sense of the term.

Every astronomer knows that no planet of our system halted in its journey, or deviated in its course, to indicate the birthplace of the Lord; neither could bodies of such magnitude indicate such a small scale movement as the journeyings of the wise men. It was therefore not a planet the wise men followed.

Neither was it a meteor; meteorites are not luminous bodies until they enter our earth's atmosphere. Then they are travelling at such an inconceivable speed that the friction of the earth's atmosphere renders them incandescent and luminous. No travellers could keep pace with such a swift movement, and if the movement were not swift, the luminous appearance would be absent. It was not a meteorite that the wise men saw.

Is there anything on record in the way of a phenomenon which would cause the wise men to decide that they had seen a star? There is.

If we turn to the narrative in St. Luke we see presented to us the descending glory of the Lord. To the simple shepherds, in the midst of the glory, there was first revealed the Angel of the Lord, and then a multitude of the Heavenly hosts. To the shepherds it was a present, immediate, direct, Divine revelation. It was a personal revelation of One Who gave an articulate message, couched in the language which they understood.

The wise men, beholding afar off, saw only a luminous appearance which they termed a "star." Indirectly it bore to them the indication of the birth of the long-expected King.

We conclude, therefore, that what the wise men saw was the glory surrounding the Angel of the Lord; the Shekinah glory from the beginning manifested to Israel.

The sight of the phenomenon was to them a memory when they arrived at Jerusalem. After having made enquiry at the palace of the king, and having received more specific instruction from the prophecies contained in Holy Scripture, they set themselves to journey to Bethlehem in search of the young Child.

To their amazement and joy "the star" again appeared to them, and led them on their way.

Up to the present, following the indication of the star, they had travelled from the East to the West. Now their direction was changed, and they travelled North until they came to the place where the young Child was.

How beautiful is the indication that scientific knowledge, while useful, is insufficient without Divine revelation and leading. It is further indicated that when the scientist and scholar so permit themselves to be led by natural phenomena, and on occasion by supernatural phenomena, such as the inspiration of the Holy Scripture, interpreted by Divine revelation, they will inevitably be led into the Presence of the Christ, and with the wise men from the East will fall down and worship Him; offering to Him, from their accumulated treasures, "gold, and frankincense, and myrrh."

BENEDICTUS.

St. Luke i, 68.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel: for he hath visited and redeemed his people;

And hath raised up a mighty salvation for us: in the house of his servant David;

As he spake by the mouth of his holy Prophets: which have been since the world began;

That we should be saved from our enemies: and from the hands of all that hate us;

To perform the mercy promised to our forefathers: and to remember his holy Covenant;

To perform the oath which he sware to our forefather Abraham: that he would give us;

That we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies: might serve him without fear;

In holiness and righteousness before him: all the days of our life.

And thou, Child, shalt be called the Prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways;

To give knowledge of salvation unto his people: for the remission of their sins,

Through the tender mercy of our God: whereby the day-spring from on high hath visited us;

To give light to them that sit in darkness, and in the shadow of death: and to guide our feet into the way of peace.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Ghost;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.

JUBILATE DEO.

Psalm c.

O be joyful in the Lord, all ye lands: serve the Lord with gladness, and come before his presence with a song.

Be ye sure that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.

O go your way into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and speak good of his Name.

For the Lord is gracious, his mercy is everlasting: and his truth endureth from generation to generation.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Ghost;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES

SATURDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 5TH.

ISRAEL'S MARCHING ORDERS.

THE REV. CHARLES COOPER, F.G.S.

I NEED hardly say what a privilege I feel it to be allowed to speak to-night, and I hope it may please God to use something that I may say. I attended a Conference recently at St. John's Hall, Highbury, my old College, on the occasion of the annual reunion, and the subject of that Conference was: "The New Evangelical Revival." There were three sessions, and there was time given to a discussion of the need. The first paper was a masterly one, written by the Rev. Wilson Cash, Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, and he reminded us of the conditions of England which, I am sure, disturb the minds of us all. He referred to the restlessness of mind, to the seeming indifference of the masses to religion, and to the fact that men and women are going after human aids seeking rest of heart. And we realize how true that is. Then he went on to show, with his wide experience—and he has been travelling a great deal of late—how the same conditions exist all over the world. Those of you who have read that small book, "The Clash of Colour," by Basil Mathews, will realize what I am referring to. If you have not read that book then you should. The great Eastern nations are realizing their power, and throughout the wide world men are seeking to express themselves anew. Many of them are turning to science, and they are not finding rest and peace of heart there. We all know from the past that a revival of religion can only come about in this country and in all other countries by the preaching of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by a proclamation of the truths of the Bible. It was so in the time of Luther and Wesley, and many others. And even now, as many of you realize, the Archbishops of our country are realizing that if we are to have anything of a spiritual revival we must return to the Gospel and to the Bible. Now I regard this as an opportunity for capturing this epoch-making time for the cause of the Lord Jesus Christ. The Rev. C. M. Chavasse, M.A., the new Principal of St. Peter's Hall, Oxford, who spoke at this Conference, said: "This is an opportunity for the Evangelicals to capture the present time, because we are bankrupt through the teaching of Modernism, and people are looking for that Gospel which alone can bring a revival to our land." I say that we British-Israel people must because it is a real opportunity, if only we can use it aright. The Rev. W. W. Martin, of South Croydon, was also one of the speakers, and he was saying that a wave of revival could only come through prayer and the winning of souls. I think here is another great truth which we as a Federation need to grasp, that if we are to make progress, and to capture this age for British-Israel Truth, it will come only through witness and through prayer and through seeking to win souls for the Lord Jesus Christ. Mr. Martin told us some remarkable stories of the movements that are going on amongst schoolboys, Crusaders and others, and he related how he went to one large public school, and an hour before it was time to rise he found that a number of boys between fourteen and sixteen voluntarily got up on their own account for definite prayer. That reveals the attitude of the youth of our country to-day towards the Gospel. But anything that concerns the Gospel of the Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ—we must be in this as British-Israel teachers, and it seems to me we must express the Truths of British-Israel in terms of the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ.

On Thursday last we ended a short four-days' Mission in my parish, and it was conducted by the Rev. W. Latham, and, as you may guess, I took an early opportunity of speaking about these matters, letting him know that I was a British-Israelite. I noticed that he avoided the subject, he did not seem to want to speak about it; if I ventured to say a little I noticed that he was silent, and I thought to myself, Well, I must go gently; I will wait a day or so. Last Monday I attended the Ministers' Conference at Headquarters, and we were inspired by what we heard from Mr. Goard; for he was giving us a few more instances about the Divine healing. When I returned home, as we were sitting together at the evening meal, I began to relate the wonders of God's power in our midst, and how willing He is to heal His people. And immediately that stirred all the interest in this man. Indeed, on Sunday last, he mentioned in my pulpit that he thanked God I was in sympathy with the teaching of Divine healing. As soon as I took up the subject of Divine healing I found I had won the attention of that man. And on Tuesday evening, after dinner, he said: "How is it that you have been to a British-Israel meeting, and have been discussing this question of Divine healing?" I pointed out to him that it was an integral part of our teaching. He realized that it is only a full faith in Jesus Christ in which there can be the Divine healing. We both agreed on that point. He became very interested.

I know there are people who will not listen to our Truth because they have wrongly supposed it has been substituted for the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. I ask you that when you are speaking of the national Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ, never omit to speak of the spiritual Kingdom of Jesus Christ, and the entry of men into salvation, whether Jew, Gentile or Israel, through the Cross of Jesus Christ. Back to the Bible!

BACK TO THE GOSPEL!

But there is not only a spiritual Kingdom, but God has been working in the national Kingdom from the beginning, and not one of His promises has failed, and all are being marvellously fulfilled before our eyes to-day. I think those who are prejudiced against us will be inclined to listen to us if we ourselves are really spiritual, and if we let them see that we are really anxious for the salvation of men's souls.

Several weeks ago I was preparing a sermon, knowing that our Mission was taking place, and I wanted to prepare the way, and there was given to me one Tuesday morning a text, which I will read: "Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up a standard for the people" (Isaiah lxii, 10). That is, make it possible for the people to walk along the highway to Zion. Set up signs, just as robbers are known to do when they are traversing an unknown country, they set up heaps of stones so that they may find their way back again. Let people see the way that you are treading. When I was studying that passage, and seeking to apply it to our own congregation as God's call to them to help to prepare the way for the return of the people in our parish to Jesus Christ, and to make it possible by their witness before the people to return, by setting before them the truth, it occurred to me what a fine British-Israel sermon this would make. I realized that it was full of British-Israel Truth. And when I wanted to give my sermon an historical background, I saw the wonderful Truth. I think it would be a help if I just referred to-night to the first verse: "For Zion's sake I will not hold My peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth." That is Jehovah speaking. Who is He speaking to? He is undoubtedly speaking to Israel in contradistinction to Judah. I think that is perfectly plain and straightforward. Look at the previous chapter. "Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." Who is to arise and to shine? Read the passage and you will see plainly that it is addressed to Israel, and not to Judah. You see that in the 9th verse, "Surely the isles shall wait for me." It is an address to the isles. And so you pass back to the previous chapters until you come back to the 49th chapter, and you will find the whole of these passages addressed to Israel, and we claim that to be a consistent interpretation of the Word of God. "For Zion's sake will I not hold My peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth."

I realize the call of God which has never ceased. The Jews rejected our Lord, and an appeal was made to Israel. And so you come down to Luther, and to the Evangelical revival. The appeal for righteousness is the same to-day.

GOD IS SPEAKING TO THIS NATION.

Then He goes on in the 2nd verse: "And the nations shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory; and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall name." Israel's righteousness; thy righteousness. That cannot possibly refer to the Jews, for the righteousness of the Jews has never been manifested. It is the righteousness of the redeemed Israel. "They shall be called by a new name," which I take to be our name. "Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God." Is that true of the Jews? Certainly you cannot say that the Jews are a crown in the hand of the Lord, a royal diadem in the hand of our God. Those who are connected with the Advent Testimony Movement tell us that all these promises are going to be fulfilled when the Lord comes. I say it is inconsistent, because you have only to follow the prophecies from the beginning to see that these blessings are to be in the latter days, and the latter days are before the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, and you have not to look for the larger fulfilment of the prophecies of the Old Testament at the time when the Lord Jesus Christ comes, but you are to look for their fulfilment before His Coming. I believe that nation that is redeemed, that is proclaiming God's truth, I believe that is the nation that is a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord and a royal diadem in the hand of God. "Thou shalt no more be termed Forsaken; neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate: but thou shalt be called Hephzibah, and thy land Beulah: for the Lord delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married." Surely that refers to the ten-tribed House of Israel, and it is not true of Judah. "I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night; ye that make mention of the Lord keep not silence." God's ministers have never held their peace. They have always been a witness for God's truth. And just in closing I want to read that 7th verse: "And give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth." I pointed out to my congregation that people throughout England sing that glorious hymn in which they pray that England may be made the Jerusalem of God. Then you come again to my text, the

MARCHING ORDERS TO ISRAEL:

"Go through, go through the gates: prepare ye the way of the people: cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up a standard for the people." I appealed to my people to make it possible for others to come to a knowledge of God's truth. The teaching in our Universities, and the teaching of Modernism, are causing people to depart from the Word of God, but it is our work to show how that these prophecies are being fulfilled. We are to set up guide posts. And if we are to do that we must study our Bibles, we must read the literature that is provided, and we must be able to point to people the way, and, above all, we must pray for guidance. Then the last verse of this chapter will be true: "And they shall call them, The holy people, The redeemed of the Lord; and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken." I believe that is true collectively as well as individually, that as we win souls into the Kingdom of God, as we get this nation to realize that we are the people of God, that verse 3 will be true of us, "Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God."

THE WASHING OF THE DISCIPLES' FEET.

THE REV. MAXWELL CARNSON, F.R.G.S., F.R.S.A.

Mr. Cooper's reference to the two sides of the Gospel reminds me that we of the Federation who are represented here to-night have from the commencement emphasized the fact that there are two parts of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Really the burden is upon the other people who, so far, have only emphasized one side, and that the side of personal salvation. In our emphasis on the other side, for the time being, for the sake of education and reinterpretation of the whole system of things, we may sometimes seem to over-emphasize the national element. And it brings to my mind an incident that happened only a fortnight ago. There is in the north of London an Irish lady, who sent to Ireland her small son, and the maid in charge of him, and the day after they had left she discovered that the boy's heavy boots had been left behind.

Digitized by Google

Now I understand there is a duty on boots going into Ireland. So like a wise lady she posted one boot that it might arrive before the week-end, and she posted the other boot at the commencement of the next week. Those of you who realize what I have said about the two parts of the Gospel are beginning to see that there is a double application here. Before she could post the second boot, she received a letter from the maid, which is typically Irish. The maid wrote: "The boot that you sent has safely arrived. But so long as the weather keeps as fine as it is keeping, we do not need the other." I think there are a great many who so long as the sun is shining are quite able to carry on with half a Gospel, but in the day of trouble and calamity, how often it is that our Christian faith begins to waver, until we are lost in the doubts and clouds of our own imagination.

To-night, then, I want us to look once more at our own personal faith as distinct from our national faith. We have spent a wonderful week in considering the perpetuation of the nation Israel, the heritage of the Anglo-Saxon race, our national responsibility, and the call to repentance. We have been brought to look at the Person of the King, and for a brief time we shall now look at the King in His relation to ourselves, and for that purpose we shall turn to St. John xiii, and we shall see what there was in the mind of the King of Israel—Jesus—at the close of His ministry when He partook of the Supper with His disciples for the last time; because if we can enter into His mind, we shall enter into the mind of one and another in this Hall to-night. Because we have three types, surely, present with us. We have the type of mind which says, I will never accept this interpretation. We have the type of mind which says, This interpretation is too good to be true. And there are those of us who feel that even the most wonderful interpretation of truth can never come within miles of the actual reality that is in the heart and mind of Almighty God, our Heavenly Father. So to-night let us just now see what Jesus the King has to say to the individual members of the Kingdom.

John tells us a good deal of what was in the mind of our Lord. He says that Jesus, knowing that the time was come that He should depart out of this world unto the Father, that is to say, Jesus in the last opportunity given to Him to emphasize the truth, Jesus when He knew that He was to die within a very short space of time, and that is something to find out about what Jesus thinks of his relationship to the individual. Because when you are brought up to the last meeting of this Congress, as we are, one tries to say just the thing that matters most, and to let everything else go by the board. And here we see what Jesus says and does. Now you are going to see what is in the mind of the King when He speaks for the last time to His disciples. And that Supper was not, as you and I in the West take supper, seated round the table. The disciples were reclining upon couches, each with his feet stretched out on the cushion opposite him. At one end is Jesus, and near Him the beloved disciple, and not far away from Him, Peter. Jesus knows that the hour has come when He must depart out of the world. A most solemn moment of realization that can come to anyone. But there is more. John tells us that Jesus at that moment—I wonder what some of our interpreters think of this?—"Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into His hands, and that He was come from God, and went to God." We have heard a great deal about Jesus being the product of His age. It was not a question of Jesus knowing only that which He had managed to accumulate, and interpreting the truth in terms of His own day and generation, but here John tells us that Jesus knowing that He was come from God. When did he begin to know that? The theologians have written volumes to fix the time at which Jesus began to realize His relation to the Father. He told people in the days of His ministry, and when He is revealed again in His glory to John it is as the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." Jesus, knowing that He was come from God, and something else, knowing that He was going to God, bringing with Him all that knowledge of the ineffable glory that was with the Father before the world began, and now, knowing that He was going back to that glory. There is more in the consciousness of Jesus than the past; there is the prospect and the glory of the return Home; that was enough to fill any heart with wonderful power and joy. But there was something else—knowing that the Father had delivered all things into His hands. What things? On another occasion when He walked with two of the disciples on the road to Emmaus after His Resurrection, He began at Moses and all the prophets, and declared unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself. Knowing that the Father had committed all things—the nation, the nations, the world, and all the worlds into His hands. Here you have got Jesus with His consciousness of the past, the present, and the future, and with that consciousness of the eternal. And supping with His disciples on the last occasion that He will have the opportunity of speaking to them, and looking round on them, He wonders to Himself what shall be His last word to them, what shall be the message that He shall leave with them. What would you have said? But what does he do? He rises from the table; He walks across the room to the corner where there rests a basin and a towel for the washing of the feet. He divests Himself of His long robe. He wraps around His waist the towel for the sake of convenience; He takes the basin and pours water into it, and He comes back to where the disciples were reclining, and begins to wash their feet. That is the King! And for me and for you, when we come to think about it, He is never more Kingly than when He is in the dust at the disciples' feet, or when He hangs upon the Cross for the salvation of the disciples' souls. Is there anything more princely in the minds of the British people than when their Prince, not forgetting his princeliness, does those human things that endear him to all our hearts, which have been written in the records of our nation, and which we talk over together, when we really begin to talk about the Prince of Wales? Is our gracious King more kingly, is our gracious Queen more queenly, than when they are most on our level, and most giving themselves in the service of the community? Here is Jesus, the King of all from the foundation of the earth before Abraham was, and on to the endless ages of the eternities, Jesus, your King and mine, in the dust.

"BEFORE ABRAHAM WAS, I AM,"

Digitized by Google

So He begins with the first disciple, and goes on to the next, and you can see the wincing of the disciples' faces as they watch Him at His task. So He comes to Simon Peter; his feet are on the couch. "Thou shalt never wash my feet," he says. Have you ever felt like that?

"Oh, can it be that I should gain an interest in the Saviour's blood?
Died He for me, who caused His pain?
For me who am by death pursued.
Amazing love, how can it be,
That Thou, my God, should'st die for me?"

Lord, dost Thou, the King, wash my feet? What does Jesus say to thee? "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." Now you people who are not ready to accept the position to which we have been brought by the providence of God; you who are saying to yourselves, It is so vague, it is so wonderful that it cannot be; I dare not take this to myself. I am going to say to you this, when you accept the truth as it is in Christ Jesus, the whole body of truth with which we have been dealing, you do not know what He will do for you to-night, but you shall know hereafter.

NOW WATCH PETER,

because this applies to you and me so often; we are always doing this. "Lord, Thou shalt never wash my feet," he says. We are meeting those people all the time; we have been talking about them on the platform; we have been discussing them in private—people who pull themselves in, and who refuse to allow the Spirit of God to deal with their intelligence, and the love of Jesus Christ to deal with their hearts, and the authority of Almighty God to rule in their lives. You know them very well. "Lord, Thou shalt never wash my feet." Are you one of them? Listen to what Jesus says to that. "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with Me." The One Who loves us. Jesus Who is always meek and mild and gentle and peaceable. Peter, you pulled your feet back; you said, "Thou shalt never wash my feet." All that is wanted is just an inch or two inches; putting your feet back where they were before so that I can get at them. It is not the washing merely, it is the will. If you will not give Jesus the opportunity to work in your heart the knowledge of His grace, it does not matter who you are, you have no part with Him. Awful statement! Members of churches, occupiers of pulpits, leaders and workers in the British-Israel-World Federation, if you have not given that little extra inch of surrender to the King at His request, you are little better than a pagan. An awful thought! Don't think that it is an easy thing to be a British-Israelite.

"If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with Me." Then you have the impulsive Peter that we love so much; he is so much like ourselves, and who does not stop to think of the consequences, "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head. Jesus saith unto him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit." It was only that little bit, that little extra that was needed. Oh, that little more—how much it is! Oh, the holding back because one is afraid of what somebody else will say about us! Oh, the hiding oneself behind a shell of quiet calmness lest someone should think we have gone mad in our enthusiasm! Oh, the silence, when we might have spoken that word of testimony to somebody who was waiting. There is the personal relationship between you and your King, the King, Who is down in the dust of self-sacrifice for us. In that personal relationship between you and your King you have solved all the problems of national repentance and righteousness. "Lord, dost Thou wash my feet?" "Thou shalt never wash my feet." "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head." May He bring us there.

THE REGENERATION OF THE NATIONS.

THE REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.

I have been profoundly stirred by the message that has been delivered by Mr. Carnson on that wonderful incident, St. John xiii; and I will tell you why. Mr. Carnson did not touch upon it, but I am going to touch upon it. In the whole scene there is an awful tragedy. I was conscious from the first that there was a black, hideous cloud casting its shadow deep upon that little company. When you get home to-night read that chapter (St. John xiii) and read that verse, "He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit; and ye are clean, but not all. For He knew who should betray Him; therefore said He, Ye are not all clean." You remember that the Apostle Paul was very anxious about one thing, and he did not seem as if he could get away from it. This is how he puts it, "I keep my body under." That word "under" is full of significance. I get my fists and my knees down on it, and with all the power I have I keep myself under discipline, "lest after having preached the Gospel to others I myself should prove a castaway." It is our first business then to see that our relationship to things divine and to things eternal are right. There is nothing that you and I can do; there is nothing that you and I can say of lasting value apart from the Holy Spirit of God. When Mr. Cooper was speaking to us he pointed out—and I think we cannot point it out too often—that it is by the Blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, that we are cleansed; that we do not enter into salvation, that we do not enter into a state of regeneration, except by a whole-hearted belief and faith in Jesus Christ as our personal Lord and Saviour; and that whether we are Israelites by race, or not, we come into a state and condition of grace by our own personal belief in Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour. And while he was pointing that fact out, I was interpreting the thoughts of some of you, and I think some of you were saying, If that is so, what advantage is it then that we should put forth this great truth concerning Israel? That is exactly the same question as was quickened in the minds of those who heard the Apostle Paul when proclaiming the Gospel of redeeming grace by Jesus Christ our Lord, which brought in all men on terms of personal salvation and regeneration. "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." Then said they, as you say to-day, "If that is so, what advantage is it?" "What advantage hath the Jew?" The Apostle Paul anticipated the question, and he said, "An advantage in every way, because unto us is entrusted the oracles of God." I want to point out to you the advantage that is ours in this regard. Our thesis proves this Book to be true every whit. If this Book is not true every whit, then how do you know that it is true when it tells you that Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanses you from sin?

The very truth of the Gospel of personal salvation rests upon the absolute truth of the entire Word of God; and if you cannot establish the truth concerning God's fidelity to His promises made unto His people, you cannot demonstrate the truth of His promises concerning His Son, Whom He gave for the sins of the world—can you? Hence you see that the foundation upon which the Gospel of personal salvation, as we call it for the matter of distinction—the good old Gospel—rests, is the truth concerning the Gospel of the Kingdom. And that is why, in the first instance, our Lord Jesus Christ proclaimed

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM.

You do not get any suggestion whatsoever from Jesus Christ concerning the Gospel of redeeming grace, or salvation, or atonement, at the commencement of His ministry. He does not hint at the Atonement until He comes to that experience which He had with His disciples on the road to Cæsarea Philippi, and when in answer to His question, "But whom do ye say that I am?" St. Peter confessed His Deity. It was only at the confession of St. Peter, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" that He spoke in terms of His Atonement. If the foundation is destroyed, what becomes of the building? "Ye are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief cornerstone." And so we must proclaim the Gospel of the Kingdom; we must demonstrate, through that Gospel, the absolute truth of the Word of God, that it is true every whit, from Genesis to Revelation. We must prove that not one single promise that God ever made has He failed to keep, or else we have moved the very foundations of our faith in the Atonement of Jesus Christ. Do you see that?

There is a word in Joel ii which reads thus: "And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions; and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out My Spirit." My message along that line is regeneration, not of individuals merely, but the regeneration of nations. We have got to think not only in terms of the individual, but in terms of nations. We have got to think big, first of all, in terms of our own nation, then through our own nation, in terms of the nations of the earth. If you come to think of regeneration as applied to the individual soul, you will find that self-same regeneration is applied equally to nations. "I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean." That is the nation. There are two forms of the great commission. In one form we are told this by our Lord: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; and he that believeth not shall be damned." That is the commission for the preaching of the Gospel of personal salvation to the individual. What says the other Gospel? "Go make disciples of all nations," not "in" all nations, but "of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Mark you, in that form of the commission we were to think in terms, not only of the individual, but in terms of the nation. It is a tremendous task. "I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh." "ALL flesh is ALL flesh."

THE BIBLE SAYS WHAT IT MEANS, and means what it says. We go on this principle, the principle which has been recognized by many Biblical scholars, that wherever a literal interpretation fits the bill, that literal interpretation is the correct interpretation. "ALL flesh." There is no limitation with the Spirit of God. The outpouring of the Spirit of God is not limited to Israel. There will never rise up a nation that can say to God, "We never had the opportunity. There was never poured out upon us the Spirit. We were excluded from that; we were shut out from the divine and spiritual influences of the Eternal Spirit." Never. "Upon ALL flesh will I pour out of My Spirit." "And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy." Now that is Israel. That self-same Spirit is to be poured out upon ALL flesh, including Israel. And in consequence of that outpouring your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams. What for? For their own profit merely? For their own sanctification only? What is a vision given to any man for except that that vision given to him shall be translated into such terms by him that it shall be received by those to whom he presents it. Why are dreams given? That, by the Spirit of the Lord, those dreams may be interpreted by the dreamer, that those to whom he presents them may receive the interpretation.

But now how can the nations receive the message of Israel, the vision of Israel, the dream of Israel, without the outpouring of the Spirit of God? Is it not true, according to the Pauline doctrine, that spiritual things are only spiritually discerned. If there is given—and there will be given—unto Israel visions, there will come the time, nay, some of us seem to feel and think that the time is upon us, when our young men shall see visions and when the old men shall dream dreams. But who are you going to tell your dreams to? To one another? Are you going to keep your vision within Israel? If you do that, you have destroyed the purpose and the intention of God in the creation of Israel. "And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out of My Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions." There will be a point of contact as between Israel with her vision and the nations of the earth. I am fully persuaded that the time is not far distant when this nation of ours, this great Empire of ours, the the Kingdom of God upon the earth, will see the vision splendid. That vision will be translated by the nation Israel-Britain to the nations of the earth, and there will be a moving of the Spirit of God among the nations of the earth, which will constitute that point of contact whereby those nations will, to a large extent, receive the vision that has been given unto Israel, and will accept the interpretation of Israel's dream, and there will come together hundreds of thousands of those who from all parts of the earth will become the adopted seed of Abraham according to the promise.

Dr. Rushbrooke is the Commissioner of the Baptist World Alliance. And, may I say, that the Baptist denomination, from the numerical standpoint, is one of the largest Christian denominations in the world. I just simply say that in order to show to you what Dr. Rushbrooke represents in the Baptist World Alliance. He moves freely among the nations of the Continent of Europe. He spends many months of the year in Russia, and when he comes back to our Assembly we receive from him first-hand knowledge of the religious movement on the Continent. And what is his message? That there is a movement among the European nations corresponding to that prophecy of Joel. We have tens of thousands of good, earnest, devoted Christian men and women in Russia to-day. The story of the movement among Baptists during that awful time of revolution is like adding another chapter to the great story of the martyrs. The Russian Revolution has cost something like fifteen to sixteen million lives, and it is not an exaggeration to say that millions of them were earnest Baptist believers, as intense believers in our Lord Jesus Christ as you and I are. I shall never forget years ago, when we had our Baptist World Alliance meetings here in London in the old Exeter Hall, seeing the Russian contingent standing up to reply to the roll call of nations, some of the best of Russia's sons and daughters. It was a wonderful sight. The Russian peasant is an intense religious soul. There is a spiritual movement

AMONG ALL THE NATIONS OF EUROPE.

Oh, how wonderfully God is working, constituting this point of contact, so that when Israel's vision comes and she proclaims it, when her dream is vouchsafed and she interprets it, there will rise up amongst these nations tens of thousands of people who will clap their hands for joy, and will come in as the adopted seed of Abraham. Don't you think that the devil is having it all his own way. I think the time is not far distant when even he will be surprised at the result. There is a great spiritual movement to that end in the Israel nation, in Britain, and in the great British Empire. And God is not leaving Himself without a witness among the nations of the earth. There is a passage of Scripture that comes to my mind, "Lift up your heads and rejoice, for your redemption draweth nigh." And do not forget that when your redemption draweth nigh, the salvation of the whole world will follow hard after you. The Lord God Almighty is going to win the campaign. I am not so much concerned about the battle here and there. The devil has won a few battles in my experience, and I daresay you could say the same; he has had us down, has he not? More than once or twice. But our concern is not in regard to the battle here and there; our concern is in regard to the campaign; that is what counts, and that is where the victory lies. It has been said of Britain that she has a wonderful knack of winning the last battle. And we can say with all reverence and with great gladness of heart that God is going to win the last battle. The campaign is His. "Goodness is alone immortal; evil was not made to last." And that new birth which comes to us, and which makes us the sons and daughters of God, is the same new birth which will come to our nation, and through our nation, I believe, to the nations of the earth. And He shall have dominion over the kingdoms of this world, and His righteousness shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. May we rejoice ever in that.

THE ISSUE JOINED.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

"WHAT Germany tried to do by physical force, Soviet Russia has undertaken to do by doctrine."

Turn back the pages of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, and it will be found that this has been insisted upon by us for a number of years; we are therefore not advancing a new doctrine.

The British-Israel-World Federation has welcomed with gladness the protest inaugurated by the Morning Post. Of course the question arose at first in every mind, "Is this a bit of newspaper enterprise, or, Is this a political move, or does it partake of the nature of both, and, if so, what should be our attitude?"

Our answer to these questions consisted of a recitation to ourselves of the basic principle of the Common Law, namely, "Every man, and every organization, is innocent in purpose and action before the Law until he or it is proved to be guilty." Therefore the Morning Post is innocent in purpose and action in its campaign of protest. So much for the motive.

As to the act of protest, the action is right and praiseworthy, and we knew our duty to be to align ourselves instantly with it.

Fortunately the Executive was meeting in due course, and the matter came before them; unanimous action was taken to express our alignment with the Morning Post protest. Within a few hours of the Executive having taken that action, the Morning Post telephoned to Headquarters and invited the Rev. Pascoe Goard to become a member of the original Committee, under the chairmanship of Prebendary Gough, to organize a national protest.

Mr. Garrison was requested also to join the Committee, and his experience and advice immediately gave direction to the action of the Committee, he having already on our behalf commenced negotiations for securing the Albert Hall. The responsibility for this was taken over by the Committee, on whose behalf Mr. Garrison concluded the securing of the Albert Hall.

The further development of that line of activity will be already known through the public Press. Our readers will be glad to know that we were not laggards in the task when the opportunity offered.

In the meantime, on Friday evening, the 13th inst., we held the first protest meeting in London in the large Central Hall. Reports of the addresses there given will follow in due course.

The daily Press laid an emphasis which our leaders did not lay on the 28th of May, 1928, and placed us temporarily in a false position before the mind of the public. THE NATIONAL MESSAGE pointed out very clearly that the 28th of May was no more accentuated than any other day indicated in the Low Passage of the Great Pyramid right up to its end.

We have steadfastly held that it would be

A TIME OF STRUGGLE

Digitized by Google

in the doctrinal realm between Great Britain as the centre of Divine worship and the doctrines connected with it on the one hand, and Soviet Russia preaching the doctrines of devils among the nations on the other.

We think all will agree that Russia has even surpassed our expectations hitherto in its formal national challenge issued to "God in His highest heaven." We venture to say that history does not record any such extraordinary action on the part of any nation.

True, France, or rather Paris, at the time when it was possessed of the same spirit of madness expressing itself in revolution and blood during the time of the Commune, took official action against the Christian faith, but they went to no such extreme of madness even in the heat of that explosion as the Soviet authorities have done in the cool calculation which comes a decade after the revolution.

If we were in any doubt as to the position of Great Britain in this struggle, every issue of the Soviet Government-controlled Press brings us the information. We are the embodiment, so they declare, of the spirit whose ultimate source is "God in His highest heaven," and whose chief expression is found in the Christian faith.

To that spirit of which, they say, Britain is the embodiment, the spirit which possesses and animates them is in a deadly life and death struggle.

All this is very logical. The spirit which cried to our Master out of the mouth of the demoniac, "I know Thee Who Thou art, the Holy One of God," cries to us out of the mouth of Soviet Russia, "I know thee who thou art, Britain, the heart and centre of the Israel of God."

It is a spiritual testing which will be applied to our physical manhood; to our economical existence and activity; to our ethical and moral character; to our faithfulness to the facts and doctrines connected with the Lord our God, and with Jesus Christ His Son; and to our spiritual faithfulness to Him, and virility in the defence of the temporal and spiritual values of His Kingdom.

And so the battle is joined. It will not be over to-morrow, nor next year; it will deepen in intensity. It is war in the spiritual realm just as surely as the Great War was war in the material realm. As the spirit of our nations awake to spiritual values, and to the infallible truths of Revelation, our nations will sweep on, God-inspired and God-led, to ultimate victory.

LAST WEEK'S MEETINGS.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

A GOODLY audience met at the Chiswick Town Hall on December 11th, when Mr. Herbert Garrison gave a short lantern lecture dealing with Jerusalem, accompanied by wonderfully vivid pictures. The interest was intense.

This was followed by a lecture by the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard on the subject of the delivery of Jerusalem, having special reference to the Balfour Declaration and the claims of the Arabs under it. Mr. Goard read the Divine proclamation regarding the disposal of the Land of Palestine subsequent to its being delivered from the power of the Turk (Idumea), as set forth in the 36th chapter of Ezekiel. He showed that while the Balfour Declaration promises Palestine as a national home for the Jews, the Divine proclamation promises the land as a national possession to all the House of Israel, even all of them. Mr Goard showed that as a matter of fact the Government action had been right, which actually took the land into British possession in line with God's promise, assigning to the Jews rights therein in conjunction with Great Britain and the inhabitants Great Britain took over. This is the GOVERNMENT action. The Zionist action has differed, being in line not with the Divine, but with the Balfour promises. Thus the Jews have been active in endeavouring to obtain possession of the land, of the natural resources of the land, and of the Dead Sea nitrate deposit in particular. This has brought trouble, and further action in that direction must of necessity bring more trouble. It is out of harmony with the clear-cut declaration of the Lord God Almighty.

Mr. Goard showed that prophecy is being translated into history in this matter in a most remarkable way, and that national and international events are demonstrating daily the infallible spirit which gave birth to these ancient prophecies which are finding such modern and up-to-date fulfilment after so long a time.

A most intense interest was manifested, and it is apparent that good soil has been broken up in the new district.

On Thursday similar meetings were held in the Central Hall, Westminster. Never did Mr. Garrison show pictures with more advantage or lecture with more acceptance than on these occasions.

In the afternoon Mr. Goard followed much the same line as at Chiswick. In the evening he spoke on the Signposts of Prophecy. He nearly lifted the people from their seats by his simple and yet astounding manifestation of detailed prediction of the time in which we are now living.

In this connection he instanced the delivery of the City and Land of Jerusalem and Palestine. He showed that the delivery should be from the starting-point of Bosrah, or Basrah as it is now called. That again our people should march forth out of Egypt into the Promised Land. That the City should be delivered with the aid of an airflight of men, "As birds flying"; that this should be at a time when the broadways of our cities would be crowded with motor traffic, as foreseen by the Prophet Nahum.

Mr. Goard further showed that at the same period the Turkish Empire would suddenly pass, signified under the symbol of the drying-up of the Euphrates, and that at that time a flood of propaganda by three evil spirits would make itself felt throughout the world.

At that time Armageddon should become a military and naval centre. This it is becoming now by the development of naval construction work and military centralization. Armageddon is Megiddo, back of Haifa, in Palestine.

Then should come the Second Coming of our Lord in that stage of it described as "Behold, I come as a thief."

Friday afternoon again Mr. Garrison lectured and showed beautiful pictures of the Holy Land, and Mr. Goard lectured on the horizontal and perpendicular dimensions of the Kingdom of God. He showed on the horizontal plane that the Gospel is national and material, dealing with past history, present conditions, and still future prophecy, leading right up to the reign of our Lord Jesus Christ. He showed that the perpendicular dimension of the Kingdom of God has as its base the doctrine of the Atonement, which Christ began to teach His disciples in the 16th chapter of St. Matthew. Next above that is the doctrine of the New Birth and of the Water of Life, which our Lord taught to Nicodemus in the 3rd chapter of St. John and to the woman at the well in the 4th chapter of St. John.

Next above that again is the promise of the Holy Spirit to guide us into all truth, and to take of the things of God and reveal them unto us.

A step higher still is the Coming of the Holy Ghost at Pentecost and His outpouring upon the Church thereafter.

Still higher in doctrinal ascent is the resurrection of the Saints, the translation of the living in Christ, and the return of our Lord to reign, bringing all His saints with Him.

The final step in the perpendicular of the Kingdom is when our Lord leads the redeemed up the golden pathway to the Throne of God, there to deliver the Kingdom to the Father, Himself to be subject to the Father, that God may be All in All.

The evening meeting had been transformed into a National Protest Meeting, verbatim reports of the addresses at which will appear in due time.

Too much cannot be said in appreciation of the wonderful pictures Mr. Garrison is showing on such occasions as these, covering every part of the Holy Land and of the Empire. Information and inspiration are combined with enjoyment, and the combined effect of his lectures and pictures are lasting and instructive to the highest degree. He has collected over 14,000 lantern pictures at his own charges, many of them illustrating scenes and structures personally visited by himself in various parts of the world.

EDITOR'S LETTER.

TO MY MANY CORRESPONDENTS AND FRIENDS:

Once more the world has passed through its appointed path in the heavens, and has completed another circle around the central body of the Solar system. This marks the ending of a year of earth time, and a year of human life. We may disregard the travel of the earth in its orbit; but we cannot disregard the year that its journey measures out for us from the span of our lives.

We are sorry to have expended the year, for at the most the years allotted to us are none too many for the task we have in hand to accomplish. But we are glad for the progress the year has shown in the appointed task.

It has been my privilege to have received letters from many of you. Most of the letters so received have been important, and as they have been read one by one, the necessary reply or action in regard to each has been present to my mind. When action has been required it has been promptly taken. But, alas, here they are in neatly arranged files, and the majority of them are unanswered.

The service to which I am bound has several departments. The first and most important, from my standpoint, is a constant, unending study of the Word, and its relationship to the world in which we live, the Empire of which we form a part, and THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER, which is my peculiar responsibility. The fields opening up are boundless. The questions arising are endless. The problems presented are continuous. We are able to understand the statement of the Psalmist found in the first Psalm, "In thy law doth he meditate day and night."

The next phase of the duty is the preparation of the weekly article for the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER. This is no light task, and must be done from week to week before any other duty is allowed to intervene.

Next there comes the task of preparation for platform work. This phase of the work is most important. There is an opportunity and a power connected with the spoken Word which the written Word does not afford nor possess. One's voice and personality, when backed by the Holy Spirit, seems to exercise a transference of real life from mind to mind and from heart to heart. It is at once a great privilege and a great responsibility.

Next again in order come the executive duties which arise through the development of the work of the Federation and of the Covenant Publishing Company, Ltd. Constant thought, and the weighing of this and that line of activity, is the price of effective and safe guidance of these great organizations, for they are great. Every member of the Executive Committees of the Federation, and of the Boards of Directors of the Covenant Publishing Company, Ltd., and of the National Message Company, Ltd., must give ceaseless and careful thought to every step which is taken if we are to walk forward in unison to success. I cannot avoid my share of these duties.

Again, there is the duty of meeting the members and friends of the Movement who come from near at hand and from the uttermost parts of the earth. We receive them for their own sakes, and we are glad to take the opportunity they offer of keeping up-to-date with the spread of the Movement in all lands. What wonderful facts they bring; what wonderful experiences they have to tell! How much their constantly varying information enriches and widens our outlook on the Empire, the world, and the work of our Federation in it!

After all these and many other things which will not be denied have received attention we are able to find moments to read our mail. This is usually the pleasant moment of the day. It is encouraging to hear friendly voices telling the wonderful story of God's goodness from the ends of the earth, and from near at hand.

But by this time the day and a good part of the night is gone, or other voices connected with some of the foregoing branches of duty are insistently calling, and so the letters are of necessity laid aside. In all too many cases they are never taken up by us again. Those which contain orders for books, remittances of money, or other matters of immediate Headquarters' business, are handed to their appropriate department, and by that department are dealt with in due course. But the constant river of incoming duties hopelessly prevents me from returning to them again.

Therefore I have among you many correspondents with unanswered letters. So I take this opportunity of thanking you for them, and of telling you why they have not been answered. One brain and one pair of hands can compass only so much, and then the rest must of necessity be laid aside.

I should not have made this long explanation for its own sake alone, for you have guessed all this before. But I should like to give you a glimpse of what kind of a life we are leading at

Digitized by Google

Headquarters. It is fully shared by my constant co-worker, Mr. Garrison, and by his second self, Mrs. Garrison. The midnight strokes of Big Ben usually constitute the signal that the new day has come and that we must of necessity seek some rest.

Of the hive of workers here, voluntary and paid, the foregoing may speak, for of the Federation workers we can well say all are at it and always at it throughout practically all the weeks which go to make up the year.

The fields are white unto the harvest. The Lord is ever sending more and more labourers into His harvest. As we toil along, singing as we work, and as we go we hear the voice of the Beloved Master, saying to us " My Father worketh hitherto, and I work," and as we hear that wonderful statement and know its truth, we hear the Apostle Paul saying to all his successors in the field of Divine service—

" Now we are labourers . . .
Now we are labourers together . . .
Now we are labourers together with God."

We ask your hearty co-operation in supporting our journal, THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

This paper is doing a work which is in the highest degree important. Formerly the aim of our journal was to establish the identity of Britain with the Israel of prophecy. Great and good work was done in this regard. But the insistent demand from every rank to make clear what good this demonstration would confer on the Church and State and on the individual caused us to launch out on what is perhaps the greatest task undertaken in the field of Bible Scholarship in this generation.

Higher criticism undertook to give an interpretation of the Bible by an examination of the text and of the composition of the Bible. If that long-continued activity has really made any constructive contribution to the religious life and knowledge of the day, it is hard to find. The labour has produced so far as we can see negative results. They have taken away much that former generations held to be dear and of value. Some of this material so removed probably has been accretions which have grown up around the truth. The removal of all such things is always of value. But, again, some of the things which have been removed have been essential parts of the structure of truth.

Truth itself, of course, can never be endangered. But the knowledge of the truth has been beclouded, and because of it faith in the truth has been weakened, and in many cases destroyed. This is disastrous.

It is ours to make an interpretation of the truth by unravelling the story told in the text, and by comparing that story with the outworking of Israel-British history, and the wider field of world history. We are able to show that although, unlike any other, the history of the last two thousand years was written at the beginning of that period, before the things written had been enacted or been born, the event has fully justified the pre-written history, and so the Bible is demonstrated to be a Book of higher than human origin. For mankind has not the necessary foresight to produce such a volume.

It is ours to show that the ancient covenants, promises and prophecies are valid and operative to-day and have been throughout the ages.

The modern critic has undertaken to show that the Book cannot be taken at its face value. Reasons have been advanced which have seemed plausible, and the conclusion has been drawn and widely circulated that the Bible cannot be taken at its face value.

It has been ours, on the contrary, to uncover facts which show that the reasons advanced by the Modernist are founded on fallacy, therefore the conclusions which have been reached and widely proclaimed are the reverse of the facts in the case. Moreover, we have presented facts which demonstrate the face value of the Book in every part thereof.

We have undertaken the exposition of the Book in all its parts. Given the facts which we produce, this is a simple matter. The facts compel certain conclusions, and these together show that at every point the literature of the Bible is what the man of intelligence and learning who is furnished with the facts we proclaim would expect it to be.

Once again we are enabled to draw aside the veil which was spread before the Throne of God, and to show that the Bible reveals Him as still dwelling in the midst of His people Israel-Britain, and as marching forward leading them on their journey through the ages as of old.

It is our privilege to manifest the Lord Jesus Christ as the actual Redeemer of His people Israel according to the Scriptures in the Old Testament and in the New, as well as to show Him in very deed to be the Saviour of the world.

It is our privilege to show, as none others can, that whereas our Lord has indeed finished His redemptive work, as He declared from the very Cross itself, every logical deduction, as well as every Biblical declaration, leads to the expectation that He will, and must indeed, return to take the Throne of His father David, and to rule over the House of Jacob for ever. And of His Kingdom there shall be no end.

It is ours to show the privilege and responsibility of Israel, God's Kingdom-nation, in bringing all nations under the administration of His viceregent, by Him appointed for ever on earth, namely, the House of David, thus looking to the rapid establishment of one commonwealth of nations in the earth, all under the Common Law of the Bible, which is in essence the Common Law of Britain and America to-day.

It is our glory and privilege to show that it is the function of the Church to proclaim the Gospel of the Kingdom of God in the earth to all nations, and to lead Israel in the Kingdom, and all peoples outside of the Kingdom, to a knowledge of Jesus Christ our Saviour, and of the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ as our God and King and as our Father which art in Heaven.

This whole presentation covers all the Bible and all its exposition. It is the task we have undertaken in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE. We shall only lead the way. Every other Christian journal and every other Christian organization will be fully occupied in accomplishing this great and glorious task.

In the same category is the work of the Covenant Publishing Company. It is a beehive of industry. It is putting the matter which is current in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER into book form, so that it may be permanently upon the shelves of the readers and expounders of Holy Writ. Millions of pieces of literature are thus set afloat and the results are manifold. Every ounce of weight should be thrown into he scale to aid this unique Company to do the great work it has been formed to do.

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE on the one hand, and the Covenant Publishing Company on the other, are the two hands of the Federation in the field of the written Message. Other journals are in the field. But they do not carry our responsibility; they have not charged themselves with our task, and they do not make their circulation tend to the spread of our literature o any degree. We have no word to say against them. But they are not with us in our task.

Our youngest venture is the formation of a Junior department of our work, and the launching of its junior paper, the "Crusader." It has started well, and will no doubt be carried forward to wide success.

We ask your aid in all these branches of our work, and your prayer for the success of the Movement.

Wishing you all the joys of the season and the best of all years to come.

Yours in the bonds of the Covenant,

W. PASCOE GOARD.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL and Mrs. Garrison wish all our readers a very Happy Christmas, and a bright and prosperous New Year.

Miss Haynes was the speaker at Headquarters on December 11th, and she gave a most acceptable address. There will be no meetings at Headquarters next week.

Mr. Wm. Whitton visited the Ilkley Branch on December 3rd and 4th. Three meetings were held, and attendances were good. Mr. Whitton's addresses were a help and an inspiration.

The first regular meeting of the newly-formed Branch at Blackburn was held on the 5th inst., when Mr. S. E. Steele lectured to a very good number.

Miss Makin was the speaker at the Liverpool meeting on the 12th. The subject of her address was "The Garden of the Lord." The speaker reminded her audience that there were three notable Gardens referred to in the Bible: The Garden of Eden, where sin entered; The Garden of Gethsemane, where our Lord was betrayed; The Garden of the Tomb, where our Lord was laid, and from which He arose triumphant over death.

Mr. J. J. Morey held two very successful meetings at Portsmouth on the 9th inst. Our Cause in this town is flourishing. It is well supported by Christians of all denominations.

Mr. Morey also lectured at Yapton, near Arundel, Plumstead (the Rev. Lumley Davies' Church), Navy House, Chatham, and at the Horniman Hall, Croydon. Everywhere good audiences gathered and an increasing interest in our work was displayed.

The Rev. Maxwell Carnson writes from Cape Town:—

"On my arrival home once more, I wish to send a word of thanks and greeting to all the friends who received me with such kindness during my visit to England, and to you at Headquarters for the valued fellowship I enjoyed there.

"I cannot sum up better my own feelings with regard to the Congress than by saying that, above all things, it brought me face to face with Jesus Christ at the foot of the Cross. That is exactly where the Congress led me; and it is where I am to bring my people here in South Africa, so long as I am their servant.

"We had many evidences in the London meetings that we are on the verge of that spiritual Revival for which we have so long been looking and praying. We experienced it in the wonderful Wigan meetings; we felt its pulsation both in the Central Hall and in the Church Hall, Westminster. Now that I have returned to Cape Town, I find the Revival in full swing in all the great towns of the Union. From Durban, Pietermaritzburg, Johannesburg, Port Elizabeth, and elsewhere, are coming wonderful stories of the work of grace in the hearts of men; of business men calling their staffs to daily prayer in the office at 9 a.m.; of clergy and ministers of all Churches confessing their sins and deliberately setting out to win men one by one for Christ; of men and women, old and young, of all denominations and of none, giving up their brief luncheon hour, not once a week, but EVERY DAY, to spiritual fellowship and the extension of the Kingdom of Christ. I am myself in the midst of the Movement within three days of my return, and am still gasping in amazement at the things God is working.

"What is the Secret? CHRIST IN YOU, THE HOPE OF GLORY.

"Now there are no other people who have such a grasp of the Person of Christ, of His historic significance, of His present power, and of His ultimate victory, as we have who are trained to think nationally as well as individually.

"My prayer for myself, and for us all, is just this; that we 'may know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings.' For myself I ask that all should pray for this entire surrender to Christ, without which all public work is of no avail. 'Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not—Christ—I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.' And for all the friends of the Federation I, too, am praying just this, 'CHRIST IN YOU, THE HOPE OF GLORY.'

"May the new Federation Year be, in deed and in truth, The Year of Our Lord, 1930."

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

A.D. 1929.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

WITH the passing of this year the decade of the "twenties" passes into history.

The great fact which emerges at the end of the present decade is that God has established a national government in the earth. He has endowed that national organization with the Divinely-given Law; and He has appointed over it the Divinely-ordained administration in Church and State of the House of David.

He planned and has determined that that national government shall become universal in the earth and that system of Law shall be universally applied to all peoples.

He has furnished a people trained in that administration from the beginning, even the people of Israel, the modern descendants of whom are the Celto-Saxon people, whose very reason for being is that they might be the ministers of the Law of the Lord in the earth, that it might be, as of old, the national basis of that Kingdom of God in the earth.

A GREAT OBJECT LESSON.

God has caused that administration to penetrate to the ends of the earth and to manifest itself to the eyes of all men, so that there is not a nation on the earth which does not see and more or less come into contact with the Law of the Lord and its administration.

He has caused that government or kingdom to extend its boundaries until it is seen to embrace people of every race, of every colour, of every faith, of every tongue, of every continent. He has given a demonstration before the eyes of a wondering world that all these diverse peoples and languages and tongues within that Kingdom are dwelling in peace together. They have not yet mastered the secret of ruling themselves in peace. The Pax Britannica—peace of the Covenant—is the effect of the rule of the House of David.

As matters stand, at the end of the decade which is now passing, one-fourth of the people of the world have been brought under the scope of the Law. One-fifth of these have come under the administration of the House of David. Ex-President Taft, Minister of Justice for the United States, has told the world that in the United States, with its two hundred million souls at home and overseas, the administration of the Law has broken down.

Six hundred and fifty millions under the Law of the Lord, or the Common Law. Four hundred and fifty millions of all kinds of people, among that six hundred and fifty millions, are under the Divinely-appointed administration.

Among the larger number inhabiting the larger area of territory there is national and international peace. Among the four hundred and fifty millions administered by the House of David there is respect for and obedience to the Law.

Outside of these numbers in the earth there is confusion and strife.

DIVERSE SYSTEMS OF LAW.

There is confusion arising from diverse systems of Law. For instance, there is the Civil Law of Europe—Roman Law. There is the Mohammedan Law among the followers of Islam. There is Rabbinical Law among the Jews—and so on. Wherever these systems come into contact with each other there is confusion and often strife.

Digitized by Google

DIVERSE ADMINISTRATIONS.

There is further confusion because of diversity of administration. There is the variety of administrations which obtain in Republican Countries. For instance, there is the administration of Republican France, compared with the administration of Republican America. It is a matter of interest to compare the two systems of administration. There is the administration of Monarchical Spain, compared with the administration of Monarchical Italy. These are further varied by the fact that Republican America is administering the Common Law, while Republican France is administering the Civil, or Roman, Law.

So the matter can be carried forward as a most interesting study. But there remains the important fact that these diversities of systems of Law and of administration make for unrest, often issuing in war in the earth.

During the decade there has been a congress of the outstanding legal authorities, great jurists of the civilized nations. They came together to make a study of the various systems of Law, and they decided on recommending the British system, the Common Law, as best suited to the need of the nations, and therefore as the system which should be made universal.

This is a long step forward in the direction of the establishment of the Kingdom of God in the earth.

Soon the nations will be constrained to consider the various methods of administration. There have grown up many encumbrances around our administration, because we have departed from the simple process laid down in the Bible. Still the House of David administration, as manifested in the administration of the British Empire, and of each of the Dominions in it, is immeasurably superior in the results obtained, and in the ease of the peoples under the administration. There can be no doubt the unbiassed decision of the people will be in favour of the House of David, or British form of administration, as well as of the British system of Common Law. So the Law will be made uniform, and the administration one, and the boundaries of world peace will keep pace with the extension of the boundaries of the Kingdom, and so the peace of the Covenant will become universal. So Isaiah says, "Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom to order it and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts shall accomplish this."

This is one of the great "sets" of the current of world affairs in which we find ourselves involved at the present time.

There arose it will be remembered an interesting time connected with May 29th, 1928. Many people expected such an outfly as came to pass on the night of the 4th of August, 1914. Great was the disappointment when such was not the case. The daily Press made us say many things which we never said, and, having done so, refused to make the necessary corrections to bring their statements into line with the facts of the case. Therefore there went out to the ends of the world the expectation of things which none among us foretold by any of our British-Israel leaders, although others, out of touch with us, followed the statements of the public Press, assuming them to be true.

That the date referred to had a place in the forward march in history, and marked a decisive step forward in the Divine Plan, seemed to be clear from the study of the Great Pyramid. That statement may stand.

There was historically a more important date and series of dates marked in the Great Pyramid. Those dates were of such vast importance that the events which occurred at that time gave rise to the modern B.C.—A.D. Calendar. From one of that group of dates the civilized world has counted its time for ages. It was the date of the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ. That date is startlingly marked in the Great Pyramid as the starting-place of the grand gallery. But the world went on, unconscious that such an event had transpired.

Had there been Pyramid students on that occasion, which there were not, for the secrets of the Great Pyramid were then locked safely in the heart of the great structure; but if there had been, they would have been in exactly the same case as were the people whose expectations had been raised on the 29th of May, 1928. They would have said, and the world would have said: "There, the great day has gone past and nothing has happened." Yet the greatest event of historic time had taken place, viz., the birth of a Babe in a stable at the little village of Bethlehem. Such an event was it that, when later the world awoke to the significance of it, they changed the measure of time, and began that measure at the manger at Bethlehem where the Christ was born. They not only dated from that event onward to this very day and year, but they also measured the time from that event back to the beginning.

Now in 1928 the majority of Pyramid students put certain things together and expected that at that moment there would recur such a time as occurred on the night of the 4th—5th August, 1914, when Britain entered into the Great War. They further expected that during the period of the low passage there would be in progress such a conflict as took place during every inch of the previous low passage. Comparing the structure of the passages, they looked for some such similarity of international experiences.

These, of course, were disappointed.

Not only by comparing passages did they build up such an expectation. They called to mind an interpretation of prophecy which has become traditional in a certain school, namely, that there is yet to be a great tribulation upon the world, inclusive of Israel-Britain. Many of these have seemed to believe that Israel-Britain will be the vortex of this great tribulation. These looked for a resumption of war against Britain by the Continental Powers. In the struggle they looked for the crash of all government and the coming in of world chaos.

This is a traditional expectation.

It was our privilege again and again to point out that we, as Israel, are guaranteed against such a tribulation. We have showed again and again that in the fifty-fourth chapter of Isaiah, verses four to fifteen, there is extended to us a covenant similar to that which was extended to Noah that the waters of the Flood should not return to destroy the earth. In this case the covenant is that as a result of the Redemption wrought out by our Lord for Israel of the captivity and Israel in the Isles; and because of the fact that Israel has been subjected to the statutory punishment of seven times, as laid down in the twenty-sixth chapter of Leviticus, there shall no more chastisement come to Israel from the hands of God. The whole passage reads as follows :—

Digitized by Google

" Fear not ; for thou shalt not be ashamed : neither be thou confounded ; for thou shalt not be put to shame : for thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, and shalt not remember the reproach of thy widowhood any more.

For thy Maker is thine husband ; the Lord of hosts is his name ; and thy Redeemer the Holy One of Israel ; The God of the whole earth shall he be called.

For the Lord hath called thee as a woman forsaken and grieved in spirit, and a wife of youth, when thou wast refused, saith thy God.

For a small moment have I forsaken thee ; but with great mercies will I gather thee.

In a little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment ; but with everlasting kindness will I have mercy on thee, saith the Lord thy Redeemer.

For this is as the waters of Noah unto me : for as I have sworn that the waters of Noah should no more go over the earth ; so have I sworn that I would not be wroth with thee, nor rebuke thee.

For the mountains shall depart, and the hills be removed ; but my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed, saith the Lord that hath mercy on thee."—Isaiah liv, 4-10.

This Covenant is as sure as the Word of the Lord.

This having been considered, let us now pass to the Saviour's use of the same simile of " the waters of Noah," and the experience awaiting the world in connection therewith. From this latter experience Israel is saved by the Covenant, as Noah and his household were saved in the Ark. "As it was in the days of Noah so shall it be in the days of the Son of man."

It is because of this that the writer has called attention again and again to the obvious fact that when the tribulation does cover the earth with confusion and dismay, Israel will be protected behind its Divinely-guarded boundaries. Thus we read in this connection :—

" But Zion said, The Lord hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me.

Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee.

Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands ; thy walls are continually before me.

Thy children shall make haste ; thy destroyers and they that made thee waste shall go forth of thee."—Isaiah xlix, 14-17.

The writer has also called attention to the fact that Armageddon, so dreaded through traditional interpretation, is not a WAR nor a BATTLE ; it is the gathering place of the forces of the Lord. It is a place of strength. It is a geographical location. Our British Government is busy at Haifa, developing such a place of strength at this moment.

True there will be going on " the battle of the great day of God Almighty " to which " the three evil spirits like frogs " gather " the kings of the earth and of all the world." But Armageddon is a place of strength and of refuge to the forces of the Lord.

So when others looked for the great struggle to involve our nations, we looked abroad to see the tribulation sweeping on its course among the non-Israel nations, who are striving after self-rule and who are not submitting to the rule of the Lord.

That great tribulation has indeed been sweeping on its course over the nations during the decade just passed, and since the outbreak of the war in 1914.

There are indications that among the external nations there will yet be strife of the most bitter kind.

One would require to carry optimism to the point of imbecility to believe that Russia, as her activities are expressed by the Third Internationale, is aiming at peace. True, she is not aiming at war as Germany staged it. But she is aiming at war in a more frightful shape, namely, in the form of revolution, where brother is being brought into conflict with brother, and members of one household are being divided. She hopes to make this revolution world-wide.

This activity will at last bring on international strife. For the nations who desire peace will not submit to constant terrorization and disturbance at the hands of an alien people.

One must carry optimism just as far to believe that Mussolini is dreaming of peace when he is publicly inciting the war spirit among his following ; and while he is turning Italy into a great fighting machine.

Further, one must read the prophecies of the Bible with eyes closed to much of the truth therein expressed if one believes that the Bible predicts peace at the stage of unfolding history we have now reached.

Surely Jesus Christ, the great Apostle and High Priest of our profession, is the Chief Exponent of the truth, and He does so without doing violence to the spirit of Christianity. He says, in the twenty-fourth chapter of St. Matthew :—

" And ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars : see that ye be not troubled : for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom : and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places."—Matt. xxiv, 6-7.

Now, while the Saviour of the world foretold these things, He did not ordain nor plan these things. These things are as much against the spirit of the Christian faith as are the teachings of the false Christs and false prophets of whom He goes on to warn us. But these things are in the world and shall be in the world. Of them the Saviour says : " Behold, I have told you before."

Let us learn that the facing of the facts of life, and of history, things which are not at all the product of the Christian Spirit, is not contrary to the Christian Spirit. Had it been so the Lord would not have told these things before.

Being foretold of these things by our Lord before they happen, it is not at all against the Spirit of Christ that we should prepare to meet these things in accordance with His warning : " If the good man of the house had known at what hour the thief would come HE WOULD HAVE WATCHED AND WOULD NOT HAVE SUFFERED HIS HOUSE TO BE BROKEN INTO. WATCH YE THEREFORE . . ."

These things, such as wars and rumours of wars, nation rising against nation and kingdom against kingdom, are in the earth. It is not for us to take a part in the aggressions, but it is for us individually and nationally to be on our guard against them. It is also our duty by precept and example to try and prevent them. But it is "THE STRONG MAN ARMED WHO KEEPETH HIS HOUSE," so our Lord and Master declared.

Now we have reached a time in the history of the nations when there may be looked for once more a recurrence of alarms and of war. We are aware that the League of Nations is labouring against this. And the advocates of the League are trusting that it will be able to banish war from the earth. If there were but one string to the bow of the popular mind and will, this might be done. But are there not other matters weighing with Russia? Are there not other matters weighing with Italy? Are there not yet foretellings which bode strife and turmoil on an unprecedented scale in the world? There are all these things.

It is of these that the Great Pyramid gives us warning. It has been and is the general belief among the students of Pyramid and of Prophecy that both these are giving warning of things now happening and of things to come.

What may we know of things which are prophesied which would be likely to be embedded in the Great Pyramid structure?

Many things will go to make up the sum of the warning of the second low passage. Among things which are domestic, such as the financial structure and what is happening to it, there are more grave matters of an international kind.

The last great act of the age will be when all nations not of Israel shall gather against Jerusalem to battle. This day is yet ahead of us. Is that day indicated in the second low passage? If so, what is it that is so indicated? Let us turn to "the more sure Word of prophecy" and see what light it may throw on the matter.

What we are to say is not drawn from the Pyramid, but from Bible prophecy. The latter will stand whether we can read the riddle of the Pyramid or not. What, then, is it that the Bible states shall take place in this era which may be that which the Pyramid indicates? This is not to draw light from the Pyramid, but to shed light on it, which is a very different task.

We will turn to the tenth chapter of Daniel at this point and read in the Bible of the Great Personage Who came to Daniel on the occasion recorded there. He is manifestly our Lord Himself. In chapter eleven He takes up a thread of the skein of world history and disentangles it to the present historical day. He tells the story of the age-long conflict between two sections of the Babylon system of Empires, called the King of the South and the King of the North. These carry on war with each other which is age-lasting, and which ends in a final struggle. But that final struggle is not the climax of the revelation given in these chapters.

The starting-point of the revelation is when Michael, one of the chief Princes, came to help the Lord at the Persian court. From that point the history is begun. It runs to a certain time which we identify as this time, and the climax is reached when Michael stands up, the great Prince, which standeth for thy people, as He declared to Daniel.

Now, who is Michael? He is the commander of the angel hosts who carry on the ministry of Jehovah. The angels were not called upon in the Christian dispensation. But at the end they are called in to defend the Kingdom of the Lord.

Therefore we say that, in line with the prophecy as to the standing up of Michael, we probably have the time and event marked by the second low passage or rather by the granite floor, walls and ceiling of the passage, symbolizing, as all agree, protection.

If this be the case, not exclusively of other fulfilments, then the world would know nothing of the fact, but Israel and the world would be and will be caused to know the effects of the fact. Israel will be protected, and the enemy nations will be defeated by the angel hosts.

When the Lord declared "Thy walls are ever before Me," He referred to the defences of Israel. Among the gathering forces which make for war and a renewal of struggle which the League of Nations will not be able ultimately to avert, there is this mighty comfort to Israel, that, to make good the terms of the Covenant of protection before quoted, the angel hosts are conjoined with the armies of Israel to make good the defences of the Kingdom.

This we believe to be the position of affairs at the present time.

Space will not permit us to follow the matter further in this issue.

BRITISH-ISRAEL-WORLD FEDERATION.

MASS MEETING,

CENTRAL HALL, WESTMINSTER, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 13TH.

MAJOR J. KNOWLES (Chairman) said: At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the British-Israel-World Federation, acting on behalf of the Council, a resolution was passed strongly supporting the action proposed by the Morning Post regarding the persecution of Christians in Russia, and offering our cordial support. I am sure you will all approve of that. A copy of this resolution was sent by hand to the Morning Post staff, and they sent back to our Headquarters immediately, asking Mr. Garrison and Mr. Goard to come at once and confer with them as to the steps which they would take. At that meeting it was decided that the Albert Hall, which had been provisionally booked by Mr. Garrison for December 19th, should be engaged for the purpose of giving expression to this Protest. A Christian Protest Committee was formed, and they are making full use of Mr. Garrison's organizing abilities, and have taken his advice in matters connected with this meeting, which promises to be a tremendous success. In the meantime we decided to change our programme for to-night, and to make it harmonize, as far as possible, with the programme of the Albert Hall meeting on Thursday next. The British-Israel-World Federation, therefore, has the honour of being the first organization in this country to hold a meeting of protest against religious persecution in Russia. Our speakers to-night include the Rev. William Fetler. This gentleman has only just landed in this country from Riga, and he can tell you what the state of affairs is now in Russia. Following him we shall have the privilege of hearing our beloved friend, the Rev.

Pascoe Goard, the great exponent of British-Israel teaching, who took part in a campaign against the "Reds" in Vancouver during the war, and was instrumental in bringing about a complete and overwhelming victory against them. Lastly, we shall have the Rev. Prebendary A. W. Gough, the Chairman of the Christian Protest Committee, who is making a very special effort to be with us here to-night.

I will now call upon the Rev. William Fetler to address the meeting.

REV. WILLIAM FETLER said: Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen,—It was quite an unexpected piece of news to find out yesterday morning, upon my arrival in this country, that through the Morning Post the Christian people of this country were being aroused to a concerted effort on behalf of the downtrodden Christian peoples of Russia. It particularly gladdened me to hear that, since only about two or three weeks ago there came into our house in Eastern Europe in Riga a deputation asking whether we would observe Wednesday, the 11th December, as a day of fasting and prayer for Russia. I could not stay personally at my Headquarters, as I had arranged to meet my London Council, but the day of prayer was observed by my Church and congregation. I took part with them on the train travelling through Germany and Holland, and offered my prayers to God. Then, behold, when I arrived yesterday morning, what almost seemed a direct answer to those prayers, I found that the British Christians had been considering what to do on behalf of the Russian people. And I got the same news from Germany, from Switzerland, from France, and from other parts. And it certainly seemed to me that the finger of God was in it.

If you will permit me I will read one verse which seems to be particularly appropriate for the present occasion. It is from the last Book of the Bible, in the Revelation of John the Divine: "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon." When eleven years ago Communism was proclaimed from the house-tops all over Russia, some people thought that at last the Golden Age had arrived. I was at that time in America, banished by the Czar from my native country.

I would like to say, my dear friends, that so far as Russia is concerned, there are two aspects to be considered. The one aspect, under the name of Bolshevism, is something which is dealing with the political situation in Russia, and with that we, as Russian Christians, are not so much concerned. The other aspect is what I might term Communism, and that is definitely and decidedly a religious aspect. We as Russian Christians do not need to interfere with the present Government of Russia, we recognize that that is a matter for the politicians. But when the Russian authorities bend down and say to the Russian people, "We are going to dominate your souls. We are going to decide for you as to whether you are to believe in God or not, then we say to the powers that be in Russia,

'HANDS OFF!'

Because the domain of the soul belongs unto God." About six years ago I printed in Central Europe, when the mark was still very low, this edition of the Russian Bible, eighty-one thousand copies, and which I sold in my land, the largest edition of any Russian Bible that had ever been published for the Russian people. I published this Bible for the purpose of sending it into Russia. I began sending it to Russia, and these Bibles began to come back from Russia by the mail, and there was in the French language, which is the international language for diplomatic relations, an inscription written on the outside cover to the effect that it was a forbidden Book in Russia. I submit, Mr. Chairman, that no power on earth has the right to forbid the circulation of the Bible among our fellow-men. The Bible is the Book of God, and we here this evening, at this meeting of Christians, protest against the prohibiting by the authorities in Russia of the circulation of the Bible in that land. When I arrived yesterday, I met my Committee of the Russian Missionary Society, and some members of the Committee who had been invited to take part in this Protest. And some of them were a little bit afraid, and they said that if we, as a Society, joined the movement of Protest, what about our missionaries in Russia, and what about the other Russian believers there; and whether things would not become even worse for them than they are at present. And I said this to them. Only three days ago before I left for London, there came a fugitive Evangelical preacher to my Headquarters in Riga, and in my office I put some questions to him, for I wanted to find out the present religious position in Russia. And as a result of my conversation with him I found out that that they could not become any blacker; that the position as regards the Russian Christians were so bad that it could hardly become worse, and that if we joined the Protest Committee nothing worse could happen to our missionaries and workers and to the Russian Christians than was already happening at the hands of the present powers in Russia. My heart was grieved when I heard from this venerable Russian Evangelical preacher that for fourteen long months he had been kept in prison, away from his wife and family, for the simple crime of preaching the Gospel and reading the Bible to his compatriots. And then he was released, and he fled for miles and miles and without a permit he managed to get into the free Republic of Latvia, where I am living at the present time, and he came, fleeing from that liberty which those people had proclaimed.

Let us make no mistake about it whatever. Some people imagine that Bolshevism is simply an experiment in new civics and new government. Let me say to you that Communism in Russia is not a matter of political experiment; it is a matter of religious degeneracy. It is a religious matter entirely. It is not simply that they are attacking one faith here and another faith there. They have set themselves up against everything that is of God. Not a single copy of the Bible can be had amongst the 160 millions of the Russian people to-day. This fugitive from Russia told me that there is not a single Christian newspaper or tract to be had. Not only that, but throughout Russia the Bolshevist newspapers are the only papers that are allowed to be published, and they are now proclaiming practically every day that the Evangelical Christian people, whom they call Sectarians, are direct revolutionaries against the Government. And I would like to say, if, perchance, there be some

Bolshevist spies in this gathering, that I would like them to send this message back to Moscow, that that accusation against the Russian Christians is untrue. Russian Christians are not counter-revolutionaries. Christians do not mix with politics. All that the Russian Christians are asking is that they may be allowed to worship God according to the dictates of their conscience. Only a few days ago, as you know from your own newspaper, the authorities in Russia arrested a lady whom I know personally. I have visited in the palace where she and her mother used to live, and she is well-known in other respects, because she is the sister of last year's Lady Mayoress. We spent time in prayer together before the War started in Russia. I know this lady quite well, and I know for a fact that this lady has never had anything whatever to do with any political propaganda. All she did was to visit the poor and to read the Bible to them and wash the feet of the saints ; and yet for this work of charity the Bolshevists have accused this noble lady of being a traitor to the Russian Government and to the Russian people. The travesty of the situation, Ladies and Gentlemen, is such that the people in Russia who ought to be free are in prison, and the people who ought to be in prison, they are free. The time has come when we must cry to God in a holy indignation. I do welcome this Protest which is being made by the British Christians against the persecution of the Russian believers for this reason, that it will be a call to them to pray for those noble men who to-day are in prison. Many have been banished. Others have been so terribly tortured, as I was told by this fugitive preacher the other day, that they were insane when they left the prison. Most terrible atrocities are being perpetrated.

A short time ago I was holding some services in Germany for the Russian refugees, many from the Russian aristocracy, and when I was going to my Sunday evening service in a rented concert hall, a newspaper was placed in my hands, a paper published in Moscow by the Bolshevist, Communist, Atheistic authorities; it was a paper called "The Godless." When I looked at the cover I was startled at the terrible sacrilege there. It was a picture of the spires and domes of the Kremlin in Moscow, and they were shown in colour. The crosses had been taken off these spires and domes of the Kremlin. And there was rising a wooden ladder, and the top of the ladder was stretched up into the skies, and there in the clouds the Bolshevist painter had painted God the Father as an old man, and Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit. And there was climbing up the ladder from the bottom a Bolshevist labourer, with his sleeves turned up, and in one hand he held a big steel hammer, and his other hand was clenched. And he was making his way up towards the Trinity. The explanation and interpretation of this sacrilege was expressed in one sentence, for at the bottom of the page there were these words in the Russian language, "We have settled the earthly Czars. Now we are beginning with the heavenly ones." When I saw that picture my heart was stirred as was the heart of the Apostle Paul when he was in Athens. I took that newspaper, and I went in to my congregation, and I stood before them as I am standing before you to-night. Some spies, no doubt, were there, as they have been following me wherever I have gone; and I turned towards the congregation, and I showed them that picture, and I said, feeling perchance that there were spies present, "Will you please go back to Moscow and tell your masters in Moscow that in all the primeval forests of Russia there is not timber enough to make a ladder high enough to reach up unto God Almighty. Tell your masters that the higher they climb the more terrible will be their fall."

Ladies and Gentlemen, permit me on behalf of my poor, downtrodden, persecuted Russian Christians to thank you for this act of charity. You are the Good Samaritans. God is opening up a highway from Jerusalem to Jericho where our fellow Christians are suffering at the hands of modern robbers. Let me thank you on their behalf, and let me say, This blessing will come back to you because the Lord has said, "Whatsoever ye have done unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me." Let it be also true of you what a prominent poet said some years ago :

"I see from my house by the side of the road
By the side of the highway of life,
The men who fought, but failed and lost,
The men who are sick with strife.
But I turned not away from their chains or their tears,
Both are part of an infinite plan,
Let us live in a house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man."

THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD said : I think you will agree that it is just a little difficult to pick up the lines after such a stirring address as we have been privileged to listen to during the last few minutes. We are entering to-night upon a campaign in Christian England that bids fair to go far and wide. And in speaking accidentally, it may be, the first word in connection with this campaign from the standpoint of home, it is necessary that we should be careful to define our terms. It will be necessary for us to use the term "Russia," for instance. I was advertised to speak to-night on the theme of "Soviet Russia v. Britain." I take it that there is a difference between Soviet Russia and Russia. I think that we might say this, that Soviet Russia is to-day at war to the death with Christian Russia, so that one might just as well use the caption, "Soviet Russia v. Russia," as "Soviet Russia v. Britain."

We look back on to the pages of history, and we find an exceedingly red period breaking upon the world on the 4th August, 1914. We have memories of the special issues of the various papers in those days. We remember with what eagerness we scanned the daily Press in order to see what Russia was doing, and the progress that Russia was making as one of our important Allies in that great struggle. That went on for forty-two months, a prophetic period. How Russia suffered !

HOW RUSSIA SACRIFICED !

How Russia bled !

Then there entered from the east side of New York emissaries bearing another spirit, and they instituted in the heart of Russia that organization which to-day is called Soviet Russia. Mr. Fetler, in speaking to a committee of us yesterday, if my memory serves me right, indicated that time as the period

Digitized by Google

WHEN SATAN TOOK POSSESSION IN RUSSIA.

That is the spirit that we are envisaging to-night, and that spirit has made its own proclamation through the lips of demon-possessed men, and that declaration, as Mr. Fetler has told us to-night, is a direct challenge to Almighty God in Heaven, and a direct challenge to every worshipper of God on earth. There has been a more certain declaration of war in the spiritual realm than there was between Britain and Germany in the physical realm on the 4th of August, 1914.

In Russia there are 160 millions of people held in thraldom by half a million—the Soviet section—an armed minority trampling upon the unarmed and unorganized majority of the Russian people. Our hearts go out to-night to the down-trodden millions of Russia, and we are praying to Almighty God to set them free from the spirit that has taken possession of those who hold the reins of power in that land to-day.

This is a question connected with the spiritual realm—God, or no God. Is it not one of the strangest things in all the earth that in this twentieth century there should suddenly flame out in the Continent of Europe, which is the seat of modern civilization, a war to the death on the question—God, or no God? Is it not one of the strangest developments since our Lord Jesus Christ appeared on the earth? The emissaries of that spirit do not confine themselves to Russia. As we understand the matter they are not any more interested in Russia than they are in Germany, or Austria, or France, or Britain, or America, save that in the accidental progress of modern history they have found Russia vulnerable, and were able to take possession of the body politic. The same spirit, actuated from the same centre, is operating in many parts of this very City of London, and in other cities of this land. The same spirit emanating from the same centre is operating in every city of the United States, the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, of New Zealand, and of the rest of the British Empire. I say to you that we are as really in a state of war to-day as we were from 1914-1918, the only difference being that then we were in a hand-to-hand physical struggle, and now we fight, not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against spiritual wickedness in high places. You will think back for a little while—two, three, four, five years—and you will remember this statement made by myself from this and other platforms, and in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE constantly, that what Germany endeavoured to do by the military arm of physical strength, Russia has undertaken to do by a doctrine. Mr. Fetler has said the thing that we have been saying from the beginning. This is a struggle in the religious and spiritual realm. You cannot meet a doctrine either by the truncheon of the policeman or

THE SWORD OF THE SOLDIER.

A doctrine must be met by a doctrine, and the superior doctrine will win. Now it is the doctrine of No God against the doctrine of God. I remember reading in the sacred Word that our Lord Jesus Christ on one occasion made a very significant remark. This is what He said: "Wheresoever the carcase is, there will the eagles (or, more correctly, the vultures) be gathered together." What did He mean? What is a carcase? It is a body from which the spirit has fled. The vultures never trouble about a body in which the spirit is present. They will come and perch on the branch of a tree, and they will wait patiently and watch eagerly for the moment when the spirit departs. As we have said, the vultures are here and there in this land, feeding on carcases. Never feeding on the personality of the organism in which there is spirit, this doctrine of devils, spreading like a miasma over every country in the earth to-day carried by the agents of the devil, is deadly where the system is not fortified by the indwelling Spirit of the living God. I say that this land of ours interpenetrated to-day by the spirit of Soviet Russia is immune, as far as it is alive in God, breathing His Holy Spirit. But in those centres of humanity in which "the love of many waxes cold," in which the Spirit of the Master is dying out, then instantly there is the seizing by the vultures, and the breaking away from the pure faith in Almighty God. What then? If we would fight in this war, and win it, it must be by a doctrine drawn from and founded upon the principles of this glorious Book of ours. But that doctrine must be in-breathed by the Spirit of the living God.

I am very glad of this meeting to-night, and I am glad of it for this reason. First of all, there has been the spirit which has brought us together. Since we came together it has been manifest that we have been filled with enthusiasm, and that enthusiasm is more than simple human sympathy; it is an enthusiasm that is engendered within us by the SPIRIT OF THE LIVING GOD.

Listen. Yonder in Moscow there is the centre of an organization out from which there is going a terrific and deadly spiritual influence. That is true. This Book calls it "the spirit of devils working miracles." Yes, from the White Sea to the North Pacific, through European Russia, through Asiatic Russia, it has sent its terrific influence. There is not a kingdom in Europe that has not been affected by it. There is not a part of the British Empire but has been caused to feel it. It is deadly and powerful. A central group of men, with outer circles, and outer circles, and outer circles, backing up upon the spirit of Satan. In coming together to-night, in coming together in the Albert Hall next week, in coming together in other provincial cities and towns, in coming together in the Overseas Dominions, in coming together throughout Anglo-Saxondom, it is easily possible for us to let loose such a stream of the Spirit of the living God as shall cause a flood of light and of truth and of power to go from end to end of the continents of this earth of ours. And I say to you to-night that it is absolutely impossible for godly men and women to gather together and to consider these things, united in spirit and in prayer before the Throne of the living God, without sending out a thrill that shall be felt to the uttermost ends of the earth.

Now, then, what of Britain? Ladies and Gentlemen, we agree that Britain is built upon this Book. In response to the teaching of this Book Britain has shed blood and treasure uncounted in the determination to bring liberty and freedom to every son of man on the face of the earth. In this Book, stretched over four thousand years, is the history of our race from its cradle down to A.D. 1929. In this Book is the commission to our race, as it is the commission to other races,

Digitized by Google

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature. He that believeth shall be saved." It has been the privilege of this race to translate this Book into over six hundred languages, and to scatter it like the leaves of autumn to every nation on the face of the earth. In this Book we read this determination of Almighty God in connection with this race of ours: "In thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Nothing of cursing, nothing of conquest is in the mind of our race, but we go forward carrying in our hands as the almoners of Almighty God things that have promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come. And so as we realize these things, and that this is what the Bible calls us to, to the service of humanity. What is it that God would have us do in connection with Russia to-day? Mr. Fetler and his associates would not ask of us that we should gird on the sword and take physical, military action. There is no salvation for downtrodden Russia in that direction. He and his associates would not ask of us to-day that we should in any wise interfere with the internal administration of another land and another government. What, then, can we do? Develop the spirit which is manifested here, and which has brought us together in this meeting to-night, the spirit of anxiety to lift up the downtrodden, to set the captive free, the spirit of determination to rebuke the powers that are trampling upon the heart blood and upon the necks of those people who have thus been enslaved by what is to Russia a foreign power.

There comes to us this realization to-night, that there has been an interchange between of ambassaders. This I am going to say, that it is opportune at this particular juncture in international affairs, that we should make it clear to Britain, and to all the world, that the interchange of diplomatic ministers does not mean in the slightest degree that the spirit of Britain agrees with the persecution of the saints in Russia. We are passing through troublous times. The great car of history is moving more rapidly than at any period of the world's history. Things that we did not dream of when we began to write 1900 are ancient history with us to-day. The chariot wheels of Divine Providence are rolling forward rapidly, and still more rapidly every year. Before us there are certain things that are clearly indicated, and among these things is an intensifying of this very conflict of the spirit between ourselves and that other power that is to-day sitting in Moscow. Do you know what that power is, as it is presented to us in the sacred Book? Mr. Fetler read to you a wonderfully appropriate passage: "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon." There has never been any doubt in my mind but that the interpretation which our brother gave to us to-night is the correct interpretation there. Read history as it passes forward, and then read this further.

After the Fall of Turkey, after the disappearance of the Turkish Empire, there went forth three evil spirits like frogs out of the mouth of the dragon, out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. These are the spirits of devils working miracles going forth to the kings of the earth, and to all the world, to gather them to the great battle, to the GREAT DAY OF GOD ALMIGHTY.

This passage is not just a bit of oriental imagery that has no specific concrete meaning for us. It is just as clear a foretelling of a definite international event as if it had been written in the ordinary newspaper to-day, in the Morning Post, or in the Times. What does it mean? It is a period that could not begin until the Armistice was signed. Strange that it should be told two thousand years ago—is it not? That in the very period in which we are living now, there should go out these spirits of devils challenging the Almighty God in the Heaven. There it is.

I call your attention to this fact, that you cannot read in all the pages of history right away back to the time when our Lord appeared on earth, and then right away back to the very dawn of history, a period in which there was any approach to such an anti-God propaganda as is going on in the earth to-day. Everywhere and in every land, if you will listen, you will hear the croaking of the evil spirits like frogs. The great day of God Almighty! That must be a great day. It was a great day for the world when man, fully equipped, appeared. It was a great day for the world when Jesus Christ, the Redeemer, appeared. It will be a great day for the world when He shall return again. What is the great day of God Almighty? When He comes to grips with the spiritual forces that are arrayed against Him, and destroys them for ever. We are in that period now, and we are fighting that battle in Anglo-Saxondom. They are fighting it on the Continent of Europe. And especially are those splendid men enduring tortures and imprisonment in Russia, fighting it there. But it is a spiritual conflict.

NOT NAVIES, NOT ARMIES,

not rifles, not guns, not poison gas, not with sword meeting sword, but doctrine meeting doctrine, the Almighty meeting the spiritual agencies that are arrayed against Him. These are the most real facts that there are in the earth to-day. I read the chronology of this wonderful Book. I read in this Book of the beginning of the conflict in 1914. I read that whole series of prophecies as being fulfilled, culminating in the entry of Allenby into Jerusalem in 1917. And I read of other prophecies having received fulfilment when Empires fell in 1918. And I read of another culminating day—A.D. 1934-1936. I am not a prophet, nor the son of a prophet, but I am a reader of prophecy, by the grace of God; and in my reading of prophecy I feel able to give this assurance, that by A.D. 1936 the resurrection of the spiritual energies of the people of God on earth will have reached such a tremendous advancement and completion that the battle will have been fought and the victory will have been won, and this spirit which is now trampling upon the hearts of the people will have been brushed aside, and all the world will be free. I say to Mr. Fetler, and I say it in the light of my understanding of the reading of chronology of this Book, that by 1936 the heart of the real Russia and the heart of Great Britain will be in unison, and their heads will be bowed together in worship before the Throne of God in Heaven.

Let me say this in closing. It is now considerably over fifty years since, I took up the public ministry of His Word. I have seen many crises in connection with the Church in this land and over the seas. And I misread the signs of the times entirely if I do not see now the beginning of the greatest spiritual uprising that we have yet known in the generation of any yet living. I say to myself, and I say to you to-day, that it is for us to kneel at the footstool of our God, and there to reconsecrate our lives to His service, and to the service of humanity, sacrificing, labouring, serving, developing spiritual energy, spreading the influence of brotherhood, and of that love which attracts and leads to God. Then our contribution to this great task will have been made.

MR. HERBERT GARRISON said: We have entered upon a campaign that is going to be the greatest ever known in England. The issue has been joined—God or the Devil; Christ or Antichrist? Christian men and women, worthy of the name, rise in your thousands, and defend your holy faith, and declare your sympathy with the downtrodden, persecuted and imprisoned people of Russia. And we call upon you to declare that we will not have a brutal Bolshevism in this country. (Prolonged cheers.) Let it be clearly understood that ours is not a political movement; it is a Christian movement. We are going to be faithful to our calling and to our mission. I glory in the fact that this British-Israel-World Federation has been the first to call a meeting in England to protest against the persecution of Christians in Russia. We owe a great debt of gratitude to the Morning Post. This is not a journalistic stunt at all, nor a political stunt. But highly conscientious Christian men on the staff of that paper are doing what they feel is their bounden duty, in the Name of God, to call upon Christian people to face this great question. We have started a movement that is going to sweep like a flame over the country, and you Christian men and women cannot afford to be out of it.

The Chairman moved the following Resolution:—

"That this meeting of worshippers of Almighty God assembled this 13th day of December, 1929, in the Central Hall, Westminster, do protest with all our hearts against the persecution of our fellow worshippers in Soviet Russia, and that we who are here present pledge ourselves to further by every means in our power the organization of a National Protest against such persecution, and further, that we pledge ourselves to do all that we can to make the public demonstration to be held in the Royal Albert Hall on Thursday, the 19th inst., the greatest possible success. That we here present do hereby tender to the Morning Post our hearty thanks for the courageous lead given to us in this matter, and also that our thanks and congratulations be hereby tendered to all those who have fearlessly declared themselves in favour of such a protest."

THE REV. PREBENDARY A. W. GOUGH, M.A., in seconding it, said: This Resolution is to be the expression of our conviction that there lies upon us a duty to make a protest. I am not myself very fond of protesting; and I do not do much of it. I believe that the best way to get good done is to keep affirming what is true; but there are times when it is necessary to protest. There are times when evil confronts the cause of righteousness with such manifest advantages on its side that it is necessary that those who stand for righteousness should not only keep on declaring the righteous faith that is in them, but should righteously protest against the evils which seem to be so powerfully entrenched that they cannot be driven out, but which they who stand on God's side know can be driven out. Now, this Resolution and the words you have already heard from other speakers have made it quite clear, I hope to everybody, that this is not a political movement. I am not prepared to say that I am not interested in political questions. But I can assure you that my prime and dominating and absorbing interest in this matter is not political. I am drawn into this business of God, as I believe, because I am entirely convinced that there is only one power which can overcome that extraordinary outburst of evil spiritual activity which we see in the torturing of Russian Christians. I am entirely convinced that it cannot be overcome by armed forces, which have been tried and have failed, or by statesmanship, which is very scarce, and, when it appears, very timid. But that there is a force known that that there is a power, a moral and spiritual intervention that no organization of evil, no tyranny that seems to be unscaleable in the strength of its fortresses, can resist. It is the spiritual power that can do this thing. There have been times in the history of the world when the forces of good have had a happy time of it, when they have gone surely upon their way. Those have been times when men have been found on a large scale and in great numbers doing the will of God, and when the blessing of God has come down upon the societies of men. There have been other times when one dismal trial after another has fallen upon humanity, and when tribulations sore and manifold have vexed mankind. And those have nearly always been times when the spiritual forces have been flagging, when the souls of men have not been making powerful contacts with the energies that come from God. Nations are turned into hell if they forget God, and a world which gets into such a state as our earth has got into must expect terrible outbursts of evil. Humanity is not allowed to go down gently and comfortably to destruction. There rise forces of evil to speed it on its way as it goes down on its decline. Those forces are now tremendously potent. I do not think that the devils which work mischief in human life have ever had so tremendous a series of successes as they have had in recent years. We must realize that we are up against terrific evil spiritual forces, and that we cannot overcome them unless we be fighting God's battle in God's Name and with God's strength given to us. That is what is wanted. We need that this nation should really pray, and that, with steeled nerves and uplifted spirits, it should dedicate itself to God for the overcoming of the diabolical evils which are vexing mankind.

I have been from my childhood a student of history, and I know that that which is upon the world to-day is something singular, something surpassing anything else, to plague it with trials, and to threaten it with destruction. But I know also that it may be overcome when God's people turn to Him with all their hearts. There is an overcomer, a power that can be found, available and ample, to win the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Now this campaign started, it is said, as a political campaign. I am bound to say that when, at the invitation of the editorial staff, I went to the office of the Morning Post and discussed the matter with the whole editorial staff, I found that I was dealing with a body of Christian men who had Christian enthusiasm in what they were doing. I made it quite clear to them that it was my conviction that this thing could not be compassed by any number of newspaper or political stunts, that it could only be won by people who were dedicated to do God's will, who were aware that the time had been reached for the great battle really to be undertaken, and undertaken as a spiritual conflict.

This is a tremendous matter. It is beyond our poor flesh and blood to win this victory. But we may, as God's humble sons and daughters, take into our souls some of the courage of our British blood. We are none the better Christians for making little of the FACT THAT WE ARE BRITONS.

We may well take into our activities and into our enthusiasm some of that old confidence, and call upon the God of our fathers, Who never fails His people when they turn to Him with all their hearts, to raise up " His power and come amongst us, and with great might succour us, that whereas through our sins and wickedness we have been sore let and hindered," and have lowered the banner of His great Cause, that He may, by His grace and mercy, speedily help and deliver us. If we offer such a prayer as that, my friends, I have the deep confidence that this thing which has now begun, that this conflict will be of such a sort that it will not cease until God obtains the victory. We have really brought our troubles very much upon ourselves. I am not here to judge Russia ; I feel that we ought to judge ourselves. What a poor thing most of the Christianity of Britain is to-day! How much love is there in it? How much life is there in it? What a feeble formal and conventional thing it is for the mass of those who profess and call themselves Christians. This thing which ought to be the holding on of a life, either with the hands of God's soldiers or of God's gentle saints, and either way, winning the world for God. I say, how feeble it is, this poor Christianity, this flabby thing which knows nothing of taking an adventure with God! People seem to be very glad to have the green pastures and the still waters, but they forget that the Christian religion was really meant to enable people to fight God's battle as much as anything else. It is not a religion that is intended for a thoroughly comfortable world in which it is possible to live the best sort of life with the least sort of effort. It is a religion that is intended for people who live a striving life, who are on their way to something better and greater than that which they have already attained.

IT IS INTENDED FOR PILGRIMS,

for strangers, who are not perfectly at home, but who find a great deal of happiness although they are pilgrims and strangers, because there is always something of the glow of the light and warmth of the true Home-coming to them. That is it, dear friends. The reason why we have not been able to help Russia has been because we have not been able to help ourselves. I meet with people in all sorts of social circumstances and human experiences to-day, and among other things I have witnessed two scenes of mortal sickness. In one of them there is a poor man dying, and yet with how great a cheer, with how brave a cheer! He seemed to be only complaining that he could not be in Brompton Church last Sunday. He happens to be a great friend of mine, but, oh, what cheer, and what courage, because he had got the real thing. And, you know, that enables a man to fight, that enables a man to carry a load, that enables a man to go through the darkness knowing that he will see a growing light. That man had got the real thing. Have we got it? If we have, then we can enter into this crusade with a good hope. It is for want of this thing that has made all the interposition on behalf of Russia so feeble. We cannot help Russia unless we have been valiant for the truth. We cannot help Russia unless in all humility we are standing right with God. Have we reckoned with Him? Have we dedicated ourselves to Him for this crusade? Have we said, " Lord, here am I ; send me, if Thou hast called me to this work? " I have not the power. It is not your business to have the power ; the power is of God. That is really where it comes from. If you will say that, then there is stuff in you that God can use. There is forgotten courage and neglected capacities within your heart and soul which His grace can bring out. I have seen many feeble persons do great things and brave things by the grace of God. And so to-night I have just this simple thing to put to you, that it is as God's humble people, who are so humble that they are not thinking about themselves at all, but are listening to the bidding of God, and taking the strength of God and the cheer of God. It is as such people that we are gathered here to-night. May the blessing of God be upon us. May it lay hold of any faint-hearted man or woman in this Hall to-night, and make him or her drop their fears like autumn leaves, and enter into a fresh springtime of God's encouraging promises.

FOR GOD IS IN THIS MATTER.

His Voice has gone forth. Some of us have heard it, and because we have heard it we cannot be still, we cannot be silent. We are challenging the people of God to come forward. It is most certain that this crusade is going to do what God has purposed shall be done for Russia, and it is going to do what God purposes shall be done for England. For it is not only Russia that wants a beacon of hope ; it is this England of ours that wants a beacon of hope, something to make it courageous for God, something to make it drop those feeble, hesitating manners that are shown by many important people when their opinions concerning this movement are being asked.

We are not saying, Is this popular? Or, will this conduce to our advantage? Or, even will it minister something of prosperity to the Church of which we are members? God can take care of the Church. If people would sometimes forget the Church in order to do the will of God, if they would drop their extreme carefulness in order to take care of what God has entrusted to them to do, if that were done, well, then, the Cause would go forward easily because God is in it. He has called this thing into being. It is not a newspaper stunt, though He has moved the responsible authorities of a newspaper to act in the matter. It is not through a good member of the House of Lords, though I believe God moved him to write a certain letter. It is God Who is working through us to will and to do of His good pleasure. Are you willing that God should work through you? Are you determined to give yourself to this thing as the one thing perhaps that you know you can do to please God? There are other things, but the one special thing which to-day God presents to you is a great opportunity. Will you do it? If so, then you will be amongst those who presently will join in the great rejoicing when hope breaks upon Russia, and when a great hope will also break upon all the life of England. And you will be able to say, Well, God made me feel that this was coming, and He moved me to do the little I could do.

I have much pleasure in seconding the Resolution which the Chairman has moved.

THE REV. PASCOE GOARD, in supporting the Resolution, said: "I think there is no question, fellow-worshippers of Jehovah the God of Israel, that in connection with this particular Resolution, we are here from all kinds of organizations that meet to worship God. Before the Resolution is put to the meeting, may I take the liberty of asking that as we are in the presence of our Lord and King, as an act that directly touches Himself, we should rise and pledge each other to a renewal of consecration to Him, and to the task that He has given us to do. (All the great audience except a few Communists rose as one, and reverently stood while a short prayer of Consecration was offered.)

THE B.-I.-W.F. CONGRESS ADDRESSES.

SATURDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 5TH.

WIDELY-OPEN DOORS.

THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

WHAT a wonderful week this has been! It is like the great revival times of fifty years ago, when throughout Anglo-Saxondom our people were in mind and heart making contact with God. That was a very wonderful time. You seniors will remember it. It was my privilege to travel fairly widely during that revival period in Britain, Central Canada, and right out into the wilderness, and I found the religious atmosphere pervading the whole community. Spiritual things were discussed by every class, and in every place.

On the shelves of my library is a book written by Dr. Poole, of Toronto. It is a classic in the British-Israel library. As Forewords to that book, I found short letters signed with the names of giants in leadership in the Church of Christ at that time, all bearing testimony to the truth for which we stand. When you take the testimonies of the leaders of the Christian Church at that time you will see that a great Revival was proceeding to the full acceptance and preaching of the Gospel of the Kingdom and of Grace. It was at that time that "scholars" let loose the flood of German Rationalism upon our Churches, and in so doing they killed that Revival. That is a terrible thing to say. The Revival was the work of the Holy Ghost. The Revival was transforming men and women from sinners into the saints of God; and that Revival was killed by the flood of German Rationalism. Only God can judge us. We have walked through unknown paths, in the darkness, for a generation. Fathers and mothers present here, seniors amongst us, know that there has been a generation lost to the Church of Christ.

Now again the door is widely open, and we hear ringing out the full story of the Gospel of the Kingdom and of Grace. It is a wonderful, wonderful story. It has been my privilege during a number of years to pass from city to city, from gathering to gathering, and to see before me members of various clubs, professional men, business men, working men, all classes, listening eagerly, seeking to find a place upon which their feet may stand with certainty in connection with the things that are, and in connection with the things that shall be in the immediate future, and in the eternal hereafter. There is a wonderful spirit of enquiry abroad. There is a wonderful open-mindedness and open-heartedness among our people. From personal observation and experience, I can say that the community, from the highest to the lowest, is waiting for God's ordained ministry to lead them into the truth, and into the service of the King of kings. How many times it has been my privilege to make that call to accept Jesus Christ as personal Saviour and King, and under how many different sets of circumstances—in the ballrooms of hotels, in the theatres and halls, in the churches and chapels, to people of all types of mentality, and of every walk of life, who have been gathered together. Only on one occasion there was an elderly couple who did not rise in response to that call. These are the only two that did not respond as far as could be observed from the platform. There is only one thing wanting, that is, first a ministry informed in this Word; and, secondly, a ministry who have—in the sense of the question asked by the Apostle Paul of the Ephesians—received the Holy Ghost since they believed, to equip them for the fulfilment of their task of leadership. I believe the Anglo-Saxon nations are only waiting the leadership of such a ministry to be led back to God.

It is impossible for any man to be fully instructed in the Bible who does not know that phase of the Truth for which we stand. British-Israel Truth forms the keystone of the theological position to-day, and that means British-Israel Truth is the keystone of this generation's spiritual attitude towards God and man.

The carrying out of the purpose of Almighty God is bound up with the nation Israel through every period of time. With that nation covenants were made. To that nation promises were given. Concerning that nation prophecies were made, and the integrity of the Bible is bound up with that nation. Where is that nation? If it is not in existence, then the covenants have been disregarded, the promises have been broken, and the prophecies have not been fulfilled.

A friend of mine lay dying. He was in darkness and he feared to go. Some of us went to him and tried to lead him out into faith in Jesus Christ our Lord. His pastor, a member of my own communion, went to him, not with the open Bible, but with Dr. Driver's Commentary on Jeremiah, in which Dr. Driver makes the statement concerning the promises made to Israel, that it must be evident that many of the promises made have never been fulfilled, and that now circumstances have so changed they never can be fulfilled. That young man went out into the darkness.

That is the Modernist position, which denies the inspiration of the Bible in regard to its history and prophecy. The fallacy that Israel has disappeared is responsible for the attitude of many scholarly leaders, and of many people as to the inspiration of the Bible.

But Israel has not disappeared. The man who does not know that for an established fact, notwithstanding possible scholarship of the highest order in other directions, is in this regard an ignorant man. The facts are in existence to be known, and they are facts which should be known. Let such men make a confession of error, and begin all over again. We theologians have a false pride in that regard, not to be found to the same extent amongst other professions, nor in the world of science. The scientist knows he has not yet accumulated all the facts concerning nature and life. He is ever searching eagerly and is ready to accept new facts; as a consequence of accepting such new facts, he is ready to recast his position from day to day. That is not true of the theological world. We have foolishly assumed that ours is not a progressive study. Theology is just as much a progressive study as any other branch of science. Here are the facts of British-Israel Truth, the want of which has led us as a Church into absolute confusion. With the uncovering of those facts, all that confusion vanishes, and we march out into the clear light of God. We are able to reverse the position built upon the fallacy that Israel has disappeared. We build upon the bedrock fact that Israel is present, fulfilling her prophetic mission and destiny, under the Anglo-Saxon name. Our daily Press is bringing to us information that proves the prophecies concerning Israel are being fulfilled from day to day before our eyes. That is the position. We are offering a treasure of knowledge to the Church of the living God, for the want of which it has lost its power; but equipped with which it will bring the nation back to God.

A great evangelist went on to the platform to debate these matters with Mr. Bradlaugh. Mr. Bradlaugh demanded an historic fulfilment and an historical demonstration of the prophecies and promises and covenants made with Israel. The evangelist could not give it. But the evangelist offered to Mr. Bradlaugh an experienced testimony. Now a personal experience is valuable for those who have such an experience. The man who has a personal experience of the saving grace of God in Christ can go among others who are equipped in like manner, and have glorious fellowship with them. But no one can take that personal experience from their own heart and life and make it clear to another who never possessed such an experience. Education and developed mentality alone cannot supply the want of such an experience. The Apostle Paul made this abundantly clear. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, for they are spiritually discerned." When Mr. Bradlaugh came on to that platform and demanded a proof of historical fulfilment, and he was offered a demonstration of personal experience, he could not receive it—and he turned away.

Now, by the grace of God, we have that personal experience, and we have fellowship one with another in it. Let us glory in that. But we cannot prove that personal experience to the world. We can give testimony to it, but we cannot demonstrate it experimentally. Because we cannot do this our approach to men not so equipped is cut off.

We have also the knowledge that the Anglo-Saxon nation, the Israel of prophecy, the Israel of God, and of modern days, is marching right out of the prophetic pages, and is fulfilling before the eyes of men and of angels the things which God covenanted, the things which God promised, the things which the prophets uttered under the inspiration of the Divine. As we see this wonderful demonstration on the national plane, we are obliged to say, and the man who heareth the truth is constrained to say, "this is the finger of God."

We believe we are opening the flood gates of truth on a plane easily comprehended and received by the "man in the street." The acceptance of this "natural" truth on the plane of historical fulfilment will bring forth a great outpouring of spiritual blessings of Almighty God. So, friends, do not think this is a side issue; do not think we are wasting time; do not look upon this Truth which we proclaim as some cult, as something outside the Church of the Living God. You won't find us out there; you will find us in the very sanctuary, kneeling in the presence of God with His people.

This is but the beginning of the great revival which will reach the hearts of our nation.

We are looking for the Return of our Lord and King, and we have not much longer to wait now. The last word that He spoke in the last Book of the Bible was this, "Surely I come quickly." And when He says "surely," then there is no room for doubt. That is His last testimony. From countless thousands of hearts there echoes the response, "Even so come, Lord Jesus." Coming for what? To redeem the world again? No. That is finished. Listen. "God shall give to Him the throne of His father David, and He shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever."

"IN CHRIST JESUS."

BY "EYNSFORD."

Gal. iii, 28.—There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.

Gal. v, 6.—For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision, but faith which worketh by love.

Gal. vi, 15.—For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature.

A common argument brought forward against British-Israel Truth is that in Christ Jesus "there is neither Jew nor Greek."

An honoured and earnest Christian worker used these words as a complete and final answer when the British-Israel subject was presented to him. These words absolutely settled the question for him.

How much misunderstanding seems to exist on the meaning of the words "in Christ Jesus." The true meaning surely is, that in the matter of salvation there is no difference between Jew or Gentile, that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God, that all are under condemnation, and that deliverance is only in the Son of God. "The new creature," "the new man," does not result from, or depend on, any special nationality, or on any social position, or on sex, but only the being "in Christ Jesus." To be "in Him" is to be "born again," to have "eternal life," and to be a child of God. There is no barrier or distinction of any kind to keep anyone from coming to, and being in, Christ. All may come by "faith," a living "faith which worketh by love." Living faith works: a true union of faith and works. We may well doubt the reality of either in the absence of the other. Either without the other is dead. The words mean further that, spiritually, believers are all one, and that there should be no man-made barriers or distinctions to keep them apart.

The verse does not deny that there were Jews or that there were Greeks; nay, the distinction is fully admitted. The point emphasized is that though so different in all natural and ordinary circumstances of life, yet spiritually they are all one in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Our friend, however, applied it to cover everything. He refused to acknowledge the importance of there being a Gentile or Jew or Israelite of the Ten Tribes. He was satisfied that these differences were meaningless to a Christian.

The rest of the verse was brought to his notice, that in Christ Jesus "there is neither bond nor free." In the matter of salvation there is absolutely no difference, both are one in Christ. But is there no difference in life between them? Does not God fully recognize the distinction? Does not His Holy Word address itself severally to both, admonishing each in his special sphere how to walk and please God? Our friend was an employer; his daily life was a recognition of the position of employer and employee. This he could discern and acknowledge in practice in spite of the fact that in Christ Jesus there is no difference between master and man.

He was equally inconsistent with the remaining clause of the text:

"There is neither male nor female."

He was fully conscious that in life there were really male and female. Of course there was the distinction. Did not God make them male and female? He could see the vital difference here, but he refused to see any vital distinction between Jews or Israelites or Gentiles; distinctions albeit made and recognized by God. Our friend did not apply his argument to this third clause of the verse as he did to the first. If he had he would never have married the gracious lady who became his wife; nor have been the proud and happy father of sons and daughters! What a lack of consistency!

NOTES ON IRELAND.

By PROFESSOR EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc.

FROM what has preceded, we see that in the early activities of Ireland the mining interests were of prime importance.

We read that "They, the Irish, were rich in mines of gold, of silver, of copper and tin, and wrought them to the highest perfection, as our ancient annals declare."

"Hence Donatus, Bishop of Fesicoli, who figured in the seventh century, declares the great riches the ancient Irish drew from their minerals, their gems, and their woollen goods."

We must conclude that the many statements of the Irish writers were false, or that the rich mines were worked out, or that large mineral wealth is yet stored away in the hills and mountains of Hibernia.

Personally, we accept the statements as true, that the wealth has not been all removed from the rocks, and that there is yet a bright mining future for that dear old land. Let men of enterprise and faith undertake, in a systematic manner, the recovery of the hidden gold, silver, copper and tin, and the isle of Er, or Hur, will be added to the list of mining nations.

This is not a hurried, careless suggestion. We wish to dwell on the subject. Think seriously for a moment, my reader. Do you deny the accuracy of the many Irish writers, or do you believe them? If you believe, then do you imagine that the gold, silver, and other wealth was all removed, or rather that only a fractional part was found?

Is it not reasonable to believe in its presence now in large quantities in the old Irish mountains?

Then does it not follow that men of business instincts, insight and spirit, have at their doors easy avenues to wealth and employment for the men looking to other countries for their livelihood? Ireland was given to the Lord's people, and He promised them the wealth of the everlasting hills. Then find the wealth.

There are some quaint statements connected with the growth and uses of Irish flax. This was grown in large quantities, prepared for the market and sold to foreign nations. Much fine and coarse linens were used at home. In fact, we find that as much as thirty yards were needed to make an up-to-date "shirt, or shift."

We are not told how wide the linen cloth was, but it would appear that one shirt ought to be nearly enough for one person's whole dress.

Gratianus Lucius quotes a description of Ireland, printed at Leyden in 1627, in which the author tells us "that this country abounds with flax which is sent ready spun in large quantities to foreign nations."

Some of the uses of gold are given in the following:—"We find the Orgiallians, about the monarch's court, were distinguished by gold-handled swords, the borders of their helmets gilded, and their clothes interwoven with threads of gold . . . and their buskins flitched with gold threads."

If those about the court were so decorated with gold, what would we naturally imagine concerning royalty, the royal palace, the dining halls, the halls of state, the regal bedchambers, the furniture, the table utensils and ornaments?

From all we read of the Irish people and country of former days, we get the conviction that they were once in a more prosperous condition than in more modern times. If this conviction be in harmony with fact, and if the main portion of the Irish be descended from Israel stock, as we are inclined to believe, then what influence, agent, or condition has been injected into the country and people to put them at a great disadvantage now compared with former times?

THE ROYAL ALBERT HALL PROTEST MEETING.

THURSDAY evening the nineteenth was an evening which will be long remembered by London and by England.

There gathered in the Royal Albert Hall an audience which the daily Press estimates as numbering eight thousand people. The occasion was the voicing of the national protest against the persecution of worshippers of God of all faiths and creeds in Russia and the prescription of teaching to the young the faith of their fathers or any other religious truth.

The Hall had been provisionally taken for this night and for this purpose by our Federation. This was before the Protest Committee had been formed. But as Mr. Garrison and Mr. Pascoe Goard were both on the original Protest Committee, it was then and there decided that the newly-formed Committee would assume the responsibility of the meeting.

The enthusiasm was deep and sincere. There was an undertone in the voices of the audience as once and again their voices were raised which showed repressed but intense feelings which were deep and will prove abiding. The quality of these tones were at once distinguished by Communists who had come to disturb the meeting and, after one or two ejections, the rest remained quiet and apparently attentive to the things which were being said.

The challenge to the Churches was strong and vigorous. Many had held off fearing that there was a political animus in the Movement. This fear was soon allayed. All parties and all faiths were represented. The story of the terrible persecution of religion in Russia was told clearly and fearlessly, and the thrill of horror and indignation which pervaded the meeting will not soon be forgotten. Those who can think back far enough will remember the thrill of horror over the Turkish atrocities in Bulgaria, and the once and again repeated atrocities perpetrated by Turkey in Armenian massacres.

The strong spiritual appeal to the God of all true believers rang as an overtone all through the meeting, and, as the Morning Post report has it, "The presence of God was round about them."

The speakers who thrilled the great audience for two hours were: Lord Glasgow—whose letter in the Morning Post calling on the Churches to voice their protest started the whole campaign—was in the chair. He called in turn upon Lord Brentford, who, in a moving and powerful speech, moved the Resolution; Maitre Th. Aubert, who came all the way from Geneva to tell the up-to-date story of Russian atrocities to Russians; Prebendary Gough, who simply lifted the spirit of the audience with his vigour and fervour in a masterly address; Chief Rabbi Dr. J. H. Hertz, whose clear and incisive statement of the sufferings of his co-religionists in Russia thrilled the house; Lord Charnwood, brief and clear as daylight; Dr. J. H. Rushbrook, of the Baptist Union, who told of the experience of Baptists in Russia; Miss Vera Beringer, whose five minutes of perfect eloquence brought women to the side of men in the campaign; and the whole was closed by Major Sir Archibald Boyd Carpenter, who simply flayed those who raised objections, and raised those present to the final resolve to make this protest world-wide.

More will be heard of this Movement from time to time. The Federation will do its utmost to support the Protest Committee.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

EXTRA copies of the present issue of this journal are being printed to meet the expected demand.

* * *

In view of the holiday season no meetings will be held at Headquarters next week.

* * *

Mr. John Leech, K.C., will commence another series of addresses on "Prophecy" at Headquarters on Wednesday afternoon, January 8th, at 3 o'clock.

* * *

Mr. Garrison is to speak for our Barking Branch on January 10th, at 8 p.m.

* * *

The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Garrison have many important engagements in January, February and March. They are in the Hove Town Hall on January 14th, 15th and 16th for six meetings; in St. Peter's Hall, Bournemouth, January 20th, 21st and 22nd. Mr. Goard is to give a series of addresses in the Kensington Town Hall on January 29th, 30th and 31st, afternoons and evenings.

* * *

Two excellent meetings were held by our Tunbridge Wells Branch on December 17th, when addresses were given by the Rev. Pascoe Goard, which created a profound impression. The Rev. Dr. Mountain, who has recovered from his illness we are thankful to say, presided in the afternoon, and a local Justice of the Peace in the evening.

Mr. Herbert Garrison addressed a crowded meeting of our Worthing Branch on December 18th, when the President, the Rev. Canon C. J. Hollis, M.A., presided.

Several of our Branches have sent us resolutions supporting the protest against the persecution and execution of Christians by the Soviet Government in Russia. This Movement is arousing the Christian conscience of the country. The splendid and full report of the remarkable speeches in the Royal Albert Hall on December 19th, as given in the Morning Post on December 20th, should be read by everyone.

The Rev. G. R. M. writes from California :—

"It would be impossible for me to say how much I am indebted to THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER for a new vision of the mind and purpose of God concerning His Israel, and I look forward to its coming from week to week as of a much loved friend. Would that all God's people realized that we are living in the day of fulfilment, and that 'the Day of His Coming,' for which so many are eagerly watching, is inseparably linked up with 'the glory of His people Israel,' who must actually be in existence and functioning as a nation when He comes."

On December 13th, in the County Hall, Canterbury, Miss Hamilton Hunter gave a very excellent address on "Divine Healing in Israel." The subject was by special request, and was highly appreciated by the audience, and proved to be a British-Israel lecture of a very high spiritual order. The chair was taken by the Rev. Alexander Thomson, who was supported by the Rev. Canon T. B. Watkins; one of the leading Doctors of the city, who was present, asked that another lecture on the same subject should be given by Miss Hamilton Hunter.

* * *

Mr. Wm. Whitton has visited and addressed meetings for the Branches at Harrogate, Ilkley, Southport, Wigan, Nottingham and Thurcroft. He writes saying how very gratifying it is to find our own members becoming more and more firmly grounded in British-Israel Truth, and also to have new-comers confess at nearly every meeting that they see Bible difficulties removed altogether through the speakers' simple testimony.

* * *

Two good meetings at Shirley, Southampton, on the 4th inst. were addressed by Mr. J. J. Morey.

A well-attended meeting of the Richmond Branch on the 3rd inst., under the chairmanship of the President, Rev. Kenneth Dodds, was addressed by Mr. Basil Stewart, his subject being "The Great Pyramid an Allegory of the Messiah." The address was deeply appreciated by the audience, whose interest was held from start to finish, the desire being expressed that another would be given later on this absorbing topic. Those who heard Mr. Stewart's address at Headquarters in October, an abstract of which appeared in the November 23rd, issue of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, will be glad to know that it can be had in full in pamphlet form, and is very suitable for distribution. It vindicates the truth of the Great Pyramid in a most convincing fashion. It is on sale at Headquarters' Book Room, price ninepence.

MANITOBA NOTES.

During the week of November 25th to 30th, under the auspices of the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire, a lantern lecture on "Our National Flags" was given by Miss Mabel Harbour at Alexander, Virden, McAuley and Kirkella, the latter place being at the extreme Western border of the Province, and about 200 miles from Winnipeg. Although most of these are very small communities, people drove in from a distance so that audiences of from 80 to 150 were obtained, and a great deal of interest and appreciation was shown.

On December 3rd a public meeting was held in Winnipeg, when the subject was "Russia." Rev. W. R. Johnson dealt with the Bible prophecies in this connection, and Mr. A. Sizeland presented a graphic sketch of present-day conditions in that country.

A large audience at the Toronto East Association was delighted with the eloquent and convincing manner in which the Rev. Canon Collins, of Sarnia, Ont., delivered a lecture entitled "Prophecy being Fulfilled." This was Canon Collins' first lecture before a B.-I. gathering in Toronto. His help and influence will add much strength and power to the Movement in Canada.

* * *

At a meeting of the Durham Branch on the 5th inst., Miss Hamilton Hunter gave the address, this being entitled "The Redemption of the Nation Israel," in which Miss Hunter pointed out that the Redemption of Israel was a national thing—the Redemption of the whole Nation as a corporate body by Jehovah, the King of Israel. At the close of the address, the lecturer spoke of the B.-I. Crusader movement, and urged all present to try and interest the young people in thi glorious Truth.

The Sabbath
that was made for man

BY

J. G. MODIN

With a foreword by Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.

This little work, dealing with one of the important marks of British-Israel identity, is by far the most valuable contribution yet made to the all-important subject of Sabbath keeping. It should be read and digested by every clergyman and every layman who loves our National Day of Rest, and who sees the urgent need for the observance of the Fourth Commandment.
