Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.
Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

IMPORTANT BOOKS ON PYRAMID CHRONOLOGY, ETC.
By BASIL STEWART (Discipulus)

WHO IS GIVING TWO LECTURES AT HEADQUARTERS ON PYRAMID SUBJECTS ON JUNE 3rd AND 4th.

THE GREAT PYRAMID
ITS CONSTRUCTION, SYMBOLISM and CHRONOLOGY.

Second Edition.

An elementary book, but one that should be read by every intending student of Pyramid prophecy.

Price 1/9. By Post 2/-.

FORETOLD & FULFILLED
THE CHURCH OF ROME. A SIGN OF THE END.

A new light upon the visions of Daniel and St. John in so far as they refer to the Papacy. It foreshadows the time of deliverance from "The Beast," "The Daughter of Babylon," when the Church of Rome must fall and utterly disappear.

Price 2/-. By Post 2/3.

THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES

If you would understand the real meaning of Armageddon and appreciate its true significance for the English-speaking race, "The Times of the Gentiles" is an essential part of your equipment.

Price 3/6. By Post 3/9.

THE WITNESS OF THE GREAT PYRAMID

Second (popular) Edition, written for the general reader who is without advanced mathematical and scientific attainments, this work gives in precise detail and everyday language the discoveries and findings of the latest and greatest authorities on "The Bible in Stone."

Price 7/6 By Post 8/-.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 387. Vol. VIII. JUNE 1st, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XIV. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	337
SPIRITUAL BENEFITS OF THE IDENTITY. By the late Ven. Archdeacon Denis Hanan, D.D. (Chancellor of Cashel)	339
WAS JESUS THE SON OF GOD ?—II. By Henry D. Houghton	340
BIBLICAL METALLURGY.—VII. By Andrew B. Buchanan	342
THE LATE MAJOR JOSHUA FIELDING, J.P., M.R.I.A. (Royal Irish Dragoon Guards) with Portrait	344
THE NAME. By Henry Proctor, F.R.S.L.	345
ANGORA. (Extract from an Article by Owen Tweedy in the "Atlantic Monthly")	346
CORRESPONDENCE	347
THE BIBLE IS A LIBRARY OF ISRAEL LITERATURE. By W. P. G.	348
AN UNMISTAKABLE PREDICTION. By the Rev. W. Morley Punshon, M.A.	349
MAY 29TH, 1928. By H. Percy Blanchard	349
WORLD-WIDE MOVEMENT OF THE JEWS TOWARDS CHRIST	349
A PRAYER	349
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	350

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XIV.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

The Announcement by Gabriel.

We now come to a startling announcement by this wonderful person whose services seem to be devoted to the good of the Israel people and of the world. It is he who towards the end of the seventy weeks would take his way to the village of Nazareth, to a virgin whose name was Mary, of the house and lineage of David, that to her he might announce the coming birth of Our Lord Jesus Christ.

This time he came to Daniel with the announcement of the setting up of a nation; for a certain definite time; for the accomplishment of a certain mighty purpose of God. During that time the city should be built; the sanctuary should be reconstructed; and the worship of God should be re-established.

To that city so built, and to that sanctuary so reconstructed, the Messiah should come. There He should be cut off in the midst of the last week. Thereafter "the Jews, they shall no more be his people. The city and the sanctuary shall then be destroyed, and the end thereof shall be with a flood." Of the city, sanctuary and national organization so set up nothing should remain.

In the middle western plains of America there are certain strange formations called "Butes." The plains are like a level field stretching away on every hand, without hill, or mountain, or forest, or other landmark. But here and there, thrust up from the uniform level of the prairie, there are areas of land lifted up. The strata composing them are not contorted or disturbed. The tops are as level as the prairies around them. The sides are cliff-like and largely perpendicular. It is as though some giant force had cracked an area more or less large, and had lifted it up bodily, many feet above the general surface. There is no gradual rise or fall. Once on the top it is easy to walk to the verge on each side, and look over the perpendicular cliffs to the plain below. Such is the announcement of Gabriel concerning the seventy weeks' nation.

The nation to be arose suddenly from the plain of history. It was not the nation Israel restored. It was not the House of Judah restored. It was to be a new nation set up for the definitely specified time—seventy weeks.

The beginning of the nation should be by a proclamation of the king of Persia humanly speaking, but really the command to rebuild Jerusalem went forth from the throne of Jehovah. The beginning of the nation of the Jews was just as sudden as the beginning of the American nation on the declaration of Independence by America. The proclamation of the king and the declaration of America each gave to the world a new nation each born in a day.

The nation of the Jews ended with the destruction of Jerusalem in the year A.D. 70.

The statement of Gabriel begins with a specific declaration: "SEVENTY WEEKS ARE DETERMINED UPON THY PEOPLE AND UPON THY HOLY CITY."

Surely this is sufficiently abrupt. Let us consider it for a moment. The time indicated for the accomplishment of the purpose of God in the Jewish nation is set and uncompromising. "SEVENTY WEEKS ARE DETERMINED."

Let us think of this. No matter how much we may desire to modify or to extend that time, the declaration is there: "SEVENTY WEEKS." This is to say: FOUR HUNDRED AND NINETY YEARS, which is a period of TEN SABBATIC WEEKS OF YEARS: 7 × 10.

Digitized by Google

This period of time is "determined upon thy people, and thy holy city." The time cannot be separated from the Jewish nation and the holy city. If these latter are scattered or destroyed and cease to be, then the time is at an end. "Thy people," "thy holy city," and the "seventy weeks" of time begin, continue and end together.

Some have tried to carry the weeks on after both the people and the city were overthrown. They had not thought of this phase of the matter. God wrote the time score on the nation and the city. If the score be ended by the destruction of the document on which alone it was written, namely, the nation of the Jews and the Holy City, then the time must be ended as well.

"Seventy weeks!"—no more, no less.

The seventy weeks begin with a "command to rebuild the city," and end before the destruction of the nation, city and sanctuary.

The nation and the city so to be set up and built should form the material foundation on which should pivot the history of the ages; and it might not be too much to say the history of the eternities, as far as they concern Israel and the world.

That seventieth week should be the culminating time which should divide the calendars of the Old and the New eras.

The generations of that seventy weeks should stand under a responsibility to God and men such as no other generation should be called upon, nor privileged to pass through. Yet that generation would be blind to the fact, and to the day of their visitation.

"Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy Holy City."

THE OBJECT OF SETTING-UP THE SEVENTY-WEEKS' NATION.

The task, which is as follows, is an epitome of the Gospel message:—

(1) To finish the transgression, and
(2) To make an end of sins, and
(3) To make reconciliation for iniquity, and
(4) To bring in everlasting righteousness, and
(5) To seal up the vision and prophecy, and
(6) To anoint the most Holy.

Was ever a people and a city set for such a task as this? It is given to us to preach this great Gospel to the ends of the earth. But to that city, and to Him who should come to it, in this particular period of time, it was given to enact it all.

Let us consider these things in detail.

"To finish the transgression." . . . "But ye denied the Holy One and the Just . . . and killed the Prince of life . . . ." Thus was the transgression finished. (Acts iii, 14.)

"And to make an end of sins." "Once in the end of the world hath He appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself." (Hebrew ix, 26.)

"And to make reconciliation for iniquity." "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself." (2 Cor. v, 19.)

"And to bring in everlasting righteousness." "Who is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption." (1 Cor. i, 30.)

"And to seal up the vision and prophecy." "And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me: seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not." (Rev. x, 4.)

"And to anoint the most Holy." "And John bare record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him. . . . And I saw, and bare record that this is the Son of God." (John i, 32-34.)

Thus is indicated the course of the great work here set forth in tabulated form, that great work which lies at the heart of the redemption of Israel, and of the Salvation of the world.

THE PROGRESS OF THE NEW NATION.

"Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks. The street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times."

This indicates a jubilee period of forty-nine years for the rebuilding of the city and of the sanctuary. Ezra and Nehemiah tell the story of this great work. Thereafter, intervening before the coming of Messiah, the Prince, were sixty-two weeks in which the new nation, raised to heaven with opportunity, struggled with surrounding beastlike nations in moral and physical warfare, as the nations struggled to reduce the Jewish nation to their level, and to defile it with their abominations.

Antiochus Epiphanes hurled his forces against them, and the Maccabean family, with their hero following, strove mightily against them. The purpose and desire of Antiochus was to pollute the Temple with the worship of a false deity. Thereafter came the Herods, who reversed the policy and built the temple of Herod to the Name of Jehovah on the one hand, while with the other they reached out with the sword in an attempt to destroy the Infant Christ amid the slaughter of the innocents at Bethlehem.

So the sixty-two weeks dragged its weary length along to the coming of Messiah, the Prince.

"And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off." Now comes a short clause in the Hebrew which has given much thought to the translators. The Revised Version has it in the margin, "there shall be none belonging to him"; the Authorized Version has it in the margin, "and the Jews, they shall be no more his people," and so on.

We believe the Authorized Version has struck nearest to the mark in view of the full scope of this announcement, and of other statements by other prophets in the Scriptures.

We take for the moment that rendering: "And the Jews, they shall be no more his people, and the people of the prince who shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined."

It seems to be clear that the angel Gabriel here indicated that at the end of the seventieth week:—

(a) "Messiah shall be cut off."
(b) "The Jews, they shall be no more his people."
(c) "The city and the sanctuary shall be destroyed."
(d) "And the end shall be with a flood."
(e) "And unto the end of the war"—the age-long war

Digitized by Google

between Babylon and Israel, lasting 2,520 years—" desolations are determined."

Thus, nation, city and sanctuary, having fulfilled their predestined purpose, and failed in that which lay within their own choice, were as suddenly and utterly removed as they had been suddenly and Divinely set up.

In the words of Our Saviour in the 21st chapter of Luke: " Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."

This gives the history of the nation from the going forth of the commandment which caused the nation to be set up, to the scattering of the nation and the destruction of the city and sanctuary by the people of the Prince who should come, viz.: Titus, in A.D. 70.

The seventy weeks of time cannot be extended beyond the nation and the city upon whom, and upon which, the time was determined; THEREFORE the nation, the city, the sanctuary, and the time, all passed together.

THE WORK OF MESSIAH.

" And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week."

Thus is indicated the ministry of confirmation of Our Lord, Who came to " confirm the promises made unto the fathers " (Romans xv, 8) from the time of His baptism and anointing with the Holy Ghost, to the time when He gave commandment to Peter to go to the house of Cornelius and open the door of the kingdom to the Gentiles. On that occasion the voice of Our Lord was last heard on earth. It closed by that Divine command, the seventy weeks' activity.

" And in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease." Accordingly we read in Hebrews, referring to the Aaronic priesthood, " He taketh away the first that he may establish the second." (Hebrew x, 9.) By taking away the Aaronic priesthood He caused the sacrifice and oblation to cease. " The second," established instead of " the first," was His own ministry as " a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek."

" And for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation."

Accordingly Jesus said, "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." (Matthew xxiii, 38, 39.) How infinitely greater was the desolation caused by His Divine withdrawal than any man-made desolation could be.

" And that determined shall be poured upon the desolate."

The history of the Holy City from A.D. 70 to A.D. 1917 makes clear to us that which has thus been poured out.

Thus we come to the end of this annunciation by the angel Gabriel.

What a wonderful commentary the Holy Scripture makes upon it! And how marvellously history has verified it in every particular. The nation rose; the city was built; the sanctuary was erected; the Messiah came; carried out His ministry, and was cut off. He said to the Jews, because of their rejection of Him: " THEREFORE the kingdom is taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." Having fulfilled its destiny, the nation was scattered; the Temple was burned, and the city was destroyed, and manifestly the 70 weeks were ended.

Thus we see that the prophet Daniel has shown the actual institution of:—

(a) The Babylon Empire, and has traced it historically through the first and into the second stage; thenceforth prewriting the history of the remaining phases of Empire for two thousand three hundred years.

(b) Prophetically he has shown the establishment of the contemporary kingdom which the God of Heaven set up, of stone.

(c) As we have now seen he prophetically sets forth the establishment of the seventy weeks' nation of the Jews.

(d) Still further he will show the setting-up of four divisions of the Grecian Empire of which he follows the history of two to the end.

(e) Finally he foreshows the universal Kingdom of the Messiah.

SPIRITUAL BENEFITS OF THE IDENTITY.

BY THE LATE VEN. ARCHDEACON DENIS HANAN, D.D. (Chancellor of Cashel).

IT is fair to say that if God has preserved the House of Israel, it must be a presumptuous thing to imagine that He has done a useless thing. And also it seems a dangerous thing to think that the development of God's purposes with regard to the world and the nations is not spiritual enough for our exalted Christian conceptions, or that we have such higher knowledge that it is beneath us to obtain spiritual blessing from the contemplation of His mundane work. It would seem to be more wise to suppose that the highest form of blessing which the individual soul, or the Church, can receive, will be augmented by the lessons taught by the development of His purposes.

So it has ever been; the historical books of the Old Testament are the record of God's faithfulness towards Israel. Is there no spiritual blessing to be derived from that history by men who have received the New Testament? Nay, rather did not the inspired teachers of the latter age make the lessons of the former age their text-book? And if God has been faithful to the very letter, to every " jot and tittle," of the earlier covenant, and if the history of the Anglo-Saxon people is the record of that continued faithfulness, can Spirit-taught souls, whose ALL depends upon His truth, imagine for one moment that its modern exemplification is either useless or spiritually uninstructive?

What is the " spiritual benefit " concerning which the knowledge of the Identity is unprofitable? If it is meant that it cannot convey " remission of sins by spiritual regeneration," the statement is most true; but it is true, also, of all historical teaching; and yet the study of the Old Testament is fraught with blessing to the " members of Christ," for thereby their heavenly life is nourished and they are enabled to learn of God. Would the opponents in question say that the highest spiritual blessing—viz., the gift of Sonship, renders all further study and knowledge useless and unprofitable?

Digitized by Google

Doubtless they would not. If, then, the history of Israel for the past two thousand years is as great, or a greater manifestation of God's working, than is the history of the two thousand years preceding, on what rational grounds can they base their contention?

The Identity is fraught with spiritual benefit just because it is the outcome of, and inseparable from, the work wrought by the Lord Jesus Christ. Instead of hiding His redeeming work, it proclaims it; instead of the incomplete and narrow views which prevail, it teaches the completeness and complementary nature of the earlier and the later covenants; for it demonstrates that the Christian covenant and its spiritual gifts, so far from ignoring and rendering obsolete the Abrahamic covenant, is its real and practical fulfilment. It shows that the words spoken by the prophets have been literally fulfilled, and that, therefore, JEHOVAH rules. Is this a study unfit for, or unprofitable for the sons of God? Must not this revelation of purpose and wisdom, of faithfulness and long-suffering love, deepen their knowledge and strengthen their faith, and send them forth to bear witness for the God of truth, clad in armour and with weapons which even the infidelity of these latter days cannot withstand? A witness thus borne is certain to convey the spiritual blessing even in the narrow and individual spheres which occupy our opponents' thoughts—i.e., true and firmer faith in God, and witness for Him strengthens the soul of him who so trusts and witnesses. But if not, shall we say that the deeper knowledge of God, so needed by the world, and by many struggling souls, that the witness for God, borne by the Identity, is useless, because, though it brings glory to Him and light to them, it is spiritually unprofitable to our selfish selves? Nay, if such objectors learned nothing more than that the purposes of God are wider than their conceptions, their spiritual health would thereby be evived, for they would breathe the air—not of a close room, however comfortable, but of the glorious mountain-top; and instead of imagining that their spiritual vision bounds God's purposes, they would learn His purposes far exceed their powers of vision, and that, amid all seeming difficulties and contradictions, there is one thing upon which they can more and more certainly rely for time and for eternity—namely, His faithfulness. They have received blessings—although to them God's mercy in Christ is the evidence, not of the confirmation but of the practical abrogation of the Abrahamic covenant, i.e., of God's unfaithfulness to His friend. What if the covenant made with them be as equivocally carried out? But if, or when, they learn that which the Identity alone can teach—that the covenant in Christ is the very completion of all that was sworn to Abraham, and that under it his multitudinous seed are blessed and bless, the faithfulness of Him Who is their Rock and Refuge will be vindicated and glorified, and their faith (a spiritual gift) will be intensified.

Thus our Identity knowledge has blessed us, and has blessed thousands; and, doubtless, its witness will be a most efficient means to bring our millions to the true knowledge of God and faith in Christ, and prepare them to receive the great outpouring of the Holy Spirit, when all Israel shall truly serve the great Three in One, and teach all the families of the earth to serve with them.

WAS JESUS THE SON OF GOD?—II.

By HENRY D. HOUGHTON.

Now let us look at His words and works of maturer life. "If I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the Kingdom of God is come upon you."—Luke xi, 20.

"Behold I give unto you" (notice the words I GIVE) "power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you."—Luke x, 19.

"No man hath ascended up to heaven, but He that came down from heaven, even the Son of Man which is in heaven."—John iii, 13.

Is there any uncertainty about that claim?

And then in John x, 27, Christ assumes to have power to give eternal life!

"My sheep hear My voice, and I know them, . . . And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish."

Are these the words of a mere man?

And again in John iii, 14, 15: "Even so must the Son of Man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life."

"For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world: but that the world through Him might be saved."—John iii, 17.

There we have God sending His Son into the world to save it!

And verse 18 ought to cause all the modernists to halt. "He that believeth not is condemned already" (why, and how?) "because he hath not believed on the name of the only-begotten Son of God."

Condemned already! That is the sentence! How terrible! And it is not to the openly wicked, IT IS TO THOSE REJECTING THE SONSHIP OF CHRIST!

The woman of Samaria when she gave a drink of water to the weary traveller little thought who He was!

But He revealed the great secret to her when He said, "I that speak to thee am He!"

The tremendous nature of Our Lord's claim is seen in John v, 21, and following verses.

"For as the Father raiseth up the dead and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom He will."

That is even exceeded by the claim of the next verse: "For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son."

If Christ was only a man, however good, we should stand appalled at such words from Him.

But even that is surpassed by what follows: "The hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live."

"For as the Father hath life in Himself, so hath He given to the Son to have life in Himself." There are there delegated powers, equal to that of God.

If Christ was only a good man, see how self-condemnatory these passages would be. Imagine God committing all judgment to a man! Or giving a man to have life in himself! Could presumption go any further?

But the passages following on declare that it will be Christ's voice that will raise the dead at the resurrection! Surely there is no mistaking the largeness of this claim.

Digitized by Google

"Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear His voice" (His own voice, that of the Son of Man) "and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."—John v, 28-29.

Surely there is no devout student of Scripture who, reading this, dares to say that Our Lord was only a good man. And if not, He must have been Divine! That is the only alternative!

In John vi, 33, we read:

"For the bread of God is He which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world."

Then Jesus said, "I AM THE BREAD OF LIFE." And then again in verse 41, "I am the bread which came down from heaven."

And again in verse 51, "I am the living bread which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever; and the bread that I will give is My flesh, which I will give for the life of the world."

Imagine the horror that would seize the hearers if the very best man the world contains stood up in our midst and said these extraordinary and vital things!

If a mere man said, "I am the bread of life"; "I will raise him up at the last day," such a man would be laughed to scorn!

And yet that is what our modernist teaching comes to!

Christ's declaration to the blind man in John ix is very forceful and clear.

Meeting him Our Lord asks, "Dost thou believe on the Son of God? He answered and said, Who is He, Lord, that I might believe on Him?" "Thou hast both seen Him, and it is He that talketh with thee." And the record goes on to say that the blind man said, "Lord, I believe. And he worshipped Him."

There is Christ's own declaration as to who He was!

Again, as the group of mourners stood around the grave of the dead Lazarus, just before Our Lord raised him from the dead, He said to Martha, "Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God? And Jesus lifted up His eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that Thou hast heard me. And I knew that Thou hearest Me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that Thou hast sent Me."—John xi, 40-42.

There we have Christ performing the miracle and in doing it they should see the glory of God; and glory which attended on Christ's call! What about that?

Weigh well the following thrilling and important words, and note how definitely Christ there claims to be Divine.

"I am the light of the world."—John viii, 12.

"I am from above: I am not of this world."—v. 23.

"If ye believe not that I am He, ye shall die in your sins."—v. 24.

"I do always those things that please Him."—v. 29.

"I proceeded forth and came from God."—v. 42.

"I have power to lay it" (His life) "down, and I have power to take it again."—x, 18.

Do we really grasp the tremendous nature of these statements?

"I am the way, the truth, and the life."—xiv, 6.

"He that hath seen Me, hath seen the Father."—v. 9.

"I am in My Father."—v. 20.

"If a man love Me . . . We will come unto him and make our abode with him."—v. 23.

"Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you."—v. 27.

"I have kept My Father's commandments."—xv, 10.

"He that hateth Me, hateth My Father also."—v. 23.

"All things that the Father hath are Mine."—xvi, 15.

"I came forth from the Father."—v. 28.

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am."—John viii, 58.

These are not the words of a man, however good. They are either the words of a Divine One, or of a deceiver! There is no middle course!

Dare any mere man pray like Our Lord prayed? Mark this distinction which cuts Him off from all other men.

We pray for forgiveness of sins, BUT HE NEVER DID! Notice how He prayed.

"These words spake Jesus, and lifted up His eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify Thy Son, that Thy Son also may glorify Thee: As Thou hast given Him power over all flesh" (what a claim!) "that He should give eternal life to as many as Thou hast given Him."

THE CLAIM THERE IS THAT CHRIST GIVES ETERNAL LIFE! "And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ (there Christ names His own Name) whom Thou hast sent."—John xvii, 1-3.

Whatever we may think of all this, the claim is that of the Divine.

Now look at verse 5: "And now, O Father, glorify Thou Me with Thine own self with the glory which I had with Thee BEFORE THE WORLD WAS"!

Then verse 21: "That they all may be one; as Thou Father art in Me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us."

These words in the mouth of any mere man would be fearful blasphemy!

Immediately before the Crucifixion Christ Our Lord was brought before the High Priest. And we read in St. Mark xiv, 60: "And the high priest stood up in the midst, and asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? . . . But He held His peace and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked Him, and said unto Him, Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?"

To that straight question we read that Jesus replied, "I AM: and ye shall see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven."

There is no hesitation or prevarication there, but the greatest confidence and certainty!

Whatever men to-day may think, Christ Our Lord claimed to be Divine, and before the High Priest!

And this answer given to the High Priest was the immediate cause of the demand for His death!

"Then the high priest rent his clothes, and saith, What need we any further witnesses? Ye have heard the blasphemy; what think ye? And they all condemned Him to be guilty of death."

Digitized by Google

Christ began His life at twelve years of age with this declaration! He finished it at thirty-three years with the same!

By the testimony of devils as they were cast out.

In Luke iv, 33, we read: "And in the synagogue there was a man, which had a spirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice, Saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with Thee, Thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art Thou come to destroy us? I know Thee who Thou art; the Holy One of God."

And again in verse 41: "And devils also came out of many; crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ the Son of God. And He rebuking them suffered them not to speak: for they knew that He was Christ."

And the man in the country of the Gadarenes, "which had devils long time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any house, but in the tombs. When he saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before Him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, Thou Son of God most high? I beseech Thee, torment me not. (For He had commanded the unclean spirit to come out.)"—Luke viii, 26-29.

Some even of the devils were compelled to give their evidence: others He refused to let them speak because they knew Him.

BIBLICAL METALLURGY.—VII.

By ANDREW B. BUCHANAN.

THE TRAIL OF THE METALLURGIST.

WHEN Israel came out of the land of Egypt there were 603,550 men of twenty years old and upward. This number was exclusive of the Levites.

With such a large body of men it was essential that they should be kept fully employed, otherwise there was bound to be mischief. We have evidence of this mischief during the early part of the sojourn in the wilderness, one particular instance being when Moses termed them rebels. (Numbers xx, 10.)

It would appear that this particular malignant trait in Israel's character disappeared to a large extent in the later period of the wilderness experience.

We suggest that the manhood of Israel was under training both from the military and educational standpoints.

We know that Israel was trained in: worship, organization, law, health and workmanship.

We would ask the reader to go over very carefully the workmanship of the Tabernacle as recorded in Exodus xxxvi to xxxix.

A superficial reading will not do, it is only by the closest concentration that we can understand what the workmanship of the Tabernacle meant in the education of Israel.

We cannot take up the whole Tabernacle, but we refer to two aspects:—

(1) Exodus xxxvi, 8: " . . . : with cherubims of cunning work made he them."

This suggests intricate work of a very high order.

Whence came the training for this special work?

(2) We are told that 100 talents of silver were set aside for 100 silver sockets and that each socket contained exactly one talent. (xxxviii, 27.)

This meant that the sockets had to be designed to contain no less and no more than one talent. How did Israel accomplish this?

The modern engineer knows the large amount of labour involved in designing any piece of machinery which will not exceed a given weight.

Here is a further example of the implied science of Scriptural revelation.

But the people (women and men) were taught workmanship.

Exodus xxxv, 25: "And all the women that were wise hearted did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, both of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen.

26: "And all the women whose heart stirred them up in wisdom spun goat's hair."

Notice the words "wise hearted," "wisdom" and compare with xxxi, 6; ". . . : and in the hearts of all that are wise hearted I have put wisdom . . ."

THE TEACHERS OF ISRAEL.

Exodus xxxv, 30: "And Moses said unto the children of Israel, See, the LORD hath called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah;

31: "And he hath filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship;

32: "And to devise curious works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass, 33: "And in the cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of wood, to make any manner of cunning work.

34: "And he hath put in his heart that he may teach, both he, and Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan.

35: "Them hath he filled with wisdom of heart, to work all manner of work, of the engraver, and of the cunning workman, and of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, in scarlet, and in fine linen, and of the weaver, even of them that do any work, and of those that devise cunning work."

What a wealth of information is contained in these six verses!

Taking them in their order we find that:

30: The LORD taught Bezaleel, hence Israel's education did NOT COME THROUGH EGYPT.

31: Bezaleel's education included knowledge and workmanship.

32: It included metallurgy, " . . . to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass," classification 1 and 2 of Article I.

33: The workmanship included any manner of cunning work.

34: The teachers appointed to educate Israel were Bezaleel and Aholiab.

35: The wisdom given to the teachers covered all the arts and crafts.

Here then we have the Scriptural evidence of the training of Israel in workmanship.

But did this training include the making of castings?

Exodus xxvi, 37: " . . . and thou shalt cast five sockets of brass for them."

xxxvi, 36: " . . . and he cast for them four sockets of silver."

It will be observed that the two teachers of workmanship

Digitized by Google

were of the tribes of Judah and Dan. But Hiram, the chief organizer and metallurgist of the Temple was: "The son of a woman of the daughters of Dan . . . ." (2 Chron. ii, 14.)

Now Hiram came from Tyre, and Tyre was associated with the sea. (2 Chron ii, 16.)

We know, however, that part of the tribe of Dan was also associated with the sea, for we read: " . . . : and why did Dan remain in ships?" (Judges v, 17.) We know also that Solomon had a navy, which took three years to cover one voyage. (2 Chron. ix, 21.)

Connecting up our metallurgy therefore, we can trace Dan through Aholiab, Hiram, Tyre and Solomon's navy.

Where did this navy go to and what did it bring of a metallurgical nature?

The Rev. Commander Roberts,[1] quoting the Rev. A. L. Green (Jewish Chronicle, May 28th, 1875), gives us the following information: " Our forefathers in their happiest times, in the golden age of the nation's glory, were indeed the public carriers of their day, travellers for commercial enterprise to all the then known countries near and far. The ships of Solomon rivalled the Phœnician navy. The ports of Elath and Eniongeber were filled with the ships of Tarshish, which sailed down the Ælantic Gulf of the Red Sea to the Indian Ocean, to Ophir, to Sheba, to Arabia Felix, to India and Ceylon, and through the Pillars of Hercules; brought home copper from Cyprus, and tin from Spain and possibly from Cornwall."

In this quotation we notice that:

The ships of Solomon rivalled the Phoenician navy.

Two metallurgical elements (copper and tin) formed part of the merchandise.

The tin came from Spain and possibly Cornwall.

The subject is opened out further by the next quotation which Rev. Commander Roberts[2] makes from Sir Edward Creasy's "History of England" (vol. i, page 18). "There can be no reasonable doubt that Britain furnished them (the Phœnicians) with their chief stores of this important metal (tin) which the unrivalled artificers of Tyre and Sidon, 'men cunning to work in gold, and in silver, and in bronze (mixture of copper and tin), and in iron,' blended with the just alloy from the rich copper mines possessed by the Phœnicians in Cyprus, and then wrought into innumerable forms and instruments of ornament, utility and power. The neighbouring, and even the remote nations, obtained from the princes and the merchants of the Tyrian and Sidonian commonwealths these products of the mineral wealth of our island. The British tin mines mainly supplied the glorious adornment of Solomon's Temple;[3] and hence also came the chief material of the armour of the kings and chieftains of heroic Greece."

Here again we have the metallurgical element tin, with a definite statement that the tin for the Temple came from Britain.

Now we have already discussed the Scriptural evidence regarding tin as an essential element in the alloy of brass. The sea-faring part of the tribe of Dan must therefore have been familiar with the use of tin, and tin must have been extensively used in Britain at a period considerably earlier than the time of Solomon, otherwise how were its properties known?

Further, the fact that tin was used in the Temple shows that the Israelites were trained as metallurgical chemists. See Article VI.

Realization of this brings us back to a true understanding of Hiram's character as revealed by Scripture: " . . . and he was filled with wisdom, and understanding, and cunning to work all works in brass . . . ." (1 Kings vii, 14.) Then follows a description of his mighty works in brass which we have discussed in Article IV.

What we are driving at is, that the Israelites had a metallurgical training in the wilderness and that they carried their metallurgical activities right across the sea into Britain.

Now let us examine this from the land standpoint.

We notice that the last part of Sir Edward Creasy's statement already quoted, reads: " . . . ; and hence also came the chief material of the armour of the kings and chieftains of heroic Greece."

Now the Rev. Commander Roberts[4] in his origin of the Danai, has shown that part of the tribe of Dan was in Greece 148 years before the Exodus, and Mr. E. O. Gordon[5] has shown the connection between the Trojans and Britain.

Here then we seem to have an Israel metallurgical connection between Britain and Greece.

But let us examine other evidence, our authority being Professor Turner, from whose work[6] we cull the following:

" At the same time, there are specimens of iron extant which are of antiquity equal to, or even greater than, the most ancient bronzes known. Thus a small hollow 'bronze' cylinder in the British Museum, inscribed with the name and titles of Pepi I, 3233 B.C., is, if contemporary, probably one of the oldest bronze objects. But in a case in the same room is to be seen what is probably one of the oldest pieces of iron known, and which is believed to date from 3733 B.C. This specimen was found in one of the air passages of the Great Pyramid at Gizeh . . . ."[7]

Now this brings us back to the early Genesis period, the metallurgical significance of which we referred to in Article I.

What a triumph for the Scriptures!

" . . . . ; in the lake village of Glastonbury also articles of stone, bronze, iron and lead occurred together. Sir C. Lyell points out that the stone, bronze and iron ages are not definite periods in the history of the human race as a whole, but stages in the development of particular tribes or nations."[8] (The italics are ours.)

Now Glastonbury is associated with the Druids (see "Prehistoric London") and a period of twenty years was required to cover the curriculum of the Druidical Colleges. It would appear from the presence of the bronze, iron and lead, in

[1] "The Origin of the Supremacy of the Sea," page 7.

[2] "The Origin of the Supremacy of the Sea," page 8.

[3] It is a mistake to speak of the Temple as Solomon's Temple. The Temple was the house of the LORD.—A. B. B.

[4] "British History traced from Egypt and Palestine."

[5] "Prehistoric London," chapter iii.

[6] "Metallurgy of Iron."

[7] Ibid, page 3.

[8] Ibid, page 2.

Digitized by Google

Glastonbury that the Druids were familiar with metallurgy. The last part of the quotation is particularly striking.

"W. Ridgeway states that Hallstatt in Austria is the only place where articles of bronze are found being gradually replaced by those of the same kind in iron. From this centre the use of iron spread into Italy, Switzerland, Gaul, Spain, Greece and Eastern Germany."[9]

Here again we have a startling statement, for the Western migration of Israel was through the same route.

"Montelius, who has made a special study of the early history of iron, suggests that its first use in Greece was about 1400 B.C. and in Central Italy about 1100 B.C.

"It would appear that the iron age opened at about the same time in Central and Western Europe, and though a precise chronology is impracticable, 1000 B.C. may be taken as an approximate date for the close of the exclusive bronze culture in classical lands."[10]

Now 1000 B.C. was the closing period of the building of the Temple and we have already seen that one part of Dan was actively engaged at sea, in metallurgical enterprise between Britain and Tyre. The other part of Dan was, we know, pushing its way across Europe.

These correlated facts seem to us to be too striking to be ignored.

"It is interesting to note that when Cæsar invaded Britain he found, used for purposes of trade, not only gold and copper coins, but also bars of iron of definite weights."[11]

"The ancient Britons were acquainted with the use, and probably also with the production of iron some centuries before the Roman invasion under Julius Cæsar, in 55 B.C.; . . . "[12] (The italics are ours.)

Here again we seem to see the activities of Metallurgical Israel in Britain.

We wonder how the last quotation fits in with the painted savage theory of the inhabitants of ancient Britain!

Consideration of all that we have discussed in this article led the present writer some considerable time ago to the conclusion that Israel were the pioneers of metallurgy. The blaze of the trail is too clear to be set aside. In an article of this kind it has only been possible to point out the main features and possible lines of research. Research of such a nature would most certainly occupy a considerable amount of time. In bringing this series of articles to a close, we trust that we have opened up the subject and brought a new interest into the reading and understanding of the Scriptures, in their revelation and authenticity. We trust that we have also opened out the Scriptures in the metallurgical aspect of the manner in which the GREAT METALLURGIST has dealt and is still dealing with ISRAEL. Looking over the whole aspect of the subject we can realize the significance of the Revelation. "Great and marvellous are thy works, LORD GOD Almighty: . . . ."

To Him be all praise and glory and honour.

THE END.

[9] Ibid, page 2.
[10] Ibid, page 4.
[11] Ibid, page 5.
[12] Ibid, page 6.

THE LATE MAJOR JOSHUA FIELDING, J.P., M.R.I.A.

(ROYAL IRISH DRAGOON GUARDS.)

MAJOR FIELDING'S name has been on our ROLL OF HONOUR from the time it was first published, but not until only now have we been able to present to our readers his portrait, and this favour has now come through his son, Mr. Vivian J. Fielding, of Dublin, to whom we offer our thanks for so kindly sending us this excellent photograph.

THE LATE MAJOR JOSHUA FIELDING, J.P., M.R.I.A.

Major Fielding was a distinguished soldier; an account of his military career was printed in the Irish Times in January, 1917. He was called by the God of Israel to higher service on January 21st, 1917, while on a mission in the East. Before starting on this mission, he called on Mr. Herbert Garrison, who remembers an interesting conversation with him, and what proved to be the last earthly farewell by this devoted and charming servant of God, and beloved veteran champion of Israel Truth. After retiring from the Army, he gave most of his time and money to the British-Israel Cause. He organized B.-I. Associations in various districts in Ireland, travelling up and down the country at his own expense. His energy and zeal were often publicly mentioned by the late Archdeacon Hanan, who spoke of the time and energy he willingly gave to forwarding the B.-I. interests in Ireland.

Digitized by Google

We extract the following items from The Covenant People for April, 1917 :—" It is now many years since Major Fielding drew together a small band of Identity believers, and on the 17th of February, 1897, formally started the British-Israel Association of Ireland. From that time till his death he remained Hon. Secretary, working with untiring zeal to bring before the public God's faithfulness to His people Israel. He was a man with the strongest sense of duty and great singleness of purpose, and in spite of disappointments and discouragements which were often met with in the course of his work, he never relaxed his efforts to forward the Cause he held so dear. He was, indeed, 'One who never turned his back, but marched breast forward. Never doubted clouds would break, never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph, held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better, sleep to wake.' "

On the outbreak of the war, Major Fielding was in Palestine with one of his sons who was in delicate health, and was living in a small house at the Skull Hill, or Calvary. Having failed to get away with the first Europeans leaving Palestine, they became prisoners, were closely guarded, and were not allowed anything in the way of writing materials, consequently their relatives in Dublin had no news of them for months. After some time, a Turkish official, an ex-Governor of Jerusalem, who was friendly to Major Fielding, obtained permission for them to leave the country. Needless to say, they lost no time in preparing to do so, but as they were in the act of starting they were told they could not go as the permission had been rescinded. This order came from a German official, and from that time they were closely guarded and the prospects of escape seemed more remote than ever. They suffered much, and had great difficulty in obtaining sufficient food to keep them alive ; then one morning about 5 a.m. they were told they had three hours in which to leave Turkish territory. Why this order was given they never knew, but they made all possible haste to get to Jaffa. Arrived there, the Italian Consul befriended them, and by means of his influence and the payment of the exorbitant sum of £30 each, they secured a passage on a small trading vessel plying between Smyrna and Alexandria. Before the boat got to Jaffa it was already packed with refugees, so there was literally only standing room for Major Fielding and his son. It took four days to reach Alexandria, and during that time they hardly moved from their places and were thirty hours without food. Instead of thinking of rest after so much privation and suffering, Major Fielding engaged in work for the British Red Cross, and was fully occupied inspecting and looking after supplies till his death, which took place suddenly at Ismailia. He hoped to have returned to Ireland in April, but that was not to be. That, to the very last, British-Israel Truth held first place with him is evidenced by the fact that the last letter from him and arriving some days after the telegram that announced his death, contained an old Identity leaflet, limp and discoloured, on which he had pencilled the following words, " Old truths with new meaning." This truly Christian soldier, who on earth served his God and King so devotedly, is sadly missed by his many friends, who mourn their own loss yet rejoice in his gain, for he was one of those of whom it has been said, " His servants shall serve Him, and they shall see His face; and His name shall be in their foreheads."

THE NAME.

By HENRY PROCTOR, F.R.S.L.

THE revelation of the Name of God to His chosen was progressive. As He said to Moses : " I appeared to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as El Shaddai, but by my Name YAHVEH I was not known to them." It is not necessary to suppose that Abraham did not know that Yahveh was also the Name of the Most High God, possessor of Heaven and earth, whom he worshipped, and of whom Melchizedek, King of Salem, was a glorious priest, but neither the intrinsic meaning, nor the power of the Name was given to him as it was afterwards given to Moses ; for to Moses it was explained as meaning (A EHYEH ASHER EHYEH) : " I will be that I will be." From the time that the Name was made known to Moses, he had power over the elements ; authority over the waters, to turn them into blood, and to open and shut the heavens.

Abraham had no such power. He knew God only as the God of the breasts (SHADDAI), the shedder forth, the provider, or the Mother of God. And so Abraham became very rich, because the Lord prospered him in everything, and promised to him and his seed abundance of temporal as well as spiritual blessing. The keynote of Abraham's revelations of the Name was : " The Lord will provide," but further than the great defeat that he inflicted on the four kings, no work of power was manifested through him.

With Moses it was far otherwise, for all his after-life was a series of signs and wonders such as never before, and have never been seen since. Through the power of the Name he was made a God unto Pharaoh, who in all the desperate straits to which he was reduced, during the great plagues which for a time ruined the land of Egypt, did not pray to the God of Israel, nor even to the gods of Egypt, which latter he had already found powerless to help him, but his prayer was always to Moses, for deliverance from the plagues.

Such confidence had the power of the name of Moses inspired in him, that in his very last interview he implored his blessing. The strength of David was found also in that Name, as we may see in his answer to the challenge to Goliath : " Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear and with a shield, but I come to thee with the Name of YAHVEH-SEVAOTH, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied."

The Name of the God of Jacob was a defence, a high tower, in which the righteous could take refuge.

As with Moses so with Elijah, for in the degenerate days of Israel he appears on the scene in the power of the Great Name, with the striking and terrible announcement that : " As YAHVEH ELOHIM, the God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand." " There shall not be dew or rain these years but according to my word."

During the three and a half years of famine and drought which followed this remarkable declaration, we do not read that Israel appealed to their God, but that Ahab sent everywhere searching for Elijah and found him not, as Obadiah said: "There is no nation or kingdom whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee, and when they said, He is not there, he took an oath of the kingdom and nation that they found thee not."

Digitized by Google

These two—MOSES and ELIJAH—had exercised the power of God upon the earth, and these are they who appeared with CHRIST upon the Holy Mount of Transfiguration, and shall yet come again for 1,260 days (3½ times), having authority for that period to "Shut Heaven that it rain not, in the days of their prophecy; and over the waters to turn them into blood, and to scourge the earth with every plague, as often as they may desire."

Moses and Elijah acted as the vicegerents of God on earth, because His Name was in them. There is no authority apart from the Name. The authority by which Christ did all His mighty works was in the NAME, and in His final commission to His disciples He said: "All authority is given Me in Heaven, and on earth. Go ye therefore and (teach all nations) disciple all nations immersing them into the Name. And these signs shall follow them that believe; in My Name they shall exorcise demons; they shall speak with New Tongues . . . they shall lay Hands on the sick and they shall recover."

This was the authority by which the seventy cast out demons, cleansed the lepers, made the blind to see, and the lame to walk, and through which the Apostles and Prophets, after Pentecost, did many signs and wonders among the people. This they clearly affirmed time after time, saying to the people: "Why look ye on us, as though by our power or our holiness we have done these things? HIS NAME through faith in HIS NAME hath made this man strong." All things were done in the Name—this also is the mark of authority granted to the overcomer: "I will write upon him the NAME of my God, and the Name of the City of my God, and Mine own New Name," and thus when the 144,000 overcomers are seen on Mount Zion, they have His Name and the Father's Name written on their foreheads. How wondrous are the Names of God. Let us consider what it means to take the NAME of JESUS. He is called JESUS because He saves His people from their sins. To take the Name of JESUS means, therefore, to take Him as a Saviour, and so following in His footsteps that we ourselves become saviours of men. We are His seed, in whom He prolongs His days upon the earth. In like manner we take the Name of Christ, when we are like Him: "Anointed with the Holy Spirit and with power," so as to go about doing good, and healing those who are oppressed with the devil. We are thus anointed, together with Him, and the anointing which we thus receive "abideth in us, and teacheth us concerning all things," so that we have no need that any man teach us, but the anointing itself teaches us, so that we are said to know all things. To take the great Name as Moses took it, we have to yield ourselves entirely to the Will of God, so that HE may energise us, by means of the Holy indwelling Spirit both to will and to do His good pleasure, producing in us both the will and the execution so that nothing is impossible to us, because all things are possible to God. This is what the Blessed Master encourages us to expect when He says to the believer: The works that I do shall ye do also, and greater works than these shall ye do, because I go unto the Father, and nothing shall be impossible unto you.

ANGORA.

(Extract from an article by OWEN TWEEDY in the "Atlantic Monthly.")

"ANGORA lies some three hundred and fifty miles eastward from the Bosphorus. A sleeping-car train makes the journey in fourteen comfortable hours, and the new Angora Hotel is luxurious almost to the point of dissipation. Angora is a curious place. It has a long history written on the ruined walls of a Roman temple dating from Augustus, and on the castellated battlements of the Byzantine fort which crowns the rocky hill on the slopes of which clusters the old town. This old town—a squalid, rambling Oriental hamlet—was all that there was to Angora in 1919 when Mustafa Kemal chose it as his capital. It is true that it had two assets—its railway connection with the West and its strategic inaccessibility—to offset its total unsuitability as a centre of government; but lying, as it did, in the middle of a malarial plain, the old town otherwise possessed absolutely no potential advantages. It had neither housing nor sanitation, and certainly offered no prospect of adaptation to any scheme of more modern town planning. But it was safe, and to a revolutionary government safety compensates for much. So, with the full force of the Ghazi's dynamic energy behind the effort, New Turkey set itself by Turkish endeavour to build out from the old mediæval village a capital worthy of the New State.

"That was nine years ago. During the Greek war there was little money other than for military needs; but victory not only brought military reductions in its train, but also opened the coffers of Constantinople and Smyrna; and in 1923 the active work of construction began. The old town has been left intact on its hill with its dirty narrow lanes, its smelly hovels, and its peasant population; and it is only where it ends that the new town has been projected across the plain, which had, as a first necessity, to be drained clear of malaria. Once across these now mosquitoless flats, it spreads out on the slopes of a low ridge of hills where the Ghazi has planned the residential quarter of his new capital. But progress was slow, for the task was immense; and Angora since 1919 has not always been the bed of roses it appeared in May, 1928. . . . .

"The traveller, however, found an Angora far from dull, and exciting almost beyond his dreams. The climb to the Byzantine citadel is steep. Aimless donkeys, twin-slung with petrol tins carrying water from the valley, block the narrow twisting thoroughfares; the hide and grain markets, thronged with noisy buyers and sellers, splay all over the roadway; ubiquitous bootblacks, vendors of sweetmeats and lemonade, importune vainly. But there are no guides and no touts; for the West and tourism have not yet come to Angora. From the ramparts of the citadel, the old and the new lie exposed in panorama. A string of camels laden with stone for new construction is holding up a violently hooting contractor's lorry in the valley four hundred feet below. Halfway up the hill a peasant, who has ridden in on his donkey from a neighbouring village, is talking to a friend who leans out of a yellow motor-bus window. On a wall, across which the minaret of the town mosque throws a tapering shadow, is a brilliantly coloured notice of the imminent arrival of a new film, 'Abdul, the Damned.' And away south, across the waste of what was the Christian quarter of Old Angora before it was burned out during the war, stretch the broad black ribbons of the Ghazi's new arterial roads, which are the backbone of New Angora's town planning.

Digitized by Google

"The cleavage between the old and the new is sudden and arresting. Old Angora had a main street. It has been widened, is flanked with modern—all Turkish—shops, has a taxi rank, and is the terminus of all motor-bus services. Where it ends the new town planning begins, and at the point of junction is a huge equestrian statue of the Ghazi. It doubly epitomizes New Turkey's break with the past. In the first place, statues were taboo in Turkey; elsewhere in Islam they still are. But the Ghazi regarded the restriction as an anachronistic superstition, and to-day he is celebrated in no less than four statues—one in Stamboul on Seraglio Point, the other three in Angora. The second demonstration of the emancipation of Turkey is revealed by a study of the monument itself. The Ghazi, astride his horse, is facing west to Europe, not south-east to Mecca. On the plinth are two reliefs, the first depicting him as generalissimo in the Greek war, the second as President of the new Republic, signing the National Pact. Round the pedestal are three figures. Two modernly equipped soldiers, rifle in hand, scan the western horizon. At the rear is a peasant woman, carrying a shell on her shoulder and 'doing her bit' by helping to feed the guns. It is the recognition of woman in the new State.

"Below and facing the statue is the old Parliament House where the Pact was signed, which is now preserved as a national monument and as the headquarters of the Popular (the only) Party in Turkey. It proved to be too small for the new Government's needs, and just below it the present Parliament was completed this year. It is an unpretentious building—more like a country villa than a Chamber of Deputies—standing in artificial grounds which were created richly on a slope which was once Old Angora's rubbish heap. Within, the traveller found proceedings—as is ever the case when there is no opposition—so decorous and dull that it might have been a well-drilled shareholders' meeting rather than a State assembly. The Strangers' Gallery commands an oblong and very commonplace hall, set with rows of desks, rather like a school, all facing the Speaker's rostrum. He, conspicuous in evening dress, presides from the uppermost tier of a three-decker type of pulpit; below him a row of parliamentary secretaries; on the lowest tier, the forum whence members address the House."

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

DEAR SIR,—With reference to Professor Odlum's extremely interesting article on the "Herdsman, Amos" in the N.M. AND BANNER of February 16th, 1929, I have the following comments to make:—

He mentioned the Pronouncements of Jehovah by the prophet Amos against certain peoples which had acted in opposition to the Divine Will. Five of these are shown to be punished for their treatment of Israel, but the sixth, Moab, is apparently penalized for an act against one of Israel's enemies —("He burned the bones of the king of Edom into lime.") In the end of your article you expressed a wish for an explanation of this latter charge.

Following my usual custom of discussing any matter of B.-I. interest with my friend and mentor, Mr. Bayley, of this city, I read through your article with him and offered opinions on his many fertile suggestions.

Two possible explanations of what is apparently a rather peculiar charge are here submitted in the hope that they may present you with a further line of thought on this subject.

(a) It would seem to have been Jehovah's Will that certain relics of ancient kings, peoples, etc., should be preserved untouched through the Times of Israel's Reduction under the Domination of the Counterfeit Order until these Latter Days, when their discovery might reasonably assist in bringing to light many objects of great interest and revelation to those "who have understanding." The recent excavations in Egypt and Mesopotamia may be regarded as examples. For instance, the knowledge afforded men like Mr. Davidson of the Egyptian Dynasties by the discovery of ancient relics is beyond all measure, for, had these relics been destroyed in early times, such a book as "The Great Pyramid—Its Divine Message" could never have embraced such a scope as it undoubtedly does.

Some such Purpose may therefore have existed in the Mind of Jehovah when He preserved these relics for examination in this Culminating Age. Moab then may possibly have attempted to destroy an important link in one of these chains of relics, and have suffered punishment for the act.

However, presuming this to be the case, the natural question which leaps to the mind is—"If the relics of a certain Edomite king were so important, why did Jehovah permit one of the Counterfeit Order to destroy them?" We are then confronted with another problem, the solution of which requires further consideration.

(b) The second suggestion is as follows:—

It will be recognized by all who have given even a superficial attention to the customs of Ancient Egypt that certain devilries were practised there—Black Magic and the Satanic custom of tampering with the Natural Laws of Jehovah. Among these there was apparently the habit among certain Egyptian priests of fashioning images of living men out of clay, lime or other material and, by some devilish process, imbuing the inanimate substance of the image with the personality of its living counterpart. On that analogy, passing the image through a fire was tantamount to burning to death the human being it represented. In this way a monarch who had some mission to fulfil might be done away with by those whose interests might be served by his death.

If this is so, the opposite might be equally significant. A dead monarch, and especially one whose death had been due to his hostility to the Nation, might quite reasonably be given a semblance of life through some process of embalming or passing through the fire, either in order that his people might worship him, or that his characteristics and works might live on. This occult process would certainly be in direct violation of the Nature-Law of Jehovah and worthy of a proportionate penalty. The burning of the bones of the Edomite king into lime might therefore signify some such devilish practice.

Digitized by Google

That this act was different from the usual practice of embalming the dead, customary among certain of the ancient peoples, is apparent, for it is regarded as a serious offence by Jehovah, and one which merited chastisement. It would seem more than probable that it entailed a knowledge of occult mysteries, such as the ancient peoples possessed from their close proximity to the period of the Creation, a knowledge which, it is now realized, was frequently perverted and utilized to perpetrate deeds of horror in direct opposition to the Plan of God and His Divine Evolution.

If the foregoing should be of any assistance to you in formulating an opinion on this subject, I shall be very glad to know. I am looking forward to reading further articles on this matter.

Yours faithfully,

Melbourne. BRIDGMAN FITZ-ERSE.

To the Editor.

DEAR SIR,—In reply to your request for tables giving the numerical value of Latin, Hebrew and Greek letters, the value of the Latin letters D. C, L, X, V, I, which alone were used as numerals, is too well known to need comment. M came to be used for 1,000 at a much later date, and is really a contracted form of the figure C I Ↄ.

As regards Greek letters they came to be used as numerals about 300 B.C., and were in use as such in New Testament times.

Hebrew letters as numerals appear on Maccabæan coins, but I have no knowledge as to when they were first used.

The Hebrew and Greek tables are given below.

Yours faithfully,

(Rev.) CYRIL C. DOBSON.

The numerical value of the Greek letters is as follows :—

Alpha	= α	= 1	Iota	= ι	= 10	Sigma	= σ	=200
Beta	= β	= 2	Kappa	= κ	= 20	Tau	= τ	=300
Gamma	= γ	= 3	Lambda	= λ	= 30	Upsilon	= υ	=400
Delta	= δ	= 4	Mu	= μ	= 40	Phi	= φ	=500
Epsilon	= ε	= 5	Nu	= ν	= 50	Chi	= χ	=600
Stigma*	= ς	= 6	Xi	= ξ	= 60	Psi	= ψ	=700
Zeta	= ζ	= 7	Omicron	= ο	= 70	Omega	= ω	=800
Eta	= η	= 8	Pi	= π	= 80
Theta	= θ	= 9	Rho	= ρ	=100

The numerical value of Hebrew letters as given in Dr. Bullinger's "Number in Scripture," and in other works is as follows :—

Aleph	= א	=1	Yod	= י	=10	Koph	= ק	=100
Beth	= ב	=2	Kaph	= כ	=20	Resh	= ר	=200
Gimel	= ג	=3	Lamed	= ל	=30	Shin	= ש	=300
Daleth	= ד	=4	Mem	= מ	=40	Tau	= ת	=400
He	= ה	=5	Nun	= נ	=50	Kaph	= ך	=500	When used as finals.
Var	= ו	=6	Samech	= ס	=60	Mem	= ם	=600
Zayin	= ז	=7	Ayin	= ע	=70	Nun	= ן	=700
Cheth	= ח	=8	Pe	= פ	=80	Pe	= ף	=800
Teth	= ט	=9	Tsaddi	= צ	=90	Tsaddi	= ץ	=900

* This letter known by this name came to be used for 6, but it is not known how. Two other letters not in the alphabet were also used, Koppa = K = 90, and Sampsi = ϡ = 900.

THE BIBLE IS A LIBRARY OF ISRAEL LITERATURE.

1. The Bible commences first with the chosen line, from Seth to Abraham.

2. The second section deals with the foundation covenants, upon which all Israel's civilization rests, entered into between El Shaddai the party of the first part, Abraham the party of the second part, and Sarah the party of the third part.

In those covenants the absolute equality between the male and female covenanters and their successors is most clearly established.

3. The third section deals with the renewal of the Covenant with Isaac and with Jacob.

4. The fourth section deals with the establishment of the Nation of Israel and the exclusion of Esau and his seed from participation therein.

The Bible therefore may be epitomized as follows, and may be called our Consequent-Bible.

Genesis shows	...	The chosen line of descent from Seth to Abraham; to the exclusion of all others.
Exodus shows	...	The establishment of the nation.
Leviticus is	...	The manual of the nation's worship.
Numbers is	...	The manual of the national organization.
Deuteronomy is	...	The digest of constitutional law.
Joshua	...	Induction of the nation into its own land.
Judges	...	Functioning of the Constitution as administered by Judges without King or Parliament.
Ruth	...	Illustration of the working of the Constitution.
I & II Samuel	...	Establishment of the kingdom.
I & II Kings	...	History of the two kingdoms from the national standpoint.
I & II Chronicles	...	History of the two kingdoms from the ecclesiastical standpoint.
Nehemiah and Ezra	...	History of the Jewish restoration.
Esther	...	Portrays the final chapter of the thousand years old Amalek-Israel war.
Job	...	Moral philosophy of the nation.
Psalms	...	Manual of the nation's devotion.
Proverbs	...	The winnowed wisdom of the nation.
Isaiah	...	Great prophet to the nations; especially Israel.
Jeremiah	...	Great Prophet of Judah at the transition period.
Ezekiel	...	Great Prophet to the Israel captivity.
Daniel	...	Great Prophet of the Babylon Empires and Israel.

And so on through the minor Prophets and the New Testament. All the record is bound together, and follows the Israel line from Genesis to Revelation.

W. P. G.

Digitized by Google

AN UNMISTAKABLE PREDICTION.

"He shall not fail nor be discouraged, till He have set judgment in the earth: and the isles shall wait for His law."—Isaiah xlii, 4.

"THIS is a plain and unmistakable prediction. Judgment shall be set in the earth, and 'the isles shall wait for His law.' This is a settled matter, which the risen Saviour sits expecting to realize, and which the faith of believers may anticipate on the warrant of His word. The years may come and go, with but little apparent progress; the armies of the enemy may be as gaily caparisoned and as boastful of victory; the fortresses may seem to be without a breach; the scorners may be loud in their ribaldry; the standard-bearers may be stricken, and the banner itself soiled with dust and stained with blood; but there is not the interval of a moment in the Saviour's march to triumph. Calm as the sun in the heavens, He bringeth forth judgment unto victory. Noiseless but constant as the flight of time, He presses to His assured purpose, and waits for the expected end. He is not discouraged by sinister omens or unwonted opposition, by faithless traitors or by wearied friends. None of the ordinary causes of failure operate in Him. Men fail because they underrate difficulties and make no careful counting of the cost, or because they work without a heart and consequently without a will, or because there is a misgiving that the work is unworthy, or because death touches them suddenly in the midst of their toil. He saw the end from the beginning, calculated every danger, measured the stature and strength of every enemy. He loved the work so well that, for its sake, he delighted in the baptism of the fire. He feels the work to be the noblest, the highest destiny for man, the most magnificent revelation of God. He ever liveth. 'He shall not fail nor be discouraged.' Against embattled earth and gathered forces of the pit He shall bring forth judgment unto victory, until He rests from His labour, until He gathers His children, until He wears His crown."

(Rev.) W. MORLEY PUNSHON, M.A.

MAY 29th, 1928.

BY H. PERCY BLANCHARD.

"BUT we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory; Which none of the princes of this world knew; for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory."—1 Cor. ii, 7.

It was not till the month of June last that we realized how the whole English-speaking world was seized with the possibilities of war anticipated under the Pyramid date of May 29th last. But when May ended, and June dawned with apparent serenity, and the guns remained silent, many took a long breath of satisfaction, and returned to their old ways. Nothing happened, they said, and mocked. Even the religious press joined in the raillery.

On the other hand, at a stated hour of that momentous date, had Russia for instance declared war, and plunged the world into strife, God's programme, as revealed by the Pyramid, would have been noticeably evident to "the Princes of this world," and God's counsels anticipated too soon.

There were good people in Judea who at the time fixed by Daniel looked for the manifestation of Messiah the Prince. And, just as they anticipated, were they rewarded or disappointed in Jesus, the Suffering Servant.

The Great War had progressed three years before it came to any of us the significance of the first Low Passage. But the Pyramid had been true to the day and hour. So, it will remain a mystery till too late for the wicked world and its Prince to turn back from their impending doom. Then, we will see burnt deep on the calendar of fate the revelation of that momentous date in last May. In the meantime, we must exercise our faith and confidence in God, steadfast, waiting for His manifestation in power eventually in these perilous days, without wavering.

WORLD-WIDE MOVEMENT OF THE JEWS TOWARDS CHRIST.

Commander Roberts writes:—

"DEAR FELLOW CHRISTIANS,

This is a subject of the most momentous importance in the history of the world, and especially as concerning the near Advent of Our Lord Jesus Christ, that has been inaugurated, and, by its international Congress at Hamburg last July, in which 153 delegates out of 23 nations, Jews by race, partook of the Holy Communion in token of their affiliation in love and sympathy with fellow Protestants of every nation also then assembled.

THE INTERNATIONAL HEBREW CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE

It is our privilege to hold a meeting here in the Town Hall, Teignmouth (God willing), on June 10th, at 3 o'clock, when the elected President, has promised to address us on this most critical reunion. Some of our most leading Evangelical ministers see not only in this movement the end of this dispensation and the beginning of a new one; in fact a new League of Nations founded upon God's Word, and ushering in the Kingdom of Our Lord Jesus Christ; but the true bond which will save our Churches and bring about Peace upon Earth."

SIR LEON LEVISON
(of the I.H.C.A.),

A PRAYER.

WE pray Thee, O Lord, Whose throne is above all thrones, that Thou wilt preserve to us righteous and Christian government, and wilt grant peace in our day; that as Thou wast with our fathers, Thou wilt be with us, and wilt bless our country with pure religion, wise administration, and prosperous commerce. Bless, O Lord, the King, that He may be crowned with Thy favour, supported by Thy grace, and trust in the King of kings and Lord of lords. And grant, O most merciful Father, that we may live in Thy fear, die in Thy peace, be raised at the last day by Thy power, and may thereafter inherit Thy kingdom, where, with the Angels and Thy holy elect, we shall worship and magnify Thee through all eternity in the Name of Thy dear Son, Jesus Christ, Our Saviour.—Amen.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

SEVEN meetings were held at Headquarters on Thursday and Friday of last week. The Annual Public May Meetings took place at 2.45 and 7.30 each day. The President, Major Knowles, O.B.E., presided at the large opening gathering. The Rev. Commander Roberts offered prayer. After the President had delivered his speech, he announced that the next item would be the surprise promised in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, and it proved a wholly unexpected and delightful surprise indeed, namely, an address by the Rev. Pascoe Goard on a gramophone, recorded just before he started for Canada in April. It was entitled "The British-Israel Evangel." Needless to say, it was rapturously applauded. The record was a complete success, and the voice was very distinct and easily recognized. It was announced that the idea of securing this record originated with Mrs. Garrison, and that the cost had been borne by the Secretary-General, and that copies of the record could be obtained at Headquarters at 12s. 6d. Many orders were at once booked.

Addresses followed by the Revs. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., and Gilbert Davies.

The Secretary-General presided over the evening meeting, when the speakers were the Rev. Joseph Gay and Mr. J. J. Morey.

Between these public meetings, the Council of the B.-I.-W.F. met to receive the Annual Report and Financial Statement for 1928, and to transact other business, which proved so much than an adjourned meeting had to be held in the forenoon of the following day.

The chairman for the third public meeting on Friday afternoon was the venerable Commander Roberts, R.N., who gave an address, and was followed by the Rev. Arthur Pritchard, M.A.—who received a very warm welcome after his long illness—and Mr. Herbert Garrison, both of whom dealt with the British Empire, it being Empire Day.

After tea the Annual Meeting of Members was held, when the Annual Report and Financial Statements were presented by the Secretary-General and the Financial Secretary respectively. Both were adopted by acclamation and with congratulations.

Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C., presided at the fourth public meeting on Friday evening, when the speakers were the Rev. J. Lumley Davies, L.D., and Messrs. Daniel Farmer and Wm. Whitton.

By request, the gramophone address by Mr. Goard was repeated on the Thursday evening, and further orders were taken for records. Many took tea each day, and social converse was much enjoyed. Among visitors from overseas we gladly welcomed Mrs. Tait, from Vancouver.

The Addresses and the Annual Report will appear in subsequent issues of this journal.

* * *

Mr. John Leech, K.C., addressed a large company at Camberley, Surrey, on May 14th, when Lt.-Col. Robertson, D.S.O., presided. Our thanks are due to Colonel and Mrs. Horniblow for securing such an encouraging success.

Mr. Leech will give another address at Headquarters on Wednesday afternoon next, and on Thursday evening Mr. Morey will speak on his recent travels in the East. We hope for full audiences on both occasions.

* * *

Mr. Basil Stewart addressed a good gathering of the Folkestone Branch on May 23rd, which was deeply interested and expressed their appreciation of entirely new matter presented to them concerning the Great Pyramid.

* * *

Miss Hamilton Hunter has addressed a full delighted audience assembled by our South London Branch. The subject was "The Church and the Bride."

* * *

The Rev. Merton Smith was the speaker at the British-Israel-World Federation meeting in Harrogate on Monday evening. The gathering listened with interest to a well-delivered address on "The Gospel of the Kingdom." Dr. Rutherford presided, and formally introduced the speaker.

The Rev. Merton Smith said it was a pleasure to speak to them on the British-Israel Truths. He had been asked to speak to them on "The Kingdom of God." Now one of the accusations against them as British-Israelites was that they neglected the Gospel. His reply was, which Gospel? He would point out that there was not only one Gospel, but three distinct ones in the New Testament, and one in the Old Testament. There was the Gospel of the Grace of God, whereby a sinner could be reconciled to Himself, the Gospel of the Kingdom, which they preached, and the story told by God of the Kingdom that He had founded which would never be destroyed. This Kingdom would consume all its enemies, and become eventually the Kingdom of God and of Jesus Christ. There was also the Everlasting Gospel, which was a belief in God. Those were the three Gospels. The Old Testament from Genesis to Revelation unfolded the Gospel of the Kingdom, although right through the chapters were foreshadowed the Gospel of the Grace of God. Nineteen-twentieths of the Old Testament taught the Gospel of the Kingdom. In his opinion it was the omission to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom that was responsible for the great religious confusion of the present day. Matthew xxiv, 14, said: "And this Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Was it true that the Gospel was preached to every creature under Heaven in Paul's day? Yet the end did not come. The British race had taken on the task of preaching the Gospel. To the sojourners of the dispersion of Israel there was stressed the urgency of trust in Jehovah. To-day there was that need both for individuals and for nations. The Lord said: "Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and a holy nation." He did not think that as far as the Church was concerned it was very holy just now, neither was the nation, but Israel had all the sins that the British race had.

Digitized by Google

God intended to make it a holy nation, and by holy nation He meant separated for His purpose. The Lord also said (in Isaiah xlii, 16): "And I will bring the blind by a way that they will not know." Could it not be said of this country, and was it not admitted that all the successes that it had attained had been attained blindly? It was a common theory that the Israelites had been set aside and the Gentiles put in their place. This was the belief of the Church, and the British-Israelites would have hard work to dig out the truth again.—Harrogate Herald.

* * *

The Annual Convention of the Ontario Branch of the British-Israel Federation of Canada was held in Toronto on April 25th, 26th and 27th. Splendid meetings were held in Carlton Street United Church on the three evenings. The Rev. Wm. Pascoe Goard was the principal speaker, and a marked interest was shown in his message, about twelve hundred people crowding the church each evening. On Friday afternoon a ministerial conference was held, when a number of the clergy of the city met Mr. Goard. It was also noticeable the number of ministers who attended the evening meetings.

On Saturday afternoon the representatives of the Branches in Ontario met in Convention, and very encouraging reports were received showing the progress made during the year. Seven organized Branches are now operating in the Province, five in the Toronto district, one at Peterborough, and one at Hamilton.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: S. J. Frame, President; David Duncan, Vice-President; A. A. Robeson, Secretary (provisionally); and S. J. Crealock, Treasurer.

* * *

The Sheffield Branch is making great progress in the district, lectures now being organized for the suburbs, and regular Bible Study Circles in five different homes. Also a Prayer Meeting precedes the usual weekly meeting.

* * *

Mr. Gay visited Herne Bay on Monday, May 13th, and lectured in the hall of the Wesleyan Church in the afternoon, taking as his subject, "British-Israel Truth, a Working Hypothesis." In the evening, in the Parochial Hall, his subject being: "The Gospel of the King, a Study in St. Matthew's Gospel." There were good attendances at both meetings.

* * *

"EVERYBODY'S KING."

This was the Prime Minister's happy description of our beloved Monarch in his historic Empire Day speech in Hyde Park, broadcast to Great Britain and the Dominions beyond the seas.

"Everybody's King!" How actually and prophetically true!

"The first words the people of Great Britain would wish me to say to all who are listening-in throughout the Empire are words of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the King's recovery . . . His Majesty is Everybody's King."

"In the history of the British Empire," said the Prime Minister, "we see the human hands that have built it . . . but as we study its destiny, we are bound to think of it less as a human achievement than as an instrument of Divine Providence for the promotion of the progress of mankind. . . . And one of the greatest gifts of civilization is freedom, which we seek not only to enjoy ourselves, but to share increasingly with others."

Are these words not an echo of the promise made to our forefather Abraham? "And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee and make thy name great . . . and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." (Gen. xii, 2, 3.)

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 3rd, at 8. Mr. Wm. Marks.
BELFAST (WEST), Tennant Street Unionist Hall, Thursday, 6th, at 8.
CHATHAM, Navy House, Monday, 3rd, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
HORNSEY AND CROUCH END, Earl Haig Memorial Hall, Elder Avenue, Tuesday, 4th, at 7.45. Mr. W. Gray.
LEICESTER, Memorial Hall, Tuesday, 4th, at 3 and 7.30. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
PORTSMOUTH, Edinburgh Road Congregational Church, Tuesday, 4th, at 3 and 7.30. Mr. J. J. Morey.
RHYMNEY, Institute, Tuesday, 4th, at 7.
ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA, Masonic Hall, Thursday, 6th, at 3 and 7.30. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
SHEFFIELD, Upper Lecture Hall, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 5th, at 7.30. Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A.
SOUTHAMPTON, Atherley Hall, Shirley, Wednesday, 5th, at 3 and 7.30. Mr. J. J. Morey.
STRATFORD, St. Mark's Church, Windmill Lane, Monday, 3rd, at 8. Rev. Sparshott Johnson, M.A.

NOTICE.

All Members and Associates of the British-Israel-World Federation, and all Members of Affiliated Associations or Branches of the Federation, are requested to take notice that a Special General Meeting of the Federation will be held at the Headquarters of the Federation, 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1, on Friday, the 20th day of September, 1929, at 5.30 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of passing a Resolution, if considered advisable, sanctioning proposed new and amended Rules for the Federation, which have been prepared and approved of by the General Council.

The proposed new Rules may be inspected at Headquarters by any such Member or Associate who may so desire.

Digitized by Google

PYRAMID LITERATURE, Etc.

By DAVID DAVIDSON, M.C., M.I.Struct.E.

ALL THOSE INTERESTED IN PYRAMID PROPHECY SHOULD HAVE THESE BOOKS ON THEIR SHELVES.

THE GREAT PYRAMID: ITS DIVINE MESSAGE.

SECOND EDITION.

The most exhaustive and comprehensive work published on the subject. 568 pp. Fully illustrated by 80 plates and 97 sheets of Astronomical, Historical and Archæological Tables and Annotations.

Price 25/-. By Post 25/9.
(Overseas postage extra.)

TALKS ON THE GREAT PYRAMID.

No. 1. THE SCIENCE OF THE PYRAMID'S REVELATION. Price 6d. By Post 7d.
No. 2. THE ORBIT OF MESSIANIC CIVILISATION: THE SOLAR YEAR AND THE MESSIANIC YEAR. Price 6d. By Post 7d.
No. 3. PYRAMID PROPHECY AND CURRENT EVENTS. Price 1/-. By Post 1/2.

REPRINTS FROM "THE MORNING POST."

No. 5. PROPHECY AND THE GREAT PYRAMID. Price 6d. By Post 7d.
No. 6. PROPHECY AND THE GREAT PYRAMID'S SCIENTIFIC REVELATION. Price 1/-. By Post 1/2.

EARLY EGYPT, BABYLONIA AND CENTRAL ASIA.

Modern science is only beginning to penetrate the veil that has obscured the origin of the present sequence of civilisation on our planet. In this book we find 36 centuries spanned by the methods of modern science as the instruments of the astronomer span the vast distances and time-measurements of stellar space.

Price 15/-. By Post 15/9.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

BE A BANNER BEARER

Spread the truth. Interest your friends, not only in our Movement, but in following our Movement and its developments week by week. Induce them to become subscribers as you are, for it is only thus that our Movement can grow and the light be shed in the dark corners. Do your part in the pioneering work and be a banner bearer.

Special Campaign for Increasing the Circulation of this Journal.

I wish to help, and I send herewith the sum of.....

for which please send ..... copies for three, six, twelve months to:

(Name) .....

Postal address .....

.....

.....

Alternative form :—

I enclose the sum of .....

Please send..... copies to whomsoever you may select for a period covered by this amount.

N.B.—The subscription is 3/- for three months; 6/- for six months; 12/- for twelve months. Canada and U.S.A. three dollars per annum.

ADDRESS—

The Secretary,
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

JUNE 8, 1929.

Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB. 24·7

GT. BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1ST CHRON. 29 v 23

JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN.... EGYPT"

Is 19 v 19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11.

J.J. HALL 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms.—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962 Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

A NEW AND IMPORTANT BOOK

SEVEN TIMES

By
MAJOR H. W. WADGE, M.C., B.A., M.D.

7

TIMES IN CHRONOLOGY
PYRAMID SYMBOLISM
HEBREW PROPHECY
THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL
THE HOUSE OF JUDAH

THE prophecy of the Seven Times applies to all the Children of Israel, and so it must apply to the people or Houses of both kingdoms. But it seems clear that the term "Times of the Gentiles" applies more particularly to the period of the oppression of Judah from the era of the subjugation of Jerusalem to the era of its deliverance. In the case of the Jews, we have a people who have never lost their identity, consequently it is comparatively easy to show how prophecy has been fulfilled in their case. But in the case of the Ten Tribes, we find that their identity was lost. They can be identified now by many signs in the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic race. It is not our purpose to mention these signs in detail, but rather to make a brief survey of certain periods of the history of Great Britain, the British Empire, and the United States, to show that the prophecy of the Seven Times has been fulfilled in their history as well as in the history of the Jews.

Crown 8vo. Cloth, xiv + 138 pages. Price 3/6, by post 3/10

ORDER YOUR COPY TO-DAY

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 388. Vol. VIII. JUNE 8th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XV. By the Rev W. Pascoe Goard	353
B.-I.-W.F. ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1928. Adopted at the Annual Meeting on May 24th	356
FIRST DOMINION CONVENTION (with Photograph of Group)	362
REPRINTS WORTH READING	363
A PRAYER. By Robert Collyer	364
REVIEW. By J. G.	364
THE LATE DR. MEYER'S LAST UTTERANCES ON THE SUNDAY QUESTION	365
ITALIAN EASTERN POLICY	365
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	366

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XV.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

Daniel x. This chapter commences by a sentence in the third person; so does chapter vii. Turning to Ezekiel as a further illustration, we find in chapter i, verses 2 and 3, a second voice speaking in the third person breaks in across Ezekiel's narrative. What do these voices in the third person mean?

We take it to be an obvious fact that they are the attestation of a witness to the statement of the prophet; just as an affidavit, a deed, or a will, or any other legal document must now be attested by one or two witnesses in order to be valid. It is axiomatic in the Divine Law as expressed by Moses, as practised by the prophets, as ratified by Our Lord, expressed also in the Common Law of Britain, "IN THE MOUTH OF TWO OR THREE WITNESSES SHALL EVERY WORD BE ESTABLISHED." The witness in chapter x gives his testimony thus:—

First, as to date: "In the third year of Cyrus king of Persia."

Second, as to the fact: "A thing was revealed unto Daniel . . ."

Third, as to testimony to the fact: "And the thing was true."

Fourth, as to time of fulfilment: "But the time appointed was long."

Fifth, as to understanding: "And he understood the thing."

Sixth, as to all facts involved in the vision, such as its Divine origin and so on: "And had understanding of the vision."

This is the affidavit of a witness whose testimony precedes Daniel's narrative of his vision.

In other parts of the Book of Daniel, and in other prophets, we find at times the same thing being stated in full by a succession of persons, thus giving both the testimony of witnesses and the repetition of the statement. See for instance in Daniel, chapter iii, the charge laid against the three Jewish governors of provinces so repeated in full.

This matter is of interest in connection with the present chapter, and is of further interest in the general study of the prophets.

The chapter we are now to read introduces the August Person, Who gives to Daniel a message stretching away over such ages of time as to reach beyond the experience of Daniel's own generation, and even beyond his own dispensation, and still on to the last things of the present dispensation.

The statement made reveals facts of such an extraordinary nature that they might well call for the attestation of the additional witness to which we have referred. The supernatural Personage introduced is described, but not named. It seems not to be the man Gabriel of chapter ix, 21, but He Who commanded Gabriel in chapter viii, 16. It seems to be the Lord of Hosts, i.e., God the Son, Who thus comes in answer to Daniel's prayer.

We shall quote the full passage, as it is impossible for our words to convey the impression produced by this inspired description. It seems to give us glimpses of the activities and continuous engagement of heavenly beings, and even of the Persons of the Holy Trinity, in earthly affairs ; not only in the spiritual realm, but also in the international and national realms.

Digitized by Google

When one reads this passage and then thinks of angels' activities aiding our Israel people in their need, a sense of thrilling expectation is raised which calm reason, weighing the evidence produced, is constrained to say may not be without foundation in actual fact.

It seems strange in a matter-of-fact series of documents such as we have been studying, to be brought by documentary evidence, carefully attested, directly into contact with such heavenly manifestations. But perhaps the strangeness may somewhat pass when we remember that the former dispensation was carried forward by the Lord through the ministry of angels to the time of the vision of St. Peter in the house of Simon the tanner, when the voice of Our Lord was last heard commanding Peter to go to the house of Cornelius, and there open the Kingdom of Heaven to the Gentiles. From that time onward, the Christian dispensation has been carried forward by the ministry of the Holy Ghost.

Surely it is more astonishing that the Holy Ghost should become our personal and national Friend, Counsellor and Guide, than that created beings and glorified spirits of just men made perfect should be sent to minister to the Lord's people.

Doubtless Our Lord continues to employ the ministry of angels, but the only voice that is heard in this dispensation, as far as we know, is that of the Holy Ghost.

With these thoughts in mind, let us read the following passage :—

" In the third year of Cyrus king of Persia a thing was revealed unto Daniel, whose name was called Belteshazzar ; and the thing was true, but the time appointed was long ; and he understood the thing, and had understanding of the vision.

In those days I Daniel was mourning three full weeks.

I ate no pleasant bread, neither came flesh nor wine in my mouth, neither did I anoint myself at all, till three whole weeks were fulfilled.

And in the four and twentieth day of the first month, as I was by the side of the great river, which is Hiddekel ;

Then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a certain man clothed in linen, whose loins were girded with fine gold of Uphaz :

His body also was like the beryl, and his face as the appearance of lightning, and his eyes as lamps of fire, and his arms and his feet like in colour to polished brass, and the voice of his words like the voice of a multitude.

And I Daniel alone saw the vision : for the men that were with me saw not the vision ; but a great quaking fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves.

Therefore I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me : for my comeliness was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no strength.

Yet heard I the voice of his words : and when I heard the voice of his words, then was I in a deep sleep on my face, and my face toward the ground.

And, behold, an hand touched me, which set me upon my knees and upon the palms of my hands.

And he said unto me, O Daniel, a man greatly beloved, understand the words that I speak unto thee, and stand upright : for unto thee am I now sent. And when he had spoken this word unto me, I stood trembling.

Then said he unto me, Fear not, Daniel : for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to chasten thyself before thy God, thy words were heard, and I am come for thy words.

But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days : but, lo, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me ; and I remained there with the kings of Persia.

Now I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people in the latter days : for yet the vision is for many days.

And when he had spoken such words unto me, I set my face toward the ground, and I became dumb.

And, behold, one like the similitude of the sons of men touched my lips : then I opened my mouth, and spake, and said unto him that stood before me, O my lord, by the vision my sorrows are turned upon me, and I have retained no strength.

For how can the servant of this my lord talk with this my lord ? for as for me, straightway there remained no strength in me, neither is there breath left in me.

Then there came again and touched me one like the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me,

And said, O man greatly beloved, fear not : peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong. And when he had spoken unto me, I was strengthened, and said, Let my lord speak ; for thou hast strengthened me.

Then said he, Knowest thou wherefore I come unto thee ? and now will I return to fight with the prince of Persia ; and when I am gone forth, lo, the prince of Grecia shall come.

But I will shew thee that which is noted in the scripture of truth : and there is none that holdeth with me in these things, but Michael your prince." (Daniel x.)

This forms the introduction to the pre-written epitome of a particular line of world history which follows in chapter xi, and which particular line leads directly to the final international situation.

Interwoven with this introduction of heavenly visitants to Daniel are certain statements which have a significance, the knowledge of the meaning of which seems to be assumed. The following are the quotations :—verse 13, as above : " But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days : but, lo, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me ; and I remained there with the kings of Persia."

" Now I am come . . ."

Verse 20 : " Then said he, Knowest thou wherefore I come unto thee ? and now will I return to fight with the prince of Persia ; . . ."

" BUT I WILL SHEW THEE WHAT IS NOTED IN THE SCRIPTURE OF TRUTH : and there is none that holdeth with me in these things, but Michael your prince."

Chapter ii, 1 : " Also in the first year of Darius the Mede, even I stood to confirm and to strengthen him."

Strangely sounding words are these. What do they mean ?

Digitized by Google

Michael is the Archangel who leads the angelic forces of Heaven against the angelic forces of Satan.

The August Personage here mentioned later took upon Himself the concrete body of the seed of Abraham, carried out the Redemption of Israel, and became the Saviour of the world.

Gabriel, who seems to attend and do the bidding of this Glorious One, and always as far as we have knowledge of his movements, in "preaching the things which are contained in the scripture of truth."

"This my Lord" who appears to Daniel assumes that knowledge of His mission is possessed by Daniel and by those who read Daniel's message. In order to get this clearly before our minds we enquire: What was transpiring in the Persian Empire at this time? How should the king of Persia, evidently distant from Daniel's residence in Babylon, withstand this August Personage for one and twenty days? Was there war in the Empire at this time? There is no slightest reason to think so. Daniel was resident in Babylon. The king of Persia was not. The Glorious One came from one to the other.

It is necessary, as our friends the modern critics should know, to have the political organization of the Empire before us, and the geography which accords with it, before we can make an intelligible criticism of the literature of Daniel. It is manifest as we read that the statement here assumes that the king of Persia was not present in Babylon, and that he was not the monarch directly served by Daniel. This is a beautiful evidence, amounting to proof that the king of Babylon was a different person from the king of Persia at this period of history. The king of Persia, in Daniel's day, like the king of Prussia in pre-war days, was king in his own particular kingdom, and the kingdom of Persia did not include Babylon, nor Media, etc. The Empire of Persia included both.

While the king of Prussia ruled as king in Prussia, he was also Emperor of Germany, including Prussia and all the other German kingdoms. There were many other crowned heads in the German Empire, each ruling over a Sovereign State; as, for instance, the king of Saxony. So it seems to have been in the Persian Empire.

So, while the king of Persia was the supreme king of all the "lands" of the Empire, including the kingdom of Darius, Darius was a subordinate king of Babylon. Daniel was in the service of the king of Babylon.

What was the nature of the conflict in which this unnamed Glorious One, aided by Michael, was engaged in Persia?

This question may be solved by asking first in what was it that He stood to strengthen Darius the king of Babylon in his first year? In what was Darius engaged which would interest this Divine Person and enlist His services?

Darius, as we have seen, had made proclamation that the God of Daniel should be worshipped throughout his part of the Persian Empire. He ruled as sub-king in all probability over Babylon, Chaldea, Media, Syria, perhaps Palestine also. He did not rule Persia, and other Eastern parts of the Empire, and his rule was that of a sub-king, under Cyrus the Emperor, or "king of lands." The religious decree set forth by Darius was widespreading, but did not include all the Empire.

Up to the time of Cyrus and Darius there was a litter of idolatry and idolatrous apparatus all over the Middle East. The very last scene in the Babylonian phase of the Empire shows this to be the case. The monuments and tablets of Assyria make this abundantly clear. Now in the first year of Darius we find a new doctrine, and a new worship, being set up by a royal decree, which could not be changed, once made. This would call for the intense opposition of such priesthood as had forced the hand of the king to cast Daniel to the lions. It was the dawn of better things for the East, the beginning of the death of idol worship, and the establishment of true worship of God. All the powers of adverse men and spirits were against the movement. The Lord stood to confirm and strengthen Darius in this great religious reform.

Now the Lord was "fighting with" the king of Persia. Doubtless Cyrus knew all about the decree of Darius establishing the worship of the God of Daniel in his own part of the Empire. Appeals would be made to the Emperor by the priesthood against the act of Darius. Pressure also would be brought to bear upon Cyrus to induce him to take the same course and to establish Divine worship throughout the Empire. The prophecies concerning him by Isaiah, etc., would be shown to him. He also made royal proclamation throughout the Empire as follows:—

> "Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying,
>
> Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah.
>
> Who is there among you of all his people? his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel, (he is the God,) which is in Jerusalem." (Ezra i, 1-3.)

For twenty-one days matters seem to have been in the balance. Probably it was a crisis brought on through ancient orders of idolatrous priests. Then came Michael the Archangel to help the Glorious One, and apparently the spiritual victory was won. Having fulfilled his mission to Daniel, He says:—"Now I will return to fight with the prince of Persia." "And there is none that holdeth with me in these things but Michael your prince." Thus would the Glorious One strengthen Cyrus in his course towards the establishing the worship and knowledge of the true God throughout the Persian Empire.

The period of which we are reading these wonderful things of angelic activity was rich in prophecy, and in missionary endeavour.

The time of Abraham had laid the foundation of the knowledge of God for the post-Abrahamic times to build upon.

The time of Moses had carried the revelation of God farther, and had reduced the same to systematic writing, as in the Pentateuch.

The time of David had enriched the same stream of revelation with choice music and wonderful prophecy expressed in sacred song.

Digitized by Google

Now we come to the time of Isaiah; then of Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Daniel, with the minor prophets.

Jeremiah had his centre in Jerusalem; Ezekiel was in Media with the Israel captivity; Daniel was in Babylon with the Jewish captivity. All of these prophets had poured out their richest and their best to Judah, to Israel, to Babylon, and to Medo-Persia.

Responding to these Cyrus the Emperor had made proclamation establishing the worship of the true God in the Empire. Darius as king of Babylon had issued his proclamation establishing the worship in Babylon and the rest of his kingdom within the Empire. Thus was the worship of God established by the laws of the Medes and Persians, which alter not.

In Greece the philosophers were giving forth their messages, abstractions from the Mosaic teachings, which have rung ceaselessly down the ages to this day, denominated "Grecian philosophy."

In Britain Jeremiah had taken up the story, if well-founded tradition, partly oral and partly written, is to be accepted, and of which the probabilities are in favour.

In Britain, by an accession of migrants from the homeland of Palestine, Druid worship of the Trinity in Unity had been purified and strengthened.

In Persia Zoroaster established his system. In India Buddha gave forth of the light which had come to him. His following established the worship of the messenger Buddha, rather than of the God he preached. But what a step forward from the polytheism which in this period began to die.

So this age, in which the Lord and Michael were active, saw a stupendous religious reform, which prepared the ground for the Gospel of Christ, and all of this great stream flowed from the Mosaic fountain.

What a glimpse this message gives to us of the "spiritualities and powers," as the Apostle Paul calls them, engaged in the struggle between truth and error; that which "IS NOTED IN THE SCRIPTURE OF TRUTH," against that which arises from the minds and hearts of men and of devils. Now the truth is interwoven with the most matter-of-fact things of history as part and parcel of the same, and what a directing and controlling influence in regard thereto it is, is made manifest in the wonderful literature.

What happened as a result of this conflict of spiritualities? Cyrus was so influenced and instructed that he liberated Judah and Israel.

That is one interesting fact of history. But there is another. Up to this time the Euphratean Valley and all the East had been rife with polytheism. Now there took root this new form of knowledge and of religion. Judaism took on a new form from this time, and from these circumstances.

Out of the movement of that time, which included the return of a colony of the Jews to Palestine, and the setting-up of the nation of the Jews (see Ezra i), came the redacting of the sacred Scriptures, with all that followed therefrom.

The examination of the springing up and crystallization of great religious organizations and systems of faith at this time throws light upon this passage of Daniel and makes it luminous.

What an experience was this to come to any son of man. Indeed Daniel might well be terrified, and yet be conscious of honour such as had fallen to the lot of none but the Prophets and Apostles of God.

"And now will I shew thee the truth" said this heavenly messenger. But what he showed must remain over until the next chapter.

B.-I.-W.F. ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1928, ADOPTED AT THE ANNUAL MEETING ON MAY 24TH.

THE latter part of the year 1928 was a period of great anxiety and solicitude for the nation and for the whole Empire on account of the serious illness of our beloved King, among whose subjects no people were more solicitous, because not any are more devotedly loyal than the members and supporters of this Federation. No one prayed more fervently that God would graciously spare him to us, or had greater faith that prayers would be answered, because none knew better than we who the King is, and upon whose Throne he sits, nor do any know as British-Israelites do that our Movement is God's instrument as the great bulwark to the British Throne, and to the British Empire.

The gracious and beautiful letter from the Queen thanking us for our letter of affectionate sympathy will ever be treasured in the archives of the Federation.

We offer praise and thanksgiving to the Almighty God of Israel for our King's recovery, and we continue to pray that his restoration to health may be complete, and we pray for the Queen and for our Prince David and for all the members of our Royal Family, for whose devotion and service to the people of this Realm and Empire we continually praise God.

* * *

We can unfeignedly thank God for the good work accomplished by our Federation under Divine guidance during the past ten years.

This year we have an increasingly wonderful story to tell. In many ways it has been the most difficult year in the history of our Movement, and yet there can be no question about it, it has been the year of our greatest advance.

Shall we speak of forces which have arrayed themselves against us? If we do so, we should not tell the story of opposition on the part of anti-Christian people; indeed, from that quarter the opposition has not been remarkable in any way unless it is for its absence. The man on the street demonstrates his hunger for the Gospel of the Kingdom.

When we review the work of the years, and especially of the last year, this fact stands out most prominently; from that class much interest has been manifested, and a constant procession has been moving towards the platform of enlistment in the service of Jesus Christ the King, and the acceptance of Jesus Christ the Saviour.

We are led by this consideration to the understanding of why Our Lord confined His public ministry, and that of His disciples, prior to the Resurrection, in preparing the way for the Gospel of Salvation by the preaching of the Gospel of the Kingdom.

Evidently it was His purpose that the Israel mind and heart should be prepared for the preaching of the Gospel of Salvation by instructing and reminding them of their place in the Kingdom of Heaven, and their relationship to Jehovah, the God and King of Israel, therein.

Digitized by Google

It is necessary for us to guard ourselves here by pointing out the fact that in the " Scriptures of truth " the two nations, Israel and Judah, constituted the kingdom, and that after the kingdom was taken from the Jew, Israel alone constituted that kingdom. The Church is another and broader matter, having its heart and centre in the Israel kingdom, then and now.

With minds filled with a partial conception of the truth, seeing the Church and its ministry, but failing to see the kingdom, Christian men and Christian organizations have esteemed us as heretical, and have attacked us with the bitterness only shown by Christians on a heresy hunt.

The Modernist has done so because he worships himself in the realm of scholarship, and esteems it an impertinence that any man, not of his school, should claim to have any knowledge not possessed by himself or any knowledge contrary to his school. Of course this refers to those who enter into the conflict against us. There is a great and silent body of students in the Modernist school who are busy with their appointed task, and who are content to leave us to carry forward ours.

The Evangelical who enters the conflict against us—and he is in the minority in his school—has adopted a completed system of theology and believes it to be a closed circle. Such do not recognize that part of their circle is made up of hypothesis improvised and used because of lack of knowledge of facts for which they are substituted. His mind is closed, and he esteems him as not his friend who would pry open either his mind or his circle. He assumes himself to be wholly right, and consequently assumes that everyone who differs from him must of necessity be so far wrong. So he voices his opposition.

The Churchman who claims everything in sight on earth and in Heaven for the Church organization assumes that to assign any inheritance to the nation is to rob the Church; accordingly he enters the field to defend what he esteems to be the Church's inheritance.

One thing the opposition is doing, namely, it is calling public attention to the preaching of the Truth; and it is inciting our people ceaselessly to review, readjust, and perfect their knowledge of the things of the kingdom.

So we end the year better instructed; we trust, wiser in the affairs of the kingdom; and able to defend ourselves from attacks in every quarter where such attack is open.

Turning to the positive side of our work; there has been achieved by the ceaseless efforts of our leaders and staff, and the many contributors to THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, a miracle of production and distribution of literature. We esteem the word " miracle " to mean, accomplishing results with inadequate equipment.

Some twelve million pieces of literature have been sent out, and are accomplishing their work in the world since the Covenant Publishing Company was formed. This year has witnessed the high-water mark of production and distribution in this regard.

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE tells its own story to an increasingly wide circle in all lands where our people are to be found.

The work of the Federation in its many departments has been largely increased and its influence is reaching farther in every direction than it has ever done before.

We thank God and take courage because of the greatly-increased circle of clergymen and ministers who have accepted and are proclaiming the Truth.

Given a few more years of hard work, and we shall see what ecclesiastically is termed " a school " growing up in every church; in every theological college; and in every congregation in our land.

We remember that to whatever denomination a British-Israelite may belong, in the British-Israel circle itself he belongs to a great brotherhood, one in mind and heart, on the main line of Israel teaching. Thus a union in spirit among the leaders of the churches and the congregations is growing up in our midst, and is giving promise of bringing about by spiritual and doctrinal revival the reunion of British Christianity.

Surely this is the consummation devoutly to be wished, and dear to the heart of Our Lord.

* * *

Several thousands of meetings have been held throughout the English-speaking world, including a number in the large halls of Britain and Ireland; for example, the Queen's Hall and the Central Hall, London; the Town Hall, Birmingham; and the Ulster Hall and the Grosvenor Hall, Belfast. It is impossible even to estimate the total attendances at all the meetings, but the number runs into scores of thousands. It is equally impossible to tabulate the result of these meetings; we may be quite sure that the influence therefrom has gone far and wide. We are thankful for the testimony of some atheists and communists that our teaching has won them to the Christian religion, when all else had failed. Can we wonder that they asked why they had never heard this convincing and uplifting teaching in the churches?

* * *

As one result of the manifold activities of the Federation many new Branches and Study Circles have been formed during the year, with an ever-increasing membership. It must, however, be remembered that no register of members, either of the Branches, or of the Federation direct, represents the strength of the British-Israel Movement. A ten-volume Encyclopædia estimated some years ago that the adherents of the Movement totalled two millions; what must the number be now?

* * *

A noteworthy example of the scale on which things are now being done is the vast output of B.-I. literature; this has risen enormously, so that the total now exceeds twelve million items. Many new books and pamphlets have been published.

* * *

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER, our journal, is going to many thousands of homes every week throughout the Empire and U.S.A., in addition to copies being read in libraries, clubs, and on trains and steamships.

We are greatly indebted to a very generous member who has paid for 600,000 copies of Special Numbers of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER. They have gone to the uttermost parts of the earth. The good that they have done can never be measured. We wish to express our most sincere gratitude to this noble donor, who desires to remain anonymous.

Digitized by Google

Many thousands of letters bear testimony to the comfort and enlightenment brought to readers by the articles appearing from time to time in the journal, the writers for which now number over 250, to whom we offer cordial thanks for their helpful contributions. We take this opportunity to urge all our supporters to do their very best to increase the number of regular subscribers. Think of the enormous advance that would be made if every reader secured only one new subscriber. Some of our readers have been able to report having obtained from six to ten. One town, and that not a large one, has a thousand readers.

* * *

The books and pamphlets issued by the Covenant Publishing Company are going out constantly in vast numbers all over Anglo-Saxondom. Our packing rooms are busy hives, and the shipping department is often hard put to it, mailing orders to all parts daily, Notwithstanding this, there are tens of thousands of volumes and booklets in our store rooms awaiting orders.

* * *

We have correspondents in almost every country in the world, and the mass of correspondence calling for attention is colossal. The questions asked and the problems put to us indicate that the Headquarters' staff are expected to be walking encyclopædias, and indeed our Reference Library has often to be consulted.

* * *

Our Book Room has a daily stream of visitors, and they come from the ends of the earth with their questions, and their requests for literature. Buyers range from the humblest to those in the highest walks of life.

* * *

Through the generosity of the Earl of Dysart and other liberal donors, a general Forward Movement was promoted, coupled with a Publicity Campaign, the results of which were very encouraging, bringing new members and associates, and a vast number of enquirers.

* * *

The Rev. Pascoe Goard has rendered a unique and invaluable service by his remarkable articles and illuminating and convincing addresses. He has conducted missions in London and in various Provincial centres with far-reaching results. His lectures have been heard, and his writings have been read, by tens of thousands.

* * *

Our two patriarchal veterans, the Rev. Commander Roberts, R.N., and the Rev. Dr. Mountain, have rendered yeoman service, both on the platform and in the Press. They are redoubtable champions of B.-I. Truth, and their devotion, zeal and wonderful work provide fine examples to younger men.

* * *

The Clerical and Ministerial Association has made good progress; a very helpful Conference was held, when theological questions were dealt with, and a plan of work laid out under the guidance of the Chairman, the Rev. Pascoe Goard, and the Secretary, the Rev. J. Lumley Davies, L.D. The list of clergy and ministers in sympathy with B.-I. teaching is now five times larger than that of two years ago, and it is expected that their Conference to be held in October next (D.V.) will be the largest yet known.

* * *

Weekly public meetings have been maintained at Headquarters, also a weekly Bible Class for men, conducted by Mr. Wm. Sleeman, and a monthly Bible Class for women, led by Mrs. Zoe Bell and Miss Alexander.

* * *

A Speakers' Training Class has been started, and it is doing useful work under the guidance of the Rev. Joseph Gay, Miss Barbour, Mr. Stevens and Miss Gray.

* * *

Open-air work in the parks, etc., was carried out last summer by a devoted band of speakers, under the leadership of Mr. W. J. Pilcher, and much good was done.

* * *

A B.-I. Book Room has been established in the East End of London, where cheap literature has been sought, and leaflets have been supplied freely, and where enquirers have been answered by a zealous group of young men. The Room was kindly opened by our President and Mrs. Knowles.

* * *

Mr. Howard Rand, LL.B., Attorney at Law, Massachusetts, U.S.A., spent several months with us at Headquarters, studying our work and administration. He addressed many meetings in London and in other centres with much acceptance. His fine character and spirit, and his geniality endeared him to many friends. He is now representing the Federation in the United States of America.

* * *

The Ninth Congress, held in October last in the large Central Hall, Westminster, maintained the high standard of previous years in regard both to the excellence of the addresses and the general interest manifested. The attendances totalled over 20,000, and represented many parts of the world. We were specially favoured in the delegations from Canada and U.S.A. Professor Edward Odlum, M.A., B.Sc., the ever-genial and scholarly veteran of British Columbia, brought us from the Pacific Coast treasures from his store of knowledge in various realms of Science:—Ethnology, Philology, Biology, History, Geography and Archæology. The Rev. Pascoe Goard gave us several remarkable Biblical expositions in his own eloquent and inimitable way. The Rev. E. J. Springett enthused us with his breezy optimism from the golden Prairies of the Canadian West. The Rev. Lincoln McConnell, D.D., with his sunny nature from the Southern sunny State of Florida, regaled us with his American wit and humour; held us with his eloquence; impressed us with his legal arguments; convinced us with his logic; and delighted us with his smashing blows at destructive criticism of the Bible, and especially with his declaration that the accumulated evidence for British-Israel was such as could be acceptable in a Court of Law.

The Home speakers played well their parts and maintained their reputations. Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C., gave a particularly able speech.

The two largest audiences were attracted by the address by Mr. David Davidson, M.C., on "The Great Pyramid," and by the lantern lecture by Mr. Herbert Garrison, on "Cameos of Dominion." All the meetings were well attended, and the whole proceedings were marked by enthusiasm, harmony, cordiality, and a prevailing high spiritual tone.

Digitized by Google

It may be questioned whether any organization in London could provide a better series of twelve meetings in one week, a better and more representative platform, or larger attendances, with sustained interest throughout; and all at relatively small cost, and without musical attractions, adventitious aids, or sensationalism of any kind. Do not these facts argue that the people are ready and eager to hear the truths of the Bible when presented by teachers taught of God, who are obviously sincere and fearless, who stand by the whole Bible, who are enlightened as to the Prophecies, who emphasize the Covenants—so deplorably neglected in most quarters to-day, and who proclaim the origin, mission and destiny of our Race?

* * *

Following the precedent of 1927, the Congress was succeeded by a series of meetings in the Great Hall of the Church House, Westminster, which were well attended, and were addressed by Professor Odlum, the Rev. Pascoe Goard, and others.

* * *

Special missions were conducted in Dublin and in the largest halls of Belfast by the Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. John Leech, with excellent results, a notable feature of which was a conference with a company of the clergy, ministers and professors of Belfast, addressed by Mr. Goard, who answered their searching enquiries to their satisfaction. Mr. Garrison had been announced to give two lectures in the large Grosvenor Hall, Belfast. He was, however, prostrated by illness, and his place was kindly taken by Mr. John Leech, who was greeted by splendid audiences.

* * *

While Professor Odlum was with us, occasion was taken to hold a B.-I. meeting in the beautiful Town Hall in the University City of Oxford, and this was addressed by him and by the Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Garrison, under the chairmanship of General Sir Arthur Phayre, one result of which may prove well worth the effort and the expense. We hope to be able to say more about this at a future time.

Professor Odlum was able to accept invitations to speak in some other Provincial centres after the Congress.

* * *

The Rev. Pascoe Goard has preached in various churches by repeated invitation of the ministers, and during an extended tour in the North he addressed four special Sunday meetings in the handsome Royal Hall at Harrogate.

* * *

We unite in rejoicing at the recovery of our valued friend and Vice-President, the Rev. Arthur Pritchard, Vicar of Rowington, after an illness of long duration and a major operation, and we pray that he may long be spared to us.

* * *

We wish again to express our gratitude to all the generous donors, large and small, who have made it possible on the financial side to carry on our great work. Some we know have made sacrifices and made them willingly for a Cause dear to their hearts. To all we say: Thank you, and again Thank you. We would gladly mention names, but donors' wishes must be respected.

* * *

We thank God for the ever-increasing army of noble men and women who are witnessing and faithfully labouring for the "Kingdom" in all parts of the world, and for the devoted band of preachers, teachers, speakers, writers and workers at Headquarters and everywhere who are giving of their best for the grandest of all Causes. We know, and they know, wherein lies their reward.

* * *

The Women's Auxiliary has continued its excellent work in a number of ways and earned our gratitude, especially for superintending the daily teas at Headquarters, and for the splendid results achieved by the Annual Sale of Work, etc., securing for our funds the record amount of £272, which exceeded that of 1926 and 1927, and was fourfold that of the years previous to 1926.

* * *

Abbots Leigh, our B.-I. Hostel at Glastonbury, has been maintained. A goodly number of our members have stayed there from time to time, and they are pleased with the accommodation, and gratified by the opportunity afforded for seeing the sacred Abbey ruins and grounds, and also the interesting places within easy reach. To stand upon the actual spot where the first Christian Church building in all the world was erected by Joseph of Arimathea is a privilege indeed, and it is to be hoped that our members and supporters who can possibly visit Glastonbury will do so, and avail themselves of the facilities offered by Abbots Leigh. A happy and useful Convention was held at Glastonbury in August last.

* * *

Our work in the Overseas Dominions is making steady progress. That in the Union of South Africa by our Missioner, the Rev. Maxwell Carnson, is marked and gratifying, in view of the special difficulties owing to the race, language and flag questions. Mr. Carnson has enormous distances to cover, involving much expense and time. He has held a great number of meetings in widely scattered districts, and he has met with a cordial reception in most places, and made an encouraging number of converts to the B.-I. faith.

Canada has organized a Federation within the British-Israel-World Federation, and is forging ahead and forming a number of new Branches. Professor Odlum has devoted much of his time and talents to forwarding the Movement generally. The Rev. Pascoe Goard has addressed many meetings in the Dominion, and has greatly aided with his counsel and advice. Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria, etc., have each a company of devoted workers.

* * *

There is an unmistakable awakening in the United States of America. Our journal is being read there by great numbers. Almost every mail brings us letters of appreciation from readers in the many States, and several are urging us to send over speakers, and asking for vigorous organization to be undertaken. Mr. Howard Rand is doing what he can, but to organize America means a battalion of speakers and a mint of money.

Digitized by Google

The Bishop of the Falkland Islands, a Life-Member and Vice-President of our Federation, whose diocese extends from the Islands for 2,000 miles up the coast of South America, is spreading B.-I. Truth in those regions remote, and making efforts to establish Branches.

* * *

The Rev. Merton Smith represents the Federation in the Channel Islands. He has given a large number of addresses for the Branch at St. Helier, Jersey, and has visited Guernsey occasionally.

* * *

We have many correspondents and supporters in India, Ceylon and Malaya, and they press for speakers and organizers to be sent to help them. Those who have never travelled in distant parts cannot begin to realize what B.-I. Truth means to our people resident so far away from the Homeland, and how eager they are that it should be known to all their fellow-citizens of the Empire. We send them our cordial greetings and assure them of our sympathy in their aspirations, and only wish we had the means to do all they ask.

* * *

The Rev. Pascoe Goard and Mr. Garrison visited together some of the centres outside London, and addressed large audiences. They again addressed an audience in the handsome Town Hall, Birmingham, kindly lent by the Mayor. The organizing was undertaken as before by the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse and his splendid band of workers.

* * *

The Secretary-General wishes to put on record an expression of his appreciation and gratitude for the excellent service rendered by the members of his staff.

* * *

OBITUARY.

We record with deep regret the loss by death of the following members during the year 1928:—Major W. J. R. Hutchison;

SOME OF THE DELEGATES TO THE CANADI

Digitized by Google

Mr. Horn; Lt.-Col. H. P. P. Leigh, C.I.E.; Mrs. McKeown; Mrs. Gertrude Modin; the Hon. Blanche Curzon; Miss Short; Mrs. Holmes; Mr. Robert Derbyshire; Rev. W. Oliver Hutchinson; Mr. William Reeve; Mrs. Mitchell; Mrs. Periam Hawkins; Miss Constance Chadwick; Lady McGregor; Dr. Heywood Smith, M.A., M.D.; Mr. James Simpson; Mr. R. F. Brister; Mr. W. H. E. W. Roberts; Mrs. Marchant; Canon W. D. Springett, D.D.; Mr. James Moncrieff; Mr. D. R. Goodyear; Capt. the Rev. Conway Edward Dobbs; Mr. Ronald Ian Brodie; Mr. J. Forsyth; Rev. Ebenezer Fox; Miss Myburgh.

Major Hutchison was President of our Adelaide, South Australia, Branch.

Colonel Leigh was President of our Bath Branch, and a Vice-President of the Federation.

Mrs. Modin was an old member of the I.B.I.A., as well as of the Federation.

The Hon. Blanche Curzon was the sister of the late Marquis Curzon.

Mr. Reeve was a veteran B.-I. of Toronto, and a writer and speaker.

Dr. Heywood Smith was a Vice-President of the I.B.I.A. and of the Federation.

Mr. Jas Simpson, of Edinburgh, was a Pyramidist of repute.

Canon Springett was President of our Canterbury Branch.

Mr. Moncrieff, of Glasgow, was a stalwart B.-I. in Scottish circles.

The Rev. Ebenezer Fox, a Presbyterian minister in Queensland, had twice visited the Homeland and had addressed several meetings here.

* * *

We wish again to express our thanks to all the voluntary workers at Headquarters who have so devotedly laboured for the Cause. They have been of great service in issuing the tens of thousands of items by post, and in many other ways, under the supervision of Mr. Wakeford, the capable Superintendent of the staff of the Federation dispatching department.

AN CONVENTION AT WINNIPEG. (See page 362.)

Digitized by Google

* * *

The Rev. Commander Roberts, the Hon. Secretary of Israel's Scripture and Prayer Union, reports :—

This branch of our work is going ahead by leaps and bounds. There are at present over 4,045 members since its origination, out of which 2,000 are members since the present Hon. Secretary undertook it. The increase has been nearly 300 during the past year. Members of the Federation should know this is a means of reading the whole Counsel of God, and Prayer on behalf of both Israel and Judah, that all the Elect may be gathered in. At the present time, that the Jew may be brought to Christ by love on our part is being demonstrated in a most marked manner. This seems to be the hope of every true British-Israelite. Membership is 6d. per annum, and the Hon. Secretary's address is "Madeley, Upper Hermosa Road, Teignmouth," to whom application should be made. All surplus money is given to the distribution of literature to those anxious to know our views of Christian fellowship.

* * *

Mr. Herbert Garrison, the Secretary-General of the B.-I.-W. Federation, has had another strenuous year. He has had many problems to face and puzzling questions to answer, both verbally and by letter. The hall-porter protects him as far as possible from undesirable callers, which is found absolutely necessary, or too much of his time would be taken up to no purpose. He is always accessible to members and legitimate visitors, who receive a cordial welcome, whether from overseas or from any part of Britain or the Continent, and helpful interviews number many hundreds. He must not lay himself open to breach of confidence, but members would be surprised at the nature and variety of subjects about which he is consulted, from delicate domestic matters to those affecting B.-I. teaching, policy, theology, and all the 'ologies in the dictionary. His correspondence is world-wide. In addition to organiz[illegible]on work generally, he has attended some two hundred meetings and addressed most of them. He has also given many public lectures. The receipts for his lecture at the Congress met the greater part of the rent of the hall for the whole week.

* * *

It will be remembered that the Secretary-General undertook at the last Congress to be responsible for raising £10,000 during the year. A fairly good sum has already been donated, but very much more is required. Members and associates at this Annual Meeting assembled promise to support Mr. Garrison to the utmost of their ability, and they venture to ask all members and associates and all readers of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER to do likewise.

* * *

The question of a hall for the Federation has been before the Executive several times and a number of sites have been considered, but all have been found unsuitable except one, and this one is now available in an excellent situation. We ask all our members and supporters to pray for God's guidance in this great matter, and if it is His will that we should go courageously forward, pray that He will put it into the hearts of those who have large means to come forward and enable us to carry the great project through, and so provide a hall second only to the Royal Albert Hall in all England.

Finally, fellow-members of the Commonwealth of Israel, let us remember the call of God, "Speak to the children of Israel that they GO FORWARD." GO FORWARD—nothing doubting that He will bless us according to our faith and courage, answering our prayers and rewarding our labours with complete victory in the proclamation of the Gospel of the Kingdom to all mankind, and in winning the whole world to Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

J. KNOWLES, President.
HERBERT GARRISON, Secretary-General.

* * *

By a unanimous resolution at the Annual Meeting of members and associates of the Federation, the following was added to the above Report :—

"It would be difficult to mention all the workers in this great field of activity, but we must mention one :—Secretary-General Garrison, so ably supported and wisely advised by our devoted President, Major Knowles. Mr. Garrison has given during the past ten years, and is still giving his life to the prosecution of his great task.

"He knows neither home, nor recreation, nor other task outside of the work of the Federation. In this he is devotedly supported and encouraged by his wife, and together they are building better than they can possibly know."

FIRST DOMINION CONVENTION.

THE first Convention of the British-Israel Federation of Canada was held in Trinity Hall, Winnipeg, Man., on May 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Delegates were present from British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario, Quebec being represented by proxy. The Committee in Winnipeg, under the chairmanship of Rev. E. J. Springett, handled the Convention in an able manner, and the visitors will long remember the hospitality extended to them.

Business meetings were held mornings and afternoons, and splendid reports were received from all parts of Canada, showing the progress which the British-Israel teaching has been making. A revised constitution was passed which provides for a complete organization for the whole of the Dominion, and it is felt by all that a real forward step has been taken.

Public meetings were held each evening and a marked interest was shown by the public in this teaching, a crowded hall greeting the speakers at each meeting. Splendid addresses were delivered by Prof. E. Odlum, Rev. E. J. Springett, Mr. W. H. Blackaller, Rev. H. A. Edwards, and Mr. A. A. Robeson. The Rev. Wm. Pascoe Goard, owing to illness, could not appear until the last meeting, but was able them to speak briefly.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were : President, W. H. Blackaller, Victoria, B.C.; Vice-Presidents, S. J. Frame, Toronto, Ont.; Rev. E. J. Springett, Winnipeg, Man.; Secretary, A. A. Robeson, Toronto, Ont.; Financial Secretary, David Duncan, Toronto, Ont.; Treasurer, S. J. Crealock, Toronto, Ont.; Directors, Rev. Geo. Speedie, Toronto, Ont., W. M. Leigh, Regina, Sask., Rev. H. A. Edwards, Jasper, Alta., E. E. Richards, Victoria, B.C.; Honorary Presidents, Major J. Knowles, Herbert Garrison, Rev. Wm. Pascoe Goard, Prof. E. Odlum.

Digitized by Google

The next Convention is to be held again in Winnipeg in June, 1930, and, judging by the enthusiasm shown by all, Canada will feel the effects of the teaching of the Gospel of the Kingdom in the next twelve months. All believers in this teaching and those interested should communicate with the General Secretary, 11, Firstbrook Road, Toronto, Ont.

A. A. ROBESON, Secretary.

REPRINTS WORTH READING.

UNDER this heading we propose to give a series of articles and extracts from the literature of the British-Israel Movement, with the special object of reinforcing the teaching of the present day with the wisdom, scholarship and research of the past.

It is a common objection of some of our opponents that British-Israel teaching is based upon "a literal reading of the English translation of the Bible," as though no British-Israelite had ever been able to read a Greek Testament or a Hebrew Bible! Nothing could be further from the truth.

Among many competent Hebraists in the British-Israel Movement was Marcus S. Bergmann, who went to his reward in January, 1923, in his seventy-sixth year.

THE STORY OF MARCUS S. BERGMANN.

Marcus S. Bergmann was born in Silesia in 1846, brought up under the iron rule of a devout Jewish household, but chafing to be free. At the age of twenty he left his Fatherland; arriving in London in 1866, he established a small synagogue.

After his conversion to Christianity, he would tell his friends how from Daniel ix he was led to see that the Messiah would have nothing from his own (be cut off), and, from Isaiah liii, the description of his humility. To his British-Israelite friends he told how, as a tutor in a nobleman's family, in teaching Hebrew, his scholar called his attention to the phonetic reading of Isaiah xlii, 6, and xlix, 8, saying, "Then Christ is given to Britain."

In relating this incident to Rev. Commander Roberts, Mr. Bergmann said words to this effect:—"I was so confounded and surprised that I fell on my knees and asked Jehovah if it was true that the Messiah had forsaken His nation, Judah, and given Himself to a Gentile nation, Britain. The veil fell from my eyes; the only answer that presented itself to my mind was that Britain must be Israel."

Commander Roberts says:—"How this dear servant of God worked for the conversion of his brethren of Judah, from 1870, when he became a Missionary to the Jews, and for the reception of the Truth by the House of Israel (Britain) from our platforms and in many public places, we who have lived in close touch with him alone can vouch.

"In 1898 Bergmann had translated the whole Bible into Yiddish, and to-day it is being circulated broadcast among his brethren."—(From THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, January 20th, 1923.)

It was to this very competent Hebraist that Commander Roberts submitted the following article from "The Covenant People," 1912, pages 324–327, to which we append Mr. Bergmann's comment:—

THE WORD BRITAIN (BRITH-AM) IN THE BIBLE.

It has been so often asserted that this word occurs phonetically in Isaiah xlii, 6, and also xlix, 8, and it has nowhere, that we know of, been stated why we should apply it to ourselves, that we think the time has arrived for putting before our readers the independent witnesses upon whom we may be said to rely, and considering that they cannot be accused of knowing our British-Israel contention, they stand before us with the greater acceptance.

Before quoting our authority we must call the reader's attention to the people addressed. This is clearly stated to be Israel in xliii, 1, who are called upon to look to their Messiah, and retracing our steps to xli, 1–8, we see it is Israel located in the Islands, "the seed of Abraham my friend." These are to "sing a new song and His praise from the end of the earth, ye that go down to the sea and all that is therein, the isles and the inhabitants thereof." They are "to give glory to the Lord and declare His praise in the Islands." It is precisely the same in Isaiah xlix, 1–12, where the location of Israel in the islands to the north and west of Palestine is stated.

The work we are about to quote from is The Later Prophecies of Isaiah, by Joseph Addison Alexander, Professor in the Theological Seminary, Princeton, New Jersey, 1847.

My first note is on chapter xl, verse 9: "Zion or Jerusalem is represented as the bearer of good tidings to the towns of Judah." This is according to the explanation "in the Peshito and the three Greek versions of Aquila, Symmachus, and Theodotion" (page 9).

Chapter xlii: "This chapter exhibits to our view the Servant of Jehovah, i.e., the Messiah and His people, as a complex person, and as the messenger or representative of God among the nations."

Verse 6: "Hitzig understands by בריתעם a covenant people (Bundesvolk), Ewald a mediatorial people (Mittelsvolk), both denoting a people called or sent to act as a mediator or a bond of union between God and the Nations. But this, although it yields a good sense, is a German and English rather than a Hebrew construction, the instances in which a prefixed noun qualifies the other being very rare and dubious."

The close connection between בדית and עם with no article between, as also between אור and גוים and the preposition ל, to say nothing of the verb אתנך being common to both, would seem to indicate that the meaning of the prophet is "I will give THEE (i.e., Christ) TO the covenant people, TO the light of the Gentiles," thus reading as if Brith-am and Or-goim were composite words.

But what are we to consider of the word עם people? The great majority of writers make it to mean the chosen people. The word covenant may therefore well come in in the place of chosen, and thus בריתעם covenant people.

Digitized by Google

The word light אור stands in the same relation also to Gentiles or Nations גוים, no article coming between.

Thus looking at the passage we may also apply it as Christ given TO Israel, and thus illuminating the Gentiles or through Israel given TO the Gentiles as a light.

"A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel."

"The meaning put upon בויתעם by Hitzig and Ewald, although not philologically accurate, is perfectly consistent with the teachings of the Old Testament respecting the mission and vocation of Israel, the ancient church, as a covenant race or middle-people between God and the apostate nations.

In Isaiah xliv, 7: עמעולם. Of this phrase there are three interpretations. The first is that of the rabbins, who explain it to mean ancient people; this is retained in the English and some other versions.

The second makes it mean eternal people, but refers it simply to the Divine purpose or decree of election.

The third gives it the sense of the everlasting people—i.e., a people who shall last for ever. In all these senses the description is appropriate to Israel, not simply as a Nation but as a Church, the existence and prerogatives of which are still continued in the body of Christ."

Our author does not know of the distinction, clearly drawn, between Israel and Judah, much less does he hint at Zion and Jerusalem being in Britain, or that Brith-am has to do with our Islands. These truths are left to us in these days to bring out. But it is satisfactory that in these passages and many others, as in Isaiah li, he does not take away from Israel's glory and give her blessings to a heathen church.

I have asked our friend the Rev. M. S. Bergmann, himself a noble example of a Jew who has found our Messiah to be his Redeemer, also to add a few words in corroboration of these statements.

L. G. A. ROBERTS.

Ardley Rectory, Bicester.

DEAR COMMANDER ROBERTS,—I am sorry that owing to my having been away from home there has been some delay in acknowledging yours before this.

What you have written on the subject is so lucid that it requires very little addition from me. I have written just a few lines, and would very much like to have gone on, but with the great and important work in my hands feel I dare not attempt more.

We have indeed cause to be encouraged as the subject is now more and more brought prominently before the people and the ministers and clergy of the various sections of the Christian Church. At least I find it so wherever I go.

With hearty greetings,

Yours faithfully in one blessed hope,

MARCUS S. BERGMANN.

We do not find in the whole range of Scripture of either Old or New Testament that our Covenant God ever made a covenant with any individual or people after the call of Abraham except with Abraham and his seed. God even particularized the line of seed through which this covenant should be perpetuated—viz., "In Isaac shall thy seed be called."

We are therefore right in stating that no other people are called or can be designated the "covenant people" בויתעם or עמחבויית but Israel alone. Of course this includes our brethren of the House of Judah too.

In all their festival prayers our brethren of the House of Judah have this remarkable sentence in their liturgy:

"Thou hast chosen us from all peoples; thou hast loved us and taken pleasure in us above all tongues; and hast sanctified us by Thy commandments, and brought us near unto Thy service, O our King, and hast called us by Thy great and holy name."

Israel, as the בויתעם covenant people was forbidden even to make a covenant with any outside or heathen nation, in order to keep them ever a separate people.

According to Ezekiel xliv, 7, Israel was rebuked by the Lord for breaking His covenant in that they brought into the sanctuary both the uncircumcised in heart and flesh. On the other hand, this did not exclude anyone that joined Israel, as in the case of proselytes, and the eunuchs (see Isaiah lvi, 3–8).

M. S. BERGMANN.

A PRAYER.

O GOD OUR FATHER, HELP US TO a deeper trust in the life everlasting. May we feel that this love which is now, ever shall be; this robe of the flesh is Thy gift to Thy child, and, when it is worn out, Thou wilt clothe him again; this work of life is the work Thou hast given us to do, and, when it is done, Thou wilt give us more; this love, that makes all our life so glad, flows from Thee, for Thou art Love, and we shall love for ever. Help us to feel how, day by day, we see some dim shadow of the eternal day that will break upon us at the last. May the Gospel of Thy Son, the whisper of Thy Spirit, unite to make our faith in the life to come strong and clear; then shall we be glad when Thou shalt call us, and enter into Thy glory in Jesus Christ.—Amen.

ROBERT COLLYER.

REVIEW.

"THE WHOLE TITHE."

BY P. W. THOMPSON, M.A.

Messrs. Marshall, Morgan and Scott, Ltd., are to be congratulated upon the publication of a revised and enlarged edition of Mr. P. W. Thompson's able book, "The Whole Tithe." Nothing better has been written upon this very important subject. A copy of this work ought to be placed in the hands of every clergyman and minister in the country, and through them should come under the notice of every church. The adoption of the principle so ably expounded in Mr. Thompson's very best style would make all the difference in the world.

In fact, the adoption of the principle of the tithe by all those who support voluntary institutions would provide, with less effort than now, all the money needful for carrying on their great and essential work.

The book is divided into two parts: Historical and Practical. In the first part Mr. Thompson traces the history of the tithe in Israel and shows how it plays a most important part in the constitution of that God-created nation. It is the system whereby the leaders of Israel provide for her national well-being. An important quotation from a Jewish Rabbi shows how Israel made the tithe not a legal duty, but a religious one. "The most praiseworthy manner in which we may acquit ourselves of this religious duty is to dispense one-fifth of our substance. Not less should be paid than a tithe."

Digitized by Google

"One-fifth of their substance," writes Mr. Thompson, "exactly tallies with the four shillings in the pound which we submit as the grand total of tithes, offerings and freewill offerings, and the coincidence is curious. We take it as proved that the whole tithe was two shillings in the pound, and the tithes and offerings three shillings and fourpence, and take it as probable that the tithes, offerings and freewill offerings amounted to twice the whole tithe—four shillings in the pound of the tithe-payer's income. It would appear that out of five-sixths of a man's income which is his own, such freewill offerings should be made as will bring his total offerings to the Sacred Treasury to one-fifth of his total income, if he desires completely to fulfil the will of God."

The second part is a practical application of the principle of the tithe set out in the first part. That application is simply irresistible. One has only to exercise a little imagination to realize all that might be attained by a genuine application of this truly Divine system. We of the British-Israel school of thought are always insisting that Israel-Britain should return to the Israel Constitution with all its implications and applications, and we confidently affirm that by so doing the British race would enter into a period of prosperity unparalleled in the whole of her eventful history. This book therefore ought to be welcomed by all British-Israelites as a most valuable contribution to our literature. J. G.

THE LATE DR. MEYER'S LAST UTTERANCES ON THE SUNDAY QUESTION.

In a letter to Mr. Woodford Causer on the "Statement of Principles" made public at the Guildhall Meeting on April 12th, Dr. Meyer said :—

> "I warmly congratulate you on the finely-poised, well-thought-out and statesmanlike balance so conspicuous in the Statement. Nothing seems omitted. The judicial balance and the Christian urgency mingle beautifully. Surely it must carry the judgment of all thoughtful people, even if they do not adopt the Christian standpoint. How deeply you lay us all in debt. God help you to see the realization of your hopes."

A new booklet by Dr. Meyer on the Scriptural references to the Sabbath and the Lord's Day is about to be issued by the Imperial Alliance for the Defence of Sunday.

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

ITALIAN EASTERN POLICY.

ITALIAN papers and reviews are very interesting reading at the present time. The recent visit of the King and Queen of Italy to the Island of Rhodes and other islands of the Dodecanese is regarded by the Italian Press as an event of political significance.

The Corriere Della Sera of May 21st, in a leading article written from Rome, says, "With the visit of the King, the diplomatic period of our policy in the Levantine Sea is irrevocably closed, but a new period opens, that of the vaster political function of the Italian Islands of the Ægean in the aspect of our Eastern policy. This in the near future will be enormously interesting."

On the same subject the Rome Correspondent of The Times of May 21st says :

"The political significance of the visit is held to be obvious, and after the refusal of M. Venizelos to treat the question of the Dodecanese as being any longer a question of practical politics, it is assumed that the world in general must now recognize that these islands have passed irrevocably under the sway of Italy."

Now the passing of Rhodes and the small Dodecanese Islands into the hands of Italy would be a matter for congratulation if the result should be the further development of peaceful commerce and of international friendship. As to this, however, let the Italian Reviews themselves speak.

The Review of Reviews (edited by Mr. Wickham Steed) in its May number quotes four of these. It may be useful to remind our readers that Mr. Wickham Steed, before becoming proprietor and Editor of the Review of Reviews in 1923, was successively Acting Correspondent of The Times at Berlin, 1896, Correspondent of The Times at Rome, 1897–1902, at Vienna, 1902–13, Foreign Editor of The Times, 1914–19, Editor of The Times, February, 1919 to November, 1922.

Brief Extracts from the "Review of Reviews."

A new monthly review has made its appearance in Rome. Its title, Anti-Europe, clearly defines its programme. . . . It is stated in an editorial article that the centre of Latinity is Rome, not Paris. . . . . Europe will save herself only if enlightened by the "Roman spirit." . . . .

Augustea says : "The Western Mediterranean is controlled solely by England, France and Spain, and therefore requires a reorganization, but Italy is particularly concerned with the Eastern Mediterranean, which is now in a state of unstable 'equilibrium willed by England for the benefit of her maritime imperialism, destined to further a material interest, not civilization.' It is in the Eastern Mediterranean that Italy must act."

The Rassegna Italiana says that Fascist Italy has "the most profound contempt for that hypocritical and false commonplace expression, 'friendship among nations,' which never existed, does not exist now, and will never exist in future."

A contributor to Critica Fascista returns to the much-discussed university problem :

"All professors must be Fascist. . . . Science, too, must be at the service of the Fascist Nation."

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

MR. AND MRS. GARRISON sailed on Saturday last from Southampton per s.s. Empress of Australia for Canada. They are due at Quebec to-day, and after spending a few hours in that city, they will go on to Montreal, where Mr. Garrison may be speaking on June 10th, then to Toronto for two meetings on June 12th and 13th. From there they are to visit some centres in Ontario, then on Westward calling at various points en route for Vancouver. This speaking tour in Canada and U.S.A. has been arranged by the Council of the Federation in response to repeated calls from both countries, and by the Rev. Pascoe Goard's special desire. We feel sure that our friends will pray that much good may be done.

* * *

A telegram from Mr. Goard reports that both he and Mrs. Goard have been ill. We ask that our readers will pray most earnestly for their complete and speedy recovery.

* * *

The Secretary-General asks that all those who are kindly sending donations during his absence in Canada, etc., will address them:—Private Secretary, B.-I.-W.F., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1, who will acknowledge same and forward receipts signed by the Financial Secretary. Cheques and Postal Orders should be crossed as indicated on the page overleaf.

* * *

Mr. John Leech, K.C., gave another address at H.Q. on Wednesday, May 29th. On May 30th a Prayer meeting was held at H.Q. interceding for Divine guidance in relation to the General Election, for which also the Dover Branch has held weekly meetings for some time past.

* * *

CORRECTION.—In the issue of June 1st, page 337, column 1, lines 15 to 17, should read: Thereafter the Jews shall no more be His people until they come to Christ as their Saviour. Daniel says, in chapter ix, verse 26, "The people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood." This was fulfilled in the year A.D. 70.

* * *

LONDON OPEN-AIR CAMPAIGN.

The Rev. J. Gay, A.T.S., writes:—We shall all be agreed that it is of the utmost importance that we should reach the proverbial man-in-the-street with our great Message. It is our experience that he is ready to receive that Message and give to it that careful consideration which it deserves and demands at his hands. But it is as clear as daylight that if you must take your Message to the man-in-the-street, then you must go where you can take it to him. We have no right to expect him to come to us. He has every right to expect us to go to him if we have that to offer him which it is worth his while to consider. I have been invited once more to undertake an open-air campaign in London and district. May I appeal to the readers of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, in and around London, to give me their practical support? We start off with a B.-I. demonstration in Hyde Park on Sunday afternoon, June 16th, at 3.30. This is the day set apart for a national thanksgiving to Almighty God for the recovery of our most noble King George.* I venture to think there is no section of the Christian public which can render that thanksgiving with more knowledge and sincerity than we. Will all our London readers, or any of our provincial readers who happen to be in London on that day, assemble in Hyde Park, Marble Arch end, as near to 3 o'clock as possible? The meeting will commence at 3.30. We hope to present a good platform for the occasion. Then on the subsequent Sunday afternoons and evenings we shall hold meetings in the various parks in and around London.

June 16th.—Hyde Park. 3.30.

June 23rd.—Finsbury Park, N. 3.30 and 6.30.

June 30th.—Victoria Park, Mile End, E. 3.30 and 6.30.

The July meeting-places will be announced later. We are making a strong and most earnest appeal to all the Branches in our two London areas to organize open-air meetings in their districts during the week-days, and we have promised to speak at all these meetings if possible or to supply competent speakers. I would urge upon all B.-I. believers living in the districts where such meetings are being held to attend them and thus give a strong support to our workers. If the Branch Secretaries will send in to me an announcement of their meetings I will see that such announcements are published in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE.

We pray that God's richest blessing will rest upon our efforts. It is not for us to command success; we will do one better, we will deserve it.

* * *

The Southport Branch greatly enjoyed a very interesting and instructive lecture given by Rev. Guy Waddington on May 24th on "Palestine and the Near East," illustrated with photographic views taken by the lecturer.

* * *

Mr. J. J. Morey gave two lectures in the Assembly Rooms, Bath, on Monday, May 27th. Subjects: "British-Israel: A Full Gospel," and "Some Things British-Israelites Want to Know." There were very good audiences and the meetings were in every way successful.

* * *

SOME OF THE EXTRAORDINARY CONCLUSIONS AND CONTRADICTIONS OF THE OPPONENTS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL.

That although it is a self-evident axiom in modern philology that "language is not a test of race, but only of social contact," yet the speaking of a so-called Aryan language implies the existence in pre-historic times of an Aryan race, of which we have no positive records at all; and further, that the adoption of the language of this purely hypothetical race proves a racial origin from it! Such is the logic of richly-endowed university professors.

* At the time of going to press, we regret to learn that the National Thanksgiving Service has been postponed.

Digitized by Google

That the monotheistic British and Anglo-Saxon peoples, whose ancestors and themselves, as Herodotus and Tacitus, and all their history and customs, prove, kept themselves jealously apart from all other nations in a racial and religious sense, and who were mostly immigrant from Western Asia, after the eighth century B.C., with their peculiar ancestral Laws and political Constitution, and their vastly superior morality, which, as Charles Kingsley says, they "brought over with them and are carrying round the world," hand in hand with modern civilization and Protestant Christianity, and to whose hands Providence has manifestly committed the future of the world, sprang from a race of savages, like the Maories or the Zulus, the Red Indians or wild bushmen! Here is a choice specimen of philosophical history and ethnology.

* * *

That although Christ was exalted "to give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins" (Acts v, 31), and to "restore the kingdom to Israel" (Acts i, 6), "performing the promises made unto the fathers" (Romans xv, 8), and although the present dispensation has well nigh run its course, and is nearing its close, none of these its chief ends have been accomplished, or are at all likely to be, and Christianity, so gloriously announced at its inauguration as a means for the national revival of Israel, stands out to-day, according to the teachings of its most learned preachers and theologians, at the sunset of the age, a conspicuous and a hopeless failure!

* * *

That whereas Christ plainly assigns "the Kingdom of God" to a "Nation," as its special endowment (Matt. xxi, 43); which "Nation" all the prophets, with one voice, prove to be Christ-revived Israel; or to "THE Nations" of the promise and of the Apostolic Commission of Matt. xxviii, 19, to be called by Baptism into Israel's New Covenant; and whereas St. Peter, with equal distinction and emphasis on the day of Pentecost, assigns the Pentecostal gift of the Holy Ghost to the literal "House of Israel" (Acts ii, 36 and 39); and whereas St. Paul teaches that his mission was to "raise up" Gentilised Israel in Acts xxvi, 6-8; and unequivocally affirms the necessary and eternal Israelism of the Church of God—God's Old and One "Olive Tree"—in Romans xi; and whereas this doctrine is consistently and uniformly maintained throughout the Epistles, as in 1 Peter i, 1, and ii, 9, the Church here being "Scattered" Israel's "Elect Race and holy Nation"; and in St. James where, in like manner, "the twelve tribes" are shown to be the "first fruits" of Christianity (chap. i); down to St. John's crowning vision of New Jerusalem belonging to and inhabited by "the twelve tribes" (Rev. xxi, 12); yet, in spite of all this overwhelming evidence of the New Testament as to the primary exclusive Nationalism of the Christian Church in the literal seed of Israel; yet that Church, after all, consists of a medley of Latin and nondescript nationalities, arrogating to itself the contradictory and presumptuous title of "the Catholic Church," and fashioning itself on the model of a corrupt Roman Imperialism!

* * *

That the prophecies of Ephraim and Judah becoming great and strong military nations "invading Palestine on the West, and spoiling the children of the East," as Isaiah xi, 12-14, states; or of becoming "an exceeding great army," as Ezekiel xxxvii, 10, shows; or of being God's "battle-axe and weapons of war," as Jeremiah li, 20, has it, "breaking in pieces nations and destroying kingdoms"; or according to Micah v, 8, being "as a Lion and a young lion among the flocks of sheep, treading down and tearing in pieces, so that none can deliver"; or of Judah becoming as God's "goodly horse in the battle," with "Ephraim filling his bow," according to Zechariah; —that these and many other such like promises are to be fulfilled in the Millennium; although, mark, as is plain, and as these same choice expositors also teach, that there is to be no war in the Millennium!

* * *

That in the words of the late Lord Carnarvon, "the British Empire is the last Empire, the only one conceivable, having practically filled the earth, and left no room for another." But that Israel of the Bible must, by the "sure word of prophecy" everywhere, be the last Empire.

And, therefore, since Britain is not Israel, either these prophecies are false, or there are two last World-Empires, or that two bodies can fill the same space at the same time!

* * *

In conclusion, the above Reductio ad absurdum of existing Biblical and Historical interpretations is not presented in any spirit of controversy, but with heartfelt and ceaseless prayer to God that it may open the eyes of our long blinded leaders and people, and fulfil Isaiah xxix, 18, 19:—

> "And in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity, and out of darkness. The meek also shall increase their joy in the Lord, and the poor among men shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel."

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, East Street, Friday, 14th, at 8.
BATTERSEA, 195, Lavender Hill, Tuesday, 11th, at 8. Mr. H. A. Marchant.
BELFAST, Clarence Place Hall, Monday, 10th, at 8. Mr. T. J. P. McKeown.
BELFAST (WEST), Tennant Street Unionist Hall, Thursday, 13th, at 8.
CARDIFF, Central Y.M.C.A., Tuesday, 11th, at 7.30.
CROYDON, Y.M.C.A., Horniman Hall, North End, W. Croydon, Friday, 14th, at 3 and 8. Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C.
EASTBOURNE, Saffrons Rooms, Wednesday, 12th, at 3 and 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
HARROGATE, Imperial Restaurant, Parliament Street, Tuesday, 11th, at 8. Mr. G. R. Gair.
HARROW, Gayton Rooms, Station Road, Friday, 14th, at 8. Bible Study Circle, Miss B. M. Beck.
HERNE BAY, Monday, 10th, Wesleyan School Room, High Street, at 3, and the Parochial Institute, Underdown Road, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
HIGHGATE, 223, Archway Road, Wednesday, 12th, at 8. Mr. M. K. Simington.
ILKLEY, Grove School, Wednesday, 12th, at 8. Mr. G. R. Gair.
MANCHESTER, Houldsworth Hall, Tuesday, 11th, at 7.45. Miss Kirby.
REIGATE, Wesley School Room, Thursday, 13th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
SHEFFIELD, Grimsthorpe Wesleyan Reform Church, Upwell Street, Sunday, 9th, at 10.30 and 6.15; and on Monday, 10th, at 7.30. Mr. Wm. Whitton.
SHEFFIELD, Committee Room, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 12th, at 7.30.
STOCKPORT, The Vestry, U.M. Church, Wellington Road South, Thursday, 13th, at 7.45. Mr. G. R. Gair.
SURBITON, Masonic Hall, Friday, 14th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
SYDENHAM, 4, College Mansions, Sydenham Park Road, Monday, 10th, at 3.30. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
WORTHING, Book Depot, 71, Rowland's Road, Wednesday, 12th, at 5.15. Mrs. C. H. Prichard.

Digitized by Google

BRITISH-ISRAEL-WORLD FEDERATION.

6, Buckingham Gate,
London, S.W.1.
June 1st, 1929.

TO OUR READERS EVERYWHERE.

Dear Friends,

We earnestly appeal to you for help in carrying on the great work of proclaiming the GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

As you will see by reference to page 725 of our issue of November 17th last, I have personally undertaken to raise the £10,000 required for the current Congress year, that is from October 1st, 1928. In response to my appeal at the Congress meeting on October 3rd many noble gifts and promises were made by those present. Now, scores of thousands of our readers and supporters were for geographical and other reasons unable to attend any of the Congress meetings. You are now enjoying the reading of the addresses there delivered as now appearing in these columns, many of you have by letter told us this, making mention of the joy and stimulus they have been to you. May I appeal to you especially to come generously to our aid? We need assistance from every one of you. Every donation, large or small, will be very gratefully welcomed, and you know the proverb :—

"HE GIVES TWICE WHO GIVES QUICKLY."

You will realise, I think, that I have taken upon myself a very great responsibility in guaranteeing to raise the amount above named. Frankly, I can only succeed through your help. I could only make the promise in the name and strength of the LORD, and in the confidence that you as His instruments would stand by me. The vast majority of you are, alas! unknown to me personally, and I can only address you through these columns.

I have given my life wholly to this glorious work, and my one desire is to promote it to the glory of God. I have no other ambition. I am here in my arduous Post to serve God and to help you. Will you help me?

While the great majority of our workers are VOLUNTARY and unpaid, a considerable number of responsible officers of the Federation have no means beyond what we can pay them, and we cannot do without them. Our whole work is carried forward on a rigid and prominent business men of the city have declared that they know of no organisation better managed, nor one which has accomplished so much with such moderate means.

ECONOMICAL BASIS

Our Council and Executive is composed of over forty experienced and representative men and women.

Our Treasurers are retired Bank Managers.

Our Financial Secretary is highly trained and meticulously careful.

Our Auditors are one of the best known firms in the world.

No organisation is doing such a work as we are doing to-day, nor ever has done.

We need your help and every ounce of it that you can give.

We MUST keep our FORWARD MOVEMENT going at full strength.

THE NATION NEEDS THE B.-I. MESSAGE MORE THAN EVER.

Donations can be sent anonymously if preferred.

Please cross Cheques or Postal Orders "B.I.W.F., Midland Bank."

Believe me,
Dear Friends,
Gratefully and sincerely yours,

HERBERT GARRISON.
Secretary-General.

Digitized by Google

JUNE 15, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN 22 17

HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24 7

G^t BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1^Ch CHRON c.29 v.23 JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN.... EGYPT" Is 19 v.19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11.

J.J.HALL 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms.—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962 Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

A NEW AND IMPORTANT PUBLICATION

Early orders for this book tend to show that it will be one of our Best Sellers

ORDER YOUR COPY TO-DAY

SEVEN TIMES

By MAJOR H. W. WADGE, M.C., B.A., M.D.

7 TIMES IN
CHRONOLOGY
PYRAMID SYMBOLISM
HEBREW PROPHECY
THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL
THE HOUSE OF JUDAH

THE prophecy of the Seven Times applies to all the Children of Israel, and so it must apply to the people or Houses of both kingdoms. But it seems clear that the term "Times of the Gentiles" applies more particularly to the period of the oppression of Judah from the era of the subjugation of Jerusalem to the era of its deliverance. In the case of the Jews, we have a people who have never lost their identity, consequently it is comparatively easy to show how prophecy has been fulfilled in their case. But in the case of the Ten Tribes, we find that their identity was lost. They can be identified now by many signs in the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic race. It is not our purpose to mention these signs in detail, but rather to make a brief survey of certain periods of the history of Great Britain, the British Empire, and the United States, to show that the prophecy of the Seven Times has been fulfilled in their history as well as in the history of the Jews.

Crown 8vo. Cloth, xiv + 138 pages. Price 3/6, by post 3/10

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 389. Vol. VIII. JUNE 15th, 1929 Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XVI. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	369
COMMISSIONERS' REPORTS FOR 1928 :—
John Leech (Commissioner-General)	371
John J. Morey (Area No. 1.—Southern Counties)	372
The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson (North London Area)	373
The Rev. Joseph Gay (North London Area)	373
The Rev. Guy F. Waddington (North-Eastern Area)	373
Samuel E. Steele (North-Western Area)	373
The Rev. T. H. Whitehouse (Midlands Area)	374
Wm. Whitton (Sheffield District)	374
COMMISSIONERS' REPORTS FOR 1928 (continued) :—
The Rev. Joseph Gay (South Wales)	375
Miss E. Hamilton Hunter	375
The Rev. Merton Smith (Channel Islands)	375
THE BRITISH-ISRAEL-WORLD FEDERATION ANNUAL MEETINGS	375
THE BRITISH SAILORS' SOCIETY (Illustrated). By J. G.	379
OBITUARY. The late Mr. John Sanderson (with Portrait)	380
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.	380
B.-I.-W.F. QUEENSLAND BRANCH	381
A PRAYER	381
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	382

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XVI.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

DOCUMENT—Chapter xi. Scope—From Michael's activity in the time of Cyrus to Michael's activity at the end of the 2,300 years.

"And now I will shew thee the truth."

In approaching the study of chapter xi it is necessary that we should have clearly in mind the Person Who makes this direct statement.

In the last issue we considered His appearance and read the description of His person as given in the tenth chapter. It might be well for us to keep this description before us as we proceed with this study.

It is the same Person, gloriously majestic, Who appeared to Abraham, as recorded in the eighteenth chapter of Genesis; Who appeared to Joshua before the walls of Jericho, when Israel passed out of the wilderness, and crossed the Jordan into the Promised Land in the face of their enemies. The description of His appearance to Joshua is contained in the fifth chapter of Joshua, verses 13-15. Zechariah records His appearance as Jehovah of Hosts, pleading with Jehovah for the holy city, and receiving from Jehovah an answer of "comfortable words" and "kind words." It is He Who later "took on Him the seed of Abraham," and was born in Bethlehem. It is He Who restated the theme of national and international history and administration, categorically ratifying every jot and tittle of the law and the prophets in the Sermon on the Mount, Who richly illustrated the Kingdom in His Kingdom parables, and Who gave a forecast of history in the great prophetic chapters, 24th and 25th of St. Matthew; and so on.

It is He Who "visited and redeemed His people Israel."

His description is given more fully in the first chapter of Revelation, and again in the tenth chapter of Revelation (the angel clothed with a cloud). This is the Person Who now appeared to Daniel and said to him, "Behold, I will shew thee the truth." Note the expression which went immediately before, "Behold, I will shew thee what is noted in the Scriptures of truth." So the Lord causes Daniel to know the truth and to know that the truth is written in the Scriptures. It is well for the student of truth to realize that the Lord points to the "Word of God written." This is the safeguard which preserves our minds from taking presumption for fact, and imagination for truth.

At first it seems strange that, in showing Daniel the truth, the Lord should show him what history makes plain to be a somewhat sordid international struggle, stretching over ages of time.

The object of making this clear is for the guidance of God's people; that they might not be overwhelmed by the continuation of wars and all the evils that accompany them; nor hold God responsible for such wars and evils. We should realize that such wars spring from the jealousies, ambitions and madness of unregenerate man. Also that during such period the jealousies and madness would be turned against God's people, and they would be involved desperately in self-defence; and, what is more important, in the defence of the precious things of the Kingdom—material, moral and spiritual. Also they are forewarned as to the course of the struggle, and the period which God would put to it.

Digitized by Google

They are instructed by the tying-up of the narrative to the period of Israel's punishment that the tap root of all these struggles is the apostasy and rebellion of Israel and Judah ; and that when that apostasy and rebellion cease, such wars and struggles would come to an end in the earth.

Is it not time we should learn this lesson ?

In this statement, which was made in the time of Cyrus, we are told " there shall arise yet three kings in Persia, and the fourth shall stir up all against the realm of Grecia."

Professor R. D. Wilson, in his studies of the Book of Daniel, gives the names of these kings as follows :—Cambyses, the Pseudo-Smerdis, and Darius Hystaspis. The fourth king would be either Darius Hystaspis (see " Studies in Daniel," p. 164) or his son and successor, Xerxes.

Let us take particular note of the following statement :—

> " And a mighty king shall stand up, that shall rule with great dominion, and do according to his will.
>
> And when he shall stand up, his kingdom shall be broken, and shall be divided toward the four winds of heaven ; and not to his posterity, nor according to his dominion which he ruled : for his kingdom shall be plucked up, even for others beside those." (Daniel xi, 3-4.)

The Lord thus presents to us the ancient Empire of Greece, broken into four, at the time of the death of Alexander the Great, and indicates that they were divided towards the four winds of heaven.

Thus we have given to us the orientation of the kingdoms. Here they are :—

North

West East

South

Now in verses 5 and 6 he brings to our notice the two kingdoms which should carry on a continual contest right through the remainder of the Grecian period, and right through the Roman period to the end of the great seven times of prophecy.

It will be seen that the East and the West are disregarded, for while tremendous activities would go on, both in the East and in the West, they do not bear upon the subject of the revelation which the Lord is about to make in this particular chapter. Therefore we put our pen across the lines to the East and West as above, leaving only the $\frac{N}{S}$ North and South in the present narrative.

The activities of the East would be such as to bring it into collapse, and under the power of the West, before the end of the seven times, the East having made no permanent mark upon the pages of world history. The activities of the West, as far as they refer to Israel, are elsewhere told in the sacred Scriptures, and flow in across the narrative of chapter xi, when the saints of the Most High come in to take the kingdom at the end.

In the meantime we are to follow step by step the struggle between the king of the South and the king of the North. These are, and continue to be to the end, contestants within the Babylonian system.

We find the beginning of this struggle in the days of the division of Alexander's Empire, but the narrative begins earlier, in the time of Cyrus.

As we follow, we come to another time indication as follows :

" And at the time appointed."

This we take to mark that halfway period in the great seven times of prophecy which saw the collapse of the Cæsars, and of their administration, and which also saw the rise of the two little horns of the seventh and eighth chapters of Daniel ; the former representing the Papal Power in Europe, and the other the Mohammedan Power in Asia.

We do not follow the intermediate details of this chapter, for the outlines given in Daniel covering the latter 1,260 years are much more fully presented in the Book of Revelation. This 1,260 period is identical with the time, times and half a time, of prophecy, and we conceive the chain of historic events to be furnished in order to identify the king of the South and the king of the North " at the time of the end."

We now come to the time indication as follows :—

" AND AT THE TIME OF THE END."

There can be no question as to where this has landed us chronologically, namely, at the end of the great seven times of prophecy.

Now we come to what appears to be the main reason for the giving of this revelation. " At the time of the end " shall be the greatest of all conflicts, which we are apt to call " the great tribulation." What is the warning of Our Lord in the chapter before us ? Strangely enough, the conflict is still between the king of the North and the king of the South.

All the way down through the seven prophetic times the Lord has carried the compass for us, in order that we might not steer blindly across the seas of time. True as the needle to the magnetic pole, the indication is that the final struggle will be between the king of the North and the king of the South. The struggle is still between the ancient contestants within the Empire, the kingdom of the Beast.

Ethnologically, we must look for the forces of the North and of the South within the Babylon succession, taking the breaking of Alexander's kingdom into four as the pointer by which Our Lord causes us to understand.

Now this excluded the Israel nations from being primarily involved in the tremendous struggle.

We are warned, however, that the contestants have " indignation against the holy covenant " and that " their hearts are to do mischief." The intention of the whole Babylonian succession, as it lies broken and mutilated to-day, is to attack and destroy God's nations as represented in Britain, America and our kindred nations on the Continent, such as Norway, Denmark, and so on, who fly the Lion flag as opposed to the " Eagles " flag.

The staff of authority in the hand of the king of the North was held in succession in modern times by Spain, Napoleonic France, and Wilhelm of Germany. In the South it was held in the hands of the Sultan and Caliph of the Mohammedan world. To-day the staff of authority in the North is held in the hands of the Junta at Moscow ; and that of the South in the hands of Mussolini, and the newly-crowned Pope.

It is in the hearts of both of these to attack and destroy Great Britain. Documentary evidence there is in plenty on both of these lines; for instance, the public utterances, oral and written, of the leaders of Moscow, and the private utterances contained in the oath administered to the members of the Knights of Columbus, and in the propaganda which is being put in the letter-boxes of widely separated households, samples of which have been sent to us from different countries thousands of miles apart.

Digitized by Google

The ancient line of struggle will still be followed, and in the final deadlock the king of the North and the king of the South will meet each other in deadly encounter.

"And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book.

And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.

And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever.

But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." (Daniel xii, 1-4.)

This is an interesting matter. He who makes this statement is "the Lord of Hosts," Who became the Son of man, the Seed of the woman, and Who leads the redeemed hosts of the seed of the woman. He is the "Captain of the host of the Lord," as He declared to Joshua.

This august Person now declares, concerning the point of history reached by the narrative, "And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for thy people." Now Michael is the commander of the angel hosts, as Our Lord is the "Leader and Commander" of the hosts of Israel.

The Lord declares that at the time of His struggle with the king of Persia in Daniel's day Michael came to His assistance.

He now declares that at the end of the period when the affairs of earth have reached the utmost extremity, Michael again shall stand up for His people. We believe that this time of struggle, in its final stage, commenced in 1914. We believe that final stage will end in the decade in which we are now living. It seems as though—and we are glad to believe that it is—Michael and his angel hosts stand at the boundaries of "the Kingdom" and turn back the tide of war from spreading as a desolation over modern Israel.

Turning to Revelation we read: "And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon: and the dragon fought and his angels, and prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven." Read also the following verses of Revelation, chapter xii, verses 7-17.

Thus we see that Michael and his hosts routed the dragon and his angels in Heaven. Now we are told the Devil has come down to earth, having great wrath because he knoweth that his time is short; and here he has organized a mighty army of human followers. So he is attacking with combined armies of men and devils.

But now the "Captain of the host of the Lord," in conjunction with Michael and his angels, take the field together, with armies of men and angels, and the victory is assured and will be final.

THE COMMISSIONER-GENERAL'S REPORT FOR 1928.

THE year 1928 has been one of strenuous work, with many open doors which have been increasing in number year by year, so that now, even with a staff of Commissioners and Lecturers somewhat increased, it is impossible to answer every call.

During the year, opposition has in some districts become very acute. This I regard as a good sign. It means that our opponents can no longer regard the British-Israel Movement as a fad or passing phase which they can ignore, but that they have realized that it has so spread and become so formidable that unless they can put it down now, resistance will be too late and their position will be captured. Though the work has, on the whole, increased and spread during 1928, yet we have in some districts received somewhat of a check which, however, we believe is only temporary.

From one Area especially our Commissioner reports that the discredit brought upon the Bible by the Modernist teachers has had a serious effect in lessening interest in religious and spiritual matters, and has recoiled upon our Movement, making it still more evident that the Word of God as fulfilled in the British or Celto-Saxon peoples is the only antidote, and that its preaching has become all the more vitally necessary to combat the deadly teaching of Modernism.

During the year our Lecturing Staff has been increased by one Commissioner and two Lecturers, and yet there is much ground to be covered, and an urgent demand for further Commissioners. In this connection I am pleased to be able to report that the Commissioners' Fund brought in a sum of £644 odd in the year under review, almost all of this being contributed by the Branches. Owing to the success of this Fund it is expected that we will soon be able to have a further increase of Lecturers and Organizers for the Areas which are still without any permanent assistance in this line.

I shall not go into details here of the work of the various Commissioners and Lecturers, but will refer to their reports. I should state, however, that about the beginning of the year Mr. Wm. Whitton was appointed a Lecturer for the Sheffield district, in which he has done splendid service. The Rev. Sparshott Johnson took up work as Commissioner for the North London Area (embracing the adjoining Counties) in September, from which Area the Rev. Joseph Gay was moved to Wales, and Miss Hamilton Hunter was appointed a Lecturer in the autumn. Though it does not come within the scope of 1928, I may mention that three counties, Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridge, have quite recently been taken out of the Midland Area, the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse's, which was a double Area, and added to the North London Area, of which Mr. Sparshott Johnson is now Commissioner. These three counties, together with the original part of his Area, Mr.

Digitized by Google

Johnson is working hard to develop, and I expect at the end of this year to be able to give a good account of his efforts.

Miss Hamilton Hunter has been utilized mainly in Mr. Morey's South London Area (which reaches to the English Channel), as the work in this Area had so increased that Mr. Morey was unable alone to cope with the demand. Miss Hunter's services have been a considerable help and much appreciated.

As to the other Commissioners who have been in the work much longer, their reports will speak for themselves, but generally speaking, I may say, they have worked hard and enthusiastically.

The work in South Africa, under our Commissioner, the Rev. Maxwell Carnson, is, according to the accounts received, being pushed forward with, on the whole, encouraging results, and our South African friends have now a monthly periodical of their own.

I have myself, during the year, visited most of the branches, and have taken part in several Missions promoted by branches.

The fullest recognition is due to the Officers and Committees of the branches for their splendid work and zeal, and to the many friends who have voluntarily rendered valuable assistance, without which much of the service of the year could not have been undertaken.

The kind friends who have, by taking Pyramid collecting boxes and otherwise, helped in bringing in such a substantial sum to the Commissioners' Fund deserve our heartiest thanks. They have thereby made it possible to thrust out more labourers into the harvest. It is hoped that many more collecting boxes will be placed, and even greater support given to this Fund during the present year. I should mention in this connection that a bank note for £20 was found in one of the Pyramid boxes at Headquarters, and I beg to tender to the anonymous donor our sincere thanks for this generous gift.

JOHN LEECH.

* * *

AREA NO. 1.—SOUTHERN COUNTIES.

THE year 1928 has been one of great opportunity and increasing interest in our Movement.

In all parts of this Area openings present themselves, and there is a constant demand for lectures and meetings. Regular public meetings have been held throughout the year at the following centres:—Bexhill, Blackheath, Bognor, Brighton, Canterbury, Chatham, Clapham, Croydon, Dorking, Dover, Eastbourne, Folkestone, Gosport, Gravesend, Hastings, Herne Bay, Horsham, Kingston, Portsmouth, Putney, Richmond, Rye, Salisbury, Southampton, Tunbridge Wells and Worthing.

At these centres public meetings are generally held monthly, but in some cases weekly or fortnightly study circles also meet.

New centres have been opened during the year at Chichester, Deal, Earlsfield, Fittleworth, Fordingbridge, Guildford, Reigate, New Romney, Sutton, Sydenham, and occasional or single lectures have been given at Fleet, Havant, Herne Hill and Tooting.

The work in the Area is most promising. During the year many small centres have developed into large and important ones, while the older branches continue to hold their own, and in most cases to grow steadily. A notable feature of the year has been the marked development in the towns on the South Coast, and there are other towns here waiting our attention.

I have given 308 public lectures during the year, and of this number 267 have been given in my own Area, 21 in Areas having no Commissioner, and 20 in the Areas of other Commissioners. These outside lectures have been more than compensated for by visits of my colleagues to my Area. The places visited by me under these headings are: Bradford-on-Avon, Bath, Barking, Brixham, Chudleigh, Ealing, Exeter, Harrow, Hounslow, Leicester, Manchester, Muswell Hill, Paignton, Sheffield, Southend, Stratford and Teignmouth.

We organized and carried through a week's Summer Convention at Glastonbury in August, when lectures were given by Rev. Dr. Mountain, Rev. Joseph Gay, Rev. G. F. Waddington, Mr. Herbert Garrison and myself. About one hundred friends from various districts in England, Ireland and Wales attended the nine meetings, and all much enjoyed the Bible study, the definite prophetic teaching and the kind fellowship made possible by these gatherings.

We have found some opposition and criticism, but these have been far outweighed by the enthusiasm and encouragement which have greeted us everywhere. Churches have closed their doors against us, but other doors have opened and the work proceeds. Some clergy have publicly denounced our teaching, but others have come enquiring and seeking, and we have found in all districts an increasing hunger for the facts and evidences we are able to supply in support of Bible Truth.

The greatest difficulty in my Area is that of meeting the demands for lectures. I have now twice as many monthly meetings as I can personally attend. There are many districts waiting to be opened, and the establishment of new centres only increases my problem. I am thankful for the help afforded me during the year by the visits of other Commissioners and Official Lecturers, and for the very kind voluntary assistance of many willing helpers, but if the work in the Southern Counties is to advance and existing opportunities are to be embraced, I need much more systematic help. Many of the older branches have liberated me so that I may be free to proceed with the formation of new centres, and I am anxious that no such opening may be refused.

I thank God for very many evidences of His presence and blessing, and for the undoubted assurance that I am engaged as one of His disciples in proclaiming the Gospel of His own Kingdom.

In some of my centres weekly or periodical prayer-meetings have been established, and I hope to see this movement spread throughout the Area.

Many of my branches have made substantial donations to Headquarters for the support of our general work during the year, and as the local meetings increase in size and importance, I trust such financial help will materially increase.

I tender my sincere thanks to the Officers and Executive of the Federation for all their kind support.

JOHN J. MOREY, Commissioner.

Digitized by Google

NORTH LONDON AREA.

THIS being a first report, and that for a period of three months only, it must of necessity be more of the nature of a preliminary survey.

I was furnished with a list of branches in the Area, some fourteen in number, of which St. Albans and Cricklewood had apparently lapsed, though some effort was made to resuscitate the latter, but without success. High Wycombe was in a similar state, but has since been successfully restarted. All the other branches were visited once and some of them two or three times before the end of the year and found to be carrying on with varying degrees of success. By arrangement with the Commissioner-General I was able to visit a number of branches in the South London Area, it being found very difficult to secure sufficient lecturers to meet the demand. The experience, however, was of the utmost value to me, as I was able to see what was being done in other branches and to get a wider insight into the work that was going on. In all the places visited I was able to lecture to audiences which for the most part were small but keenly appreciative. I think I may say that in most cases in which I was able to lecture to audiences, however small, some waverers were convinced and others were constrained to enrol their names with the local branch, while yet others expressed themselves confirmed in their belief in British-Israel Truth.

Some engagements were cancelled by the local representatives at the last moment for unavoidable causes, but I was able to give some 40 lectures during the three months, which were all well received and the opposition was negligible.

(Rev.) T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, Commissioner.

I BEGAN the year as the Commissioner for the North London Area. I visited all the branches in the Area, some several times, and from January until my removal to South Wales in September I delivered 130 lectures and addresses and sermons.

I also started a Speakers' Training Class, which met weekly, and under my tuition, aided by Miss Barbour, some twenty or more young men and women received training in public speaking and in the marshalling of British-Israel facts. The success of this important work was manifest in the public meeting which was recently held, and at which nine persons gave very helpful addresses, which gave very great promise of future usefulness. I also organized and carried through, with the able assistance of Messrs. Pilcher and McKelvie, and the late Mr. Tester, a series of open-air meetings, principally held on the Sundays throughout the summer months. Meetings were held, among other places, in Hyde Park, Finsbury Park, Victoria Park, Mile End, Stratford, and Highbury. Crowds numbering from 100 to 500 gathered round us, and we were able to interest them greatly in British-Israel Truth. Though it is impossible to tabulate results in this field of work, still it is evident that much good was done.

I left the Area in September, and my successor, the Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., took hold and carried on the work to the end of the year.

(Rev.) JOSEPH GAY, Commissioner.

NORTH-EASTERN AREA.

THE year 1928 has seen a great deal of progress made in the North, especially in the County of York. Round about the two cities of Sheffield and Bradford there has been marked activity. There are nine growing branches, and through them work has been commenced in seven large towns and about twenty small suburbs and villages.

Mr. Tench has been working very hard in County Durham, striking out from Darlington and Durham, and, in spite of the dreadful condition of the county through unemployment, our work has met with success.

In Lancashire there is not so much encouragement, but two new branches, at Blackpool and Preston, have been formed.

It is difficult for me to give proper attention to this part of the Area, and the need of someone on the spot who will really push things is very apparent.

Mr. Whitton has done splendid service in the Sheffield Area, thrusting out in every direction, and getting openings in small places with great persistency.

In the Bradford Area the same kind of work is being done, for I have been invited to various churches and chapels, and have given 28 addresses in this way. I have delivered 83 lectures myself, and as there are regular meetings held in some 18 places, there is clearly great reason for thanksgiving.

From the financial point of view we ought to be thankful that we are just about paying our way, for all over the North there is great distress through unemployment; all three counties in which I work are seriously affected by the condition in the mining industry, and on one occasion my audience was almost entirely composed of unemployed miners.

(Rev.) GUY F. WADDINGTON, Commissioner.

* * *

NORTH-WESTERN AREA.

THERE are now eight active branches in the North-Western Area, including two revived and one new branch. Attendances generally are rather stationary than increasing. Seventeen visits have been made to the eight branches during the year, and several lectures given. In addition to branches, three lectures on British-Israel were given in churches on Sunday afternoons, and three sermons preached. Preston and Blackpool Branches have been revived with the greatly-appreciated assistance of the Rev. Guy F. Waddington, and a new branch formed at Blackburn.

Most of my work consists in correspondence, the number of speakers arranged for during the year being—Liverpool 20, Manchester 10, Southport 16, Wigan 20. In addition speakers arranged, before close of last year, for branches from January to June next totals 42. Approximately 70 letters per month are written. The supply of literature to branches also occupies much time. Literature to the net value of £80 (approximately) was supplied to branches (exclusive of Liverpool) during the year. Books and "N.Ms." to the value of over £21 were disposed of in Liverpool.

The outlook for the future is bright. Believers in Chester, Bolton, Oldham, Clitheroe, Leyland and West Houghton are requesting opening of branches preceded by a Mission. Many other industrial centres such as Warrington, St. Helens, Ormskirk, and, further North, Penrith, Lancaster, Carlisle, etc., are as yet untouched. Blackburn would greatly benefit by a Mission in that populous area. We have no influential believers who could assist financially to a large extent in any of the centres named. Let the Federation provide lecturers and the necessary funds in case of the failure of collections to meet expenses, and I am convinced a big forward movement would result.

Digitized by Google

The response to the "Pyramid Box Commissioners' Fund" has been fairly good, considering the position of those contributing and the wave of industrial depression we are passing through. The number of unemployed is very great, Lancashire and Yorkshire, in particular, being acutely involved. At the same time I believe that more could and would be done in that direction if all members of branches realized the importance of the appointment of a full-time Commissioner for the North-Western Area, and take a Pyramid Box, however small the amount they are able to contribute. The amount forwarded to Headquarters by Mr. Foster Beaver, the Treasurer of the Northern Province, from the North-Western Area for the year 1928, totalled nearly £80. Total from the whole of the Northern Area, thanks mainly to the splendid efforts of Mr. W. Whitton, was over £307.

SAML. E. STEELE.

* * *

MIDLANDS AREA.

DURING the year 1928 the Midlands Commissioner has done his utmost to maintain, extend and consolidate the work of the Federation throughout his Area, visiting all the branches for lecturing, etc., as often as invited to do so, and entirely carrying on his five centres, besides opening up much fresh ground from which it is hoped that new, strong branches or centres will result. He has also given considerable assistance to branches in other parts of the country. During the year 1928 he has proclaimed British-Israel Truth in 56 towns, including most of our great centres of population. He has presided at, addressed or otherwise taken part in 225 meetings, including the delivery of 201 full lectures, and the conducting of several Missions. This has entailed enormous and unremitting labours in the way of preparation, organizing, raising funds, correspondence, travelling, etc., etc.

New Causes have been opened at Worcester, Northampton, Wellingborough, Ashbourne, Newark, Lincoln, Louth, Tetford and Grimsby. In many places where it has not yet been possible to get a new branch going our Truth has made its appeal to very many minds, and met with much individual acceptance. Indeed, the real progress of our work is not to be measured in terms of organization merely, but in the immeasurable influence our teaching and witness must exercise on the national outlook, attitude and aspirations Godward.

In the Area there are nine branches, all operating quite successfully on the usual lines, and doing excellent work: Handsworth (Birmingham), Stourbridge, Walsall, Burton, Leamington, Nottingham, Stoke-on-Trent, Leicester, Cheltenham. There are also four Commissioner's Centres: Birmingham, Derby, Coventry and Rugby (including Dunchurch). These are very active and powerful aids to the Commissioner in his work throughout the Area.

The Commissioner has always felt a strong desire to make his Area self-supporting; a strength to the Federation, and not a drain on its funds. He rejoices therefore to say that he has raised through the Birmingham and other centres (not branches) some £535 during the year, from which there remains an unspent balance of about £105, ear-marked towards the cost of Missions in the Area during 1929. £47 was sent up to H.Q. early in the year, the result of a meeting addressed by Mr. Garrison and the Rev. Pascoe Goard in the Birmingham Town Hall; and £200 as a direct contribution from the Birmingham Centre towards the Commissioner's stipend. Apart from this, several Midland Branches have remitted £23 to H.Q. from Pyramid Collecting Boxes. This scheme has been very recently introduced, but already promises useful development.

It is a joy to report that everywhere, when once the ear of the people has been gained, the Kingdom Message is received with eager interest and craving for more. The sorrow is that it is so difficult to attract the public generally to our meetings. Truth and reality compel one to recognize the coldness and apathy of people for the most part to every kind of religious appeal in these days, and one feels a sense of disquiet in observing that this deadness has penetrated even into our own circles. While there are many glorious men and women of God among us, mighty in the Scriptures, fervent in spirit, ready to live or die for Christ and His Kingdom, there are hosts of wavering and feeble of faith among the people, needing strengthening, and for them there is real need of a great awakening; a revival of that fire and zeal which impelled such a mighty leap forward of our Movement not so long ago. If the branches are to justify their existence each one must become the centre of an intensive Evangelistic activity, realizing its sacred trust towards its own district. We must either wax or wane—go "FORWARD" or fall back; win the world for Christ and His Kingdom, or perish as another "lost Cause." But is that conceivable? The Lord will surely come. Is He waiting for us? Are we waiting on Him?

(Rev.) T. H. WHITEHOUSE, Commissioner.

* * *

SHEFFIELD DISTRICT.

1928 has been the greatest year of my life. The Lord has abundantly blessed all my work; to Him be all the glory.

I have addressed well over 200 meetings during the year. The branches visited are as follows:—Manchester, Stockport, Wigan, Liverpool, Southport, Sheffield, Bradford, Halifax, Hull, Harrogate, Bingley, Durham, Darlington, Thurcroft, Bridlington, Beverley and Nottingham.

During the summer I had three open-air Missions, spending a week each at Southport, Bridlington and Beverley, where I addressed 32 meetings.

The good seed was scattered; we leave the Lord to give the increase.

A special feature of my work has been "fireside meetings." I have addressed 25 in different homes. I consider these meetings the most profitable of all.

I have made every effort to get our Message proclaimed in places of worship, and have given B.-I. addresses during 1928 in over twenty different churches.

I commend this work to all British-Israelites everywhere.

Digitized by Google

The Modernist is well established in our churches, surely B.-I. ought not to be ashamed of getting inside also. It is the antidote.

I find our Message heartily welcomed everywhere; church officials often endeavour to keep us out, but I am now having far more victories than reverses when I ask for an opening in our churches.

NEW BRANCHES.—It has been my privilege and pleasure to preside at the opening of three new branches, Bridlington, Harrogate and Thurcroft. Each of these branches is well established and doing good work.

FRESH OPENINGS have been made at Barnsley, Beverley, Monk Fryston, Chesterfield and Selby, where regular meetings are now being held.

It is hoped to form a branch of the Federation at all these places in the near future.

OPEN-AIR WORK.—This I find a very essential part of our summer work; I have addressed open-air meetings at Beverley, Bridlington, Barnsley, Southport, Chesterfield and Sheffield. I find the Man-in-the-street simply welcomes our Message. More attention should be paid to open-air work everywhere.

VISITATION.—I would like to recommend visitation among our members. During the year I have paid well over 360 visits to B.-I. homes. This helps to consolidate the well-known B.-I. spirit.

This work has helped in no small way in making the Sheffield Branch a real united family—every member helping the others.

What is needed most? Organizers; ORGANIZERS; ORGANIZERS.

Several branches I have visited during the year have shown no sign of progress. The spirit of the people is excellent. Our Commissioners are doing splendid work lecturing, but so far as the North of England is concerned, the need is for someone to take in hand a comparatively small Area and have power and authority to reorganize the existing branches and organize new branches close to the existing ones.

PYRAMID BOXES.—Already good work is being done by the boxes, but here, again, the great need is for an Organizer.

MY OWN LOCAL BRANCH (SHEFFIELD).—Our work here is increasing from year to year. Missions are the order of the day (three have been held in the last three months). Membership steadily increasing. 1928 will see £100 sent to the Commissioners' Fund (per Mr. Foster Beaver).

I am sincerely grateful for the help of the Rev. G. F. Waddington and various Branch Hon. Secretaries, and trust that I may be of greater service during the coming year.

WM. WHITTON.

* * *

SOUTH WALES.

AT the invitation of the Executive I undertook the Commissionership of South Wales. I went into this Area in September last. I visited Rhymney on September 18th. This was my actual beginning. I found three branches established, viz.: Cardiff, Rhymney and Barry. The meetings at these places were the usual branch meetings: assembling in rooms capable of holding not more than 25 to 30 people comfortably. The Barry Branch was distinctly weak.

I endeavoured to open up in Merthyr, Tredegar, Newport and Neath. With regard to Cardiff they were only just ordinary branch meetings. Thanks to the hard and strenuous work of Mr. Mayell and Mr. Price, the Rhymney meetings were certainly more largely attended. This branch meets in a small room holding about 20 to 25 people. Whenever I visited them they took a large classroom in the public school, with an attendance varying from 30 to 40 or 50 persons.

All the meetings I booked during 1928 I kept without exception, about 17 in all.

(Rev.) JOSEPH GAY.

* * *

In addition to two lectures at Headquarters, I have given 20 lectures from September 1st to December 31st, 1928, to branches, mainly in the Southera Area.

All the meetings have been very encouraging. People have listened with intense interest, and I rejoice to say that every branch visited has started a prayer meeting if it had not one already. In cases where it was not possible to hold one in the hall, members have volunteered to lend their rooms or have started small prayer circles at different addresses. I am sure that before long these prayer centres will have great results in the work of our Federation.

E. HAMILTON HUNTER.

* * *

CHANNEL ISLANDS.

THERE is just one branch in the Channel Islands now—the Jersey branch; the Guernsey branch lapsed owing to the initial cost of carrying the new work to a successful issue.

I delivered 49 lectures in all for British-Israel Truth in 1928—40 for the Association here and 9 others in Guernsey and Jersey.

The attendance in 1927-28 was more than doubled over the previous year, but there has been a notable falling off in the season 1928-29. Partly this is owing to much sickness and death in our midst, also removal of adherents from the Island.

(Rev.) MERTON SMITH.

THE BRITISH-ISRAEL-WORLD FEDERATION ANNUAL MEETINGS.

AT the opening meeting on Thursday afternoon, May 23rd, the chair was occupied by Major J. Knowles, O.B.E., President of the Federation. Commander Roberts led in prayer, and the Rev. Gilbert Davies read the Scripture. The Chairman, in the course of his address, mentioned that the Annual Report which Mr. Garrison had prepared with great care showed very satisfactory progress in all departments. He thought he was right in saying that more meetings had been held this year than ever before. Interest in the work had spread wonderfully. Major Knowles said the progress that had been made during the past year had been largely due to the splendid work that had been done by the Secretary-General, Mr. Herbert Garrison, supported as he always was by Mrs. Garrison. They were both feeling the constant strain, both had been ill, and the doctor had prescribed a thorough change for them both. Major Knowles said he was glad to say that that had been arranged, and Mr. and Mrs. Garrison were proceeding to Canada the following week. They would all wish them a happy and successful trip. Mr. Garrison was hoping to give a number of lectures, some on the Empire, and others on purely British-Israel lines; and he was going right across to Vancouver, where he would have the pleasure of seeing Mr. Goard and Professor Odlum, and many other friends.

Digitized by Google

One of the greatest of their English statesmen was quoted as having said, with regard to the British Empire, that "as a priceless heritage in a world still suffering from the shock of war, the British Empire stands as a great force for good. It stands in every sweep of every wind, by the wash of every sea, a witness to that which the spirit of confidence and brotherhood can accomplish in the world. It is that spiritual inheritance which we hold in trust. Let us see to it that we hand it on to our successors with untarnished glory."

In the name of all present, the President wished many happy returns of the day to Mr. Leech, this being his birthday. He also expressed their delight at having the Rev. Arthur Pritchard back with them again after his severe operation. He was thankful to say that he was going on well. They were also glad to see Mr. Morey back with them once more. He had just completed a very interesting trip to Egypt and Palestine, and he would probably be giving them a lecture on his experiences. Mr. Garrison reported, much to the sorrow of the meeting, that the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse was ill. They would all pray for his recovery. He had just received a cablegram from the Rev. Pascoe Goard saying that he and Mrs. Goard had also only just recovered from a severe illness; he had sent his greetings on the occasion of their annual meetings. The Secretary-General had something to say with regard to the urgent necessity that the Federation should possess its own hall. They had been searching for a site for months past, and now at last they had a site available. He asked for prayer that God would put it into the hearts of men and women of large means to help in the provision of such a hall for patriotic and religious reasons.

* * *

The Rev. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, M.A., said: I take it that we are all rejoicing to-day, but the question that has been in my thoughts in thinking of this address is this, Do we rejoice enough? Certainly in the old Book there is plenty of reason for rejoicing. I suppose we are all familiar with the teaching that Christians ought always to be joyful. Not very long ago in Ceylon a little incident happened which will illustrate this. On one of the tea estates the Hindus were holding a great festival, and the English planter was looking on. One of the leading Hindus approached him, and said, "Sir, we Hindus are happy enough on these festival days of ours, but the Christians are always happy." I thought to myself that if only that could be said of the Christians in England how far would the Gospel go in a very short time. I think we may say in England that most professing Christians are happy enough on festival days. We all rejoice at Christmas and at Easter. But may I say that British-Israelites are always happy? Well, we ought to be, and the object of my address is to try and persuade most of you to go about showing that you are always happy. You will remember David said once, "He hath put a new song in my mouth. Many shall see it and fear and shall put their trust in the Lord." Well, He has put a new song in our mouth.

I want to base my remarks on the 107th Psalm, because that Psalm gives us abundant reason along the line of our teaching for rejoicing. "O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good; for His mercy endureth for ever." The first reason why we ought to be rejoicing is that we have got a song to sing. The question is constantly being asked, Why are the Churches empty? That discussion is continually going on in the papers, and all sorts of reasons are given. The first reason why, I believe, people do not come to the House of God is because they have not got a song to sing. But not one of us can make that excuse. When we go to the House of God we have the right to rejoice because we have got a song to sing, and it is the song of Redemption. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom He hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy." I remember years ago when I was quite small we had a visit in our home from a Free Church minister; the Free Churches were holding a Conference in the city, and we put up this old gentleman. My father asked him to take family prayers, and he chose this Psalm, and I can remember to-day the way in which he read it. "O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good; for His mercy endureth for ever. Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom He hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy." The song of Redemption, that is the song we have got to sing. Yes, but who are the redeemed? That is the question. I have been looking through the old Book with the help of a Concordance, and I find curiously enough that Isaiah speaks of God redeeming Abraham, and the margin refers you back to Joshua, where God says He brought Abraham out of Ur of the Chaldees. Well, I wonder if that is the occasion when God redeemed Abraham? Certainly. God redeemed Isaac, you will remember, on Mount Moriah, when a ram was caught in the thicket. And, by the by, one of the great discoverers only a few months ago, when out in that country, found representations of a ram caught in a thicket, testifying to the reality of the story of Abraham and to the sacrifice which he offered. And not only Abraham, but Jacob. You remember, when Jacob was blessing the two sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh, he said, "The angel that redeemed me from all evil bless the lads." And that blessing has descended down to these days. Then when Moses was singing the song of rejoicing he spoke of the redeeming of Israel, in Deuteronomy. And in the great prophecy of Isaiah we read of Israel having been redeemed, that is, the People of Israel. "Zion shall be redeemed with judgment," God says. And then in that wonderful 63rd chapter of Isaiah we have these words, "Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah? This that is glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save . . . I have trodden the winepress alone; and of the people there was none with me; for I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury; and their blood shall be sprinkled upon my garments, and I will stain all my raiment. For the day of vengeance is in mine heart, and the year of my redeemed is come." I wonder if that is the day in which you and I are living? You remember the Master said when He was here upon earth, "When you see these things begin to come to pass (the things that you and I have been seeing), then lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh." When we come to the New Testament we find it ringing all the way through. I want to refer to the 1st chapter of Luke, to the song of Zacharias, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people, and hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David," according to the covenant which he made with our father Abraham. Now I have been accustomed, as I daresay some of you have, of speaking on the testimony of our Prayer Book to our British-Israel identity. And this chant, this song of Zacharias, occurs in the Prayer Book, as all Church of England people know. The Prayer Book has been with us as it is to-day for something like four hundred years. Archbishop Cranmer told the people of his day it was practically the same Prayer Book that had been in use in our country for fifteen hundred years before that. It was founded on the Psalter of Israel, which was their Prayer Book. I think you will find that the Song of Zacharias has been with our people as part of our national worship for all that time, that is, for at least 1,800 years. It has not been used by the Jew. Certainly not. It was sung before Our Lord came; and the Jews did not receive Him; they rejected Him; therefore they would not be likely to sing that song in their national worship; but we have been singing that song for probably 1,800 years in our national worship. "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people." That to me constitutes one of the most remarkable and most convincing evidences of our identity with God's people Israel. So that we have a song of Redemption to sing. We cannot too frequently insist upon the fact that this glorious song of Redemption can only be sung by those who have been redeemed. It is not sufficient to say that because we are members of a redeemed nation, therefore we are redeemed. No; if we are to sing the song with reality and with power, we must realize that we are amongst that great crowd that is mentioned in the Book of the Revelation of those who have been redeemed out of every tribe and nation and tongue. Then we shall be able to sing the song of Redemption to the full. But certainly as a nation, and I hope as individuals, most of us must rejoice to-day because we have a song of Redemption to sing.

Digitized by Google

It is also a song of guidance. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy. And gathered them out of the lands, from the east, and from the west, from the north, and from the south. They wandered in the wilderness in a solitary way; they found no city to dwell in. Hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them. Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses. And he led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation . . . They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; These see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep." And then we read that He leads them into their desired haven. You and I look back over these nineteen hundred years, and we realize, as we have been studying our books and listening to our lecturers, that God has guided us by a straight path, by those two different ways, over the land and round by the sea. And in these latter days the voice of science has come to add its testimony to our belief. Sir Arthur Keith, the great ethnologist and biologist, said in a great speech given in Wales, and which was published in the newspaper as a great new piece of research, that the theory he had arrived at as a result of his investigations was that our forefathers came to these islands by two streams, one over the land reaching the East Coast, and the other round by the sea and landing on the West Coast. Now there is an incident which I think will help us to realize the greatness and the goodness of God in His leadings. Away out in Egypt years ago there was a little army being led across the desert during the night, and as it tramped and tramped not a voice was heard, but there was one man at the head leading the way, and as they arrived in the early dawn at their objective, the shots of the enemy rang out, and the leader fell dead, and as he fell he said to the officer, "Didn't I lead them straight, sir," and he passed away. Our Lord and Master has led us by a right way, and brought us to a city of habitation. About a fortnight ago I was preaching on this Psalm in one of our London churches, and I had occasion to point out how our people had been led from the east into these isles, and I had the privilege of pointing out that there is great evidence to prove that we are the People of Israel. After the sermon we sang a hymn, and to my amazement, as I had nothing to do with the choosing of the hymn — it was a hymn concerning the Ascension — there occurred in it this verse:—

"Now our Heavenly Aaron enters
With His blood within the veil,
Joshua now is come to Canaan,
And the kings before Him quail.
Now He plants the tribes of Israel
In their promised resting-place;
Now our great Elijah offers
Double portion of His grace."

He had led us straight. We have a song to sing, of redemption, and of guidance.

But we have more than a song to sing; we have a sacrifice to offer. Now that is one of the things which has aroused controversy all down through the ages. But David in this Psalm says, "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness. And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare His works with rejoicing." We do, of course, offer a sacrifice at the Communion Service, we offer the sacrifice of thanksgiving. But that has nothing to do with that idea of sacrifice which we have been, and I hope always will be, protesting against. We offer two sacrifices in that Communion Service, and I hope we shall be continually offering those two sacrifices— the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and the sacrifice of ourselves for service. "Here we offer and present unto Thee, O Lord, ourselves, our souls and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy, and lively sacrifice unto Thee; humbly beseeching Thee, that all we, who are partakers of this Holy Communion, may be filled with Thy grace and heavenly benediction." That is a sacrifice which is well pleasing to God. So you and I to-day as British-Israelites have abundant reason for rejoicing because we have a song to sing, and we have a sacrifice to offer.

Digitized by Google

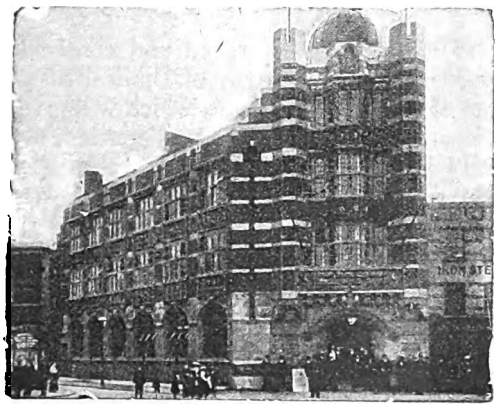
We have also a place to dwell in. That is one of the great reasons for rejoicing in this 107th Psalm. "He led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation. . . . He turneth rivers into a wilderness, and the watersprings into dry ground. . . . And there he maketh the hungry to dwell, that they may prepare a city for habitation." What a picture of our people in this beloved land, England! Well, now, God promised that to Israel, His people. He promised it to David right away in the days of Nathan. "I will appoint a place for My people Israel; they shall go out no more. That they may dwell in a place of their own." In Hosea, too, when Israel had wandered right away from God, and had been divorced from Him, He said, "I will allure her and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her." Some of you, no doubt, have read a book written against our belief by Rev. S. H. Wilkinson; he meets with this wonderful verse, and in order to get out of it he says that the Hebrew word translated, "I will appoint," may be translated, "I have appointed," and, of course, flies right in the face of all Hebrew scholars and students; and therefore some people who know Hebrew, when they come to read that, realize we have a strong case. If these critics can only get out of this difficulty by asserting that the future means the past, then they have a very feeble case. God promised that He would appoint to His people a place. Professor Downer points out that the Epistle to the Hebrews is written to the Hebrew people, and not to the Jews; and I would recommend his book to every student of the New Testament. He points out how that Epistle is written to the Hebrew people, and you and I realize that we are the Hebrew people, and, as Mr. Pascoe Goard tells us, it is the Epistle which is written to us. In that Book we read how Abraham believed and "looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." And Israel looked for a city and for a place of habitation. Ezekiel tells us that Israel should be gathered into the wilderness, where they would enter into the bond of the covenant. Isaiah says, "Keep silence before Me, O islands, and let the people renew their strength." Now in the 12th chapter of Revelation there is a very wonderful prophecy concerning Israel—the woman with the crown of twelve stars who brings forth a man child which was caught up into heaven. We are told that the woman fled into the wilderness; and there was given to her the wings of a great eagle whereby she was carried into the wilderness, into a place where she was fed for 1,260 days. That is a wonderful prophecy of what was to happen to our nation for 1,260 years in this land of ours. So that we have a song to sing; we have a sacrifice to offer; we have a place of habitation to dwell in. And what a place of habitation it is! I have been twenty-five years away in the East, living in what is considered the most beautiful island in the world. But I have said over and over again since I came back from that place, "Well, there is nothing which will beat the glorious countryside of this land of England, this realm of England." In my little house, which I like to call the appointed place because of the way in which I was led to it, I was sitting this morning looking out through the trees, listening to the song of the birds—the nightingale sings there—and I could not help thinking what a glorious land God has brought us into. And we shall move out no more. No wonder Blake wrote:

"I will not cease from mental strife
Nor shall my sword sleep in my hand
Till I have built Jerusalem
In England's green and pleasant land."

It is the place where God told us His Name was. I have not had time to look into history, but it seems to me that after 1,260 times of nourishment and feeding in this land of ours, about that time the Stone came to rest in Westminster Abbey. So that we have abundant reasons for rejoicing. We have a song to sing, a sacrifice to offer, and a place to live in, prepared of God. We have also a good time coming, "for the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs, and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."



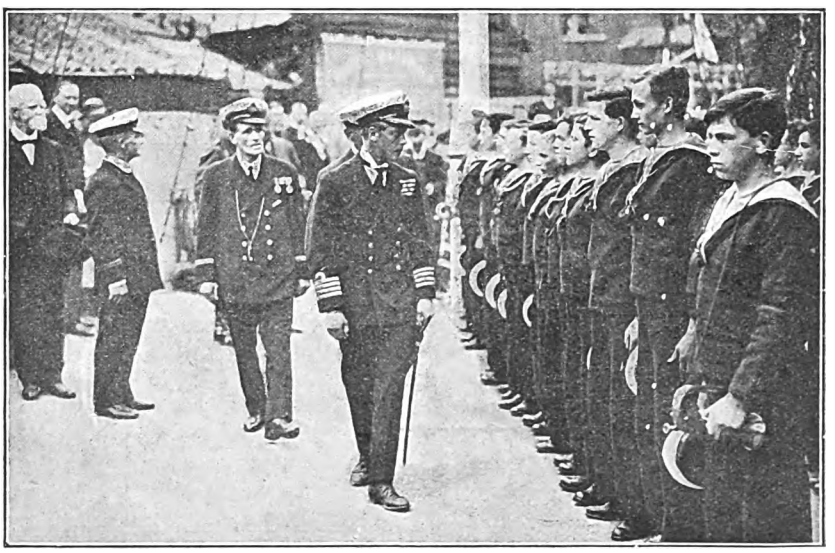
* * *

The Rev. GILBERT DAVIES said: I hope you will forgive me if I seem to be somewhat rambling in my remarks this afternoon; I hope you will put it down, not to my ignorance of the subject, but to the suddenness with which I have been called upon to address this gathering. I come from a Midland parish, where I have succeeded in forming five or six fairly good branches. But I must confess that I know very little about the subject in comparison with the Rev. Arthur Pritchard and the veteran Commander Roberts. I feel like a child having been pressed into service. But I have visited Nottingham and Derby and Cheltenham and Walsall, carrying the good news of the Gospel of the Kingdom, not omitting the Gospel of Salvation through the Lord Jesus Christ to the whole world, thus bringing in a spiritual Israel linked with a literal Israel.

There are books that have been recently published showing from the ethnological standpoint, and from the scientific standpoint, that we come from a race linking us very closely with Israel. We hope that those who have hesitated to support the Federation, and who are now on the border line, may soon come into our ranks. May I say that I get more information on the Old Testament from THE NATIONAL MESSAGE than from all the other religious papers that I take in. I get more help from that paper than I do from The Record, and The Christian, and The Advent Testimony Witness; the articles by the Rev. Pascoe Goard, Rev. Commander Roberts and others have been a great help to me. People sometimes say to me, "Where do you get your information from?" And I say to them, "Get THE NATIONAL MESSAGE." Those things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ which we find in the law and the prophets and the Psalms are not fairy tales. There are professors in the Universities who are, to a large extent, responsible for the spirit of doubt and almost of despair in the Christian Churches to-day. You do not hear this message of the Gospel of the Kingdom. I travelled down in the train from the Midlands with an earnest Christian man, and he produced a New Testament, and said that was his paper. I told him that I wished he had the whole Bible, because I believed we were the Israel of God, and we had such men as Dr. Mountain and Dr. Dinsdale T. Young in our ranks.

Digitized by Google

He said he thought that theory rather got rid, to some extent, of the power of the Gospel of Salvation. He was out for the conversion of souls. I said, "The most spiritually-minded people I have ever met, and those who most emphasize the value of the redemptive work of the Lord Jesus Christ, are the British-Israelites. I know of none who are so earnest in protesting for the Truth." All Christians should believe in the British-Israel Truth, yet none the less insisting upon the Gospel of Salvation. I had one advantage, for I was formerly a lawyer, and I had perhaps a wider experience than some. When I was in the profession I got into touch with educated laymen of all descriptions, and I found the spirit of doubt that existed in regard to the Old Testament on the part of those who were sceptics and agnostics. But a large number of them have been brought into the light through reading the Old Testament historically. The fact that God has kept His promises to His servants; the growth of our own great nation; these things have convinced them. I am perfectly sure that the spiritualization of the Bible is largely responsible for the present decay of belief in the Bible. If the Bible is taken historically, you must be convinced that the destiny of Israel and the destiny of Judah are absolutely different. The mixing up of Israel and Judah has led to disastrous consequences, and it has caused many to believe, with Bradlaugh, that God has not kept His promises to Abraham. We must study the Bible historically. If we would only read Daniel and the Book of the Revelation under the guidance of the Holy Spirit; if we would only come as children and ask for the guidance of the Holy Spirit, light would be shed upon the pages of the Book. But remember, that the natural man cannot receive the things of the Spirit. Read the Bible chapter by chapter, not leaving out one, and you will begin to find that the Bible gives a new and a living and a real message. I take every opportunity I can of speaking about this Truth, and I have been able to distribute copies of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, thanks to Mr. Garrison. And there are many who are coming gradually into the light of British-Israel Truth. Those in our Colonies are far ahead of us. If only our Church would emphasize the value of the Gospel of the Kingdom. Our Prayer Book is full of the destiny of our race. That does not fill us with national pride, but it does reveal to us our responsibility to the other nations of the world. There is the keeping of the Sabbath. We do keep it nationally. We do know what we mean by Sunday. I thank you for your courtesy and kindness.



Passmore Edwards Sailors' Palace.

THE BRITISH SAILORS' SOCIETY.

ALL things British will always receive cordial reception at the hands of British-Israel believers the world over. And no Society can be more British than the "British Sailors' Society," which held its Annual Meeting at the Mansion House, under the chairmanship of the Lord Mayor of London, Alderman Sir Kynaston Studd, M.A., O.B.E., on May 6th.

Seafarers and their families are the special care and concern of this Society throughout the world. It operates in all parts of the world. Wherever the British sailor goes there goes also this splendid Society. As the Lord Mayor reminded the distinguished company assembled at this Annual Meeting, "There are chains of stations which encompass the globe, and the servants of the Society, who serve the sailor, are in contact with each other and with him, North, South, East and West." Not a few of these servants are British-Israel believers, and no body of men and women have more reason to become so as these who so nobly serve our sailors: "Those who go down to the sea in ships." An extract from the General Secretary's Report, which lies on our desk, will be sufficient to reveal the nature and character and scope of this truly great work for God and man. "I would remind you that the Society was founded on Evangelical Protestant principles, and that the religious foundation of the Society's activities is still the same. There never has been, nor can there be, any departure whatever from this historic ground, for it is an unalterable law embodied in the Constitution of the Society. The Constitution also provides that the Society be governed by a Board of Directors composed of members of the Church of England and of the Free Churches as nearly as possible in equal proportion, and this rule is strictly adhered to. The Society is a great Missionary Corporation, and its H.R.H. The Prince of Wales inspecting the Boys.

Digitized by Google

first and main purpose is the salvation of the souls of men—the men who do their business in the ocean highways and by-ways of the world."

With such a statement as that it only needs a little imagination to realize how great is the work of this Society, and what a tremendous loss it would be if such work were even suspended, not to say abandoned. To further quote from the Report that our readers may have some idea of the scope of this Society's operations: "The great Port of London is the busiest in the world and there, radiating from the Society's Headquarters, a wonderful work for sailors is accomplished. At Aberdeen and Adelaide, at Belfast and Buenos Aires, at Cardiff and Calcutta, at Dublin and Dunedin, at Falmouth and Fremantle, at Glasgow and Geelong, at Hamburg and Hobart, at Londonderry and Las Palmas, at Manchester and

The late Mr. John Sanderson.

Monte Video, at Newcastle and Nagasaki, at Plymouth and Port Lyttleton, at Weymouth and Wellington, and at Antwerp, Bermuda, Durban, the Baltic Ports, Malta, North Sydney, Montreal, Lagos, Naples, St. John, Vancouver, Victoria, and in many other ports, both at home and overseas, the flag of the Society is flying and seafarers find a home and friends."

To these our noble allies in the cause of our Holy Religion we say, "God-speed." Israel-Britain is fulfilling her destiny, and such a Society as this is surely one of many witnesses to the great truth of the Bible and to the faithfulness of God in the fulfilment of all His promises. J. G.

OBITUARY.

THE LATE MR. JOHN SANDERSON.

WE regret to report the death of Mr. John Sanderson, of Durham, who on May 10th passed on at the age of 79. For over fifty years he was a believer in British-Israel Truth, and addressed meetings on the subject long before the B.-I.-W.F. was inaugurated; he never missed an opportunity of spreading the Gospel of the Kingdom. A staunch Evangelical Churchman, for nearly fifty years he occupied the position of Superintendent of the Sunday School at St. Nicholas' Church, Durham. The Vicar, at the funeral service, paid a very fine tribute to his life work, quoting "Steadfast, unswervable, always abounding in the work of the Lord," showing how aptly the text applied to him. Mr. Sanderson was the father of Mrs. L. Davies, the Honorary Secretary of our Durham Branch, to whom we tender our sincere sympathy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—Will you kindly explain the last four verses in the 9th chapter of the Book of Daniel?—G. T. L.

ANSWER.—Your question deals with one of the most profound and far-reaching of all the prophecies in Holy Scripture. Known as the great prophecy of "the Seventy Weeks," it is, as it were, the spiritual hub of the prophetic universe, and the one great prophecy which bridges the gulf between the Old Covenant and the New, and which at the same time centres round the atoning and redemptive work of Christ, "the Holy One of Israel."

Two interpretations have been offered by Bible students—the Futurist and the Historical. The former must be rejected, since it postpones the last or 70th week into an indefinite future, not having as yet been fulfilled, according to that interpretation. But the historical interpretation sees the seventy weeks as an unbroken and consecutive period of time, yet divided up into 7 + 62 + 1 weeks (Daniel ix, 25-27). It is clearly obvious that the Futurist interpretation would make the period much more than seventy weeks in all, since if the 70th week has not yet been fulfilled, the intervening period between the Crucifixion of Christ and (let us say) His Second Coming—i.e., an unknown period of over nineteen centuries—would make it a prophecy of hundreds of weeks, instead of seventy.

On the other hand, the "continuous-historical" system of interpretation sees a consecutive, unbroken, continuous and consistent line of thought, vision and fulfilment, which continues from Genesis to Revelation, as its fulfilment in history to date confirms.

Hence we have to look for an unbroken and consecutive series of "seventy weeks" in the pages of Biblical history, ascertaining the date of its commencement, which will give us the date of its termination. Also we have to determine what is meant by the word "weeks," and the meaning of the division of the period into three consecutive parts of 7, 62 and 1 weeks. For long years after the pronouncement of Daniel's great prophecies the problem remained an enigma, nor did the dark days of the persecution of Antiochus Epiphanes offer any satisfactory solution. But the "signs of the times" began to awaken the devout minds of such earnest Hebrews as Simeon and Anna, who, with the Holy Ghost upon them, were "waiting for the consolation of Israel," and were looking "for redemption in Jerusalem" (Luke ii, 21-38). They therefore expected to see the fulfilment of Daniel's prophecy in their day, when the Messiah should "be cut off, but not for Himself," and when "He shall confirm the covenant with many for one week." It gradually became clear that the word "weeks" must mean more than seventy series of seven days each, and that the whole period of seventy weeks was a very long period indeed. Hence it might mean seventy months, or seventy years, or seventy weeks of years. The two former would also appear to be too short a period of time, so by elimination, seventy weeks of years, i.e., one great Sabbath year of seven times seventy years, i.e., 490 years, seemed to be the only possible solution, and furthermore a solution which seemed to offer a period of time that seemed justly to span the centuries in accordance with the necessity of facts.

Digitized by Google

Now we are told that "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks and three score and two weeks" (Daniel ix, 25), i.e., sixty-nine prophetic weeks, which amounts to 483 years. But we are not told whether this refers to Our Lord's Birth or to His Baptism. As, however, two of the Gospels do not refer to Our Lord's Birth, and as St. Mark tells us that immediately after the Temptation (which followed the Baptism) "Jesus came into Galilee preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, and saying, The time is fulfilled, and the Kingdom of God is at hand" (Mark i, 14, 15), we are safe in concluding that the beginning of Our Lord's Ministry was the moment when the sixty-nine weeks had elapsed, and when therefore the time was fulfilled.

Now there were two decrees which were issued by Artaxerxes Longimanus for the rebuilding of Jerusalem; the one was in 458 B.C. (Ezra vii, 11) and the other in 444 B.C. (Nehemiah ii, 1-8). So the question arises, How are we to know from which of the two decrees the sixty-nine weeks were to be reckoned? But it is generally accepted that the Crucifixion took place in the year A.D. 29. Our Lord was therefore baptized at about the year A.D. 26, and this is exactly 483 years or "sixty-nine weeks" from 458 B.C., when calculated upon the solar reckoning.

But the year A.D. 29 is also exactly 486 lunar years from the year 444 B.C. That is, from the time of the decree of 444 B.C. until "the midst of the (70th) week" is exactly 69½ weeks of lunar years. Dr. Pusey says that, "the remaining 3½ years (half week) probably mark the time during which the Gospel was preached to the Jews, before the preaching to the Samaritans showed that the special privileges of the Jews were at an end, and that the Gospel embraced the world." (Lectures on Daniel the Prophet, p. 176.)

Hence, as prophesied, Christ, the Redeemer of Israel, "confirmed the covenant with many" (cf. Romans xv, 8) through the blood of His Cross, which eventually led to the cessation of the Jewish sacrifices, and to the break up of the Jewish nation. It may be noted that here (as elsewhere) the word "many" refers to the multitudinous and covenant seed of Abraham, while of course "the people of the prince that shall come" refer to Titus and the Roman armies, who destroyed the city and the Sanctuary of the Temple. The desolation that then fell upon the Holy Land had to endure until "the time of the end" (Daniel viii, 17, 19; xi, 35, 40; xii, 4, 9), which is gradually terminating in this generation, and extends until 1934, when "the times of the Gentiles shall be fulfilled" (Luke xxi, 24). For fuller information, references and prophetic Chart, see my Prophecy, the War, and the Near East (Fifth Edition), which, although out of print, can be studied in the Libraries.

B.-I.-W.F. QUEENSLAND BRANCH.

MR. VICTOR RIGBY, the Hon. Secretary, writes:—

"It is feared that many of our friends in England know very little about the great continent of Australia of which Queensland is a part. This continent is the oldest land surface on earth, and the land of great possibilities.

"In each State of the Commonwealth there are Branches of the Federation, and what we are hoping and striving for is to consolidate our work and link up closer together. This is a difficult task, because we have great distances to be travelled and a very scattered population except in the principal cities and towns.

"THE NATIONAL MESSAGE is eagerly looked for week by week, and much is being done by this paper to extend British-Israel Truth.

"In Brisbane the Annual Meeting of the Queensland Branch was held on April 10th, when the chair was taken by the President of the Branch, Mr. Arthur Exley, who also delivered the address—'Balaam's Prophecies, their fulfilment in these latter days.' The objects of the Federation were read by the Secretary, Mr. M. Victor Rigby. Reports were presented by the Secretary and Treasurer (Mr. A. G. Calow). The election of officers for 1929 took place and resulted in the re-election of the Executive officers.

"Since the beginning of February, one of the leading Brisbane daily papers—The Telegraph—has given us each Saturday two and three columns for the presentation of British-Israel Truth. This has aroused much interest and caused many enquiries to be made and also requests for literature.

"We look forward to receiving the 200 copies of the Special Number of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE for which we cabled six weeks ago, and our intention is to distribute these as widely as possible throughout the State of Queensland.

"The proclamation of British-Israel Truth will bring mankind to love and trust Almighty God, and help more than anything else to solve the great national problems confronting us to-day."

A PRAYER.

O LORD GOD of our Fathers, Who in Thy goodness hast led this people hitherto by wondrous ways, Who makest the nations to praise Thee, and knittest them together in the bonds of peace; we beseech Thee to pour Thy blessing on the Empire over which Thou hast called Thy servant George to be King. Grant that all, of whatever race or tongue, may, in prosperity and peace, be united in the bond of brotherhood, and in the one fellowship of the Faith, so that we may be found a people acceptable unto Thee; through Jesus Christ Our Lord.—Amen.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

No depressing effects of the General Election appeared among the goodly company that assembled at Waterloo Station in the early morning of June 1st to give Mr. and Mrs. Garrison a send-off when they joined the boat train for Southampton en route for Canada by the s.s. Empress of Australia. They certainly were anxious to "speed the parting guests" in a truly B.-I. optimistic spirit, and joyous because the Secretary-General was starting on a trip which is to combine a much-needed holiday with a Special Mission to our Branches in the Great Dominion and our supporters in the land of Brother Jonathan. No au revoirs could have been more buoyant. Had the hour been eleven or, say, noon, the company would possibly have been two or three times the size. "Bon voyage and God bless you" from the kerchief-waving group on the platform; "Carry on; God be with you until we meet again" from the carriage window, and the train went out of view. The two travellers sped on their way and those who had looked after them returned to No. 6 or to other homes to "CARRY ON."

* * *

The usual meeting will be held on Wednesday afternoon next, at 3 o'clock; the speaker will be Miss Hamilton Hunter.

* * *

On Thursday evening, June 20th, at 7.30, the Rev. Joseph Gay will commence a series of lectures on the "Acts of the Apostles."

* * *

Two special meetings were held last week at Headquarters, on Monday evening and Tuesday afternoon, addressed by Mr. Basil Stewart. The subjects dealt with were "Traditions concerning the Great Pyramid" and "The Great Pyramid and the Egyptian Book of the Dead." The first was a co-ordination of many traditions of the origin and purpose of the Great Pyramid from Egyptian, Arabian and other sources, showing these to be perverted versions of the true purpose. The second pointed out the common allegory enshrined in both, truly preserved in the Pyramid, but perverted in the Book of the Dead. Mr. John Leech presided at both meetings.

* * *

The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson lectured on "The Citizenship of Israel" at the Headquarters' meeting last Wednesday afternoon.

* * *

On Thursday evening last, at Headquarters, Mr. J. J. Morey gave a delightfully interesting account (necessarily condensed) of his recent visit to Palestine, Egypt and other places. A large audience gathered for this meeting, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the speaker's usual clear and entertaining style. Mr. W. Pilcher presided.

* * *

In connection with our Tenth Annual Congress, opening on September 30th, there will be, as usual, railway vouchers in any number required for those of our members and friends coming from a distance, entitling the holder to a ticket at the ordinary single fare and one-third for the double journey, available from September 28th to October 14th, or for any intermediate dates. The Metropolitan, Metropolitan District and London Electric Railways are not included in the arrangement.

On May 28th Mr. Morey addressed the Bristol Branch on the occasion of their Annual Meeting. There were about 200 members present. The retiring officers were all re-elected: the new Model Rules for Branches were adopted; the financial and secretarial reports were very satisfactory, and the Branch was shown to be in a very healthy condition. On the 29th Mr. Morey gave two lectures at Nailsea, where good audiences assembled and great interest was evinced in our subject.

* * *

The need of a Junior Department of the Federation has long been felt, and the demand for such a Department has lately been very much accentuated. We are glad to be able to announce that steps are being taken for the formation of a British-Israel Young People's Crusader Movement in the near future. Further information on the matter will shortly be published in these columns.

* * *

We would offer another reminder to our readers of the very important Convention to be held during the last week in August at Llandrindod Wells, Mid-Wales. We have received quite a number of names of those who purpose to attend; still we would like to have many more. We are pleased to announce that on the Wednesday of that week, August 28th, Mr. J. J. Morey will deliver a lecture based on his recent tour to Egypt and Palestine under the title "Palestine and the Near East." It will be profusely illustrated by a splendid set of moving pictures taken by Alderman C. E. Dearden, J.P., Mayor of Rochdale, who was a member of the party. The programme of speakers is now complete and will be posted to the delegates together with their railway vouchers. Copies will also be sent to all who make application for them.

* * *

The Seventh Annual Meeting has recently been held in Yarmouth, presided over by Mr. J. McDermott. The annual reports were passed and the retiring Committee re-elected. The report was presented by the Secretary, Mr. J. J. Hall. A vote of thanks was accorded to the speakers, the hostesses and to the Hon. Secretary.

* * *

My friend, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Yates, kindly gives me permission to publish the following extracts from an address which he gave at the meeting of the Baptist Colonial Mission, reported in the Baptist Times:—

"Truly it is an amazing thing to contemplate—this

FAR-SPREAD BRITISH HOLD UPON THE WORLD.

"Nobody could have foreseen the British destiny. An island people becoming responsible for one-quarter of the surface of the globe and one-quarter of the population of the world. It depends upon more than government and statesmanship. It depends upon character and religion. It is so astonishing, this world-hold of Britain, that we have taken a long time to grasp the fact that we had all this on our hands. We did not mean most of it, and if ever blind were led in a way they knew not, it is the British people.

Digitized by Google

" I, at least, am not able to read how it came about and not see God behind it, and that there is a high purpose of God in it and a high mission for our race in the world. . . . .

" But we British have had a wonderful succession of servants of Empire who have been animated by a passionate desire and determination to make this free Commonwealth of Nations, owning the British name and allegiance, the most potent of all instruments for the ennoblement of mankind. Do not let us forget these and the way they have lived and served. They pioneered where there was nothing but their own wits to guide them and their own character to sustain them. Their simplicity of life, their steady straightness, the way they kept the idea of a pure home in lands where the very name was unknown, the manner in which they upheld the sanctities of marriage and held quietly, in new surroundings and amid new perils and precariousness, to the finest things in the soul of the Homeland, put them among the heroic of the sons and daughters of men. Salute the pioneers !

"We recognize that the Empire has not been built on economic considerations merely or on ties of kinship even, but on great spiritual values. I own to a new conviction forced upon my mind in 30,000 miles of travel in the last year, of the power and beneficence of that love of justice and truth, those ideals of freedom, which, with a thousand faults and backslidings, have characterized the British rule and stock. Not in might nor wealth nor even wisdom lies strength of Empire, but in the character of the people, and behind the character of the people there is always the religion of the people. A great religious ideal is bound up with our British history. If we now forget it or neglect it, we go the way of the nations that forget God. We speak of links of Empire and there are many. A common speech, a common literature—but greatest by far a common religion. You must have right human material, and you don't have that in a secularized and materialized people.

" It is not easy to visualize the claim our folk have on us who are of the far dominions. For one thing we do not realize how much we are to them and count for them. I spent one long hot afternoon in a little hall far out in the Australian bush. It was filled with ministers, evangelists, farmers and farm hands, and I let them ask me questions all the time. They rattled at me like machine guns, and, they were all questions about home. Home, I had to say to them, you people break me down. I never heard anyone say ' Home ' as you say it, and some of you have never been there at all. One old man said, ' I am 70 and I have never been home. I never shall now. But I still dream of it, and I would rather walk down a Devon lane than walk the streets of Heaven. My mother was Devon.'

" The very notices on the Post Office wall read, ' Home mail leaves or arrives on such a day.' I wish we had the same interest in those far away as they have in us, and cease to think of them as men and women in foreign lands, but as part of the big British family to which we belong, for that is what they are, with a passion we can hardly comprehend.

" As for their

NEEDS, RELIGIOUS AND SPIRITUAL,

it is difficult for us to take in what the distances and loneliness of the back blocks mean in the way of spiritual deprivation and of struggle to keep the old dear things that are in the blood of the best.

" I heard of a homestead where the nearest Church of any kind is 100 miles away. In that remote place every Sunday morning the farmer takes his children dressed in their Sunday best up to the boundary line between their land and the nearest farm. Then looking out toward that nearest Church 100 miles away, just as a Mohammedan turns to Mecca and a Jew to Jerusalem, they sing a simple hymn and say the Lord's Prayer and then tramp home. . . . . In the strength of that meat they would go for many a month.

" Without doubt Australia is destined to affect mightily the fortunes of the world that is being born—the mighty world of an awakened East. Therefore this claim on us for Christian witness and culture is no claim merely of kinship. It belongs to Christian statesmanship. It is part of the strategy of the Kingdom of God.

" Rightly seen it is a

THING OF SPLENDOUR

which rises to our vision. It is nothing less than our part in helping our British race to give to God the wide Empire He has trusted to us, ' an offering due to His Name.'

" It is what we want to do with this federation of free nations who own the British name. It is a conviction worth cherishing, that our ancient race, rich in tradition, mighty in achievement, with the dew of its youth still on it, may in building an Imperial Commonwealth be forerunner of that still more august Imperialism—the only Imperialism cleansed from dross and free from danger—the Imperialism which knows no boundaries save those set forth in the Scriptures."

* * *

At the Blackheath Branch on May 31st the Rev. Gregory Bestall gave a refreshing and interesting address under the subject heading of " British-Israel Truth." Mr. W. A. Jordan presided.

* * *

Friends visiting London are cordially invited to use the Reading and Rest Room at Headquarters ; teas are served here from 4 to 5.30, ladies of the Auxiliary acting as hostesses.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BATH, 5, Argyle Street, Sunday, 16th, at 3. Mr. Orr Walker.
CAMBRIDGE, St. Andrew's Hall, Tuesday, 18th, at 3 and 8. Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A.
HORNSEY and CROUCH END, Earl Haig Memorial Hall, Elder Avenue, Tuesday, 18th, at 8. Miss Dickinson.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 18th, at 7.30. Mr. F. W. Lythe.
LEICESTER, S.S. Memorial Hall, New Walk, Monday, 17th, at 7.45. Questions.
PLUMSTEAD, St. James' Church Vestry, Burrage Road, Thursday, 20th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
PRESTON, Lancs, Cafe Orient, Thursday, 20th, at 7.30. Mr. G. R. Gair.
PUTNEY, 12, Ravenna Road, Monday, 17th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
RHYMNEY, B.-I. Hall, Tuesday, 18th, at 7.
SHEFFIELD, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 19th, at 7.30.
STRATFORD, St. Mark's Church, Windmill Lane, Monday, 17th, at 8. Rev. C. W. Cooper, M.A.
SUTTON, Adult School, Benhill Avenue, Tuesday, 18th, at 3 and 8.15.
SYDENHAM, 4, College Mansions, Sydenham Park Road, Monday, 17th, at 3.30. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
WATFORD, 20, St. Albans Road, Friday, 14th, at 7.45. Annual General Meeting. Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, Chairman.

Digitized by Google

INEXPENSIVE HELPS.

BOOKLETS ARE CHEAP, BUT THEIR VALUE MUST NOT BE JUDGED BY THEIR PRICE. THE FOLLOWING SELECTION WILL PROVE OF IMMENSE VALUE AT SMALL COST.

WHAT IS B.-I. TRUTH?	1d.
AN APPEAL TO THE CLERGY	2d.
MONOGRAPH OF BENJAMIN	2d.
MONOGRAPH OF LEVI	2d.
BRITAIN'S IMPERIAL DESTINY	2d.
THE CASE FOR BRITISH-ISRAEL	2d.
WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES IT MAKE?	2d.
ESTHER—A KEYSTONE OF THE BIBLE	2d.
THE KINGDOM OF GOD	2d.
ST. GEORGE OF MERRY ENGLAND	2d.
THE BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER	3d.
THE BRITISH EMPIRE	3d.
THE ROYAL HOUSE OF BRITAIN	3d.
THE CORONATION STONE	3d.
PALESTINE'S FUTURE	3d.
THE UNION JACK	3d.
ISRAEL IN THE NEW TESTAMENT	3d.
THE BOASTFUL OLIVE BRANCHES	3d.
BRITISH ANCESTORS—WERE THEY HEBREWS?	4d.
DRUIDISM IN BRITAIN	4d.
NAMES GOD GAVE TO ISRAEL	4d.
THE EARLY BRITISH CHURCH	4d.

CUT OUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT OR ASK FOR "PARCEL No. 3," ENCLOSE P.O. OR CHEQUE FOR 4/- AND THE ABOVE BOOKLETS WILL BE FORWARDED POST FREE.

P.O.s AND CHEQUES SHOULD BE CROSSED "&/CO."

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

FOR SALE. SINGLY OR OTHERWISE.

1,000 Fine Hand-Coloured and Uncoloured Gravures after the originals by a Photographic Artist. Price 2/3 each. or 24/- per Dozen.

The subjects cover a wide field of panoramic and rural scenes, embodying (in the coloured Gravures) a series of really delightful colours, applied with an accuracy that rivals Nature. Canadian and British scenes are brought to your home, so vivid is the portrayal achieved by the Artist.

The Gravures are beautifully mounted, each measuring 8 inches by 6 inches, the total measurements, with mount, being 13½ inches by 10 inches.

They are being sold at a sacrifice, as each Gravure is worth at least 3/6.

Apply to Box S/T, National Message and Banner, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

THE ARTIST IS A KEEN B.-I. BELIEVER.

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER.

GAIN YOUR KNOWLEDGE THROUGH THE MEDIUM OF B.-I. LITERATURE. WHEN QUESTIONED, BE IN A POSITION TO ANSWER WITH AUTHORITY. THE FOLLOWING BOOKS WILL GRANT YOU THAT AUTHORITY

A MASTER KEY TO THE BIBLE	6d.
THE BIBLE AND THE BRITISH RACE	6d.
THE SIMPLE TRUTH	6d.
OUR HERITAGE: THE BIBLE	6d.
THE TORN CLOAK (for young people)	6d.
COUNTERBLAST	6d.
LIBRA	6d.
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE OF THE BIBLE	9d.
THE BIBLE BASIS OF B.-I. TRUTH	1/-
B.-I. FACTS NOT FANCIES	1/-
PROPHETIC LIGHT ON WORLD DESTINY	1/-
THE BOOK AND OUR EMPIRE	1/-
BRITISH-ISRAEL A.B.C.	1/-
GREAT BRITAIN GREAT	1/-
THE STORY OF OUR BRITISH ANCESTORS	1/-

CUT OUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT, OR ASK FOR "PARCEL No. 4," ENCLOSE P.O. OR CHEQUE FOR 10/- AND THE ABOVE BOOKS WILL BE FORWARDED POST FREE.

P.O.s AND CHEQUES SHOULD BE CROSSED "&/CO."

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

JUNE 22, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24·7

Gt BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID — 1ST CHRON 29 v 23 — JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN .... EGYPT" Is 19 v 19·20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J.J.HALL 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sewest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

TAMAR TEPHI

OR

THE MAID OF DESTINY

The Great Romance of the Royal House of Britain

BY

JOHN DUNHAM-MASSEY

A masterly exposition on the text "For thus saith the Lord, David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of Israel."

Price 4s. 6d. By Post 4s. 9d.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO. LTD.
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1

HOTEL BERKELEY

63-67, QUEENSBOROUGH TERRACE
HYDE PARK, LONDON, W.2
PARK 1797.
Two minutes Kensington Gardens, Buses and Tubes.
HOT AND COLD RUNNING WATER.
GAS FIRE ALL BEDROOMS. PASSENGER LIFT.
Noted for Healthy Position, Quiet, Cleanliness,
EXCELLENT FOOD AND ATTENDANCE.
Terms from 3 gns. per week, including Four Meals, Baths, Light and Attendance; from 10s. 6d. daily.
NO EXTRAS.

SEND FOR PROSPECTUS. POST FREE.

Our Great Heritage

WITH ITS RESPONSIBILITIES. HOW AND WHERE TO FIND THE TITLE DEEDS.

By W. T. F. JARROLD.

Showing how God's promises to Abraham 2005 B.C. are being fulfilled in our Nation, Dominions, and Indian Empire, showing God's promises to King David fulfilled in the Royal House of Great Britain.

Crown 8vo., cloth gilt, 5/- net (post 6d.), with 31 illustrations.

The Times.—"His theory illumines much that is otherwise dark in the Bible, and gives meaning to modern history."

National Message.—"It can be said that in no other single book written on the subject can be found such an overwhelming collection of cumulative evidence."

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

THE TRAIL OF CAIN

is traced from the Adamic Creation in

SARGON THE MAGNIFICENT

By Mrs. SYDNEY BRISTOWE (Author of "The Oldest Letters in the World").

By a masterly analysis of the translations of the most recently discovered cuneiform inscriptions, the author deduces the identity of Sargon with Cain the murderer. With fascinating logic she describes the alliance of Cain with the forces of evil, and from these premises furnishes new evidence strongly corroborating the Bible Story of the development of the descendants of Adam.

SARGON THE MAGNIFICENT

Has earned a place in every serious library as a real contribution towards true faith in God's Word and the destruction of the higher criticism.

Price 5/- By Post 5/4

The Covenant Publishing Co. Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 390. Vol. VIII. JUNE 22nd, 1929 Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XVII. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	385
NOTES ON IRELAND.—III. By Professor Edward Odlum, M.A., B.Sc., &c.	387
THE DIVINE ADMINISTRATION. An Address delivered at the May Meetings, May 23rd, 1929. By the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.	388
THE ENGLISH CHARACTER THROUGH FOREIGN EYES. Two Striking Tributes	390
WAS JESUS THE SON OF GOD?—III. By Henry D. Houghton	391
THE SYNONYMOUS WORDS USED IN THE BIBLE FOR "MAN"	393
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH—I. By S. E. Steele	394
WESLEY BIBLE UNION. Annual Meetings	395
BRITISH-ISRAEL—FACT OR FALLACY?—I. By the Vicar of Burley	396
EXCAVATIONS AT UR	397
INSPIRATION	397
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	398

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XVII.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

We now enter the consideration of the last chapter of Daniel. Let us call to mind that it is the Lord Who is speaking to Daniel. In a Divine foreview He has produced beforehand all the links in the chain of history which run along the line of the northern and southern divisions of the kingdom of Alexander, and this right down to the present age.

It does not concern us much to identify each of the links. Those who desire to do so may find a very useful presentation in the margin of the Schofield Bible. The purpose of the chain was and is to show to us in these days of "the time of the end" the ethnological division of the last great international struggle. That struggle goes on between "the king of the north" and "the king of the south," the modern representatives of the two ancient kingdoms which formed parts of the Empire of Alexander the Great. Therefore, the parties to that final conflict must be looked for within the ethnological groupings of the Continental Empires, north and south, and by no means in the Anglo-Saxon peoples.

There is a mark identifying the king of the north, given at the end of the ages. "He shall plant the tabernacle of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain." "Between the seas" signifies between the Mediterranean and the Dead Seas. "In the glorious holy mountain" can only mean Moriah or Olivet. Further, the palace must be erected by the king of the north, and not by any other person. It is not a palace for permanent residence, but a "tabernacle" or temporary dwelling-place.

Has any king, being one of the last to hold the power of the king of the north, erected such a palace in such a location?

"On the glorious holy mountain" from which Our Lord ascended, and to which He will come again in that day when His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives, the former Kaiser erected his palace.

After the war this palace was occupied as the Government House of Britain, until the earthquake shook the Governor out of it. Now it stands a ruin, uninhabitable. Is not this one of the pointers of prophecy which enables us to ascertain our progress, like milestones by the roadside, to tell us of the progress of our journey?

Now what shall take place at the end of that period Our Lord has thus been making known to us through His servant Daniel.

"AND AT THAT TIME SHALL MICHAEL STAND UP, THE GREAT PRINCE WHICH STANDETH FOR THE CHILDREN OF THY PEOPLE. . . ."

This is the point to which the Lord has been leading our thought. Strangely enough, the details of the prophecy stop here. The Lord goes on to say, "and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book."

Thus we are assured that there shall be a time of trouble. But who is it that shall cause the trouble? and what nations shall be involved? "The king of the north" versus "the king of the south" reckoned from the ancient Grecian Empire.

"And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people . . . and at that time thy people shall be delivered, EVERY ONE that shall be found written in the book."

Digitized by Google

The deliverance of " thy people " is manifestly the mission of Michael, the great prince. We remember that the words are being spoken by the Lord. He is already personally engaged in the matter. He the Son of man, leading the regenerated sons of man ; He the Seed of the woman, leading the redeemed among the seed of the woman, is already engaged with all His forces in this heavenly-earthly war. The struggle has lasted millenniums, and " the time of the end " has now come. Now Satan and his forces on earth, arrayed under the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet, are busy gathering " the kings of the earth and of all the world to the battle of the great day of God Almighty." To aid these Satan has brought all the angels which follow his banner in the world of spirits. The array of forces would bring our people to the verge of panic through fear, well-grounded and reasonable, if they were able to estimate the forces which are gathering for their destruction ; gathering even now when our people are busy crying " peace and safety."

The Lord is organizing His forces on earth ; and He will bring with Him the righteous saints who have passed to Him through the gateway of death. Thus will all the Israel forces from Abraham to this day, and even beyond that from Seth the " Appointed seed " to this day, be assembled for the " last great fight of all." This would give a line-up as men opposed to men and devils. That is to say, the hosts of the Redeemed under the command of the Lord of Hosts, against the hosts of ungodly men and devils under the command of Satan.

" At that time shall Michael stand up," and all his angelic hosts with him. Thus angel hosts are opposed to angel hosts, leaving the earth field clear for the strife between men and men.

What a conjunction is here ! And what a wonderful thing that it is brought in as the logical and expected thing in world history at this " time of the end."

" At that time thy people shall be delivered, every one . . ." It is a personal, individual deliverance. Reference is made to the " book." Doubtless the book here meant is the genealogical lists of the people of God, including those who through descent and heart loyalty to God have their birthright in Israel ; and those who have come in by an act of faith, and so by adoption have had their names written in the book of life. Remember, it is earthly liberty and freedom that is at stake here. It is not the salvation of the soul in this instance. For that all must trust in the Atonement provided by Jesus Christ Our Lord.

In the time of the king of Persia Michael came to the help of the Lord, as the Lord Himself declares. Now he comes again with all his forces, and the combination is irresistible.

The non-Israel world will be involved in a whirlwind of trouble, self-induced and deadly. In the last analysis the trouble is being, even to-day, planned against Britain and America. But the angel guard will protect the boundaries of our nations, and the terrible adversaries will be found struggling together for a coveted prize, which God has already disposed of, and which, under no circumstances, can ever be theirs.

Deliverance FOR ISRAEL is here indicated by Our Lord.

THE RESURRECTION.

" And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.

" And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament ; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."

What a glorious ending is here indicated, or rather what a period of glorious beginning, God's people thus entering into life eternal from the resurrection standpoint.

No further revelation is now to be given to Daniel. He was commanded :—

" But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end : many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.

" Then I Daniel looked, and, behold, there stood other two, the one on this side of the bank of the river, and the other on that side of the bank of the river.

" And one said to the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders ?

" And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and sware by him that liveth for ever that it shall be for a time, times, and an half ; and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished.

" And I heard, but I understood not : then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things ?

" And he said, Go thy way, Daniel : for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end.

" Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried ; but the wicked shall do wickedly : and none of the wicked shall understand ; but the wise shall understand.

" And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.

" Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.

" But go thou thy way till the end be : for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days." (The final question of time.)

We shall not attempt to do exact work in connection with these three time indications. As we have seen before they are to be taken as covering " the time of the end." This is the time called by the Apostle Paul " The DISPENSATION of the fulness of times." As the times started away in succession, so they will end in succession. Moreover, there are two systems of time measure, one Western and the other Eastern ; one solar, the other lunar, and the time is indicated by both systems.

" A time, times, and an half." This period is measured by solar time, used in the West during the last time, times, and an half, and equals 1,260 years. It is the second half of the great seven times of prophecy, the time of the " little horns " of Moslem and Papal power. " From the time of the setting up of the abomination which maketh desolate, 1,290 days." This is a measure taken from a definite point in history, and seems to be measured by solar time. Mohammed took over

Digitized by Google

Jerusalem in A.D. 637—add 1,290 years, and we are brought to the last complete year of the Antechamber of the Great Pyramid, namely A.D. 1927. Inasmuch as 1,290 goes beyond 1,260 solar and 1,335 lunar years, it seems that the 1,290 measure precedes the latter because of classification as solar years. "Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days." This is the Eastern Mohammedan measure. It is lunar time, equal to 1,260 years of solar time. So by Western measure, first used, in the "Time, times, and an half" we have twelve hundred and sixty days. So by Eastern time we have 1,335 lunar years, which are the equal of 1,260 solar years.

By each measurement the result is the same. By one application of the seven times' measure = 2,520 years, divided into two measures each of 1,260 years; so we have Jerusalem delivered at the end of 2,520 years, coincident with the end of the last 1,260 years of prophecy.

We have the same date and event at the end of the second series of 1,335 years in 1917.

Now as the first statement of the "time, times, and an half" is measured by the Western calendar, it is to be supposed that the second number 1,290 is likewise measured by Western or solar time. Thus, as we have seen, we have the date 1927, which brings us to the end of the Antechamber of the Great Pyramid. The half of the seven times is described in several ways, namely, "time, times, and an half," 1,260 days (years), 42 months; and 1,335 days (years).

The 1,290 years is straight counting by solar or lunar time from an historic event. What happens at this time?

"And at that time shall Michael stand up."

So far this wonderful foretelling of history goes.

Then comes the command, "But go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days."

What a statement is this! "Thou shalt stand in thy lot at the end of the days . . ." which days were more than two thousand years after the time in which Daniel was receiving this vision.

Thus Our Lord Jesus Christ relates His own following to His own endless life. Thus the followers of Our Lord can look upon this present life and activity as simply a preliminary to that which, on a larger scale, is yet to come.

Thus are the departed dead reassured of the fact that they will be privileged to take up again interest and activity in the affairs of the regenerated earth.

There seems to be no finality in the Book of Daniel. It tells an interim story of history only. The future will go forward when the great seven times traversed by the Book of Daniel has passed into history.

In the meantime we have received through John the Revelator a second book continuing a more full statement of the last half of the great story of world history. The book sealed to Daniel was opened by Our Lord Jesus Christ when He took the seven-sealed book from the "Hand of Him that sat upon the throne," as we read in the fourth and succeeding chapters of Revelation. But even that later book is prophetic of then future things. It is given to us to be in process of receiving a third book carrying forward the same story. This time it is in the form of history, as the things told by Daniel and by St. John are being enacted before our eyes on the great stage of world affairs.

Still there is a residuum of prophecy to be fulfilled.

The Stone must "become a great mountain and fill the whole earth." The process is advancing rapidly. But there is much more to do in this regard.

The Tabernacle must be cleansed.

The saints of the Most High must yet take the Kingdom and possess the Kingdom for ever.

The Lord must Himself take the throne of His Father David.

The dead in Christ must arise, and the living in Christ must be translated. The great Millennial Sabbath must arrive in due process of time, at the end of the century in which we are now living.

How strange that these things, so long held as doctrines, should now be in process of becoming living history. The days in which we are living, called in Daniel "the time of the end," are pregnant with great, and still greater, events which shall demonstrate to the learned that nature is not the controlling power in the earth, but that the God of nature intervenes according to His Will, ever bringing in one higher plane of life and activity after another, until His people are taken into the desired relationship to Himself wherein "They shall see His face, and His name shall be in their foreheads." "And God himself shall dwell with them and be their God."

NOTES ON IRELAND.—III.

By PROFESSOR EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc., &c.

MACKENZIE tells that Partholan made the first division of Ireland. He was a Cymric Scythian, and came from Greece. He divided the island into four parts. He and most of his 9,000 followers died of a plague.

MacKenzie seems to think the Fomorians, or Sea Pirates from Africa, were Shemites. If so, then it would appear reasonable to conclude the early struggles in Ireland for mastery were carried on chiefly by Shemitic peoples.

In early times, first-fruit offerings were a custom in Ireland. This was a Semitic Hebrew usage in Bible times.

MacKenzie says a dolechocephalic Iberian people dwelt in Britain. Both Ireland and the large island, now comprising England, Scotland and Wales, were called Britain in early times. The so-called Iberians of Britain, Spain and the Mediterranean shores, in all probability, were Iverim, Everim, or Hebrews. How natural and logical if the Hebrews who left Palestine and were scattered by war among many nations were to journey across the Mediterranean to Spain, the British Isles, and among the many Grecian colonies. In such case we would not be surprised to read of the Everim in Ireland, the Hebrides north of Scotland, the Ebro River south of the Pyrenees in Spain, the Iberian Peninsula comprising Spain and Portugal, also many other Hebrew names.

If these Everim, or Hebrews, settled in Ionia, and were known as Milesians when they turned up in Ireland, it would not be strange, but quite natural.

The Danaans and Firbolgs of Ireland descended from the Nemedian Milesian stock, which undoubtedly belonged to the Scythic-Hebrew stock.

Digitized by Google

The Saxons, in due time, settled in Ireland, Scotland and England.

Wilikind, a monk of the 10th century, states that the Saxons held that they were derived from Greece.

Keating says some affirm that the Scots were of Grecian origin. Both statements are founded on fact.

MacKenzie says the Danaans gave the Firbolgs four cities. Many of the latter migrated to Scotland, and tradition says they took the Lia Fail with them. This is the famous Stone of Destiny. After seven years in Scotland, large numbers of these Firbolgs trekked back to Ireland.

The Danaans were men of science, and claimed a divine ancestry. When the Scythian Goths conquered Scandinavia, there was a large exodus across the North Atlantic to the British Isles. MacFirbis says the Danaans were fair-haired, vengeful, large, plunderers, musical, professors of musical and entertaining performances, and were adepts in all Druidical and magic arts.

The following reference to the Danaans in Ireland is most interesting:—"The first glimpse we get of the Danaans in the Irish texts reveals them as a resplendent throng, waiting on a green knoll to receive and warn of their danger the intruding Milesian Scots.

"They were in bright raiment and themselves more glorious than the dawn. There were among them three men of mighty stature, and one of them had hair like glistening silver. There were also three women, one majestic and gentle, one slender and very graceful; and the third had thoughtful brows that seemed to read the future. The voice of him who sat upon the crest of the knoll was as of distant thunder."

A certain Aed Enver, in the Irish text-books, boasts that he was of the race of Luprachan, a descendant of Dana, who in ancient days occupied Tara, the seat of the then Irish rule.

THE DIVINE ADMINISTRATION.

An Address delivered at the May Meetings, May 23rd, 1929.

BY THE REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.

IT cannot be too often insisted upon that Isaac, the son of Abram, the father of our race, was miraculously born. Unless one is prepared to discredit the narrative, this is the only conclusion possible. It is a fact of the utmost importance, and one which makes the subsequent history of the people which came as the result of that birth intelligible. The Divine administration of Israel arises as the natural consequence upon the Divinely-created Israel. We should have expected no other result following such a creation. He who creates, controls; that is only reasonable. The designer controls the design, the lawgiver the laws he gives.

In this connection it is easy to see why God gave to Himself the name of El Shaddai at the birth of Isaac, if so be that our etymology of the word be correct—"The nursing mother."

The Rev. L. E. P. Erith, who has vigorously, but unconvincingly, written against the British-Israel thesis, commenting upon this name of God in Dr. Gore's "New Commentary of Holy Scripture," says: "Many etymologies have been suggested for the meaning of Shaddai, but no Hebrew derivation is satisfactory; and it is probably to be explained from a Babylonian title of divinity in which the deity is addressed as ilu shadu'a = 'God my mountain.'"

If this be the correct derivation, then the name given by God to Himself at the birth of Isaac is absolutely meaningless. Isaac is born and God calls Himself a mountain. That makes nonsense. If this is a sample of Mr. Erith's scholarship we beg to say that we are not impressed by it. In a previous article in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, on the authority of Gesenius, the great Hebrew lexicographer, we traced the word "shad" back to a Hebrew derivation meaning "breast, or teat." This etymology not only gives good sense, but an illuminative interpretation to this important event, the Divinely-created Isaac. God causes Isaac to be born and names Himself the "Divine Mother." This name sheds a wonderful light upon the subsequent history of Israel, and not only makes the Divine administration intelligible, but natural; one which we should have expected. It would have been a great surprise if it had been otherwise. The Mother-God nourishes Her offspring and educates Her son (Hosea xi, 1) along the lines of Her own ordination.

The narrative, true to this original fact, relates how God, Himself, in person, superintends and determines all things relative to His people. The Divine administration becomes a revealed factor by the revelation of Jehovah's presence vouchsafed unto Moses in the incident of the Burning Bush. Prior to that the progeny of Jacob is, under a suitable environment in the land of Goshen, nursed into health and vigorous life; so healthy and vigorous that the subsequent superlative tribulation of those dark years in the Egyptian "House of Bondage" was not only unable to uproot and destroy the people, but aided, under the Divine direction, to establish them preparatory to their formation into a nation at Mount Sinai.

When that tribulation had run its course and the purpose of it achieved, then Jehovah—the Mother—came in person to conduct His people out of bondage into freedom.

The instruments of His administration in the first place were Moses and his brother Aaron. The sacred narrative is careful to show that, throughout the eventful lives of these two men, He was active. They were but His instruments. They speak and act always under His personal direction. During the whole of that tremendous fight which Moses had with Pharaoh, king of Egypt, Jehovah is personally present. This phrase is oft repeated: "And the Lord said unto Moses." At no times does Moses act without that Divine word. The Lord who thus speaks to and through His servant discloses Himself to His servant as "El Shaddai," who appeared unto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Not by the name of Jehovah was He known unto them but as "El Shaddai." Moses therefore knew that the God who was active in him, and through him, was the God of his fathers. He is also given to understand that the Divine administration which was now to take place rested upon the foundation of the Abrahamic covenant.

"I have heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians kept in bondage, and I have remembered My covenant." (Ex. vi, 5). This is of very great importance. God's covenant with Abraham (Gen. xv) is the foundation of His Divine administration.

"And He said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years; And also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge: and afterward shall they come out with great substance. And thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age. But in the fourth generation they shall come hither again; for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full. And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold a smoking furnace, and a burning lamp that passed between those pieces. In the same day the Lord made a covenant with Abram." (Gen. xv, 13-18.) Upon this Abrahamic covenant, then, the Divine administration rests. God remembered His covenant made with Abraham, and in consequence He appeared unto Moses in the Mount of God—Horeb.

Digitized by Google

The new name He gives to Himself, by which He was not known to the patriarchs, announces His intention personally to conduct His people from out the House of Bondage.

"What is His name?" (Ex. iii, 13.)
"I AM THAT I AM." (Ex. iii, 14.)
Or "I AM BECAUSE I AM."
Or "I AM WHO AM."
Or "I WILL BE WHAT I WILL BE."

It is GOD, Who is, and Who was, and Who is to come; the Almighty: Personally present. His administration then is direct, close and intimate. He does more than act through a human agent. He is Himself there, and the human agent is kept in personal contact with Him. That is so throughout Israel's entire journey to the Land of Promise. When the Commandments, Statutes and Laws of the Lord which had been given unto Abraham (Gen. xxvi, 5) were codified for the first time, Moses went into the Mount, and was closeted with God, and from the hands of God and from no other he received the law by which the Divine administration was to be translated into such terms as the people could understand and practise.

At no time in the history of Israel, according to the Bible, did God hand over this Divine administration, not even to His Son. The forms of expression may vary, and the human agent may change, but the Divine Administrator goes on through every age.

It is, however, instructive to note the varying forms of expression, and the ever-changing human agent, for in such and through such do we get an insight into God's progressive plan and consistent purpose.

THE VARYING EXPRESSION.

(a) The Law of Mount Sinai.

(b) The Law of Mount Calvary.

Sinai and all that Sinai stands for is a wonderful expression of this Divine administration. Though the Decalogue lies at its centre, it is much greater than that. Look at the Decalogue for a moment. The God of the Decalogue is He Who brought the Children of Israel out of Egypt. He is therefore the God of the Burning Bush, "I AM." He is the God Who from out the Burning Bush remembered His covenant with Abraham. There is no mistaking His identity. "I AM," that is a monotheistic concept. The Divine administration in this expression stamps Israel for ever as a monotheistic people: the people of one God.

Having thus established with great and prolonged emphasis the truth that there is but one God of all the earth, so important in view of the fact that all the other nations of the world held to the fallacy of many gods, the Decalogue proceeds to establish the rest-day on the principle that it is God's Day, and fixes upon the Israel nation a beneficent law which, if universally adopted, would lead more than aught else to the health, wealth and prosperity of all mankind. The Decalogue is stated in 17 verses, and eleven of these are devoted to God, the personal Creator of the world, and to His day of rest. The remaining six verses are devoted to the establishment of true relationships in the home, and the outside world. You have the sanctity of the home, "Honour thy father and thy mother . . . "; the sacredness of life, "Thou shalt do no murder." Moral obligations, "Thou shalt not commit adultery," "Thou shalt not steal," "Thou shalt not bear false witness," and "Thou shalt not covet."

Add to these Our Lord's two great positives whereby He sums up the whole force and purport of the Decalogue: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind . . . . . Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself"; and you get the Divine administration expressed in terms which the simplest can understand and the weakest can practise.

Though, as I have said, the Decalogue lies at the centre of the Sinai expression of this Divine administration it is by no means all which that expression contains. To cover the whole of that expression we would need to give careful thought and attention to the books of the law as they are set out in Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. Even then we shall not have fully compassed the whole of the expression, for the law of Mount Sinai, so large and so comprehensive is it, gathers up into itself the winnowed wisdom of Proverbs, the Preacher, the melody of the Psalter, and the foreknowledge of the Prophets. And when all this ground is covered and the greatness and vastness of the Sinaitic expression is revealed, the mind will realize that it is incomplete in itself. The law of Mount Calvary must follow. There the Divine administration reveals itself in terms of love so amazing and Divine. I am but following hard after the Apostle St. Paul when I speak of the law of Mount Calvary. "For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus made me free from the law of sin and death." (Romans viii, 2.)

If on Mount Sinai the Statutes, Ordinances and Commandments of the Lord were codified for the first time, though present in the earth from the beginning, so the sacrificial purposes of God which were from the beginning—"A Lamb slain from the foundation of the world"—took for the first time tangible form and shape, becoming thereby history, upon Mount Calvary. The Divine administration expressed thus in terms of the Atonement gives sanction to the truth we hold that Jesus Christ Our Lord is in very deed the Redeemer of Israel, and the Saviour of the world.

THE EVER-CHANGING HUMAN AGENT.

While there is the ever-varying expression there is also the ever-changing human agent; but the Divine Administrator moves on to His ultimate goal, Paradise regained, using both the varying expression and the human agent for the accomplishment of His Divine purpose.

Digitized by Google

Moses and Aaron are His agents for the creation of the Israel nation; Joshua for the entrance of that nation, when created, into their inheritance, promised unto them as the seed of Abraham; the Judges, and especially Samuel among the Judges, when that Divinely-created nation, having entered into their inheritance, settles down in it as their God-appointed place. Then there comes a change as radical as it is important when Samuel is instructed by the Divine Administrator to anoint David king over Israel. From this time forth the human agent becomes kingly and the kingdom is established in the earth.

Under this kingly head is arranged the Levitical priesthood on the one hand and the prophet on the other, each in his office a human agent working ever under the Divine administration.

Then comes a change drastically cataclysmic when the northern kingdom of Israel goes away into captivity, followed, after 120 years or so, by the southern kingdom of Judah. It would be easy to show, did time permit, how this individualistic human agent continues to act, sometimes with knowledge of, often without such knowledge, the Divine administration which is as personal in God, the great "I AM," through the intervening ages as in the days of which the Bible treats. Then, in the fulness of the times, that individual human agent becomes focused, as never before, in Jesus of Nazareth, into Whom the Christ of God, the Lord of Hosts, enters to become for all time the full and complete expression of the Divine administration upon earth. And from Him, and through Him, arises the Church.

But that human agency becomes, at one and the same time with the individual human agency, through the progressive ages, the channel of the Divine administration in the nation, the kingdom, the race (Anglo-Celto-Saxon), the world.

At no time in all this wonderful history does the great "I AM" hand over this Divine administration to any other. He has never withdrawn Himself from the closest and most intimate relationship with His Israel people.

I have said that in Jesus of Nazareth that individual human agent was focused as never before. That focusing will come again; for in the first the Divine administration was unto Saviourhood, in the second it will be unto Kingship (1 Cor. xv, 25; St. Luke i, 32).

THE ENGLISH CHARACTER THROUGH FOREIGN EYES.

TWO STRIKING TRIBUTES.

A LETTER FROM EGYPT.

WITH acknowledgments to the Times and to the Daily Mail, we quote two striking tributes.

The following is a translation of a letter, written by a small merchant at Mansurah, Egypt, which has been received by our Correspondent in Cairo:—

Happy for the recovery of His Majesty George V, by the Grace of God King of Great Britain, Emperor of India and Overseas, I respectfully and humbly present my hearty congratulations, through your paper, to T.M. the King and Queen, to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, to T.R.H. the Princes and to the valiant British nation, which is without equal in the world for its justice and wisdom. This is the happy feast of His Majesty's recovery which filled the world with rejoicing and illuminated the British nation and made it like a full moon.

Allah breathed his spirit on him and made him a pure King and I pray Allah the All Powerful to preserve His Imperial Majesty, the Queen, and the Princes in permanent good health with long life, and to preserve the Great British Kingdom for the world and humanity.—Your servant, whose love devotes him to you unto death,

S. HASSANEIN MOHAMED EL IRAQI.

—Times, May 22nd, 1929.

WHY I LIKE THE ENGLISH. BY A FRENCH GIRL OF 17.

Englishmen seem to me, physically speaking, very tall, straight and strong. Rarely slender, they are well-built, look healthy, and keep young very long.

Their looks are firm and grave. Young men are generally nice-looking, neater, and more agreeable to look at than the French.

Girls are uncommonly pretty, though not as graceful as French ones, but they look younger, and when smiling they are simply lovely.

Women, strong and well-built, have faces expressive of character, firmness, and goodness. They are kind and generous to other people, many of them are at the head of social works, and their influence is great and indisputable. Humanity may be proud of them.

English people of both sexes are very fond of exercise. This disposition is the reason and the origin of sport. Perhaps also their climate is the cause of that. The English climate is such a damp one that people must take more exercise to keep strong and fit.

Whatever the cause, it is pretty sure they love outdoor games. In every school pupils must play, as they must study. In these schooldays are built those strong fellows who are admired by everybody.

English character is good, firm, frank, and brave; these qualities are manly ones. When an Englishman says "I will not," it is not easy, not to say impossible, to make him change.

Notwithstanding their strong will, the English are nearly always good and kind to the poor, orphans, women, children, and beasts.

The English love animals. This fact cannot be argued about. We find dogs and cats in every English home; they are the favourites of the nursery, the living toys of baby, who learns to love them. (This last disposition was always a subject of wonder to me; in almost every French home parents forbid animals to approach very young children, which is very stupid.)

I believe Englishmen are able to understand nature. However, they rarely are artists; they feel the beautiful, they cannot express it.

After all, that is not bad. Men are formed according to the work they have to perform, the burden they have to bear.

Digitized by Google

Nature has made the English to be the pioneers of civilization, the apostles of progress.

With their strong but simple mentality, they look like giants with childish souls. Never discouraged, they push the progress wheel, and are the most courageous soldiers in the struggle for the best.—Daily Mail, May 23rd, 1929.

WAS JESUS THE SON OF GOD?—III.

By HENRY D. HOUGHTON.

JESUS was the Son of God as proved by the testimony of His disciples.

The disciples of Our Lord Jesus Christ had nothing to gain, but everything to lose, by declaring the Divinity of Our Lord.

He had specially warned them of the fearful sufferings and the persecutions that should come upon them by associating themselves with Him.

"They shall lay their hands on you, and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues, and into prisons, being brought before kings and rulers for My Name's sake. . . . And ye shall be betrayed both by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolks, and friends; and some of you shall they cause to be put to death.

"And ye shall be hated of all men, for My Name's sake."—Luke xxi, 12–18.

There was the clear warning of Our Lord, given to the disciples before His death, of the consequences of discipleship. And yet every one, with the exception of the traitor Judas, willingly took up the obligation, declaring in unmistakable terms His Divine Sonship, and took, at the risk of their lives, His side!

Look first at what St. John said, the beloved disciple who leaned on Jesus' breast.

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."—John i, 1.

There are no mightier words in all Scripture than those! And he has not said them carelessly, for he immediately follows them up.

"All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made."

The declaration there is that Christ was present at the Creation, and made the world and all things that are therein! A stupendous claim, and again in verse 10 he repeats it.

"He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not."

Not only does he declare these mighty things, but St. John asserts that Christ Jesus has power to make all men who believe in Him sons of God!

"But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His Name, which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of man, but of God."—John i, 1–13.

In those first eighteen verses of his Gospel St. John gives a brief epitome of the evidence which was to follow; and the whole of that Gospel is a marvellous opening up and proving that Christ is the Son of God. Till finally, when the whole wonderful story has been told, we read in chapter xx, 30, 31, the aim and purpose of it all.

"And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of His disciples which are not written in this book: but these are written" (what for?) "that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God: and that believing ye might have life through His Name."

So then the whole purpose for which the Gospel was written was to bring people up to this grand and glorious conviction, "CHRIST JESUS IS THE SON OF GOD," AND AS A CONSEQUENCE THAT THEY, EVERY ONE OF THEM, MIGHT HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE!

Now, if St. John has not established that fact beyond all dispute, then the whole of his remarkable Gospel goes for nothing; and further, if we have read that Gospel, and this truth for which it was specially written has not seized us, then we have not understood it at all!

Further still, there is no hope of our salvation, for St. John, in the verse just quoted, distinctly asserts that the only hope of the salvation of the human race is in believing and accepting Christ as the Son of God!

The writer is well aware of the vital nature of this statement. And on no account would he make it, but it is constantly asserted, confirmed and reiterated in the Word of God!

Nor does St. John in his wonderful Gospel differ from, or come into collision with, any of the other Scripture writers.

He simply makes that one thing the supreme object of his writing, and boldly tells us so; and the whole of the chapters that make up his work bear out the Apostle's startling and amazing claim, THAT CHRIST WAS THE SON OF GOD!

Nor did the Apostle John, in the later years of his life, ever swerve one iota from the stand he then took up.

In his first Epistle he takes up the same strain. "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, . . . and our hands have handled, of the Word of life: (For the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and shew unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us:)"—1 John i, 1–2.

Then, in ii, 22, 23, we read, "Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son."

"Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father." These verses make short work of modernism.

And again, iii, 23, "And this is His commandment, That we should believe on the Name of His Son Jesus Christ, and love one another."

And again, iv, 10, "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins."

Verse 14, "And we have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world." "Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God."—v. 15.

If all men are going to be tried and sifted by that verse, it will make some unexpected and revolutionary changes when the testing time comes.

"Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God," THAT IS THE VITAL TEST!

How will that affect the modernist who denies Christ's Divinity?

How will that affect the Anglo-Catholics, and even the

Digitized by Google

Roman Catholics, who, in spite of all their errors, do believe that?

How will that affect the various denominations with all their shades of belief, and especially the thousands in all the Christian Churches who cannot subscribe to it, and openly say they cannot?

Scripture declares most positively that there is no salvation apart from the acceptance of Christ as the Son of God!

"For there is none other Name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."—Acts iv, 12.

St. John finishes his Epistle with, "And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know Him that is true, and we are in Him that is true, EVEN IN HIS SON JESUS CHRIST. This is the true God, and eternal life."—1 John v, 20.

Now let us look what others said who saw Him.

St. John the Baptist: "Behold the Lamb of God."

Andrew: "We have found the Messias, which is, being interpreted, the Christ."—John i, 41.

Nathaniel: "Rabbi, Thou art the Son of God; Thou art the King of Israel."—v. 49.

Martha: "Yea, Lord, I believe that Thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world."—John xi, 27.

The Jews who persecuted Him: "We have a law, and by our law He ought to die, because He made Himself the Son of God."—John xix, 7.

The Roman centurion at the Crucifixion: "Truly this man was the Son of God."

St. Peter: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."—Matt. xvi, 16.

St. Peter at Pentecost: "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ."—Acts ii, 36.

And of the disciples it says: "And daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ."—Acts v, 42. Which means "Jesus as the Son of God!"

St. Peter, right at the very close of his life, still adheres to his confession of Christ as the Son of God, which he first made in the presence of Christ Himself. And in his second Epistle i, 16–18, he seems to anticipate the schism of the modernists of to-day and gives the antidote. Note how definite and clear is his testimony.

"For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye-witnesses of His Majesty.

"For He received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to Him from the excellent glory, This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with Him in the holy mount."

The original records of the transfiguration were by Matthew, Mark and Luke; but here St. Peter (who was present at the supernatural display) records it in his Epistle 34 years afterwards; confirming all Matthew, Mark and Luke have said, as to the heavenly vision and the Divine voice.

Now would it be fair to write all these eye-witnesses down as deceivers?

And what about that thrilling opening of the Epistle to the Hebrews?

"God who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, Hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son, whom He hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also He made the worlds; Who being the brightness of His glory, and the express image of His person, and upholding all things by the Word of His power, when He had by Himself purged our sins, sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high."

This strange writer to the Hebrews, whoever he was, there makes the most positive claim that Christ was Divine!

Did not Stephen, as he died, declare that he saw Him through the opened heavens?

Did not Saul hear His voice from heaven as he journeyed to Damascus? And was not he ever ready to testify the same before men, even kings?

Saul of Tarsus had not these writings of the Gospels before him, nor did he ever come in contact with Jesus!

Now, how was it possible under the circumstances for Saul to be convinced of the Divinity of this despised Nazarene?

A special revelation was sent to him direct from heaven, the sole object of which was to prove to Saul the Divinity of Our Lord.

When the light struck him down, and he heard a voice speaking to him, he said, "Who art Thou, Lord?"

And there came direct from heaven the declaration, "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest." This was by an audible voice, as Paul himself afterwards tells us.

Then when he had recovered his sight at the hands of Ananias, and was able to work, he began at once teaching and preaching that Jesus was the Son of God!

Before that, He was to him only a man, and the son of a man, exactly what the modernists preach and teach to-day! They have got no further than Saul had before he was stopped on the way to Damascus!

Look at the culminating point of Philip's teaching to the eunuch, as declared by the eunuch himself. "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." And so far as we know there was not another item in the eunuch's creed! Yet Philip immediately baptized him!

But if the eunuch had said as some preachers are saying to-day, "I believe that Jesus was the son of Joseph," WOULD THAT HAVE BEEN SATISFACTORY TO PHILIP, AND TO THE HOLY SPIRIT WHO SENT HIM? Assuredly not!

When Peter and John went into the Temple at the hour of prayer, and saw the man lame from his mother's womb being carried and laid daily at the gate called "Beautiful" to ask an alms, they actually began to use the Name of Jesus the Christ as a means of healing the impotent man! AND IT WORKED!

"Only a man" do you say? Then go down to the centre of your own city, where you live, and begin similar work by healing in any man's name you may like to use, and see if that works. It will be exceedingly easy to try it.

We read of St. Paul immediately he was converted, preaching, and it says, "And straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues that he is the Son of God."

But if he had preached that He was the son of Joseph,

Digitized by Google

what then? That was the theory and charge of the Jews, and is to-day!

That is the greatest reproach they can cast upon Him to-day! If Paul had preached that, Christianity would have collapsed at the outset! There would have been none!

"If that is all Paul had got for a lost world, he can go back to Gamaliel, and stop with him!"

That was what Saul taught before the light shone from heaven! BUT NOT AFTERWARDS!

The Son of Joseph is what the Jews reproach us with to-day! And our modernists are teaching the same in our churches!

If that is all we have to offer the world, we can at once recall all our missionaries!

"But we preach Christ crucified" (the Son of God crucified), "unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness; but unto them which are called . . . the power of God, and the wisdom of God."—1 Cor. i, 23, 24.

Not a system of ethics, not a code of laws, but a Person, the Divine Son of God the Father, "The Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the ending, the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty."—Rev. i, 8. And of the same Person it says, "Behold He cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see Him" (what? a mere man? No! This is some One more than a man!) "And they also which pierced Him, And all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of Him."—Rev. i, 7.

"I am He that liveth and was dead; and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death."—Rev. i, 18.

Are those mighty words those of a mere man?

"To him that overcometh, will I grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with My Father in His throne."—iii, 31.

Are those the words of a man?

"And He hath on His vesture and on His thigh a name written, King of kings, and Lord of lords."—xix, 16.

Are those words spoken of a mere man?

"I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the waters of life freely." Dare any man say that?

"I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright and morning star."—xxii, 16.

A man? No! It cannot be!

"And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."—xxii, 17.

Are those the words of a man? They would be no use if they were!

"He which testifieth these things saith, Surely, I come quickly." And the answer of the Apostle tells us who is speaking:—

"Even so, come, Lord Jesus."—xxii, 20.

Now then, did Christ in His words and work make good His Divine claim? He did indeed!

Did He ever fail at the testing-time? No, not once!

Was there ever anything that He did which was inconsistent with His tremendous claim? Not one thing!

Did He uphold the character right to the end of life? Yes, indeed, right to the very last cry, "It is finished!"

THE SYNONYMOUS WORDS USED IN THE BIBLE FOR "MAN."

THERE are four principal Hebrew words rendered "man," and these must be carefully discriminated. Every occurrence is noted in the margin of The Companion Bible. They represent him from four different points of view:—

1. 'Adam, denotes his origin, as being made from the "dust of the Adamah" ground (Lat. homo).
2. 'Ish, has regard to sex, a male (Lat. vir).
3. 'Enosh, has regard to his infirmities, as physically mortal, and as to character, incurable.
4. Geber, has respect to his strength, a mighty man.

I. 'Adam, without the article, denotes man or mankind in general (Gen. i, 26; ii, 5; v, 1, followed by plural pronoun). With the article, it denotes the man, Adam, though rendered "man" in Gen. i, 27; ii, 7 (twice), 8, 15, 16, 19 (marg.), 22 (twice); iii, 12, 22, 24; v, 1; vi, 1 (rendered "men"), 2, 3, 4. After this, the Hebrew 'Adam = man or men, is used of the descendants of Adam. Hence, Christ is called "the son of Adam," not a son of Enosh.

With the particle ת א ('eth) in addition to the article it is very emphatic, and means self, very, this same, this very. See Gen. ii, 7 (first occurrence), 8, 15.

Rendered in the Septuagint ανθρωπος (anthropos) 411 times; ἀνηρ (aner) eighteen times (fifteen in Proverbs); once θνητός (thnetos), Prov. xx, 24 = dying; four times βροτός (brotos), mortal (all in Job); once γηγενής (gegenes), earth-born, Jer. xxxii, 20.

II. 'Ish. First occurrence in feminine, Gen. ii, 23, 'ishah = woman. Therefore, 'ish = male, or husband; a man, in contrast with a woman. A great man in contrast with ordinary men (Ps. xlix, 2, where "low" are called the children of Adam, and the "high" = children of 'ish. So Ps. lxii, 9, and Isaiah ii, 9; v, 15; xxxi, 8). When God is spoken of as man, it is 'ish (Ex. xv, 3. So Josh. v, 13; Dan. ix, 21; x, 5; xii, 6, 7; Zech. i, 8, etc.). Also, in such expressions as "man of God," "man of understanding," etc. In the early chapters of Genesis we have it in chapters iii, 22, 24, and iv, 1.

Translated in Septuagint 1,083 times by ἀνήρ (aner), Latin vir, and only 450 by ἄνθρωπος (anthropos), Latin homo.

It is rendered "husband" sixty-nine times, "person" twelve times, and once or twice each in thirty-nine different ways.

III. 'Enosh. First occurrence Gen. vi, 4, men of name. Always in a bad sense (Isaiah v, 22; xlv, 14; Judg. xviii, 25). Morally = depraved, and physically = frail, weak. It is from 'anash, to be sick, wretched, weak, and denotes inability, for strength, physically; and for good, morally (2 Sam. xii, 15; Job xxxiv, 6; Jer. xv, 18; xvii, 9; xxx, 12, 15; Mic. i, 9). Note the contrasts, Isaiah ii, 11 and 17, "The lofty looks of man ('Adam) shall be humbled, and the haughtiness of men ('Enosh) shall be bowed down" (Isaiah xiii, 12; Job xxv, 6; Ps. viii, 4; xc, 3; cxliv, 3; Job iv, 17; x, 5; vii, 17; Dan. iv, 16). Other instructive passages are Isaiah viii, 1; lxvi, 24. Ezek. xxiv, 17 (afflicted, or mourners. Jer. xvii, 16, "day of man.") In 1 Sam. iv, 9, it is probably plural of 'Ish (so probably Gen. xviii and xix, where the indefinite plural must be interpreted by the context, because 'Adam would have denoted human, and 'Ish, males).

Digitized by Google

It is rendered " man " 518 times, " certain " eleven times, and once or twice each in twenty-four other and different ways.

IV. Geber. First occurrence in Gen. vi, 4*, mighty men, and denotes man in respect of his physical strength, as 'Enosh does in respect of the depravity of his nature. It is rendered " man " sixty-seven times, " mighty " twice, " man-child" once, " every one " once. In the Septuagint rendered fourteen times ανθρωπος (anthropos) and the rest by ἀνήρ (aner).

For illustrative passages see Ex. x, 11 ; xii, 37 ; 1 Sam. xvi, 18 ; 2 Sam. xxiii, 1 ; Num. xxiv, 3, 15 ; 1 Chron. xxvi, 12 ; xxviii, 1 ; 2 Chron. xiii, 3 ; Ezra iv, 21 ; v, 4, 10 ; vi, 8.

V. M^ethim (plural) = adults as distinguished from children, and males as distinguished from females. Occurs Gen. xxxiv, 30 ; Deut. ii, 34 ; iii, 6 ; iv, 27 ; xxvi, 5 ; xxviii, 62 ; xxxiii, 6 ; 1 Chron. xvi, 19 : Job. xi, 3, 11 ; xix, 19 ; xxii, 15 ; xxiv, 12 ; xxxi, 31 ; Ps. xvii, 14 ; xxvi, 4 ; cv, 12 ; Isa. iii, 25 ; v, 13 ; xli, 14 ; Jer. xliv, 28.—From " The Companion Bible."

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—I.

By S. E. Steele.

The Basis Founded on the Bible.

What is the meaning of " British-Israel Identity "? It is the belief that the Anglo-Saxon race is identified with the so-called Lost Tribes of Israel. It is justified by irrefutable facts, historical, scientific, phylogenetic, ethnological, and scriptural—mundane and prophetical. We believe that the All-powerful God made no promises that He did not intend to perform ; that He is the God of Truth, and literally meant what He said ; that it was by His inspiration the whole of the Bible was written. We believe the Bible is a true record of God's dealings with fallen man in the early days, and during the disciplinary training of His chosen people, and, though the laws and punishments for disobedience appear very severe to our perhaps enlightened though finite minds, they were in the infinite wisdom and knowledge of God essential in the preparation of His chosen race for their allotted task, that of fulfilling the promises made to their forefathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. We believe, moreover, that Christ Jesus came to rectify and fulfil the law and the prophets, to institute a new order of things ecclesiastically and socially, and appointed Israel, God's chosen people, to continue the proclamation of the New Covenant, the Redemption of Israel, the Salvation of the World, and to preach the Gospel to all people and nations.

God's Choice.

The choice dates from the days of Adam, and in every case the choice was made because of righteousness. Seth, the son of Adam, was chosen. In his time " began men to call on the name of the Lord " (Gen. iv, 26). From Seth, through eight generations, including Enoch, who " walked with God " (Gen. v. 22), Noah was chosen. He was righteous before God (Gen. vii, 1). His son Shem was then chosen : " Blessed be the Lord God of Shem " (Gen. ix, 26). From Shem through nine generations Abram was chosen. He was the " friend of God " (Isa. xli, 8 ; James ii, 23). His son Isaac was afterwards chosen and named before his birth ; then Jacob, whose name was afterwards changed to Israel. His twelve sons were a chosen family, and their descendants became the chosen people of God. " But thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend " (Isa. xli, 8). Thus we have in Holy Writ the choice of God in direct succession from Adam to the Twelve Tribes of Israel. From the same source we learn that Israel would be a chosen nation for ever. " O ye seed of Israel his servant, ye children of Jacob, his chosen ones. . . . Be ye mindful always of his covenant ; the word which he commanded to a thousand generations ; even of the covenant which he made with Abraham, and of his oath unto Isaac, and hath confirmed the same to Jacob for a law, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant " (1 Chron. xvi, 13-17). " But now, thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, fear not : for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name ; thou art mine " (Isa. xliii, 1). " Behold my servant, whom I uphold ; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth " (Isa. xlii, 1). It has been stated that " my servant " in the latter quotation refers to Christ, as the Bible heading of the chapter affirms. Bear in mind the chapter headings are not part of the Bible. The whole chapter is in reference to that servant, and the 19th verse, read in conjunction with verse 1, is convincing that it was not our Saviour who was referred to : Ver. 1, " I have put my spirit upon him ; he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles." Ver. 19, " Who is blind, but my servant ? or deaf, as my messenger that I sent ? " Christ was neither blind nor deaf ; whereas Israel was both blind and deaf to the word of God for generations.

Peter confirms the choice of Israel in his Epistle to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, whom he calls " elect " (chap. i, 2), of whom the prophets " prophesied of the grace that should come unto you " (i, 10), and calls them a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people (ii, 9) which in time past were not a people (divorced, scattered, lost) but are now the people of God (found, redeemed, " received the salvation of their souls ") (i, 9). The people to whom he addressed his Epistles were composed of converted Jews, and more particularly members of the Ten-Tribed Israel who had settled in those districts after escape from Assyria, and were called " strangers." It is noteworthy that the Apostle calls them by the self-same names given to Israel by the early writers : Elect (Isa. xlii, 1), chosen (1 Chron. xvi, 13), an holy nation (Exodus xix, 6), a peculiar people (Deut. xiv, 2).

Paul also testified to the choice of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (Rom. ix, 7-12), and to their seed (Rom. ix, 4) : and that the choice then rested in Israel of the Ten Tribes ; and in confirmation states that he was an Israelite of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin (Rom. xi, 1 and 2). Judah had been cast off by Christ thirty years previously. St. Paul said God had not cast away His people. They must be of the seed of Abraham ; therefore, it is equally certain, they must be the Ten-Tribed house of Israel.

* In Genesis vi, 4, we have three out of the above four words : " daughters of men " (= daughters of (the man) 'Adam) ; " mighty men " = (geber) ; " men of renown " = men ('Enosh) of name, i.e., renowned for their moral depravity.

Digitized by Google

THE DISTINCTION BETWEEN ISRAEL AND JUDAH.

Before we can obtain a clear and definite understanding of the Scriptures it is absolutely essential that the distinction between Judah (the Jews) and Israel is perfectly manifest. I know of nothing which has tended to warp the scriptural writings, and been more productive of scepticism, infidelity, and probably higher criticism than the erroneous belief that prophetical Israel is applicable to the whole twelve tribes. After the death of Solomon, about 984 B.C., the twelve tribes divided; Judah (later joined by Benjamin) under King Rehoboam became the Kingdom of Judah, or the Jews, the latter being a nickname given to Judah by the Syrians about thirty-eight years before Israel were taken into captivity, viz., about 759 B.C. This is the earliest record of the use of the word "Jew" (2 Kings xvi, 6), a name by which neither Abraham nor any of his seed of the Northern or Israel Kingdom were ever called. The Ten Tribes under King Jeroboam became the Kingdom of Israel. Judah was a twelfth part of the Children of Israel, but was no more all Israel than Yorkshire is all England. All Yorkshiremen are Englishmen, but all Englishmen are not Yorkshiremen. All Jews are Israelites, but all Israelites are not Jews. The Bible is very definite on the distinction. They were distinct in Solomon's time—"and I have appointed him (Solomon) to be ruler over Israel and over Judah" (1 Kings i, 35). They were numbered separately by David (1 Chron. xxi).

Zechariah (viii, 13; x, 6 and 7; xi, 14), Hosea (xi, 12) and Ezekiel (xxxvii, 16 and 19) refer definitely to them as separate nations. St. Paul, in his Epistle to the Hebrews (viii, 8), considered them separate and distinct in his day. "I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah." An examination of prophecy in regard to both houses will show how opposite the destinies of the two nations are. Israel was to be a powerful nation: "They that war against thee shall be as nothing" (Isa. xli, 12). Judah was to be without might: "I will cause them (Judah and Jerusalem) to fall by the sword before their enemies" (Jer. xix, 7).

Israel was to be gathered in an island home in the west (Isa. xlix, 1, 6 and 12).

Judah was to be a stranger in all lands: "And I will cause them to be removed into all the kingdoms of the earth" (Jer. xv, 4).

Israel would lose their old name, and be called by another name: "The Lord God shall . . . call his servants by another name" (Isa. lxv, 15). "And thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall name" (Isa. lxii, 2). Judah were to retain their old name and identity: "Their tongue and their doings are against the Lord . . . the shew of their countenance doth witness against them" (Isa. iii, 8 and 9).

Israel was to be lost and unknown: "I will utterly take them away" (Hos. i, 6).

Judah was to be scattered and dispersed, but would be known and recognized (Ezek. xii, 15 and 16, and Isa. iii, 9).

Once the distinction between Israel and Judah becomes fully realized, the books of the Bible will become illuminated, doubt and ambiguity will be dissolved, and the unchangeableness of God firmly established and proved.

WESLEY BIBLE UNION.

ANNUAL MEETINGS.

THE Annual Meetings of the Wesley Bible Union, which is not a Wesleyan organization, but includes members of all Churches and has no sectarian character, were held on May 13th at the Central Buildings, Westminster. In the afternoon, Mr. F. J. Furby, of Leigh-on-Sea, who has for years arranged public meetings in defence of the Faith, seeking thereby to educate public opinion, presided over the gathering, and strongly urged the necessity for boldness in a day like this, when there is the greatest danger that the Christian Faith will be deserted by the Churches. The Secretary of the Union, the Rev. Dr. H. C. Morton, presented the report of the work of the past year; explaining the usual course of the Union's service, and also the numerous special calls that have come to it during the year, and forecasting the work of the future. He very strongly appealed that members should throw their spiritual energies into the battle-field of prayer, at the same time ceasing with their money to support both sides. He asked for home prayer circles for "fundamentalist prayer," asking those who would form such little prayer circles to give their names to Mrs. Morton. The Secretary's report quite bore out the words with which the Treasurer, Mr. S. H. Verinder, very effectively closed the evening meeting, viz., that the work had outgrown the capacity of one man to carry on, and that we need an additional ministerial assistant; whilst he also assured the meeting that they might be confident the money subscribed would be well and carefully spent.

The President of the Union, the Rev. Benjamin Weaver, gave an eloquent and stirring Presidential address—first of all eulogizing the work of the Secretary and Mrs. Morton and the assistance rendered by the Treasurer and one of the Vice-Presidents, the Rev. G. Kirby White, and then dealing with the second point in the Union "platform," namely, the unity and sole-sufficiency of Scripture, arguing the impossibility of dispensing with the Book of Genesis, without which the rest of the Bible would be an extraordinary enigma.

In the evening an old friend of the Union and a worker in it from the commencement, Mr. F. J. Brooke, of Wotton-under-Edge, took the chair, and urged, with a telling illustration of God's providence, that those working for God need never fear, but always should trust and not be afraid. The Rev. Charles H. Vine, the eloquent Congregational minister of Ilford, who has crowded one of the largest London churches for the last thirty years, and whom all his friends hope very soon to see in the chair of the Congregational Union, took for his subject Browning's question, "Wanting is What?" asking his audience to look at the religious landscape and arguing that quite plainly three things were wanting to-day, for want of which God's work is languishing—a real revival of belief in the Deity of Christ, the reality of the Atonement for sins, and the absolute Truth of the Bible. Then Dr. Dinsdale T. Young, a member of the Union from its start, a past President and now a Vice-President, made an impassioned and eloquent speech, refuting a number of the modernist principles of to-day. He bore a very cheering testimony to the interest and value of the "Fundamentalist," which he has formerly described as "one of the very few magazines I read through from cover to cover"; and he spoke fervently of his absolute agreement with the theological position of the Union. Answering the demand that we must restate our theology to bring it into harmony with the ideas of young people, he asked in what other department of life is it agreed that we are to be dominated by the youngest intellect? The older intellect surely has some claim to respect. Can anyone imagine the Apostle Paul specially setting himself to restate his theology in order to bring it into harmony with the ideas of the young people of the first century? Why, we should never have had any theology at all at that rate. Our business is to take our theology from the Bible and follow the Apostle Paul as he followed Christ. Moreover, he had a great deal of doubt about these "restatements." He welcomed any "restatement" that was a better statement than the old one, but generally the new statements are so much less effective than the old ones. For example, what modern theologian is as incisive and epigrammatic as the old Puritan Charnock? What impressed him also was that the young men in England were increasingly declaring that the Church has no hope except in a return to the Bible. In Germany there is such a reaction against the Higher Criticism that people are saying if you want "new views" you must go for them to the old men. Intellectually he was in no wise impressed by the capacity of the modernists, and was inclined to quote the word in Dr. Morton's book against Evolution and declare "the bankruptcy of modernism." Dr. Young closed with a fervent appeal for a definite experience that made it impossible to doubt the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the Dead. A very happy incident at the close of the meeting was that when the Rev. G. Kirby White had moved and Mr. S. H. Verinder had seconded the vote of thanks, Mr. Herbert Garrison rose and asked to support it, saying that he knew quite well the objects of the Bible Union and was in fullest sympathy with them. The Rev. Pascoe Goard and he had joined the Bible Union because of fervent agreement with the positions which it maintained, and he thought it was of real importance that those who held with all their mind and heart and strength to the Deity of Christ and the infallibility of Scripture should stand by and cheer one another. He and those whom he represented were out-and-out fervent, definite Evangelicals, such as Dr. Young had referred to. This brief intervention brought an enthusiastic meeting to a very happy close.

Digitized by Google

BRITISH-ISRAEL—FACT OR FALLACY?—I.

BY THE VICAR OF BURLEY.

THE following excellent synopsis of British-Israel Truth was read by the Vicar of Burley at a recent meeting of the Rutland Clerical Society in Oakham, Rutland. It was received with great interest, and we are indebted to the Vicar for permission to reprint it in our journal, and thus from the smallest county in England the message goes forth to our thousands of readers in these Islands and throughout the Empire.

"In considering the question whether or not a literal "Israel" (other than the Jews) exists to-day, we must bear in mind the fact that "the Scriptures were written for our learning," and that they contain certain "signs" for our guidance and help. Did not Our Lord also tell us, that He came "to redeem the promises made to the Fathers"? It is apt to be forgotten that in Our Lord's earthly day, the only "Scriptures" were the Old Testament; but we must remember that walk to Emmaus, when Our Lord said, "O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the Prophets have spoken" and "beginning at Moses and all the Prophets, He expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself." That has a keen and pointed application in St. Paul's enunciation of a great truth, which he sets before the Gentile Christians: "Blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." It is therefore "up to us," my brethren, as ministers of "the Word," to search the Scriptures, and to see what they tell us of the extremely important matter we are here assembled to discuss, rather than to take for granted (as the Church at large does) what tradition has committed to us, based on the writings and sayings of men who could lay no claim to Divine inspiration, and whose perception could not possibly foresee the British Empire, nor visualize our existing world conditions. They had no option but to "spiritualize" prophecies and sayings that were otherwise quite incomprehensible to their limited outlook. Abraham Lincoln said very truly: "The man who will not investigate both sides of a question is dishonest." That, I am afraid is quite frankly the attitude of most of the Clergy towards this question.

Although the history of Israel—as a nation—ceases in the Old Testament after the people of the Northern Kingdom—known as the "Ten Tribed House," were exiled to captivity in Assyria—yet the Bible assures us that Israel as "a Nation" will exist for ever. So we know that the "Nation" did not become extinct, but that it was God's plan that under the Name of Israel, the Northern Kingdom should disappear both in the Bible and in history, but only "in name": "Thy hidden ones" (Ps. lxxxiii, 3). We see the Scriptures fulfilled in the changed name, as we also see it fulfilled in the "scattering," for Israel was to be "scattered among the nations" and "sifted" through them, "like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth." (Amos ix, 9.) As Jeremiah says (xxxi, 10) "Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock." Israel is to be a nation, as long as there are sun, moon and stars, day and night. (Verses 35, 36.)

A great deal of the confusion and blindness as to the nation of Israel that prevails in the Christian Church arises from an inexact knowledge of Bible history, which makes writers and speakers talk of the Jews as if they represent the Northern Kingdom, the "lost tribes," whereas the House of Judah has never been lost in all its long history. It is simply marvellous to see how blind some writers on Biblical subjects are, as to the real meaning of the word Jew. The names, Jew, Israel and the "House of Israel," are mixed up in a most confusing way, and employed as if they always referred to one and the same people, in spite of the fact, that, in the Scriptures, the people of the Northern Kingdom are never once called Jews. None of their kings were Jews, and their prophets, Elijah and Elisha, for example, were not Jews. It was only towards the latter portion of the existence of the kingdom of Judah that the name Jew was applied to that people in the Bible. The promise of God to David was given at a time when these terms "Israel" and "Judah" had meanings which were clear and distinctive, and became still more so during the long history of these separated peoples. The importance of bearing in mind the complete distinction between Israel and Judah is so great that no apology is needed for quoting the opinion of the late Professor Totten of Yale University. He wrote as follows: "I can never be too thankful to the Almighty, that in my youth He used the late Professor Wilson to show me the difference between the two Houses. The understanding of this difference is the KEY by which almost the entire Bible becomes intelligible, and I cannot state too strongly that the man who has not yet seen that Israel of the Scriptures is totally distinct from the Jewish people, is yet in the very infancy of Biblical study, and that to this day the meaning of seven-eighths of the Bible is shut to his understanding." Unless we understand that there are two distinct kingdoms referred to in the Bible there are many references which it is impossible to make square with one another.

Digitized by Google

My training and education, both as a Bachelor of Science, and for so many years as an officer of one of what are known as the scientific corps, has been all against taking anything for granted that could be proved, and therefore for most of my life it has been a source of uneasiness in the bottom of my soul, that it appeared quite impossible to reconcile the generally accepted theories as to the Church being "spiritualized Israel" with many perfectly explicit Biblical statements, such as Jehovah's declaration that Israel is His "battle-axe and weapons of war, to break in pieces the Nations, destroy Kingdoms" and many other things, and "be a Nation, and a company of Nations," "possess the gates of his enemies," and so on. Since when has the "Church" done these things? Other reasons entirely caused me to investigate the British-Israel position about four years ago, and though I can make no claim to be an adequate expositor of so great a matter, I have ventured to bring it before you to-day in the hope that you may be induced to study the subject for yourselves, and I am certain that if you do, you will become at least very deeply interested, and I trust derive the same great peace of mind that has come to me, from the clearing away of endless difficulties and many doubts, obscurities and uncertainties, that are otherwise bound to present themselves to any earnest student of God's Holy Word. Without the British-Israel belief how can it be explained who are the "Ten Servants," into whose keeping Christ committed His kingdom on earth, saying "Occupy till I come"? If we can see no other literal Israel than the Jews, how can we satisfy ourselves, or our congregations, who is, and where is the Kingdom of God which, after it was taken from the Jews by Our Lord, was given to a nation "bringing forth the fruits thereof"? How can we explain why God said that one of the seed of David was to rule until Christ's Second Advent, if in our eyes there is now no "reigning seed," serving as a king of a living nation of Israel?

Surely the nations to whom God committed His earthly kingdom were the "Ten Servants" or Ten-tribed House of Israel, to whom He entrusted the Missionary work of seeking the "lost sheep," not under the name of Israel, but, as we are told, under another name and language. The English-speaking people, as we clergy well know, are actually doing this work to the extent of about eighty per cent. of the world's missionaries. What is the explanation of why Israel's new name was Isaac—and "In Isaac shall thy seed be called," if it fails to teach us that Isaac's descendants became Saxons? i.e., "Isaac's Sons," Saac-sones, Saxons?

EXCAVATIONS AT UR.

IN a lecture given at the Royal Institution on June 7th by Mr. C. Leonard Wooley on the excavations at Ur, 1928-29, evidence of the historical character of the Flood was referred to. "We . . . had never seen any such brick as this one which turned up in the Flood deposit. . . . It was extremely important, because it proved that before the inundation and the deposit of that 8 ft. of clay Ur had been an inhabited and civilized city. . . . That this deposit is due to a flood there can be no doubt. That it was The Flood is, I think, unquestionable. Sumerian history—written history—records the Flood as having interrupted a series of Kings who ruled over the country and as marking a breach in civilization. Our discovery is in strict agreement with Sumerian tradition. Archæologically it is of extreme importance to us because it explains certain facts which hitherto had been one of the outstanding puzzles in Mesopotamia respecting the period of Sumerian occupation, and providing an explanation that also agreed with the statements of the Sumerians themselves. The Flood legends, fanciful or otherwise, are based on historic fact, of which we have for the first time here got material proof and illustration."

INSPIRATION.

THE Epistle to the Romans, whatever the writer saw around him or felt within him, was, when produced, infinitely more than the resultant of Paul's mind and life; it was, and is, an oracle of God, a Scripture, a revelation of eternal facts and principles by which to live and die. As such we approach it in this book; not to analyse only or explain, but to submit and to believe; taking it not only as Pauline, but Divine. But then, it is not the less Pauline. And this means that both the thought and the circumstances of St. Paul are to be traced and felt in it as truly, and as naturally, as if we had before us the letter of an Augustine, or a Luther, or a Pascal. He Who chose the writers of the Holy Scriptures, many men scattered over many ages, used them each in his surroundings and in his character, yet so as to harmonize them all in the Book which, while many, is one. He used them with the sovereign skill of Deity. And that skilful use meant that He used their whole being, which He had made, and their whole circumstances, which He had ordered. They were indeed His amanuenses; nay, I fear not to say they were His pens. But He is such that He can manipulate as His facile implement no mere piece of mechanism, which, however subtle and powerful, is mechanism still, and can never truly cause anything; He can take a human personality, made in His own image, pregnant, formative, causative, in all its living thought, sensibility, and will, and can throw it freely upon its task of thinking and expression—and behold, the product will be His; His matter, His thought, His exposition, His Word, 'living and abiding for ever.'*

What Christ, True Man, divinely wrought,
What God in Manhood bore,
They wrote, as God inspired, in words
That live for evermore.

* "The Epistle of St. Paul to the Romans," by Handley C. G. Moule, M.A., B.D.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THE Secretary-General reports in a cable to hand as we go to press that the meetings he addressed in Montreal on the 10th June and in Toronto on the 12th and 13th were an unqualified success. The ovations he received from the splendid audiences were marked by immense enthusiasm, and the branches received him with wonderful cordiality. Mr. and Mrs. Garrison are having a royal time and enjoying princely hospitality. * * *

The usual weekly meeting at Headquarters will be held on Wednesday afternoon next, at 3 o'clock. Mr. Daniel Farmer is the speaker.

On Thursday evening, at 7.30, the usual meeting will be held. The speaker will be announced later.

* * *

Mr. H. A. Marchant, of Brighton, was the speaker on the evening of June 13th, and in his own inimitable way gave a most interesting and instructive talk on "Modernism v. The Scriptures." Mr. W. A. Pilcher presided.

* * *

One of the biggest audiences of the session gathered at Navy House, Chatham, on June 3rd, when Mr. J. J. Morey addressed the Medway Towns Branch and excelled himself in his dramatic and convincing interpretations of the Bible. His subject was "Jews and Gentiles—Who are they?" He emphasized that as God's chosen people, the British race should not be proud of themselves for their triumphs, for they were achieved by God's decree, but should thank God for them and should realize their great responsibility. Mr. W. Evans presided.

* * *

Miss Hamilton Hunter delivered two stirring and inspiring addresses to the Leicester Branch on June 5th, dealing with "The Magna Charta of the Anglo-Saxon Race" from an historical, ethnological and scientific point of view, she herself having come into the light of British-Israel Identity from researches in these directions. Her second subject was "The Redemption of the Nation Israel," emphasizing the national duty which that Redemption involved, of bringing the nations to God. Mr. A. Biggs presided.

* * *

THE OPEN-AIR CAMPAIGN.

The Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S., opened our open-air campaign in Hyde Park on Sunday, June 16th, at 3.30 p.m., under the most favourable circumstances. The weather was dry and not too hot. A number of British-Israel believers came along to give their valued support. A crowd of about 500 soon gathered. Four of the recognized atheists of Hyde Park were present. Mr. McKelvey, of Stratford, started the ball rolling in his usual thorough fashion. Then Mr. Gay took the platform, and for an hour or more kept his audience in rapt attention. The questions which followed were by no means difficult to answer, and the number of names and addresses given in for free literature at Mr. Gay's invitation showed that the message had quickened a good deal of interest. The atheistic leaders were evidently non-plussed. They confessed that the message was to them entirely new, and expressed the wish that Mr. Gay would come along to Hyde Park again. In the evening Mr. McKelvey again took the field, and gave the large crowd, which almost immediately assembled, some searching B.-I. facts for half an hour. Then once more Mr. Gay spoke, and faced a crowd of some 900 to 1,000 people. Again the men were in an overwhelming majority. There was a goodly sprinkling of Jews in the evening audience, and they pressed the speaker hard on several of his points, especially when he came to deal with Our Lord and His descent from the Royal House of David. Mr. Gay again spoke for an hour or more. Afterwards he was subjected to a running fire of questions, and though he tried several times to leave the platform, the crowd held on to him, and for the better part of another hour he touched upon the different phases of our great Truth, as they were suggested by the questions which were asked.

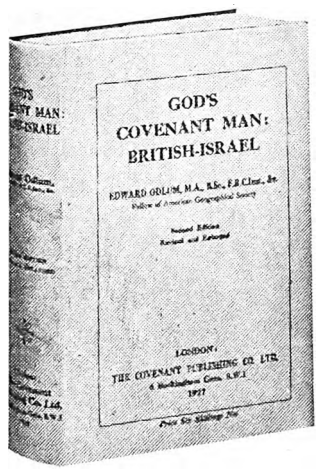
A Hyde Park crowd is the very best spirited crowd one can ever address. Mr. Gay was in good form, and his native humour enabled him to get on such good terms with his audience that, if he could have endured the physical strain, which must have been tremendous, they would have remained for hours more. As it was, when Mr. Gay did finally vacate the platform, Mr. Frost, an old Hyde Park speaker for B.-I., mounted the platform, and the crowd remained to listen to him. When Mr. Gay left some time later they were still listening with the keenest interest. This was a splendid beginning.

Mr. Gay will be in Finsbury Park next Sunday, 3.30 and 6.30. Let our B.-I. friends remember Captain Cuttle's advice, "When found, make a note of."

Will the Branches remember the offer which Mr. Gay has made to them, that if they will organize an open-air meeting or meetings in their districts, on week-days, he will be glad to come along and speak?

* * *

Our Kingston Branch has sustained a heavy loss in the passing of Miss K. Currie-Smith, whose death in tragic circumstances we greatly regret having to announce. Miss Currie-Smith was on holiday with her father at Bournemouth, and died from heart failure while swimming. She had been much in demand as a vocalist, and also used her talents in training members of the Surbiton Rangers for singing competitions. She was a most enthusiastic and fearless British-Israel propagandist, and acted as Book Secretary for the branch. Our sincere sympathy is extended to her family.



SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, East Street, Friday, 28th, at 8. Rev. T. S. Johnson, M.A.
BATH, 5, Argyle Street, Sunday, 30th, at 3. Mr. Harold Norris.
BATTERSEA, 195, Lavender Hill, Tuesday, 25th, at 8. Mr. Griffiths.
BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 24th, at 8.
BLACKHEATH, Y.W.C.A., Montpelier Row, Thursday, 27th, at 8. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
CARDIFF, Central Y.M.C.A., Tuesday, 25th, at 7.30.
FINSBURY PARK, Sunday, 23rd, at 3.30 and 6.30. Open Air.
HERNE BAY, Parochial Institute, Monday, 24th, at 8. Annual Meeting.
HIGHGATE, 223, Archway Road (entrance Cholmeley Park), Wednesday, 26th, at 8. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
HULL, Gospel Mission, Wincolmlee, Sunday, 23rd, morning and evening; and on Monday and Tuesday, 24th and 25th. Mr. Wm. Whitton.
MANCHESTER, Houldsworth Hall, Deansgate, Tuesday, 25th, at 7.45. Bible Study. Mrs. Rule.
SEVENOAKS, Lime Tree Hotel Hall, Wednesday, 26th, at 3 and 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
SHEFFIELD, Committee Room, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 26th, at 7.30.

Digitized by Google

Second Edition (Revised and Enlarged).

GOD'S COVENANT MAN: BRITISH-ISRAEL

by

EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S., F.R.C. Inst.

(Also Fellow of The American Geographical Society)

A most amazing book. Its breadth of scope takes away the breath. Authorities of all races, and speaking all tongues, have been laid under contribution. Not by the pen of the writer, but by his researches, by his quotations from these world-famous authorities he proves the British-Israel case. It is unanswerable.

Rev. W. Pascoe Goard writes in his foreword:—

"I know of no man living who has carried on wider research than has Professor Odlum . . . he has brought together in this book samples of the opinions and contributions of the world's great scholars to the great truth that the Celto-Saxon peoples are the people chosen and ordained of God to carry out His great national purposes . . . No such compendium will be found elsewhere."

Price 6/-, by post 6/6

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd.,

6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

"The Heritage of the Anglo-Saxon Race"

BY

M. H. GAYER, O.B.E.

A coloured chart (5 colours), size 40 in. by 28 in., with companion volume,

Depicting the thrilling history of the Anglo-Saxon Race all down the ages (i.e., The British Empire and the British-born stock of America).

The companion volume (demy 4to) 96 pages, numbered in sections to correspond with chart.

Price of Chart, including Book, bound limp cloth.

4/6 By post 4/11

It traces the genealogies, by direct succession, of Their Majesties King George V., Queen Mary, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, back through the Royal House of David to Adam. It shows how the British Coat of Arms is built up from ancient emblems given to our race some 4,000 years ago. The Chart illustrates the contemporary history of the Houses of Judah and Israel.

Some independent comments which have reached the Author read as follows:—

"I think your chart and volume the best collection of B.-I. data that has ever been published. The chart is an excellent idea and gives the whole mass of evidence at a glance."

"I have your wonderful chart and key book. It is the most comprehensive study I have yet read. A joy to the Believer and an arresting study to an outsider."

"My husband is so delighted with your book that he announced it from the platform as one of the best books on B.-I.—the consequence was I sold out at once."

FRONTISPIECE. Historic photograph of H.M. King George V. with the Premiers of the British Empire, taken November, 1926.

Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

B.-I.-W.F. Tenth Annual Congress

LARGE CENTRAL HALL, WESTMINSTER.

September 30th to October 5th, 1929, inclusive

Two Meetings daily at 2.45 and 7.30

A fine array of experienced speakers from various parts of Britain, the Overseas Dominions and U.S.A. Subjects of momentous interest will be dealt with. Tickets for reserved seats now ready, 2/- each. Course tickets £1. As usual Mr. Herbert Garrison will give a Lantern Lecture on the Wednesday evening, for which special tickets are required, at 3/- first reserved seats; 2/- second reserved seats; unreserved 1/-.

Applications should be addressed to the Assistant Secretary,

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

LIVES & LEGENDS of APOSTLES & EVANGELISTS

By MYRTLE STRODE-JACKSON.

Some Press Extracts:

"This fascinating book." —Christian World.

"A fascinating volume." —T.P.'s & Cassell's Weekly.

"This fascinating book . . each chapter . is a thing of beauty . . rich in historical allusion." —Western Press.

"A valuable aid to New Testament study." —Baptist Times.

"Recounts many fascinating legends such as those connected with the visit of Jesus and Joseph of Arimathea to our own shores." —Scots Observer.

Price 6/6 POST FREE. Can be ordered from

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

—A RARE OPPORTUNITY—

FOR SALE—SINGLY OR OTHERWISE

1,000 fine hand-coloured gravures after the originals by A WELL-KNOWN ARTIST

20 subjects depicting the

BEAUTIFUL CANYONS of VANCOUVER
WONDERFUL NIAGARA, the charm of LYNTON, LYNMOUTH and CLOVELLY.

A charming collection. Make excellent gifts.

2/3 singly. POST PAID. Per doz. 24/-

They can also be supplied framed. Enquiries invited.
THE ARTIST IS A KEEN B.-I. BELIEVER.

Apply to Box S/T, "National Message and Banner," 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

DOES THE BIBLE MENTION BRITAIN?

Many ask this question, and the answer is emphatically

YES!

READ A LITTLE BOOK CALLED

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE OF THE BIBLE

AND

OTHERS ON THE SAME SUBJECT

The one mentioned costs only 9d., or by post 10d.

WRITE FOR LIST

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE LONDON, S.W.1

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.
JUNE 29, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24·7

GT BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID — 1ST CHRON 29 v 23 — JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT" Is 19 v 19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J.J. HALL, 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.
Subscription Terms —United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.
Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

PUT THESE THREE BOOKS ON YOUR SHELF TO-DAY

God and My Birthright

By J. LLEWELLYN THOMAS, F.R.C.S.

SECOND EDITION. Revised. Price 4/6 ; by post 4/10.

A most logical and convincing statement of the Covenants, both conditional and unconditional. The author sets out the work which it was ordained that Israel was to do, and shows that it is being done to-day by Britain.

The Destiny of the British Empire and U.S.A.

By "ROADBUILDER."

NINTH EDITION. Price 4/6 ; by post 4/10.

Lord Byng of Vimy writes:—"Thank you and bless you for your wonderful work"

The Bishop of Kootenay says:—"It is a long way the best book on the subject of B.-I. Truth that I have ever read."

The Wonder Race

By G. E. ALTREE COLEY.

Price 5/-; by post 5/6.

A wonderfully graphic survey of English History, which demonstrates that the events that have determined our destiny can only be the outcome of a definite predetermined plan carried out under Divine guidance and inspiration.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1.

Canadian Agents: B.-I.-W.F., 14, 15, 16, Flack Block, 163, Hastings Street West, Vancouver, B.C.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 391. Vol. VIII. JUNE 29th, 1929 Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XVIII. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	401
BRITISH-ISRAEL—FACT OR FALLACY?—II. By the Vicar of Burley	404
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—II. By S. E. Steele	406
OBITUARY.—The Late Colonel J. Garnier (with Portrait)	407
'GOD FOR ENGLAND.' By the Rev. Arthur Pritchard, M.A. (Address at May Meetings)	408
WAS JESUS THE SON OF GOD?—IV. By Henry D. Houghton	410
THE THREE GATHERINGS OF ISRAEL. By Thomas J. McGill (Vancouver, B.C.)	412
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.	413
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	414

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE DOCUMENTS OF DANIEL.—XVIII.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

WE now come to the final scene in connection with the study of this graphic book. We have been privileged to see the various great events and periods of prophetic history pass before us like pictures, on a screen as wide as the continents, the actors in which are the leading nations of the earth.

It will be necessary to retrace our steps to chapter vii. This chapter overleaps that point at which the other chapters halt in detail. Chapter ii gives to us the statement of fact that the stone shall become a great mountain and fill the whole earth, and halts there. Chapter xi stops with the standing up of "Michael, the great prince which standeth for thy people."

Chapter vii, however, carries on and shows the investiture of the Son of man with dominion over the earth. Therefore we have reserved the consideration of this passage for the last in this series of studies.

"I beheld till the thrones were cast down, and the Ancient of days did sit, whose garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool: his throne was like the fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire.

A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him: thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: the judgment was set, and the books were opened.

I beheld then because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake: I beheld even till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame.

As concerning the rest of the beasts, they had their dominion taken away: yet their lives were prolonged for a season and time.

I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him.

And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.

I Daniel was grieved in my spirit in the midst of my body, and the visions of my head troubled me.

I came near unto one of them that stood by, and asked him the truth of all this. So he told me, and made me know the interpretation of the things.

These great beasts, which are four, are four kings, which shall arise out of the earth.

But the saints of the most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever.

Then I would know the truth of the fourth beast, which was diverse from all the others, exceeding dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and his nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with his feet;

And of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which came up, and before whom three fell; even of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake very great things, whose look was more stout than his fellows.

Digitized by Google

I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them ;

Until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the most High ; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom.

Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces.

And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise : and another shall rise after them ; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings.

And he shall speak great words against the most High, and shall wear out the saints of the most High, and think to change times and laws : and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time.

But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end.

And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him.

Hitherto is the end of the matter. As for me Daniel, my cogitations much troubled me, and my countenance changed in me : but I kept the matter in my heart." (Daniel vii, 9-28.)

The coming of the Ancient of days presses hard upon the destruction of the fourth kingdom upon the earth, which we know, in the Daniel literature, signifies the Roman world. Now the Roman Empire and all the Imperial divisions into which it had been subdivided fell in 1918. The Empires included therein are gone. The investiture of the Son of man is not a long historic process. It is an event which should take place at the end of a process, at a certain time.

Are we not justified in believing that in our progress through the historical fulfilment of the Daniel literature we have reached to the approximation of that time even now ? Perhaps not to-day, perhaps not in this decade, but are we not on the heels of this great event ?

THE ANCIENT OF DAYS.

What a beautiful name is this. Who is this, and why is He so called ? Let us observe closely that this Daniel literature was written in a strange land, and for the information of a stranger people. Therefore the NAME Jehovah is not mentioned. God is referred to as the Most High, as the God of my fathers, as the God of Heaven ; but not as Jehovah.

The Jehovah NAME was not used by Daniel at the court of the Babylonian and Persian monarchs.

" The Ancient of days " is another descriptive title for Jehovah, the God and King of Israel. He declares " I AM THE FIRST, AND WITH THE LAST." That is to say, He created and formed Israel, as we read most clearly in the Isaiah literature. He was literally El Shaddai, the father-God of Israel. He travelled all the pathway of the ages with Israel, never for a moment separating His Presence from them ; although the manifestation of that Presence was for a period withdrawn, He is still with the last of them at the end. None other has been with Israel for more than a generation of human life ; for all others have been men and mortal. He has been with them from the beginning. Therefore He is called the Ancient of days ; or, as we moderns would say, " the oldest inhabitant " in Israel.

ONE LIKE THE SON OF MAN.

" I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him."

" And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom."

Let us not run off on the mystical strain here and lose the point of this prophecy. The facts dealt with here are as matter of fact as is the history which foretells the doings of the kings and kingdoms of the historic period. The one has received literal fulfilment and so must the other. We are reading of matter-of-fact things which shall surely happen, and when they do happen they will more profoundly affect the course of national events than anything that has yet occurred in historic time.

The Son of man was brought before the Ancient of days to be invested with " dominion, and glory, and a kingdom."

This is the King of David's line who is to be invested with the supreme kingly authority on the earth. " His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed."

Why this latter form of expression regarding the kingdom, " His kingdom that which shall not be destroyed " ? It is manifestly a reference to the setting-up of that kingdom by the God of Heaven referred to in chapter ii : " And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed . . . ."

The Son of man shall be invested by the Ancient of days with the kingdom which the God of Heaven set up " in the days of these kings," and which has been a going concern ever since.

In this connection it is well to remember that " these kings " are listed and numbered, so that there shall be no error.

1. " Thou art this head of gold."
2. " And after thee shall arise another kingdom . . . ."
3. " And a third kingdom . . . ."
4. " And a fourth . . . ."

It is at the close of the fourth kingdom that the Ancient of days comes. He gives to the Son of man a kingdom, " and His kingdom that which shall not be destroyed."

The Angel Gabriel tells to Mary what that kingdom is, and Who shall receive it. " God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David, and He shall rule over the House of Jacob for ever, and of His kingdom there shall be no end."

Jesus, speaking of this matter, said : " A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for Himself a kingdom and to return."

The great development and detailed description of this very event is presented to us in the fourth and fifth chapters of Revelation. That book is manifestly the sequel to the book of Daniel, and it takes up the story at the point at which Daniel was commanded to seal it up.

The book which Daniel was commanded to seal seems to be the book which the Son of man took from the hand of Him

Digitized by Google

Who sat upon the throne, the seven seals of which He opened, as we read in that great Apocalyptic vision.

So vital is this to the great narrative before us that we shall, at the expense of space, reproduce the chapters here, knowing that memory is not sufficiently vivid, and that it is not always convenient to lay down such a book as this and take up the Bible in order to refresh our memory. The great Pageant is thus described :—

"After this I looked, and, behold, a door was opened in heaven : and the first voice which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me ; which said, Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which must be hereafter.

And immediately I was in the spirit : and, behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat on the throne.

And he that sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone : and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.

And round about the throne were four and twenty seats : and upon the seats I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment ; and they had on their heads crowns of gold.

And out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices : and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God.

And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal : and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four beasts full of eyes before and behind.

And the first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calf, and the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying eagle.

And the four beasts had each of them six wings about him ; and they were full of eyes within : and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

And when those beasts give glory and honour and thanks to him that sat on the throne, who liveth for ever and ever,

The four and twenty elders fall down before him that sat on the throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying,

Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power : for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

And I saw in the right hand of him that sat on the throne a book written within and on the backside, sealed with seven seals.

And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof ?

And no man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

And I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open and to read the book, neither to look thereon.

And one of the elders saith unto me, Weep not : behold, the Lion of the tribe of Juda, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof.

And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders, stood a Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth.

And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

And when he had taken the book, the four beasts and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of saints.

And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof : for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation ;

And hast made us unto our God kings and priests : and we shall reign on the earth.

And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne and the beasts and the elders : and the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands ;

Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever.

And the four beasts said, Amen. And the four and twenty elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever." (Rev. iv, v.)

Thus is placed before us with marvellous clearness the fact that in due time, at the end of the "fourth kingdom" upon earth, from the standpoint of the Daniel literature, the Son of man will take up the rule of earthly nations and bring Divine wisdom to bear on earthly government and affairs. And all will say, in view of the past and present condition of such affairs, that it is high time He should do so.

THE PEOPLE.

"But the saints of the most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever."

"I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them ;

"Until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the most High ; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom."

"But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, . . . and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey Him.

"Hitherto is the end of the matter."

It will be observed that in this chapter the statement that the saints of the most High shall take the kingdom is repeated once and again. This is the method of Holy Scripture when assurance is to be made doubly sure. Especially is this the case with the Daniel literature. Repetition is made to bear testimony to the unchangeable determination of the statements. When such repetition is made there will be no varying from the plan.

Digitized by Google

So we have the Ancient of days, Who is Jehovah the God and King of Israel, enthroned in plenary session, investing the Son of man "with dominion, and glory, and a kingdom"; and we have the judgment given to the saints of the Most High and they shall take and possess the kingdom for ever.

Is not this very period upon us now? Does not the wide and rapid spread of the authority of the Stone Kingdom, as manifested in the British Empire and the United States of America, indicate that the process is well under way, and that it but awaits the Coming of the Son of man? Already 650 millions of people, or about one-third of the human family, have been admitted to the privileges of the Common Law.

Let us take note of the fact that His Kingdom is indicated as being "that which shall never be destroyed," contrasted with the Babylon image kingdoms, each of which should be destroyed in turn, and finally all of which should be destroyed together.

It is to an earthly throne and to an earthly kingdom He shall come, and with which He shall be invested. Where else on earth is there an age-long kingdom, which can be considered for a moment in that light, whose people, whose law, and whose throne go back beyond the establishment of Babylon, not to speak of its successor, Rome?

The time of the end of the succession of the Babylon kingdoms is come. The seven times granted to them in their charter is expended. They have, as Empires, passed away. Is it possible that in the heavens the Ancient of days is now sitting and that the Son of man has already received His investiture, with dominion, glory, and kingdom? We believe that it is so, and that soon the darkness will be dispelled, and the night visions will give place to the noon-day realities of the established reign of Jesus Christ Our Lord.

BRITISH-ISRAEL—FACT OR FALLACY?—II.

BY THE VICAR OF BURLEY.

WHERE, then, is Israel? "Israel the Lost Sheep"? None of the characteristics of that people, so meticulously detailed in Isaiah, Kings, Chronicles, Ezekiel and Jeremiah, fit the Jews, so must fit Israel. To satisfy ourselves we must answer logically the following queries among others.

1. Where is the "appointed place," in which God promised that He would "plant" His people Israel? (2 Sam. vii, 10.) Most certainly the Jews have not been gathered into one place.

2. In what manner has the "Church" become the "Nation" and the "Company of Nations," into which Israel was to develop? (Gen. xxxv, 11; xlviii, 19; Ezekiel xxxvii, 19-21.)

3. In what manner does the "Church" "possess the gate of his enemies"? (Gen. xxii, 17.)

4. In what manner can the "Church" come into possession of the area of land from "the River of Egypt to the great River Euphrates"? (Gen. xv, 18.) It is now in our possession as a nation. Has any of it fallen to the "Church"?

5. God said to Abram, "I will make of thee a great Nation, and bless thee and make thy name great." (Gen. xii, 2.) We are Great Britain? No other nation is, or has been called, "Great" anything.

6. Who are the "children that thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the other"? (Isa. xlix, 20.) That does not apply to the "Church," but it does apply exactly to the Nation. We lost our "children," Manasseh, that is the U.S.A., and now we have "children" all over the globe.

7. If it does apply to the "Church," can it be explained that by forsaking her communion, they have become lost, but have established themselves as a "great people." If so, where?

8. In what way can it be explained why God on His Oath swore that Israel should exist as a Nation as "long as the sun, moon and stars continue to shine" (Jer. xxxi, 35-36), if they can find no Israel, other than the Jews, now? Most certainly the Jews are not a nation, and have no king.

9. Can anyone argue that "the Jews" have developed into a nation as numerous as the "sand of the seashore" and the strongest of all nations, "God's battle-axe and weapons of war to break in pieces the nations"? (Jer. li, 20.) Most decidedly No.

10. Where is the ever-enduring and "indestructible Throne of David" that we read of in Jeremiah, and where is the "Perpetual sceptre of Judah"? (See 2 Sam. vii, 8-16; Jer. xxxiii, 17-26.)

11. How will the "two families" we read of in Jeremiah xxxiii, 24, be reunited? and how will they choose themselves the "One Head" of whom Hosea speaks? (Hosea i, 11.) The whole of the great prophecy concerning the Davidic Kingdom, contained in Jer. xxxiii, should be read most carefully and prayerfully, especially from verse 7.

12. If the Jews be the only visible Israel, can it be logically proved from Holy Scripture that Almighty God has fulfilled His reiterated promises? If we take the three foremost infidels of modern times—Tom Paine, David Hume and Charles Bradlaugh (the last of whom I knew)—we find that all three based their infidelity mainly on the apparent failure or non-fulfilment of the Bible promises to Israel. If those who teach that "Israel" was exiled into obscurity or intermingled with the Jews and became as a nation extinct in the centuries B.C. can satisfactorily solve these questions, then they knock the bottom out of all British-Israel facts and convert them into fallacies. But until this can be done, and done beyond a shadow of a doubt, then the facts must hold the day.

It was, of course, impossible for the leaders of the Church, who in past ages began the "spiritualizing" of the prophetic utterances, so strongly condemned by the late Bishop Ryle of Liverpool, to visualize the world of to-day, and the British Empire, or indeed any Empire save the Roman Empire. But as the centuries have rolled by, many of these utterances which were beyond their ken, have been most unmistakably fulfilled, and others are being fulfilled before our eyes. Surely it is for us to readjust our point of view in the light of the modern world? It is time for Israel to awake, for the "seven times" of the Gentile rule is expiring. Jerusalem has already been redeemed from the Turk; and Judah is going back to her own land, to become once more a "nation," under the protectorate of Great Britain (Israel). Judah and Israel, the "two sticks" of Ezekiel xxxvii, are to be rejoined, to become one nation with one King. The Epistle to the Romans warned all that

Digitized by Google

" blindness in part hath happened to Israel, UNTIL the fullness of the Gentiles be come in." Now the blindness is falling off Israel, and the " lost sheep," the ten tribes, are being found. At this time there is a " shaking " among the " dry bones," trying to find God and His plans. There are many " signs " given us whereby we may find the Ten Tribes, chiefly in England and America, the " ten thousands of Ephraim and the thousands of Manasseh."

Let us, as briefly as may be, see some of these signs I have referred to. There are some sixty or seventy of them. " Verily My Sabbaths ye shall keep : for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations." (Ex. xxxi, 13.) Britain and the U.S.A. are the only nations with a " Sabbath Observance Act " on their Statute Books, and alone bear the sign of the Sabbath. " In those days " (the latter days) " the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers." (Jer. iii, 18.) Since 1918, over four million Jews—driven from their countries by persecution—have come into either Britain, her Colonies, or the U.S.A. During the same time 80,000 Jews have gone back to Palestine under British protection. Surely that points to her being Israel?

" Thou Israel shall spread abroad to the West, and to the East, and to the North, and to the South : and in thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." (Gen. xxviii, 14.) The sun never sets on Britain's dominions.

" The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them ; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose." (Isa. xxxv, 1.) What is that but a picture of Britain's colonial territories?

" Ask of Me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." (Ps. ii, 8.) With Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, Africa and a thousand Islands, all over the world, Britain is well satisfied with this fulfilment.

" Israel shall blossom and bud and fill the face of the world with fruit." (Isa. xxvii, 6.) This certainly does not apply to the Jews, but, when we remember that it is harvest-time every day in the year in some part of the British Empire, we are constrained to say, " surely Britain is Israel."

" Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates." (Gen. xv, 18.) " This land," which includes Egypt, Sudan, Uganda, Arabia, Palestine and Mesopotamia, was promised to Israel, and is now, in one form or another, practically all in our possession.

" Ask of Me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance." Surely that means the teeming millions of India, Africa, the South Sea Islands, Burma, etc., to whom we have taken good government, and the gospel of salvation through Jesus Christ.

" Ye (Israel) are My witnesses saith the Lord, and My servant whom I have chosen." (Isa. xliii, 10.) Evidently in the latter days, Israel must be a missionary nation. Is it not a mark that we and the U.S.A. are Israel, because eighty per cent. of the Christian missionaries in the world are Anglo-Saxon, and over elevenpence out of every shilling spent on missionary enterprise is contributed by Anglo-Saxon missionary societies? " They shall show forth My praise."

We send out God's Word to every nation in the world, translated into over seven hundred different languages. No other nation does anything of the sort.

" Thou (Israel) shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee." Is not that Britain? If not, then please show me the nation to which it does in any way apply.

" No weapon that is formed against thee (Israel) shall prosper ; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord." (Isa. liv, 17.) What about the Armada, Napoleon's armies, Trafalgar, Jutland, the zeppelins, liquid fire, poison gas, submarines, etc.? Not one has " prospered." We, by the hand of Allenby, delivered Jerusalem, on the date and in the manner foretold by Isaiah 2,660 years before, and broke in pieces the domination of " Edom," the Turk. How do you explain that, if Britain be not Israel?

" Keep silence before Me, O Islands." On Armistice Day, at the same moment, the whole Anglo-Saxon race, with one accord, " keep silence before God." Is that a mere chance? I trow not.

" The remnant of Jacob shall be . . . as a LION among flocks of sheep who if he go through, both treadeth down and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver." (Micah. v, 8.)

The British lion takes a lot of rousing, but once roused never rests till the enemy is defeated.

" His (Israel's) horns are like the horns of unicorns ; with them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth." (Deut. xxxiii, 17.) Does not that apply to Britain as to no other nation? Is it a mere coincidence that we have the lion and the unicorn as national emblems? Has any other nation? On our Royal Standard have we not the " old lion," and the young lions and the Harp of David? Were not the old British lion and the young Australian and New Zealand lions, " Roaring on their prey, when the Lord of Hosts came down to fight for Mount Zion and the hill thereof "?

Can any of you tell me how it comes that we, alone among the nations, are called " John Bull "? unless it is because the bull was the tribal sign of Ephraim. But such coincidences are endless, if indeed coincidences they be, and I need not detain you with them. They are to be found in many British-Israel books.

Nor have we time to do anything but just touch the fringe of the philological argument, though it is one of great importance, and not to be ignored by any student of our subject. William Tyndale, the first translator of the Hebrew Bible and Greek Testament into English said, " . . . The Hebrew tongue agreeth a thousand times more with the Englyshe than with the Latyne." You Hebrew scholars know well that the English language, in its grammatical construction, bears a close resemblance to the Hebrew, and is the only language into which it can be almost literally translated. Canon Lysons, in " Our British Ancestors," gives a list of nearly 5,000 Hebrew words in our language, derived—according to Professor Max Muller—from eight hundred Hebrew roots. I understand, too, that Welsh is nearly pure Hebrew. " Indeed," says Rev. Eliezer Williams, quoted by Rev.

Digitized by Google

Commander Roberts ("British History Traced from Egypt and Palestine," page 36), "scarcely a Hebrew root can be discovered that has not its corresponding derivative in the ancient British language."

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—II.

By S. E. Steele.

The Gathering Together of Israel.

It is an undisputed fact that Israel was taken into captivity by Shalmaneser, King of Assyria, and placed in Halah and Habor, cities of the Medes (2 Kings xviii, 6), as foretold by Moses: "Ye shall be plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it" (Deut. xxviii, 63): "Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them out of his sight" (2 Kings xvii, 18). They were lost to sight, hid from human view for some generations. Equally certain is the fact that they would be found again, gathered in God's own time, according to His plan: "For the Lord will have mercy on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land" (Isa. xiv, 1). "For a small moment have I forsaken thee; but with great mercies will I gather thee" (Isa. liv, 7). "He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock" (Jer. xxxi, 10). "I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away" (Ezek. xxxiv, 16). "For I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land" (Ezek. xxxvi, 24). It must be evident that not one of these quotations can refer to Judah. Isaiah wrote the words quoted approximately sixty years before Judah was taken to Babylon. Jeremiah specially mentions Ephraim in connection with his statement. The context of Ezek. xxxiv and xxxvi certainly favour the conclusion that Israel of the Assyrian captivity was referred to in the references quoted.

It has been conclusively shown that God in His wisdom, and in His foreknowledge of what was to come, for His own special purpose chose men in direct succession from Seth, son of Adam, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and that He then chose one family, Israel, afterwards one nation or people, called after the family name Israel. That God made a covenant with Abraham and his seed which was to continue for ever. That the Apostles, Paul and Peter, confirmed the choice of Israel as God's chosen people. That Israel and Judah are entirely distinct, with completely different destinies. That Israel would be lost, removed and punished because of their sins, lose their name and identity, but would be gathered together again, and become once more "My people" (Hos. i, 10).

It is therefore very evident that Israel must, under another name, be a kingdom at the present time, a nation worshipping God, and a Christian missionary kingdom. That kingdom should not be difficult to distinguish. If we follow the command of our Saviour, "Search the Scriptures," and the warning of St. Paul to the Thessalonians (i, 20), "Despise not prophesyings," we shall find the markings and characteristics so definite and plain that no one, unless wilfully blind, can fail to see that there is only one people on earth who can claim to resemble God's Israel, and that people the Anglo-Saxon race.

The Promise.

The whole history of the Bible, mundane, prophetical and spiritual, since the time of Abraham, centres on the great promise, or covenant of God, to him and to his seed for ever. The first promise was made after leaving Ur, when he dwelt in Haran, "I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great . . . and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (Gen. xii, 2 and 3). Abram then removed, at God's command, into the land of Canaan. There he received a further promise, "Unto thy seed will I give this land" (Gen. xii, 7). Later, just before removing to Hebron, that promise was repeated, with an addition, "and I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth" (Gen. xiii, 16). Multitudinous seed was again promised in number as the stars of heaven (Gen. xv, 5). At that time Abram and Sarai were old and childless. "In that same day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates" (Gen. xv, 18). Thirteen years after the birth of Ishmael, God again appeared to Abram, and changed his name to Abraham, "for a father of many nations have I made thee" (Gen. xvii, 5). The name of Sarai is changed to Sarah, meaning a princess, and a son is promised, whose name was to be called Isaac, with whom God's covenant would be established for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him (Gen. xvii, 19). When Isaac was grown to young manhood Abraham was called upon to undergo the greatest trial of faith conceivable to human mind. In Isaac all his hopes were fixed, for God had said to him, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called" (Gen. xxi, 12). He was too old to hope for another son, yet, when God said, "Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac . . . and offer him for a burnt offering" (Gen. xxii, 2), his faith never wavered. Great was the trial, great was the faith, and great was the reward. "By myself have I sworn (God's personal oath); for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son; that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed" (Gen. xxii, 16 to 18). It is evident that God did not intend that this promise should be forgotten or ignored, for, in addition to the frequently reiterated promise to Abraham, it was afterwards repeated to Isaac (Gen. xxvi); and twice to Jacob, the first time on the occasion of his dream of the ladder reaching from earth to heaven (Gen. xxviii), and later at Bethel (Gen. xxxv, 11), when his name was changed from Jacob (the Supplanter) to Israel (Prince with God), and an addition was made to the original promise: "A nation, and a company of nations shall be of thee." Two quotations from God's Word will suffice to convince anyone with an unprejudiced mind that Israel must be a nation or kingdom at the present time. "Thus saith the Lord, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night. . . . If those ordinances depart from before me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me for ever" (Jer.

Digitized by Google

xxxi, 35-37). "God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?" (Num. xxiii, 19). So long as the sun, moon and stars endure, we have definite assurance from God, His word which cannot be broken, through the prophet Jeremiah, that Israel will be a nation for ever.

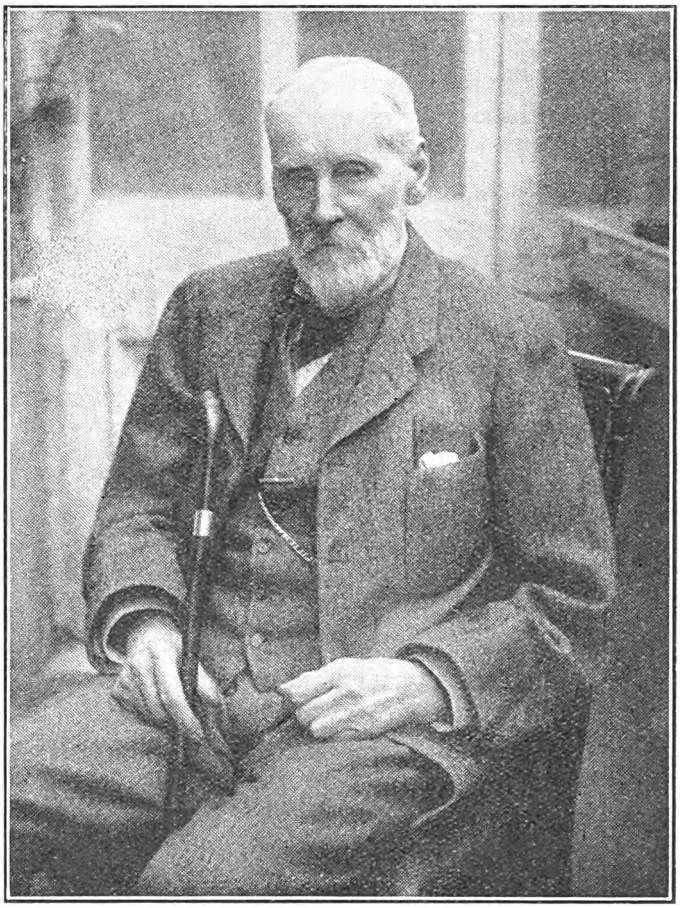
A short review of this wonderful chapter of Jeremiah (xxxi) will not be out of place here, for it embraces God's forgiveness, the restoration of Israel, and the promise of a new covenant with them. One hundred and fifteen years had elapsed since Israel was taken captive (Judah was not taken captive to Babylon until eighteen years later). During their captivity a number of them repented for their sins, "found grace in the wilderness" (ver. 2). They would again become a nation. "Again I will build thee" (ver. 4). They would "be gathered from the North Country, and from the coasts of the earth, a great company" (ver. 8). Ephraim is acknowledged as God's first-born (the heir to the promises) (ver. 9). Israel will be gathered and kept, and it shall be declared in the isles afar off (ver. 10). Rachel was heard weeping for her children (Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh) because they were not (ver. 16). They had been taken into captivity. She was comforted; God said, "They shall come again from the land of the enemy" (ver. 16). Ephraim repented (ver. 19), and is called "My dear son, a pleasant child, on whom I will surely have mercy" (ver. 20). The days will come when Israel and Judah will again be built (ver. 28), and a new covenant will be made with both the house of Israel and with the house of Judah (ver. 31); their iniquity will be forgiven, and their sin no more remembered, and Israel would be a nation for ever (vers. 34-36).

Judah, as a people, is still under the curse, not yet having acknowledged the Saviour. The time will surely come when they will see and acknowledge Him Whom they pierced.

But where is Ephraim? He must be the head of a multitudinous people, and should be manifest. Let it be perfectly understood, Israel of the Assyrian captivity is frequently referred to as Ephraim, the birthright having passed to him from Joseph as head of the tribes. If we can find a nation in possession of the blessings promised to Israel, and performing the functions delegated to Israel, we are surely justified in concluding that God's chosen people, hidden for generations, have been found. Were it not for the fact that not until the latter days should it be considered that God had performed His intentions towards His people (Jer. xxx, 24), agreeing with the last words of Jacob to his sons, telling them what should befall them in the last days (Gen. xlix), we should wonder at our dense blindness in failing to see in time past what is now so transparently clear.

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.



Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

OBITUARY.

THE LATE COLONEL J. GARNIER.

THE death of Colonel J. Garnier (late R.E.), at the age of 92, removes from our midst one whose name has long been familiar and respected.

A man of wide reading, scientific attainments, strong personality and deep convictions, a firm believer in the Israelitish origin of the British people, Colonel Garnier has left behind him the memory of a Christian soldier, devoted to the service of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. A staunch Evangelical Protestant, he was a voluminous writer on Prophecy; his profound knowledge of the Bible, aided by his scientific and military experience, gave him a remarkable grasp of the significance of current history and of the probable development of world events.

THE LATE COLONEL J. GARNIER.

For several years before the Great War Colonel Garnier foresaw and foretold this event. In the 1905 edition of his book on "The Great Pyramid," the Colonel indicated that 1913 or 1915 would be a critical period; but in the 1912 edition he made the remarkable forecast that "Germany would invade England in August, 1914."

The unity and plenary inspiration of the Old and New Testaments were to him facts as clear as the sunshine; and the keynote of all his teaching was "that knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep, . . . the night is far spent, the day is at hand; . . . let us put on the armour of light."

Digitized by Google

"GOD FOR ENGLAND."

BY THE REV. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A.

(ADDRESS AT MAY MEETINGS).

I SUPPOSE most of us have a hero-king. Mine is the lion-hearted Richard the First, whose body lies at the feet of his father in a French abbey, whose heart reposes in the Cathedral at Rouen, and whose inspirational battleword was "Dieu et mon droit"—"God for England and my birthright"—as is probably the full signification.

God for England! In these days of England's depression and "Jacob's trouble" we need to assure ourselves and re-assure ourselves of the mighty truth and bearing of these heartening words. God's gracious plans for mankind are to be carried out through man's agency; such agency, whether racial, national, or individual, being specially made, prepared, and equipped. This is the real secret of England's greatness in the world.

God for England! Expanded into Great Britain—expanded still further into Greater Britain.

"Canada, Africa, Zealand, Australia,
India, Continents, Isles of the Sea,
Adding their jewels to Britain's regalia—
One with Old England, the home of the free."

God for England! Because the British race are God's specialized people centred in a God-appointed place to do a God-decreed work in the world at large. The apprehension of such a fact would make our national salutation—"How do you do?"—very meaningful to our race. How do you do the work God has purposed and prepared you to do? Accordingly, Dr. Browne, the historian Bishop of Bristol, sapiently observed, "The race has been prepared as well as the place of their habitation." It was, I think, in 1740 that Thomson rightly informed the world that but the Biblical, geological and traditional accounts of our country's geographical origin are certainly much older and more authoritative. From them we discover that God was for England in the remote past, when Europe, Atlantis and America were all in one huge continent. Then Eber, or Heber (the ancestor of the Hebrews), came on the scene, followed by Peleg, his son, when the preparation for our race reached its climax, the continent being split up; America being split off from Atlantis, now beneath the Atlantic; Britain, like a great stone, being split away from the mountain chains of Europe; and the lowlands, from Scandinavia to the Scillies, being buried beneath the North Sea and the English Channel.

"Britain first, at Heaven's command, Arose from out the azure main";

In loving forethought, God had previously furnished Israel's underground treasure house, her coal cellar and her medicine chest, so that separation and isolation would really mean enrichment and abundance for her. Thus it was that the "stone" kingdom of the book of Daniel was set up by God "without hands" geographically, that it might ultimately be occupied as it is to-day by the stone kingdom, politically. Both in one constitute the stone in our greater David's sling, which will overcome every Goliath of resistance to His rule of truth and right here on our mother earth.

What Sir Robert Grant once wrote of the earth is peculiarly appropriate to our part of the earth—

"This land with its store of wonders untold,
Almighty, Thy power hath founded of old;
Hath stablish'd it fast by a changeless decree,
And round it hath cast, like a mantle, the sea."

Praise God from Whom all our national blessings flow!

The original inhabitants of Great Britain (who were of gigantic proportions) kept the land habitable until the days of Eli and Samuel, when Brutus and his fellow-Israelites from Troy arrived here and, in the providence of God, took possession of the country for the Hebrew and Semitic race. Afterward, during an extended period of 2,000 years (only two days, however, to God), the same race was tribally allured by providential dealings towards and into this same wilderness of ours as it then was, in accordance with the prophecy of Hosea: "Behold I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her"; going on to add that idolatry should be abolished, the wilderness become a fruitful place, safety and security be the rule, and peace and plenty should abound. In fact, Hosea's message is, "God for England" writ large. But the united Ten Tribes and their Christianized Levitical ministrants were allowed and decreed to be together here for hundreds of years ere the last chapter of Hosea began to be actualized, thus fulfilling the "seven times" of 2,520 years' fore-announced chastisement and preparation (Lev. xxvi, 18), for we had tribally erred and strayed like lost sheep, as we continually say we do individually; and so consequences had necessarily to follow their causes to the bitter end. But oh the graciousness, the tenderness, the sweetness, that our covenant-keeping God held in store for us. God, as Saviour, said, "I will heal their backsliding"; God, as Father, said, "I will love them freely"; God, as Holy Spirit, said, "I will be as the dew unto Israel." Thereupon the blessings, one by one, of purity, power, productiveness and prosperity were promised; while understanding is proclaimed as the reward of the wise, and knowledge as the meed of the prudent. "Happy is the people whose God is Jehovah." How wonderfully He has helped our race all along, giving deliverance in the Red Sea; overruling the elements that might have engulfed Jeremiah, Baruch and Zedekiah's daughter in the sixth century B.C., and that did actually engulf the Spanish Armada, in the Irish Sea in the sixteenth century A.D., and unmistakably ensured for us across the North Sea on that memorable 18th of June, 1815, a decisive victory on the historic field of Waterloo. When, many years ago, ere he had become famous, French had declared Napoleon to be a greater strategist than Wellington, the question was instantly asked by a patriot, "Then who won Waterloo?" The simple, unexpected but brave reply of General French, who had made a special study of Napoleon's campaigns, was, "God won Waterloo." And depend upon it—for God's Word depends upon it—our inspiration must always be "God for England " in war and peace. But while there is a God for England, we must not forget that there is a Satan against England. There is a prince of the power of the air who seems to have control of the winds, for among other attempts he tried to wreck Our Lord and His disciples on the Sea of Galilee, and was rebuked therefor ; but even Satan, powerful as he is, is under authority, and must obey a Higher Power when required. Accordingly, not once or twice in our rough island story has a change of weather been the way to glory. O for winds and for seas, ye British-Israelites, bless ye the Lord : Praise Him and magnify Him for ever ! There are at least a dozen historical, providential weather records, and you may find most of them in Mrs. Clement's patriotic little book on " Our Marvellous Empire." Modern instances are not so infrequent as "the blind people that have eyes" characteristically suppose, e.g., what General Munro ascribed to " good luck " at the Gallipoli peninsula, other officers give glory to God for. As one wrote to the Times, " ' Not unto us—not unto us,' is a truer text than ever it was before," and little wonder that we have used it and its Psalm on every Armistice Sunday. Why then should we despair ? The faithfulness of our God has never failed us. Goodness and mercy have followed us all the days of our national life, whether scattered as Israel's sons, garnered as Isaac's sons, or re-covenanted as Britannia's sons ; and the great proof of this is that while other lands have been ravaged and distressed and every capital, I think, in Europe taken and pillaged, our precious jewel-stone Kingdom has been securely and beneficially set in the presentation tropical necklet of the silvery sea ; and only such afflictions as have been necessary for our discipline and stimulation have been allowed to us from the far-off days of William the Conqueror to these near-at-hand days of William the Conquered !

Digitized by Google

LOOKING BACK.

About mid-way in the Great War, Principal Jacks, the Editor of the Hibbert Journal, wrote that " There is nothing in our history—nothing in our National character—to suggest that we are the chosen champions of the good."

Such was the unworthy view of God's overruling providence and Britain's God-given position—geographical, political and religious—in this world of ours.

Be it our part, therefore, in season and out of season, as enlightened British-Israelites, to try and remove all such blindness, by vindicating the honour and faithfulness of Him Who is peculiarly the God for England, because He also purposes to be, through England and the British generally, the God of all the earth.

Surely the present generation is ripe for this view of truth, and this B.-I. view of truth ripe for this generation.

" NOTHING IN OUR HISTORY AND NOTHING IN OUR CHARACTER ! "

Surely he has not become so habituated to the mental contortioning for which the Hibbert Journal is famous, or infamous, that he cannot perceive that a Divinity all along has been shaping our nation's ends, rough hew them how we will !

Who were those seven tribes that parcelled out England among themselves as if it were another promised land (which it was), and have since become one great people under one flag, one fleet, one throne, with the other tribes in Normandy, Scotland, Wales and Ulster ? Will not Dr. Jacks accept Professor Huxley's statement that " They are all branches of the same race " ? Doesn't he know that their origination about the same time and place when and where the Ten Tribes of Israel had disappeared under their former name from the pages of history is a question that has been practically settled since " The excellency of Sharon "—Turner's standard work on Saxon history—was given unto it, about a century ago ?

" NOTHING IN OUR HISTORY AND NOTHING IN OUR CHARACTER ! ! "

Then why, in the midst of the haughty, jealous, European world, have we been free from invasion for centuries past, and why have we been unconquerable in all our wars with foreign nations and particularly so in by far the greatest war the world has ever seen ?

Why have we been constrained to plant the Flag of Liberty in every corner of the world—civil liberty and religious liberty—liberty and justice for slaves, whether individuals or nations ?

Why is it that we are inheriting the earth, whether we want it or not ?

Why do we girdle the Gentile nations with our possessions ?

Why has it fallen to our lot to fulfil God's purpose that the desolate heritages of the earth shall be inhabited ?

Why is it that we are enjoying all the temporal blessings promised in the Old Testament to Israel apart from Judah, and to no other nation ?

Why is it that our coaling stations are so wonderfully placed that we can rule the seas whenever the urgency arises ?

Why is it that the whole world is being obviously blessed by our Anglo-Saxon race, whether wielding near home the sword of international Justice, or the sword of the Divine Spirit, which is the Word of God, in distant lands ?

We who have the light, and can bear witness of the light—we convinced Anglo-Israelites know why, why, why, well enough, don't we ?

It is because God can be, and will be, and is, a God of His word.

It is because God is in His earth as well as in His heaven.

It is because God is doing with a branch of, and for, the human race what we ourselves do from time to time—electing the best to serve the rest.

> " For thus the great Lord says—
> ' When lost Israel I collect,
> I will collect with him,
> Beyond him, My select.' "
>
> Isa. lvi, 8 (F.F.).

Where, then, is the boasting ? It is excluded. For, after all, we are only the means to an end, a rung in the ladder of a mighty providence, a prepared people to prepare the way of the Lord to His own. We were simply redeemed that we might serve the Redeemer ! So it behoves us ever to be humble and meek, trustful and teachable, ready and willing, to let the Lord and Master have the use of us, individually and nationally, as and when He will, in His far-reaching love-plan to reclaim a prodigal world.

God for England and her Commonwealth of Nations !

Digitized by Google

Why? And the simple yet profound answer that convinced British-Israelites should truthfully and intelligently give is,

"Because God so loves the world!"

Which manifestly means that, out of all the Races of mankind, He has chosen the best to win for Him the rest.

O, that we conscious British-Israelites might be all aflame to bring the Divinely-purposed consummation nearer, when "God for England" shall have as its corollaries "England for God," then "England and her Commonwealth of Nations and the U.S.A. for God," and finally, in order that God may be all for all, all with all, and all in all,

"THE WHOLE WORLD FOR GOD!"

Amen—so be it.

WAS JESUS THE SON OF GOD?—IV.

BY HENRY D. HOUGHTON.

IT is quite clear that in the latter days Satan is to make his great attack upon God by smiting and attacking His people Israel.

Nor will that attack be literal only! Certainly it will be literal, and with all the forces that hell can muster!

But there is to be a more subtle, secret and spiritual attack. An attack to destroy Israel's morals, her character, her faith in God, and more especially her faith in Christ!

And if the devil can succeed in destroying Israel's faith in Christ as the Son of God, his end is won!

The Word gives us clear warning of this. "But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you" (not outside: they have entered right into the Churches), "who privily (secretly) shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them . . . and many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of." (2 Pet. ii, 1, 2.)

Could there be a clearer description of these modernists than that? DENYING THE LORD THAT BOUGHT THEM!

Sure enough, those times are right here and now!

St. Paul, too, says, "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous boasters, proud, blasphemers, . . . Traitors, heady, highminded, . . . Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away." (2 Tim. iii, 1-5.)

There is our duty, our responsibility, and our guidance.

Christ Our Lord declared most distinctly that He was the Son of God.

"If I do not the works of My Father, believe Me not, But if I do, though ye believe not Me, believe the works" (Why? What for?), "that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in Me, and I in Him." (John x, 37, 38.)

What were the works of His Father?

Healing the sick, giving sight to the blind, cleansing the leper, raising the dead. These were the peculiar works of the Father, the things which no mere man could do!

And herein is the secret of the devil's attack upon miracles! Why? How? That He might destroy the plain evidences of Christ's Sonship!

If Christ had not done these peculiar works of the Father, these divine works, then unbelief might have some excuse; but the Divine signs were there, DECLARING UNMISTAKABLY WHO HE WAS!

There is the ground for our faith, there is the hope of the world, there is our Salvation! And without it we are lost indeed!

Now we may understand the secret, subtle, and underhand methods by which the Devil is seeking to destroy, right inside the Churches, the faith once delivered to the saints.

"Even denying the Lord that bought them"! Is that clear?

"Many shall follow their pernicious ways"! Is that clear?

"Having a form of godliness, but denying the power." Is that clear?

"Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers . . . saying, Where is the promise of His coming?"

Is that clear? These modernists almost to a man deny the Lord's Second Coming! Of course they do. If He was only a man, He cannot come again!

The spread in our Churches of disbelief in Our Lord's Divinity is truly alarming.

Quite recently it was boldly said of the Methodist Ministers that nearly all of them were at heart Unitarians!

And the poison has touched the local preachers! A few weeks ago an evangelical local preacher charged a fellow local with disbelieving in Christ's Divinity; to which he replied, "Oh, I do believe it, but in the same sense that I am Divine!" To which the first replied: "I wonder that you ever dare go into a pulpit."

What do these men preach? The Gospel? The good news? The good news of what? What is their good news? It cannot be that of a propitiation for our sins!

There can be no propitiation without the Divine Sacrifice to make it!

Contrast that with what St. John says: "The blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin." (1 John i, 7.) And with what Our Lord said: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life." (St. John iii, 14, 15.)

What is that believing? St. John declares that it is first and foremost and before everything else a belief that Christ is the Son of God.

Without this truth there is no heart in the Bible—no authority in the New Testament; no Redemption for the nation Israel, and no salvation for the world!

Take this, Christ's Divinity, out of the Bible, and you have taken out of it its very heart and soul!

On that Divine One we build our hopes of forgiveness! On Him we build our hope of personal salvation! On Him we build our hope of national restoration! On Him we build our hope of the fulfilment of God's promises to Israel!

Here is Israel's Redemption:

"Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, . . . but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." (1 Pet. i, 18, 19.)

Here is salvation for the individual: "But we see Jesus . . . crowned with glory and honour; that He by the grace of God should taste death for every man." (Heb. ii, 9.)

Digitized by Google

The writer would like to say to every modernist who may read these words: "If you are not prepared to accept the supreme and vital testimony of St. John, please do not quote him on any minor matters, he is no authority to you."

Further, "If you are not prepared to accept the definite and decisive testimony of Our Lord Himself, please do not quote Him at all, He is no authority to you!"

If you take upon yourself to select which words of His you will accept, and which you will refuse, you place yourself in an awful position! Remember that He said, "He that rejecteth Me, and receiveth not My words, hath one that judgeth him; the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." (St. John xii, 48.)

But which words?

Christ's greatest and most vital words were those in which He declared His Divine Sonship! Those are the most discriminating and separating words which will judge men in the last day! For till this Sonship is acknowledged, all His other words would only be the words of a man!

If Christ was not the Son of God, we can close our churches, we can cease all our preaching, we can look in vain for any deliverance or forgiveness either in this world, or that which is to come; we can eat and drink, for to-morrow we die; and life will become a long unmitigated sorrow, a delusion, a snare, a grievously disappointing thing, not worth the living; and goodness will become impossible, and everlasting punishment sure to all of us!

That is the outlook if Christ is not the Son of God!

"BUT NOW IS CHRIST RISEN!" And in that glorious indisputable fact lies the proof and sure evidence that He is the Son of God: and that God owns His Son!

"If the Spirit of Him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, He that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by His Spirit that dwelleth in you." (Rom. viii, 11.)

The resurrection is the final glorious proof that Christ is the Son of God.

"Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen." (Luke xiv, 5-6.)

But how can all this be connected with British-Israel Truth? Is there a connection? Indeed there is, and a most important and vital one!

Christ being the Son of God, is not only the Saviour of the world, but the Redeemer of Israel.

"Fear thou not, thou worm Jacob" (that is not the Church) "and ye men of Israel" (Is that clear?) "I will help thee, saith the Lord, and thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel." (Isa. xli, 14.) The Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel!

Let it be said here that if Jesus Christ be not the Son of God, no redemption can ever come to Israel! What did the disciples say on the way to Emmaus? "We trusted that it had been He which should have redeemed Israel." (Luke xxiv, 21.)

What did Zacharias say, filled with the Holy Ghost? "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for He hath visited and redeemed His people." (Luke i, 68.)

Redemption can only come through the Divine One! There is the superiority of Christ: for what we lost in Moses we more than regain in Christ.

Both Israel and Judah definitely broke the old Mosaic Covenant, as Scripture plainly declares; but the very Scripture which declares the breaking of that old Covenant declares the bringing in of a New: WHICH THEY CANNOT BREAK! And Israel, lost Israel, is brought back again into Covenant relationship with God through the New Covenant of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ!

All this was foreseen and provided for long, long ago. Indeed, that was why Our Lord was sent.

He Himself said, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

And St. Peter, standing up after Pentecost, said, "The God of our fathers raised up Jesus whom ye slew and hanged on a tree. Him hath God exalted with His right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins." (Acts v, 30-31.)

But long, long before that it was all provided for and foretold.

The Lord God Himself, through Jeremiah (xxxi, 31, etc.), six hundred years before Christ, said, "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a New Covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah; not according to the Covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which My Covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord."

Now note, before proceeding, that BOTH HOUSES BROKE THE MOSAIC COVENANT: so neither of them can hope for salvation that way! But it proceeds, "But this shall be the Covenant that I will make with the house of Israel" (I am not going to discuss here whether that covers Judah; it certainly is with Israel, for it says so); "After those days, saith the Lord" (i.e., after the days of the breaking of the Covenant; after the days of the punishment and banishment in consequence; at the end of those days) "I will put My laws in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts, and will be their God, and they shall be My people.

"And they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord, for they shall all know Me from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord, for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more."

That is a most amazing, yet utterly neglected, announcement.

But perhaps someone says, "That does not mention the Lord Jesus Christ as the means."

No, it does not. But if you will look in Matthew xxvi, 28, you will see the connection.

"For this is My blood of the New Testament (Covenant), which is shed for many for the remission of sins."

And also in Luke xxii, 20: "Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the New Testament (Covenant) in My blood, which is shed for you."

And that wonderful Epistle to the Hebrews confirms it all.

"By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament." (Heb. vii, 22.)

"By His own blood He entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us." (ix, 12.)

"And for this cause He is the mediator of the New Testament (Covenant)." (ix, 15.)

Digitized by Google

" For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true ; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us." (ix, 24.)

And then again in chapter xii, 24, we have : " And to Jesus, the mediator of the New Covenant."

And then in xiii, 20, we have this : " Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead Our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting Covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do His will."

O yes, Our Lord Jesus Christ was the mediator, the establisher, the bringer-in of Israel's New Covenant. And whatever other people may do, we British-Israelites fully and unreservedly accept Him, and give to Him the honour, praise and worship due to His Name !

We will not take from Him, nor allow anyone else to take from Him if we can help it, one iota of His honour, and dignity and Divinity.

In that is our personal hope, in that is our rest, in that is our confidence, bringing in ultimately for Israel a complete redemption ; and for the world an offer of a complete and marvellous salvation, which is available for every man the wide world over !

Let us recapitulate.

It has been shown how that the prophet Isaiah foretold this God-child coming !

It has been shown how that the Angel Gabriel announced it long before birth to Mary !

It has been shown how that the Angels straight from heaven made it known to the shepherds !

It has been shown that Christ Himself repudiated Joseph in the presence of Mary, and the doctors, and Joseph submitted !

It has been shown how that on three separate occasions a Divine Voice came direct from Heaven, in the hearing of men, claiming Him as God's Son !

It has been shown how that Jesus Himself bore all the marks of the Father, and did the Father's works !

It has been shown how that Christ on many occasions claimed Divine honours and power !

It has been shown how that the forces of Nature all obeyed Him !

It has been shown how that His disciples, who knew Him well, all gave testimony to His Divinity ; and we may add many of them sealed their testimony with their blood !

It has been shown that even the devils themselves gave their evidence as to Who He was !

Now then, what about it ? Shall we accept the guesses and thoughts of mere men to-day in preference to all this evidence ?

This Divine Sonship of the Christ is the one dividing separating truth of the Holy Scriptures. It cuts off and distinguishes the Christian religion from all others.

Surrender it, and we have only a man left : true a superior kind of man, a Buddha, a Mahomet, a Confucius, a human philosopher, but nothing more ! No Saviour, no Redeemer, no Sacrifice, no Atonement, no Burden-bearer, no Deliverer ! And man may look in vain for any other heaven but this.

But Christ's life and work, His teaching and His character, His death and resurrection, and His visible ascension to the sky before the astonished gaze of His disciples, bear undeniable testimony to the verity of His claim.

And the record of Him cleaving the clouds as He ascended in the sight of all His disciples, as He went, stands written large in the Word of God, testifying as to where He is now, and will be till the great word becomes true, " Surely I come quickly."

THE THREE GATHERINGS OF ISRAEL.

By THOMAS J. McGILL (Vancouver, B.C.).

THERE are three gatherings of Israel spoken of in the Bible. A clear apprehension of them will settle some points in the great message of the prophets of Israel in the latter days and fix their truth more firmly upon our minds. The word of the Lord given unto His servant David through the mouth of the prophet Nathan is, in this connection, of the greatest possible importance. " I will appoint a place for My people Israel and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more ; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as beforetime." (2 Sam. vii, 10.)

Israel was at that time dwelling securely in Palestine at the zenith of her power and glory, but because of sin—obstinate resistance to the claims of God—she was scattered among the nations. Now Jeremiah says : " Hear the Word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock." (Jer. xxxi, 10.) The Lord addresses Himself to the nations and to the isles afar off. The gathering of scattered Israel concerns the nations on the one hand and Israel herself on the other. The prophets Isaiah, Hosea and Ezekiel speak after the same fashion.

" And I will bring the blind by a way that they know not ; I will lead them in paths that they have not known ; I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them." (Isa. xlii, 16.)

" Behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her." (Hosea xi, 14.)

" And I will make with them a covenant of peace, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land ; and they shall dwell safely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods." (Ezek. xxxiv, 25.)

A further word from Isaiah testifies to this great gathering of the people of Israel. He says : " Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old. Behold, I will do a new thing ; now it shall spring forth ; shall ye not know it ? I will even make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert. The beasts of the field shall honour Me, the dragons and the owls ; because I give waters in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert, to give drink to My people, My chosen." (Isa. xliii, 18-20.)

It seems evident from these passages of Holy Writ that the place designated " the wilderness " was the place promised, and this gathering was the fulfilment of the promise.

Where was this place of their own where they should dwell safely, and where God would be to them a sanctuary, and they should renew their strength and move no more—where they should become " the chief of nations "—where ? This place and people can be found easily enough if we have sufficient regard to the facts of Britain's history and realize that there are not many aspirants to the place of honour among the nations of the world. The point to remember is that this gathering, though it has taken many centuries to accomplish, has been accomplished, and in that accomplishment the words of the prophets have been completely fulfilled.

Digitized by Google

Now the next gathering spoken of in the Bible is of a different order, and yet it sustains a very close relationship to the first gathering; it is indeed consequent upon the first. It is the gathering or the assembly which we call the Church. We are constantly reminded by the prophets of the redemption of Israel, and St. Luke, rightly identifying that redemption of Israel with the birth of Our Lord, puts these words into the mouth of Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist, at the birth of his God-given and God-created son. "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for He hath visited and redeemed His people." That whole passage of St. Luke i, 67-80, will repay our careful reading. The appeal of Isaiah in this connection is very arresting. "I have blotted out, as a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and as a cloud, thy sins: return unto Me; for I have redeemed thee." (Isa. xliv, 22.) The redemption is closely connected with the forgiveness of sins, and therefore must be associated with the work of Christ as the Saviour of men. An individual acceptance of life, and a pledge of loyalty to Him as Redeemer and King, is therefore absolutely necessary. Upon this basis this second gathering rests. As He wept over Jerusalem Our Lord said: "How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not." (St. Matt. xxiii, 37.) And again, "And ye will not come to Me, that ye might have life." (St. John v, 40.) He is the "door," the "way," the "life." He tasted death for every man. "Whosoever will may come." "The Lord God which gathereth the outcasts of Israel saith, Yet will I gather others to him, beside those that are gathered unto him." (Isa. lvi, 8.)

This then is the second gathering, or assembly, the Church. As far as these two gatherings are concerned the work has been accomplished. There now remains one great final gathering which has still to take place. I refer to the gathering of Israel back to Palestine. Prophecy requires that Palestine be filled with a holy, happy people, their king reigning in Jerusalem; which city shall be the joy of the whole earth, and the law of the Lord shall go out from Jerusalem to earth's remotest bounds. But Israel has increased, and become a multitude of nations. How can she return to so limited a place as Palestine? Even the whole territory promised unto Abraham would be altogether too small to contain the hosts of Israel. Jeremiah has a word which solves this little difficulty. "Turn, O backsliding children, saith the Lord; for I am married unto you: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion." (Jer. iii, 14.) No part of Israel's wide dominions will be abandoned and left without inhabitant; but from every quarter the gathering hosts will form one mighty delegation. "As a holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts; so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men: and they shall know that I am the Lord." (Ezek. xxxvi, 38.) "And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the garden of Eden; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are become fenced, and are inhabited." (Ezek. xxxvi, 35.) What an honour, what a privilege to be one of that company! How gloriously true is that very wonderful 60th chapter of Isaiah in this regard. It is well worth reading and pondering over. It is not a message to the Church as the headings of the chapter suggests, but a great message to Israel, to Mount Zion, the city of the great King, and to the final gathering of the nations under the shadow of her sanctuary. "I will make the place of My feet glorious." "Happy art thou, O Israel; who is like unto thee O people saved of the Lord?"

"But in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow into it. And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and He will teach us His ways, and we will walk in His paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem." (Micah iv, 1-2.) And it is in the final gathering that peace will be established in the earth for ever. Micah continues: "And He shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." (Micah iv, 3.)

We have surely said sufficient to show how true and Scriptural is the British-Israel position. The charge of heresy and blasphemy sometimes levelled at this position will surely, in the face of such Bible testimony, not one quarter of which we have been able to cite, shortly give place to the acceptance of our Truth.

The Sun of Righteousness will arise upon us with healing in His wings, and darkness will be for ever dispelled.

"Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.

QUESTION.—I would be so much obliged if you would tell me whether B.-I's are allowed to eat pork in any shape or form? Also what Feasts B.-I's are expected to keep, and how? I find it very puzzling, as people say so much was changed when Christ was on earth.—MRS. M. L. D.

ANSWER.—(1) There is nothing whatever to prevent B.-I's from eating pork, bacon, or any form of swine's flesh, if they so desire. According to the ritual laws of Moses, the ancient Israelites were not allowed to eat the flesh of the camel, the coney, the hare, and the swine, because these animals did not combine the conditions of chewing the cud with being cloven-footed. They were only allowed to eat such animals as were cloven-footed and chewed the cud (Lev. xi, 1-8).

(2) The three greatest Feasts of Israel were (a) the Passover, now traditionally kept by Christians on Good Friday and Easter; (b) the Feast of Pentecost, now coincident with our Whit Sunday Festival; and (c) the Feast of Tabernacles, now unofficially kept in our praiseworthy Harvest Festival.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

A CABLE received at Headquarters from the Rev. E. J. Springett, Winnipeg, states that Mr. Garrison's inspiring speeches there have aroused remarkable enthusiasm. Two were given at large public meetings and others at a special Empire Club Luncheon, and when being entertained by the Ladies' Auxiliary. Ex-Mayor Gray presided at the Empire Club meeting, and a number of leading citizens were present, including His Honour Judge Corbet Locke. Mr. Springett remarks that immense service is resulting to the Cause in Canada from this tour, and members send greetings and thanks to Headquarters.

* * *

During July and August there will be no meetings at Headquarters.

* * *

Southampton Branch reports two splendid meetings on June 5th, full in numbers and in enthusiasm, addressed by Mr. J. J. Morey.

* * *

On June 11th Mr. G. R. Gair lectured to the Harrogate Branch, telling a wonderfully interesting story of the history of the banners of Britain, how these banners include the Lions of Judah, the Unicorns of Ephraim, and the symbols of Ur and of Israel. Dr. Rutherford presided. This Branch has opened a lending library, and has already received a goodly number of subscriptions.

* * *

Mrs. Zoe Bell's monthly Bible Study Class for women will meet at Headquarters on Saturday, July 6th, at 3 p.m.

* * *

Folkestone Branch enjoyed four wonderfully inspiring lectures, given at the Town Hall on June 11th and 12th, by the Rev. Guy Waddington, M.A., Vicar of Christ Church, Bradford, who very kindly visited them for two days. The Branch greatly appreciated the opportunity of hearing such a fearless exponent of the faithfulness of Almighty God.

* * *

On June 6th Miss Hamilton Hunter lectured at St. Leonards, receiving a very cordial welcome on this her first visit to the Branch. Each lecture made a deep impression. New members were enrolled, and others are studying the subject. The Branch hopes to hear Miss Hunter again; she is specially interesting to the younger members, as well as to those more advanced in our great Teaching. The Rev. H. Newton presided at the afternoon meeting.

* * *

OPEN-AIR CAMPAIGN.—Though previously announced that the meeting last Sunday would be held in Finsbury Park, Mr. Gay decided, upon looking over the ground there, to return to Hyde Park, where at 7 p.m. he addressed another large audience for two hours, questions following. Several names and addresses were handed in for free literature.

Please note the change to HYDE PARK for Sunday, June 30th, at 3.30 and 7 p.m., instead of Victoria Park, and help by your presence there.

Thanks to the kindness of Mrs. Hodges, a most successful meeting was held at her house in Sydenham on Monday, June 10th, when Miss Hamilton Hunter was the speaker, with Mr. W. A. Jordan, of Blackheath, in the chair. The subject selected by Miss Hunter was "The Stone Symbol in the Kingdom of Israel." She held her audience enthralled for more than an hour. The quiet, thoughtful presentation of her subject carried conviction; many there had never heard British-Israel Truth before. There were about seventy present.

* * *

At the invitation of Lady Pearson, a gathering was held on June 12th at Brickendonbury, Hertford, with a view to making arrangements for holding regular meetings in the district, commencing in the Autumn. The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson spoke on the British-Israel position, grouping his remarks around "Jerusalem 1917," and showing how the promises to Abraham had received abundant fulfilment in the Anglo-Celtic-Saxon race. The address was much appreciated, Lady Pearson and others adding interesting details; steps were taken to enrol names for future reference. The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson will be glad if those in the neighbourhood of Hertford and St. Albans, who are desirous of helping in the great work, will communicate with him at Headquarters.

* * *

At the Annual Meeting of the Southend Branch, recently held, Mr. J. Simmonds presided over a large attendance, in his opening remarks speaking of the great and growing influence the Federation was exercising not only in this country, but in the Dominions, Colonies and Dependencies, and also in the U.S.A. The election of Officers and Committee followed; then the Secretary's report and the Treasurer's financial statement, each of which were extremely satisfactory.

* * *

The Harrow and District Branch held the final meeting of the session on June 14th, when Miss Beck, recently appointed Organizing Secretary for this district, outlined her proposals for extending the work by means of visitation, open-air meetings, lectures at Harrow, Wealdstone, Kenton, Roxeth, Harrow Weald, Pinner and Wembley; also meetings for Bible Study. The members present were unanimous in their expressions of appreciation of Miss Beck's services and voiced their intention to support her to the utmost of their ability.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, July 1st, at 8.
FOLKESTONE, Thursday, July 4th. Mr. J. J. Morey.
HORNSEY and CROUCH END, Earl Haig Memorial Hall, Elder Avenue, Tuesday, July 2nd, at 8. Miss Dickinson.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Street, Tuesday, July 2nd, at 7.30. Bible Study.
HYDE PARK, Open-Air, Sunday, June 30th, at 3.30 and 7.
LEICESTER, S.S. Memorial Hall, New Walk, Tuesday, July 2nd, at 7.45. Mr. Daniel Farmer.
PORTSMOUTH, Tuesday, July 2nd. Mr. J. J. Morey.
SHEFFIELD, Committee Room, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, July 3rd, at 7.30.
STRATFORD, St. Mark's Church, Windmill Lane, Monday, July 1st, at 8. Rev. W. H. Stuart-Fox, M.A.
WORTHING, Holy Trinity Vicarage, Shelly Road, Wednesday, July 3rd, Tea at 4. Mr. J. J. Morey.

Digitized by Google

BE A BANNER BEARER

Spread the truth. Interest your friends, not only in our Movement, but in following our Movement and its developments week by week. Induce them to become subscribers as you are, for it is only thus that our Movement can grow and the light be shed in the dark corners. Do your part in the pioneering work and be a banner bearer.

Special Campaign for Increasing the Circulation of this Journal.

I wish to help, and I send herewith the sum of.....

for which please send ..... copies for three, six, twelve months to :

(Name) .....

Postal address .....

.....

.....

Alternative form :—

I enclose the sum of .....

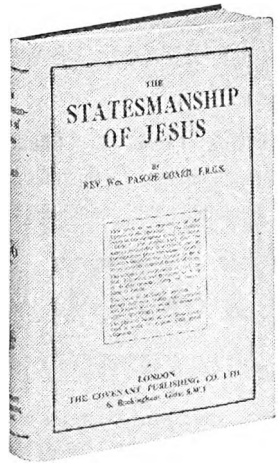
Please send..... copies to whomsoever you may select for a period covered by this amount.

N.B.—The subscription is 3/- for three months ; 6/- for six months ; 12/- for twelve months. Canada and U.S.A. three dollars per annum.

ADDRESS—

The Secretary,
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

BOOKS BY REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

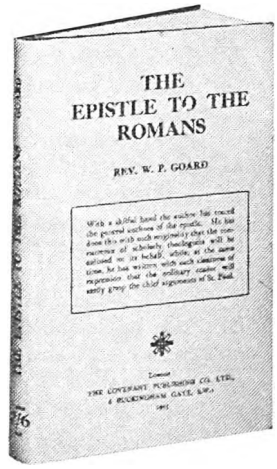


THE LAW OF THE LORD OR THE COMMON LAW

Anglo-Saxon Common Law is based on the laws given to Israel at Sinai. If statesmen would get back to those laws peace would ensue.

This is a book which should be carefully studied. It is a most valuable contribution towards the settlement of many of to-day's perplexing problems.

Price 3/6. By post 3/9.

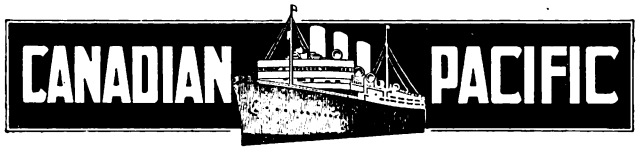


THE STATESMANSHIP OF JESUS

A brilliant exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews—a letter having the direct inspiration of God. The book brings out new facets of the truth with striking vividness, and enhances the already great reputation of the writer.

Price 3/6. By post 3/9.

THE EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS



With a skilful hand the author has traced the general outlines of the Epistle, and, as Mr. Goard usually does, he has thrown new light on dark places.

Dr. Mountain writes, "Mr. Goard is, indeed, a brave man to endeavour to analyse and expound the Epistle to the Romans within the limits of a hundred pages. But he has succeeded where many would have failed."

Price 2/6. By post 2/9.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

For CANADA, U.S.A., JAPAN or CHINA

your best route is

CANADIAN PACIFIC
ALL THE WAY

STEAMERS—TRAINS—HOTELS.

Through Bookings via Vancouver to NEW ZEALAND and AUSTRALIA in connection with Canadian-Australasian Line Steamers.

For fares, etc., apply—

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY,
62-65, CHARING CROSS, LONDON, S.W.1,
or local agents everywhere.

When travelling carry Canadian Pacific Travellers' Cheques

A BOOK FOR CHILDREN.

The Torn Cloak

By "M. C."

One of the most attractive little books ever written for the instruction of the younger generation.
PRICE 6D.

A GIFT EVERY PARENT AND GODPARENT SHOULD MAKE.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1.

THE ORIGIN OF THE ENGLISH

By MAJOR B. de W. WELDON.

SECOND EDITION (REVISED)

Here is a book which once read will be read again and again.

Our history traced for three thousand years. Of necessity, many details must be left out, for the whole of our history could not be compressed into the two hundred and eighty pages this book contains. The fact that a second edition has been called for is evidence of the value of this work for students of the history of the English People.

"The present writer does not claim that the story to be told in the following pages is anything of a new discovery. All the essential facts were in the possession of a man who lived many centuries ago, in the reign of the Emperor Justinian. And one German at least, the philologist Grimm, early in the last century knew a good deal more about the identity of Israel than he cared to disclose in books which were intended to glorify the great German race.

The chapters that will now be written have to contain many Biblical quotations. But they are no more designed as a theological disquisition than a Government blue book or a standard history would be.

They are merely the missing pages of the history of Israel, the pages that centuries ago were blotted out until the time came when they might safely be restored to their proper place in the world's historical libraries. All histories are dull reading; and condensed history is perhaps the worst of all, where no time can be given up to the 'drum and trumpet' details, interesting though these might be made.

This book is no exception; having to be condensed, many interesting points must be omitted. Before our case can be established, many witnesses will have to be called; men who lived in different ages and in countries far apart—prophets and saints, as well as dignitaries of the Church; Greeks and Romans and Jews; pagans from the North; modern scholars of the most profound learning; and writers of gossip who would be exceedingly astonished to find fragments of their work still in existence after so many centuries have elapsed. All these diverse sources of information will be placed on a friendly footing of equal credibility before the reader."

Crown 8vo. 286 pages, cloth - - - Price 4s. 6d.; by post, 5s.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

See Page 7

Are you willing that this should be true? If so, read and pass it on.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY (ABRAHAMS) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22·17

HIS (ISRAELS) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24·7

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

GT. BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1ST CHRON C.29 V.23 JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT" Is 19 V.19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11.

J.J. HALL 1921

Digitized by Google

The British-Israel-World Federation

Headquarters

6 Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1

(Opposite Buckingham Palace)

One of the greatest Interdenominational Organisations of the day; among its members and supporters being Bishops, Clergy and Lay Preachers of the Anglican Church; Ministers and Lay Preachers of the Free Churches, and men and women of all ranks.

It is governed by a General Council and Committees comprising representative business men and women. A city man has said that it is one of the best managed of all the institutions he knows. The auditors are one of the best known firms in the world. There is a large staff of Commissioners, Speakers, and Writers. Scores of meetings are held every week.

Over TEN MILLION items of literature have been sent out. The teaching for which the Federation stands is spreading like A FLAME throughout the English-Speaking world, and it is bringing LIGHT, JOY AND CONFIDENCE to countless numbers.

Correspondence Invited

Secretary-General

HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.C.I.

HISTORIC GLASTONBURY

—the ancient AVALON in Somerset, England had one of the largest and finest in Britain.

ABBEYS

Remains thereof are still to be seen in beautiful Grounds in which is the site of the first CHRISTIAN CHURCH building in the world.

Within a few yards is the Freehold Property of the British-Israel-World Federation :—

ABBOTS LEIGH

used as a HOSTEL all the year round for Christian people from all parts.

It is highly recommended by visitors. The terms are moderate. Delightful excursions can be made to Historic and Picturesque places within easy distance. Everyone should visit GLASTONBURY, and ABBOTS LEIGH is the place to stay. Full Board and Residence.

Particulars from

HERBERT GARRISON

6 Buckingham Gate

London, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL
MESSAGE & BANNER
The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation
INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" and "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth—namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

"Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it."—Psalm 127.

BRITAIN AT PRAYER—OR—AT WAR

God's Last Call to the Nation

WE believe that the time has come when the most solemn warning that we can possibly give should now be given to Britain.

Many voices from those who are informed from many quarters, of separate and distinct things which lead to the same conclusion, will tell and are telling Britain that she stands on the edge of a volcano.

Britain does not desire war. Britain is determined, so far as it is possible for her to control events, that she will have peace with all. But unfortunately Britain is in the position of the peaceful traveller, who is met and assaulted by highwaymen. She must submit to lose property, honour, and national life, with all that it stands for; or she must defend herself. The choice of peace is not left with her by the highwaymen.

Moreover, Britain is a servant nation. This she has been from the birth of her race in Isaac, some 1928 years (circa) before Christ; and from the organisation of her nationhood from 1496 B.C. (circa) until this day. She is the servant of Jehovah, her God and King. He has set her the task of serving nations of the earth, as the administrator of His Kingdom in the earth. This service she must fulfil, even though the nations of the earth strive with might and main, with hand and sword, to prevent her carrying out the task.

Further, Jehovah, the God and King of Israel, has committed to Britain the treasures of the Kingdom. These, as Mr. Morey points out, include the national organisation; the House of David; the throne; the Temple, or its Christian equivalent; the Law and its administration; the Lands; and all the precious things of the kingdom of God in the earth.

Once more, Our Lord Jesus Christ committed His goods and His House to Britain, the ten-tribed servants of the Lord, when He went into the far country "to receive for Himself a Kingdom and to return." These "goods" consist of the Word of Truth; the Gospel of the Kingdom and of Salvation; the lands Divinely granted to the Kingdom; the Throne of His father David, to which He must ultimately, and soon, come; the "lost sheep of the House of Israel"; His inheritance in the heathen; and His possessions in the uttermost parts of the earth. These are His things, and they are precious in His sight. These goods He has committed to "His ten servants," with the command "Occupy till I come."

These things being so, we must defend our trust even to the death, individually and nationally.

Therefore Our Lord gives us no option as to that which we shall do if these things are attacked; or if men should endeavour to take them from our hands and from the protection of our nation. Our Lord warns us, "The strong man armed keepeth his house"; the strong man unarmed would be overcome and his goods despoiled.

No matter how peacefully disposed we may all be, it is most certain that "if war should arise against us," it will be also against Him, and we must not fail to defend that which He has committed to our charge.

Now it will be mental blindness to shut our eyes to the fact that there are powers organizing to challenge our possession of these things; and there are powers organizing to prevent our being able to carry on the work which God has instructed us to carry forward.

What choice is there but to defend ourselves, and the things which have been committed to our care, if such organizations make war upon us?

Is there any hope of persuading a nation such as Russia to keep the peace? Not while we hold the things which God has committed to our charge, and not while we carry out the work which He has commissioned us to do.

Great as is the love of peace in our hearts, and greater still as is our horror of war, that love, and that horror, is infinitesimal when compared with the love of peace, and the hatred of war, which is to be found in the manifested character of God.

And yet, if the free will of man is to stand, and that seems to be the most precious endowment with which our Creator has blessed us in the natural realm—even God cannot cause that war shall not take place. The nations who are even now busy with preparation have predetermined on having their way, and on denying us ours, even at the expense of war. That is a matter well known by many groups of informed men, whose knowledge comes from many and diverse quarters.

Alas that such is the fact of the case in world affairs to-day! The knowledge that such is the fact has come to men in many walks, and they are telling that knowledge out in many quarters. Now while it is true that Anglo-Saxons see war approaching, they are not at all planning it, nor desiring it, much less bringing it on. Long and long ago that knowledge was with the Lord and He has told us of the facts which He has so known for ages. Yet, knowing that such is the case, He has not planned that thus it shall be, neither has He done any act to bring it on. Neither can He prevent it without taking away human free will, and this latter would be a greater calamity still, for it would reduce the human species to a level with the lower orders of life, to be governed by instinct, and not by reason manifest in free will and choice.

Is there then no choice? A choice lies with those nations who are at this time determining that even to the point of war they will have their own way. There is a choice with them, and they have exercised it; and, as is well known in many quarters, they have already determined on war.

Is there no choice with Britain? There is no choice with Britain as to whether war shall take place. But what her part in the war shall be is within her choice. She cannot settle the place she shall have in regard to the war by wishing, nor by voting. She must settle her place in regard to the war by action expressing itself in prayer.

Britain's choice is as to whether she shall be the antagonist who shall meet and defeat the tremendous efforts our potential enemy will put forth, or whether she shall pass the conflict over into the hands of her God and King.

The choice is: Shall the enemy meet Britain in the field, and so waste Britain's strength and cause her untold suffering, before Britain can obtain the victory; or shall the enemy meet Jehovah, the God and King of Israel in His own person and power?

If Britain shall determine to hold her present course and to stand up to the attacks which may be made on her in her own strength, then God help us—there is a time of supreme suffering ahead.

If Britain will recognize the fact of the actual Kingship of Jehovah in our nation, which is Israel, and will call upon Him " to do it for them " then Israel will not have to meet the enemy alone, but Jehovah will take the defence of Israel-Britain in His own hands. He declares in connection with this very matter, " Nevertheless I will be enquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them."

We may not until the event know the actual time of such a war. The enemy could give us the information. But we know that such a war is coming sooner or later. It looks as though it were coming soon. Such are the signs and the warnings which we receive daily from many quarters, emanating from many sources of information, that believe we shall perhaps this year, perhaps next year, but soon, be involved in such a conflict. It is time to be ready. And we shall get ready either to fight as we have never had to fight in the history of our nation; or we shall get to prayer.

The same Book that foretells of the terrible struggle the enemy nations will make, tells us that our God stands ready to take the whole matter upon His own shoulders, and to fight our battles for us, if we will repent, and turn to Him, and PRAY.

So there lies the choice with Britain.
If we love peace; then let us pray.
If we hate war; then let us pray.

Perhaps our prayer will affect many of our enemies, and turn them from the path into which they are being led—the path of death and confusion.

Whether this is the case or not, our prayer is that which the Lord declares He is waiting for, in order to take the conflict upon His own shoulders, and so relieve Israel-Britain from the terrible calamity of deadly war.

Britain will be at prayer, or at war, soon. That is our warning to-day.

Are there facts which will carry conviction to the minds of men who are inclined to be sceptical of such an appeal as this? There are abundance of facts in history showing how peace and war depend on the movements of the Kingdom, and of the nations which resist the Kingdom, and which would fain take away the precious things committed to its keeping.

Let us take as a measuring rod the prophetical period of seven times; or two thousand five hundred and twenty years; and let us apply the rod to Israel-British history, as Grattan Guinness applied it to the Continental nations forty years ago.

Israel was sent into punishment for a period of seven times, and at the end of seven times she should be restored.

Israel first went astray from God in 975 B.C. Jeroboam then put away the true worship and the Bible as they then possessed it, and set up the worship of the Golden Calves. Because of this, and more, Israel was from God.

DIVORCED

Now measure along the line of Israel-British history for two thousand five hundred and twenty years, and what do we find? We find the reign of Henry the Eighth, and, in his struggle to obtain from his queen, he first divorced Rome from the English Church, himself being recognized as the head of the National Church. He next divorced the scholarship of the Continental Universities which sided with the Pope in the struggle, and separated from their influence Oxford and Cambridge, etc., representing the scholarship of Britain. Then he divorced his wife.

DIVORCE

Now read the first chapter of Hosea, which tells of the divorce of Israel under Jeroboam, and then read the story of the divorce of Rome from the English Church under Henry the Eighth, and tell if these parallels are accidental. How many have wondered at the strange symbols used by the Prophet Hosea, to set forth the separation of Israel from her God. Is it not certain that the purpose was to give the key to the reading of the events which should mark the return of Israel to her God at the end of the appointed period of punishment?

Jeroboam put away the Word of God, the priestly ministers appointed of God, and the pure worship of God. He established idol worship, under a new priestly order. Hosea was then commissioned to prophesy the fact of the DIVORCE of Israel from God.

Henry the Eighth put away a foreign order of priests, tore down much of the idol equipment in the land, and declared that thenceforth the BIBLE should be the final authority in British worship. This all came about over a process of DIVORCE.

Come now to the period around 745 B.C. (circa). At this time Israel with Syria was in violent conflict with Judah and Jerusalem, and the cause of the contention was THE HOUSE OF DAVID. When the allied armies of

Digitized by Google

Israel and Syria were approaching Jerusalem for the purpose of overturning the dynasty of the House of David, Isaiah came to King Ahaz and prophesied, first, that the expedition should fail; and, secondly, that within sixty-five years Israel should cease to be a nation.

Two thousand five hundred and twenty years from that time Voltaire on the Continent was preaching his infidelity which was the beginning of the overthrow of the ancient Continental kingdoms, and which precipitated the French Revolution, with all its consequences.

Two thousand five hundred and twenty years from that same time John Wesley and his associates were preaching the great evangel which stabilized the thinking of Britain, and through her of the world, and which furnished the spirit which made possible the miraculous spread of the British Empire.

About that time (740 B.C.) Assyria moved against and carried captive the two and a half tribes which dwelt east of the rift of the Jordan Valley, and which were therefore exposed to attack by Assyria from the east without the protection of the Valley. This inaugurated that movement of Assyria against Israel which continued till all Israel had been carried captive to Assyria, a process ending about 704 B.C.

Two thousand five hundred and twenty years from that period Britain found herself in a terrific struggle with all the nations of the world, including the United States of America. This struggle continued until Trafalgar at sea, and Waterloo on land, brought final victory for Britain over all her non-Israel enemies, and brought about the modern dividing of Israel into Britain and America, Ephraim and Manasseh, which evidently was at once in the Divine foreknowledge and the Divine plan.

Thus through the terror of the Napoleonic period Britain marched to final victory at the end of her period of punishment, namely, at the end of two thousand five hundred and twenty years.

We now turn to Judah and Jerusalem, for that kingdom also had a share in the sin and in the punishment fully set forth in the sacred Word of God.

At about 603 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar marched against Jerusalem and took the city captive. Two thousand five hundred and twenty years after that Allenby set the city free.

Again, in 587 B.C., the forces of Nebuchadnezzar marched against Jerusalem, took the city, burned the Temple, destroyed the buildings, and left the site of the city bare and the country desolate.

Two thousand five hundred and twenty years from that date calls for the reverse action. But of all the times which had to run, this is the last of the series, and it is not yet expired. So we cannot go to the pages of history to see what events mark the end of this last seven times of the City of Jerusalem. We therefore turn to prophecy and we find that the last step of the great drama will be the gathering of all nations against Jerusalem to battle. Outside of the general tables, of which we have been speaking, the Bible gives no date for the last great siege. May we not assume that siege will take place, in line with the other events, two thousand five hundred and twenty years from the final destruction of the city and the Temple in the days of Nebuchadnezzar? It would seem that we should be justified in the expectation.

The Great Pyramid seems to lend assurance as to the time of the end. If we take the predictive element of the Great Pyramid, then the beginning of the end is close at hand. Its beginnings are indicated for this very year, for the Pyramid bears this message. What that beginning will be, and whether it will be recognised by the people and the world, we must await the events to see. If all these most probable things prove to be so, then such passages as in the prophecy of Joel, of Zechariah, of the 38th and 39th of Ezekiel, have given to us the outline of what may be expected.

We will not try to unravel the prophecy further than to say that the crisis seems to be on us, and we have, as a people, the choice of going to prayer, or of going to war. Read carefully the 38th and 39th of Ezekiel, and it will become clear that the Almighty is ready with organized forces of nature to fight this last battle for us. But also remember that He has declared "Nevertheless I will be enquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them."

What a tragedy it is that at such a time as this the religious leaders of the nation, instead of leading the nation in prayer, are setting the people by the ears with each other over FORMS of worship; and especially that, instead of purifying the worship of the nation from every semblance of that idolatry which has cost us so dear for ages, they should be bent on making such idolatry possible in the nation, under the law.

The tempest threatens to catch the nation, and them, unawares. The last tempest did so, and the Church did not in the least understand. The nation forgave them, because also the nation did not understand. But when the experience is repeated on a larger scale, and the nation does understand, there will be no forgiveness for the religious leaders, either by the people of the nation, or by the Lord; but the punishment Our Lord Himself indicated will be the bitter lot of those who have failed to lead the people in the day of crisis and danger.

May God grant that we, and all the nation, may hear His voice crying: "The time is fulfilled, the Kingdom of God is at hand, and believe the Gospel."

REPENT YE,

This was Our Lord's first personal call to the nation as given by St. Mark in the first chapter. This is the last call to the nation as declared by Our Lord Himself in Matthew xxiv: "And this Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world" (empire, according to Ferrar Fenton) "for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come."

Britain, heed the call of Our Lord to repentance, faith in the Gospel of the Kingdom, and prayer.

* * *

Remembrance

By THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD

WHAT a day the last Remembrance Day was in London!

What an evening followed the day. The Albert Hall was thronged in the evening, and the proceedings were of the greatest interest. At night there was a procession of marching men and women, interspersed with many Bands.

Digitized by Google

At the head of the procession was His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Right Honourable Winston Churchill.

The procession was not in military formation, but packed the streets from kerb to kerb. Fifty thousand people marched to the music of the bands and to the rhythm of their own songs. It was a typical good-humoured London crowd. It was something to see the heir apparent to the throne thus mingling with and heading a marching multitude of people through the streets of London at night, as they tramped the miles from the Albert Hall down to Whitehall—to the Cenotaph.

The heart of the people was touched, and the thankfulness of the people for the bravery and memory of those who gave their all was sincere. In memory the many who " went West " lived again.

What is it that we have to remember?

We remember that during the red years from 1914 to 1918 we were at war. It is a solemn fact. Peace-loving Britain was at war.

We remember that we were at war after we had exhausted every method at the time open to us to prevent the nations from fighting. Our efforts were of no avail. What an Apostle of Peace Sir Edward Grey was in those grave days which immediately preceded the fourth of August, 1914!

There was one argument we were not prepared to use at that time. It was the argument of " the strong man ARMED " ; millions of men (as the fact turned out) were thrown into the conflict. It was inevitable that they should either be used as a prevailing argument or be, as they were, thrown in to stem the tide of war. They were not present to the minds of the Central Powers as an argument to prevent war. Such an army was esteemed to be impossible. Let us think of this. For the want of a million trained men as an argument, the men had ultimately to go in flesh and blood. REMEMBER. REMEMBER. Men put forward simply as an argument for peace do not suffer. Men put forward in flesh and blood to oppose aggression suffer and die.

What a question it is! God give us wisdom, Amen. Some believe still that peace will be secured by disarmament. It was a tragic mistake last time. That is historic. What will it be in the future? Some believe in preparation for the sake of peace. Are they right? God give us wisdom to secure peace, Amen.

The necessity having come, how wonderfully the men took up the task. How cheerfully they endured the strain; how readily they gave their lives; but they stemmed the tide, and Britain and the world remained free. Let us give thanks for the devotion of these men and women.

Remember a nation on its knees on one tremendous day.

This was a great day for the Anglo-Saxon world. It was a greater day than we can as yet estimate, when the whole nation knelt before God. What a declaration of faith this was. What a confession of the actuality of religion and of God. It was a great day for Britain and the world.

Remember that the war the Allies were losing, until the Day of Prayer, was won within the year. God answered the prayer of His nation and company of nations.

REMEMBER that not at any point in all the world did Britain or her Allies continue the fight for a single day after the enemy had given up his aggressive purpose. No single day of war was chosen by us when a day of peace lay within our choice. REMEMBER. Especially those who dream that Britain desired war, or because of preparation desires it now.

Preparation for defence is to think of peace and safety guaranteed by power. But let the preparation be (1) material, (2) mental, (3) spiritual.

REMEMBER that the enemy prevailed over our armies until the day of national prayer. It was so with our people long and long ago when they were on their first battlefield in the desert. Israel versus Amalek. While Moses, as representing the nation, lifted his hands in prayer, Israel prevailed. When the hands of Moses fell, Amalek prevailed. So the hands of Moses were held up by Aaron and Hur until the victory was won.

When Israel-Britain and America went to prayer, the enemy halted his progress and Israel-Britain and their Allies prevailed.

Should not the nation get to prayer now, that the storm may be turned aside? A day of prayer would be more than a year of talking peace when there is no peace.

It would appear that the one thing necessary to the world's peace would be the change of mind and heart of Russia, for it is there that the war clouds are gathering. How shall such change of heart be wrought? She is beyond the influence of the League of Nations; she is beyond the reach of Christian argument. Nothing but the living Spirit of God can avail here. This is within the possibility of prayer.

To this end let the day of REMEMBRANCE be followed by a day for PREVISION and of PRAYER.

REMEMBER the written Word, which shows that there are yet conflicts prewritten upon the pages of prophetic history which will be inspired by the Devil, and organized by godless men and nations. At the end of the age it is shown that two great organizations of peoples, greater than have yet been seen in the earth, will be in struggle, each in support of a separate ideal. One will be contesting for the Law of God, usually called " The Common Law." The other will be contesting for LAWLESS existence. One defending the Common Law, the other fighting to establish the licence of Communism without law.

These things are not foreordained of God, but they are clearly foreseen and foretold of God. Short of taking away human free will they cannot be averted. They are foreshown on the pages of prophecy as surely as though they had been already enacted.

What then can prayer avail?

Prayer can and will in this case bring about Divine interference. Not indeed to stay the war, but interference so vital and drastic that Jehovah, Israel-Britain's God, (for Britain is Israel) Jehovah, we say, has prewritten that He will Himself take the defence of Israel-Britain into His own hands and, with His power directing natural phenomena, will bring to naught the power of the attacking forces. See Ez. xxxviii and xxxix.

Even the methods by which the Lord will accomplish this, and the details of the outline of the campaign, are prewritten and all may read them in the sacred Word. But there is one condition attached to such Divine interference. It is this: "Nevertheless I WILL BE ENQUIRED OF BY THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL TO DO IT FOR THEM."

REMEMBER this condition. This simple and easy condition that Our Lord attaches to His undertaking this war, and the preservation of Israel. REMEMBER this and call together the nation in prayer.

REMEMBER that there will be but one great war more in the history of the earth. The first phase of the last war is passed. The intervening Armistice is now being enjoyed. The last phase of the war is to come. The enemy is at this time preparing for it. It will come, and it will pass. Then Israel-Britain will raise its head as freed from war for ever. The time when God "Endured with much long suffering the vessels of wrath fitted for destruction" has come to an end. Vessels of wrath fitted for destruction will no more thereafter be endured, whether it be gun or battleship, military organisation or nation founded thereon. All such "vessels of wrath fitted for destruction" will be swept away; and the earth shall dwell in universal peace. Probably we are within a decade of that time and that condition so greatly to be desired. REMEMBER all these facts foretold to us by "the more sure word of prophecy"; take courage; "quit yourselves like men, be strong"; "fear God, honour the King, love the brotherhood."

REMEMBER that soon Our Lord will return; and that "God shall give to him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever."

REMEMBER that when He so comes He will be accompanied by all His saints. Those who have loved and served Him on land and sea, in toil and in battle, and have died, "will God bring with Him." When the final victory is won, and the universal peace is established, and the Kingdom is fully organized throughout all the earth, then the suffering and the toil, the sorrow and the bereavement which it cost to bring all this about will be accounted a very little thing. The glory and the peace which shall endure for ever will be worth all the toil and trouble it has taken to establish it in the earth.

The Communists dream is more outré than the slimy pit as compared to flower-decked and sunlit meadow. Reptiles love the slime. The skylark loves the sunlight and the meadow. Thus and more will be the contrast between the Communists' dream and the glory of the Kingdom.

The Socialists wildest imaginings of perfect enjoyment for each, and perfect satisfaction for all, but to be obtained more or less at the expense of the freedom of the individual, will be so outclassed that it will not come again to mind.

And the Kingdom is here; it is expanding in extent, it is ascending in spirit, it is approximating more and more to the conception of Our Lord. It is even now marching out into the great plain of Millennial universality and glory.

REMEMBER; and REJOICE: "for the day of your redemption draweth nigh."

* * *

Advent, 1927

By THE REV. HECTOR MACTURK, M.A.

"THE Night is far spent: the Day is at hand" (Rom. xiii, 12).

A period—an age—of nearly 2,000 years has passed away into history since the great Apostle St. Paul wrote, or dictated, these words—the words of my text—addressing them to "the Saints," members, i.e. of the Israel race, our own kith and kin, at Rome: but, as St. Peter reminds us: "One day is with the Lord as a thousand years; and a thousand years as one day" (2 Peter iii, 8).

And so St. Paul looks back into the ages, and says: "The Night is far spent," and then looks forward to the age to come, to the Millennial Reign of Christ on earth, and says: "The Day is at hand"; "The Day of the Lord" is "at hand"; or, as Jesus Christ, and His Forerunner, St. John the Baptist, said "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand."

And so the Advent season calls us to lift up our eyes, to enlarge our horizon, to "know the time," and to look forward, and upward, with renewed hope, for "Now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our Salvation nearer than when we believed. The Night is far spent: the Day is at hand."

"If in this life only we have hope in Christ," says St. Paul to "the Saints" at Corinth (1 Cor. xv, 19), "we are of all men most miserable," and then goes on to preach the Gospel of the Resurrection state of the Age to come: the Gospel of Hope, of which the Scriptures of both Testaments are so full, "the blessed Hope of everlasting life" (i.e. of the life of the Age to come) which God has given us in our Saviour Jesus Christ, in the words of the Collect for the second Sunday in Advent. The Gospel in which death forms a very insignificant part, and is regarded as a mere accident of Nature; as a mere incident by the way; a passing event, hardly worth mentioning: preaches the Gospel of the Resurrection State, in which the horizon extends far beyond death's shadows; a gospel which proclaims aloud, and in no uncertain voice, what the next stage is in God's grand scheme for the redemption of the world, through our Lord Jesus Christ: a scheme which bridges over the past ages of sin and death—the nighttime of the world's history—and the future ages of restoration, "the Restitution of all things": when "Christ shall have delivered up the Kingdom to God, even the Father: when He shall have put down all rule and all authority and power, for He must reign, till He hath put all enemies under His feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. . . . And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also Himself be subject unto Him that put all things under Him, that God may be all in all."

What then does Scripture tell us is the next stage in the Divine scheme of redemption?

It is the period of the age commonly called "the Millennium," "the Sabbath of Creation," "the Day of Rest,"—a Sabbath Age—"for the People of God," which bridges over the purely animal ages, and the purely spiritual ages, blending the best elements of both, the Resurrection state of a world renewed and ruled over by the Reigning Christ, as "King of kings and Lord of lords."

And so, in the words of St. Paul, spoken on Mars Hill at Athens: "God now commandeth all men everywhere to repent" (to turn their minds and hearts to God) "because He hath appointed a Day" (a period of time in the World's future history) "in the which He will judge (or rule) the World in Righteousness by that

Digitized by Google

Man" (the Man Christ Jesus) Whom He hath ordained (for that purpose) whereof He hath given all men assurance, in that He hath raised Him from the dead."

It is that period of time in the future history of the world, "when ("in the Regeneration") the Son of Man shall sit on the Throne of His Glory" in Jerusalem, when "the Lord God shall give unto Him the Throne of His father David: and He shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever (for an Age): and of His Kingdom there shall be no end" (in extent, not in time): when the Throne of David, which was established for ever by God, for this very purpose, shall be known to be "the throne of the Lord," because actually occupied by Him, when He, as the Son of David, and as "great David's greater Son," and David's Lord, shall reign as King, and prosper: "and all dominions shall serve and obey Him" (Daniel).

But before that "Day" comes, must come also, as we should expect, "the darkest hour before the dawn," for so the Scriptures warn us, again and again, in both Testaments: as Our Lord Himself has warned us. And even this is good news: because Jesus has told us that "when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and lift up your heads, for your Redemption draweth nigh."

And so we are to expect to see "signs in the Sun, and in the Moon, and in the Stars, and upon the earth, distress of nations with perplexity: the sea and the waves roaring: men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the Earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory."

And this is the reason why every intelligent Christian man and woman, who loves our Lord Jesus Christ with sincerity, should take the keenest interest in international politics, and, above all, in the Scriptures; and try to trace the Hand of God in the trend of passing events: especially so, as we see prophecy passing into history at the appointed times, and "the way of the Lord" being prepared for His reign on earth in the age to come in His everlasting, heavenly Kingdom.

For, in so doing, life takes on a larger horizon, a clearer vision, and an ever-increasing interest.

Moreover, in so doing, we shall be ready for anything that may happen to us, or in the world, and trustful towards God and one another, as brethren of the same stock, and patient, both in prosperity and adversity, in sickness and in health. "Be (long) patient therefore, brethren," says St. James, addressing the twelve Tribes of Israel, and therefore us, "unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. Grudge not (groan, or grieve not) one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: behold, the judge standeth before the door."

"The Night is far spent, the Day is at hand": and before "the Day" comes "the darkest hour," as we should expect.

Quite definitely then, and in conclusion, what are we to expect? And the answer is in one word, Armageddon, "the battle of that great day of God Almighty" spoken of in Rev. xvi. and in many other parts of the Scriptures of both Testaments.

It is the "Great Tribulation" or time of trouble of which our Lord warned us (St. Matt. xxiv) and promised, at the same time, that "for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened"; as they have been, for the ordeal of 1914-1918 was the first phase of the "Great Tribulation," marked in the Great Pyramid by the first low passage. Then comes the Ante-Chamber—the Armistice—through which we are now passing: for, as Jesus said, "Except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved."

But we have yet to pass through the second low passage, before we enter into the King's Chamber, and the reign of peace, with the coming of the King, to rule in righteousness.

May we have grace given to us, and a knowledge of the Scriptures, as a people—God's chosen covenant (British) people—to claim, with faith, the Saviour's promise once more, to shorten the days, as we go through, as we must go through, the final phase of the Great Tribulation of Armageddon, beginning, according to the chronology of the Great Pyramid, this year—1928. And even our enemies, and men of the world, foresee it, and do not hesitate to say so, and are, more or less, prepared for it, though they do not associate Our Lord and His Coming with it. Rudyard Kipling voices our point of view, perhaps best of all, when he says:

> "In the days of Armageddon,
> At the last great fight of all
> Our House shall stand together,
> And the pillars shall not fall."

All students of prophecy are agreed, I think, that the World War of 1914-1918 was "the beginning of the End" of the Age; but terrible as it was it will be found to be a mere breeze in comparison to the final phase of Armageddon, when it comes in the near future, and for which the world forces, especially in Russia, and the forces in heaven and hell, are now preparing, waiting for the hour to strike.

And "the best of all is," as the Rev. John Wesley said in his dying moments, "God is with us."

Yes, "God is with us" because we are His chosen Covenant (British) People—Israel, whether we all recognize the fact or not—His servants; "His battle-axe and weapons of war," too, when He needs us, as such, at whatever cost, to "put down" His enemies; and the enemies of His Kingdom—those who will not have this Man to rule over them.

And so "the Kingdoms of this World shall become (in due time) the Kingdom of Our Lord, and of His Christ; and He shall reign unto the Ages of the Ages" (Rev. xi, 15). "And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey Him" (Dan. vii, 27).

"The best of all is, God is with us."

And "God is working His Purpose out as year succeeds to year." Yes "God is with us," in "the Night," which is "far spent," and in "the Day," which is "at hand."

To God—be Glory. Amen.

Digitized by Google

The Constitution of Israel

WHAT should the nation do as a first act after consciously recognizing itself as Israel? Surely reinstate the Israel constitution given in the Pentateuch, that Law of which not " one jot or tittle shall pass till all be fulfilled." Under that constitution, which is unchanging, the law is administered by the King, with the help of an administrative council, but without power to alter in any way its provisions. Upon the keeping of this constitution and its statutes, commandments, and judgments depends the nation's prosperity, health and peace.

Of the many most startling challenges regarding national welfare given to Israel, if she will only keep this constitution, we intend to refer to three:

Firstly, there is the promise that (Deut. vii, 6-16) if she will but keep the commandments and the statutes, and the judgments, God will remove all illness from her.

" Thou shalt therefore keep the commandments and the statutes, and the judgments, which I command thee this day, to do them." (verses 11, 15.) " And the Lord will take away from thee all sickness," but we seem to have suffered instead under verses 21 and 22, ch. xxviii, for the afflictions laid upon disobedient Israel are the white man's plague among others. " The Lord shall smite thee with a consumption and a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning and with the sword, and with blasting, and with mildew; and they shall pursue thee until thou perish."

Mark these physical conditions are not due to the system of worship, but to the system of government and that the punishments are physical not spiritual. All have wondered at the world's continuing disease and premature death. Scientists have tried to prevent and to cure it. Government after government has tried to stamp it out. These efforts have met with only too little success. But here is a direct challenge, as vital to-day as ever, to re-establish the Divine system of Law and to obey the law so re-established, and then " The Lord will take away from thee all sickness."

This is for the Nation Israel to do, and not for the Church. The result embraces in its healing, not only the whole of the people, but also the animal kingdom, and even the vegetable; neither blighting, mildew nor crop failure to be known. Imagine what this would mean! Is it not worth trying?

Such is the Divine challenge regarding health. We have already suffered under the warning, and we know that warning was true; so it is within the power of the Nation to take up God's challenge and to obtain this wonderful Divine gift of perfect health for man, animal and plant.

This is the true Christian science.

Secondly, there is the question of wealth, and of the poor. This is very clearly dealt with in the first verses of ch. xv of Deuteronomy:

> " At the end of every seven years thou shalt make a release. And this is the manner of the release: Every creditor that lendeth aught unto his neighbour shall release it: because it is called the Lord's release.
>
> Of a foreigner thou mayest exact it again; but that which is thine with thy brother thine hand shall release: To the end that there be no poor among you: for the Lord shall greatly bless thee in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it: Only if thou carefully hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe to do all these commandments which I command thee this day.
>
> For the Lord thy God blesseth thee, as He promised thee: and thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow."

Again, national wealth and national rule are bound up with these national statutes in the same way that national health is. Mark that this is Jehovah's release, not the creditor's. The creditor acts but Jehovah bears the charge and becomes the debtor. The question at stake is which is the better debtor, Jehovah or man? What a divine challenge is here!

So intimately does God wish to be associated with His people in their dealings with one another, that He offers His note of hand to every creditor, as security for the release of every borrower, and He does it at the end of every seven years. It is for the declared purpose " To the end that there be no poor among you." But among the Jews the credit of the Lord seemed to be poor, and perhaps the most cutting thing that Jesus ever said, having the law in mind as He always had, was " the poor YE have always with you."

Let us pass on to the Statute of Surplus Wealth, ch. xv, 7:

> " If there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy gates. . . ." Now here is a strange thing, that in God's mind there should be any question of the presence of the poor. But it must be remembered that the credit or statute, and this statute, which is made for the express purpose " to the end that there be no poor among you " has never been operated. But " if there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy gates in thy land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not harden thine heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother:
>
> " But thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him; and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in that which he wanteth."

Consider this statute well. It is clear that every man may use the increase of his wealth for the frugal maintenance of his family, this is enjoined elsewhere. Also he may use it for the efficient support of his business, this is elsewhere enjoined. But with his surplus wealth he must be prepared to act as a banker, holding monies in trust and bound by the conditions of that trust to employ that money for the elimination of poverty. This does not debar the possession of surplus wealth, but it does debar the possession of surplus wealth by one, while another has need. If one be wealthy it should mean that all are well off. Of course, the loan so made comes under the credits statute, and at the end of the Sabbatic year on the day of release the duty of repayment passes and Jehovah becomes the debtor.

The first result is that at every Sabbatic year every person, every property, every business, every estate, passes out from obligation or debt. Every man is free from debt. The second result is that the surplus wealth of the nation is redistributed and this takes place every seven years. The guaranteed result is that every person following this process, and the whole nation in thus honouring God, becomes abundantly wealthy. A result must be an absence of millionaires and of all personal, corporate, civic and national debt, a result devoutly to be desired. The war debts would go quicker than snow before a Chinook wind under this process and it is these debts that are throttling all enterprise to-day. God would have wealth to be a constantly flowing stream of living water perennially renewed by Divine power and not a stagnant sea. This is God's financial gospel. These are the financial clauses of the Divine constitution.

Digitized by Google

Thirdly, let us turn to the question of National Safety and Continuance.

We know that the throne of David is established by the oath of God until the end of time.

The continuance of the Race of Israel is also guaranteed to the end of time and beyond. But the undisturbed safety and continuance of the nation was at the first made subject to the keeping of the constitutional law. Deuteronomy xxviii, 7: "The Lord shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face; they shall come out against thee one way, and flee before thee seven ways." Verse 13: "And the Lord shall make thee the head, and not the tail. . . . If that thou hearken unto the commandments of the Lord thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them."

Now Israel did not keep the commandments and statutes of Jehovah, but instead "the statutes of Omri are kept," that is man-made statutes. As a result, the predicted forfeiture of the promised possession has eventuated. Judah has been scattered and ceased to be a nation. Israel, driven into exile, has been scattered throughout the nations till gathered in the isles, but her national organisation is working its part to-day because she is blind. If we read the sixth chapter of Isaiah we see that the judgment on Israel was that she should be deaf and blind. From this time Israel went forth deaf and blind, led unconsciously by God to the fulfilment of her mission. "Bring forth the blind people which have eyes." "Who is blind like my servant, and deaf like my messenger. . ." "Blindness in part hath happened unto Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, and thus, all Israel shall be saved," that is through her blindness. For Jesus declared: "If ye had been blind ye had not had sin, but now because ye say we see, therefore your sin remaineth." This was spoken to the Jews. But with returning vision comes returning responsibility, and the very first act, after accepting Jesus as Saviour, is the accepting of His constitutional law.

In fact His first administrative act on His return will be the re-establishment of the constitution, exemplified and reinforced by the Sermon on the Mount.

It is seen that although Israel was guaranteed that she should remain a Nation, her position as a nation was woefully different to what it would have been had she continued under the Divine Constitution. Settled in the Isles, Israel carried out the Divine mission assigned her, but carried it out as one blind and deaf. She has the labour but not the understanding joy of the task. All these ages the nations of Israel have been in danger from the aggression of their foes inspired to their destruction by the devil represented as the "Beast," and the "Dragon." Finally, the culminating terror shall arrive in the Great Day of God Almighty, when all the non-Hebrew nations shall mass their forces for the destruction of the "Chosen" people. Because Israel is ignorant of her own birth-right and of the fact that she is hedged about by the Divine promise and the Divine power, she has in the past and shall still face these things with the courage which prepares for and discounts the worst instead of marching forward in the consciousness of the invincible might of God. She, who might have been free from sickness, has been scourged and suffering through the ages. She, who might have been free from poverty has had a great proportion of her people suffering want from the cradle to an early grave. She who should have waged victorious and bloodless wars as far as she was concerned, has stained every sea and every land with the blood of her slain.

She, who should have, with a light heart, led the nations in the path of light, gropes as one blind, and carries the burden of the World upon her shoulders as a weary Atlas. These things will pass at the revelation and the restoration of Israel. But, for the great mass of people, that Day shall not arrive until she has drunk to the dregs, even to "The Day of the Lord" the cup she has filled for herself by her own rebellion against the "Law of the Lord." Turn to Ezekiel's descriptions of the last great conflict between God and His confederation and the merchants of Tarshish and all the young lions thereof. So overwhelming are the forces arrayed against Israel that no human arm can prevent her absolute overthrow. So overwhelming is her deliverance that the veil is rent from her eyes and she knows at last that she is Israel and that she has been delivered by Israel's God.

Ezekiel xxxix, 22: "So the House of Israel shall know that I am Jehovah, their God, from that day and forward."

The following conclusions seem clear:

1. God has done all the constitutional (as distinct from administration) legislation which He has allowed for, in the national constitution in the Bible.

2. In the application of the principles of that constitution to new cases and circumstances as they arrive, He has made provisions in the department of the judgments, which are the commandments and statutes applied from time to time and from age to age. The principles of right action are few; they are all included in the constitution; they are changeless and eternal; therefore the constitution is perfect for our age and is capable of full application in our complex life.

3. Constitutional legislation belongs to God only, and He has not trusted men or nations to make laws for the government of their fellows.

4. The Divine plan of government does not favour one more than another and class is not known.

5. The way out of the present world's struggle for power is to go back to the Divine Constitution.

6. The restoration of the Divine constitution as our system of Law will enable the nation to test the Divine challenge as to health, prosperity and peace. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven and all these things shall be added unto you."

Digitized by Google

The Dispensational Plan of the Bible

ELOHIM: GOD

A THE PRIMAL CREATION. The first heaven and the first earth (Gen. i, 1).

[1]B. SATAN'S FIRST REBELLION (Gen. i, 2).

C. THE EARTH RESTORED AND BLESSED (Gen. i, 2-11, 25; 2 Peter iii, 6). "The world that then was."

D. SATAN ENTERS, AND THE CONSEQUENCE (Gen. iii).

E. MANKIND DEALT WITH AS A WHOLE. (Gen. iv-xi, 30).

E. 1. THE FLOOD (2 Peter iii, 7). "The heaven and the earth which are now."

F. THE CHOSEN NATION CALLED, ORGANIZED INTO GOD'S KINGDOM OF PRIESTS, AND BLESSED (Gen. xi, 31 to Malachi).

G. THE FIRST ADVENT. The Four Gospels (Rom. xv, 8). The Kingdom rejected by the Jews and the King crucified.

H. THE KINGDOM RE-OFFERED. The Acts and the earlier Pauline Epistles. The offer rejected by the Jews at Rome (Acts xxviii, 25, 26).

H. THE KINGDOM "HIDDEN IN A FIELD." The "Not yet" of Heb. ii, 8. The Mystery in God revealed and consummated. Later Pauline Epistles.

G. THE SECOND ADVENT (Rev.). "The day of the Lord" (Matt. xxiv).

F. THE CHOSEN NATION RECALLED AND A BLESSING (Rom. xi; Jer. xxx-xxxi; Isa. lxi-lxii; Zech. xii, xiv).

E. 1. GREAT PHYSICAL CHANGES (Isa.).

E. MANKIND DEALT WITH AS A WHOLE (Matt. xxv, 31-46).

D. SATAN BOUND AND THE CONSEQUENCE (Rev. xx, 1-3).

C. THE EARTH RESTORED AND BLESSED (Rev. xx, 4-6; Isa. xxxv). The Millennium.

B. SATAN'S FINAL ACT OF REBELLION (Rev. xx, 7-10). The Third Heaven and Paradise (2 Cor. xii, 2, 4).

A. THE NEW HEAVEN AND THE NEW EARTH (Rev. xxi, xxii). "The day of God."

GOD, ALL IN ALL.

The Repentance and Restoration of (ten-tribed) Israel

By H. D. HOUGHTON.

THIS subject is a most vital one. Have we ever thought out "What happens if Israel repents?" Her "Restoration" surely. But what a marvellous thing this means.

The Christian Church seems not to have allowed for this in our day, nor to have considered the consequences, which must be world-wide.

Israel will repent. This is clearly stated in the Word of God. The marvellous events which must follow are also quite clearly stated; but Israel herself, the Church and the World, seem to have missed this message.

Church people seem to have considered all the promises to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob as conditional. This is, of course, wholly untrue. The unconditional promises have been largely accomplished and are in process of being fully accomplished in the British Race. The conditional blessings and promises are also ours for the asking!

God states most emphatically that Israel will repent and become obedient. He, Himself, pledges to bring it about, unaided. Israel is appointed of old to be the human means by which the world is saved from utter chaos and corruption, and shall be finally evangelized. Israel's repentance is to be whole-hearted, and such that God Himself will be satisfied with it, for He will have brought Israel to repentance Himself.

The promises cannot have been made void because Israel sinned, for Our Lord was sent to redeem Israel in fulfilment of the Abrahamic promise. Clearly the promises remained and were not forfeited, for Our Lord came as "A light to lighten the Gentiles and the Glory of Thy People Israel."

St. Paul (Gal. iv, 4) shows that Christ came because of God's promise. "But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons," Consider also Luke i, 68-77. "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for He hath visited and redeemed His people . . . to perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember His holy covenant; the oath which He sware to our father Abraham . . . to give knowledge of salvation unto His people," There is no cancelling, no forfeit here; on the contrary, it is a fulfilling.

Let us see how Israel's repentance is to be brought about.

One hundred and sixteen years after Israel's captivity a remarkable prediction of Israel's repentance and restoration is given in Jer. xviii. God commands Jeremiah to go down to the potter's house and say:

"I will cause thee to hear My words."

And the record goes on:

"Then I went down to the potter's house and, behold, he wrought a work on the wheels. And the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter." Did he throw that clay away or not? Certainly not!

"So he made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it."

This operation is still going on in the pottery trade to this day, little if any change having been made in the process. The teachers of the Church to-day say that God threw that clay, which represents Israel as we shall see, away. God says exactly the opposite!

"O House of Israel, cannot I do with you as this potter? saith the Lord. Behold, as the clay is in the potter's hand, so are ye in Mine hand, O House of Israel."

This incident has often been referred to as an individual matter, but the Word is emphatic that it refers to the house of Israel.

Thus God announced to all, Israel's repentance and restoration; made perfect for her work; as the marred clay was made "as seemed good to the potter."

This illustration does not refer to Judah or the Jew, see Jer. xix. Judah is there likened to the finished vessel that has been "fired" and so cannot be made again. The whole point is that out of the marred clay of the House of Israel God would make a new perfect

[1] See footnote 3 Scofield Bible, Gen. i, 2.

Digitized by Google

vessel. But the "finished" vessel of national Judah He would break in pieces. Judah will then become a leading tribe in the restored nation, Israel. When the world sees re-made Israel appear they will be astonished.

Note the three points: (1) The making of the second vessel, Israel, out of the marred clay of the first. (2) The Maker, God Almighty Himself. (3) The perfection of the second vessel "as it pleased the Potter to make it."

In Ezekiel xi, 14-20, an incident is related which confirms the teaching of the re-made vessel of Jer. xviii. At that time Israel had been in captivity 127 years or more than four generations.

Judah, thinking that Israel had gone for ever, and had been cast off by God, proposed to seize Israel's land, but God said "No!"

We have in Ezekiel xi, 14-20, the complete repentance and restoration of the Ten-tribed House of Israel, and again God alone is the Worker Who brings this great fact to pass.

"I will give them one heart." "I will put a new Spirit within you." "I will be their God."

The Christian Church has laid claim to these great promises exclusively. But this passage does not refer to the Church. It is a definite promise made by God concerning the work He is covenanted to do for and in the House of Israel.

Again Hosea says in ch. i, speaking undoubtedly of the Ten-tribed House: "For I will no more have mercy upon the House of Israel; but I will utterly take them away. . . . For ye are not My people, and I will not be your God." But the next verse goes on: "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not My people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the Living God."

This again is Israel's repentance and restoration brought about by God Himself. Israel is brought back into more than her old place of grace and favour as God's sons.

In the New Testament Our Lord in Matt. xxi, 43, speaking to the Jews, says: "Therefore say I unto you, The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." To a Nation, note, and not to a Church; thus confirming the Old Testament Prophets. In the same chapter of Matt. xxi, we see who that nation is to be. It was the brother nation of the Jew, that other son of the same father who at first said he would not go into the vineyard "But afterwards repented and went."

Here Our Lord definitely states that he afterwards repented and went, thus proclaiming that Israel does repent and is restored. This son must be the brother nation of the Jew, because the Chief Priests and Pharisees recognized their own description and "perceived that He spoke of them," thus identifying Israel. This again cannot refer to the Christian Church as the command was given first to the elder son Israel and then to the Jew, the second son. The Church was not then born.

Surely this nation bringing forth the fruits can to-day be found by those willing to look and perceive. This parable is very clear and decisive. Let us read what Jeremiah says shall happen under the New Covenant (Jer. xxxi, 33-34), with the House of Israel. "But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel. After those days, saith the Lord, I will put My law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts: and will be their God, and they shall be My people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbour . . . saying, Know the Lord; for they shall all know Me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord; for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more."

Five distinct times in this passage He says: "I will" of the House of Israel, three times "they shall," so that it is not Israel reforming herself, but God re-making the vessel out of the marred clay. So does God deal with erring, marred and re-made Israel.

Let us just glance at Hosea again, where he refers to Israel as the divorced wife of God, and when she wishes to return to her first husband, what is the reply? "And I will betroth thee unto Me for ever!" And to this cast-off wife God says: "Thou art My people," and Israel replies: "Thou art my God."

So Israel utters the vital responsive word which shows her true repentance, and God thus weds His people Israel again to Himself for Ever.

This has not yet been fully accomplished. But the time soon will come when God openly, and before all the nations, will put His hand upon us and say: "This is My people." And Israel, one time cast off, but now betrothed, will turn her repentant face to God and say, out of a full heart: "Thou art my God."

No doubt some would suggest that God is speaking here to the Christian Church. At that time there was no Church apart from the congregation of Israel, which consisted of every man, woman and child in the nation. The nation itself was the Church.

Again, the Church is the Body of Christ, of which Jesus Christ is the Head. This is Christ's relationship to the Church. He is also, clothed in His Body, the Bridegroom; and Israel is the Bride.

Could these words of Hosea be applied to the true Church? Surely not; for the true Church has never gone after other lovers, never been cast off, never worshipped Baal; but Israel experienced and did these things.

In Deut. xxx, 1-9, Moses recounts both Israel's casting-off and her restoration, and how she is to be given back her land; and then God will change her heart and that of her children, and rejoice over them as He did over Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. So then all this will be fulfilled in us. But before this, Israel must, as a Nation, turn to God.

In the New Testament (Acts v, 31) we are told "Him hath God exalted as a Prince and a Saviour for to give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins." St. Peter declared that the repentance and forgiveness which Christ foretold should come to Israel (the son, who said he would not go into the vineyard, but afterwards repented and went) comes to them because He was exalted a Prince and a Saviour for that very purpose. St. Peter distinguishes between the Jews and Israel. "The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew, and hanged on a tree." To the Jews, Christ was a reproach, a curse, and they made a false charge against Him and slew Him; but Israel is to receive Him; for God has exalted Him "To give repentance to Israel."

Digitized by Google

If Christ's advent on earth was not a failure, then He has given, or is giving, repentance and forgiveness to Israel. It does not mean the Jews; nor the Christian Church; for the Jews rejected and still reject Him; while the TRUE Church has nothing to repent of, for the Book says: "It is holy and without blemish." Nor does it mean the Gentiles, for though full provision is made for them, yet this passage speaks only of Israel. It of course agrees with Our Lord's words: "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel," for this is the completion of His great commission.

Notice the contrast and harmony of the two commissions—that of Christ, and that of His disciples.

1. Christ's: "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." "Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into the cities of the Samaritans enter ye not; but go rather to the lost sheep of the House of Israel. . . ."

2. To the Disciples: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Christ's commission was to redeem Israel; and Israel's commission when redeemed was to preach the Gospel to the whole world.

Again, the story of the Prodigal Son is the story of Israel's repentance and restoration. This is usually taken to refer to the individual, but Our Lord had a much bigger task than that on hand. He was after the nation of Israel, to redeem Israel, so that it, under His guidance, might evangelize the world.

The only really satisfactory explanation of this great parable is that it refers to the two brother nations, the House of Israel and the House of Judah; and shows how the whole nation of Israel returns to its Father; and that while it is yet a long way off God welcomes it with all the Father's love.

Perhaps no promise of God to Israel is clearer than the following, which shows Israel's repentance and restoration:

> "Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you. And I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put My spirit within you, and cause you to walk in My statutes, and ye shall keep My judgments, and do them. And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be My people, and I will be your God" (Ezekiel xxxvi, 25-28).

Can anything be more definitive or positive? And the reference to the land defines the people spoken to. It is a promise to a whole nation, called in the previous verse "the house of Israel."

So does the eternal God take rebellious Israel in hand and finally brings for her that complete redemption for which Christ was exalted a Prince and a Saviour. What follows:

(1) Israel is restored to her old place of favour as the chosen people of God, to be a blessing to all nations. (2) She is to be saved and protected by Jehovah for ever. (3) She becomes literally "The Holy People," "The Redeemed of the Lord," "The Ministers of Our God." (4) Every conditional and unconditional blessing promised to Israel now comes down on her, and the whole world becomes altered in consequence of Israel's restoration.

The promise in Leviticus xxvi, 3-5:

> "If ye walk in My statutes, and keep My commandments, and do them; Then I will give you rain in due season, and the land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit. And your threshing shall reach unto the vintage, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing time; And ye shall eat your bread to the full, and dwell in your land safely" means no unemployment and no starvation and no poverty.

And again: "And the Lord will take away from thee all sickness." No hospitals, no asylums, no illness whatever.

The prisons will also be empty, for Isaiah lx, 21, tells us: "Thy people also shall be all righteous," and we know they are literal people for it goes on to say: "They shall inherit the land for ever!"

And the passage in Deuteronomy finishes: "I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be My people." What a prospect—sin, disease and poverty all gone. No blind, no deaf, no halt, no dumb. Then, indeed, is the Millennium come.

> "And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away" (Isa. xxxv, 4-10).

Here it is plain that Israel's repentance is a turning away from sin. There can be no restoration of Israel in sin. It is a turning from it, whole-heartedly by the nation and by every man, woman and child in the nation. And it will satisfy God, for He will have brought it about

It is the most intense, national, spiritual revival the world has ever known. Every man, woman and child will be filled with the desire to accept Christ. It is the restoration of all that was lost in Adam. The restoration of Paradise.

And in Ezekiel xxxvii, 28, the Lord says: "And the heathen shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel, when My sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore."

Having seen and had revealed to us God's true message, let us have the faith and courage to pass on the wonderful message to others: "Declare ye, tell this, utter it even to the end of the earth; say ye, The Lord hath redeemed His servant Jacob" (Isa. xlviii, 20).

There is our justification, our message, our authority and our duty. Israel—the nation—everlastingly Redeemed—to serve mankind.

* * *

Nebuchadnezzar's Dream

A SUCCESSION OF FOUR KINGDOMS CONTEMPORARY WITH ONE KINGDOM

THIS dream was dreamed by Nebuchadnezzar and revealed to Daniel, the King having forgotten it. The interpretation was also revealed to Daniel. In interpreting it, Daniel said: "There is a God in Heaven that revealeth secrets and maketh known to the King Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days."

Digitized by Google

He then told of the great Image which the King had seen: (1) Head of Gold; (2) Breast and arms of Silver; (3) Belly and Thigh of Brass; (4) Legs of Iron and feet of Iron and Clay; and contemporaneously the Stone which was cut out of the mountain without hands, which ultimately smote the image upon his feet, which were of iron and clay, and break them in pieces, and the whole image collapsed. Now the interpretation given by God, in a few sentences, is the picture of the world, given in Empires. Nebuchadnezzar was the head of gold; followed by a second but inferior Empire; and again followed by a third—these two have been shown by history to be the Medo-Persian and the Grecian Empires—and last by the fourth, which was strong as iron.

We also know from later visions given to Daniel that they were thus to be identified. Daniel viii, 20, 21.

The Prophet has three empires shown to him as four great beasts. The fourth World Empire is to be particularly strong "even as iron." This Kingdom was to be divided, and again from later visions of Daniel's we learn, into ten kingdoms. History has again proved that this fourth Empire was the Roman Empire which did so divide up. This so far, has been agreed by all, the only dispute arises as to the identity of the contemporary Empire.

Take the dream:

> "In the days of these kings shall the God of Heaven set up a Kingdom, which shall never be destroyed.
>
> And the Kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever.
>
> Forasmuch as thou sawest that the Stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver and the gold.
>
> The Great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter."

And the dream is certain and the interpretation thereof sure.

We who live now may well wonder at its fulfilment. Most of it is past history while the last portion is taking place before our very eyes.

The age of the dreams.—Complete fulfilment was to come in the "latter days." Most Scripture students agree that the latter days are the Gospel Dispensation: the time between Our Lord's two advents, including the days in which we now live.

The purpose of the dream was an open challenge for all time, to the peoples of the Earth to test and judge the faithfulness and power of the Living God.

The identity of the contemporary Empire.—In the past it was generally held that the contemporary Empire was purely Spiritual, and signified the Spiritual Kingdom of Christ, set up in the hearts of men who believed in Him, and that it meant nothing else. But during the last century the opinion has steadily grown stronger and stronger that after all it did mean a literal World Empire. All are agreed that "it is the Kingdom of God" or "The Kingdom of Christ." One regards it as Spiritual, another as a literal Kingdom. Needless to say, we cannot conceive of a literal Kingdom of God that is exclusively earthly; the outward and visible must embody the inward and spiritual. The Kingdom of God, therefore, must be reckoned apart from the Kingdoms of this World. When Our Lord first came, people were so obsessed with the material that they failed to see the Spiritual side. To-day, although the world is still grossly material, the Churches have so exclusively "spiritualized" the Scriptures that we run the risk of hopelessly missing the clear revelation of the dual nature of the Kingdom of God on earth.

The Kingdom of God on earth was established in Israel. See Exodus xix-xx. It was still the kingdom in which "the throne of Jehovah" was established in Solomon's day; and over which the House of David is appointed to reign "for ever."

Prophecy can never be fully understood until it is enacted before our eyes. Since 1800; since Israel's seven times of punishment ceased; this Kingdom has arisen to world power and service, and as such it has gradually been recognized.

Let us analyse the interpretation of the dream: "In the days of these Kings shall the God of Heaven set up a Kingdom that shall never be destroyed." There is here no hint or suggestion that it is a spiritual realm. It is the same promise elsewhere made to David. "And thine house and thy kingdom shall be established forever before thee, and thy throne shall be established for ever." If it is exclusively a spiritual Kingdom, when was it set up? Surely not before Our Lord came on earth. Then the words do not fit, for it is "In the days of these Kings" so it must have been set up in Nebuchadnezzar's days as a beginning, and it must have been contemporary to each of the other Empires.

"And the Kingdom shall not be left to other people." This means nothing "spiritually." What it does mean is that the dominion of Israel is not to be taken from them and given to a Sixth World Empire. The contemporary Empire was also to be the final one. It is the Kingdom of Our Lord, His ten servants having been told by Him to "occupy till I come."

"But it shall break in pieces and consume all these Kingdoms." Here the literal meets all requirements. History shows us that Israel has broken all these kingdoms up to now. "And it shall be forever." And the prophecy goes on to say the Stone was cut out without hands, etc. Could there be a truer description of God's Elect Race? It was called by God in Abraham, made into a nation under Moses, and appointed by Him to do what it has done hitherto and to complete the task. It was appointed by Him to be a blessing to all mankind; and to be the great Christianizing power.

In our own times we can remember how a certain statesman tried to get us out of Egypt and the Soudan; and later a daily paper has tried to get us out of Palestine and Mesopotamia; the land promised to Abraham's descendants. Did the Bishop of London, when, at the re-opening of Wembley, he prayed that God Almighty "might grant that we may be a blessing to all mankind" realize that the prayer was granted 4,000 years ago to Abraham? "In thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed!" Nebuchadnezzar and Daniel could only have conceived the contemporary Empire to have been a Kingdom on earth Daniel, of course, recognized that it must be Israel because of the promises already made to that Nation said, " Whosoever shall fall upon this stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." He was confirming the promise made to Israel. Now it can be shown that every world Empire has been, during the last 3,500 years, broken by Israel from the Exodus to the last Great War, but here we will only deal with the last three attempts at World Supremacy.

Attempts to gain World Supremacy.—When Our Lord

In 1588 Spain fell upon this stone Kingdom, as Shakespeare describes it: " This precious stone set in a silver sea," and was broken as a world power, but still exists as a Kingdom with a King married into our Royal family. In Napoleon's case this stone fell on him and the French Empire ceased as a Kingdom and is now a Republic. In the third attempt, in 1914, when again our ultimatum to Germany expired at midnight, August 4th-5th, as foretold in the Great Pyramid, in other words, when the Stone Kingdom fell upon Germany, Germany ceased as a Kingdom or Empire and became a Republic, carrying with her to ruin the Turkish and Austrian Empires.

Now for the Contemporary and last World Empire, The Stone Kingdom, which will last until Our Lord comes to establish His reign therein. This consists of the British Empire and the United States of America and kindred Israel peoples. It has grown miraculously since 1800 and now fills nearly half the World. It has grown against its own desires, and is growing rapidly still. The final great act due to commence in 1928, will not end till the Kingdom fills the whole world, a blessing to all nations under the Rule of Our Lord.

In the Dream there was a contemporary Empire. In History there is such an Empire. The first four Empires were identical in the dream and in history; so is the contemporary one. God's purpose was to show " What should happen in the latter days." Can it be that He did not do what He said? No!

The Stone Kingdom is the Kingdom of God, a literal and visible Kingdom. It is the Kingdom of Israel. It is the final World Empire. It is the British Empire

* * *

The British Church

IT is still a common belief that the British Church was founded by missionaries from Rome and that it seceded from the Papacy at the Reformation. It is our purpose to show that the British Church was never incorporated in the Church of Rome, but was firmly established as a National Church before the Roman Church came into existence, and long before the Roman Church sent her agents to Britain.

Just as the Israelite nation grew up around the Tabernacle, which Moses erected twelve months after the Exodus " And it came to pass in the first month in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the Tabernacle was reared up " (Exodus xl, 17), so the British nation was gradually organized around the British Church.

The Irish Labar Gabhala records four immigrations; the first coming from Mid-Greece about 1700 B.C.-1800 B.C., and the second from Scythia. These people brought the Patriarchal worship, on which was later engrafted the Baal worship, shown by the number of places beginning with Baal, e.g. Ballyshannon, Ballynathal, Baltimore, etc.

Such was the condition up to 600 B.C. Then a great change took place; for another migration occurred from Egypt, when Jeremiah arrived, preaching the worship of Jehovah, the God of Israel. This revival of pure religion spread all over England, Wales and Scotland, from Ireland, and is called Druidism. It remained the religion of the country until the introduction of the Christian Faith. At this time 580 B.C. a university, State-endowed, was started at Tara, Dublin. This was just the time when Solomon's temple was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar (Isa. xxiv, 12-15).

The Druids established offshoots from the original University, forty universities all over the land. Ireland was the home of light and learning. See Dr. Johnson.

What did the Druids believe? " They were not idolators, and did not worship images. This freedom from idolatry they shared with the Jews alone at that time." George Smith in The Religion of Ancient Britain says: " The resemblance of their religion to that of the Hebrew Patriarchs is very evident. Amongst their names for the supreme God, which they had in use before the introduction of Christianity, were the terms ' God,' ' Distributor,' ' Governor,' ' The Mysterious One,' and ' The Wonderful,' ' The Ancient of Days,' which terms are distinctly of Old Testament origin."

The Druids believed that God was the source of Life and the Giver of all good. They considered Him to be Eternal and Omnipotent and regarded Him as a pure Spirit. The Welsh Triads prove this. They believed in the Immortality of the Soul.

Dr. James MacDonald in Encyclopædia Britannica says that the Druids taught that the Soul is immortal.

Astronomy, Geography, Physical Science and Natural Theology, were the favourite studies. Britain was the headquarters of Druidism. So we see that these Britons, dwelling in the uttermost part of the earth, believed that God was Spirit, Infinite and Omnipotent, and in the Immortality of the Soul. This was the case prior to the birth of Alexander the Great, and the rise of the Greek or Roman Empires.

Their Festivals—The Druids celebrated the first Festival of the year on the 10th of their first month, which they dated from May 1st. The Israelites celebrated the Passover on the 10th of the first month (Exodus xii, 3). Fifty days afterwards they celebrated another great Festival, which corresponds to the Mosaic Feast of Weeks (See Lev. xxii, 15-16). Their third great Festival at Yule-tide corresponded to the " Feast of Tabernacles." They also, like Moses, called their weeks eight nights, and their fortnight fifteen nights. Moses says the Evening and Morning. The Welsh to-day do the same thing. Wy th nos—eight nights; Pythev nos—fifteen nights. The three great Mosaic Feasts were duplicated by the three Great Druidical Feasts.

Ammanias Marcelus, a Greek Historian, A.D. 330-375, says: " The Druids were men of a penetrating and subtle spirit, and acquired the highest renown for their speculations, which were at once subtle and profound. Both Cæsar and Mela plainly intimate that they were conversant with the most sublime speculations of geometry and in measuring the magnitude of the earth." The dress of the Arch-Druid and the Druid bears a great resemblance to the dress designed for Aaron and the high priests. The Druids were well acquainted with the name " Jesus," they were actually waiting and expecting a man born of a Virgin who was to come and be an "All-heal" to them. The Rev. Robert Douglas, M.A., wrote: " It has been well said by the Author of the "Identity of the Religions, Druidical and Hebrew"; the Israelites looked for a Redeemer who should come in future times, they typified His advent by a scapegoat and a variety of emblems: the Druids did the same, they looked for one who was typified under the emblem of the mistletoe, which they regarded as the " Curer of all ills." Compare with the " Branch " constantly used of the Messiah in the Old Testament. The Old Mosaic Law as well as the Druidic, lacked one element, that of Charity and Love. Christ remedied this defect, and so made the Law complete. (Matt. v, 17; John xiii, 34.) The Jews in the East rejected this new commandment. Their anti-types in the Isles of the North-West accepted it. Then it would appear that " In this distant corner of the Earth, cut off from the rest of the world, a people was being prepared, ready for the Lord." Now is it credible that God would allow the career of the Gospel " of His Kingdom " to be left to Chance? Therefore we may be sure that these Islands in the West were specially prepared for the " Gospel of the Kingdom." So much for the preparation of the land.

Digitized by Google

Now for the Sowing. Christianity was established in this country soon after the World's Great Tragedy—the Crucifixion—Joseph of Arimathea, in A.D. 36-39, arriving with Simon Zelotes and Philip, etc., and founding the first Church at Glastonbury. Clement, mentioned in Phil. iv, 3, a contemporary of St. Paul says: " St. Paul preached in the East and West, having taught the whole world righteousness, and having travelled even to the uttermost bounds of the West." Eusebius, called the Mother of the Church History says: " Some of the twelve passed over to those which are called the British Isles." Theodoret, a great theologian, born about A.D. 290 at Antioch, says: " Paul carried salvation to the islands that lie in the ocean " (British Museum). Venantius Fortunatus, Bishop of Poictiers, born about A.D. 531, says: " Paul preached in the countries which the Briton inhabits and in the utmost Thule." So that we see that several of the early fathers of the Church assert that St. Paul brought Christianity to Britain and taught in these Isles. They were not Britons, and they would never have made these statements if they were not true.

Now let us turn to Historians. Gildas, a British historian, born about A.D. 516, writes as follows: " In the meantime (i.e. just about the time of Boadicea's defeat), Christ, the true Sun, afforded His rays," that is the knowledge of His precepts to this island (page 4).

Boadicea was defeated in A.D. 62. No. 25 of the Welsh Triad says: " Bran, the Blessed, first brought the faith of Christ to the nation of the Cymry, from Rome, where he had been a hostage seven years " (British Museum).

One of the earliest monuments of Welsh Archæology, " Bouedd Saint Yugs Prydam," says: " Bran was the first who brought the Christian faith to this country." Now Bran and some others were hostages in Rome from A.D. 51-58; about 100 years later, A.D. 161, Lleirwg (Lucius) who reigned in Wales " King of the Britons," made Christianity the religion of this country. Triad 62 says: " He made the first Church at Llandaff, which was the first in the Isle of Britain, and bestowed the privilege of country and nation, judicial power and validity of oath, on those of the faith of Christ." William, in his Ecclesiastical Antiquities of Cymry, writes: " Christianity had naturally and gradually become incorporated with Bardism, till at length, by consent of the country and the tribe, Druidism was abolished to make way for the Christ, and the privileges of the Druids (so strikingly analogous to those of the Levites in Israel) were transferred to Christian Ministers."

Dean Page in his The Ancient British Church, writes: " In this distant corner of the earth, cut off from the rest of the world, unfrequented except by merchants from the opposite coasts of Gaul, a people was being prepared for the Lord " (page 26).

" To a people whose sense of the future existence was so absorbing that its presentiment was almost too deeply felt by them, the preaching of Jesus and the Resurrection would appeal with irresistible force. There was no violent divorce between the new teaching and that of their own Druids, nor were they called upon so much to reverse their ancient faith as to lay it down for a fuller and more perfect revelation " (page 27).

The Druid priests became the Christian Ministers! Rome in A.D. 161 was pagan under the Emperor Marcus Aurelius. In A.D. 206 Tertullian, who was converted to Christianity in A.D. 192, wrote: "Those parts of Britain which Cæsar could not conquer have been subdued to Christ!" Origen, born at Alexandria, A.D. 185, wrote in A.D. 212: " The land of Britain has received the religion of Christ." And still Rome was pagan, and in A.D. 312 came the 10th and worst persecution under the Roman Emperor Diocletian, and this persecution reached the British Isles and caused great tribulation to the Church of Britain. Then came the reign of Constantine, whose Mother, Helena, was a British Lady, and who was descended from Anna, the daughter of Joseph of Arimathea, cousin to the Virgin. Constantine was crowned Emperor at York in A.D. 306, and the Church in Britain rose stronger than ever. In A.D. 320 Constantine proclaimed Christianity as the state religion of the Roman Empire. This was 160 years after Lucius, King of the Britons in Wales, had proclaimed Britain a Christian country. The two points to be noted are (a) The British Church was established as a National and State ordinance by Lleirwg, King of the Britons in Wales, in A.D. 161. (b) That Rome was under pagan Emperors, and Christianity was not introduced till Constantine, a British born and British descended Emperor, proclaimed it the religion of the Roman Empire in A.D. 320. So, in fact, the British Church is de facto the Mother Church of Christendom.

Now the result of the persecution of Diocletian, about A.D. 302, was to spread the British Christians to the West and North into Wales and Scotland, and, of course, the Church in those parts benefited. Under Constantine, the British Church again flourished and Bishoprics and Archbishoprics were reconstituted.

From A.D. 426 to A.D. 586 came Saxon invasions and the Britons were driven to Scotland, Devonshire and Cornwall, and to Brittany. Ireland was at this time, with very few exceptions, still under Druidism. One or two places in Wales, especially Carnarvonshire, kept the lamp of Christianity still burning, and also in Carmarthenshire. When matters had quietened down again, these Christian communities in Wales began to evangelize the pagan Saxons.

Digitized by Google

About A.D. 404 St. Patrick went to Ireland and converted the Irish from Druidism (coming from Wales). Colleges and churches sprang up all over the land, and Ireland soon became for Christianity what it had been for Druidism, the seat of Learning. St. Patrick was not sent to Ireland by the Roman Church, as it claims, the charter being an obvious forgery from internal evidence.

Gradually this Christianity spread all over these islands until the British Apostolic Church had "Taught the truth to the nations of Ireland and Scotland and thence it came back to enlighten Anglo-Saxon England."

Also they went out in large numbers to Christianize the whole of Europe. These missionaries were called "Culdee," from A.D. 501 to A.D. 719, over 200 years; these Culdee Missionaries poured in thousands over Europe. As Dr. Wyler says: "It was the Culdee lamp that burned at Constance, at Basle, at Eprus, at Worms, and Mainz. Boniface, the emissary of Rome, came afterwards, to put out these lights. The real Apostle of the provinces was the Culdee Church!" They went to the Danube, to Pannonia, Salzburg, Norway, Sweden, and even Iceland.

In A.D. 597 Augustine landed in Kent and commenced a Roman Mission which completely failed. From then on there has always been a persistent struggle to resist the Roman Church, and that struggle is as foretold to break out again now in the last days. King, Church and Nation have always fought against the domination of Rome and always will.

It was not by chance merely that the British Church was entrusted to the Welsh. It was not by chance that it was kept burning in Wales when extinguished elsewhere. It was not by chance that the Ancient British Church, from its inception by Moses in the Wilderness, has continued in an unbroken sequence till to-day.

* * *

"When May We Expect Our Lord's Return?"

The Scriptures make it clear that we should be in an attitude of CONSTANT EXPECTATION. It was possible that He should have returned long ago, if certain combinations of actions and circumstances should be brought together. It was possible for Israel to bring them together. They were not brought together, and Our Lord has not as yet returned. (See Acts iii, 19-21.) "Whom the heaven must receive (or retain) until . . ." and the until has no reference to a certain date, but to the accomplishment of certain restorations in Israel.

May we be sure as to the date of His return? We may not. Our Lord states the fact that the day and the hour of the return of Our Lord is reserved in the Father's Own power. Not even the angels in heaven know. Therefore, it is certain that not even the angels which fell know. Perhaps this latter is the reason for the hiding of that time. It is "at such an hour as ye think not." To be "long-daters" is to join the ranks of those who say "My Lord delayeth His coming." Against this Our Lord spoke most severely, in the twenty-fourth of St. Matthew. To be a "short dater" is to run counter to the warning of Our Lord. "It is not for you to know. . . ."

But as to the nearness of His coming, when certain events begin to happen, then Our Lord declared that we may "know that it is near, even at the door." This we believe we now know. We believe that to try to go beyond this, either pro or con, is to presume on ground from which Our Lord has warned us.

The SIGNS of His coming are manifest. The Time—a continuation of that to which He referred when He commenced His ministry with the cry "the time is fulfilled"—is very nearly out. For instance, the times of the Gentiles are ended. The treading down of Jerusalem "until . . ." is finished. The time of the blindness of Israel passed at the same time as the treading down of Jerusalem ended. The times of Israel's punishment ended more than a century ago, and Israel has since been marching forward on a miracle path of expansion and uplift. Part of the time of Judah's punishment is gone, and only that which falls due to end in 1934-36 remains. The last period of Judah's punishment is fraught with that tremendous upheaval which will see the responsibility and power of world rule pass into the hands of a reunited Israel. The way is then open, as far as "the Scriptures of truth" are concerned, for the coming of the Son of man. But there are even then upwards of seventy years of the present dispensation to run. It may be that the Coming will be at the end of the present times. It may be that it will be at the beginning of the seventy years, for the cleansing of the sanctuary. It may be that it will be at the end of the seventy years immediately before the millennial day.

We expect, and with good reason, that He will soon "come as a thief" and gather His forces to a place called in the Hebrew tongue "Armageddon." Whether He will then reveal Himself to His own or not, and whether He will then be manifest to His enemies, we do not know. Probably not.

After that, as the last great conflict deepens, He will move from Armageddon, His G.H.Q., to the Mount of Olives. "In that day His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives, and the Mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst from the top to the bottom. . . ." Again, whether He will then be visible to His own, and to the enemy, we do not know. After that seems to come the Marriage Supper (Matt. xxv). After that the gathering and the judgment of "His own servants," and the rewarding of them according to their service during the time they have "occupied till He come." Then after that, the coming in His glory, with all the Holy Angels with Him, and the Judgment of "All nations." These seem to be the very same "All nations" which He found gathered against Jerusalem to battle. Then the Kingdom! These stages will probably take up the full remaining years to the seventh millennium of Bible history.

It would seem that the rapture of the Church is indicated by the Marriage Supper. We are impressed at this time, but still with an open mind on the subject, that the rapture of the Church is at the time of the Marriage Supper and that it is after the Mount of Olives' presence of Our Lord. In that case the great deliverance will take place first. "Then shall my people Israel know that I am Jehovah their God from that day and forward." "Then shall the heathen that are round about you know that I am Jehovah your God when I am sanctified in you before their eyes."

Digitized by Google

This seems to indicate that the great triumph of the Kingdom Gospel will have brought the nation back to the Lord in penitence and faith; and that the great triumph of the Gospel of Salvation will bring the world to Him, when "I am sanctified in you before their eyes." Thus we look to see both the triumph of the Gospel of the Kingdom and of the Gospel of Grace before the rapture of the Church; and we look to see both before many years have gone. We imagine that this desired end will be in sight by the end of 1928 or very shortly thereafter; at all events we believe that it will be in sight by 1936. "Because a short work will the Lord make upon the earth."

W. P. G.

* * *

Contrast Between Israel and Judah

ISRAEL was to be unknown in name (Isa. lxv, 15).
The Jews to be known as a byword and reproach (Jer. xxxiv, 9).
Israel was to be a multitudinous people (Hosea I, v, 10).
The Jews were to be bereft of children (Jer. xv, 7).
Israel was to be a fourfold nation (Isa. xi, 12).
The Jews were to be without might (Jer. xix, 7).
Israel was to wander for many years and then to find an island home in the West (Isa. xlix, 1-8).
The Jews were to be strangers in all lands (Jer. xv, 4).
Israel was to have the Kingdom and a national existence and a perpetual monarchy and that of David's Line (Jer. xxxi, xxxiii).
The Jews were never to be a nation, or have a king until their union with Israel and their acceptance of Jesus as their Messiah (Zech. ix, 13; x, 6).
Israel was divorced from the Law (Gal. iii, 10; Jer. ii. 8).
The Jews were to remain under the law, until the fulness of the Gentiles (Rom. xi, 12, 25).
Israel was to be a Christian people, all taught of God (Isa. iv, 3).
The Jews were to remain under the old covenant (Jer. xxxi, 31, 32).
Israel was to be driven out from their own land, sown among the nations, lost and found, to become the Sons of God and then used for the conversion of the World (Hosea ii, 23).
The Jews were to remain separate, persecuted (Jer. xxiv, 8-10).
Israel was to lose their name and be called by another (Isa. lxv, 15).
The Jews were to retain their old name and identity (Isa. iii, 9).
Israel was taken captive by Shalmaneser and Tiglath Pileser to the cities of the Medes (2 Kings xviii, 9). 721 B.C.
Jews by Nebuchadnezzar to Babylon (2 Kings xvii, 18). 606 B.C.
The poorer class among the Jews were left (Jer. xl, 7).
Israel was to be in honour and no weapon forged against them was to prosper (Isa. liv, 17).
Judah was to be a reproach, a taint and a curse (Jer. xxiv, 9, 10).
Israel was to be chief among the nations (Isa. liv, 15-17).
The Jews a trembling and faint-hearted people.
Israel had nothing to do with the crucifixion of Our Lord, not being in the Land, except Benjamin, "who accepted" Him.
The Jews cried "Crucify Him, Crucify Him."

* * *

The Battle Axe

"THOU art my battle axe and weapons of war; for with thee will I break in pieces the nations; and with thee will I destroy kingdoms" (Jer. li, 20).

Egypt.—At the Exodus 1486 B.C. Direct act of God on behalf of Israel.

Assyria.—Sennacherib and his army destroyed in the night, direct act of God in 700 B.C. When besieging Jerusalem.
Israel were taken captive 721 B.C. They escape 612 B.C., as the Scythians.
Massagetæ appear 610 B.C., just before the Jews were taken captive.

Babylon.—Destroyed by Cyrus in 538 B.C., helped by the Israelites, or Massagetæ, in the van of his army let in by the captive Jews at the time of Daniel and Belshazzar.

Medo-Persia.—Cyrus was killed fighting the Massagetæ, and Darius was destroyed by Alexander in 336 B.C. Alexander had the Massagetæ as allies in his Persian campaign when Persia was destroyed.

Greece.—Alexander attacked the Getæ. Fifty years after Alexander, Lycimachus attacked the Getæ, but was taken prisoner by them. The Greeks were worn out as an Empire fighting the Scythians, or Getæ.

Rome.—In 111 B.C., in time of Marcius, the Getæ were first attacked by Rome. They disappear in 80-100 B.C. and the Goths appear in A.D. 62, and eventually take Rome in A.D. 410, under Alaric. Rome evacuates Britain A.D. 402-436, Kingdom of Kent A.D. 454. Normans first appear 871. Enter England 1066. Union of England and Scotland 1603, and Ireland 1801, under the Union Jack: the Union of Jacob.

Spain.—Spanish Armada 1588. (4½ million inhabitants in England. Elizabeth and Medal. "He blew, and they were scattered.")

France.—1789-1815, Napoleon and Revolution. (French treaty of neutrality with Turkey. 1881, deserted us. U.S.A., 1917.)

Denmark.—Battle of Copenhagen, 1801.

Dutch.—Cape of Good Hope and Ceylon, 1801.

Germany.—1914-1918, together with the Austrian and Turkish Empires.

Turkish Empire.—Only British Empire allowed to partake in the campaign. No allies. The promised land, from the River Euphrates to the Great River, the River Nile is now in British hands.

Russia.—Her confederation of non-Abrahamic States, sometime between 1928-1936.

Digitized by Google

The Union Jack

THE base of the Union Jack is the Cross of St. George, the blood-red cross flown at the mastheads of our ships; and then the Cross of St. Andrew; and then the Cross of St. Patrick. The three united in the Union Jack. Here is the nation of whom God said: "Thou art my battle-axe and weapons of war." That which each kingdom contributed to the Union Jack is its cross. In Canada we have that, and down in the corner we have, first, the shield—which is Jehovah—and then upon the shield we have the quarter of the various provinces, and in the upper half of the quarter of the province is the fish, which was the original symbol of the Christian Church, and the others have the lion or the cross. Then you get down to Australia and you have the Southern Cross; and so you go on and on through the heraldry of Britain, sacred from its beginning, proclaiming the origins and the continuation of race and of the nation, proclaiming the character of its mission to mankind, and presaging the glorious ending and destiny when He should come and take the throne, Whose right it is.

* * *

History of the Human Race as Told in the Scriptures

THE creation of man.
The creation of Adam.
The birth of Cain and Abel
The death of Abel.
The defection of Cain.
The birth of Seth, the father of the "appointed" seed.
The descent from Seth to Noah, and the Flood.
The selection of Shem to be the Covenant bearer.
The descent from Shem to Abraham
The call of Abraham.
The Abrahamic Covenant.
Isaac.
Jacob
The establishment of Israel.
The setting up of the national administration, lay and clerical.
Israel's induction into the Promised Land.
The establishment of the Throne.
The division of the Kingdoms.
The Captivities.
The setting up of the Jewish nation.
The first Coming of Our Lord.
The establishment of the Kingdoms of Babylon and of Britain (Israel in the Isles). (Daniel ii.)
The Babylonian succession of Empires (Imperial and Ecclesiastical).
Israel-Britain's continuance through the seven times of prophecy.
The fall of the Babylonian Empires.
The miraculous expansion of Britain (Israel) into a universal kingdom.
The coming of Our Lord to reign

The Names of God, and the Order of Divine Self-Revelation

1. In the beginning God (Elohim) created the Heavens and the Earth. Older than Human family.
2. Elyon El. Embraces all Human family.
3 El Shaddai. Abraham and Sarah. National Covenant.
4. Jehovah. God's reserved personal Name. None but Israel and Judah may use this Name.
5. Jesus (Jehovah) Son and Father, given to each Individual.
6. The Holy Spirit Given to the Church at Pentecost.
7. King of kings; Lord of lords. Christ's Second Coming.
8. God All in All. At the end of the Millennium.

* * *

British Coat of Arms

IN considering the Coat of Arms of Great Britain let us take the shield first.

The Shield.—Gen. xv, 1; "Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward."

Deut. xxxiii, 29; "Happy art thou, O Israel: who is like unto thee, O people saved by the Lord, the shield of thy help."

The Lion and the Unicorn and the Young Lion are mentioned by Balaam: "Behold, the people shall rise up as a great Lion, and lift up himself as a young lion. He hath as it were the strength of an Unicorn."

The Measuring Line.—At the foot of the Arms we have the measuring line of God's and Israel's inheritance. (Deut. xxxii, 8). "When the Most High divided to the Nations their inheritance, when he separated the sons of Adam, he set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel."

The Circle.—The order of the circle is commemorated in the ancient ensign of the Earl as well as in the Garter.

Isa. xl: Message to Israel in the Isles.—In this chapter He set His sign: "It is He that sitteth upon the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers."

What can the circle of the earth mean but the Equator? What can the words mean but world girdling Dominion?

Dieu et mon Droit.—Everybody knows the importance of a signature for identification, and this is given by Jer. xxiii, 5-8: "Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, etc.

In his days Judah shall be saved and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, The Lord Our Righteousness."

This in Hebrew is Jehovah Tsidkenu.

Norman French, Dieu et mon Droit.—God and my Right.

The Diadem.—Crowns the Royal Coat of Arms.

Isa. xxviii, 5-6: "In that day shall the Lord of Hosts be for a Crown of Glory, and for a diadem of beauty, unto the residue of His people."

The Quarterings in the Shield show the owner thereof: Three young lions on two quarters for England and Wales.

One is the Lion Rampant of Scotland.

Digitized by Google

Harp is for Ireland and the House of David, and above is the Young Lion, the last to be introduced.

Here we have:

1. The Great Lion.
2. The six Young Lions on the shield.
3. The Lion Rampant of Scotland.
4. The Young Lion on the Diadem.
5. The Unicorn. Nine Lions and the Unicorn. Ten Symbols in all.

Added to this is the Harp, the Flag of the House of David.

Thus the ten-tribed nation of Israel is represented in all its tribes and in the House of David How does it happen that Britain is using all this Heraldry of Israel?

* * *

What is British-Israel Truth?

BY REV. WM. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

NECESSARILY the answer to this question must be brief if it is to be condensed into the present article. So we shall be able to do little more than give a table of contents of the truth of British-Israel teaching.

1. It is

THE STORY THE BIBLE TELLS

from Genesis to Revelation.

In no sense does British-Israel Truth differ from the story told in the Bible. If in any matter there be found to be a difference between the story of British-Israel Truth and the Bible story, the leaders and rank-and-file of the Movement will be glad to have the difference pointed out, and the teaching of British-Israel Truth will be instantly brought into line with the story of the Bible.

The Bible tells a consistent story from beginning to end. It is a true story as far as its history is concerned, and it is an inspired story as far as its prophecies are concerned. It is one continued story running through all the consequent Books of the Bible. This story is the groundwork of British-Israel Truth. And it is not a delusion!

2. THE CHIEF PERSON in the story is Jehovah in the Old Testament and Jehovah incarnate in Jesus in the New Testament.

The personality and presence of this Person of Infinite Majesty is manifest at every stage of the story, and on every occasion which has found its place in the Book.

Jehovah appears with the appearance of Man in the story of the Bible.

Jehovah-Elohim is the MAKER of the Earth and the Heavens.

Jehovah is the Father of Israel; of Ephraim; of the House of David: and of every soul in Israel who is loyal to Him as the God and King of Israel, and as Israel's Redeemer.

Jehovah is revealed as

THE PRESENT PERSONAL KING OF ISRAEL THE NATION

from the time that with high hand and outstretched arm He led Israel out from Egypt and established the people as a nation, to whom He said: "Ye shall be unto me as a kingdom. . . ." He established Himself in Israel as God and King of Israel as is recorded in the 19th and 20th chapters of Exodus, and the Kingdom thus established in the Nation has never been withdrawn.

THEREFORE JEHOVAH IS STILL GOD AND KING IN ISRAEL

* * * * *

3. Jehovah appointed in Israel a "Chief Governor" to sit upon the Throne of Jehovah in Israel. This "Chief Governor" is the House of David. That House is the mortal representative of the Immortal Jehovah upon the Throne of Jehovah, usually called the throne of David (see 1 Chron. xxix, 22, 23): "Then Solomon sat on the Throne of Jehovah as King instead of David his father, and prospered; and all Israel obeyed him." This inferior throne represents, but does not replace, the Throne of Jehovah in Israel, even as the throne of the Governor-General in Canada represents, but does not replace, the throne of King George V.

4. Jehovah charged Himself with the perpetuation of the Nation and of the House of David. Age after age this fact is made clear in the Bible. See as late as the 31st chapter of Jeremiah, where it is made a chief clause in the New Covenant with the House of Israel, which Covenant is quoted in Hebrews viii, although the particular clause referring to the Nation is not there quoted. Sufficient of the Covenant is quoted to identify the New Covenant with that contained in the 31st chapter of Jeremiah.

5. After the New Covenant with the House of Israel is thus recorded, in the 31st chapter of Jeremiah, the renewal of the Covenant with the House of David is similarly restated in the 33rd chapter of Jeremiah. Thus it is seen that as late as Jeremiah's writings the actual Kingship of Jehovah stands in Israel, and that it carries forward therefrom for as long as sun, moon, and seasons endure. Therefore, as the Bible tells the story, the Throne and Kingdom of Jehovah in Israel is still a fact. Therefore the Nation Israel is still a fact, and the Throne of David is also a fact.

But we pass on rapidly.

6. The Throne of David was still in existence in Our Lord's day. The Scriptures are very clear in regard to this. The prophecies are as clear upon the matter as are the sun and moon in the sky. The Scriptures call the moon God's "faithful witness in heaven," witnessing to the continuance of the Nation Israel and the Throne of David established over it.

In the Annunciation by Gabriel of the coming birth of Our Lord, the statement rings out with absolute clearness. "And the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever: and of his kingdom there shall be no end" (St. Luke i, 32, 33). Thus the New Testament carries on the same story, which is continued from all the Books of the Old Testament.

The "Gospel of the Kingdom" taught by Our Lord, and by His disciples, prior to His death and resurrection, is the same story.

The Apostle Paul continues it in the 9th to the 11th chapters of Romans for instance; and in the Epistle to the Corinthians, wherein he tells them, "I would not have you ignorant that our fathers were all baptised into Moses in the cloud and in the sea," and so forth, showing that the Epistle to the Corinthians was written to people of Israel stock, although they were not Jews.

The same story is carried forward by St. James, who wrote to the twelve tribes scattered abroad, and by St. Peter who wrote to the strangers scattered abroad.

Digitized by Google

The same story is completed in the Book of Revelation. wherein God and the Lamb are finally established in the midst of Israel for ever

This is the outline of the Jehovah teaching of British-Israel Truth.

These things being so, it follows that the people and Nation Israel must ever continue before God, otherwise His declared plan of action must fail.

7. Come now to Jesus, the Son of God, the Son of Man.

In Him we see incarnate the Maker of " the Earth and the Heavens."

In Him we see " the Father," as He has so plainly declared to us, Who was the Founder and has ever been the King of Israel.

In Him we see the Redeemer of the Nation Israel. Start not at this statement, nor call it a delusion, for it is the clear declaration of Holy Writ. See Isaiah l.-liv. for instance.

Yes ; Jesus Christ is the Redeemer of the Nation Israel. As a nation which has sinned, and yet remains an integral part of the revealed plan of Jehovah, the God and King of Israel, it was necessary that Israel the Nation should be redeemed from her divorced condition. And she was so redeemed. Therefore she will not be destroyed because of her sins, but will be preserved and cleansed, for the perfecting of the Divine plan for the regeneration of mankind through her agency.

8. But the fact Jesus Christ is the Redeemer of the Nation Israel does not prejudicially affect the fact that " Jesus Christ by the grace of God should taste death for every man." It was to Nicodemus, a master in Israel, that Jesus said, " Ye must be born again." If Nicodemus, all in Israel must be so born, and also, most obviously, all not of Israel.

Therefore British-Israel Truth declares Jesus Christ to be the Redeemer of Israel ; and also the Saviour of men.

Jesus Christ is " The Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." " For there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."

9. Jesus Christ is " The Apostle and High Priest of our profession." He alone can authorize the Doctrine ; He alone can offer the atoning Sacrifice! One should linger long with that great declaration but we have not space to do so here.

10. Through Israel, according to the flesh, Christ came.

Through Israel He must be preached to all mankind ; that the word to Abraham " In thee and thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed " may be fulfilled.

11. To Israel He shall come again, and that right speedily, to take to Himself " the throne of his father David."

As to Israel the Nation. " Called, chosen, faithful," she will fulfil the Divine plan.

12. Now we must turn to history.

God's Word warrants the statement that true history is part of the Bible. Prophecy must be translated into history! History must manifest the inspiration of prophecy! This is the challenge of the Book of God. Therefore British-Israel Truth turns to history to see therein the fulfilment of prophecy!

13. The Israel prophecies are fulfilled to the letter (up to date) in the history of Britain and her daughter nations (including America), and nowhere else. Were there no other proof, this is Divine proof that Britain is Israel.

We offer to the world the demonstration of the truth of God's Word. Let us be wise and search the Scriptures, and we shall find that these things are verily so.

Fulfilled prophecy identifies Britain with Israel.

14. But there are other proofs prepared and preserved in God's Word against this day. Israel is described as to name, numbers, characteristics, national organization, dominions and possessions, and so on, by scores of God's signs upon her, which no other nation bears. Do we know these marks ? If so, we know Britain to be Israel. If we do not, then let us lay our hands upon our lips lest we be found to make God a liar.

15. The Jews have their place in Scripture.

But they have not Israel's place there. Do try not to bribe them with promises which God has not made to them. One mark is sufficient. They have not the Throne of David, nor any throne, reigning over them. But the Bible makes it clear that Israel has ; therefore the Jew is not Israel.

Another mark. The Jew does not possess the appointed place granted to Israel, nor any other place. They are a homeless people ; made homeless by the command of God. Therefore they are not Israel, to whom God declared, " Moreover, I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own and move no more, neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more. "

. . .

The Jews do not dwell alone. They are so mingled with all other nations that they cannot always be identified. Our immigration authorities will tell you that. They dwell in all countries ; among all nations ; are named after the peoples among whom they dwell ; speaking the language of the peoples of the lands they are strangers in ; professing all faiths ; they do not dwell alone, neither is there any place on this earth where they may dwell so. But " Israel shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations." In " Splendid Isolation " Britain-Israel does so dwell in her Island home and in her Dominions overseas, and has so dwelt for ages.

The " House of Judah " has its own scriptures in which the House of Israel has no immediate concern. The final covenant with the House of Judah is that it shall " walk to the House of Israel," and be conjoined with Israel again as one among the tribes of Israel. That process is well on the way to completion.

And so we might pass on and show by history, prewritten in prophecy, that Britain is Israel, and that the Jew is not Israel, although of Israel, but we must close. The things we have said are sufficient for a beginning.

16. These things being so, the Israel message of the Bible is the British message of the Bible. It is a glorious message, and will win our nation back to God, and fit her in turn to win the other nations to Him. Learn that great message and preach it, for this is the purpose of God concerning you, to whom He has said, " Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord."

Digitized by Google

"British-Israel"

By PROFESSOR EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S.

I PROPOSE to write some comments on the above topic.

A few words on specific terms will be in order.

First: "Brit-ish." Whence this term as used generally to-day?

In the days of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and others of later date, the Lord made many covenants with these great men concerning their descendants and the future, reaching down through all human doings on this earth.

These promises or covenants in many cases were unconditional. The word in the Hebrew for "covenant" is Brit or Brith.

A common word in Hebrew for man is Ish. The compound word for "Covenant Man" is Brit-Ish.

Second: The covenants referred to were given to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and their seed. Hence, wherever there is a man on earth to-day who has come down through the above ancestry, he is a "covenant man," a Brith man.

Third: Anglo-Israel.

Now let us look at the word Anglo, which is more favourably received than the term "British-Israel" in the United States.

Let us go to Joseph in Egypt. His father Jacob (Israel) gave him the "Birth-right Blessing," and placed him at the head of the twelve sons; and at the head of the twelve tribes down through the ages.

Joseph's constellational crest was "Taurus, the Bull." while that of Judah was "Leo, the Lion."

Several Hebrew words were used to signify the bull, cow, calf and kine. One of these words was Egl, Engl, or Angl. Hence the land of Joseph would be England or Angland. The Bull or Joseph people would be the Engls or Angls—written Angles.

To use the term Joseph-Israel would be the same as to use Angl-Israel, or Anglo-Israel.

From this it is seen that the name Anglo-Israel is more circumscribed than "British-Israel." But they are fairly good synonyms, the one for the other.

Fourth: Israel.

Jacob was divinely called "Israel" at the Ford Jabbok in the mountains of Moab. His children were Israelites. His twelve sons were the heads of the twelve tribes of Israel. Of these sons two were specially chosen, viz., Judah to give the future royal line, and Joseph as the national leader of the whole twelve.

These, in later centuries, came to be called the Children of Israel, and also Israel. Until King Solomon died, about 975 B.C., the twelve tribes were united, and made one people.

When Solomon died, the twelve tribes split into Ten and Two-tribed Kingdoms. One was the Northern Kingdom, composed of ten tribes; the other, or Southern Kingdom was composed chiefly of the two tribes, Judah and Benjamin.

Fifth: The Prophecies.

From the separation of United Israel—an act of the Lord, as He tells us—into two Kingdoms, 975 B.C., forward, there were three sets of prophecies relating to these two Kingdoms. One directed to Israel, one to Judah, and one to the two united. Let it be remembered that the Northern Kingdom was called "The House of Israel," and the Southern was called "The House or Kingdom of Judah."

In reading the prophets one must watch carefully to be sure of the particular Kingdom or House addressed, otherwise confusion arises.

Very commonly the word Israel is used for the Northern House and Judah for the other.

In this sense most Anglo-Israel or British-Israel speakers and writers use these terms. And, of course, they also know that as Judah descended from the old patriarch Israel, the people of Judah are Israelites; but they are not and never were a part of the Israelites in the sense of the House or Kingdom of Israel.

And when the prophets addressed the House of Israel they were not speaking to the House of Judah, and vice versa.

Sixth: The Captivity of Israel.

Israel, the Northern Kingdom, went into Assyrian captivity 721 B.C. The entire nation disappeared from the land of Canaan, and was carried into exile. They settled in Media, Armenia, and surrounding regions, since which time and event they never returned to Palestine, "the land of their fathers."

From the above date they gradually disappeared as Israel from the pages of history—except wherein they are specifically referred to by the later prophets, Josephus, the Epistle writers, and Jesus.

Seventh: The Captivity of Judah.

About 585 B.C. the Southern Kingdom, the House of Judah, went into Babylonian Captivity, and remained there for seventy years.

Then Cyrus, King of Persia, conquered the Babylonians, and gave freedom to these captives—all who wished to go free.

Under 50,000 of the Judah or Babylonian Captivity returned in the time of Ezra. These were headed by the princes or fathers of the two tribes of "Judah and Benjamin," and with them returned certain Levites, singers and others, "whose spirits the Lord had touched."

Hence, in the official sense and nationally, the House of Judah returned. But as a Kingdom, not so! The Kingdom of Judah ceased with Zedekiah, 585 B.C., and has never been restored.

Doubtless vast numbers of Judah remained in Babylonia, Media, and Persia, while many joined their brethren of the House of Israel, then in exile in the adjacent countries.

The Judah that returned to Jerusalem and the land of Judæa were in their children the Judahites, of the days of Jesus and the destruction of the Holy City, A.D.70. This part of Judah has never been lost, while the balance of the House of Judah, as well as the Northern Kingdom of Israel, have been so far lost as to cause historians great labour in seeking their whereabouts.

British or Anglo-Israel speakers and writers, mostly, keep these facts before their minds while claiming to have found the to-day national and official representatives of Northern Israel of the Ten Tribes.

Let it be steadily kept in mind that a great portion of Judah has been lost as truly as the Kingdom or House of Israel. The portions of Judah as known to-day are the Sephardim and the Ashkenazim Jews.

Digitized by Google

The World Crisis

By A. R. Nelson Heaver.

Of what nature is the world crisis to which we are hastening? Is it something to be greatly feared, or is it, on account of its ultimate results, something to be welcomed?

These are questions agitating the minds of far-seeing men and women the world over. And they are questions which demand an answer.

First as to the nature of the crisis. It is to be nothing less than a great spiritual wrestling of the Soul of the World

with its Maker, finding manifestation on the physical plane, in a final whirlwind between the kingdoms of this world and the Kingdom which is not of this world.

For all nations are to be gathered together against Jerusalem to battle. And facing those nations will stand Britain, heart of the Kingdom, which, even in Napoleon's day, was acknowledged to be "in the world but not of it."

And this great battle, known as the Day of Jehovah, is to mean for the world nothing less than a "face to face" meeting with God.[1] For the attempt to take the throne of the world by force will be finally frustrated by the advent of the Sovereign Lord of the Universe, Himself. Such will be the climax to the struggle of the ages.

As the "Der Tag" of the Gentiles, the Day of the Lord will be a day of judgment. As "the day" of God's Brith-ish People, a Day of Renown and Deliverance.

For just as, at the dawn of our dispensation,[2] the Prince of this World, wrestling with the King of the Kingdom of Heaven for spiritual ascendancy, prevailed not, so, in these twilight "last days," must the kingdoms of this world strive with God's Kingdom Nation in the earth for world supremacy.

But they will not prevail, for, of the Brith-ish Kingdom it is written: "It shall break in pieces and consume[3] all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever."

The victorious result of that first titanic contest is everlastingly recorded in the thrilling judgment: "Now shall the Prince of this World be cast out."[4] The final victory in the coming is assured for Brith-ain in the striking prediction: "The kingdoms of this World are become the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ."

War of Kingdoms

In view of these things, the words of Britain's Premier assume a new significance. Thus Mr. Baldwin: "Many forces of evil were loosed in 1914, forces that were not all bound at the time of the Armistice, and there is a strange leaven at work to-day among all the nations of the World."

The Prince of this World, cast out of heaven[5] into the earth, but knowing that his time is short,[6] is thus seen to be organizing the forces of darkness for the great destruction.

In the past they crucified the King. To-day, the children of the Wicked One, in their generation, seek to destroy His Kingdom-Empire in the earth.

The crucifixion of the King of the Kingdom of Heaven was, on our Lord's own testimony, a world crisis. "Now is the Crisis of this World."[7]

But it resulted in the triumphant resurrection of the Son of God.

The World Crisis of 1914-1918 (when to save the world, one million of the seed of Isaac made the supreme sacrifice) was the first phase in the

Crucifixion of the Kingdom,[8]

the second and final phase of which is yet to come.

But it will result in the glorious manifestation of that race of Super-men,

the sons of God.[9]

For the pressure of the world-revolution without, its waves surging furiously around the boundaries of the Kingdom of God[10] upon earth, will cause a revolution after God's own heart within the soul of the Nation. This is the national conversion (turning toward God) experience of Isaiah (chapters lx-lxvi), heralding the manifestation (see lxvi, 8) by resurrection and translation, of the sons of God.

The Jacob element in the nation, wrestling with God in prayer will prevail. A Nation will be "born of God" in one day! Israel and Jacob have become one, in the union of Church and State which heralds the coming of the sons of God to reign (Rev. v, 10). To the world is manifest a people, called out of every nation and kindred and tongue, united in Christ to the now regenerated people of the Kingdom. A Kingdom of Priests. A Holy Nation.

But is this re-born Kingdom to have no heavenly King? By all means, for in Revelation xii, 5, it is written: "The Woman (Israel) hastened to bring forth a Man Child that should with a rod of iron." This is the coming universal Dictator—One Who is altogether righteous—a world-Dictator after God's own heart.

Rule all Nations

And every indication points to the coming of the All-Ruler (Rev. i, 8, F.F.) much more quickly than the world expects.

Thus Isaiah put it of Israel: "Before she travailed she brought forth, before her pain came she was delivered of a Man Child."

This of the coming Son of God and King of Israel.

And of the sons of God: "Who hath heard such a thing? Who hath seen such things? Shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? Shall a Nation be born at once? for as soon as Zion travailed she brought forth her children."

Politically, within the nation, this great event will be precipitated by the restoration of the divine Consti-

[1] See Ezek. xxxviii, 19-23. Note the words, "I will be known in the eyes of many nations" of v. 23, and the words "at My presence" of v. 20.

[2] Matt. iv, 1-11, especially verses 8-9.

[3] Dan. ii, 44. The word "consume" means "to take in." Compare Rev. xi, 15.

[4] John xii, 31. [5] Luke x, 18. [6] Rev. xii, 12

[7] John xii, 31 (Ferrar Fenton).

[8] It is probable that, just as at the crucifixion of the King, His friends all forsook Him and fled, so, at the hour of supreme crisis Britain will be found standing alone. History at Alexandria and Constantinople confirms this possibility. So does Isa. lxiii, 3, addressed to Israel in the Isles. See also verse 5.

[9] Rom. viii. 19.

[10] The Kingdom of God is the Kingdom set up by God of Dan. ii, 44. The Kingdom of Heaven is the same Kingdom, i.e., the Kingdom that the God of Heaven set up. When all the people of the Kingdom shall have "put on" Christ, Who is "in heaven," then the Kingdom will have become the Kingdom of Heaven upon earth in very deed tution. The restitution of the divine law must precede (Acts iii, 21) the coming of Him Whom the heavens now retain.

The renaissance of the KINGDOM means that the new covenant with its divinely dictatorial "I WILL" and "THEY SHALL" clauses (Jer. xxxi, 31-40) will be fully in force.

But the people of the KINGDOM are giving willing obedience to the law written upon their hearts and officially embodied in the restored Constitution.

THE SOUL OF THE KINGDOM

will have been brought into joyful obedience to the law of CHRIST.

Meanwhile, the travail of the world-soul will have been none the less agonizing.[11] As that well-known journalist, James Douglas, with true prevision puts it: "The world soul is reverting to CHRIST as the one unexhausted and inexhaustible fount of spiritual advance and growth." This return to GOD, he shows, involves the subjection of the will of mankind to the universal will. "Whether as individuals, or as nations or as groups of nations," an unconditional surrender of the will represents the only terms upon which we can find rest. "Therein lies the explanation of our private as well as public unrest and unease. The world-soul is in the same plight as yours or mine. It is wrestling, and in its agony it is struggling towards the great defeat which is the great victory.

"This is the drama of life as I see it; a conflict of the human will with the divine will, and it is as intense in the world-soul as it is in the little soul of each man or woman. The fact that the world-soul is unconscious of the conflict is the heart of the world drama, just as the fact that most of the unit-souls are unconscious of it is the heart of our private drama.

"But consciousness is upon us in these anxious and careworn times. We are haggard with the pain of it even in our pleasures and our anodynes. Our social and political aches and convulsions are manifestations of GOD as really as our private despondencies and despairs. The world is world weary, and each one of us is growing weary of the world."

For the world then, the immediate future will be a Time of great Tribulation.[12] For the KINGDOM it will be the Time of Jacob's Trouble.[13]

But the anguish of a world suffering great tribulation will bring the Desire of all Nations[14] to the earth to reign.

And the prayer of Jacob, wrestling at the brook Jabbok, will re-win for GOD'S BRITH-ISH PEOPLE all the blessings of the royal title IS-RA-EL.

Because of its ultimate results then, the coming final phase of the great world crisis is not so much to be feared as to be welcomed, as it is written: "When these things begin to come to pass, lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh."[15]

For the re-birth of the KINGDOM means the ultimate regeneration, not of the world only, but of the whole creation.

The travail of the soul of the KINGDOM and of the world-soul is as nothing compared with the soul travail endured by Him through Whom the great deliverance is made possible.

In all our afflictions He is afflicted. But "He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied."[16]

That spells triumph and power and redemption beyond the bounds of human imagination.

* * *

The Dynasty of King David Established in Great Britain

By THE REV. W. M. H. MILNER, M.A.

THE Hebrew origin of our Race and the Davidic descent of our Royal Family are two inter-dependent themes, and the two discoveries have proceeded simultaneously. The Rev. F. R. A. Glover investigated and published those remarkable facts in Irish history which led him to the conclusion that the Royal House of Britain is descended from King David. Subsequent discoveries are incorporated in the widely circulated treatise, published by the B.I.W.F., under the title "The Royal House of Britain an Enduring Dynasty."

I determined to test the matter, and in the course of much close reading found all Mr. Glover's authorities, as well as other valuable matter now for the first time unearthed, went over all his quotations line by line, and proved them true.

These facts came plainly out:

1. The early presence of Dan in Ireland.
2. The subsequent coming of the also Hebrew Scots.
3. The appearance amongst them of a Hebrew legislator in the sixth century B.C.
4. His enforcement of the Law of the Ten Commandments, commemorated in the name Tara.
5. His simultaneous institution of a Hebrew University—"School of the Prophets."
6. The marriage of the King Paramount of Ireland to an Eastern, in fact, a Hebrew Princess.
7. Their coronation on Jacob's stone.
8. The subsequent descent from that marriage of the Royal House of Britain.

Endomed in the historic four courts at Dublin, in companionship with Moses, is the medallion portrait of the great Irish legislator, identified by Mr. Glover with Jeremiah. He is called the Ollam Fodhla. Both words are Hebrew, meaning Wonderful Prophet. As showing how exact Mr. Glover's evidence is, I found that two old Irish authorities made the interval between the ascertained date of the founding of Emania (the ancient capital of Ulster) 346 B.C.—and the coming of Ollam Fodhla, to be eight generations, or 240 years. Reckoning backwards from 346 B.C., this would make Ollam flourish 576 B.C., by which date Jerusalem had been sacked by Nebuchadnezzar, and Jeremiah, with the Heiress to the Throne, had left Palestine. Thus, the epoch of Ollam Fodhla is the epoch of Jeremiah.

Under his auspices the Eastern Princess with the Hebrew name—Tea Tephi, that is, in Hebrew, the Beautiful or Beloved Wanderer—was wedded to the Heremon or Arch-king Eochaidh. She is called the daughter of Lughaidh, an Irish equivalent of Beth-El, whence came, we believe, the Coronation Stone, the Lia Fail or "Stone of Destiny" of Irish, Scottish and British Royal history. From wedded Heremon and Tephi, crowned on the Stone King and Queen of Israel

[11] In the preface to Winston Churchill's history of the World Crisis 1914-18, the Great War is styled "The Great Agony." This forms a striking commentary on Ferrar Fenton's translation of Matt. xxiv, 8. "These . . . begin the Agonies." [12] Matt. xxiv, 21.
[13] Jer. xxx, 7. [14] Hag. ii, 7. [15] Luke xxi, 28. [16] Isa. liii, 11.

Digitized by Google

in the West, descended through two early historic characters, Ugaine the Great and Angus the Prolific, the lines of Fergus, Kenneth and the Stuarts. At the coronation of each Scottish king the bards sang the royal genealogy. Those of William the Lion and Alexander III, are recorded in Skene's Chronicle of the Scots, and Stillingfleet's Origines Britannicæ. Each of them is traced back to Fergus, Angus, Ugaine and Heremon; by this means we arrive at the following genealogy. Eighteen generations from David to Zedekiah, whose daughter married Heremon. Eleven generations thence to Angus the Prolific of Tara, ancestor of both Irish and Scottish kings. From him thirty-four to Kenneth MacAlpin. Four lines, Stuart, Bruce, Plantagenet, and Guelph bring us in twenty-eight generations to George I, whence eight more lead us to Prince David. H.M. King George V, and H.M. Queen Mary are thus each in the ninety-ninth generation from King David. The hundredth is Prince David—Prince Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, Prince of Wales. And this fits the time exactly. Dimbleby, the "premier chronologist," gives us 1076 B.C. for the birth of King David. Our present Prince David was 30 in 1924. The interval is a hundred generations, each of thirty years. Thus Glover's and Grimaldi's linking-up of our Stuart kings with the Bible kings of David's House is established.

In 1902 more came to light. I was led to the British Museum and the Royal Library at Windsor, and spent the most fascinating and profitable fortnight's continuous reading that I ever enjoyed.

In the British Museum there is a MS. (bound up in small 8vo book form, of parchment leaves), said to be of the tenth century. It is No. 3859 of the Harleian MSS., and can be seen in the MSS. room. And it plainly shows the Welsh king Owain, son of Howel the Good and Elen—from whom through Owen Tudor and Henry VII, twenty-nine generations bring us to King George V, and Queen Mary—as being himself (Owain) doubly descended from an Anna, said to be Cousin to the Virgin Mary. That statement is in Latin. In another MS., at Jesus College, this same Anna is introduced with the statement in Welsh that she "used to be said by the men of Egypt to be cousin to the Virgin Mary."

This wonderful Anna, ancestress of British and English kings, herself of Royal Hebrew lineage—Who was She?

The celebrated King Arthur is said by John of Glastonbury to be straight descended from Joseph of Arimathæa.

Now Joseph of Arimathæa is by Eastern tradition said (see Morgan's St. Paul in Britain) to have been the younger brother of the father of the Virgin Mary. Thus Joseph was her uncle, and Anna was her cousin—and Anna was the daughter of Joseph. Joseph of Arimathæa, the rich trader, came to Britain, as the Glastonbury legend reminds us, and his daughter, this wonderful Anna of the old manuscripts, married in Britain a prince of Britain, by whom from her was descended King Arthur, and (by another line) King Owain, the ancestor of the Tudor kings.

Here is a little bit of the resulting pedigree:

Anna, being 39th by natural descent, 29th by legal heirship (according to the respective genealogies of St. Luke and St. Matthew) from King David—her daughter (named in Prof. Rhys and Mr. Brynmor Jones's work on The Welsh People) married Lear (through Troy from Judah). Their son was Brân, surnamed "the Blessed," father of the celebrated Caradoc or Caractacus. This was the Royal British Family taken in honourable captivity to Rome, whose fortunes there are given in detail in Morgan's St. Paul in Britain Children of Caractacus were Linus (first Bishop of Rome) and Claudia, who married the Roman officer, Pudens, and whose children were the first "saints" of the Christian Church at Rome. The third son of Caractacus, brother of Linus and Claudia, was Cyllinus, father of King Coilus or Coel. From Coel sprang one daughter and one son. The daughter married into a second Trojan (Judah) line, and became the ancestress of the Tecks and Guelphs, from whom has descended Prince David. Coel's son was Lucius, the Christian King who resigned his crown to preach the Gospel in Bavaria and Switzerland. He had also a daughter and a son. The daughter, Gladys, was the grandmother of Helena, mother of Constantine. From her by that line was descended the Princess Elen, who married Howle the Good, and so became the ancestress of the Tudor kings, from whom by intermarriage with the Stuarts came Prince David. Descended from Lucius, by the son of Lucius, as given in another old MS., was Cadwallader. He is shown as the father of Frea, who married Odin the Great (circ. A.D. 250), whence Saxon, Norman, Hanoverian and Danish lines lead onward to Prince David.

To go back to Anna, her son is variously given as Beli, Heli, or Helaius. He was, on the one hand, ancestor of King Arthur; on the other, according to the old Welsh MS., of Howel the Good, husband of Anna's descendant Elen, and father of Owain, from whom sprang Tudor and Stuart kings, and so—Prince David.

Through Anna, the cousin of the Virgin Mary, as well as through Tephi, the daughter of the last reigning King of Judah, there is an average in the descent from David to David of a hundred generations.

Let us now open our Bibles: In Genesis xlix, 10, we read: "The Sceptre shall not depart from Judah until He come; and unto Him shall the gathering of the people be"—as King of kings. He came to suffer—not yet to reign—some six centuries after the last obvious bearer of the sceptre of Judah had gone—leaving no successor in Jerusalem. Even so there would be six centuries of the promise unaccounted for, the promise of a perpetual sovereignty. But nineteen centuries more have sped and the King of kings has not yet gathered the peoples under His beneficent rule. That makes twenty-five centuries of the promise unaccounted for, that specific promise of a perpetual sovereignty.

So much for the promise in Genesis. When, subsequently, in the course of its political evolution the Hebrew state in Palestine became a monarchy, the promise of perpetual sovereignty was made definite in the line of David. For in Jeremiah xxxiii we read: "Thus saith the Lord, David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel. . . . If ye can break My covenant of the day, and My covenant of the night, and that there should not be day and night in their season, then may also My covenant be broken with David My servant, that he should not have a son to reign upon his throne."

Digitized by Google

Here You See Part of the Remains of Glastonbury Abbey

GLASTONBURY ABBEY occupies what is believed to be the site of the first Christian Church building in the world. The original church was built of wattles, and its size was the same as the Tabernacle in the Wilderness.

Eusebius (A.D. 260-340) Bishop of Cæsarea and the Father of Church History after the sacred Canon closed, says: "The Apostles passed beyond the Ocean to the Isles called the Britannic Isles."

Gildas, the British historian (A.D. 516-570), says: "Meanwhile, these islands received the beams of light—that is, the Holy precepts of Christ, the true Sun—at the latter part, as we know, of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar." "As we know" seems to refer to a generally accepted knowledge. This date would be at the latest A.D. 37, some seven years after the Crucifixion. This fits in with the decision of the Councils of Basle, Pisa and Constance that the British Bishops took precedence of the French and Spanish because Our Church was founded immediately after the Passion of Christ.

There is an ancient MS. in the Vatican which states that St. Joseph, Lazarus, Mary and Martha, and others were put into a boat off the Levant and landed at Marseilles in A.D. 35.

Cressy, the Benedictine Monk and historian, tells us that St. Joseph of Arimathea died at Glastonbury on July 27th, A.D. 82, and on his tombstone was written, in Latin, "After I had buried the Christ, I came to the Isles of the West; I taught; I entered into my rest."

Another point about the British Church, it was one throughout the Kingdom—no schisms, no divisions, throughout its history, till Augustine came to England round about A.D. 600.

Aristobulus, the fellow worker of St. Paul, was associated with Glastonbury; there is testimony from the Eastern Church that Aristobulus was the first Bishop of Britons, and that St. Paul chose him as such.

Tradition has it that St. Paul himself came to Britain, and he himself promised to go to the "uttermost bounds of the West," and St. Barnabas, St. Simon Zelotes, Aristobulus, Joseph of Arimathea, and that these last two died at Glastonbury.

Perhaps the most wonderful tradition of all is that Our Lord actually came as a boy, accompanying St. Joseph of Arimathea on one of his expeditions to seek metal, he being a rich merchant in metals, the tin and copper mines in Cornwall then being the richest in the world. Joseph of Arimathea being the Uncle of the Virgin Mary.

Obviously, William Blake had heard this tradition, and immortalised it in his

JERUSALEM

"And did those feet in ancient time,
Walk upon England's mountains green?
And was the Holy Lamb of God
In England's pleasant pastures seen?
And did the Countenance Divine
Shine forth upon our clouded hills?
And was Jerusalem builded here
Among those dark Satanic Mills?

Digitized by Google

Bring me my bow of burning gold !
Bring me my arrows of desire !
Bring me my spear ! O clouds, unfold !
Bring me my chariot of Fire !
I will not cease from mental fight !
Nor shall my sword sleep in my hand
Till I have built Jerusalem
In England's green and pleasant land."

Abbot's Leigh, the British-Israel Hostel—within the original Abbey grounds—is the ideal place to stay. Terms and particulars may be obtained from the Secretary-General, 6 Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

* * *

The Low Passage of the Great Pyramid.

By THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

I AM not a Pyramid expert. It has been my privilege to listen to and to read Mr. Davidson and others, who are students of the Pyramid. Conviction has come to me that the chronology of world history has been built into the structure of the Great Pyramid, and that such chronology has kept pace with the mighty things of history for nearly six thousand years. For four thousand years or so this chronological scale has been in existence. Thus we see the downward progress of the race under the influence of the Dragon star until the Exodus. At that point we have the way opened for those who choose the ascending path. This continues, a " low passage " ascent, to the date of the first Advent of Our Lord. Still the ascending passage continues, but from this point the height of the Grand Gallery gives plenty of head room, until the night of the entering of Britain into the Great War. The ascent ended at the Great Step, and on level ground we move forward. From this time to the end of the Great War it is again a " low passage " forward movement, now on an horizontal plane. At the time of the signing of the Armistice there is another lift of the roof line, and we move forward with plenty of head room, but with a roof lower than that of the Grand Gallery until the date of May 29th, 1928.

Then begins another " low passage " progress for a hundred inches. There is nothing to indicate the twenty-ninth of May as being different from the thirtieth of May or any other date of the hundred inches which follow, which are calculated to indicate a hundred months. The present low passage is little, if any, lower than the passages which represented millenniums of history in the descending and ascending passages. The upthrust of the roof of the Grand Gallery indicated the first Advent of Our Lord, and all the blessings which followed His Coming. The upward thrust of the antechamber marked the era of cessation of physical war. What else will history say that it marked ? Perhaps it marked also the entrance of those ideals which presage the principles of the Millennial reign. For such ideals have been much in evidence, inter-mixed with other matters, during the period of the Armistice, such, for instance, as the banishment of war from the earth.

But while there have been such indications, and while the head room has been sufficient, and more, to enable men to walk upright, still the roof line has been lower than that of the Grand Gallery. It has been a period of lower spiritual ideals and of less spiritual achievements in the Christian world than was the period of the Grand Gallery. Education and culture of the natural man have progressed. Spiritual vision and achievement have retrograded. The Christian life of the antechamber has been less triumphant than that of the Grand Gallery. This we see clearly by the fact that the Grand Gallery commences at the birth of Our Lord and in connection with His dispensation.

Let us look at the doctrinal field which has been occupied during the two periods, and mark the difference.

The Christian faith of Britain has become symbolic to a degree. Men have given through the symbol that veneration and adoration which in the former period was given to the Lord directly. So much for the ritualistic and ultra-sacramental wing of the Christian Church, and of the Israel nation. The Christian faith has become materialistic in the hands of the modernist ; and the triumphant faith of the former generations has very largely died out. Christianity in the last ten years has not achieved the height of faith and truth that it did through previous generations of the dispensation.

Enemy propaganda has been effective also. This has given to the period the obstacles of the " triple veil." There has been the concrete obstacle of the " granite leaf," and there has been the indication of similar obstacles. Day after day has been indicated in the antechamber as critical points in the progress through this pregnant period, and each and every day thus indicated has written its story on the pages of the last decade of history.

Now comes the last low passage. Christianity in Israel will not walk with head erect, and the nation will walk with bowed head and with difficult steps. There is just head room for the nation upon its knees.

What are the present facts connected with the period of Israel-British history which we have now entered upon ?

Let us be assured that the Pyramid in no way affects or controls the progress of world history, or national history. It but marks the passage of the ages and of the years and months. The things which are ahead during the next indicated years will be the natural sequence of the events through which we have been living, and the natural fruit of the works which the nations have been carrying forward during the years of the last decade. We shall see things move logically forward during the indicated period. May we look at things as they are to-day, and so be able to estimate what they will be to-morrow.

We are still in a period of international struggle. He must be blind indeed who fails to see that fact. There is no promise of an immediate end of strife.

We simply point out that facts we find in the great field of world events will be found to be chronologically indicated in the Great Pyramid, provided we are able to rise above detail and take our stand upon the greatest outline of world events ; such an outline as marks the progress of dispensations.

Digitized by Google

We have often pointed out that the method of warfare changed with the Armistice. Doctrine took the place of the sword. Propaganda took the place of military drill. Revolution, brought about by propaganda, took the place of organized international war.

Consider these things; for herein is the key to the facts of the period.

* * * * *

What Germany attempted to do by physical power the Bolshevik influence is attempting to do, and has largely done, by doctrine.

Germany sent forth a military force. The Bolshevik organization sent forth an army of propagandists.

Papal and Moslem propaganda has also been active in the field, and each has been carrying forward a contemporary campaign, looking each to a revolution in its own favour.

The Bible speaks of this latter as the going forth of " three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty."

This form of warfare has been quite as manifest and quite as far-reaching as was the physical warfare of the Great War.

What is the aim of the present war of propaganda ?

1. Subversion of the Common Law.

2. Destruction of the administrative authority and organization, which the propagandists call " Imperialism " and " Capitalism," etc.

These are the chief aims of the present psychical attack.

Before the psychical attack by propagandists Russia fell. Its Czar was slain, and the law and its administration were both subverted. It should be noted, however, that the law so subverted was not the Anglo-Saxon or Common Law. Before the doctrinal attack by the propagandists the Empires of Russia, Germany, Austria and Turkey fell. The administrative machinery was removed and a new administration provisionally set up in each of these Empires; or, rather, in the room of each of these Empires.

Thus far the work of conquest by doctrinal weapons has progressed.

" Root and branch work " has been the order of the day. In Russia and in Turkey the classes in whose hearts and minds resided the law, and in whose hands had been for ages the administrative authority and power, were ruthlessly slain; and in Germany and Austria they are firmly suppressed.

The same type of doctrinal propaganda is honeycombing the U.S.A. and the Overseas Dominions; has caused the cleavage in Ireland; and is producing uncertainty and unrest in England and Scotland. This is the state of affairs through which we have passed during the last decade.

The Era, now ending, has been a Negative Era.

It has been a time of pulling down and clearing away the debris of Empires; and the destructive work has been thoroughly done in Continental lands. At the beginning of that era there were six great Empires, six great administrations having Imperial status, administrating four great systems of law.

The Empires and Administrations were:

Empires.	Law Systems.
China.	Confucian—Buddhistic Law.
Turkey	Moslem Law.
Russia	Autocratic law modified by the Greek Church Council of Grand Dukes.
Austria.	Civil law.
Germany.	Civil law.
Britain.	Common or Divine law.

Now mark what has happened. We represent this by striking out the Empires, administrations, and systems of law, which have suddenly passed away under the propagandist attack. Mark that not one of these things were removed through the agency of the Great War. The question of the form of government of the Central Powers did not even arise in the council of nations which ended the war. The governments fell before the propagandist attack.

Empires.	Administrations.	Systems of Law.
~~China.~~	~~China.~~	~~Confucian law.~~
~~Turkey.~~	~~Turkey.~~	~~Moslem law.~~
~~Russia.~~	~~Russia.~~	~~Autocratic law.~~
~~Austria.~~	~~Austria.~~	Civil law.
~~Germany.~~	~~Germany.~~	Civil law.
Britain.	Britain.	Common or Divine law.

One Empire—Britain—and two systems of law remain.

Is it possible for the minds of men to grasp the scope of the tremendous destruction indicated by the above diagram? Most certain it is that the post-war generation does not realize the magnitude of the destruction thus wrought, or the great vacuum thus left in the world situation. Things of such magnitude as to cover the earth, and of such antiquity as to cover the historic ages, are gone. Imperial dignity was swept away, with its holders. Imperial authority was rent from the hands of Emperors and governments, leaving the whole governmental services, military, naval and civil, going abegging. What a huge field for exploitation by ambitious men and organizations!

This represents the domestic position in each Continental country where an Empire has been.

The International Field.

In the International field, the void left by the fall of Empires is just as clearly manifest. Manchuria looms out of the fog which covers the battlefield. The Southern forces of China have been driving towards it. The Soviet activities of Russia have been directed towards it; and now, in no uncertain tones, Japan has declared her active protectorate over it. Three nations in contest for Manchuria! How will the matter be settled?

Again: In the eyes of Russia, China, India, Afghanistan, Persia, Turkey, Mesopotamia and Palestine have seemed like ripe cherries to be plucked at will. They might remain but a dream but for the fact that Russia is under compulsion of circumstances to act abroad, or to fall at home. The Bible foretells Russia's ultimate action.

Digitized by Google

Again: In the eyes of Prussia, backed by Germany, it seems to be a foregone conclusion that the existing government of Russia will fall; and it has become the hope and purpose of Prussia, plus Germany, that she shall have the reorganizing of Russia, and an outlet for her population and enterprise there. But Poland is in the way sadly. What will Germany do?

In the eyes of Mussolini, the Mediterranean is an Italian lake, and the lands bordering thereon the natural sphere of Italian colonization and enterprise.

Thus nations are organizing for expansion on lines which must carry conflict of interests and of races.

One must not assume that because nations desire to expand that therefore they are yielding to a needless ambition. Germany is confined within limits which we should consider to be altogether too strait for the needs of our race: seventy millions of people within the compass of a country no larger than a Canadian Province. Italy with a rapidly increasing population is also confined within too narrow limits. Her children are saying to her "give place that we may dwell." In time past the United States received the overflow of these and other countries. But the United States has now closed the door to the overflow of the nations. Therefore they are seeking outlet elsewhere. And who shall blame them?

Thus there are real points of danger through the natural increase of people which must find an outlet for expansion.

Thus it is in the international situation. No amount of preaching and of peace propaganda can obviate these dangers. They must be met and overcome by some means. But, how shall it be done?

It is true that in the British Empire there is room enough and to spare. But against the free flow into the Empire there are two major obstacles. These are: national patriotism on the part of the people whose need is to migrate; and the matter of faith, or rather of creed, and of Church association.

Competing Organizations.

This brings us to another set of facts which enter vitally into the present situation. These facts are: not nations, but racial and creedal organizations.

There are two great organizations which are partly founded on race, and partly on creed, namely, the Roman Catholic Church and the Jew. The former, in its political aspect, may be classed as a Latin organization founded on the Latin race. The great ecclesiastical organization, the Papacy, has not as yet laid aside the thought of temporal power. The official journals which speak the mind of the Church makes that clear. The Continental field from which Imperial authority has been swept, as we have seen in the last ten years, offers a very attractive field for active striving after the temporal power which Emperors wielded until yesterday, and to which the Papacy might become heir to-day, as the Popes became heirs to the Cæsars some twelve hundred years ago. The preparation for a drive in the psychical world to this end is very widespread and powerful. It is a factor to be taken account of in the present condition of world affairs.

Again, founded partly on race, and chiefly on creed; nay, this time it will be safe to say, on faith; being a distinctive and non-Christian religion, is the activity of the international Jew. The time of the budding of the fig tree has come, and the Jew is forging to the front in the affairs of the world. In his mind is the hope, and in his heart the conviction that he will attain to the hegemony of the world, and that in the immediate future. To this end he is making use of the literary, scholastic, political and economic machinery of the nations, to create the condition and the attitude of mind generally which will enable him to step into the ruling position in the earth in the place of the Emperors and their governments which have so lately fallen.

These things are not dreams of what may be in the future. They are the things with which statesmen and governments have to reckon at the present time. And statesmen and governments are laying their plans and carrying them out to meet this condition of affairs. In these things are wrapped up explosive elements which will soon shake the world.

Such then, is a glance at the facts of the present world condition as they are related to the non-British and American peoples. that is to say, the non-Israel peoples.

The last decade has been, in part, taken up with the removal of the Continental Empires and all that they stood for. Accordingly the Continental Empires which are not of Israel are gone. More and more the activity of the nations and of the organizations mentioned has been turned to preparation for the moment when each will aim at taking over the things which remain and which each has desired. Combinations—national, allied and institutional—have been carried forward to great lengths; soon the time of preparation will give place to the time of action in various lines. There will be negotiations, alliances, oppositions, and finally blows. Such is the only course that the movements now under way can be expected to take.

In the midst of all this flux and change one Empire has stood firm. Of course we refer to the only Empire remaining, namely that of Britain. It is unique in this, it is an Empire without an Emperor. It is an Empire which is united in loyalty to the King.

Now the King is declared to be the King of each separate Dominion and Commonwealth. Loyalty to an Emperor is not expressed. Why is this? It is because that by Divine appointment David and his successors are given the dignity of King, but not of Emperor. An Emperor is a King of Kings. In the British Empire there is only one King. Where, then, is the justification for calling the British "company of nations" an Empire? Its justification lies in the fact that in the Empire there is, in deed and fact, the "King of kings." He is the centre of authority and of government. He is the fountain of honour and of worship. "He is a great God and a great King." "He is our God, and we are the people of His pasture and the sheep of His hand."

This Empire has stood, and still stands, with all its administrative machinery, intact. It has stood contrary to the expectation of the world. But it has stood according to the revealed plan and purpose of Jehovah, the King of kings, in Israel-Britain.

While other nations have been passing through the crushing and grinding process, Britain, intact, has been carrying forward her administration within all the boundaries which were hers before the war, and over other lands and peoples which have come within the scope of her administration since the war. Thus by Britain and by the United States one-third of the human race have been made partakers of the freedom and equality of the Common Law. That this branch of the human family has preserved its organization and stability, and has extended its influence over all the oceans and over so much of the earth is a fact which should attract and hold the attention of the people. The course of this expansion has in no way been stayed by the events of the time. What shall be the place and part of the Anglo-Saxon in the struggle for expansion and supremacy which is now imminent?

Digitized by Google

The Divinely-declared purpose is that the Kingdom of God, as manifest in, and administered by, the Celto-Saxon race according to the principles of the Common Law, shall be extended to all the earth. It is the declared purpose of God that each nation shall find its place within that Commonwealth of nations, that each shall be subject to His rule, and that each shall accept and obey the Common Law. This is inevitable. How soon, time only will tell. In the meantime we shall be daily moving towards that event. No one race shall rule over another race. But God shall rule over all; the system of law which He requires to be obeyed and enforced must be the Common Law, and the administrative authority must be in the hand of His servant David.

Now, then, the stage is set for the great act of the drama through which we are now living. In it nation after nation, combination after combination, and institution after institution, will make attempts to gain the position dreamed of and desired by each. The struggle does not so vitally affect Britain and America as it affects the other nations, for our Empire organization stands as firmly as ever it did, and occupies the position appointed for it of God. Its administration is seen to be easily the most desirable and efficient in the earth. This is the judgment of other nations, expressed again and again in general literature. The loyalty of the people is beyond question, as has been manifested again and again during the times of stress through which we have been called upon to pass. Therefore, the field of the Empire is not open to ambition nor to exploitation as is that of the other Empires which fell.

INTO THIS TIME OF STRUGGLE FOR POSSESSION WE HAVE NOW ENTERED.

This is not a prophecy drawn from the Pyramid, nor from the prophecies; but is a conclusion arrived at from the consideration of the facts of the case. Preparations have been made, and are in progress, of which we have certain information. Plans have been formed and await the moment of opportunity, of which the governments and their departments know. Strategic positions have been taken up and are now occupied by rival forces, who watch each other over the boundaries. Treaties have been entered into, and their contents are well known to the responsible parties. What shall be the final upshot of all this? It is stated in the following specific prophetic statement:

"BUT THE JUDGMENT SHALL SIT, AND THEY SHALL TAKE AWAY HIS DOMINION, TO CONSUME AND TO DESTROY IT UNTO THE END.

"AND THE KINGDOM AND DOMINION, AND THE GREATNESS OF THE KINGDOM UNDER THE WHOLE HEAVEN, SHALL BE GIVEN TO THE PEOPLE OF THE SAINTS OF THE MOST HIGH, WHOSE KINGDOM IS AN EVERLASTING KINGDOM, AND ALL DOMINIONS SHALL SERVE AND OBEY HIM.

"HITHERTO IS THE END OF THE MATTER."

This is the end to which we are coming.

Finally, to this Kingdom the Lord shall come, bringing Divine wisdom and authority to bear on the circumstances of the world, and under His reign the nations shall dwell in peace.

* * *

The Sure Word of Prophecy

By REV. W. H. STUART-FOX, M.A.

"IN the written word of prophecy we have something more permanent, to which you do well to pay attention, as to a lamp shining in a dimly lighted place, until day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. But, above all, remember that no prophecy in Scripture will be found to have come from the prophet's own prompting; for never did any prophecy come by human will, but men sent by God spoke as they were impelled by the Holy Spirit" (2 Pet. i, 19-21—Weymouth's version).

Prophecy is God's programme of His time purposes, the itinerary of His march through the ages, put into our hands to vindicate His truth, and inspire and strengthen faith and hope. Jesus spoke of His Father's business. Everything God does is done in an orderly and methodical manner. "All His works are perfect"; there is nothing of that haphazard, topsy-turvyness which modern theologians seem to discover in the Bible. It is the master plan of a Master mind, "ordered in all things and sure." If in God's foresight and forethought there is any room for error, the great scheme of prophetic revelation would break down. The Higher Critics claim to have discovered these errors, so Dr. Driver tells us that certain prophecies can never be fulfilled. But the Scripture is very emphatic—"He determined the times before appointed." And the times so appointed brought specific fulfilment. He appointed the time for the call of Abraham, the birth of Isaac "at this set time next year." For the organization of Israel "four hundred years hence"—of the banishment of Israel and Judah, 2,520 years. Of the Babylonian captivity 70 years, of the duration of the nation of the Jews—70 weeks.

He appointed a day for the birth of His Son, virgin-born, at Bethlehem; for His death (see Dan. ix). He appointed the times of Israel's restoration at the end of seven times, 2,520 years. All which prophecies have been fulfilled to the letter, and we are to-day living in the last stage of the great seven times. We do well to watch the lamp of passing events lighting up the dim places of prophecy.

The historical fulfilment of the Messianic portrait in its human frame, delineated by the Holy Spirit centuries before, is sufficient surely to pledge that other productions of this great Divine Artist's work, in the groups of prophecies which fill out the Divine programme, are equally accurate, and will as surely be fulfilled. Three hundred and thirty-three Old Testament prophecies centre in Christ and are all fulfilled.

Digitized by Google

There are five other great groups of prophecies branching out from the Central Messianic group, viz. Messianic, Noachic, Abrahamic, Mosaic, Davidic and Ethnic.

Shall we take out of these groups one line of thought?

The Great Potter had moulded out of the clay of His choosing the nation of Israel for a special purpose: "Thou art my servant, O Israel." It is important to notice that God's election of Israel was not for eternal life; there all men, equally guilty of sin, stand condemned, to receive or reject the gift of life. It was for special service, involving not only high privilege, but tremendous responsibility.

The formative processes in due course came to an end. Israel must enter upon the field of her world-wide activities. Hence the disruption. "This thing is of me"—pre-determined—for the holy seed must be sown amongst men; only Israel, by her sins, made the sowing painful and protracted. Prophecy and history deal unsparingly with Israel's apostasy; the Nemesis of Judgment follows inevitably upon sin. But it is important to remember that these judgments were more remedial than penal, and in no wise upset the Divine programme, or caused God, as some confidently assert, to alter His purpose. God never rang the curtain down upon an Israel cut out of His scheme, though to the mind of the average Bible student Israel disappears with the Captivity into Assyria. As we study the prophetic Scriptures we find that all the prophets go on speaking of Israel—the House of Israel as distinct from the House of Judah—as still in the Divine programme, noting the various departments of its mission to humanity, as though it were still fully within the view of men.

Make it your task to gather together the many prophecies which deal with the activities of this servant nation of Jehovah, and you will find that they carry right on through the ages until our Lord shall come; and still on into the millennial reign; and yet still onward, as Isaiah declares in the last chapter, "As the new heavens and the new earth which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed and your name remain." (Is. lxvi, 22.)

Let me illustrate from an Old Testament story which is found in Genesis xxvi. Remember the word to Abraham, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called." In this chapter you find Isaac digging wells. Here we have a simple picture of Israel's mission in the world: "Who, passing through the valley of weeping, make it a well" (Ps. lxxxiv, 6). Four wells are dug by Isaac and his servants, and each has a special name, strikingly significant of Israel's history.

The first well was called "Contention," setting forth the militant character of Israel's mission (Jer. li. 29).

The work of the Philistines had to be undone. Always the pathway to fuller life must be cut by the sword; the forest which blocks the way to civilization must be levelled by the axe; the rock must be shattered by the dynamite; the transition from the bondage of law to the liberty of the Gospel needs the Cross; and falsehood and tyranny which dispute the way with truth and righteousness and liberty demand oftentimes the sword of the Lord and of Gideon.

The second well, called "Hatred," reveals the devilish malice which has to be countered. The Hebrew word used here has the same root as Satan. "The Son of God was manifested to destroy the works of the devil." So, too, this Israel nation. "If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." This is Israel's work (see Isa. xlix, 9).

The meaning of the third well is "Room." Here is set forth the nation's expansion and far-reaching colonization, "to establish the earth and to cause to inherit the desolate heritages."

The last well is "the Well of the Oath." "He went up from thence to Beersheba" (see Gen. xxi, 31).

What was the oath sworn by God to Abraham? (Gen. xxii, 16-18).

Here is set forth Israel's missionary work to dig the wells of salvation that the water of life might flow freely forth to the nations.

It does not require much consideration to see how that one nation only can fill out this fourfold picture It is Britain's destiny to go through the valley of weeping, making it a well: contending valiantly for the right against every form of tyranny and injustice; setting free the slaves; irrigating the deserts; populating the wastes; and, above all, opening up the Well of Truth till it flows forth in countless streams to the nations of the earth.

* * *

The Crowning Bible Vindication

By Rev. James Mountain, D.D.

It is well known that, during the last sixty or seventy years, there has been a determined and persistent attack upon the Old Testament, and particularly upon its early prophecies and the historicity of its outstanding characters.

This attack has been earnestly met by such Societies as The Bible League, The Wesley Bible Union, The Bible Witness Union, The Believers' Bible Union, The Fraternal Union for Bible Testimony, and by numerous Bible Schools and Institutes.

All these valuable organizations, although independent of each other, agree as to the general line of their work; but it is laid upon my heart and conscience, in this connection, to venture to draw the attention of my Christian brethren to the specific testimony of the British-Israel Movement.

The Completest Bible Defence

This Movement not only contends, as they do, for the historicity of the Patriarchs and for the full Divine inspiration of the prophecies which relate to them and to their descendants; but—in vindication of the Divine Oracles and of the faithfulness of our Covenant God—it also traces the history of those descendants, and ultimately proves it to be a moral certainty that the prophecies concerning Ephraim-Israel have long been, and are still being, fulfilled in the Anglo-Saxon race and the world-wide British Empire.

It is much to be regretted that—in its interpretation and defence of the Bible—this important Movement should meet with such misconception on the part of many of God's devoted servants.

Fain would I hope that, through the prayerful perusal of my recent book—always in the light of the Holy Scripture. which is my final appeal—this misconception may, in many cases, be allayed, if, indeed.

Digitized by Google

it be not entirely removed. The book consists of 236 pages, and is entitled British-Israel Truth Defended; a reply to the Rev. Samuel Hinds Wilkinson.

God's Provision for Men's Unbelief

As we trace the history of the people of God, whether in the Old Testament dispensation or in the New, we rejoice to see that, in every time of crisis, God has always raised up some special agency to meet the crisis. So it has been in modern centuries in our beloved land. The Methodist Revival, under Wesley and Whitefield, met centuries of superstition and infidelity.

British-Israel Truth

It is well known that Hume—in 1748—Tom Paine in 1790, and Charles Bradlaugh, in our own times, proclaimed as one reason for their rejection of the Old Testament the apparent non-fulfilment of the prophecies concerning Israel which were made to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and David. And in our own day, the philosophic contempt of Hume, the blasphemous infidelity of Paine, and the vulgar secularism of Bradlaugh confront us under the disguise of a refined and cultured Modernism. "Either the prophecies were never made," say they, "or the God who gave them has been unable to accomplish their fulfilment."

But Jehovah

> "Never is before His time,
> And never is behind."

The time had not arrived when—in accord with the eternal counsel of God—apostate, lost, hidden, but now restored Israel was to be revealed to herself and to the world.

But the hour was drawing near when the claim of the Papal Church to be Israel was to be refuted; when the sceptical sneers of the Modernists would be met by a profounder interpretation of the Bible and by undeniable Biblical and historical facts; and when the mercy, the faithfulness, and the power of Israel's God would alike be gloriously vindicated.

The Search for the Unlocking Key

Godly men searched the inspired pages of Holy Writ, and tremulously asked such questions as these:

"Here are the prophecies, where is the fulfilment?"
"Here are the promises, where is the answer?"
"Here is the mystery, where is the solution?"
"Here is the lock of God, where is the key?"

They studied the prophecies again and again, and prayed for the illuminating influence of the Holy Spirit. Much had they to learn, and much had they to unlearn. It was not easy for them to cast aside the false system of figurative interpretation originated by Jerome and Origen, which had gained entire ascendency during the Dark Ages of Mediævalism. Nor was it easy to rid themselves of their own prejudices, or to contemplate without fear and trembling opposition and ridicule which their renunciation of the traditional interpretation of the prophecies would most certainly bring upon them.

Traditionalism or the Bible?

But they recalled for their comfort the words of John Robinson, the Pastor of the Pilgrim Fathers, who addressed to them these words in 1620—when they were just about to sail for America in the Mayflower:

> "The Lord has more truth yet to break forth out of His Holy Word."

And they were cheered by the words of the learned Bishop Butler, whose vindication of Christianity is as effective to-day as when it was first published in 1736. He wrote as follows:

> "The Bible contains many truths—as yet undiscovered."

But who would have the honour of discovering those truths, especially those concerning Ephraim-Israel, the people of the Northern Kingdom of Palestine, who were carried away into Captivity to Assyria; but who—it was prophesied—were to be restored to the "Appointed Place" in the "Islands" of the "North West"; and who were to become "a mighty nation" "a multitude of nations," "the fulness of the nations," and, in a national sense, "the sons of the living God!" (Hos. i, 10).

The Approach of the Dawn

Those godly men prayed and studied, studied and prayed, and waited for the light from heaven. They dimly traced the footsteps of Ephraim-Israel from Assyria to Ar Sareth, and from Ar Sareth to the North and the West, until, as Saxons, but under different names, and at different periods, they arrived in the British Isles. They saw, down through the centuries, the development of the Anglo-Saxon people, until these Islands were "too strait" for their increased population. They beheld with wondering eyes the rise of our marvellous Colonial Dominions and our maritime and military supremacy.

The Noonday Beams

With the inspired prophecies to Israel before them and with these striking facts staring them in the face, it cannot be wondered at that upon their reverent minds, as with a lightning flash, there burst the midday lustre of God's radiant Truth, which made them exclaim with gratitude and joy:

> "We are Ephraim-Israel! We are Ephraim-Israel!"

But truth perceived must become truth proclaimed. And right nobly did these Pioneers proclaim what God had revealed to them. Amid apathy, indifference, sneers and opposition, they gave their testimony. But while many ridiculed, some believed and were not afraid to confess their faith.

And right well has their faith been honoured; for since those early days British-Israel Truth has been amply confirmed by sounder Biblical interpretation, by historical research, and by archæological and linguistic discoveries. In all parts of the world, and in every rank of life—from Royalty down to the humblest follower of our blessed Lord,—British-Israel Truth now finds its thousands of enthusiastic adherents.

* * *

Abraham's Pedigree

Here you can see the various nations descended from Abraham. You will remember that the land was given to his descendants for ever and history shows that it has always been in the possession of the Israelites, Jews, Arabs and Turks till now. Even in the freeing of Jerusalem in 1917, 2,520 years, the seven times after the first siege by Nebuchadnezzar in 603 B.C., none but the descendants of Abraham were allowed to participate.

Now either we British are Gentiles, and still treading down Jerusalem, which is inconceivable, as our mission (as Israel) has been to free the slaves and make the desert to bloom; or we must be Israel. The Arabs know their descent and know ours too; they will always accept the rule of an Englishman as they say we are entitled to rule, but there is always trouble if you put a Jew to rule them as they maintain the Jews have forfeited their right. Here you see the various tribes coming into England after the Romans had retired, and finally the Normans having burnt all their papers and heirlooms showing who they were, came in in 1066 (with the "Wolf" the emblem of Benjamin in their shields) and the race was all gathered together again.

Next the Jews. Everybody knows they have suffered as foretold in the Bible. They are the greatest witness to God till Israel is revealed.

The Turks are now fulfilling every prophecy re Edom, and are drying up as foretold, to prepare the way for the Kings of the East.

Abraham came from Ur of Chaldee which was to the East. They appear to be deliberately committing suicide as a nation. They deposed the Sultan, abolished the Kalifate, revoked the Hegira their separate dating in 1917, the exact date foretold by Daniel 1335 days, and now have in revoking a part of the Koran on Polygamy, abolished that. Joseph [Ephraim] was to go through Edom as a flame through stubble. We have already largely done this; nearly all their possessions have come into our possession.

If the final phase is a Spiritual one they will turn Christian and join the British Empire. If not, it is a physical phase and they will be destroyed as a nation very shortly. But remember Isaiah's message to Idumea:

"The morning cometh, and also the night: if ye will enquire, enquire ye: return, come." (Isa. xxi, 12.)

* * *

The Scope and Subject of Prophecy

By Rev. W. Pascoe Goard

What is the scope of prophecy? Prophecy is not a formless thing. It is not an unlimited thing. It has form, beginning, progress, consummation. Prophecy is the gift of God to men. It is what David calls in Psalm xix, "The testimony of the Lord." There are wider scopes; but the prophecy in which we are all interested begins at a certain point in the world's history. The time is known; the order is known; the geographical setting is known. It is no myth, or fable, or mere folk-lore; but records actual events transpiring at certain times, in certain places, in a certain succession of events, properly related to world history.

The beginning of the prophetic system which occupies the foreground in the Bible is in the call of Abraham. The process leads on through Isaac, Jacob, Israel, Moses, David, separated nations Israel and Judah, the captivities, the return of certain Judahites. The Jewish nation, the coming of our Lord—here one branch ends—the main stem takes up Israel in the Isles; Israel gathered out of captivity to the Isles; Israel renewing its strength in the Isles; Israel going out on its world mission to "inherit the heathen; to possess the uttermost parts of the earth; to liberate slaves; to lighten the dark places; to prepare the way of the Lord; to act as God's battle-axe and weapons of war to the final war of Armageddon, and then to meet and be delivered by our returning Lord." This is the main stem of prophecy. Accompanying it are series of prophecies showing the rise, progress, fall, or restoration of world nations which affect Israel, until all pass or are merged in Israel; such as Egypt, Assyria, Babylon and its succeeding Empires; and as Edom, Moab, Ammon, Ishmael (Arabs), the nations kindred to Israel.

This is the scope and form of prophecy. Beginning with the Divine call to the man Abraham, the "righteous man from the East," from whom came the line of "the kings of the East," marching forward in a continuous progress unbroken through the ages, we reach the development in which we find ourselves to-day as we make the progress assigned to our generation along this prophetic highway of history.

Prophecy at one time foretold the whole story from the beginning. That was in the day of Abraham. Our Lord Himself commenting upon that, said: "Your father Abraham rejoiced to see My day, and he saw it and was glad." Abraham saw it nineteen hundred years before Christ was born! and the day of Christ has not yet come.

All prophecy was once a foretelling. Then there came a time when prophecy began to recount the past, to explain the then present, and to carry on into the future.

Then came the time of our Lord, when prophecy was about equally balanced between the past and the future. Prophecy was equally concerned with telling the history past and foretelling the future.

Now we have reached the end of the age, and prophecy is almost entirely taken up with telling that same story in the past tense.

The Apostle Paul in his Epistle to the Romans wanted to tell the future, but he could not intelligibly tell the future until he had told the past He wanted to explain doctrine for his day; but he could not intelligibly explain the doctrine for his day until he had explained the past. And so he began this way: "What shall we say then that Abraham our father, as pertaining to the flesh, hath found? For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory; but not before God. For what saith the Scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness." Then he goes on to tell of the original promise; that Abraham should have a son, and through that son he should have a seed, and in that seed, through the progress of the ages, through the succeeding generations, in the triumphant conclusion of the Divine plan, all the families of the earth should be blessed. Having made this clear, the Apostle goes on to say, "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ." What faith? Exactly the same faith as Abraham's. That there should be born into the world a son, Isaac, and through the son, a seed, and chief among that seed, Jesus, Who "took not on him the nature of angels, but he took on him the seed of Abraham," and in this seed, multitudinous as the stars through the generations, God would carry regeneration and blessing to all the families of the earth. That is the faith.

Digitized by Google

The foundation and chief corner-stone of this testimony of the Lord is faith in Jesus Christ.

It is faith in that story unfolded in the sacred Scriptures, and carried on unbroken until the triumphant coming again of our Lord Jesus Christ. That is the faith of the Bible.

It is a telling of the history of the past, an unfolding of the present, and a foretelling of the future.

We are at the end of the age, and are approaching the end of the long road by which God has led the seed of Abraham right down to the present day. Upon us falls the most critical period of the whole age-long journey—cumulative responsibility rests upon us for doing the last vital things of God's great plan—faith in the revealed plan, in which we are called upon to act, is vital to us.

The faith that justifies, according to St. Paul, when he laid down the foundations of the great Reformation doctrine, justification by faith, is the belief of that story as God tells it, from the call of Abraham to the Coming again of our Lord Jesus Christ.

There is a race involved in the story so told. It is not the Adamic family; that is too broad. It is not the Noachic family; that also is too broad. It is not the family of Shem; that is too broad. It is not even the whole family of Abraham, for Ishmael is not in it. It is the telling of a story which should be enacted as living history by the seed of Abraham, through Isaac and Jacob, right down through all the ages.

The Church and the ministry which preaches Jesus Christ the Saviour must preach that story complete, entire. The intelligible purpose of God is not only written in the Book, but it is written in the lives of the succeeding generations of His people Israel. What a glorious story to tell! Once we suspected, then we believed, but now, by the grace of God, we know that the story in the Book is a story that is being lived out, and written upon the fleshy tables of the heart of the race to which you and I belong, the Celto-Saxon peoples.

From the Call of Abraham to the Coming of Jesus there is one steady, stately, majestic progress. Every prophet, every evangelist, every apostle, and Our Lord Himself has given to us bit by bit that wonderful story until it is complete. Through the ages, through the succeeding generations, unconsciously, often blindly, we Britons, of the seed of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, have been doing our day's work, and passing; but unconsciously in the history of our race and nation we have written the very same faith, and find it to-day as the law of God written deeply in our hearts.

* * *

Britain and U.S.A. Fulfil Israel Prophecy

THE Bible being a prophetic Book describes a nation which should be found still in existence in the "latter days," and which should occupy such a position among the nations of the world that the loss of it would cause the prophetic vision to fall into ruin

Modern history shows the growth of the one Empire which still survives, from a comparatively small beginning as a kingdom in the 17th century, to an Empire in the 20th century greater than has ever been heretofore.

The prophetic portion of the Bible without that nation to show the fulfilment of its prophecies cannot be understood, neither can the unique development of the nation be understood, nor a sufficient reason for it assigned, without the prophecies of the Bible to explain them.

But the prophecies, fulfilled in the nation, are both simple and logical.

In order to have a clear understanding of the Bible and of the British Empire we must begin at the beginning and examine what the prophetic Scriptures have to say.

First, the Bible tells of the origin of the Adamic family: "And God formed man of the dust of the earth and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." This is the statement of the origin of the family of Adam. Let no man smile at the statement, "the dust of the earth," for that this is a perfectly accurate statement the analysis of the human frame shows; for the human body is composed of the ordinary elements which enter into the structure of the earth, and not a single particle of foreign element is to be found therein. Of the materials at hand in earth, water and air, the human body was composed, and into it was breathed the breath of life and man became a living soul.

The genealogical descent of the chosen line of the family of Adam is given as follows: God, Adam, Seth, Noah, Shem, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Israel. This shows a distinguished beginning for all the race, and among the race a most distinguished line of descent for the descendants of Abraham through Isaac and Jacob.

The commencement of specific British history, in the later development of which we are living, began with the call of Abraham for a specific purpose. It was not a haphazard selection from among all the families of mankind, but it was the calling of the next in line of the covenant-bearing seed.

In the days of Abraham, both the priesthood and the kingship were vested in that mysterious personage Melchizedek.

Next in line to him, though not of his descent, was Abraham the son of Terah, of Ur of the Chaldees.

Early in life he was called from his country, his kindred and his father's house, and separated for the purposes of exercising the function of the head of the house of the Hebrew race and of succeeding to the kingly line, and the priesthood as God's representative on earth.

At the age of 100 there was born to him and his aged wife, Isaac "the seed." The Scriptures present this as a miracle birth into that royal household which consisted of El Shaddai (God Almighty), the God Father of the race; Abraham, the royal father; and Sarah, the Queen Mother of the selected race.

In Isaac the whole succession of the seed in all its generations, including every individual who should be born of that descent, was laid upon the altar and dedicated, as is most beautifully told in the 22nd chapter of Genesis.

Digitized by Google

From that time on to the end of the ages, in all its generations, the descendants of Isaac have been " a chosen generation, an holy nation, a royal priesthood, a peculiar people " set apart to offer up spiritual sacrifices unto God.

Four hundred years later, emerging from Egypt at the Exodus, that is to say, 1,400 years B.C., that nation was brought to Sinai and there organized into God's kingdom nation on earth. The kingdom consisted of three elements :

1. Israel the nation.
2. Above that Jehovah the King ; and
3. The Law embodied in the ten commandments.

Forty years later the nation was inducted into and established in the land promised to the fathers, and at the time appointed.

In due time there was established over the nation the House of David and its kingly line. This was established over the House of Israel for ever.

Shortly thereafter the nation was divided into two by the determinate counsel of God.

Ten tribes, carrying the name of Israel by specific authority from the patriarch Jacob, separated from the House of David, and established itself under a separate line of Kings.

There remained to the House of David two tribes, Judah and Benjamin, which constituted the kingdom of Judah, and, viewed alone without the House of David, it was called the House of Judah.

Soon the House of Israel disappeared from Palestine, carried away into captivity.

A century and a half later there disappeared from Judah and Jerusalem both the House of Judah and the House of David.

So far the average reader of the Bible understands, but after this the knowledge of the ordinary reader of the Bible is at fault.

What became of the House of Israel ?

What became of the House of Judah ?

What became of the House of David ?

The histories of the Bible do not tell us, but the prophecies of the Bible give us the information.

We must go back again to the time when Israel was in Egypt. At that period we find a certain branch, under the leadership of the heir apparent to the birthright in the tribe of Judah (Zarah), disappearing from Israel. Some time later, in the genealogies, we find the descendants of Zarah to be mighty men equal to King Solomon, because Solomon is compared to them, established " in the East." Thus far the Bible.

Archæology has uncovered the fact that they proceeded to Troy on the shores of the Dardanelles and there established the kingdom of Priam. Here they occupied until Troy was destroyed at the end of the Trojan war.

Coming from Troy, the kingly line of Judah was established in Britain under King Brutus, the genealogical line of descent from whom is brought down in the reigning house in Britain to the present day.

The House of David, removed from Jerusalem when Nebuchadnezzar captured the city, was brought to Ireland by Jeremiah the prophet in the person of Tamar Tephi.

A union was there brought about between Eochaidh Heremon (of the Trojan line) and Tea Tephi (of the House of David) thus uniting the royal line of David with the sceptred line of Judah, and thus establishing the present line of descent.

In the meantime during many centuries, commencing as early as the captivity in Egypt, Israel migrations had made their way to the shores of Britain and had taken possession of it as an Israel Colony. As the sons of Britain to-day go overseas to Canada, Australia, or New Zealand, and there form British nations, so these early migrants came to these shores and established the ancient British nation.

To it we have seen the House of David came, immediately upon its being uprooted from Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar.

In the meantime Israel of the Ten Tribes had been carried into Assyria. From thence they passed into Europe ; by slow stages over many centuries they progressed through Europe until in due time, after the Roman Invasion had been withdrawn, they came into Britain under various names and settled as the Saxon people.

To them later came the tribe of Benjamin, which broke away from the nation of the Jews at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem and the final breaking up of that nation. After many wanderings they made their way into Britain under the name of Normans.

Thus by many paths, and under many names, over a period of many ages, God moved His people Israel to the " appointed place " in these Islands. There He re-established the nation ; over it He re-established the House of David ; to it He brought the tribes of the Captivity ; finally, the light-bearing tribe Benjamin ; and, most important of all, above and over it, as over Jerusalem of old, He established His Jehovah throne in the midst of His Kingdom, Modern Israel.

The miraculous expansion of the British kingdom into the British Empire is directly in line with the Bible prophecies concerning Israel in the latter days. The pushing of her boundaries to the ends of the earth is the expansion of the boundaries of God's earthly kingdom. The covenants, promises, and prophecies made to and concerning Israel are all fulfilled in Britain. The Bible is explained in full by the history of the British people, and its inspiration is absolutely demonstrated by Britain's fulfilment of Israel's prophecies.

The purpose of the kingdom is clearly set forth in the Bible from the beginning, the culmination of which will be when Our Lord shall return and " take the throne of His Father David," establishing His reign in Israel to the end of time.

Under His sway the boundaries of the kingdom of the Israel nation shall be extended to embrace all the earth, bringing about the fulness of blessing when, added to the Israel Kingdom, " the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our God and of His Christ."

Upon the rock of this kingdom the Lord has founded His Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

As the boundaries of the kingdom shall extend to embrace all nations, so shall the boundaries of the church extend until " the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea."

Digitized by Google

The Great Pyramid's Prophecy: A Message to the British Race

By D. DAVIDSON, M.I.Struct.E.

EGYPTIAN LITERATURE AND PYRAMID SCIENCE

THE study of ancient Egyptian literature is opening out a vast treasure store of knowledge concerning the Great Pyramid. We now know from ancient Egyptian literature precisely what were the dimensions and the units of measurement of the Great Pyramid. From the same source we know the scientific origin of these dimensions and units, together with the origin of the ancient Egyptian systems of linear and square measures, and the reason for these systems being different from, although derived from, the Pyramid's system and enshrined within its structural geometry. The records of ancient Egypt have explained the purpose for which the Great Pyramid was designed and built. They have shown us that this Pyramid was designed to be an astronomical Time-chart. They have indicated to us the mathematical principles upon which this Time-chart was designed, and they have given us its principal astronomical dates. The methods are the methods of modern science, and the astronomy and the astronomical dates resulting from the application of those methods agree with modern science of astronomy and with the astronomical dates defined by the methods of modern astronomy. That the scientific data of the ancient Egyptian records is scientific data that is enshrined in the Great Pyramid is confirmed by the scientific methods and the astronomical dates of these records being found indicated within the Pyramid itself.

EGYPTIAN LITERATURE AND PYRAMID PROPHECY

Certain dates, however, are indicated within the Pyramid that are defined by astronomical data, but that are not astronomical epochs. The points corresponding to these dates are points of structural change, and the details of structural change constitute essential features of the Pyramid's scientific system. The religious literature of the ancient Egyptians supplies an allegory descriptive of the significance of these structural changes, and indicates that this allegory is a prophetic allegory relating to the history of mankind. The principal theme of this allegory deals with the pre-elected purpose of the Messiah, with His life, ministry, Passion, and Resurrection, and with His final return to judge and rule the earth. Late Egyptian religious literature, however, identified the Egyptian god Osiris with the Messiah, whereas the Pyramid's date for the Passion of the Messiah is the date of the death of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Related to the principal Messianic theme of the Egyptian allegory is a secondary theme concerning a race chosen to prepare the world for the final return of the Messiah. The civilization of this race was to be in the West, and European. Professor L. A. Waddell, LL.D., has discovered the same two themes in the religious literatures of all ancient Oriental civilizations, and has shown that the chosen race is specified by the name "BRITS."[1] It is significant, in this relation, that the final phase of the Pyramid's allegorical prophecy is addressed to a race that should be in possession of the inch as a standard unit of measurement at the date, A.D. August 10th, 1920; and that this race is represented as passing through a period of Tribulation extending from the night of A.D. August 5th, 1914, to the night of A.D. November 10-11th, 1918—the period of Britain's participation in the Great War.

THE MESSAGE OF THE INCH

Now the message of the inch relates to A.D. August 10th, 1920. This is the date of the Treaty of Sèvres between the Allies and Turkey. The date is defined by the position of the face of the Granite Leaf in the Great Pyramid's Antechamber. The geometry of this chamber is the key to the geometry of the whole scientific system of the Pyramid, and is a multum in parvo of that system. The scientific symbolism of the Antechamber is of the nature of the modern engineer's symbolism for the translation of energy into "work done"; and the translation is symbolized as effected by the Messiah. The central date of the symbolism of "work done" is March 6th, 1924, the date of the expulsion of the Ottoman dynasty from Turkey. The significance of this identity results from the fact that Dr. Grattan Guinness concluded forty-eight years ago, from the prophecies of the Bible, that "THE DESTRUCTION OF THE POWER AND INDEPENDENCE OF THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE SHOULD BE AS A TRUMPET BLAST TO CHRISTENDOM, PROCLAIMING THAT THE DAY OF CHRIST IS AT HAND." The emphasis in capitals is in the original half a century ago.

The Message of the Inch is addressed to the British race at the time of the signing of the Treaty of Sèvres with Turkey. The Message of the Symbolic Prophecy is that the SPIRITUAL ALLEGIANCE of the British race will be required in the final work of DIVINE RESTITUTION, and that this allegiance will be compelled by the circumstances of a FINAL TRIBULATION that will extend from the night of May 29th-30th, 1928, to the night of September 15th-16th, 1936. This Message is addressed specifically to the British race, and means that the Constitutional Governments of the British Empire and the United States of America are on the threshold of constitutional crises, through which only the power of Jesus Christ can bring them safely. It is true that there is the Gospel of Salvation for the individual, but there is also the Gospel of the Kingdom for the organized community. The latter is not any spiritual kingdom in Heaven, but Christ's kingdom on earth, and we are living in the days in which no constitution will survive except by having Jesus Christ as the acknowledged Head and Counsellor in State of deliberations and decisions. The Message of the Great Pyramid is the Message of Holy Scripture. THE MESSAGE RELATES

[1] The Phœnician Origin of Britons, Scots and Anglo-Saxons. This work was published some two months after the present writer's conclusions were published in The Great Pyramid: Its Divine Message.

The conclusions of both works are identical concerning the ancient Messianic prophecies and the destiny of the British Race. Yet the evidence discussed is independent evidence in both works. Waddell has actually inferred the same mathematical symbolism from the texts of ancient Asia and ancient Britain as the writer has derived from the ancient Egyptian texts and from the geometrical symbolism of the Great Pyramid concerning the Messiah, Migration, Resurrection and Restitution in relation to the function of the British race, and the symbolism of the year-circle. Professor Waddell's work is one of those great pioneering works that indicate their permanent value only as contemporary hypotheses fade from the film of living history.

TO COLLECTIVE PRAYER AND THE POWER OF COLLECTIVE PRAYER IN THE NAME OF OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST.

THE FUNCTION OF THE BRITISH RACE

The late Rev. Dr. Driver—than whom there was no greater Hebrew scholar—stated that God made the promises to Israel that the Old and New Testaments say He made. Dr. Driver concluded, however, that Israel had disappointed God; that in consequence He was compelled to annul His promises to Israel; and that, therefore, the promises have not been fulfilled, and never can be fulfilled. The Prophecy of the Great Pyramid is also a Divine Prophecy. It deals with the same promises as those God later gave to Israel. The Pyramid's prophecy, however, proclaims that God has indicated in this prophecy, centuries before He made the promises to Abraham, that these promises would be fulfilled in the Race that would be in possession of the standard inch-unit of measure at the date of the dissolution of the Ottoman Empire. Is it surprising, then, that Our Lord should have said to the Jews: "The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given unto a NATION bringing forth the fruits thereof," and that nineteen centuries later the present Archbishop of Canterbury should say: "Do we realize that we alone to-day are those whom God has chosen in the world's history as a people to whom is given incomparably the greatest trust and decision for the world's safety that has been laid upon a great company of people? This is a trust laid upon the English-speaking peoples, but primarily upon Britain and America."

EXPECTATION IN THE FIRST CENTURY

Consider the historical circumstances that form the respective backgrounds to these two statements. Nineteen centuries ago the civilized world was in a turmoil of expectation. Roman, Greek, Jew, Celt, German, and Scythian alike felt the urge of spiritual motives, an urge that was but vaguely sensed and still more vaguely interpreted. Thus Paul in Athens, seeing the visible evidences of this in the altar inscription,

"TO THE UNKNOWN GOD,"

could say to the Athenians, "Whom ye ignorantly worship, Him I declare unto you." And even Tacitus could explain the destruction of Jerusalem as due to a Jewish misinterpretation of "an ancient prophecy" "by which it was foretold that, in this very juncture, the power of the East would prevail over the nations and a race of men would go forth from Judæa to extend their dominion over the rest of the world."

The world looked for a Saviour: the Saviour came, and the world that expected Him, "knew Him not." The greatest event in the history of the world passed, and the world remained unconscious of the spiritual shaking. The expected Saviour died as a malefactor and thus dying, saved the world. Few of those in the civilized world knew of His Passion until many years had passed. And then the majority jeered. Born in a manger and executed upon a cross! Truly He was the "despised and rejected of men"! Yet "despised and rejected" as He was, and is, He fulfilled His promises. Nineteen centuries later, the Name and the mission of the "despised and rejected" are known to all men. By the Authority of His Name, the civilization that despised Him, and rejected Him, has at length claimed the material harvest of His spiritual sowing. Having become forgetful of His admonition "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God; and all these things shall be added unto you," civilization is now being stripped of "those things" to prepare mankind to seek for "the Kingdom of God." For, lacking the Spirit, civilization is now failing as Our Lord Jesus Christ said it would fail. Bereft of His Spirit, and acclaiming only His Name—praising in word and "despising and rejecting" in spirit—civilization is tottering to its fall.

EXPECTATION IN THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

In this human crisis He said He should return. And as it was nineteen centuries ago, so it is now! The civilized world is again in a turmoil of expectation, feeling the urge of spiritual motives, vaguely sensing these motives, and still more vaguely interpreting them. Knowing not that these are the signs of the imminence of His Coming, mankind feels perturbed; seeks by material means to restore stability, by material excesses to dissipate perplexity, and by Dictatorships and Terrorism to rebuild civilization from the rotten fabric of materialism. Our Lord Jesus Christ said: "And when these things begin to come to pass, THEN LOOK UP, AND LIFT UP YOUR HEADS; FOR YOUR REDEMPTION DRAWETH NIGH." That there should be no doubt about the time and the conditions, He defined the time as that following the deliverance of Jerusalem, and the conditions following thereafter—"upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity . . . men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." The Message of the Great Pyramid is therefore identical with the Message of Our Lord Jesus Christ, and supplies the Time-chart for His "signs of the Times."

* * *

The Second Coming of Our Lord

THE BIBLE IS A PRE-MILLENNIAL BOOK IN ITS TEACHING; JESUS CHRIST IS A PRE-MILLENNIAL TEACHER; THE APOSTLES ARE PRE-MILLENNIAL TEACHERS.

THE Bible approaches this matter from a number of standpoints. It does not set out to teach the detached doctrine of the Second Coming as would a text-book of systematic theology, for that is not the way the Bible teaches its doctrines. It carries on its general progress, incorporating its doctrines into the warp and woof of that progress whether it is dealing with nations or individuals, with history or with prophecy, or with contemporary conditions or events. In the general scope of the matter in hand, its teaching regarding the Second Coming finds its due place and order.

Thus we find the doctrine of the Second Coming presented:

1. From the standpoint of the Temple;
2. From the standpoint of the Nation Israel;
3. From the standpoint of the House and Throne of David;
4. From the standpoint of the House of Judah;
5. From the standpoint of the External Nations;

Digitized by Google

6. From the standpoint of the Church ;
7. From the standpoint of the Lord Himself.

The method which perhaps every school has followed, of going to the Bible for specific teaching on this and every other matter, as though the Bible were a text-book of systematic theology, must of necessity fail. But the examination of the various departments of Bible literature for the place it gives to this matter will yield rich results. Let us follow this line of inquiry through the Scriptures which primarily deal with historic and prophetic matters.

The Second Coming from the Standpoint of the Temple

Ezekiel deals with this very fully in connection with his ministry to the Captivity.

Up to the time of the Captivity, the Temple at Jerusalem had been the centre of Israel's worship, as the recognized earthly dwelling-place of God.

Over the Mercy Seat in the Holy of Holies there shone the Shekinah glory.

To this point the eyes of the people were turned in prayer and worship from every part of the world.

But now the glory of God was on the point of withdrawing from the Temple, and it became necessary that the people of God should be advised of this fact and the reason therefor. Accordingly, Ezekiel is caused to see in a vision the departure of the glory of God from the Temple, and the reason which led to that departure (Ezekiel viii-xi).

The reason for the departure of the glory of God was the practice of abominations by the Elders and people of Judah. Read the eighth chapter carefully.

The fact of the withdrawal of the glory of God is stated in the following verses: Ezekiel x, 18, 19, and xi, 22, 23.

In the progress of the Book of Ezekiel, after a marvellous sequence of events, comes the restoration of the city and of the Temple (see last chapters of Ezekiel). The seven times of punishment, quadrupled (two upon Israel and two upon Judah), have ended according to the covenant of the constitution. (See Lev. xxvi). The restitution of all things spoken by the Prophets is now no longer dependent upon the human will, but is to eventuate by the Judgment of God. And the time of Israel's emergence from her humiliation has arrived.

These things are preparatory to the establishment of the reign of Our Lord on the Holy Hill of Zion once again.

The plans of the new Temple are given in the last chapter of Ezekiel, and the laws which shall obtain in regard to the city and the Temple are set forth.

Everything being now ready, there is shown the return of the glory of God to the Temple, coming from eastward as it departed (Ezekiel xliii).

From the Temple once more the voice of the Lord is heard speaking, and the first word of the Lord is regarding the cleansing of "the place of My Throne, and the place of the soles of My feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the Children of Israel for ever." Henceforth the centre of worship shall once more be in Jerusalem.

Thus it is the return of the Lord and the purification of the place of His Throne told from the standpoint of the Temple.

This is the spiritual return, beyond which many cannot see.

From the Standpoint of the Nation

The purpose and privilege of the nation of Israel is "Ruling with God." This is the meaning of the "Israel" name. (See the word "Israel" in Young's Analytical Concordance, for instance.) Among the nations of the earth, this is the nation over whom He rules, and this is the nation through whom He rules the nations of the earth.

But Israel put away His altar, under Jeroboam, and Israel put away His constitution under Omri ; therefore Israel was put away from joint rulership with God and was scattered through the nations.

As an organized nation Israel was not usable by the Lord as a ruling power under Him during the ages of her humiliation. But He scattered the people of the race through the nations as individuals, and so influenced the nations by them that Israel became the salt of the earth, the channel through which the gospel made its way into the hearts of the nations which accepted Christ.

As time progressed, the Lord "assembled the outcasts of Israel" in the islands, and there, when in due time the periods of Israel's punishment were passed, He gradually restored the nation to her associate rule with God over the nations of the earth.

Now, the period of Israel's blindness has also passed, and she is consciously emerging into the glory of her associate rule with God again as manifest in our Anglo-Saxon nation, and on a larger scale than ever.

But she will not attain to the full glory of her destiny without a further fight with her competitors and enemies.

Already Germany and her organization has challenged her right to such rule ; Germany has fallen shattered as an Empire.

Soon Russia and her organization, greater and mightier than that of Germany, will take the field. The culmination of that struggle is referred to as the "Great Day of God Almighty." Then shall "all nations be gathered against Jerusalem to battle." The line-up of forces is graphically portrayed in the thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth chapters of Ezekiel.

In Zechariah the great conflict is also shown, and the fact that at the crisis of it the Lord shall appear, for "His feet shall stand that day upon the Mount of Olives."

From the overwhelming disaster which at that moment threatens the destruction of Israel, the coming of the Lord shall preserve the nation.

Thereafter there is established beyond challenge in the earth the rule of the Lord over the nation of Israel, and through Israel over all the nations.

Thus the story of the return of the Lord is interwoven in the combined line of history and prophecy regarding the nation of Israel.

From the Standpoint of the Throne of David

The Throne of David is one of the organizations within the Israel peoples.

It stands upon its own specific charters. It rules by the authority of its own commission. It is endowed with its own inheritance. It is occupied exclusively by its own line, in the line of the House of David. It is established for ever by the oft-repeated Divine decree.

Digitized by Google

Issuing out from the Tribal House of Judah, it is established as a separate House, separated from the House of Judah for ages, and only renewing its relationship therewith as its ruler and king.

Interwoven through the post-Davidic Scriptures the position and permanence of the House of David, its history and prophecy are recorded.

It is necessary only to refer to the House of David section of the Book of Isaiah, which comprises chapters vii-xii, as an illustration of the way in which the story of the return of the Lord is told from the standpoint of the House of David, and to point to the fact that the New Testament opens with the declaration, "God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David."

The section of Isaiah addressed to and dealing with the continuance of the House of David begins with God's message to Ahaz, continues onward to the birth of the Lord, "For unto us a child is born," etc., and onward still to the establishment of the righteous branch, and the final song of His return in the twelfth chapter of Isaiah, ending "Cry out and shout thou inhabitant of Zion, for great is the Holy One of Israel in the midst of thee."

From the Standpoint of the External Nations

Upon the rulership with God being withdrawn from the nation Israel, other measures were taken to preserve rule and order in the earth. This was accomplished by the Babylon succession of Empires, set up and carried on during the period of Israel's humiliation, namely, for seven times. (See second chapter of Daniel.) At the end of that period, when Israel should be restored to the position of "Ruling with God," the great wars, organized by these external nations to maintain and extend their powers, shall end with the destruction of the external nations in the Armageddon campaign.

All the Scriptures which have dealt in advance with this phase of international movement have foreshown that the great conflict between Israel and Babylonic succession of empires (see Jer. l, li, etc.) should be ended at, and by, the coming of the King.

From the Standpoint of the Church

It would not be reasonable to expect that the national and international phases of this matter, not the kinship phase, should be found woven into the ecclesiastical presentation.

Accordingly we find that the Church has its own standpoint, from which certain phases of the activity of the coming of the Lord are shown. These are the resurrection of the dead in Christ; the translation of the living in Christ; all these caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, so to be ever with the Lord.

If we should ask: When we shall be caught up in the clouds to meet Him in the air, so to be ever with the Lord, where shall He lead us then? we answer, other Scriptures tell us that He is then on His lightning-like progress to the Mount of Olives, and according to such other Scriptures, we shall accompany Him and witness His triumph over His enemies.

From the Standpoint of the Lord Himself

The Lord has given to us the agenda of His activities at the time of His return

Read the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth chapters of St. Matthew. First there is the matter of the reward of the faithful servant (Matt. xxiv, 44-47). The punishment of the Lord's servants who say in their heart: "My Lord delayeth His coming" (Matt. xxiv, 48-51), and who begin to beat their fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken. (Matt xxiv).

Then comes the marriage supper of the Lamb (Matt. xxv, 1-13).

A close study of who is the bride of the Lord, and a close study of the teaching of the parable (Matt. xxiv) will probably lead the student to the conclusion that, whereas the Church is the body of the Lord, and Israel is the Bride of the Lord, therefore the marriage will be the formal union of the Church and the Nation in spiritual bonds in Christ Jesus. With a regenerated Nation married to a sanctified Church it shall be no more necessary to say to our neighbour: "Knowest thou the Lord?" for all shall know Him from the least to the greatest. Thenceforth the Nation shall be as holy a thing as is the Church, which was the purpose of the Lord from the beginning.

Then comes the reckoning with His servants (Matt. xxv, 14-30).

To these He on His departure committed His money and His kingdom with the instruction: "Occupy till I come."

Thereafter shall be the judgment of the nations (Matt. xxv, 31-46).

Those who have served humanity shall go into the kingdom. Those predatory nations which have served themselves of humanity shall go into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels.

Then ensues the entrance into the kingdom, and the life everlasting.

It will be readily recognized that all these threads find a common meeting-place in Our Lord's return.

That the time of His return is near, the progress of the great sequence of prophetic events shows, and the signs of the times indicate.

Let us therefore gird up our loins and be as those who wait for their Lord. Not indeed as those who await His coming in idleness, but as those who are busy in preparation for the coming of the Great and Terrible Day.

Our Lord declares the nations shall be swept as with a flood. The ungodly will perish as in the days of Noah, "when the flood came and took them all away." Let us therefore multiply our efforts at missionizing and evangelizing the nations and the unchurched masses of our own lands, for it is as true as never before that the King's business requires haste.

* * *

British-Israel Congress

Extract from an Address

By the Rev Dinsdale T. Young, D.D.

It is as true to-day as when the word was spoken long ago, that the Bible is the secret of England's greatness, and as one who holds that view of the Bible, and who believes that true scholarship is on the side of those old views, I stand here this afternoon to express obligation to this grand Federation because of the light it is casting upon the Bible, and because of the way it is calling attention to the Bible. Thank God for any man or woman or society that focuses public attention on the Bible. That is what we want everywhere That is what we want in the Churches to-day, that the Bible should be the central object of people's attention.

Digitized by Google

Now I do not know of any Society that is calling attention to the Bible more emphatically and more insistently—yes, and I make bold to say, more successfully—than this Federation is doing. They are throwing side-lights on the Bible, and central lights on the Bible; and I think I shall rejoice the heart of Mr. Garrison by telling him of quiet testimonies which I have heard, in private, of people who say that the Bible has become an illumined Book to them since they have begun to inquire into the great question that British-Israel Truth suggests.

* * *

An Urgent Call for Unity and Service

By HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.C.I.

WAS there ever a time in our history as a race when the need was more urgent than now that all those who are loyal to God, to the Bible, to King, Country and Empire, should put away all dissension and come together in one great and solid combine for the common weal? Such a combine is even more necessary now than it was during the War. The menace then was great enough; it is even greater now. Then it was primarily a material menace; now it is both spiritual and material; and for the Anglo-Celto-Saxon race spiritual declension involves also material disaster.

The British Empire has been built up largely on the Bible. It certainly could not have been built up without the Bible.

The Empires of the past were not founded on the Bible, and they have all gone under. We have only to remember what led to their downfall, and then look around us to-day to realize the necessity for putting our house in order. Has God His rightful place in the nation? Is His Holy Word revered as it should be? Are God's laws obeyed? Are His Sabbaths kept? Do we seek first the Kingdom of God? Let us face the situation. Let there be real searching of heart. True, our nation and our people have been marvellously protected, preserved and blessed in the past. Yes, and made a blessing to other nations, but the patience of God must be sorely tried by the present position and tendencies.

Let us wake up to the fact that there are Satanic and human influences of an appalling character at work, both within and without, for the downfall of the British Empire, and the destruction of the Christian religion, some open and avowed, some hidden and subtle; the latter by far the more dangerous. A few amongst us realize the danger; others are beginning to be uneasy; but the masses are heedless, and many are reckless. The utter Godlessness in many quarters, the lowering of the standards of conduct, the selfishness all too evident; the mad rush after amusement and excitement, on the one hand, and the Communistic spirit and conspiracy for red revolution on the other, are sinister portents. They must be faced and dealt with, or there will be disaster.

Can disaster be averted? Yes, assuredly; but how? By the nation being called to prayer; and then by the Christian section of the nation uniting to convert the non-Christian section. Can this be done? Yes, if there is the will. But can the will be secured? Yes, by prevailing prayer, followed by service. What form must such service take? That of the firm administration of law, order and justice in Church and State. Put religion before politics; subject mere party politics to the highest welfare of the State; place great national economic questions on a scientific basis, and refuse to allow them to be the battledore and shuttlecock of party contention; remove legitimate causes for discontent, and overcome class antagonism; restore the sanctity of the Sabbath; promote the unity of all true Christian Churches; demand loyalty to the Bible and to Christ from the pulpit, and the widespread proclamation of the WHOLE COUNSEL OF GOD; abolish vulgar parade of wealth on the one side and the degradation of the slums on the other; banish ca'canny and slackness; teach both Capital and Labour their obligations to each other; practise the Golden Rule; in short, apply real Christianity all round.

To some this may seem like an unattainable counsel of perfection, but it will not so appear to conscious British-Israelites, who know the meaning and power of the injunction to seek first the Kingdom of God.

We have proved what British-Israel teaching can do, and has done, for individuals. What it does for individuals it can do for the whole community. If the nation, as such, realized its birthright, and lived up to it, there would be a complete transformation. To this end we must labour incessantly, and pray unceasingly. It cannot be too emphatically stated that British-Israel teaching of the Gospel of the Kingdom in its entirety is the remedy for the ills from which the nation is suffering to-day. Knowing this, we must put forth every effort to promote the Gospel of the Kingdom, being assured that God will reward everyone according to his and her work. Our work must be co-ordinated, and our forces consolidated. Organization is a sine qua non. This has been recognized by the enemy. It must be fully carried out by us.

We appeal to all true patriots and Christians to come into line and pull their full weight against the forces of evil.

REMEMBER, one of the devices of the devil is to foster disunion among Christians, and he does this with such cleverness, subtlety and plausibility as to deceive the very elect. His success is abundantly apparent; it is one of the saddest facts in the history of Christendom.

* * *

British-Israel Teaching

Provides a Master Key to the Bible and to History.
Proves the inspiration of the Scriptures.
Silences infidelity and shames the scorner.
Clears up mysteries and makes the Bible a new Book.
Differentiates between Israel and Judah.
Establishes the identity of our Race with Israel (not the Jews).
Proves Divine design, and brings order out of seeming chaos.
Kills pessimism, and gives an entirely new outlook on life.
Exhibits a miracle of Race and Grace, bringing men and women to Christ, the Redeemer of Israel and the Saviour of the World.
Provides a working plan in the light of which Bible difficulties are cleared away; Prophecies are understood; mysteries are explained, and God's purposes are set forth.

Digitized by Google

Has brought thousands of Atheists into the Christian fold.

Is THE cure for Communism, Sabbath Desecration, Class Antagonism, Strikes and kindred evils.

Will fill our Churches and bring the Nation back to God and the Bible.

Will unite and consolidate the English-speaking world as nothing else can.

Is THE coming of great power for the good of humanity, and will prove the mightiest regenerating agency of the Age.

* * *

What We Stand For

We stand for the integrity and inspiration of the Bible; for the sanctity of the Sabbath; and for the whole counsel of God.

We accept the fundamental truths of the Christian religion; and we provide the best common platform for Anglican and Nonconformist communions. Our membership, our speakers, our writers and teachers are representative of each.

We perceive the Divine Plan running through the Ages, and we recognize it in operation to-day.

We see the wondrous scheme being worked out by the Almighty, the Ever-living, the Great Architect and Governor of the Universe.

We are loyal to the Throne and Constitution.

We wholeheartedly uphold the British Empire, Israel's Nation and Company of Nations.

We stand for Anglo-American (Celto-Saxon) Unity and Co-operation.

We seek the salvation of all mankind through Christ, and the promotion of the highest welfare of the world at large.

As we are in the Eventide of the Latter Days, and as God has laid upon us the duty of proclaiming His Truth and the coming of His Kingdom, our responsibility is great. We dare not shirk it.

We therefore appeal to all Christians and patriots to support us to the utmost of their power.

HERBERT GARRISON,
Secretary-General.

6 Buckingham Gate,
London, S.W.1.

* * *

Cui Bono?

"WHAT is the good of it?" This is a common question put by those who know nothing of British-Israel Truth. They no doubt regard this as a reasonable question, but to those to whom B.-I. means so much, it sounds almost sacrilegious, and on a par with "What is the good of Christianity?" because Christianity is embraced in British-Israel Truth, and the former is not complete without the latter.

Perhaps this will shock the unbeliever. It is true, nevertheless. Christian truth and Israel truth are interwoven. Neither is complete without the other. Both are of God. Both are taught in the Bible. They must not, they cannot be separated. That this is now being realized is a great awakening.

British-Israel teaching makes known the Divine plan for our race, and for all mankind through our race as God's agents, in a way that nothing else does. God surely wishes us to know His plan in order that we may do our part in carrying it out; and as surely we ought to delight in His revelation thereof, and rejoice in the privilege of doing the work He has assigned to us.

Seven-eighths of the Bible was written to the Hebrew people, whose descendants we are. God made Israel His witnesses and light-bearers: here is our commission. God gave to Joseph the Birthright, and through him to Ephraim and Manasseh, from whom we have inherited it; here is our privilege and our GREAT RESPONSIBILITY.

British-Israel Truth proves the inspiration of the Scriptures more fully and convincingly than otherwise can be done.

It makes the Bible a new Book, fascinating and intelligible, revealing a coherent plan from Genesis to Revelation.

It vindicates the honour of our Covenant-keeping God and demonstrates His faithfulness.

It is a complete answer to infidelity, and it has converted thousands of atheists when everything else failed.

It demonstrates the fulfilment of prophecy more completely than any other teaching.

It proclaims the Gospel of the Kingdom of God as part of the Gospel of Salvation.

It stimulates missionary zeal for the salvation of the world.

It vitalizes faith, and increases and energizes Christian effort.

It brings Christian denominations on to one platform in unity.

It transforms the lives of all who truly accept it.

It turns Communists into good citizens.

It accounts for the growth, power and influence of the British Empire as nothing else can.

It promotes loyalty and devotion to God, king and Empire.

It provides the solution of racial and international problems.

It establishes full confidence in the ultimate triumph of God's plans, and the victory of good over evil.

Finally, let it be emphasized that CHRIST IS THE MOUNTAIN PEAK of British-Israel teaching.

* * * H. G.

What is the British-Israel Position?

First, we begin with the Divine self-revelation of God.

He first reveals Himself as the Creator of the Universe.—(Elohim.)

Next, He reveals Himself as Jehovah-Elohim who "formed" Adam and the Adamic Family. He further reveals Himself as the Judge of the Adamic Family and of Satan who deceived them.—(Jehovah-Elohim.)

This is the one story of the Creation told in two sequent stages.

Beginning with the last paragraph of the fourth chapter of Genesis, and specifically with the fifth chapter, is set forth the progress of the "appointed" seed, descended as follows: God; Adam; Seth. This is the beginning of the Biblical history of the Covenant-bearing seed. In His relation to this seed and to His purpose through the seed God reveals Himself by the name—Jehovah.

Digitized by Google

This seed is traced from Seth to Noah; from Noah to Shem; from Shem to Abraham; Isaac; Jacob; Israel; and this is the heart of the narrative of the first eleven chapters of Genesis. It is the logical and necessary prelude to what follows.

Now comes the Covenant which has been the mainspring of history from that time to this; namely: the Abrahamic Covenant. This Covenant was made at a period approximately as far before Christ as we are after Christ; say 1927 B.C.

God reveals Himself in His relationship to mankind generally, at this period, as Elyon El (The Most High God). But to Abraham, for the purposes of the everlasting Covenant, He reveals Himself as El Shaddai—(The God-Father of the race).

The Covenant establishes the seed of Abraham through Isaac as the medium of Divine blessing to all the families of the earth.

The race was called in Abraham; born and dedicated in Isaac; regenerated, and renamed Israel in Jacob.

The family thus covenanted descended to Egypt at the call of Joseph, under Jacob, seventy strong.

The family emerged from Egypt twelve tribed, and numerous.

The family was organized into God's Kingdom nation at Sinai, as we read in the xix-xx Exodus.

In that Kingdom nation Jehovah established Himself as King FOR EVER.

To that Kingdom nation at the same time Jehovah gave that Law which still forms the basis of the Common Law of Britain and the United States of America.

Thus the Kingdom of God was organized in the earth, consisting of (1) The nation—Israel, (2) The King—Jehovah, (3) The Law.

The nation was established in Palestine under Joshua.

In that nation was established the House, Throne and Kingdom of the House of David, also FOR EVER, which obviously includes our day.

The nation became two nations by Divine appointment in 975 B.C. These two nations were: the House of Israel, ten tribes; and the House of Judah, two tribes. In the House of Israel thus established into a separate nation there was no tribe of Judah. Therefore it is foolish to call separated Israel "Jews."

The House of David was established over Judah until the Captivity of Judah.

Other lines of Kings reigned over the House of Israel during the years it remained in the land of Israel.

In the meantime migrations of Israel people to Europe and Britain founded Ancient Britain.

The nation Israel was carried into captivity by Assyria, 740-721 B.C.

The nation Judah was carried into captivity by Babylon, 604-587 B.C.

The House of David was removed by Nebuchadnezzar, who killed all the immediate male heirs, and by doing so made the eldest daughter the heir to the throne. Unconscious of this Israel law, he then allowed the female heir to the throne of David to go free.

A remnant of Judahites returned from Babylon and formed the nation of the Jews. They rebuilt Jerusalem and the Temple. They re-established the worship; but not the rule of David.

To them Christ came. HE REDEEMED his people Israel, and made Atonement for the sins of all mankind.

We preach the Gospel of Salvation thus provided—to and for "every creature," and urge all to accept Him as Saviour.

Meantime, Israel had colonized "the Isles." Isaiah plainly addressed his grandest prophetic message to Israel in the Isles, see from ch. xl to the end of Isaiah.

To that Colony the daughter of Zedekiah, bearing the throne-right, came, and there established the House, Throne and Kingdom of David.

To that Colony after ages of wandering the ten-tribed House of Israel came.

To that Colony most of the House of Judah also came; not bearing the name of Jews.

To that Colony the tribe of Benjamin came, having separated from Judah after the destruction of the nation of the Jews in A.D. 70. They came to Britain as Normans.

That united Colony became the nation Israel regathered from all lands according to Divine prophecy.

That nation Israel is the Britain of the Christian dispensation, the Israel of prophecy.

That nation has expanded into a company of nations, and the great people of the U.S.A.

That nation and company of nations and great people are the Kingdom nation of God still, and they are blindly carrying out the Divine plan.

That Nation and Company of Nations at the Imperial Conference of 1926 so declared the Constitution of the Empire, that any Nation can join the Empire, remaining a free and independent nation as all the present members are under the Crown.

The time is come for the nation to awake to its mighty privilege and glorious destiny as the agency which shall carry the blessings of the Kingdom to all nations of the earth.

Therefore, we are to-day calling all Israel-Britain to a knowledge of her high Mission, and of God's high purpose concerning her.

There is not a kingdom, nor a nation, nor a people, nor a tongue on earth which is not included in the great plan of the ages. But through the agency of Israel as God's Ministering Kingdom and Nation must the blessings of the Kingdom come to them. Therefore we are proclaiming "this Gospel of the Kingdom to all the world as a witness to all nations" at this time.

Will you not accept and help to spread the glad Evangel and by so doing help to prepare the Kingdom for the imminent return of Jesus Christ, "for God shall give to Him the Throne of His father David, and He shall rule over the House of Jacob for ever"?

It is shown in the history of Israel in Kings and Chronicles again and again, that when Israel's king and people repented and turned to God, He delivered them from the oppression of their enemies. In modern times, when Germany was winning the war on the Western front, after nearly three and a half years of war, our King called the nation to a day of national repentance and prayer, and the war we were losing was won that year. Then what is the British-Israelite or any believer in God to do when the Great Day of God Almighty dawns? At once individually and collectively to ask that the King, representing the nation, shall call the whole Empire to national repentance before God, and put into operation the Sermon on the Mount—that is, the Divine Law given to Israel as enlarged and illustrated by Our Lord—as the Common Law of the Kingdom.

Digitized by Google

" But thou hast not called upon Me, O Jacob ; but thou hast been weary of Me, O Israel."

" Thou hast made Me to serve with thy sins ; thou hast wearied Me with thine iniquities." " I, even I, am He that blotteth out thy transgressions for Mine own sake." " Yet will I be enquired of by the House of Israel to do it for them."

Our duty is to call the nation to immediate repentance, and to an instant return to Jehovah our God ; to His law, and to His administration.

The following are His solemn words of warning :

" Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel," . . . " The Lord, the God of hosts is his name."

" For thus saith the Lord unto the house of Israel, Seek ye Me, and ye shall live. . . ."

" Seek the Lord, and ye shall live. . . ."—Amos iv.

If the call to repentance be not given ; or if such call should pass unheeded ; then suffering, self-induced and unnecessary, will still be our portion, and lack of spiritual power and vision will continue to be our experience.

" The Church in the wilderness " was established in the nation Israel. Every citizen of the nation was also a member of the " congregation."

The Christian Church was established in Jerusalem at Pentecost, when there were gathered there " Jews (in religion), devout men out of every nation under heaven." These testified, " Now hear we, every man in our own tongue wherein we were born." It was upon the congregation gathered out of this representative assembly, attending at Jerusalem for the feast of Pentecost, that the Holy Ghost descended, and constituted the Christian Church ; in Jerusalem ; of Israelites and Jews—as St. Peter indicates in his address. Israel ; not the Gentile world ; is the centre of the Church of Christ.

From Jerusalem, in the first decade after the resurrection, during the time that St. James presided in the Church (see Acts xv), the Gospel was brought to Britain, and the Church organized here.

Thus Britain is the centre of God's Kingdom ; and His Church is established within that Kingdom.

* * *

The Model State

*Extracted, adapted, and condensed from the First Chapter of " Israel in Prophecy and History."

By C. K.

" The Lord hath avouched thee this day to be a peculiar people unto Himself, as He hath promised thee, and that thou shouldest keep all His commandments ; and to make thee high above all nations which He hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour."—Deut. xxvi, 18, 19 (R.V.).

Many people cannot believe that God could be so unfair, as they say, to choose a people to do His work on earth, but if one will only consider for a moment, it seems almost inevitable that this is just the way He would proceed and His Kingdom must spread as forecast, gradually, from one man who was chosen because he obeyed God, until it fills the whole world.

This man would be isolated and educated by dreams or visions and by direct reward in the material world, as Abraham was. This procedure would result in this individual handing on to his descendants a strong tradition and belief in an all-powerful God, and they must be also so educated, the process being repeated generation after generation until further revelation of the character of God could be given through human beings specially chosen because of their personal fitness, such as the prophets.

Eventually the time would come when these peculiar people would be ready for a positive incarnation of God Himself. This is exactly what happened to Abraham and Israel in Egypt and at the Exodus, and the conquest of the Promised Land succeeded by the order of the Prophets culminating in the first Presence of Our Lord Jesus Christ. Now before saying anything on the Gospel of the Kingdom, let us assert this ; British-Israelites know that the first and chief work of Israel, the chosen Race, is and always has been to spread abroad through the whole world the Gospel of Salvation, an Israel reformed of the Spirit, ruling with God for the evangelizing of all nations and teaching them the good news of the Saviourship of Christ. Alas that this has not been done in the past as much as it should have been. But the second work is of immense importance, for even if the world had never fallen and required saving, it would still have required a Lord or Ruler, and Our Lord would have come to satisfy this need. This Gospel of the Kingdom dominates our whole life here on earth, involving our Government, health, wealth and life itself.

In considering the theocratic state of Israel, we note that Christ was Lord thereof ; let us consider what laws He laid down for Israel. The first and a most important fact to notice is that Adam was a gardener, and so it seems obvious that agriculture, and especially pastoral farming, must be the chief industry in the Model State. Again, the farmer must have security of tenure. The Mosaic code provides this. Israel was a nation of yeoman farmers, each man living in his own holding. The land belonged to God and security of tenure was given to the tenants, and therefore the land could not relapse into large holdings. A tithe or whole tithe was paid to God and settled on the Tribe of Levi and was the greater part of the pay of the priestly and professional classes.

Further tithes and dues made the total rent and taxes up to a double tithe, or 20 per cent., so the Israelite farmers were perpetual leaseholders under a theocracy, and so long as they paid their tithes would never have been dispossessed.

Individual Israel farmers could assign their leases to one another, but not beyond forty-nine years and never beyond the Year of Jubilee. So long as the Law was obeyed, there was prosperity for Levite and farmer, and sufficiency for the poor. Loans to the latter did not bear interest, and every seventh year all debts were released.

The Laws against theft were delightfully simple ; according to Josephus, " Let death be the punishment for stealing a man, but he that hath purloined gold or silver let him pay double. If anyone kill a man that is stealing something out of his house, let him be esteemed guiltless, although the man were only breaking in at the wall. Let him that hath stolen cattle pay fourfold

* Published by The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd.

Digitized by Google

what is lost, excepting the case of an ox, for which let the thief pay fivefold. Let him that is so poor that he cannot pay what mulct is laid upon him, be his servant to whom he was adjudged to pay it."

There were no gaols maintained at the expense of the ratepayer to reform the criminal. This was entrusted to the person wronged ; if a man stole let him sweat for it at his own cost, not at that of the community.

In the administration of justice there were seven magistrates in each city ; each magistrate had two Levites to help him. The Mosaic legal system was similar to our own, and this seems to have been largely due to King Alfred, who consulted his Bible when arranging these matters. For taxation, there were three tithes in all, an Israelite who gave his whole tithe paid two shillings in the pound of his income and was blessed for so doing. An Israelite who completely fulfilled the will of God gave four shillings in the pound. On the payment of these tithes and other donations depended the financial prosperity of the Israelite State. And modern Israel cannot be blessed in things spiritual or material till individual Israelites voluntarily practise the habit of the whole tithe.

The observance of the Sabbath marked the close of a week of successful toil ; for when the tithes were duly paid, even the " devourer " was " rebuked," and the labour of man was not destroyed by his terrible and eternal foe, the insect tribe. What the land received in work it repaid in crop. And so the Sabbath was a happy day of rest and rejoicing. Of the seventy-four days in each year kept by the Israelite in remembrance of his God, seventy-three were to be days of sheer rejoicing. It was only on the seventy-fourth—the tenth day of the seventh month—that the spiritual atmosphere was changed, and man afflicted his soul. He was to fast and pray and to remember that he was a sinner, and his Maker a righteous and holy God. The nation and every individual was to confess to God, to one another, and to themselves, that they have no spiritual standing before God. It was on this day alone that the High Priest entered the Holy of Holies with the blood of Sacrifice. It was a great event for the Israelite, the promise of a greater still. It has had its fulfilment. For us, Good Friday should be a day of strict and penitent observance, but at other times the worship of God should be much more joyous than is customary.

The Biblical scheme of Economics is individualist and not communist, and there can be no such thing as Christian Socialism. In the Old Testament we see the building up of the Model State and its ultimate fall and punishment through its flat disobedience to the Giver of all good things. The trouble with the Theocratic State in its earlier eras was in the fact that it did not sufficiently realize the Reign of God. Because the Ruler was invisible, He was not there. It seems that in the original occupation of the land, the fatal error was made of not extirpating the debased sexual stock of the Canaanites, and gradually by intermarriage the Canaanitish leaven did its work and involved Israel in disaster, save for the interregnum of David's reign when the land was temporarily purged of idolatry. Solomon had only to keep straight on and Israel would have attained the position that God had fore-ordained for His servant nation.

It was God's intention that the nation should be rich and wealthy ; at the start they spoiled the Egyptians and were given a land abounding in all good things, and inherited great and goodly cities they had not builded. So great was the importance, in the Divine Mind, of this wealth entrusted to their stewardship and enjoyment, that it is recapitulated three times in the Old Testament. Jerusalem attained to enormous wealth about the middle of Solomon's reign, a wealth which it was intended should be utilized for the benefit of the whole earth, even as the wealth of England and America to-day ; and America, in hoarding the gold that the world is languishing for, in her bank cellars, is committing the same crime that Solomon committed when he utilized the gold for the making of gold lions and other display which overpowered the Queen of Sheba, but which met with Our Lord's severe condemnation.

As the Israelites honoured God with their substance, so that substance was increased. So it is intended with us as a nation, but that wealth and power must be put to God's service. Money is only useful for what it can do. It is useless in itself. The primary utility is in its employment as a wage fund. The capitalist is a boon, the Christian capitalist may be and ought to be a stupendous God-send.

The prime reason for the existence of Israel was that it might become a medium for the revelation of God to the whole human race. This was and is true of Israel under both Covenants. Under the old Dispensation, religion was to be localized. The Temple of God was at Jerusalem. To this shrine the nations were to come. It was only after the Resurrection that Christ said, " Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to the whole creation." "And they went forth and preached everywhere." There was no provision for foreign missionary work in the Old Testament. The Divine plan was that a great, healthful, moral, upright and markedly prosperous State was to be set up, with Jerusalem as its centre of government and worship, and those of the heathen who had the wit to understand the mystery of this unbroken success were to come to Jerusalem and seek the solution there. The Theocratic State attracts inwards. The Christian Church was to hurl itself violently outwards. In the days of the Law God was in Heaven, with Jerusalem as His footstool, and men were to betake themselves there as to a throne of grace.

The message of Moses was, " Come in and be blessed." The command to the Church was, " Go out and bless everybody." Now that the seven times' punishment is over " and this Gospel of the Kingdom " is again preached, the message is again, Come into the British Empire and be blessed.

In the days of Solomon the whole world was on the very threshold of a tremendous revelation of Divine Truth. Solomon himself had to be faithful and he and his successors would have had the heathen for their inheritance. The Nations would have voluntarily come up to Jerusalem to attain knowledge of that Truth. The mere success, military and economic, of the Israel State would have brought about this result. Solomon relapsed into idolatry and soon there was nothing to be learnt there of Divine Truth. After Solomon occurs the cleavage of Israel into North and South ; as regards the South, a succession of rulers in direct line from David led to the Babylonish captivity. Then a partial return of Judah, Benjamin and the Levites, a rebuilding of Jerusalem and a waiting of centuries for the Messiah. The Messiah came and was crucified.

Digitized by Google

Now for the North ; under various rulers they plunged deeper and deeper into the pit of idolatry, iniquity and poverty. At length, round about 721 B.C., they were dragged forth from the land to which they have never returned and from that time they are lost to Biblical history.

Let us review their career. Abraham is brought from the North country, has an enormous domain promised him, and Isaac the promised seed is born to him. Isaac is the father of Israel. The patriarchs excelled as pastoralists and well-sinkers. The family went down to Egypt, the peculiar climate of which brought about an extraordinarily increased fecundity. A populous nation was produced rapidly from a trifling clan of seventy persons. When the fulness of time had come, they were led forth by a greater than Joseph. Then followed the wanderings in the desert, till the stock born in serfdom had died out and been succeeded by a generation of men. All this time God visibly led His people. Where the pillar of cloud stopped, there the people stopped ; when it moved, they moved. The Law was given for soul and body. Sound theology, economics and hygiene ; pure food, fresh air, drill, discipline, all worked to build up a people fit for the work God had in hand, the extirpation of the vile Canaanitish races, too far gone in sin for repentance, and the subsequent foundation and consolidation of the Model State.

The Promised Land was reached, and the Canaanites not altogether extirpated. The tribes settled comfortably, each in its own preserve. The sense of nationhood was inert, and that obligation to the God of Israel, which should have kept them united and loyal, unrecognized. A King was granted them as a material rallying-point, and for a time things went better.

But the partial transfer of national obligation from Temple to Court led, through human inefficiency, to the final undoing of the race. The Temple led men upwards, the Kings led the people downwards, and they cheerfully followed. The God of Israel allowed time for repentance, as He had done to the original possessors of the soil. It was unavailing, and there followed the Assyrian and Babylonish captivities ; for there was this difference between the Canaanites and the Israelites : the Canaanites were of such a stock that there was no chance of repentance and recovery, and there only remained destruction ; but Israel, though they attained an equal depravity, might yet repent and so do their work in the world.

So for the Israelite there was prolonged chastisement, and finally redemption through Our Lord to enable them to do " the first works."

The exact length of the two chastisements of Judah and Israel are given us, and as they began at widely different times, so therefore must the endings be.

BOOKS FOR THE YOUNG

The Story of Our British Ancestors

By M. C.

86 pp. Paper Cover.

In this book the gifted author of The Torn Cloak has given us another work eminently suited to the right training of the growing mind.

Price 1/- By Post 1/2

Canada and U.S.A. 30 cts. post free.

The Union Jack : Our National Flag

Its Symbolism and History

A little work which all school children should possess—and very many adults. God's promise to His Chosen of Israel is concealed in the crosses of the Union Jack, reminding us that we are the Covenant People—first under the law, and now under Grace.

Price 3d. By Post 4d.

Canada and U.S.A. 8 cts. post free.

The Torn Cloak

By M. C.

39 pp. Paper Cover.

A most interesting pamphlet viewed as a sidelight on British-Israel beliefs. It recounts a promise given by the Almighty and the carrying out of that promise a thousand years later.

Price 6d. By Post 7d.

Canada and U.S.A. 15 cts. post free.

Readers are invited to write for a complete catalogue of our literature. A small selection only of our books is set out in the following pages.

You are also invited to call at our Headquarters, 6 Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1., and inspect our bookroom with its large stock of British-Israel and other literature.

Digitized by Google

WHAT TO READ and WHY

The books mentioned in the following list cover the whole field of British-Israel teaching, that the Anglo-Saxon race are the inheritors, under Divine Providence, of the promises made to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. To those to whom the Divine integrity is a vital thing, a careful study of these books is essential. They make plain many hidden things, and are a constant source of spiritual strength and comfort.

The Bible

Upon this book, and upon nothing else, is the whole British-Israel case built up. Its careful reading, and the acceptance of its literal truth, is the first necessity.

British-Israel Truth

An elementary but complete presentation of the B.-I. case. Early in an inquiry into the subject this book should be read, and afterwards re-read and read again in order that every aspect of the truth should become and remain bright and fresh in the mind.

Chapters have been contributed by the following: Ven.-Archdeacon HANAN, M.A., D.D., Dr. ALDERSMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S., E. W. BIRD, Esq. (Philo-Israel), Retired Judge, India, Rev. E. J. WEMYSS-WHITAKER, DOUGLAS ONSLOW, Esq., Rev. FREDK. ASTON, Rev. Comdr. L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N., Rev. W. M. H. MILNER, M.A., etc.

Edited by Ven.-Archdeacon Denis Hanan, M.A., D.D. and H. Aldersmith, M.B., F.R.C.S.

Thirteenth Edition. Revised and Enlarged.

Crown 8vo. 261 pp.

Price: Paper, 2/6, by post 2/9. Cloth, 3/6, by post 3/9.
Canada and U.S.A. 70 cts. and 90 cts. post free.

British-Israel Facts not Fancies

With Foreword by the Rt. Rev. The Lord Bishop of the Falkland Islands, D.D.

By Maj.-Gen. C. A. Hadfield.

Demy 8vo. 64 pp. Paper Cover.

General HADFIELD has confined himself to tracing the identity. His success may be gauged by the opinion expressed in the Foreword: "It is the intention of the writer to try and place in the hands of busy people a little introduction to this great subject, which can be easily read and digested, and which may awaken a desire for further study. Nothing could have been better done."

Price 1/- By Post 1/1
Canada and U.S.A. 30 cts. post free.

The Destiny of the British Empire and the U.S.A.

By The Roadbuilder.

Eighth Edition.

Crown 8vo. 213 pp. Cloth.

Written by a business man, principally for business men. The style is colloquial, yet the structure is strictly logical. No statement is made without its supporting authority being quoted, and the whole book is so easy to read that a single sitting generally suffices.

LORD BYNG OF VIMY writes: "Thank you and bless you for your wonderful work."

The BISHOP OF KOOTENAY says: "It is a long way the best book on the subject of B.-I. Truth that I have ever read."

Price 4/6 By Post 4/10
North American Agents:
McCLELLAND AND STEWART LTD., 216 Victoria Street, Toronto.

British-Israel Truth Defended

By Rev. J. Mountain, D.D.

A reply to criticisms made by Rev. S. HINDS-WILKINSON.

Crown 8vo. 226 pp. Cloth.

Dr. MOUNTAIN'S reply to Mr. HINDS-WILKINSON'S attack, which in its simplicity and sincerity must carry conviction to every reasonable and logical mind. Two criticisms from opposite poles of religious thought are as follows: "Dr. Mountain, in his reply, deals with Mr. Wilkinson in a brotherly, scholarly, and saintly way. British Israelites throughout the world will always owe him a debt of gratitude. His book is a Godsend to the cause of Truth."—Rev. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A.

"I know nothing which so irradiates Old Testament Prophecy, which so confirms faith in the inspiration of the Old Testament, and which so explains the British Empire as does the belief which Dr. Mountain preaches."

"Such a belief must be a great inspiration to Evangelical believers and an incentive to Evangelical Service."—Rev. DINSDALE T. YOUNG, D.D.

Price 3/6 By Post 3/9
Canada and U.S.A. 95 cts. post free.

The Bible and the British Race

By Rev. Arthur Pritchard, M.A.

36 pp. Paper Cover.

Written by request and published by direction of The Council of the British-Israel-World Federation.

A luminous and inspiring essay. Presenting all the salient facts of the B.-I. case, it furnishes an invaluable stimulus to the inquiring mind.

Price 6d. By Post 8d.
Canada and U.S.A. 20 cts. post free.

God and My Birthright

By J. Llewellyn Thomas, F.R.C.S.

Second Edition Revised.

Demy 8vo. 240 pp. Cloth.

The Author asks the question: "If the British be not Israel, how then comes it about that they are doing the very work that the unerring word of God tells us that Israel was to do?" He decides: "There is only one logical conclusion, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon Race is the long lost House of Israel."

Price 4/6 By Post 5/-
Canada and U.S.A. $1.20 post free.

The Times of the Gentiles

By Basil Stewart (Discipulus).

Crown 8vo. 176 pp. Cloth.

If you would understand the real meaning of Armageddon and appreciate its true significance for the English-speaking race, The Times of the Gentiles is an essential part of your equipment.

Price 3/6 By Post 3/9
Canada and U.S.A. 95 cts. post free.

Digitized by Google

ALL B.-I. BELIEVERS ARE EARNESTLY REQUESTED TO JOIN

The British-Israel-World Federation

(A Federation of British-Israel Councils, Associations and Believers throughout the British Empire, the United States of America and Elsewhere).

Motto: TOGETHER IN UNITY. Psalm 133.

OBJECTS:

(1) To teach and generally give instruction in, by means of Lectures, Sermons, Publications, Colleges, Classes and otherwise, the Bible in its entirety, with special reference to the History of, and God's dealings with, His chosen people Israel, and the promises and admonitions to and prophecies concerning such people, and the marks and proofs of identity of the same people as appearing therein.

(2) To teach and give instruction in, by the like means, the secular history of Israel.

(3) To teach, and give instruction in, by the like means, the origin and history of the peoples of the British or Saxon Race, and whether within the British Isles, the British Colonies and Dominions, the United States of America or elsewhere.

(4) To teach and preach the full Gospel, comprising the Gospel of the Kingdom and the Gospel of Salvation.

(5) By the means aforesaid to assist, advance, and spread true religion as taught in the Bible.

(6) To co-ordinate and thus strengthen and advance the work of all or any Associations, Societies, and Councils throughout the World, having the same or similar objects, and whether known as British-Israel or Anglo-Israel Associations, Societies, Councils, or otherwise.

(7) To establish and administer a Benevolent Fund for the assistance and relief of persons who are or have been members or associates or otherwise connected with the Federation, and who may be in needy circumstances or pecuniary difficulties.

I agree with the objects of the B.I.W.F. as above stated, and desire to be enrolled as $\frac{\text{a Member}}{\text{an Associate}}$ of the Federation

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

Please state whether Rev., Mr., Mrs. or Miss, and give titles and degrees, if any.

Subscription:

One Guinea per Annum for Members.

Five Shillings „ „ Associates.

All communications, with subscriptions, to:—

HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.C.I.

SECRETARY-GENERAL,

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE,

LONDON, S.W.1

Form of Bequest

TO THE

BRITISH-ISRAEL-WORLD FEDERATION

I give and bequeath to the British-Israel-World Federation, London, the sum of £ ..... sterling, free of duty, to be paid to the Secretary-General of the Federation for the time being, whose receipt shall be a sufficient discharge for the same.

Digitized by Google

Has this Magazine appealed to you?

If you have derived any pleasure or profit from the perusal of the foregoing pages, it gives us great pleasure. We are offering a very great message to the world—nothing less than the identification of the Anglo-Saxon Races with the heirs to the promises made by God to His chosen people, and our mission is a high one.

We have set forth in these pages only the basic principles of our belief. From day to day, and from week to week, events are occurring which are just prophecy becoming history. We deal with these events as they occur in our weekly edition of this magazine. If we have interested you in these pages you will be still more interested in our weekly issue. Let us send it to you for three, six or twelve months.

PLEASE FILL UP THE SUBSCRIPTION FORM BELOW

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM.

To The National Message Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate,
London, S.W.1,
England.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION :
12/- post free.
Canada and the U.S.A. $3.

Please enter my name as an Annual Subscriber to "The National Message and Banner" from this date, until countermanded, for which I enclose a remittance of 12/- for one year.

Name_____
Please state whether Mr. Mrs or Miss.

Full Postal Address_____

_____

Date_____ 19____

Cheques, Money Orders and Postal Orders to be made payable to THE NATIONAL MESSAGE Ltd., and crossed Midland Bank Ltd

Digitized by Google

Rev. W. Pascoe Goard

one of the leading exponents of British-Israel truths, and a most profound thinker, is the author of the following works, which add very materially to the sum total of knowledge and understanding of the Bible. His scholarship has moved to admiration men eminent in every walk of life, and of every shade of religious conviction. The earnest enquirer into British-Israel teaching, making the Bible his foundation, will derive much help from the perusal of these books.

The Names of God

or, The Majestic Order of Divine Revelation

Second Edition, revised and enlarged, with Appendix.

8vo. 48 pp. Paper Cover.

The Rev. Prebendary WEBB-PEPLOE wrote: May I express my sincere gratitude to the Rev. Wm. Pascoe Goard for his book on The Names of God, which I have found of the highest value. It may enable others to grasp the progressive nature of God Himself, His Names, and His Personality.

It is a remarkable discovery, and deserves the closest attention. I have published a book on The Titles of Jehovah. I wish I had known half of what Mr. Goard has produced in his book.

I ask him to believe that he has helped a humble servant of Jehovah in his study of the Word.

Price 1/6 By Post 1/8
Canada and U.S.A. 40 cts. post free.

The Statesmanship of Jesus

Demy 8vo. 164 pp. Cloth Cover.

An exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews—a letter addressed and directly inspired by God to us. Brilliantly written, it brings out new and restates old truths in a most striking manner. The place of Israel in the New Covenant is brought out with convincing clearness.

Price 3/6 By Post 3/9
Canada and U.S.A. 95 cts. post free.

Jesus Christ Triumphant

Demy 8vo. 111 pp. Paper Cover.

A work which first appeared as a series of articles in The National Message and Banner, in which form they attracted widespread attention and comment.

Price 1/6 By Post 1/8
Canada and U.S.A. 40 cts. post free.

The Simple Truth

Demy 8vo. 40 pp. Paper Cover.

Makes clear to us, in simple language, our privileges, our blessings and our duties, and gives a plain and concise answer to the question, "What is the Kingdom of Heaven?"

Price 6d. By Post 7d.
Canada and U.S.A. 15 cts. post free.

Epistle to the Romans, The Demy 8vo. 94 pp. Cloth cover. Gold letters.

A primary lesson in the doctrine of the Christian Faith. So skilful is the author that while the concurrence of all scholarly theologians is assured, yet the Epistle is presented in a light so new that a reconstitution of foundational beliefs is essential.

Price 2/6 By Post 2/9
Canada and U.S.A. 70 cts. post free.

Isaiah—An Outline Study

Crown 8vo. 56 pp. Paper Cover.

A searching analysis of one of the great prophetic books of the Bible. Of extreme value in arriving at a true estimate of the weight of evidence in favour of B.-I. truth.

Price 1/- By Post 1/2
Canada and U.S.A. 30 cts. post free.

Our Heritage—The Bible

Demy 8vo. 46 pp. Paper Cover.

Price 6d. By Post 7d.
Canada and U.S.A. 15 cts. post free.

The Book of Revelation

A verbatim report of Six Lectures delivered to the B.-I. College.

Price 2/- By Post 2/3
Canada and U.S.A. 60 cts. post free.

A Book for the Political Student

The Law of the Lord or The Common Law

By Rev. Wm. Pascoe Goard.

8vo. 138 pp. Cloth.

This book should be carefully studied in view of the unrest prevailing among the nations. It demonstrates that the "Common Law" of the Anglo-Saxons is based on the laws given to Israel at Sinai. The urgent need of the times, and the object of search by statesmen of every country is a system of government which will bring peace to the world. "The Law of the Lord" shows that the basic principles of such a system actually exist, and can be applied to the benefit of all peoples.

Price 3/6 By Post 3/9
Canada and U.S.A. 95 cts. post free.

Digitized by Google

Roll of Honour.

Some of the thousands of departed Pioneers and Scholars who held British-Israel Truth, and whose work in the Pulpit, on the Platform, through the Press, and in Private Life—together with that of the Veterans still living—has led to its acceptance by such great numbers of people, and the formation of such a large number of Associations throughout the English-Speaking World that to-day we have Millions of Adherents and

THE BRITISH-ISRAEL-WORLD FEDERATION.

H.M. Queen Victoria
H.M. King Edward VII
The Duchess of Teck
The Rt. Hon. Blanche, Marchioness of Waterford
The Rt. Hon. The Earl of Radnor, P.C.
(First President of the Metropolitan B.-I. Association)
The Countess Dowager of Clanwilliam
Lady Jane Ellice
(One of Queen Victoria's Bridesmaids)
Lady Erskine
Lady Sophia Montgomerie
Admiral Lord Beresford
The Rt. Hon. Lord Blythswood
The Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Dimsdale, P.C., K.C.V.O.
(Lord Mayor of London in the Coronation Year of King Edward VII)
Admiral Lord Fisher
Sir Archibald Campbell
Sir M. Russell Cotes
Lady M. Russell Cotes
Sir Arthur Cotton, R.E., K.C.S.I.
Sir Donald Currie, G.C.M.G.
Sir Edward Durand
Sir George Grey, K.C.B.
Sir Jas. Outram, Bart.
Lady McClintock
The Hon. Lady Rivers-Wilson
Sir Mark McTaggart Stewart
Lady McTaggart Stewart
Lady Thornleigh Stoker
Lady Wyatt
Archbishop Bond (Montreal)
Rt. Rev. M. S. Alexander, D.D.
(Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem)
Rt. Rev. Samuel Gobat, D.D.
(Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem)
Rt. Rev. J. H. Titcomb, D.D.
(Anglican Bishop of Rangoon)
Rt. Rev. Samuel Thornton, D.D.
(Anglican Bishop of Ballarat)
Bishop M. M. Eshelman (U.S.A.)
Bishop Hodgkinson

Very Rev. Dean Abbadie
(Early Pioneer. One of the greatest Scholars of his time—18th Century)
Rt. Hon. W. F. Massey
(Prime Minister of New Zealand)
Ven. Archdeacon Denis Hanan, D.D.
(Chancellor of Cashel)
Ven. Archdeacon Taylor, D.D.
Rev. Canon Brownrigg, M.A.
Rev. Canon Brougham, M.A.
Rev. Canon Woodrow, M.A.
Prebendary Waddilove, M.A.
Rev. J. Aleugh, D.D.
Rev. Henry S. Alken, M.A.
Rev. Archibald Allison, B.A.
Rev. Eleiser Bassin, C.M., PH.B.
Rev. Francis Bedwell, M.A.
Rev. M. H. Begbie, M.A.
Rev. Richard Bellis
Rev. E. Godfrey Bishop, B.A.
Rev. J. C. Boyce, M.A.
Rev. J. Pownall Britton
Rev. J. W. Brooks
Rev. A. E. Brown, M.A.
Rev. Henry Brown, M.A.
Rev. A. E. Bull
Rev. R. L. Burton, M.A.
Rev. A. J. Cachemaille, M.A.
Rev. George J. Caie, D.D.
Rev. D. Cameron, B.A.
Rev. J. M. Campbell
Rev. J. W. Campbell
Rev. Phillip Carlyon, M.A.
Rev. I. M. Condit, D.D.
Rev. A. E. Daniel, M.A.
Rev. Edward Denny, M.A.
Rev. Richard Dixon, M.A.
Rev. Robert Douglas, M.A.
Rev. Thomas Duncan, D.D.
Rev. D. Dyce-Brown, D.D.
Rev. W. T. H. Eales, M.A.
Rev. J. C. Elliott
Rev. J. Hartley Frere, M.A.
Rev. W. B. Galloway, M.A.
Rev. F. R. A. Glover, M.A.
Rev. J. B. Gratton
Rev. Thomas G. Greig, B.A.
Rev. A. B. Grimaldi, M.A.

Rev. Reuben Harris
Rev. C. W. Hickson, M.A.
Rev. R. Hill, M.A.
Rev. W. O. Hutchinson
Rev. J. C. Hyatt, M.A.
Rev. Alexander Inglis, B.A.
Rev. E. F. Jackson, M.A.
Rev. J. Idrisyn Jones
Rev. E. J. Kennedy
Rev. James King, M.A.
Rev. Melvin E. King
Rev. J. H. Kirkwood, M.A.
Rev. William Leask, D.D.
Rev. F. B. MacDonald, B.A.
Rev. Jas. MacIntosh, M.A.
Rev. John MacKay, B.A.
Rev. R. Markes, F.T.C.A.
Rev. Herbert Marriot, M.A.
Rev. Gaven Mason, B.A.
Rev. William Masterton, D.D.
Rev. W. B. Melville, B.A.
Rev. J. W. Merryweather, M.A.
Rev. Henry Morton, M.A.
Very Rev. P. Macadam Muir, D.D.
Rev. B. Murphy
Rev. Hibbert Newton, M.A.
Rev. A. Parkinson, M.A.
Rev. Robert Polwhele, M.A.
Rev. W. H. Pocle, D.D.
Rev. C. W. Raban, M.A.
Rev. J. W. Robertson, D.D.
Rev. G. A. Rogers, M.A.
Rev. David Rollo, B.D.
Rev. J. Lockhart Ross, M.A.
Rev. J. J. Shrubsole
Rev. James Smith, D.D.
Rev. A. C. Smyth, D.D.
Rev. W. D. Springett, D.D.
Rev. J. Gore Tipper, M.A.
Rev. J. Tomlin
Rev. C. F. Thorndike, B.A.
Rev. G. J. Vince
Rev. William Wall, M.A.
Rev. J. M. Webster, M.A.
Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D.
Rev. John Wilson, M.A.
Rev. Buchan W. Wright, M.A.
Rev. D. Wynne-Evans
Rev. Philip Young, L.TH.

All enquiries regarding advertisements to be sent to THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., 6 Buckingham Gate, S.W.1. Telephone, Victoria, 8961-2.

Printed by THE GARDEN CITY PRESS LTD., Letchworth, and Published by THE NATIONAL MESSAGE LTD., 6 Buckingham Gate, S.W.1, London, England.
Registered as a Newspaper for transmission in the United Kingdom and Canada

Digitized by Google

JULY 6, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB. 24·7

GT. BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1 CHRON 29 v 23

JER. 33 17

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT"

Is 19 v 19-20 JER 32 20

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J. J. HALL

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms.—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

A NEW AND IMPORTANT PUBLICATION

Early orders for this book tend to show that it will be one of our Best Sellers.

ORDER YOUR COPY TO-DAY

SEVEN TIMES

By

MAJOR H. W. WADGE, M.C., B.A., M.D.

7 TIMES IN
CHRONOLOGY
PYRAMID SYMBOLISM
HEBREW PROPHECY
THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL
THE HOUSE OF JUDAH.

THE prophecy of the Seven Times applies to all the Children of Israel, and so it must apply to the people or Houses of both kingdoms. But it seems clear that the term "Times of the Gentiles" applies more particularly to the period of the oppression of Judah from the era of the subjugation of Jerusalem to the era of its deliverance. In the case of the Jews, we have a people who have never lost their identity, consequently it is comparatively easy to show how prophecy has been fulfilled in their case. But in the case of the Ten Tribes, we find that their identity was lost. They can be identified now by many signs in the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic race. It is not our purpose to mention these signs in detail, but rather to make a brief survey of certain periods of the history of Great Britain, the British Empire, and the United States, to show that the prophecy of the Seven Times has been fulfilled in their history as well as in the history of the Jews.

Crown 8vo. Cloth, xiv + 138 pages. Price 3/6, by post 3/10.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

For the Young

The HOW Series

By E. M. SHAW.

1. HOW DAVID'S THRONE CAME TO BRITAIN.
2. HOW THE CORONATION STONE CAME TO WESTMINSTER.
3. HOW THE FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH CAME TO BRITAIN.

Price 2d. each. Postage 1d.

* * *

The Torn Cloak

By M. C.

In simple yet graphic language tells the story of our race from the division of Israel to our glorious mission of the last days.

Rev. Commander Roberts in his Foreword says: "Go then little book, convince the children that Jesus spoke the Truth."

Followers of B.-I. Truth can do no better work than to ensure that every child of their acquaintance reads these little books, thus adding to the equipment of the next generation.

Price 6d. Postage 1d.

* * *

The Story of our British Ancestors

By M. C.

86 Pages. Price 1/-, by post 1/2.

The gifted author of "The Torn Cloak" has given us another beautiful work suited to the training of the youthful mind.

* * *

The above five booklets may be had for 2/- post free.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 392. Vol. VIII. JULY 6th, 1929 Price 2d.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY 194284 A ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS R 1930 L

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE EMPIRE: ITS MEANING. Empire Day Address. By Herbert Garrison	417
BRITISH-ISRAEL—FACT OR FALLACY?—III. By the Vicar of Burley	419
BALAAM'S PROPHECIES. By Arthur Exley (President of the Queensland Branch)	421
153 AND 88. By W. Marks	422
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—III. By S. E. Steele	425
AN INEVITABLE CONCLUSION. By the late V. M. Cox	426
REVIEW. By B. Stewart	427
THE BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY. By J. G	428
THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE BURIAL OF MOSES. By the Rev. George Matheson, D.D., F.R.S.E.	429
A PRAYER FOR THESE TIMES	429
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	430

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE: ITS MEANING.

EMPIRE DAY ADDRESS BY HERBERT GARRISON.

WE sometimes hear about people getting Gospel-hardened, by which we mean, I suppose, that they hear the Gospel over and over again, and it becomes rather a mechanical sort of thing to them, so that, in spite of all they have heard, they would not be able to give a reason for the hope that was in them if they were asked. May I say I think there is a danger of people becoming Empire-hardened. One hears so much about it that one does not realize to the full the meaning of the Empire, and all for which it stands. Do you think I am very far wrong? There is such a danger of sitting and listening to what is said about it, and yet not realizing all that it means. We say, "Of course we as British-Israelites believe in the Empire." I have been travelling over the British Empire for fifty years, and do not yet understand it, but I claim to know a little about it, and perhaps rather more than most people; yet fully, there is not a man alive who does. It is colossal. Well may it be called a miracle. It is a commonplace, a platitude, to say there is nothing like it in the whole world's history. The late Prime Minister of Australia, Mr. Hughes, is a very remarkable man, and a great Imperialist. There you had a Labour Prime Minister of Australia who is also an Imperialist. If only we could say of all the Labour people to-day that they are Imperialists. If only the members who are going into Parliament were all Imperialists. I do not use that word in any jingo sense, I use the word in the Christian sense—Christian Imperialism, an Imperialism which means that we recognize God as the Founder and the Giver and the Designer of the whole of this Empire. That is the great Imperialism I believe in. There are too many people in the land to-day who talk about the Empire very glibly, and who profess to believe in it, but believe in it simply because it means to them pounds, shillings and pence; because it means more trade and commerce. And then there is another school that believes in the Empire just for the glory of it, and because of the mighty position in which it places us in the world in relation to the other nations. Both are wrong ways of looking at the Empire. Our Empire is God-given; not for self-glorification, not for personal aggrandisement, not for anything of that kind. The British Empire is a gift to us from God, and it has been entrusted to us, as His instruments, that we may carry out the mission of Israel in the latter days; that we may carry the Gospel to other peoples in the dark places of the earth—in short, that we may bring the whole world to a knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ.

THE KEY AND GATE positions of the world have been given to our race that we may have access to all the nations of the world to bring them to Christ. And anyone who says that the British-Israel Movement in any way slights the fundamentals of the Christian religion, or that we fail to put Jesus Christ in His rightful place, does not begin to understand British-Israel Truth. They have entirely missed the point of the matter. Let me say, the more we are read about in the Press, and heard of, the more we shall be opposed in certain quarters. There are people who are not whole-heartedly for the British Empire, because they do not understand it, and because they have never prayerfully and carefully studied B.-I. teaching. I beg all of you, in this Movement, to study the Empire—its inwardness, its meaning, its value, and the opportunity that it gives us as a people to be a blessing to all the peoples of the world; and I ask you to name one single nation to which the British Empire has ever been anything else than a blessing. Name one! What nation have we oppressed? Have we not freed the slaves by the million? Did we not free 800,000 slaves and pay twenty millions in order to do it? What other nation would do such a thing as that? Twenty millions paid in cash in order to free those slaves! And we have freed hundreds of thousands since then. The difficulty in this talk to you is to know what to put in and what to eliminate. I could talk about the Empire for days and nights if I had something to eat in between. Think of the Key and Gate positions of the Empire; you do not half realize what they mean. The great naval and military experts tell us they are worth a standing army of six million men. If we did not hold these Key and Gate positions we should have to maintain a standing army of six million men to hold the Empire. Taxation is heavy enough now, and we do not want any more for the maintenance of a vast army; but God has given to us these Key and Gate positions of the world, a hundred of them. I have not time to name them. I will guarantee not one person present here could name all of them.

Digitized by Google

God is going to fulfil His promise, and He is going to give us other facilities that we may be His missioners to the whole world. What a glorious thing to think of! If you could begin to realize what the Empire is—this mighty, unparalleled, world-wide, God-given heritage.

> Within the boundaries of the British Empire there are large portions of the Empires of Assyria, Babylonia, Persia and Rome, those of Alexander, and the great Moguls; the oldest countries and the newest states; the sites of some of the most ancient cities, and, for contrast, many of the youngest towns and largest cities of to-day; the greatest ports, finest harbours, greatest railway lines; many of the highest mountains, richest plains, most wonderful lakes, and some of the longest and most historic rivers; the most extensive wheat areas, and the biggest wheat market; the richest gold, silver, copper, tin, iron and coal mines; the largest fisheries, the greatest forest areas, and rubber and cotton resources, fruit orchards and maize crops.

How one's heart swells as one thinks of these glorious things, and realizes that God has given them to us! And what does that mean? RESPONSIBILITY INVOLVED IN THE GIFT. Let us take care that we do not misuse our privileges and our opportunities. Take care lest we fail to rise to them. I have often said that to be a British-Israelite is a great responsibility. British-Israelites have greater responsibilities than any other type of Christians; seven-eighths of the Bible was written to our race. Can you be content to think of yourselves as Gentiles? If so, you will have to be content to take one-eighth of the Bible only as having been written to you.

> The Empire is the greatest wool grower, and the greatest gold producer. It yields more gold than all the rest of the world put together. It could be absolutely self-supporting in all respects. It leads the world in ship-building and has the greatest ship-building yards. It played the biggest part in the greatest war ever known, putting nine and a half million men into the field, and supplying money to its Allies by hundreds of millions sterling.
>
> The commerce of the Empire deals with every known product of the earth, and causes nearly two thousand million pounds' worth of goods to pass in and out of the ports of the world every year, which has created a banking system that makes London the centre of the business world. For 120 years two acres of land were added to the Empire every time the clock ticked. Its manufactures are on a colossal scale. Upon this imperial and commercial basis, and by means of the spread of the English language, there flourishes a book and journal circulation through which English ideas are rapidly communicated to the educated people of every nation. Three-quarters of the world's postal packets are addressed in the English language.

Our Empire was founded, not on the sword, not on materialism, as was the empire of Rome and the empire of Germany—so far as it got. The British Empire was founded on the Bible. The missionaries have been the real pioneers in many cases. And then came the settlers. What a story it is! No romance can equal the founding of this wonderful British Empire. It is the corner-stone upon which civilization and Christianity rest. It is our race that has supplied ninety per cent. of the missionaries to the heathen nations of the world and ninety-three per cent. of the money to carry on their missions. What a mighty thing our Empire is! You sit there so calmly; if you only realized its wonder you would be shouting "Hallelujah."

> What a galaxy of great men are imperishably associated with the foundations and development of the Indian Empire, the Dominions, Colonies and Dependencies! And great women too. What a splendid array, high on the scroll of honour and fame, of navigators, explorers, pioneers, missionaries, soldiers, statesmen and merchant princes! Can we ever forget their magnificent work, their heroism, and often their self-sacrifice? Shall we ever erect a worthy Valhalla for them? We can never make a complete Roll-Call.

Many of them to-day are in unknown graves. Many of them are at the bottom of the sea. Numbers of them died on the vast Saharas of Africa, and in the Bush of Australia. The bodies of some of them have never been recovered, and never will.

> How often were their adventurous and daring spirits in advance of the national will. How often have they cried "Forward," while the State cried "Come back." The hundreds blazed the track which the tens of thousands afterwards followed.

God has honoured those men, God has stood by those who listened to the call. "Speak unto the Children of Israel that they go forward." There are those to-day who when they are asked to go forward shrink from the task. "It is too big a thing," they say. "It will cost too much money." Away with your doubts! Take your faith and courage in both hands and go forward. Has the God of Israel ever let you down? Has He ever let this Federation down? No, He has honoured our faith.

> So great has been the expansion of our language that, while in the year 1600 it was spoken by only six millions, it is now spoken by nearly 180 millions. At the same rate of increase it will, ere many years, be spoken by 300 millions.

We hear about Esperanto. English is going to be the language of the future. We want the British language to spread everywhere and to become the language of all mankind. And that is the language in which the greatest number of Bibles is written. Think of it: Five tons of Bibles going out every day from the British and Foreign Bible Society in London. A thousand million copies of the Scriptures distributed over the world. Thank God our race has had that privilege of circulating the Scriptures, and in 600 languages, almost all the known languages of the earth. You cannot appreciate that fact until you ask yourselves this pertinent question: Into how many languages have any of the other nations of the world translated the Scriptures? Now who can tell me of one nation? Germany? Think of the result of their philosophy upon the world! There we have the example of a nation seeking world dominion, and losing its own soul in the process. Oh, the shades of Martin Luther!

Digitized by Google

Those people who are opposing British-Israel do not understand and do not appreciate the British Empire. You ask any one of them what is the origin and what is the destiny of the British Empire, and they cannot give you a correct answer. I have asked clergymen and professors over and over again, and they cannot give a reply. A party of us dined together; I was invited on purpose to meet a Doctor of Divinity who was a Modernist, and to question him about the League of Nations and British-Israel Truth. I asked him what was the meaning of the British Empire. "Oh, well," he said, "it is the result of character." "That is so far an answer, but it is not a complete answer," I said, "how do you account for the character?" "Oh," he said, "you are a British-Israelite." "Of course I am," I said. And we went at it for four hours! If you can only make people think, that is some help towards arriving at a right conclusion.

> The phenomenal growth of British trade and shipping, the expansion of the Overseas possessions, the spread of the English language, and the triumphs in the Mission field with the circulation of the sacred Scriptures, are the four most glorious and commanding achievements of the illustrious reigns of Queen Victoria, King Edward VII and King George V. Union and consolidation are the watchwords for the future. Let there be a Union for commerce and for defence; a practical and workable Union, giving all parts, privileges and responsibilities commensurate with their respective positions, with voice and vote in a real Imperial Parliament.

Let us have a real Imperial Parliament to deal with great Imperial matters.

> "Britain's myriad voices call;
> Sons, be welded, each and all,
> Into one Imperial whole,
> One with Britain, heart and soul;
> One life, one flag, one fleet, one Throne;
> Britons, hold your own, and God guard all."

Unity for service in love. What a high call and mission is ours! It is beyond the possibility of words to adequately describe. But you British-Israelites, I do beg of you to put your heart and soul into this Movement, and remember that the British Empire is the great tangible evidence that we are the Israel of God. It is a singular fact that of all those who have written against us, or who have spoken against us, I do not know of one who has dealt with the question of the Empire. They are afraid to handle it. If you can prove that the British Empire is other than the Empire of Israel of modern times, then tell us quickly. It cannot be done.

The British-Israel Movement is the greatest bulwark to the British Throne and to the British Empire, and when in Canada I am going to sound this note. I am going with the B.-I. Message to the people of Canada and the United States. To tell, too, of the grandest flags, the glorious Union Jack and the Royal Standard, and of their meaning. To tell of the great work this Federation is doing, and what its teaching means to millions, and will presently mean to millions more. May the day soon come when all shall know the full Gospel and the whole world be won for Christ.

BRITISH-ISRAEL—FACT OR FALLACY?—III.

BY THE VICAR OF BURLEY.

A WORD or two about the wanderings of the lost tribes. When the House of Israel was cast out of Canaan, and, being divorced from the law and the Covenant, had become "Lo-ammi," "not God's people," as Hosea i, 9 tells us, the prophet foretold that they should be "wanderers" among the nations. Amos says of them: "I (the Lord) will sift the House of Israel among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth." (Amos ix, 9.) In Ezekiel xx, 34 we read: "As I live saith the Lord God . . . I will bring you out from the people, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand."

Again, the Lord made a distinct promise to David, by Nathan, that He would appoint a place for His people Israel, and plant them that they should dwell in a place of their own, and move no more, and be no more afflicted by their enemies. (2 Sam. vii, 10.) The "appointed place" could not possibly have been Palestine, for the promise, through the Prophet Nathan, was made to King David in Jerusalem, and it referred to some other place and to a future time. The sequence of these events is plain. The people forming the House of Israel were cast out of their land for their iniquities and idolatries. They were divorced and ceased to be God's people. They were to become, and did become, wanderers among the nations. Then they were to be gathered out from among these nations into the wilderness of the people: "Therefore, behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her" (Hos. ii, 14), which was the place appointed by God, where they were to be planted in a place of their own—to "dwell alone"—and "move no more." Here, dwelling alone, their enemies are no longer to harass them. In this place they renounce idolatry and enter into the bond of the New Covenant, or, in other words, the House of Israel become Christians. As Jeremiah says (xxxi, 2), "Thus saith the Lord, The people which were left of the sword, found grace in the wilderness; even Israel." (Jeremiah always distinguishes Israel from Judah.) Here it is, also, that they "renew their strength." (Isaiah xli, 1.) They dwell alone, not as a people under the curse, but after Christ has "blotted out, as a thick cloud," their sins. "Return unto Me, for I have redeemed thee."

Digitized by Google

"This is the heritage of the Servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of Me, saith the Lord." (Isaiah liv, 17.) As we say in the Litany, "Spare us, good Lord; spare Thy people, whom Thou hast redeemed with Thy most precious blood, and be not angry with us for ever."

The history of the people of these islands, almost from the earliest records, exactly reflects the picture of the House of Israel as drawn by the prophets. This nation has most assuredly risen from a people who gathered together into these islands, after having wandered through the European nations. They came here as heathens and idolaters. They have turned from serving idols to the worship of the living God, and are now the greatest Christian nation extant. Since settling in these islands finally (1066) their enemies have ceased to afflict them, while every attempt to attack them by way of invasion has been frustrated by the Lord Himself (Armada, Trafalgar, etc.). In these islands the people have most certainly "renewed their strength," and become, as foretold, a "Mighty Nation." Though exercising a paramount influence in the counsels of Europe, we remain apart, we "dwell alone" and are "not reckoned among the (Continental) nations," but isolated, geographically, politically and religiously, from Europe. (Num. xxiii, 9.)

The location of the "appointed place" is plainly indicated in Scripture. Isaiah addresses Israel in "The Isles of the Sea," "Listen O Isles unto Me; and hearken ye people from far." (Isaiah xlix, 1; lx, 9.) "Attend unto Me, O My people, and give ear unto Me, O My nation. . . . Surely the Isles shall wait for Me." Hosea informs us that the House of Israel will return from the West; Isaiah says, "So shall they fear the name of the Lord from the West" (Isaiah lix, 19), and Jeremiah addresses the House of Israel in the North Country many times as you all remember, and in Chapter xxxi, 10, we find him saying, "Hear the word of the Lord, O ye Nations, and declare it in the Isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him and keep him." Rev. Marcus Bergmann, a Christian missionary to the Jews, and a Jew by birth, wrote as follows on this question: "I have no hesitation in saying that Great Britain is meant by the 'Isles afar off,' mentioned by the prophets. This has been the opinion," he goes on to say, "of many ancient and modern Jewish theologians. The late Rev. Dr. Margoliouth held in common with many other Hebrews that these 'isles' were supposed to be Britannia, Scotia and Hibernia." There can be no isles so situated from Palestine that could possibly contain the multitudinous House of Israel, other than the British Isles. Their position is North and West of Palestine. They are "afar off" from that land, and though containing a very large population, they are found to be "too strait" for them, exactly as Isaiah foretold 2,600 years ago. "The children thou shalt have, after that thou hast lost the other (America) shall say again in thine ears, the place is too strait for me; give place to me that I may dwell." (Isaiah xlix, 20.) Has that not long been the cry in this country, and the congested condition of our population has necessitated continued emigration to the "waste and desolate places of the earth." Does it not strike you that it is curious that no other nation has ever done the same? There are many prophecies which I need not detail to you, my brethren, saying that Israel is to be a maritime nation, as, for example, to David's seed, that He would set his hand also on the sea, "and his right hand in the rivers." (Ps. lxxxix, 25.) Where is the other nation to which that applies, or ever has applied? Is the Church a maritime nation? Are the Jews a maritime nation? The shipping trade of the British Empire, with that of our kinsmen, the U.S.A., together far exceed the combined shipping of all other nations. Israel was to "possess the gates of his enemies." Does the Church possess them? Do the Jews? No. But Britain does, every gate throughout the world. Those of you who have travelled know well that the Union Jack (and that flag tells its own story of our being Israel, though we have not time to even touch on it to-day) flies over every strategic point of importance round the globe.

Neither can we embark to-day on the history of that most mysterious stone, the Stone of Destiny in Westminster Abbey, on which all our kings for a thousand years have been crowned, except "Bloody Mary." Nor can we touch on Daniel's Vision of the "Stone Kingdom," which so obviously fits the story of Britain. The Jews believe the "Stone of Destiny" to be Jacob's Pillar and tradition strongly confirms it. If it is not Jacob's Pillar, but merely an antique, what is it doing in Westminster Abbey with a thousand years and more of history, not mere tradition, behind it? If it is not bound up with the prophecies about the "Stone Kingdom," the wonder is greater still. On both sides our Royal House can, without question, prove their descent from David, and consider themselves heirs of David's line.

In His Seventh Covenant made with Israel, God made a promise to David of a throne that should remain for ever, and this Covenant is an unconditional one, like that made with Abraham. The family of David have often sinned against God, and fallen into condemnation. But the promise still stands; confirmed to David by the oath of Jehovah, the throne and the kingdom remain unto this day.

And it is upon this Covenant that the glorious Kingdom of Christ is founded; for when the Lord Jesus shall come again, He will come to take the Throne of David; not to "establish," but to take, and to reign here on earth.

If the coming of Jesus be only a "spiritual" coming into the hearts of men, as is so often contended to-day, then there is neither rhyme nor reason in this Davidic Covenant, nor any sense in the prayer, "Thy Kingdom come, on Earth."

And that brings us up to the Eighth Covenant, the New Covenant in Christ Jesus, which takes the place of the Mosaic Covenant, and gives fulfilment to all the others.

It is in Christ Jesus that Israel has regained possession of the Holy Land, and will retain her possession of the Promised Land. And He is the "Son of David," destined to reign over a reunited Israel and Judah. Salvation is offered to man, and many of the blessings made to Israel have received completion. But part of the Covenant has yet to be fulfilled; we await the coming of the King. And this part of the Covenant is like the Covenants made with Abraham and David, absolutely without any condition whatever attached. When God spoke to Israel through Moses, He said, "If ye will obey My voice." "If ye will . . . If ye will not, etc." But, when He speaks to Israel in the New Covenant, He says, "I will." There is no "if" about it. "I will put My law into their hearts." "They shall be My people, and I will be their God." (Jer. xxxi, 33.)

Digitized by Google

And we must be devoutly thankful that this Covenant is unconditional, for it will be completed, the Bible tells us, when Jesus shall come again. How long, otherwise, would the world have had to wait for the peace and righteousness which are to be established when the Lord returns? For nineteen centuries there have been faithful preachers of the Word. But while the torch of truth has always been burning, and held aloft by someone, is it not only too true to say that the history of those centuries has been, on the whole, of failure, of false teaching, of worldliness that never shows any signs of abatement?

Those who talk so lightly of "winning the world for Christ," and of "the forward march of the Church," simply do not face the facts. Assuming that every single baptism in all the Churches means a genuine and lasting conversion, and we clergy know only too well that they mean nothing of the kind, it is painfully obvious that the increase in numbers does not come within one-twentieth part of the increase of the world's population. The much talked-of "World's Call" may be classed as our latest failure. As a matter of fact, known to us all, most of the "Churches" have to record a steadily dwindling membership, and most of the missionary societies are face to face with the necessity of retrenchment. Is it not, therefore, more than a little absurd to talk about "winning the World for Christ," the more so when we consider the grievous divisions in the "Church Visible"?

When will men obey the voice of the Lord, and hearken to the Law of God? And how can we, preachers of the Gospel, compel men to listen to our message and heed it?

Experience, sad experience, written in blood and sorrow across the pages of history, tell us that if we have to wait for the fulfilling of the condition of obedience before the New Covenant is completed, then we might as well give up in utter despair, as I often have felt tempted to do, and leave the world to the dominion of the Devil! But, thank God, there is no condition attached; it is not "If ye will" but "I will," the definite word of the Covenant-keeping Jehovah. Therefore, you and I, having seen so great a part of God's purposes completed, and promises fulfilled, in the strength of British-Israel faith, may well look forward with devout and abundant assurance for the return of the Lord, and the completion of the Covenant. Soon, very soon, shall come the day, foretold so clearly in the prophecies, when there shall be permanently established the peace, purity, righteousness and blessing that God has ordained for His earth.

If the belief that we are Israel, and all that it entails, is only "hot air," and an absurd error, as some would have it, what, I ask, are the meanings of the Biblical utterances, the bare outlines of which it has been my great privilege to bring to your notice to-day? I would earnestly ask you, my brethren, not to turn the matter down because of the all too feeble and inadequate presentation I have ventured to lay before you, but to study the matter carefully for yourselves, in such moments as you, like myself, can snatch from those never-ending parochial affairs with which we are charged. If you decide against it, you will be none the worse for the study, but, if your eyes are opened to what I, with all my heart and soul, have come to believe to be the truth, then you will find that you hold in your hand a key to the Bible, and also to our Prayer Book, which will open to you the door of a most wonderful and inconceivably beautiful treasure-house. The history of our nation and the Empire, nay, of the whole world, will take on a new aspect, current events a new meaning, which will free you from serious misgiving as to the ultimate issue. "The souls of the Righteous are in the hand of God," and if we realize our mission as Israel, then from an understanding heart, with a new and wonderful meaning, will come from our lips the beautiful words we sing every Sunday morning, . . .

"Blessed be the Lord God of Israel: for He hath visited and redeemed His people;
"And hath raised up a mighty salvation for us; in the House of His Servant David;
"As He spake by the mouth of His holy Prophets; which have been since the world began;
"That we should be saved from our enemies: and from the hands of all who hate us;
"To perform the mercy promised to our Forefathers: and to remember His Holy Covenant.
"To perform the oath which He sware to our Forefather Abraham: that He would give us;
"That we, being delivered out of the hands of our enemies: might serve Him without fear;
"In holiness and righteousness before Him: all the days of our life."

BALAAM'S PROPHECIES.

By ARTHUR EXLEY
(President of the Queensland Branch)

BORDERING the east of the Dead Sea lay the territory of Moab, a Semitic people, descendants of Lot. The kingdom of Moab consisted of fertile plains overshadowed and guarded by a mountain fastness, and renowned for the richness of its pastures and the fruitfulness of its vineyards. When the Israelites, on their journey to the promised land of Palestine, reached the south-eastern borders of Moab, that people refused to give them safe passage through Moabitish territory, and the marching hosts of Israel had to make a wide detour through the wilderness. They met and defeated Moab's northern neighbours, the Amorites, and took possession of their lands.

Balak, king of Moab, feared this warlike and successful people, and sought supernatural aid against them through Balaam, skilled in divination, and renowned for his gift of second sight. Balak believed that a curse upon Israel, if pronounced by the prophet, would prove disastrous to that people and favourable to his own kingdom.

His first request for the aid of Balaam met with refusal, but upon a second and more important delegation approaching him, with promises of rich reward, the prophet consented to go, and met with a startling adventure on the way. (See Numbers xxii.) Arriving at a precipitous cliff which overlooked the camp of Israel, he was met by Balak and exhorted to pronounce a curse upon Israel. Balaam replied that he could only obey the will of God as revealed to him. He instructed the king to have prepared seven altars upon which were to be offered seven sacrifices.

The religion of Moab was monotheism. Their god,

Digitized by Google

Chemish, was worshipped with rites and ceremonies closely akin to the Israelitish worship of Jehovah.

After the burnt sacrifices had been offered, Balak cried, "Come, curse me Jacob, and come, defy Israel." Balaam's message in reply was, "How shall I curse whom God hath not cursed, or how shall I defy whom God hath not defied; lo, the people shall dwell alone and shall not be reckoned among the nations. Who can count the dust of Jacob and the number of the fourth part of Israel?"

The latter part of this pronouncement was a confirmation of the promise of multitudinous seed made to the patriarch Abraham, and has been wonderfully fulfilled in that, since the Reformation, the covenant or British people have spread abroad in their millions to the west and east, to the north and south, and have developed into a nation and company of nations, plus a great people across the western ocean.

During their period of growth the people dwelt alone in the appointed place to renew their strength, freed from the affliction of the children of wickedness. (2 Sam. vii, 10.) Quite recently a Belgian statesman accused Britain of acting alone among the nations of Europe, and her splendid isolation frequently has been the boast of Britain's rulers.

Naturally, the king of Moab rebuked Balaam for blessing a people whom he had been exhorted to curse, and called for a second exercise of his powers. So another place was chosen and a similar ceremony of sacrifice performed. Balaam's prophecy this second time was even more favourable to the chosen people. He commenced with the statement, "God is not a man that he should lie, neither the son of man that he should repent; hath he said and shall he not do it; or hath he spoken and shall he not make it good?" Continuing he said, "The Lord his God is with him, and the shout of a king is among them; he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn. Behold, the people shall rise as a great lion, and lift himself up as a young lion."

Here we have the vision of the supporters of the shield of Israel, and the forecast of that shout of God Save the King, clamant at the coronation of Solomon, and echoing and re-echoing through the ages at the coronations of kings raised to sit upon the throne of Jehovah, and to occupy it, till He come Whose right it is. (St. Luke i, 32, 33.)

Still Balak was not content and cried yet again, "Come, I pray thee, to another place, peradventure it will please God that thou mayest curse me them from thence."

For a third time the seven altars were prepared and the sacrifice offered thereon. But, alas, for the hopes of Balak, the prophet's message was of greater blessings yet to be. "How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacle, O Israel. As the valleys are they spread forth, as gardens by the river's side, as the trees of lign aloes which the Lord hath planted, and as the cedar trees beside the waters. He shall pour the water out of his buckets, and his seed shall be in many waters, and his kingdom shall be exalted." Again, the prophet referred to the strength of the unicorn and the might of the great lion. He concluded with this most comforting message, "Blessed is he that blessest thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee."

The prophet, fallen into a trance, but having his eyes opened, saw the vision of the Almighty's great mercy to Israel. He saw the prosperity of the multitudinous seed of Jacob in the latter days, and had visions of the stately cathedrals erected to the glory of God, and picturesque churches set in the luxuriant verdure of the appointed place. He saw the leaders of Israel regnant in all quarters of the world, the abounding fertility of tropical climes under the great irrigation works of the engineers of Israel—truly he pours his water out of his buckets, and his seed is in many waters, holding dominion of the seas and the command of mighty rivers—the exaltation of that Kingdom of God on earth, taken from the Jews and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof. He saw that nation whose destiny is with the everlasting House of David, a nation which brings blessing to their allies and devastation and destruction upon their enemies.

No wonder that Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, for he had called him to curse his enemies and behold he had blessed them these three times. The prophet reminded Balak that, at the outset, he had declared that he "could not go beyond the commandment of the Lord, to do either good or bad; but what the Lord says, that will I speak." He then spoke of what was to come to pass in the latter days; when there shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel under whom Israel shall do valiantly. He foretold the fates of Moab and Edom, whose destinies were bound up with those of Israel.

The identity of these nations can be discovered by their characters as outlined in the prophetical books of the Old Testament. Ruth, the Moabitess, was ancestress of the Royal House of David, and so, of our Royal House of Britain; but of far greater import, ancestress of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, according to the flesh, for Whose Second Coming in power and great glory all Christendom is expectantly waiting.

153 AND 88.

By W. MARKS.

Read John xxi.

Peter, the two sons of Zebedee, Thomas, Nathanael, and two other disciples had been commissioned to meet the Master in Galilee.

Tramping about all day, ever and anon shading their eyes with their hands, watching for His coming, the shades of evening were now falling. Peter remarks: "My Lord delayeth His coming! I cannot go to my home to sleep until I have this matter settled"; for Peter had basely denied his dear Lord, and his conscience was smiting unmercifully. Travelling along the shore of the Sea of Tiberias, nearing their old haunts, they espy Zebedee's fishing boats. "The very thing," says Peter. "I go a fishing." The others eagerly accepted his invitation to join him, but the fish refused to be caught. All night long they toiled, but to no purpose, and, sad and disconsolate as morning light dawned, they steer for the shore.

Suddenly they are hailed; a voice from the shore cries, "Children, have ye any meat?" "No!" answers Peter. "Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find." Who is this? What does he know about fishing? Whoever heard of fishermen fishing from the right side of a ship? Such a foolish thing to do! But John's suspicions are aroused; it might be the Master he thought, and so he says to Peter, "Let us try it anyhow," and so, no sooner had the fish heard the voice of their Creator than from all parts of the lake they rushed full speed in response to the sound of that Wonderful Voice; but the greater the fish the faster the swimmer, and so the net immediately encloses a multitude of great fish so that they were unable to draw it; yet strange to relate their net did not give way. Immediately John's doubts are vanished. "It is the Lord," he cries to Peter. Peter did not require a second intimation. "The Master is alone, I will go and make my confession and obtain His pardon, for this suspense is unbearable." He plunges into the sea, and those 153 yards were negotiated in record time. I think I see Peter dripping wet making his way to the Master, stuttering and stammering, not knowing what to say. Jesus raises His hand as much as to say: "Not yet, Peter; go and get your fish, and come and dine"; for the Lord had a fire of coals burning and fish laid thereon, and bread, all ready to feed these hungry men. All was provided. Why then did He bid Peter bring the results of their labours? Could not He Who fed 5,000 men besides women and children with five loaves and two fishes supply sufficient to feed these seven disciples without their assistance? Certainly, He required no help from man when performing His miracles. Why then did He desire these great fishes to be brought to Him?

Digitized by Google

John records in his Gospel only eight miracles of Our Lord, and they are all called signs; seven of these signs were given before His Passion; this, the eighth sign, is given after His Resurrection, and eight is the Resurrection number. Seven disciples, "the perfect number," were fishing; when they came to Jesus He made the eighth; this miracle was a sign of their future vocation, they were now to begin their work, their mission henceforward was to catch men, to show how well they had learned their trade. Peter on his first day's fishing on the day of Pentecost enclosed 3,000 souls, and a few days later 5,000 were netted, all through the foolishness of preaching. He had learned to cast his net on the right side of the ship. When fishing on their own initiative they caught nothing, although expert fishermen! Their net was not broken, the Gospel net cannot break; their net enclosed 153 great fishes, i.e., the completed number of the Elect; the Elect is Israel—the great people of the earth. A chosen generation. A Royal Priesthood. The only known of God of all the families of the earth. (Amos iii, 2.) This sign represents the end of the age, when Christ's servants present the result of their labours and Jesus calls them to the marriage supper of the Lamb, for all things are now ready. The fish are like the sheep: Jesus said: "My sheep hear My voice and they follow Me." So also the fish on that calm morning from a great distance heard and knew the voice of their Creator, and the larger fish, His own, His Elect, responded to the sound of His voice and came first; the number of the Elect is now complete. "Come and dine," said Jesus, and this sign symbolizes "the Marriage Supper of the Lamb," the seven disciples present to Jesus, His Bride.

Some time ago we found this number, 153, often mentioned in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER in connection with the measurements in the Great Pyramid, the meanings of which will, I believe, in the near future reveal wonderful things.

We also find this number wonderfully hidden in the 40th chapter of Ezekiel, where he, in a vision, sees a man with a reed in his hand, in the land of Israel, on the top of a very high mountain where was the frame of a city. With this reed he was to measure the temple. He gives the measurement of the reed as six cubits and an hand breadth; had it not been for the discovery by the measurements of the Great Pyramid, we could not have known the exact length of a cubit in ancient times. We now know that it measures 25 inches; a hand breadth measures 3 inches; therefore 6 cubits and an hand breadth equal 153 inches, and so we find that the entrances, the breadth and height of the wall, the thresholds of the gates, the little chambers at the entrances, the porch, etc., were each one reed or 153 inches in their length or breadth, showing that the entrance into the future temple is intended for the Elect "Israel" nation.

In the 11th chapter of Revelation John is given a reed also with which to measure the temple and the altar; and according to the American version to count the worshippers. If this is the same reed then the worshippers are measured by this number, and this might throw some light on the interpretation of this chapter.

The recent revision of the Prayer Book was a matter of great concern to the people of these Isles. Is Israel to be brought back again to the worship of Baal? The majority of the Church said "Yes!" but the people of Israel said "No!" The Bishops first brought the matter to the Elders of Israel. (House of Lords, per Rev. P. Goard.) This, although perhaps unknown to them, was the Scriptural mode of procedure. When Moses was sent from the burning bush, he first convened a meeting of the Elders of Israel, and then showed the signs of his commission to the people, and they believed.

The House of Lords passed the measure by a majority of 153, the voting being 241 for and 88 against, and if you take the 153 from 241 we again have 88, the Resurrection number. In THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER of January 26th last, an article is given by the Rev. C. C. Dobson on the numbers 153 and 666, which is very instructive. He shows how the voting in the two Houses of Parliament in favour of revision of the Prayer Book total 666, whilst the total of the votes recorded in the Commons against revision come short of that number by 153.

After the measure was thrown out by the Commons, the Bishops sought by again revising it to gain acceptance. When this work was completed it was brought to the Church Assembly for their sanction, passed by 396 votes to 153; thus we see that both the Elders of Israel and the Church accepted it.

It was then brought a second time to the Commons, where it was rejected by 268 votes to 222; these three 2's added together make 6, the world's number, or man's number; or if we multiply it by 3 we get 666, showing that the man of the world is indifferent as to these things, but the 2, 6, 8 added make 16 or two 8's, the number of Resurrection.

Let us consider the Scriptural meaning of these numbers. A little book entitled, "Scriptural Arithmetic," by Mr. Reg. T. Naish, of London, says in reference to the number 88:—

"Our Lord in the New Testament applied to Himself the distinctive name 'Son of Man,' always with reference to the fact that, being the only sinless man, He only has the right to the rule over the earth. The first time He is so called is in Matt. viii, 20, where He says : 'The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay His head.' And He bears this distinctive title exactly 88 times, and the 88th and last time is in Rev. xiv, 14: 'And I looked and behold a white cloud, and upon the cloud One sat like unto the Son of man, having on His head a golden crown, and in His hand a sharp sickle. And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to Him that sat on the cloud, Thrust in thy sickle, and reap, for the time is come for thee to reap : for the harvest of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth ; and the earth was reaped.'" Surely this reveals to us that the double 8 points to Christ's Coming for those who bear the symbolic number 88, who are ready and watching for His appearing ; but the Elect symbolized by the number 153 as a nation are not prepared for that event, else why is this distinction made, except to show us that those who are not ready must pass through that dreadful time. Our Lord gave the warning, "When ye see these things beginning to come to pass, then lift up your heads and look up, for behold your redemption draweth nigh."

Digitized by Google

But the numbers 2 4 1 added together make 7, the perfect number, also when divided give us the two numbers 153 and 88 ; this gives us hope that although the Elect pass through the time of trouble, yet Jer. xxx, 7, will be fulfilled. "Alas ! for that day is great, so that none is like it : it is even the time of Jacob's trouble : but he shall be saved out of it." Also Rom. xi, 23 : "And they (the wild olive) also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be graffed in : for God is able to graff them in again . . . . that blindness in part is happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in . . . And so all Israel shall be saved, . . . there shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob."

These figures 153 + 88, making up the total 241, seem to point to the coming of the Great Deliverer with His resurrected ones, the "144,000" from Mount Sion (see Rev. xiv, 1), when Judah and Israel shall be in the straits described in Zech. xiv, 1-5, and shall be delivered when they acknowledge Him as their King. "And I will pour upon the House of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications, and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him . . . as for his only son." Zech. xii, 10 ; after which Matt. xxv, 31-46, and Rev. xiv, 18-20, will be literally fulfilled.

We next come to the voting of the Church Assembly. Is the Church ready for His Coming ? When is this subject referred to in our churches ? They voted 396 to 153 in favour of Romanizing. When analysed the 3 9 6 added equal 18 or three 6's, or multiply 66 × 6, again three 6's, and we have this number 396. What does the No. 666 stand for ? See Rev. xiii, 15-18. Will the Romanizers take their part in fulfilling this prophecy ? Will they persecute the Elect, the 153 ? See Matt. xxiv, 21-22 : "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be. And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved ; but for the Elect's sake those days shall be shortened." "Here is the patience of the saints : here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus." (Rev. xiv, 12.)

But what about those who receive the number of the Beast's name—those branded by the No. 666. "If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark on his forehead, or in his hand, The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of His indignation ; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb." (Rev. xiv, 9-11.)

Now these 153 cannot be complete without including Judah. we learn from Hosea i, 11, that the children of Judah and the children of Israel shall be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head. How is this to take place ? The Christian Herald of August 16th, 1928, refers to an Alliance of Christian Jews, which it says is one of the most significant events of recent years.

"Under the presidency of Sir Leon Levison, of Edinburgh, it represented 12 National Alliances of Hebrew Christians. One of the most sacred events of the whole conference was that of the Lord's Supper, when, besides several non-Jewish Christians, 153 Hebrew Christian delegates, representing 18 countries and more than a dozen Protestant Christian denominations, met around the Lord's Table, and with contrite hearts celebrated the memorial festival of Christ our Passover ; it was indeed a hallowed day in the history of Jewish Christianity."

This completes the 12 tribes, but the Elect is not yet complete without the representative of the House of David.

The Rev. J. H. Allen, of Boston, in 1922 published "Judah's Sceptre and Joseph's Birthright," in which he gives us the genealogy of King Edward VII right back to Adam, showing particularly that our Kings are descended from King David of Israel, and that King Edward, who was then on the throne, was the 151st generation from Adam ; evidently he knew nothing of the value of the No. 153, or he would certainly have shown that our Prince of Wales (whose family name is David, so called at the request of Lady Waterford, who knew his genealogy and believed that he would occupy the British throne at the Coming of Our Lord) was the 153rd generation from Adam. This is confirmed by the Rev. Mr. Milner's Geneological Tables.

When he takes the throne the completed number of the Elect will have taken place.

We now occupy the position described in Rev. xvi, 12-15 : "And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates ; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.

"And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet.

"For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. Behold I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame."

Digitized by Google

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—III.

By S. E. STEELE.

THE LINES OF PROPHECY.

BIBLICAL Promise and Prophecy as a whole centres itself mainly in three distinct and unbroken lines, relating to the Messiah, to Judah, and to Israel. Those referring to the Messiah and the Jews are accepted as having been literally fulfilled, whereas those referring to Israel, we are told, are to be accepted in a spiritual sense, and refer in a great measure to the Church. It has not been made clear, however, how the Church (Spiritual Israel) can become a nation (St. Matt. xxi, 43), or a people to be gathered together from all parts of the world and set in their own land (Isa. xiv, 1), or God's battle-axe and weapons of war, which will break nations in pieces and destroy kingdoms (Jer. li, 20). Let us be consistent; if we spiritualize Israel, we must also spiritualize the Messiah and the Jews, as also all prophecy referring to Egypt, Assyria, Babylonia, etc., as recorded in the burdens of the nations in Isaiah. I can, however, find no authority in the whole of the Bible for so doing. On the contrary, there is abundant evidence to show that "Israel" is as literally a nation as was Judah, Assyria, Babylon, Greece and Rome. Many earnest Christians have much in common with those two disciples, believers in the Word, yet blind to its fulfilment, to whom Christ addressed the words, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe ALL that the prophets have spoken." (St. Luke xxiv, 25). "Blindness in part is happened to Israel" (Rom. xi, 25) is as true to-day as it was in the days of St. Paul. An examination of Promise and Prophecy on the lines suggested herein, which, it is contended on the authority of the late Bishop Ryle, of Liverpool, are the right lines, will open our eyes, and we shall see and read the Word of God as it has never been presented to us before.

To Abraham, to Sarah, to Isaac, and to Jacob it was told they would become a great nation, with seed as numerous as the dust of the earth and the stars of heaven (Gen. xii, xiii, xxii, xxvi and xxviii) and as the sand on the sea shore. That this promise was not fully realized, even during the most prosperous days of Israel, the reigns of David and Solomon, is evident from prophecy. Hosea (i, 10) and Ezekiel (xxxvi, 10) both refer to the fulfilment of these promises being future to the time in which they wrote. Not only would they become a great nation, they would also be a blessing to all the families of the earth (Gen. xxviii, 14, and Micah v, 7), undo the heavy burdens, let the oppressed go free, break every yoke (Isa. lviii, 6). Britain has become a great nation, and has been a blessing to all nations by carrying the Gospel of Salvation to all people of all languages; and was the first nation to "let the oppressed go free" in putting down the slave trade, and giving freedom to all who owned allegiance to her. Furthermore, the Anglo-Saxon race has increased, and is increasing, in a far greater ratio than any other European people, and probably more so than any race on the earth. To Abraham it was told he would be a father of many nations (Gen. xvii, 5), to Sarah, a mother of nations (Gen. xvii, 16), to Jacob, a nation and a company of nations (Gen. xxxv, 11), and to Ephraim, a multitude of nations (Gen. xlviii, 19). Israel of old never developed into a company or multitude of nations, they were divided into two kingdoms only, so that the fulfilment of this promise must be ulterior to the Kings and Chronicles. Judah never reached that stage before or after the Babylonian captivity. Consequently we must look for the fulfilment to the "lost" portion of Israel. Not one of the mighty empires of old could be termed a "company of nations," and the same can be stated of all kingdoms during the Christian Dispensation, with one exception. The Anglo-Saxon kingdom of Great Britain alone has developed into a company of nations, composed of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, South Africa, and many smaller colonies and dependencies, all self-governing, but owning allegiance to Great Britain and her Sovereign.

THE COVENANTS.

The seed of Abraham were to acquire the entire stretch of land between the river of Egypt (the Nile) and the great river, the river Euphrates. This was a covenant made by the Lord with Abraham (Gen. xv, 18). Until the year 1917 I am unable to trace any record of the whole of that land being in the hands of one people, certainly not of the descendants of Abraham. In 1917, the times of the Gentiles being fulfilled, the Turk was driven out of Jerusalem by the British. Prophecy tells us that Israel was to perform this (Ezek. xxv, 14, and Obadiah, ver. 18). The whole of the territory promised to the seed of Abraham is now under the mandate of Britain, a name meaning Covenant People, taken from two Hebrew words, "Brith Am." So that the land of the covenant is now in the hands of the covenant people. Bryth-ish or British means covenant men, Brithannia—covenant ships. I am told the Hebrew rendering of the passage in Isa. xlix, 8, translated in the Authorized Version, "And give thee for a covenant of the people," is, "I will give thee to Britham." Reading ver. 7 this evidently refers to Christ, and God says He will give Christ to Britham (Britain), the covenant people. Certainly Britain was the first nation to accept Christianity. According to the prophet Joel (ii, 27, 28), Israel would first acknowledge God as their Lord, afterwards His Spirit would be poured out upon all flesh, the sons and daughters of Israel would prophesy; in other words, would be the means in God's hands of proclaiming the Gospel far and wide.

The Abrahamic Covenant included one other promise: "His seed should possess the gate of his enemies" (Gen. xxii, 17). This hardly needs enlarging upon. The British hold every "gate," every strategic point of importance in the world. Therein lies our great power, we actually possess the gate (the sea) against all enemies. According to this promise Israel must become a great sea power, for only by that power could the gate of the sea be held. Britannia, the ships of the covenant, keeps all gates inviolate.

THE BLESSINGS.

Let us now consider a few of the blessings promised to Israel by Jacob and Moses. Shortly before his death, Jacob called his sons together, "That I may tell you that which shall befall you in the last days" (Gen. xlix, 1). Space will not permit me to deal with this chapter in detail; a short reference to a few portions will, perhaps, suffice for my purpose. Reuben was unstable, he should not excel. The Birthright was taken from him and given to Joseph. Simeon and Levi would be divided and scattered in Israel. Judah would retain the Sceptre and the office of lawgiver. From them a king, whose emblem would be a lion, would reign "until Shiloh come." Dan shall judge his people as one of the tribes of Israel. This was fulfilled, as Irish history confirms, centuries before Christ in the North of Ireland. It is, however, with the blessing to Joseph that we are most concerned. Of him it was said he would be a fruitful bough, whose branches run over the wall, hated, yet made strong by God; he would be blessed with blessings of heaven, blessings of the deep, blessings of the womb, blessings unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills. The blessing of the tribe of Joseph by Moses was couched in almost identical terms (Deut. xxxiii, 13-16). Before the gathering together of his twelve sons, Jacob blessed Joseph's two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh. They were to be called by his name (Israel—Gen. xlviii, 16) and were to grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth. Manasseh would become a great people—evidently a democracy—but Ephraim would be the greater, and become a multitude of nations (Gen. xlviii, 15 to 19). Thus Joseph received the double portion (Gen. xlviii, 22), Ephraim and Manasseh each receiving an equal portion with the brothers of their father, Joseph. To Israel, Moses declared that they would lend to many nations, but would not borrow; and reign over many nations, but none should reign over them (Deut. xv, 6). The Jews were ruled over for a considerable period, and have since ceased to be a nation, so that the fulfilment must be in the lost tribes. Of Britain, and Britain only, can it be said that they have lent to many nations, but have not borrowed from a foreign people. The British only now reign over many nations, but no nation has ever reigned or ruled over her.

Digitized by Google

Another promise of God by Moses was that they would spread to the very ends of the earth (Deut. xxxiii, 17). Isaiah prophesies to the same effect (xlix, 20, and liv, 3). The only people in whom this has been fulfilled is the Anglo-Saxon race, who have literally colonized in every part of the earth.

Moses concluded his blessing of the tribes in words full of hope, glorious words, spoken just before his ascent of Mount Nebo, where he died. Words to which one meaning only can be assigned: "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms: and he shall thrust out the enemy from before thee; . . . Israel then shall dwell in safety alone: . . . Happy art thou, O Israel: . . . O people saved by the Lord." Analogously this blessing can only refer to Great Britain.

We find, therefore, that by a consensus of the accumulative promises to the seed of Abraham, Israel, we have convincing testimony that Britain coincides in a remarkable degree with the nation Israel would become in the latter days; in fact, that Israel and Britain are identical.

AN INEVITABLE CONCLUSION.

BY THE LATE V. M. COX.

GREAT is the ingenuity of our opponents in discovering reasons why they should not accept the Anglo-Israel Identity as a truth. The ethnological, historical, philological, and a score of other difficulties are perpetually cited by them as amply sufficient reasons for entirely declining to consider the matter, and to give our arguments a few hours' honest and unprejudiced examination, before concluding that they are wholly unsupported by reliable evidence, and accordingly utterly unworthy of their serious attention.

Another and parallel set of difficulties, however, appears to have escaped their notice altogether—viz., those in which a rejector of our glorious Truth must become inextricably involved; and these latter are far more serious in their issues than the former, since they relate to the character and faithfulness of God as the covenant-keeper; and have, moreover, a momentous bearing on the present and future of our beloved country.

Our opponents may be roughly divided into two classes: (1) those who interpret literally the prophetic writings; and (2) those who in part spiritualize them. We may dismiss the latter with but a few words of remark. Why, we would ask them, do you (while accepting a literal Judah) insist upon a spiritual Israel? Why spiritualize Ephraim, unless you are prepared to do the same by Gad, Dan, or Issachar? Why suppose real nations are addressed under the names of Edom, Moab, Egypt, Gog and Magog, etc., and yet maintain that the nation of whom prophecy speaks ten times as frequently as of any other is nevertheless the only one which has no real existence whatever? Nay, further, why go upon the principle of laying the calm hand of appropriation on all Israel's promises, and saying, "These are the Church's heritage," and at the same time handing over all the warnings and denunciations, addressed to the same Israel, to the much enduring Jews, in open defiance of all the laws of consistent criticism? This style of interpretation is not only unsatisfactory, it is also God-dishonouring, for it distinctly implies that the promises made by Jehovah to Ephraim-Israel were never intended to receive any fulfilment whatever.

With opponents of this order we cannot argue. In doing so, there is no fulcrum for our lever. Ours is a question which can only be decided pro or con by an appeal to God's Word, and if men arrogate the right to assert that the Sacred Volume does not mean what it says, and if they further presumptuously venture to father upon the Bible a meaning which is the outcome of their own ingenious imaginations, we feel that we have no foundations to build upon, and must decline to debate the point without the record; though we deeply deplore the adoption on their part of a course which has already done much, we fear, towards strengthening the hands of men who openly defend and promulgate sceptical opinions.

But with the other class, those who accept the literal mode of interpretation, we can meet on equal grounds. They will agree with us in affirming that the Divine inspiration of the Holy Scriptures must be vindicated by the actual and literal fulfilment of every prediction, no matter what people are the subjects of it. They all anticipate the restoration of the Jews, and many of them expect it to take place speedily. But Ezekiel, Jeremiah and Hosea, all affirm that Ephraim-Israel and Judah-Israel will return together, yet distinct, and when in the land be once and for ever reunited into a single nation. It is, then, utterly unscriptural to speak of the Jews alone as returning to Palestine, while ignoring Ephraim's role in the marvellous drama. To use a familiar phrase, " it is like the play of Hamlet, with Hamlet left out."

Digitized by Google

Yet if the Identity be not a truth, Ephraim simply does not exist. To refuse to accept a belief so well borne out by the accurate agreement of prophecy and history, just because the British have not generally hooked noses like the Syrian Jews, or because they do not after a lapse of twenty-five centuries speak ancient Hebrew (a language forgotten by the Jewish captives in Babylon after only seventy years of contact with a foreign nation), or to deny the Identity because it is impossible to trace Israel at every step of her migrations through the continent of Europe, to her home in these " Isles of the West," is childish and absurd in the extreme, and we are very sure that such objections would be speedily put on one side if our opponents would spend a few hours in honestly facing the difficulties which arise from the refusal to acknowledge Saxon Britain to be identical with the Ten-Tribed House of Joseph.

We were greatly favoured with the opinion of a shrewd and sagacious statesman in regard to the future of the English-speaking nations, and assuredly a more marvellous piece of unconscious testimony has seldom been put on record. We refer to the Hon. W. E. Gladstone's letter to Mr. Smalley, published first in the New York Tribune, and afterwards transferred to the columns of most of our daily papers.

If he be correct in his forecast, he has proved Our Identity beyond dispute, since he describes the very destiny assigned to Israel in the Word of God, and there is no room for two such nations on the same planet. He shows by quotation from various sources that there is a reasonable prospect that the English-speaking peoples will a hundred years hence number 1,000 millions ; and in confident expectation of the result he remarks :—

" What a prospect is that of very many hundreds of millions of people, certainly among the most manful and energetic in the world, occupying one great continent, I may almost say two, and other islands and territories not easy to be counted, with these islands at their head, the most historic in the world ; in contact, by a vast commerce, with all mankind, and perhaps still united in kindly political association with some more hundreds of millions fitted for no mean destiny ; united almost absolutely in blood and language, and very largely in religion, laws, and institutions."

Now this is so precisely the future of Israel, as indicated by the sacred writers, that it necessarily follows that the nation which has this destiny in store must be the nation to whom it was, by the oath and promise of Jehovah, inalienably secured. If we be not Israel, then the Premier was wrong, and the croaker and pessimist right ; for as Israel rises, Gentile Britain must sink into decrepitude, decay, and dissolution. Her colonies must be cut away from her, her foreign possessions wrested from her grasp by hostile powers, her Gates be dismantled, her commerce paralysed, her missionary labours suspended, and, most improbable of all, her almost phenomenal increase of population be simultaneously arrested in every part of the globe ! Can we believe this ? Yet it must be so if, the Identity being false, the literal truth of the Scriptures is still maintained ; for before the coming Israel (of whom the prophets speak on every page) this nation (of whom no prophet ever had a word to say) must hide her diminished head ; and like Babylon, Greece and Rome, be overtaken by utter destruction. But such a result would take centuries to be consummated. Can anyone suppose that the dissolution of Turkey and the restoration of Judah can be so long deferred ? The 1,260 years of the Mohammedan apostasy have well nigh run out ; the Eastern Question is in too advanced a stage to admit of such a possibility. Surely none but the wilfully blind can much longer resist the inexorable logic of facts. Britain's position in Egypt, her happy relations with her colonies (which so nobly came to the front, to help her in her hour of need), each year bringing nearer to its realization the glorious scheme of uniting in one grand Empire all her daughter nations in every zone ; her hostile relations with Russia, the Gog and Magog of the prophecies, and the sworn enemy of God's people in the latter days—all these point her out as unmistakably of Israelite origin ; and every new development tends to make her Identity more undeniably certain.

Only let our opponents act honourably and justly, and instead of evading our arguments, and at the same time deriding our faith, let them deal fairly with the difficulties which attend a refusal to accept our belief, and we are sure they will shortly be constrained to come over into our ranks, admitting, as the result of their most searching investigations, that Our Identity is not a heresy nor a " craze," but a well-attested fact, and (the truth of the Bible being admitted) AN INEVITABLE CONCLUSION !—From " Israel's Hope and Destiny."

REVIEW.

" SEVEN TIMES." By Major H. W. Wadge, M.C., B.A., M.D. (Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., Cr. 8vo., xiv + 138 pp. ; 3s. 6d. net.)

This is an excellent book by a new writer, the subject-matter of which was originally given in a series of three addresses before the Winnipeg Branch of the B.-I.-W.F. These addresses are here extended in book form, and give proof of much careful research and co-ordinating of the facts of history with prophecy in order to show how the prophecies involved in the " Seven Times," and applying to Israel, are fulfilled in the history of the British race as the modern representatives of the House of Israel.

Dr. Wadge has succeeded in presenting his subject concisely ; interesting and convincing in manner, yet at the same time, as the Rev. E. J. Springett states in his Introduction, his essay is " remarkable for its accuracy and attention to detail." One chapter is devoted to " Seven Times " in Pyramid symbolism, showing how this period is indicated in the chronology of the Great Pyramid, and is elucidated with diagrams from Mr Davidson's well-known volume.

Perhaps the most interesting pages in this book for many readers will be those outlining the events which lead up to " Armageddon," and the identification of the various Powers involved therein. In passing, we are glad to note Dr. Wadge —as we have done in our own writings on prophecy—draws the attention of his readers to the fact that the " Seven Times " (or " Times of the Gentiles ") did not end with the deliverance of Jerusalem in 1917, as so many writers and speakers on this subject incorrectly state. While this event was an important stage in their ending, it did not mark their final date, which cannot occur before 1936. As the "Seven Times" opened in stages, so do they close.

Digitized by Google

Dr. Wadge makes the interesting suggestion that the "King of the South" may perhaps mean Italy, rather than Egypt itself or Britain as suzerain of Egypt. Considering the present trend of events in the Eastern Mediterranean, coupled with the possibility of our losing such control as we still maintain in Egypt (readers can readily visualize the circumstances), and bearing in mind the known aspirations of Mussolini in that part of the world, it is quite possible he may yet fulfil that role. "It does not require a great stretch of imagination," our author writes (p. 116), "to conceive that under certain circumstances Italy might annex Egypt, with the consent or support of France and Spain. In that case Italy . . . would become the King of the South contending with Gog, King of the North, for the possession of Palestine."

On the other hand, Italy may be prefigured as Libya (now Italian territory) as one of the allies of Gog (see Ezek. xxxviii, 5), forming his armies of the South which, for a time, conquer Egypt—"Egypt shall not escape" (Dan. xi, 42)—and approach Jerusalem from the South while Russia descends from the North. These two armies, however, fail to effect a junction (see Joel ii, 20). Whether as ally or enemy of Gog, Italy's objective will be possession of Palestine, and in unpatriotic quarters suggestions have been made—we regret to say in this country—that the Palestine Mandate should be transferred to Italy. British-Israelites, however, know better.

Regarding the role Britain will play in this final struggle, Dr. Wadge differs in certain points of detail from the views of the present reviewer, and on this we would refer the reader to Mr. Goard in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE of May 5th, 1928, on the 39th chapter of Ezekiel, but any serious and well-thought-out contribution to the question of "Armageddon" is entitled to careful consideration.

In conclusion, we warmly recommend Dr. Wadge's book to the attention of readers of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, and hope it will be the means of spreading a knowledge of our identity to many as yet outside our ranks. B. STEWART.

THE BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY.

THE one hundred and twenty-fourth Annual Report of the British and Foreign Bible Society is to hand and is specially interesting reading for every British-Israel believer. We interpret the Bible which this Society distributes. There can be no more loyal and faithful ally of this truly great Society than ourselves. If the findings of the modernist were to prevail, and the Bible were to be reduced to a proportion commensurate with their findings, then this Society might as well close down shop. We stand for the Bible, and the whole Bible from Genesis to Revelation, as containing the oracles of God. We therefore greatly rejoice in the marvellous work done by this Society during the past year. "The year 1927-28 saw a distribution of Bibles, 992,491; New Testaments, 1,244,426; Portions, 7,699,797; making the grand total of 9,936,714. It is a very significant fact, which promises well for the future of our race as the chosen of the Lord, that never before in the history of the Society, with the notable exception of one of the years of the Great War (1915), have so many copies of Scripture been distributed in the home languages. The number for 1927 is 2,213,467, made up of 574,038 Bibles, 409,941 Testaments, and 1,229,488 Portions, an increase of 531,477 on the figures for 1926. All but 34,741 vols. were in English. There was a slightly increased demand for the Scriptures in Welsh—30,901, as against 26,577 in 1926. The large advance in the total issues is due principally to orders received from Canada and Australia. Of the copies in English, 905,828 were circulated in the British Isles (an increase of 8,957) and 1,270,080 (an increase of 517,469) were sent abroad." This is an interesting and very encouraging statement. In the face of this increase is it true to say, as we so often hear our clergy and ministers say, that the Bible is read less to-day that at any time since John Wickliffe gave it into the hands of the people? What does this increased circulation mean if it does not mean that the Book is read more to-day than ever? Why do people buy the Bible if it is not to read it? Has it become a sort of fetish to be set up in the home, and the Church, and the State, to be worshipped but not read? We cannot think it. The fact is that the Bible, distributed in increasing numbers, is read and more carefully studied to-day than ever before. That thousands of people do not read it proves nothing. If you could show beyond the shadow of a doubt that the majority of people do not read it that would prove nothing, for it is as plain as daylight that the majority of people in every age have never read it. If it were not more read to-day than ever before, then I do not see how you can account for this remarkable increase which the Bible Society records in Canada, Australia and the British Isles. Unless you write us down as fools, buying what we do not want, and do not intend to read, then there must be, it seems to me, more reading of the Bible to-day than at any other time.

There was a small advance in the sales of the Revised Version (24,846 as against 22,764), but for every copy of the R.V. 80 copies of the Authorized Version were sold. The love of the people for the A.V. is very great, and in some respects remarkable. To the A.V. no doubt we owe, more than to anything else, the settlement of our modern English tongue. The evident affection in which this Version is held will furnish, in a measure, a safeguard against the unwarranted demands of modernism for a greatly reduced Canon. If the A.V. can more than hold its own with the R.V., I am perfectly certain it will do so over any modernist publication to such a degree as to make that publication effete at its very birth.

Another fact brought to light by the work of the Society is very significant. Over 1,598,000 volumes of Scripture were circulated in Continental Europe (an increase of 56,000), and this in face of the fact that Russia, at the commencement of her Soviet rule, banned the Bible, refusing it admission into the country. How futile are the attempts of rulers to overthrow the Word of God! One would have thought that that lesson had been well learned in the days of Wickliffe, and those who followed immediately in his train. The modern attempts in the French Revolution, and the recent Russian revolution, to overthrow the Bible, have met with as complete failure as in the early days of its eventful history. Coupled with this most encouraging fact we read that 442,000 copies were distributed in Africa (an increase of 45,800); 447,802 in Canada (an increase of 33,000); 226,591 in Australia (an increase of 66,888); 20,987 in New Zealand; 473,700 in South America and the West Indies (an increase of 36,000); 178,300 in Malaya and the Netherland Indies; 318,343 in Japan (an increase of 82,000); 667,655 in Korea (an increase of 27,000); 3,640,282 in China; 987,200 in India (an increase of 118,000); 87,672 in Ceylon (an increase of 23,000), and 41,780 in Persia and Iraq (an increase of 2,000). Only in two places is a decrease reported, viz., in Malaya and the Netherland Indies and in China—16,000 in the one and 502,125 in the other. This is a marvellous record, and when one realizes how great is the army of devout men and women who, in all these lands, are using these Scriptures for the proclamation of the Gospel, one's heart is strangely warmed in praise and prayer.

Digitized by Google

It only remains now for us to put into the hands of these workers for God our master-key for the interpretation of the Word of God, for the light of the knowledge of the glory of God to cover the whole earth as the waters cover the sea.

We were astonished to read that the whole of this great work has been done with the comparatively small income of £417,295. In fact the expenditure has only been £411,817, leaving a surplus in the year's working of £5,478.

We heartily subscribe to the concluding words of this wonderful report. "'We believe in a Christ-like world. We know nothing better and are content with nothing less.' This declaration of the International Council at Jerusalem, in April, 1928, expresses our faith. To translate this vision into reality, the Bible Society will labour on in the strength of the Lord God. We are convinced that an essential condition of a Christ-like world is that all men should possess and treasure the Holy Scriptures, and so be led into knowledge and love of the Saviour. It is at once our duty and our happy privilege to spread abroad the enlightening Word. Let us go forward seeing in faith, amid all the sin and sorrow, the consummation of our hopes: 'The kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of Our Lord and of His Christ: and He shall reign for ever and ever.'"

"Since its foundation in 1804 the Bible Society has issued over 385,500,000 copies of the Scriptures. Of these, about 109,520,000 have been in English." J. G.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE BURIAL OF MOSES.

BY THE REV. GEORGE MATHESON, D.D., F.R.S.E.

"And God buried him in a valley of the land of Moab; but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day."—Deut. xxxiv, 6.

I HAVE often put to myself the question: Suppose this fragment of the Bible had been lost, should we drop any flower from the garland of revelation? I think we should. I think there is one thing revealed here which is quite unique and which is planted here alone; I mean the fact that there is such a thing as burial by GOD. Some of the deepest distresses of bereavement come from the denial of funeral rites. Where the body is buried in the mine, where the body is engulfed in the sea, where the body is stretched on the battlefield indistinguishable amid the mutilated slain, there is a deeper tone added to the heart's knell. It is a note which Christianity has rather increased than diminished, for the doctrine of resurrection has consecrated the body and made its very dust dear. To such a state of mind what comfort this passage brings! Here is an explorer lost in the mountain snow. His friends know he is dead; and it adds to their pain that no human lips have consecrated his dust. And to them there comes this voice: Ye that weep for the unfound dead, ye that lament the burial rites denied, know ye not that there are graves which are consecrated by God alone! Where the prayer is breathed not, where the book is opened not, where the wreath is planted not, where the human tear is shed not, there may be a burial of unsullied solemnity—a burial by the hand of your Father. There are consecrated graves where priest never stood, where mourner never knelt, where tear never fell. There are spots hallowed by your Father which to you are barren ground. God's acre is larger than the churchyard. Out on yon bleak hillside He wrapped your friend to rest in a mantle of spotless snow. Is not that bleak hillside God's acre evermore! Is it not as holy to you as if you had brought sweet spices to the tomb! It has no chant but the winds, no book but the solemn silence, no bell but some wild bird's note, no wreath but the wreath of snow; yet there is no more sacred spot in all the diocese of God.

My soul, hast thou pondered this picture of God's care for the human dust! There is no brighter picture in the Bible. I have heard thee ask, Where does the Old Testament teach immortality? I have seen thee search the records for traces of the resurrection life. Thou hast stood beside the ascending Enoch. Thou hast watched the disappearing Elijah. Thou hast listened to the song of the Psalmist, "Thou wilt receive me into glory." Thou hast gazed upon the spectre of the dead Samuel rising from the grave to renovate the kingdom. But methinks all these pale before one neglected incident—the solicitude of the Father for the burial of a human body. "GOD buried him." Thinkest thou He would have cared for the inanimate clay if He care not for THEE! Thinkest thou He would have prepared a place for the casket if He had no place for the gem! Why should He hold the dust of Moses dear if he had obliterated his SPIRIT! Why cherish the garment if He had chilled the life! Why preserve the ring if He had pulverized the hand! Why water the ground if He had withered the flower! Why keep the dwelling if He had killed the tenant! Why crown the lifeless form if He had crushed the living man! O my soul, when Enoch grows pale to thy sight, when Elijah fades from thine eyes, when the song of the Psalmist is faint in thine ear, when the image of Samuel refuses to rise, come and attend the funeral of Moses!—(From Messages of Hope.)

A PRAYER FOR THESE TIMES.

ALMIGHTY GOD, the God of our Fathers, Who hast led Thy people hitherto by wondrous ways, and Who knowest us to be set in so many and great dangers by reason of the subtleties of our enemies, look upon Thy people at this time, and save and deliver us. Particularly we pray Thee to direct and govern the High Court of Parliament recently elected, under our Sovereign Lord the King, and restrain them from any action which may endanger this Country and Empire which is called by Thy Name, and guide all their consultations to the furtherance of Thy Kingdom, and the fulfilment of Thy purposes, through Jesus Christ Our Lord.—Amen.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

OUR SECRETARY-GENERAL cables from about 2,500 miles from the port of landing, showing continuous success and enthusiasm throughout his long trip.

"Addressed two meetings REGINA; six CALGARY; broadcasted from both cities over Canada and America. VANCOUVER, July 1st onwards; many engagements, numerous invitations.—Garrison."

* * *

The usual weekly meetings at Headquarters are discontinued for the months of July and August.

* * *

A splendid address was given at Headquarters on Wednesday last by Mr. Daniel Farmer. On Thursday the speaker was a visitor from South Africa, Col. H. Nourse, whose subject. "Reminiscences of My Travels and their Bearing on British-Israel Teaching," was full of wonderfully interesting details of the manner in which this Teaching touched peoples and events. Mr. A. J. Wakeford presided.

* * *

The report for the past year from the South Irish Branch is a very satisfactory one of progress, showing a steady increase of membership. The lending library is being kept well supplied with new books, and is increasingly used. Lectures and Bible Study classes are carried on regularly. Thanks are expressed for help in presiding, for hospitality extended, and for much activity in many ways by members.

* * *

The Annual Meeting of the Winnipeg (Canada) Branch was held on May 28th, when the Rev. E. J. Springett was re-elected President by acclamation, all present rising in a body to express their desire. For the first time in its history this Branch decided to hold meetings through the summer months, which are usually regarded as unsuitable for indoor gatherings on account of the excessive heat that often prevails.

Under the auspices of the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire, the talented British-Israel speaker, Miss Mabel Harbour, gave her lecture on the National Flags eight times in three days (May 21st-23rd) at Brandon, Souris and Boissevain (Manitoba). As a result of this tour the existence of a number of British-Israel believers has been discovered, and there are hopeful prospects for the establishment of local branches in the future.

* * *

Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C., spoke at two meetings of the Croydon Branch on June 21st and was splendidly received. In his first subject, "The Origin and Destiny of the British Race," it was shown that the British are of one stock, and authorities were quoted in support of this, following which the destiny was dealt with, showing the continuity of the Kingdom for ever. In the evening the address was entitled "Some Marks of Identity between Israel and Britain." Mr. Daniel Farmer and Mr. A. J. Wakeford presided.

* * *

Erratum.—In the Obituary of the late Colonel Garnier in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE of June 29th, page 407, the words "in August, 1914" should read "about 1914." The words of Colonel Garnier's forecast, in the second edition (1912) of his "Great Pyramid," page 371, were under the heading "About 1914."

* * *

Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, at a civic reception recently, said: ". . . I hope that whoever is entrusted with so great a responsibility (forming a Government) will remember that this country of ours is not an empty tablet on which you can merely write out the policies of the moment, but that it is a living being with its roots deeply hidden in the ancient past. We must keep a fast hold on these roots. No citizen, to whatever Party he belongs, can judge wisely for to-day or to-morrow unless he remembers the lessons and the heritage of the long history through which we have passed."

* * *

The newly-formed Putney Branch desires that all those interested in the work will attend the next meeting on Monday, July 15th, at 8 p.m., at 12, Ravenna Road. The Branch is anxious to enrol members, and it is requested that application be made to the Secretary, Mr. Chasemore, at this meeting.

* * *

Mr. Gay addressed another large meeting of men in Hyde Park on Sunday evening last. The keenest attention was manifested, and the questions which were asked after his address of nearly two hours, showed the keen interest which his message had awakened. Some twenty names were given in for free literature.

* * *

Mr. Gay leaves for the North of England on Saturday, July 6th. He will be returning to London July 16th, and will address open-air meetings at Harrow on Friday and Saturday, 19th and 20th. On Sundays, July 21st and 28th, he will again be in Hyde Park. He leaves for South Pembrokeshire immediately afterwards, and will not be returning until after the Bible Convention at Llandrindod Wells. It is hoped to continue the open-air addresses in Hyde Park, September 8th, and, weather permitting, he will continue the same throughout the month.

* * *

The programme of the Llandrindod Wells Bible Convention is now to hand, and copies may be obtained from Headquarters on application to Mr. Wakeford. Intending delegates will do well to send in their names at once. The dates of the Convention are:—August 25th to 30th, inclusive.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, East Street, Friday, 12th, at 8. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 8th, at 8.
CROYDON, Y.M.C.A. (Horniman Hall), North End, W. Croydon, Friday, 12th, at 3 and 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
EASTBOURNE, Saffrons Rooms, Wednesday, 10th, at 3 and 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
HIGHGATE, 223, Archway Road, Wednesday, 10th, at 8, Miss Hamilton Hunter.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 9th, at 7.30. Mr. W. Clark.
MANCHESTER, Houldsworth Hall, Deansgate, Tuesday, 9th, at 7.45. Bible Study, Miss Ward.
REIGATE, Wesley School Room, Thursday, 11th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.

Digitized by Google

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

GOD'S COMMONWEALTHS

By "ROADBUILDER"

(Author of "The Destiny of the British Empire and the U.S.A.")

The "Roadbuilder" makes his appeal, in a very matter-of-fact logical manner, to the readers' reason and judgment of the facts which he sets before them with an enthusiasm and knowledge that carries the reader under its spell until the book is finished.

Realising that a straight diet of strong food is not conducive to the making of cheerful readers, the author serves an occasional sip of the wine of his war experiences, interspersed in a pleasing manner throughout the chapters.

The theme of the book is that the History of the rise and growth of the British Empire and the United States of America is foretold in the Bible as God's servant Nations. These two great Commonwealths fulfil, and are in physical possession of, all the Covenants and Promises that Jehovah made to the Fathers, to Israel of the Isles, and to the House of David down through the ages.

Jehovah designedly hid these facts from Anglo-Saxondom until the time of the Gentiles was fulfilled, as it was when General Allenby redeemed Jerusalem from the treading down by Turkey in 1917.

Cloth, Crown 8vo. 287 pages. Price 8/-. By post, 8/6

IS IT IN YOUR LIBRARY OF B.-I. BOOKS?

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

B.-I.-W.F. Tenth Annual Congress

LARGE CENTRAL HALL, WESTMINSTER.

September 30th to October 5th, 1929, inclusive

Two Meetings daily at 2.45 and 7.30

A fine array of experienced speakers from various parts of Britain, the Overseas Dominions and U.S.A. Subjects of momentous interest will be dealt with. Tickets for reserved seats now ready, 2/- each. Course tickets £1. As usual Mr. Herbert Garrison will give a Lantern Lecture on the Wednesday evening, for which special tickets are required, at 3/- first reserved seats; 2/- second reserved seats; unreserved 1/-.

Applications should be addressed to the Assistant Secretary,

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

British History traced from Egypt and Palestine

By

Rev. L. G. A. ROBERTS, Commander R.N.

SECOND EDITION. REVISED and GREATLY ENLARGED

This very valuable Work of Reference giving the historical, ethnological and philological basis for the belief that Britain and America constitute modern Israel. It is a concise exposition of facts and truth concerning Israel in Britain: especially connecting the Israel groups in the East and West. It should be read by all seeking to know the chain connecting the seed of Abraham and the English-speaking peoples.

Full Cloth; Maps and Illustrations.

Price 4/6; by post, 4/9.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

This book, by its ready sale, is rapidly taking its place as one of the most important works yet written. Every B.-I. Student must read it.

"BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH DEFENDED"

BY

Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.

A complete and convincing reply to the attack contained in "BRITISH-ISRAELISM EXAMINED," by REV. S. HINDS WILKINSON.

"British-Israel Truth Defended" should be read not only for its own intrinsic merits, and the high purpose manifest in every page, but it may most usefully be compared with "British-Israel Truth" as a simple exposition of basic facts.

Bound in Cloth, 3/6. By Post, 3/9.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

MAP OF ISRAEL'S MIGRATIONS into BRITAIN.

by

REV. L. G. A. ROBERTS, Comdr. R.N.

Price 6d. By Post 7d.

With Explanatory Index.

This work of reference should be in the hands of every student of the establishment in these British Isles of God's Chosen People.

> "Moreover I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more." 2 Sam. vii, 10.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1.

New and Revised Edition.

Great Britain Great

BY

PROFESSOR E. ODLUM,
M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S., F.R.C.Inst.

Somewhere there is to-day a mighty Kingdom in "The Isles," a great "Coloniser," a wonderful "Lender to the Nations," a mighty "Battle-axe" and "Weapons of War," "A New Sharp Threshing Instrument," a grinding, smashing "Stone Kingdom," a Holder of "The Gate of His Enemies," ruled over by the "Seed of David," a spreader of the "Scriptures of Truth," the protector of weak nations. . . . Somewhere in this world there is a Nation which is God's Old Israel, which was, and is, to endure while the "Sun, moon and ordinances of heaven endure."

The situation of that mighty Kingdom to-day Professor Odlum indicates by the sayings and writings of many prominent men who have written or spoken concerning the British Empire. These opinions, the majority of which were expressed by men of nations other than our own, all point to the conclusion that the only nations conforming to every detail of this description are the British Empire and America.

1/- NETT. BY POST 1/1.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

JULY 13, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

JUL 20 29

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24·7

GT BRITAIN & IRELAND

CANADA

AUSTRALIA

SOUTH AFRICA

NEW ZEALAND

NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

INDIA

CROWN COLONIES

PROTECTORATES

DEPENDENCIES

MANDATORY TERRITORIES

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1ST CHRON 29 v 23

JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT"

Is 19 v 19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J.J.HALL, SC.

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowist, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

"The Heritage of the Anglo-Saxon Race"

BY

M. H. GAYER, O.B.E.

A coloured chart (5 colours), size 40 in. by 28 in., with companion volume,

Depicting the thrilling history of the Anglo-Saxon Race all down the ages (i.e., The British Empire and the British-born stock of America).

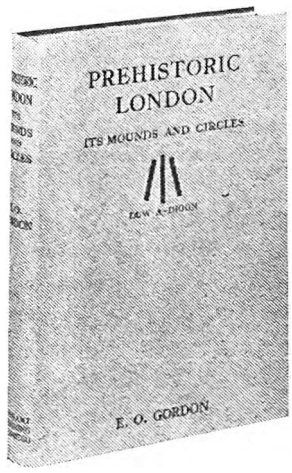
The companion volume (demy 4to) 96 pages, numbered in sections to correspond with chart.

Price of Chart, including Book, bound limp cloth,

4/6 By post 4/11

It traces the genealogies, by direct succession, of Their Majesties King George V., Queen Mary, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, back through the Royal House of David to Adam. It shows how the British Coat of Arms is built up from ancient emblems given to our race some 4,000 years ago. The Chart illustrates the contemporary history of the Houses of Judah and Israel.

Some independent comments which have reached the Author read as follows :—



"I think your chart and volume the best collection of B.-I. data that has ever been published. The chart is an excellent idea and gives the whole mass of evidence at a glance."

"I have your wonderful chart and key book. It is the most comprehensive study I have yet read. A joy to the Believer and an arresting study to an outsider."

"My husband is so delighted with your book that he announced it from the platform as one of the best books on B.-I.—the consequence was I sold out at once."

FRONTISPIECE. Historic photograph of H.M. King George V. with the Premiers of the British Empire, taken November, 1926.

Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

PREHISTORIC LONDON

By E. O. GORDON.

With two appendices by Rev. John Griffith.

Here is a book which gives food for much thought. Of all the books we have published on the early history of the British Race, this probes, perhaps, more deeply than any.

¶ Read herein of the coming of Brutus the Trojan, and the connection between his landing and the twentieth-century customs of Totnes in Devonshire.

¶ Read of the foundation and the growth of our great city.

¶ Read of the development of Druidism, the belief of our early forefathers in the Divine Creator, and in the life Eternal.

¶ Read of the customs of these ancestors, and find in them the true explanation of many of our present ways and ideas; seemingly inexplicable, yet inevitable when their origin is understood. Altogether a most fascinating book.

Price 7/6; by post 8/-

Canada and U.S.A. $1.90, post free.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 393. Vol. VIII. JULY 13th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—I. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	433
THANKSGIVING	436
AN ISRAELITE INDEED! By Daniel Farmer	437
THE KINGDOM OF GOD. (May Meeting Address.) By the Rev. Commander L. G. A. Roberts, R.N.	438
DAVID AND GOLIATH. By Colonel I. Eardley-Wilmot	440
THE EGYPT OF TO-DAY. By Richard A. D. Remanda	442
THE MYSTERY OF THE GREAT PYRAMID.—I. By Basil Stewart	443
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—IV. By S. E. Steele	444
OBITUARY. The late Mrs. Mabel Virginia Anna Bent	445
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.	445
NEW ARTICLES BY MR. DAVIDSON. The Structural Aspects of the Great Pyramid	445
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	446

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—I.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

THIS is a subject which should never be far from our thoughts. Because the Church in the Apostolic age hoped that the Coming of the Lord would be soon, some men of the present age have come to the conclusion that the Apostles were mistaken regarding the Second Coming, and hoped for that which will not be.

There is no ground for such a conclusion. The disciples had all the knowledge regarding the matter which is contained in the Bible. They added to it from the store of knowledge which had become theirs through the direct tuition of our Lord Himself.

They knew that there were barriers in the way of the immediate Coming of our Lord. The fact that there were such barriers was one of the very first of their solemn declarations to Israel and to Judah. St. Peter at Pentecost declared, concerning the Lord and His Coming, "WHOM THE HEAVEN MUST RECEIVE UNTIL the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began."

They knew that until the times of the restitution of all things which God hath spoken there could be no Second Coming of the Lord.

They knew that such restitution might immediately come through the repentance of Judah and Israel.

They sent out the call to repentance, and they believed that the call would be heard and promptly obeyed by Israel and Judah. They knew that upon such repentance of the people of God, the Lord would come.

They were optimists as to the immediate success of the Gospel. And being optimists in this regard, they believed that the resultant Coming of the Lord was at hand. They were wise and just as to the expectation of the Coming upon the repentance and conversion of Israel. But they were disappointed in the response to the call to repentance.

They knew further, that in the case of the failure of Israel and Judah to bring in "the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began" within a certain well-defined period, that then God had undertaken to bring in that restitution by His own sovereign power; namely, at the end of the seven times of punishment assigned to Israel and the seven times of punishment assigned to Judah. St. Paul wrote of the new covenant which God would make with the House of Israel "AFTER THOSE DAYS." (See Hebrews viii.)

Further, the Apostles knew that a certain sequence of prophetic fulfilments of prophecy must take place before the Coming again of our Lord. There was no doubt about these things in the minds of the Apostles. They knew that these things were so, and they knew that the punishment of Israel and of Judah would be ended immediately upon the repentance of Israel and Judah; or, failing that repentance, the punishment would end by the lapse of the seven times of punishment. They called the two peoples to repentance, as we see clearly in the Pentecost sermons and elsewhere in the New Testament, and they hoped and believed that the response would be immediate and complete. In this they were disappointed.

Digitized by Google

But their reasoning and their knowledge of facts were not at fault, as so many would have us believe at this time.

The Church adopted a slogan some quarter of a century ago. It was: "The world for Christ in this generation." It was a fine slogan. Many believed it might be accomplished. Many believed it would be accomplished. But that expectation is dead. Such was the slogan and the hope of the Apostles.

Now, however, time has progressed to another stage of the great plan. The times of the restitution of all things are arriving, not through the repentance of Israel and of Judah, but through the lapse of time. The long—long period of seven times of prophecy, which is measured by the passing of two thousand five hundred and twenty years of national history for Israel, and a similar period for Judah and Jerusalem, is coming to an end. The restitution will no more depend upon the repentance of Judah and of Israel, but will depend upon the going into active force of the new covenant to be made with the House of Israel "after those days" are passed. Therein the statement is made by Almighty God, "I WILL" and "THEY SHALL," and there is no element of choice in the matter left to the House of Israel.

The seven times' period of punishment which has acted as a barrier to the return of our Lord hitherto will, as a matter of ascertained fact, be fully ended by the year A.D. 1936.

May we say then that the Lord will return in 1936? WE MAY NOT SAY ANY SUCH THING. All that we would be justified in saying is that the Word of God which assigned this period of punishment is still a barrier in the way, up to that very date, unless Israel and Judah NATIONALLY REPENT before that date.

We are justified in saying that this great legal barrier will be out of the way by that date. The Lord will be free from the barrier of His own Word at that date, to come again to the help of Israel and of the world.

Because the Apostles knew these things and wrote of them, we say that the modernist view of the case, which assumes that the Apostles and early Church were mistaken, is altogether wrong and never would have been set forward if the modernist had been seized of the knowledge which the Apostles possessed, and which they wrote in the sacred Scriptures.

Therefore, turning from the false conclusions of the modernist school, we shall look at the interesting times in which we are now living.

What may we know of the imminence of the Coming of our Lord?

We know that He has declared there shall be no delay, no tarrying on His part. We know that He has long been seated on the right hand of the Majesty on high, "Henceforth expecting . . ." and that His expectation has been as to the setting-up of His reign on this earth of ours.

When may we look for our Lord's return?

Remembering that "one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day," we shall not attempt even in our thought to fix any date. The movements of our Lord are His own. He has not seen fit to tell us the day nor the hour in which He will come to earth again.

Of course we are well aware of some who say, "He is here now and has been throughout the Christian dispensation." Amen, so He has, and in that spiritual sense He is with us, and has been with every generation.

But that is not at all apropos of the matter in hand. He said of His bodily self, "IT IS EXPEDIENT FOR YOU THAT I GO AWAY . . ." Accordingly HE WENT AWAY. He declared, "If I go away I WILL COME AGAIN." And as far as we know, and as far as the world knows, He has never come again. That is a matter for the future to reveal in due time.

What has He told us as to the time of His return?

"AS A THIEF."

He has coupled His return with the period in which the Turkish Empire "would dry up or pass away." This is indicated under the figure of the drying-up of the Euphrates.

He has coupled the time of His Coming with the going forth of three evil spirits like frogs, to the kings of the earth and of all the world, to gather them to the battle of the great day of God Almighty.

These things have happened before the eyes of the world since the signing of the Armistice. That is to say, the Turkish Empire has gone. The Sultan has been dethroned and expelled. The Caliphate has also been abolished. All that is indicated by the symbol of the drying-up of the Euphrates has taken place.

The flood of propaganda which has been let loose in the world against God and stable government cannot be mistaken. The three evil spirits like frogs are filling the world with their croaking. There is no land which is not rendered intolerable with their strident voices.

These things are before us, and they mark the conditions of the time of which our Lord spoke when He said, "Behold I come as a thief, blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments lest he walk naked and they see his shame."

By these marks we may know that the time of His hidden Coming is near at hand.

"ON THE MOUNT OF OLIVES."

Once again, and later than this, His Coming is coupled with the final siege and capture of the city of Jerusalem.

The prophets have made it clear that one of the last acts of the great drama of world history will be the final siege and capture of Jerusalem. And they make it clear that the defenders of the city will be the House of David and their supporters, and the attacking forces "all nations" not under Davidic rule.

This fact stands out very clearly in, for instance, the prophecies by Zechariah. The statement of fact is clear. But what of the implication contained in the statement? The prophets in the Old Testament, and in the New Testament, take into account that Jerusalem should be under alien dominance, that is to say, dominance alien to the House of David and to Israel, "until the time of the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." History fulfils this statement. Jerusalem has been under one or other of the divisions of the Babylon system since from before Christ. And our Lord declared that it should so continue until the time of the fulness of the Gentiles.

During all that time the House of David could not be the defenders of Jerusalem. The implication is therefore that in the meantime the House of David must have obtained the possession of the city of Jerusalem and the land of Palestine. This again has been fulfilled by the British capture of the city, and of the land of Palestine.

Digitized by Google

So matters are in train for the forces of the enemy to attack and to capture the city as the last act in the invasion of Palestine.

Now Ezekiel and other prophets are very clear and specific as to these events which are yet to be.

In connection with that final siege and capture of the city the prophet declares of our Lord: "In that day His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives. And the Mount of Olives shall be rent in twain from the top to the bottom . . ."

Thus again, by the passing of the land and of the city into British-Israel hands, we have an indication of the nearness of the Coming of the Son of man. It is well then to take note of the very natural and material facts with which He has identified His Coming.

Let us mark that these two statements regarding His Coming are connected with national and international movements. As yet the Church is not involved in the matter.

SEQUENT TO THE END OF THE BABYLON-ROMAN SYSTEM OF EMPIRES.

Again, we turn to the prophet Daniel, and to the seventh chapter, and we find that the Coming of the Lord is made sequent to the ending of the Babylonian system of Empires. We are not told in days, or months, or years. The time element is not introduced. But the continued progress of world events is implied. Subsequent to the misrule of Europe and of the East by the Babylonian system of Empires, there will arise the rapid and universal spread of the Kingdom of God under the House of David, and in connection with that we are given to understand the Lord will come with His saints to rule.

Now, the Babylonian system of Empires has come to an end. That is manifest to all the world. The Empires and the Emperors have passed. They were Turkey, Russia, Austria, Germany. Their Kaisers and Czars are no more. Their Imperial organization has been destroyed. The Empires are gone. The next great thing in prophetic sequence is the taking of the Kingdom by the Lord, and by the saints of the Most High.

So again we see that we are in the transition period between the ending of the Babylon-Roman system and the universal Kingdom of God in the earth.

THE FIRST RESURRECTION AND THE COMING.

And now we break away to a different order of statement regarding the Coming of our Lord, which carries with it no particular time indication. The first of these to which we shall turn our attention for a moment is that in the first Epistle to the Thessalonians, chapter iv, 15-18:—

> "For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep.
>
> For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first:
>
> Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord.
>
> Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

This great passage deals primarily with the Coming of the Lord in glory, and secondarily with the resurrection of the dead in Christ, and then with the translation of the living in Christ.

This is the great passage which sets forth the participation of the Church in the Coming of our Lord. The passage makes no reference to the national side of His Coming.

The second Epistle calls attention to the fact that the Apostle included no time indication in his first Epistle, while the Thessalonians read an immediate indication into it contrary to his teaching and his meaning. In it St. Paul goes on to say that they knew well his previous teaching that the Coming could only be after the man of sin had been revealed, therefore the Coming could not be immediate.

Reading carefully this statement, and comparing it with the final paragraph of our Lord's solemn prophetic utterance contained in the 25th chapter of St. Matthew, beginning with the majestic words: "When the Son of man shall come in His glory, and all the holy angels with Him, then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory . . ." we are inclined to say that the statement to the Thessalonians should be coupled with that great statement.

But it will be seen that the statement in St. Matthew is of national import, seeing that He takes His throne in plenary session to judge the same "all nations" which He had previously found assembled in battle against Jerusalem.

In Thessalonians the Apostle is dealing with the Church side of the matter. Our Lord in the 25th chapter of St. Matthew is dealing with the national side of the same matter.

THE WISE AND FOOLISH VIRGINS.

Before reading this parable we should carefully review that which our Lord has been saying leading up to this statement. He has been dealing with the national and international progress of events in the Christian dispensation. The years of the seven times of prophecy have come to an end. The time of the return of our Lord has arrived. IT IS MIDNIGHT by the great dial of the heavens.

"And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold the bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him."

What a wonderful parable this is. The virgins of the ten tribes had been chosen and commissioned to provide the illumination and welcome for our returning Lord. They were representatives. They had their lamps. They should have had their oil. Five were wise; five were foolish.

The illumination was only half strength. Five of the tribes were not represented in the procession. Only five lamps shone forth the welcome for the returning Bridegroom of Israel.

It is a chapter regarding the welcome to be tendered to the Lord at His return. How about this?

Most of us have been so taken up with the experience of the foolish virgins that we have given scant thought, if any, to the welcome of our Lord. This welcome is the basis of the parable. It was pathetic that the five should be shut out in the darkness of the street. It was disastrous that these chosen representatives of the tribes should fail of their welcome to the returning Lord.

Digitized by Google

How is Israel prepared to welcome Him now? More than fifty per cent. of them deny that He is to return at all. Their lamps have gone out.

What is the time element here? MIDNIGHT.

How at the time of the Armistice the eleventh hour was indicated has been shown time and again, and now it would seem that the last half of the last hour marks the time in which we are marching to the expected goal.

This statement ends with the injunction: "Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh." This is specific. "Neither the day nor the hour"—indicating the exact date and time. But earlier in the same discourse He had said: "When ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the door."

RECKONING WITH HIS OWN SERVANTS.

Now we come to the dramatic statement of the reckoning of the Lord with His own—His ten servants.

Twice at least the Lord set forward this parable, with its wealth of meaning for Israel of the ten tribes.

In the nineteenth chapter of St. Luke He tells this story from the standpoint of His going away; and to correct the idea which had been formed by His hearers as later the same idea had been formed by the hearers and readers of the letters of St. Paul, namely, that the Kingdom of Heaven should IMMEDIATELY appear. This He undertook to correct, and it is declared that He spoke this parable because they thought this erroneous thing.

In the twenty-fifth chapter of St. Matthew He repeats to His disciples this parable from the standpoint of His return.

"AFTER A LONG TIME the Lord of those servants cometh and reckoneth with them . . ."

Thus we see that at His departure the Lord gave to His ten servants His money, and His goods, and said to them "occupy till I come." This last, we learn from St. Luke, He said to them as an Householder. Now the servants are left in occupation of His house, in charge of His goods, and in trust with His money, with the command "occupy till I come."

What is the House of which the Lord is the Householder? We read of Mary, the mother of Jesus, that she was "of the House and lineage of David." We read of Jesus that "He is the root and offspring of David." We read in the renewal of the Covenant with the House of David in the thirty-third chapter of Jeremiah, "David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the House of Israel." So then we have the House of David ruling over the House of Israel, and in connection with that our Lord says to His own servants, "His ten servants," "occupy till I come." We further read in the passage before us, "AFTER A LONG TIME the lord of those servants cometh and reckoneth with them . . ."

Here then we have the Coming of the Lord to Israel and the House of David, and reckoning with them as to their faithfulness and ability in administering His household, in preserving His goods, and in handling His money, during the time of their trust, and of His absence.

It will be a great and searching time for the personnel of Israel when the Lord shall come to enter into reckoning with each of His people. Well for those who have kept the trust! Well for those who have remembered that they are the Israel of God, and have been charged with the great task of carrying on in His absence. Ill for those who have denied their trust, and have denied the responsibility of the nation.

And now the narrative of the Lord takes on a higher tone and a more majestic form of expression.

"WHEN THE SON OF MAN SHALL COME IN HIS GLORY WITH ALL THE HOLY ANGELS WITH HIM, THEN SHALL HE SIT UPON THE THRONE OF HIS GLORY.

"AND BEFORE HIM SHALL BE GATHERED ALL NATIONS."

This is the judgment of the same "all nations" which, in the day that His feet stand upon the Mount of Olives, "He finds gathered to fight against Jerusalem." Among the "all nations" Israel is not found, but on the contrary Israel is found defending Jerusalem and striving to hold the goods of the Kingdom against the united efforts of the "all nations."

The same "all nations" are gathered before the Judgment-seat of the Lord in the great and final act of the drama of history, prior to the entering into the millennial Kingdom of the Lord and of His Christ.

Again there is no time indication here. All that we are given to understand is that this is the last act of the sequence; an act which ends the present dispensation, and which gives place immediately to the millennial glory.

We shall consider these details from point to point as we proceed.

THANKSGIVING.

"Thou hast given him his heart's desire: and hast not denied him the request of his lips."

SUNDAY, July 7th, 1929, will remain long in the minds and hearts of all British people. All round the earth thanksgiving services were held to acknowledge with praise and prayer to Almighty God the restoration to health of His Majesty King George the Fifth.

Radiating from Westminster Abbey to all the world "wireless" "made us one."

Here was the King, with the Queen and the Royal Family (except the Duke of Gloucester), joining with his people in worship and thanksgiving for his recovery.

What a unity of spirit and purpose. From Abbey and Cathedral, from Church and Chapel, from hospital and infirmary, from countless cities, towns and villages, from thousands of homes, and from every land where British people dwell, His Majesty's loyal subjects joined with him in praise and prayer.

From very early in the morning the people began to gather in the streets and at the Abbey doors, so that fully half-an-hour before the service commenced this "Shrine of Empire" was packed to the doors with a waiting multitude—whilst in the streets the sun shone on the happy faces of the crowds who waited for the King to come, in the words of the Order of Service, "in thanksgiving to Almighty God for His good Providence whereby our Most Gracious Sovereign has been delivered from severe illness to the comfort of the whole Realm, and for the signal love and loyalty of his people made manifest in the time of trouble."

Digitized by Google

Promptly the service began on the arrival of the King with the strain of the old familiar tune to

" All people that on earth do dwell,
Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice ;
Him serve with fear, His praise forth tell,
Come ye before Him, and rejoice."

" . . . . We are His flock, He doth us feed,
And for His sheep He doth us take."

Their volume of thankful song goes on and our thought leaps out to the countless thousands on land and sea, in city, town and village, in lonely outposts of Empire, to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, and the Islands of the sea, to foreign lands, and wherever Britishers foregather, who now join in singing the same familiar tune and words, and the same prayers now being offered, which unite us all in a bond of unity which, unfortunately, only comes into prominence on such occasions.

It is well to know that this spirit is with us only waiting suitable opportunity to manifest itself.

The service proceeds, and we wonder how many amongst those who take part, seen and unseen, realize the heritage we possess and the responsibility we bear, and we suddenly realize that thousands of hearts are pouring out the prayer that our people may be awakened to a full realization of the meaning of the words now being spoken in the prayer for the British Empire.

ALMIGHTY GOD, Who rulest in the kingdom of men, and hast given to our Sovereign Lord, King GEORGE, a great dominion in all parts of the earth : Draw together, we pray thee, in true fellowship, the men of divers races, languages, and customs, who dwell therein, that, bearing one another's burdens, and working together in brotherly concord, they may fulfil the purpose of Thy Providence, and set forward Thy everlasting Kingdom ; Through Jesus Christ Thy Son our Lord, to Whom with Thee and the Holy Ghost be all glory and dominion, world without end.—Amen.

Then follows the General Thanksgiving, the Te Deum and the Benediction, and the service closes with the hymn :

" Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven."

A moment's silence, then the roll of the drums, and band, organ, choir and people join in " Jerusalem."

* * *

The King has gone. Silence reigns in the Abbey. Outside the cheers of the people can be faintly heard, and our thought again leaps out to those of our kin far and near, knit together in a brotherhood for a brief half-hour in praise and thanksgiving. For half-an-hour? No, for all time ; linked together in our common heritage, for service—King and people—for evermore. W.S.

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

AN ISRAELITE INDEED !

(John i, 47 ; Psalm lxxxiv.)

BY DANIEL FARMER.

FIRST of all, who are Israelites ? All those lineally descended from Jacob, whose second name was Israel. (Gen. xxxii, 28.) Jews are descended from Judah, Jacob's fourth son. The whole twelve bear the name of Israel, of course, but only the descendants of Judah are, or can be, Jews, for that name is Judah shortened.

British-Israelites maintain and teach that the main part of this people, divided into two sections in the days of their fourth king (1 Kings xii), is now to be found amongst the Anglo-Saxon peoples.

To this people Israel, the only nation ever chosen by God for His own, and for carrying out the Divine programme (Amos iii, 2), was given the Sabbath (Ex. xxxi, 16, 17). After the rejection of Christ by the Jews, the Christians eventually observed the " first day of the week " (1 Cor. xvi, 2), in memory of our Lord's Resurrection ; Jews continue the Old Testament Sabbath of the seventh day—our Saturday.

There are only two nations, both of one race, who keep the Sunday by law, viz., Britain and America, and, alas ! in both these peoples there is a tendency to let slip the day as a holy or separate day, and to regard it as a holiday. But if we lose it as the former we shall not long retain it as the latter.

How did the author of Psalm lxxxiv regard it, for surely he was " an Israelite indeed ! "? In his view it was the day which he valued as an opportunity to escape for a while from the common duties of life, and to take his part in the worship and service of God, realizing that " Man does not live by bread alone " (Matt iv, 4). Can we afford to disregard this view of it ? It was Voltaire who said, " It is the Sunday which has made the British people what they are, whether they know it or not." " You can see Durham Cathedral through this window on Sundays," said the house agent. " And why not on other days ? " asked the gentleman seeking a residence. " Because of the smoke from the factory chimneys " was the reply.

If commerce and gain, in any form, are allowed to darken the vision of the English-speaking peoples to what the Lord's Day, and the Lord's House, stand for, we shall soon find ourselves individually, and racially, in company with the " fool " of Luke xii, who " saved his silver, but lost his soul."

" Two things go together, which no man can part, Dust upon the Bible, drought within the heart."

A 36-in. water pipe was laid, but the meagre flow of water after a considerable time led to the discovery that its bore had been reduced to a 9-in. one by the accumulation of mussels. Almighty God has been very gracious to us as a people, and the reservoir is still full ; what folly to allow the connection of faith and obedience to the Divine will to become choked.

II.

SUNDAY AND THE TOILERS.

What have the vast body of workers to say to this question which concerns them most of all ? The Sunday has been spoken of as " The window in the factory." True, and through it the toiler may look out to his day of rest and change ; and, if he be one who values Divine things, he may look up and on to a better order of the coming future. If he loses the day he will eventually find himself doing seven days' work for six days' pay.

Digitized by Google

Let no one be foolish enough to imagine that Sunday can be retained as a holiday if lost as a holy day. If all sorts of sport and amusement are allowable, why not trade and commerce?

We are made on the principle of seven, both man and beast. Even lifeless metal shows "fatigue" unless rested. We all realize, especially in our modern conditions, that some work must be done on Sundays, but it is due to all such workers that provision should be made that they need not lose sight of the day. By a wise use of Sunday the toiler finds

"Monday's burdens bravely borne,
Tuesday's labours easier done,
Wednesday's duties well fulfilled,
Thursday's trials are half killed.
Friday's cares will be but small,
Saturday's wages then befall,
Sunday's rest comes best of all."

III.

SUNDAY A NATIONAL SAFEGUARD.

A noted Frenchman (Montalembert) said, "There can be no free state without religion; no religion without worship; and no worship without the Sunday." Some time ago in the "Daily Express" was one of Strube's famous cartoons, representing an anarchist dancing with rage on a map of England, and exclaiming "Drat this country, it won't go Red." Certainly not, as long as the British people pause once in a week to listen to the voice of God in His Word and House.

"You will not have the violence in your country we have on the Continent," said M. Guizot to Lord Shaftesbury during the Commune of 1870. "You have the influence of the Bible amongst your people." Exactly so. The writer of Psalm lxxxiv says in verse 9, "Behold, O God, our shield." And in verse 11, "Our God is a sun and shield." Who knows what wild beasts of priestcraft, infidelity and brutality have been kept out of England by the open Bible once a week. The forces of evil know that, and are working day and night for the destruction of the British Sunday.

IV.

SUNDAY THE DAY WHICH CORRECTS VALUES.

"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" said the "fool" of Luke xii. Looking through the wrong end of the telescope the "things which matter" seem almost out of sight; or, to change the figure, materialism is only another term for a disastrous form of astigmatism, which makes the things seen and temporal look so large, and the things unseen and eternal so small (2 Cor. ix, 18). And, like the dog in Æsop's fable, the man with no spiritual values lets go the substance for the shadow, which looks larger.

"I spend my Sundays settling my accounts" said a man of this order. Ah! but what about settling the account for the Sundays later on? he was asked.

V.

SUNDAY INTENDED AS A DAY OF SUN.

"Why do I never see these mules in this field on any other day than Sunday?" asked a gentleman who had freshly come into the district. "They work in a mine near by, and would lose their sight if not frequently brought up," was the reply. So do we to Divine things, working in the mine of this world and not coming up into the light.

All of us, more or less, are bound at some time or other to "pass through the valley of weeping." And without the cheer of the Sabbath, and all that it stands for, it is terribly hard to "carry on," but with it we "go from strength to strength." "How did you manage to raise so beautiful a geranium?" was asked of a girl in poor circumstances, who had won the first prize at a children's flower show. "I always kept it in the sun," she replied. It is significant that God's day is called Sun Day.

VI.

THE SABBATH BELLS ROUND THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

How inspiring the thought in connection with the Empire upon which the sun never sets, and around which, following the sun, is heard the beat of the drum, that there also follows the sweet music of the Sabbath bells.

Twelve hours before we in the Motherland gather for worship, in far-away Fiji the once savage islanders assemble. Some two hours later Eastern Australia and Tasmania respond; then follow those of Western Australia, China, India and Ceylon, preceding us by some five and a half hours. Later, as the earth revolves, come Egypt, Rhodesia and Cape Colony, bringing on the hour for us to take part, whilst following us the peoples of British Guiana, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, South America and Patagonia fall into the grand procession, Canada and the United States answering to the "joyful sound." And, as we are singing our closing hymn, the Christian natives of the Samoa Islands are ringing in the blessed day. Thus forty-eight hours of a glorious Sun Day is experienced in our highly honoured and greatly favoured Empire.

The medical faculty tells us that the sun's rays are the most effective of all germ destroyers. Let Britain, and Greater Britain, and the still greater British Empire, not fail to keep herself in the light of Him Whom Holy Scripture describes as "The Sun of Righteousness, with healing in His wings" (Mal. iv, 2).

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

(MAY MEETING ADDRESS.)

BY THE REV. COMMANDER L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N.

MY subject is the Kingdom of God, which we are to become if everyone of us partake of those three essentials which are spoken of as belonging to the Tribes of the Dispersion, who are Israel. St. James, writing to the Tribes of the Dispersion, tells us that God of His own will begat He us that we should be a kind of first-fruits of His creatures. St. Paul, writing to the saints all over the Roman Empire, says that we are waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God. That is the Empire—the manifestation of the sons of God. We who have received the first-fruits of the Spirit, first of all, are created anew as the first-fruits of His creatures. Lastly, we stand before Him as a hundred and forty and four thousand which have been redeemed from the earth, and are now the first-fruits unto God and to the Lamb. This subject is brought before us especially in view of what the Advent Testimony Movement teaches. They put it all to the Church. Now the Old Testament puts it all to the whole assembly of Israel, together with the strangers out of every nation joined to it. The great congregation are to have these blessings, and it is not right for the Church to appropriate them.

Digitized by Google

Now the very first prophet that we believe to be a prophet of the things of the future is the prophet Joel; he prophesied in the time of Elijah, before Israel went into captivity, and he tells in his prophecy of what is to become of Israel, and finally of Judah. You will notice that his special message is the preparation of the people under the Teacher of Righteousness, the Lord Jesus Christ, Who should come to prepare them for the great day of God Almighty; and the key is simply what we find in the New Testament, "Repent and be converted that your sins may be blotted out (may be forgiven you), when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord." "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions; and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out My Spirit." Acts ii, 17, refers to acherith (Hebrew) —latter, last. In the first instance He poured out His Spirit upon Israel; afterward it is going to be over all flesh. The first part of that fulfilment took place on the Day of Pentecost, when we know the Holy Spirit was poured out upon those who were present, and the result has been that Israel gradually was built up. "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He hath visited and redeemed His people, and hath raised up a mighty salvation for us in the house of His servant David." That has been going on the whole time. We are to be the teachers of the nations until the great day of God comes, and before that great day comes, Joel tells of the pouring out of His Spirit upon all flesh, that is to say, by the preaching of the Gospel of the Kingdom. The whole context shows that the prophecy refers especially to Israel and to Judah. We cannot get rid of the fact that the repentance spoken of in Joel ii, 12-27, has to do with the invasion of the land by the great northern army; that both Israel and Judah are then present in the land; that Judah in the matter of fasting and weeping and mourning is leading in the phraseology of the worship. "Blow the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather the people, sanctify the congregation. . . . Let the priests, the ministers of the Lord, weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say, Spare Thy people, O Lord, and give not Thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them; wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God? Then will the Lord be jealous for His land, and pity His people." This has not yet taken place, for it marks with distinction the difference between the first Pentecost and the last, for which as Israel we are to look forward. This dispensation is being attended with suffering expectation of the whole creation, groaning and travailing together until now, waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God. "Israel is My son and Ephraim is My first-born." The first Coming of Jesus Christ manifested Him to His people Israel as the Son of God. The Second Coming will manifest Israel to the world as the sons of God.

We are told in Joel ii, 30-32: "And I will shew wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the Lord come. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be delivered; for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the Lord hath said, and in the remnant whom the Lord shall call." These things are going to be brought about by the enemy against God's people, and they are to be so tremendous that we shall not be able possibly to cope with them, and God tells us in the 53rd Isaiah exactly what is going to take place when these things come; and we are told that the Lord is going to arise for the salvation of His people Israel; and there will be safety in Jerusalem and in Mount Zion amongst the remnant whom the Lord shall call. We read in St. Matthew and St. Mark that, "After the tribulation of those days, shall the sun be darkened and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heaven shall be shaken. And then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven." St. Luke is more definite. In xxi, 23, he limits the great tribulation to the "great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people, and they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." This we now know was accomplished as a result of the last War. It was the greatest struggle that Israel has ever been called upon to undergo, it was the most miraculous deliverance that we have ever experienced. The innovations resulting from the discovery of fiendish means of destruction, both as regards Israel's shipping by German submarines, and the wholesale destruction by means of gas-poisoning and air bombs, came so near the verge of wholesale destruction, that except those days had been shortened no flesh could have been saved. We are now in the condition which St. Luke points out as the next stage, when the sun is to be darkened. What is it which has brought the nations together to seek to make war no more? Is it not that men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming upon the earth, dreading lest the power of the heavens shall be shaken. "And then shall they see the Son of man coming in power and great glory." We are exhorted, "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh." Here we have the manifestation of the sons of God.

The Coming of the Lord has two aspects. The first is in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall be punished with everlasting banishment from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of His power; and, second, when He shall come to be glorified in His saints, and in all them that believe. We are constantly told of this manner of the Coming in both the Old and New Testaments. Isaiah, speaking of the day when Zion and Jerusalem are to be redeemed, says, "Now will I rise, saith the Lord; now will I be exalted; now will I lift up Myself. Ye shall conceive chaff, ye shall bring forth stubble; your breath, as fire, shall devour you. And the people shall be as the burnings of lime; as thorns cut up shall they be burned in the fire. Hear, ye that are far off, what I have done; and, ye that are near, acknowledge My might. The sinners in Zion are afraid; fearfulness hath surprised the hypocrites. Who among us shall dwell with the devouring fire? Who among us shall dwell with everlasting burnings?" The answer is evidently only those who "walketh righteously." "The righteous nation which keepeth the truth." "He shall dwell on high, his place of defence shall be the munition of rock; bread shall be given him; his waters shall be sure. Thine eyes shall see the King in His beauty; they shall behold the land which is very far off."

Digitized by Google

I would like to refer to a sermon I heard about a month ago which struck me as partly inspired. Speaking of the diabolical manufacture of all these gas bombs and instruments for the destruction of our fellow-creatures, the speaker stated that the word translated "air" did not necessarily only mean the atmosphere in which we live at present, for this is suitable to our mortal bodies. The inference to me is instanced when we find in Daniel iii, 25: "Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God." Here we see that the presence of the Son of God overcomes all "everlasting burnings." The devouring fire which the enemies of God's people invent against them will have no effect upon the people whose God is the Lord. No weapon that is formed against Israel shall prosper. This is our confidence if we trust in the Lord Jehovah. It would appear therefore that these are they who are "redeemed from among men, being the first-fruits unto God and to the Lamb." (Rev. xiv, 4.) The other references are, "Come out of her, My people" (Rev. xviii, 4), and also Rev. xi, 12, "Come up hither. And they ascended up to heaven in a cloud; and their enemies beheld them." We assert that every prophecy of the Old Testament gives the ideal Israel as fulfilling these promises, and the New Testament states that Israel is to repent and to be converted when "the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; And He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you." (Acts iii, 19.)

We can understand now the figure of 2 Peter iii, 7, 10, 12, where the present consummation is likened to the final one after the thousand years. What we are looking for to-day is the fulfilment to Israel of the promises that they are to be "a chosen race, a royal priesthood, an holy nation." And if the Lord delay we are exhorted to account the long-suffering of the Lord's salvation, for He is not willing that any of His people should perish, but that they all should come to repentance. He will also extend in the Millennium the same privilege to all the world through Israel, now, at that time, perfected, telling out to all nations this Gospel of the Kingdom as an assurance that Christ died, a ransom for all, to be testified in due time. (1 Timothy ii, 5, 6.) The perfecting of the first-fruits will be an assurance to all that God is working for the salvation of the world.

"God's Ideal for the Ruling Race" was the title of a lecture at the Bath Branch last month, given by Dr. E. Paget Thurston, in which he dealt with the early history of the Israelitish people, showing that recent discoveries are proving that the art of writing existed from the very earliest times, probably from before the Flood.

DAVID AND GOLIATH.

By COLONEL I. EARDLEY-WILMOT.

THE very name and the historical fact of David is not only of great importance to, but being so closely connected with, British-Israel Truth, is of profound interest to all who hold these beliefs. In addition to this the simple but graphic story of David and Goliath has for generations appealed to all, both young and old, whether British-Israel believers or not, who have heard or read this narrative. Therefore it is with considerable concern and regret that one so frequently comes across the Modernists' assertions that the story of David killing Goliath is not true, but is merely a fanciful legend, as the real killer of Goliath was Elhanan.

Now all who believe in the inspiration of the Bible, as British-Israelites do, may know and feel certain in their own minds that the Modernists are wrong, but at the same time they may not be able clearly to prove their contention. The following remarks are offered as a suggestion and a help to those who would like to refute the aspersions cast on the authenticity of the story of David and Goliath. "The Literary Digest" (U.S.A.) of March 9th contained an article on the dispute as to who killed Goliath, in which it is stated that the "New Commentary," edited by Bishop Gore, asserts that, in accordance with 2 Samuel, Goliath was slain by Elhanan, the son of Jair, in the reign of David; and, further, that critics agree that this statement is more historical than the one in 1 Samuel, which says that David slew him; also that Elmer Davis writes "All but Fundamentalists agree that the truth about Goliath is to be found in 2 Samuel xxi, 19, which says that Elhanan killed him. He also states that 1 Samuel xvii is a later legend. Now, with due respect to Bishop Gore and the "other well-known religious students," his assistants, let us see what are the grounds on which the Fundamentalists and British-Israelites decline to accept the dictum and decision of these Modernists. To begin with, what authority has Mr. Davis to show for saying that 1 Samuel xvii is "a later legend"? Or is it mere assumption and guesswork? Looking at it from a commonsense point of view, it is unlikely that 1 Samuel would be of later date than 2 Samuel. Why should an historian writing about King Saul be of a later date than one writing of his successor, King David? If the same writer wrote both, what reason or proof is there for thinking that he wrote the history of King David long before tackling that of King Saul? And even if he did, the difference in time could hardly come under the heading of "a later legend" as is usually understood by that phrase. Also, why should the historian of this so-called later legend of 1 Samuel want to go out of his way to invent the elaborate details of the slaying of Goliath by David when the so-called earlier story had already attributed it to Elhanan?

As a matter of fact 1 and 2 Samuel were both written by Isaiah about 740 B.C., as 2 Chronicles xxxii, 32 (R.V.) points out. And 1 and 2 Chronicles were written after the return of the Jews from Babylon about 200 years later. Then the "New Standard Bible Dictionary" says "the change in Chronicles was made probably to avoid the contradiction between 1 and 2 Samuel."

The inspired Word of God does not chop and change to bolster up falsehoods, and the change in Chronicles does not avoid the statements in 1 Samuel xvii, 51 and 2 Samuel xxi, 19, but, on the contrary, 1 Chronicles xx, 5 introduces a third element.

Digitized by Google

1 Samuel says David killed Goliath. 2 Samuel says Elhanan killed Goliath. 1 Chronicles says Elhanan killed Lahmi.

The Modernist statements and arguments do not seem very plausible. Let us examine this question from the British-Israelite and Fundamentalist point of view, so that people may judge for themselves which is most likely to be the correct solution of the dispute as to who killed Goliath.

If two authoritative statements are accepted, then the evidence in favour of David having killed Goliath is very convincing. The two statements referred to are: first, the Bible passage which says, "All Scriptures are inspired of God." The second statement is the conclusion arrived at by the Committee of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Washington in 1893, when, after three years careful research by some of the cleverest and most learned men of America, they summed up as follows:—"The Bible as we now have it in its various translations and revisions, when freed from all errors and mistakes of translators, copyists and printers, is the very Word of God and consequently wholly without error."

If these two statements are accepted, then we arrive at a stage where it is admitted that the Bible is the inspired Word of God, but liable to error at the hands of translators and copyists, etc.

The first fact in this question as to who killed Goliath is that there is an obvious discrepancy in the Bible text, as 1 Samuel xvii, 51 says David slew Goliath, but 2 Samuel xxi, 19 says Elhanan slew him.

The question to be decided is, which of these two texts contains the copyist's error?

But before going into that question let us first compare 2 Samuel xxi, 19 with another text, namely, 1 Chronicles xx, 5.

The first text (R.V.) says Elhanan the son of Jaare-oregim (Jair the weaver) slew Goliath. And the A.V. of the same text interpolates the words "the brother of." 1 Chronicles xx, 5 says "Elhanan the son of Jair slew Lahmi, the brother of Goliath."

Evidently these two texts refer to the same event, as the slayer is the same. There is no evidence to show that Elhanan killed two giants.

Is one not justified in assuming that the text in 1 Chronicles is the correct one, and that by a copyist's error the words "Lahmi, the brother of" were omitted from the text in 2 Samuel?

If this is admitted, then that definitely settles the question as to who killed Goliath, as David must have done so.

However, we will waive this evidence and go back to the question as to whether 1 Samuel xvii, 51 was a copyist's error or 2 Samuel xxi, 19, which says that Elhanan slew Goliath. Now in deciding what is the real meaning of any Scriptural text, there are certain rules which must be followed, and the substance of these rules is laid down in St. Peter's statement (2 Peter i, 20), "No Scripture is of private interpretation."

The word for "private" is "epilusis," and means its very own and not his very own, and refers to the text and not to a person. The meaning is that no Scriptural text involving any important statement or doctrine is of any authoritative value unless there are other texts that support it, and also unless there are no texts that contradict it. Let us examine the question on this basis. First of all we will take the case of Elhanan. 2 Samuel xxi, 19 (R.V.) says Elhanan slew Goliath. Now let us apply the above rules. Are there any other texts that support that statement? Not a single one. Are there any texts that contradict it? Quite a lot, excluding even the fact that the A.V. translators in 1611 were convinced that the words "brother of" had been omitted, and also that another historian writing of the same event says clearly it was Lahmi the brother of Goliath who was slain by Elhanan. Now let us take the texts concerning David having killed Goliath. Are there any other texts that confirm this? Yes, lots. Are there any texts that contradict it? Only the one solitary text already referred to in 2 Samuel xxi, 19.

For further evidence let us review the story as told in the Bible. It opens with the year 1063 B.C., where (1 Samuel xvii) we find Saul as King of Israel and David a mere stripling. David goes out to fight Goliath armed only with a shepherd's sling.

The Bible is full of minute and purposeful, though seemingly irrelevant details. In this case we are told David "chose him five smooth stones from the brook." Why not four, or six, or more stones? Was it because he wanted to have a reserve of ammunition in case he missed with his first shot? The Bible does not convey that impression; on the contrary, the Israelites were expert stone slingers; elsewhere we read of seven hundred men "every one of whom could sling a stone at a hair's breadth and not miss."

The result of the fight showed that David was equally expert, and he no doubt knew it. Also David was confident that the God of Israel, whom the Philistines defied, would help him. He says, "This day will the Lord deliver thee into my hand." May there not have been another reason for these five stones, namely, that David knew that the Raphab of Gath had five sons, and he thought that if he slew the son Goliath that his four brothers might in turn take up the challenge? So he "chose him five smooth stones from the brook."

By way of circumstantial evidence which helps to prove the historicity of this story, Colonel Conder, in "Tent Life in Palestine," when writing about his visit to the scene of this exploit, which is fully and geographically described in the Bible, says "there is a ravine or deep trench with vertical sides and a brook running through it." Major Vivian Gilbert, ir his book on the War in Mesopotamia, "The Romance of the Last Crusade," says "they came to the valley at Latron, the scene of David's fight with Goliath," and he adds that the only round smooth stones he ever came across were in this valley.

David kills Goliath and takes his sword and armour.

Modernists lay great stress on the "spear like a weaver's beam," of which mention is made on several other occasions, and they cite this as proof that these subsequent stories were repetitions of the same story and event, or else as proof of weakness in the narrative concerning David.

But is it not more likely that David did not want to be burdened with any "weaver's beam," so he left it and it became a sort of heirloom for Goliath's brothers and so figures in the descriptions of their fights?

Digitized by Google

(We notice in 2 Samuel xxi, 16 that Ishi-benob, a brother of Goliath's, had "a new sword," probably because David had taken Goliath's.)

A few years after this event we read (1 Samuel xxi, 9) that David, being unarmed, asked the priest Ahimelech if he could give him a sword. "And the priest said the sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom thou slewest in the valley of Elah, behold it is here wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod: if thou wilt take that, take it: for there is no other save that here. And David said, There is none like that; give it to me."

Then in 1 Samuel xxii, 9 there is a description of a scene that must have occurred a few weeks later in the camp of Saul. "Then answered (to King Saul) Doeg the Edomite, which was set over the servants of Saul, and said, I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob to Ahimelech the son of Ahitub, and he enquired of the Lord for him and gave him victuals, and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine."

The narrative goes on to say that Saul then killed Ahimelech and his household, and destroyed the city of Nob for having done this. Now who were the five sons of the giant, and what became of them? (1) Goliath, killed by David in the reign of King Saul about 1063 B.C.; (2) Ishi-benob, killed by Abishai (2 Samuel xxi, 16); (3) Saph (Seppai), killed by Sibbechai (Sibka) (2 Samuel xxi, 18, and 1 Chronicles xx, 4); (4) Lahmi, killed by Elhanan (1 Chronicles xx, 5). And also in 2 Samuel xxi, 19, if it is admitted that the words "Lahmi the brother of" have been inadvertently omitted. (5) Unnamed, six-toed man, killed by Jonathan, David's nephew (1 Chronicles xx, 6, and 2 Samuel xxi, 20).

1 Chronicles xx, 8 says, "These were born unto the giant in Gath and they fell by the hands of David and his servants." If David had not killed Goliath this passage would have been incorrect and would have read "fell by the hands of David's servants."

These four brothers were slain when David was King about 1018 B.C., or about 45 years after David had slain Goliath. As we are dealing with God's inspired Word, the Bible, which is most likely to be correct? The Modernist view that the historian who wrote about King Saul wrote at a much later date than the one who wrote about his successor, King David, and when he did write he invented and faked the fifty-four verses of 1 Samuel xvii, and practically the whole of chapters xxi and xxii, with all their graphic descriptions and minute details. Also that the historian Ezra who, years later, wrote Chronicles (the last verse of Chronicles practically ends in the middle of a sentence and goes on in Ezra), deliberately lied when he recorded that Elhanan slew Lahmi and not Goliath.

Or are you going to believe the British-Israel and Fundamentalist view that being the inspired Word of God, but liable to occasional errors from copyists, etc., every single word written concerning the sons of the giant is absolutely true, graphically, historically and chronologically, with the single exception of one copyist's error in 2 Samuel xxi, 19, where the words "Lahmi the brother of" have been accidentally omitted, although duly recorded by another historian writing at a later date on the same subject.

The above evidence seems overwhelmingly in favour of David having killed Goliath and of the reliability and authenticity of the entire narrative.

THE EGYPT OF TO-DAY.

By RICHARD A. D. REMANDA.

THE modernization of Egypt is solely due to the British occupation, and if it is a wealthy nation to-day, it has to thank Great Britain for it.

It was the British who stopped bribery and corruption; it was the British who established a strong, firm and just Government; who increased commerce twentyfold; who, in fact, did everything for the good of Egypt, and therefore Great Britain must be considered the most unselfish nation. "What other nation would have done all she has done for us?" (an Egyptian Pacha).

Yet now Egypt has her independence on condition that she accepts the "four reserved points," one of them being the British military occupation, which is vital for the defence of the "Imperial communications."

Although Great Britain finds it necessary often to give advice, she never interferes in internal affairs, and for that Egypt is worse off than under the Protectorate; and if it were not for the Capitulations the country would certainly be unsafe for Europeans to live in. Should the Capitulations be abolished, all Europeans would immediately leave, which would bring commerce down to nil, all money invested in the country would be withdrawn, and therefore Egypt would be ruined.

It was a great mistake to give Egypt her independence when she was not even half ready for it. Still, under this quasi-independent state, she is able to live and enjoy prosperity never dreamed of before. What then has Egypt lost by the abolition of the Protectorate?

She has lost the discipline of her Government Services, as well as all the great privileges of being a British Protectorate; she has lost the just and firm rule which the Anglo-Saxon race alone can give.

But there is one strongly established fact—that is, that whatever happens in Egypt the British Army of Occupation will be there. Nothing can change or move it; it is there, and it will remain there.

Supposing it did leave, what would happen?

The army of another nation would come and take its place, and then the Egyptians would be treated in quite a different way.

The Union Jack still flies over the military camps and forts in Egypt since the British bombardment of Alexandria in 1882.

It was barely a year ago that Egypt decided to increase her army, contrary to Great Britain's advice. That meant that the Party in power in Egypt would use that army as an instrument against their enemies, dictating to it as they pleased, which would obviously create great disturbances in the country. So Great Britain demanded that the Egyptian Government stop this new scheme. The Egyptians, however, ignored the British request. Thereupon Great Britain sent an ultimatum to the Egyptians to make up their minds in forty-eight hours, and at the end of that time there arrived at Alexandria four British battleships, at the same time at Port Said two other battleships; the British Army was also ready to occupy the Customs and the Egyptian Communications, and Egypt accepted the British request; she would have been very unwise had she not. The Egyptians were testing to see if they could have their own way, but they were dealing with the greatest Empire that ever existed, the first and greatest Christian Empire of all time.

Digitized by Google

THE MYSTERY OF THE GREAT PYRAMID.—I.

By BASIL STEWART.

TRADITIONS CONCERNING THE GREAT PYRAMID.

"No country possesses so many wonders, and has such a number of works which defy description."

Thus wrote Herodotus, the Greek historian, after his visit to Egypt during the fifth century B.C.

Of all these wonders none have given rise to so much speculation as to the purpose for which they were erected as the Great Pyramid, and more has been written about this particular monument than any other building of antiquity.

For certain reasons, the architect concealed the real object for which the Pyramid was built, and he did this so successfully that not even a tradition has come down to us which purports to have originated from the era of its construction.

As a result, all sorts of legends and theories have, in the course of past centuries, grown up around the Great Pyramid. Besides being regarded as a tomb—an idea still held by many—it has been looked upon as an astronomical observatory, a Temple of Initiation, a combined tomb and temple, a granary, as a defence against the sand of the desert, and as a refuge from the Flood.

Concerning this last aspect of it there are several traditions, mostly from Arab sources (the most authentic being that preserved by the Copts), that the Great Pyramid was built as the result of a warning of a coming destruction of mankind, which was revealed to King Surid in a dream in which the Flood was foretold, 300 years before it actually fell.

As a result of this dream and a second vision which followed, Surid "ordered the pyramids to be built (i.e., the first three), and the predictions . . . to be inscribed upon the stones composing them . . . He also ordered the priests to deposit within them written accounts of their wisdom and acquirements in the different arts and sciences, and of arithmetic and geometry, that they might remain as records for the benefit of those who would afterwards be able to comprehend them."

To the foregoing another tradition adds that "in the Great Pyramid were inscribed the heavenly spheres . . . stars and planets in the forms in which they were worshipped . . .; likewise the position of the stars and their cycles, together with the history of time past, of that which is to come, and of every future event which will take place in Egypt."

Yet another tradition—also fron Arab sources—asserts that the pyramids were "filled with a store of riches . . . with arms that rust not, and with glass which might be bent yet not broken," thus anticipating the inventions of the 20th century—rustless steel and flexible glass, though the latter has not so far got beyond the laboratory stage, but has actually been produced.

In these, and other traditions, can be readily traced certain characteristics of the Great Pyramid overlaid with much that is imaginative. While it reveals a wonderful knowledge of astronomy and other sciences, and is also a record of history over a period of 6,000 years, geometrically expressed, it does not contain hieroglyphic inscriptions or representations of the stars such as these traditions imply. When, however, we turn to the Egyptian "Book of the Dead," we find the passages and chambers of its "Secret House" inscribed with such hieroglyphics and pictures of the stars. Tradition, therefore, has erroneously connected the inscribed passages of the allegorical pyramid of the Book of the Dead with the actual passages of the Great Pyramid itself.

The tradition that the Great Pyramid was erected 300 years before the Flood is borne out by the latest archæological evidence. Preliminary work on it was begun during the reign of Surid—hence his association by tradition with the Great Pyramid—and while co-regent with Seneferu. On the death of the latter, and while Surid was still alive, Khufu ascended the throne when actual construction was commenced, the Pyramid being completed during his co-regency with Khafra.

Herodotus tells us construction took twenty years apart from preliminary work. Since Khufu ascended the throne in 2645 B.C., this means it was completed in. 2625 B.C., the year defined by the Pyramid's own chronology, and this year is precisely 300 years before the Flood fell according to Biblical chronology—2345 B.C.

Since the Great Pyramid was erected throughout four overlapping reigns, this suggests—in conjunction with its unique characteristics—that it owes its origin to some race foreign to Egypt. This is borne out by tradition which ascribes it to a race of shepherds who came from the East and who were morally and intellectually on a much higher plane than the Egyptians. Tradition also says they entered the country and subdued it peaceably, and that they came from Arabia. Owing to this similarity of circumstances, Manetho, and others after him down to the present, erroneously identified this race with the so-called Shepherd Kings of the Hyksos Dynasty, who, however, entered Egypt long after the Pyramid had been built.

As to the actual architect of the Great Pyramid various individuals have been suggested, Seth, Enoch, Shem, Melchisedec and Job, the first three being traditionally associated with it, while the two latter are more recent suggestions.

As the Great Pyramid is a symbolic monument of the Messiah, "priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec," that its architect was of this same order is a perfectly reasonable suggestion, while the idea that Job and Melchisedec (not the Melchisedec of Gen. xiv, but an earlier member of the order) were one and the same is also quite possible. The great age of Job (248 years according to the LXX) implies he was a contemporary of the earlier patriarchs, and lived long before Abraham who, dying at age of 175, is described as "an old man and full of years," thereby implying a life longer than the average of his time.

Digitized by Google

Job was of princely rank; so was Melchisedec. Job was a shepherd and an Arabian; such are the traditional characteristics of the architect of the Great Pyramid. The builders of the Pyramid conquered Egypt peaceably, thereby implying extraordinary moral influence over its inhabitants; compare Job xxix as to the greatness and influence of Job. Melchisedec was a worshipper of the one true God, outside the Abrahamic line; so was Job. The Book of Job infers a civilization far in advance of all contemporary civilizations, particularly in its knowledge of astronomy; so does the building of the Great Pyramid.

Finally, Job xxxviii, 4–6, is a clear reference to the Great Pyramid as is borne out by the mention of its "corner-sockets," which are found in no other pyramid. Jehovah is here describing to Job His own Divine action as Creator of the earth by comparing its foundation with that of some building on it well known to Job, and of which he might well have been the actual architect. Its "corner-stone" is made an analogy for the completion of the earth, therefore its placing in position is the last act to be achieved, which could only be carried out on a pyramidal form of construction, at the summit of the edifice.

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—IV.

By S. E. Steele.

Marks and Characteristics.

JUST as the morning sun dispels the mists and clouds of night, so prophecy clears away all doubt and ambiguity with regard to the promises, and gives definite marks and characteristics by which Israel would be recognized.

They would be cast off among the heathen, scattered among the countries, afterwards gathered together and assembled in the land of Israel (Ezek. xi, 16, 17). They would be sifted among all nations, yet not the least grain fall upon the earth, or be lost (Amos ix, 9); gathered into a place of safety (Jer. xxxi, 10; Zech. x, 6; 2 Sam. vii, 10); islands (Jer. xxxi, 10; Isa. xli, 1; xxiv, 15; and lix, 18, 19) situate North (Jer. iii, 12 and 18, and xxiii, 8) and West (Isa. xliii, 5, 6; xlix, 12; and Hos. xi, 10) from Palestine, where they would renew their strength (Isa. xli, 1). Israel would become chief of the nations (Jer. xxxi, 7); God's battle-axe and weapons of war to be used in His service (Jer. li, 20); no weapon that is formed shall prevail against them (Isa. liv, 17); they would be a Christian missionary kingdom (Isa. xlii, 10–12 and xxvi, 2), and keep the Sabbath (Ex. xxxi, 16). Find a nation composed of a people whose ancestors migrated from the East, and whose characteristics correspond minutely with the foregoing promises and prophecies, and you have undoubtedly found Ephraim—Israel.

The only islands North and West from Palestine which bear any resemblance to those specified as the future home of Israel are the British Islands. Britain certainly at the present time is acknowledged as the chief of the nations. Since Britain has been a nation she has fought about 500 battles with foreign powers, and not in a single case has the enemy prevailed against us. Every attempt made to invade our shores has been frustrated; not because of our superiority or strength, not because of our righteousness, but because God said that no weapon should prevail against Israel. The eternal God has been our refuge, and thrust out the enemy from before us. We have, through His mercy, dwelt in safety alone. Britain is without doubt the premier missionary centre in the world. There are approximately 24,000 missionaries throughout the world. Of these, about 22,000 are of the Anglo-Saxon race. The amount of money subscribed for this cause by the same race is over ten times that of all other nations together.

Israel was to keep the Sabbath, for a perpetual covenant; a sign between God and Israel for ever (Ex. xxxi, 16, 17). Britain is the only nation on earth having a statute ordering the keeping of that day. Truly we bear the marks of Israel.

The Land of the Promise.

Quite 75 per cent. of the prophecies in the Bible refer exclusively to the House of Israel, as distinct from the Jews. A small percentage refer to other nations, as in Isaiah's "burdens of the nations," and the remainder refer to the Jews alone, or to Judah and Israel, but, with a few exceptions, as distinct and separate. Amongst the latter may be included Zechariah (x, 6): "I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph"; Hosea (i, 11), "Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head"; and Ezekiel (xxxvii, 16, 17, 22), "Moreover, thou son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions (all Jews were children of Israel, but not of the Kingdom of Israel): then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions: and join them one to another into one stick: and they shall become one in thine hand. . . . And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all." It is very evident that these prophecies, though probably in course of fulfilment, have not yet been completed.

It appears a little perplexing that the reunion of all Israel will take place in the Holy Land, but it should not be forgotten that it will be a representative gathering: "I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion." These were words spoken to "backsliding Israel," not to "treacherous Judah" (Jer. iii, 12, 14). Moreover, the same blessings were promised in two different places: (1) "In the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee" (Deut. xxviii, 8), the place of safety previously referred to, the home to which God in His mercy and favour led our forefathers, islands (Great Britain), North-West from Palestine; and (2) "In the land which the Lord sware unto thy fathers to give thee" (Deut. xxviii, 11), the land of Canaan, Palestine restored. The blessings promised (in 1) have been showered upon Britain: those promised (in 2) will just as certainly come to pass in God's own time. It appears as though the restoration has recently commenced.

Considering the above prophecies collectively, the conclusion is justified that Israel will be blessed in the land God gave them, and will welcome members of Judah as brethren; and that Judah and Israel, representatively, will be blest together in Palestine.

Digitized by Google

OBITUARY.

THE LATE MRS. MABEL VIRGINIA ANNA BENT.

IT is with very great regret indeed that we have to announce the death of our dear friend, Mabel Virginia Anna Bent, widow of the late J. Theodore Bent, F.S.A., F.R.G.S., and daughter of the late R. W. Hall-Dare, D.L., of Newtonbarry House, Co. Wexford, in her eighty-fourth year. Mrs. Theodore Bent's house in early days and until she was incapacitated through failure of health was always open to all who were interested in British-Israel Truth. She was one of the earliest of the British-Israel Association, and always with open purse and open house to all Evangelical endeavours for the advancement of the Kingdom of God, she will be greatly missed by all who knew her. But especially will our Federation miss her ever-willing and generous gifts on behalf of the work, and her presence always at all our Council meetings until her seizure, about two years ago. She always loved to make her house a home for the former Secretary of the British-Israel Association, and ever since 1907, whenever he was brought to London in connection with the work or otherwise. We but express the sentiment of all our friends in thanking God for having given us such an example of a cheerful giver and a patient sufferer to His Will. Personally, I have lost a dear loving friend, ever ready with a welcome to make her house one's home. We tender our hearty sympathy to all she has left to mourn her loss. She is but "gone before."

L. G. A. ROBERTS.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—Since we are clearly living in the latter days of the times of the Gentiles, how is it that this nation, who you claim are Israelites, has played so important a part in world affairs?—A. R. W.

ANSWER.—Yes, it is quite true to say that we are living in "the latter days," and for that reason, if for no other, we must expect to see the wonderful development and expansion of Israel. The promises which Jacob gave to his sons (Gen. xlix) were to come into fulfilment and operation in the "last" (R.V. "latter") days. This means to say that the Covenant promises could not begin to be fulfilled until after Christ had "visited and redeemed His people." We must then expect to see Israel's gradual development take place in the Christian dispensation. But the latter is a long period, and so Biblical prophecy tells us that not until "the time of the end" could the main bulk of the promises be fulfilled, although they began to operate slowly after mediæval days with the dawn of the Reformation.

To Israel has therefore been given the trust of world evangelization, and through the expansion of Israel, and the glory of Israel's wonderful Empire, peace, protection and prosperity are to be planted amongst the nations of mankind. A study of the prophecies concerning the future of Israel, which prophecies are distributed very largely in the books of the Major and Minor Prophets, as well as in earlier portions of the Bible, will show that God has destined Israel to be a great power and spiritual force in the world, a nation (company of nations) of great potential influence for good, and a nation standing for Divine righteousness (Isa. liv, 17), with the consequent result that "all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which the Lord hath blessed."

So the question quite naturally arises, How can such a Divinely-appointed nation, with its time-honoured and God-given birthright, function in the world without playing an important part in world affairs? God did not intend Israel to be a hermit living secluded in a cave, nor did He will that Israel should be an isolated people, shut off from communication with other nations. Obviously, Israel had and has to be a living force, "the head and not the tail," the backbone of Christian civilization, the triumph of Divine order amongst men, existing to put down illegal oppression, to shatter unlawful world powers, and to promote spiritual advancement.

That is why under God's guidance we suppressed the aggrandizement of Spain in the 16th century, prevented the French Revolution from crossing the Channel, crushed the slave trade, imprisoned Napoleon, won the Crimean War, set free Egypt and the Soudan, liberated South Africa, and only too recently overthrew the Central Powers of Europe, to the glory of Palestine's freedom. "The times of the Gentiles" have nearly but not quite expired, and so we must expect Israel to do still more now and in the near future in playing a great part in world affairs to benefit the lot of humanity, and to hasten the time when Zion's King shall reign gloriously.

NEW ARTICLES BY MR. DAVIDSON.

THE STRUCTURAL ASPECTS OF THE GREAT PYRAMID.

A PAPER READ BEFORE THE YORKSHIRE BRANCH OF THE INSTITUTION OF STRUCTURAL ENGINEERS, AT LEEDS, ON FEBRUARY 7TH, 1929. BY D. DAVIDSON, M.C., F.R.A.S. (MEMBER).

We wish to draw the special attention of our readers to this important paper by Mr. Davidson, the first portion of which appears in the Society's Journal, "The Structural Engineer," for July. The second part will appear in the August number of that journal. Both may be obtained from the Covenant Publishing Company, Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1, price one shilling each number, or by post 1s. 2d.

Although written for an audience of technical experts, Mr. Davidson has succeeded in condensing a vast amount of information into a form suitable also for the general reader, and in co-relating the researches of other authorities with his own investigations and conclusions.

Mr. Davidson is to be congratulated on this masterly resume of the evidence from all sources and upon its presentation in an attractive and readable form. The paper is profusely illustrated by pictures, maps and diagrams. It is a multum in parvo of Pyramid study, and has the further advantage of including a Bibliography of ancient and modern authors.

"The king shall joy in Thy strength, O Lord; and in Thy salvation how greatly shall he rejoice!"—Ps. xxi, 1.

"His glory is great in Thy salvation: honour and majesty hast Thou laid upon him."—Ps. xxi, 5.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

MR. AND MRS. GARRISON arrived in Vancouver, British Columbia, on July 1st, and a cable received at Headquarters on the 6th from Mr. Goard shows that our Secretary-General is losing no time or opportunity. The cable reads :—

"Garrison given fine addresses here, important gatherings leading citizens, great receptions, keenest appreciation, other meetings arranged here and Victoria. Greetings.—Goard."

* * *

Mr. Wm. Whitton has had a busy time in Hull spreading the glorious Message. On Sunday, June 23rd, he preached morning and evening in the Gospel Mission, Wincolmlee, before full congregations, who heard the Gospel of the Kingdom and the Gospel of Salvation preached together for the first time. On Monday evening the same hall was again crowded, when the lecture "Why Britain holds the Keys of the World" was given. Tuesday afternoon a Drawing-room meeting at the home of Captain and Mrs. Leeson at Beverley, where eight new members were enrolled; and in the evening the address was to the Hull Branch of the Federation before the best audience seen there; the subject was "The British Throne." Our Movement is growing in Hull. Another full week-end of meetings is already arranged for October.

* * *

The Herne Bay Branch, under the chairmanship of their President, Mr. E. W. Angell, held a meeting on June 24th, at which the Fourth Annual Report was presented. This Report showed that 21 lectures, 29 Prayer and Bible Study classes, 33 work meetings, and one reception were held. Parcels of garments, toys, etc., have been despatched to India, Kenya Colony, to the Southern Irish Loyalists and ex-Service men, the National Children's Home and Orphanage, and the London City Mission. The total number of articles sent during the time under report amount to 2,153. A very satisfactory financial statement showed a balance in hand on the year's work. Members of the Branch and residents in the town have the Lending Library open for their use. The Committee extended thanks to all who have so nobly given their help and support, also to the Herne Bay Press and The Guardian for the full reports given of the lectures. All united in thanking God for His great blessings on the work of the Branch.

* * *

Prayers have been requested on behalf of a member suffering from nervous breakdown, baffling all human efforts. The case is in South Africa.

* * *

A very successful Drawing-room meeting was held at Dover on June 26th, when Mrs. Dent Gardner invited over thirty guests to hear Miss Hamilton Hunter lecture on "The Stone Symbolism in the Kingdom of Israel." The chair was taken by Mrs. E. M. Carter, Hon. Sec. of the Folkestone Branch. Great interest was manifested, and all were delighted with the lucid answers given to questions.

* * *

Opportunity for relaxation, with the bracing effects of sea air, can be enjoyed with hosts who are sharers in the delights of a knowledge of British-Israel Truth at the delightfully comfortable Guest House, 42, Grosvenor Road, Westcliff, under the very capable direction of Miss Edith Muskett. Other helpful features are a lack of many stairs, and being but two minutes from the sea and five minutes' walk from the station.

* * *

A Book Room has been opened by Mrs. S. P. Barry, at 2, Church Street, Old Bank House, Bradford-on-Avon, where Mrs. Barry may be found in charge. The Rev. W. T. Medhurst has started a Bookstall in the Market Place, Cardiff. We hope these will be extensively used, and thus help to make our literature more widely known.

* * *

A visitor to our Hostel at Glastonbury writes :—"Having just returned from a holiday at 'Abbots Leigh,' I would like to say how exceedingly comfortable I was, and what great kindness was shown me by Miss Jennings . . ."

* * *

Here is the itinerary of a three weeks' return trip made by our Commissioner in South Africa, Rev. Maxwell Carnson, lecturing once or more in each place. Leaving East London May 27th—Kingwilliamstown, Fort Beaufort, Grahamstown; June 1st—Mankagama, Pearston, Wellfound, Jansenville, Graaf Reinet, Aberdeen, Willowmore, Knysna, Mossel Bay, Swellendam, Caledon, Somerset West, Stellenbosch, Paarl; June 19th—Cape Town. This mileage of 828 on dirt roads, corrugated and bumpy, is arduous work, with the lecturing in between, and preaching on Sundays. An instance of the progress being made is Mankagama, a valley thirty miles long and about the same distance from the railway, where are fifteen farmers and their families. We had not one member there. To-day there are three subscribers to the work and ten subscribers to the journal. The total distance travelled on this one trip was 2,968 miles, during which our Commissioner only visited two of the established centres. This journey was practically touching the coastal fringe only of the Cape Province. The number of townships visited on the tour was 26, in only three of which has there been the opportunity previously of preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom; yet the greatest encouragement has been given to our work and enthusiasm shown for the Message. In some cases the minds of anti-British folk amongst the Dutch have been turned in the right direction by our teaching of Scripture Truth. The problems before the work here are extremely difficult and heavy, but there is no doubt of the ultimate success, helped by the prayers and sympathetic understanding of those at home.

* * *

We have to record, with sorrow, the passing of three stalwarts of the British-Israel Movement—Mr. Matthew Graham Coltart, of Dumbartonshire, Mr. John H. Tench, of Darlington, and Mrs. Theodore Bent, of London. An obituary notice of Mrs. Bent appears in our columns this week, and some notes of the long service for the Kingdom of Mr. Coltart and Mr. Tench will be given in future issues.

Digitized by Google

Anxious to hear the Gospel of the Kingdom. A B.-I. lecturer in South Africa writes: " . . . on the outward journey, so far as we knew, we had two members in . . . a town of about 4,000 whites and in a Dutch district. With trepidation the bills were put up for the Town Hall, and . . . surprised to find it packed to the doors."

* * *

It would be appreciated by the speakers, the Rev. Joseph Gay and Mr. McKelvey, if everyone in the district who can will support the open-air gatherings at Wealdstone on the 18th, 19th and 20th, at 8 p.m.

* * *

A correspondent in the U.S.A. writes: " . . . you people certainly know history. Surely God must be revealing these things to His people at this time."

From West Australia: " I should not like a week to go by without receiving my precious paper."

* * *

From Mississippi: "Yesterday we surely were made happy by the arrival of the books and pamphlets which you sent. . . . The wonder of it all continues to grow on us, and on the community as well. Several requests have come for a reading circle or study class, and we will probably begin next week with at least twenty, maybe more. . . . Nearly finished reading " The Kingdom of God." . . . Cannot thank you enough for all that has come from your office."

* * *

During the past week we have had the pleasure of greeting visitors to Headquarters from many parts of the world, including Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, California, several Provinces of Canada, Roumania, Genoa, and many places in the British Isles.

* * *

The Port Elizabeth (South Africa) Branch is holding regular monthly meetings, many clear lines of thought being expressed by the various speakers: the opinion voiced by those attending is that the addresses and discussions are most helpful and inspiring.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 15th, at 8.

CHICHESTER, St. Martin's Hall, St. Martin's Lane, Tuesday, 16th, at 3 and 7.30. Mr. J. J. Morey.

HORNSEY AND CROUCH END, Haig Memorial Hall, Elder Avenue, Tuesday, 16th, at 8. Mrs. H. Aiers.

HULL, Church Institute, Albion Street, Tuesday, 16th, at 7.30. Mr. W. H. Jackson.

KINGSTON, Monday and Tuesday, 15th and 16th. Miss Hamilton Hunter.

KNIGHTSBRIDGE, 8, Wellington Court, Monday and Tuesday, 15th and 16th. Miss Hamilton Hunter.

LEICESTER, S.S. Memorial Hall, New Walk, Monday, 15th, at 7.45. Mr. E. C. Turner.

PUTNEY, 12, Ravenna Road, Monday, 15th, at 8. Study Circle, Rev. Kenneth Dodds. Election of Officers, etc.

SOUTHAMPTON, Wednesday, 17th. Mr. J. J. Morey.

WATFORD AND DISTRICT, 20, St. Alban's Road, Friday, 12th, at 7.45. Questions.

WEALDSTONE, Open-air Meetings at Headstone Drive, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, 18th, 19th and 20th, at 8.

NOTICE.

All Members and Associates of the British-Israel-World Federation, and all Members of Affiliated Associations or Branches of the Federation, are requested to take notice that a Special General Meeting of the Federation will be held at the Headquarters of the Federation, 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1, on Friday, the 20th day of September, 1929, at 5.30 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of passing a Resolution, if considered advisable, sanctioning proposed new and amended Rules for the Federation, which have been prepared and approved of by the General Council.

The proposed new Rules may be inspected at Headquarters by any such Member or Associate who may so desire.

ROYAL COURT HOTEL

SLOANE SQUARE, LONDON, S.W.1.

A first-class Hotel with comfort and refinement at

MODERATE TARIFF.

120 Rooms, all with Central Heating, running Hot and Cold Water and P.O. Telephones. Numerous private Bathrooms. Large and small suites. Two Electric Lifts.

FINEST OPEN POSITION, FACING FULL SOUTH. Proximity Victoria Station, B.-I. Headquarters and Hyde Park. HIGH-CLASS RESTAURANT. FULLY LICENSED.

Tels.: "Oyacourtel, Sloane, London." 'Phone: Sloane 9191.

A. WILD, late Continental and Mena House, CAIRO.

GREAT BRITAIN, GREAT

By Prof. E. ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S., F.R.C.I.

New and Revised English Edition.

A collection of evidence from the speeches and writings of those who are not of the Covenant Race, indicating the situation to-day of God's Israel, which is to be while the "sun, moon and ordinances of Heaven endure."

A Most Convincing Collection.

Price 1s. By post 1s. 2d.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

Israel in Prophecy and History

By P. W. THOMPSON, M.A.

Possibly the finest historical survey in relation to the identity that has yet been written. Mr. Thompson's work is well known to our readers through "The Old Book and the New Age," "The Whole Tithe," &c. This, his first, B.-I. book will enhance his reputation a hundredfold.

He shows clearly the raising up during the third day and his picture of the awakening of England at its close is a masterpiece of historical writing.

The drawing of John Wesley and the part he played is exceptionally fine.

240 Pages. Demy 8vo. Price 5/-, by post 5/6.

The Covenant Publishing Co. Ltd.
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

THE UNION JACK
OUR NATIONAL FLAG

Its Symbolism and History.

Illustrated by coloured diagrams opening out to a width of 16 inches.

Every child of your acquaintance should learn through these pages the inner sacred meaning of the flag under which we are proud to live.

Price 3d. only - By post 4d.

THE
COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

IS THE BIBLE CREDIBLE?

DO you realize that if you accept the Modernist theory of Evolution you deny the Divine inspiration of your Bible?

Modernism and German-made Higher Criticism combine to destroy faith in the truth and the sacredness of our beliefs. God either created man in His own image or He did not, and if not we are as the beasts that perish.

Dr. McCrossan's book comes as a refreshing draught to a thirsty man, to those who truly believe that God's Word is in the Bible—that God's Word is the Bible. His array of facts and his forceful style chastise the Higher Critic and the Modernist. He takes his stand on God's Word and is unassailable.

Everyone who holds the Christian Faith should read—

The Bible: Christ and Modernism. By T. J. McCROSSAN, B.A., D.D.

Price 3/6; by Post 3/9. Canada and U.S.A., 95 cts. Post Free.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO. LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER
JULY 20, 1929. Price TWOPENOE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

"THY (ABRAHAMS) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" Gen 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" Numbers 24·7

Gt. BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID — 1st CHRON 29 v 23 — JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT" Is 19 v 19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J.J.HALL, del.

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962 Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

Books by

Rev. Commander L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N.

These Books should be carefully studied by every student of B.-I. teaching. They deal authoritatively with many aspects which go to the construction of our glorious story.

Druidism in Britain.

Price 4d. By post 5d.

An essay, showing profound knowledge and research, devoted to the preparation of our British ancestors for the coming of Christianity, the arrival and acceptance of which is described in

The Early British Church.

Price 4d. By post 5d.

Which proves that the early arrival of the Gospel in these islands was not the work of Rome, but was part of the Divine plan for the settlement of Israel in that "other place."

British History traced from Egypt and Palestine.

SECOND EDITION, REVISED and GREATLY ENLARGED. WITH MAPS AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

This very valuable Work of Reference gives the historical, ethnological and philological basis for the belief that Israel is in Britain and the United States. It is a concise exposition of nearly all that can be said, under these headings, of Israel in Britain; especially connecting the race under its various tribes between East and West.

Price 4s. 6d. By post 4s. 9d.

Studies in Ezekiel.

Paper Covers 2s. 6d. By post 2s. 8d.

Studies in Jeremiah.

Cloth only 3s. 6d. By post 3s. 9d.

These two books should be read in conjunction. They deal with the prophecies relating to the establishment of the seed of David upon the British Throne.

Map of Israel's Migrations into Britain.

WITH EXPLANATORY INDEX.

A Work of Reference which will be found indispensable by every B.-I. student.

Price 6d. By post 7d.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 394. Vol. VIII. JULY 20th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—II. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	449
GLASTONBURY.—I. By Luke Pearce	451
THE CRISIS IN THE CHURCH AND THE WAY OUT.—I. By the Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A.	452
THE MYSTERY OF THE GREAT PYRAMID.—II. By Basil Stewart	455
WHAT GOOD IS IT? May meeting address by the Rev. Lumley Davies, L.D.	456
OBITUARY—The late Mr. Matthew Graham Coltart; the late Mr. John H. Tench (with Portrait)	457-458
A PROBLEM OF INDIAN HISTORY	458
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—V. By S. E. Steele	459
WHAT KING ALFRED DID	461
CORRESPONDENCE	461
A PRAYER	461
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	462

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—II.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

WE have looked at this matter in the preceding article from the standpoint of time. We shall now proceed to ask the question:

"Is the Second Coming of our Lord an event or a process?"

Most of us have been in the habit of looking upon this great fact of future history as an event. The word of the Apostle Paul has been in our minds, "In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," and we have assumed that everything connected with the Coming of our Lord will be compacted within that infinitesimal period of time. But is this assumption right? Have we the event of a moment or of a day, or have we a process which shall stretch over many days and perhaps many years?

We shall not endeavour to make any estimate of time. All that we shall do is to enquire as to whether we are dealing with a sudden happening, or with a sequence of transactions which will cover a period of time more or less long.

Lest we fall into a misunderstanding here, and seem to be questioning that which we do not question for a moment, but which we hold, and on which at times we delight to comfort ourselves as we are exhorted to do by the Apostle Paul, we will say clearly and specifically that we believe the sequence of events spoken of in the first and second Epistles to the Thessalonians is sudden, and covered by the expression "In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye." In that moment "THE LORD HIMSELF SHALL DESCEND FROM HEAVEN WITH A SHOUT, WITH THE VOICE OF THE ARCHANGEL, AND WITH THE TRUMP OF GOD:

AND THE DEAD IN CHRIST SHALL RISE FIRST:

THEN WE WHICH ARE ALIVE AND REMAIN SHALL BE CAUGHT UP TOGETHER WITH THEM IN THE CLOUDS, TO MEET THE LORD IN THE AIR:

AND SO SHALL WE EVER BE WITH THE LORD."

This is a very clear statement of a sequence of facts which shall transpire so almost simultaneously that the Apostle Paul wrote to the Corinthians regarding this matter as follows:

"Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed.

In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed." (1 Cor. xv, 51, 52.)

The sequence of events takes in:

(1) The Lord's Coming.
(2) The Archangel coming with Him.
(3) The sounding of the trump of God, which has been silent since the stirring pealing of the trumpet in the camp of Israel announcing the Coming of Jehovah to establish Himself as King in Israel for ever.
(4) The resurrection of the dead in Christ.
(5) The translation of the living in Christ.
(6) And the ascent of the whole body into the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and
(7) So shall we ever be with the Lord.

What a wonderful passage. What a wonderful sequence of events, and what a singularly short time in which the whole takes place.

Digitized by Google

With all our Advent Testimony brethren we glory in this sudden and imminent consummation of the hopes of the Church of God. It is as sure as the sunrise to-morrow. It is as certain in its place in prophecy as it will be when recorded as an event in history. For the word of Divine prophecy is quite as dependable as the word of written history, even when that history has been written under the guidance of the Holy Ghost and with full knowledge of the accomplished event.

Therefore together we comfort ourselves with these words.

We are one then in this. But is this all that the sacred Scriptures reveal to us regarding the Coming of the Lord? We believe that it is not. We believe that there are phases of the Coming which are not covered by the foregoing quoted statements of the Bible; phases which do not occur at the same time. Let us see what these are, so that if there be more light regarding the Coming of our Lord we may not miss it nor be unenlightened.

While we dwell upon the event we have been discussing, let us guard ourselves against the error of thinking that the whole of the ascending hosts will be limited to even the real membership roll of the Christian Church even as the Lord knows it. The resurrected hosts will include the "dead in Christ" who lived before the Christian dispensation began.

The Apostle Paul was born in the Mosaic dispensation. He received his training there, and the foundations of his life were laid there. He voices his earnest thought for the Israel of the Fathers in his impassioned words in Romans ix–xi. In speaking of the resurrection and translation he had in view the hosts of the redeemed who lived before Christ, and who believed in Him as we believe in Him as coming again, namely, believed in Him before the event of His birth. So we see the resurrection of the righteous dead among whom are the prophets; David the king of Israel; Moses the man of God, who was called the friend of God; Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the founders of the people of God; and the antediluvian patriarchs as well. The great day is larger than that organization which we know by the name of the Christian Church.

All the redeemed of Israel will be there.

Let us now turn to other phases of this great theme.

We have dealt with the foregoing first because we would avoid the danger of misunderstanding. Just where this event will come in in the sequence indicated by the Bible, and especially by our Lord Himself, is a question we may return to later. Now we will turn to chapter xvi of Revelation.

In this chapter we have the pouring out of the vials. It will be necessary for us to say a word as to the chronological scope of this chapter. What is the scope of the period covered by the pouring out of the vials? Briefly we should say that the scope of the period is short. It is covered within a few decades.

We are aware that some of what is called "the historic school" will put a question mark here. That is all right. Every statement should be questioned and verified; this statement among them.

We are not of the so-called historic school. We are not of the so-called futurist school. We are simply open-minded readers of the sacred Word. The historic school are right in part. The futurist school are right in part. Perhaps we shall be right in part. It is not given as yet to any man to know all, and so to be wholly right. Let the things we know, and the things we tell, be things which lie clearly and obviously on the surface of the Word of God.

The Seals, we believe, cover the whole of the prophetic period of seven times.

The Trumpets, we believe, cover the whole of the period of the last half of the seven times, namely, time, times, and half a time.

The Vials, we believe to be a rapid sevenfold fulfilment within the period covered by the last trumpet, within the scope of which the seven vials are poured out.

We believe this last rapid sevenfold fulfilment began to take place in August, 1914.

We believe that we are now in the sixth vial and getting on towards the end of the period covered by it, and of the things indicated in it.

What are those things?

1. The drying-up of the Euphrates—or the passing of the Turkish Empire. Dr. Grattan Guinness pointed this out over forty years ago. As to this we believe there is general agreement. Then if that be the case, the passing of the Turkish Empire indicates the time of the sixth vial to be NOW.

2. The going forth of "the three evil spirits like frogs"! Who can doubt but that this is being directly fulfilled by the intense and universal propaganda which is abroad in the world to-day emanating from the Communist, led by Russia; the Papal political activity which has never been so active and powerful as it is to-day; and the Mohammedan activities throughout Asia and Africa?

The object of these is the obtaining of world rule. The effect of all this is to gather the kings of the earth and of all the world to the battle of the great day of God Almighty.

Who can read this and fail of the conviction that we are reading of national and international affairs?

To meet this situation we have the declaration of our Lord: "BEHOLD I COME AS A THIEF . . ."

We have His pronouncement of blessing upon those who watch and keep their garments. "Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame."

We have His assembly of His forces stated thus: "And gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon."

Thus the three evil spirits like frogs gather the forces of the earth and the world to the battle of the great day of God Almighty; and the Lord gathers His forces into the plain of Megiddo, otherwise called Armageddon.

It will be seen that this is a matter of preliminary strategy. Both forces are gathering to the field of conflict. But our Lord gathers His forces "INTO." This is important. Forces which go "into" a place enter into a place of strength and of defence. Armageddon is not a battle. It is a geographical place which is known and has been well known for ages. It is and has been the key to Palestine from the North for ages.

The Coming of our Lord in this instance is in connection with national and international affairs. This is important. It has no direct connection with the raising of the dead and the translation of the living. The Coming of our Lord in this instance is "as a thief," that is to say, as one who keeps his presence hidden.

Digitized by Google

Our people will be there at the appointed place. Many will by faith realize that they are being led and defended by the Lord. Many will believe no such thing, and will wonder and will fear as what is to be the outcome of all this matter. The presence of the Lord will not be suspected by the enemy and will not be visualized by His own people. But He will be present, guiding and defending the forces which defend the Kingdom of the Lord.

This seems to be the first contact as to the Coming of the Lord.

Let us watch the defensive works at Haifa, and any further works which may be carried through at Megiddo. They have a wonderful significance for the present day and generation.

Let us now turn to the prophet Zechariah, chapter xiv.

We cannot avoid breaking into the midst of this prophetic book. To consider the whole would take a volume, and to do so in such an article as this is not possible. Let the reader consider the whole book at his leisure. He will find in it much food for thought. The passage referred to reads as follows:

"Behold, the day of the Lord cometh, and thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee.

For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; . . .

Then shall the LORD go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle.

And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south.

And ye shall flee to the valley of the mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal: yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah, king of Judah: and the LORD my God shall come and all the saints with thee . . ."

Here we have another episode in the Coming of the LORD. Manifestly it is connected with the national and international situation. The war called in Revelation "the battle of the great day of God Almighty" has progressed to the final consummation in the capture of the city of Jerusalem.

The last, the very last act in this particular struggle, and the last act in the great drama of war throughout all the ages is now come. With the feet of the Lord standing upon the Mount of Olives and the cleaving of the mountain in twain, thus separating the forces of the nations from the forces of Israel, war is caused to cease in the earth for ever.

Reading the great statement carefully, it does not appear as though the presence of the Lord upon the Mount of Olives is seen or recognized by the contending forces. All that our people are aware of, apparently, is the earthquake. They flee to the valley of the mountains from the earthquake.

The further statement of the Coming of the LORD with all His saints is in the future tense. "The Lord my God shall come. . . . ."

The gathering of the forces of the Lord to the place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon is prior to the outbreak of hostilities. It is the preliminary strategical movement of the forces of Israel.

The standing of the Lord upon the Mount of Olives is the last act in the conflict. The gathering-place to which the Lord comes as a thief is at Megiddo, thirty miles or so north of Jerusalem. The feet of the Lord in the latter act stand upon the Mount of Olives at Jerusalem.

Here is manifestly a statement of sequent events. They show the measures by which the Lord will personally deliver His nation from being overpowered by the enemy forces. The people of the Lord will be at their wits' end and at the end of their resources when He finally intervenes. But let those who imagine that the Lord will give Israel over to the enemy when He has withdrawn His Church, read the statements again. The throne of David, which is the throne of the LORD, will never be subjugated again by the forces of the enemy. Neither will Israel ever again be brought under subjection by any alien power.

GLASTONBURY.—I.

By LUKE PEARCE.

As there is an increasing interest, especially among British-Israelites, in this historically interesting town, we may be excused for recounting some of its deeply-interesting associations. Its popularity has waxed and waned from time to time, sometimes its visitors have far exceeded the accommodation.

The town is beautifully situated as a centre from which to visit other historical scenes, such as Wells and its beautiful Cathedral; the two valleys of King's Sedgmoor and Sedgmoor, of the Duke of Monmouth fame; Athelney and its environs, immortalized by King Alfred's retreat and from whence, at the proper moment, he sallied out to meet and defeat the Danes, etc., etc. The neighbourhood is pretty as well as historical.

The peninsula on which the town stands, for such it is, being almost entirely surrounded by the waters of the River Brue, was called by the ancient Britons Yniswytrin, signifying a "glassy island," from what circumstance is uncertain; the Saxons called it Glastn-Ey or Glastingabrig, the former also signifying the "glassy island"; and it was called by the Romans "Insula Avalonia" or the Isle of Avalon, either from the British word "avalla," which signifies apples, and in allusion to its orchards, or from a British chief of the name of Avallac.

We are further told that at one time the town was on the shore, the sea from Bridgwater coming up close. Indeed, up to the present, the whole valley of Sedgmoor is assessed under a "dam and dyke" rate, for the purpose of keeping back the sea at Bridgwater, thus freeing 18 or 19 miles of good land for cultivation. Peat has for many years been dug there and sold for fuel.

The town is flanked on one side by Weary-all Hill, so named from Joseph of Arimathæa and his companions, who, tradition has it, were turned adrift in an open boat, and having landed here found their way to the summit where they rested, and on which Joseph stuck his walking-stick in the ground, which afterward grew and budded regularly for 1,500 years on Christmas Day, till it was cut down in the time of Charles I by the Puritans. The Holy Thorn, as it was known, was not a native of this country, but of Palestine; a flat stone with an inscription marks the spot where Joseph rested and the thorn stood.

Digitized by Google

On the opposite side the town is flanked by Glastonbury Tor, a large round mound, very much like an ancient British earthwork, over 500 feet high, and which commands a fine prospect of the surrounding country. It is crowned by a beautiful tower which belonged to the ruined Church of St. Michael. The monks of Glastonbury Abbey are credited with having carried the stones from the quarries up those 500 feet. The tower has at least two "object-lessons," or "pictures without words," over its doorway in bas-relief; one represents a woman milking a cow, suggestive of the "pure milk of the Word"; the other represents St. Michael with a pair of scales weighing the Bible against the Devil, whose legs are seen aloft while the Bible is down as low as it can go, suggesting the worth and ultimate triumph of the sacred Scriptures.

The church was totally destroyed by earthquake in 1276, but soon rebuilt in splendid fashion.

The town grew up from and around an old monastery, alleged by monkish historians to have been founded in Apostolic times, but which does not appear on any good evidence to date before the year 708. It had a most chequered history. The Danes demolished it in 873; was rebuilt in 942 by Edmund; destroyed by fire in 1184; restoration by Henry III; destruction by earthquake in 1276; another restoration; and continued till the Reformation as a grand seat of monastic rule. The remarkable whirlwind, from west to east, which passed over the buildings in 1856, dealt rather gently with it, only tearing off the roofs of some of its houses.

Yeatman, in the preface to his "English Church History," says: "They [the facts of history chronicled by him] are launched upon the stream of time with hesitation, from a conviction that in so much darkness it is very dangerous to attempt to find the way."

And again, further on, he says: "We owe a great debt of gratitude to the monks of old, for whatever is authentic in our history from the departure of the Romans until the restitution of order by the Danes is given to us by them. . . . To take the works of the Venerable Bede, the greatest of all our monkish writers, how easy it is to separate whatever is fabulous from reality, and how clear it is that the writer, even when he was most wandering from the truth, was intending very humbly and faithfully to do his duty."

"We shall find that down to the year 449, if not later, the facts [in the Saxon Chronicle] borrowed entirely from Bede, are, indeed, not Saxon annals but a Saxon translation of scraps from his works from monkish registers and Latin authors. . . . Nothing but the preface is original; the whole is a work of book making, of collecting and translating, which any monk at any of the great monasteries could readily concoct for himself. We must bear in mind that there is no documentary evidence prior to 635, and from that period the mixture of the unreliable traditional with the earliest traces of documentary evidence renders the whole untrustworthy, and deprives it of historic value. . . . Bede gathered his knowledge from the priests around him, and how they obtained it we do not know."

We are thankful for the author's candour and admissions, which may help us in what we have to say of the Abbey and the first Christian Church at Glastonbury.

THE CRISIS IN THE CHURCH AND THE WAY OUT.

BY THE REV. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, M.A.
(for 26 years a Missionary of the C.M.S. to Ceylon).

PART I.

WHEN I speak of the Church I do not refer exclusively to the Church of England. The crisis through which we are passing affects the Free Churches in very much the same way, though perhaps not to the same extent. And also when I speak of a crisis I do not refer to the immediate crisis which is stirring the Church of England to-day. This is rather the culmination of one phase of the crisis, which is of many years' duration.

There are two movements which have exercised for years and are exercising profound influence on all the Churches and, indeed, the progress or otherwise of the Christian religion. These two movements began in the nineteenth century and have reached their culmination possibly though not certainly at the present time. One is a movement backwards towards the darkness of mediævalism, which probably began with what is known as the Oxford Movement and is represented to-day chiefly by Anglo-Catholicism. The aim of the movement, as most of its adherents will admit, and some publicly avow, is union with the Roman Catholic Church. The only difficulty in the minds of some is the doctrine of the Papal infallibility. Some aver that they differ on the doctrine of Transubstantiation (or the change of the elements of bread and wine in the Communion Office into the Body and Blood of Christ), but one Anglo-Catholic writer, a Doctor of Divinity, recently asserted that the only difference between the Church of England and the Roman Catholic Church in this matter was that, whereas both Churches believe it, the Roman Catholic Church insists upon it as a doctrine "necessary to salvation." The other movement is a movement forward (so its adherents aver) towards what the writer calls the "Mirage of Modernism." The term Modernism is often very loosely applied, but many are affected by it in varying degrees. In America the term is used as a doctrinal battle-cry as against the Fundamentalist, the two terms thus dividing the Christian forces into two sharply-defined camps. The Modernist, broadly speaking, may be said to develop his doctrinal beliefs along the lines of science and in particular the scientific theory of evolution, by which such doctrines as the Atonement, the Incarnation and the Inspiration of the Scriptures (and their interpretation) are modified to meet the needs of modern knowledge.

The student of to-day is generally faced with a choice between these two extremes, Mediævalism and Modernism, and few are able to discern any other alternative.

The purpose of the writer is to show that there is an alternative which is satisfying the minds and hearts of an ever-increasing number of people. That alternative is the British-Israel Movement, which has enabled very many to keep to the

Digitized by Google

"Old Paths" and the "Old Book" while welcoming the proved conclusions of modern science, none of which can be said to conflict with the statements of the Scriptures rightly understood. In endeavouring to show wherein the teaching of the followers of the British-Israel Movement counteracts the erroneous teaching of the two movements mentioned above, the writer does not intend to deal at any great length with the Mediævalist teaching, but will go moredeeplyinto the Modernist danger. One great fallacy only of the Mediævalist will be dealt with here, viz. :—The fallacy of confusing the Scripture teaching concerning "the Kingdom" and applying it to the Church. There are certain clearly-marked distinctions to be observed in interpreting the Scriptures, such as that between the Kingdom of Israel and the Kingdom of Judah, the teaching concerning the nation and the individual, and so on. One of these distinctions is that between the Kingdom and the Church. The Mediævalist, led by the Church of Rome, takes all the promises and prophecies concerning the Kingdom and applies them to the Church, which according to the claims of the Church of Rome is God's Kingdom on earth. Nothing is more certain than the teaching of the Scripture that God intended to set up a Kingdom on earth which should last for ever, and that the Kingdom of Israel in the Old Testament constituted that Kingdom. In the New Testament it is recorded that our Lord said to the Jews "the Kingdom shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." (St. Matt. xxi, 43.) There is nothing in Scripture to suggest that when our Lord said a nation He meant a Church, while there is a great deal to show that the Church has other and very different functions.

The honest student of Scripture and History cannot fail to realize, as large numbers have realized to their intense delight, that the British Commonwealth of Nations to-day exactly conforms to the conditions which Scripture foretold should mark the Kingdom of Israel "in the latter days"; while there is an ever-accumulating mass of evidence (historical, ethnological, numismatical, etc.) to prove the lineal descent of the British Commonwealth of Nations from the Kingdom of Israel, and that its Ruling House is also descended in direct line from the Royal House of David, of the Tribe of Judah. This will be dealt with at greater length later.

To turn to the menace of Modernism, as it is truly designated, there are two great pillars of the Temple of Truth which modern intellectual Samsons have for a considerable time endeavoured to pull down, not realizing that in so doing they are bringing down the whole Temple of Truth with them. They are the Word of God written, or the inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures, and the WORD OF GOD Incarnate, or the Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ. Not all of the modernistically inclined attack or undermine both these fundamentals, but many do, and indeed the two are intimately connected and may be said to stand or fall together. There is a remarkable passage in the second Epistle of Peter in which these two truths are shown to have an intimate connection, and I propose to make that passage the basis of what follows. The passage, which I quote at length is :—

"For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of His majesty. For He received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to Him from the excellent glory, This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with Him in the holy mount.

We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts :

Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the Scripture is of any private interpretation.

For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man : but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."—2 Peter i, 16-21, A.V.

There are three lines of evidence in this passage which go to prove both the Deity of our Lord and the inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures; they are these: prophecy, history and experience, and I propose to treat of the three in some detail.

First, the witness of prophecy, with which the testimony of history will to some extent coincide. Prophecy is a subject which is generally rejected by the more modern school, notwithstanding the fact that a considerable portion of both the Old and New Testament Scriptures are taken up with that subject. When the writer was living in Oxford in 1912 he attended a meeting of the Diocesan Clerical Union, at which a paper was read on the interpretation of the Old Testament Scriptures. In the paper the following statement was made, or words to this effect: "Of course, the idea of the fulfilment of prophecy in the Old Testament, even with regard to our Lord Himself, is rejected nowadays by all competent scholars." There was no word of protest from those present, though there were some present who, like the writer, most certainly dissented from that view. But it is a view which is very largely held nowadays, and consequently one of the most convincing evidences of the inspiration of the Scriptures is thrown away.

To treat of the whole range of Prophecy would occupy a large volume, and many books are available on the subject. I propose to treat of one or two lines of prophecy which closely affect the subject with which I am dealing, and will group my remarks round the word Jerusalem and the year 1917, as that city and that date (as I shall hope to show) are of supreme importance at the present time. Dr. Guinness, perhaps the most famous among students of prophecy of the last century (he died in 1910), singled out the year 1917 as one of the most significant in the history of Jerusalem. He showed, for instance, that the year was the end of the "seven times" of Jerusalem's degradation. "Seven times," according to most students, represented a period of 2,520 years, and "time, times, and an half" represent the half of this and is spoken of in Scripture under the form also of 1,260 days (the generally accepted scale of prophecy being a day for a year). There is another prophecy of Daniel which has its termination in the year 1917, the prophecy concerning the "Abomination of Desolation," applied by Dr. Guinness and most prophetic students to the Moslem Power which took Jerusalem in the year 637 A.D. When Daniel asked the Angel how long it should be to the end of these wonders, he is told that it shall be for "a time, times, and an half," and again "from the time that the abomination that maketh desolate is set up shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days. Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days." The setting up of the Moslem Power was the year 622 A.D., and that Power reckoned in lunar years. The 1260th year of the Moslem Era was the year 1844 of the Christian Era, when the first Christian Church was established on Mount Zion. The 1290th year of the Moslem Era was the year 1878 A.D., when the Ottoman Government was compelled to sign the Treaty of Berlin.

Digitized by Google

The year 1335 of the Moslem Era was the year 1917 A.D. Consequently Dr. Guinness said many years ago that this year (1917) would be of the utmost importance in the history of Jerusalem. Dr. Aldersmith, another student of prophecy, wrote more than forty years before, from the same standpoint, that in his opinion Jerusalem would pass out of the hands of the Turks in 1917. All students of prophecy therefore had their attention turned towards Jerusalem as soon as 1917 dawned. And I think all students of prophecy were startled when, early in the year, the Ottoman Government, anxious to move with the times and to come into line with the other nations of Europe, decided to change their method of reckoning time, and thereby the 1335th year of the Moslem Era was changed to the year 1917 A.D. The writer has a coin in his possession which was one of the first Turkish coins to be stamped with a Christian date (1917). The importance of this event can scarcely be exaggerated when one reflects that the Moslem Power started out with the idea of exterminating the Christians, and in the course of its career did actually slay millions of people because they were Christians. That this Power should decide to date its official documents and reckon its time with that of the Christians in the year which is so unmistakably a terminal year of prophecy according to the Scriptures, should, it seems to me, stamp the prophecy as undoubtedly Divinely inspired. The Angora Government ratified that resolution and has taken other steps of far-reaching importance. For instance, the Khalifate has been abolished, the Moslem Religion has ceased to be the State Religion, and the Flag has been changed. This last is of extraordinary interest. According to an illustration given in the Daily Express the Crescent has been made into a capital C, in which is placed the letter " T " and the little star is retained. The curious thing is that these two letters are the first and last letters of the word Christ.

However, this was not the most important event of the year 1917. On December 11th Lord Allenby entered the Holy City (on foot, realizing the solemnity of the event), and Jerusalem was delivered from the Gentiles at the close of the Times of the Gentiles, as prophetic students said it should be delivered forty years before, and as the Bible which was written centuries before indicated that it would. This date was 11 months before the signing of the Armistice, which took place on the 11th day of the 11th month (in the 11th hour) of the following year. Last year the 11th anniversary of this epoch-marking event took place, and on that day His Majesty King George V was lying on a bed of sickness and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was rushing to his father's side as fast as the fastest trains could carry him, while many were wondering if he would arrive in time. A large gathering of members of the B.-I.-W.F. and others was held in the evening in commemoration of the deliverance of the City of Jerusalem, and special prayer was made in common with millions of fellow-subjects throughout the world. The Prince arrived during the 11th hour of that memorable day and the doctors reported the next morning that " just before the Prince's arrival a miraculous rally occurred in His Majesty's condition." (The word " miraculous " was used in at least one daily paper two days after.) And from that time His Majesty's condition has slowly but surely progressed towards complete recovery.

The continual recurrence of these events at the 11th hour can have only one explanation, and that is that we are in the prophetic period known as the 11th hour. That does not mean that we are nearing the " end of the world " as some would have it, but the hour of midnight, in which the cry is heard "Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet Him."

This is mentioned here to emphasize the importance of the fact that we are in the 11th hour of fulfilled prophecy, and that therefore the evidence of prophecy to the Divine inspiration of the Scriptures is almost complete. To revert to the date of the deliverance of Jerusalem, I wish here to call attention to the fact that that event signalized the end of the Times of the Gentiles as far as Jerusalem is concerned. Now the point which has to be noted here is that if Jerusalem passed out of the hands of one Gentile nation into those of another the whole prophecy loses its importance, but this is not the case. It has been definitely proved and evidence is accumulating steadily that the Nation which thus delivered Jerusalem at the time foretold in Scripture is of the seed of Abraham according to the promise, and that the event was therefore an instance of the faithfulness of God when He promised " to remember His holy Covenant; to perform the oath which He sware to our forefather Abraham," as we alone of all the nations sing every Sunday in the services of our National Church. This is of supreme importance, and we will now deal with the promises to Abraham as a part of that witness of prophecy to the inspiration of the Scriptures. We go back significantly enough to 1917 B.C., and are faced with a wonderful span of nearly 4,000 years of promise and prophecy testifying to the faithfulness of Almighty God and the truth of His Word in the Old Testament Scriptures, thus :—

1917 B.C. Abraham + Allenby, 1917 A.D.

Abraham signifying " father of nations," and Allenby, according to the Arabs' rendering (Allah Nebby), " prophet of God." It should be noted that in the centre of this long span of history stands the Cross, and this is the position in which the Cross stands with reference to the history not only of this planet but of all the great planets, a fact which is forcefully demonstrated by the late Dr. Grattan Guinness in his monumental work, " Creation Centred in Christ." It is significant to notice that the promises to Abraham were confirmed eleven times, seven times to Abraham himself, twice to Isaac and twice to Jacob. These promises included among others four specific blessings. The first was the possession of the land. " Unto thy seed have I given this land from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates." This Covenant was confirmed in a very special manner, a burning light signifying the presence of God passing between the pieces of the divided animals. The whole of this land has come into possession of the race which delivered Jerusalem. This race, therefore, must be of the seed of Abraham, or God has transferred His Covenant, which be it noted was unconditional, to another and a Gentile race, which is unthinkable.

Digitized by Google

THE MYSTERY OF THE GREAT PYRAMID.—II.

By BASIL STEWART.

THE GREAT PYRAMID AND THE EGYPTIAN "BOOK OF THE DEAD." *

THE "Book of the Dead" (so-called) is a collection of texts and prayers, the origin of which is lost in the mists of antiquity, and which was continually being changed or added to in the course of time, and the form in which it has finally come down to us is closely akin to the ritual of a secret society. Even a superficial study of this remarkable book will reveal the extraordinary resemblance between its ritual and that of Freemasonry. It is full of passwords and signs which the soul had to give on its journey of purification, while many of the illustrations in it depict what might well be the origin of certain Masonic insignia.

While Freemasons, we believe, generally refer the origin of their cult to Solomon's Temple, it seems they should go much further back to the Great Pyramid as the "House (or Temple) of Osiris," and to the still more ancient Egyptian Book of the Dead with its Ritual of Initiation. †

While the Great Pyramid could hardly have been actually used as a Masonic Temple, since its upper passages and chambers were impossible of direct access, being blocked by the granite plug, the correspondence which can be traced between its passage-system and the different stages traversed by the soul of the holy departed on its journey of purification as depicted in the Book of the Dead, is so singular and so close that the existence of these chambers and their arrangement must have been known to the priests, who regarded it as a symbolic Temple of Initiation, a symbol of the national religion.

This is not to say, however, that the architect raised the Great Pyramid as a Temple of Mystery, actual or allegorical. The conception of the Pyramid, and the origin of the cult of Osiris and of the Book of the Dead—which might much better be called the "Book of Osiris"—are to be found in a common source, which may be expressed in the one word, Messianism. The architect of the Great Pyramid revealed these Messianic prophecies, which existed long before they were committed to the Hebrew Scriptures, in their true aspect; amongst the ancient Egyptians they became paganized and applied to their god Osiris in whom it was claimed this promised Messiah had come, and at the epoch of the Great Pyramid became associated with its symbolism. Hence the parallelism between its true intention and the ancient Osirian Mysteries. This will make clear why the idea that it was a Temple of Initiation or Mystery need not conflict with its real purpose as intended by the architect. In other words, the allegory contained in the "Book of the Dead" is merely a corrupt survival of the true allegory enshrined in the Great Pyramid.

"This Book is the greatest of Mysteries; thou shalt never allow those who dwell in the swamps of the Delta (ignorant folk) or any person whatsoever to see it." Such is the emphatic declaration contained in the final words of all to the whole Book, and all its contents are in harmony with it. For throughout there is hardly a paragraph the expression of which is not studiously obscure and difficult of interpretation. This difficulty arises not only from the great variety of the imagery employed, but much more from the complexity of its application.

Amongst the various imageries employed, however, there is one kind which occurs with greater frequency than any other, namely those which relate to some form of building, and that building the Great Pyramid. To this class belong the festivals of the "Northern Passage" (Passage pointing to the Pole star); of the "Southern Passage" (First Ascending Passage); of the "Hidden Lintel" (the Granite Plug, originally hidden from view); and that of "Osiris who dwells in the Roofed House," the Great Pyramid being thus described because it has a flat top like a roof—as all native houses in the East have—and does not rise to a pointed apex like all other pyramids in Egypt.

The whole progress of the departed, in fact, is described as taking place in some kind of a house or building. The Ritual in the Book of the Dead is full of references to his going in and coming out, to passing gates and gateways, doors and staircases. And though the secret places therein mentioned have doubtless a mystical significance as well, and refer to those secret places of the universe wherein, according to Egyptian belief, man, when set free from the flesh, was initiated into the mysteries of creation, yet, as that doctrine had to be learnt while still on earth, so was it necessary that there should be a house on earth wherein those places could be illustrated. And where shall we find such a building if not in that great house wherein, according to Egyptian tradition, that secret knowledge was enshrined—the House of Osiris, the Great Pyramid?

[NOTE.—Additional features of identification between the Great Pyramid and the Book of the Dead were pointed out in the address of which the foregoing is a part summary, and will be found in the article referred to above in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE of 29.12.28. A new volume on the Great Pyramid by the writer, entitled The Mystery of the Great Pyramid, forming a companion work to his Witness of the Great Pyramid, and explaining at length the connection between the Great Pyramid and the "Book of the Dead" and kindred matters, is now in course of preparation. It is hoped it will be ready for sale by the date of the next Congress on September 30th. (The sense in which the word "mystery" is used in this new essay is that applied to it by St. Paul in 1 Cor. iv, 1, and xv, 51.)]

* See also article in NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER, Dec. 29th, 1928.

† Refer to our previous article on "Traditions" respecting the erroneous identification of the allegorical pyramid of the Book of the Dead with the real Great Pyramid. This article points out the great resemblance between them.

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

Digitized by Google

WHAT GOOD IS IT?

MAY MEETING ADDRESS BY THE REV. LUMLEY DAVIES, L.D.

It might be helpful if I just gave a homely little talk about certain difficulties which I have myself experienced; I can only judge you by myself, and I can only judge your difficulties by the difficulties I have experienced. I daresay most of those who are here to-night have overcome those difficulties, but it may be that there are some here who are still experiencing some difficulty in giving an answer to the question, which is so often asked, "What is the good of it all?" I well know one who has been to the gatherings here, and she has often been asked since attending, "Well, what is the good of it all? Suppose it is true, what is the good of it?" Well, it may be that just a little homely talk may help somewhat. I should first of all say that the reply to such a question is to be found in many of our British-Israel books. There is a book by Mrs. Gayer which is on sale here, a book very well written, and very helpful. But I should like to illustrate some of those replies by telling you something which I have experienced in my own life, and, after all, there is nothing like personal experience. Books may be very good, but experience is the best teacher of all.

I have found that these great Truths which we have at heart have been the means of giving a very effective answer to infidelity. The British-Israel Truth verifies God's Word. We are all familiar with the statement of Professor Driver, who says that the prophecies have never been fulfilled, and so far as he could tell they never would be fulfilled; a very serious accusation from such a source against the holy Word of God. Even if I believed it, I would have hesitated before making such a remark as that. It casts such a reflection upon God Himself—that He is making, or has made, promises which have never been fulfilled. There are many taking the same line to-day as Professor Driver. Some years ago I had occasion to go to a hospital to visit a young man who lived in my parish, and I talked with him over and over again about God, and the Bible, and Biblical truths in general. He was a confirmed agnostic, and I can recall that young man's face now, a drawn face by reason of his pain. I did not remember where he lived, though he lived in my parish; I did not remember his name; at this moment I can see his face, and I can remember what he said when I was trying to show him the great works of God. He would turn to me and say, "Well, I cannot say that you are wrong, but I am not myself convinced about those things. There may be a God, and there may not be a God." Well, time after time we discussed this great question, and I am afraid that that young man, as far as I knew, died still a confirmed agnostic. Now what I want to say is this, that I did not know British-Israel Truth at that time, and I firmly believe that had I known it, I could have taken that young man along British-Israel lines, and shown him how God was fulfilling His promises and carrying out His purposes. But I did not know the British-Israel Truth at that time, and I fear that young man passed away without my having done him any good at all, except just to show him some friendly interest. Oh, that I had known then the great Truth which has been coming home to me since—that God is carrying out all His promises and fulfilling all His purposes, and the British-Israel Truth illustrates the fulfilment of those promises as nothing else can do, and thus it strengthens our faith, and offers an effective reply to infidelity.

Having gone so far, that we believe God is keeping His word, it is easy for us to love Him. It is not easy to love one who does not keep his word; we have not even a profound respect for such an one. But the moment we believe that God is keeping His word, we want to draw closer to Him, to get into closer touch with Him that our lives may be transformed. Have you heard of the lady who tried to read a book, but she could not get through it because it was so dry? She tried again, but she had to lay it aside. Later on she met the author of that book at a particular social function, and he was introduced to her; after the usual preliminaries they found out that they had a great deal in common; their thoughts seemed to harmonize in a wonderful way; and now that she knew the author, she commenced reading the book again, and it became quite a new book to her; she found new thoughts on almost every page. What had happened? Why the author had become a friend, and love was the interpreter. There is nothing that can give interpretation like love. And the moral, surely, is this, that if the Bible is a dull Book to some people, if it is to them the work of a promise-breaker, it is just because they do not know and love the Author. When we realize that God keeps His promises, we love Him, and we know that every promise is Yea and Amen. New truth seems to be shooting out from the pages of this holy Book, transfiguring it into a volume of glory. Once the Book is transfigured, then the life is transformed, and a great miracle, as we may call it, is wrought. The growth of the influence of this great Empire is well known to all here, that nation we read of in Genesis and that company of nations, the growth of that immense multitude as the stars of the heaven and as the sand of the sea. "And in thee and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed," said God to Abraham. It is a people who are carrying freedom and liberty and who are carrying the Gospel news into the far ends of the earth; it is a miracle that has been wrought by God Himself.

The growth of this great Empire is very suggestive. I am told that in Queen Elizabeth's time the population of England was roughly six million people. I do not know whether that figure included Wales or not. You good people have a very happy way of taking in poor Wales and including it with your own land. The population of Scotland was something like a million, and the population of Ireland rather less. History tells us that in 1880 the population had risen to twenty-five millions. To-day the population of the British Isles seems to be something like forty-five millions. Now the question is, why this increase since the time of Queen Elizabeth? Why should God's promise regarding Israel's fruitfulness have been fulfilled in such a striking manner after her time? I think that our good friend, Mr. Pascoe Goard, has pointed this out to us more than once. Perhaps it was that because in her time, that blessed time which we call the Reformation period, became an accomplished fact. Britain renounced Romish formalism and became a people of the Bible. Hitherto the Word of God had been a dead Book, written in a foreign language. Now that glorious Book was available in the language of the people. What happened after that? Why, Britain thrived as no other people had ever done before. Colonies began to be acquired, and the national wealth increased. Britain became the mistress of the sea. And just about that time the population increased with remarkable rapidity. We have had our ups and downs, and it seems to me perfectly clear that Britain's prosperity depends upon her allegiance to the true faith, to the Word of God. The proof of that is found here. Think of the time of Charles II and James II; they were not noted for their Protestantism; they were more noted, I think, for their allegiance to the tenets of the Romish Church. And what about Britain? Its prosperity fell; its credits dwindled and its influence dwindled. But later on again there was an improvement as Protestantism was allowed to assert itself. During the Victorian era we had a glorious time, had we not? And what about the year 1929? There is a gentleman whom I know as "Mr. 1929," and there is also a lady whom I call "Miss 1929," and they always run down the Victorian era. Well, what about 1929? I am afraid we are being driven once again from those glorious principles of the Reformation. We are being driven away from the Bible again. My friends, we cannot depart from God Almighty and stand on our own feet. We cannot depart from God with impunity. God is guiding His chosen people, and if we will allow Him to guide us, He will guide us and lead us into the highest altitudes of goodness and truth. I should like to have enlarged upon this a little, but I must have some respect for those who are to follow me.

Digitized by Google

I should like to close with a thought reminding us of God's goodness. This is a great day in the history of our Empire—Empire Day we call it. We are grateful, and we cannot be too grateful, that God has restored our gracious King again. Well, there is another King of Whom we read in the Acts of the Apostles, called Jesus, and we should like a little talk about Him. I remember reading that when some of the soldiers came back from the Crimean War, the Queen, we are told, distributed among some of those soldiers some beautiful medals, and one who received a medal had lost both his feet in the War, and he came forward limping on his crutches. Then the dear Queen spoke some very kind words to the soldiers in the name of the Government, and she distributed the medals inscribed with the names of the four great battlefields—Alma, Balaclava, Inkerman and Sebastopol. As the Queen distributed the medals the band struck up the National Anthem, "God save our gracious Queen." It was a memorable day in the history of those who had fought the battles of their country. My friends, I can see a greater day still, a brighter day, a better day in the future, for the soldiers of the Cross will return to this Zion of God, and all those who have toiled in the Master's service will be there, all those who have fought the Lord's battles against sin and evil in every shape and form will be there. And in the presence of that vast assembly the King of Heaven will say to them, "Well done, good and faithful servant. Thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." And I can imagine Him distributing the medals of eternal victory, inscribed with the names of these four battlefields—Bethlehem, Nazareth, Gethsemane and Calvary. Oh, glorious day! Happy day! Shall we all be there? May God grant it. "Let us all be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as we know that our labour is not in vain in the Lord."

OBITUARY.

THE LATE MR. MATTHEW GRAHAM COLTART.

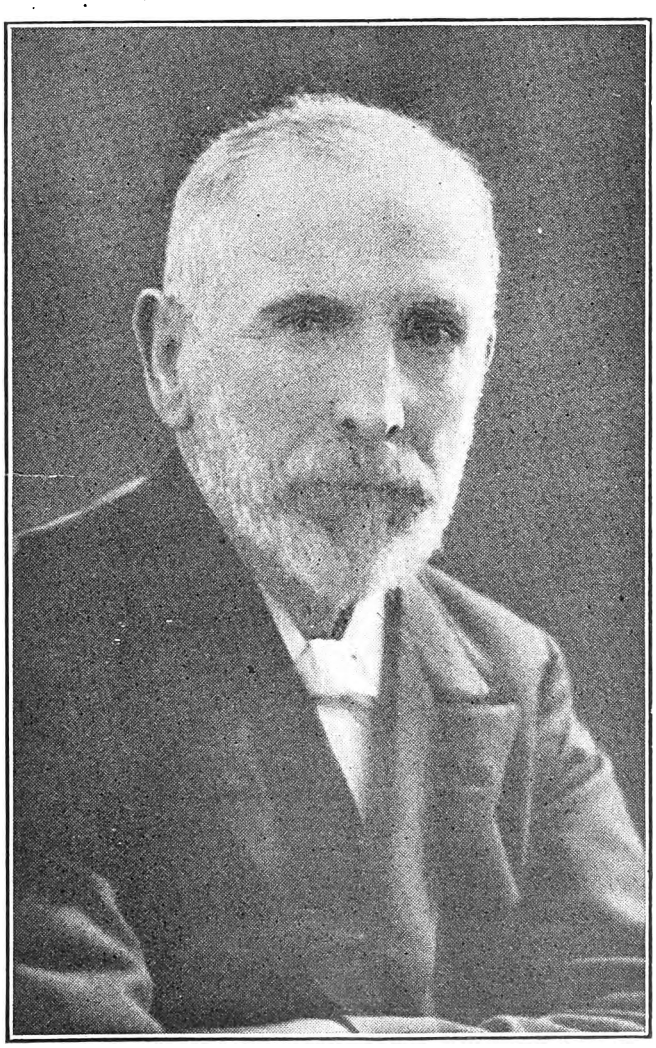
THE Northern British-Israel Council of Scotland and the Federation have suffered an irreparable loss in the passing, on May 31st, of one of its most stalwart leaders, and champion of the Cause generally, in the person of Mr. Matthew Graham Coltart, of Oaklea, Kilcreggan, Dumbartonshire, in the 76th year of his age.

For nearly fifty years he had been a most ardent believer, and in the days when Mr. R. A. Whytlaw, the then veteran British-Israel advocate of the North, held the fort in Glasgow, Mr. Coltart was his faithful lieutenant and henchman. In 1911, when that venerable chief died, Mr. Coltart stepped into the breach and, until an accident in 1925, filled the position. For something like forty years an unbroken series of lectures on Israel Truth, with Mr. Coltart as the sole executive, though working with a committee, has been continued in the Burgh Hall of Hillhead, in the West End of Glasgow, during the winter months, although for the last four years of that period the leadership has been taken by others. The Edinburgh Association was for long also run by him, entailing enormous detail involved in such propaganda work. Indeed, between Glasgow and Edinburgh, and other places, his work and enterprise and zeal called forth almost Herculean care and energy.

From 1910 to 1917 he published, edited and found the necessary funds for running a journal known as The Northern British-Israel Review, one of the most interesting and instructive magazines on the subject, which contained articles in its quarterly issues of uncommon import by expert writers on their particular topics, and which will live for many days if for nothing else than its most admirably written "Forewords" from the pen of the Editor. It may be of interest to the readers of this memorial notice to know that these volumes are to be found on the shelves of the Library at 6, Buckingham Gate to-day. Mr. Coltart's loss to the work in Scotland is beyond measure. He filled a sphere of work which others will not venture to occupy. Other leaders there are, and worthy too, but Mr. Coltart had a line of his own and an influence peculiar to himself that penetrated far and wide. He had no enemies. All loved him for his sincerity and transparency of motive and purpose. All regarded him as one of the best—kindly, friendly, gentle, a true gentleman, a man of the "Gens."

Digitized by Google

He accomplished great things in his day, and passes from his comrades and co-workers to the higher service leaving a noble example behind him, with the admiration and esteem of all who feel honoured in cherishing his memory as "a brother beloved."



J. ANDERSON WATT,
(Senior Minister, U.F. Church of Scotland.)

A kind, genial Christian with whom one felt always at home, Mr. Graham Coltart will be truly missed in his home. We extend to his widow and family our heart-felt sympathy. A very early member of our Israel Scripture and Prayer Union, a constant renewer year by year, and a regular correspondent for more than thirty years.

L. G. A. ROBERTS.

THE LATE MR. JOHN H. TENCH.

IN our issue of July 13th we noted, and here again record with deep regret, the death on June 25th, at the age of 79, of Mr. John H. Tench, President of our Darlington Branch. He was at work almost to the last. A resume of his activities for many years past appeared in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE of February 9th. The loss to evangelical work is very heavy, and several societies in which he was interested will feel his absence severely. Mr. Tench was the first President of the Darlington Branch of the Federation, and three days before his death was dictating a letter to finish arrangements for next winter's meetings of the Darlington and Durham Branches. Until shortly before he was also busily engaged in work for the Bible Society, N.S.P.C.C., and others in which he took great interest. During his later years propaganda in connection with British-Israel Truth undoubtedly took first place with him.

In one respect he had a record which may be unique, in that for 65 years it is said he never missed his weekly attendance at Communion Service. For many years he attended Holy Trinity Church, and latterly St. Matthew's, where he showed great zeal as a lay preacher and in Sunday School and missionary work. The sympathy of those at Headquarters who counted him as friend, or were acquainted with him, is extended to all of his family.

A PROBLEM OF INDIAN HISTORY.

DURING the preparations of some sermons on the Tabernacle, I have been impressed by the remarkable parallels between the plan of Hindu temples and the plan of the Tabernacle in the Wilderness. Though I do not remember seeing them referred to in any history of India, or any work on Hinduism, I think that the reader will agree that they are both real and striking. They are the more impressive when we note the extreme dissimilarity between the wonderful structure of Exodus and a Mohammedan mosque, or a Buddhist temple.

(1) The first parallel I notice is that both have a court. That of the Tabernacle was 100 cubits by 50 and entirely surrounded the inner shrine. All orthodox Hindu temples have the same, at all events in these parts. Those that have gradually developed from a wayside shrine are in another category, but those temples where the builders had the room to construct a protecting court and which lay any claim to either antiquity or to orthodoxy have a court very similar to that of the Tabernacle.

(2) Another noteworthy feature is that in both cases there is only one means of ingress and egress. Although I have examined the structure of some scores of temples I cannot call to mind one erected to a Hindu god where there is an officially recognized back door or side exit—not even to the court, much less to the temple proper. The huge temple of Srirangam is more a town than a temple, but even there, when one examines the shrine proper, there is one entrance only.

(3) Indian temples accord with the Tabernacle in having no window. I remember seeing only one window in a temple, and that is in the shrine of Karuppam at Mohanur. But here the window is of recent construction, and Karuppam is not a god of the Hindu pantheon, but only a local demon.

(4) Having entered the DOOR of the Tabernacle court, the worshipper first met the Brazen Altar, which was in a straight line from the entrance of the court TO the Door of the Holy Place. Long centuries ago Buddhism cast out sacrifices from many of the temples of India, but in those shrines where sacrifices were still offered the usual place accords with the position of the Brazen Altar.

Digitized by Google

(5) After the Altar came the Laver, beyond which no one on pain of death might pass who was not ceremonially clean. The temples here have no laver, but in the position corresponding to that of the laver they always have an erection beyond which no one ceremonially unclean may proceed.

(6) The Priest having washed at and passed the laver, immediately approached the Tabernacle proper; the same order exists here.

(7) The Tabernacle proper consisted of two parts (coming from the court entrance), the Holy Place, and then the Most Holy. I have never seen a temple which laid any claim to antiquity, orthodoxy, or reverence, that did not contain the same parts and in the same order. The names given in our Bible for these two apartments are the same as those used for the parallel parts of Hindu temples.

(8) Here, again, no side doors, no back entrance, no windows.

(9) In the wilderness it was in the second of the two apartments that the glory of Jehovah was manifested. There was the Ark—the Mercy Seat—and the Shekinah Glory. In the Hindu temple the object of worship is in the second compartment, in the DARKNESS of the inner shrine, unillumined by any brightness but that of crude oil.

(10) The covering of the Tabernacle was flat; unlike the surrounding tents, it had no pitch roof. Though in this part of India almost all other buildings have pitch roofs, I have never seen one to an inner temple. The covering to the Holy Place is invariably FLAT, though the Most Holy Place is usually ornamented by a stone dome.

(11) The parallel of the proportion in the various parts is remarkable. In the Tabernacle the width of the court was half its length, and the gate was in the end. So it is here. The Holy Place was 20 cubits by 10. The proportions in an Hindu temple are about the same. Could any reader suggest a solution to this problem? Is it not possible that migrations from Assyrian and Babylonian Empires brought to India the rudiments of Hebrew worship? Many parallels might be given also in Levitical law, sacrifices and Hebrew customs.

A MISSIONARY OF SOUTH INDIA.

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—V.

BY S. E. STEELE.

PROMISES STILL THE POSSESSION OF ISRAEL.

According to prophecy it has been clearly demonstrated that Israel, after being scattered, lost, and gathered together again in a certain specified place, would evolve into a nation, a company of nations, chief of the nations, so strong that no other nation could prevail against them, and a Christian and Sabbath-keeping nation. It is doubtful if a vision of Great Britain could be presented more clearly defined than that portrayed by the prophets of Israel after their (Israel's) redemption.

It now remains to be shown how the transformation of a lost and scattered people to the chief of the nations has been achieved. Let it be distinctly understood that we ascribe our marvellous destiny, not to our own powers, or to the agency of man, but to the Divine favour and guidance of God, Who has led His chosen people from captivity, given them victory over their enemies, and planted them in the home, a stone cut out without hands, prepared for them from the beginning: not because of their righteousness or according to their deserts, but because He was always mindful of His covenant with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. In spite of their apostasy, their ingratitude towards God, their frequent backslidings and their ultimate rejection of Him Who had watched over and protected them since they had become a people, which resulted in their captivity in Assyria, the promises of God were never annulled; but were, and still are, the peculiar possession of Israel throughout all time. Three hundred and eighty years after they were made, we read, "And God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac and with Jacob" (Ex. ii, 24); and sixty-seven years later, "because He would keep the oath which He had sworn unto your fathers" (Deut. vii, 8). Five hundred and eighty years later, over one thousand years after they were made, we read, "But Hazael, King of Syria, oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz. And the Lord was gracious unto them, and had compassion on them, and had respect unto them, because of His covenant with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and would not destroy them" (2 Kings xiii, 22, 23). The promises, therefore, still belonged to the lineal descendants in the time of Elisha.

Approximately 970 years later, about 2,000 years after they were made, we find St. Paul publicly declaring that the promises made by God to the Patriarchs were still the peculiar possession of the tribes of Israel (Acts xxvi, 6, 7, and Rom. ix, 4, 5).

About thirty years before St. Paul uttered this testimony, our Saviour told the Jews, the chief priests and elders, that the kingdom should be taken from them and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof (Matt. xxi, 43). The nation to whom it was given must of necessity be of the seed of Abraham, or the promises of God have failed. It has been demonstrated that Britain is the only nation which has brought forth the "Fruits of the Spirit," and is in possession of the promises to Israel. Moreover, Britain accepted the faith of Christ within seven years of this declaration of our Redeemer.

SACRED AND SECULAR EVIDENCE.

During the reign of Pekah, King of Israel, who was the sixth of the last seven kings to reign over Israel, all of whom in succession "did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord," Tiglath-Pileser attacked Samaria (computed about 735 B.C.), conquered several portions of the Northern Kingdom, and took the inhabitants captive into Assyria. This commenced the movement, continued in 721 B.C., when the bulk of the people of Israel were taken captive by Shalmaneser, and completed by Esarhaddon about 680 B.C., until "there was none left but the tribe of Judah only" (2 Kings xvii, 18). Tobit, an Israelitish writer during the Assyrian captivity, who died at the age of 127 in Media, records the revolt of all the tribes taken captive from the worship of God, and substitution of sacrifice unto the heifer Baal. He only of his father's house remained true to God (Apocrypha: Tobit i, 5 and 6). In giving instruction to his son Tobias he bids him remember that his forefathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, were blessed in their children, and that their seed shall inherit the land (Tobit 4-12). His prayer of rejoicing, written during the captivity of Israel in Media, is a beautiful example of faith and trust in God. "Blessed be God that liveth for ever, and blessed be His kingdom. For He doth scourge, and hath mercy: . . . Confess Him before the Gentiles, ye children of Israel, for He hath scattered us among them. . . . And He will scourge us for our iniquities, and will have mercy again, and will gather us out of all nations, among whom He hath scattered us" (Tobit xiii, 1–5). We have no historical reference to the nation of Israel in the Old Testament after the time of their removal to Assyria, but prophetical references are numerous. We have, however, the key to the mystery in the Apocrypha: "Those are the ten tribes, which were carried away prisoners out of their own land in the time of Osea the king, whom Shalmaneser, the king of Assyria, led away captive, and he carried them over the waters, and so they came to another land. But they took this counsel among themselves, that they would leave the multitude of the heathen, and go forth into a further country, where never mankind dwelt, that they might there keep their statutes, which they had never kept in their own land. And they entered into Euphrates by the narrow passages of the river. For the Most High then showed signs for them, and held still the flood, till they were passed over. For through that country there was a great way to go, namely, of a year and a half; and the same region is called Arsareth" (2 Esdras xiii, 40–45). Here we have something definite: not only that Israel escaped out of Assyria, but the very place in which they settled is indicated. The date of this writing was probably early in the fifth century B.C. About twenty-five years previously, approximately 612 B.C., the decline of the Assyrians was in progress. Enemies increased on every hand, and their attention was diverted from home affairs to combat the increasing dangers from outside. No better opportunity could captive Israel wish for to obtain their freedom, and it is evident from Esdras that full advantage of this opportunity was taken. Arsareth was a large tract of land north-west of the Crimea, also known under the name of Scythia, and the inhabitants were known as Scythians. Two colonies attached to the Scythians have been identified as Israelites of the Assyrian captivity who migrated from Asia into Europe with the Scythians and were, for a time, known by that name. That the people called Scythians were not all of one race is evident from a reference to them by Prof. Rawlinson, who states that the European Scythians were not of the same race as the Asiatic Scythians. The two colonies referred to, out of Assyria and Media, were also known by the divisional names of Getae and Massa-Getae. They became separated, the one from the other; one portion, that of the Getae, settled near the Danube. They are said to have consisted of the tribes of Ephraim, Manasseh and a portion of the tribe of Dan who had not migrated with their brethren during the previous few centuries. These people described themselves to Herodotus as "former colonists of the Medes." His book was written towards the latter end of the fifth century B.C., so that the date of the description of the Getae as former colonists of the Medes would be about 150 years after Israel issued from Media. According to the same author, the Getae alone, among all the peoples then known, believed in one God, in the resurrection of the body, and in the immortality of the soul. That they were of Israel is proved by the fact that numerous monuments or tombstones have been found in the Crimea bearing Hebrew names, and recording the deaths "in the year of our captivity." But few stones have been found bearing dates later than 100 B.C., so that it must be concluded that the main body, prior to that date, migrated to another place or country.

Digitized by Google

Equally certain it is that they did not at that time rejoin their brethren of the Massa-Getae; the evidence being a monument found in South Russia of King Darius, who pursued the Massa-Getae after the death of Cyrus, on which is inscribed words to the effect that the fugitives were driven further inland from the Crimea, and were prevented reuniting with the Getae. They migrated into Dacia. It is not within the scope of this treatise to trace in detail the movements of our ancestors during the following centuries. Anyone desirous of studying this phase of our identity can procure many excellent works on the subject at the Headquarters of the B.-I.-W. Federation. Suffice it to affirm that, according to historical items culled from modern and ancient historians, including Sharon Turner, Freeman, Thierry, Ptolemy, Pliny, Diodorus, Herodotus, and many others, the people of the Assyrian and Median captivity were called by several names, according to the nationality of the historian, or the district in which they dwelt, among which may be mentioned Dacians (so-called by the Romans); Guttons-Teutones; Guta-Cimbri Asar, afterwards called Angles; Picts and Scots, Albani, formerly called Goths (Jordanis); Saka-Sacae-Sakai-Gimmeri-Khumri; Saxons, Jutes, Danes and Normans. According to Jordanis, the Getae and Goths were the same people It is noteworthy that the attack of the Goths on the Roman Empire was the direct cause of the evacuation of Britain by Maximus. The Goths—whom we affirm to be Ephraim-Manasseh of the Ten Tribes—resembled to a remarkable degree Israel of old under Joshua, and Israel of to-day, the British, in their stubborn persistence, their doggedness, their bravery, their uprightness, their justice, and, to our shame be it said, their intemperance. Strenuous attempts to subdue them were made in succession by Philip of Macedonia, Alexander the Great, Lysimachus, Domitian, and Trojan, all unsuccessful. Drunkenness was the national vice of Ephraim (Isa. xxviii, 1), also of the Getae or Goths, and is still the national vice of their descendants, the people of Britain.

While it must be admitted that absolute correctness cannot be claimed, the journeyings, localities, and dates of occupation may be summarized as follows:

Captivity in Assyria-Media	721—612 B.C.
Ephraim-Manasseh (Getae) Dacia ...	612—106 B.C.
,, ,, Scythia	106 B.C.—A.D. 269
Period of partial rest in Moesia	A.D. 269—488

It was during this period (A.D.375) they became Christians.

Italy	A.D 488—553
Germany—South of Denmark	A.D. 553—912
North France	A.D. 912—1066

Thence as Normans, etc., to England. A small part of the Getae, consisting of a portion of the Tribe of Dan, left the main body soon after 106 B.C., arrived in the South of France

Digitized by Google

100 B.C., thence to Ireland. The remaining tribes, the Massa-Getae—

East of the Caspian Sea ... ... B.C. 612—528
Russia, North of Crimea ... ... B.C. 520—106
Gothland (Denmark) and Scandza (South Sweden) ... ... B.C. 110—A.D. 600

Thence as Angles, Saxons, etc., to England.

WHAT KING ALFRED DID.

"To his code of laws he prefixed a translation of the Decalogue and the letter of the Council of Jerusalem, together with a summary of the Mosaic law; and these are still extant." This statement is on the authority of the Introduction to the "Guide to the Manuscripts and Printed Books Exhibited in Celebration of the Tercentenary of the Authorized Version, British Museum Bible Exhibition, 1911"; the year also famous in history for the Coronation of His Most Gracious and Beloved Majesty King George V, whom may God long preserve. J. R. Green, in his "Short History of the English People," chronicles the same fact thus: "The strong moral bent of Alfred's mind was seen in some of the novelties of his legislation. The Ten Commandments and a portion of the Law of Moses were prefixed to his code, and thus became part of the law of the land. Labour on Sundays and holidays was made criminal."

What a King he was, this Alfred! Great indeed! Born in A.D. 849, the son of Æthelwulf, King of the West Saxons; and if you would make pilgrimage to the place of his birth, you will find it in Berkshire, where our King lives. For Wantage and Windsor are in the same county, and it was at Wantage that King Alfred was born. Shall we not have a "King Alfred's Day" at Wantage, and tell the story of British-Israel in the place where he first saw the light and breathed the breath of England?

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor.

"Ye are my witnesses" (Isaiah xliii, 10, 12). Do British-Israelites realize the deep significance of these words? Many of us, I fear, do not. From reluctance to discuss religion, how many opportunities are lost. Even the clergy who hold this great Truth, do not all preach it. I was told of a clergyman who enjoys discussing it with "sympathetic" parishioners, "But he never preaches about it," said my informant. Among the things we shall have to answer for to Our King is that we have lacked courage to proclaim His Kingdom, which, we are being reminded by the marvellous fulfilment of Prophecy in these latter days, must be very near. Let British-Israelites see to it that they are "witnessing," and let the clergy boldly preach about it. The churches would no longer be empty if God's people were taught the Truth.

F. M. R. M.

To the Editor of the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

DEAR SIR,—In the NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER of June 29, a question is asked respecting the eating of swine's flesh, and an answer given by the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A., whom we respect; but I must say I was very surprised at the answer given. To me it was like giving the Bible (the Word of God) a "smack in the face." Does not Jesus say: "He that hath My commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me, and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." St. John xiv, 21. I know Jesus' Commandment for man is, Love God and love one another. Also He tells us it is "Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man." But remember that we have a body, and that which goeth into the mouth defileth the body, which is the temple of the Holy Spirit. Therefore we should not eat that which is harmful to the body. See Deuteronomy xiv, 2, 3 and 8. "For thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God, and the Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people . . . that are upon the earth." THE COMMAND is "Thou shalt not eat any abominable thing . . . and the swine because it divideth the hoof, yet cheweth not the cud, it is unclean unto you: ye shall not eat of their flesh nor touch their dead carcase." The answer to the question states that there is nothing to prevent us from eating swine's flesh. Is the Bible wrong? Has God changed? Malachi iii, 6, says: "For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed." Therefore, as God does not change, when He makes a law, it is for all time; not a law for one generation, to be altered for the next; so let us stick to the law as we find it in the Word of God.

Moses says: "Thou shalt not eat any abominable thing." Isaiah:—"A people that provoked me to anger continually to my face; . . . which eat swine's flesh, and broth of abominable things is in their vessels" (Isaiah lxv, 3 and 4). Isaiah again says, chapter lxvi, 17: "They that sanctify themselves and purify themselves in the gardens behind one tree in the midst, eating swine's flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall be consumed together, saith the Lord." Jesus said: "If they hear not Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead." (St. Luke xvi, 31.) The devils appear to have tested Jesus with respect to the swine; they besought Him that He would suffer them to enter into the swine, and Jesus suffered them; we do not read Jesus commanded them to keep out. Fellow members in the B.I. Federation, swine are scavengers, their flesh is full of impurity; if you wish to be free from cancer and other deadly diseases leave their flesh entirely alone and keep to the commandments of Jesus, the Word of God from the beginning, St. John i, 1, 2, 3 and 14, and you will then thank God for the command given to His redeemed people not to touch the abominable, unclean flesh of the swine.

Yours truly.
J. C. ALLSOPP.

A PRAYER.

Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, without Whose help labour is useless, without Whose light search is vain, invigorate our studies, and direct our enquiries, that we may, by due diligence and right discernment, establish ourselves and others in Thy faith. Take not, O Lord, Thy Holy Spirit from us; let not evil thoughts have dominion in our minds. Let us not linger in ignorance, but enlighten and support us, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord.—Amen.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

WE have received the following cable from our Secretary-General from Victoria, British Columbia :

"Lectured to four fine audiences here ; been to-day (July 13th) special guests at Garden Party given by the Governor at Government House. Garrison."

* * *

Tickets are now available for Mr. Garrison's lantern lecture, "Canada and the United States," at Central Hall, Westminster, on October 2nd. Reserved seats are 3s. and 2s. ; unreserved 1s. Please enclose postage with applications for these.

* * *

The following is an extract from a letter from His Honour Judge Corbet Locke, Morden, Manitoba :—"I had the great pleasure of lunching with Mr. and Mrs. Garrison at the Hudson's Bay Company in Winnipeg on the 19th (June). They were in splendid form. Mr. Garrison gave us twenty minutes on the British Empire—it was grand and greatly appreciated."

* * *

A hearty reception was accorded to our Commissioner-General, Mr. John Leech, when he visited the Welsh area. On June 25th the members of the Cardiff and district branches listened to an inspiring address given by him at the Cardiff Y.M.C.A., the title of which was "Some Objections Answered." The Rev. W. T. Medhurst presided.

* * *

Open-air meetings will (D.V.) be held in Hyde Park on Sunday next, the 21st, at 7, and on the 28th. Evenings only on these dates.

* * *

A customer requires a copy of "The Evolution of Israel." Will any reader having a spare copy please communicate with The Secretary, Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., stating price wanted and condition of book.

* * *

Mr. J. J. Morey gave two lectures at Salisbury on July 1st, when Mr. F. W. Lewis presided over large attendances. Mr. Lewis welcomed Mr. Morey, who, he explained, had been to Palestine since his last visit to Salisbury. In the afternoon address, "The Changing East," it was pointed out that all the great changes in the East had been connected with Israel. The first spoken of was that which came to Egypt when Israel left. "By a mighty hand God took Israel out of Egypt and a dark cloud settled upon Egypt for centuries, until Israel began to return, and in the 'eighties Egypt was delivered. Since then she had been one of the most prosperous countries in the world." The next example was when the Canaanites were pushed out of Palestine and Israel went in. Then the land was blessed and there was a happy and prosperous era. When Israel went out later a dark cloud settled and Palestine was neglected for centuries, until Israel came home again, and since they (the British) had taken possession the cloud had lifted and a great era dawned. The great changes had been with the going out and the coming back of Israel. Mr. Morey, at the evening meeting, ably dealt with the subject "British-Israel, a Full Gospel."

* * *

The annual business meeting of the Canterbury Branch was held recently, when the Rev. Canon T. B. Watkins presided over an enthusiastic gathering of members. The Hon. Secretary, Mr. Morton W. Pierce, showed that in spite of prejudice and apathy on the part of some, this great Movement is fast gaining ground in Canterbury. Officers were re-elected, and a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Hon. Secretary for the great amount of work he had done for the British-Israel cause. After the business had been concluded the gramophone record of Mr. Goard's "British-Israel Evangel" was listened to with delight ; and a solo sung by Master E. Lough, "Hear Ye Israel," brought a very successful meeting to a close.

* * *

The Dover Branch had a most successful picnic on July 4, driving through beautiful country to "Fredville Park," Nonington, where Miss Hardy received the party. After tea the President, Colonel Smythe, gave a talk about "The Coronation Stone and its History" to the elder girls of the school. Later, the gardens, stables and kennels were visited, and then the beautiful old mansion, mentioned in Domesday Book, now turned into a most delightful school for the children of officers and others whose parents are abroad. Miss Hardy and Mrs. Angel have over 80 in their care. Dover members were very pleased to have Canon Watkins of Canterbury as their guest. * * *

A meeting of the Wandsworth Branch will be held (D.V.) on the first Wednesday in each month at 120, Earlsfield Road, at 8 p.m. The meetings having grown beyond the original accommodation ; Mrs. Brigden has very kindly promised to lend her large double room each month for an evening meeting. This is a real help, and the committee and members are deeply grateful to Mrs. and Miss Brigden for all the assistance they are giving in many ways. There will be a special meeting at 120, Earlsfield Road, on July 23rd at 8 p.m., at which the Rev. Joseph Gay will speak. Will all those in the vicinity please make an effort to attend. Light refreshments are being supplied by the committee at all meetings.

* * *

Mr. Daniel Farmer gave an enlightening and interesting review of World History from the Creation to the present time, finishing up with some helpful suggestions with regard to the future, to a well-attended meeting of the Branch at Leicester on July 2nd. Mr. Z. A. Smith presided.

* * *

Erratum.—N. M. & B., July 13th, p. 439, second column, line 11 : 53rd should be 33rd.—L. G. A. ROBERTS.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, East Street, Friday 26th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday 22nd, at 8.
HARROGATE, Imperial Cafe, Parliament Street, Monday 22nd, at 8. Rev. G. Waddington, M.A.
HIGHGATE, 223, Archway Road, Wednesday 24th, at 8.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Street, Tuesday 23rd, at 7.30. Miss Gray.
HYDE PARK, open-air, Sunday 21st, at 7, and Sunday 28th, at 7.
MANCHESTER, Houldsworth Hall, Deansgate, Tuesday 23rd, at 7.45. Bible Study. Mr. Hough.
PLUMSTEAD, St. James' Church Vestry, Burrage Road, Wednesday 24th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
SHEFFIELD, Committee Room, Victoria Hall, Wednesday 24th, at 7.30.
WANDSWORTH, 120, Earlsfield Road, Tuesday 23rd, at 8. Rev. Joseph Gay.
WIMBLEDON, St. Andrew's Brotherhood, South Wimbledon Wesleyan Church, Merton Road, Sunday 28th, at 3. Rev. Joseph Gay.

Digitized by Google

B.-I.-W.F. Tenth Annual Congress

LARGE CENTRAL HALL, WESTMINSTER.

September 30th to October 5th, 1929, inclusive

Two Meetings daily at 2.45 and 7.30

A fine array of experienced speakers from various parts of Britain, the Overseas Dominions and U.S.A. Subjects of momentous interest will be dealt with. Tickets for reserved seats now ready, 2/- each. Course tickets £1. As usual Mr. Herbert Garrison will give a Lantern Lecture on the Wednesday evening, for which special tickets are required, at 3/- first reserved seats; 2/- second reserved seats; unreserved 1/-.

Applications should be addressed to the Assistant Secretary,

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

HOTEL BERKELEY

63-67, QUEENSBOROUGH TERRACE
HYDE PARK, LONDON, W.2
PARK 1797.
Two minutes Kensington Gardens, Buses and Tubes.
HOT AND COLD RUNNING WATER.
GAS FIRE ALL BEDROOMS. PASSENGER LIFT.
Noted for Healthy Position, Quiet, Cleanliness,
EXCELLENT FOOD AND ATTENDANCE.
Terms from 3 gns. per week, including Four Meals, Baths, Light and Attendance; from 10s. 6d. daily.
NO EXTRAS.

Prophetic Light on World Destiny

By Rev. WILLIAM HARPER, M.A., B.D.

Price 1/-, by post 1/2

A small work of 120 pages, this book covers, in condensed form, practically the whole B.-I. field. It is most interestingly written by one who is a master of his subject, and is very strongly recommended. It fits every purse and many pockets, and should have a place on every bookshelf.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

THE BRITISH EMPIRE

BY

HERBERT GARRISON,

F.R.G.S., F.R.C.I.

A wonderful pamphlet, beautifully illustrated, with reproduced photographs of

HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE V.
HIS LATE MAJESTY KING EDWARD VII.
HER LATE MAJESTY QUEEN VICTORIA.
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

"The story of Empire building is a fascinating one; no romance ever penned can equal it."

PRICE 3D. BY POST 4D.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

The Fellowship of the Kingdom

or, The Triune Kingdom of the Triune God

By J. G. MODIN

This book is chiefly addressed to clergy, ministers and theological students. It should especially be read by all Christians who, through misconception, are fundamentally at variance with B.-I. teaching. Send it to your clergyman. By an entirely new way of approach it opens up an essential aspect of the Divine revelation which no reverent mind can lightly put aside, nor any logical mind gainsay, viz., the revelation of a Triune God working out His purpose in and for the world, in and through His Triune Kingdom.

A Scottish Minister writes: "The threefold aspect of the Kingdom and indeed of all the manifestations of God is a matter of which I was aware, though dimly . . . Your book has developed the theme in directions I did not dream of. I have, and can have, nothing but praise for it."

Price 2/6. By Post 2/9.
Canada and U.S.A. 70 cts. post free.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

THE SABBATH THAT WAS MADE FOR MAN

By J. G. MODIN

35 pp. Paper Cover

Deals with that identification mark of Israel, the keeping of a National Sabbath. It is by far the most valuable contribution yet made to the subject.

Price 9d.; by post 10d. Canada and U.S.A. 20 cts. Post free.

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd.
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

St. Paul in Britain

Or, The Origin of British as opposed to Papal Christianity.

By Rev. R. W. MORGAN.

Crown 8vo. 192 pp. Cloth Cover.

Proves that the Church in Britain owes nothing to Rome, but was established by those who learned the Gospel from the lips of Christ Himself, within five years of the Crucifixion. The style alone makes the book worth reading, while the author's citation of authorities stamps it as the result of high scholarship and deep research.

Price 3/6; by post, 3/9. Canada and U.S.A. 95 cts. Post free.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

BE A BANNER BEARER

Spread the truth. Interest your friends, not only in our Movement, but in following our Movement and its developments week by week. Induce them to become subscribers as you are, for it is only thus that our Movement can grow and the light be shed in the dark corners. Do your part in the pioneering work and be a banner bearer.

Special Campaign for Increasing the Circulation of this Journal.

I wish to help, and I send herewith the sum of.....

for which please send ..... copies for three, six, twelve months to:

(Name) .....

Postal address .....

.....

.....

Alternative form :—

I enclose the sum of .....

Please send..... copies to whomsoever you may select for a period covered by this amount.

N.B.—The subscription is 3/- for three months; 6/- for six months; 12/- for twelve months. Canada and U.S.A. three dollars per annum.

ADDRESS—

The Secretary,
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

AUG 3'29 K

JULY 27, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" Gen 22 17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" Num 24 7

GT BRITAIN & IRELAND

CANADA

AUSTRALIA

SOUTH AFRICA

NEW ZEALAND

NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

INDIA

CROWN COLONIES

PROTECTORATES

DEPENDENCIES

MANDATORY TERRITORIES

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1st CHRON 29 v 23 JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN .... EGYPT" Is 19 v 19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee". Gen. 35·11

J. J. HALL, 222

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962 Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

WHO IS THE ISRAEL OF THE PROPHECIES?

Are you ever at a loss to answer this question adequately? You need not be. It is answered in simple language in our publication—

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH

By S. E. STEELE.

If you find it difficult to summon your texts to support your argument with the non-believer, let this book do it for you. Present your antagonist with a copy of this book, and after reading it he cannot honestly remain a sceptic, because the texts quoted in irrefutable support of our Truth are all to be found in the Bible.

Send for some copies to-day and pass them on to those whom you wish to convert to this great Truth.

THIS IS A GOOD ELEMENTARY BOOK.

Demy 8vo. Price 1/-; post free, 1/2.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Preliminary Announcement

THE UPRISING OF ISRAEL'S YOUTH

For years it has been coming: now it has come!

A Junior League of the Federation? Yes!

THE BRITISH-ISRAEL CRUSADERS

Who will join?

We want every boy and girl, every young man and young woman (up to the age limit of 35 years) to send in their names and addresses as soon as possible to :—

The Crusaders' Secretary,
Miss E. A. WILLMOTT,
6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

You must attend the inaugural Meeting at Headquarters on Saturday, 14th September (make a note of the date), when the first members will be enrolled.

Will you be one of these?

AN ENTIRELY NEW MONTHLY PAPER OF OUR OWN

"The B.-I. Crusader"

price one penny, or 1/6 per annum post free. Inclusive subscription (Crusader's Membership and Paper) 2/6 per annum. First issue on sale at the Congress.

Order your copy now.

Wherever B.-I. Truth is known, we want a Crusader Group. Europe! Asia! Africa! America!

Form your groups—Send in your names—Enrol at once.

Look out for further information shortly.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 395. Vol. VIII. JULY 27th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—III. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	465
APPLICATION v. INTERPRETATION. By Bishop J. H. Allen	468
THE CRISIS IN THE CHURCH AND THE WAY OUT.—II. By the Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A.	469
USING OUR OPPORTUNITIES. Address at May Meetings by Mr. Wm. Whitton	472
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—VI. By S. E. Steele	474
CORRESPONDENCE	475
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.	476
RACIAL ORIGINS IN THE UNITED STATES	477
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	478

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—III.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

There is an element in regard to the Coming of our Lord which grows in interest and importance as we "see the day approaching." It is the part to be played by the Archangel.

At the time of our Lord's passion, when the forces of darkness, satanic and human, drew their net about Him, He said, with most sublime significance, "Thinkest thou that I cannot NOW pray to my Father, and he shall PRESENTLY give me more than twelve legions of angels?"

The angel hosts were at His command, or ready to speed in answer to His prayer. There was then, however, a barrier in the way of Him uttering that prayer, and He expressed it thus:—

"But how then shall the scriptures be fulfilled, that thus it must be?"

Angels had no part in the great Redemption conflict and victory. At the second Coming angel hosts have their part to play, and "Michael, the great prince that standeth for thy people," shall in due time "stand up," and that before the second Coming of our Lord; and in that second coming he and the angel hosts will bear a part.

In the B.C. days of Cyrus and Darius, "Michael, one of the chief princes, came to the aid of the Lord, as we read in the tenth chapter of Daniel.

"And at the time of the end" "Michael the great Prince . . . shall stand up" and take his part in the great and final struggle. Now Michael is the commander of the Angel hosts. Thus we read, "Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels, and prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven." Therefore at this time of the end we may know that the whole of the Angel forces, commanded by Michael, are at hand to strengthen and deliver the people of the Lord.

What a comfort to know that this is the case. But when may we know that Michael the great prince shall stand up for the people of the Lord? The answer is given in the eleventh chapter of Daniel. When the last of the "Kings of the North" shall set the tabernacle of his palace in the glorious holy mountain; and having done so shall perish without hand and none shall help him, then shall Michael the great prince stand up. Has such a thing been accomplished. In the articles on "the documents of Daniel" we pointed out that the last of the Kaisers, William of Germany, built his palace in that very spot on the mount of Olives. Having done so with the hope that he would live to occupy it as the King of Jerusalem and of the world, he fell, and is now swiftly passing to his approaching end at Doorn. No hand is raised against him. Simply the passage of time is hastening him to the grave. Also there is no hand raised to help him. Surely this is so obvious a fulfilment of the great indication as to cause us to look with earnest scrutiny at it as a sign-post of the age attained. If the indentification is sure then the time of the "standing up" of Michael is at hand.

We note that Daniel uses the phrase "stand up" of kings who have begun, continued, and successfully prosecuted their reign; dying in harness. Kings who fail and are deposed do not seem to have been accounted to have "stood up" in the meaning of Daniel.

Digitized by Google

Michael shall "stand up" and successfully accomplish the delivery of the people of the Lord.

Thus under the Banner of Christ the men of Israel still living and the forces of Israel who have "passed over" are gathered. To them is conjoined the Angel forces under the leadership of the victorious Michael the archangel.

Now, when finally our Lord shall descend from heaven with the voice of the Archangel and the trump of God, the enemies of our Lord will be finally routed, and for ever.

Britain and her Allies fought the last great war. Terribly they fought and suffered. But the next is the battle of the great day of God Almighty. Britain will be in it. The redeemed under Christ will be in it. Michael and his angels will be in it, and the victory is assured.

Again we call attention to the tenth and eleventh chapters of Daniel, and to the fact that these things are national and international. The Lord and the angel hosts are intensely committed to the national and international position, and we shall do ill if we turn our attention alone to the ecclesiastical side of this great question.

OUR LORD'S PERSONAL ATTITUDE TOWARDS THE "COMING."

We call attention to the attitude of the Lord Himself in connection with His second coming. We read in the Epistle to the Hebrews that "He is seated on the right hand of the Majesty on high HENCEFORTH EXPECTING TILL His enemies be made His footstool." Again we point out that this is national and international. It is in connection with the kingdom that He is so eagerly "henceforth expecting," reckoning from nearly two thousand years ago: expecting—expecting—expecting—till His enemies be made His footstool.

Shall we ignore that which is of such intense and continued interest to Him. We shall take these things into consideration. We shall pray and watch along these lines—but not to the exclusion of the watching for the time when we ourselves shall be caught up to meet Him in the air and so be ever with the Lord.

So far we have dealt with the resurrection and translation of the saints, and with what we may term the international situation.

We call every Advent Testimony student and every loyal Bible student to look more closely to this matter of the Lord's interest in the national situation. It may be that this phase has not interested such student greatly, and that he may even now feel that it is a matter from which he may turn at will as of little interest. But can he loyally do so when the Lord has taken such pains to show that this phase of the matter is of supreme interest to Himself, and that He has bound our interest, and our interests, with His, in regard to this great world-wide matter. It is a similar position for many to that in which the Apostle Paul found himself when by self revelation our Lord confounded his theology and revolutionized his whole scheme of values; in amazement he first cried "Who art thou, Lord?" and heard with overwhelming amazement the declaration "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest." As soon as this tremendous fact took form in his mind his next query was "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

When the national phase of the Gospel opens to the minds of students of the Word such an upheaval often comes to their minds. It is a state of confusion which comes through the bursting in of light from heaven; but the confusion soon gives place to the orderly march into the knowledge of what to so many seems to be a new phase of truth, although the truth itself is as old as the Bible which incorporates it, and as the race which is living it out in individual and national life.

Having taken a rapid glance at the national and international phase of the activities connected with the second coming of our Lord, we shall now pass to the consideration of the more intimate and domestic things connected with His coming. So we turn again to the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth chapter of St. Matthew.

"THAT FAITHFUL AND WISE SERVANT."

Here is a most significant passage:

> Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season?
>
> Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing.
>
> Verily I say unto you, That he shall make him ruler over all his goods.
>
> But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming;
>
> And shall begin to smite his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken;
>
> The lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of,
>
> And shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Who then is that servant? Let the Word itself give the primary answer. Ez. xxxvii, 24-28: "And David my servant shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do them.

"And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children for ever: and my servant David shall be their prince for ever.

"Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them, and I will place them, and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore.

"My tabernacle also shall be with them; yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

"And the heathen shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore."

Primarily, we say the faithful and wise servant is the House of David.

This will doubtless come to some as a shock, so far is it from their preconceptions. To meet this we must call attention to the wealth of specific passages of Scripture which are dedicated to, and spoken concerning, the House of David. We cannot pretend to quote at large all these passages, and so we shall indicate the important chapters as they occur to us, leaving to readers the pleasure of filling out the very wonderful list of such passages, and the pleasure of turning them up in the Bible for themselves.

Digitized by Google

First we come to the seventh chapter of II Samuel: the founding of the House of David. This chapter has been preceded by those passages which show the selection and anointing of David in the house of his father Jesse at Bethlehem, by the Prophet and Judge, Samuel.

II Samuel vii.	Jeremiah xxxiii.
I Kings ii.	Ezekiel xvii, and Ezekiel
I Chron. xvi-xvii.	xxxvii.
Isaiah vii-xii.	St. Luke i, 26-38.

These and many more passages are devoted to the great theme of the House of David and its appointed task as the Shepherd and King of Israel.

We say, then, that primarily the servant appointed of the Lord to rule over His household is the House of David.

The secondary application of this great statement involves all those who substitute for the House of David in the administration of the affairs of the nation in Church and State.

We see the ministers of the Crown called to answer in this investigation of service to Israel. We see the judges, active in the administration of justice in the name of the King, involved in the enquiry. We see administrative officers of the various departments of State; the heads and personnel of the services, and all who are engaged in carrying out the administration of the King, called to an accounting before the Head of the House of David, Jesus Christ our Lord.

We see also the Clergy and Ministers of the Church, who certainly are appointed to give the servants of the Lord their portion of meat in due season.

Now when this great accounting comes, the thing which stands out most prominently is the recognition by all these services, Royal, Clerical, and Lay, of the fact that they are administering the household of the Lord in the interim between His going away and His coming again.

The fatal lapse of the personnel of the services is to say "My Lord delayeth His coming," and in the meantime "to smite his fellow-servants and to eat and drink with the drunken . . . . ." The reckoning in this case is severe and terrible. The Lord is pitiful and of tender mercy to the sinner. But the Lord is stern and terrible to those who mislead and cause others to sin. Especially is this the case with those who bear authority in His Name.

What a striking passage is this. How solemn the warning which fell from the lips of our Lord Himself. But we may not follow this phase of the "Coming" activity further at this time.

MIDNIGHT.

We now come to the very beautiful description of the midnight Coming for the wedding supper of the Lamb.

Strangely enough there is little said about the wedding. The Bride is not referred to at all. The wedding procession is the thing emphasized here.

"Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps and went forth to meet the Bridegroom."

Let us get our feet on the ground. The Bible wastes no time in meaningless literature. There is nothing written for form's sake, for beauty's sake, for poetry's sake. Every line of the Bible has a specific meaning and a practical one.

The parable here set forth has its feet resting upon solid fact to be experienced and enacted in history.

There are the equivalent of ten virgins; and they are responsible for furnishing the illumination for the return of the Bridegroom.

Who then are represented under this figure? Surely the virgins of the ten tribes of Israel. These are chosen for their fairness and fitness to welcome the coming Bridegroom.

They are furnished with their lamps. Needless to say the lamp is the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. "Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."

They were furnished with the oil, which the New Testament makes clear is the Holy Spirit shed forth at Pentecost, and present ever since in the Church of Christ. "But the manifestation of the spirit is given to every man to profit withal."

The ten retained the lamps; but some allowed the oil to fail. Their Christian faith had dwindled to mere formalism.

When at midnight the cry went forth "Behold the Bridegroom cometh," all those virgins arose and trimmed their lamps.

Five only out of the ten were able to light their lamps and so contribute to the illumination of the procession. Five went to seek new oil for their lamps.

Five of the virgins of Israel failed in their trust, and five of the tribes of Israel were therefore not represented when the Bridegroom came.

Thereafter, when the Bridegroom came and entered into the house with those which were ready, AND THE DOOR WAS SHUT, came the other five knocking at the door and crying Lord, Lord, open to us. But He answered, "Verily I say unto you, I know you not."

The wedding feast came, and the representatives of five tribes of Israel failed in their duty of welcoming the returning Lord and so were excluded.

There is a solemn warning here which it behoves the people of the Lord to study and master. Most certainly a great multitude of the Israel people, misled by modern would-be revisers of the Lord's unchangeable Gospel, are not looking nor waiting for the return of the Lord to reign, neither do they visualize that which is set forth under the figure of the marriage of the Lamb.

To whom is the Lamb to be married? To His Bride.

But who is His Bride? Isaiah answers, Israel. For to Israel the Lord declared "I have espoused thee unto me as a bride of youth." The Revelator also declares the Bride, the Lamb's wife, to be Jerusalem, the capital city, the centre and heart of Israel.

The marriage ceremony is the reuniting of the Church, which is the body of Christ, with the Nation, which is the Bride of the Lord, in the bonds of Holiness to the Lord. So the legend "Holiness to the Lord" shall be equally inscribed on the bells of the horses on the streets, on the pots of the houses of Israel, and on the sacrificial vessels of the temple.

The time is coming, and now is, when the nation shall awake to holiness and service, even as the Church is awake to the theory of the same, and both shall practise it in the united bonds of the " Beulah " experience.

Digitized by Google

Let us get the illumination ready in all the tribes of Israel.

What seems to be the explicit teaching of this parable?

We suggest that it is this. In Israel, both as to Church and State, there are two grades of people who, according to that grade, will attain or will miss a higher phase of life which differs from other phases, as indicated by the Apostle Paul when he applies the principles of biology to illustrate this same truth.

" But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die:

And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain:

But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body.

All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds.

There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory.

So also is the resurrection of the dead."

Those who have the oil of the Holy Spirt, obtained according to our Lord's teaching to Nicodemus in the third chapter of St. John, will pass in to the marriage. Those who fail to obtain the oil of the Holy Spirit through the New Birth from above will be excluded from that feast and marriage, and will have to plod on in a lower order of life, and that seems to be a permanent classification.

There is deadly danger in formalism. The lamp, beautifully ornamented and polished, can not function without the Oil of the Holy Spirit.

There is deadly danger in material nationalism and material individualism. The natural man cannot so attain the things of God.

When the midnight cry comes fifty per cent. according to the parable will pass with the Lord into the higher state of felicity, honour and life. Fifty per cent. will have to be content with the dark streets and the feeble illumination of the darkened home.

Israel triumphant will enter in! Israel non-attaining will continue on the lower level of life.

Such seems to be the teaching of this parable. The Virgins who were excluded from the marriage feast were still in the streets of the city, and were at liberty and under the necessity of returning to their own homes, which in contrast with the banqueting hall of the Lord would seem very drab and dark.

The Lord went to the trouble to make this solemn statement in the midst of other most solemn statements such as even the Bible does not group together elsewhere. He evidently intended that we should scrutinize His words and act according to His warning.

Let the lamps be burning and the vessels filled with oil.

How shall we obtain the oil? He warns us that we cannot obtain it from our fellows—from neither priest nor layman—but by direct and personal application to God.

" But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly. St. Matt. vi, 6.

" If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him?" St. Luke xi, 13.

APPLICATION v. INTERPRETATION.

By BISHOP J. H. ALLEN.

THE word " Interpretation " occurs in the Bible seventy-three times, the word application not once. And yet making an application of the Scriptures so as to make them " fit " into the various problems of life, especially the ethical ones, is supposed to be the most worthy and profound use possible for the holy oracles; whereas, between the custom of making an application of the Scriptures and that of giving an interpretation of them, there is as great a difference as that of good and evil, right and wrong, truth and error, holiness and sin.

Interpretation opens up, unfolds, illuminates, explains, and rightly divides the text; application blinds, confuses, obscures and hides its true meaning. Interpretation expounds the contents of the text itself; application compels the text to resemble something wholly outside of, and entirely apart from, that which is found therein. Diametrically opposite to this, interpretation forces the text to give forth, to reveal its own individual composite matter, its own internal character and inner contents.

Application, as a system of Biblical treatment, is fanciful, visionary, and wholly a product of the imagination, which takes the text out of its context and away from all related truth, to toss it hither and thither, trying to find something foreign to its genuine import, which it can be made to " fit " or be likened unto, while it cares nothing whatever concerning the original meaning of the text as given and for the purpose given. On the other hand, interpretation studies the internal character of the text, its related or general contextual setting, its individual value, import and relation to its immediate context, together with every other phase of the subject found anywhere and everywhere in the entire Word of God.

Interpretation searches the Scriptures, application juggles with them. Application conceals the revealed. Interpretation reveals the concealed. " Interpretations belong to God," but application is a human innovation, which, at best, offers only an impress, an outward copy, a photographic reproduction of the external appearance of the things proclaimed, but never the things themselves.

Interpretation is a loving, loyal, honest and earnest faithfulness to the word of Truth, the illumination and inspiration of which must ever come from that self-same Holy Spirit Who revealed the Divine Word to holy men. Therefore it knows, is certain and sure. While application, which professes to be wise and makes a show of wisdom, is but a substitute for knowledge, and, consequently, a pretender to the "High calling of a minister of the Gospel of the grace of God."

Digitized by Google

Interpretation is a good soldier of Jesus Christ, and makes a winning fight. Application is a slacker, which is ever shy, sly, slick and slippery, as it strives unlawfully to win a victorious fight with the temper all taken out of the Sword of the Spirit. It never does, and never can, magnify the Word of God, because its chief object is to magnify the thing that looks like something else, other than that with which the Word of Truth is concerning itself.

The Bible is the holiest thing on earth to-day; its recorded truths the most vital things of earth, because they are either a savour of life unto life or of death unto death. All human interests centre about life and death. Application trifles with these vital things, because of its inherent dishonesty and indifference to the facts involved. Thus application robs the truth of its Divinely-intended meaning, deceiving the confiding hearer into the belief that he has been given the absolute facts as God would have him know them; whereas he has been given only the speculative opinions of the imagination.

Speculation in its last analysis is imagination run wild, a state of affairs encouraged by application; the use of which correspondingly discourages all honest and helpful, spiritual and truthful, interpretation. The latter ever seeks thoroughly and correctly to explain the true meaning of God's Word that none may be left in doubt concerning that which has been expounded.

Application as a homiletical stunt, or a pulpiteering trick, may serve an oratorical purpose, or be used as the basic promoter of taking and high-sounding platitudes. But it can never beget in men an eager desire to hear, nor such an intense love of the truth, that they would be saved from the coming "strong delusions" of Antichrist, that would keep them from believing "the lie," with all its fatal results—eternal death, while true, faithful, loving persistence along the line of interpretation of "the word of faith"—the faith-producing word—might have resulted in its direct antithesis—eternal LIFE.

Finally, while it is true that the word application is not once used in the Scriptures, its root, its basic word, is therein used four times, this use being diametrically opposite to the methods of the applicator.

"Apply thine heart (power to love) unto instruction, and thine ears to the words of knowledge"—Prov. xxiii, 12. "Bow down thine ear, and hear the words of the wise, and apply thine heart (love it) unto my knowledge."—Prov. xxii, 17. "My son, if thou wilt receive my words, and hide my commandments with thee; So that thou incline thine ear unto wisdom, and apply thine heart to understanding; . . . . . and find the knowledge of God."—Prov. ii. "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts (the hidden man of the heart) unto wisdom."—Psa. xc, 12.

The burden of which is that we may so apply our ears to hear and our hearts to love the words of God that we may receive the instructions, understanding, wisdom and knowledge of God. That we, understanding the thoughts expressed by the written Word, may know the mind of God.

Therefore the only application of the Scriptures lawful among men and acceptable to Our Lord is that all of us who desire to teach the truth of God to others, consecrate our mental powers, our personal abilities, our natural or acquired efficiency to God, all of which have previously been put under the cleansing power of the Blood of the Atonement, placed on the sanctifying altar, and so filled with the Holy Spirit, that without personal choice, preference, prejudice or mental reservation, God may have an opportunity to use these to the utmost of their possibility in and of and through Him.

The greatest blessing that those who believe in the truth of Saxon and Anglo-Saxon identity with the ten-tribed House of Israel are giving to the world is that they are interpreting the Scriptures and not making a meaningless application of them.

THE CRISIS IN THE CHURCH AND THE WAY OUT.

BY THE REV. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, M.A.
(for 26 years a Missionary of the C.M.S. to Ceylon).

PART II.

THE second blessing promised to Abraham was multiplicity of seed. "I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered." Again, "Look now toward heaven and tell the stars if thou be able to number them; and He said unto him, so shall thy seed be." And again, "Thou shalt be a father of many nations," a promise which was also confirmed to Sarah.

It is customary to assign all these promises to the Jews. Those who do, must admit the conclusion of Professor Driver when he says, "We must candidly admit that these promises have never been fulfilled, and there is now no prospect of them ever being fulfilled." The Jews number to-day some 15 millions of people, a large proportion of whom are not pure Jews, and they are the descendants of a portion only of one of the twelve tribes of Israel. The other eleven tribes, together with the larger portion of Judah, must, if they have increased in the same proportion as this small portion of a tribe, number many millions, and if the promise to Abraham is to be fulfilled must consist of many nations. The Jews in no way answer to this description, and there is only one race in the world to-day which does. That is the race which on December 11, 1917, delivered the Holy City out of the hands of the Gentiles.

A third promise made to Abraham was that his seed should be a blessing to all nations. "In thee and in thy seed shall all nations of the earth be blessed," and "all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him."

This is true of the British race to-day in two important particulars; it is true materially, as I have personally had opportunity of witnessing. It fell to my lot to spend some years in the heart of the forest district of Ceylon. My district included 7,000 square miles of forest or jungle. This area also included several thousand tanks or lakes which 2,000 years ago were connected in a complete system of irrigation when the country was one of the most fertile and prosperous in the world of that time. With the passing of the years, and the various wars which from time to time have swept over the island, all these had fallen into disuse, and the country had become covered with jungle, the haunt of wild beasts and reptiles, amid which the Singhalese people snatched a precarious livelihood. Since the British took possession in 1815 this state of things has steadily been changed. On one of my journeys into the interior, for instance, I came across a piece of modern machinery such as I had only seen previously on a film depicting the construction of the Panama Canal. The great steam navvy was biting out literally tons of earth in the process of constructing a lake which has since been completed, and contains some four or five thousand acres of pure water by which thousands of acres of land are being irrigated for the benefit of the people. This is only one instance of many in one small island. It is well known that in the neighbouring continent of India millions of acres of land have thus been reclaimed and millions of people saved from famine, while millions of acres are in process of reclamation as I write. Similar schemes have been and are being carried out in Egypt and in other parts of the world, so that another prophecy concerning Israel—that of Isaiah—can be said to be literally fulfilled by the British race to-day. "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." "In the wilderness shall waters break out and streams in the desert." This is true also of the British race in a spiritual sense. Those who persist in the illusion that the Jew only is the seed of Abraham according to the promise assert, as a rule, that when Christ returns the Jews will suddenly be converted by the very fact of His return (a theory that is at variance with all God's revealed methods of working), and that they will then go into all lands and preach the gospel to every creature. If that theory were correct the Jew would have to hurry or he would find the work done, as the gospel has been preached, or is being preached to all nations to-day, and of an army of some 30,000 missionaries rather more than 28,000 are of the Anglo-Saxon race. The Bible has been translated into some 600 languages by the British and Foreign Bible Society, and it seems that of many other languages into which the Bible has been translated only one translation has been carried out by a member of another race.

Digitized by Google

So that this third great promise to Abraham is abundantly fulfilled in the Anglo-Saxon race to-day, which must therefore be of the seed of Abraham, or by some inscrutable action of Providence another race has accomplished the task set by the Almighty to Israel.

There is a fourth which in these days has been before the eyes of the world in a truly marvellous manner. As I have already pointed out a promise was made to Abraham and Sarah that they should be the progenitors of nations. The promise was to include Kings, i.e., the promise of the sceptre.

I have already mentioned the fact of the illness of His Majesty the King. This event has not only affected the English-speaking races, but the whole of the civilized world, and the Press of the nations has been at pains to point out that the British Monarchy is something which differs in kind from all other ruling powers. A talk on the wireless one evening dealt with this subject. The speaker was referring to the effect of His Majesty's illness on the world's Press, and dealt especially with America. Pointing out that American Press methods differed considerably from the British, he said that for one thing almost the whole of the American Press utilizes the front page for the news of the day, and that consequently the whole of the American Press for weeks utilized its front page for news of "The King." Lately, a speech was reported in the Times on the subject of "Dominions' Status" in which the unique position of the Crown was discussed, and the phrase was used, "The Crown may be said to be everywhere present in His Majesty's Dominions." If you add to this the fact that His Majesty was crowned on the Stone in Westminster Abbey, which is popularly known as the "Stone of Destiny" and "Jacob's Pillar," you will probably realize that the "Crown" is hedged about by Divine protection. This is forcibly illustrated in the case of the "Stone of Destiny." Some have claimed that this stone is of similar composition to stone found in Scotland and Ireland, and many pieces of stone have been sent from these places for comparison without any being identified as of similar composition. A distinguished scientist recently made a tour of all likely places in which to find similar stone and found it at one place only, and that the place in which neighbourhood Jacob is supposed to have set up the Pillar. The gentleman referred to asked if a small piece of the Stone, no larger than a pea, might be broken off and sent out for purposes of comparison. He was told that in order to do this it would be necessary to pass two Acts of Parliament, to secure the King's signature, and then to obtain the permission of the Ecclesiastical Dignitary in charge, who assured him that certainly as far as he was concerned the permission would not be granted. The scientist said that if all these processes were gone through and the desired permission given he would not like to be the one to touch the Stone. Most people will agree, that the fact that in the Providence of God this Stone is thus hedged about is sufficient proof to satisfy the ordinary mind that the popular belief is the true one. His Majesty's descent from King David of Israel is well established, showing that the promises to that monarch are also being fulfilled to-day. I have said sufficient, however, to establish the fact that the promise to Abraham that he should be the father of kings is abundantly fulfilled in the British Royal House.

So that these four great promises to Abraham have to-day practically come to complete fulfilment, and constitute one of the most striking testimonies to the Divine inspiration of the Scriptures one can have.

Prophecy is also one of the great witnesses to the Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ. In the 9th chapter of the Book of Daniel there is a prophecy which may be regarded as a key to the interpretation of Old Testament prophecies because it was the first to be fulfilled on the day year scale. There is a good deal of uncertainty as to the translation of verse 24 and the date from which to reckon, but in more than one method of translation and dating the prophecy will be found to run out in the time of our Lord.

This is one translation by the Rev. W. B. Galloway:—

"From the going forth of the Commandment to cause to return and to rebuild Jerusalem unto Messiah the Prince weeks seven and seventy."

This would be, on the scale of a day for a year, 539 years.

Digitized by Google

Taking the date of Cyrus, as some do, to be 536 B.C., this would end the 539 years in A.D. 3.

Others take the date to be 457 or 454 B.C. and reckon 67 weeks. They arrive at similar conclusions, viz., that the prophecy was fulfilled by our Lord at the time indicated. But that is only one detail of prophecy which was fulfilled by Him. There are more than 300 details of prophecy recorded in the Old Testament Scriptures with reference to our Lord. Those Scriptures were closed for 400 years, and then the Messiah came and in His Person fulfilled every one. So that the voice of prophecy which so loudly proclaims the inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures is equally potent in testifying to the Deity of Jesus Christ. And what shall we say of history in this latter respect? We go back nearly (or perhaps exactly) 1,900 years and in imagination look out over Jerusalem, and what do we see? Darkness is over the face of the land, and one can dimly see three crosses silhouetted against the sky. On the centre one hangs Jesus Christ. His enemies laugh Him to scorn, mock Him and rejoice to believe that His day is done.

And then history begins to speak. A few short years, and the Roman Emperor who has spent most of his reign trying to stamp out the Christian religion exclaims on his death-bed, "O, Christ, Thou has conquered." A few more years and one of his successors, Constantine the Great, the son of a British Princess, born at York, makes Christianity the religion of his empire. Years speed on and great Emperors and Rulers stride over the face of Europe acknowledging, however grudgingly, Jesus Christ as King. Years pass and there rules in England our greatest King of ancient times, Alfred the Great. He not only acknowledges Jesus Christ as King, but makes the laws of Israel the basis of his laws, which they continue to be to-day. In the preamble to those laws he says to his people, "Vex not the stranger that is among you, for your fathers were strangers in the land of Egypt."

King Alfred died in 901. Just one thousand years later died England's greatest Queen. It is related of Her Majesty that on one occasion she attended at the Royal Albert Hall a performance of Handel's "Messiah." Her Majesty's advisers counselled her to sit during the singing of the Hallelujah Chorus when the rest of the people stood, as in better keeping with the dignity of the Queen-Empress. For a time Her Majesty sat, but when the words rang out "And He shall reign for ever and ever," she rose, and with the Crown of Empire on her brow, and the Sceptre of Empire across her breast, stood and bowed, acknowledging the King of kings. An incident is related of His Majesty King George V's visit to India, on the occasion of the Delhi Durbar, by an American lady in a book entitled "An American girl at the Durbar." The author tells of a great Church Parade at which His Majesty was the central figure, and a vast concourse of people looked on. A leading Hindu, who was standing near the lady, said to her with a note of awe in his voice, "Did you see the King-Emperor kneel? I would rather have seen that than all the pageant of the Durbar."

It will be familiar to most of my readers that when our Sovereigns are crowned their attention is drawn to the little cross at the end of the sceptre, and they are addressed by the Archbishop thus, "Know thou that the whole world is subject to Christ the King."

About the time that Jerusalem was delivered a great service was held in St. Paul's Cathedral, at which His Majesty and other members of the Royal Family were present; leaders in Church and State at home and from all the Dominions, and citizens from all parts had also assembled, and the vast congregation rose and sang these words from the battle hymn of the American Republic written by Julia Ward Howe:—

"Mine eye hath seen the coming of the glory of the Lord,
He is treading out the winepress where the grapes of wrath are stored,
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword,
His truth is marching on."

When it is realized that immediately after the words—

"Jerusalem shall be trodden under foot of the gentiles until the times of the gentiles shall be fulfilled," our Lord said:—

"And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with power and great glory," it will also be apparent that the words of another verse of Julia Ward Howe's hymn are also true:

"He is coming like the glory of the dawn upon the wave,
He is wisdom to the mighty, He is succour to the brave,
And the world shall be His footstool and the soul of time His slave,
Our God is marching on."

So history is accumulating evidence to the Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ.

There is one other line of evidence which must not be omitted, as without it as far as the individual is concerned the other two will be of little value, and in the verses upon which these pages are founded this evidence (that of experience) is shown to link together the two pillars of the temple of truth in a wonderful manner. St. Peter is speaking of a personal experience which he shared with the other two privileged disciples, St. James and St. John. It was in the "holy mount" when the three saw our Lord, not as they had been accustomed to see Him, and as the other disciples and the people of the land had seen Him, in His earthly guise, but with that stripped from Him, He stood before them in all the splendour of His Divine Majesty, and the Voice which has spoken only seven times in history with equal clearness uttered the words, "This is My beloved Son in Whom I am well pleased." That experience had a lasting effect on the lives of the three participators, so that one (St. James) was the first to seal his testimony with his blood; St. John bases his gospel and his epistles on it. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth," and St. Peter says that the word of prophecy is made more sure to him thereby. Then as if to anticipate an objection on the part of his hearers, as though some should say, "Yes, but you had that experience to convince you," he continues that the word of prophecy "is a light shining in a dark place (it is the Old Testament Scriptures of which he is speaking, be it noted) unto which you do well that you take heed until the day dawn and the DAYSTAR arise in your hearts." Then the Old Testament Scriptures are given for a definite purpose, viz., that they should be so studied as to lead to a personal experience no less than the indwelling of the Son of God in the heart of the reader. Here attention is called to the fact that the message to the Church of the Laodicean age, which many are agreed is the age in which we live, is "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear My voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me."

Digitized by Google

Now if this experience is reached it will be found that the evidence is complete and the two pillars of Truth established upon unshakable foundations, for the reader who has entered upon this experience will have no shadow of doubt but that the Scriptures which have led to that desirable end were inspired of God, and that the Person who has thus deigned to take up His abode in the heart is no other than the Divine Son of God.

I close with some lines which I hope will be found to sum up the whole matter:

Deep darkness covers all the earth,
And deeper dark the people's minds;
The nations arm them to the teeth
While weary strife their commerce binds.

Amid the darkness all around,
The stormy sea, the cloudy sky,
A Light within some soul is found;
It is the DAYSTAR from on high.

The darkness flees, the clouds depart,
The Star speeds onwards in the skies,
Where dwells the Daystar in the heart
The hopes of men begin to rise.

For, lo, the Day of God is come,
Foreseen by sages from afar;
And we speed onwards to our home,
Our Guide the Bright and Morning Star.

USING OUR OPPORTUNITIES.

ADDRESS AT MAY MEETINGS.

BY MR. WM. WHITTON.

FOR over thirty years I have been trying to do something for British-Israel in Sheffield. As I go up and down the country I get into the habit of speaking for hours instead of minutes. It is our job to bring people back to God. Perhaps it would be best if I talked about some of the people I have met; and we are all meeting different sorts of people. But who is the greatest personage I have met? I am going to tell you—I have met the Lord, and I have tasted, and I have seen that the Lord is good, and not only good, but very good, and I can say as David said in the 103rd Psalm, and feel like singing it every day of my life, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless His holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits. Who forgiveth all thine iniquities." He has forgiven me, and blotted out my sins, and I know it. But it does not stop there: We have experienced and we preach a full Gospel. For the Psalm goes on to say, "Who healeth all thy diseases," and He has healed mine. You would not think to see me that I had been bedridden for six months in a sanatorium, would you? But I have. That is the great Gospel message. The Lord said to His people through Moses, "If ye will keep My commandments and do them, then I will give thee prosperity and peace and security, and I will remove all sickness and all disease from among you." The Lord said it, and He meant it. And when I was laid on that sick bed, with my body racked with pain, not knowing what it was to be without, I saw this great message of healing, and in a flash believed it, and simply laid myself on the altar; and what happened? The pain left me, and it has never returned; health and strength came back to me. Now I know that I am not my own, but belong to my Lord. "Ye are not your own, for ye have been bought with a price." And now our business is to go about and proclaim the glorious Gospel, not only of salvation, but also the glorious Gospel of the Kingdom of God. We meet with all sorts of difficulties and problems; the man in the street is wanting the truth, and we have it, and there is no one in the world has it as the British-Israel people have. What is the solution for our industrial problems? What is the solution for our problem of unemployment? What is the solution for all our bread and butter problems? Jesus Christ. He gave us the solution when He said, "Take no thought for to-morrow what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, or what ye shall put on. For the Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things." "Don't worry about to-morrow," He said. One can just fancy hearing the people say, "Yes, but what are we to do? We need food and we need clothing and we need housing." Yes, says Jesus, but your Heavenly Father knows all about that, and He has provided food for the birds, and clothing for the flowers, and He knows all about you. But what are you to do? "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things will be added unto you." All these things shall be added unto you if you will only walk in the ways of God, and will keep the laws and the commandments and the statutes and the judgments of Jehovah. That is our great Message, and we are going about proclaiming it. We believe this Message because we have experienced it. Going about the country I am looking for people to whom I can tell this Message, and am coming into contact with plenty of them.

Not long ago in Manchester, I stayed at one of the hotels there, and coming down early in the morning for breakfast I went into the dining-room, and began to look round for a victim! Then I noticed a gentleman seated at a table by himself reading the Morning Post. It was just about the time when the Prayer Book Measure was being presented to Parliament; I sat at his table, soon getting into conversation with him, first about the Prayer Book, and then about religious matters in general, and just when we had become good friends, I turned to my subject and said, "By the way, do you ever meet any of these British-Israel people?" He looked me through and through, and replied, "Do I ever meet these British-Israel people? Yes, I do, to my sorrow." "Are they a bad lot of folks?" I asked. "Oh, no, you must not think that," he said. "Do not go away with that idea; they are the best Christian people I have ever met. My own sister is one of them. But it is a delusion of the Devil. You know he has all sorts of ways and means of winning Christian people, and he has tried this 'ism' and that 'ism' and all the different 'isms,' and now he has brought forward this British-Israel teaching, and whoever takes it on, they are 'goners,' and you have British-Israel all day—in the morning, at dinner-time, at bedtime; you cannot get in a word about anything else but British-Israel. My vicar is one of them, too, and he preaches British-Israel every Sunday," and he told me his vicar's name. "I have been one of his churchwardens, and I cannot stick it any longer," he said. "What can you do with a man who is continually preaching British-Israel? I have written a letter to our Bishop." I said, "I think you have done a very wise thing. Your Bishop will have to take it up." "You can take it from me that he will hear more about it," he continued. "If they would only go in for soul-saving." "Yes, that is what we want," I said. "I agree with you wholeheartedly. But do you ever see many cases of individual conversion nowadays?" He scratched his head, and said, "I must admit it is a long time since I saw any," and turning to me, he said, "Do you ever see any?" "Yes," I said, "this last twelve months I have seen well over thirty cases of real, sound conversion in the little community where I belong." "And where might that be?" he asked. "I should like to know where these conversions are taking place." I told him that I was in charge of the British-Israel Movement in Sheffield. And in less than two minutes that man had run away from the table! He did not want it. That is what we are doing. We are giving the people the Bible, and we are proving to them that the Bible is God's own written Word, and that it is His faithful Word. We are showing them that they are God's own special people, upon whom He is relying to do His work. And these people are coming back to God; they are coming to the Cross, and their lives are being changed. Conversions are taking place day by day, and they are real, sound cases of conversion. That is what we are out to do.

Digitized by Google

Let me mention another case. We come up against all sorts of problems in our meetings, and all sorts of people come to us. About a year ago two ladies came to our meeting, became very much interested, and came again. After one of the meetings one of them came to me and confessed that they were Mormons, and then she took the word back, and said, "We do not really call ourselves Mormons, we are the Latter Day saints." I always try to find some common ground with everybody, and by doing that can often win people over. So I turned to this young lady and said, "You are a Latter Day saint. Well, so am I. I am one of the Latter Day saints too. Let us see who the Latter Day saints are. Are we not living in the Latter Days? And what about the saints? Who are the saints?" I turned this young lady to the 148th Psalm, and showed her that the saints are the separated ones, those whom God has separated specially for His service. And I said, "You know God has been thousands of years at this work of separating a people for Himself." I spoke of the first few chapters of Genesis, and showed her how patiently God separated one man in each generation until He came to Abraham, and then how He separated a whole race, and I read to her the last verse of the 148th Psalm. "He also exalteth the horn of His people, the praise of all His saints; even of the children of Israel, a people near unto Him." They are the saints of the Most High, the Children of Israel—the British race. If our people did but know just what our glorious birthright is, don't you think they would seek to be worthier saints? For we are saints, everyone of us. We are Latter Day saints, and have every right to call ourselves by that name; we are living saints, everyone of us. The result of that conversation was that in a very few weeks' time those two ladies became members of our organization.

Every speaker has had a word or two to say about our enemies. I am meeting quite a lot of enemies. A while ago I met an atheist who was also a communist. I met him in one of the Sheffield streets. He was a good, honest man. Do not run away with the idea that every communist and every atheist is bad. I soon got into conversation with him, and when the conversation turned on the Scriptures he told me that if I would come to his home one evening he would prove to me in a quarter of an hour that the Bible was full of unfulfilled prophecies. As a servant of the Lord I went to that house, taking my Bible with me. I laid my Bible on the table, and said, "I stand on that Book as God's Word. Where is your Bible?" I really thought he had not got one. But he went to the sideboard, and there was a pile of books, and at the bottom there was a good family Bible, and he brought it out and said, "This is my Bible. Have you ever seen one like it?" I took it from him and opened it, finding it to be a splendid specimen of an old English Bible. "How old is this Book?" I asked. "It is over two hundred years old," he said. It was his father's, and it had been in the family for over two hundred years. "How much will you take for this Book?" Do you know the man took it away from me, and said, "money would not buy that Book." That man was an atheist, but he had a wonderful reverence for that Book. How was it that that man who professed to be an atheist should have such an inbred reverence for God's Word? It is because we are God's people, and it is bred in us. It has been bred in us right away down from Abraham, and we cannot help it. Anyhow we had a good talk on the Scriptures. He did not prove in a quarter of an hour that the Bible was full of unfulfilled promises. On the contrary, after three hours searching the Scriptures I got up to go home, and he asked me to sit down again. "Don't go yet," he said. "I have never seen the Bible like that before." I took him to the promises, and showed him their fulfilment, and showed him that he was one of the saints of the Most High. He would not allow me to leave until I had promised to go again. We can do a great work dealing with these people as we go about. We must take hold of all the opportunities that God is putting in our way.

Travelling one night by train in Manchester, I was locked up in a compartment with an Indian, and found he was a Mohammedan. We soon got into conversation about religion, and that man taught me a good lesson. He talked to me about the Koran, and he said to me, "You know that my Bible is much better than your Bible." I had read bits of the Koran, and said, "What makes you say that your Bible is better than our Bible?" He said, "I can prove that quite easily. My Bible says I must not do this and I must not do that. For instance, it says I must not drink whisky and rum, and I do not do it. But your Bible tells you not to do things, and you please yourselves." That was the lesson he taught me. These people come over here from foreign countries, and they do not listen to much of what we have to say; they do not read our books, but they read our lives. We are God's servants; we are God's witnesses. He performed a miracle when He created the son of Abraham, Isaac; and we are indeed God's very own people. Isaac consecrated his life to God's service when he placed himself on that altar, and everyone of us is laid on that altar of sacrifice. We are God's witnesses, and as we go about we must take good care that others may see the Lord in our lives and in our actions. Let us each one do what St. Paul told us to do when he said, in writing to the Romans, "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reasonable service."

Digitized by Google

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—VI.

By S. E. STEELE.

FURTHER SCRIPTURAL EVIDENCE.

WE have still one tribe to account for, the light-bearing tribe of Benjamin (Deut. xxxiii, 12, and 1 Kings xi, 32 and 36), who joined with Judah after the revolt under King Rehoboam (1 Kings xii, 21), with whom they remained until the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus in A.D. 70. Taking advantage of a temporary withdrawal of the Romans from the siege, they made good their escape. Very little is known of this people during subsequent centuries. They are said to have eventually settled in the Scandinavian peninsula, and were known as the Northern Normans (Northmen—men of no name coming from the North). One certain fact is that in characteristics they bore a close resemblance to Benjamin-Israel, and their symbolic standard is said to have been a wolf, but of this we have no authentic proof. "Benjamin shall ravin as a wolf" (Gen. xlix, 27). They appeared in Britain during the sixth century. The settlement of the Southern Normans in this country under William, in 1066, completed the fusion of the scattered tribes of Israel in the place of safety prepared for them by God, from whence they have moved no more, and where they have been blessed with every blessing promised to Israel by Moses and the prophets.

A few references from the New Testament have been given, and they by no means exhaust the evidence therein contained that the scattered and divorced "lost tribes" were known, as was also their whereabouts, during the time of Jesus Christ, and of the Apostles. Our Saviour refers to them on more than one occasion by name, referred to in a later chapter. Many of the parables of our Lord appear to have a direct reference to lost Israel, notably the Prodigal Son, the Lost Coin, the Distribution of the Talents, etc.; while Paul, Peter, and James referred to them so definitely that their writings appear to justify our conclusion that large numbers of the Ten Tribes were well known to the Apostles, and to those to whom they addressed their Epistles. The Rev. Pascoe Goard, of Vancouver, B.C., in his excellent work, The Fifth Gospel, which comprises the second part of his comprehensive, lucid, and valuable contribution to British-Israel literature, New Light on Old Paths, shows how marvellously Israel is figured in the "Revelation." We see, therefore, the hand of God, from Genesis to Revelation, guiding, guarding, controlling, and shaping the destiny of His chosen family and nation, in spite of their sins, in spite of their weaknesses and backsliding, according to His will—not because of their goodness or merits, but because of His oath to our forefathers, and in answer to the prayers of a faithful remnant who have never forsaken Him. Ours is, indeed, a gigantic heritage, calling forth tremendous responsibilities. Oh! that Israel could be brought to realize what this means to us.

THE DAVIDIC THRONE.

Perhaps one of the most definite promises in the Word of God is that to David of the establishment of his throne over Israel for ever. There is no equivocation in the language used, the promise is definite and positive that a lineal descendant of King David should sit upon the throne of Israel to all generations (2 Sam. vii, 16; 1 Chron. xxii, 10; Jer. xxxiii, 17, 25 and 26; Ps. lxxxix, 3, 4, 35 and 37) until the Coming of Him Whose right it is, to Whom His earthly representative will hand the crown as King of kings, and He will reign throughout eternity.

That a literal kingdom before the Second Coming of the Messiah was intended to be understood is evident from the answering prayer of David: "Therefore now let it please Thee to bless the house of Thy servant, that it may continue for ever before Thee" (2 Sam. vii, 25–29), and from Jeremiah—"So long as day and night continues, the seed of David will be rulers over the seed of Israel" (Jer. xxxiii, 25 and 26). If, as we contend, Britain is Israel, then our ruling monarch is descended from David of old.

The last king and male heirs of David's line, Zedekiah and his sons, were slain by King Nebuchadnezzar (Jer. xxxix, 6 and 7). The daughters of the king were spared, and placed under the guardianship of the prophet Jeremiah. Their vicissitudes are fully chronicled by this prophet, until they were taken to Tahpanhes, in Egypt, near to the Great Sea, and to the ports at which the trading "ships of Tarshish" frequently called. At this point, all reference to the "king's daughters" abruptly ceases.

Profane history is not very definite on this subject, but untiring research has been effectual in providing us with historical facts which justify the conclusion that the prophet Jeremiah, accompanied by one, if not both, of the princesses, and Baruch, escaped out of Egypt, and took ship, either direct or through Palestine, to Iberia (Spain), where colonies of the Children of Israel had settled before the time of Moses. Within twelve months of landing we have a record of them at Baalbooz (Bilboa), awaiting a vessel (presumably to carry them to Ireland).

Although we have no definite historical proof of the journey of the prophet and princess to Ireland, the deductions arrived at agree with the prophetical riddle of Ezekiel (ch. xvii), in which the king of Judah is represented as the highest branch of the cedar of Lebanon, well planted in a fruitful field, which grew and brought forth branches ; but was removed to Babylon and destroyed, because he broke God's covenant, and despised His oath. Yet, " Thus saith the Lord God : I will also take of the highest branch (Zedekiah) of the high cedar (Judah), and will set it. I will crop off from the top of his young twigs a tender one (Tea Tephi, his daughter) and will plant it . . . and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar " (Ezek. xvii, 22, 23). Nor does it appear how the special mission entrusted to Jeremiah by the Almighty " to build and to plant " (Jer. i, 10) was ever consummated unless it was by the " planting " of the daughter of Zedekiah in the place prepared by God. This is the only feasible explanation yet adduced, and it so closely agrees with all prophecy that we cannot but acknowledge its great probability. However this may be, it is certain that a king of David's line must be reigning over Israel to-day. Equally certain it is that the descent of our Prince David of Wales can be traced in three distinct lines from David, King of Israel.

Digitized by Google

CORRESPONDENCE.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,

The following letter is the result of certain correspondence with a very scholarly and upright-minded man, well known throughout Canada.

His letter, to which the following is an answer, showed clearly that he had read very extensively concerning British-Israel teaching, and that in the end he concluded he could not accept the main conclusions arrived at by British-Israel writers and speakers.

His real difficulty seems to be his lack of discrimination between the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah. Another difficulty comes from his making Judah and Levi the kingdom of Judah, instead of Judah and Benjamin with a goodly sprinkling of Levi and a small portion of the tribes of Israel.

Another difficulty, a universal difficulty in the human mind, is the belief that God would not choose one person or people to do a special work, instead of choosing all to do that work.

Lastly, like many other readers of history, he has a very false notion of the exact relationships existing among the varied terms, such as Aryans, Teutons, Nordics, Germans, Indo-Europeans, and Indo-Japhetics, all of which terms have been injected into the pages of history in comparatively modern times.

E. ODLUM.

* * *

VANCOUVER, B.C.
May 23rd, 1929.

MY DEAR ——, I was delighted to see your signature which I used to see over thirty years ago, when you lived out here where civilized men congregate. I had lost track of your doings, and am glad to have at least one act of correspondence before we go hence.

You will wonder what all this means. I will tell you. On May 12th, 1929, you wrote an interesting letter to the Secretary of the British-Israel Federation. This letter was sent on to me, and is before me as I write.

I am glad you, in past years, gave so much attention to a great and living subject, during which time you were deeply interested. It would appear from your letter that your interest has practically ceased, since you came to a conclusion based on such reasons as would seem to be final.

However, knowing you so well and favourably in former days, and believing in your native honesty of purpose and desire, I shall venture a few statements that might interest you, if nothing more. Hence the following :—

Of course there seems to be a deep and wide chasm between us fundamentally, and that chasm can be seen through your statement : " I have long ceased to believe in the supposed inspired truths of Scripture as verbally expressed."

Before making close reference to this your statement, I feel like making a query concerning the words " as verbally expressed." If inspired truth counts in the thought of any sane man, this truth must be verbally expressed. It matters not whether the expression be in words spoken, written or thought. The verbum or word is there all the while. For all working purposes, we have no other expression of thought or truth than the verbal.

Let this pass ! In plain fact, you refuse to accept the Bible as Divinely inspired, and refuse to recognize it as definite authority.

Here, then, is the chasm between you and me, and of course it is basic. I do believe the Bible is God's Word, and that He, by His Spirit, inspired men to write according to His will.

To the Bible you say NO, and to the Bible I say YES. Hence you travel north and I south, so that with this in view, we cannot travel together. When two equal winds meet going in opposite directions, there is a whirlwind or cyclone. In what I say, I hope to avoid all sorts of cyclones, as it will suit our minds and spirits much better.

Let us compare our belief in this matter somewhat, and see how we stand. I am safe in saying that the vast majority of the people of Europe, North and South America, the Austral Isles, and of the whites of Asia and Africa, accept the Bible as Divinely inspired. This is true of 95 per cent. of the Protestants of the world, and 99 per cent. of the Roman Catholics. Of course, there are a few in these Churches so conditioned with materialistic evolutional teaching that they have ceased to accept permanent authority in any direction.

If this be your present and final mental attitude, then I need go no further, as there can be no common ground on which to study British-Israel Truth, since it depends primarily altogether on Scripture and the belief in the Divine inspiration and authority of Scripture.

However, as an old-time friend, and as one holding this friend in high esteem, I may venture a few words on other parts of your letter, making very short comments indeed :—

1. You say, " If the Ten Tribes were lost at all."

Do you know where they are ? If not, then they are lost to you. Does Britain, as a nation, know where they are ? If not, then they are lost to Britain. Does your college know where they are ? If not, then they are lost to your college.

2. You use the words Levi and Judah.

You must mean Benjamin and Judah, for Benjamin and Judah formed the kingdom of Judah, under Rehoboam, 975

Digitized by Google

B.C. and forward. Levi was scattered through the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah. In Israel there were forty cities of Levi, and in Judah, the kingdom, there were eight cities of Levi.

3. As to primal differences between the Jews and Anglo-Saxons, bear in mind that the Scriptures clearly indicated a countenance variation long before Christ.

Further, there are two great and well-known divisions of Judah, viz., the Sephardim and the Ashkenazim. If you visit Europe extensively and slowly, as I have done, you will discover large numbers of Jews are quite similar in appearance to the Anglo-Saxon, and another large class differs much.

4. You say, "The Jews . . . have not changed . . . any more than the Arabs, etc."

Of course you and I do not know how much the Arabs, the Egyptians, or the Jews have changed in 3,000 years. This is guessing somewhat, so we pass.

5. You add, "Ethnologically the Anglo-Saxons are of Teutonic origin, etc."

My comment is: There is no Teutonic race, and never was, hence the Anglo-Saxons could not be of such a non-existent race. Be in no hurry here! Cut out the modern historic rubbish about the Nordics, the Aryans, the Indo-Europeans, the Indo-Japhetics, etc., and go to the true, reliable historians, and you cannot find any one of these races, for the good reason they did not exist.

I have made this challenge hundreds of times on platforms and through the Press, and have had no reply based on actual history yet. Most modern history has been written hurriedly, superficially, credulously, and chiefly for money. Carefully look into my Teutonic denial. If I speak basic truth as above, you will need to recast your conclusions and reasons leading thereto.

6. Again you say, "The Teutonic people are all very much alike."

And here you mean that the Germans and English, for instance, are alike. Go to Germany and buy a straw hat. You will have a whale of a time. The German is roundheaded, the Englishman is longheaded—and yet you say they are alike. They are not. In no important characteristics are they alike. Examine at close quarters, and you will never repeat the statement, I think.

7. You refer to Anglo-Saxons as differing from the Scandinavians. Herein you differ from myself and the British-Israel teaching. We hold and can prove that the Scands, the Danes, and many others of Europe are of the same race as those of the British Isles, and that they, therefore, have descended from Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the Twelve Patriarchs. All the descendants of Isaac are Isaacsons or Saxons. Doubtless you know that the man we call Isaac is named Tsak or Tsack, the pure Hebrew, and not Isaac.

The Norse people are Saxons, and therefore Israelites, of the tribe of Benjamin. The Danes are of the tribe of Dan, and therefore they are Israelites and Saxons. Expand this subject, and you will go far afield—further perhaps than you now suspect.

8. You imagine God has no chosen people. The Bible contradicts you. This you know, if you have read the Book understandingly. You and I think of God as a Person, or we do not think of Him at all. We see that nations make choice of men. They select men to rule them, to be mayors, etc. Then why not God select such as He would have serve Him?

Yours with deep respect,

E. ODLUM.

* * *

WHENCE COMETH THE RAIN?

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

SIR,—In THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER of March 9th, 1929, an article by Mr. Basil Stewart appears on page 156, dealing with Natural Phenomena; and in the course of this article he says:—

"The common idea that rain is caused by the evaporation of the oceans by the sun's rays lacks scientific proof."

Here in South Africa the connection between a long-continued south-east wind blowing from the surface of the Indian Ocean, and copious rains inland, is a matter of general knowledge; and the heaviest rains occur soon after midsummer, when the sun exercises its greatest heat in drawing up the moisture from the ocean.

But why need we, who believe the Bible to be Divinely inspired, argue about theories concerning the rain? The Book tells us where the rain comes from and Who sends it.

Mr. Chas. Lavender, on page 153 of the same issue of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER, quotes several Bible texts on this subject, but he does not mention two which, to my mind, are convincingly up-to-date in their expression of the wonderful way in which God sends the rain. They are both found in the Book of Amos.

Chapter v, verse 8, speaks of Him "that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: The Lord is His name"; and this is repeated in chapter ix, verse 6.

Yours faithfully,

P. TOWNSHEND.

Maritzburg,
South Africa,
June 4th, 1929.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—As you base your all on the Bible for teaching others, I want you to give me the facts about the history of the Bible, as I am anxious to get to the rock-bottom truth about the Book. How and when did the Bible first come into existence? Who wrote it up and when, and who are the authors? How was it put into book form, when and by whom? Is the present-day Bible in its original wording, or has it been altered to suit the times, as in the case of the Book of Common Prayer to-day in many churches? Can you prove the Bible to be an inspired book?—A. W.

ANSWER.—Your questions are very valuable ones, but obviously there is not space in my columns in which to answer them fully. Your best plan is to read certain books, such as: How We Got Our Bible, by J. Paterson Smyth; Our English Bible, H. W. Hoare; Our Bible and the Ancient Manuscripts, F. G. Kenyon; Old Bibles, J. R. Dore; History of the English Bible, J. F. Westcott; The Bible Hand-Book, J. F. Angus; Encyclopædia Britannica, Article "English Bible"; The Speaker's Commentary; Old Testament Studies and New Testament Studies, G. H. Lancaster; etc., etc.

Digitized by Google

The Bible is absolutely and wholly inspired from Genesis to Revelation, and makes its own claim to inspiration, for "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter i, 21).

The framing and the recognition of the inspired books of the Bible became known as the "Canon" of the Old Testament, and the "Canon" of the New Testament. Hence the Holy Spirit gradually guided the Hebrews to accept as inspired certain books—to the elimination of others—and these accepted books became known as the Canon of the Old Testament. Similarly, certain books became gradually recognized as the inspired Word of God in earlier Christian times, and these became known as the Canon of the New Testament. Once the full Canon of the two Testaments became accepted, through the guidance of the Holy Spirit, no power on earth could add to or take away from the accepted Canon, and thus we have the two Testaments full, complete, uniform and inspired, with "Christ in all the Scriptures."

No one man wrote either Testament, since the Holy Spirit inspired numerous authors, as we gather in so many cases from the names of the books of the Bible. If we do not know who may have been the individual author of any one or another book, it does not matter in the least, since the Great Author of all the Scriptures is the Holy Spirit Himself. We do not possess any original writing or book, but our Bible has been translated from accepted manuscripts, versions, etc., chiefly of the Hebrew and the Greek languages. Assuming that Moses lived in the fourteenth century B.C., and that the Canon of the New Testament was not complete much before A.D. 400, we find that our Bible took nearly 2,000 years to attain to its completed and accepted form, with its 39 books of the Old Testament and 27 books of the New Testament.

Since we possess none of the original MSS. or sacred writings, we are dependent upon the above-mentioned MSS. and Versions, which are themselves of much later date than the original writings, and are copies made from copies. Hence there are times when we do not know what was the original word or the original sentence, and we are dependent either upon the witness of the best MSS. or upon the majority of such as are in agreement. This accounts for what is called "various readings," as is seen in the margins of the Authorised and the Revised Versions. But every care has been taken to see that our translation is as near to the original as possible, and as accurate as can be. There has been no wish to alter any part or parts of the Bible "to suit the times," since it has been the desire of all English translators from the days of Wycliffe to those of the Revised Version (A.D. 1881-1885) to present the Bible as the revealed Word of God, as accurate, and as near to the original writings as possible.

RACIAL ORIGINS IN THE UNITED STATES.

NEW ACT IN OPERATION.

BY kind permission of the Editor of The Times, we are enabled to print the following important information. It is good to be assured on official authority that MORE THAN 70 PER CENT. OF THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES TO-DAY HAVE BRITISH BLOOD IN THEIR VEINS, and that the raising of the British quota will preserve this majority.

WASHINGTON, June 30th.

"To-morrow the 'national origins' clause of the United States Immigration Act will go into effect after several years of postponement by legislative consent. It will reduce the total immigration permitted in a single year from 164,667 to 153,741, but it is not the unimportant numerical difference which has inspired the opposition which this method of computing the quotas has met. The question is racial rather than arithmetical.

"Hitherto the national quotas have been determined by taking the percentage of the inhabitants of the United States of any given origin as they were enumerated in the census of 1890; from now on, or until the law be again changed, they will be calculated upon an estimate of the racial derivation of the population at the time when the United States became a nation. As is natural this has greatly increased the number of permitted entrants from England, Scotland, and Wales. It raises the British quota from 34,007 to 65,721. The German quota, however, will be cut from 51,227 to 25,957, the Swedish from 9,561 to 3,314, the Norwegian from 6,453 to 2,377, the Danish from 2,789 to 1,181, the Irish from 28,567 to 17,853, and the representatives of these stocks, in Congress and through numerous associations and organizations, have been loud in their complaints of the new system. They are to renew their activities when the regular Session of Congress opens in December, but without much likelihood of success, unless the temper of the Legislature should change in the meantime.

"Those who drafted and have so unwaveringly supported the 'National Origins' clause are men and women of purely British stock whose fears were aroused, and whose sensibilities were quickened, by the evidence in time of war that certain races were only with difficulty being assimilated by a nation prevailingly Anglo-Saxon in its institutions and habits of thought. This objection would not, of course, apply to those of Scandinavian and German origin, whose splendid contribution to the national life is fully recognized, but even at some cost to them it was felt that the principle of 'racial purity' must be to the fullest extent upheld. IT IS CALCULATED THAT MORE THAN 70 PER CENT. OF THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES TO-DAY HAVE BRITISH BLOOD IN THEIR VEINS, and it is a fact that in some districts, notably the hill regions of Kentucky and Tennessee, English blood as pure as England herself can boast can be found.

"It should be noted that the administration of the new law is not in the hands of the Immigration Bureau of the Department of Labour, but in those of the Consular Service of the State Department, the members of which are entirely responsible and have authority to refuse passport visas."—Times, July 1st, 1929.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

WE appeal to our readers for liberal donations for the expenses of the Tenth Annual Congress opening on September 30th, that the utmost publicity may be given in the effort to bring strangers to the meetings that they may hear the "Good News of the Kingdom."

* * *

May we again remind our readers, members and other friends, of the Hostel at Glastonbury, where a delightful and interesting holiday may be enjoyed? The terms are moderate. Enquiries for accommodation should be made at Headquarters. Also please make your reservations for the Bible Convention at Llandrindod Wells for the last week in August.

* * *

Visitors to London are invited to make use of the rest and reading room at Headquarters; a large, airy room with a beautiful outlook, open on week-days from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. (Saturdays till 1 p.m.).

* * *

A largely attended garden meeting in connection with the Worthing Branch was held recently in Holy Trinity Vicarage grounds, which had been placed at the disposal of the Branch by Canon and Mrs. Hollis. After tea, Mr. J. J. Morey gave an address, the Rev. Canon Hollis presiding over the meeting.

* * *

An average of between 40 and 50 people attended meetings each afternoon and evening of the week ending July 6th at Sutton House, Bingley, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Foster Beaver, under the auspices of the Bingley Branch. The speakers were: Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, Mr. W. Whitton, and Mr. and Mrs. Foster Beaver.

* * *

The Cardiff, Barry, Rhymney and Merthyr Branches visited Llandaff Cathedral on July 4th, and send Headquarters this report:—"Llandaff, surely second only to Glastonbury in its associations with early British Christianity and with early Anglo-Israel, provided great interest to the members and other friends in the party who met at Llandaff Cross, which commemorates the start of the early Crusaders from the spot, and from where a splendid descriptive talk was given by Mr. Mabberly, of the Order of St. John. He spoke of Llandaff as the first Nationally established Church in Britain, founded about A.D. 156 by King Lucius, and gave a short summary of its history. Attention was called to other local features, the palaces, and the ruined campanile from which a large bell was taken and now hangs in Exeter Cathedral. An incidental reference was made to an alternative design to the War Memorial now erected on the Green, comprising two panels, on one of which was a replica of the old Cross of the Crusaders and the other descriptive of Allenby's entry into Jerusalem, showing that where the first failed, Allenby succeeded.

An excellent tea was provided by one of the members, Mr. Cox, in his sixteenth-century residence close to the Cathedral. Mr. Alldridge, the verger, then conducted the party, giving talks dealing mainly with the history of the Cathedral since the fifth century. One of the most interesting features is the row of 21 heads in stone of Britain's monarchs, on the cornice of the south wall. This number includes Oliver Cromwell, uncrowned; and space has been arranged for one more only. At once the question—for whom? Will the next be the last?

Mr. Cox then directed attention to the tomb of Dean Conybeare (of the famous Conybeare and Howson's Commentaries), a descendant of whom is a member of the Cardiff Branch. From there to the grave of Mrs. Wilson Neville, whose life was devoted to the help of deaf and dumb, and from whom Mr. Cox learned much of B.-I. Truth. Here the party listened to a paper read by Mr. Mayell on 'Llandaff and its associations with early British Christianity,' emphasizing the Protestant character of the early British Church, and appealing for a return to the Faith of this early Church—not to Rome.

The Rev. W. T. Medhurst followed with a reference to Oliver Cromwell's depredations in the locality, but acknowledged gratefulness for the liberties achieved by him; the speaker then emphasized the Protestant position of our Movement.

A most pleasurable afternoon's outing concluded by the singing of the Doxology."

* * *

Sir Flinders Petrie recently stated that the work in Egypt has this year yielded up more secrets of the past than in the whole of the previous 20 years. The latest discovery, made by the chance searching of trenches dug by General Allenby's troops, is the unearthing of the largest known stronghold of the Shepherd Kings at Tell Fara, upon which four different civilizations built their cities. The oldest reference to Tell Fara, now identified as Beth-Pelet, may be found in the 15th chapter of the Book of Joshua, and 700 years later in Nehemiah.

* * *

The announcement was made last week that the Canadian Government would introduce legislation to change the name "Provincial Highways" to "King's Highway." It was said that this would be evidence of Canada's fealty and respect for the King and the monarchal system. "Those who may come to us from other lands will thus be told at every mile they travel that there is a King at the head of the country, and that we are determined to maintain the Empire's position to the world."

* * *

The Rev. Joseph Gay preached morning and evening in Trinity Road Baptist Church, Halifax, on Sundays, July 7th and 14th. Large congregations assembled, which bears ample testimony to his splendid spade-work there two years ago. Those privileged to hear Mr. Gay were unanimous in praise of his masterly exposition of Biblical Truth, and say "May we have more of these visits."

* * *

The Watford and District Branch Report for the 1928-9 session shows progression and blessing. The public meetings have been excellent, and the Study Circle meetings well worth while. Reports of the public meetings which have appeared in the "West Herts Post" have reached a large "unseen" audience. The Committee desire earnestly to make known—for the Glory of God—the true origin and destiny of the British people.

Digitized by Google

* * *

Steady progression is reported from the Sydney (New South Wales) Branch, which is under the presidency of the Rev. W. Rutledge Newton, L.Th. The room in the Bible House, Pitt Street, is now open all day every day, where Mrs. Bailey, a returned missionary from China, is in attendance. Two leading newspapers, the "Herald" and "Sun," are inserting news of the Branch in their columns. The Press are opening to us in many places now.

* * *

The final meetings for the session of the Cheltenham Branch were held in the Empire Hall on June 26th, when the lectures both afternoon and evening were given by the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse. The afternoon meeting was presided over by Dr. Eric F. Waddington, who gave an interesting address. Mr. Whitehouse reported that both numerically and financially the Branch is making excellent progress, and he appeals most earnestly to everyone interested in our teaching resident in Cheltenham and district, and not already enrolled, to send name and address to him at 132, Gravelly Hill North, Birmingham, that they may be notified of future meetings. The former Hon. Secretary, the Rev. Hubert A. Corke, having left Cheltenham, the Branch members presented him with a wireless set in gratitude for his services, and as a memento of heir affectionate esteem.

* * *

Groups of B.-I. people from Rugby, Dunchurch, Coventry, Leicester and Birmingham assembled for a garden party at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Powell, Dunchurch, on July 6th. Although the weather was unsettled and rather cold, a very delightful afternoon was spent, tea being enjoyed at tables dotted about the lovely garden. Many quaint things in the old-world village were inspected, including the old village stocks on the green, in which, sad to say, various quite respectable members of the party were in turn incarcerated, to the huge merriment of the others. Later, a meeting was held in the large dining-room of the house, conducted by our Commissioner, the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse, when several short addresses were given, and the gramophone record of Mr. Goard's address was twice heard with eager attention. Thanks were heartily accorded Dr. and Mrs. Powell for their splendid hospitality, to Mr. E. Turner for his organizing work, and others. Before returning home, all assembled for a short service of prayer and praise in the ancient Parish Church, kindly lent by the Vicar, conducted by the Revs. T. H. Whitehouse and T. H. Going. This is the second garden party at Dunchurch, and already Mrs. Powell has generously offered an invitation for next year, to which all are looking forward.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 29th, at 8.
CAMBRIDGE, St. Philip's Vicarage Garden, Mill Road, Social Tea and Address, Thursday, 25th. 3.30 and 7.
HORNSEY and CROUCH END, Earl Haig Hall, Elder Avenue, Tuesday, 30th, at 8. Mrs. H. Aiers.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 30th, at 7.30. Mrs. Foxhall.
HYDE PARK, open-air, Sunday, 28th, at 7.
SHEFFIELD, Victoria Hall Lecture Hall, Wednesday, 31st, at 7.30. Mr. John Leech, M.A., K.C. and Rev. G. W. Plasting.
STRATFORD, St. Mark's Church, Windmill Lane, Monday, 29th, at 8. Mr. C. S. McKelvey.

OUR DAYS ARE NUMBERED

By J. Bernard Nicklin.

(WITH FOREWORD BY G. A. ROBISON.)

New light on the numbers of Daniel and Revelation—Striking new evidence that the "Day" intervals of prophecy are now being literally fulfilled—Leading events of past 15 years occurring to a Divine Time Table—Proof that God is over-ruling in the affairs of men, and a Sign of the End—All interested in prophecy and British-Israel truth should study this.

1/- Post free.

Advent Herald, 1 Cleveland Terrace, Bath.

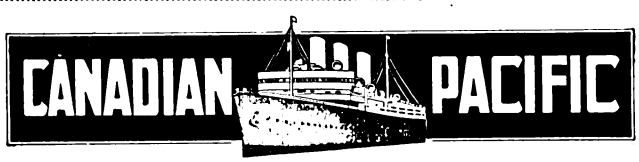
OR FROM

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6 Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

God and My Birthright

By J. LLEWELLYN THOMAS, F.R.C.S.

Second Edition Revised.



Demy 8vo. 240 pp. Cloth.

The Author asks the question: "If the British be not Israel, how then comes it about that they are doing the very work that the unerring Word of God tells us that Israel was to do?" He decides: "There is only one logical conclusion, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon Race is the long lost House of Israel."

Price 4/6. By Post 5/-.

Canada and U.S.A. $1.20 post free.

Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

For CANADA, U.S.A., JAPAN or CHINA

your best route is

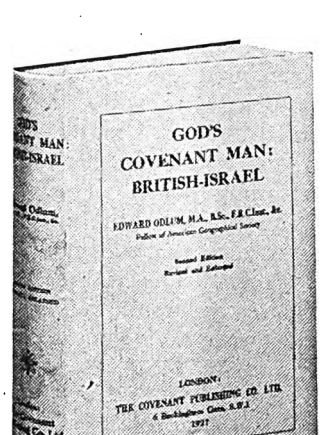
CANADIAN PACIFIC ALL THE WAY

STEAMERS—TRAINS—HOTELS.

Through Bookings via Vancouver to NEW ZEALAND and AUSTRALIA in connection with Canadian-Australasian Line Steamers.

For fares, etc., apply—

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY, 62-65, CHARING CROSS, LONDON, S.W.1,



or local agents everywhere.

When travelling carry Canadian Pacific Travellers' Cheques

Digitized by Google

Second Edition (Revised and Enlarged).

GOD'S COVENANT MAN: BRITISH-ISRAEL

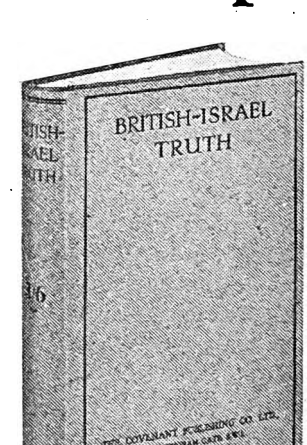
by

EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S., F.R.C. Inst.

(Also Fellow of The American Geographical Society)

A most amazing book. Its wide scope takes away the breath. Authorities of all races, and speaking all tongues, have been laid under contribution. Not by the pen of the writer, but by his researches, by his quotations from these world-famous authorities he proves the British-Israel case. It is unanswerable.

Rev. W. Pascoe Goard writes in his foreword:—



"I know of no man living who has carried on wider research than has Professor Odlum . . . he has brought together in this book samples of the opinions and contributions of the world's great scholars to the great truth that the Celto-Saxon peoples are the people chosen and ordained of God to carry out His great national purposes . . . No such compendium will be found elsewhere."

Price 6/-, by post 6/6

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd.,

6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

A Book that every B.-I. must possess

¶ BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH is the handbook of our creed. Every phase of British-Israel teaching is dealt with by an expert. In its pages is an answer to every question.

¶ It is one of the first books to read. It serves as an introduction to practically every other book we publish.

¶ The current edition (the thirteenth), containing, of necessity, some revisions, is identical with the first edition as regards the basic facts.

This alone is a proof of the soundness of British-Israel teaching.

Some Contributors:

VEN. ARCHDEACON HANAN, M.A., D.D.
DR. ALDERSMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.
E. W. BIRD, Esq. (Philo-Israel), Retired Judge, India.
REV. E. J. WEMYSS-WHITTAKER.
DOUGLAS ONSLOW, Esq.
REV. FREDERICK ASTON.
THE REV. COMMANDER L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N.
REV. W. M. H. MILNER, M.A., Etc., Etc.

308 pp. Index to Subjects and Index to Texts.

Paper Covers 2s. 6d.; by post 2s. 9d.
Cloth Covers 3s. 6d.; by post 3s. 9d.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

Y 10 AUG 29

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

AUGUST 3, 1929. Price TWOPENOE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" Gen 22·17

HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" Numbers 24·7

G. BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID — 1st CHRON 29 v 23 — JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT" Is 19 v 19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J. J. HALL & SON

REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms.—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed, Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

SOME CRITICAL VIEWS.

"The Author is a convinced Anglo-Israelite, who holds that the essential blessing promised to Israel on 'the third day' of Hosea vi, 2 was to be found in the life, the teaching, and the spiritual power of John Wesley. He states his case clearly."—London Quarterly Review.

"This book, in which the course of prophecy is illustrated by a survey of British religious history from the Lollards to the Methodists, is a sincere and readable argument."—Times Literary Supplement.

"The list of books already to the credit of Mr. P. W. Thompson is one of which any author might well be proud, and Israel in Prophecy and History is in many respects the most remarkable of them all. All those qualities which we have learned to look for in his work—insight and industry, wisdom and wit, argument and illustration—are to be found in the book just issued. All who are not hidebound by prejudice will find here much food for thought."—Mid-Cumberland Herald.

"The Author frankly says that his book is intended for the thoughtful individual who is a believer in the Bible, not for the modernist or higher critic. It is a sane and reasonable presentation of the British-Israel case."—Methodist Leader.

From all quarters, and in journals of every shade of opinion, come expressions of approval of Mr. Thompson's masterpiece. Almost every post brings its eulogistic comment from some private reader.

"ISRAEL IN PROPHECY & HISTORY"

by virtue of its sanity, its clearness of expression, its moderation and its eminent readableness, is making daily converts to the British-Israel Cause.

As a presentation of the British-Israel case, its newness is striking. There is so much that is obvious—when it is pointed out, but only a clear thinker of acute vision would observe it.

It is a book for the serious-minded, for it emphasizes our duties as well as records our privileges. It is a book that YOU MUST READ.

"ISRAEL IN PROPHECY & HISTORY"
By P. W. Thompson, M.A.

Demy 8vo. Cloth. Price 5/-. By post 5/6. Canada and U.S.A. $1.35 post free.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

The Wonder Race

By G. E. ALTREE COLEY

Price 5/- nett.

The expansion of Britain is not the outcome of a chain of fortuitous accidents. Behind it, through the centuries, a Supreme Will and Purpose has worked, unsuspected, yet never wearying. Even as night follows day, the destiny of our race is sure. Would that our leaders, both religious and civil, would recognise this one vital fact, that in that divinely ordained destiny lies the solution of to-day's baffling problems. Mrs. Coley proves that the Anglo-Saxon genius for self-government is, and always has been, directed and inspired. She has built her foundations on the rock of the Sacred Word, and on those foundations she has reared an unassailable superstructure. Her book is restrained, yet powerful. Her logic is unanswerable. If it be read by every earnest citizen, its conclusions accepted with humble faith, and its principles personally applied, this nation MUST go on from strength to strength until the Divine purpose reaches its triumphant fulfilment.

By post 5/4

This book, which sheds strong spiritual light upon the events of secular history, should be read by every Englishman who loves his native land. He will lay down the book with a fervent thanksgiving that his race has been called to such a high destiny.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING Co. Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, S W.1

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 396. Vol. VIII. AUGUST 3rd, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—IV. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	481
SOME LINKS IN THE CHAIN. By G. Paget	484
GLASTONBURY.—II. By Luke Pearce	485
STATEMENT BY GENERAL DAWES	486
ENOCH'S CLAIM AS THE GREAT PYRAMID BUILDER	486
STATEMENT BY SIR JOHN FERGUSON	490
THE FOUNDATION STONE. Address at May Meetings by Mr. Daniel Farmer	490
REPRINTS WORTH READING. Address by the late Rev. A. B. Grimaldi, M.A.	492
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—VII. By S. E. Steele	493
A PRAYER	493
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	494

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—IV.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

ANOTHER phase of the "Coming" activity is set forth with wonderful clearness by our Lord.

He tells this story as we have seen in St. Luke from the standpoint of His going away, and to correct an erroneous assumption among His hearers, and perhaps among Jews and Israelites generally, that the Kingdom of Heaven should IMMEDIATELY appear.

Note that it was to correct this error that this parable was spoken at the time and place, and under the circumstances indicated by St. Luke. With this fact in view one wonders greatly at the professional patter of the self-styled "modern scholar" who declaims oracularly that the Lord expected the immediate setting up of His Kingdom, and who goes on to say that "in this our Lord was mistaken." Especially is this the case when we note that in the later use of the same parable spoken to His disciples, recorded in St. Matt. xxv, our Lord declares "AFTER A LONG TIME the lord of those servants cometh."

One wonders whether this "patter" is ignorance of the real teaching to the contrary, or looseness in veracity. There are two horns to the dilemma and on one of these such "scholars" must of necessity be impaled.

Let us look at the text of the statement.

"And as they heard these things, He added and spake a parable, BECAUSE HE WAS NIGH TO JERUSALEM, AND BECAUSE THEY THOUGHT THAT THE KINGDOM OF GOD SHOULD IMMEDIATELY APPEAR." HE SAID "THEREFORE A CERTAIN NOBLEMAN WENT INTO A FAR COUNTRY TO RECEIVE FOR HIMSELF A KINGDOM, AND TO RETURN . . ."

He and they were acquainted with the practice of noblemen going to Rome to receive for themselves a kingdom, as had done the Herods, for example. Using this as a practical illustration, He set forth the fact that He was to go into a far country "to receive for Himself a kingdom, and to return."

In the twenty-fifth of St. Matthew He repeats the same parable from the standpoint of His return. In it He says "After a long time the Lord of those servants cometh and reckoneth with them."

The Lord was therefore under no illusion as to the length of time which must elapse before His return to take up the personal administration of His Kingdom. So-called "scholars" who assert that He was under such illusion must stand convicted of ignorance of the theme of which they have assumed to be the supreme exponents. They set themselves aside by their own statements as unqualified for the position they have rashly assumed.

It is a pity that constructive work should have to be marred with attention to such false positions as this. But the advocates of the fallacy quoted above are so aggressive as to leave no choice in the matter.

The Lord taught definitely that He was "going into a far country to receive for Himself a kingdom, and to return." He also taught that His return would be "after a long time." Whosoever says to the contrary says that which is contrary to obvious fact. In the business world this would mean that whosoever should make such a statement would lose his standing as "a man of his word." It is a pity that in certain sections of the ecclesiastical world, exactness of expression seems not to be required.

Digitized by Google

In St. Luke our Lord asserted that He was not then about to establish His personal administration, but that He was going "into a far country."

In St. Matthew our Lord sets forth that "after a long time the Lord of those servants returneth and reckoneth with them . . ."

Now let us see as to the details of the great history foretold herein.

In going away "He called his ten servants . . ."

These do not constitute the Church, for its symbolical number is seven.

These are not the disciples. Their number is twelve.

This is evidently the House of Israel of the ten tribes; concerning whom Isaiah declared again and again, "Thou art my servant, O Israel . . ."

"And delivered them ten pounds." Ten servants—ten pounds! Thus the number of the ten is emphasized positively.

It is still more clearly emphasized by contrast with HIS CITIZENS.

"But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us."

This is a statement with profound meaning, and the meaning indicates the most presumptuous action ever taken by mankind. It is nothing less than an ultimatum to the Almighty God, and it is sent to Him in Heaven. It is a unanimous vote of the democracy of the nation. It is "self-determination" gone mad.

The Lord leaves the action there for a time, as being effective during the time of His absence.

He now returns to the ten:—

"And it came to pass, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading."

Again this is interesting in the highest degree. It is our Lord Who is speaking. He is dealing with the things inaugurated and perpetuated by Himself; the things regarding which He will make enquiry upon His return. It indicates that the function of those left to "occupy till I come" is to carry on the activity of the kingdom IN THE REALMS OF TRADE AND COMMERCE.

Think of this, brother theologian. Think of the Old Testament name for Israel; "The merchants of Tarshish, and all the young lions thereof."

Think then of the reckoning of our Lord with His ten servants to see how much every man has gained by trading.

Think also that it is the trading, not of independent owners, but of our Lord's trustees.

Then think of the history of Israel-Britain throughout the ages since our Lord departed.

Now comes the honours list of the kingdom.

"Then came the first, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds." Mark that there is not a capital I in this statemen of account. THY POUND hath gained ten pounds.

"And he said unto him, Well, thou good servant: because thou hast been faithful in a very little

HAVE THOU AUTHORITY OVER TEN CITIES."

In other words, be thou the captain over ten cities.

And so the honours list goes. It is not a case simply of profit, but of faithfulness in service which is thus rewarded.

So we look forward to the time when the honours of the kingdom will be distributed. We look forward with interest, assured that in the matter of rewards, the honours and the authority will go to the faithful stewards of the Lord's money and goods.

Now He returns to those "citizens" who would not have Him to rule over them. They are still distinguished from the ten servants of Israel.

"But those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me."

This must pass without comment. It is the voice of the Lord which gave this solemn warning. It carries its message and has its meaning. What the message and meaning is seems clear to all, and we make no comment thereon.

Thus St. Luke tells the story from the standpoint of the Lord's going away. History soon made good the first part of the statement in outline and in detail. He did go. His citizens did refuse to have Him to reign over them. His ten-tribed House of Israel did with gladness receive the Message of the Gospel, and have been occupying the kingdom and shall do so till He come. The first part of the prophetic parable is fulfilled before our eyes.

The second stage of the parable is drawing very near. It is a matter of domestic policy within the kingdom, and we who are of Israel will have the experience thereof before many generations have passed and perhaps within the lifetime of the present generation.

Let us now turn to the statement of the same stage of kingdom administration as set forth in the twenty-fifth chapter of St. Matthew. Here the story of the Lord's dealings with "his ten servants," "his own servants," is set forth from the standpoint of the second stage of the proceedings, namely, from the standpoint of His return.

"For the Kingdom of Heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, AND DELIVERED UNTO THEM HIS GOODS."

Let us take an inventory of His goods:—

1. As the whole of the Bible shows, there is the priceless treasure of the Revelation of God, and the knowledge of Him.

2. The treasure of the Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world for the redemption of Israel, and the salvation of the world.

3. Again we have the "created," "formed," "Redeemed," nominated race of which the Lord declared "thou art mine." This is the race called in Abraham, miraculously born in Isaac, regenerated in Jacob-Israel, developed in the patriarchs and tribes of Israel, continued to the present day, and to be continued for ever.

4. These were organized under Moses into God's "Kingdom of Priests," into "an holy nation" which shall never pass away.

5. To these were given the Law of the Lord, and the worship of the Lord.

6. Therein was established the House and throne of David.

7. To these were granted lands and possessions.

Digitized by Google

8. To these were issued Divine charters and covenants.

9. In due time the incarnate Son of God came, sent to "the lost sheep of the House of Israel."

10. Upon these were laid the responsibility of the Kingdom, in regard to the Gospel of the Kingdom and of Grace.

To them our Lord said "occupy till I come."

These form the outstanding items of the inventory of the goods which the Lord committed to the people of the ten tribes.

The commitment of "goods" is indicated by the equivalent of "goods," namely, currency of the realm, or "talents" which indicates money in the largest denominations.

"And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey."

There was no hesitancy on the part of the Lord in regard to the trust imposed in His servants. There was no looking back. They had His goods in charge. They were commissioned to "occupy till I come." He trusted them fully.

"Then he that had received the five talents WENT AND TRADED WITH THE SAME, and made them other five talents.

And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two. But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money."

"AFTER A LONG TIME"—note this "modern scholars," who glibly declare that our Lord expected the immediate setting up of His personal administration—

"AFTER A LONG TIME the lord of those servants cometh and reckoneth with them.

And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I have gained beside them five talents more.

His lord said unto him: WELL DONE, THOU GOOD AND FAITHFUL SERVANT: THOU HAST BEEN FAITHFUL OVER A FEW THINGS, I WILL MAKE THEE RULER OVER MANY THINGS: ENTER THOU INTO THE JOY OF THY LORD.

He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents beside them.

His lord said unto him: WELL DONE, GOOD AND FAITHFUL SERVANT: THOU HAST BEEN FAITHFUL OVER A FEW THINGS, I WILL MAKE THEE RULER OVER MANY THINGS: ENTER THOU INTO THE JOY OF THY LORD."

The question is frequently asked, Why are three of the servants mentioned only? Look carefully and it will become apparent that all the servants are mentioned. Thus:—

"Unto one he gave five talents; to another two; and to another one; to every man according to his several ability."

How many were included in the "every man"? St. Luke tells us there were ten. Why then should three be specially mentioned, and not the others?

We suggest that our Lord followed the usual form of statement in the Bible, which when matters are intended to be absolutely fixed and sure are guaranteed by repeating the statement, sometimes by trebling the statement. So that by a double witness the matter may be absolutely assured.

Thus the response of our Lord to the successful traders is repeated word for word, and so by a double witness is absolutely assured.

So much for the matter of rewards. "I WILL MAKE THEE RULER," says the voice in St. Matthew. "HAVE THOU AUTHORITY OVER TEN CITIES," "BE THOU ALSO OVER FIVE CITIES," says the voice in St. Luke. By double statement in the parable, and by two evangelist voices the honours list of the kingdom is doubly assured.

The punishment of the slothful servant is once stated. There is chance for mercy here. For so seems to be the indication of the Bible. The Lord's dealing with the UNFAITHFUL SERVANT who saved, but declined to use, his lord's money in trading speaks for itself. We shall simply quote the text:—

"Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed:

And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine.

His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed:

Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury.

Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.

And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

"Outer darkness." "Outer darkness." What is the significance of this?

We were visiting an observatory. The astronomer in charge very kindly showed to us, among many wonderful things, photographs of an eclipse of the sun, and showed how they illustrated the fact that light travels not entirely in straight lines as had been previously supposed. Looking at these photographs and conversing about the new field of knowledge and of speculation opened up, he said in effect: It is probable that the universe itself is a mighty sphere, and that the ultimate light rays are forming a globe of light set in infinity, surrounded by darkness. Yes, he said, we never quite knew what our Lord meant by that strange phrase of His "the outer darkness." Now, perhaps, we know.

The whole of this wonderful parable stands out very clearly in the light of the domestic history of Israel-Britain, that "nation of shopkeepers," who have done more for the establishment of equitable trading in the earth than all other races and nations put together.

The Lord's domestic administration carried on by His trustees, "His own servants," "His ten servants," has been and is an administration of trade and commerce, and by the success of that we judge very largely as to the nation's prosperity; and by the failure of that we judge of the nation's adversity.

Fair trading first. Free trading within the kingdom second. Equitable trading with all the world.

But when we go back to the monetary equivalent of the "goods" committed to the servants and "take stock" of our position, what will be the actual values handled and reported to our Lord.

Digitized by Google

One will say, "Lord, my talent lay in the preaching of the Gospel of Salvation, and of righteousness in the kingdom. I have gained by the extension of the knowledge of the great facts of the Gospel."

Another will say, "Lord, mine has been a task of law administration. I have gained by extending respect for the principles of righteousness through the practice of the courts of the kingdom."

Another will say, "My talent lies in developing the industry of the kingdom. I have improved conditions of labour. I have simplified the processes of production and distribution. I have enriched Thy kingdom and improved the conditions of Thy people in this regard."

Another will say, "My talent has been in the services which have kept the peace, and established order at home and abroad, on land and sea. I have helped to make the seas secure for all to travel. I have helped to check lawlessness and to establish order in the earth."

Another will say, "I have contributed to the literature of Thy kingdom, and have instructed the mind, and raised the standard of morals among Thy people."

Another will say, "I have been engaged in educational work, and have inculcated the principles of righteousness and truth into the minds of the youth of the kingdom," and so on, covering every grade and every service.

It will go ill with those who have been out for personal gain; for those who have debased the life of the people in knowledge, in morals, in righteousness of dealing, or in any other way.

The reckoning is at hand.

"Lord," says one, "I started with nothing; I made a million pounds." "Is that all, thou selfish one. No service rendered? No real gain of wealth to the kingdom contributed? Hast thou only laboured to gain wealth for thyself? Verily I say unto thee thou hast thy reward."

"But Lord, it is all gone. I had to leave it all behind." "Verily I say unto thee thou hast thy reward."

Poor man! A millionaire on earth, to enter eternity a pauper.

Let us examine the records of our "trading" and see whether indeed we shall be privileged to enter into the joy of our Lord.

SOME LINKS IN THE CHAIN.

By G. Paget.

It is my purpose to try and throw some light upon the Zarah-Judah line of British-Israel history. These points, though small in themselves, have a value as links in the chain of evidence, which, owing to persistent research in recent years, has lengthened greatly.

The links are mainly traditional, but, as has been well said, tradition is the reflection of fact, and it is unwise to ignore it, especially when it clings in several forms to one locality. It has been the custom, and still is, to decry the writings of Geoffrey of Monmouth, whose Chronicles of the Kings of Britain, largely drawn and translated from earlier documents, have given us a list of their names and an account of their doings; but in the light of latter-day research it appears that Geoffrey did not draw upon his imagination to such an extent as has been supposed. He had access in his day to the library of Glastonbury, and there is not much doubt that this Abbey possessed manuscripts which were the source of his writings. It has been ascertained that the Zarah-Judah people migrated to Asia Minor, where they built Troy.

In later generations, one of their princes, Brutae, having accidentally killed his father, was obliged to flee the country—and taking with him his wife, the daughter of a Greek prince, his cousin Corinnius and his band of followers, sought a new land wherein to settle. After much wandering, his ships brought them to the coast of Devonshire, at Totnes, and here Brutae landed. The traditional stone upon which he first set foot is still shown, and is called the Brutus Stone, and the late Rev. Baring Gould gives the local "rhyme" attributed to the first King of Britain—

"Here I sit, and here I rest,
And this land shall be called Totnes."

The wanderings of Brutus and his band are described at length in Drayton's "Polyalbion," in which there is much classical allusion to the goddess Diana who directed him thither!

A Cornish legend tells that Corinnius, the cousin of Brutae, having penetrated into Cornwall, was opposed by the giants who dwelt there; but such was his prowess that in single combat he overcame them, and the rock from which one monster was flung is called The Giant's Leap to this day. Surely here is the foundation for the nursery story of Jack-the-Giant-Killer? Jack, or John Bull! and Cormoran was a Cornish giant!

Amongst some curious survivals in Cornwall is that of the very ancient "Furry Dance" of Helston, which is a purely pagan one in honour of Flora. It is danced there to this day, much of the old ritual being still observed. On May 8th the young people go at break of day to the woods, and there they gather flowers which they bring back. Then, at noon, the couples assemble in the Town Hall and start off to dance in and out of the houses all through the town, the doors being left open for this purpose. The dance through the open doors signifies the entry of spring after the dark of winter. Curiously enough the ancient name of Helston was Hellas, from a Greek colony settled there, who, perhaps, were attracted to the place from the fact that the wife of Brutae was the daughter of a Greek prince.

Brutae and his band wandered on until they came to the banks of the Thames, and there, probably near to what is Ludgate Hill, he founded the first city of London, calling it, as was perfectly natural he should do—after his native city of Troy—Troia Newydd, or Troynovant. In later years it was rechristened after a descendant of his—King Lud, and called Caer Lud, or Lud's City, and an old gate bore the sculptured figures of that King and his sons. Another city gate was called after a King Beli, or Bili, and still lives in the name of Billingsgate.

A further link with Britain's classical past is in that curious figure of seven concentric lines, which was called "City Troy," and the writer of a book on Welsh antiquities in 1820 gave a diagram of it, adding that the Welsh shepherds still amused their hours of waiting by cutting it in the turf. The figure is shown here, and it was supposed to represent the seven walls which guarded the Trojan citadel.

Digitized by Google

The ancient name of Scotland—Albin—was derived from the name of a son of Brutae—Albanactus—and in the Historia Britonum, translated by Nennius, is the following passage :—

"O, all ye learned of Alba,
Ye well-skilled host of yellow hair,
What was the first invasion ; is it known to you,
Which took the land of Alba ?
Albanus possessed it, numerous his hosts.
He was the illustrious son of Isacon." *

Note the name Isacon !

It would be interesting to know if the name of Isacon was an alternative one for Brutae. It is surely another link in the chain !

GLASTONBURY.—II.

By Luke Pearce.

Seeing that the historical facts, as they have come down to us, both of St. Joseph's Chapel and of the Abbey, are interwoven in the chronicles, we prefer to quote from various sources as the authors wrote, leaving the dissecting to the reader.

Worth's Guide to Somersetshire, referring to Glastonbury and the Tor, says :—

"Far and wide over those weary marsh lands the site of Glastonbury is marked out by its conical Tor, one of the most distinctive heights in the county ; as distinctive now, in spite of all the changes of two thousand years, as it could have been when it piloted Joseph of Arimathea and his followers to their resting-place far up the long lagoon ; or when in later times it overhung the Avalon of Arthur. Pacing the quiet streets of the quaint and sleepy little town we stand face to face with two of the oldest legends of our land. Here we are told by the old Chroniclers, not in subtle myth, but as sober fact, Joseph of Arimathea landed, raised his wattled Church, and planted the Christian faith in this island of the West. Here, they say, was the island of Avalon—the isle whither Arthur was taken by the three queens in their barge 'for to heal him of his grievous wound,' and where (1191) his remains . . . were discovered."

William of Malmesbury says :—

"It was in the year 63 that Joseph of Arimathea with eleven companions settled at Glastonbury and built a wattled Chapel in honour of the Virgin. When they died they left behind them but this humble fane, which just 100 years after its erection (166) was re-edified by two legates sent hither by Eleutherius, and so legend passes on gradually into history. St. Patrick converted the little religious settlement into a religious fraternity, and died the first Abbot in 472. The last of its Abbots, Whiting, shared a melancholy fate. He was a very aged man and much beloved for his piety and learning and his goodness to the sick and poor. Under his rule the Abbey and School at Glastonbury bore a very high character in all the West Country. He was charged with endeavouring to conceal from the King's messengers some of the ancient manuscripts and treasures of the Abbey, and in punishment for this offence he was put to death with the greatest barbarity."

Another writer says :—

"The Abbots were as magnificent as the Abbey. They wore the mitre, and, until they had to give place to St. Alban's, ranked first in the kingdom. None of the Abbots maintained so much state as Whiting, the last of the line, in whose days the Abbey was a great centre of learning. None had so dire a fall, for on the 15th November, 1539, he was hung as a traitor on the Tor, with his treasurer and sub-treasurer. The wealth of the Abbey was a sufficient offence, for its revenues were upwards of £3,300.

"About a century ago the remains were still considerable, but enormous quantities of the material were then removed to make a good road over the marshes. Other parts had been applied in the building of a town-hall, and still others in erecting a 'meeting-house.' In fact, the Abbey was for ages the common quarry for the neighbourhood. It is now admirably cared for."

Professor Freeman says :—

"Legend carried up the first birth of that great house (Glastonbury Abbey) to the earliest days of Apostolic Christianity . . . In either case it is certain that Glastonbury was the one church of the first rank in England, which stood as a memorial of British days, the only one which had lived unscathed through the storm of English conquest, and which received equal reverence from the conquerors as from the conquered. . . . At Canterbury and York and London there is no historic tie between the vanished church of the Briton and the Church of the Englishman, which still abides. A blank night of heathendom parts off the one from the other by an impassable gulf. At Glastonbury it was not so. There the old British sanctuary lived on under English rule, and fell only at the hands of the destroyers of baser mould in days which seem by comparison as yesterday. . . . ."

Osbern and others, referring to St. Dunstan's connection with the Abbey, says :—

"Dunstan, perhaps, is the best remembered of all the Abbots of Glastonbury. According to the monkish writers, before his birth, after his birth, and after his death, the wonderfulness of his character and work was attested by miracle. Some writers say he was born at Glastonbury, others that he was born near Glastonbury, and as he grew up became one of its pupils. As soon as he attained the requisite age he entered into minor orders, in conformity to the desire of his parents, and took the office of clerical Abbot in the Monastery wherein he had been educated."

* From a Paper—"Race and Language of the Picts"—by William Skene—Archæologia Cambrensis (April, 1865.)

Digitized by Google

After being dismissed from the court of the King, Osbern says for magic which he practised there, it is related :—

"He now returned to Glastonbury and there built for himself a miserable cell against the walls of the Monastery, more like a grave than the habitation of a living man. It was five feet long, two and a half wide, and not above four in height above the ground; but the ground was excavated so that he could stand upright in it, though it was impossible to lie there at full length. The door filled up one side, and the window was in the door. This was his forge and workshop and dwelling-place; and this was the scene of the most notorious miracle in the monastic history of England—the severe punishment of Satan for tempting him, known to most of our readers."

Osbern, in his memoirs of Dunstan, gives the exact words the Devil used in Latin, which being translated into English is—"What has this bald wretch done?" repeated. "There is evidently some diversities as to facts and even to the sex of the supernatural stranger, in the monkish narratives, but the good monks all agree in the assertion that Lucifer's nose was roughly and warmly handled, and that he roared lustily under the operation."

The tongs with which Satan was punished are, among other sacred relics, on view now at the "Palace," Mayfield, in Sussex. It may be remembered that Dunstan purchased this palace, which was one of many palaces belonging to the See of Canterbury, and that the tongs would be most carefully conveyed thither from Glastonbury for safe keeping, and also to quicken the faith of the faithful. Even they have been most severely criticized. Southey says :—

"Glastonbury was a spot on which real history might even then have been sanctified to every feeling and imaginative mind; but churches and monasteries had begun to vie with each other in promoting a gainful superstition to all the arts of falsehood. The probable and undisputed belief that the first Church which had been consecrated in Britain was upon this site was not sufficient; already it was established as a traditionary truth that the edifice had not been built by human hands (Osbern), but that Joseph of Arimathea found it miraculously placed there to receive him; and after a lapse of nine centuries the church itself, though composed of no firmer material than basket-work, was shown as still existing."

"Glastonbury, in Anglo-Saxon times, was mostly filled with monks from Ireland. St. Patrick had chosen it as a place of retirement, and for his sake the brethren from Ireland favoured it; and as they had no large endowments, they contributed to their own support by educating the children of the nobles, said at one time to be as many as 300. Dunstan (928–88) was one of their pupils. In such a school local associations would produce and foster ardent enthusiasm or audacious craft, according to the disposition of the individual. A feeble body and a commanding intellect predisposed him for both in turn."

Dr. Gibbons appeals to us all in his poem, on the "Noble Army of Confessors," thus :—

"But should we (for who knows what storms may rise,
What sudden thunders shake the earth and skies!)
Be tried like those confessors (the martyrs), let us dare
The fiercest wrath and heaviest doom to bear;
For Christ, for conscience, wealth and ease resign,
No frowns, no terrors in their cause decline.
Nor for the momentary sweets of sin
Exchange the self-approving praise within.
Our few short sufferings soon shall be repaid
With crown of glory that shall never fade;
And, while beneath the vengeance of the skies
Heaped on his head the proud oppressor dies,
The saint shall in his Father's Kingdom shine
Enthron'd in bliss unbounded and divine."

"There is too much praising of great people; bring the great peoples together. Whatever the individual traveller may say at times, these two great peoples are linked together because of community of instinct and community of blood and friendship.

"I am proceeding on that basis, and nobody need explain to me how to get along with the English. I resent advice how to get along with the English.

"During the war I got to know the English better than a lifetime could have taught me. OUR WHOLE SITUATION WAS SAVED BY THE SELF-SACRIFICING GENEROSITY OF THE ENGLISH GOVERNMENT AND THE ENGLISH ARMY.

"I do not know what the repercussions of this speech will be, and as a business man I am going to take a chance of the repercussions. I want to get these great peoples in touch, not to help them to be friendly, but to prove that they are friendly. The voice of America is the voice of the American people, not of the appointed critics or censors or eulogists."—General Dawes, American Ambassador to England. (Daily Mail, 17.7.29.)

ENOCH'S CLAIM AS THE GREAT PYRAMID BUILDER.

IN the tenth chapter of Revelation we read of the seventh angel who declares that time should be no longer and that the mystery of God should be finished. He also commands: "Seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered and write them not."

What did John hear and why was he not allowed to write it? Evidently the time for it had not yet come.

Devout students of prophecy infer from this that God may yet reveal the things which were to be hidden from the Church age. Their inferences are correct. God has revealed them, but in a different manner than they expected. He has done so through His Measured Revelation at the close of this age, His Witness and Altar in the land of Egypt.

This seventh angel is clothed with a cloud and with a rainbow upon his head. These are his symbols. He is referred to as the rainbow angel; his function is to measure time, and his person is identical to the saint—the revealer of secrets—standing on the banks of Ulai, who made Da iel understand the vision. (Daniel viii, 13-19.)

Mr. Davidson relates that the Egyptian goddess, Hathor, the Isis or Aphrodite of the Greeks, and Ishtar of the Babylonians, was the rainbow goddess, and her symbol was a seven-petalled flower. The ancients associated her with the chronological repetition of "sevens" and the guardianship of the cycles of time.

The name "Hathor" we find to be a later female perversion of "Osiris" or "Horus," the original "Heru-Ur"—the revealed "Jehovah"—the Messiah Himself. The Egyptian texts speak of Osiris as the founder of the building (the Pyramid), calling it the "House of the Master," or his "Light" or "Glory"—"Khuti." They also speak of the passion of Osiris; the latter himself exclaims "I am the Dawn, the Light of the Second Birth, the Mystery of the Soul," thus exercising, in their belief, the same function as the True Light of the World.

Digitized by Google

As the Egyptians considered Osiris the founder of the Pyramid and the central figure around which its symbolism was built, and since we can identify Osiris with Heru-Ur, the revealed Jehovah, we seem to have ascertained the Great Pyramid's origin and mission: to proclaim Jehovah—Christ—the Redeemer of all who truly believe in Him, and to indicate His return as the Great King; and further, to synchronize in the length of its passages and chambers the epochs of time during which God shall accomplish His purposes regarding mankind.

Through this chain of evidences we have therefore established, also, the identity between Hathor and the Rainbow Angel (their functions being the same). We have also confirmed the belief of many that this seventh angel—the Revealer of Secrets to Daniel—is none other than our Lord Jesus Christ Himself.

This rainbow goddess, Hathor, was said to have been responsible for the destruction of mankind through the Deluge; and she was also instrumental in the founding of a new race, in the ancient belief; therefore she was also called the foundation goddess, and her aid was always implored in the laying of the foundation of a building, her function being the stretching of the cord.

The aligning of the foundation, the sinking of the sockets, and the laying of the corner-stones was always a sacred affair with the Egyptians, and with all the people of antiquity. The language in the fourth, fifth and sixth verses of the thirty-eighth chapter of Job evidently attaches considerable significance to this function. All through history and until the present day the laying of the corner-stone is accompanied by ceremony, and generally documents relative to the building and the dating are enclosed; sometimes the date is inscribed on the corner-stone. In the corner sockets of some of the Pyramids clay tablets have been found giving information as to when and by whom the structure was built.

As we are now aware, the Great Pyramid's code is written in terms of measurements; it is therefore not unlikely that its northern corner-stones may give us the dating of this construction. This supposition is corroborated by the fact that the first of the prophetic cycles of 1,260 years, from 0 A.K., intersects the outside corner of the casing masonry at the ground level line, pointing prophetically to the laying of the corner-stone. A vertical extended from this point to the scalar axis defines on the latter the date of 777 A.K. This threefold repetition of seven is very significant, if we bear in mind that the foundation goddess, the guardian of time, is connected with the repetition of "sevens," but such a threefold repetition of seven establishes, undoubtedly, a connection with the measurer of Daniel and of Revelation—the seventh angel—who has measured out the time and times to mankind in the Great Pyramid.

This measurer of time, however, must have had a representative in human form to supervise the work.

If we extend another vertical from the displacement line to the scalar axis we define the dating of 827 A.K., giving us an interval of fifty years between the two dates, which period probably indicates the length of time required for its construction. Fifty years, let us note, was the length of one jubilee. It is also noteworthy that the King's Chamber level, on which will be effected the restitution of all things, is located on the fiftieth course of masonry.

The two dates, 777 A.K. and 827 A.K., are within the lifetime of the one man whom the Bible tells us "walked with God"—Enoch, and who was also the seventh in line from Adam; again a "seven."

The Bible further tells us that the length of Enoch's life was 365 years. This, excepting the fraction, is the value of the solar circle, and it is not unlikely that Enoch lived a fraction of a year over the exact 365 years. This value is expressed again by the geometrical dimensions of the Antechamber, the length of which is the diameter of the solar circle. The centre of the chamber is exactly 15 Phœnix (Enoch) cycles from the translation of Enoch at the end of three Phœnix cycles in 987 A.K.

In the Encyclopedia Britannica, we find under the title "Enoch" a valuable synopsis of the Book of Enoch (Abyssinian) and the Book of the Secrets of Enoch (Slavonic). In both books we read that God instructed Enoch in the fundamental laws of the universe, in the wisdom of astronomy, and in the measurements of the earth. God also informed Enoch of His plans regarding mankind and the time of their existence here upon earth for a period of 7,000 years. He also indicated to Enoch the various events which shall bring about His predestined plan of redemption for His people, and the time those events should occur.

God told Enoch of the coming Deluge, of His intention to call out a people peculiar and holy unto Himself; that He would send them a Saviour at the end of four thousand years to redeem them from their sins; and that at the end of 6,000 years that Saviour was going to return, to rule over His people for 1,000 years.

The Book of Enoch is considered the most valuable of the so-called non-canonical books; several of the Church Fathers considered it part of the sacred Scriptures, for it is referred to by Jude in the fourteenth verse.

In the Book of Jubilees we read in the fourth chapter regarding Enoch: "He was the first one from among the children of men that are born on the earth to learn writing and knowledge and wisdom. And he wrote the signs of heaven according to the order of their months in a book, that the sons of men might know the time of year according to their separate months. He was the first to write a testimony, and he testified to the children of men concerning the generations of the earth, and explained the weeks of the jubilees, and made known to them the days of the years, and arranged the months and explained the sabbaths of the years as we made them known to him. And what was and what will be he saw in a vision of the night in a dream, and as it will happen to the children of men in their generations until the day of judgment; he saw and learned everything and wrote it as a testimony and laid that testimony on the earth over all the children of men and for their generations. . . . And then he was with the angels of God six years of this jubilee, and they showed him all things on earth and in heaven, the rule of the sun, and he wrote down all things." We are further told that he wrote down all that he saw in his visions in 366 books (again the value of the solar circle).

Digitized by Google

From what we read in the three mentioned books regarding Enoch leaves little room for doubt that Enoch was the builder of the Great Pyramid; in fact, the passage in the Book of Jubilees, "and laid the testimony on the earth over all the children of men," seems to indicate it quite clearly.

Such a testimony of mathematical facts could only be laid down in the form of a Pyramid, as has been mentioned elsewhere.

The Great Pyramid could not have been built by mortal man, except through Divine revelation, and the preponderance of evidence points to Enoch. Besides that, there exist several traditions, the Coptic and the Hermes, that tell us that Enoch was the builder of the Great Pyramid. One Coptic MS. states that it was built before the Flood as the result of a vision wherein the coming of the Flood was prophesied. The Arabic MS. of Masoudi, at Oxford, tells us that "Surid," one of the antediluvian kings of Egypt, built the two Pyramids of Gizeh (the Great Pyramid and the Second), and that these two Pyramids contain all the wisdom of the ancients; the Great Pyramid the science of the heavenly spheres, geometry, and historical and prophetical records; and the Second one the knowledge of medicine. We know that what this MS. tells us about the Great Pyramid is correct, but no one has yet found the key to unlock the medical knowledge said to be hidden within the Second Pyramid, as neither of them show any hieroglyphic inscriptions of any kind.

All scholars agree that the Great Pyramid was built by "Khufu," and that he was a king of the Fourth Dynasty. Now, Herodotus tells us that "Khufu" was the man that compelled the Egyptians to stop all idolatry while the Pyramid was being built. The splendid statue of Khufu is still in existence. As one looks upon the noble features, and notes the powerful, yet peaceful, expression, one becomes conscious of a strong character, and one gets also the impression that he was a man of God. Considering all that we know about Enoch and about Khufu, comparing also the time that Enoch lived, the time of the dating of the corner-stone, and the time that Egyptologists assign to the reign of Khufu, it would not be surprising, yes, in fact, is very probable, that Enoch and Khufu are one and the same person.

Egyptologists placed the reign of Khufu, of the Fourth Dynasty, at about 4700 B.C., but the best of them admit, to-day, that that estimate has been about 1,500 years too early, and have found that the Fourth Dynasty existed about 32 centuries B.C. This falls exactly within the time defined by the position of the northern corner-stones of the Pyramid, 3223 B.C. to 3173 B.C.

That the Great Pyramid was built by Shem after the Deluge in the 22nd century B.C. is to-day disputed by all Egyptologists, and even Mr. Davidson considers it most improbable, for that time falls within the Ninth or Tenth Dynasty. We must also bear in mind that this would have been only two hundred years after the Deluge; if the latter extended to Egypt it seems impossible that the country could have furnished sufficient men (200,000 as told by Herodotus) to carry on the work.

Coptic accounts of Egyptian history have proved to be very reliable, and they give Enoch the credit for being the builder of the Pyramid, so, also, does the Hermes tradition. The Grecian god, Hermes, is identical to the Egyptian moon-god, Thoth, the god of wisdom, of measurements and of prophecy, who was considered as holding the office of Scribe to the gods; also called the Lord of Divine Words. He is said to be the author of the so-called Hermetic Books, 42 in number (which equals 6 times 7), which deal mostly with the subjects of cosmography, astronomy, astrology and the horoscope. We can trace the origin of this mystical god, Thoth, back to Sesostris, or Sothis, of the Third or Fourth Dynasty, after whom the Sothic cycle was named. In the summary of cycles is explained that one Sothic cycle of 1,461 years ended in 2083 A.K. (1917 B.C.), the dating of the Call of Abraham, which period had its beginning in 622 A.K. (3378 B.C.), the dating of the birth of Enoch.

As the year of Enoch's birth (622 A.K.) coincides with the year of Sothis, after whom the cycle was named, and as Enoch was said to be the first man to whom were revealed the secrets of the universe, occupying the same function as Hermes—Thoth—Sesostris—or Sothis, it appears that Enoch and Sothis are identical. As we have also established the probable identity between Enoch and Khufu, it also appears that the three names all belong to one and the same person. If, further, we compare the words Khuti and Khufu, the one meaning "Light," and the other meaning "Light-giver," it seems that the identification is almost complete, that Sothis, the Measurer, was Enoch, the Light-giver—Khufu.

It is indeed possible to carry the identification still farther, and, by doing so, we obtain quite unexpected results. The names of the so-called Pyramid kings of Gizeh are quite a conundrum; many of the names being merely appellations of one or two persons, which were applied to them at the time or in the succeeding centuries.

We have already identified Enoch of the sacred Scriptures as with Sothis or Sesostris of the Egyptian texts. The Babylonian priest, Berosus, states that Xisithrus, or Sisithrus, an antediluvian king, had a vision that the earth would be destroyed by a flood, and was told to commit to writing what he saw, and what knowledge he possessed of the heavenly spheres, and to seal it up so that it would be preserved for future generations. This legend, we see, is almost identical to the story of Enoch or Sothis. It is also identical to what the Coptic manuscript of Masoudi relates, that Surid, an antediluvian king, was commanded in a vision to preserve the ancient knowledge of astronomy in two Pyramids in the land of Siriad—the Sirius land—Egypt. Josephus also tells the same story, but claims that it was Seth that had the vision, and was commanded to build two pillars in the land of Siriad. Whiston, the Egyptologist, as quoted by Davidson, believes that Josephus confused the name of Seth with that of Sesostris, as is quite obvious.

But we are finding still more confusion. Shaaru, a king of the Third Dynasty, contemporary with Sneferu, is said to be the king who started building the Great Pyramid, and as Shaaru is again associated with Soris, or Surid, of the Coptic texts, he is therefore identical with Sothis, or Sesostris. It appears that we cannot get away from the latter.

Digitized by Google

Zoser, another king name of the Third Dynasty, is said to have built the first Pyramid in Egypt at Sakkarha, about seventy-five years before the Great Pyramid was built, but as Manetho connects Zoser's name again with Sesorthos, who is Sesostris, we are back again with Sothis, with whom we started.

The only name that cannot be coupled with any of the appellations given to Sothis, or Enoch, is Sneferu of the Third Dynasty, during whose reign the Second and the Great Pyramid was built, and it would not be surprising to find, therefore, that he was the Egyptian king who was compelled by Khufu (according to Herodotus) to furnish the men to build the Great Pyramid.

As Josephus tells us that Seth, or Sesostris, was commanded by God in a vision to build two pillars, one of brick, and another of stone, we know from analogy with the other accounts that that pillar is the Great Pyramid—the traditional pillar of Enoch.

Still another name is connected with the Pyramid's builder, the name of "Iemhotep." A Mr. Arthur Weigall is quoted by Mr. Davidson as stating that he was king Zoser's architect, and that his architectural designs were said to have "descended from heaven," the same as Enoch's did. Iemhotep was called by the Egyptians "the Son of God" who came to build the Great Pyramid. Sir Ernest Budge states that his name means "he who cometh in peace"; later on he is spoken of as the "scribe to the gods," which attribute was given to Thoth —Sesostris—Sothis—Enoch. It becomes obvious, therefore, that all of these names are merely different appellations of Enoch, with the exception of Sneferu, and possibly Zoser.

At this point it is interesting to note that in later Egyptian texts, Thoth is referred to as the "vicar" or vice-regent of Horus or Osiris—the Lord of the Pyramid. This plainly intimates, then, that Sothis or Enoch was considered the vicar of the coming Messiah. Mr. Davidson discovered that the beginning of the epoch of Horus falls in the year 802 A.K., which year is the exact centre of the fifty-year period from 777 to 827 A.K., defined by the author from the location of the casing corner-stones. Mr. Davidson and the author have, therefore, reached almost the same conclusion regarding the Pyramid's founding, although the former has not yet noticed the corner-stone datings.

The names of Noah, Shem and Melchisedek, are also mentioned as the builders of the Great Pyramid in some traditions. Noah's name is used because, in the Babylonian tradition, he is identical with Xisithrus; but the name of Iemhotep furnishes us with a way of escape from this labyrinth. Note that his name means "he who cometh in peace." It was stated before that the Sothis or Sirius cycle began in 622 A.K., the date of Enoch's birth, and ended in 2083 A.K., the date of the Call of Abraham (see Summary of Cycles). The Egyptians well knew that Enoch was translated, and as they also knew the significance of the Sothic cycle, they were looking for his return at the expiration of that cycle. The year 2083 A.K. fell in the reign of Senusert III, when the Sirius festival was celebrated. Centuries after the Egyptians claimed that Sothis had come in the form of Senusert. Although this seems absurd at first, it has some foundation, as we shall presently see. The same year Abraham came to Egypt to buy grain, after he had been blessed by Melchisedek. Scripture is silent on the identity of Melchisedek; he was a priest of the Most High, sent from God in some mysterious way, and disappeared again the same way. Who was he? Paul says of him: "To whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first being by interpretation King of Righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is, King of Peace; without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually." (Hebrews vii, 2-3.) Note, a "King of Peace," and "like unto the Son of God," and compare it with the name of the Pyramid's builder, Iemhotep (he who cometh in peace), and believed by the Egyptians to have been the "Son of God." As the Egyptians believed that Sothis, the Measurer, returned after 1,461 years in the form of Senusert, so also exists the paradox that Enoch appeared again 1,461 years after his birth as Melchisedek, King of Salem, that is, King of Peace, and as a priest for ever, and vanished again.

But there exists still another tradition that Shem was the Pyramid's builder, and that tradition associates him with Melchisedek as being the same person. The data regarding Shem as the builder is very slim, as has been discussed elsewhere, and the probable reason that Shem was connected with the building is through an erroneous identity with Melchisedek, the latter being, as it appears, Enoch returned. Therefore, all three traditions claiming Seth, Enoch or Shem being the Pyramid's builder centre in the final analogy in Enoch.

The context of the three books above mentioned also seems to establish Enoch as the originator of the signs of the Zodiac, and the grouping of the other constellations, the Hebrew names of whose stars give us another revelation of God's plan of salvation. Upon no other basis than Divine inspiration can the difficult, imaginary figures surrounding the constellations be explained. All authorities agree that the naming and the grouping of the constellations is of antediluvian origin, and is absolutely supernatural, not human; the grouping of the twelve signs of the Zodiac into precisely 30 degrees each required a knowledge of exact mathematics. (See E. W. Bulinger, "The Witness of the Stars," or Joseph A. Seiss, "The Gospel of the Stars.")

Here is a question for the evolutionist to answer: If man has been evolved from a primate to his present state, how is it that man, 5,000 years ago, could divide the sidereal circle into twelve sections of 30 degrees each, when, according to our text-books on physics, the circular motion of the heavenly bodies was not perceived until the time of the Greek philosophers, and that knowledge was again lost for two thousand years, until the beginning of modern astronomy in the fifteenth century.

In the sacred conception of the symbolism of the constellations, Virgo is the first group, depicting a woman with an infant in her arms. This child is the seed of the woman, the promised Messiah. The following constellations reveal, in the Hebrew names of their stars, God's plan of re emption concerning mankind. The last sign is Leo, depicting a lion springing with his feet upon the head of the serpent, crushing it, symbolizing the Lion of the Tribe of Judah vanquishing the great enemy.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Bulinger believes that we have here also the answer to the riddle of the Sphinx. The latter has a woman's head, and the body of a lion. What does she represent? What is she thinking about? The woman looking out over the Nile, and over the centuries, waiting for the Lion of the Tribe of Judah, the Great King, to come and end Satan's dominion.

Did Enoch have anything to do with the Sphinx? Perhaps more than we imagine.

"I believe in the British Empire. I believe it is the greatest force for peace and progress that the world has ever seen. I believe that it holds boundless possibilities for the happiness, contentment and prosperity of all people living under the British flag. It is a belief which should never be absent from the foreground of every Briton's thoughts, because it is at once proof of our greatness and the justification of our existence."—Sir John Ferguson (Evening Standard, 17.7.29).

THE FOUNDATION STONE.

ADDRESS AT MAY MEETINGS.

By Mr. Daniel Farmer.

We have all listened with deep attention and profit to that thoughtful address given us on the question, "What is the good of the British-Israel teaching?" You will generally find that that question is asked by those who have a very limited outlook upon the teaching of Holy Scripture. The Bible tells us that "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Now if this British-Israel teaching is part of Holy Scripture, every Christian person ought to be interested in it; but there are certain people who, having got individual salvation—which, of course, is the first essential thing—seem profoundly satisfied with that, and not to require anything more. What would you think of a wife, who, having secured from her husband all that she needed in the shape of clothing and food and amusements, said, "Well, really, I am not interested in what concerns my husband. He has given me all I need, and I do not wish to trouble about what interests him"? I should not like a wife of that sort, and it does not show a very fine state of mind, when, having secured personal salvation, we turn and say in regard to God's great scheme, "What is the good of it?" I hope none of us are in that frame of mind. The British-Israel Movement is out to establish historic facts and to prove them. An old lady said that a little sight so helped her faith. And we are out for that very purpose—we are out to prove, or rather to show an intensive faith by outside facts. Take the Bible in the historical sense. We believe that we have proved satisfactorily that this great Anglo-Saxon race is the race whom God is using in this dispensation for the carrying on of His great purpose; and I maintain that this is a great help to faith if I can show anyone talking to me that during these two thousand years the promises of God have been kept, and that, unknown to ourselves, a great people have been working out the Divine plan and scheme; I think that is a very great proof of the existence of God, and the carrying out of His Divine purpose. And that is what we are out for, to endeavour to show in these last days that the Divine plans are being carried out. I believe God has raised up this Movement to meet the Modernism and Sacerdotalism of to-day. It has been well said that the English mind is not easily moved by rhetoric, but powerfully influenced by the accumulation of facts, and no one can read our magazine without seeing the accumulation of facts, and I believe this accumulation of facts is gradually telling on the minds of our people. A gentleman said to me, "The mass of evidence is increasing and increasing, and presently it will become a great mountain and will swamp the whole opposition." That is what we are hoping for, and everyone who adds to this accumulation is doing good service to the Church.

We have heard about the British Empire from Mr. Garrison. What a marvellous Empire it is. "No man could have put it together," said Lord Rosebery. The British Empire was not built up by saints as such; plenty of our people are a long way from being saints, and our Empire has still to go through a considerable chastening and correction before we shall be fit for the reign of The King. But I believe that God is moving among our people, and that He is preparing us for this stage which is rapidly coming on. We have had read in our hearing the 2nd Psalm, and the 2nd Psalm had a partial fulfilment at Pentecost; but if I understand Scripture rightly, this 2nd Psalm is just an outline of what will take place at the close of this dispensation. We are witnessing it to-day; the forces of evil gathering up against the true Church of Christ and the Holy Word, and there is the casting off of restraint, so that we shall witness during the close of this age, whatever form it may take, a very severe struggle, and just as the Cross separates individuals, so it also separates nations. It seems to me that the close of this age will see the gathering of the nations of those who are for the Cross and for Christianity, and of those who are against it. Where will our own nation stand in that struggle? We hope to stand on the side of God in this matter. Who is to stand for the great truths of the Bible if our influence is lost? One of our high officials was talking to a foreign priest, and in the course of conversation the priest said to this high official, "When the war was on we wondered who was going to win, and we said to ourselves, 'If Germany goes down, then science will go; if France goes down, then art will be lost; and if Britain goes down, then justice will be lost.'" Now could a higher compliment be paid to our people than such a statement as that? After all, what we stand for in the world is for peace and justice and freedom. An Austrian gentleman said, "If I had to be born again I would be born under the British flag even if I was born a black man." That is another testimony. I do not like people who are running down the British nation. With all its faults and failures, after all, it is the best; and if we go, who is to take our place?

Now with regard to this British-Israel-World Federation; we are sometimes told that the letters stand for "British-Israel Without Foundation," but that is not correct. Surely it should be "British-Israel Well Founded." When they lay a foundation-stone they declare that it is well and truly laid; and here to-night, after a long experience, I tell you plainly that I would have nothing to do with this Movement if I did not believe it was well and truly laid. The more I read Scripture and study history, the more I am convinced that we are on right lines, and if we hold on we shall find this, that men will have to come round and acknowledge the truth. We must to-day proclaim this great Truth; we believe it is along the lines of Scripture. Who are those who oppose this Movement? Well, our Lord was crucified between two thieves, so it is not the first time that Truth has been opposed; and we have Sacerdotalism on the one hand, and Modernism on the other; and if they are not two thieves in spiritual things, I do not know what they are; and here we stand between them. We stand for what we believe to be the integrity of Holy Scripture. After many years of study and reading I believe this Book is true. We often make mistakes in the interpretation of it, but I believe the Bible is true, and in the original documents I believe we have what God intended we should have, that which is true and reliable. I think I have told you before how, on a certain occasion, the late C. H. Spurgeon told of a gentleman who ordered a quantity of coals for his own private use; he ordered the best quality, and he paid the highest price; and in those days that price was nothing like what we pay for the cheapest quality in these days. When he came to use the coals he found them faulty, and he wrote a note to the coal people, and said, "If you are going to send me any more coals of that sort, will you have the coals put in one sack, and the slates in another, then I shall know which is which." I am sure we believe that if the Bible had been partly true and partly false God would have given it to us in two volumes, and I think He would have put a label on, like the doctors put "Poison" at times on their medicine bottles. We are more inclined to the false than to the truth. This Federation is composed of a body of people who stand for the integrity of Holy Scripture. We live in a time when the very foundations of our faith are being attacked, but we are not afraid. The Christian Church owes a lot to the infidels. If it had not been for infidelity we should not have known half as much of the Bible as we do. Instead of listening to their opposition, we search the Book, and we set our experts to work, and the result is we come out more convinced than ever that this Book is true, whatever attacks are made upon it.

Digitized by Google

I spoke just now of the type of person who attacks this Movement. There is a type of piety, very sincere, no doubt; it lives in a well, and can see the stars, but cannot see the lay of the land. Now I do not know whether I am talking to anyone like that; if so, I should like to get you out of the well. We believe in living on the surface as well as down in the well. We not only want to see the stars, but the lay of the land too. I am convinced myself that this question has thrown more light on the Bible than any other I ever took up. I see the Bible, not simply as a collection of texts, from which the preacher selects one and makes the best he can of it—that is not expounding the Scripture—I see the Bible as a magnificent whole. There is a plan, a scheme, a Divine purpose in it. What would you think of a man who looked at a poster the size of this wall and took a microscope to examine it? What would you think of him? It is quite true that he would see a little, but he would not view the entire poster. The Christian Church is suffering from those people, parsons as well as lay, who have such a limited outlook on the Bible, and the work of the Federation is to try and correct that. One day in Swanage we had a gentleman from the Prophecy Investigation Society visiting us. They are excellent people, but they all belong to one school of thought, and they cannot see anything but the Jew, and they lose sight of Israel altogether. They have got a long Jewish look, and a terribly short Israelitish look; and we as a Federation are out to correct that sort of thing as far as we can. There is talk about the Jews going back to Jerusalem. Yes, they are going back, but not as the leading nation. They are going back under the ægis of Britain. Jeremiah speaking of these things says that the House of Judah shall walk with the House of Israel, and together they shall come to the land. Is not that exactly what we are witnessing?

Travelling from London, I saw a little printed matter on the opposite seat, and I thought I would see what it was all about, so I took it up, and found it was really an advertisement of a book defending the Bible. Before you came to that part there was a question, "Why do so many of the clergy want the Bible altered?" And the answer was given, "Because it does not agree with their teaching." But here is an Association that does not want the Bible altered; we are willing to be taught by the Bible, and we believe we have the correct interpretation of it. Reference has been made to the fact that this Movement is growing. "When the enemy shall come in like a flood, then shall the Lord lift up an ensign against him." Just as it was in the year 1799, at the close of the eighteenth century, when unbelief, as we see it to-day, lifted up its head in the name of so-called scholarship. They may have graduated. They may have a "M.A." or a "B.A." after their name, but those letters may stand for other things as well! Just about that time, when the religious belief of the day was denying the Scripture and saying that those things never existed, in the year 1799 a young French officer accidentally, but we should say providentially, came upon what is called the Rosetta Stone, and for a long time that stone could not be deciphered, and when it was made out it simply proved that the places which these so-called modern men said never existed actually were shown and their situation given. That is always the case whenever unbelief raises its head. God has always some answer. It is like the man we are told of in the Book of Judges. He went to take a town, and a woman dropped a brick on his head and settled him! God works somewhat like that. He raises up this Movement, dropping a brick on the head of these unbelievers and settling them. I like this Movement. I think it is very cheerful and helpful; it has an optimistic outlook. We have a hopeful outlook, and we go on in spite of discouragement around. Do you remember the story of the nervous passenger on a boat during a stormy night? They could not make port, and she said, "Do you think we shall get in all right?" And the officer said, "I do not know. This is a very leaky old boat, and we may go down; and our boilers are all wrong, and we may go up any minute. Nevertheless, we are going on." British-Israelites, we shall not go down in despair; we shall not go up in disaster: but we shall go on in this teaching till The King comes.

Digitized by Google

During the meeting Mr. GARRISON said: Only this afternoon a gentlemen from Glasgow came to me, and he said, "I have never had the pleasure of coming to Headquarters to attend these meetings before. I was an agnostic and in despair, and it was through the British-Israel teaching that I got my faith. The Bible brought me to the Cross." There are many others connected with our Movement who admit that they have been won from agnosticism entirely by the British-Israel teaching. They have said that nothing else could have brought them back to Christianity. It is a proof that God is indeed a Covenant-keeping God.

Yesterday was the 110th birthday of our beloved Queen Victoria the Good. In that connection let us please remember and cling to the glorious truth, the established evidence being in existence in two different buildings, one in London, and one not far out of London, that King George V sits on the throne of David. And let us thank God for our Royal House to-day, the finest Royal House and Court in all the world, the purest and the best and the most devoted to the well-being of their subjects. There is nothing like it in the history of the world.

Mr. J. LEECH said: I was holding some meetings in Southampton, and after one of them a gentleman came up to me, and said, "I was an atheist, and I was converted from my atheism by reading Mr. Davidson's book on the Pyramid." There are many others like that, and when this Truth is only opened up to them it simply sweeps the ground from under their feet, and they cannot stand on their old foundations; they get a new vision of a holy and faithful God, and a Bible upon which they can rely. We are engaged in a marvellous work that will be made a mighty blessing to many people.

I heard of one man after one of my lectures who had given up all religion; he went to no place of worship, and did not even possess a Bible. Somehow he attended the meeting, no one knows why, and afterwards bought himself a Bible, took to reading it, and began regularly to attend the services at a place of worship, went to British-Israel meetings, and he was totally transformed. Now that only shows the power of the Word of God. We have got a mighty Sword that can do marvellous things. And we must expect wonderful things from this work. Let us go forward with greater zeal and determination to carry on.

REPRINTS WORTH READING.

ADDRESS BY THE LATE REV. A. B. GRIMALDI, M.A.

IN the carrying out of any great work it is well, occasionally, to pause for a moment, so as to look back over the past endeavours, and, by comparing the former and the present state of the subject, obtain some idea and understanding of the amount of advance that has been made, of the progress achieved, and the amount of ground we have covered and possessed; and thus to draw the balance between the past and the present, and so ascertain whether we have cause for satisfaction as to progress, and encouragement as to the future.

I first heard of this subject in 1871, and in 1874 became convinced of the truth of our Israelitish Origin, and that it was founded both upon Scripture and upon History.

Since then I have pursued the subject in every available way, by the perusal of all Mr. Wilson's books, and many others, up to the present time, by study, reflection and consideration, and am more than ever convinced that the re-discovery of Israel has taken place, and that the inhabitants of the British Isles are literally descended from the lost House of Israel.

The present time and the present meeting seem both suitable for some retrospective glance and reflective consideration.

In connection with such a great and successful meeting as this present one, it is natural to think of former meetings and constitute a comparison.

I remember, for instance, one such many years ago. It may have been in 1874. I received a letter from Mr. Green, who was endeavouring to form an Anglo-Israel Association in London. He invited me to a meeting to be held in North London, where an address would be given by Edward Hine upon the English being the Lost Tribes of Israel. Not then knowing that part of London, with some difficulty I found the Holloway Road, and a small street leading out of the north side of the road. In it was a small local schoolroom, which had been lent for the evening. Edward Hine was the chief speaker, the others making what remarks they cared to. In all we did not number more than a dozen.

I understood that was Edward Hine's first London Israelite meeting. The local vicar did not, of course, patronize us. Perhaps he did not even know of the meeting. The curate could not spare five minutes to welcome us. And no lady graced with her fair presence, or brightened with her favouring smile of approval, our small and dingy meeting.

As the meeting progressed I perfectly remember the conclusion I came to, viz.: This meeting is small in numbers, and insignificant in every way except one; that is, its Scriptural subject. Yet most assuredly, before very long when Israel meetings are held, we shall have to employ one of the large London halls.

That forecast in the little Holloway schoolroom has been more than amply fulfilled, as this present meeting proves. As with meetings, so with other endeavours. Mr. Wilson's excellent magazine, The Watchman of Ephraim, had died with his death. Edward Hine's magazine of Life from the Dead had commenced, but there was no other.

In contrast to that, there have been since then some 20 Israel periodicals in England and America, culminating with our excellent official Federation journal, THE NATIONAL MESSAGE.

As to numbers, the change and advance is equally great and striking.

A Cyclopaedia, in an article some years ago, estimated the numbers of what it called "Anglo-Israelites" at some two millions. What must the numbers be now?

At that time there were the excellent writings of John Wilson, but they were little known, though valued by those who possessed them. It is not an exaggeration to say that there is now a Library of Israelite Literature in books, booklets, pamphlets, leaflets, and writings of all kinds.

At that time the only Israel Association was the Anglo-Ephraim one, and that soon after expired. The Israel Associations now one can hardly count.

Then, among the clergy were such honoured names as

Digitized by Google

Waddilove, Newton, Alexander, Gobat, Tipper, Wright, Polwhele, Titcomb, and a few others. Long lists would now have to be prepared to contain all the clerical names that might be collected of those who accept this Truth.

As before mentioned, not a single lady graced that early meeting. And now, when at the Inaugural Meeting in the large Caxton Hall, I noticed two large galleries apparently filled with ladies in addition to those in the body of the hall, while their enthusiastic help, unfailing energy and graceful accomplishments are the stay and support of numbers of the Associations throughout the country.

Equally striking is the financial support accorded to the whole work, and probably where there were then pounds, there are now hundreds. The classes of acceptors of Israel Truth are also now increased. We have only to look over the valuable and reliable lists of Israel believers, carefully prepared by the indefatigable zeal of the Secretary-General, to see that all classes, all professions, all occupations, are now worthily represented upon the "Roll of Israel," mounting upwards, through all grades, all titles, till the very steps of the Throne itself are reached! And as this result has been reached without the factitious aid of being either a Church, a Sect, a Society, or Secret Association, surely we may, without exaggeration, exclaim "Magna est Veritas et Prevalebit"; and humbly add from the Christian point of view: "What hath God wrought?"

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—VII.

By S. E. STEELE.

"BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL KNOW THEM."

MAY I paraphrase the well-known axiom: "Things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another"? Duties and responsibilities delegated to Israel in the prophetical writings have been, and are being performed by the Anglo-Saxon race; therefore the Anglo-Saxon race and Israel are one and the same. Prophecies regarding Assyria, Babylonia, Egypt, Greece, and the punishment of Judah, as also the captivity of Israel, were all fulfilled at the times appointed. By what authority do we dare to doubt the fulfilment of those referring to the gathering together again of Israel, the blessings to be bestowed on Israel, and the reunion of Israel and Judah under the new Covenant? Leviticus xxvi, 3, reads: "If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them"; then follow ten verses containing blessings, subject to Israel's obedience. Verse 14: "But if ye will not hearken unto me" . . . Verses 16 and 17 recount the punishments for disobedience, one of the first being consumption—(see also Deut. xxviii, 16 to 22)—one of the most deadly of our national diseases at the present time. For 580 years afterwards sin and idolatry increased, until in the days of Elijah there were only 7,000 in all Israel who had not bowed their knees to Baal (1 Kings xix, 18). God had been forsaken to such an extent that Elijah thought he was the only one left keeping God's commandments, and he prayed that God would take his life. Israel was given a further period of 180 years to repent, but went from bad to worse, and, in consequence, were suffering the penalties foretold in Leviticus. They did not repent. "And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you seven times more for your sins" (Lev. xxvi, 18). After the division of the tribes of Israel, the ten tribes, under Jeroboam, fell completely away. The six following kings of Israel each "did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, and departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, who made Israel to sin." Israel was the first to receive the "seven times" punishment, which began when they were taken captive into Assyria, 721 B.C. A prophetical "time" is 360 days, one day for a year. Seven times punishment, therefore, would be for 2,520 years. 2,520 years from 721 B.C. brings us to the year A.D. 1799 (721 + 1799=2520), the date of the release of the punishment of Israel. The years 1799–1800 were the turning-point in the destiny of our country. As the result of the Reformation, and the distribution of the Bible written in the mother tongue, Christianity for 260 years had rapidly increased. During this period (1799–1800) the Church Missionary Society, the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Religious Tract Society and others were formed; Ireland was formally joined to England under one Parliament, and the "Union Jack" became the national flag of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. In 1805 the supremacy of England on the sea was established. From that time our affairs began to prosper, and we have never yet turned back in the progress of our race.

The "seven times" punishment referred to the whole of the Twelve Tribes. We have shown the fulfilment as regards Israel, the Ten Tribes only. Judah remained partially true to God for over 100 years after Israel was removed, but the time came when the seven times punishment, because of increasing sin and idolatry, was meted out to them. The beginning of their captivity dates from 606 B.C., and was completed on the fall of Jerusalem in 588 B.C. The approximate date of the bulk of Judah being taken to Babylon was 603 B.C., when their seven times punishment can be said to commence. Add to that date 2,520 years, and it gives A.D. 1917 as the date of their liberation.

Our Saviour, according to St. Luke (xxi, 24), said: "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." The Turks, following the Babylonians and the Romans (all Gentiles), had possession of Jerusalem for 402 years. "And I will lay My vengeance upon Edom (Turkey) by the hand of My people Israel" (Ezek. xxv, 14). On completion of the times of the Gentiles, and the end of the seven times punishment of Judah, they (the Turks) were conquered and driven out of the Holy Land by the British in 1917.

A PRAYER.

Our Father, we entreat Thy mercy with our whole heart, that, as Thou defendest us against things adverse to the body, so Thou wilt set us free from the enemies of the soul; and, as Thou grantest us to rejoice in outward tranquillity, so vouchsafe to us Thine inward peace; through Jesus Christ our Lord.—Amen.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

OUR SECRETARY-GENERAL is now on his homeward journey, having left Vancouver on July 24th, and proceeding by way of Jasper and Edmonton, Alberta. After returning from Victoria, he attended and addressed a B.-I. picnic in Stanley Park, and a great B.-I. meeting in one of the largest halls in Vancouver. The day prior to leaving he addressed a meeting at which the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, His Honour R. R. Bruce, Esq., presided.

* * *

Mrs. Zoe Bell will hold the monthly Bible Study Class for women at 3 o'clock on Saturday, August 3rd, at Headquarters.

* * *

On Saturday, July 13th, contingents of members from Derby, Nottingham, Burton, Swannington and other centres, formed a goodly company at a Rally at Melbourne, Derbyshire. As the various parties arrived they met at the Institute, and, after introductions, were led by Mr. Stanley Jacques on a tour of inspection of the features of interest abounding in this delightful old town. The magnificently-preserved Norman Parish Church, dating from soon after the Conquest, held chief attention, being fascinatingly described by Mr. Jacques. The resources of the Institute were taxed to capacity to provide tea for the large party, but all were happily satisfied; after this a short meeting being held and addresses given by Commissioner the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse, the Rev. G. Davies, Mr. H. D. Houghton and Mr. Jacques, and votes of thanks accorded. Later, an hour was spent in rambling around some of the many delightful spots of Melbourne; then all met again in the glorious old Church, kindly lent by the Vicar, for a closing service of prayer and praise conducted by the Rev. T. H. Whitehouse, assisted by the Rev. G. Davies and Mr. Jacques, Mr. Houghton being at the organ.

It is hoped that this Rally will become an annual event. All returned home happy, feeling that much had been done to strengthen the bond of union between various centres of our work.

* * *

Miss Hamilton Hunter paid her third visit of the session to the Stratford Branch on the 15th July. Her two previous addresses had been so much appreciated that the members brought many of their friends with them, the result being the largest meeting during the session. The points in the lecture, "The Redemption of Israel," were clearly made and proved.

* * *

Large audiences attended at the Saffrons Rooms, Eastbourne, to hear Mr. J. J. Morey recently. In the afternoon he dealt with "Five Great Eras in Human History." At the evening meeting he pressed that "The Bible must be read with the simple faith of a child" and without prejudice. Mr. C. J. C. Wanton, M.A., was in the chair.

* * *

The following extracts are from a letter from Corinth, Mississippi, U.S.A.:—"I have finished reading the books sent—they are all wonderful. Nearly all the special numbers of the 'N.M. and B.' have been distributed, and not a day passes but that there is a call for more . . . . a class of sixteen men meet weekly for study and discussion of the wonderful British-Israel Truth. I am trying to teach, but tell them I am only a learner with them. There is something amazing about the way in which this Truth grips people. They listen spellbound . . . . The great need is for ministers to awake and realize that just now the Gospel of the Kingdom is the greatest theme upon which they can dwell . . . We cannot thank you enough for all you have sent us . . . and deem it the greatest privilege to be instrumental, even in a small way, in helping to spread the glorious news of the Kingdom."

* * *

The Rev. Joseph Gay will not hold any open-air meetings during August. He hopes to resume these on Sunday, September 8th.

* * *

We have the following interesting report of the seventh session of the Kingston Branch:—"Two delightful members' gatherings in the home of our President at Knightsbridge have drawn yet another session of the Kingston, Surbiton and District Branch to a close. On these occasions we had the enthusiastic ministry of Miss Hamilton Hunter to send us on rejoicing more than ever in the work of the Kingdom through the knowledge of British-Israel Truth. Similar afternoons at intervals have proved to be the most fruitful of the Branch's activities, the first alone resulting in an accession of ten new members. It was a strange fact, openly noted on that memorable day, that of the several testimonies given by members on 'How I came to accept B.-I. teaching,' none overlapped or duplicated another, but one by one furnished a finally complete sequence of remarkable evidence that B.-I. Truth can and does meet every Biblical difficulty, attract every type of intellect, and satisfy every seeker in search of the treasures of Truth. The Prayer Circle meetings—what bursts of sunshine they have often been amidst dark and stormy skies! Here, month by month, a real work of Grace has been witnessed as, fed on the Word of God, and led by the Holy Spirit, not a few hitherto sealed lips have found the joy of utterance, under the pressure of abounding difficulties and the urgent needs of our local district, which nothing but prevailing prayer could meet. To God be the glory for these and all other evidences of His acceptance of, and co-operation with, our efforts. Again, what can a Branch do but say 'Thank God' for those splendid shepherds of Israel—our lecturers—to whom the Branches owe such a deep debt of gratitude? They have truly 'fed the sheep.' The dark shadow of death has once again passed over us, taking one who could ill be spared, Miss K. Currie Smith, our Book Secretary, reference to whom was made some weeks ago in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE. Perhaps never have we had such difficult conditions for our meetings, but all is a stimulus to the healthy and compact growth of a Branch."

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 5th, at 8.
CARDIFF, Central Y.M.C.A., Tuesday, 6th, at 7.
HIGHGATE, 223, Archway Road. Wednesday, 7th, at 8.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 6th, at 7.30. Bible Study.
SHEFFIELD, Committee Room, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 7th, at 7.30.
WANDSWORTH, 120, Earlsfield Road, Wednesday, 7th, at 8.

Digitized by Google

A FASCINATING UP-TO-THE-MINUTE

LECTURE

by

HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

"CANADA"

AND SOME OF THE WONDERS OF THE UNITED STATES

Illustrated by a magnificent series of LANTERN PICTURES

Central Hall, Westminster, London, S.W.1.
Wednesday Evening, October 2, at 7.30.

First reserved seats 3/-. Second Reserved 2/-. Unreserved 1/-. Applications for tickets, with remittance and postage, to The Assistant Secretary, 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

ROYAL COURT HOTEL

SLOANE SQUARE, LONDON, S.W.1.

A first-class Hotel with comfort and refinement at

MODERATE TARIFF.

120 Rooms, all with Central Heating, running Hot and Cold Water and P.O. Telephones. Numerous private Bathrooms. Large and mall suites. Two Electric Lifts.

FINEST OPEN POSITION, FACING FULL SOUTH.
Proximity Victoria Station, B.-I. Headquarters and Hyde Park.
HIGH-CLASS RESTAURANT. FULLY LICENSED.

Tels.: "Oyacourtel, Sloane, London." 'Phone: Sloane 9191.

A. WILD, late Continental and Mena House, CAIRO.

OUR DAYS ARE NUMBERED

By J. Bernard Nicklin.

(WITH FOREWORD BY G. A. ROBISON.)

New light on the numbers of Daniel and Revelation—Striking new evidence that the "Day" intervals of prophecy are now being literally fulfilled—Leading events of past 15 years occurring to a Divine Time Table—Proof that God is over-ruling in the affairs of men, and a Sign of the End—All interested in prophecy and British-Israel Truth should study this.

1/- Post free.

Advent Herald, 1 Cleveland Terrace, Bath.

OR FROM

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6 Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

This book, by its ready sale, is rapidly taking its place as one of the most important works yet written. Every B.-I. Student must read it.

"BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH DEFENDED"

BY

Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.

A complete and convincing reply to the attack contained in "BRITISH-ISRAELISM EXAMINED," by REV. S. HINDS WILKINSON.

"British-Israel Truth Defended" should be read not only for its own intrinsic merits, and the high purpose manifest in every page, but it may most usefully be compared with "British-Israel Truth" as a simple exposition of basic facts.

Bound in Cloth, 3/6. By Post, 3/9.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

"The Heritage of the Anglo-Saxon Race"

BY

M. H. GAYER, O.B.E.

A coloured chart (5 colours), size 40 in. by 28 in., with companion volume,

Depicting the thrilling history of the Anglo-Saxon Race all down the ages (i.e., The British Empire and the British-born stock of America).

The companion volume (demy 4to) 96 pages, numbered in sections to correspond with chart.

Price of Chart, including Book, bound limp cloth,

4/6 By post 4/11

It traces the genealogies, by direct succession, of Their Majesties King George V., Queen Mary, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, back through the Royal House of David to Adam. It shows how the British Coat of Arms is built up from ancient emblems given to our race some 4,000 years ago. The Chart illustrates the contemporary history of the Houses of Judah and Israel.

Some independent comments which have reached the Author read as follows :—

"I think your chart and volume the best collection of B.-I. data that has ever been published. The chart is an excellent idea and gives the whole mass of evidence at a glance."

"I have your wonderful chart and key book. It is the most comprehensive study I have yet read. A joy to the Believer and an arresting study to an outsider."

"My husband is so delighted with your book that he announced it from the platform as one of the best books on B.-I.—the consequence was I sold out at once."

FRONTISPIECE. Historic photograph of H.M. King George V. with the Premiers of the British Empire, taken November, 1926.

Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

GOOD ADVICE

To a friend in distress you would tender sympathy and helpful advice. You have many friends unwittingly ignorant of the greatest truth affecting our State to-day. Give them that word of helpful advice. Introduce them to "The National Message." Tell them the value of its teaching. Let them know the help you get from it week by week. Then get them to fill up the Subscription Form below and send it to us. This Message can then be addressed to them and so our good work will go on.

Special Campaign for Increasing the Circulation of this Journal.

I wish to help, and I send herewith the sum of.....

for which please send ..... copies for three, six, twelve months to (Name) .....

Postal address .....

.....

.....

Alternative form :—

I enclose the sum of .....

Please send..... copies to whomsoever you may select for a period covered by this amount.

N.B.—The subscription is 3/- for three months ; 6/- for six months ; 12/- for twelve months. Canada and U.S.A. $3 per annum.

ADDRESS—

The Secretary,
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

AUGUST 10, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

AUG 23 29

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" Gen. 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" Num. 24·7

Gt BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1st CHRON. c.29 v.23 JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN.... EGYPT" Is 19 v.19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962 Postal Address: Buckingham C

Digitized by Google

WHAT TO READ—AND WHY

The books mentioned in the following list form a good introduction to the ethnological branch of British-Israel teaching—that the Anglo-Saxon race are the inheritors, under Divine Guidance, of the promises made to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. For those to whom the Divine Integrity is a vital thing, a careful study of these books is very helpful. They make many hidden things plain, and are a constant source of spiritual strength and guidance.

FIFTY REASONS

Why the Anglo-Saxons are Israelites of the Lost Tribes of the House of Israel.

By Rev. W. H. POOLE, D.D. 25th edition. Demy 8vo. 64 pp. Paper cover.

Price 6d.; by post, 7d.
Canada and U.S.A. 14 cts. Post free.

Reasons which clearly indicate that the Israel nation is not found in China, nor Mexico, nor Peru, but in the place set aside by Almighty Providence for a sanctuary "that they may dwell in a place of their own and move no more."

GOD AND MY BIRTHRIGHT

By J. LLEWELLYN THOMAS, F.R.C.S.

Demy 8vo. 240 pp. Cloth cover. Gold letters. Second Edition revised.

Price 4/6; by post, 5/-
Canada and U.S.A. $1.20 Post free.

The Author asks the question: "If the British be not Israel, how then comes it about that they are doing the very work that the unerring Word of God tells us that Israel should do?"
He decides: "There is only one logical conclusion, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon Race is the long-lost House of Israel."

THE WONDER RACE

By G. E. ALTREE COLEY. Crown 8vo. 209 pp. Cloth cover.

Price 5/-; by post, 5/6

This book sheds a strong spiritual light upon the events of secular history and shows the working of a Supreme Will and Purpose. The Anglo-Saxon reader will lay down the book with a fervent thanksgiving that his race has been called to such a high destiny.

Canadian Agents:
British-Israel Association,
14-15-16, Flack Block,
163, Hastings Street West,
Vancouver, B.C.

TAMAR TEPHI

Or, The Maid of Destiny.
The Great Romance of the Royal House of Britain.

By J. DUNHAM MASSEY. 195 pp. Cloth cover.

Price 4/6; by post, 4/9.
Canada and U.S.A. $1.20 Post free.

A masterly treatise on the text "For thus saith The Lord, David shall never want a man to sit upon the Throne of the House of Israel."
Should be read in conjunction with The Royal House of Britain, an Enduring Dynasty. (See No. 93 in our catalogue.)

SEND FOR OUR COMPLETE CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS (FREE).
THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO. LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, LONDON, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 397. Vol. VIII. AUGUST 10th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—V. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	497
EVIDENCES OF OUR ANCESTRY. By J. C. Tyler	499
THE CHURCH AND ITS RELATION TO CHRIST. By J. G...	500
ARCHÆOLOGY OF ANCIENT BRITAIN	502
THE DESTINY AND DUTY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE. Reprint of an Address by the Rev. G. B. Berry, B.A.	502
NOTES ON IRELAND.—IV. By Professor Edward Odlum, M.A., B.Sc.	504
THE FESTIVALS OF GOD IN THE AGES TO COME. By G. A. Robison	505
CHRIST, THE IMAGE AND GLORY OF GOD. By Henry Proctor, F.R.S.L.	507
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—VIII. By S. E. Steele	507
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.	509
CORRESPONDENCE	509
A PRAYER	509
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	510

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.—V.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

We have now looked at several phases of the "Coming" activities as set forth by our Lord.

I.—As to the resurrection of the dead in Christ and the translation of the living in Christ, set forth in the Epistles to the Thessalonians, there seems to be no time indication at all in either of these Epistles. There is, however, the statement that the resurrection and translation phase of the Coming must take its place in a sequence of events which should become historic in due time. See the second chapter of Ephesians.

The era of this Coming may be known. But the day and the hour is not to be known.

II.—The phases of the "Coming" activities which relate to the defence of Israel, and the end of war.

This is an international series of phases, commencing with the gathering of the Lord's hosts to "a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon," and ending when "His feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives." The convulsion of the earth, in response to His tread, marks the end not only of that particular war, but of all war in the earth.

III.—Phases which are confined to the domestic policy of the Lord. The reckoning with "that faithful and wise servant whom the Lord has made the ruler of His household." This we suggest is the House of David, appointed King over Israel; and all the services which are carried on in his name, in State and Church.

IV.—The ten virgins selected to welcome, and to furnish the illumination, at the return of the Bridegroom. Beyond question, the ten virgins are representative of the ten tribes of Israel.

V.—The reckoning with "His own," "His ten servants."

This also is purely domestic, relating as we have seen to the ten-tribed House of Israel.

Now the statement of the Lord takes on a wider scope, and we have presented to us the Lord sitting in plenary session, calling all nations before Him in judgment. It is the final scene of the present dispensation, after which all the redeemed, and those nations blessed of the Father who have sustained the ordeal of the Judgment-seat of Christ, shall go immediately into the Kingdom prepared for them from the foundation of the world. Prepared for them there; but forfeited and lost through sin, and now restored through the Redemption wrought out by our Lord and the Atonement offered by Him for the sins of the people of Israel and of the world.

Let us now turn to this most august statement by our Lord.

It will be noted that the intimate intercourse shown in the domestic phases between our Lord and His people gives place to a more formal and majestic style of utterance, and to a more formal mode of intercourse.

"When the Son of man shall come in His glory, and all the holy angels with Him, then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory:

And before Him shall be gathered all nations . . ."

There are certain clear marks here which we shall do well to consider.

The "Coming" is qualified by certain indications which cannot be mistaken. Had there been just the one event connected with the Second Coming of our Lord, the composition of the passage would have halted after the word "come." "When the Son of man shall come." But the qualifying statement is made, "When the Son of man shall come IN HIS GLORY." It is further qualified with the indication "and all the holy angels with Him." It is qualified still further by the time indication "THEN." "Then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory."

Digitized by Google

Still further it is qualified or identified by the procedure of our Lord. "Then shall He SIT UPON THE THRONE OF HIS GLORY."

When He comes to gather His forces to meet the assembly of the kings of the earth and of all the world for the battle of the great day of God Almighty, He comes as a thief; that is to say, with His presence hidden.

When He comes to reckon "with that good and faithful servant," He comes domestically, as the head of His house.

When He comes to the marriage supper attended by the virgins, He comes as the bridegroom.

When He comes to reckon with "His own," "His ten servants," He comes as "the lord of those servants."

When He comes in His glory, with all the holy angels with Him, He comes as THE KING, and in this passage before us He first uses that title in reference to Himself.

We are given to see Him attended with His brethren; "these My brethren" is a form of expression which indicates their presence. It is the presence of the saints. He is also attended with all the holy angels. He is seated upon the throne of His glory, in plenary session, to enter into judgment with the "all nations," the same "all nations" which He found assembled against Jerusalem to battle.

Inasmuch as the Scriptures clearly teach that the general resurrection is not yet, nor will be till the thousand years have been accomplished, that is to say, the thousand years of the reign of our Lord upon the throne of His father David, we are witnessing the gathering together of the then living generation of the "all nations."

They are not to be judged as Israel is judged, for they have not been under Israel law, and have not shared Israel responsibility. But they are to be judged by the quality of their life principles. Upon the life principle they are separated into two groups, one group called "sheep," one group called "goats." These seem to be those "sheep of another fold" which also the Lord should bring according to His statement.

Those who have been energized by the principle of construction and service, who have fed the hungry, clothed the naked, ministered to the sick, and visited those in prison, constitute the sheep and are blessed of God.

Those nations, or those of the nations, who were predatory, enriching themselves at the expense of others, carelessly going their way regardless of human suffering and making no attempt to relieve it, are the goats. The latter are evil-smelling cumberers of the earth, who have failed to relieve pain and suffering; who have failed to set the prisoners free, and who are called "accursed."

To these the mandate goes forth, "DEPART FROM ME, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."

But to those who are "sheep," who have fed the hungry, clothed the naked, and bid the prisoners go free, or who have ministered to them in their need, the word is spoken, "Come ye blessed of My Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

"And these shall go away ... but the righteous into life eternal."

This is the final scene of the present dispensation. It is the last act of the great six millennial days of labour. Now the Lord leads on into the Sabbath rest of the seventh millennial glory, and the "Coming" is from this time a finished and an established fact.

Having regard to all that has gone before it seems:—

1. That the resurrection and translation of the dead and living IN CHRIST is an instantaneous event. Where it comes into the sequence of things does not certainly appear, as far as we can see. It may be at the beginning of these events. It may be midway among these events. It may be at the last moment of these events. It should be a time to anticipate with lively hope and expectation.

Regarding the national and international sequence of which we have written, it seems that time will be occupied, especially as some of the things which are stated to mark the progress are earthly and human and cannot be unduly speeded up. We shall mark the progress of the international situation with interest, as we have been doing for many years past. But marking the progress of the international situation, we are assured that we have reached the point indicated by our Lord when He said, "When ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the door."

The "dispensation of the fulness of times" is upon us now, and He is drawing all things together into the one great channel of prophecy which is being rapidly translated into history as the days go swiftly by.

We are in the great movement of the end. Of that we may be assured.

But we must remember that the actual millennial day still stretches some way before us. There are differences of opinion as to the exact year in which A.D. 1929 finds us. If the number of the year is the real date of the year, then there would remain seventy-one years more before the present millennial day—1,000 years—will end, or the millennium begin. However that may be, there is still time for a generation to be born and to play its part before the seventh millennium of Adamic history begins. Mark, we do not say human history. We leave that question untouched. It may be that the national and international sequence of which we have spoken will fill out the remainder of this century, the last century of the sixth millennium, through which we are now passing.

It is not our purpose to dogmatize here. It is our intention to make suggestions, and, with these in mind, to recommend our readers to take the Bible in hand and to read with these in view the things "which are noted in the Scriptures of truth."

What a wonderful thing it is to know the fact that the Lord is coming again, to reign on this earth.

What a wonderful thing that we can take the fourteen points indicated by St. John in his first Epistle and by them assure ourselves that we have a name and a place in the Book of Life, and therefore in the first resurrection.

What a wonderful thing to recognize that before entering into the eternal glories of Heaven, we shall have a thousand years of temporal glory on the regenerated earth, under the personal le of Jesus Christ our Lord, and under the direct tuition the Patriarchs, Prophets and Apostles.

Digitized by Google

It takes a lifetime here for us to qualify through Divine ace for a place in the millennial glory. It will take a ousand years of that glory to prepare us for entrance into at eternal state in which it will be our privilege to look upon e unveiled face of God.

There are good times for us, and for the world, just ahead, d the daydawn already begins to appear.

Let us hear the reiterated affirmation of our Lord :—

"AND, BEHOLD, I come quickly ; and My reward is with e, to give every man according as his work shall be."

"He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come ickly. Amen.

"Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

"The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. nen."—Rev. xxii, 12 and 20, 21.

EVIDENCES OF OUR ANCESTRY.

By J. C. TYLER.

HEN we desire additional evidence of the great trek of e Lost Tribes from the neighbourhood of the Euxine to e Baltic regions, we usually appeal to the works of students d writers who are interested in this subject. But to many will seem even more convincing to look for the proofs among e writings of those who have studied the connection between e Scandinavians and the earlier dwellers by the Black Sea, d who yet have no suspicion of the purposes of the Almighty which this great trek across the continent of Europe has its ice.

Paul Du Chaillu in his work (1889), entitled "The Viking e," had evidently no thought in his mind, nor any knowledge, our Israelitish origin, nor of the future portrayed by the pired prophets. He echoed the philosophy of the un-tiated : "As ages roll on, England, the mother of nations, nnot escape the fate that awaits all ; for, on the scroll of ne, this everlasting truth is written—birth, growth, maturity, cay ; . . . . Where is or where has been the nation that can could exclaim, 'This saying does not apply to me !'"

Du Chaillu was a celebrated traveller and writer, who urished between the years 1835 and 1903. He describes s method of putting together the pages of these volumes : By reading carefully every Saga—and there are hundreds them—in the original documents, a work of years, sisted by many friends."

This is his conclusion : "A careful perusal of the Eddas and agas will enable us, with the help of Greek and Latin writers, make out a fairly continuous history which throws consider-ble light on the progenitors of the English-speaking people, eir migrations northward from their old home on the shores the Black Sea, and the settlement of Scandinavia, of England d other countries."

In another place he says : "From the frequency with which migration northwards is mentioned (in the Norse literature) is legitimate to infer that the predecessors of the Norsemen ne from the south or south-east of Europe, probably, to judge from literature and archæology combined, from the shores of the Black Sea."

Among the selected quotations from his work are the following : "The men of the North, whose might the power of Rome could not destroy, were not savages or barbarians. They possessed a degree of civilization difficult to realize but for the antiquities and the Eddas and Sagas.

A study of the ancient literature and abundant archæology of the North gives a true picture of the character and life of the Norse ancestors of the English-speaking peoples.

We learn about their dress, ornaments, implements and weapons ; their dwellings and convivial halls, with their primitive, or magnificent, furniture and their personal appearance. The child in his education, the young man in his practice of arms, the maiden in her domestic duties and embroidery, the adult in his warlike expeditions, their athletic games preparatory to the stern realities of life, where honour or renown were won on the battlefield. The revel and drunken bout.

That the Norsemen had carriages or chariots as well as horses is proved by the numerous skeletons in graves or bogs. Their dress and the splendour of the riding equipment for war, the richness of the ornamentation of their weapons, are often carefully described.

We are the more astonished as we peruse the Eddas and Sagas, which give the history of the North, and examine the antiquities found in the country, for we hear hardly anything about the customs of the people from the Roman writers, and our ideas regarding them have been thoroughly vitiated by the earlier monkish writings, or by the historians who have taken these records as a trustworthy authority.

The museums in the Scandinavian kingdoms show a most wonderful collection of antiquities, of weapons, of costly objects, superb ring coats-of-mail, damascened swords, and other weapons, articles of clothing with graceful patterns interwoven with threads of gold and silver. Vessels of silver and gold testify to the taste and luxury of those times. The knowledge of the art of writing and of gilding is clearly demonstrated.

The knowledge of rune writing found with these Northern relics, being of great antiquity, shows the possibility of the theory that it was brought to the North by people who had migrated from the colonies on the shores of the Black Sea."

Elsewhere we read : "It is in the basin of the Baltic and in the Norselands that we see incontestable proof as to who were the sea-faring people, whom the Romans called Suenes and then Saxons, as shown by the tens of thousands of graves of that period still existing of the same type as those of a similar period in England. In these graves were found many Roman coins and Greek objects, showing that these sea-faring people had intercourse with Rome, Greece and the Mediterranean."

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

494284 A

Digitized by Google

THE CHURCH AND ITS RELATION TO CHRIST.

By J. G.

"Ye are Christ's." (1 Cor. iii, 23.)

IN this chapter the Apostle deals with the faction hinted at in the first. There he tells them that it had come to his knowledge through the household of Chloe that there were serious divisions in the Church. It was perhaps natural that the individual disciple should be specially attached to the servant of God under whose ministry he was led into the light and knowledge of Jesus Christ. But when such attachment, as it often does, leads to an obscuring of Jesus Christ, and a separating into various little factions those who ought to acknowledge only one Master, then such attachment becomes a positive snare. I do not suppose that this naming of Paul, and Apollos, and Cephas, and even Christ, as the instruments in the hands of God's Spirit to their individual conversion meant anything more at the first than this special attachment at once so natural and so commendable. But it became the innocent cause afterwards of much difference, and the Church became, in consequence, divided. This was indeed a serious menace to its life and usefulness. Such distinctions and rivalries were never sanctioned by those whose names were thus used. Such divisions should not exist. Christ is not divided, nor could any of those named be compared with Him. Truly Paul may plant. To him might be given the glorious privilege of laying the foundation. Apollos may water, he may nurture and cultivate. It may be his joy to build upon the foundation Paul has laid down. But the work is one and its virtue rests in Him who blesseth it. Men are but God's instruments for the accomplishment of His work. He selects this man for this bit of the work, and another man for another bit. To this man He saith, "Put in the foundations, do the work which is out of sight." To another comes His message, "Build the walls, raise the structure, do the work that is seen." But it is all one work, and men God's instruments. "Ye," the Church, "are God's workmanship, ye are God's building." "God giveth the increase." "Ye are Christ's." Not Paul's, nor yet belonging to anyone else, but Christ's. "And Christ is God's."

"YE ARE CHRIST'S."

The supremacy of Christ alike over the Church as over the individual is a thoroughly Pauline doctrine. It is the universal doctrine of Christendom. However widely we may differ in other respects, in other doctrines I mean, there is no difference here. Jesus Christ is the head of the Holy Catholic Church. "Ye are the body of Christ," so writes Paul in the twelfth chapter, "and members in particular."

The relationship of the Corinthian Church to Christ is the same as the body to the head. It is Christ's property, and it is property over which He has sole control. It matters not who may have been the founder of it, or who the officers set over it to guard its privileges and enforce its laws. If it is a Church founded in the Name of Christ, if the privileges it enjoys be the privileges of His kingdom, and the laws it enforces the laws of His kingdom, then the Church must be His, and in Him all things must belong to the Church.

This is clearly the reasoning of the Apostle in this chapter, and thus we notice :—

1. The Divine origin of the Church ;
2. The Divine authority of the Church ; and
3. As arising out of both, the future glory of the Church.

1. THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE CHURCH.

"Ye are Christ's," because ye are begotten of Christ; or to be more correct, begotten of God through Christ. As St. Peter hath it, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to His abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." Christ is our origin, He is the explanation of our existence. The Church lives because Christ lives. He called it into being. That word of His spoken to His disciples goes back unto the beginning of things, indicates source, spring, origin. "I am the true vine, and My Father is the husbandman, every branch in Me . . ." Go back upon Pentecost and see there how the first Church came into being. But was that the first Church? Can anyone say when the first Church was created? Christ speaks of His Church prior to this. For our present purpose, however, that great epoch in the life of the world, Pentecost, will furnish us with all we need. That Spirit-fire came down upon the disciples as they prayed, and filled them all as it rested upon each, and they went forth to preach the Gospel. But remember that that great spiritual descent was in the fulfilment of Christ's promise to them. He charged them, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." "Behold I send the promise of My Father upon you." By the power of that Spirit whom Jesus sent, these disciples went forth to preach Jesus. Three thousand souls believed the Jesus that Peter and the rest of the disciples preached. There was the Church founded, not upon any formulated belief, or creed, or ritual, but upon a common faith in one Saviour, Christ. If the Church existed at any given time without these things, then, though they may be useful, they are not essential, but Christ is essential. Just as clear and just as simple was the origin of every one of the Churches of the apostolic age. Paul is especially careful, in founding the Churches of his great ministry, to make the origin perfectly clear.

The early Church Fathers, as I know them, without a single exception, trace the origin of the Churches of their day back to Jesus Christ, though some do so through a human and visible authority which stands to the Church in the place which Christ would have occupied had He remained in the world, as His Vicar, a doctrine which we believe to subvert the purity and simplicity of the Church. Jerome, one of the most learned expositors of the Latin Church, in commenting on the sixteenth of Matthew, says, "As Christ gave light to the apostles so that they were called after Him the light of the world, and as they received other designations from the Lord, so Simon, because he believed on the rock, Christ received the name Peter, and in accordance with the figure of the rock, it is justly said of him, 'I will build My Church upon thee.'" Jerome at the most can only be cited as a witness for the primacy of honour and not for the supremacy of juris-ction of the Roman Bishopric. We can find nothing stronger his writings than this. "Away with the ambition of the oman head; I speak with the successor of the fisherman d disciple of the Cross. Following no other head than Christ, am joined in the communion of faith with thy holiness, that with the chair of Peter. On that rock I know the Church be built." The great St. Augustine, than whom the Latin nurch had no greater theological authority, in his later ars interprets the passage, "on this rock," to refer to Jesus rist. He says, "Christ was the rock upon which also Peter mself was built; for other foundation can no man lay than at is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Thus we have the authority apostles and fathers, bishops and deacons. All are agreed at the Church has its direct as well as its Divine origin from sus Christ.

Digitized by Google

If this be true, then Christ is removed above all human mparisons. This is the real thought at the back of Paul's ind here. The fatal mistake which these Corinthian Chris- ns had been making was to class Paul, and Apollos, and phas with Christ. It is like classifying the stars with the n; or placing the moon, with its borrowed light and glory, an equality with that king of light from which its own light derived. There can be no classification of the head with e other members of the body. There can be, and is, a lationship very clearly defined, but no classification. There always an element of danger, even though we know that it used in a restricted meaning, in talking about the Christian sciple as a saviour like His Master. In certain quarters we e exhorted to be like Christ, saviours of our people. Surely is only in a very limited sense that we can become like Christ, viours. So limited is it, to my mind, that the comparison terly fails. Christ works through us, but Christ is not us. Christ is a Saviour in a way we never can be. Then, is it ot popular to-day, in our desire to show Christ completely ie with us, to speak of Him in such terms as to make Him one of the prophets? The old opinion is being re-stated, ith none of that pardon of ignorance which belonged unto ose who first expressed it, ". . . or one of the prophets." All things are yours." But Christ is not included in the l things. In this sense, Christ is not yours. Paul is; pollos is; Cephas is. They are yours in the sense in which ie world is yours, and life yours, and even death yours. But ot Christ. The possession is on His side. "Ye," with ie all things ye possess, "are Christ's," for He called you ito being, gave you birth, and apart from Him ye are not nor an ye ever be.

2. THE DIVINE AUTHORITY OF THE CHURCH.

The Divine authority of Christ is the Divine authority of he Church, and that authority is not one whit enhanced by visible head standing to the Church in the stead of Christ, or, to be more correct, as Christ's Vicar, or representative upon earth. Look at the Church at Corinth. There was no visible head in whom was vested infallibility. Paul was no more than a spiritual adviser, though he was, under God, he founder of the Church. The Church exercised its pri- ileges and enforced its laws even apart from Paul or any other apostle. And this authority the Church possesses to-day. he carries it with her into every department of Christian work and service. The authority of Christ is the authority of the Church. Think of that. There was a power went forth from the Saviour of men. "Never man spoke like this man," said they. "This man speaketh with authority and not as the scribes." That authority was at least the authority of a holy life and a sinless character. The purity of Jesus Christ was the power of Jesus Christ. "The pure in heart," said He, "shall see God." How well He knew the truth of that! The man who sees God is, he must be, a man of authority. And what is true of Jesus Christ in this respect is true of His Church. Her purity is her authority. It is the Church's inward life which tells. It is her conformity to the image of Christ which is her power and strength. It is a pure walk and a holy conversation in the Church which will be her authority over the hearts and souls of men. Learn this truth from the witness of the world to the Church of the Apostles. "They took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus and had learnt of Him." The thing they saw, it was their authority, was the likeness of Jesus. "Christians," the world called them in Antioch. "Christ-men." And though it was given first, it may be, in derision, yet it was Christ the people saw in His Church.

For the unity of Christendom we pray, but we care nothing for uniformity. We contend for a closer union of the Church with Christ, not with the Pope. He is to us anti-Christ. We pray not for the kingdom of Rome but for the kingdom of God, and we know that that is a true Church whose life is hid with Christ in God.

The Church that ever walketh
Close by the Saviour's side,
That evermore rejoiceth
In Jesus crucified;
That Church shall bless the people,
Her power shall never wane,
But on shall go from age to age,
Eternally the same.

It is clear then that the more Christlike a Church becomes the greater will be its influence, and the deeper will be its authority.

This then is our exhortation to the Church. Study to be like Christ. Exhibit towards one another the sympathy, long-suffering charity and love of Christ. Remember His law and "bear ye one another's burdens."

We shall then know and possess His power, He who drew men and women to His feet. Shall we not show by the little acts of life that we are Christ's? "All things are yours; ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's."

Nothing is more disastrous to a Church than a carnal spirit. One member in this particular maketh the whole body sick. "Ye are Christ's, seek therefore the things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God." This only is the Church's authority and power.

3. THE FUTURE GLORY OF THE CHURCH.

And here again, as in the origin and power of the Church, so the glory of the Church centres in Jesus Christ. The future glory of that Church of which Christ is the living head is beyond our mortal tongue to describe. "Eye hath not seen," says Paul in the second chapter, "nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that fear Him."

Digitized by Google

Here she has many privileges, and is not without beauty and glory, but she has also many dishonours. Like her Master she has her tribulation and her sorrow, the greatest that she is rejected by those whom she would help and bless. But the day will come when His glory shall be her glory, full and complete. Her purity shall then shine, as the sun in the firmament, for ever. Then shall be gathered unto that Church triumphant all those, from every nation, who have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Their mark shall be the mark of no sect of the Church militant, but the mark of the Lamb. That mark shall speak of a life of love and of self-sacrifice. It shall speak of loyalty to Jesus Christ, and to the truth of His salvation. And we shall find many there who were never named amongst the Church down here, though they often gave the cup of cold water in His Name. Yes, and many heretics and schismatics, according to the standards and judgments of some in the Church down here, will be numbered with the great Catholic Church up yonder, for they did acts of kindness and deeds of charity in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ while passing through this vale of tears. The Church will never receive her full glory in this world. Here she receives her cross, yonder she will possess her crown. And I would remind her, as every individual Christian, "No Cross, no Crown." Here she shall have travail and pain, yonder deliverance and joy. What joy when she shall behold the King, the Bridegroom, in His beauty. "All things are yours; ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's."

ARCHÆOLOGY OF ANCIENT BRITAIN.

IN an interesting article in the "Morning Post" of June 26th, Dr. R. E. M. Wheeler (Keeper of the London Museum) calls attention to the exploration work of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Keiller, on a site near Avebury, "where the earliest known agriculturists in these islands dwelt some 4,000 years ago," and to other archæological research in various parts of Great Britain, which, it is hoped, will "throw new light on many periods of British history and prehistory."

"For the most part," says Dr. Wheeler, "British field-archæologists are at present devoting too little attention to our pre-Roman antiquities, though there are honourable exceptions. The Somersetshire Archæological Society will continue its explorations of the late prehistoric lake village at Meare, near Glastonbury." . . . . . "The Roman remains of the country will as usual receive more than their fair share of attention, but several of these sites which are being, or will shortly be subjected to excavation, are of outstanding interest."

Allusion is made to exploration being carried out—thanks to the enlightened action of the municipal authorities of Newcastle and of Wallsend—of the Roman fort at Wallsend, which formed the eastern limit of Hadrian's Wall and to the "ambitious excavation at present in progress of the Roman town of Caistor-by-Norwich . . . . which was the Romanized capital of the tribe which Boadicea led to victory and disaster in A.D. 61. This work is in the hands of Mr. Donald Atkinson." . . . . "It is to be regretted that this programme of impending work cannot include the continuation of the excavations at Colchester, where so much that would add to our knowledge of the early history of our country awaits discovery."

THE DESTINY AND DUTY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

(Reprint of an Address by the Rev. G. B. Berry, B.A.)

THE destiny and duty of the British Empire is naturally a subject of supreme interest to us, and especially at this crisis of her history. It would indeed have been remarkable if the Bible, which gives us the origin and history of the Nations, Kingdoms, Cities and Empires which have played a conspicuous part in the story of the human race, should have omitted the greatest of them all. I hope to show you that the story of Great Britain and her influence upon the Nations of the earth fills a very large space indeed in the "sure Word of Prophecy." Her Royal House descends from King David (2 Samuel vii. 12 to 16, 29, and Jer. xxxiii, 20, 21). The Coronation of her monarchs follows closely, therefore, the ritual used in the anointing of the Kings of Judah, as described (see 2 Kings xi. 11-17; 2 Chron. xxiii, 2-16) in the case of the Boy King Joash, with the same historic shout of "God Save the King," which still greets our own anointed Rulers in the National Abbey of Westminster. The Coronation Stone, on which the anointed monarch sits, is the very "pillar" by which the young King Joash stood at his Coronation. Dean Stanley, in his Memorials of Westminster Abbey, gives ample details of the wanderings of this "Stone of Destiny," brought by the prophet Jeremiah, with the daughters of Zedekiah, the last King of Judah, down to Egypt, whither he was forcibly taken (Jeremiah xliii, 6-7). From thence they went to Spain and to Ireland, where "Ollam Fodhla" the Prophet, married Tea Tephi, the daughter of Zedekiah, to the Danite Heremon or Overlord of Ireland, and so "builded" once more (Jeremiah i, 10) the House of David, and "planted" again the Commonwealth of Israel (the "Everlasting Nation"). He promulgated the Law of Moses, and set up the Schools of the Prophets upon the sacred hill of Tara (a pure Hebrew word used for the Law of God in the Pentateuch). Dan, the pioneer of Israel's wanderings in Europe, Western Asia and North Africa, was already settled in Ulster, South Wales, and the South-west peninsula of England (each known to the Romans as "Danmonia")—trading by the "ships of Tarshish" in the markets of Tyre (Ezek. xxviii, 12, 19) with the "silver, iron, tin and lead" which they dug out of the mines of Somerset, Devon, Cornwall and South Wales. During all the centuries since Jeremiah's Divine mission, the Twelve Tribes of Israel have been migrating to the British Isles (the "appointed place" of 2 Samuel vii, 10), under the varied names of Britons, Angles, Saxons, Danes, Normans, Flemings, Burgundians, and others. The Dutch, Huguenot, and other Protestant refugees from Papal persecution, all belong to the House of Israel, so that to-day these Isles contain an epitome of both the Houses of Israel and Judah, long divided, but now once more united in Great Britain and her Empire, according to the Vision of Ezekiel in his well-known 37th chapter (see specially vv. 16 to 21).

Digitized by Google

Israel is an "everlasting nation" (Jer. xxxi, 36), and the "Kingdom of God" is still entrusted to their tribes, for the kingdom which had belonged to Ephraim in the days of Joshua and the Judges, and then passed to Benjamin (under Saul), and later to Judah (under David), reverted next to Ephraim, that "fruitful" tribe, as their very name implies—a "nation bringing forth the fruits" of the Kingdom of God (Matt. xxi, 43). Where was the nation of whom our Lord was thinking, and in whose history His gracious words have been fulfilled? Here in these islands in Britain—the land of "Britham" (Isa. xlii, 6; xlix, 8)—the "Covenant People," dwelling in their "appointed place" (2 Sam. vii, 10). What a marvellous story is the narrative of their migrations, to be traced by ancient record, map and coin, and by the early chronicles of our Welsh, Irish and English ancestors. Herodotus, the father of history, Sharon Turner in his "History of the Anglo-Saxons," Kingsley in his "The Roman and the Teuton," and many other sober and reliable historians, leave no shadow of doubt of our illustrious lineage as the seed of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and more particularly as the living representatives of the great House of Ephraim, God's "First-born." As God led our fathers through the wilderness of Sinai for forty years, so He led their children through the barren steppes of Southern Russia, and the forests of Central Europe and Scandinavia, to these sacred and inviolate shores. Their van (The Briton) had already arrived, and their rearguard (Dane, Norman, Fleming, etc.) was soon to follow. The Gospel of Jesus Christ reached Britain within a generation after the rejection by Judah of their Messiah. By these channels we can trace the coming of the Gospel in the first century of the Christian era to Britain. First, Caractacus, king of the Silures in South Wales, and Overlord of the British tribes, after courageous conflict with the Roman legions, is (in A.D. 43) brought with his children (Linus and Claudia) and the 'blessed Bran" to the Emperor Claudius at Imperial Rome, who, struck by their noble bearing, dismisses them soon to their woodland homes. But at Rome they have come into contact with Christians—with Pudens (2 Tim. iv, 21), a Roman officer, and with the "household of Aristobulus" (Rom. xvi, 10), and they carry back the Gospel to Britain. BEFORE THIS, Joseph of Arimathea, the Holy Family, and a company of "Saints" from Jerusalem and Judea, brought the message of the Cross to Glastonbury, in Somerset, and built of mud and wattles, in that marshy land, the earliest Christian Church in these islands. Aristobulus (i.e., Eubulus) does a similar work in Dorset, in and about the Roman camp at Dorchester. And so the sacred fire in these islands was kindled, to be the beacon light of the World, never to go out again; whilst to Britain belongs the high honour of being the first nation to declare for Christ and His Cross and Gospel—a claim avouched by our own Venerable Bede, supported by the Roman writer Baronius, and confirmed by General Councils of undivided Christendom in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, at Pisa, Constance, Siena and Basle. To make the whole story more significant of the workings and ways of Almighty God, at the very moment when the light of Judah goes out in obscure darkness, Jerusalem and her Temple being burned with fire by the Roman soldiery in A.D. 70, the prepared nation in its "appointed place" is ready, illuminated by the Gospel of Christ, to take up the witness and receive the "Kingdom of God," then taken from the Jewish "nation" (see John xi, 50–52) and given to us—the great Stone Kingdom to which our Lord refers, as breaking all who fall upon it with hostile intent, and grinding to powder those enemies who meet the tremendous shock of her irresistible onset (Matt. xxi, 42–44). How often has this land and people been the corner-stone of the edifice of the political alliances by which European liberties have been maintained! In the result, Great Britain will stand forth "chief of the nations" and the corner-stone of the Millennial Kingdom of Jesus Christ—the "Righteous Nation which keepeth the truth" (Isa. xxvi, 2), famous in all ages and in all lands for their conspicuous candour and love of honesty and truth—God's "battle-axe" (Jer. li, 20). Finally, let me briefly trace those main features of our National life and character which justify our Saviour's description of us, as a "nation bringing forth the fruits" of His Kingdom. The "First-fruits" of the Kingdom is surely seen in our proclamation of the "Gospel of the Kingdom" with a devoted enthusiasm. All to whom the blessed light of the Gospel comes; who receive the vision of God, reconciled in Christ, into their inmost souls; who have tasted the sweetness of Pardon and Peace through the Blood of the Lamb, and so have "passed from darkness to light, and from death into life," who burn to tell out the glad tidings to others. Even so Britain, first in the reception of the Gospel, has ever been foremost in its propagation. Time fails to enumerate the evangelical labours of the swarms of missionaries from Iona and other hives of the pure religion of Jesus Christ. And so on to the recent "Century of Missions," Britons have led the van of a World-wide evangel, and are leading it to-day in Africa, India, Japan, Persia, South America, and the innumerable islands of the oceans, which "Britannia rules" "by the grace of God" for the welfare of all the Nations.

Then as to the other fruits of the Kingdom, freedom, charity, Sabbath observance, love of the Bible as the pure Word of God, and entire devotion to the Name of Jesus, which sanctifies evangelical zeal and the preaching of the pure Gospel, and makes its appeal to the hearts of men so persuasive and telling—that is the record of the "land we love." Ordered Freedom is one of the surest signs that the true Gospel of Christ has found entrance into the heart, and controls the whole life. Freedom was one of the earliest results of the Gospel preached to Israel in Egypt. Freedom came to birth when a nation of liberated slaves breathed first the free air of the Wilderness. Freedom has always been part of the heritage of Israel's tribes—freedom from the cruel yoke of false religions, and of the horrid tyrannies which are buttressed by them. Free men sought these shores and made our land the home of true Liberty. The liberties we enjoy to-day have "slowly broadened down from precedent to precedent," since our free-born forefathers elected in free assembly their war lords and chiefs, to lead their hosts in battle and govern them in time of peace. The whole world has learned the meaning of true freedom (liberty not licence) from our free-born race, and nations have borrowed their Constitutions from the Mother of Parliaments at Westminster.

Digitized by Google

"The nations not so blest as thee
Shall, in their turn, to tyrants fall,
Whilst thou dost flourish, great and free,
The pride and envy of them all."

Charity, again, is one of the choicest fruits of the Kingdom of God, Who is Love. The law of Love was first proclaimed at Sinai, and its principles inspire the details of the Mosaic legislation, whilst the Sermon on the Mount applies it to the individual heart and conscience. Charity has ever flourished in this realm, both in Arthur's day and under good King Alfred, whilst the wise Elizabeth created the great Poor Law system. This noble charity is enshrined in the Universities, Colleges, Schools, Hospitals, Homes, and other great Endowments which distinguish our civilization from that of Rome and Babylon. How quick and generous is the response which the heart of England ever makes to the constant appeals for the sufferers, both at home and abroad, from any sudden or great calamity. Witness the many Mansion House Funds, and the long columns of our leading newspapers filled with Red Cross lists. What nation upon earth has such a record for overflowing and unstinted charity? What country under Heaven is there but has experienced the kindly and ready help, in their time of need, of English hearts and English hands? Consider those three great links which bind the House of Israel into a living unity. First, the observance of the sacred DAY OF REST—guarded both by Custom and by Law—that English Sunday, the bugbear of the infidel; that holy Sabbath, fragrant with blessed memories, and fraught with precious foretaste of the Saint's Everlasting Rest, which is the very sign of the Covenant between God and His people (Ezek. xx, 12). Second, the BIBLE, containing those "lively oracles" entrusted to the custody of Israel, the "righteous nation which keepeth the truth," and which, from the days of Bede and Wyclif to the rise of the British and Foreign Bible Society, Great Britain has loved and reverenced, and translated and circulated through all lands in all languages, as the "secret of her own greatness." Thirdly, the NAME OF JESUS, "exalted over every other name," solitary and supreme, as at Pentecost by the Apostles of Israel, so through the eighteen centuries of British Christianity, which was first brought by Apostolic messengers from the land given to our fathers for their eternal inheritance. These three great links, so simple and so strong, hold all British Christians of every name and sect together, as the "Church of the First-born," and form the living bonds of our wide-spread Empire. Our children have taken with them, as their Palladium, that reverence and love for the Day, the Book and the Man, which they first learned in the happy homes of their great Motherland. Thus do we find the most ample proof that the race to which we are so proud to belong is indeed that "Nation bringing forth the fruits of the Kingdom of God," to which our Lord points in His royal edict. Our DUTY follows hard upon our Destiny. Let us see to it, to the utmost extent of the personal influence of each one of us, that these blessed fruits continue to be brought forth by the Nation to which we belong. Let us beware of any innovation in our Constitutional safeguards which would imperil the Protestant Succession of the Crown, and the National recognition of the supreme sovereignty of the triune Jehovah over this "so great people," which is embodied both in Church and State, and invoked in the sessions of Parliament and the procedure of the Courts of Justice. As we fiercely spring to repel a hostile invader of our shores, so let us not suffer a finger to be lifted, or a single tongue to wag, against the sacred Sabbath, the Holy Word of God, and the Name of Jesus Christ, without our immediate and stern protest. Let us not put our trust in Dreadnoughts, but in the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel. Let not any overweening pride betray us into a false and careless repose. Dark days may be before us. The supreme crisis of our Race and of our Religion may be at hand; the dark portents increase ever in number and solemnity. "The Judge standeth before the Door" (Jas. v, 9; Rev. iii, 20). The day of "Jacob's trouble" is near. Let us then ever humbly pray:

"God of our fathers, known of old,
Lord of our far-flung battle line,
Beneath Whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine,
Lord God of Hosts be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget."

NOTES ON IRELAND.—IV.

BY PROFESSOR EDWARD ODLUM, M.A., B.Sc.

WE read of the famous Cuchullin and Conall Cearnach, Knights of the Red Branches, and wonder if there is any connection with the Red-Hand of Zarah, the elder of the twin sons of Judah. Red Branch! Red Gauntlet! Red Hand! Suggestive!

The Irish, in their good times, kept a standing army, and also a "considerable naval force whereby, from time to time, they poured troops into Britain and Gaul, which countries they long kept under contribution."

While the Danes were so powerful during the 9th, 10th and 11th centuries, as to invade various countries at the same time, the Irish, by means of their armies and navies, were able successfully to wage war for 200 years with those Danish sea pirates. Another case of brother against brother, for Denmark was a country akin to Ireland. Their main populations were of the Israel race.

O'Halloran makes this statement concerning the early relations existing between Ireland, Egypt and Greece:—"The evidences that our ancestors had a considerable naval force are full and clear. Our ancient annals assure us that even in Egypt they were so powerful and so expert in maritime affairs as to be able to seize on the fleet of Pharaoh."

"From Egypt they invaded Greece; and from thence they sailed to Spain, and finally to Ireland in large ships."

"We have shown and proved, beyond a reasonable doubt, the close intercourse the Asiatics had with the Irish, which surely must have been kept up with ships."

In my judgment the Irish, in early days, were as closely associated with the Mediterranean countries and sea ports as was the case last century between Britain and South America.

Were it not for our modern printing press, we would find ourselves with very limited knowledge of Great Britain's activities in South America last century.

Digitized by Google

An item of importance showing the early connection of the Hebrews with Ireland is the following:—" In the life of St. Patrick, in three parts, we are told that his first landing in Ireland was at a castle called Rath Inbir, near the sea, which seems to be, by its situation, the very one raised by Amergin himself on the first landing of the Milesians."

This reaches far. When Ith was wounded on the shore of Ireland and died, his people of the west of Spain, from Tarshish, set out in thirty ships to conquer Ireland. In these ships were the above-named Amergin and several others, two of whom were Heber the Brown and Heber the Fair. These two Israelites were the Fair Hebrew and the Brown, or dark-skinned Hebrew. This is an important sidelight on the Israel origin of the people of Tarshish, as well as of the Milesians of the Ionian Federation, chief city Miletus.

It is said that St. Patrick built, or caused to be built, over 60 churches in Ireland. To build these great churches it was necessary to use very important and costly equipment. We read that in 1137, the Archbishop of Ardmach rebuilt the destroyed church of Mayo, which had been covered with lead. To do so, he constructed a kiln of such enormous proportions as to extend 60 feet in diameter.

In my travels I have seen hundreds of kilns for burning brick and pottery, but am sure I never saw one with a diameter of 60 feet. Perhaps there are some to be found in use in these modern days.

This is stressed to draw the reader's attention to the Masonic operations on a great scale during centuries long since gone.

When we cast our mental eye over Babylon, Nineveh, Susa, Jerusalem, Thebes, Memphis, Luxor, Athens, Rome, Ireland, and other lands, we wonder at the marvellous constructive ability of the ancient Masonic builders as seen in their great productions.

THE FESTIVALS OF GOD IN THE AGES TO COME.

By G. A. Robison.

Most Christians see clearly from the Word of God that at least one age lies just ahead of this (the Christian Dispensation), namely, the Millennium. Others see dimly that the Scriptures hint at further periods before the eternal state is brought in, since they see that the Millennium closes with a great rebellion, and that it is stated in 1 Cor. xv, 24, 25, that "He must reign till He has put all enemies under His feet; and the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." "Death is swallowed up in Victory"! (v. 54), which is not the case at the close of the Millennial reign. Other students notice that the Revised Version has put in the margin an alternative reading which definitely teaches that there are ages yet to come, by rendering such expressions of the A.V. as "world," "worlds," "for ever and ever," etc., by "the age," 1 Cor. ii, 6; "the ages," 1 Cor. ii, 7; "the age of the age," Heb. i, 8; "the age of the ages," Eph. iii, 21; and "the ages of the ages," Gal. i, 5.

While students of Scripture notice these alternative readings, they do not often understand what they are meant to convey; so that, what the Holy Spirit would teach us through His choice of these expressions, is lost to the reader. The Greek word "aion" = age, which means a terminable section of time which has both a beginning and an end, cannot be made to mean eternity.

Unfortunately for those who do not read Greek, its meaning is hidden under eight different words employed in the A.V. translation. It occurs 124 times in the New Testament, and is translated "world" 35 times, "eternal" 2, "course" 1, "end" 1, "ever" 30 (with negative), "never" 7, "evermore" 3, "ever and ever" 21, "age" 4. Yet it is the same Greek word, "aion," all through! In Eph. ii, 7, and Col. i, 26, it has been used correctly to denote future ages to come, and past ages that have gone. The revisers have in most cases put the correct word in the margin and sometimes into the text, and thereby entirely changed the import of the message. Take Eph. iii, 9, as a sample: "which from the beginning of the world," A.V., reads now in the text of the R.V., "which from all ages"; also note Eph. iii, 11, where the A.V., "according to His eternal purpose," reads "the purpose of the ages" in the margin of the R.V. "By whom He made the world" Heb. i, 2, becomes "By whom He made the ages"—changing the meaning from material globes to periods of time.

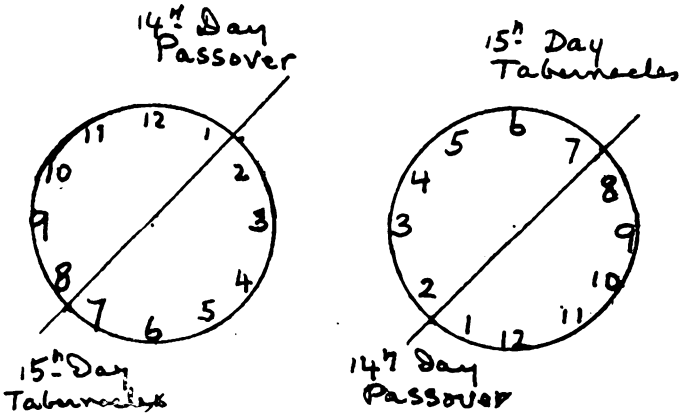
What, then, do these ages to come mean to us? Why does the Holy Spirit employ such expressions as—"the age of the age," "the age of the ages," and "the ages of the ages"?

In His recorded utterances our Lord spoke only of the age to come—the Millennium—His personal reign on earth which is limited to one thousand years, according to Rev. xx, where the time is expressly so stated six separate times.

But His Apostles, John, Peter, Jude and Paul, are all inspired to write of these further periods beyond that age, in these mysterious phrases.

Have we any key that will reveal the character and possible duration of these "ages to come"?

The Hebrew Calendar supplies us with a list of Festivals that were to be observed, and there are also several units of measure in the Scriptures which God employs to measure time. With these two revelations we may approach the subject and see what we may learn.



On the fourth Creation day God set the sun and the moon "for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and years." (Gen. i, 14.) This was evidently their major work, for it is added after this, "and let them be for lights in the firmament of heaven to give light upon the earth" as their secondary work. The words "days and years" being plural, days and years of differing lengths are revealed. We are so accustomed to the day of twenty-four hours that we overlook the fact that "a day with the Lord is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day." (2 Pet. iii, 8.) Thus we have in this statement a second time length of what a "day" may mean. We also remember that besides the ordinary year of 365 twenty-four hour days, God appointed a year of years. "Each day for a year" as a measure of the duration of the punishment of His people. Here, then, are two scales of time, other than the natural, definitely given to us. With these in mind let us examine the God-given Calendar of Festivals.

At Creation the year began at the Autumnal Equinox, thus the natural New Year's Day falls in the autumn. But at the Exodus God commanded His people to observe the

Digitized by Google

Spring Equinox as the first month of their Festival year. Thus a civil calendar and a religious calendar were then in operation. To this day the Jew keeps the Civil New Year's Day at the Feast of Trumpets in the autumn, although for his spiritual Festivals he observes Passover in the spring as the first month of the Festival Calendar. God's two Calendars therefore exactly divide the year into two portions. The first month in one Calendar being the seventh (sacred number) month in the other, this being best shown by the following diagrams of the twelve months, drawn like a clock face (as we are most familiar with that arrangement), but number 1 being at opposite sides, thus :—

Civil Calendar. Festival Calendar.

Thus the Feast of Trumpets was the first day of the first month of the Civil calendar, and the first day of the seventh month of the Festival calendar, by this arrangement. In a single year a procession of seven holy Festivals were kept, beginning with Passover (14th day, 1st month), followed by Unleavened Bread (15th to 22nd), Firstfruits (17th), and Pentecost, or Feast of Weeks, on the fiftieth day after the Firstfruits. Thus this group occupied less than eight weeks and came close together. The time between these and the second group was occupied by harvests beginning with barley and going through the crops till the vintage. Then the three remaining Holy Festivals took place in the seventh month as a national Harvest Festival. On the first day of the seventh month was Trumpets, followed by the Day of Atonement on 10th day, and on 15th began the Feast of Tabernacles, which lasted eight days to 23rd. Thus three weeks covered the time occupied by the last three Festivals.

The first four were antitypically fulfilled by our Lord in events which have had world-wide effects. "Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us."

The Feast of Unleavened Bread, which began with the Passover and lasted a week, signified the abstinence from worldly leaven by His followers for a long period of time, Firstfruits fulfilled by the Resurrection "the firstfruits of them that sleep," and Pentecost by the Personal Coming of the Holy Spirit to abide. Therefore, antitypically, the three remaining Calendar Festivals are yet to be fulfilled.

The Feast of Trumpets, being both the Civil New Year's Day (and therefore the actual anniversary of Creation), and also the first day of the seventh month of the Sacred Calendar, surely will be fulfilled by the opening of the Millennial age, the seventh day (of 1,000 years) from Creation, and the Sabbath of this great week. Possibly the day also when the Archangel's trumpet will sound to wake the Christian dead, and call them, and the living saints, to meet their Lord in the air, since this event is stated four times in the New Testament to be with the "great sound of a trumpet." Should this be so, the miracle of the open graves and glorified living saints will compel the world to recognize the truth of the Scriptures, and a great mourning will take place among the literal descendants of Jacob on the Tenth Day, on which Day of Atonement Our Lord will be able to reveal His great Atonement for His whole redeemed people, and five days later, on Fifteenth Day, the glorious Feast of Tabernacles begins which lasts eight days and typifies a long duration of happiness, of feasting (instead of fasting as in the days of Unleavened Bread), during the whole 1,000 years of His tabernacling amongst us as King.

Thus the Calendar for one year's Festivals is completed. But God made provision for other Festivals than these! After six years had passed the seventh was to be kept as a whole year of Festival, the Sabbatic Year. Again, when six Sabbatic years had been completed the seventh Sabbatic year was to be crowned by the Jubilee Year, when all property sold returned to its owner, and all debts were cancelled, all slaves freed. It is written "The law is a shadow of good things to come"; therefore, as there has not yet been an antitypical fulfilment of the remaining Festivals of the first year, namely, Trumpets, Atonement and Tabernacles, these great period Feasts must still be in the distant future, and it is to these that the Holy Spirit points when He speaks of—

The Age	The Millennium.
The Age of the Age	The Sabbatic Year.
The Age of the Ages	The Jubilee.
The Ages of the Ages	Successive Jubilees.

This prophetic age, the Jubilee, is that "time of the restitution of all things" prefiguring the glorious consummation of the Cross spoken of in Col. i, 16–20. "His dear Son . . . for by Him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by Him, and for Him; and He is before all things, and by Him all things consist (hold together—R.V.), and He is the Head of the body, the Church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things He might have the pre-eminence. For it pleased the Father that in Him should all fulness dwell; And, having made peace through the blood of His Cross, by Him to reconcile all things unto Himself; by Him I say, whether they be things in earth, or things in heaven."

"Then cometh the end, when He shall have delivered up the Kingdom to God, even the Father; when He shall have put down all rule and all authority and power. For He must reign, till He hath put all enemies under His feet. . . . But when He saith all things are put under Him, it is manifest that He is excepted, which did put all things under Him. And when all things shall be subdued unto Him, then shall the Son also Himself be subject unto Him that put all things under Him, that God may be ALL in all." (1 Cor. xv, 24–28.)

Digitized by Google

CHRIST, THE IMAGE AND GLORY OF GOD.

By HENRY PROCTOR, F.R.S.L.

CHRIST is the Image of the Invisible God, the first-born of all creation, or "Born first before all creation." When therefore God created man in His own Image He created him in Christ, Who is the Image of God: "For by Him were all things created, that are in Heaven and that are in earth" (Col. i, 16). So that our Lord did not first become man when He was born in Bethlehem, but He was the Archetypal or pattern Man, although subsisting from the beginning (huparchon) in the form of God (Phil. ii, 6). Thus duality of nature explains how He could be at the same time, "The only begotten Son of God," and as Son of Man the first-born among many brothers. For before He came down to earth He was the Son of Man in Heaven (John iii, 13). When He ascended up on high He ascended "Where He was before" (John vi, 62). And now He fills the universe with Himself (Eph. i, 23, Weymouth). But the glory He shares with every Member of His Body, for they together constitute the "pleroma" or fullness of Him who filleth all in all. "For the Church which is His Body is filled by Him who fills the universe entirely" (Eph. i, 23, Moffat). The word pleroma as applied to the Body signifies that the Christ is not complete until "The whole structure is welded together, and rises into a sacred temple in the Lord" (Eph. ii, 21). For this purpose He granted some to be Apostles, some to be Prophets, some Pastors and Teachers . . . for the upbuilding of the Body of Christ, till we all attain to the unity of the faith, unto a full-grown or perfect man—the one Man in Christ Jesus, for the Christ is not one Member but many" (Eph. iv, 11–13; 1 Cor. xii, 12). We cannot know too much of the glory of our unity and identity with Him. For "He reflecting God's bright Glory, and stamped with God's own character, sustains the universe by the Word of His Power." (Heb. i, 3, Moffat); and we also "Reflecting as bright mirrors the Glory of the Lord, with face unveiled, are being transformed into the same likeness as Himself; passing from one glory to another—for this comes of the Lord the Spirit" (2 Cor. iii, 18). So that "when we see Him we shall be like Him," not only in Spirit but in body (Phil. iii, 20–21). For all the time as we walk in Him, and He in us, the glory is being reflected upon the face of our inward man, transforming it into the same image, from glory to glory, and the effect is sometimes seen upon the face of the outward man, although the glory is hidden by the veil of the flesh, yet it shines through as a kind of transfiguration, in times of spiritual exultation, or upliftment.

This work will be fully completed when He comes, for "All of us are to be changed—changed in a moment; in the twinkling of an eye" (1 Cor. xv, 52, Moffat).

This is the perfecting of a work already going on in our inward (new) man, which is being renewed unto full knowledge (epignosis) after the Image of Him that created him (Col. iii, 10, Greek). As we continue to grow up in all things unto Him, He is being formed and growing up in us.

For He, Christ, is the Head, and under Him, as the entire body is welded together and compacted by every joint with which it is supplied, the due activity of every part enables the body to grow and build itself up in Love (Eph. iv, 15, 16).

"God hath highly exalted Him, and given Him the Name which is above every name." He is "God over all, blessed for ever." But through it all "He is the Man, our Friend Who sticketh closer than a brother."

Except through Him we had not known the Father; for no man cometh to the Father except by Him, and no one hath seen God at any time, but all the manifestations of God have been by means of the Son of Man.

He was the Man who talked with Abraham (Gen. xviii, 1–22).

He was in the pillar of cloud which talked with Moses (Ex. xxxii, 9–11).

Isaiah saw Him sitting upon the Throne.

He is distinguished from the Father (Jehovah) by another Name (Adonai). Isaiah says: "I saw Adonai" (chap. vi, 1). And quoting this chapter John says: "These things said Isaiah, when he saw His glory and spake of Him" (John xii, 41).

Ezekiel also in his "Visions of God" saw Him on the Throne: "Like the appearance of a Man sitting upon it" (Ezek. i, 26). He has always been the Saviour, and we who are the Members of His Body were chosen in Him, before the founding of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before Him in Love (Eph. i, 4).

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—VIII.

By S. E. STEELE.

Jehovah Triumphant, written in 1880, commenting on Obadiah, ver. 18, contains the following prediction: "Now this declaration of Obadiah says that the house of Israel shall be a fire—that is the whole Twelve Tribes of Israel. There is added 'and the House of Joseph shall be a flame.' Outside of Jacob (Ephraim-Israel), Joseph can only refer to Manasseh of Israel, and therefore it is inferred that America will add her forces to the help of Ephraim in the overthrow of those powers by which Europe is thrown into convulsion over the settlement of the Eastern Question."

It is significant that at the time when these words were penned, the British flag, the Union Jack, was not allowed to be floated on any Government buildings in the U.S. Yet the prediction quoted came true to the letter, and now the Union Jack is first in popularity after the Stars and Stripes in the land of our brethren of Manasseh.

The same author, in summing up the consideration of Ezekiel xiv, 22, 23, says: "This is the process which British-Israel has just begun with Turkey. The protectorate in Asia Minor, and the insistence of reform in the administration of Turkish affairs, are the beginnings of this event that will at length sweep Turkish 'abominations'—'the abomination that maketh desolate'—out of the land that belongs to God's chosen people." This was completed in 1917, the date of the completion of Judah's seven times punishment.

OTHER SIGNS.

Turn where we will, to our religious life, to our national life, or to our economical life, we find very evident traces of our early connection with the Hebrews, some of which have been handed down since before the introduction of Christianity. Israel was commanded by Moses to build an altar of stones (Deut. xxvii, 6–8), and write thereon the Commandments very plainly, so as to be seen and easily read by all the congregation. In our National Church we have now the Ten Commandments, written plainly on tablets, and placed so that all the congregation can see them. The Hebrews' belief in God is ours of the present day; to that, of course, is now added the belief and acceptance of the Son of God, our Saviour; Judah rejected Him, Israel received Him.

Digitized by Google

George Smith, the historian, writing of the Druids, says: "The resemblance of their religion to that of the Hebrew Patriarchs is very evident." The ancient Welsh, with the Druids, were probably the earliest inhabitants of these islands. It has been stated as an historical fact that a people called the Cimbri came to Britain from the vicinity of the river Elbe 755 B.C. The captive Israelites were called by the Assyrians "Beth-Khumri," or House of Khumri. This evidence may be seen in the British Museum, on a very ancient Assyrian monument, the inscription on which designates Israel as "Beth-Khumri." The Welsh are still known as the Cymri, a Hebrew name. That the ancient Druids were a highly intellectual and civilized people, and not the semi-barbarians we have been taught to believe, is evident from many historians. Cæsar and Mela, according to Ammanius Marcellus, a Greek historian, both intimate that they (the Druids) were conversant with the most sublime speculations of geometry. Charles Hulbert, in Religions of Britain, states: "So near is the resemblance between the Druidical religion of Britain and the Patriarchal religion of the Hebrews, that we hesitate not to pronounce their origin the same."

Our National Laws are, to a great extent, based on the Laws of God, as expounded to Israel in the Book of Deuteronomy; even to the punishment for thefts, adultery, and other sins; laws of divorce, unjust weights and measures; offerings and tithes; all have their foundation in the Laws of Israel under Moses.

We compute our time after the Hebrew method, differing from the Greek or Roman method. Our measures of length and capacity are very similar to those of Israel, so much so that Conder maintained they must have had a common source with the Hebrew measures.

Our English colours date from the time of King Solomon, with but slight modifications (Professor Legrande).

The Seal of Great Britain, and our Royal Standard, both bear the emblem of Judah—a lion; the emblem of Joseph—lion and unicorn (wild ox); and the Harp of David. Ptolemy says these islands, which he called "Iourna," were peopled by the descendants of the Hebrews. That will account for so much of our national organization and our constitutional laws being traceable to the Israelites; and also proves, if true, that they were brought to our shores by our forefathers, who were Israelites.

MANASSEH.

To Ephraim was given the birthright by his grandfather Jacob; he was made the head of the tribes. At the same time, of Manasseh, it was said: "He also shall become a people, and he also shall be great" (Gen. xlviii, 19). Joseph's two sons were to be called after the name of their brethren—Israel (Gen. xlvi, 6). If Ephraim has developed into a company of nations, then Manasseh must now be a great people. He will be in possession of similar blessings to those of Ephraim, and will bear similar markings and characteristics. The only people on earth filling exactly the rôle assigned to Manasseh are those of the United States of America. More than half of those people of the present day, numbering 55,000,000, have sprung from the original settlers of the Anglo-Saxon race. The last census showed the number of people to be 105,500,000. In 1620, a number of our brethren boarded the Mayflower, left our shores and settled in America. They were the first colonists of that land, and have grown into a separate and great people, a democracy; but not, like Ephraim, into a company of nations. According to Bancroft, the American historian, between A.D. 1620 and A.D. 1680 four thousand families crossed the sea, and from them have descended this 55,000,000.

It will be remembered that Ephraim and Manasseh were given an equal share with the other tribes, thereby creating thirteen parts of the twelve tribes, Manasseh being the thirteenth. In the flag of the United States are thirteen stripes. On the Great Seal we find the banner of Dan, a spread eagle; on its breast a shield having thirteen bars, in its beak a motto containing thirteen letters (E Pluribus Unum—Out of many, one), in its right claw an olive branch with thirteen leaves, in its left claw thirteen arrows—Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh were known as the bowmen of Israel. Above all is a circular cloud, representing the cloud that led the Israelites through the wilderness, and within the cloud is represented the thirteen planets that bowed down to Joseph in his dream.

On the reverse side of the Seal is depicted the Great Pyramid of Egypt, showing thirteen steps. The mother of Manasseh was a princess in Egypt.

Three paragraphs by the pen of "The Roadbuilder," from The Destiny of America, written primarily to his brethren of the United States (he is a Canadian), are well worthy of repetition here:

> "Manasseh (U.S.A.) means forgetfulness, and it would seem as if America had forgotten the inheritance promised them which was to be a law to them and their Brother John for ever, though they have provided the melting pot for all nations, languages, and religions, in their little red schoolhouse where one language for all is taught, and that is the language of the Covenant people."

"The Roadbuilder" had considerable experience as a Colonel in the Allied forces during the war with Germany, and had ample opportunities of studying the German character. He writes:

> "Germany well understands that if she can separate Brother John and Brother Jonathan, she may still have a chance to dominate the world, and the world has never seen such efforts to drive us apart as are now on foot through their spy system again working overtime all over America and Canada; 'but the wise shall understand.'"
>
> "America has in full measure the very things promised to Ephraim and Manasseh—brothers in 1713 B.C., as they are to-day—Brother John and Brother Jonathan."

Digitized by Google

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.

QUESTION.—Will you kindly explain to me the meaning of the words in St. John xi, 50, 51, in which the High Priest prophesied that Jesus should not die for that nation only, but for the children of God that were scattered abroad? Who are or were the children of God referred to?—ANON.

ANSWER.—It is clear that Caiaphas prophesied that Jesus should die for the Jewish nation (verse 51), but it is equally clear that Caiaphas was led by the Spirit of God to utter a much greater and more far-reaching prophecy, since Christ was thus predicted to "gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad." There are some who would take this latter expression (the children of God) to refer to the whole world, since Christ died for all the world (John iii, 16). But against this it must be pointed out that the whole world is not "scattered abroad," neither are the nations outside Israel ever termed "the children of God." Hence:—

(1) The term "scattered abroad" must refer to those people who are or were literally "scattered abroad," i.e., who were removed from their land to be found distributed in countries outside of the Promised Land. This expression can therefore only apply to the northern House of Israel, which was removed into exile in the year 721 B.C., and from which date further migrations took place gradually and surely from "the cities of the Medes" in Assyria (2 Kings xvii, 6, 23), thus causing a "scattering." The scattering cannot apply to any nation other than Israel, since the prophecies all deal with the redemption and restoration of Israel. For example, it could not apply to the Hittites or Philistines, since they were not scattered. If we were to ask what became of these two nations, the answer would be that they were diffused and absorbed, thus in the process of time losing for ever their national identity. Thus they were not "scattered." Obviously it could not apply to the Babylonians or Egyptians, nor to the Canaanites or the Ammonites, etc. Hence (a) by elimination, and (b) by prophecy, it must refer to the House of Israel, which was literally exiled but not de-covenanted, redeemed but not destroyed, restored but not absorbed, and therefore in the true sense of the term "scattered abroad."

(2) The term "children of God" can only apply to the House of Israel. It is clear that it does not refer to the Jews, since Caiaphas already speaks of them in the expression "that nation only." There are various expressions used in the Bible to refer to Israel, which cannot be applied to any other people, such as "sheep," "my people," "his people," "the ransomed of the Lord," "the redeemed of the Lord," "my called," "my servant," "mine elect," "my messenger," "my witnesses," "my Church," "the olive tree," "the bride," "the remnant according to the election of grace," etc., etc., all of which are parallel to and coincident with the words "the children of God."

Thus Caiaphas endorses the beautiful words of the Benedictus, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He hath visited and redeemed His people," and shows that the death of Christ wrought redemption for Israel, and the gathering together (i.e., the restoration) of the House of Israel, in order that being re-covenanted, they might be reinstated, thus coming into the fullness of all the Covenant promises, including their inheritance of the Promised Land, and a world-wide Empire, under the sovereignty of its Davidic Throne.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

THE 1290 DAYS AND THE 1335 DAYS. (Dan. xii, 11-12).

DEAR SIR,—It seems a remarkable fact that, if the "1290 days" and "1335 days" of Daniel xii, 11-12, be interpreted as calendar or prophetic years of 360 days, and if A.D. 638, the date when the Mosque of Omar was built on the site of the Temple, be that intended as "the setting up of the Abomination," then the corresponding terminal dates are A.D. 1909 1-2 and A.D. 1953 3-4, the former being just prior to the Great Pyramid dating for the Great Step, and the latter just after that for the South end of the King's Chamber, respectively.

Thus:—	A.D.	638
1290 years of 360 days =		1271.5*
	A.D.	1909.5
Also	A.D.	638
1335 years of 360 days =		1315.8*
	A.D.	1953.8

* Solar years.

From the context it would then appear that the period A.D. 1909.5 to A.D. 1953.8 is "The Time of the End."

Yours faithfully,

BOLIVIA. J. CALLANDER.

A PRAYER.

Grant us, O Lord, to pass this day in gladness and peace, without stumbling and without stain; that, reaching the eventide victorious over all temptation, we may praise Thee, the eternal God, Who art blessed, and dost govern all things, world without end.—Amen.

From a reader: "I am sending £4 to help in your great work of proclaiming the Gospel of the Kingdom of God. It is a tithe . . . I am now an old-age pensioner and have not much to live on, but thanks be to my Heavenly Father I am content and He never lets me want."

What an example of simple faith and trust!

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

WE are looking forward to the near return of Mr. and Mrs. Garrison from their work in Canada, they being due to sail from Quebec on August 20th by the Empress of Scotland, timed to arrive at Southampton August 27th. Mr. Garrison writes that Mr. Goard is now quite well and fit, and he will (D.V.) be with us here in good time for Congress. At the mass meeting addressed by Mr. Garrison in Vancouver, at which the Lieutenant-Governor presided, supporters on the platform were Premier Bracken of Manitoba, Premier Bavin of New South Wales, Australia, General Odlum, and others.

* * *

"The Plantation," Linden Road, Bedford, with its picturesque surroundings, was the rendezvous of a very pleasant and successful garden party, held recently under the auspices of the Bedford Branch, the members of which are much indebted to Mrs. Mercer for kindly lending the beautiful lawn. The arrangements were in the capable hands of Mrs. A. A. James. After tea the President, Capt. F. V. James, welcomed the guests on behalf of the Committee,and said that the primary object of the party was to get to know one another, and to prove that the Branch was a live thing. It was started by three of them seven years ago. Mr. John Leech addressed the large attendance. He said the title of their Federation looked very big and ambitious, and yet it was a fact that this Federation had spread into nearly every country in the world, and was growing into a great organization.

* * *

"In 1872, Henry Ward Beecher once said in a sermon: 'Sing, man; sing, woman; or if you cannot sing, make a joyful noise unto the Lord. Sing in your house. Sing by the wayside. Sing upon the sea. Sing in the wilderness. Sing always and everywhere. Pray by singing. Recite truths by chanting songs. All of you sing. Sing from city to city, from State to State, and from nation to nation. Let your songs be like the deep answering to deep."

"Henry Ward Beecher's adjuration must assuredly have been taken up by the National Federation of Music Clubs of America, which, since its foundation in 1898, has witnessed a growth of 5,000 music clubs with a membership of over 700,000. The Federation is thus one of the most powerful cultural forces known anywhere, and not only are all these members singing themselves, but they are drawing the people of their communities toward a common love for good music, which they can use as an expression in their daily life."

* * *

H. J. H. writes: "I notice in your issue of June 1st (page 347) the burning of the bones of the King of Edom to lime is mentioned. Perhaps this quotation from 'The Moabite Stone' (W. Pakenham Walsh) will be of interest: 'We can well imagine that the fury with which the siege of Horanaim would be prosecuted by Mesha would be intensified by the remembrance that in that terrible day when he offered his son upon the wall, the King of Edom had been among the beleaguering forces. ... Now this would throw light upon a curious passage in Amos' (ii, 1, 'because he burned the bones of the King of Edom into lime.') 'Dr. Salmon is of the opinion that the King of Edom was offered as a burnt sacrifice to Chemosh (in a later war).'"

"An ambitious scheme, surely the first of its kind in Central Europe, will be realized in Prague in September. A spacious new building near the Stefánik Bridge will be opened as an English Boarding School, where an English atmosphere will be created and where no language save English will be spoken, so that, it is claimed, ten months' intensive study will enable the student to master the intricacies of the English tongue.... The pupils will be under the supervision of teachers drawn from the best English teaching circles, and in addition the whole staff will be English speaking, so that the pupils will hear nothing but English the whole time. In short, no endeavour will be spared to make the new school as English as a similar institution in England.... In many other respects, Prague is excellently equipped for the teaching of English. It is announced that in the coming school year two hours per week will be devoted to English in the 6th to the 8th forms at the modern schools. In addition, the Prague English Grammar School employs English as the language of instruction, so that there is a wide choice of establishments for the Prague student desiring to acquire English."—The Central European Observer (per Mrs. Jerrim).

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 12th, at 8.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 13th, at 7.30.
MANCHESTER, Houldsworth Hall, Deansgate, Tuesday, 13th, at 7.45. Bible Study.
SHEFFIELD, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 14th, at 7.30.
BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, Friday, 9th, at 8. Mr. L. W. Nock.

NOTICE.

All Members and Associates of the British-Israel-World Federation, and all Members of Affiliated Associations or Branches of the Federation, are requested to take notice that a Special General Meeting of the Federation will be held at the Headquarters of the Federation, 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1, on Friday, the 20th day of September, 1929, at 5.30 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of passing a Resolution, if considered advisable, sanctioning proposed new and amended Rules for the Federation, which have been prepared and approved of by the General Council.

The proposed new Rules may be inspected at Headquarters by any such Member or Associate who may so desire.

Digitized by Google

B.-I.-W.F. Tenth Annual Congress

LARGE CENTRAL HALL, WESTMINSTER.

September 30th to October 5th, 1929, inclusive

Two Meetings daily at 2.45 and 7.30

A fine array of experienced speakers from various parts of Britain, the Overseas Dominions and U.S.A. Subjects of momentous interest will be dealt with. Tickets for reserved seats now ready, 2/- each. Course tickets £1. As usual Mr. Herbert Garrison will give a Lantern Lecture on the Wednesday evening, for which special tickets are required, at 3/- first reserved seats; 2/- second reserved seats; unreserved 1/-.

Applications should be addressed to the Assistant Secretary,

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

OUR DAYS ARE NUMBERED

By J. Bernard Nicklin.

(WITH FOREWORD BY G. A. ROBISON.)

New light on the numbers of Daniel and Revelation—Striking new evidence that the "Day" intervals of prophecy are now being literally fulfilled—Leading events of past 15 years occurring to a Divine Time Table—Proof that God is over-ruling in the affairs of men, and a Sign of the End—All interested in prophecy and British-Israel Truth should study this.

1/- Post free.

Advent Herald, 1 Cleveland Terrace, Bath.

OR FROM

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6 Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Studies in Ezekiel

By REV. COMMANDER L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N.

With the new key of British-Israel Truth, the Author has thrown wide the gate of interpretation. Through his agency the inspired words of the Prophet take on a meaning which should be brought before all those that sit in darkness.

Paper Covers, 2*s.* 6*d.* By Post, 2*s.* 8*d.*

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

THE ROYAL HOUSE OF BRITAIN AN ENDURING DYNASTY

With Chart.

By Rev. W. M. H. MILNER, M.A., F.R.G.S.

4to. 42 pp. Cloth cover.

Price 4/6; by post, 4/9
Without Chart 3/6; by post, 3/9
Chart only 1/-; by post, 1/1

Canada and U.S.A. $1.20 with Chart Post free.

A genealogical work, compiled with great authority from irreproachable sources. Unchallenged and unchallengeable.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Studies in Jeremiah

By REV. COMMANDER L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N.

"I have this day set thee over the nations . . to build and to plant."—Jeremiah I., 10.

This book should be read in conjunction with "Studies in Ezekiel," for it is in Ezekiel we trace the way in which the Tender Twig of the high branch of the Cedar was brought to these islands.

Cloth only, 3*s.* 6*d.* By Post, 3*s.* 9*d.*

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

The Law of the Lord or the Common Law
by
Rev. W. PASCOE GOARD

¶ Statesmen of every race and every tongue are seeking a system of government which will give security, establish peace—which is a final expression of ideal law-giving.

Is there such a system ?

This book demonstrates that such a system exists, and that that system is at the disposal of every nation.

It is the Common Law of the Anglo-Saxon Races.

¶ When an alien race is brought under British rule it automatically comes under the Common Law of Britain ; privilege of class is abolished ; personal rule no longer holds sway.

When the Pilgrim Fathers set forth in the Mayflower to escape the personal domination of the Stuarts, next to the Word of God, the old Anglo-Saxon Common Law was their most cherished possession.

¶ Yet the Anglo-Saxon Common Law is older than Anglo-Saxondom, older than Christianity itself. It had its first codification on Mount Sinai when the mouth of the Lord spake unto Moses.

¶ There then is the PRINCIPLE, the root of the only system of laws which can succeed. Its amplification, its application in the form of constructive co-operation, to the needs of the present are all that statesmen need consider. The ideal system is ready-made for them.

¶ Let every thinking man read this book

DEMY 8vo. 138 PAGES. CLOTH,

PRICE 3/6 BY POST 3/9.

Canada and U.S.A. 95 cents post free.

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1

BE A BANNER BEARER

Spread the truth. Interest your friends, not only in our Movement, but in following our Movement and its developments week by week. Induce them to become subscribers as you are, for it is only thus that our Movement can grow and the light be shed in the dark corners. Do your part in the pioneering work and be a banner bearer.

Special Campaign for Increasing the Circulation of this Journal.

I wish to help, and I send herewith the sum of.....

for which please send ..... copies for three, six, twelve months to (Name) .....

Postal address .....

.....

.....

Alternative form :—

I enclose the sum of .....

Please send..... copies to whomsoever you may select for a period covered by this amount.

N.B.—The subscription is 3/- for three months ; 6/- for six months ; 12/- for twelve months. Canada and U.S.A. $3 per annum.

ADDRESS—

The Secretary,
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

HE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

AUGUST 17, 1929.

Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

"IN ABRAHAM'S SEED SHALL ISRAEL'S ENEMIES POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS" Gen. 22 17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" Numbers 24. 7.

GT. BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1 CHRON 29 · 23

JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT"

Is 19 · 19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J. J. HALY.

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

INEXPENSIVE HELPS.

BOOKLETS ARE CHEAP, BUT THEIR VALUE MUST NOT BE JUDGED BY THEIR PRICE. THE FOLLOWING SELECTION WILL PROVE OF IMMENSE VALUE AT SMALL COST.

WHAT IS B.-I. TRUTH?	1d.
AN APPEAL TO THE CLERGY	2d.
MONOGRAPH OF BENJAMIN	2d.
MONOGRAPH OF LEVI	2d.
BRITAIN'S IMPERIAL DESTINY	2d.
THE CASE FOR BRITISH-ISRAEL	2d.
WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES IT MAKE?	2d.
ESTHER—A KEYSTONE OF THE BIBLE	2d.
THE KINGDOM OF GOD	2d.
ST. GEORGE OF MERRY ENGLAND	2d.
THE BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER	3d.
THE BRITISH EMPIRE	3d.
THE ROYAL HOUSE OF BRITAIN	3d.
THE CORONATION STONE	3d.
PALESTINE'S FUTURE	3d.
THE UNION JACK	3d.
ISRAEL IN THE NEW TESTAMENT	3d.
THE BOASTFUL OLIVE BRANCHES	3d.
BRITISH ANCESTORS—WERE THEY HEBREWS?	4d.
DRUIDISM IN BRITAIN	4d.
NAMES GOD GAVE TO ISRAEL	4d.
THE EARLY BRITISH CHURCH	4d.

CUT OUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT OR ASK FOR "PARCEL No. 3," ENCLOSE P.O. OR CHEQUE FOR 4/- AND THE ABOVE BOOKLETS WILL BE FORWARDED POST FREE.

P.O.s AND CHEQUES SHOULD BE CROSSED "&/CO."

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

SEND FOR PROSPECTUS. POST FREE.

Our Great Heritage

WITH ITS RESPONSIBILITIES. HOW AND WHERE TO FIND THE TITLE DEEDS.

By W. T. F. JARROLD.

Showing how God's promises to Abraham 2005 B.C. are being fulfilled in our Nation, Dominions, and Indian Empire, showing God's promises to King David fulfilled in the Royal House of Great Britain.

Crown 8vo., cloth gilt, 5/- net (post 6d.), with 31 illustrations.

The Times.—"His theory illumines much that is otherwise dark in the Bible, and gives meaning to modern history."

National Message.—"It can be said that in no other single book written on the subject can be found such an overwhelming collection of cumulative evidence."

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER.

GAIN YOUR KNOWLEDGE THROUGH THE MEDIUM OF B.-I. LITERATURE. WHEN QUESTIONED, BE IN A POSITION TO ANSWER WITH AUTHORITY. THE FOLLOWING BOOKS WILL GRANT YOU THAT AUTHORITY

A MASTER KEY TO THE BIBLE	6d.
THE BIBLE AND THE BRITISH RACE	6d.
THE SIMPLE TRUTH	6d.
OUR HERITAGE: THE BIBLE	6d.
THE TORN CLOAK (for young people)	6d.
COUNTERBLAST	6d.
LIBRA	6d.
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE OF THE BIBLE	9d.
THE BIBLE BASIS OF B.-I. TRUTH	1/-
B.-I. FACTS NOT FANCIES	1/-
PROPHETIC LIGHT ON WORLD DESTINY	1/-
THE BOOK AND OUR EMPIRE	1/-
BRITISH-ISRAEL A.B.C.	1/-
GREAT BRITAIN GREAT	1/-
THE STORY OF OUR BRITISH ANCESTORS	1/-

CUT OUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT, OR ASK FOR "PARCEL No. 4," ENCLOSE P.O. OR CHEQUE FOR 10/- AND THE ABOVE BOOKS WILL BE FORWARDED POST FREE

P.O.s AND CHEQUES SHOULD BE CROSSED "&/CO."

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 398. Vol. VIII. AUGUST 17th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—I. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard..	513
THE DIVINE NOMENCLATURE.—I. By James Cuthbert.. ..	515
GOD'S PURPOSE IN SEPARATING A PEOPLE. By Joseph T. Wheeler	516
"THE OLD CONTEMPTIBLES"	518
ISRAEL'S CAPTIVITY, THE LAND OF CAPTIVITY, AND THE ESCAPE FROM CAPTIVITY. By the late Major B. de W. Weldon ..	519
AN IMPORTANT DISTINCTION. By W. G.	522
THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—IX. By S. E. Steele	523
PERFECTION. By Henry Proctor, F.R.S.L.	524
REPRINT OF AN ADDRESS by Rev. Dinsdale T. Young, D.D. ..	525
A PRAYER	525
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	526

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—I.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

What a background of history there is for the British people and the British Empire.

We use the term "British" not so much as a proper name as an ethnological term with a specific meaning. The word thus considered is based upon two root Hebrew words. They are "Brith"—or as now spelt, Berith—and "Ish"; the first word means "Covenant" and the second word means "Man" in his sociological relationship. That is to say, a man of a family, a man of a community, a man of a nation, a man who is a party to a covenant. Thus the word British means Covenant, nad man-of-the-Covenant or people-of-the-Covenant.

It will be remembered that in the day when this word was set in the Bible literature there were no vowels in the Hebrew alphabet. The spelling would therefore be the equivalent of "brth," so that anyone who should raise the question as to the later spelling, namely, Berith, would show that he was overlooking the matter of the absence of the vowels, or would be taking advantage of the general ignorance of the man on the street regarding the history of Hebrew etymology, to advance an argument which the history of the Hebrew alphabet would condemn as false.

Now the word "British" finds its origin in the original man of the chosen race: namely, Abraham. He was essentially the man of the Covenant, and from him, his descendants, through ISAAC and Jacob, have inherited the name and the Covenants. They are the British people.

It will be seen therefore that the word is wider in significance than when it is used to denominate the kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, together with the overseas Dominions and Dependencies.

Every man who by descent through Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and every other man who has become adopted into the seed of Abraham through confession of faith in Jesus Christ and the Father Whom He reveals, no matter where he may be found, is British, or a man of the Covenant.

Probably among Christian people no man and no people will be found who, understanding this, would desire to disavow such a relationship.

We are aware that, looking at the word in its narrower meaning, many in various parts of the world, outside of the British Empire, would repudiate the term. But in its wider sense very few would be inclined to do so. Because the word is a Bible word and stands for so much in the story of the Bible, we use it, and shall continue to do so. We ask the reader to remember that we are using it in the widest sense, and especially our brethren of the United States. We look upon the Anglo-Saxons there as being as much British, that is to say, as being as much men-of-the-Covenant, as we are who are in the Empire: "British" all—in this sense of the word.

Now the Empire, we hasten to say, is the first Empire which has appeared in the world which is ruled by a king and not by an Emperor. An Emperor is a King of kings. That is the meaning of the word as its use in history shows.

The Empire of Britain is under the rule of King George V.

Why is this?

The answer is plain. He is the King set on the "holy hill of Zion." Start not at this, my friend. He does not supplant the Lord Jesus Christ in this matter. He is where the Lord has appointed him to be. He is sitting, as his predecessor

Digitized by Google

Solomon sat, "on the throne of Jehovah as King, instead of David his father, and all Israel obeyed him." (1 Chronicles xxix, 23.)

In due time our Lord Himself will come and take the throne of His father David, and rule over the House of Jacob for ever. But in the meantime the House of David, now represented in the person of King George V, is occupying "till He come."

In the meantime the King of kings is the LORD—Jehovah. Of Him David sang, "The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens and his kingdom ruleth over all." He is the Emperor over the Brithish—the Covenant people, for, as we have said, the word Emperor means King of kings, and that Jehovah is to Israel.

Even when our Lord shall come to reign, the superior throne of Jehovah, the King of kings, will be over His Kingdom still.

But as King over all the earth and over all the kings of the earth Jesus Christ will bear upon His vesture and His thigh the name "King of kings and Lord of lords." In the meantime the Empire is under the rule of the King of David's line.

Having said this we return to the historic background of the British Empire. The word itself takes us back to the man of the Covenant, Abraham, and to the great charter of the race which God gave to him.

This is the foundation of the British institution in the earth. Let us at this point mark the man and his descent; and the Covenant, which is the charter of the family, nation, company of nations, multitude of nations, into which his constantly increasing seed should be organized from age to age.

The Covenant granted to Abraham was limitless in scope, free from all conditions, and was everlasting. Let the theologian take note that the Covenant granted to Abraham is free from conditions, and is everlasting.

Taking up this point with the writer a short time ago, a highly-placed dignitary of the Church said: "The Covenants with Abraham were conditional. And the conditions not having been fulfilled, the Covenants were done away." To this we replied: "No, there were no conditions in the Abrahamic Covenant, and the Covenant has not been done away." Rather peevishly he said: "That is a matter of opinion. You can let a man have his own opinion, cannot you?"

We thought it not wise to carry forward an argument under the circumstances, which were those of accidental meeting in the course of travel, and so changed the subject. But this is not a matter of opinion, but of obvious fact. Read the Covenants and it must be clear to all that the Abrahamic Covenants were free from conditions. The race was called and chosen of God as the instruments of His purpose. Man had nothing to do in the origination of the purpose, nor in the selection of the generation who should be charged with carrying that purpose forward in the earth throughout the ages. The Covenants made with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob stand—for ever.

It took four hundred years—circa—to develop the family into a nation.

Then we have the organization of the nation at Sinai.

Search the records of all other races of the earth, and of all the nations and Empires into which they have been organized. It will be seen that no other nation has emerged from the tribal state into nationhood under such dramatic circumstances, nor with such wonderful ceremonial, nor with such wonderful attendance upon the occasion.

There were present the Children of Israel;

There were Moses and Aaron, their leaders;

Above all there was, in manifested Presence, Jehovah the God, and from henceforth the King of Israel.

The nation of Israel was born among the nations of the world in a day. It was born at the call, and under the charter granted by Jehovah, the God of Israel.

There is recorded the first great day of British national history. It is a great and glorious day, such as no other nation or people on the earth can look back upon. The first great books in the library of British history are the five books of Moses, which set forth in order:—

The manifestation of Jehovah;
The nation;
The law;
The worship;
The national services;
The constitution.

Let the reader turn to the nineteenth and twentieth chapters of Exodus, and read there the most vivid description of the great function which constituted the birth of the nation Israel; and in it of the Kingdom of God in the earth as a national entity. Let the reader note this carefully as the first chapter of British national history.

The modern historians who undertake to write the history of England or the history of Britain fail to make this connection. Therefore the beginnings of all their histories are shrouded in fog and misconception.

The first step in this great function was to make proclamation to the Children of Israel of their special nationhood. "Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel."

Thus the nation was organized as the basic element of the Kingdom of God in the earth as a national entity.

The next step was the conjunction of Jehovah with His nation Israel and His establishment of Himself therein as King for ever. Thus was the intimate spiritual relationship of the nation with its God established. Mark that this conjunction was not made through the medium of the Church. The Church was not as yet established. The relationship was established for ever between Jehovah and His Kingdom-nation as a nation.

It will help greatly if we can see the national basis of the relationship of our nation with Jehovah our God and King. As we sing from Sabbath to Sabbath, and as Israel has been singing for three thousand years, "For he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture and the sheep of his hands."

Next in order, before the organization of the Church in the nation, comes the promulgation of the Law. This we have in the twentieth chapter of Exodus, in the form of the majestic sentences of the Decalogue.

The Law thus spoken in principle is, and ever has been since that day, the basis of the Common Law of Israel-Britain.

Next came the organization of "the Church in the wilderness." The Divine object for the Church, or "Congregation," was, and ever has been, to safeguard, and to give expression to, the intimate communion between Jehovah, the God and King of

Digitized by Google

Israel, with His people. To this end the Priests ministered. To this end the worship of the nation was organized. To this end the sons of Aaron were consecrated. They gave expression to the intercourse between Jehovah and His worshipping nation.

Every Israelite then and since, not being outlawed for crime or idolatry, was, and is, by birthright a member of the congregation. That was his birthright then: it is his birthright still. Every British-born man and woman has his right in the Church established from the beginning in Israel-Britain. Under the preceding dispensation he must be circumcised in order to enjoy this birthright. In the present Christian dispensation he must be baptized into the Name of the Lord Jesus. But being then circumcised, and being now baptized, he may claim that right, and any authority who would say him nay will do an unlawful thing from the standpoint of Holy Writ.

The worship so organized, modified by the Advent of our Lord and the necessary results of that Advent, is with us to this day. Israel is rejoicing more or less generally in the worship of God so organized. There is nothing like it outside the Israel group of nations and of the Israel race.

Following the organization of the worship came the organization of the national services. To the former "the Priests the sons of Aaron" were ordained. To the latter, that is to say, to the national services, "the Priests the sons of Levi" were dedicated. The former were done away with at the Coming of the Christ. The latter are functioning still in Israel-Britain, in the four learned professions and in the military and naval services of the State.

Following this came the digest of constitutional law as given by Moses in that wonderfully beautiful Book of Deuteronomy.

What an organization! What a system of worship, giving expression to a wonderfully intimate relationship to Jehovah, the God and King of Israel.

Like the mountain range of Sinai, which physically formed the background of the great national function of organization, this great day of national birth forms the background of British history. All succeeding chapters of Israel-British history are dominated and inspired by it.

THE DIVINE NOMENCLATURE.—I.

By JAMES CUTHBERT.

THE study of the Divine Names and titles by which God is made known to us in the Hebrew text of the Old Testament is of absorbing interest.

It demands much patience, arduous labour, careful and prolonged research, to obtain anything like an adequate idea of the character and many-sided nature of the Divine Being as revealed in the manifold forms employed when He speaks, or when allusion is made to Him. At the outset a difficulty is encountered in finding a definite meaning for all these forms, and again in discovering a satisfactory explanation for their employment, as well as for the frequent change from one form to another in the same chapter, and not infrequently in the same verse. Quite certainly it is not due to the intrusion of a later hand, or one of those unknown editors that the higher critics arbitrarily summon to extricate themselves from a difficulty of their own contriving.

Readers may gather some idea of what the Hebrew text reveals on this subject when mention is made of the fact that in Genesis there are no less than twelve or thirteen different forms of the Divine Name and titles; and in the Psalms, where their effulgence and glory reach the maximum, there are no less than sixteen to eighteen distinct forms! Each one of these has a specific use and purpose, and their use is dependent on the direction and character of the message or command given to the human agent to record.

Before entering further into this subject it will serve a useful purpose to mention that in the Old Testament specific terms are encountered to designate what are called the Three Persons of the Trinity. It would be strange, indeed, were it otherwise. The fact that it is not otherwise would seem to prove that the Hebrews were not, as is generally thought, wholly unfamiliar with the Triune nature of the Godhead. The terms referred to are:—

1. Alôhe, the Father, or God in His supreme unity.
2. Yehovah, the Christ, Who was to become incarnate.
3. Jah, the Holy Spirit, He Who is now working to promote the Kingdom of God.

Of these, it has to be said that Alôhe is not the singular form of Alehim—the Elohim of the Massorite vowel pointing. It is a totally different word, both in meaning and spelling. Alehim or Elohim means the Triune God, and in the very nature of the case never had, and could not have, a singular. Alohe is the dominant form of the Book of Job, of which Shem was the author, and appears therein not less than forty times. It is badly and baldly translated "God" throughout. As the narrative makes evident, the Book of Job is a parable, cast in dramatic form, of a father chastening a son to purify him through suffering; consequently the dominant form of Alôhe, the father, is highly appropriate and explains its presence. This view makes the prayer of Elihu to harmonize with the design of placing on Job the acute trials and sufferings he underwent:—"My Father, let Job be tried to glistening whiteness because of his answers for wicked men."

With regard to Yehovah there is no difference of opinion. His position in the Divine Triad, and His mission as the future Saviour of the world, was well understood from the earliest times. Hence the overwhelming force of the words of Jesus in John v, 46:—"For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed Me, for he wrote of Me."

Commentators and theologians, almost without exception, have been strangely irreverent in writing and speaking of Jah, the Third Person of the Holy Trinity. They have, greatly daring, presumed to regard the word as a "contraction"; or, as we would say, a "nickname" for the most revered Name throughout the Scriptures—namely, Yehovah. Now, such was the respect and awe entertained by the Hebrews for this ineffable Name that it became a superstition; and the Jews, and the remnant of the tribe of Benjamin after their return from Babylon, ceased to repeat it. Is it remotely within the region of probability that a people moved by a feeling so profound would be so grossly disrespectful as to use a contraction when alluding to the great Name of God?

Digitized by Google

To expose the impossible nature of the suggestion it is only necessary to quote the first use of the Name of Jah in the Old Testament. This occurs in the Song of Moses over the deliverance of Israel, when the hosts of Pharaoh perished in the Red Sea. The opening words are a dedication to Yehovah, as the Redeemer of Israel from Egyptian bondage, " for He hath triumphed gloriously." Then comes a sudden change of formula in verse 2—" My strength and song is Jah, and He is become my salvation " ; because salvation is primarily wrought by and through the working of the Holy Spirit in the hearts of men. This was true in the days of Moses as in the days of John the Baptizer, who startled his hearers by telling them that the Messias, Whose coming was nigh, would " baptize them with the Holy Ghost, and fire." Then in the third verse the form reverts once more to Yehovah. Why? Because Yehovah is the Captain of the hosts of Israel, and only as such could Moses declare—" Yehovah is a man of war." It would be contrary to common sense to suppose that Moses in this grand outburst of praise would, in one solitary instance, deform or vulgarize the great Name of Yehovah by the use of a contraction. In this song the only other form calling for explanation is that of Al. " He," i.e., Jah, " is my Al," which stands for God in general. . . . . " My father's Alehim, and I will exalt Him." The last phrase proclaims the Triunity of the Godhead, as Yehovah, Jah and Al are brought within its ambit, seeing that the Alehim is a form which expresses the mystery of the Triunity of the Godhead. Unfortunately, in the Version no distinction is observed in translating the several Hebrew proper Names—Yehovah and Jah being rendered alike by LORD, and Al by GOD ; the latter in the sense in which this term is ordinarily mentioned and used by Christians. No need to follow the example of the higher critics and bring in unknown editors to explain the changes in the Divine formula that occur in the first three verses of Exodus xv. The succeeding article will deal with the Divine nomenclature as it appears in the Hebrew text of the account of Creation, and of the promises to Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

GOD'S PURPOSE IN SEPARATING A PEOPLE.

BY JOSEPH T. WHEELER.

IT may seem to some that we are presumptuous in seeking to know God's purpose in separating a people. Such individuals say, " Who hath known the purposes of His heart; who can know God? " But if this search be presumption then we might fear that it is presumptuous to seek to know God's purpose in the way of salvation. Now, God forbid that we should have this fear ; He freely gave us the gift of eternal life, and He wants us freely to accept it. Since it is not presumption to seek for the gifts of God (Matt. vii, 7), why should it be presumption to seek to know the purpose of His love towards His people, which He has purposed since the foundation of the world? It is logical to suppose that we should seek in both instances.

We believe that the greatest thing which a Christian can do is to seek to know God, and to live to make Him known. In Ezekiel e read that in the last days " Then the heathen that are left round about you (Israel) shall know that I the Lord build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate: I the Lord have spoken it, and I will do it." Here we have somewhat of the purpose of God; He says: " I will do it," and in the next verse : " Thus saith the Lord God : I will yet for this be enquired of by the house of Israel " (Ezek. xxxvi, 36, 37). This should silence objection : if we be the heathen we will know, and if we be Israel we will yet enquire.

Having satisfied ourselves that we should enquire into this question, we would now look down the whole course of Israel's career as historically outlined in the Bible. This is the period when they were in the school (Gal. iii, 24). The law was the schoolmaster. But it is not of the master that we are writing ; we desire to confine our thoughts to the school : " God's purpose in separating " is our subject. Someone has pointed out that the greater the end to be accomplished, the longer of necessity is the period of preparation. Moses was forty years in school at the court of Pharaoh, and forty years more under self-discipline in the desert, before he received his commission to act as leader of the hosts of Israel. Even our Saviour had His thirty years of preparation. Now let us turn to the historical setting of Israel's training.

"The God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, And said unto him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee" (Acts vii, 2, 3). The testimony of the monuments and the relics from these ancient days tell us that the religion of the Chaldeans was polytheistic. Could the God of Glory allow one of His children to dwell in such a community without appearing unto him? What fellowship hath light with darkness in our age? The Christian flees from it, therefore we are not surprised to find that Abraham left Ur of the Chaldees.

In harmony with this same thought, God led Israel down into Egypt, out from the land of the Canaanites, which was a seething cauldron of wickedness, the people of which had turned from their Creator and were worshipping the powers of nature ; the land was steeped in polytheism. Could He allow His people to be raised in such company where they would naturally learn to worship the thing created, the creature, the powers? " What was the purpose of that long Egyptian sojourn? " asks Ira M. Price, author of " The Monuments and the Old Testament." " What could Providence have had in store for His chosen people that they were permitted to suffer such hardships at the hands of cruel lords and taskmasters? The more we penetrate the mists of antiquity in the decipherment of its records, the more we perceive the remarkable character of the oldest civilizations located on the Nile, and on the Euphrates and Tigris Rivers."

" The Patriarchs in Palestine were living among peoples of low moral character, of a low type of civilization—if civilization it might be called. God had in store great things for their descendants. To occupy the position which He had planned for them, it was necessary that they become acquainted with the nations of their day. Their settlement and sojourn in Egypt was the introduction of Israel to the foremost, or one of the two foremost, nations of those times ; yet they were so compactly settled that they lost neither their identity nor their life-customs, nor their God. Their long, peaceful sojourn gave them an opportunity to observe and to learn what Egypt's life, its government, its customs, its religion, were. Then, daily mingling with the motley crowd of foreign merchantmen, seeing the rushing to and fro of Egyptian armies, and sharing in the benefits of the kingdom of this great land, broadened their vision of the meaning of national life and of its claims upon its subjects and supporters."

Digitized by Google

"Then their seizure and enslavement had just as distinct a lesson for them. Though acquainted with many of the arts practised about them, their actual training in these was forced upon them by taskmasters, 'and they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field : all their service, wherein they made them serve, was with rigour' (Exod. i, 14). These words seem to teach that the Hebrews were compelled to learn all the trades and occupations of their masters, and to work hard at them. This was an industrial training-school in the foremost civilization of that day. It was the severest, the sharpest, and the most complete training a people could receive to make them masters of the leading arts and occupations of Egypt. Their easy contact with the Egyptians also had its lessons, and its tests for future responsibilities. Moses in the court of the Pharaoh received the intellectual training, the spiritual testing, and the all-round preparation for his supreme task. The Hebrews, as bondsmen, were lashed into their places as apprentices and tradesmen, to prepare for independent service when the day of freedom should arrive. Thus a people is planted in the garden of Egypt, is trained and pruned with great care by an experienced gardener to produce fruit in the distant days of the unknown future" (Chap. ix, pp. 121, 122).

Before following the nation out from this training-school we would emphasize their isolation. They were in Egypt, but not of Egypt. Goshen was located between the delta and the Asiatic frontier. The Egyptians were farmers, and as such they stuck close to the Nile Valley. The Israelites were shepherds, and the territory on which their flocks grazed was, as we have just said, close to the borderline. The Hyksos Pharaohs placed them here for reasons of State, but we see God's purpose through it all.

We should emphasize Israel's isolation in the land, but at the same time such communication as they had with the Egyptians was certainly calculated to instil a much purer religion than contact with the polytheistic peoples of Canaan.

According to Budge (see "Egyptian Ideas of the Future Life," Chap. 1) the Egyptian held that there was an all-powerful God Who could manifest His might in the persons of the various gods of the different departments of nature. They believed that He was also the ultimate cause of the entire universe, hence He was the Creator and Director of both gods and men.

When the Israelites returned to Canaan they were again subjected to the polytheistic doctrines of their neighbours, for they failed to make a full end of these peoples, as they were commanded to do. Sin was ever at their door ; and though from time to time they were temporarily delivered, yet it was evident that they had not yet learned their great lesson. Solomon established a regular pantheon, setting up shrines for all the deities worshipped by his wives ; division of the kingdom followed, and what was this but separation? Nevertheless, God's purpose was in it, for He said : "This thing is from Me" (1 Kings xii, 24). Still the two kingdoms continued on their downward path. Ezekiel describes them in chapter xxiii of his book under the figures of two women who have gone after their lovers. Aholah is Samaria and Aholibah is Jerusalem. Let us follow the doings of Aholah. The Scriptures say, "She doted on her lovers, on the Assyrians her neighbours." Again, "With all their idols she defiled herself." Wherefore for this only she was delivered into the hands of her lovers. Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, removed her. So Israel was deported into a far country ; but all things work together for good to them who are the called according to His purpose (Rom. viii, 28) ; and, wonder of wonders, God could not give them up (Jer. iii, 11-14 ; ix, 7 ; Hos. xi, 8) ; but put it into the heart of their conquerors to place them, not in their own polytheistic territories, but in the monotheistic lands of the Medes ; we find that they were placed "in the cities of the Medes" (2 Kings xvii, 3–6 ; xviii, 9-11).

George Rawlinson describes the religion of this Median reformatory-school into which Israel was introduced : "The Persian system is a revolt from this sensuous and superficial nature-worship. It begins with a distinct recognition of spiritual intelligences—real persons—with whom alone, and not with powers, religion is concerned. It divides these intelligences into good and bad, pure and impure, benignant and malevolent. To the former it applies the term Asuras (Ahuras), 'living' or 'spiritual beings,' in a good sense ; to the latter, the term Devas in a bad one. It regards the 'powers' hitherto worshipped as chiefly Devas ; but it excepts from this unfavourable view a certain number, and, recognizing them as Asuras, places them above the Izeds, or 'angels.' Thus far it has made two advances, each of great importance, the substitution of real 'persons' for 'powers' as objects of the religious faculty, and the separation of the persons into good and bad, pure and impure, righteous and wicked. But it does not stop here. It proceeds to assert, in a certain sense, monotheism against polytheism. It boldly declares that, at the head of the good intelligence, is a single great Intelligence, Ahuro-Mazdâo, the highest object of adoration, the true Creator, Preserver, and Governor of the universe. This is its great glory. It sets before the soul a single Being as the source of all good and the proper object of the highest worship. Ahuro-Mazdâo is 'the Creator of life, the earthly and the spiritual' ; He has made 'the celestial bodies,' 'earth, water and trees,' 'all good creatures,' and 'all good, true things.' He is 'good,' 'holy,' 'pure,' 'true,' 'the Holy God,' 'the Holiest,' 'the essence of truth,' 'the Father of all truth,' 'the best Being of all,' 'the Master of purity.' He is supremely 'happy,' possessing every blessing, 'health, wealth, virtue, wisdom, immortality.' From Him comes all good to man ; on the pious and the righteous He bestows not only earthly advantages, but precious spiritual gifts, truth, devotion, 'the good mind,' and everlasting happiness ; and as He rewards the good, so He punishes the bad, though this is an aspect in which He is but seldom represented."

"It has been said that this conception of Ahuro-Mazdâo as the Supreme Being is 'perfectly identical with the notion of Elohim, or Jehovah, which we find in the books of the Old Testament.' This is, no doubt, an over-statement. Ahuro-Mazdâo is less spiritual and less awful than Jehovah. He is less remote from the nature of man. The very ascription to Him of Health (Haurvat) is an indication that He is conceived of as possessing a sort of physical nature. Lucidity and brilliancy are assigned to Him, not (as it would seem) in a mere metaphorical sense. Again, He is so predominantly the Author of good things, the Source of blessings and prosperity, that He could scarcely inspire His votaries with any feeling of fear. Still, considering the general failure of unassisted reason to mount up to the true notion of a spiritual God, this doctrine of the early Adrians is very remarkable" ("The Third Monarchy," Ch. iv).

Digitized by Google

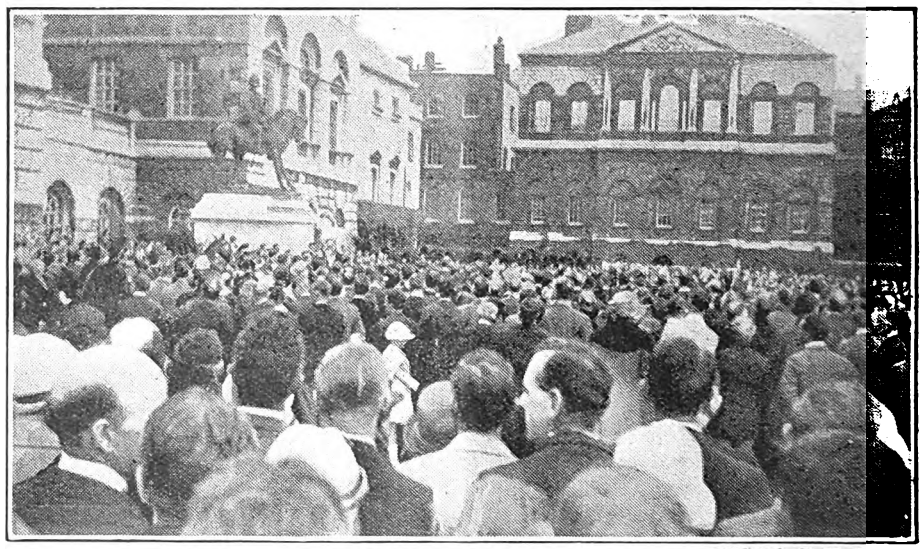
It seems to us this was the very instruction which our race needed in order to prepare it to accept the humanity of Jesus, and its approximation to the truth sufficiently explains the favourable light in which its adherents were held by the Israelitish Prophets.

Now we are prepared to draw our conclusions from the facts discoursed, and, firstly, we find that, through the whole Biblical outline of Israel's history, she was in school; that is what the training of separation meant; and we naturally ask ourselves the question—Why was this period of preparation so prolonged? In answer, we can only expect a mighty purpose; for the greater the end to be accomplished, the longer of necessity is the period of preparation. Secondly, as we have found that the very first act of separation was in order to preserve monotheistic teachings, and as the last recorded act was for the same object, we cannot logically admit that God is through with Israel, and that they have become absorbed by the peoples. No, we see purpose in all these dealings, and that purpose seems to be that Israel might be a witness unto Him. When the Lord of Hosts hath purposed, who shall disannul it? England and America stand to-day a witness of monotheism—Trinitarian monotheism.

Let those who are opposed to British-Israel teaching answer to themselves this question. Inasmuch as the very last act historically recorded in the Bible of Israel is still in the line of preparation—in fact, that they were sent to a reformatory-school, as it were—is it reasonable, yea, is it logical to expect no result? And then let them read Rom. ix, 11; Eph. iii, 9–11; 2 Tim. i, 9; Col. iii, 1; and we hope and pray that the so-called tangle of predestination may become to them a pathway of light.

"THE OLD CONTEMPTIBLES."



Before leaving for Canada, Mr. Garrison was at Cambridge and, visiting one of our members, Mrs. J. E. Hendley, asked her to write an account of the formation of, and her connection with, The Old Contemptibles Association, for publication in THE MESSAGE. This very interesting account we now have pleasure in giving to our readers.

My association with the "Old Contemptibles" arose from a happy coincidence, the result of which has brought me into a warm friendship with a body of men of whom England and the Empire may well be proud, and whose gentle and kindly natures will warmly reciprocate any sympathy and appreciation that may be accorded them.

By what might seem to be a pure accident the eye of the writer chanced to light on a small paragraph in the daily paper saying that the members or committee of the Old Contemptibles had been anxiously consulting how they might obtain a banner of smaller proportions and more easily carried for long distances than the one they already possessed—the gift of the Lady Amhurst of Hackney.

Banners being rather in my line, I thought it might be possible for me to go to their aid.

Having been put into communication with their Secretary, Capt. Danny, and obtaining from him all the particulars of their desires, I had, before long, the pleasure of embroidering and presenting them with the desired article. This was worked on blue satin, the badge a circlet in gold, with the name supported by crossed daggers; their motto: "God, King, Country," above; and each side proclaimed to all beholders the principles and faith which is the inspiration of their comradeship. On the reverse side I embroidered a very noble figure—riding on a white horse—with drawn sword. This to represent the archangel Michael, who, history informs us, "Stood up" in times past to fight for and lead "The Lord's hosts." That this little Army, perhaps the most highly trained and equipped England and her people ever sent forth, still represents the hosts of the Lord, being that of His people Israel in this land, none of us B.I.'s can doubt. Our very enemies complained they could not get at our Army because of the man on the white horse, who continually intervened between them. There were many also of our own soldiers who themselves bore or could bear witness of such intervention.

[Photo by P. W. Barnes.

An "Old Contemptibles" Service on the Horse Guards' Parade.

To the writer this wonderful episode in our nation's story vividly recalls that memorable encounter on the plains of Palestine, when the armour-clad champion of Israel's enemies flung in derisive defiance at the young shepherd lad the question—"Comest thou against ME with a sling and a sword?"

Digitized by Google

The question of both the ancient and recent of Israel's foes is the same! For both alike ignored and defied Israel's Strength and Redeemer.

A large body of our chums took part in the great meeting of the B.-I.-W.F. at the Albert Hall, and on more than one occasion listened to and enjoyed Mr. Garrison's Lantern Lectures at Westminster.

Following is an account by Mr. Morrish of the formation of the Association :—

I have gathered together what information I could concerning our Association, its formation and objects. Although among the first 50, I cannot claim to have had any hand in forming it. We still have at this Branch some of the little band who, with the late Capt. Danny, did form this glorious Association of "Old Contemptibles," and it is from them that I have had most of the information.

THE NAME "OLD CONTEMPTIBLE."

This, as you know, was the name given by the Kaiser when his great army was not only held, but actually driven back, by the small British Army. When told what had happened, he referred to us as "That Contemptible little army."

The idea of forming an Association of Old Contemptibles was the outcome of a meeting of 12 men who had served in the Army referred to by the Kaiser.

They met under the chairmanship of the late Capt. Danny at the British Legion Club, 69, Powerscroft Road, Clapton, and here they decided to form this Association, Capt. Danny being elected Chairman and Treasurer, and G. Saunders as Secretary.

Capt. Danny soon got to work. Lady Amhurst of Hackney presented us with a banner and the Rev. Owen Spencer Watkins was elected as our Chaplain. From this onwards our numbers soon grew. We had a Cenotaph Parade in 1926, with 200 chums attending. To this we owe our big advance in numbers. General (now Field-Marshal) Sir George Milne was asked to be our President, and accepted.

By now our numbers had grown to such an extent that a mass meeting was called to form a governing body; this was in June, 1927.

It was there decided to form other Branches. Woolwich was the first outside Hackney to be formed. As our membership still continued to increase others were formed, and at the present time we have a membership of approximately 9,000, with 48 Branches, all over the British Empire, and at Ypres.

We have included in our membership both H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, and ranks varying from Field-Marshals to privates.

Our badge design was taken from the 1914 Star issued to us for service during that year.

The condition of membership is that each applicant must be entitled to the 1914 clasp. The clasp was issued to all ranks who were actually under the enemy's fire between Aug. 5th and Nov. 22nd, 1914.

Our objects are to foster the 1914 spirit amongst Old Contemptibles and to help each other.

The present membership is approximately 9,000, and 48 Branches.

RULES.

(1) Members must address each other as chums.

(2). Must attend a church parade on the nearest Sunday to the outbreak of war, to offer thanks for their own preservation and in remembrance of fallen chums.

(3). Once a year pay a visit to the Cenotaph and place a wreath in remembrance of our chums.

(4). Must accept the motto of "God, King and Country."

(5). No thought is given to caste, creed or politics.

(6). Subscriptions are purely voluntary.

Referring to Rule 6, we have found that our chums have always been willing to assist a less fortunate one when the occasion arises. Such cases as widows of chums; chums in distress; Christmas dinners; all have been made possible by the good will of our chums and friends.

ISRAEL'S CAPTIVITY, THE LAND OF CAPTIVITY, AND THE ESCAPE FROM CAPTIVITY.

BY THE LATE MAJOR B. DE W. WELDON, Author of "The Evolution of Israel" and "The Origin of the English."

THE fundamental cause of the ruin of the two Hebrew States, Israel and Judah, was their own inveterate hostility towards each other, a hostility that had its roots in the revolution of 975 B.C., when Jeroboam, the man who made Israel to sin, cast out the House of David and two of the tribes, together with the priestly caste of Levi, outside of the nation of Israel. From 975 B.C. onwards the two Kingdoms of Israel and Judah were either openly at war, or else indulging in intrigues against each other with neighbouring States.

It was thus that the Jews, as the inhabitants of the Southern Kingdom now came to be called, brought in the Assyrians to their assistance against Israel, and ensured the downfall of their sister State.

These Assyrian attacks on Israel culminated in 721 B.C. with the capture of Samaria, the disappearance of the dynasty, and the removal of the bulk of the people into captivity in a distant land. In that year, according to the grim words of the chronicler, Israel was "blotted out." Three points, however, must be made clear. The removal into captivity was gradual. It began about 741 B.C., but was only completed in 676 B.C., when the last remnants of the tribe of Ephraim were removed from Hamath, and a prophecy of Isaiah was fulfilled, that within three score and five years Ephraim "would be broken and not a people."

The removal of Israel was complete. The action of the King of Assyria is compared in Isaiah to that of a man who robs a nest of its eggs.

Israel never returned to Palestine. Its territory was settled by new colonists, the ancestors of the Samaritans.

The next question of interest to us is, where was the land of captivity of Israel? It was a country remote from those we usually call "Biblical" countries. The exiles of 721 B.C., the mass of the population, were removed to "Halah and Habor, by the River Gozan, and to the cities of the Medes." The River Gozan is usually identified with the Uzen, which rises in the mountains of Azerbijan, and flows into the Caspian near Resht. Here, South of the Caspian, and S.E. of the Caucasus, we may place a large colony, perhaps the largest, of the exiles. The "cities of the Medes" would include a larger area than this region. In 721 B.C. Samaria fell; in 712 the Assyrians, before Jerusalem, suddenly lost an army of 185,000 men in a single night. The repercussion of such a disaster was felt throughout the limits of the Assyrian Empire. The vassal State of Media began to take steps towards independence; and in 709 B.C. the Medes built and fortified their capital City of Ecbatana, which is the present Hamidan on the Turco-Persian borderland. The first requisite for building a "garden city" is a good supply of cheap labour. This, in the form of Israelite captives, was to hand for the Medes—and it is not surprising, therefore, to find a considerable colony of exiles settled at Ecbatana. We further know that another large colony was settled at Nineveh, the Assyrian capital (near the present Mosul). If one looks up in a map the position of Mosul and Hamidan and join up these two points respectively with Resht and the S.E. corner of the Caspian, we cover the area of what once was the ancient land of Guta. This land of Guta has an interesting history. Long before the Assyrians existed as a State, a people who called themselves the "People of Guta" inhabited this region. To the ancient Hebrews they were known as the Goyyim. When Lot was taken prisoner at Sodom, Abraham armed his followers and fought a battle against five kings to rescue his nephew. One of these kings was "Tidal, King of the Goyyim." Tidal was king over this land of Guta, between Mesopotamia and the Caspian. When Jacob in Egypt blessed his grandson Ephraim he foretold of him that his seed would become "a multitude of Goyyim," i.e., a multitude from this very Land of Guta!

Digitized by Google

We are apt to accept somewhat unquestioningly statements made by a patriarch, where those statements concern geography. But this claim of Jacob's undoubtedly seems to be a strange one, one which could be compared to an aged Russian Jewish refugee in London promising his grandson that one day he would own vast estates in—Peru. Peru, London, and Russia are not more remote in these days than were Guta, Egypt, and Palestine in the days of Jacob. It must be emphasized that the Goyyim, in the days of Jacob, were an actual people, inhabiting an actual country of Guta, between the Tigris and the Caspian. For some reason or other these Goyyims were especially detested by the Hebrews. In later ages the name "Goyyim" came to have a more general application, covering all Gentile nations outside of Israel. Hence the interpretation of "Goyyim" by "nations" in our A.V.

But it was subsequent to the time of Jacob that the name of the "People of Guta" disappeared from history. In the sixteenth century B.C. Assyria, originally the one city of Asshur, rose into power, and gradually spread over the region once called the Land of Guta. In 721 B.C., when Israel's exiles arrived, the name of the land and of the people of Guta had become obsolete for nearly 1,000 years. Yet it would be still remembered, much as the name "Erin" is still remembered for "Ireland."

In "Guta," as in "Erin," there existed a people deeply dissatisfied with the existing government—a people anxious to identify themselves with the ancient land, but deeply hostile to another race that held the mastery there. The name of Guta disappeared from history in the sixteenth century B.C. It is revived for a moment in 508 B.C., when the "People of Guta" marched on Babylon and captured the city. It then disappears again from history for nearly 700 years more. About the year 220 A.D., however, a new and terrible people, dwelling along the Dnieper and the Pripet, begin to appear in history. This people we called "the Goths," but they styled themselves in their own language the "Gutathiuda," i.e., the People of Guta—"Thiuda" being a Gothic word meaning "a people." These Goths the present writer connects with the conquerors of Babylon and with that People of Israel who disappeared into captivity in the land of Guta in the period between 741 B.C. and 676 B.C. If the Goths really were Israel, it is obvious that Israel must have escaped from captivity. It will be asked when did Israel escape? Why? and how? These questions may be very shortly answered:

When did Israel escape?—In the year 608 B.C., that is, 113 years after the fall of Samaria.

Why?—Because of the very natural desire of an oppressed people to exercise "self-determination." An opportunity presented itself, and they seized it.

How?—The opportunity was provided by the military situation in Asia Minor at this period.

In order to consider the escape in greater detail it is necessary to consider military and political events between the years 614 B.C. and 608 B.C. In the year 614 B.C. the prophet Jeremiah, an acute observer of contemporary events, foretells the impending destruction of Judah, and that "backsliding" Israel may now be given an opportunity for repentance and restoration. In 614 B.C., Scythian armies, which, twenty years previously, had poured into Asia Minor by a route along the Caspian Coast which must have led them perilously close to those settlements of Israel on the River Gozan, are threatening Northern Palestine. Media and Babylonia had risen against Assyria, and their united armies were even then besieging Nineveh. Pharaoh Necho, of Egypt, head of the strongest military state in the world, had organized an army, with which he proposed to march through Judæa against Carchemish on the Upper Euphrates. His mission, so the Pharaoh declared to the King of Judah, was from God, and demanded haste. Strangely enough, we find the prophet Jeremiah confirming this strange assertion of a heathen king. (1 Esdras i.) What would this mission be which the Lord God of Israel had entrusted to an Egyptian? Obviously, to secure the release of Israel, as a reward for their co-operation with the Egyptian attack. The mission demanded haste, since only a fleeting opportunity presented itself. At any time Nineveh might fall and the armies "contained" by its siege released.

The King of Judah refused the safe conduct through his land demanded by the Egyptians—as the Belgian King refused a similar demand by the Germans so recently (the whole situation is full of modern parallels); and, at the battle of Megiddo, fought on the plain of Armageddon in 612 B.C., the military power of Jewry was for ever crushed. It is not uninteresting to compare the Megiddo campaign of Pharaoh Necho with

Digitized by Google

Allenby's advance in Palestine in the concluding stage of a war which the world also calls "Armageddon."

Both generals based their armies on Egypt, and marched these armies across Sinai, probably by the same routes, and through a militarily weak Palestine. Both had the same strategic object, to obtain the mastery of Asia Minor, and the strategic objectives, in the one case Carchemish, in the other Aleppo, were similar.

Here, however, the comparison ceases. Once his cavalry had swept over the plain of Megiddo, behind the positions at Samaria, Allenby had broken the Turkish resistance—and completed the cycle of history that had begun in 612 B.C.

Pharaoh met with more stubborn resistance in the actual battle, and he had fresh enemies yet before him. The army of the Egyptians had to be reconstituted and reinforced; there were long and hostile lines of communications to be safeguarded through a hostile and not completely subdued enemy's country.

A four years' delay was thus unavoidably incurred before the Egyptians could approach Carchemish. This breathing space could obviously be utilized by Nebuchadnezzar, in command of the Medo-Babylonian allies, to bring up every available man from Mesopotamia and the regions round about to the danger point. In the 46th chapter of Jeremiah the ensuing battle of Carchemish, and the utter overthrow of the Egyptians, is graphically described.

Pharaoh had "passed the time appointed." After describing the battle this same chapter goes on to deliver a message to Israel, to the effect that they are free, that every nation that oppresses them will be punished, but they themselves will not be left unpunished.

Without such a hint as this context supplies, it is obvious that a psychological moment has arrived for Israel temporarily to be masters of their fate. The garrisons holding them in check, in settlements remote from the scene of operations, must have been temporarily weakened.

Did Israel avail themselves of the golden opportunity?

It may first of all be pointed out that, from about this date, all record of the Ten Tribes ceases in the known history of the world. There is a statement in 2 Esdras xiii that the Ten Tribes escaped (at some date not there specified) across the Upper Euphrates, seeking a land where no man had yet dwelt, where they might keep the law that they had never kept in their own land. Now, such a wilderness as this could only exist north of the Euphrates, in the country of the Scythians.

If a contingent of Israel, summoned to Carchemish, either before or immediately after the battle of Carchemish, had suddenly mutinied, flight would only be possible for it northwards through the Caucasus.

Return to Palestine was out of the question; the armies barred the western route, which ran through Carchemish itself—Palestine was in the hands of Egyptian garrisons, being devastated by the yet formidable Scythians, and about to become a battlefield. From Esdras it may be gathered that the tribes were pursued and that the pursuing army turned back at the Euphrates. Nebuchadnezzar had yet to deal with the Scythians (whom he utterly defeated the next year at Askelon, on the sea coast of Palestine) and had no troops available for "subsidiary operations" in the mountain passes of the Caucasus.

Thus the warriors of Israel escaped; to be speedily joined by their wives and families from those settlements on the River Gozan and from distant Ecbatana.

Nineveh, doomed long since by the prophets, had been evacuated already by Israel. The ordinary instincts of self-preservation would prompt every Israelite family to flee northwards, to escape the coming vengeance of the Babylonian victor. The route, from Resht to Baku, along the Caspian coast, would present no especial difficulties. It was the one already taken by the Scythian invaders of "Asia."

Herodotus relates a story that the defeated Scythian remnants, returning homewards after Askelon, encountered on the borders of their own land an army of escaped slaves.

Dates and probabilities point to these "escaped slaves" being the same Ten Tribes that passed the Upper Euphrates, in the story of 2 Esdras xiii.

Thus, in a wilderness that would not be Sinai, but would be "the wilderness" of the prophet Hosea and later prophets, a new nation of the race of Israel was reconstituted.

Esdras states that the march of the Ten Tribes into Ar-Sareth ("the countries") took a year and a half.

If this march began in 608 B.C., the year of its completion would be 606 B.C. Bearing this date, 606 B.C., in mind, fresh circumstantial evidence can be adduced as to the correctness of our theory. First of all, there is a very definite statement in Isaiah that the Assyrian captivity would be a short one; when the "high looks" of the king of Assyria were being punished, and vengeance was being exacted on Zion, then "those that are escaped of Jacob" would be free.

Nineveh was captured and the Assyrian power destroyed 605 B.C.

Judah overthrown by the Egyptians 612 B.C.

Jerusalem captured 588 B.C.

In the year 676 B.C., as we have seen, Ephraim ceased to be a people.

But in Amos a hope was held out that "God might yet be gracious to Joseph."

In Jeremiah xxxi, with marginal date 606 B.C., we find the forgiveness of Ephraim being proclaimed, and "way marks" are set up for her future wanderings. In the same chapter it is declared that Israel henceforward is to be a nation for ever!

Again, about the same date, 606 B.C., we have (Daniel ii) the interpretation by a Hebrew of the vision seen by the conqueror of Carchemish.

Daniel informs Nebuchadnezzar, and the Babylonian King never questions the accuracy of the interpretation, that, "in the days of these Kings," beginning with Nebuchadnezzar, the Head of Gold, himself, God had set up a kingdom of Stone which never would be destroyed, but which would eventually successively destroy all the great empires of the world.

Of what new kingdom were these two rulers thinking, in that year 606 B.C., two years after Carchemish?

Not of any spiritual kingdom of Christianity, for what would Nebuchadnezzar, the practical heathen soldier and statesman, know or care about such a vague possibility?—but of the new kingdom of a once formidable people, that had so recently escaped out of the power of the Babylonian general. Here was a danger, threatening the future of Babylon, a danger obvious to the far-seeing monarch and even to his court.

Digitized by Google

Now it was a "People of Guta," according to the cylinder of Cyrus in the British Museum, that captured Babylon in 538 B.C., and destroyed the Head of Gold. But Jeremiah (chapters iv and li) deal with this capture of Babylon, where Israel and Judah were to meet, and whither Israel came as "the battle-axe of the Lord" that was to break in pieces many nations. Is it a mere coincidence that Israel should have been captive for at least 113 years in that same Land of Guta, and should have disappeared thence beyond the ken of history? The Goths of the third century A.D. not only styled themselves the "People of Guta," but the earliest Gothic traditions were of some sojourn in Media and of a famous battle with the Egyptians.

Now Egypt ceased to be a nation after 608 B.C., and no Egyptian army subsequently ever penetrated into any country of Asia where they were likely to meet Goths.

Media existed as a State only from 709 B.C. until 538 B.C., after which latter date it became practically merged with the Persians.

The Goths, therefore, if there be any foundation for their traditions, must have been in Media, or close to Media, in the same period as Israel's captivity in that land.

One other strange coincidence must be noticed before I conclude.

In A.D. 551 Jordanis, the only Gothic historian, sums up his history by saying that in A.D. 540, at the downfall of the Ostrogoths, an ancient kingdom and famous people came to its end in "almost the 2030th year of its existence."

The Goths, therefore, became a people in one year, 1490 B.C.

Israel, at the Exodus from Egypt, also became a nation, "born in a single night," at the same date!

It is on coincidences such as these here cursorily examined that the story of my book, "The Origin of the English," is based.

They seem at least to be worthy of some close examination by anyone seeking the clues to "Lost Israel."

AN IMPORTANT DISTINCTION.

ONE of the most important facts in connection with Scripture prophecy that has been brought to the notice of readers of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER is that which the Rev. Pascoe Goard presents in the course of his study under the head of "The Second Coming of Our Lord—III." It is that the king of the North, or rather, the last king of the North, is distinct from the Man of Sin. The former is identified in the article referred to with "the last of the Kaisers, William of Germany, who set up a palace on the Mount of Olives." There is not the slightest doubt that sovereignty in Palestine was a prominent feature of his mad dream. It was his stated intention to have France overrun and reduced to subjection by October, 1914, and to be in Buckingham Palace by Christmas of that year. This last king of the North was to be "broken without hand." The Kaiser, as was predicted from the outset of the Great War, has gathered the Dead Sea fruit of an inordinate ambition, and looks to fulfil the further statement that he will die in exile of heart failure. How often do we see that "the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley," as they must ever do when opposed to the expressed will of God as defined in His Word by the mouths of His holy prophets which have been since the world began.

But in contrast to this sea-born power of Germany, which was formerly included in the "Holy Roman Empire," the Revelation of Jesus Christ defines another power coming up out of the earth, having all the power of "the first Beast whose deadly wound was healed"—a power that has "two horns like a lamb" and that "speaks like a dragon." That this is identifiable with the twofold ecclesiastical and political rulership of Italy seems all too apparent, for by a score of marks Rome is identified with the number 666, and it is well known that the avowed purpose of the Duce is to revive the glories of the Roman Empire, and the Fascist programme can only find completion when the Emperor is virtual master of the world. The same revelation tells us by what means this ascendancy will be achieved. In distinction from the "first Beast" who is "broken without hand," this "second Beast" is he whom the Lord will "consume with the spirit of His mouth and destroy with the brightness of His coming," after the confederation has turned against him and destroyed the modern Babylon by fire, for "she shall be utterly burned with fire . . . and shall be no more found at all." (Rev. xvii and xviii.) This rise and brief rule of the Man of Sin, whose revealing is the certain sign of the end of the age of Esau and the dawn of the New Dispensation, appears to be identical with the "time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation to that same time," as stated by Daniel and confirmed by the Lord Jesus. Daniel has a vision of the mighty Archangel Michael, the Captain of the hosts of the Lord, coming to the relief of the children of Israel, and is told that at that time "thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the Book." Our Lord gives the reason for this intervention. It is that "for the Elect's sake those days shall be shortened," and the tribulation of those days is fully conveyed to us by the context, "for except those days be shortened there were left no flesh living upon the earth." The sequence of the prophetic scheme, equally with the course of history since the Great War, clearly reveals the fact that the latter was only "the beginning of sorrows." It becomes a matter of eternal moment to every reader of the inspired revelations that he should be found "written in the Book." It is not enough that he should be of the elect or chosen people Israel, for salvation is not of Israel, but is to Israel by the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, "by whom alone cometh salvation to all men." Let us therefore watch and pray lest we be led into that temptation that is coming upon all the world to test it. We must keep the patience of God's Word, knowing that "many shall be purified and made white unto the appointed time," but also that "blessed are they which die in the Lord from henceforth. . . . But if any man worship the Beast and his image and receive his mark in his forehead, the same shall drink of the winepress of the wrath of God." The drying-up of the river Euphrates has been accomplished, and the miracle-working powers are abroad to gather the kings of the earth together to the battle of the great day of God Almighty. Then follows the blessed prophecy: "Behold, I come as a thief in the night," which may be concted with that other prophetic exhortation: "Work while e day is with you, for the night cometh when no man shall ork." All which is of signal importance to those who may ll, or have already fallen, under the great delusion. To ese the Lord cries aloud: "Come out of her, my people, at ye be not partakers of her woes." In these days, when the orld is suffering a great blindness, both spiritual and political, e have immediate need to regard the word of the Lord to ie Laodiceans: "I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, iat thou mayest be clothed; and anoint thine eyes with ilve, that thou mayest see. As many as I love I rebuke and iasten. Be zealous, therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand the door! If any man hear my voice and open the door, will come in and will sup with him and he with me." lay we open the gates of our hearts and unlock the chambers f our minds and set ready the house within, that the King f Glory may come in. W. G.

Digitized by Google

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.—IX.

By S. E. Steele.

Israel in the New Testament.

REFERENCE has been made to the taking of the Kingdom rom the Jews by Our Saviour, and giving it to a nation ringing forth the fruits thereof. Though few in number, here can be no mistake made with regard to other references o Israel by their Redeemer.

Throughout the Old Testament God's chosen people Israel vere referred to as "sheep": "That the congregation of the ord be not as sheep which have no shepherd" (Num. xxvii, 7). "I saw all Israel scattered upon the hills, as sheep that iave not a shepherd" (1 Kings xxii, 17; 2 Chron. xviii, 16). 'Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel . . . hould not the shepherds feed the flocks?" "My sheep wandered through all the mountains." "I will both search my sheep, and seek them out." "I will seek that which was ost" (Ezek. xxxiv, 2, 6, 11, 16). Our Saviour said, "For the Son of Man is come to save that which was lost. How think ye?—if a man have an hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine . . . and seeketh that which is gone astray?" (Matt. xviii, 11, 12). His command to the Disciples was to "go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. x, 6). And, again, He said, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. xv, 24). It appears as though Christ had in His mind on each of these occasions the Lost Tribes of Israel. His reply to the Jews who questioned Him seems to bear out this conclusion: "But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep" (John x, 24–26). For 1,500 years Israel had been called by God "His sheep." It is hardly conceivable that Christ, who quoted so frequently from the Bible, should confer the same appellation on anyone but the same people. He told the Jews they were not of His sheep, therefore must have alluded to the remaining tribes of Israel, one tribe of whom were present with Him, the men of Galilee, of the tribe of Benjamin, out of whom eleven of the twelve Disciples are said to have been chosen. His last recorded command to Peter was, "Feed my sheep" (John xxi, 17).

St. John (i, 11) said: "He came unto His own and His own received Him not." I am told the words in the Greek translated "own" in this passage are different. (I am not a Greek scholar.) The first "own" is neuter in the Greek, and the second "own" is masculine. The sentence, therefore, if what I am told is correct, literally means "He came unto His own (things, kingdom, or inheritance), and His own (people, the Jews, His own tribe—Judah) received Him not." Though the Jews rejected Him, members of Israel, tribe of Benjamin, Galileans, received Him gladly. This throws a little light on the taking of the kingdom from Judah, and giving it to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof. It was taken from the Jews, and given to Israel, first of all in the persons of the Disciples and Apostles, afterwards to the nation comprising the Ten Tribes.

It is suggested our Lord referred to this "nation" as the vineyard in His parable of the "hiring of labourers into his vineyard" (Matt. xx, 1). Isaiah (v. 7) says: "For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel."

Paul and Israel.

It is evident that most of the people to whom Paul, the Apostle, wrote his Epistles were scattered portions of the lost tribes. Of the Corinthians, for instance, he says: "I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat (see Exodus xvi, 15) and did all drink the same spiritual drink (see Exodus xvii, 6): for they drank of that spiritual Rock that went with them" (margin) (1 Cor. x, 1–4). The people to whom he wrote were not of Judah. "For the Jews require a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom; but we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness" (1 Cor. i, 22, 23).

Moreover, he tells them: "Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away unto these dumb idols, even as ye were led" (1 Cor. xii, 2). The question may be asked: "How could they be of Israel if they were Gentiles?" The word Gentile is generally misunderstood. To the Romans all outside the Roman Empire were Gentiles; to the Jews all heathen—that is, all outside the worshippers of God, or keepers of the Mosaic law, were Gentiles. Literally, it means "uncovenanted peoples"—i.e., nations outside of the covenant made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Members of Israel who had forsaken God and joined themselves to heathen worship were, therefore, Gentiles, insomuch as they had uncovenanted themselves by forsaking the God of the covenant. The Corinthians before conversion were of the latter class. In the same category Paul places the Ephesians, for he tells them they had been "aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of the promise" (Eph. ii, 12). The same may be said of the Galatians. Paul wrote them that "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law" (Gal. iii, 13), and "before faith came, we were kept under the law" (iii, 23); therefore they must have been Israelites, redeemed by Christ. Those called "Gentiles" by the Jews had never been under the law, therefore could not be redeemed. Only those who had in the past been God's people—as Israel had—could be redeemed (brought back) from the curse of the law. Christ came as "Saviour of the World," and "Redeemer of Israel." "But when the fulness of time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that WE might receive the adoption of sons" (Gal. iv, 4, 5).

Digitized by Google

It appears also as though the Philippians were of the same people, for Paul said to them, "If any other man (or any man of them) thinketh that he hath whereof he might trust in the flesh, I more: circumcised (only kept by Hebrews) the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews" (Phil. iii, 4, 5).

Before leaving the great Apostle Paul, a reference to his Second Epistle to Timothy will not be out of place. He was in prison in Rome, awaiting martyrdom, when he wrote this Epistle. He specified Pudens, Linus, and Claudia amongst the brethren who send greetings to Timothy (2 Tim. iv, 21). The historian Martial, a native of Spain, who resided in Rome from A.D. 49 to 86, says that Pudens was a son of the Roman Senator, and that Claudia, who was a British lady, was his wife. Linus was a brother of Claudia, and both were children of Caractacus, the first royal convert to Christianity. This disposes of the contention that Rome introduced Christianity into England, and confirms the statement that Rome was Christianized from Britain, under the direction of Paul and other Apostles.

PERFECTION.

By Henry Proctor, F.R.S.L.

APART from absolute perfection to which we shall attain hereafter, there are three kinds of perfection promised in the Word of God. That in Matt. v, 48, is, according to the context,

The Perfection of Love.

"God's love is poured out like a flood into our hearts." Its perfection is such that it can enable us to do what no human or finite love could do: "To love our enemies, to bless them that curse us, and do good to them that hate us." We may be made perfect in love through the possession of HIS Perfect Love: "Herein is our love made perfect"; "If we love one another, God abideth in us, and His love is perfected in us." It is not after all our love, but His love—the very same love as that between Christ and the Father: "That the love wherewith Thou hast loved me may be in them" (John xvii, 26). This love may be perfected in us, so that we are made perfect in love. We need not cherish in our hearts anything that is contrary to love. We are to accept it, to take it from God, as the superlative necessity—the girdle which makes all complete. "The bond of perfectness." Perfect love is essential to Perfect Health.

Moses, who is set forth as an example of perfect health, was also an example of perfect love, for he was willing to be blotted out of the Book of Life, and so to forfeit his soul's salvation, for the sake of a people who sought to stone him (Ex. xvii, 4) and to turn back into Egypt. It is perfect love that can bring perfect health. Moses had not that perfect health in Midian, for he it was who wrote: "Our life is seventy years at most, or eighty at the best." "Our days droop under Thy displeasure. Our life is over like a sigh. It is a span of toil and trouble, soon over, and we flit away." (Psa. xc, 9, 10—Moff., see heading.)

It was only after the call of God, when He spoke to him in the bush, and caused him to bring Israel out of Egypt, that his youth was renewed like the eagle. For he laid down his own life for the sake of the nation and so became the possessor of

A New Life in Christ,

Whose reproach he esteemed as greater riches than all the treasures of Egypt. He, as well as Caleb, had that perfect healing and perfect health which was promised to all the children of Israel: "I will take away all sickness from the midst of you" (Deut. vii, 15), so that when they came out of Egypt "There was not one feeble person among their tribes."

Another perfection that is promised us is Perfect Peace.

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee" (Isa. xxvi, 3). And these three, this trinity of perfection, agree in one. For perfect peace is only possible to perfect love, which casteth out all fear. "I would have you to be free from anxiety," saith the God of Peace. "Be anxious for nothing, for the God of Love shall supply all your need." Ye shall therefore be healthy because I am Holy (Lev. xi, 44—Ferrar Fenton). Perfect health conduces to perfect peace, and perfect peace to health of spirit, soul and body. Perfect soundness (holokleria) of spirit, soul and body, is given by the God of Peace (1 Thes. v, 23) as the result of entire sanctification, or Christian perfection, to which some had attained in Paul's day, for they were styled "teleioi," or perfect ones, who were prepared for instruction in the Wisdom of God. These are they who were made perfect in love (1 Cor. ii, 6). It is perfect love which brings perfect peace, and, apart from these two, the perfect soundness promised in 1 Thes. v, 23, 24 is impossible. They are not maintained without a struggle. For we have to struggle not with blood and flesh, but with the angelic rulers, the angelic authorities, the potentates of the dark present, the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly sphere (Ephes. vi, 12—Moffat). But in all these things we are

More than Conquerors

because we have the Overcomer within, and He daily leadeth us in the train of His triumphs. Neither are we exempted from the sufferings caused by persecutions, and the buffetings of the enemy, but it is thus that we become partakers of the sufferings of Christ, through which He as a man was made perfect. And it is His desire to present every one of us to Himself "Perfect in Christ Jesus" (Coll. i, 28). So that we are growing up in all things like unto Him, until we reach the ideal Man, the full standard of the perfection of the Christ (Ephes. iv, 13—20 Cent.).

Erratum.—NATIONAL MESSAGE, August 3rd, page 484, et seq. Article, "Some Links in the Chain." For "Brutae" read "Brut or Brutus."

Digitized by Google

print of an Address by

REV. DINSDALE T. YOUNG, D.D.

Y no means an expert, I am warmly sympathetic with the reat ideals which this Federation represents, and consider iat any Society that calls attention to the Bible, that ɔcuses men's minds on the Bible, that says to British nd American people, or, for that matter, to any people, the reatest interpretation of history is in the Bible, such society as a right to the warm sympathy of all Christian ministers, nd of all Christian people. I rejoice greatly to think that the ɔve of the Bible is so fostered by means of this Society, and now from experience that many have borne witness, and have been delighted to hear it—that the Bible has ecome a new Book to them, that prophecy has acquired a ew illumination and a new fascination, and that they have een more and more clearly what is, indeed, a great fact, that he newspapers are a very vivid annotator of Scripture. There s nothing that is more needed in England to-day, and I will enture to speak dogmatically; most people are a trifle afraid f being dogmatic; I think it is a very good thing to be dogmatic; and say this—that the greatest need of England to-day, nd emphatically the greatest need of the Church, is to redisover the wonderfulness of the Bible. A good many ɔreachers have been telling us for years that the Bible is ıot what we want. What is it? This Federation attempts—will put it in a modest way—attempts to make a great ontribution to the answering of that question. You are to ɔe congratulated on the voices that sound out from your nidst on this subject, and on the literature that is put into your hands. It is one of the ill fashions of a modern theology o cry down prophecy. This Society exalts prophecy; and you may depend upon it that the whole argument that prophecy is an evidence of the inspiration of Scripture s an argument that never can be controverted. Then we ıear a great deal about the philosophy of history. No man is an up-to-date public speaker if he does not use some such term as, for instance, "environment"; he would be considered greatly behind the times if he did not drop the word "heredity," and be set down as an old fogey. That term "philosophy of history" is a wonderful phrase on many very wonderful lips. Now I venture to say that this Federation—and it is a very moderate thing to say—wins our regard in that it puts before us a philosphy of British history, to go no further. That is, at any rate, a philosophy that sets the thoughtful man thinking, and that goes a long way to answer one of the most difficult problems of British history.

No, I am no expert on this subject. I call myself a student of it. I will use an extremely modest term—I am a learner, and a learner more and more inclined to the conviction that along the line that this Society takes we may travel with great intellectual help. One other thing. It has been my joy to know a considerable number of friends to whom the Anglo-Israel creed was very dear. In my youth one of my nearest and dearest relatives, a clergyman of the Church of England, a very noble scholar, both in the Hebrew and in the Greek, a man who lived in his Bible, was one of the most fervent believers in this Truth. He indoctrinated it to me in my early years; as a matter of fact, he was one of the earliest writers in "The Banner of Israel." I allude to the late Rev. James Macintosh. So that I was brought up, I may say, in this atmosphere.

I have always gladly observed this, and have seen it without exception in those I have met who have held this creed—that it has greatly enhanced their evangelical passion; it has given them a new motivity for carrying the Gospel to all possible recipients of that Gospel. Anything that will kindle new fires of the evangelical in the human breast is something that we ought to welcome with intense cordiality.

If another word might be ventured it would be to encourage any timid students of this faith. You may be called cranks. That is the description that those ill-furnished with arguments resort to—they describe their opponents as cranks. What a comfort it is that hard words break no bones! What a comfort it is that a sneer is not invincible logic! I care less and less about being called a crank, especially as I study the personalities of the people who apply that term. Whether you be called cranks, or not, I would venture to say to all who love this Cause—keep on searching the Bible, keep hold of the lamp that can alone fling adequate light upon the dark place we call earth, keep on following the line of prophecy, keep on, as John Wesley said, reading your newspapers to see how God is governing the world, and you may depend upon it that though you may be treated with obloquy and reviled, in good time you will be recognized as those who have made a solid contribution to the religious enhancement of the world.

A PRAYER.

O LORD GOD of our Fathers, Who hast led us Thy people through times of danger and necessity by ways which we knew not, look upon us once again we pray Thee in this hour of need. Grant to us the spirit of humility and penitence. O LORD, we have sinned in that we have forgotten THEE, we have neglected THY DAY, THY HOUSE and THY WORD, these great gifts which we have inherited from our Fathers, and have wandered far from Thy Law. But THOU art the great and merciful GOD WHO hast kept the COVENANT with our Fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and in these latter days hast magnified Thy mercy above all Thy NAME. O LORD, we praise THEE for Thy great goodness, and pray Thee that Thou wilt pour upon us Thy Holy Spirit, that we may both perceive and know what things we ought to do and also may have grace faithfully to fulfil the same, through Jesus Christ our Lord.—Amen.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

Some engagements for next week:—

BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, Friday, 23rd, at 8. Mr. McKelvey.
BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 19th, at 8.
CARDIFF, Central Y.M.C.A., Tuesday, 20th, at 7.
HALIFAX, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 21st, at 7.30.
HIGHGATE, 223, Archway Road, Wednesday, 21st, at 8.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 20th, at 7.30. Mr. F. W. Lythe.
LEICESTER, S.S. Memorial Hall, New Walk, Monday, 19th, at 7.45. Mr. I. E. Wesley.
NOTTINGHAM, Friar Lane Schools, Thursday, 22nd, at 7.30. Miss S. A. Robinson.
PUTNEY, 12, Ravenna Road, Monday, 19th, at 8.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

MR. AND MRS. GARRISON reached Montreal at the end of July on their return from the Pacific coast, stopping en route for a meeting at Jasper Park. At Montreal Mr. Garrison addressed a distinguished audience of Americans, a Cabinet Minister presiding.

A cable just received announces important interviews, and visits to Harvard and Yale Universities. The cable states that our Message is urgently needed.

* * *

Railway vouchers for fares at reduced rates are now ready in whatever numbers are required by those intending to come to London for the Tenth Annual Congress at Central Hall, Westminster, and for the special Lantern Lecture entitled "Canada," to be given by Mr. Garrison on Wednesday evening, October 2nd. Please write for these vouchers to the Secretary, B.-I.-W.F., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1. They are available for use on or after September 28th, the return journey to be made not later than October 14th.

* * *

We appeal to our readers for liberal donations for the expenses of the Congress. Publicity is an expensive item, but money is well spent thereon. May no effort be spared to make sure that large numbers who know nothing of our great Teaching shall hear it then.

* * *

Tickets for Mr. Garrison's lecture, "CANADA," may be obtained from Headquarters until the opening of the Box-office at Central Hall. The prices are: Reserved seats, 3s. and 2s.; unreserved, 1s. We are looking forward to a magnificent lecture, fresh, and full of delightful experiences, illustrated by excellent lantern pictures. In this we shall have Mr. Garrison at his best.

* * *

There are still a few last-minute applications for railway vouchers for reduced fares to our Convention at Llandrindod Wells, which commences on the 26th.

* * *

The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson has had a very gratifying tour recently in the Eastern part of his district. Cambridge was his first objective, where Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were very kindly entertained by the Rev. and Mrs. L. Iggulden at Elsworth Rectory. Mr. Iggulden is the Rural Dean of his neighbourhood, and a keen supporter of the British-Israel Movement. In Cambridge a meeting was held in the garden of St. Philip's Vicarage, by kind permission of the Vicar, who was present. From Cambridge the Commissioner and Mrs. Johnson journeyed to Terrington St. Clement, near King's Lynn, and were the guests of Colonel and Mrs. Hume at Terrington Court over the week-end. On the Saturday afternoon Mr. Johnson addressed a number of friends who had been invited to meet in the grounds of Terrington Court. The gathering included three clergymen, one of whom was a friend of the Commissioner's in Ceylon, and all expressed great interest in the subject of British-Israel, which was new to most of those present. It is hoped that a series of meetings will be held in King's Lynn in the autumn and winter. From Terrington Mr. and Mrs. Johnson drove to Lowestoft, where an enthusiastic audience, gathered at the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Bentley, expressed warm approval of the address delivered, which was followed by a few well-chosen remarks by two of our supporters in the district. A short stay was made in Ipswich on the way home, but no meeting was possible here as people were otherwise engaged. Mr. Johnson hopes to visit Ipswich again next month, as well as Norwich and Yarmouth, and to arrange for future meetings. Our supporters in all these districts are urged to get in touch with the Commissioner at once, at Headquarters, with a view to arranging for meetings and otherwise extending the work.

* * *

We acknowledge, with grateful thanks, receipt of the following donations:—M. B., £10; Middlesbrough, 1s.; Mr. and Mrs. H., £1; J. F. M., 5s.; M. S., 2s. 6d.; A. M. A., 10s.; N. B., 12s.; Mr. and Mrs. P. W. B., £3; A. C., £20; W. H. R. M., £10; A. M. B., £2; D. T., £2; R. G. R., £4 12s. 3d.; E. S. R., £3; E. C. H. H., £15; L. Y., £10; A. T., £1; G. R. F. T., £1; R. S., £20; W. J. C. E., £2; E. F. G., £5; R. C., £1; G. M. M., £5; G. F. J., Ten Dollars; E. D. S., £1; Whonnock, B.C., Forty Dollars; A. M. W., Ten Dollars; L. T., £2; Belfast, £2; E. P., £5; S. H. R., £5; W. J. G., £1; W. C. B., £5; H. C. R., 10s.; V. F., £2; E. F., £3; K. F., £5; E. B. F., £5; Misses C., £5; C. H. W., £5; Jock, £1; H. E. C., £5; E. G. C., £5; F. N. H., 5s.; Anon., 4s.; Anon., 10s.; Anon., £2 2s.; R. G., £5; E. S. S., £2; T. S. A., 10s.; F. St. C., £5; Z. M. G., £5; H. J. K., £10; H. S. C., £2; C. H. C., £1; M. H., 10s.; M. P., £1; C. H. L. P., £3; C. K. B., £1; L. E. L., £1; J. G. A., 7s. 9d.; E. F., £1; F. J. W., £5; A. A. P., £5 2s. 8d.; Ealing, £10; P. A., £1; C. M. B., £5; Bert, £2; In Gratitude, £20; G. H., £8 8s.; F. H., £5; L. J., £1; M. E. C., Five Dollars; J. B. O., 5s.; W. L. S., One Dollar; C. L. S., £1; Anon., 10s.; Anon., 16s.; V. F., £10; Anon., £1; Anon., £1; C. H. W., £5; A. S. B., Thirty Dollars; B. N., 10s.; One in Sympathy, 10s.; W. and L. S., 15s.; M. H., £3; A. M. B., £50; V. F., £3; F., £1; Mrs. S., £1; L. H., 10s.; C. V. B., £13 2s.; Herne Bay, £3; Mr. and Mrs. P. W. B., £3; F. G. W., 6s.; N. M. B., 16s. 3d.; C. C. W., Twenty Dollars; L. S., 10s.; J. D., Five Dollars; L. B., £1; E. C. H. H., £5; C. H. W., £4; W. C. B., £5; B. L. M., 5s.; J. C. W., 10s.; G. H. B., £1; E. M. H., £1; Anon., 5s.; A. W., 2s.; E. A. S., £2; C. R., £2; S. G., 10s.; E. P., £2 2s.; C. A. C., £50; G. E. T., 5s.; M. M. T., £5; F. M. and E. W., 10s.; A. C., 10s.; E. C., 10s.; C. J. G., 8s.; J. M. C., £5; M. I. S., 4s.; A Brother in Prayer, Ten Dollars; M. A. H., £5; F. J. and E. A., 10s.; J. G. R. W., 10s.; Anon., 10s.; W. W., Philadelphia, £2; Housewife, £1; Anon., 10s.; E. J. B., £1; E. St. C. H., £1; F., £1; E. E. R., 7s.; Anon., £10; W. S., £2; Mrs. and Miss E. M. S., £1 15s.; M. B., 5s.; Nobody, £5; L. E. L., £2; Anon., £5; Well Wisher, £6; E. M. H., 10s. 6d.; H. C., £5 10s.; M. E. G., £1 1s.; Curly, £1; E. R., £10; M. H., £5; J. C. C., £1; Israelite, 2s. 6d.; D. T., £2; S. W. C. and Mrs. H., £1; Anon., 10s.; J. G. D., £1.

Digitized by Google

A FASCINATING UP-TO-THE-MINUTE

LECTURE

by

HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

"CANADA"

AND SOME OF THE WONDERS OF THE UNITED STATES

Illustrated by a magnificent series of LANTERN PICTURES

Central Hall, Westminster, London, S.W.1.
Wednesday Evening, October 2, at 7.30.

First reserved seats 3/-. Second Reserved 2/-. Unreserved 1/-. Applications for tickets, with remittance and postage, to The Assistant Secretary, 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

HOTEL RUBENS

Buckingham Palace Rd., London, S.W.
(Facing the Palace)
Adjacent to the
FEDERATION HEADQUARTERS

All Bedrooms have Hot and Cold Water and Telephone.
Private Bathrooms. Enclosed Suites.
Every luxury and convenience; in a word,
ALL ONE COULD DESIRE IN AN HOTEL

THE RUBENS ROOMS

An excellent suite of rooms in the hotel buildings which may be retained for any Social Function, Private Dinners, Dances, Receptions, etc.

Particulars of open dates from the Manager

Telegrams: "RUBOTELIER, SOWEST, LONDON."
Telephone: VICTORIA 6600. One minute Victoria Station.

HOTEL BERKELEY

63-67, QUEENSBOROUGH TERRACE
HYDE PARK, LONDON, W.2
PARK 1797.

Two minutes Kensington Gardens, Buses and Tubes.
HOT AND COLD RUNNING WATER.
GAS FIRE ALL BEDROOMS. PASSENGER LIFT.
Noted for Healthy Position, Quiet, Cleanliness,
EXCELLENT FOOD AND ATTENDANCE.
Terms from 3 gns. per week, including Four Meals, Baths, Light and Attendance; from 10s. 6d. daily.
NO EXTRAS.

Form of Bequest

TO THE

BRITISH-ISRAEL-WORLD FEDERATION.

I give and bequeath to the British-Israel-World Federation, London, the sum of £..... sterling, free of duty, to be paid to the Secretary-General of the Federation for the time being, whose receipt shall be a sufficient discharge for the same.

Digitized by Google

WHAT IS THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN?

This question, simple to ask, but very difficult to answer, is dealt with in

The Simple Truth

by

REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S.

Every B.-I. student should read this little pamphlet which, in simple language and straightforward argument, makes clear to us our privileges, our blessings and our duties, and which gives a plain and concise answer to the question.

Price 6d., by post 7d.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1.

British-Israel A.B.C.

A work of reference which should be available to every B.-I. In its appropriate order, alphabetically, is to be found the answer to nearly every query which can be raised by an enquirer.

By H. PERIAM HAWKINS

81 pp. Paper cover.

Price 1/- By Post, 1/2

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, S,W.1.

OUR DAYS ARE NUMBERED

By J. Bernard Nicklin.

(WITH FOREWORD BY G. A. ROBISON.)

New light on the numbers of Daniel and Revelation—Striking new evidence that the "Day" intervals of prophecy are now being literally fulfilled—Leading events of past 15 years occurring to a Divine Time Table—Proof that God is over-ruling in the affairs of men, and a Sign of the End—All interested in prophecy and British-Israel Truth should study this.

1/- Post free.

Advent Herald, 1 Cleveland Terrace, Bath.

OR FROM

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6 Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

GOOD ADVICE

To a friend in distress you would tender sympathy and helpful advice. You have many friends unwittingly ignorant of the greatest truth affecting our State to-day. Give them that word of helpful advice. Introduce them to "The National Message." Tell them the value of its teaching. Let them know the help you get from it week by week. Then get them to fill up the Subscription Form below and send it to us. This Message can then be addressed to them and so our good work will go on.

Special Campaign for Increasing the Circulation of this Journal.

I wish to help, and I send herewith the sum of.....

for which please send ..... copies for three, six, twelve months to (Name) .....

Postal address .....

.....

.....

Alternative form :—

I enclose the sum of .....

Please send..... copies to whomsoever you may select for a period covered by this amount.

N.B.—The subscription is 3/- for three months; 6/- for six months; 12/- for twelve months. Canada and U.S.A. $3 per annum.

ADDRESS—

The Secretary,
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

AUGUST 24, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

AUG 31 1929

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY (ABRAHAMS) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24·7

GT BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1ST CHRON 29 v 23 JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT"

Is 19 v 19·20 JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11.

J J HALL 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

GOD'S COMMONWEALTHS

By "ROADBUILDER"

(Author of "The Destiny of the British Empire and the U.S.A.")

The "Roadbuilder" makes his appeal, in a very matter-of-fact logical manner, to the readers' reason and judgment of the facts which he sets before them with an enthusiasm and knowledge that carries the reader under its spell until the book is finished.

Realising that a straight diet of strong food is not conducive to the making of cheerful readers, the author serves an occasional sip of the wine of his war experiences, interspersed in a pleasing manner throughout the chapters.

The theme of the book is that the History of the rise and growth of the British Empire and the United States of America is foretold in the Bible as God's servant Nations. These two great Commonwealths fulfil, and are in physical possession of, all the Covenants and Promises that Jehovah made to the Fathers, to Israel of the Isles, and to the House of David down through the ages.

Jehovah designedly hid these facts from Anglo-Saxondom until the time of the Gentiles was fulfilled, as it was when General Allenby redeemed Jerusalem from the treading down by Turkey in 1917.

Cloth, Crown 8vo. 287 pages. Price 8/-. By post, 8/6

IS IT IN YOUR LIBRARY OF B.-I. BOOKS?

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

A NEW BOOK

"BRITISH-ISRAEL, HOW I CAME TO BELIEVE IT"

By The Right Rev. BISHOP TITCOMB, D.D.

This is a revised edition of "The Anglo-Israel Post Bag," which has been prepared by the Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D. Out of print for years, we have been constantly asked to reprint it, and now it is ready in its new form. Older British-Israelites will want copies, and those new to our Truth cannot afford to be without it. The author's objections and difficulties have been squarely faced and satisfactorily answered. These difficulties, in one form or another, are the same that are raised by most enquiring minds.

Important Note.

When Bishop Titcomb wrote his book (over fifty years ago) he was under the erroneous impression that the British People were Teutonic. He entirely changed his views about this, as his later book entitled "A Message to the Church," published in 1887, proves.

Professor A. H. Sayce, Professor Sir W. Raleigh, and Professor Sir Arthur Keith, have shown that the British and the Germans belong to opposite types.

Read it and see for yourself. Here you have conclusive answers to most questions in regard to British-Israel Truth.

With Portrait of Author. Crown 8vo, cloth, price 3/9 post free.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING Co. Ltd., 6 Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 399. Vol. VIII. AUGUST 24th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
The Empire in Solution.—II. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	529
The Divine Nomenclature.—II. By James Cuthbert ..	530
Expositions in the Acts of the Apostles.—I. By the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.	532
'Thus saith the Lord God; when the whole earth rejoiceth, I will make thee desolate." By the Rev. Commander L. G. A. Roberts, R.N...	533
Be Kind to the Lesser Folk	534
A Good Slogan. By Charles H. Porter (Geneva, Nebraska, U.S.A.)	536
Reprint of an Address by the Rev. Arthur C. Chambers ..	536
Glastonbury.—III. By Luke Pearce	538
The Bible Basis of British-Israel Truth.—X. By S. E. Steele	539
Correspondence	540
The Value of the Bible	541
Questions and Answers. By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.	541
The Secretary-General's News and Notes	542

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—II.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

The spectacular birth of the nation we have noted. Had space permitted we would have preceded this with notice of the centuries of racial training in Egypt. First under Joseph, with Joseph's sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, as the official heads of the race, who presided at the Councils of the tribes, and who officially represented Israel before the Prime Minister in Egypt, who was Joseph, the father of the boys. By birth and training they were Egyptian courtiers. By birth and heredity they were the official heads of Israel. Thus, with Joseph the Patriarch Prime Minister of Egypt, endowed with autocratic power, and his sons the official hereditary representatives of Israel in Egypt, it was well with the tribes of Israel.

"But there arose a king who knew not Joseph." All this advantage was lost, and the race of Israel was reduced to slavery in Egypt.

The bulk of the people remained to the time of Moses. But there was a large migration from Egypt during that period. Of that migration was a branch of Judahites, who followed the banner of Zarah, the son of Judah, he of the scarlet cord which marked his birthright as the head of the tribe of Judah. These followed their leader to the banks of the Dardanelles, and there they founded the kingdom of Priam, the capital of which was the city of Troy.

The bulk of the people of Israel remained, as we have said, and gathered impressions, and suffered experiences, which gave to the race for ever a hatred of serfdom and of slavery which was never to die, and which burns strongly in the breasts of British people wherever they are found to the present day.

But time will not allow that we should dwell on this training period of the race, which period PRECEDED the birth of the national organization.

The national organization came as we have seen.

We must now call attention to the wonderful first forty years of the life of the nation. There is nothing like it elsewhere in the world's history. The facts explain many things connected with the sudden appearance of this nation among the nations of the world, which without this explanation would fail of being understood.

For instance, the sudden arrival of the fully organized nation upon the stage of world history: its perfection in monotheism and the worship of the true God: its perfection of law and its administration: its perfection of every department of national life. Other nations have taken ages for the development of their systems, none of which have ever attained the perfection of this. But this nation was born among the nations perfect in every department.

In order to bring about this result we see a nation forty years in intensive training in the wilderness. They were literally shut up with God. They had no international intercourse. They were shut off from Egypt; they were rebuffed by the nations of Palestine; they could not pass to the Euphratean nations unless the road through Palestine were open to them, and even the road TO Palestine was closed to them, as the history of the period so clearly shows, and later diplomatic correspondence, centuries after the event, confirms.

Digitized by Google

They had neither manufactories for trading purposes nor commerce. They built no cities, nor even houses. Their clothes and shoes were miraculously preserved. They had no agriculture, but were miraculously fed with manna from Heaven. What a weary time for a whole nation, one would be apt to exclaim.

Not so! It was a national school, intensely mastering the problems of every department of life. They were mastering the fact of God, and the Presence of Jehovah in their midst. They were mastering the doctrines and the worship. They were mastering the law and applying it from day to day to every department of life—individual, social and national. They were mastering the practice of all these things in actual life. They were a nation at school, and were attending to only this one thing.

Out from that school came the greatest political economists the world has ever known. Out from that school came the most tremendous system and masters of theology ever known. Out from that school came a race prepared and trained to rule.

The training thus begun has never ended. The practice thus inaugurated has never ceased.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF TRIBES UNDER THE HEGEMONY OF EPHRAIM.

This is the next phase of the history of our people.

The modern history of the United States, in principle, reproduces the period usually called the period of the Judges.

As a matter of fact it was the period of Tribal Federation under the general leadership of the Prince of the tribe of Ephraim. For the birthright which carried with it supreme authority, not to say autocratic authority, belonged to the Chief of the tribe of Ephraim, as the heir of Joseph. There were at this time no Presidential elections among the tribes. The hereditary Prince of Ephraim was always the President of the United Tribes.

Such an one was not always the most fitted to lead in the nation's defence. Therefore Judges arose, and were accepted as the military leaders and the administrators of the constitution. But this did not displace the President of the nation, any more than the rise of a Premier in France would displace the President of France.

It was a most interesting period which it will pay the student well to study. Our theologians have not as yet seen the simple and yet vital facts which underlie the history of this period. It is generally supposed that during this time the tribe of Judah was the leading tribe in Israel. The history of Israel does not give any ground for this assumption, in fact it states the opposite. Judah did not assume prominence until it elected David to be its king, and set up the kingdom of Judah, consisting of that one tribe only, over which David ruled for seven and a half years.

During this period the nation was passing through stages of development corresponding to the early history of the thirteen colonies, and finally the Federation of the United States of America. This we have already pointed out.

But the similitude does not end there. In entering into the land, and for three and a half centuries thereafter, Israel was in conflict with the rival nations dwelling in Palestine, even as early Americans were in conflict with the numerous, powerful and warlike tribes of Indians.

Still further is the similitude found when we consider the nation Israel in conflict with other and more civilized nations such as Ammon, Edom, Syria, Assyria and Egypt, as early America saw the struggle with Spain, France and England.

Joshua began the great eviction of the nations from Palestine, for, contrary to the impression of certain modern critics of the Joshua period, the people were "driven out" of the land, and not universally slaughtered as some seem to believe. The utter destruction ordered and carried out was restricted to the centres of heathen worship, which were centres of spiritual and physical disease, so utterly foul as to be capable of corrupting all the nations which came in contact therewith. To have driven out the venereal wretches who denizened these places would have been to spread contagion wherever they went. Let us remember that one day's contact with such a centre caused the death of twenty-four thousand men in one day in Israel, and the plague was still raging when the application of Divine healing power "stayed the plague." It is in line with the ignorance of facts of modern destructive critics that they should have charged the death of these to the act of God, instead of to physical contact with Baal Peor. The staying of the destruction, self sought, from sweeping further through the camp was an act of Divine healing mercy. The only ones who died that day at the command of God were the leaders who led the people astray. That was the only Biblical case of which we know where men were commanded to be hanged because of transgression in which they had caused the people to sin. God is ever merciful to the individual sinner—but ever terrible to that one, or that class, or that nation who causes others to sin.

Joshua, then, began the great eviction of the intruding peoples from the heritage given of God to the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob centuries before, for ever.

The struggle continued with unabated vigour until the days of King Saul. In the final battle of his career he and his son Jonathan were slain, and Israel was scattered before the contending armies of Canaan.

This closed the period to which we have last referred.

Now the tribal federation gives place to the unified nation under David.

The reign of David was taken up with the effort to put an end to the struggle with the internal foes of Israel. These were finally subjugated, and from the time of David forward they are heard of as national units no more.

Again we have the parallel of the United States, as they progressed out of the period of Indian wars to the time when, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the nation entered upon a period of peace and unity.

THE DIVINE NOMENCLATURE.—II.

BY JAMES CUTHBERT.

AN arresting fact meets the student of this subject at the very outset of his inquiries. In the opening sentence of the opening chapter of the opening book of God's revelation to man a word appears which denotes the Triune character of the Godnead. "In the beginning created Alehim the heavens and he earth," so runs the introductory sentence. What is ntended to be conveyed by the general account of Creation which follows is that this earth and the vast universe were brought into being in accordance with the plan agreed upon by the Triune God in council.

Digitized by Google

In the second chapter of Genesis Yehovah is conjoined with the Alehim in the work of Creation. From the fourth verse onwards the form is "Yehovah-Alehim," and this is rendered "Lord God." This second narrative is alike suggestive and instructive. The momentous fact is unmistakably set forth that Yehovah, the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, appears in the history of our earth at the earliest possible moment in relation to Creation in general, and of man in particular. While chapter i reveals the Triune God working in complete harmony, chapter ii discloses the important fact of the Son of God carrying out the decrees of the Alehim. To Yehovah, the Messias to be, was entrusted the work of moulding this world of ours, and of all things living therein. Here we see the future Saviour engaged in the great work of fashioning man. Small wonder that He would have an enduring love and an abiding interest in this the crowning work of His Almighty Power and Creative genius.

This love and pity for the being made in His own image became manifest immediately after the Fall. Man failed to win that gift of immortality which would have rewarded his adherence to his Creator's injunctions and warnings. Having forfeited the inestimable prize by his own folly, by "jumping" the curve of righteousness upon which he had been placed, the rebel Adam, now estranged from God, was heading straight for death—everlasting death both of body and soul. It was from this dire plight that he was rescued by Yehovah-Alehim, his Creator and Saviour. Man was placed upon a new curve of righteousness, a fact testified by the sacrifices offered by Cain and Abel to Yehovah, the ordained Messias from all Eternity. Through faith and obedience the way was once more open to man and his descendants, after enduring much sorrow and suffering, and tasting of death, to reach the goal of everlasting life. This is the golden lesson enshrined in the second narrative of Creation.

The first intimation that the Alehim, or Triune God, is a covenant-making God appears in the sixth chapter of Genesis, where it is written—"But with thee (Noah) will I establish My covenant." Noah having completed the Ark and made all arrangements according to the directions of the Alehim, Yehovah now appears on the scene as taking charge of all life enclosed in the Ark, and in directing the manner in which the earth was to be overwhelmed by the long-predicted flood of waters. Then in chapter ix, when Noah and his family, and the living things with him, had gone forth of the Ark, it is the covenant-making Alehim that once more blesses and speaks to Noah, and cheers him by announcing to him that with him and with his seed He will establish His covenant, the nature of the covenant being that never more should there be a flood to destroy the earth. We know that this covenant has been and is being kept by the Alehim.

The historical narrative of God's dealings with Abraham are not only wonderfully arresting, but are gravely important as affording material for testing God's power and ability to carry out to completion His covenant-promises. The first of the promises to Abraham was made by Yehovah, as recorded in chapter xii, where the patriarch is informed for the first time that God would make of him a great nation, and that in him all the families of the earth would be blessed. A little later the same Divine Personage promises Abraham all the land of Canaan, and a multitudinous seed. Coming now to the time when Abraham was 99, there is a further renewal and amplification of the promises, and the occasion is made all the more solemn by Abraham being spoken to by Yehovah, and also by the Alehim or Triune God. What the Son promises, God, in His threefold aspect, confirms and amplifies. A hostile critic has indeed audaciously asserted that on this occasion it was Al-Shadai and not Yehovah who spoke to Abraham. This is not so ; the critic errs. It is Yehovah Who is speaking, and He alludes to Himself appellatively as Al-Shadai, God Almighty, and He does so to assure Abraham that what he is about to hear he can accept in faith, and with full assurance that it will be brought to pass by God. Then the Alehim talked with Abraham, confirming and enlarging the promises made by Yehovah, giving him and his seed Canaan for an everlasing possession, and establishing circumcision as a sign of the covenant.

The modern Turks, we now know, are the descendants of Esau, and they have held rule over the Holy Land for many generations. But Turkey, being Edom, was bound to be dispossessed of sovereignty over the Land of Promise. Surely it is no great stretch of faith to believe that the people who brought Edom's rule over the plains of Palestine to an end can be none other than the seed of Isaac. This is less difficult to believe when we recall the prophecy by Ezekiel—"And I will lay my vengeance upon Edom by the hand of my people Israel." This prophecy was delivered when both the Houses of Israel were lifted out of their own land. The kingdom of Judah had been brought to an end by Nebuchadnezzar, and the Jews were captives in Babylon and neighbourhood in the south-east; the northern kingdom, Ten-Tribed Israel, had been utterly broken for over a century previously, and were at this time contemplating throwing off the Assyrian yoke and escaping from their captivity beyond the Kurdistan range of mountains in the far north-east. If Ezekiel's prophecy regarding God's vengeance upon Edom did not receive fulfilment when Turkish rule over Palestine was brought to an end during the Great War, by British arms, it still remains to be fulfilled. This would mean the re-establishment of Turkish rule over the Holy Land—a proposition, humanly speaking, utterly unthinkable. The prophecy may be capable of a further or enlarged meaning, namely, the driving of Edom out of Constantinople—"the strong city" of the Psalmist :—"Who will bring me into the strong city ; who will lead me into Edom? Wilt not thou, O God, which hadst cast us off?" The probability is that the driving of Edom out of Constantinople and Europe will be accomplished by his brother Jacob. That it will be done is certain ; but it will be brought about in God's own way—not man's way, or that of the politician.

Digitized by Google

EXPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

By the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.

I.—The Purpose and Intention of the Acts.

It will be well at the very outset of these expositions to have in mind the purpose and intention of the writer of this book, known as "The Acts of the Apostles." That, of course, is not the title which the writer himself gave to his book, but one which was given much later; by whom is of no consequence. St. Luke, who is no doubt the writer, throws his writing into the form of a private letter addressed to some distinguished person called Theophilus, the same person to whom he addresses his account of the life of Christ, known to us as St. Luke's Gospel. In that form it was not necessary that he should give any title at all to his work. It may therefore be quite in order to suggest another title which may be more in harmony, as I judge, with the purpose and intention of St. Luke. I have always regarded this book as the continued life of Christ among men. It is the sequel to the Gospel as St. Luke tells it. He begins by reminding Theophilus of the former treatise, which he had penned to him, and in which he undertook to rehearse those things which "Jesus began to do and to teach." He suggests that the first words and works of Christ were but a beginning. He would have Theophilus understand that, though Christ's bodily presence had been removed, the work He had begun was by no means ended. He says in effect: "I intend now to write my second volume of the life of Christ." This then was St. Luke's purpose and intention. Let us see how he fulfilled his self-imposed task. In the first place he links up this treatise with the former one by going back a little on the Gospel account of the Resurrection of Christ. There is no abrupt finish of the Gospel narrative, a modern suggestion, "to be continued in our next." It is so rounded off that, if you care, you may stop there and read no more. In fact, he rounds off his narrative as if that were indeed the last word to be said upon the subject. "And they worshipped Him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy; and were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God." And still it is a finish which leaves a very great deal more to be said when time and opportunity offered.

He leaves the disciples in Jerusalem and in a religious mood. That is important. It is to the religious man, intent upon the praise and worship of God, that the further revelation comes, and the vaster activities of the religious soul are presented. There would have been no "Acts of the Apostles," there could have been no Pentecost in the Christian sense, if those first disciples had not returned to Jerusalem, and to the Temple, praising and blessing God. This sequel is the natural outcome of that religious mood and temper in which Christ left His disciples. He left them not dormant but active, not quiescent but energized, not as those who have run the course, but as those who are straining at the leash ready to start when the signal shall be given. That is St. Luke's view of the position, and he goes back a little way to link up this situation of his former treatise with that which he is now about to write. The first twenty verses of the first chapter are taken up with this link in the truly marvellous story he has to tell Theophilus.

There are one or two things in these twenty verses which are worthy of more than a passing reference. The immediate introduction of the Holy Ghost is significant, as it paves the way for what he has to say about the advent of the Spirit in the second chapter. Christ commands them to tarry in Jerusalem by the Holy Ghost. "The former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, until the day in which He was taken up, after that He through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom He had chosen." The Saviour tells them of their coming baptism in the same Spirit, and the power which should follow as a result. In these opening verses we have the introduction of the Holy Ghost into the world by Christ Himself. After this we have the final scene in our Lord's earthly life wrought out in graphic detail.

"And when He had spoken these things, while they beheld, He was taken up; and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven as He went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven. Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a sabbath day's journey." (Acts i, 9–12.)

Here then we have in these verses St. Luke's purpose and intention in writing this second treatise to Theophilus. By the ministry of the Holy Ghost, in the lives of His disciples, Christ is to continue His life and work among men. We are prepared to see then that the Acts of the Apostles has no beginning, resting as it does upon what has gone before; and it has no ending, since there can be no ending to what God does. There are no conclusions in truth; there may be resting-places, a peculiar and practical punctuation of statement, so that we may take time to turn into beneficent action that which has been stated in revealing terms—but the Book is never closed, God's hand never wrote finis: though the Bible be, in point of paper and print, a measurable quantity, it opens a revelation that recedes from us as the horizon recedes from the hands that would grasp it. It may be that this truth has been somewhat obscured to us by the closing of what we call the canon of Holy Scripture, the finishing of the written page and the printed word, though St. John indicates the eternal continuity of the Christ. "And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself would not contain the books which should be written." Do we realize to-day that we are, in our individual lives, and in the national life, writing either for or against the Christ? In so far as we are led by His Spirit we are writing the life-story of Christ, not in ink with the hand, but in life-blood and with the heart. There is a sense in which these Scriptures are never finished, the Book is never completed, the life of Christ is never ended. We must, therefore, be prepared to receive in this treatise of St. Luke but a fragment of the whole, but sufficient to indicate the travail of the Spirit of God among the sons of men. St. Luke knew that he could only hope very briefly to show what God is prepared to do now that His Son is glorified. What he does show to us, read in the light of the vaster whole, is very glorious. First of all he deals with the first disciples who had returned from the mount of Ascension, and the birth of the Spirit of God in their midst. Then he passes with these Spirit-filled disciples to the outer world and relates some of the mighty effects of that spiritual baptism when applied to man's deepest needs. As he proceeds his steps move, through the first persecution, north into Antioch, then west into Asia Minor, and Europe. He follows the course of events not eastward with St. Peter, but westward with St. Paul, and from the thirteenth chapter onwards deals exclusively with the journeys of St. Paul, with whom he was privileged, in great measure, to be associated, until he reaches Rome, which was the Evangelist's earthly objective. And for what purpose? In order to show that Christ had captured the western world, and laid it in worshipful homage at His feet. Two tremendous things were done by St. Paul according to the Acts. Christianity was so implanted by him in the Greek mind that henceforth that same Greek mind was eternally wedded to Christianity. So also was captured, in its measure, the legal, imperial, not to say imperious, Roman mind. What, it has been asked, was the great event of history? Was it when the tribes broke away, and, leaving their primitive homes, began the great trek which brought them to the shores of Britain? Was it the moment when, around the yellow Tiber, the Romans began to build their houses of mud and clay? Great though these and similar events in the world's history may be, there is one, methinks, greater than them all.

Digitized by Google

The great event of history, always excepting the life and death of our Lord, was when St. Paul received his vision at Troas, and saw the man of Macedonia standing before him and crying, "Come over into Macedonia and help us." That was the vision which called him into Europe, and turned his face permanently toward the west. I would like you to read again that stirring account in the light of this thought. See how careful St. Paul is, how jealous of Divine guidance. His natural eastern instinct turned him to look toward the east. St. Luke tells that, thinking they had an open door into Bythynia, they essayed to go, but something, which he does not state, prevented them. It was something evidently which so effectually barred the way as to prove what he says, "The Spirit suffered us not."

The Spirit, that is to say, Christ, was operative, leading and guiding these men to do His will, and that same Christ had decided to go permanently to the west, committing His Gospel for the future to the rising peoples of the west, His own people in the islands afar off. When St. Paul reaches Rome after his shipwreck, then the purpose for which St. Luke first took his pen in hand to write is accomplished, for Christ has carried His life into the then centre of civilization, into the place from which it could spread until the whole earth should be filled with its glory. Though St. Luke does not mention it, and for the very good reason that it does not come within the scope of his treatise, there is very little doubt that St. Paul, ever moving westward, obedient to his Troas vision, came into Spain, and across the sea to these islands, there to discover at least one very valid reason why the vision westward was granted to him, for he then made conjunction with the Church of Jesus Christ which rightly claimed Joseph of Arimathea as its founder, which determined henceforth the centre of Christianity within the Israel kingdom.

Now the same principle which is discovered in this book of the Acts is operative to-day. By the same eternal Spirit of God, in the lives of His faithful ones, Christ is exercising the same governing energy, and is developing the same eternal passion of righteousness. All the testimonies of our martyrs, our Puritan fathers, our missionaries at home and abroad, swell the volume of the Acts. When you read Church history from Ignatius of Antioch, and Polycarp of Smyrna, to the very last act of God's people to-day, you are reading the great volume of the Acts of the Apostles, or "the continued life of Christ among men." The words with which St. Luke concludes his treatise bids us behold the vision splendid, past now but future then, bidding us also lift up our eyes upon our future even as they did upon theirs, confidently expecting the day when Jesus shall come again and fulfil all things; "Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him." (Acts xxviii, 31.)

"THUS SAITH THE LORD GOD; WHEN THE WHOLE EARTH REJOICETH, I WILL MAKE THEE DESOLATE."

(Ezekiel xxxv, 14.)

By the Rev. Commander L. G. A. Roberts, R.N.

These words occur at a very critical period of our history, and to find out when they apply we must do a little political investigation. There is a wordly aspect which is presented in Ezekiel xxxv-xxxvi, which is the policy of what we call to-day "The League of Nations." The object of this League from a human standpoint is good, and if it were only true as to its moral, Peace, fault could not be found with it. But there is no peace to the wicked, says Jehovah. Unfortunately, the League of Nations is an anti-Christian League, judging it from the Saviour's view. "He that is not with Me is against Me." They do not publicly acknowledge God in their counsels, and it is composed of delegates of all nations; the numbers sitting, when fully represented, are about four to one against the policy of the British Empire. From our standpoint, trusting in the Lord our God, we had no business in joining a body which seeks to bring peace only by human means. The spiritual aspect of the words occurring in Ezekiel xxxv is given us in Rev. xi, 10. "And they that dwell upon the earth shall rejoice over them, and make merry, and shall send gifts one to another; because these two prophets tormented them that dwelt on the earth." There is a great similarity in these words to those above. But what is more evident to the student of prophecy is the position in which these words stand relatively to the prophetical sequence of events.

That they both have to do with the Holy City is seen by comparing Ezekiel xxxv, 10; Rev. xi, 2. Let us look at the sequence in Ezekiel. First, we have the reproofs of the shepherds of Israel for misleading the House of Israel and not seeking their restoration (xxxiv). Next, the judgment upon Edom (Turkey), which has held possession of the lands of the nations of Israel and Judah. A controversy (xxxvi, 2-5) takes place as to this possession, taken up in the lips of talkers, "the League of Nations," and God's decision thereupon.

Digitized by Google

In Rev. xi the aspect of the same controversy is apparently upon another standpoint. The Holy City is trodden under foot for 42 months; here note this is exactly the time prophetically, that Mohammedanism has trodden down Jerusalem and God's land. The treading down is by an apostasy, which in Revelation must give place to the Temple of God. The whole of this chapter describes the spiritual opposition to this apostasy under the figure of "My two witnesses," who witness incessantly for 1,260 years, after which for a short space of 3½ years their Protestant character is so called in question that their testimony is of no effect upon the earth, where the dead carcase lies "in the street of the city which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified."

This silencing of the Truth results in Rev. xi, 10, "They that dwell upon the earth shall rejoice over them, and make merry, and shall send gifts one to another."

In fact, as in Ezekiel xxxv, 14, the whole earth rejoices at what they consider is the downfall of Britain; but this triumph on the part of the apostasy is exceedingly short, for it is stopped by the action of God Himself. Mic. vii: "After three days and an half the Spirit of life from God entered into them (the witnesses) and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon them which saw them." In Rev. xi, 2, etc., the time limit is 1,260 + 3½ after A.D. 664, when the British Church (Israel) protested against Roman interference. We arrived in 1928 to the very date when it is said the Spirit of life from God enters into the two witnesses. Let us follow this Prayer Book controversy, and we shall find it has been growing for the last 3½ years in intensity to make us give up our contention for the faith once for all delivered to the Saints (Israel). The success is all but assured, when the Lord Himself interferes as He did at the Reformation (Rev. x, 1). This is the ecclesiastical standpoint. "Rise, and measure the Temple of God." (Rev. xi.)

The other standpoint is the Holy Land, which has lately passed into the hands of Israel. But from Ezekiel xxxv, 10, after Israel had delivered Jerusalem and by that act God, "The Lord, was there." Turkey is about to dispute the Mandate, and from Ezekiel xxxvi, 2, the controversy takes place, and becomes the subject upon "the lips of talkers," the League of Nations. In this connection read Isa. lxiii, 1, 4, 8, with xxxiv, 5-8; also xxvii, 13; and Zech. ix, 14. THE trumpet is blown. (Rev. xi, 15.) Obadiah and other passages should be carefully read.

One must realize the position of both these prophecies which concern Israel, the Temple of God; the Jerusalem which is above and is free; and the land of Israel, which has the Jerusalem until now trodden down, in bondage with her children. Then that the full time of Judah's punishment has come, 1928–1935; and that we are in the era when the second woe (the Turkish) is passed. That neither of the passages in Isaiah or Zech. concerning the last trumpet has yet received fulfilment; but we are told that "when the whole earth rejoiceth, I will make thee (Edom, Turkey) desolate" (Ezek. xxxv, 14), and this rejoicing of the whole of the earth has to do with the Prayer Book controversy, causing Rome to laugh us to scorn. Something very humiliating is upon Israel, JACOB'S TROUBLE, but by prayer and supplication God will yet turn the tables. "Lord, in trouble have they visited Thee—they poured out a prayer when Thy chastening was upon them." (Isaiah xxvi, 16-21.)

We do not anticipate an easy time. 1 Peter iv, 12: "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you: . . ." 17: "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God."

BE KIND TO THE LESSER FOLK.

KIT —— was a young bachelor farmer, or rather "homesteader," as a new settler on the Prairies is called. He was busily engaged in turning half a mile square of prairie land into a farm.

First there was a house, of sorts, to build for himself. This was a one-roomed affair, constructed of the trunks of trees skilfully fitted together at the corners, and laid horizontally one above the other to form the walls. Poles were laid as the basis of a roof. Boards were nailed longitudinally on these, and shingles laid on the boards, to form a watertight roof. It was a good job of its kind.

In one corner was the bed. In another corner the cooking stove. In a third corner the table, and a cupboard or so. In the fourth was the churn and other utensils requisite for the dairy activities.

Kit's mother had set him up with a very unusual comfort for a bachelor homesteader—a right good old-fashioned feather bed.

Kit's mother had also taught him the mysteries of housekeeping, of breadmaking, and general cooking. Kit was one of the best bread makers in the neighbourhood, but he only prided himself on the finished product; not on the process of breadmaking, which he carried on behind closed doors as far as possible. Of course he only made bread for his own table.

He was a skilful dairyman. He milked his cows, separated his cream, churned his butter, and kept every utensil as bright and clean as a new pin.

He had his beloved team of horses and a team of oxen, two or three milch cows and a few calves, and a flock of fine prize Plymouth Rock fowls—concerning which there is another story.

Being a lover of animals, when Kit found a baby bear in the bush whose mother had apparently lost sight of him, having perhaps been hunted out of the neighbourhood, he promptly adopted the cub as a household pet.

The cub was a funny little codger. The dog, a fine collie, who was Kit's constant companion, at first resented the intrusion, but was soon reconciled. The horses abominated the smell of the cub, and broke many a halter in trying to get away from the smell of the bear. But, finally, all accepted his presence, and he made himself very, very, very much at home.

Now a bear, large or small, old or young, is an animal with a great deal of initiative. It is impossible at any time to tell just what it will do next. This was the case with the cub. He was as funny as an amusing child, almost as active, and as mischievous as a billy-goat. He was as full of pranks as a monkey.

Digitized by Google

Kit was never lonely after he adopted the bear cub. He hadn't time to be.

One winter day Kit decided to go to town, which was some eighteen miles away. It was a time of heavy snow and very bad roads, in which horses would flounder badly, and be in danger of cutting themselves with the sharp turned-down points of their shoes, so Kit decided to take the oxen. They were slow, but they made easier going in the deep drifts. Have you ever driven oxen? It is not as fast as a Rolls-Royce car can make it. They take just one step at a time, and then appear to rest a moment to make up their minds to take another. So it is like this. Plod—plod—plod—plod. All of two miles an hour. Eighteen miles to get there and eighteen miles to return: eighteen hours' travel. Early morning and the air as sharp as in Greenland. Nine—ten—eleven—plod—plod—plod—twelve—plod—twelve—twelve—plod—plod—plod—one—plod—plod—town at last.

Three o'clock—homeward now—plod—plod—night—plod—and—evening—star—plod—midnight—plod—one—plod—two—plod—three—plod—at—last—home.

Now the day before, Kit, the scrupulously clean, had taken the trouble to turn out the feathers from his feather bed and from the old-fashioned bolster, and from the pillows, and had given them a nice washing in melted snow water and Castile soap. It was quite a job. I should not quite know how to go about it. But the work was done and well done.

In a nice pile the fluffy feathers were heaped upon the container of the bed, to dry in Kit's absence. Can you see them—a fluffy heap, which a breath of wind would blow away?

Kit had also provided for his week's churning, and the churn stood half-filled with cream.

Now what to do with the cub?

Here was a combination as dangerous as T N T as far as cleanly housekeeping was concerned. A heap of feathers, a churn half-filled with cream, and a mischievous cub of a bear!

Of course the cub must be carefully put outside of the house.

Door and window were carefully fastened. Feathers and cream inside; the cub outside! All's well.

The cub tried the door in every way he knew. But it remained fast. He tried the window. But it was small and strong. He clambered to the roof. But there was no entrance there. At last he espied a place in the gable where an aperture had been cut for an attic window, which had been boarded over, sufficiently strong to keep out the wind, but not sufficiently secure to keep out a persevering bear. His claws were soon under the end of the board and his strength wrenched the board away. Carefully, bear-like, he climbed above the hole thus made, and backed down inside, clinging to the boards as he did so.

Then he was in, out of the cold!

But what was it smelling so nice? After a patient search he located the smell as coming from the churn. A moment and the top was off. His tongue failed to reach the cream. So he thrust in his paw. He could touch the cream, and eagerly he licked his paw. This was too slow, however. He would get inside that churn. So, as is the manner with bears, he climbed up on to the churn, turned about and backed down into it. The cream came up to his neck as he stood in the churn and he was able to lap his fill. No small amount either.

Then he climbed out again. But oh; my!

Padding about on his big feet, he covered everything he trod on, and touched, with cream.

Setting himself to clean up his coat he licked until his tongue was tired, and yet he had made little impression. He rolled, he rubbed against everything he could reach, and still was far from clean. At last his eye fell upon the fluffy feathers. Just the thing. With a leap he was on the bed and rolling in the fluffy down. Horrors, how they stuck. Mercy, how he swelled out. Body covered! Neck covered! Legs and paws covered! Head covered! Eyes covered! Now he was frantic with fear. He twisted, writhed, bit and clawed at the clinging feathers, and ever he gathered more and more.

At last utterly wearied he lay down; and at last he slept.

Plod—get up, Bright—plod—plod—Haw buck—get a move on now—we are nearly home—plod—plod—creak—scrunch—as the sleigh went over the hard frozen snow. Wo, boys—here we are.

Patiently they stood as he unharnessed them, and then followed to the stable, where warm bed and plenty of fodder was their reward for labour well, if slowly, done.

Now for home, and fire, and supper; then bed.

Light the lantern first. "Gracious, what is this?" cried Kit, as a monstrous something rushed out of the darkness at him. "Hello, what? Get out, you brute, whatever you are. But what in creation is it? A monster; speckled and awful. Get out—keep off—mercy, what is it? Oh, ——"

We draw the curtain over the scene. It was live acting, and no tableaux.

Poot Kit! Supper was a poor affair, but it must be eaten. Bed; there was no place in that shack upon which he could rest. Clean hay in the stable till the morning; then——

A solemn procession, chief of whom was Kit. Next the cub following at the end of a short rope, to a high bank which overhung deep water. A heavy piece of scrap iron was fastened to the short rope, which in turn was securely fastened to the neck of the cub; a short flight through the air, a surprised grunt cut short by the water. A splash, a few bubbles rising from the pool. All was over—and Kit turned, saddened, to the work of cleaning up his shack again, never more to enjoy the comfort of his feather bed.

The moral of all this is, be kind to the lesser folk; but be careful how they are introduced into the human walk in life. Their ideas are fixed in other lines by ages upon ages of hereditary experience, and back of all that the instinctive plan of life graven upon their minds by their Creator's hand. Let them live their own life, and do not hold them responsible under the rules which govern the life of the human family.

By original creation and long training the dog has made a place for himself in our home circle.

By long training the horse has become our outdoor associate, but he must live his horse life in the horse stable, not in the library or the drawing-room.

Digitized by Google

By long training the cow has become the mother of the family, but must live in her own byre.

The other lesser folk have not been so trained, and are not to be trained to be indoor guests of the human family circle.

Help beast and bird to live their own lives in their own way, and as outside guests take pleasure therein.

The cub would have been at home and would have lived his life first in his mother's den, and then in his own. But he could not live up to Kit's standard in Kit's home, and therefore he died, prematurely.

A GOOD SLOGAN.

NEWS comes to us this morning (May 31st, 1929) from Dallas, Texas, that the International Rotarian Convention being held there has voted to retain as their slogan, "HE PROFITS MOST WHO SERVES BEST." This is a good motto. In connection I wish to direct attention to what Rev. Arthur Pritchard has said on page 19 of "A Master-Key of the Bible" concerning Israel: "They are saved to serve. And serve they must. It is their new-nature to. And serve they will. It is their highest glory." True enough. It is good to serve in a righteous cause. To be the servant of a good Master and to render faithful service is a glorious task. To be a worker together with God for the redemption of the race should appeal to every true Israelite and should be an incentive for every one to do his part being sure that "every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labour." (1 Cor. iii, 8.)

Every Israelite should be willing to serve knowing that "he profits most who serves best."

A consciousness of having been called to serve and to be a worker together with God is glory enough, and add to this the assurance that it is profitable to do so should incite to all diligence in right doing. God has not changed His purpose, and it is still required of His servants that they should do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with God. (Micah vi, 8.)

They who have received must give freely, and every man should seek to give a good account of his stewardship.

Christ took upon Himself the form of a servant that He might be like unto His brethren. To be a worker together with God and His Christ is glory enough for any man. If we can so serve finally to hear the welcome plaudit, "Well done," it will be sufficient to crown our life with success and we shall be permitted to enter into the "joy of our Lord."

CHARLES H. PORTER,
Geneva, Nebraska, U.S.A.

Reprint of an Address by

THE REV. ARTHUR C. CHAMBERS.

IT is a very great encouragement to look into the faces of so large a number of those who are believing the very same truths and seeking to promulgate the same doctrines as we represent in what is now a very great Movement. All great movements have to pass through four stages; you realize it as you read both ancient and modern history. First of all, neglect; then ridicule; then opposition; and then steadily-growing acceptance. It seems difficult to believe that so many years have elapsed since Edward Hine published his identification list. It has been absolutely neglected. There are scores and hundreds of people to-day who do not even know of its existence, and when it is brought before their notice they seem to think it is a modern discovery; but when people do begin to see some of the implications of this Truth, and recognize the long-lost tribes of Israel as being associated with the history of the Anglo-Saxon race, then they begin to talk about the Jews, and about cranks and faddists, and all sorts of things. They have always done that. But I have a sort of love for cranks and faddists, because I generally find that when you want to move anything in the world you have got to get a crank to do it. It is the machinery that is always run along old-fashioned ways which prevents many people from starting out on fresh lines; they do not like to be regarded as cranks. When it was proposed in the British Parliament to do away with the smoky lamps and to provide the streets and main houses and places of business with carburetted hydrogen gas, the papers of the day, with their pawky canniness, were full of the ridicule of the possibility of making places light by means of smoke, as they called it. Everyone knows now what powers of illumination gas has produced.

There are so many people who are in a stage now, not of neglect—because we are getting too big for them to neglect us, they have got to reckon with us now—but of ridicule. I am not always sure whether some people who appear to write seriously are not sometimes doing so with their tongue in their cheek. There is a writer, one of Germany's literary men, who has been staying in England, and in writing his impressions about the British race, he says, "An intelligent people, only exceptional in one point—they regard themselves as the Chosen People. They think something like this. We Englishmen have bred the best horses and the best dogs. Why should we not ourselves be the Chosen race? All people come to us. They imitate us. The new world sprang from us. We are the model. These are some of the attributes of the Chosen People." If the writer meant it as a cynical joke, he is mistaken, for it is a wonderful truth. For these things which a representative of our late enemy has seen after his residence in the British Isles are, after all, the things that were prophesied concerning the ancient people of Israel.

We have now reached the other stage when ridicule is passing away. Those people who make jokes about our Jewish relations are getting into the realm of steady acceptance. I rejoice in the fact that interest is being taken in the subject, as evidenced by the increase of the sale of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE. That is but a confirmation of that truth.

For a minute or two I will say one or two things why, as a recent proclaimer of this faith in British-Israel Truth, I see the value of it. First of all, I would point out that the British-Israel statement of truth confirms the inspiration of God's Holy Word. Prophecy as it was written has been said to be an intelligent anticipation of history yet to come, that you and I are living in a day when we may accept the statements of the Old and New Testament writers. We have the word of prophecy made more sure. For all the centuries past that Word has been unfolding step by step. We have seen that prophecy was an intelligent anticipation of history because God was in the statement and in the history, inspiring both. In an adult school of mine there are those who gather for the purpose of study. Close by where they are, a "listening-in" apparatus has been installed. One man, after listening to a message which came from across the Channel, said to another, "Was that man so far wrong who wrote in the Book, 'I heard a voice from Heaven saying'?" Some of the latest discoveries of modern science which are knocking the bottom out of our materialism raise the question whether the objections to the evidence of the Word of God, on the score of its being mythical, were not wrong. British-Israel Truth takes us exactly along that line. It points to the history of peoples and nationalities, or archæological development, and gives you milestones all along the way where God's Word has been literally fulfilled. It was a puzzle to me to find that so many of my seniors, when talking about the "Jew," meant Israel. Whenever there was a woe or a calamity they gave it to the Jew; whenever there was a victory or blessing they gave it to the Church. Whatever warrant they had for doing so I could not see, until, coming into contact with some literature of the British-Israel Movement, I began to see where the land lay concerning those who by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ become the spiritual seed of Abraham. There is a great distinction between the natural seed of Abraham and the spiritual seed of Abraham. There are a great many people who pose as very learned folk, but I can never quite follow their ideas. When they come to a passage of Scripture that is difficult to understand they always say, "Oh, that is allegorical; that is spiritual." When I come across these people they rather remind me of the folks who, when I announce a meeting, say, "Well, I cannot be there, but I shall hope to be with you in spirit." I never feel I can preach through wooden benches to those spirits, and I have a lot of sympathy with the boy who, when he was asked what a parable was, said, "An heavenly story with no earthly meaning." If you really take to spiritual interpretation of Scripture that is exactly what it means. It is a heavenly story; we cannot see the connection at all. But let us remember that all Scripture is given by inspiration of God; it is vision in perspective; and you sometimes cannot see the wood for the trees, and you cannot see the town for the houses; but as you come up in the unfolding of God's programme of history you come to a new revelation; it was all included in the old vision. Hence, the wonderful unfolding of Ezekiel has come to pass bit by bit as we progress in the history of the world races, the unfolding of God's wonderful truth. We are standing just where we are beginning to see when He that is to come shall come, and shall not tarry, and the Lord Himself shall be revealed from Heaven.

Digitized by Google

I am reminded that when the ancient Ark of the Covenant was captured by the Philistines they put it in their religious temple; and they put it over against Dagon. In the morning Dagon had fallen down; they set it up and went on with their worship, but Dagon fell down again; and we read that only the fishy part of him was left. These people are always trying to leave us a very fishy story. You can bring chapter and verse, the very things prophesied in these ancient Scriptures of God identifying the Anglo-Saxon race with the progress of the Israel of God in the latter days, as giving us something actual, which leads us to believe in the spirit which lies behind this British-Israel Truth.

It provides a common platform where all sections of the Christian Church can find a sphere and co-operation in service. That is a great thing in these days. Some time ago there was a great Boat Race, and the newspapers invented for us a new word. They said the reason why the winning crew succeeded was because of its "togetherness." And when you see a photograph of the race you discover that was true; every oar, and every man, exactly in line with every other oar and every other man of the crew; all skimming the surface of the water, with one burning desire to reach one particular goal. No man for himself, but all for winning the race. I am quite certain that if I gathered with some of the representatives of the various sections of the Christian Church on the platform here, and we had some theological discussion, we should soon be at loggerheads. They would not agree with me, and I am quite certain that I should not agree with them. But here we are on a common platform, absolutely one. We recognize that in this wonderful Movement, which recognizes the providence and leading of God, we are one. We want to seek to establish the fact that the Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of lords, is to find in His chosen race the means and the medium by which His knowledge and His truth shall be known from the river unto the ends of the earth.

The other day I attended a packed meeting of the League of Nations in our district. It was a very interesting meeting. Beautiful speeches were delivered. Clergymen were on the platform, and clergymen and ministers were in the audience; but what I felt keenly was this, that there was no recognition of God in the meeting from beginning to end. But we came here, with all our varied political ideals, representatives of the different phases of the Christian Church, and we began by reverently following that beautiful prayer read by a clergyman of the Church of England. We had God's Word read to us with reverential emphasis, and we all sang to the praise and glory of Jesus Christ, the King of Israel. That is God's League of Nations, surely. If the nation that is to be the nation to help to bring freedom and salvation and deliverance from oppression, and the proclaiming of the liberty of the captives; if that nation is to be also a company of nations, is not that God's League of Nations? And, thank God, we are in it.

The last thing I will say is this. For a very long time I have been a student of the doctrine of the pre-millennial Advent of our Lord Jesus Christ, and I recognize in this Movement a confirmation of it all. Did not our Lord Jesus Christ say, "When ye see these things begin to come to pass then lift up your heads and rejoice, for your redemption draweth nigh"?

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

Digitized by Google

GLASTONBURY.—III.

By Luke Pearce.

From the two previous articles the question naturally arises: "Why the Downfall of the Monasteries?" Especially as Glastonbury, at Whiting's death, was so useful and held in such high repute. In this article we propose to place the arguments for and against Dissolution, in as few words as we can, before our readers. With the verdict we are not now particularly interested; the reader must decide for himself on the issues.

As regards Glastonbury, the death of its last Abbot, Whiting, with two other officials, on the Tor seems barbarous to us at the present time. Yet there were two sides: Froude says it was discovered that he and the Abbot of Reading were guilty of high treason, in that they supplied the northern insurgents with money; at the same time he says—"We will not regret their Cause; there is no Cause for which any man can more nobly suffer than to witness that it is better for him to die than to speak words which he does not mean."

A note in Hallam's History, quoting Burnet, says:—"We should be on our guard against the Romanizing high-church men, such as Collier, and the whole class of antiquaries, Wood, Hearne, Drake, Browne, Willis, etc., etc., who are, with hardly an exception, partial to the monastic orders. . . . No one fact can be better supported by current opinion, and that general testimony which carries conviction, than the relaxed and vicious state of these foundations for many ages before their fall."

The Students' English Church History may here be quoted. Under the head of "The Suppression of the Monasteries," we find the following:—"He [Henry VIII] was greatly in want of money. Ever in dread of some dangerous attack from a powerful emperor, Henry was aware that the ports were unfortified, the navy deficient, his preparations to resist external aggression very small. Every source of revenue, then, was welcome to him; and if at the same time he could increase his revenues and inflict a serious wound on his great internal foe—the Papal influence in England—so much the better. The temptation, therefore, to grasp at the riches of the monasteries was very great.

"Yet the King evidently dreaded to make a move. These great ecclesiastical castles dotted the whole land, and exerted an influence in every place. It is true that their religious character had long since almost died out, and that all enthusiasm for them had long since ceased, yet they were deeply rooted in the social framework of the land. There was scarce a man of weight in the kingdom who was not in some way connected with them. Either they had been founded by his ancestors, or he himself was a patron, or he held leases under some of them, or some of his family were buried beneath their churches. . . . These establishments, upwards of six hundred in number, exercised hospitality and doles to the poor. So that all classes might be expected to defend them. How then should the King act?"

We now come to Rev. J. A. Wylie's "History of Protestantism in England." There we read how the thing was done. The Abbey at Waltham, Essex, being crowded with members of the royal court, three men, accidentally—and yet in the eternal plan accident has no place—met, being entertained in the house of a citizen of Waltham named Cressy. At the supper table they unexpectedly met a former acquaintance, a Fellow of Jesus' College, Cambridge, named Cranmer, who had come hither with two pupils, sons of the host. "How perfectly accidental, and how entirely without significance seemed it, that these three men should that night sit at the same supper table! And yet this meeting forms one of the great turning-points in the destiny of England."

Their names were Thomas Cranmer, Gardiner, the King's Secretary, and Fox, his Almoner.

Cranmer set himself while at Cambridge to study the Lutheran controversy, and decided that the Sacred Scriptures must be the final court of appeal. His two friends, knowing this, directed the conversation so as to draw from him his opinions. He spoke his sentiments frankly, not imagining that his words would be heard beyond the chamber in which they were uttered. "Why go to Rome, why take so long a road when by a shorter you may arrive at a most certain conclusion?" asked Cranmer. "What is the shorter road?" queried Gardiner and Fox. "The Scriptures," replied Cranmer. "If God has made this marriage sinful, the Pope cannot make it lawful."

Two days afterwards these words were reported to the King, who caught them up, thinking he saw in them a way out of his difficulty.

Thomas Cromwell [or Crumwell] now appears on the scene, as, having been a solicitor to Cardinal Wolsey, he had seen that Wolsey's overthrow was largely owing to his subserviency to the Pope; he would make trial of the contrary road, and lift up England and England's King above the power of the Pope. Full of this idea he sought and obtained an interview with King Henry VIII. He laid the whole case before the King, with the result that Henry decided to act.

"Cranmer had enunciated the religious principle that the Bible is above the Pope, and now Thomas Cromwell brings forward the political one that England is wholly an independent State, and owes no subjection to the Papacy. The opposites of these—that the Church is above the Scriptures, and the Popedom above England—were therefore doomed. To this end several Acts of Parliament were passed as the result of decisions of Convocation.

"Having thus effectually thrown off the Papal supremacy and asserted its independent position, the Church proceeded to regulate its own affairs. First, the mendicant orders were suppressed in 1535, and five years later the monastic institution altogether was abolished, and the King seized the bulk of their possessions for his own use, and distributed them in grants to his nobles and courtiers. The chantries were suppressed and their property confiscated in 1547."—Turning Points in General Church History.

In the report of the Commissioners appointed to investigate the condition of monasteries, we are glad to note the following: "Even their unfriendly eyes could detect nothing but good at Bruton and Glastonbury, which hath long been full honourable."

"Some historians assert the monks to have been turned adrift with a small sum of money. But it rather appears that they generally received pensions not inadequate, and which are said to have been faithfully paid. These, however, were voluntary gifts by the Crown. For the Parliament which dissolved the monastic foundations, while it took abundant care to preserve any rights of property which private persons might enjoy over the estates thus escheated to the Crown, vouchsafed not a word towards securing the slightest compensation to the dispossessed owners."—Hallam's History.

Digitized by Google

As we bid farewell to Glastonbury, we have learnt how that the town possessed a Church founded in Apostolic times, with its pure and simple faith, without the excrescences which it had afterwards to throw off at the Reformation, and conclude with Mrs. Rhys David that "Man is not fixed and unchanging in nature; that he is a growing plant; that he grows in proportion as he wills to grow; and that as a community we grow in proportion as the more of the community wish to grow, and not the less."

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH.*—X.

By S. E. Steele.

Israel in the Book of Common Prayer.

In the Venite we sing, "We are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand." Ezekiel (xxxiv, 6) refers to Israel as "My sheep" and God several times acknowledges Israel as His people (Ex. vi, 7; Deut. iv, 20; Jer. xiii, 11).

In the Te Deum, "O Lord, save Thy people, and bless Thine heritage"; Isa. liv, 17 (to Israel), "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper. . . . This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord."

Benedicite, "O let Israel bless the Lord."

Benedictus, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel: for He hath visited and redeemed His people; and hath raised up a mighty salvation for us. . . ."

"O Israel . . . return unto Me; for I have redeemed thee" (Isa. xliv, 22). "O Israel, fear not: for I have redeemed thee . . . thou art Mine" (Isa. xliii, 1)—see reference to Galatians, last chapter.

"To perform the mercy promised to our forefathers."

"To perform the oath which He sware to our forefather Abraham: that He would give us."

Jubilate Deo, "We are His people, and the sheep of His pasture" (see Venite).

Magnificat, "He remembering His mercy, hath holpen His servant Israel: as He promised to our forefathers, Abraham, and his seed, for ever."

Nunc Dimittis, "To be a light to lighten the Gentiles: and to be the glory of Thy people Israel." Israel had been "lost," when these words were written, for over 720 years. If we are not Israel "found," then there is no meaning in our repetition of them.

In the responses, we pray, "Make Thy chosen people joyful. O Lord, save Thy people: and bless Thine inheritance." Israel were the only people ever called God's chosen people.

In one of the collects for Good Friday, we pray that all Jews, Turks, Infidels, and Heretics may be saved among the remnant of the true Israelites.

The Psalms, portions of which we sing or say every service, Sunday or week-day, are teeming with references to Israel, notably xiv, 7; xxv, 22; and cvii, 2–7. In at least thirteen other Psalms we find references to Israel, and acknowledge, sometimes indirectly, some of them as referring to us.

In the service of prayer with thanksgiving to be used on the day of accession of our Sovereign, one of the prayers includes these words: "And that these blessings may be continued to after-ages, let there never be one wanting in his (or her) house to succeed him (or her) in the government of this United Kingdom, that our posterity may see his children's children, and peace upon Israel. So we that are Thy people, and sheep of Thy pasture, shall give Thee thanks for ever . . ."

Conclusion.

Many of our national laws and customs, our flag, our heraldry, our ecclesiastical customs, our names and many of our root-words, are Israelitish in origin and character. British-Israel Truth is an interpreter of Holy Scripture, proving its authenticity and Divine inspiration, and refuting the so-called "higher criticism" which would undermine that foundation of truth, and clearly shows that the promises of God to the fathers are "Yea and Amen" in Christ Jesus. Let it be our glad, earnest endeavour to spread the knowledge of this key to the sacred Scriptures and to the world-happenings of the present as of the past, and so open the sealed book and reveal to Israel that she is Israel, that the British and the Anglo-Saxons are the Lord's chosen people—the fact which alone can satisfactorily account for British greatness and should be a constant reminder of our obligations and responsibility, inspiring us to the noblest action and endeavour in all directions.

It is claimed as undeniable that the study of Scripture on the lines advocated herein proves the truth of the Bible, and the unchangeableness of God; that the Bible is a Divine Revelation; that the writer of the Pentateuch was inspired by God, and that the promises therein to Israel are now in the possession of the Anglo-Saxon race. With apology to the author, I cannot do better than quote a few extracts from an excellent leaflet entitled Cui Bono, now, unfortunately, out of print:

> "The 'good' of British-Israel Truth and testimony is to prove the Bible to be true, God to be unchangeable love, the British people to be heirs of the vast estates, given on oath by God to Abraham's seed for ever. It is proved true by our occupying the position geographically, commercially, socially, politically, colonially, and spiritually, which was to be the unique position of Israel under her new name and new covenant in the latter days.
>
> "British-Israel Truth puts the glory of God first. It proves that God is working to-day as the prophets have all foretold He would, through and by His covenant people. It makes the Bible a Book to be loved and understood. It shows our national responsibility to God for all the wealth He has enabled us to get, and all the world-power and influence that He has given us, to use for His glory. It creates an interest in everything relating to our persecuted brethren of Judah. It ensures the certain restoration of our brethren, the Jews, at our hands, in accordance with the unmistakable words of prophecy. It proves that Jesus Christ did what He came to do—confirm the promises made to the fathers. By it we realize how marvellously accurate has been the fulfilment of the promises. When more nationally realized and accepted it will give us such a revival of spiritual life in all our Christian communities, such a cleansing of all present evils from our social, municipal, national, and religious life, that things which now divide us, and cause splits, sects, divisions, heart-burnings, bickerings, whisperings, and jealousies, will all die, and we shall stand before the world as the seed which the Lord has blessed—His messengers, His servants, His heralds, His witnesses, and as the Bride of His dear Son, Jesus Christ, Whose name we even now bear; when greed, hate, drunkenness, oppression, Sabbath-breaking, and all that causes reproach shall be swept away.

*This series of articles is published in book form, and can be obtained from The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1, price 1/-, post free 1/1.

Digitized by Google

"What an incentive we have to better service; what an encouragement still to press on, and not be weary in well-doing."

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

SIR,—In an article on the "Mystery of the Great Pyramid," commencing in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE of July 13th, Mr. Basil Stewart makes the following statement:—"That possibly Melchisedec was the builder of the Pyramid and that it is quite a reasonable suggestion that Job and Melchisedec were one and the same person, but, he says, 'not the Melchisedec of Gen. xiv, but an earlier member of the order.'"

Now this seems to me to be an absolute contradiction of the Bible, as we are particularly told in Hebrews vii, 3, that Melchisedec "was without father, without mother, without descent or beginning of days, but made like unto the Son of GOD—abideth a priest continually." Now GOD has often sent His messengers (Michael, Gabriel, and other angels) to minister to and direct His people. He also sent His priest to administer bread and wine to our forefather Abraham, and only a holy and heavenly being could perform this great act of foreknowledge. We read in Revelation of the Temple of GOD in Heaven and of worship—the Temple of GOD on earth being made after the pattern of things in Heaven—may not Abraham have had a visitation of the heavenly Priest? for we are expressly told he "abideth a priest continually." If the whole of the seventh chapter of Hebrews is read it will be easily undersood that of no earthly order was Melchisedec.

Mr. Stewart is, in my opinion, reading into the Bible that which is not there. Again, yet another statement must be challenged.

In article No. 2 on the same subject (NATIONAL MESSAGE, July 20th), Mr. Stewart says he believes Freemasons "refer the origin of their cult (!) to Solomon's Temple." If official Masonic records are to be accepted, Mr. Stewart's assumption is erroneous, inasmuch as in our Masonic Hall, St. Leonards, where all our British-Israel lectures are given, an important charter (116 years old) is on view, and which is attested in the following words:—

> "Given under our hands and under the Seal of our Grand Lodge in London this 5th day of April in the year of our Lord 1813 and in the 5813th year of Masonry."

In other words, Masonry was initiated in the year 4,000 B.C., or 3,000 years before the building of Solomon's Temple. May I add that the Rev. Joseph Wild, D.D., in his book of sermons preached in 1886, said that Abraham and all the Kings of Israel were Freemasons. Read 1 Kings xx, 31-33.

Mr. Stewart in his footnote says, in reference to the word "mystery," that he uses it in the same sense as St. Paul does in his Epistle to the Corinthians. (1 Cor. xv, 51.) This seems to me to require some explanation, seeing that St. Paul was inspired by the Holy Ghost and was enunciating sacred mysteries.

Yours truly,
AMY J. HOLBROOK,
St. Leonards-on-Sea.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

There are two forces in the world to-day in strenuous conflict:—

(1) The enemies, accurately foretold in Scripture, in the Church, inside our very gates, seeking to undermine the impregnable rock of Holy Scripture. They can never even shake that rock, but they are busy forging and putting into the hands of sceptics the very weapons they ask for for driving us off that rock, denying us one inch on which to rest our foot, amid the surging tides and shifting sands around us. Thousands are being pushed off.

(2) Scientists, historians and archæologists, who, in the hands of God, are unconsciously restoring credit to the Bible as fast as the opposing force are discrediting it. These are helping the defenders of the Faith (especially the Federation of British-Israel) to show and declare God's complete Revelation given in the entire Scriptures, which has all along been lying there hidden under the dust of the limitations and imperfections of language. British-Israel Truth teaches nothing new, but is simply brushing away this dust to our astonished gaze, showing us God's perfect and unalterable plan for the salvation of mankind.

A. A. LANGSHAW,
South Africa.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

MY DEAR MR. EDITOR,—. . . This Fall I expect to see a consolidation of Europe as a NEW Holy Roman Empire well under way, with possibly the Pope as Spiritual leader or Pontifex Maximus (as long ago under Augustus, for instance), with Mussolini as presiding or taking a leading part, and Rome the capital. That will be seven years from the end, September, 1936. And it will spell finis to the "widow" who now glories as sitting as a Queen.

H. PERCY BLANCHARD,
Nova Scotia.

Digitized by Google

THE VALUE OF THE BIBLE.

Through the kindness of one of our members we have been enabled to publish the following rom the "Hastings and St. Leonards Observer" of July 20th.

SIR,—The recent report in the Observer, of the remarks on the value of the Bible by the Archdeacon of Hastings (Ven. A. F. Alston) at St. Clement's Church, is quite refreshing, and reminded me of a letter sent to an American newspaper, which gives some most remarkable detail, and confirms the Archdeacon's opinion that no book can compare with the Bible. A few extracts from the letter, enclosed herewith, might interest some of your readers. If you will excuse my saying so, I firmly believe from personal experience of reading the Scriptures and comparing it with everyday events, as they unfold themselves, in relation to individuals and nations, that when "we know even as we are known," we shall find the Bible ten thousand times more wonderful than even Mr. Ivan Panin has discovered it to be. J. N.

THE INSPIRATION OF THE SCRIPTURES "SCIENTIFICALLY" DEMONSTRATED.

BY IVAN PANIN.

1. The first 17 verses of the New Testament contain the genealogy of Jesus Christ. The genealogy consists of two parts. Verses 1-11 contain the genealogy from Abraham to the captivity. Verses 12-17 contain the genealogy from the captivity to the Christ. Let us examine the first part of this genealogy.

Its vocabulary has 49 words, or seven sevens, of which 42, or six sevens, are nouns; and seven are not.

The 49 words of the vocabulary are distributed alphabetically thus: Words under the first five letters of the Greek alphabet are 21 in number, or three sevens; under the second five letters, 14, or two sevens; under the next eleven letters, also 14, or two sevens.

Again: These words have 266 letters, or 38 sevens; and these also are distributed alphabetically, not at random, but by sevens; thus words under the first three letters have 84 letters, 12 sevens; under the fourth letter, seven; under the fifth and sixth, 21, or three sevens; under the eighth, 70, or 10 sevens; under the tenth, eleventh and twelfth, 21, or three sevens; under the thirteenth, seven; under the fifteenth to the twenty-first, 49, or seven sevens; under the twenty-second, seven. It is thus clear that this part of the genealogy is constructed on an elaborate design of sevens.

Let us now turn to the genealogy as a whole. The Greeks had no figures, but used instead the letters of their alphabet. Their first letter stood for 1; their second for 2, etc. Every Greek word is thus an arithmetical sum obtained by adding the values of its letters. The vocabulary of the entire genealogy contains 72 words. If we write its numeric value against each of these 72 words, and add them, we obtain for their sum 42,364, or 6,052 sevens; and these 6,052 sevens are distributed alphabetically, not at random, but by sevens.

It is thus clear that not only are the first eleven verses of this genealogy constructed on an elaborate design of sevens, but the entire genealogy is also thus constructed. One other feature: The 72 vocabulary words of this genealogy occur in 90 forms. If we add the numeric values of these forms we get 54,075, or 7,725 sevens; with corresponding distribution into seven alphabetical groups of sevens.

2. The passage which follows this genealogy, verses 18-25, tells of the birth of Jesus Christ. It contains 161 words, 23 sevens. Its vocabulary has 77 words, or 11 sevens, etc.

The second chapter of Matthew tells the story of the childhood of Jesus. It has a vocabulary of 161 words, 23 sevens, etc.

There is not a single paragraph out of the hundreds in Matthew that is not constructed on exactly the same plan.

3. It so happens that the Gospel of Mark shows exactly the same numeric phenomena. Of the 175 words in the last twelve verses of Mark, the Lord uses 56, or eight sevens, with the usual alphabetic distribution into groups of sevens in each case.

4. It is an additional fact that Luke's Gospel contains exactly the same phenomena as those of Matthew and Mark; and so do John, James, Peter, Jude and Paul. Hence we have not only two great unheard-of mathematical literati, but eight of them.

But once assume that "One Mind" supervised the whole, and the problem is solved as simply as an algebraic equation. And this means "literal verbal inspiration" of "every jot and tittle of the New Testament." There remains only to be added that by precisely the same kind of evidence the Hebrew Old Testament is proved to be equally inspired.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—In comparing the Revised Version of Amos vii, 16, "Thou sayest, Prophesy not against Israel, and drop not thy word against the house of Isaac" with Ferrar Fenton's version, "You say, preach not to Israel, and do not drivel against the house of Jacob," I have wondered at the difference in the names, from Isaac in the R.V. to Jacob in the F.F. Would you be so kind as to tell me why this is, and whether the original says Isaac or Jacob? Are the names interchangeable? Which is correct?—R. J. F.

ANSWER.—It is not easy to know why Ferrar Fenton has substituted the name Jacob for that of Isaac, since the Hebrew has Isaac, as is clearly evidenced by both the Authorized and the Revised Versions. It can hardly be said that the names are interchangeable, since Isaac was Isaac and Jacob was Jacob, the former being the father of the latter. In a prophetic sense the promises were made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and prophetically speaking it might not matter very much, since all three names are used in the Bible, sometimes one, sometimes another.

But in this case the prophecy definitely says "Isaac," and there can be no apparent reason for substituting the name of Jacob. Isaac was the child of promise (Gen. xxi, 1–5; Gal. iv, 23), and as such this particular prophecy in Amos deals with the House of Israel as springing by promise from one who was born out of due time, thus showing the marvellous works of God.

The imagery employed by the use of the word "drop" is found in the Song of Moses (Deut. xxxii, 2). The same Hebrew word is to be found in Job (xxii, 29), expressive of gentle, persuasive and acceptable speech. It is also in the Hebrew of Micah (ii, 6, 11) and Ezekiel (xxi, 2), but not in the English version of the former.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

MR. and MRS. GARRISON are now on the high seas, having left Montreal on the 20th inst. on the "Empress of Scotland," and will arrive home (D.V.) on the 27th inst. Before leaving they had a wonderful time in Newhaven, Philadelphia, New York and Washington. Mr. Garrison cables that he is bringing some magnificent pictures with him. Our Message has received the utmost cordiality.

* * *

We hope that our members and all other friends in the neighbourhood of Llandrindod Wells will remember the Convention commencing on Sunday next and continuing for the week, and support us in great numbers by each bringing along someone not acquainted with our teaching, thus spreading the good news of the Kingdom as well as of the Gospel of Grace.

* * *

We are glad to be able to announce that the Federation's staff of lecturers has recently been increased by the appointment of the Rev. Walter T. Medhurst and of Capt. E. Palmer Bott, both of whom have been for a long time active workers in the British-Israel Cause. Mr. Medhurst will take charge of the work in South Wales, while Captain Bott's activities will be principally in the West of England Area.

* * *

During the six months ending June last effective propaganda has been carried out by the speakers of the Belfast Centre in rural districts of County Antrim and County Down. A series of lectures was given at St. James, Hillsborough, a series at Edentrillick, Co. Down, and one at The Maze, at which the Rev. Mr. Ruddock, M.A., the local rector, presided, and expressed in eulogistic terms his pleasure at having the Bible and prophecy expounded so faithfully. Requests for further lectures are on hand for the autumn. At these meetings copies of the Special Number are being distributed with an injunction to buy the weekly issue.

* * *

The closing words of the speech of General Dawes, the U.S.A. Ambassador, at the Pilgrims' Dinner (June 18th) are remarkable. Speaking of the peace of the world as dependent upon good understanding and agreement between the British and American people, he said: "Their attitude upon this question (Naval agreement) is based under the Providence of God upon fundamental human instinct and a commingling of the blood. In these circumstances let us be hopeful for the cause of world peace, and the progress of civilization; for in the joint hands of these same English-speaking peoples rests not only their secure guarantee, but as well the ark of the covenant of human freedom."

* * *

On Sunday, August 4th, the Rev. Joseph Gay preached at the Baptist Church, Tenby, South Wales. His subject for the morning service was "The Deity of Jesus Christ"; and for the evening service, "Jesus and British-Israel Teaching." On both occasions the congregation manifested the keenest appreciation. At 3 p.m. in the afternoon of the same day he addressed an open-air meeting on Castle Hill to an interested audience, his subject being "The Bible: Is it True? An Answer to Modernism." A quantity of literature was distributed.

Mr. Gay visited Pembroke Dock on the following Sunday, preaching at Bethany Baptist Church morning and evening.

* * *

Extract from a letter from Johannesburg:—"I should also like to take this opportunity of thanking you for sending along my MESSAGE each week. I have been a subscriber . . . and have had the joy of leading many into accepting the truth of British-Israel teaching. I never miss an opportunity when it comes my way in Sunday School or Church life to put in a word for the Truth that was the means of leading me to God, and making the Bible a new Book to me."

* * *

Another from India:—"When I read those splendid lectures published in THE MESSAGE it makes me wish we could have the privilege of listening to a few of the same sort in Bangalore."

* * *

"A movement which should be watched with great interest in this country will shortly come to a head in Estonia, the little Baltic State which has Leningrad as its next-door neighbour. The Estonian Parliament has down for early discussion a Bill to make English instead of German the first foreign language in secondary schools, and to introduce English into elementary schools for the first time. At present the choice of a foreign language is optional; under the proposed law English would be compulsory for all children. I asked a prominent Estonian the other day to give me the reasons for the change. 'The practical reason,' he said, 'is that English is becoming the world language. The sentimental reason is that your country helped us greatly during our recent struggles, and we should be glad to show our gratitude in this way.' The strength of the movement may be judged from the fact that in the University of Tartu (founded, by the way, in 1627) 150 students are being trained to teach English in the secondary schools, 100 to teach German, and 50 to teach French. The immediate reality is perhaps small, but its implications, both as regards British influence and British trade, are big."

[John o' London's Weekly—July 27th.]

* * *

The Rev. W. T. Medhurst is in attendance at the bookstall in Cardiff Central Market, 251, on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

* * *

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 26th, at 8.

BLACKHEATH, Y.W.C.A., Montpelier Row, Thursday, 29th, at 8. Rev. Gregory Bestall.

HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 27th, at 7.30. Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A.

LLANDRINDOD WELLS, Convention, Albert Hall, 25th to 30th, 11 and 8.

MANCHESTER, Houldsworth Hall, Deansgate, Tuesday, 27th, at 7.45. Mr. Ford.

MERTHYR, Y.M.C.A. Library, Thursday, 29th, at 7. Rev. W. T. Medhurst.

RHYMNEY, British-Israel Hall, Tuesday, 27th, at 7. Rev. W. T. Medhurst.

WATFORD, 20, St. Albans Road, Monday, 26th, at 7.45. Mr. Gregory Smith.

Digitized by Google

Readers! Have you told your young friends, your children, or employees about

THE BRITISH-ISRAEL CRUSADERS

Chief: JOHN LEECH, Esq., M.A., K.C., LL.B. Vice-Chief: Miss HAMILTON HUNTER.
Central Headquarters: B.-I.-W.F., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.
Hon. Secretary: Miss E. A. WILLMOTT (to whom all communications should be addressed).

A REMINDER!

Do not forget our Inaugural Meeting, to be held at Headquarters (D.V.) on Saturday, September 14th, from 3 o'clock onwards.

COME! Whether you have enrolled or not! We want your help and suggestions. PLEASE send all the young people you can!

Crusaders' badges and membership cards are now ready, and will be sent to any who cannot attend the opening meeting, on receipt of application accompanied by 2s. 6d., being the annual subscription, including the monthly journal, The B.-I. Crusader.

ORGANIZATION.

Where there is no Group, members may enrol as LONE CRUSADERS.

A GROUP consists of not less than SEVEN Crusaders, but may contain any number beyond, one of whom is elected as GROUP LEADER.

Congratulations to BRADFORD-ON-AVON, who have the honour to have formed GROUP No. 1.

THREE GROUPS FORM A SECTION, who appoint their own SECTION LEADER.

A GROUP LEADER receives all badges, membership cards, and the monthly journal, for distribution to the Group; collects subscriptions (thereby enabling Crusaders, who so desire, to pay the annual subscription in monthly instalments), and is responsible for arranging at least one Group Meeting a month—Bible Study, Debate, Travel Talk, Excursion, Choir, or Raid on another Group, etc.

All Crusader meetings to be conducted, and addressed, as far as possible by Crusaders themselves.

ACTIVITIES.

N.B.—Branches in need of help in organizing meetings should send an S.O.S. to the Secretary, who will send, if possible, a band of Crusaders to assist in any way possible.

Senior Crusaders will conduct open-air and village meetings; children's meetings; start new branches; visit Groups; run lending libraries; conduct Crusader excursions to places of interest, etc.

Junior Crusaders will distribute handbills, and other organizing duties; act as guides, programme-sellers, stewards, etc., and assist in their Group meetings.

Crusaders at the Congress will find full scope for their energies! If you are there, and are eligible, ask for a seat in the Crusader section of the Hall!

At least one Historical Pilgrimage to London's famous spots is being planned for Congress week. This will be great!

Choir. As soon as possible a B.-I. Choir will be formed. Who will compose a B.-I. Crusader Chorus? We want a collection of our own!

"The B.-I. Crusader." Our own paper! Each month it will contain special articles by Crusaders, seniors and juniors, and many other splendid items. Look out for the first number at the Congress.

A WORD TO YOU.

Many other God-inspired organizations are, we know, also called Crusaders. But the GREAT CRUSADE FOR GOD AND TRUTH is one!

The battleground is world-wide, and the forces of the enemy are legion! There is room for every regiment which the Divine Commander flings into the field, each in its own sector of the battlefront.

The B.-I. CRUSADERS are a DEFENCE FORCE at the Home Base.

Here, in the heart of God's earthly Kingdom, the enemy has crept in unawares, and is storming every citadal of righteousness and peace.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S SIDE?

Once, in a similar time of Israel's dire need, when the armies of the Lord went forth against the enemy hosts, it is recorded of a little town, snugly nestling in a valley, that its inhabitants remained neutral. They looked the other way and stood aside! And the curse of God came down upon those people of Meroz, "because they came not to the help of the LORD against the mighty."

ARE YOU GOING TO BE LIKE THEM?

HASTEN TO THE LORD'S STANDARD! FOLLOW THE KING OF KINGS!
FIGHT THE GOOD FIGHT FOR GOD, HIS TRUTH AND THE COMING OF THE KINGDOM!

Don't wait until to-morrow. Send in your name TO-DAY.

Digitized by Google

"ABBOTSLEIGH,"

Glastonbury.

A Hostel primarily established for the comfort and well-being of those who have accepted B.-I. Truth. Every consideration is given to material needs; the Hostel being under the superintendence of a gentlewoman experienced in ensuring comfort and well-being to every guest.

B.-I. friends, in an environment thoroughly in sympathy with their own views, will absorb in complete happiness the uplift inseparable from the birthplace of British Christianity.

Vacant dates, and terms (which are moderate and inclusive) may be obtained on application—

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL, B.-I.-W.F.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1.

Members of the B.-I.-W.F. and subscribers to the "National Message" are requested to mention the fact when writing.

"Ye shall keep the Sabbath, therefore; for it is holy unto you . . . a perpetual Covenant . . . a sign between Me and the children of Israel for ever."
(Exodus xxxi, 17)

The Sabbath

that was made for man

BY

J. G. MODIN

With a foreword by Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.

This little work, dealing with one of the important marks of British-Israel identity, is by far the most valuable contribution yet made to the all-important subject of Sabbath keeping. It should be read and digested by every clergyman and every layman who loves our National Day of Rest, and who sees the urgent need for the observance of the Fourth Commandment.

PRICE 9d., BY POST 10d.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

BE A BANNER BEARER

Spread the truth. Interest your friends, not only in our Movement, but in following our Movement and its developments week by week. Induce them to become subscribers as you are, for it is only thus that our Movement can grow and the light be shed in the dark corners. Do your part in the pioneering work and be a banner bearer.

Special Campaign for Increasing the Circulation of this Journal.

I wish to help, and I send herewith the sum of.....

for which please send ..... copies for three, six, twelve months to (Name) .....

Postal address .....

.....

.....

Alternative form :—

I enclose the sum of .....

Please send..... copies to whomsoever you may select for a period covered by this amount.

N.B.—The subscription is 3/- for three months; 6/- for six months; 12/- for twelve months. Canada and U.S.A. $3 per annum.

ADDRESS—

The Secretary,
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

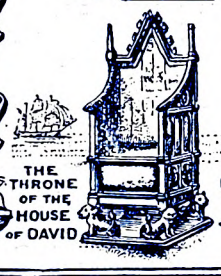
Digitized by Google

NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.
AUGUST 31, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43-10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY (ABRAHAMS) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN 22 17



"HIS (ISRAELS) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24 7

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

G^t BRITAIN & IRELAND
CANADA
AUSTRALIA
SOUTH AFRICA
NEW ZEALAND
NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
INDIA
CROWN COLONIES
PROTECTORATES
DEPENDENCIES
MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"
AND

And God said unto Jacob "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35-11.

J J HALL 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.
Subscription Terms —United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.
Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8362 Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W

THE WONDER RACE

By G. E. ALTREE COLEY.

A wonderfully graphic survey of English History, which demonstrates that the events that have determined our destiny can only be the outcome of a definite predetermined plan carried out under Divine guidance and inspiration.

Price 5/-; by post 5/6

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.
6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

Canadian Agents: B.-I.-W.F., 14, 15, 16, Flack Block, 163, Hastings Street West, Vancouver, B.C.

SARGON the MAGNIFICENT

by

MRS. SYDNEY BRISTOWE

(Author of "The Oldest Letter in the World.")

Being the Early History of the Adamite Creation, deduced from the cuneiform inscriptions of the Babylonian monuments and tablets which have become available in the last few years.

A new line of approach, furnishing further and new corroborative evidence in support of the Bible story.

Price - 5/- By post - 5/4

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1.

PROPHETIC LIGHT ON WORLD DESTINY

By Rev. WM. HARPER, M.A., B.D.

Price 1/-, by post 1/2.

A small work of 120 pages, this book covers, in condensed form, practically the whole B.-I. field. It is most interestingly written by one who is a master of his subject, and is very strongly recommended. It fits every purse and many pockets, and should have a place on every bookshelf.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO. LTD.
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

TAMAR TEPHI OR THE MAID OF DESTINY

The Great Romance of the Royal House of Britain

BY

JOHN DUNHAM-MASSEY

A masterly exposition on the text "For thus saith the Lord, David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of Israel."

Price 4s. 6d. By Post 4s. 9d.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO. LTD.
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 400. Vol. VIII. AUGUST 31st, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—III. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	545
THE BRITISH-ISRAEL VISION. By the late Henry G. Locke ...	547
THE STRATEGY OF THE DIVINE PLAN OF CAMPAIGN. By the Rev. W. T. Medhurst	549
THE QUESTION OF THE CENTURIES.—"What Think Ye of Christ?"	550
THE DIVINE NOMENCLATURE.—III. By James Cuthbert ...	550
THE WITNESS OF ARCHÆOLOGY TO THE BIBLE.—I. By A. M. Hodgkin....	551
ILLUSTRATION.—Part of the B.-I. Garden Party held in honour of the Secretary-General and Mrs. Garrison at Stanley Park, Vancouver, B.C., on July 20, 1929	552-553
"THIS IS THE WAY, WALK YE IN IT." By An Old Campaigner	555
CORRESPONDENCE	556
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	558

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—III.

By THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

WE have seen the national phases, which succeed each other like dissolving views, preceding the period of the establishment of the Davidic kingdom in Israel. In these and succeeding national phases we see the early chapters of our own British history.

The phases are:—The call and chartering of the race, in Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

The training of the race, in Egypt.

The organization of the Kingdom of God, at Sinai.

The forty years of intensive training of the nation, in the wilderness.

The period of the Judges.

Now we come to the time of the erection of the Davidic kingdom, and of the passing away of the tribal state. Note that the Davidic kingdom does not succeed the Kingdom of Jehovah, but is set up as an inferior or subordinate kingdom under the Jehovah rule.

The hegemony of Ephraim gives place for the time being to the rule of the House of David, which House sprang from and was selected out of the tribe of Judah. This transference of authority was political, and did not affect Ephraim's birthright.

It will be well that the student of Bible history should realize that the Federation of the tribes had given place at this point of history to the single united entity of the nation.

Henceforth it is mistaken theology to try to follow the separate tribes. True it is that the succeeding division of the people into two nations followed the lines of tribal cleavage; ten tribes in Israel, and two tribes in Judah. But this did not restore the Federation of twelve separate tribes, but brought about two national entities. Later, two and a half tribes were the first carried into captivity. But this cleavage was not tribal, but geographical. The tribal statement was an easy and accurate method of indicating the extent of the disaster to Israel.

From the time of David forward we have the national stage as the sequel to the Federation of tribes. Present-day history illustrates the one stage in the Federation of States in America; and the other phase in the united nation in Britain.

The period under David and Solomon was a glorious period.

The nation was unified and extended. The services of the nation were widely extended. The worship of the nation was reorganized, the Temple built, and the liturgy enriched.

This period of Israel history finds its similitude in modern British history from A.D. 1780 to the end of the reign of King Edward VII.

Again the national formation was cast into solution by the division of Israel into two nations.

This was a departure vital to the home interests of the people. It had also a great repercussion abroad.

United, the forces of Israel predominated in the civilization of the day. The strength of the united nation was more than equal to any attack from the south that Egypt could organize. It was also greater than any attack that Assyria could organize. It held in absolute subjection all other and nearer neighbours.

But divided, Israel was not able to stand against the united power of Assyria. Therefore the external power and influence of Israel waned. The home defence was broken down, and two and a half tribes were carried away from their domicile east of the Jordan. Later Israel was attacked and invaded west of the Jordan. Samaria was besieged and captured, and the whole of the people carried captive.

Digitized by Google

This in turn left Judah exposed to the rising power of Babylon—the power succeeding Assyria—and Judah was also carried away. Thus the land was left desolate.

Modern history similarly shows the division of the Anglo-Saxon race into two nations: Britain and America. It is certain that the home life of both these peoples was prejudicially affected, no matter how historians may gloss it over; and that their place in the world of nations is not as secure today as it would have been had the race remained united.

But the similitude will end there. For there is from year to year a growing spirit of unity between Britain and America, and the end foretold in the Scriptures is for a speedy and complete unification of the Anglo-Saxon race.

At the period of the ending of the kingdoms of Israel and of Judah in Palestine we take a survey of the race and its dwelling-places.

As we have seen in a former article, Judahites under Zarah had migrated to the north and had established the kingdom of Priam, the capital of which was the City of Troy, on the banks of the Dardanelles.

This city had been destroyed before the time of David by the kindred power of the Danaois from Greece. They fought over a moral issue, as had the eleven tribes of Israel with the tribe of Benjamin.

From the death-blow of the destruction of Troy the kingdom of Priam seems not to have recovered, and the royal line of Trojan kings migrated to Britain and established their reign therein and founded the City of London under the name of Troynovant—or New Troy. This establishment was made by Bruté about the time that King David was establishing his seat in the newly-captured City of Jerusalem.

During the Joshua administration, and the period of the Judges, the tribe of Dan had fought their way northward up the Jordan valley, until they came to the City of Laish. This they captured, and, as their manner was, "they called it after the father of their tribe, the City of Dan." From thence they marched to Greece, and there conjoined with the Pelasgians to develop the kingdom of Greece. From thence they colonized the coasts of Asia Minor. Thence they took their way to Denmark, and finally came into Britain as the Danes.

From the land of Palestine ten-tribed Israel went to Assyria.

There they struck out for independence, and were the means of the fall, first of Assyria, then of Babylon, and later were the cause of the death of Cyrus. From thence they moved into southern Europe and north-western Asia. After wandering in these regions for centuries, driven here and there by the ethnological struggles and movements of the age, they took their slow but steady way northward and westward into Europe, and finally came into Britain wave after wave, each wave being called by a different name or set of names.

ISRAEL GATHERED INTO THE BRITISH ISLES.

The next dissolving view we have of the people is that period in which, according to the Word of the Lord by the voice of many prophets, they were gathered out of the countries into the British Isles.

The settling of the Israel colony in Britain was a long process. It began with pioneer settlers of the race from the land of Goshen, what time Israel dwelt in that border land of Egypt. It continued through the period of the Judges, and of the Kingdoms, and was accelerated by hosts of refugees fleeing from the advance of the armies of Assyria and later of Babylon against Israel and Judah.

The colony received an impetus when the followers of our Lord were scattered and "went everywhere preaching the Gospel." Thus was the ancient British colony established in Britain before and during the first centuries of the Christian era. It was a cultured and self-contained colony.

Among the refugees who came to Britain, fleeing from the aggression of Babylon, was the House of David, which became established in Ireland. There the King and Court dwelt during all the time the Romans maintained their military establishment in England. By Divine Providence the King of the line of David was never brought into conflict with the Roman invaders. On the island of Ireland the armed foot of Roman soldier never trod.

Let those who will have it that Britain formed one of the ten kingdoms of Rome remember this. The ancient British colony was never subdued by the Roman invaders, who had withdrawn bag and baggage before the first of the Anglo-Saxons, Anglo-Danes, or Anglo-Normans came to these shores. Bad history only can fall into the above error.

During the period of the gathering out of the nations into the British Isles of the ten-tribed Israel captivity we see the coming of the various waves of Israel migration. We have said that there were present in the Isles:—

The original colony.
The House of David.
The ancient British in all their divisions.
The Anglo-Saxons.
The Anglo-Danes.
The Anglo-Normans.
All the other sub-divisions of the people.

They came from the ancient Commonwealth of Israel in Egypt and Palestine.

They came from the ancient kingdom of Priam.

They came from ancient Greece.

They came from the many lands of the wanderings of Israel of the captivity.

They came from Judea, when the Benjamites separated from the Jews at the siege of Jerusalem by Titus.

From all the lands of their dispersion they came under many leaders, and called by many names, to "the Isles of the blessed," "the Isles of the sea" which lie to the north and the west from Jerusalem.

In looking at the development of Israel in Britain we must consider:—

1. The colony period from probably as early as 1700 B.C. to the time of the arrival of the House of David about 600 B.C.

The history of these centuries of development of Israel in Britain is not very full or complete. But what history is full or complete during that period? The history of Assyria and of Babylonia during that period, although the centre of the then world civilization, became and remained a closed book for ages, a book which has been partly restored by the activities of archæologists during the last and present generation. There are writings and archæological remains to be found in Britain which, when fully recovered, tabulated and translated, will throw much light upon this period of ancient British history.

Digitized by Google

It will tell of the occupation of the British Isles, and the story will, on a smaller scale, be found to correspond to the similar story of the occupation of America, Australia and New Zealand by the same race in modern days.

The fiction that the inhabitants of these Islands, even in those early days, were "skin-clad savages" has already been shown to be ridiculous and contrary to all known facts. Yet scholarly University men are repeating the fiction still, in ignorance of the fact that there is no truth in it.

Strabo tells of the ancient Briton the following facts:—"He came, NOT clad in skins like a Scythian, but with a bow in his hand, a quiver hanging on his shoulders, a plaid wrapped about his body, a gilded belt encircling his loins, and trousers reaching from the waist down to the soles of his feet. He was easy in his address; agreeable in his conversation; active in his despatch, and secret in his management of great affairs; quick in judging of present accuracies, and ready to take his part in any sudden emergency; provident withal in guarding against futurity; diligent in the quest of wisdom; fond of friendship; trusting very little to fortune, yet having the entire confidence of others, and trusted with everything for his prudence. He spoke Greek with a fluency, that you would have thought he had been bred up in the Lyceum, and conversed all his life with the Academy of Athens." ("Prehistoric London," p. 148.)

THE HOUSE OF DAVID ARRIVES.

We next come to the interesting time of the arrival of the House of David in the British Isles; the intermarriage of the Crown Princess of Judah, the heir apparent of the House of David, to Eochaid Heremon, of the House of Zarah; thus reuniting into one the two branches of the sceptred tribe of Judah, and bringing about the establishment in the British Isles of the Royal line of David.

By many a genealogical test we may know that the present reigning House, and many another family of Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales is descended from that stock.

A history of this period will tell of the central throne being first in Ireland, thence transferred to Scotland, and thence to England. Further, the history of these facts will make clear to every reader that the Roman power NEVER CAME INTO DIRECT CONTACT WITH THE THRONE OF DAVID SO ESTABLISHED IN BRITAIN; AND NEVER INTERFERED WITH THE CONTINUANCE OF ITS FREE ADMINISTRATION OF THE KINGDOM FOR EVEN A DAY.

Let those who are anxious to give to Rome everything preceding the time of its withdrawal from England call to mind this fact, if the fact is known to them. If it has not been hitherto known to them, let them add this fact to their knowledge, and realize that it finally settles in the negative the question as to whether the kingdom of David in Britain, which, of course, was and is official Britain, ever was subjugated by Rome.

Rome maintained a military establishment in Great Britain for a period. But Rome never conquered the kingdom in Britain.

Rome added nothing to the civilization of Britain. This is true in the matter of military organization; for Britain tested the strength of the whole of the Roman Empire before the military establishment in Britain became an established fact. Britain was the equal of Rome in metallurgy; in agriculture; in the science of government; and was superior in education and religion.

The central government of Britain was with the House of David. Local government of "tribes" was in the hands of feudatory chiefs or, as they were then called, "kings."

THE ANCIENT BRITISH PERIOD.

We now consider the ancient British period. This generally means that period which brought the ancient Britons under the eyes of the European historians, through its contact with Rome.

It cannot be said that this marked the beginning of a new period of British development. Rather it was a period of terrific struggle and trouble in Britain. But it did mark the time when Britain found a place in history as written in Europe, and by the enemies of Britain.

Many scholars have taken the entrance of Britain into the European histories as a new period for Britain. It is a period in the production of written history. It is not a new period of development in Britain. A consideration of that which is here indicated will cause many readers of British history to revise their viewpoint. Written history, as found in the writings of European historians, does not answer to British facts. Let us get behind them, to the facts of the case.

We find the ancient British, so called, at the time of the Roman invasion fighting for their lives, and robbed of their possessions.

We find the Scottish people of the period free from the yoke of Rome.

We find Ireland untrodden by Roman soldiery.

We find Wales maintaining her separate independence.

We find the rugged Cornish proceeding undisturbed in their mines, dwelling on their still more rugged peninsula.

Then we find the Roman withdrawing under the pressure of the Israel-Gothic armies on the Continent.

This marks the close of an important era in British history.

THE BRITISH-ISRAEL VISION.

BY THE LATE HENRY G. LOCKE.

"Where there is no vision, the people perish: but he that keepeth the law, happy is he." (Proverbs xxix, 18.)

The earliest reference to visions in the "Inspired Word of God" is to be found in Genesis xv, 1, as follows: "After these things the word of the Lord came unto Abram in a vision, saying, Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward. And Abram said, Lord GOD, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless, and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus? . . . And, behold, the word of the Lord came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir; but he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir. And He brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them: and He said unto him, So shall thy seed be. And he believed in the LORD; and He counted it to him for righteousness." First we have the God of Abraham, Abraham representing the individual. Second we have the God of Isaac, meaning more than one, or a double degree; and Third there is the God of Jacob, implying a vast offspring or a great number. God said to Abraham, "Look now towards heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them: so shall thy seed be." Isaac called Jacob and gave him his blessing and said, "God Almighty bless thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayest be a multitude of people." (Genesis xxviii, 3.) The following points are interesting and instructive:

Digitized by Google

I.—Abraham believed God.

II.—Abraham forsook all for God.

III.—Abraham gave up what he possessed for that which was promised.

IV.—Abraham relinquished the present for the future.

V.—He went where God directed.

VI.—Abraham considered himself a stranger and looked for a more fixed and abiding habitation.

VII.—Abraham when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

Abraham by faith sojourned in the Land of Promise as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob—the heirs with him of the same promise. For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God (Hebrews xi, 9–10.) What is most essential to every believer in British-Israel Truth is a strong living faith in the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob, the God of Israel.

Our great forefather Abraham was put to a stupendous test, a severe and unequalled trial of faith! God tempted and instructed him to "Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of." Did Abraham obey God, seeing that from this lad "A Great and a Mighty Nation" was to come, and which was destined to exist throughout the ages as an everlasting people?

"And Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering, and laid it upon Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife; and they went both of them together . . . And Abraham built an altar there . . . And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son." But the angel of the Lord intervened; Abraham's great and magnificent faith had satisfied Jehovah, and, because of his unswerving belief in God, Abraham's seed should, in consequence, be greatly blessed and become a blessing. Abraham's offspring should also multiply as the stars of heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and they should possess the gate of their enemies. Abraham was no doubt cognizant of the great vision of Israel's glorious destiny to be literally fulfilled in the latter days. Abraham was the friend of God, and as such he knew that the oath which the God of Israel swore to him would assuredly be kept in each succeeding generation. He also believed, no doubt, that in the last days the manifestation of the sons of God would be made known and the vision of his (Abraham's) seed as a Great and Mighty Nation should influence the world, for its entire and ultimate good.

When our blind and often wilfully blind people realize that righteousness exalteth a nation, also that sin is a reproach to any people, then the grandeur of our British-Israel Truth will undoubtedly open the blind eyes of our blind race. "Blindness in part" is still a sad trait of our nation's characteristic failings, but the acceptance of our Truth means a Divine and glorious vision! It also means a revelation from God Himself that this British Race has been specially formed for His praise and glory. God has prospered and blessed us more than any other nation in the world's history! Why? In order that the British Race, the Chosen People, should be an ensign to the world, a lighthouse to illuminate the darkness of the nations. When the vision of God's great love to His people Israel is realized and accepted, then "Ye that fear the LORD, praise him; all ye seed of Jacob, glorify him; and fear him, all ye the seed of Israel." (Ps. xxii, 23.) Then the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea, and all nations shall call Him blessed. But the vision must first be understood by the "Outcasts of Israel," who in these latter days have become conspicuous for the "God of our Fathers." The British Race alone have been God's witnesses, His Messengers of the Covenant, performing His witnessing Gospel and philanthropic work throughout the world.

This, however, is what our British Nation is in urgent need of in these last and momentous days:—

1. The vision that the people of Israel are to be an holy people unto the Lord their God: "The LORD thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto Himself above all people that are upon the face of the earth." (Deut. vii, 6.)

2. The vision that "the Eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." (Deut. xxxiii, 27.)

3. The vision that Israel shall dwell in safety alone: "Happy art thou, O Israel: who is like unto thee, O people saved by the LORD, the shield of thy help, and who is the sword of thy excellency . . ." (Deut. xxxiii; 28, 29.)

4. The vision that "Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power." (Ps. cx, 3.)

5. The vision that "Thy people also shall be all righteous; they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of My planting, the work of My hands, that I may be glorified." (Isa. lx, 21.) Surely this is a glorious and entrancing vision!

6. The vision that "this people have I formed for Myself, they shall show forth My praise" (Isa. xliii.) This is clearly proved by the fact that the Holy Scriptures have now been translated in every known language and tongue and disseminated throughout the world by the British Race, which includes, of course, our brethren of the U.S.A.

7. The vision that "Judah was His sanctuary, and Israel (i.e., the 'British' Race) His dominion." (Ps. cxiv, 1.)

8. The vision that "The LORD hath been mindful of us: He will bless us; He will bless the house of Israel; He will bless the house of Aaron." (Ps. cxv, 12.)

9. The vision that Israel's seed "shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people: all that see them shall acknowledge them that they are the seed which the Lord hath blessed." (Isa. lxi, 9.)

Digitized by Google

10. The vision "That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ." (Eph. ii, 12, 13.)

11. The vision that "the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God" (i.e., the Chosen Race). (Rom. viii, 19.)

12. The vision that "they shall call thee, The city of the LORD, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel . . . and thou shalt know that I the LORD am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob." (Isa. lx, 14–16.)

13. The vision that "the LORD shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory . . . for the LORD shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended. Thy people also shall be all righteous: they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of My planting, the work of My hands, that I may be glorified." (Isa. lx, 19, 20, 21.)

Where there is no vision, the people perish: but the British-Israel vision means "Life from the dead," a new inspiration, a glorious hope, a sanctified community or race.

When the blindness in part which has happened unto Israel, and which is still in existence—when this blindness departs through the instrumentality of the preaching of British-Israel Truth, then the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea.

All nations shall call Him—the King and Redeemer of Israel—blessed. "Then shalt thou (Israel—or the "British" Race) delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father, for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it." (Isa. lviii, 14.)

"Remember ye the law of Moses My servant, which I commanded unto him in Horeb for all Israel, with the statutes and judgments." —Malachi iv, 4.

THE STRATEGY OF THE DIVINE PLAN OF CAMPAIGN.

BY THE REV. W. T. MEDHURST.

THE display and the exercise of Divinity's forethought in the great conflict with that mighty adversary, Satan, is a fascinating study.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth."

"And the earth was without form and void: and darkness was upon the face of the deep." (Gen. i, 1–3.)

"I beheld the earth, and, lo, it was without form, and void; and the heavens, and they had no light." (Jer. iv, 23.)

"For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God Himself that formed the earth and made it; He hath established it, He created it not in vain, He formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else." (Isaiah xlv, 18.)

"An enemy hath done this." (Matt. xiii, 28.)

"For by Him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by Him, and for Him: And He is before all things." (Col. i, 16, 17.)

"He hath made a decree which shall not pass." (Psalm cxlviii, 6.)

"My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of My lips." (Psalm lxxxix, 34.) "For the Lord of Hosts hath purposed, and who shall disannul it? and His hand is stretched out, and who shall turn it back?" (Isaiah xiv, 27.)

Certainly not that enemy; and so the re-creation, and the renewal of the earth during those periods of Genesis i. But then the enemy apparently scored against the Divine protestant, in that the Lord had to determine the Flood. "But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord." Now, Peter in his second Epistle (iii, 3) says, "Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation. For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the Word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth standing out of the water and in the water: whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished." Critics, who sneer at that of which they have had no experience, only reveal the shallowness of their mind. They are willing to remain in ignorance. They do not desire knowledge. "He answereth a matter before he heareth it, and it is a folly and shame unto him." We learn, then, that the earth was not in its present divided condition when the Flood occurred. It was, indeed, just as the Bible describes it in Genesis i, 9 and 10, the water and the earth were separated, "and God called the dry land earth, and the gathering together of the waters he called seas." The earth, that is the dry land, was submerged in the waters in the year 2348 B.C., after which it was once again raised to its former condition. "The earth standing in and out of the waters." Now we shall see how God strategically worked. We read that, one hundred years after this, Peleg was born, who was so called because in his days was the earth divided (Gen. x, 25), "in his days the continent was split up." Let us here note the remark made by Ferrar Fenton upon this passage:—

Peleg means "split" in Hebrew. Joktan means "lessened," probably referring to the lessening of the original Continent by the splitting away of the American Continents.

Thus were the Isles of the Seas formed, and the original Continent afterwards became known as "the ends of the earth," and so described in many places in the Scriptures of Truth.

"The ends of the earth" are mentioned in the following passages:—

Job xxviii, 24, "For He looketh to the ends of the earth."

Isaiah xl, 28, "Hast thou not known? Hast thou not heard? the Everlasting God, Jehovah, Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary. There is no searching of His understanding." (Heb. tebunah, in Job xxxii, 11, rendered "reasons.") There are certain reasons n the strategy of the Creator for the ends of the earth which may not at first be known.

Digitized by Google

Isaiah xli, 5, "The ends of the earth were afraid (filled with dread), drew near, and came."

Isaiah xli, 8-9, "But thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend. Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth. . . . . "

"Thou art my servant" is addressed as being in the Isles of the Seas, in contrast to "the ends of the earth."

See also Isaiah xliii, 6; xlii, 10; xlv, 22; xlviii, 20; xlix, 6; lii, 10; Jer. x, 13; xvi, 19; xxv, 31; li, 16, "The ends of the earth" significantly alluded to seventeen times; Micah v, 4; Zech. ix, 10; in every one of which it is to be understood that reference is to the Continents of Asia, Africa and Europe, from which the Isles were formed in the days of Peleg.

Hence the Biblical division of the whole earth into these two geographical partitions:—"The Isles of the Seas, and the Ends of the Earth."

Now the Prophecy of Isaiah is Triological in its construction, thus:—

I to XXXV.	XXXVI to XXXIX.	XL to LXVI.
The House of Judah and The Ends of the Earth.	The House of David and Jerusalem.	The House of Israel and The Isles of the Seas.

Isaiah identifies the Ends of the Earth as being the centre of idolatrous practices, which has been so maintained up to the present moment in that "lessened," or shrunken, threefold Continent of Europe, Asia and Africa. Then the Isles of the Seas are identified as being the centre of influence, known, in these last days, as Christendom. Just all those wrenched-away Isles from that one-time complete Earth-Continent. See America and the British Empire in proof of this. These Isles are populated by the descendants of Shem, and the Ends of the Earth are peopled by the descendants of Ham and Japheth. These latter Nations are in the main arrayed against the descendants of Abraham, the Island Shemites. In the Pacific, the Atlantic, Arctic and Indian Oceans, as well as in the North, Baltic, Black and other Seas, are to be seen the Hamites and the Japhethites, all and each plotting against the SEED OF ABRAHAM, *taken from the Ends of the Earth. Read just here Isaiah xli, 8 to 16. Let us remember how that our God used these very oceans and seas in our defence in the days of the Spanish Armada, and right on into these days of recent incidents. Let us in praise of this evident STRATEGY of the DIVINE GOD of gods, even of "JEHOVAH, your REDEEMER, the HOLY ONE OF ISRAEL," sing with Francis Quarles—

"I love the sea; she is my fellow-creature,
My careful purveyor—she provides me store;
She walls me round, she makes my diet greater,
She wafts me treasures from a foreign shore."

Rightly did Balaam say by the mouth of the Lord, "He hath said, which heard the words of God, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open: How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel! As the valleys are they spread forth, as gardens by the river side, as the trees of lign aloes which the Lord hath planted, and as cedar trees beside the waters. He SHALL POUR THE WATER OUT OF HIS BUCKETS, AND HIS SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS."

So we can clearly perceive how that the Lord, the Creator of Israel, hath prepared the ISLES OF THE SEAS as an impregnable and an invincible Sanctuary for His people's sure accomplishment of His Eternal Purpose in Christ Jesus our Lord.

* "Thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies. And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Such was the promise made to Abraham nearly 4,000 years ago. The gate to all the enemy countries of the ends of the earth—the sea—has been in the possession of British-Ephraim and her Daughter Nations for more than a century. "The five keys of the world—the Straits of Dover, the Straits of Gibraltar, the Suez Canal, the Cape of Good Hope, and the Straits of Malacca—are held by the British. See how Providence has been kind to us. Are we not the lost tribes of Israel?" (Admiral Lord Fisher's challenge o his day and generation.)

THE QUESTION OF THE CENTURIES.

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?"

WHAT thinkest thou of Christ, O Napoleon, mighty son of Mars, striding through the world like a Colossus, darkening the brightness of noonday with the smoke, and lighting the darkness at midnight with the fires of battle? Hear this man of gigantic intellect, whatever may be said of his moral motives: "I think I understand somewhat of human nature, and I tell you all these (the heroes of antiquity) were men, and I am a man, but not one is like Him; Jesus Christ was more than man. Alexander, Cæsar, Charlemagne and myself founded great empires; but upon what did the creation of our genius depend? Upon force; Jesus alone founded His Empire upon love, and to this very day multitudes would die for Him."—MACARTHUR.

THE DIVINE NOMENCLATURE.—III.

By JAMES CUTHBERT.

WHEN one pauses to seek for an explanation of the twofold covenant-making with Abraham by Yehovah and the Alehim, one is faced with what seems an insurmountable problem. One thing makes itself clearly manifest, namely, the perfect unity of the Godhead. Whatever be the thoughts and intentions of the Trinity, these are also those of Yehovah, the second Person of the Trinity, Who is the recognized medium for carrying out the decrees of the Triune God.

Further, one good and all-sufficient reason may, with all reverence, be submitted why Yehovah should bless and make a covenant with Abraham. This is that for the first time in man's history the proclamation is made of Yehovah's intention to choose a people for Himself by whom He would work out His purposes for the world's ultimate welfare. Much chastening and training would be necessary ere this wayward people would become in the distant ages a blessing to all the nations of the earth, and so fulfil the prediction made to the Father of the Faithful by Yehovah when commanding him to leave his kindred and his father's house. (Gen. xii, 1-3.)

Digitized by Google

As a preliminary for the effectual accomplishment of God's great world scheme, it was necessary, first of all, to exercise an act of Almighty power, whereby the aged and withered human tree should be endued with renewed life and so make possible the heir of the promises, even Isaac. Small wonder that a people having such a wondrous, unique and awe-inspiring origin should be described by Isaiah as " a people terrible from their beginning." All this was the work of Yehovah, and helps us to view His covenant with Abraham in its true perspective.

Passing then from the miraculous genesis of the Hebrew nation, their history, all through the æons, is eloquent of the fact that never once did their Maker lose sight of or forget those He had elected for His service. While in their own land He was continually pleading with them ; and when in captivity, desolated and forlorn—Israel in the far north-east, Judah in the south-east—He remembered His covenant and sent out to them, by the prophets, messages of hope and good cheer. Notwithstanding that He hath sworn by His most holy Name that His promises to Abraham and to Jacob are as sure of fulfilment as are the ordinances of the day and of the night, it is truly shocking to know that there are, and have been, Christians who refuse to believe in the literal realization of the promises to Abraham regarding the future of Israel. They do so on the ground that such belief is not reconcilable with Reason !

This is sheer trifling, for in matters concerning the things of God, whenever reason is exalted above faith, the tragedy of unbelief enters, and the rejection of God and His Word follows. It requires to be said that he who harbours in his mind the antecedent condition that before he can believe whole-heartedly what God Himself has promised, his reason must be satisfied, sets up another god before God. It should surely be evident to reasonable reflection and common sense that He Who made us, made our Reason and the Kosmos, must, in the nature of the case, have given His messages in perfect accord with the Kosmos and our Reason ; but also that, in the nature of the case, it is not possible that our reason can apprehend that perfect accord until—as condition precedent—we have got our reason ranged in line with His, by submitting ours to His, and believing Him.

There is one other Name met with in the Hebrew text of Genesis, and which reappears in many books of the Old Testament, that calls for explanation. This is Adonai (translated Lord) the New Testament equivalent of which is Jesus. By way of proof, let the reader turn to Isaiah vi, 1, where the vision is vouchsafed to the prophet of Adonai sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up. . . . And one of the seraphims cried " Holy, holy, holy, is Yehovah of hosts, the whole earth is full of His glory." This vision is referred to by John (xii, 41), and applied to Jesus. Commenting on the unbelief of the people in the Saviour, the Apostle observes : " These things said Esaias, when he saw His glory and spake of Him."

The first martyr, Stephen, witnessed a similar manifestation of the glory of the Lord, when looking up steadfastly into Heaven he saw Jesus standing on the right hand of God. It will be remembered that in the vision of the prophet, Adonai was seen sitting upon a throne. Has it ever occurred to a reader to ask why in the case of Stephen Jesus was seen standing ? Surely it could only be so that His first martyr should have a full and uninterrupted view of his Lord and of the transcendent glory of God.

Again, John, in Rev. i, 12-16, records the remarkable and glorious heavenly spectacle when he saw in the midst of the golden candlesticks one like unto the Son of Man, of Whose awe-inspiring presence he gives a sublime description. This was none other than Jesus, the ascended Lord, Who says of Himself that He is the First and the Last. It so happens that Yehovah applies these self-same words to Himself in Isaiah xli, xliv and xlviii. As the same ascription cannot hold good of two distinct personages, the inevitable conclusion follows that Yehovah (the Messias, the Christ) and Jesus are one and the same.

David was privileged (in vision) to see the ascended Adonai (Jesus) amid thousands of angels—Psalm lxviii. The Psalmist is so moved by the grandeur of the spectacle that he bursts out in enraptured strains : " Thou hast ascended on high, Thou hast led captivity (i.e., Death) captive ; Thou hast received gifts for men ; (namely, the gift of the Holy Spirit which He promised His disciples before His Ascension). . . . that Jah-Alehim (Holy Spirit of the Triune God) might dwell among them." It will be seen that David was privileged with a glimpse of the risen Christ and of the epoch during which the work of bringing about the Kingdom of God upon earth would be assigned to the Holy Spirit.

THE WITNESS OF ARCHÆOLOGY TO THE BIBLE.—I.

By A. M. Hodgkin.

(By kind permission of the Council of the Victoria Institute.)

The little land of Palestine has for centuries been an isolated country. Now a network of railways is fast linking it up with East and West, and it is once more becoming the centre of the world. Before long it will be easier for all mankind to visit Jerusalem than any other place on this earth. Its importance from a military and from a commercial point of view is realized by politicians, but the Bible student sees in all this a fulfilment of prophecy. A great future awaits this land.

In ancient times Palestine was likewise the centre of the world. Dr. Masterman writes : " It is in no out-of-the-way corner of the earth that the race, through which revelation came, was located by the Divine purpose, but in the very turmoil of the strife of nations, buffeted between the smaller nations in the immediate neighbourhood—the Philistines, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Edomites, the Syrians, and the restless children of the Desert, and ground betwixt the interchange of blow upon blow between Assyria and Babylonia, or the Græco-Syrian Empire of the Seleucidæ and Egypt. How small and how weak a race they were in almost all their history we realize as they appear as two small states, among many others, in the monuments. And yet God prepared this race, as He moulds the choicest individual characters of His saints—in the furnace of affliction. . . . All light thrown on Oriental ancient history has made it increasingly evident how

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

ND MRS. GARRISON AT STANLEY PARK, VANCOUVER, B.C., ON JULY 20, 1929.

Digitized by Google

important was Palestine as a meeting-place of all the great civilizations and races of the ancient world."[1]

"This is Jerusalem. I have set it in the midst of the nations and countries that are round about her." (Ezek. v, 5.)

Geographically, Palestine occupies a central position between the three continents, Europe, Asia and Africa. Draw a straight line from Jerusalem to Rome; then describe a circle with Jerusalem as the centre and this line as the radius. You will find that circle includes all the great nations of the ancient world; the four world-empires of Nebuchadnezzar's dream—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece and Rome; the great nation of Egypt, and all the lesser kingdoms of "the world as known to the ancients."[2]

"When the Most High divided to the nations their inheritance, when He separated the sons of Adam, He set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel." (Deut. xxxii, 8.) The little nation of Israel was "set in the midst." It touched the life of these nations at every point, and was continually coming in contact with them. Its history, as contained in the Bible, is full of allusions to each of these other nations. Such allusions are a challenge to the truthfulness of the Scripture record. If we find them proved true by the contemporary records of those nations the evidence goes a long way to establish the integrity of Scripture; for the work of an impostor is not likely to be accurate in its details.

The lands inhabited by the ancient nations of the world contain priceless archæological treasures bearing upon history as recorded in the Bible. But till quite lately these treasures were inaccessible, from the fact that the inscriptions were written in languages which no one living could read. They might be compared to precious archives hidden in a locked casket of which the key was lost.

In most remarkable ways one after another of the keys has been found, and found at the moment when the archives were most needed as witnesses to the accuracy of the Scripture record; found, moreover, in such a manner that we cannot but regard the discoveries as providential, rather than accidental.

Foremost among these keys stands the Rosetta Stone, now in the British Museum, discovered in 1798, by a French engineer named Broussard, near the Rosetta mouth of the Nile, and acquired by the British after the wars with Napoleon, more valuable than any military trophy, as it has unlocked to the modern world the language of the hieroglyphics of the Egyptian monuments.

Second in date, and probably equal in importance, stands Sir Henry Rawlinson's discovery and deciphering of the Behistun Inscription on the great rock in Kurdistan, where he was stationed in 1835, as a young officer of the East India Company. The account of the discovery, as given in his Biography, is full of thrilling interest, describing how he climbed the bare precipitous rock three or four times a day for many days together.[3] The inscription was a proclamation of Darius the Great in three languages, ancient Persian, Assyrian and Babylonian, all in the wedge-shaped cuneiform script. One portion was said to be unapproachable, even by the practised native cragsmen. But at length a wild Kurdish boy from a distance, "hanging on with his toes and fingers to the slight inequalities on the bare face of the precipice," succeeded in fixing for himself a swinging seat, from which perilous position he took a paper cast of the inscription. This Behistun inscription has been called "The Rosetta Stone of Cuneiform Discovery," and is the key which was to unlock the treasures of the Royal Library of Nineveh, discovered ten years later by Sir Henry Layard, and countless other specimens of the peculiar wedge-formed writing in common use centuries before Abraham, from Elam on the east to the Mediterranean on the west, and from the Caspian Sea on the north to Arabia on the south.

This is the language of the famous Tel-el-Amarna tablets discovered fifty years later by a seeming accident. A peasant woman, passing near some mounds in the south of Egypt, chanced to turn up a tile with her foot. The brick had writing on it, and thus "at last, in 1887, came a discovery which revolutionized our conceptions of ancient Oriental history, and made the assumption of ancient Oriental illiteracy henceforth an impossibility."[4]

Meanwhile, in 1869, another key was discovered, this time by a Missionary of the Church Missionary Society, Dr. Klein. This was the Moabite Stone, inscribed in letters of the Phœnician alphabet, giving us the precise mode of writing employed by the earlier prophets of the Old Testament. Further illustration of this style of writing was obtained by the discovery of the Siloam Inscription in 1880. A native boy, wading with others in the pool of Siloam, accidentally slipped and fell into deeper water. He saw some strange letters on the side of the rocky channel, and reported it to his teacher, Herr Schick. The inscription describes the meeting of the workmen in the tunnel (1,700 feet long) which they were excavating, and how they heard each other's picks at work, and cut through the intervening rock. We have in 2 Chron. xxxii, an account of the making by Hezekiah of what is generally believed to be the same conduit, in order to prevent the water supply of the city falling into the hands of the invaders.

The Greek Papyri, discovered in Egypt, have provided a key to the better understanding of New Testament Greek. Searching for archæological treasures the explorers came across a number of mummified crocodiles. The apparent worthlessness of the find, and the great number of these crocodiles, so exasperated the men, that they broke one of them to pieces, and disclosed the surprising fact that the creature was wrapped in sheets of papyrus. The result was a systematic search through the crocodile cemetery, and the discovery of many valuable papyri of the second century B.C.

The keys having been found, we can now call upon the nations one by one to give their witness to the truth of the Bible record. But before doing so, let us see what the land of Palestine itself has to give in the way of evidence.

Dr. Masterman tells us that, "the light thrown directly on the Bible by investigations in the Holy Land has been out of all proportion to the extent of the excavations, and with-

[1] "Land of Palestine," by Dr. E. W. Masterman, Journal of Victoria Institute, Vol. XLIX, p. 218.

[2] See an article by Rev. Andrew Craig Robinson, in Friends' Witness, Vol. X. p. 5.

[3] "Memoir of Sir Henry C. Rawlinson," pp. 59, 155.

[4] "Monument Facts and Higher Critical Fancies," p. 36. Prof. Sayce.

Digitized by Google

out doubt more important discoveries yet lie hidden under the heaped up dust of many 'tells.'"

The Rev. James Neil, who was chaplain to Bishop Gobat, the first bishop of Jerusalem, was in that city in the early days of the Palestine Exploration Society, when a band of young men under Lieutenant Conder began operations. Charles Terry Drake, a descendant of Admiral Drake, was acting as dragoman. He was at that time sceptical in his views of Christianity, but would exclaim to Mr. Neil, "It is wonderful: here we are testing the Bible as it has never been tested before. Often we think we find it wrong; but as sure as we stop about three weeks in a place, in every case we find the Bible minutely accurate." This went on for about three years, and then Drake died at his post, leaving a clear testimony to his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

"The land and the Book," continues Mr. Neil, "answer to one another like the two parts of an indenture. The ancient unchanged life of the Holy Land, its manners and customs, natural features and colloquial speech—truly a divinely preserved commentary—everywhere throws light upon the letter of Holy Scripture, confirming its verbal accuracy and elucidating its meaning." As an instance of this he tells us that there are eight different words for valley in Hebrew, each having a distinct technical meaning. The Exploration Society invariably found that the valleys they identified corresponded to the form indicated by the special Scripture word in each case."[5]

Professor Macalister's excavation of the city of Gezer, 1902-1905, is another good illustration, in the remarkable number of confirmations of the Bible found in this "Mound of Surprises." The same may be said of Jericho. The objection has been raised that it would be impossible for an army to march round a great city seven times in one day. But this objection, like so many others, vanishes on the spot, for the ruins of Jericho show it to be a collection of tiny dwellings compactly crowded together on such a scale that you can easily walk round the foundations in half an hour or less.

This Bible is the best Guide Book to Palestine. The fact that it was in such request among our British soldiers is a proof of this.

"Correctness concerning the place of an event is the first and most important mark of a true narrative of real happenings. And there is nothing in ancient history so completely confirmed and so universally accepted as the trustworthiness of the geographical and topographical indications of Scripture."[6]

[5] "The Witness of the Land," Rev. J. Neil, M.A., in Friends' Witness, Vol. I, p. 8. 1908.

[6] "The Deciding Voice of the Monuments in Biblical Criticism," by M. G. Kyle, LL.D., pp. 49, 51.

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,

6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

"Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.

For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled."*—Matthew v, 17-18.

"THIS IS THE WAY, WALK YE IN IT."

(Isa. xxx, 21.)

BY AN OLD CAMPAIGNER.

"This is the way, walk ye in it." More than sixty years ago the writer heard this command and perforce had to obey, and looking back over the WAY He, the Commander, led, can with thankful gratitude and joy say it saved him from a thousand snares, and, what is of far greater importance, led him to look forward with confidence to those unspeakable joys the Lord has prepared for those who humbly strive to walk in His ways and obey His commands.

This is the WAY; furthermore, it is the WAY our Lord came down to earth to teach, that we who are of the earth may feel and realize the love He bore towards us, giving up His heavenly home that He might not only by word of mouth teach us of the way, but walk Himself in that way; to prove His love by treading the path He desires us to tread, leading, as a true Shepherd, His flock, and now gone on before to prepare a place in His Father's House to which He may lead us; but how little we seem to care, how seldom we take the trouble to look. What folly!

Darkness indeed covers the earth and gross darkness the people. Yet He pointed out the light and trod the way, which should be plain for us to walk in. Then why this deplorable darkness—why this groping after the way which apparently seems lost? The people need it, and not only need it but are hungering and thirsting after the WAY. Then where is it to be found? Alas for the teaching of many of our "shepherds" who should be leaders and guides. Alas, their "guidance" leads to confusion. Why? Because the commands of the Master are disobeyed. Our Lord and Saviour said: "Whosoever heareth these sayings of Mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock." (Matt. vii, 24.) Therein is the right WAY—hearing and doing the sayings of the Lord. Then why, oh why, do not our earthly shepherds teach us of, and lead us in, that way? Our Lord, the Chief Shepherd, told us in His "Sermon on the Mount" that His mission to earth was primarily to fulfil the Scriptures. Be it noted that the Old Testament Scriptures only were in existence at the time, so let us make no mistake here. He came to teach and to fulfil the Old Testament Scriptures, and whoever heareth and doeth His sayings, He tells us is wisely building on a rock (and that Rock is Christ).

In St. John v He commands that those Scriptures be searched, and tells the dire consequence of disobedience; then assures us in the parable of Lazarus and the rich man, "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead." (St. Luke xvi, 31.) Also after He (the One) had risen from the dead even two of His disciples He calls fools and slow of heart to believe those things of which the prophets had spoken; later the same day He opened the understanding of His assembled disciples that they might understand the Scriptures. Therein lies the chief cause of the failure of most of our earthly shepherds—that they do not teach the Scriptures, as commanded by our Lord and Master Jesus Christ.

Digitized by Google

Oh, the pity of it that we, Israel, chosen by God especially as His servants to show forth His praise, should so sadly fail in doing His commands and walking in His ways. Can we wonder at the failures attending the ministry when such disobedience is manifested? God said: "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall be also reap." What have many of the ministry—the shepherds—sown? What is the harvest being reaped? In Church and State, at home and abroad, what?

Beginning at Moses and the Prophets Jesus opened up to them the Scriptures and said, "Go ye into all the world teaching and preaching whatsoever I command you, for (in obeying these commands) I am with you even unto the end." Is it not because those Scriptures have not been taught that the Prophet Ezekiel was commanded (chap. 34) to write to the shepherds who were neglecting to feed the flock on the food He had provided, the food described by Isaiah in chapter lv, which could be bought without money and without price?

If these things are so, wherein lies the remedy? Is there no balm in Gilead? Yes, a thousand times yes; God hath not left Himself without witnesses. He has said: "This people have I formed for Myself; they shall show forth My praise." Therefore though the shepherds may fail, through traditions and teachings of men, He has yet "seven thousand" in Israel who have not bowed the knee to Baal. Yes; and not only seven thousand, but seventy times seven thousand.

"ARISE, SHINE; FOR THY LIGHT IS COME, for, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people." What a true picture of the present time; what a contrast! Light and darkness. Oh, for a thousand tongues to sing of that Light. Soon shall this world realize in spirit that beautiful 60th chapter of Isaiah, and the time, soon to come, when our Light shall no more go down. HE is the Light Who is also the WAY, for He said: "I am the Light of the world: he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the Light of life." Therefore let us walk in the way and keep His commands. Arise. Yes, verily those who have not bowed the knee to Baal have arisen.

SHINE.—Truly they have shone, for the glory of the Lord is risen upon them, their sound is gone out and is still going out into all lands, for they walk in His way and teach His commandments; therefore He is with them even unto the end. Daily are many added to the Lord, and many of the ministry are obedient to the faith. Sing, oh heavens, and be joyful, oh earth, for the Lord hath done it. In the appointed place according to His covenant to our forefathers, to David and his seed, and to His people Israel for ever. (2 Samuel vii, 10, 29.) So in the "appointed" place they "Arise and shine," and they have a name that doth witness for them.

ISRAEL.—Could any earthly body of people adopt a more glorious name? Nay, let us go further and say that no other people could truly take such a name, for only of one people can it possibly be true. The people that God formed for Himself and said they shall show forth My praise. One way of doing this is by going into all the world to teach and preach whatsoever He commanded, beginning at the beginning, forming the Old Covenant and the New into one complete Book, which being taught ensures His presence and blessing unto the end.

This is Israel's mission, wheresoever they are scattered; knowing that in keeping and teaching God's commands, He is with them always, so that no power of darkness can prevail. Shine on, for the glory of the Lord is with thee.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

THE GREAT PYRAMID AND COMING EVENTS.

DEAR SIR,—It should be an accepted fact that a geometrical and mathematical education is essential for the expounder of the great truths enshrined in this "greatest wonder of the ages."

Much harm has been done by lecturers, not so equipped, giving all sorts of fantastic dates (sidereal, solar, lunar and astrological) for the prominent features of the chambers leading off from the Great Step to the King's Chamber, whereas, only one date can be assigned to each of the salient points under consideration, and those dates are determined by the geometry of the Builder's intention, which proves that the inch MUST have the value, in time, of a month of 30 days.

This latter is clearly established by Basil Stewart in his "Witness of the Great Pyramid," pp. 181-3, and also in several parts of David Davidson's monumental work, "The Great Pyramid" (than these two gentlemen, there are few exponents of equal standing).

Other lecturers, including myself, have gone wrong (although we had been warned by both the above-mentioned authors) by not clearly grasping the significance of the Granite features in these passages, the hard unyielding substance of Granite denoting spiritual, as opposed to mundane, matters (although the two are undoubtedly inextricably mixed).

We should have gone to our Bibles and would there have found that, having passed the period in world history known as the "Drying up of the Euphrates," we had, between May and August, 1928, come to the underground and stealthy propaganda period of the "three unclean spirits like frogs" being let loose on the world in general but on Great Britain in particular, as is so clearly shown in THE NATIONAL MESSAGE articles of our excellent Mr. Goard.

Penetrating further into the second Low Passage in the Pyramid, we come to the point where we stand under the largest mass of Granite (forming the north wall of the King's Chamber), the commencement of which Basil Stewart has calculated, from his knowledge of stress and strain in building construction, to be 2.15 P.M. September 15th, 1931. This, to my mind, will be one of the most momentous dates in Israel's history, for we find that Ezekiel had a vision (Ezek. viii, 1) "on the fifth day of the sixth month in the sixth year of our captivity" (i.e., in September 590 B.C.), wherein he describes the various steps (Ezek. ix, 3; x, 14-18; and xi, 22-3) taken by the "Glory of the Lord " when what is known as the " Shekinah " departed from the Temple of Solomon.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Stewart's date—September 15th, 1931—happens to be exactly " 7 times," or 2,520 years, after the departure of the Shekinah as dated from Ezekiel's vision. I put forward two suppositions as to what may happen on this date :—(a) The great God of Israel will, due to our refusal to bow our " stiff necks " in humility before HIM, repeat HIS action of 2,520 years ago and wholly withdraw HIS beneficent protection from Israel, leaving us to shoulder our burden alone and so forcing us, nationally, to learn our lesson by bitter travail ; or (b) we will, nationally, go down on our knees admitting our own sins AND those of our Fathers before us and humbly beg HIM to get us out of the mess, nationally and internationally, we will then be in, and so the " Glory of the Lord " will return to Israel " 7 times " after HE left.

Which of these two suppositions is the more likely ? Our Bible tells us that Israel is to be blind " until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in."

As the " Times of the Gentiles " are not completed until September, 1936 (Entry to the King's Chamber and 2,520 years after the final Jewish Captivity, 585 B.C.), it appears to me that Israel is to retain its proverbial " stiff neck " until then, and that September 15th, 1931, will usher in the final Tribulation which is to teach her who, and what, she is.

The " Times of the Gentiles " began to run out December, 1917, with the capture of Jerusalem, and shortly afterwards, viz., Spring, 1919, the British-Israel-World Federation was formed ; now, after a whole decade has passed, this Federation has almost miraculously removed blindness from hundreds of thousands, but there are only two short years remaining for blindness to be removed entirely if supposition (b) is to be correct. Can it be done ?

FRED WALKER.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

SIR,—The Archbishop of Canterbury's reference to Disestablishment, although guarded, is a grave matter. Other bishops have touched upon it. But the allusion by the Primate of all England is a much graver event.

The Church of England is not the Peculium of its bishops, nor indeed of its bishops and their clergy, to deal with as seems best to them. It is the heritage of the English nation. Its ultimate roots can be traced for two centuries before the mission of Saint Augustine. The early British Church, although driven to the mountains of Wales and the confines of Cornwall by the Saxon invaders, was never exterminated, and we find that British bishops attended the synods of early Christendom. Legend, supported at any rate partially by known facts, assigns to it the position of the earliest Christian Church, outside the confines of Jerusalem.

Its daughter Church, vivified by the preaching of Saint Augustine in 596, converted their pagan oppressors, and the Church spread East and West, North and South. It has grown, and waxed strong, as the nation grew and waxed in power, and has never been so dominated by Papal authority as other Christian Churches on the Continent were.

It may be likened to a fruitful vine, a veritable " Tree of Life," having spread its branches into every corner of the land, and which has afforded the life-giving fruit of Gospel teaching to many generations of English men and women.

Such is the spiritual organization ; and here in brief words is the life story of that great religious body which we, of to-day, know as the Established Church of England.

It may come crashing down in Disestablishment ; but woe to him who first lays axe to its roots !

But has His Grace envisaged the utterly disastrous consequences which Disestablishment would entail ?

The vast increase in the power of the Roman Catholic Church, to which power, as a dominating influence, the English people are instinctively averse. The strife in many places amongst varying sects for the use of the parish church. For if the Church of England seeks Disestablishment it could not expect, and it assuredly would not get, the same terms as in previous Disestablishments. Worse, far worse than this, in thousands of parishes there would no longer be a minister to lead, to teach and to guide his parishioners in the way of godly living. To visit the sick, to comfort the dying, to lay the departed to rest among the dust of their forbears in the hallowed churchyard, whilst reading over them those incomparable words of comfort and of hope from our Burial Service.

Such would be some, not all, of the dire effects of Disestablishment. Surely His Grace must see this, and will I trust lead the thoughts of the Episcopal Bench towards using the latent powers of Ecclesiastical Courts—powers of which we have of late seen two striking examples—to bring clergymen, who are recalcitrant as to ritual, to a sense of that discipline which they have promised in their ordination vows to render to their bishop.

Were those powers brought into readiness, and available as a last resort, a grave admonition from the Primate of the Province would, in almost all cases, probably suffice.

There might, as in the controversy of sixty years ago, be secessions to Rome. That would be a lesser evil than the disruption of our historic Church. We Protestants do not think that earnest, conscientious Roman Catholics are doomed to eternal perdition.

Are there not other Churches to bring into inter-communion? The sister Established Church of Scotland ? The great Protestant Nonconformist Churches in England and in the Dominions ? All these offer a field of promise far more in accordance with the feelings of the bulk of the English people than the Malines Conference.

Has there not, of late years, been too much " policy " and " management " in the councils of the Established Church ?

Policy and management have their uses in diplomacy and in political affairs ; but the conferences of the Church should surely be guided by Higher counsels—counsels sought from on High.

C. W. F. C.

* * *

The Imperial Alliance for the Defence of Sunday received notification from the Artists' Section of the Stage Guild, that at the Annual General Meeting the following resolution was passed by a large majority :—

" That this meeting is entirely opposed to the Sunday opening of theatres in any shape or form whatever."

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

By the time this issue is in the hands of our readers we hope that Mr. and Mrs. Garrison will have safely arrived HOME, and at Headquarters, being due at Southampton on the 27th. They have had a wonderful time, though, of necessity, somewhat strenuous.

* * *

MEETINGS AT HEADQUARTERS are to be resumed next week, and Mr. John Leech will open the session with an address on Wednesday afternoon, September 4th, at 3 o'clock. Please rally to this opening meeting, and give a good rousing send-off to the work ahead. The next address is on Thursday evening, at 7.30. Teas are being served, and will be ready after the meeting on Wednesday.

* * *

On the following Wednesday afternoon, September 11th, Mr. Garrison will give a talk on some of his recent experiences in Canada; this will in no way be identified with the Lantern Lecture at Central Hall in October, but will touch on other phases, and be entirely different. Come and give a warm welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Garrison.

* * *

Will all our readers who are able to place Congress and Lecture posters and window bills please let us know how many they will require of each, that we may send them on? We always find such great help from the display given over a wide area by this means, and appreciate the kindness of friends in this way.

* * *

With the end of the holiday season approaching, thoughts will be turned more towards Congress and other meetings, and we look for a busy time with the demand for tickets. Will country visitors to the Congress please be sure to obtain the railway vouchers for reduced fares, bearing Mr. Garrison's signature, from Headquarters?

* * *

British-Israel believers in the Barrow-in-Furness district are invited to meet at "Gardiner's Cafe," Paxton Terrace, opposite the Barrow Town Hall, at 7 p.m., on Saturday, August 31st. This invitation may be in time for some to see, although the date is the date of this issue.

* * *

Mr. Wm. Whitton is to conduct the services on Sunday, September 1st, at 3 and 6.30 p.m., in the Old Barrow Christian Association, Brig Street, Old Barrow, and to lecture in the same place on Monday, the 2nd, at 7.30 p.m., the subject of the lecture to be "The British Throne." Mr. A. E. Timmins will preside. Our prayers are asked for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit during this visit.

* * *

The Branch at Wandsworth is growing, and the numbers attending the meetings at 120, Earlsfield Road are very satisfactory. The next evening meeting is on September 4th, at 8 o'clock, when the Rev. Joseph Gay speaks on "The Destiny of the Empire." Refreshments are provided free at the meetings.

* * *

Mr. John Foster Beaver gave an interesting yet concise outline of the Bible, illustrating the fundamental truths of the Book, in his address "Israel," which he gave at a meeting of the Harrogate Branch on August 12th. At the outset he explained that he came as an ordinary business man who had been interested by the Bible; not as a theologian. The more he read his Bible, the more of an inspiration it became. This was the case with most of the thinking people of to-day. These people were finding some dissatisfaction with organized religion, which seemed to fail in something; yet they did want to know something more about the fundamental facts, and the search in the Bible was a healthy sign. They found, as they read the Book, the word Israel, and later discovered that the Bible was written round that word.

* * *

In the Daily News and Westminster Gazette of August 21st appeared the following letter. The truth we are helping to spread is receiving confirmation and attention from many directions:—

SIR,—Mr. G. M. Thompson, in his recent article, "We Bury a Viking King," touched on an interesting point when he said that "the old Norsemen were not only daring warriors, but also magnificent craftsmen."

This remark strikes a point which is not only interesting but important. The old idea of the wild and savage ancient Briton has long been exploded, and it is now an established fact that the ancient Briton was a civilized being, an agriculturist and a farmer; his priests used golden knives and wore clothes of white linen.

The discoveries of archæologists have brought to light many facts which should cause the advocates of the cave-man and prehistoric man theories to doubt their theories.

Has the cave-man ever existed? See the discoveries of past civilization of Egypt, Assyria, Babylon, Greece, etc. Man has always been an intelligent creature. Practically as cultured and intelligent as he is at the present day.

Pontycymmer. E. A. LYONS.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, Friday, September 6th, at 8. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
BATTERSEA, 195, Lavender Hill, Tuesday, September 3rd, at 8. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, September 2nd, at 8.
CARDIFF, Central Y.M.C.A., Tuesday, September 3rd, at 7. Rev. W.T. Medhurst.
HIGHGATE, 223, Archway Road, Wednesday, September 4th, at 8. Questions.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, September 3rd, at 7.30. Bible Study.
LEICESTER, S.S. Memorial Hall, New Walk, Tuesday, September 3rd, at 3 and 7.30. Tea at 5. Mrs. Bloxam.
OLD BARROW, Christian Association, Brig Street, Sunday, September 1st, at 3 and 6.30. Monday, 2nd, at 7.30. Mr. Wm. Whitton.
PORTSMOUTH, Marie-La-Bonne Hall, Swan Street, Southsea, Monday, September 2nd, at 3 and 7.45. Mr. J. J. Morey.
RHYMNEY, British-Israel Hall, Tuesday, September 3rd, at 7.
SHEFFIELD, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, September 4th, at 7.30.
SOUTHAMPTON, Atherley Hall, Howard Road, Wednesday, September 4th. Mr. J. J. Morey.
SYDENHAM, 4, College Mansions, Sydenham Park Road, Wednesday, September 4th, at 3.15. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
WANDSWORTH, 120, Earlsfield Road, Wednesday, September 4th, at 8. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
WEALDSTONE, Baptist Church Hall, High Street, Thursday, September 5th, at 7.45. Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A.

Digitized by Google

B.-I.-W.F. Tenth Annual Congress

LARGE CENTRAL HALL, WESTMINSTER.

September 30th to October 5th, 1929, inclusive

Two Meetings daily at 2.45 and 7.30

A fine array of experienced speakers from various parts of Britain, the Overseas Dominions and U.S.A. Subjects of momentous interest will be dealt with. Tickets for reserved seats now ready, 2/- each. Course tickets £1. As usual Mr. Herbert Garrison will give a Lantern Lecture on the Wednesday evening, for which special tickets are required, at 3/- first reserved seats; 2/- second reserved seats; unreserved 1/-.

Applications should be addressed to the Assistant Secretary,

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

OUR DAYS ARE NUMBERED

By J. Bernard Nicklin.

(WITH FOREWORD BY G. A. ROBISON.)

New light on the numbers of Daniel and Revelation—Striking new evidence that the "Day" intervals of prophecy are now being literally fulfilled—Leading events of past 15 years occurring to a Divine Time Table—Proof that God is over-ruling in the affairs of men, and a Sign of the End—All interested in prophecy and British-Israel Truth should study this.

1/- Post free.

Advent Herald, 1 Cleveland Terrace, Bath.

OR FROM

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6 Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

HOTEL RUBENS

Buckingham Palace Rd., London, S.W.

(Facing the Palace

Adjacent to the

FEDERATION HEADQUARTERS

All Bedrooms have Hot and Cold Water and Telephone.

Private Bathrooms. Enclosed Suites.

Every luxury and convenience; in a word,

ALL ONE COULD DESIRE IN AN HOTEL

THE RUBENS ROOMS

An excellent suite of rooms in the hotel buildings which may be retained for any Social Function, Private Dinners, Dances, Receptions, etc.

Particulars of open dates from the Manager

Telegrams: "RUBOTELIER, SOWEST, LONDON."
Telephone: VICTORIA 6600. One minute Victoria Station.

B.-I. BOOKLETS FOR CHILDREN!

"The HOW Series."

(1) How the Coronation Stone came to Westminster.

(2) How the First Christian Church came to Britain.

(3) How David's Throne came to Britain.

By E. M. SHAW.

CHILDREN WILL JUST LOVE THESE LITTLE BOOKLETS WITH THEIR BRIGHT COLOURED PAPER COVERS.

PRICE 2d. EACH. Postage 1d.
The Three Booklets together for 6d. post free.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S W.1.

When replying to Advertisements please mention "The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

The Fellowship of the Kingdom

or, The Triune Kingdom of the Triune God

By J. G. MODIN

This book is chiefly addressed to clergy, ministers and theological students. It should especially be read by all Christians who, through misconception, are fundamentally at variance with B.-I. teaching. Send it to your clergyman. By an entirely new way of approach it opens up an essential aspect of the Divine revelation which no reverent mind can lightly put aside, nor any logical mind gainsay, viz., the revelation of a Triune God working out His purpose in and for the world, in and through His Triune Kingdom.

A Scottish Minister writes: "The threefold aspect of the Kingdom and indeed of all the manifestations of God is a matter of which I was aware, though dimly . . . Your book has developed the theme in directions I did not dream of. I have, and can have, nothing but praise for it."

Price 2/6. By Post 2/9.
Canada and U.S.A. 70 cts. post free.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1.

THE SABBATH THAT WAS MADE FOR MAN

By J. G. MODIN

35 pp. Paper Cover

Deals with that identification mark of Israel, the keeping of a National Sabbath. It is by far the most valuable contribution yet made to the subject.

Price 9d.; by post 10d. Canada and U.S.A. 20 cts. Post free.

The Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd.
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

GOD IN BRITISH HISTORY

By Rev. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A.

Sixth edition. 94 pp. Paper cover.

Price 1/-; by post, 1/2
Canada and U.S.A. 30 cts. Post free.

The Divinity which has, from the beginning, shaped our National Ends is clearly demonstrated. Not only is there a God of History, but a God in History, and in the history of no nation or race as we ourselves find Him.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1

BE A BANNER BEARER

Spread the truth. Interest your friends, not only in our Movement, but in following our Movement and its developments week by week. Induce them to become subscribers as you are, for it is only thus that our Movement can grow and the light be shed in the dark corners. Do your part in the pioneering work and be a banner bearer.

Special Campaign for Increasing the Circulation of this Journal.

I wish to help, and I send herewith the sum of.....

for which please send ..... copies for three, six, twelve months to (Name) .....

Postal address .....

.....

.....

Alternative form :—

I enclose the sum of .....

Please send..... copies to whomsoever you may select for a period covered by this amount.

N.B.—The subscription is 3/- for three months; 6/- for six months; 12/- for twelve months. Canada and U.S.A. $3 per annum.

ADDRESS—

The Secretary,
THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

SEPTEMBER 7, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THY (ABRAHAMS) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24·7

G^t BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1^CHRON c.29 v.25 JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT"

Is 19 v.19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J.J.HALL. 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

HERE IS SOMETHING EVERY BRITISH-ISRAELITE WILL WANT.

A

POCKET CONCORDANCE

OF

One Thousand Texts for British-Israel Believers.

COMPILED BY CHAS. H. CORRIN.

Arranged alphabetically with the prominent word of the text in bold heavy-faced type. You know how difficult it is to remember a chapter or verse, but with this little Concordance in your pocket you can get the quotation and reference you need almost instantly. It just fits the pocket.

YOU WILL NEED THIS.

The price is only Sixpence. By post Sevenpence.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1

THE ORIGIN OF THE ENGLISH

By MAJOR B. de W. WELDON. SECOND EDITION (REVISED)

Here is a book which once read will be read again and again.

Our history traced for three thousand years. Of necessity, many details must be left out, for the whole of our history could not be compressed into the two hundred and eighty pages this book contains. The fact that a second edition has been called for is evidence of the value of this work for students of the history of the English People.

"The present writer does not claim that the story to be told in the following pages is anything of a new discovery. All the essential facts were in the possession of a man who lived many centuries ago, in the reign of the Emperor Justinian. And one German at least, the philologist Grimm, early in the last century knew a good deal more about the identity of Israel than he cared to disclose in books which were intended to glorify the great German race.

The chapters that will now be written have to contain many Biblical quotations. But they are no more designed as a theological disquisition than a Government blue book or a standard history would be.

They are merely the missing pages of the history of Israel, the pages that centuries ago were blotted out until the time came when they might safely be restored to their proper place in the world's historical libraries. All histories are dull reading; and condensed history is perhaps the worst of all, where no time can be given up to the 'drum and trumpet' details, interesting though these might be made.

This book is no exception; having to be condensed, many interesting points must be omitted. Before our case can be established, many witnesses will have to be called; men who lived in different ages and in countries far apart—prophets and saints, as well as dignitaries of the Church; Greeks and Romans and Jews; pagans from the North; modern scholars of the most profound learning; and writers of gossip who would be exceedingly astonished to find fragments of their work still in existence after so many centuries have elapsed. All these diverse sources of information will be placed on a friendly footing of equal credibility before the reader."

Crown 8vo. 286 pages, cloth - - - Price 4s. 6d.; by post, 5s.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 401. Vol. VIII. SEPTEMBER 7th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
HE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—IV. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	561
RITAIN APART, AND ABOVE. By Harrison Hill	563
XPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.—II. By the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.	563
HE DIVINE NOMENCLATURE.—IV. By James Cuthbert	566
REAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES IN POSSESSION OF THE HERALDRY OF ANCIENT ISRAEL. An Address by Bishop J. H. Allen	566
SOLOMON'S REIGN. By Daniel Farmer	569
ADDRESS by the Rev. J. Vavasour Hammond	570
"I WILL YET FOR THIS BE ENQUIRED OF BY THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL, TO DO IT FOR THEM." By H. E. Turner	572
A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE. By the Rev. George McGinnis (Illinois)	573
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	574

EDITORIAL.

'he following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; he inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—IV.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

The Roman Invasion.

The simple story of the Roman invasion has not been told in such form as to give a well-balanced presentation of the facts of history.

In such an article as this the story cannot be told in full. Only the merest outline can be presented. It is to be hoped that some British historian will tell the story from the British standpoint, doing justice to the British side and also doing justice to the Roman side of the question.

The Romans were spurred to the invasion of Britain partly by the lust of conquest, and partly by the fact that British armies appeared upon the Continent fighting as allies of those Israel peoples who were there contending for life and liberty against Rome.

On one occasion eighty thousand of the British appeared and tested the strength of the legions of Rome in the struggle of that power against the Continental branches of the Israel power.

The fleets of Scandinavia and of Britain again and again swept the fleets of Rome aside and even chased them triumphantly to their home ports in Italy, moving triumphantly on to the Dardanelles, entering the rivers of south-west Russia, and proceeding by the river routes over the height of land to the Baltic and so home again. How like the "Canadian Voyageurs" all this seems to be.

In civilization it is manifest that Britain was the equal of Rome, and in many vital regards the superior of Rome.

In the practice of the Common Law Britain was superior to the Romans, who practised the Civil Law.

In Patriarchal organization Britain was superior to the Roman world, the society of which was organized into classes from the patrician order to the most abject class of slavery.

Freedom was to be purchased at the price of a "great sum." The right of domicile was obtained as a great favour, with none of the rights of citizenship.

Domestic slavery was the lot of perhaps the majority of the people.

Abject slavery, which exposed the slave to the vicissitudes of the slave market; and the life of the slave to the will of his owner was universal in the Empire.

That benevolent form of family servitude, which laid equal responsibility upon master and servant; villanage which gave a man or a family a place on the land, a right to maintenance from the products thereof, and laid upon him the responsibility of a set form of service, viz., servitude to a master as the right of the servant and as his responsibility, so that to be a "masterless man" was a calamity, was the order of the day in Britain.

Service as a responsibility, with its rewards as a right, was the keynote of all the fabric of British society. That society was and is formed upon the basis of the "Common Law," which, traced to its source, is found to be the Israel Law.

Digitized by Google

Britain was far ahead of Rome in social organization.

In the matter of religion Britain worshipped the Trinity in Unity, while Rome was frankly pagan, worshipping a multitude of gods.

In arts and industry Britain was equal to the Romans; for instance, in metallurgy and manufacture of articles for practical use. True they had not developed the sculptures of Greece. And for a very good reason. They took the command to make no graven image so seriously that there will be found no statue or object of worship in the archæology of Britain.

In military organization, in weapons of offence, in castrametation, or the art of fortification, the Briton was the equal of the Roman. Before the Roman could subdue that portion of the British people against whom Rome marched, they had to bring their whole staff of outstanding Generals, under whom were gathered all the forces of the Roman Empire from the Baltic Sea to India.

In agriculture, in learning, in religion, in law, the Briton was the equal of the Roman; and man for man was the better man.

There is nothing in the way of civilization, law or religion, for which Britain is indebted to the Roman world.

What then was the object of the Romans in putting up such a stiff fight to maintain themselves in the British Isles, or rather in England, during all that period?

There is the Roman viewpoint; and also there is the viewpoint which is presented to us by implication, by the general tenor of the story of Israel in the Isles as presented to us in the Sacred Scriptures.

First we shall turn to the Roman standpoint.

Britain was, by the testimony of Cæsar, rich in cattle and general agriculture.

Britain was also rich in minerals; e.g., copper, iron and tin.

Britain was populated with a people the manhood of which had looked the crack regiments of Rome, and the best Generals she had ever produced, fairly in the face, and had maintained the conflict on equal terms. That the Romans had met with success was due to the limitless resources of the Empire, and to treachery within the British Isles. Cartismunda, Queen of the Brigantes, betrayed Britain's hero king, Caradoc, after the ninth great general engagement, which last fight he had sustained at Malvern, where the earthworks of his camp is still maintained. See the address of Caradoc before the Senate at Rome.

Now Rome wanted the agricultural products of Britain to feed the luxurious and indigent population of Rome. "Bread and games" was the demand of the people there, a demand which no Emperor dare fail to meet. It was cheaper to maintain an armed force to take without payment the products of British labour and soil than to purchase the same in the open market.

Rome wanted British minerals. It was cheaper to take them by the strong hand of military power than to buy them in the world's markets.

Rome wanted the warlike manhood of Britain to reinforce her armies and to stiffen her ranks against the Jews and their Allies in the East, and against Israel under the name of Goths in the West. She could get them under compulsion, but her experience had taught her that left to themselves they would be found fighting under the banner of Israel leaders, against Rome.

Therefore Rome put forth her full strength to attain these desires, and for a couple of centuries was successful to that degree.

The conquest of the Islands was never accomplished.

THE ISRAEL STANDPOINT.

But from the Israel standpoint why should these things have been permitted by Almighty God?

The colony of Britain had lost touch with the motherland of Palestine. Especially had that colony lost touch with the people of the "Captivity" of Israel. The various sections of the Israel peoples dwelling and acting under different ethnic organizations, and called by different names, did not recognize their mutual relationship. The Saxon was as much an enemy to the Briton, in the British estimation, as was the Teuton or the Roman.

But under the Divine plan the Saxon element of Israel was now to be brought into the land of Britain.

Had the Saxon come into Britain when the British were at full strength, what a tremendous conflict between brethren in the sight of God would have necessarily ensued.

So the Romans were allowed to come, and to partly dispossess the British from English lands, which they were too few to develop fully. They did so and held these lands as owners during several generations, until the sense of ownership had passed from the minds of the British. Then the Romans withdrew bag and baggage, and left the place vacant and ready for the advent of the Saxon migration of Israel into Britain.

Thus the Roman power was used to prepare a place for the Saxon stream of immigration, under which name the bulk of the ten-tribed captivity came into Britain.

Now THE ROMANS WITHDREW. They were compelled to this because of lack of strength to make good their military occupation.

No other migration which ever came into Britain during historic time withdrew. The British in all their many branches came—and remained.

The Saxons came, and remained.

The Danes came, and remained.

The Normans came, and remained.

We can find the descendants of each of these branches in Britain to this day.

But the Romans came and withdrew, and we cannot find an ethnological sign of them remaining. Why was this?

Because the Romans were not of Israel stock, and had no inheritance in Israel, whereas all the other branches were of the one kindred people.

So we see, as an inset into Israel history, that the Romans came, maintained their footing as a predatory robber nation for a period all too long, and then were compelled to withdraw. In the meantime they had accomplished the thing the LORD intended they should do, in making a place for the Saxon branch of the Israel people.

Digitized by Google

BRITAIN APART, AND ABOVE.

By HARRISON HILL.

THE Manchester Guardian, in its first leading article of Tuesday, August 20th, makes a discovery. No new discovery to us who believe Britain to be Israel, but an important pronouncement for a great and influential daily journal. The discovery, namely, THAT BRITAIN IS APART FROM ALL OTHER NATIONS. Apart, and above them; which is precisely what Britain must be, if she is Israel.

The editorial in question deals with Mr. Snowden's 'No," and, in unison with British opinion throughout the world, commends and endorses it.

With much of the article it is possible that our readers would not be in agreement; but the latter part of it comes very near to the truth. Very near, but not so near as public opinion will come, and before long. Here is the first glimmering of it.

"For the first time, the British Government has not been pro anything, but simply British and European. England cannot have any commitments, save one—Locarno. Locarno is necessary, because without it there can be no transition from the armed peace of our own day to the true peace that will perhaps come some day."

Delete that "perhaps." Peace WILL come, one day, but the Prince of Peace will bring it in. Statesmen cannot.

The Manchester Guardian continues:

"Locarno is bilateral; its logical conclusion is that England is of Europe and not in it, that she has no alliances, that she stands between the possible combatants and yet above them, that she has no special contact with any European capital save Geneva." Remarkable words these surely.

The Nation and Company of Nations, the great Commonwealth known as the British Empire, is the only League that will survive to be, under God, the sure foundation of a lasting world-peace. The isolation of Britain is one of the surest indications that she is Israel. The Manchester Guardian has come much nearer to the truth than the writer of the article realizes.

The article concludes:

"Not until now has England been free to draw this logical conclusion and to translate it into practical politics. She is free now—that is the consequence of Mr. Snowden's 'No,' and that is why there can be no going back upon this 'No.'"

* * *

We fear that neither from Locarno nor Geneva will come enduring peace. In the nature of things it cannot. Peace can only be the result of mutual trust and confidence, founded upon acknowledgment of and obedience to those principles of righteousness and justice once and for ever established in the Law of God, confirmed and summarized by our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ:

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself." (Luke x, 27.)

* * *

The fact that both Judah and Israel were commanded to abstain from alliances with other nations and to rely upon the help of God alone is recorded in many passages of Holy Scripture. For brevity, and convenience of reference, here are just a few of them.

Exodus xiv, 13-15; and xv, 16-18; 2 Chron. xxxii, 7-8; Psalm lxxvii, 15; lxxviii, 21-22 (indeed the whole of this Psalm); Psalm xliv, 1-8.

Numbers xxiii, 9: "Lo, the people (Israel) shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations."

Isaiah xxx, 1-17: "One thousand shall flee at the rebuke of one."

Isaiah xxxi, 1: "Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help; and stay on horses, and trust in chariots, because they are many; and in horsemen, because they are very strong; but they look not unto the Holy One of Israel, neither seek the Lord!" Passages like these might be multiplied almost indefinitely.

This was the Divinely commanded policy of Israel. A study of the history of England and of Great Britain shows that this always should have been, and must be, the policy of this Empire which we believe to be Israel.

This is why, in the words of the Manchester Guardian: "For the first time, the British Government has not been pro anything, but simply British. . . ."

This is why "she has no alliances"; "she stands between the possible combatants and yet above them."

EXPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

By the Rev. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.

II.—THE ASCENSION OF OUR LORD,

According to the Acts.

NOTHING could be less ostentatious, less accompanied with pomp and circumstance, than the entrance of Jesus into this life unless it be His departure from it. Born of humble parentage; laid in a manger, so unobserved that no one, not even the devout who had waited long for the consolation of Israel knew of it; so quietly that it was necessary for Angels to come down and announce His presence to the shepherds of Bethlehem, and by a brilliant star to the wise men of the East. His departure was even as His coming; when He took His last walk on earth with His faithful disciples, Jerusalem which knew not of His coming, knew not of His departure. Jerusalem was asleep, always asleep. There is nothing more tragic in the world's history than this city and this people which knew not the day of their visitation. Israel was verily ignorant of Him. Judah knew Him not, though He came unto them as unto His own. Israel, the lost sheep, knew Him not, though doubtless He went unto them even as subsequently He sent His disciples unto them. There is no record that they ever received Him. The Son of God came to earth very quietly and, when His redemptive work was done, He went as quietly as He came. We speak of the majestic storm, but methinks the calm is often much more majestic. The sea rolling calmly and leisurely at your feet on a quiet summer evening, the waves almost too lazy to turn themselves over on the beach, is more indicative of power than the crested wave feathered by raging foam. God's power and greatness is not seen in what He does so much as in what He might do but does not. It requires a stronger force to keep a body at rest than to set it in motion. Christ might have come in all the pomp and show of kings. He might have gone with equal splendour, and added victory, glorying over the defeat of His ancient foe. That He went as He came bespeaks His Diviner power. St. Luke tells us in his Gospel that He led them out, "over against Bethany," and was there parted from them. Then in the Acts he says that the disciples returned to Jerusalem from "the mount called Olivet." Olivet was over against Bethany.

Digitized by Google

CHRIST WAS VERY HUMAN.

When Dr. Fawcett accepted the call to London from his comparatively small country church in the West Riding of Yorkshire, and all his earthly goods, such as they were, had been put upon the cart, he went back into the empty house, into the old study which had for him many hallowed associations, for it was the room in which many of his flock had been born again; that room had witnessed many special and extraordinary seasons of prayer. He went to take a last lingering look at that old room. How very sentimental you say. Yes, but sentiment is the world's good salt. It is the savour of a sweet smell, as flowers in a well-ordered garden, or as birds winged upon the breath of the early morning. "I cannot go," he said. "Take back the furniture." With right willing hands, and many tears of joy, the simple country folk bundled the old sticks of furniture back again. The man they loved so greatly was going to remain with them. It was then that he sat down and wrote the hymn you and I are so fond of singing—

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love."

The Scottish laddie, off to London to fight his way in the world from his poor highland home, takes one long, lingering look at the bend of the road, brushing away a manly tear from his eye, at the old homestead, the smoke of the early morning fire, for they are early risers in the highlands, curling its way heavenward; then the next step he takes blots it out of sight but never out of mind. It is all very human, is it not? Well, I like to think that my Saviour was as human as that. Bethany, Martha, Mary, Lazarus, what loving memories clustered around those names for Him! He took them out as far as to Bethany for one last look at the home which had in it so much love for Him. Christ was very human. He had stayed at Bethany during the feast, going and coming between it and Jerusalem each morning and each evening until the fatal hour in the Garden which made Him a prisoner. We have fallen into the error of supposing that His last journey upon this earth was from Bethany to Jerusalem. I believe I have said so myself more than once. I shall say it no more. His last journey was from Jerusalem to Bethany. And that is a true direction. Mark the importance of that. Bethany to Jerusalem is from the simple to the complex; from love to hate; from trust to distrust. From Bethany to Jerusalem may be the road to success, it is not the road to holiness. The reverse is always the final journey of the religious soul. He goes from the complex to the simple, from hate to love, from distrust to trust. He moves from storm to calm; from turmoil and strike, from the strenuous, to the house of Mercy (Bethany), where winged messengers of Heaven speak comfortably to His heart, reviving hope within Him more radiant than the western sky when sinks the sun to rest. "He took them out as far as to Bethany."

Note the familiarity of the last walk. The disciples talked with Him as in the old Galilean days, and He with them. They became so familiar with Him that they did not seem to hesitate, though His resurrected life had set a gulf between them, to ask Him about the restoration of the theocratic kingdom of Israel. "Lord, dost Thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" That that question should find a place in the Ascension circumstances is very important. It is a question germane to the occasion. Here again we have erred because we have suggested that the disciples should never have asked any such question. Our Lord's reply we have taken to mean that it was not our Lord's intention to restore the earthly kingdom at all. The question is not out of place; neither are our Lord's words to be taken to mean any such denial of the establishment of the kingdom of Israel on the earth, nor yet the throne of David in the midst of the kingdom, as our interpreters have suggested. Our Lord never destroyed any word of Holy Scripture. Let us then see if we can get at our Lord's true meaning when He said, "It is not for you to know times and seasons, which the Father hath set within His own authority." (R.V.) The disciples' question gave occasion for a correction of the emphasis. The disciples would stress the restoring of the kingdom to Israel. The important thing to them was the fulfilment of all prophecy. Their emphasis was on consummation. Now observe our Lord's correction of that emphasis. "Ye shall be My witnesses."

He silences their curiosity and proclaims their function. The emphasis is not on consummation but on vocation. They were at the beginnings of all things and not at the end of all things. Jesus does not deny the theocratic kingdom of Israel. All He says is that it did not concern them. "It is not for you to know the times and the seasons which the Father hath put in His own power." Is this an eternal word? Did Christ speak here for all time? Is He speaking through these men to you and to me? For we have a similar question to ask Him. Is this the time of Thy Second Coming? Are we on the threshold of the millennium? I believe that Christ would give to us the selfsame answer. "It is not for you to know the times and the seasons which the Father hath put in His own power." That is not a denial either of His Second Coming, or of His millennial reign upon the earth. Nor is it a discouragement to those who would know what prophecy has to say concerning these things. Our Lord's words here must be taken in conjunction with His words elsewhere. He exhorts us to watch and to pray. He has given to us His messages through His servant John in the Book of the Revelation that we may have that guidance which He deems necessary in the latter days. "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." It is not a denial of interest, right and legitimate, in His establishment of that kingdom in the earth which He will set up when He shall take over the throne of His father David which has been given to Him from of old. It is only that He would have us understand that "of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but the Father only." We must continue to function the kingdom of God upon the earth by a perpetual witness to all the truth for which Christ stands. The emphasis then is still where Christ put it. "And ye are witnesses of these things." "And so is also the Holy Ghost."

Digitized by Google

THE HUMAN AND DIVINE WITNESS.

This witnessing, on the human side, according to Christ here, is to embrace not only the whole duty of the Christian, but to cover the whole field of operation both human and Divine. Jerusalem, the home; Samaria, the neighbour; the uttermost parts of the earth, mankind everywhere. "Ye are witnesses of these things." The things before His passion and the things after it. The things before His death and the things after His death. And all this witnessing by the power of the indwelling Spirit. Christ dwelt with His disciples forty days after His resurrection. All His appearances, I take it, have not been recorded. (vide St. John xxi, 25.)

The things He said to them are not all set down. Those forty days were occupied with teachings of the first importance: Teachings out of which arise all the doctrinal statements of the Apostolic Church. They were a busy forty days. Canon Westcott reminds us of the significance of the forty days here. He writes:—"The space of forty days is always in Scripture a period of solemn waiting, followed by issues of momentous interest. When the hope of the world was sheltered by the Ark, there was rain upon the earth for forty days and forty nights. When the people had been reseued from Egypt, Moses was forty days in the mount before he received the law. For forty days the spies examined the land of Canaan, the image of our heavenly country. For forty days Elijah tarried in Horeb before he obtained the revelation of God. For so long repentance was offered to the Ninevites; for so long Ezekiel announced the typical punishment of God's people. Only once again the same period is mentioned in the Bible, where it is written that the Lord fasted for forty days before He began to proclaim the glad tidings to the world. So it was that Christ's ministry ended as it had begun. The same mysterious measured pace in each case separated and united the old and the new."

The momentous issues involved in this final forty days of Holy Scripture are laid before our wondering eyes in history. And now everything is in order. The last word has been spoken, the last instruction given, the last wish made known. He Who had been so familiar with them now stands apart, not so much their comrade as their King. A change has taken place, not in Him but in them. For one brief moment He stands revealed as never before, not even on the Transfiguration Mount. Now He is to them no longer God manifest in the flesh, but man, glorified man, manifest in God. His humanity is eternally overclothed by His Deity so that St. Paul's statement is for ever true: "We know Him no longer after the flesh but after the Spirit."

As they gaze upon Him He rises from the ground. The earth can no longer hold Him, for the heavens are clamorous to receive Him. Up He goes, and their eyes follow Him until the cloud, which had come down to receive Him, hides Him for ever from their mortal gaze. Let me pause here to notice that cloud, for it is a familiar cloud. It came down on Sinai when God gave the law to Israel. Moses was gathered up into that cloud. It appeared all through Israel's wilderness wanderings to guide by day and by night. It came down and stood before the door of the tent of the Tabernacle which had been removed out of the midst of Israel through the transgression of the people over the incident of the worship of the golden calf. Again it fills Solomon's Temple at the time of its dedication. This same cloud overshadowed them on the Mount of Transfiguration. And now it appears to receive Him out of their sight. It is the cloud which always veils the face of Jehovah. It is indicative of the Father's presence.

Christ said: "I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father." (St. John xvi, 28.)

The Father, God, came down to meet His Son on His homeward journey. Christ went up into God. That is the meaning of the cloud which received Him out of their sight. Out of that same eternal Presence He will come again according to the statement of the two men who recalled the upturned wondering gaze of the disciples to the activities of the life which now is, and He will come "in like manner." I have already referred to Christ's quiet departure as in completest harmony with His quiet coming to earth. "In like manner" He will come again. Those are the very words, "in like manner." In another place our Lord refers to His coming as a thief in the night. He may come so gently that a wicked world may be asleep again. What if we ourselves should be asleep? "Watch and pray," said Christ, "for in an hour when ye think not the Son of man cometh."

After they had received this word from the heavenly messengers who stood by them, they returned to Jerusalem and were daily in the Temple blessing and praising God. Do you wonder at that? Why were they not sad, for Christ was gone away from them, and His loving form they would see no more? Why were they not sad? It was no longer the night of weeping, but the day of joy and praise. But why? Because He had risen again from the dead? Well, yes! But not alone that. Because He had gone away from them? Scarcely that, because they would have kept Him if they only could. It was because the men said, "In like manner" He would come to them again. The well-springs of the believers' joy are resident in His Second Coming. They thought that He would come again in their lifetime, and some acted foolishly in consequence. Better that, my brethren, than the way in which we have fallen from grace in these latter days, for how many of us are full of praise this day, full of jubilation, full of song because our Lord is coming again? "My Lord delayeth His coming," therefore I do not believe He is coming at all. That is the attitude, generally speaking, of the modern Christian Church. But He is coming again. May our steadfast upward look, even as we journey through the Jerusalem of this world, witnessing both to small and great, saying no other things than He Himself has taught to say, behold Him even here and now by the eye of faith coming in the clouds of Heaven. "Lord Jesus, come quickly."

Digitized by Google

THE DIVINE NOMENCLATURE.—IV.

By James Cuthbert.

Hebrew Lexicons and Dictionaries of the Bible inform us that Yehovah is the incommunicable Name of the Divine essence and then trail off into a laboured metaphysical disquisition by way of making perfectly clear this very difficult, recondite subject. But so far from attaining this end, the result of their learned labours is to leave the question enveloped in impenetrable mental fog. What is necessary for readers to remember is that Yehovah is the Divine manifestation of the Godhead to the Kosmos; that without such manifestation God would have remained unknown, and man's ignorance of his Maker could never have been dispelled. Every consideration of the creation of man, and of his intellectual and moral endowments, leads up to the conclusion that it was an absolute necessity of the case that God should reveal Himself somehow to man, otherwise the great work of Creation would have been marred and rendered imperfect.

Those who have read the preceding articles could not fail to notice how the various Names and Titles of the Godhead merge into one another from time to time. Thus we have Yehovah presented to us as the appointed agent for the carrying out of the decree of the Triune God, and the two are so closely in union that Yehovah is constantly referred to as the Alehim of Israel. On the other hand, Jah (the Holy Spirit), in several passages, is joined to Yehovah, indicating their indissoluble union. For instance, in Isaiah xii, 2: "Behold Al (God in the abstract) is my salvation, I will trust and not be afraid, for Jah-Yehovah is my strength and song; He also is become my salvation." Clearly Al, Jah and Yehovah are one, yet reflecting different aspects of the Godhead. In Psalm cxxxv it is said that "Jah hath chosen Jacob for Himself and Israel for an everlasting possession." But precisely the very same thing is said of Yehovah in numerous passages of Scripture. Lastly, of Alohe (the Father) the question is put by Yehovah: "Who is Alohe save Yehovah?"—Psalm xviii, 31. In our Authorized Version this reads: "Who is God save the Lord."

These are but a few of the many instances that could be quoted to show the unity of the Divine Essence, the manifold aspects of which are in this way mirrored throughout God's revealed Word.

It is necessary to point out that the great Name of Yehovah is restricted to the Elect Generations, and to their descendants through Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. It is "Blessed be Yehovah-Alehim of Shem"; but simply "Alehim shall enlarge Japheth"; while in no form is the Divine Name associated with Ham.

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a like alternation of formula is a conspicuous feature of the New Testament writings. Take the first chapter of the Ephesians, and it will be seen that this change of formula is constant from the opening verse onwards and throughout the Epistle. There will be found such forms as Jesus Christ, God, Christ Jesus, God our Father, Lord Jesus Christ, Christ, Lord Jesus, Father of Glory, Lord, Spirit, Son of God, Jesus. All this without the intervention of unknown editors or writers, so dear to the heart of the higher critics. It is written in Philippians ii, 10: "That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow . . . and every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord." But this universal homage is also claimed for Yehovah in Isaiah xlv, 23: "I have sworn by myself . . . that unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear."

Despite the limitations of our language two illustrations of its power to express in succinct phrase the threefoldness of the Godhead can be cited. There is, firstly, that wondrously eloquent and inspiring prophecy: "Unto us a Son is given, and His name is called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." We know Who claimed to be the Mighty God, even Yehovah, when He said to Abraham: "I am God Almighty"; and again when He said: "Who is Alohe (the Father) save Yehovah?"—words which recall those of our Lord: "He who hath seen Me hath seen the Father." Finally the manner in which the Trinity is treated in the Athanasian Creed is unsurpassed for clearness of vision, intellectual grasp of the subtleties of the subject, and lucidity of expression. Take a few examples by way of illustration. (1) But the Godhead of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, is all one; the glory equal, the majesty co-eternal. (2) Such as the Father is, such is the Son, and such is the Holy Ghost. (3) So the Father is God, the Son is God, and the Holy Ghost is God. (4) And in this Trinity none is afore or after other; none is greater or less than another. (5) But the whole three Persons are co-eternal together and co-equal.

Appended are the various forms of the Divine Nomenclature as they appear in the Hebrew Text of Genesis, with the number of times each is respectively mentioned:—

Alehim or Elohim, the Triune God	180
Yehovah, the Messias or Christ	125
Yehovah-Alehim, One in Three	28
Yehovah-Al, Yehovah is God	2
Adonai, Jesus	6
Adonai-Yehovah, Jesus Christ	2
Al-Elyon, Most High God	4
Al, God in general	4
Aleh (the Chaldee, or Babylonian form of Al)	1
Al-Shadai, God Almighty	5
Shadai, the Almighty	1
Al-Alehim, God in Three Persons	2

(Concluded.)

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES IN POSSESSION OF THE HERALDRY OF ANCIENT ISRAEL.

An Address by Bishop J. H. Allen.

Our subject begins in history, runs through prophecy into the present and on into the future. It begins on the 1st day of the 2nd month, the 2nd year after Israel came out of Egypt, or in other words one year, one month and one day after Israel came out of Egypt, and that is when by the direct command of the Lord they mobilized their first army, the result of which was 603,500 men of war from 20 years old and upwards, besides the old men. Our race—Israel—has never allowed their old men to go to war. The text proper is

Digitized by Google

ound in Numb. ii, 1, 2, "And the Lord spake unto Moses ınd unto Aaron, saying, Every man of the children of Israel ;hall pitch by his own standard, with the ensign of their father's ıouse: far off about the tabernacle of the congregation shall hey pitch."

National Standards.

Every tribe had a tribal standard. I am only going to speak of the four national standards. You will find that the standard of Judah was placed on the east of the hollow square about the tabernacle, and the congregation either in marching or in pitching their camp at night had on the east side of the line of march and on the east side of the hollow square the standard of the camp of Judah; next to Judah, on the right and on the left, we find Issachar and Zebulun. On the south side, the standard of the camp of Reuben. With Reuben, one at the right and the other at the left when they encamped and when they marched, was Simeon and Gad. On the west side of the camp was Ephraim in the centre with Benjamin and Manasseh at his right and left; and on the north was the standard of the camp of Dan, with whom was Asher and Naphtali. In the third chapter of Numbers you will find expressions like these: God had said that the tribe of Levi should encamp around about the tabernacle. "And the families of the Gershonites shall pitch behind the tabernacle westward. . . ." "And the families of the sons of Kohath shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle southward. . ." "And the family of Zuriel . . . shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle northward." While those pitching on the east of the tabernacle were to be Moses and Aaron, with their respective banners.

The Marching Order.

Now you see we have the hollow square formed for marching, and the statement is made that each phalanx of the army should march straight forward. "They went straight forward." The tribe of Judah being on the east was to go first, the camp standard of Judah with the two tribes with him was to go first. Then Reuben with his two tribes at his side was the tribe behind forming the second phalanx and marching straight forward. Then came the tabernacle and the sons of Levi; Ephraim and Manasseh and Benjamin were to fall in behind the tabernacle, and Dan was to be the hindmost in the line of march.

To find something about these camp standards, we have to go to the first chapter of Ezekiel, which took place in the 13th year of the times of the Gentiles, the 5th year of the captivity of King Jehoiachin and the 4th month, and so on. Ezekiel saw in his vision that each had the appearance of a man or men, the word "ish" being, in Hebrew, either "men" or "man."

Historical Confirmation.

This being the case, some translators have translated it human beings, and they have faces, they have hands and arms of human beings, and feet. You will find there are four ensigns described, one the face of a man, one an eagle, one a wild ox or unicorn as it is translated elsewhere, and the other a lion. The statement is made "they went everyone straight forward," and that the wings given to these living creatures in the vision touched each other. The lexicographers tell us that the word therein translated "wings" in the Hebrew means either the wings of a bird or the wings of an army, and you cannot form a hollow square with three tribes on the East, and three on the South, and three on the North, unless the wings of the army touch each other. Hence the wings of the army touched; then on the inside, of course, there were the wings of the Levites touching as they surrounded the tabernacle, which was always in a hollow square on the line of march. Now, the compilers of our Bibles that have marginal readings, in the description of these four beasts or living creatures, or whatever they are variously translated, have referred us to the second chapter of Numbers and the reference from the lion is given (Numb. ii, iii), the reference from the man (Numb. ii and x), the reference from the ox (Numb. ii and xviii), and from the eagle (Numb. ii and xxv). Therefore they must have understood history, because it is an historical fact, well authenticated, that Israel carried through the wilderness and into her God-given possession the ensigns of an ox or a unicorn, a lion, a man, and an eagle, and these are the national ensigns of Israel, as it is known to be by everyone who studies the Word of God.

These are spoken of again in Revelation, but that is for the future, so I will let that phase of the subject pass.

The Lion of Judah.

I must take the references to these different standards, and by referring to the Scriptures will find some of these ensigns. The reference to Judah from Ezekiel gives us the standard of the House of Judah. Now, we have in this Word of God an account of Jacob calling his sons together, and saying, "Come, gather yourselves together that I may tell you that which shall be in the last days." In speaking of Judah, he said, "Judah is a lion's whelp; from the prey, my son, thou art gone up. . . . He couched as a lion, and as an old lion; who shall rouse him up?" Thus we find that the ensign of the House of Judah was a lion, and corroborative evidence comes when we are told that when Jesus Christ our Lord comes back to earth again, He is not coming as the Babe of Bethlehem, but as the "Lion of the tribe of Judah," to be King of kings and Lord of lords.

In reference to the unicorn, let us first read Deut. xxxiii, 16, 17: "Let the blessing come upon the head of Joseph, and upon the top of the head of him that shall separate from his brethren. His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the horns of unicorns: with them he shall push the people. . . ." The pushing time has not come: but somehow when those two horns get together there is going to be some pushing. This word that is translated unicorn is translated also "wild ox." The unicorn is a species of the genus cattle, and there are many species of the genus, and of all these the matured male is called a bull, the mothers are cows, the younger males are bullocks and the younger females are heifers, while the babies are calves. Now what is true in the buffalo family is true in other families, consequently God put it in here, first the unicorn, which is translated wild ox, then we have bull and bullocks, and cows and heifers and calves, and they refer always and inevitably to Ephraim, and you cannot get Ephraim away from them.

Digitized by Google

Thus we have two of the ensigns settled; now for the third. This, of course, is easy to settle and a great many people have seen this. When Leah gave birth to her firstborn son, she exclaimed "Reuben"! Reuben is variously defined as a son, a male child and a man. Well, a son and a male child pre-supposes a man always, so Reuben's ensign became that of a man. Now we have located three of these ensigns, and since we know what the fourth is, it is easy to locate it as an eagle.

The American Eagle.

There has been a little controversy about the eagle. I have written a work on the heraldry of the United States and have, of course, accounted for our eagle in our heraldry, and I find that there is not a national ensign or emblem or symbol in the heraldry of the United States that does not belong to Israel. It is a marvellous fact that the United States has what we sometimes call and what the Bible calls in Revelation a "flying eagle." Someone said, "The American eagle is not a flying eagle, but a spread-out eagle." Well, it is a spread-out eagle, but you have to spread your wings before you can fly, and I find that in the definition as given by the lexicographers that a flying eagle means a spread-out eagle.

We have the spread-out eagle and you have the lion and the unicorn—you cannot get out of it. That accounts for three of the ensigns of Israel in a people that in every way answers to the prophecies concerning what the Ten Tribes shall be in the last days. Here comes the question of a man. Both the United States and Great Britain or the Israel living in the isles of the sea giving birth to a nation, both nations or peoples are called in the Bible a man. One says, "Who is this righteous man from the East?" And the prophet says that this righteous man from the East living in the isles of the sea shall give birth to a man-child. There you have it. Now, some have thought because of two nationally representative emblematic men, supposedly characteristic men, that appear in illustrations and daily papers the world over, represent the man. They are semi-humorous, and neither your nation nor my nation, while they are used to illustrate political crises and political situations, have felt that they were dignified enough to put in our heraldry. We talk about Uncle Sam, but we do not put him in our heraldry; you talk about John Bull, but you do not put him in your heraldry—they are not dignified enough for the coat of arms. We have got to hunt for that man in our heraldry.

St. Andrew's Cross.

Imagine this wall a white screen; the first thing we will throw on that screen will be a field of blue, and as you look at the field of blue you will see a white cross beginning to appear. It is not an upright cross; it will be the oblique or the lying-down cross. A white cross will come across that field of blue. It is in your Union Jack and they call it St. Andrew's Cross and it represents Scotland. If I was on the baseball field, and felt good and wanted to holloa I would cry, "Bully for Scotland!" For months I studied this question and I prayed, "Lord, show me the man," and the Spirit said to me, "Hunt up the definition of Andrew." I turned up Andrew in the Century Encyclopædia and the first thing I saw was "Andrew, from the Greek giving the English equivalent—Aner, a man. Andros—a mighty man—Andronicus, a man of victory," and the definition was Andrew—a man. In St. Andrew's Cross you carry the standard of the man. Why do you have that symbol? Because that is the sign of the cross that Jacob made when he transferred the birthright of Reuben over to the House of Joseph.

We will leave the screen there and you will see a red cross coming across the white one, and I ask, What is that? "Oh, that is St. Patrick; he represents Ireland." There is another man. Here is your blue, your field of blue and your white cross, and there is the red cross, but we have still another. You call it St. George's Cross and say that is for England. Three crosses representing three men, England, Scotland and Ireland, the islands in the sea north-west from Palestine. St. George's Cross stands upright, but let that disappear, and see a Man stretched out on a cross with the blood oozing out of His side and from His hands and from His feet and making that cross red. Let the Man hang there and then bring back the field of blue and the white and the red cross in the background behind this upright one, and then watch; the Man would disappear, but the red cross of St. George would remain. Now I will quote you a text. "In that day there shall be a root of Jesse that shall stand for an ensign to the people," and then I would point to that ensign, which stands for a man, and say, "Behold the ensign of a man, i.e., the ensign of the root of Jesse."

The Union Jack.

You have in the Union Jack these crosses: the Cross of Jacob, the Cross of Andrew, the Cross of St. Patrick, and the Cross of Jesus Christ, Son of God—and St. George—a double ensign and the double portion of the House of Joseph. Some day the watchman upon Mount Ephraim must say, "Arise, and let us go up to Zion," and you can go and we will follow. We would come from the west side of that square and we would follow, and you could take the lion on the east and the man on the south with your Union Jack flying, which says, "Behold the man!" Then your unicorn on the west and the American eagle on the north, and we could march out of this land under the same banners that Israel marched through the wilderness and into Palestine. I challenge any man who is a subject of the British Empire to take that lion and unicorn off your national coat of arms, and I defy you to try to take our flying eagle out of ours.

Now the question is, If we be not they and they be not we, where are they and who are we that we should have all the national ensigns of Israel? If we with our flying eagle be not a portion of the birthright house, what are we doing with one of the ensigns of the birthright family? And if you be not representative Israel and Ephraim, why is it that you and we unitedly are the only nations on earth that have these emblems?

Digitized by Google

SOLOMON'S REIGN.

(Psalm lxxii.)

By DANIEL FARMER.

ONE of our most beautiful hymns asks the question, "What will it be when the King comes?" Psalm lxxii answers. British-Israelites have been spoken of as "a body of people who believe that God keeps His promises." What a high compliment! Belief in Holy Scripture has been a distinguishing mark of the British people, and is to-day, in spite of all that has been written to disparage it. Let a vote be taken and the vast mass of our people would express their confidence in the Bible. But British-Israelites possess in their historical study of the Word of God, and especially of that part in relation to the history of Israel, an immense advantage over any other school of thought—they believe that God will keep His promises to His Son, not only in a spiritual sense, but equally so in a material and earthly form. British-Israelites not only proclaim the Gospel of Grace, a personal salvation by faith in Christ (John i, 12), but, with it, the Gospel of Race, viz., God's purpose by and through a chosen people to rule and govern the world, and to bring in the Kingdom, or earthly rule, of His Son (Amos iii, 2). Dan. ii, 44. For our Lord shall not only "See of the travail of His soul and be satisfied" with an elect Church, but by the agency of an elect Nation, "the kingdoms of this world are become the Kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ" (Rev. xi, 15). "He must reign," for God has said to His Son, "Sit Thou at My right hand, until I make Thine enemies Thy footstool" (Ps. cx, 1). In Psalm ii we get the fierce struggle which precedes this personal reign.

The Psalm is headed "A Psalm for—or of—Solomon." Solomon was a type of Christ—the name meaning peace—and Christ is the Prince of Peace. Solomon's other name—Jedediah, or beloved of the Lord—reminds us that God said "This is My beloved Son." Solomon's wisdom was surpassed by the One Who said, "A greater than Solomon is here" (Luke xi, 31). The wealth and power of the Kingdom of Israel reached its height in Solomon's reign; but the Divine Solomon is "the Heir of all things" (Heb. i, 2). Also, Solomon was the builder of the Temple, in all its magnificence; so Christ is the builder of a temple (Zech. vi, 12) so glorious and universal that it is spoken of as a State, in which the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple (Rev. xxi, 22).

Turning to Psalm lxxii we note seven aspects of our Lord's coming reign and rule; it will be:

I.—UNIVERSAL.

"All kings shall fall down before Him" (v. 11).

Many monarchs have sought universal dominion, but to only ONE shall every knee bow (Phil. ii). Only ONE shall be "King of kings and Lord of lords" (Rev. xvi). In the Cathedral of Vienna the Emperor Frederick III is represented as standing with one hand uplifted, and on the tips of the extended fingers are the five vowels, A, E, I, O, U: "Austria Est Imperare Orbi Universo." Austria is the conqueror of the world. How vain a boast that proved was shown by the Great War. But if we substitute for the name Austria the Name JESUS, then it shall be made good. On Mount Calvary on the Sunday following Lord Allenby's entry into Jerusalem, the Lancashire Fusiliers sang, "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun." And, still further, the agency our Lord will use to this end is, and will be, "Yisraelæ," whom we believe to be, in its major part, Christian-Israel, the Stone Kingdom of Dan. ii, destined to become a great mountain and to fill the whole earth. "The title deeds of the world are deposited with the British."

II.—ABSOLUTE.

"His enemies shall lick the dust" (v. 9).

No mortal man is fit to be trusted with absolute power. Nebuchadnezzar almost had it (Dan. v, 19), and used it to destroy the beast (Dan. iii). A comic claim was made by the German Emperor, in his egregious speech to his army in 1914, to this authority. A religio-political system like the Church of Rome, in her nearest attainment to absolute authority, is described in Rev. xvii as: "Drunk with the blood of the saints and martyrs of Jesus"; and, according to her proud boast of changelessness, would do the same to-day had she but the power.

III.—RIGHTEOUS.

"In His days shall the righteous flourish" (v. 7).

How uneasy the British people would feel if universality of dominion and absoluteness of power were placed in the hands of even one of our own race; but in the statement which heads this aspect of our Lord's reign there is a note of profound assurance that all will be well. "The sceptre of Thy Kingdom is a right sceptre"—or a sceptre of rightness—says Psalm xlv. Only those who desire to do wrong need fear the authority of this King. Every honest man and woman will cheer the Sovereign who will be "just, ruling over men in the fear of God," whose reign will be "as the light of the morning when the sun ariseth, even a morning without clouds" (2 Sam. xxiii.) Then the "wild beast" Powers of Dan. vii, and every form of corrupt and cruel rule, will "lay them down in their dens" (Ps. civ) when this "Sun of Righteousness arises with healing in His wings" (Malachi iv). It has been well said that "Wicked men will be so alarmed that they will keep quiet for 1,000 years."

IV.—BENEVOLENT.

"He shall spare the poor and needy" (v. 13).

Not only will our Lord be a strictly just King, but He will be a compassionate one. The word "benevolent" comes from the two Latin words, "bene," well; "volens," wishing. How this quality of mind has endeared King George and Queen Mary, not only to the Anglo-Saxon peoples, but to those of other lands also. Napoleon said: "I compare Jesus Christ with the heroes of antiquity, but not one is like Him. Alexander, Cæsar, Charlemagne and myself have founded great empires on force. He upon love, and to this day millions would die for Him."

At His First Coming He emphasized this aspect of His mission (see Isa. lxi, 1-3), and so delightful will be His coming reign that it is compared to the fragrance of "rain upon the mown grass" (Psalm lxxii, 6). The late Bishop Handley Moule wrote: "At some time, probably at no distant date, is to dawn and beam upon us this personal arrival of the 'Altogether Lovely,' turning midnight into morning, winter into heavenly summer, age into immortal youth—indeed, a life of happy holiness, and holy happiness for ever."

Digitized by Google

V.—PEACEFUL.

" In His days . . . . . abundance of peace " (v. 7).

When our Lord first came the gates of Janus—the war god temple—were closed, the whole Roman Empire was at peace. When He returns to reign they will be closed, never to reopen. " Neither shall they learn war any more " (Isa. ii). At the close of a military tournament held in London some years ago the soldiers laid down their arms, and joining hands sang :

" Now dawns a new and better day,
The clash of combat dies away,
The order spreads from shore to shore,
The nations shall learn war no more.

No more shall man with man contend,
All shall one Brotherhood defend,
And all uphold till time shall cease
The reign of universal peace."

It has been estimated that from 1496 B.C. to A.D. 1862, a period of 3,358 years, there have been thirteen years of war to one of peace. A great preacher—now passed away—remarked that " Apart from the personal return of Christ, the world was more likely to sink into pandemonium than to rise into a millennium."

VI.—PROSPEROUS.

"They of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth" (v. 16).

In Joel iii we see the civilian and labourer called up, and put into the uniform of war. Let that long continue and famine and pestilence follow. In our Lord's reign the whole thing shall be reversed, and to this the removal of the original curse upon the ground (Gen. iii, 17), so that its fertility be restored, and an abundant supply of happy, healthy labour to till it. So productive will it become that corn will grow even up to the top of the mountains, and grow in abundance. Such being the literal translation of verse 16. Psalm lxvii summarized this happy state of the world. What a contrast indeed, " when the KING comes," to the sad conditions of much of our city life to-day. Imagine the subjects of this righteous and benevolent rule going about their daily duties with a song of happiness upon their lips, for " daily shall He be praised " says verse 15. Then the National Anthem will be sung with a whole-heartedness such as no Empire has ever before attained.

VII.—PERPETUAL.

" His Name shall endure for ever " (v. 17).

We are told in Hebrews vii, 23, that the priests of the Aaronic order " could not continue by reason of death." That is equally true of the kings of the earth, but now the throne is occupied by One Who " became dead and is alive for evermore " (Rev. i, 18). " Death hath no more dominion over Him " (Rom. vi, 9). The " sceptre of rightness " shall not drop from His hand in the hour of mortal weakness. There will be no change of dynasty or succession of monarchs when once this King has ascended the throne promised Him. " He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David : And He shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever ; and of His Kingdom there shall be no end " (Luke i, 32).

ADDRESS BY THE REV. J. VAVASOUR HAMMOND.

" And now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye might believe." (ST. JOHN XIV, 29.)

OUR Lord never laid too great a strain upon His disciples. He never expected from them extraordinary insight or foresight. Evidently He sought, first, to draw out their confidence in Himself, to establish in them the conviction that His words were true ; but He would also have them alert to " the signs of the times," as He pointed them to the Scriptures in confirmation of His teaching. He was then content to leave them to find out by experience, as time went on, that His promises and His warnings were sure.

After His Resurrection, when on the road to Emmaus, He joined two disciples whose hearts were heavy concerning the recent fate of The One Whom they had trusted " should have redeemed Israel." What does He say to them ? " Ought not Christ to have suffered these things ? " He refers them to the Scriptures, " beginning at Moses and all the Prophets." How dull is our belief when the prophetic Scriptures have clearly indicated to you the things that should come to pass while they are yet in the future. But when events came true to His words, then He expects us to see the fulfilment of Prophecy in all that had transpired.

It is clear from the Gospels that the Master, by foretelling to His disciples just those things which they needed to know, prepared them for future experiences of trial and persecution through which they would pass in their witness to Him, whilst promising them the gift of the Holy Spirit to guide them into all truth, and to comfort and support them through all. And further, at the same time, He also uttered forecasts which far outspanned the earthly lives of His immediate followers, obviously in order to give to all, who in their turn should follow Him in sincerity and truth right down to the end of the Christian Dispensation, similar aid and light that they might not fail, amid trials and perplexities, to discern the signs of the times as they looked onwards and upwards for His glorious Appearing. " These things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them " (John xvi, 4). I have given you Prophecy, foreshadowing history to be unfolded in due time so that when you see these historical events happening you won't say, " Alas ! how different it all is from what we expected " ; in other words, precisely to prevent that very condition of mystified and gloomy pessimism in which the two disciples were found on their way to Emmaus, and in which, unfortunately, so many Christians find themselves in these days of crisis on crisis, confusion and perplexity, because they largely leave out of account the wonderful prophetic forecasts given in God's Word for the express purpose of confirming and establishing their faith.

Digitized by Google

That the whole plan of the Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, discloses this same method, which Christ pursued on earth in the training of His disciples, is surely an indication that here we have a fundamental principle of Divine working. In the twentieth century before Christ, Abraham faithfully obeys God's call and receives promises, including a defined and vast tract of land, of which the potential Birthright is carefully entailed through a definite line of the patriarch's descendants. In the twentieth century after Christ momentous events occur, and this promise can be seen at last in fulfilment, together with interesting national ramifications, all prefigured in the Bible.

God finds Daniel faithful, and through him communicates a wonderful foreview of twenty-five centuries of Hebrew and Gentile history, even fixing the chronology of various episodes of the then unknown future. Daniel is bewildered, and he is told that certain of these prophecies will not reach a final and complete fulfilment until "the time of the end." We to-day can review these prophecies in the light of history and see the literal fulfilment of the major portion of them and the tremendous significance of events now transpiring around us. Likewise in the Book of Revelation much of the past and present history of Christendom can be read, throwing enlightenment, among other blessings, upon the meaning and upshot of the chaotic and puzzled state of the ecclesiastical world to-day. As all these prophecies, whether in the Old or New Testaments, are seen by Bible students to agree and synchronize in their forecasts, what is the natural inference but that they have been vouchsafed in order that, as these things come to pass, men may believe—believe in God, believe in His Word, and believe in the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and, to-day, particularly in the imminence of His Return as King, to rule the world in righteousness. In this respect prophecy has a very practical value, and especially so to-day; for we know quite well that the purpose of prophecy is not to satisfy mere curiosity. It is not like seeking to familiar spirits and wizards, prying into the future. God has forbidden that, but it is another matter altogether if the use of prophecy is to foreshadow great events that are to happen, that when they happen His servants may be strengthened in their faith and in their witness to His Truth.

It is, of course, only of late years that the great sweep of prophecy has entered into such scopeful human purview; but we do not hold that these wonderful prophecies have been preserved solely for the sake of those upon whom the end of the age is come. In every generation the God-fearing must have found heavenly wisdom, light and comfort in their reverent perusal, and witnessed, to their edification, the fulfilment of prophecy on a relatively smaller scale. St. Mark, for example, records as the first utterance of our Lord in His ministry: "The time is fulfilled and the Kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye and believe the Gospel." What time was fulfilled? To what did our Lord refer? Clearly He referred to Dan. ix, the famous prophecy of the "Seventy weeks," and who can doubt but that this prophecy had prepared many a pious Hebrew, looking for redemption in Israel, to believe in Christ when He came. At all events, our Lord's words, "the time is fulfilled," show that He recognized these prophecies as having a literal and time-destined fulfilment, with a practical bearing upon the providential course of human history. Consequently, for the edification of His followers in these last days, He announced certain signs which would attend the close of this Dispensation and herald His Return.

Now, if Matt. xxiv and Luke xxi be read, as embodying together a prophetic perspective of the entire Christian Dispensation, men can hardly fail to realize that we to-day are living in the time of the end of the age. The liberation of Jerusalem from the Turk, the downfall of Gentile Powers as their time is fulfilled, the "budding" of the Jews under their prophetic symbol of the fig-tree, the distress of nations all over the earth, are significant signs surely (if this line of interpretation be correct) to "this generation, which shall not pass till all things be accomplished."

We rejoice to know that there are numerous Christians who, through their study of the Bible, can see eye to eye with us in their interpretation of the "Signs" above mentioned. We rejoice that they can "lift up their heads" in these dark days in anticipation of that "redemption" to which our Lord alludes in Luke xxi, 28, but we ask them first to lay aside traditional prejudice and bias, and to look once again, and rather more minutely and steadily, into the Prophecies of the Bible. To whose redemption, e.g., did our Lord here refer? That alone can be redeemed which aforetime has been lost. Have Christians as Christians, or has the Christian Church as a collective community ever been lost? Added to which, the Church at the time our Lord spoke these words to His disciples had not, in its popular sense as an organic institution, ever been founded or come into being. Have the Jews ever been lost? On the contrary, they have been very much in evidence during the past two millennia. Besides that, in the context our Lord had surely dealt otherwise with the Jews' present-day position under the figure of the budding fig-tree. What we humbly submit is that our Lord was here referring to the House of Israel, the one people to whom the Bible does apply the adjective "lost"; the one people with whom the Bible does connect the verb "redeem." Said the Saviour: "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the House of Israel." These words are quite explicit, and obviously refer to a definite and literal people, even the ten-tribed Kingdom or House of Israel of the Old Testament days. Centuries before the Saviour's birth, and more than a century before the House of Judah was deported to Babylon, this House of Israel had been suffered to go into captivity to Assyria for their persistent and immoral apostasy until, lost as to their antecedents and pure knowledge of Jehovah, they had become as heathen Gentiles. The descendants of this House of Israel did verily require redemption, and later the Master commissioned His disciples, as their first duty, to make known to them the glad tidings that He had redeemed them by His Blood. That they were actually in existence at that time is shown by Paul's speech before Agrippa (Acts xxvi, 7), and by the opening words of the Epistle of James, whilst the whereabouts of some of them is disclosed in Pet. i, 1.

The small band of disciples to whom our Lord was speaking could hardly imagine that so wonderful a prediction of redemption was confined exclusively to them, but if they were, as seems almost certain, with one exception, Galilean Benjamites, then they belonged to the House of Israel and would represent the earliest of those Israelites whose universal redemption in process of time would be completely accomplished and consummated.

Digitized by Google

But is this too great an assumption? or does the Bible really uphold it?

When the tribes were divided into the two Houses or Kingdoms of Judah and Israel we are told (1 Kings xi, 32) that one tribe of Israel was lent to the House of Judah as Light-bearers. We are shown in the very next chapter that Benjamin was that tribe, and that such division and arrangement was in the Divine Counsels (1 Kings xii, 21-24). We are shown next that Benjamin went into captivity to Babylon with Judah, and when the decree went forth for restoration we find from Ezra and Nehemiah that the returning captives comprised, if not solely, at any rate mainly, members of the tribes of Judah, Benjamin and Levi. When our Lord came unto His own (Judah), His own received Him not, but we are told that the Galileans received Him (John iv, 45). Centuries before this Moses had foretold that "the Beloved of the Lord" would dwell in safety by Benjamin, and repeatedly in the New Testament Christ's disciples are called Galileans. The Gospel shows that Christ did dwell safely in Galilee, but that Jewry was ever hostile to Him, so much so that when He was purposing to visit Judæa, His disciples remonstrated with Him, and referred to the "Jews" as His enemies (John xi, 8). Would they have spoken thus had they themselves been Jews? The New Testament marks, as the disciples convict, the Jews and Chief Priests (Levi) as procuring the Saviour's death at the hands of the Gentiles. The tribe of Benjamin then evidently acted as Light-bearers to Judah from the division of the tribes, until "the Brotherhood between Judah and Israel" was broken when Judas, the Jew, sold his Master for "thirty pieces of silver" (Zech. xi, 12-14; St. Matt. xxvi, 15). Thereafter they still witnessed for Christ to Judah and Levi in Judæa and with some undoubted success (Acts vi, 7), yet their Light-bearing duties were now to be transferred to the long-lost House of Israel. The Master had warned His followers to flee when they saw the Roman Army approaching Jerusalem, and we believe that the whole tribe of Benjamin escaped.

Had not our Lord told this "little flock" of Galilean Benjamites that it was the Father's good pleasure to give them the custody of the Kingdom? Had He not told the Jews that the Kingdom would be transferred from them to another nation? Had He not connected this nation with a stone, at once suggesting the Stone Kingdom of Daniel, destined in the latter days to replace the rule of the great Gentile Powers and to become paramount on earth.

And we contend, in order to be consistent with other passages of Scripture, that the nation to which our Lord referred was the nation of Israel, whose destiny and final supremacy is a constant theme of the Prophets, and whose lineal descendants we hold, on Scriptural and historical grounds, to be represented, at all events chiefly, on the earth to-day by the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic race as found in the British Empire and America.

Certainly it is clear that, according to the Prophetic Scriptures, the two Houses of Israel and Judah, after centuries of separation, are to be reunited and come into possession of the Promised Land at the end of this Age, which is to mark not only the emergence of the Jews from their long period of dispersion and persecution, but also the full and complete redemption of scattered and hidden Israel.

If, as British Israelites, we hold, on the strict reading of Scripture, that Christ's great Redemptive work is confined to Israel, yet we never lose sight of the larger truth that He is also revealed as the Saviour of the world, and salvation is personal and individual. Whether Israelite or non-Israelite, each and all require salvation through Christ. And if the main theme of the Bible is the redemption of Israel as a racial people, it must be because that redemption is so vital and mighty a factor in God's Plan for setting forward the salvation of all men.

If on such grounds alone we request consideration for our British-Israel expositions, in so far as we give "heed to the more sure word of Prophecy," are we not in these perilous and testing times, when seducing spirits abound all around, doing something at least to confirm men's faith as we point to Prophecy fulfilled in history (and not least in our own national history) under their very eyes?

Are we not, after all, acting on a principle sanctioned and employed by the Master Himself, Who constantly referred to the Prophetic Scriptures in support of the Truth and for the confirmation of Faith?

"I WILL YET FOR THIS BE ENQUIRED OF BY THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL, TO DO IT FOR THEM."

(Ezekiel xxxvi, 37.)

By H. E. Turner.

The text and context of the momentous "this" which constitutes the matter to be enquired of demonstrates that it relates to the conditional return of the House of Israel to their own land.

The return of Israel to Palestine and the ensuing Divine cleansing, refreshing, sanctifying and happy settlement on the land after Israel's old estates and better than at their beginnings, in the fear and knowledge of the Lord, depends on the House of Israel enquiring of the Lord God to do it for them; God's motive for making the all-important enquiry to be the condition of Israel's return is stated in verses 22 and 32: "I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for Mine holy Name's sake, which ye have profaned among the heathen whither ye went."

The limit of time, after which the return of Israel, and the redemption spoken of in Luke xxi, 28, would be obstructed and retarded by any delay in carrying out the Divine will of making the necessary enquiry, it is of vital importance to determine; according to verse 8, it must be not later than when "they are ready at hand to come." Israel are at hand in the British Isles even now, the land of the North from whence they will journey back to Palestine.

The question as to whether they are the whole of the House of Israel whom God will convey to Canaan is made clear in these Scriptures: "I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion." (Jer. iii, 14.) "Morever I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant iem, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move o more." (2 Sam. vii, 10.) Doubtless representative sections ill be returned to Zion, and portions of Israel in the Isles and the British Dominions will remain: it appears equally obvious iat it is not the entire House of Israel who are required to make ie enquiry; those who are not aware of their identity with srael cannot be expected to enquire of the Lord God "to o it for them." That an early and ready obedience to the ill of the Most High is requisite, and the wisdom of this, equires no demonstration; the reckless dangers of procrastination will thereby be avoided. "I will yet": this emphatic lause indicates that the discharge of our obligation may be ttended by delay and difficulty from some cause or other.

Digitized by Google

A marvellous proof of the intention of the Lord God to onfer worldly felicity on His people Israel is contained in the inal clause "to do it for them"; the Most High will Himself ccomplish the superhuman achievement of identifying and electing members of the House of Israel out of all countries nd bringing them to their own land: it is beyond human comprehension that it can be possible for one simple act of aith and obedience to effect such a pre-eminent reward, letermining the realization of the covenant with Abraham nd the promises to the Fathers, in which "shall all the families f the earth be blessed."

The "I will" of the Almighty has an irresistibility that no ther power in heaven and earth can withstand; our lamentable propensities are such that, under a new heart and a new spirit which God will put within us, we shall loathe ourselves and be ashamed and be confounded (verse 31); let not any attempted resistance to this Divine will be numbered among our iniquities; we British-Israelites have now an alternative choice: either by a faithful obedience we voluntarily carry out God's will, or we are forced to do that will under the rod of His awful displeasure.

Israel-Britain has this simple definite duty to perform, on the execution of which depends the future welfare of our race, bringing in its train Divine benefits to mankind at large. To prevent the accomplishment of this duty, doubtless Satan will exert his utmost power; the most insidious designs that evil can imagine will be brought to bear on our wills and mental frailties, to raise every conceivable impediment and delay; let us be ever mindful that whatever reason or inclination we may experience to defer the requisite enquiry is certain to be influenced by Satanic malice.

There is also a danger of applying this peculiar requirement to other ordinances or commands of a general nature and thereby losing sight of this absolute peculiarity and the disunity between this and any other obligation; the will of God in this instance has no relation to any other duty and admits of no deviation from the decree: "I will yet for this be enquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them."

Mr. Herbert Garrison's "Empire Day Address" contains this potent inspiration: "'Speak unto the Children of Israel that they go forward.' There are those to-day who when they are asked to go forward shrink from the task. 'It is too big a thing,' they say. 'It will cost too much money.' Away with your doubts! Take your faith and courage in both hands and go forward. Has the God of Israel ever let you down? Has He ever let this Federation down? No, He has honoured our faith."

Then we of the House of Israel, Britons all, let us arouse and unite in forwarding the great and glorious Movement Zionwards.

A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE.

By the Rev. George McGinnis (Illinois).

A UNIVERSAL language whereby we can understand one another will tend to reduce friction and create a better understanding among nations.

To-day men are realizing the importance of a world-wide tongue from an economic and diplomatic standpoint; hence they are scheming and twisting their brains into knots to give a universal human speech to mankind.

A few years ago some enthusiasts launched Volapuk. Every effort was made to secure its adoption as a universal tongue, but to-day it is as dead as the dodo. Now in the United States they are ringing the changes on Esperanto. Clubs are formed that meet in hotels and restaurants where they practise upon one another; but destiny has spoken, and without any organization back of it and without propaganda pushing it, English is fast becoming the world-wide tongue.

Since the world war the desire to learn English is well nigh universal among young people. Many nations are now teaching English in their schools and among them are Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Esthonia, Japan, Mexico et al. It means that the rising generations in these nations will speak and understand English. French was the language of diplomacy for centuries, and now English is on a par with French. It is one of the official languages of the League of Nations, and is an official tongue in Palestine. Thousands of Anglo-Saxon tourists in the last few years without the knowledge of any language but their own have penetrated every nook and corner of this planet and thus compelled the use of English if the natives wanted to do business with them.

More than three-quarters of the business done in the world is through the English tongue.

The great broadcasting stations in England and America are sending English forward by leaps and bounds in every nation. It would be impossible to translate these programmes into the language of all the nations through which they are flashed, hence the people are learning English to understand them. It appears that in the providence of God English is to become the one great language of earth.

Mr. Fred Walker writes:—"Thank you for publishing my letter on 'The Great Pyramid and Coming Events.' I am extremely sorry that my notes thereon were in error as to the date, 'September 15th, 1931.' This should, of course, be OCTOBER 13th, 1931. The mistake is mine entirely, and I humbly apologize. The FINAL date for the '7 times' is September 15th, 1936."

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL and MRS. GARRISON arrived at Southampton on August 27th at 6.30 p.m., and reached Waterloo Station soon after 9 p.m., where they were warmly welcomed by a deputation from Headquarters. They travelled by train from Montreal at 9.30 a.m. on August 20th to Quebec, whence they sailed on the Empress of Scotland at 4.45 p.m. on that day. They arrived at Cherbourg at noon on August 27th, after a very pleasant voyage, and there parted with a number of friends who were going to various points on the Continent, among them being the Leader of the Canadian Government, and an Officer in the United States Army, with both of whom Mr. Garrison had important conversation during the voyage; the former was on his way to the Geneva Conference as Canada's official representative; the latter had served in the Great War. Both had things to say which were valuable and illuminating.

We wish here to express our deep gratitude to Almighty God for His protecting care and rich blessing all through remarkable journeys covering some 20,000 miles by ship, rail and motor, without accident or illness. Forty lectures and speeches were delivered, and hundreds of interviews were held with outstanding men and women of Canada and U.S.A., including Governors, Premiers, Cabinet Ministers, Senators, Judges, Mayors, Clergymen, Bankers, Doctors, Editors, Lawyers, Professors, Naval and Army Officers, Presidents of various Clubs and Patriotic Associations, and Leaders of great commercial concerns, in addition to the officers and members of the B.-I. Branches from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from all of whom we received the utmost courtesy and kindness, and gained much valuable information.

We attended a number of Conferences, Drawing Room Meetings and Garden Parties held in our honour, and we had the pleasure of sharing in the inauguration of a B.-I. Movement in New York, which may have far-reaching results in the United States, and which some have been kind enough to say may well prove—apart from all else—to have been worth the time, the expense and the long journeys involved by the whole trip.

We take this opportunity of thanking most warmly all those who ministered to our comfort and happiness, who gave us such splendid hospitality, who motored us so many hundreds of miles, who devoted days or weeks to our sight-seeing, and who expressed such unqualified appreciation of our efforts at numerous meetings which they promoted. We thank also those who so kindly sent us delightful letters and telegrams on board our ship at Quebec to cheer us on our homeward voyage. We would assure the hundreds of friends we made and the thousands we met that we shall never forget this remarkable tour, nor all the kindness we received. We send our most cordial good wishes to all friends and correspondents across the whole North American Continent; they shall receive personal letters from us as soon as circumstances and the pressure of Congress organization will permit.

Our readers will understand at least to some extent our tense excitement when our train pulled into the station at Vancouver, and beheld the Rev. Pascoe and Mrs. Goard and Professor Odlum right opposite our carriage window the moment the train came to rest. This was not a coincidence; they had been informed by wire by the railway officials the number of our carriage, and our exact position in the long and heavy train. God bless them; how much we enjoyed the happy reunion, and thereafter their wonderful hospitality, and the delightful association and converse with them.

We have not room at present to mention the names even of the other kind friends who did so much for us across the Continent; this shall be done as far as possible in later issues.

* * *

The Secretary-General will tell the first part of his story of the North American tour from the B.-I. point of view on Wednesday afternoon next, September 11th, at Headquarters, commencing at 2.45, when our President, Major J. Knowles, O.B.E., will preside. All who can attend will be heartily welcomed. This talk will be quite distinct from the public lecture announced for October 2nd in Central Hall. Tea will be served after the meeting.

* * *

Mr. Morey will be the speaker at Headquarters on September 12th, at 7.30.

* * *

The opening day of our Tenth Congress is fast approaching—September 30th—and all at Headquarters are busy with the preparations therefor. Posters and new leaflets are now ready and can be supplied in any quantities to all who can use them. Vouchers are also ready for cheap railway fares; tickets are available from September 28th to October 14th. Reserved seat tickets are selling fast. The Rev. Pascoe Goard is soon sailing for England; he is in excellent health, we rejoice to say, and he will speak each day of the Congress.

* * *

We are glad to announce that the Rev. Maxwell Carnson, our Commissioner in South Africa, is coming home for the Congress. He will have a wonderful story to tell us, and he will receive a very cordial welcome we know.

* * *

Branch Secretaries are invited to send us names of their delegates to the Congress, and to say how many vouchers are required for cheap fares.

* * *

A Clerical and Ministerial Conference will be held at Headquarters during Congress week on a date to be announced later. We shall be glad to hear from clergy and ministers who wish to attend.

* * *

The demand for tickets for Mr. Garrison's illustrated lecture on "Canada and the United States," on Wednesday evening, October 2nd, in the Central Hall, is greater up to date than in any previous year. The lecturer has brought with him a magnificent collection of most beautiful pictures, and they will certainly call forth wonder and admiration.

* * *

Putney reports a great evening on August 19th, when Mr. W. Sleeman gave a splendid lecture, opportunely speaking on British-Israel fundamentals, this being much appreciated by newcomers. Many questions were afterwards asked. The meeting was under the chairmanship of Mr. S. Chasemore.

Digitized by Google

* * *

The Toronto East Branch of the Federation are happy to report a most encouraging and fruitful summer's work both at their regular weekly meetings and outdoor gatherings. A series of study-lectures on the Book of Daniel, led by the President, Mr. Gladstone Brown, in spite of excessive temperature occasionally, has drawn large and enthusiastic audiences every week, and many new members and adherents are continually being added to their numbers. On July 7th a special thanksgiving service was held in the open-air at Scarborough Bluffs, which, together with other open-air meetings conducted by Mr. Gladstone Brown, Mr. Ransom and Dr. Gray, has been the means of many hearing of the Gospel of the Kingdom who otherwise would not yet have heard it.

* * *

Lt.-Col. G. F. A. Smythe, of Dover, is speaking at Headquarters on Wednesday afternoon, September 18th, at 3 o'clock. The subject to be dealt with is "The Struggle of Esau to Regain His Lost Kingdom."

* * *

A special meeting is to be held in Islington on September 16th, opening up new ground, and the local workers appeal to members for support by prayer and in person. Will some of our readers help by assisting with stewarding? Names will be gladly received at Headquarters.

* * *

We gratefully acknowledge the following donations:—Mrs. P., 10s.; C. P., £1; Curly, £2; Anon, 2s. 6d.; C.H.W., £4 10s.; T.W.C., £3 8s.; L.O., £2; M.P., £1; B.-I., Guernsey, 10s.; W. J. L., Two Dollars; E. C. H. H., £1 1s.; V. F., £2; E. F., £2; J. D. H., £8; F. B., 5s.; Misses L., £10; R. G. R., £2 5s. 8d.; M. O. B., £5; Mr. and Mrs. P. W. B., £3; E. and C., £10; Friend, 2s.; L. H. F., 10s.; W. C. B., £5; L. A. I., £1 10s.; E. C., £1; J. H. de H. S., £30; A. A. C., £50; A. B., £5; E. M. A., £30; James, 10s.; R. M. D., 10s.; J. S., £5 5s.; C. E. A., 10s.; J.T., £5; J.N.D., 4s. 5d.; H.M.W., £5; Israelite, 2s. 6d.; G. C. H., £1; T. L. C., 11s.; A. C., £1; S. H. H., £10; E.F.H., £2; M. C. B., £1; A. L. G., £1 18s.; F. de P. S., £15 12s. 6d.; M. W., 15s. 5d.; E. B. F., £4 16s. 2d.; Mrs. De C. H., £1; F. M. M., £5; E. D. S., £1; E. C. H. H., £1 1s.; Man of Kent, 16s.; F., £1; Well Wisher, £5; E. J. G., 6s. 3d.; C. W. D., £2 3s. 6d.; A. J., £3; Israelite, 2s. 6d.; E. B. P., £20; W. C., 18s.; N. C., Five Dollars; C. L. W., £1 0s. 1d.; E. P., £5; E. B. F., £10; A. H. H., Olalla, B.C., £1; H. M. D., £2 10s.; N. B., £1; A. B., 10s.; E. A. S., 5s.; H. F. D., 10s.; F., £1; F. G., Vancouver, Ten Dollars.

* * *

Our young people are very enthusiastic over the B.-I. Crusader Movement in connection with the Federation. The Inaugural Meeting is to be held at Headquarters, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W., on Saturday afternoon, September 14th, when the proposed activities are to be explained. Tea will be available. All who propose to attend are invited to send a post-card to the Crusader Secretary in order to facilitate the catering arrangements. Names of those wishing to join are coming in from many parts of the country, and even from Overseas.

LETTERS OF APPRECIATION.

M. E. B. writes from Kansas, U.S.A.: " . . . . Your journal and the many British-Israel books and pamphlets I have read have been of great value to me in understanding the Bible, and fulfilment of prophecy, as it may be seen day by day . . . . ."

* * *

A. B. P. writes from Nebraska, U.S.A.: " I have enjoyed THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER very much. May the God of Israel bless you and prosper the work in spreading the Truth concerning Anglo-Saxon-Israel. This has been a very interesting subject to me since 1890."

* * *

H. T. J. writes: " I value THE NATIONAL MESSAGE more than any other literature I receive. Mr. Goard's 'Esther' and elucidation of 'Daniel' have put the coping-stone on 50 years' B.-I. interest."

BIBLE AS ENCYCLOPÆDIA.

" The story of the origin and development of our own civilization is written on almost every page of the Old Testament. Ezekiel is an original and most trustworthy authority on the industrial and commercial conditions of his day; the writer of the Book of Esther is an authority on politics and the administration of government in his day; the Book of Exodus is an encyclopædia of the arts and crafts of the ancient world." —A Lecturer at the City of London Vacation Course. —(Evening Standard.)

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BARRY ISLAND, SOUTH WALES, Baptist Church, Tuesday, 10th, at 7.30. Rev. W. T. Medhurst.
BELFAST, Clarence Place Hall, Monday, 9th, at 8.
CROYDON, Y.M.C.A. (Horniman Hall), North End, West Croydon, Friday, 13th, at 8. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
DORKING, Wesley Hall, Tuesday, 10th. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
HARROW, Gayton Rooms, Station Road, Friday, 13th, at 8. Bible Study Circle.
HERNE BAY, Wesleyan School Room, High Street, at 3; Parochial Institute, Underdown Road, at 8, Monday, 9th. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
HORNSEY and CROUCH END, Earl Haig Memorial Hall, Elder Avenue, Tuesday, 10th, at 7.45. Miss Dickenson.
HORSHAM, Town Hall, Wednesday, 11th, at 3 and 7.15. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 10th, at 7.30. Bible Study.
ISLINGTON, 340, Essex Road, Wednesday, 11th, at 8. Study Circle. Mr. Stears.
KINGSTON. Wednesday, 11th. Mr. J. J. Morey.
LIVERPOOL, Common Hall, Hackins Hey, Thursday, 12th, at 7.45. Mr. J. Wintersgill.
MANCHESTER, Houldsworth Hall, Deansgate, Tuesday, 10th, at 7.45. Mr. J. Wintersgill, Junr.
NOTTINGHAM, Friar Lane Schools, Thursday, 12th, at 7.30. Mr. G. Disney.
PLUMSTEAD, St. John's Church Vestry, Burrage Road, Thursday, 12th, at 8. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA, Masonic Hall, Tuesday, 10th, at 3 and 7.30. Mr. J. J. Morey.
SHEFFIELD, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 11th, at 7.30.
STRATFORD, St. Mark's Church, close to Maryland Point Station, Monday, 9th, at 8. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
SYDENHAM, 4, College Mansions, Sydenham Park Road, Monday, 9th, at 3. Miss Hamilton Hunter.

Digitized by Google

B.-I.-W.F. Tenth Annual Congress

LARGE CENTRAL HALL, WESTMINSTER.

September 30th to October 5th, 1929, inclusive

Two Meetings daily at 2.45 and 7.30

A fine array of experienced speakers from various parts of Britain, the Overseas Dominions and U.S.A. Subjects of momentous interest will be dealt with. Tickets for reserved seats now ready, 2/- each. Course tickets £1. As usual Mr. Herbert Garrison will give a Lantern Lecture on the Wednesday evening, for which special tickets are required, at 3/- first reserved seats; 2/- second reserved seats; unreserved 1/-.

Applications should be addressed to the Assistant Secretary,

6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

A FASCINATING UP-TO-THE-MINUTE

LECTURE

by

HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

"CANADA"

AND SOME OF THE WONDERS OF THE UNITED STATES

Illustrated by a magnificent series of LANTERN PICTURES

Central Hall, Westminster, London, S.W.1.
Wednesday Evening, October 2, at 7.30.

First reserved seats 3/-. Second Reserved 2/-. Unreserved 1/-. Applications for tickets, with remittance and postage, to The Assistant Secretary, 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

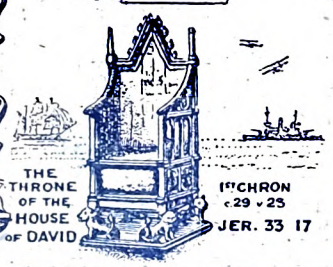
Digitized by Google

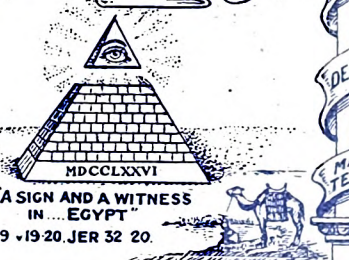
SEPTEMBER 14, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER



FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES



"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED "AND" "THE COVENANT PEOPLE"

GT BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

And God said unto Jacob "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11.

J J HALL

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

HOTEL RUBENS

Buckingham Palace Rd., London, S.W.
(Facing the Palace)
Adjacent to the
FEDERATION HEADQUARTERS
All Bedrooms have Hot and Cold Water and Telephone.
Private Bathrooms. Enclosed Suites.
Every luxury and convenience; in a word,
ALL ONE COULD DESIRE IN AN HOTEL

THE RUBENS ROOMS

An excellent suite of rooms in the hotel buildings which may be retained for any Social Function, Private Dinners, Dances, Receptions, etc.

Particulars of open dates from the Manager

Telegrams: "RUBOTELIER, SOWEST, LONDON."
Telephone: VICTORIA 6600. One minute Victoria Station.

HOTEL BERKELEY

63-67, QUEENSBOROUGH TERRACE
HYDE PARK, LONDON, W.2
PARK 1797.
Two minutes Kensington Gardens, Buses and Tubes.
HOT AND COLD RUNNING WATER.
GAS FIRE ALL BEDROOMS. PASSENGER LIFT.
Noted for Healthy Position, Quiet, Cleanliness,
EXCELLENT FOOD AND ATTENDANCE.
Terms from 3 gns. per week, including Four Meals, Baths, Light and Attendance; from 10s. 6d. daily.
NO EXTRAS.

Every new adherent should be in possession of this work. A complete statement of all the Biblical facts upon which our faith is based.

British-Israel Truth

The current (thirteenth) edition has been carefully revised and brought up-to-date. It contains the answer to practically every query which can be put, and its index to quotations and texts is exhaustive in its completeness.

Some Contributors:
VEN. ARCHDEACON HANAN, M.A., D.D.
DR. ALDERSMITH, M.B., F.R.C.S.
E. W BIRD, Esq. (Philo-Israel), Retired Judge, India.
REV. E. J. WEMYSS-WHITTAKER.
DOUGLAS ONSLOW, Esq. REV. FREDERICK ASTON.
THE REV. COMMANDER L. G. A. ROBERTS, R.N.
REV. W. M. H. MILNER, M.A., Etc., Etc.

308 pp. Index to Subjects and Index to Texts.

Paper Covers 2s. 6d.; by post 2s. 9d. Cloth Covers 3s. 6d.; by post 3s. 9d.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

This book, by its ready sale, is rapidly taking its place as one of the most important works yet written. Every B.-I. Student must read it.

"BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH DEFENDED"

BY
Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.

A complete and convincing reply to the attack contained in "BRITISH ISRAELISM EXAMINED," by REV. S. HINDS WILKINSON.

"British-Israel Truth Defended" should be read not only for its own intrinsic merits, and the high purpose manifest in every page, but it may most usefully be compared with "British-Israel Truth" as a simple exposition of basic facts.

Bound in Cloth, 3/6. By Post, 3/9.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO. LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

"The Heritage of the Anglo-Saxon Race,"

By M. H. GAYER, O.B.E.

A coloured chart (5 colours), size 40 in. by 28 in., with companion volume,
Depicting the thrilling history of the Anglo-Saxon Race all down the ages (i.e., The British Empire and the British-born stock of America). The companion volume (demy 4to.) 96 pages, numbered in sections to correspond with chart.

Price of Chart, including Book, bound limp cloth, 4/6 By post 4/11

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

The coloured Chart depicts in clear, simple form, historically and by aid of maps, the amazing story of the Anglo-Saxon Race.

It traces the genealogies, by direct succession, of Their Majesties King George V., Queen Mary, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, back through the Royal House of David to Adam. It shows how the British Coat of Arms is built up from ancient emblems given to our race some 4,000 years ago. The Chart illustrates the contemporary history of the Houses of Judah and Israel. Starting with the genealogy from Adam to Jacob's twelve sons, it shows the beginning of the chosen Race from Hebrew stock; includes the Covenant Promises to Abraham (fulfilled in the Anglo-Saxons, and in no other race); gives the Promises to Judah of the Sceptre; to Ephraim of the Birthright; and to David of the perpetual Throne. Continuing, it carries on the contemporary history of the two Houses of Judah and Israel till each went into captivity—the story of the House of Israel from the reign of David, 1056 B.C. to their deportation to Assyria in 721 B.C., then a consecutive narrative of their migrations (with map) down to their final arrival in the British Isles in A.D. 1066. The contemporary history of the House of Judah, till they also were carried captive, in two sections. Section I. follows the Jewish Race down to A.D. 70; includes our Lord's Life and Death; the final siege of Jerusalem, and the scattering of the Jews all over the world. Section II. traces Princess Tamar Tephi and the prophet Jeremiah into Ireland—her marriage, and the continuation of the Royal Line of David; tells the story of the Coronation Stone and how it was finally deposited in Westminster Abbey.

The history of the Anglo-Saxons in America—the Tribe of Manasseh—is also included in the Chart. The Book (numbered to correspond with the chart) amplifies the history and shows the identity of ten-tribed Israel with the British Empire and the U.S.A.

FRONTISPIECE. Historic photograph of H.M. King George V. with the Premiers of the British Empire, taken November, 1926.
Covenant Publishing Co., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 402. Vol. VIII. SEPTEMBER 14th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
The Empire in Solution.—V. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	577
The Losing and Finding of Israel. By Henry D. Houghton	579
"My Word . . . Not Void." By Chas. H. Corrin... ...	582
Expositions in the Acts of the Apostles.—III. By the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.	583
The Israel of God. By Henry Proctor, F.R.S.L.	586
Three Essentials of British-Israelites. By R. A. Bradbury	587
Correspondence	588
The Secretary-General's News and Notes...	590

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—V.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

The Coming of the Saxons.

Under Hengist and Horsa the vanguard of the Saxon hosts now came to Britain. Let those who hold that the Anglo-Saxon nation was once a part of the Roman Empire remember that the last of the Romans had withdrawn before the first of the Anglo-Saxons came to Britain. Much more the Danes and the Normans. To say that these ever formed a part of the Roman Empire is to talk against the obvious facts of history. Moreover, as we have seen, the kingdom, the seat of which was in Ireland, the Scottish peoples, and the Welsh, remained free from the Roman yoke. As to Ireland, it was never attacked by the Romans. As to Scotland, the Romans were glad to build a wall to defend themselves from Scottish attack.

Israel of the "captivity" marched into Britain as Saxons.

Israelites of the people of Dan marched in as Danes.

Israelites of the people of Benjamin marched in under the name of Normans. We are now to speak of the coming of the Saxons.

They came as men come who are in search of a home in which to dwell. There does not seem to have been in their minds any lust for conquest. As far as military glory was concerned the ancient British might have remained for ever undisturbed in their Island home.

The Saxons had no great Imperialistic ideal. They were not trying to emulate Rome in establishing a world Empire. They were simply looking for a safe and productive place in which to dwell. Their attitude towards Britain was the same as the attitude of the Anglo-Saxons later towards America and Australia. They migrated to a country which offered them a home.

They brought with them one notable contribution. They brought their version of the Common Law. The jurists who study the history of the Common Law of England find two streams as sources, namely, that of the ancient British Law, and that of the Saxon Law, both Mosaic.

Another thing the Saxons brought was an inextinguishable love of freedom.

This love of freedom made it impossible for Israel to dwell in bondage to Assyria. It caused them to break the Assyrian yoke.

The same thing applies to the Babylonian regime.

The same thing brought about the death of Cyrus, the Persian. From two sources this love of freedom caused Israel powers to move against Persia. Tomyris defeated and slew Cyrus; and Alexander finally invaded Persia as a reprisal for previous Persian invasion of Greece.

The same thing brought about the downfall of the Roman Empire at the hands of Gothic Israel.

But while the love of freedom in Anglo-Saxon blood has brought about such a constant fight against oppression of all kinds, against individual oppression and against Imperial subjugation; that same love for freedom has once and again brought the Anglo-Saxon peoples into trouble. Take, for instance, the time of the Norman invasion. The Anglo-Saxon refused to submit to such complete organization and rigid discipline as would utilize their full strength against their enemies. The Normans, better organized and disciplined, and because of this, gained an easy victory.

Digitized by Google

The Saxons came in, occupied the territory vacated by the Romans, and, in spite of the opposition of the ancient Britons, made good their homestead in Britain.

Now it is a sad fact that the Saxons did not bring with them a religion equal to that of the British. The British were Christianized. Christianity had found a richly-prepared field in the ancient Druid faith. That faith, although it lacked the clearness of statement of the Bible, yet in spirit was more Christlike than was the spirit which animated the Jewish nation centred around Jerusalem.

Because the Saxons looked upon the ancient British as a conquered people, they did not readily take from the British the inestimable treasure of the Christian faith. It was to these Saxons that the Roman mission came, and through these that they unfortunately established themselves in the British Islands ecclesiastically.

Because the Saxons despised the British, they failed also to take from them the treasures of learning which was the heritage of the British people. Therefore the British history and literature has remained to the Anglo-Saxon a sealed book to the present day.

THE COMING OF THE DANES.

The Danes came into Britain, first as ravagers of the coasts. Gradually they established a footing in Britain and struggled for supremacy with the Saxons. Hardicanute, a Dane, attained the throne in England. Finally these two warlike peoples composed their differences, arranged territories in which each should dwell, and the Danes became a stable element in the population of Britain.

These Danes were of the tribe of Dan—men of Israel stock, with a glorious history behind them. Like the Saxons, they came seeking a home in which to dwell.

THE COMING OF THE NORMANS.

We now have the final invasion of England. Unlike other migrations into Britain, the Normans came in as a military expedition bent on conquest. They did not simply seek a home. They aspired from the first to become the overlords of all the dwellers in Britain.

Man for man they were not superior to the Anglo-Saxon and the Dane. But they had this vital advantage : they were of a temperament which enabled them to submit to discipline, and were willing to be commanded, not only in general military matters by their leaders, but to submit in all things to their superiors.

This genius for organization, and mental ability to submit to rigorous discipline, gave to them a striking force which the Saxons had not achieved, and which their love of individual liberty prevented their achieving. So, on the day of the Battle of Hastings, the Anglo-Saxon forces were divided under two commanders, and the two armies lay apart by half a day's march. The second army, so divided from Harold, would have been amply sufficient to have turned the tide of battle. But they were not there. A breathless messenger arrived to tell of the battle joined, and of the critical moment in the history of England. But even this failed to arouse the separated army from its leisurely preparation to march.

At last they were on the way. At last sounds of conflict began to reach them. At last their zeal took fire, and they rushed towards the field. But as they topped the ridge, it was but to look upon the embers of the fight. The Anglo-Saxon forces had been cut to pieces. The battle was lost, and with it was lost Anglo-Saxon rule in England.

Now let us look at that which was lost on that day of conquest.

When the civilization of Asia went down before the youthful vigour of Europe, the latter led in its onset by Alexander the Great, the material organization of that civilization crashed.

More important than that was the fact that the crash buried for ages the records of that civilization. The language died. The libraries were buried in debris, and in a philological grave. Greek and Latin, the youthful European languages and literatures, became the classics of the new age. The grave held its secrets tenaciously, until in our day archæologists have commenced digging in the debris of the ancient civilization. They have reconstructed the languages, have uncovered the libraries, and are gradually re-establishing the knowledge of that ancient civilization.

So when the Anglo-Saxon rule in Britain fell, there fell and was buried with it all true knowledge of British history. This was a burial such as can be found covering many a centre of the ancient Assyrian, Babylonian and Persian civilization. It was the piling of one ruin upon another until the original things lay buried under a succession of ruins.

So the British, who were the custodians of the ancient British history, fell, and with them fell and was buried out of sight the wealth of knowledge of ancient British things. The Saxons cared for none of these things. The Danes cared less. The Normans less still, if it were possible. So British history, the real facts of the case, were buried under the ruins of one rule after another ; the Romans having confused the whole with worse confusion. Therefore we have no real history of England nor of Britain before the Roman period. Even that which purports to be the history of the Roman period is gleaned from the writings of the Roman invader, who despised the British people, and things British, or affected to do so, as barbarian things of no value in the Roman world.

That University students and Dons should not have long ago untangled and restored the true facts of the case is remarkable. But the Universities are still accepting the absurdities of the Roman fiction of the British being "skin-clad savages wandering in the forests of Britain" in an uncivilized and barbarous state.

It is time that all this should be remedied and that the real facts of the Israel citizenship of Britain, from ages before the foundation of Rome was laid, and from before the Danois reached Greece, should be recovered. The story should be followed down through the centuries of the B.C. era to the coming of the Royal line of David, approximately 600 B.C., and through the period of Malmutian law, approximately 500 B.C., and so on to the time of the coming of Joseph of Arimathea, bearing the glad message of the Gospel of the crucified and sen Christ, approximately A.D. 40, and still on, giving us the eal background of British history through the time of the Roman invasion. This should show the transactions of the ree kingdom in Britain, and of the many subsidiary divisions nder the viceregal " kings." It should show the tremendous pposition put up against Rome. It should show the transctions of the British auxiliaries in the armies of Rome at home nd abroad. It should show that but for British troops with heir staff officers, brought as a last resource by Rome from Britain, the Jews would have reconquered their city of Jerualem and land of Palestine. All these things should be made nanifest to the scholar who should study the true history of Britain.

Digitized by Google

When all these things have been presented, then, as the utstanding book of British history, the Bible should be read s giving the history of the major portion of our race during he ages of Asiatic civilization.

Thus it will be made manifest that our race and nation has narched out of the ages of the past under the banner of the ord of Hosts and presents such a history as no other race r nation on the earth can show.

The Normans brought and contributed to the British ommonwealth a genius for organization in all departments.

In agriculture.—See " Domesday Book."

In military organization and activity.

In ecclesiastical machinery and administration of the Roman Catholic variety.

The Norman administration immediately addressed themelves to the tabulation of land holdings, and of the status of griculture. This is shown by the basic document of the eign of William called " Domesday Book."

They further addressed themselves to the matter of military stablishment, making every nobleman, appointed as Lords of Counties and Lords of Manors, etc., dependant as feifs upon the Crown, the Crown holding them responsible for epayment in military organization.

They came to the country strongly indoctrinated with the Roman theology, and incorporated the Church organization into their scheme of administration. Thus the Norman nobility received appointment to the secular offices and honours, and to the ecclesiastical dignities and emoluments, as kindred fields of aristocratic service and power.

Princes of the State were balanced by Princes of the Church. Lords temporal were balanced by Lords spiritual. In both realms of the State the Briton and the Saxon might look for preferment in vain : were they not a conquered people whose destiny it was to serve in minor offices and to be content with minor dignities in Church and State ?

Out of all this, however, some good was reaped for the body politic. Better organization, and better discipline, became habitual among the various peoples of the realm.

The British spoke the various dialects of the Gaelic language. The Saxons spoke the language which they had last used on the Continent.

The Normans spoke what is now termed Norman French. All these were intermixed, and out of them came the modern English language. No wonder that it is the most comprehensive of the languages of the earth to-day.

THE LOSING AND FINDING OF ISRAEL.

By HENRY D. HOUGHTON.

How strange it is that the one-time beloved people of God, Old Israel, should become lost among the nations of the earth.

And stranger still that there has been no extended and persistent effort to find out what has become of them.

That we have been content to let this God-loved people disappear from view utterly and altogether seems to be a reproach to us all as Christian people and lovers of the Bible.

The Book is full of professions of God's care, His abounding forgiveness, His promised restoration; and yet with all these distinctly stated in the Book, we have done very little or nothing to find them.

Great confusion exists in the understanding of Scripture, because people do not take into account the different sections into which the Old Hebrew race was, and is still, separated.

In the year 975 B.C. God Himself split the Old Israel nation into two parts : a Northern House, Israel ; a Southern House, called Judah ; for He said most clearly concerning this division —" This thing is from Me." (1 Kings xii, 24.)

Two hundred and fifty-four years later, i.e., about 721 B.C., God was angry with Israel, the Northern House, and sent it into captivity.

2 Kings xvii, 22, 23, reads : " For the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did . . . until the Lord removed Israel out of His sight . . . So was Israel carried away out of their own land to Assyria unto this day " ; i.e., the day the record was written.

Now what about Judah ?

A portion of them went very quickly into captivity as recorded in 2 Kings xviii, 13. " Now in the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah " (713 B.C.) " did Sennacherib, king of Assyria, come up against all the fenced cities of Judah, and took them."

Notice, Israel went to Assyria ; and this first captivity of Judah also went to Assyria.

This latter is confirmed by the monuments of Sennacherib, which say he took 200,150 captives.

Now it is quite possible, even probable, that these two captivities, the one of Israel, 721 B.C., and the other of the fenced cities of Judah, 713 B.C., amalgamated.

But Jerusalem remained untaken though besieged.

And God, in answer to Hezekiah's prayer, slew of the Assyrians 185,000 in one night.

That completes the captivity of all who were taken to Assyria, and consisted of Israel and those out of the fenced cities of Judah.

From that moment all those, both of Israel and that portion of Judah, disappear entirely from Scripture history. But both of them appear very largely in prophecy.

But what became of that portion of Judah left in Jerusalem whom the king of Assyria failed to capture ?

For a little over a hundred years they held their own ; then falling into grosser sin even than Israel, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, in successive invasions took them all captive, slew the sons of Zedekiah the king, burnt the Temple, the king's house, and brake down the walls of Jerusalem ; and all these captives were taken to Babylon.

A portion of them returned after seventy years, and these are the people, then called Jews, who were in Palestine in the time of our Lord, and who were responsible for the tragedy of the Cross.

Digitized by Google

But where is that much larger portion, the Ten Tribes, that great multitude taken to Assyria; and whose history Scripture does not carry on; but which, nevertheless, are blessed with untold blessings in the Word of God, and who are promised help, healing and restoration? They cannot have died out. They were to increase and multiply exceedingly.

Two hundred and thirty-four years after they were carried away captive God sent them this thrilling message through Zechariah: "I will hiss for them, and gather them: for I have redeemed them: and they shall increase as they have increased. And I will sow them among the people; and they shall remember Me in far countries: and they shall live with their children, and turn again." (Zech. x, 8, 9.)

Where are they then to-day?

It is most important when God speaks in the Book to the various sections of the Old House of Israel to know which section He is speaking to.

He calls them by different names: one Israel; one Judah. He shows a different future to each. Different prophecies concern each. And the Book cannot be understood unless this distinction is clearly perceived.

Confusion? Yes! The Book has been made into a mass of confusion by confounding Israel with the Jews! They are utterly and altogether distinct.

And the man who wishes to understand Scripture prophecy must make that the very first lesson to be learnt. Having learnt that, the Book takes on new life, new meaning, a new outlook, a new simplicity and ease of interpretation.

Let us look a little more closely at this passage in Zechariah x, 8, 9: "They shall increase as they have increased."

That evidently declares that their captivity and banishment had not decreased their fertility. It shows the nation, though in captivity, increasing abundantly. It shows also that the productiveness was to increase indefinitely.

"They shall increase as they have increased." There is to be no diminution of their rate of increase.

That provides us with a very distinctive clue in looking for this people to-day.

It is no use looking for this increasing nation in the unknown places of the earth.

Such a nation as this, "Increasing as they have increased" from that day down to this, cannot be hidden or secreted.

It is no use looking for them among the dying-out nations of the earth. The Red Indians of America, the Bushmen of South Africa, or the Aborigines of Australia.

Nor is it any use looking for such a people and nation in the wilds of Asia Minor or the fastnesses of Central Asia as some interpreters have suggested.

Millions upon millions cannot be secreted! You may hide a few, but not a fruitful, ever-increasing people like this.

You cannot put the ocean into a pint pot!

Now, is it possible to find out roughly how many there were to start with when the captivity commenced? Let us see.

1 Kings iv, 20, says: "Judah and Israel were many, as the sand which is by the sea in multitude."

When David unwisely numbered the people, the numbers are given: Israel 1,100,000 men who drew the sword; Judah (without Benjamin) 470,000 men who drew the sword. (1 Chron. xxi, 5.) Note, Israel numbering about double Judah's number.

Again, 2 Chronicles xiii, 3, describes a battle between Judah and Israel, and the number of men of war on each side is given. Judah, 400,000; Israel, 800,000; again just double.

Now if we reckon, as is usual, five non-combatants to every soldier, that would give Israel's population as four millions. But Israel lost half a million in that battle, reducing them to three and a half millions. But let us begin with a much smaller number.

Suppose we reckon that Israel at the captivity (2,648 years ago) numbered only 400,000; and, allowing for great losses in travels and in wars so that instead of doubling every 50 years, as is usual now, they doubled in numbers every 300 years, even then their numbers to-day would be simply appalling, viz., 200,000,000!

Perhaps the reckoning may be given.

400,000 at the end of 300 years would be ..	800,000
At the end of 600 years would be	1,600,000
At the end of 900 years would be	3,200,000
At the end of 1,200 years would be	6,400,000
At the end of 1,500 years would be	12,800,000
At the end of 1,800 years would be	25,600,000
At the end of 2,100 years would be	51,200,000
At the end of 2,400 years would be	102,400,000
At the end of 2,648 years would be, say, roughly close on	200,000,000

But let us reckon their numbers from another starting-point.

Taking the 200,150 of those carried away by Sennacherib from the fenced cities of Judah as providing a basis for the reckoning of Israel's numbers, for, as has been already shown, they were double those of Judah, then 400,000 doubled by natural increase every 300 years would again come to the same number, 200,000,000!

Even this does not reckon those left in Jerusalem belonging to Judah, say, another 200,000, to balance which we should have to reckon another 400,000 to Israel to start with, and a further 200,000,000 to finish with!

And remember these people were to increase as they had increased. THERE WAS TO BE NO CEASING OF THEIR PRODUCTIVENESS.

The numbers of this ever-increasing people must by now be beyond computation.

Where are they? Certainly not in any secret hole and corner of the earth.

Indeed, as has often been shown, they must by now have developed into the nation and company of nations of which God spoke to Jacob, as recorded in Genesis xxxv,11; and which Jacob himself as he lay a-dying passed on to Ephraim, calling it "A multitude of nations," and which is recorded in Genesis xlviii, 19.

Their numbers must be too vast, their influence and power too great, in these latter days for them to be buried or secreted in some unknown region of the earth!

But WHO is this wonderful increase spoken of? The previous verse tells us, and even gives the name:—"And hey of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man." (Zech. x, 7.) Ephraim was the leader of Israel, and his name is often used n Scripture as an alternative name for the Ten-Tribed House.

Digitized by Google

The Church, however, says that old Ephraim is lost, disraced, cast off, repudiated. But God says, "Ephraim shall e like a mighty man. . . . Yea, their children shall see it, nd be glad; their heart shall rejoice in the Lord."

And the previous verse says:—"I will save the House of oseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have nercy upon them: and they shall be as though I had not cast hem off."

In this last remarkable sentence they are restored absolutely nd entirely to their previous position of favour with God exactly is in olden time.

That word "Ephraim" cannot mean the Jews; they are of udah, and have no connection with Ephraim. Where, then, s this Ephraim, restored, made as though they had not been ast off, increasing and ever increasing as they had done in time ast?

Then there comes that singular passage, "I will hiss for hem, and gather them, for I have redeemed them." (v. 8.)

To-day that word "hiss" is a term of disdain, repudiation, oathing.

I suggest that there is evidently, on the face of it, something rrong here with the translation. The words "hiss" and "for" are in opposition to each other! You cannot hiss for man. You can hiss at him, or hiss him; but such a thing s hissing for him is impossible. The two words are the ontrary the one to the other!

"Hissing" denotes opposition, disagreement, even violent ntipathy!

But to "hiss" means making a noise with the mouth which s not speaking. And here it is to gather Ephraim; evidently t is a call of some kind preparatory to the gathering.

Ferrar Fenton has got a very delightful interpretation of his word. He says:—"I will whistle for and collect them."

Just as a man calls his cattle, his sheep, his dogs, by a long-ustained, piercing whistle, carrying many times farther than is voice, so God says of these far-scattered people, "I will whistle for and collect them."

It is not a term of opposition, of reproach, of scorn or disdain; it is a call, a home call, a gathering call, sent out o the uttermost corners of the earth, "For I have redeemed hem, and they shall increase as they have increased."

Most of us at times will have seen something like this. A man watching his dog right away up on the hillside a long way off, so far off it is no use calling, his voice would not carry. So he puts his two fingers to his mouth and sends forth a piercing whistle; and in a moment the dog stands still and listens; then, recognizing the call, it immediately comes towards its master.

That is the meaning of this passage.

A call, loud and piercing, that will reach Ephraim wherever he is: and one which declares to him God's redemption; and "Their heart," it says, "shall rejoice in the Lord." (v. 7.)

But look at that word "Collect." It speaks of a careful discriminating collecting of all those who make up Ephraim; a gathered House. It also tells us why, "For I have redeemed them."

But why should they need redeeming? Because they had sinned and been temporarily cast away; and this redeeming not only brings them back, but it shows that the sin and wickedness does not finally cast them off.

"I will sow them among the people" is very true of Ephraim to-day if we are that Ephraim. "And they shall remember Me in far countries" is true of us as of no other people in the world. For we are teaching all the world to worship God!

"And they shall live with their children"; but the theologians say they shall diminish, are now cast off, abandoned, broken, deserted and disowned!

But God says, "They shall live with their children, and turn again." (v. 9.)

There is their final and complete restoration; and this promise is not made to a righteous people, but to those who had so sinned that they needed redeeming, and more, ARE REDEEMED!

THERE IS NO BOOK IN THE WORLD READ WITH SUCH BLINDED EYES AND SUCH STOPPED EARS AS THE BIBLE IS. The Bible is read through coloured glasses, coloured by theologies and prejudices. And only those things can be seen which those glasses allow.

Oh the blind eyes when we come to the Book! And the deaf ears! For the plainest statements cannot or won't be seen, and the plainest words cannot or won't be heard!

"Their ears they have stopped" was the charge of old, but it is very largely true to-day, even of ardent church-goers.

The Book says, "The entrance of Thy Word giveth light," and it is most wonderfully and gloriously true. But if the Word is excluded, doubted, altered, tampered with, how can there be any light? How can Truth be known?

If when the Book says, "I have mercy on them," "I will hear them," "I will gather them," "I have redeemed them," it means "CAST THEM OFF," then the Book is a fraud, a delusion and a snare; and man can have no certain guide from this world to the next!

But, on the contrary, let us be assured that it is not so: but boldly and unflinchingly assert, and without any qualification whatever, that where it says, "I have mercy on them," it means "have mercy"; where it says, "I will gather them," it means "I will gather them"; where it says, "I have redeemed them," it means just that very thing, and nothing less.

Even our failing to perceive what that redemption is will never thwart it, or destroy the good purposes of our God, disclosed to us in that wondrous word "REDEEMED."

And all this is spoken of "Ephraim," the leader, the head of the Ten Tribes.

These are the people that are to be whistled for, gathered, collected, forgiven, Redeemed!

Sometimes the shepherd, when his dog comes back, punishes it severely for some real or fancied offence.

But Ephraim's punishment is over, his offence expiated, hence the call! So the nature of the call is a call to blessing; a calling to a provided forgiveness; a call to a nation REDEEMED! The whole purpose of the call is stated—MERCY! Is there any being in earth or hell that can stop or hinder God's mercy? Certainly not!

But says one, deprecatingly, "That is out of the minor prophets."

Digitized by Google

Indeed it is! And there are some priceless gems and some of the greatest treasures of our inheritance in the minor prophets; and there they lie unheeded, undiscovered.

Many people despise the minor prophets. They think them dry and uninteresting reading. And indeed they are till you have got the key, the division of the old nation into "Israel" and "Judah."

The writer can remember taking up the Book many years ago, and at one sitting reading several consecutive chapters of the minor prophets; and though filled with a most sincere desire to understand the Word, enlightened by a lifetime of study and acquaintance with it, yet such was the confusion created in his mind that in disgust he threw the Book down, saying aloud, "No living man can understand such rubbish."

And that feeling is general.

Not long ago a clergyman and his wife were taking tea at the house of a good British-Israelite.

After tea my friend brought up his favourite subject, which was received patiently at first.

In the course of his arguments my B.-I. friend suddenly burst out with this remark: "Some people never read the minor prophets."

It was an arrow shot at a venture, and it found its billet; for immediately afterwards, the clergyman discovering he had an engagement, excused himself; but his wife remaining behind, after he had gone, said to my friend, "You have hit my husband very hard."

"Why, how?" answered my friend; "I am very sorry; I did not mean to do so."

"Perhaps not," the clergyman's wife replied, "but you have, for my husband never reads the minor prophets! You have hit him very hard."

Alas, alas, we have since then degenerated still more. It is not only all the minor prophets which are discarded, but nearly the whole of the Old Testament!

But it will all come true: it is even now coming true! And before men and angels, bad men and devils, God will honour His own word to Ephraim, even those old words in the minor prophets, "I will hiss for them; and gather them; for I have redeemed them; and they shall increase as they have increased."

"MY WORD . . . NOT VOID."

By CHAS. H. CORRIN.

THE text of Isaiah lv, 11, is generally applied to the Evangelistic message. But whether the "word" here denotes this message exclusively, or comprehends it, will be determined by its interpretation in relationship to the context.

I.—The context of the whole Book of Isaiah.

From the 40th chapter to the end, the message is God's Word concerning the House of Israel—the ten tribes—in the Isles. Identified as Britain.

If any reader will not admit this identification, let him at least recognize God's great purposes for the House of Israel, declared in these chapters. Perhaps such a reader will object that the 53rd chapter reveals the Messiah. It is true that the section from chapter lii, 13, to end of chapter liii speaks of a suffering servant; but chapter lii, 1 to 12, speaks of a servant NATION, and these chapters cannot be separated. Herein is a key to the understanding of Scripture. Wherever the Messiah is foretold, the Nation Israel is associated with Him.

II.—The context of the whole 55th chapter.

Here is clearly set forth the "word" concerning the Person and the nation.

Verse 4: "A Witness. A Leader and Commander." Identified by John xviii, 37; Rev. i, 5, and elsewhere. "To the people." Which people?

Evidently the people of verse 3. "I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David." ISRAEL! the only people of whom this was predicated; shown in verse 5. As a nation unrecognized.

III.—The context of the immediate verses.

"My word" of verse 11 is linked up with "My thoughts" and "My ways" of verses 8, 9. God's purpose concerning this people. And the prosperity of the "word" in verse 11 is detailed in verses 12 and 13. "For ye shall . . . and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off."

So that the subject of the 11th verse is the Word of God concerning His people Israel under the lead and command of His Witness.

This interpretation of the text, with the recognition of its fulfilment, will not limit the expectation of the prosperity of all of God's Word in Creation, Providence and Grace.

The Lord graciously teaches us here by an object lesson. Verse 10: "As the rain and snow." Verse 11: "So shall My Word be." If we wish to understand the operation of God's Word, let us observe how the rain and snow are here shown to operate.

(i) "As the rain and snow." They operate according to law. The whole tone of these two verses is of ordered processes. There have always been men who were weather-wise. The men of the wide spaces who have observed phenomena and traced cause and effect.

Meteorology has advanced as a science and its experts give us very exact forecasts—except for the unforeseen. A leading newspaper, speaking of the storm on the South Coast on July 19th last, said:—"That no doubt Science had failed to understand the laws which governed the weather, but it was to be hoped that people would not be too superstitious about this strange happening."

Did the writer mean, superstitious in ascribing this event to the Act of God? The truth is that God has revealed to men some of the laws by which He rules Nature, but there are further and higher laws which He has reserved within His own knowledge. We need not hesitate to pray for rain or for fair weather at need.

"So My Word." We know something from the revealed Book how the Word of God operates. Yet there are great experiences of Individual, National and World-wide movements in the Moral and Spiritual spheres which seem to come entirely by the will of man. But the assurance throughout the Book is that His Will and His Word control all these things.

But the Word of God concerning Israel is not merely a declaration of law. There is a Personal pleading with them, even here in this chapter as elsewhere.

Digitized by Google

Verse 1: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, Come ye . . . come ye . . . yea, come."

Verse 3: "Incline your ear, and come unto Me."

Verse 6: "Seek ye the Lord, while He may be found; call ye upon Him while He is near."

Verse 7: "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord."

And there is a provision for the individual soul who accepts the invitation.

Verse 2: "Eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness."

Verse 3: "Hear, and your soul shall live."

Verse 7: "The Lord . . . will have mercy upon him." "Our God, He will abundantly pardon."

And the result of the national response to that gracious pleading will be: that they will be used for the fulfilment of God's Word to all people.

Verse 5: "Behold thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee because of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for He hath glorified thee."

(ii) "As the rain and snow." Sometimes instruments of God's wrath; but here, 10th verse, instruments of blessing.

"So shall My Word be." Shown in this chapter as:

Blessings for the individual soul.
Blessings for the nation Israel.
Blessings for all nations.

(iii) "As the rain and snow."

Sometimes appearing to us as superfluous. Sometimes we consider them to have failed in their purpose, because we cannot trace the immediate Providence of God. But notwithstanding all our limited vision and lack of perception, the perennial fact remains that "the watering of the earth, making it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater," has prevailed through all generations for the maintenance of all creatures.

"So shall My Word be."

Verse 11:

"It shall not return unto Me void."
"It shall accomplish that which I please."
"It shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it."

In Nature and in Grace; height and breadth and depth unfathomable lie before us. "For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts" (verse 9). The man who knows what "the everlasting covenant" of verse 3 is, "even the sure mercies of David," and sees how that Word has been fulfilled: he is the man who, amidst the apparent lack of result commensurate with the abundant proclamation of the Gospel message of Salvation, can look in earnest expectation that this Word will prosper in the thing whereto the Holy Spirit sends it, whether to the conversion of the individual soul or to bring in a wide revival.

"The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit." (John iii, 8.)

He is the man who has the assurance that no word of God shall return void, for he sees it all fulfilled in Him Who said: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away." (Matt. xxiv, 35.)

EXPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

By the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.

III.—THE COMING OF THE HOLY GHOST,

According to the Acts.

(Acts ii, 1-4.)

Four verses and the story is told, the coming of the Holy Ghost is historically chronicled. What a field is here for speculative enquiry, for the art of the fictionist! What embellishment, what enlargement of detail might be indulged in! Here is an unparalleled opportunity for the dreamer to read the heavens through the fairy lens of his imaginative genius. In four verses St. Luke tells us of the coming of God, the Holy Ghost, into the world. The simpler narrative is the Diviner story. Where God veils it is not for man to unveil. God needs no human amplification; He needs no embellishment of man. He Who paints the rainbow needs not that we should teach Him the use of colours. He Who marshals the stars in their order needs not that we should instruct Him as to the facts. Only four verses, yes, but what verses they are! Only a plain ungarnished story told with that simplicity which a child might understand, yet what a height of glory, what a depth of significance! There is an inexhaustible mine of wealth in these four verses. We are struck with the harmony of the Bible in this regard. Words are not multiplied to no effect. There is no elaboration of detail, no unnecessary padding, no such embellishment as would satisfy the curious but add nothing to the facts. In two small chapters the story of the Creation is told, and nothing that man has ever said since has subtracted from or added to that marvellously condensed account. The law of Israel is stated in Ten Commandments; and the whole constitution of Israel condensed into one book. And so it is throughout the whole historical and prophetical books of Holy Scripture. It is the stamp of its Divine origin, for man is given to verbosity. He thinks that he will he heard for his much speaking. When under the guidance and direction of the Holy Ghost, as these men of Holy Writ surely wrote, man wastes no words, but with aphorismic exactitude, which stamps his utterance Divine, he both speaks and writes.

It will be well to note first of all the preparation for Pentecost.

1.—The Preparation for Pentecost.

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come." Think for a moment of the old Jewish feast of Pentecost. Broadly speaking, it was the old Jewish feast of thanksgiving for the harvest. It was therefore a feast which celebrated an effect rather than a cause. It came as the result of a process. It came after the toil of seed sowing and harvest reaping. It stood in a close relationship then to the things that were past. This is interesting. The Holy Ghost chose to enter into human life at the harvest thanksgiving feast. He is then an effect of whom Christ is the cause. He is linked on thus with the things that are past. Christ, and all that Christ stands for, precedes the coming of the Holy Ghost and prepares the way for His coming. St. Paul, in Romans viii, 23, speaks of "the first fruits of the Spirit." But though He is an effect from Christ He is also a cause from which arises all the effects of all subsequent Christian history down to and including our own day and generation.

Digitized by Google

But note further how this feast of Pentecost, in the atmosphere of thanksgiving which it engendered, prepared the disciples, and not the disciples only but all those who afterwards believed, for the coming of the Divine Paraclete. It brought them together into the Temple. It fostered the spirit of worship and praise. It gave them the true atmosphere and the correct attitude. "They continued with one accord in one place." What place? The Temple of God I take it. That, I think, is a fair inference from what St. Luke tells us about the multitude which came together, both hearing and seeing the great events. (Acts ii, 6 and 33.)

The Temple was the chief resort of the disciples during the period of tarrying which their Master had enjoined; but they continued also to frequent the Upper Room, now hallowed to them by its memories of the Lord. (Acts i, 13.)

It was now on the eve of the second return of the Resurrection day since the Lord had ascended, and the city was crowded and astir with the pilgrim bands which had come up to Jerusalem for the great feast of thanksgiving. No doubt they had counted the days and they may well have divined that on Pentecost, the fiftieth day since their Lord had suffered as the Passover Lamb, their expectations would be fulfilled. I myself had thought that the great event had taken place in the Upper Room, made sacred to them by their Lord. There is great appropriateness in that. But St. Peter in his sermon speaks to the multitude of the event which they had seen and heard. The multitude could scarcely have been in the Upper Room. As a matter of fact the many rooms, or cloisters of the Temple, were used by the disciples or followers of every cult arising out of the religion and worship of the God of the Temple. Here in one of these cloisters doubtless the whole band of the disciples, including not only the Twelve, but many more, among them the women, would come together for trayer and praise, expectantly waiting for the fulfilment of the Master's promise. When the Spirit came, and filled these disciples with power, resting with cloven tongues as of fire upon all because upon each, such was the effect that the multitude, which thronged the other rooms of the House of God, came rushing together to see this remarkable thing which had happened. (Acts ii, 6.)

Hallowed as the Upper Room had become by the institution of the Last Supper and the fellowship which the disciples had there enjoyed with their risen Lord, there was a significance beyond even that in the Temple, which had been so long the earthly dwelling-place of Jehovah, the God of Israel, now being the place of the inauguration of the dispensation in which the believing soul is to be the temple and dwelling-place of the Spirit.

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all together in one place." (R.V.) ". . . all with one accord in one place." (A.V.) There was the fullest possible agreement, the fullest possible readiness for the event. These first disciples had put their entire house in order and now they waited with simple trust and confidence in the Saviour's promise. That nothing should be left incompleted they had filled in the vacancy occasioned by the action of Judas. That they did it by the very doubtful means of casting lots; that they did it, as we can now see being wise after the event, prematurely, does not vitiate their motive. They wanted to be perfectly prepared for the coming of the Holy Ghost upon them. They were most anxious that nothing should prevent, nothing in them should hinder. Acts i, 14, we read:— "These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication."

Their unity was the unity of genuine prayer. The souls who genuinely pray are always one in heart and life. It cannot be otherwise, for the God to Whom they pray is one in them. But I have said "genuinely." Experience binds me to say that, for I have known, in one prayer meeting, brethren to pray who have been in bitter opposition, not to say enmity, to one another. It is not an unknown thing, I have heard it done, for one brother to pray at another. I can conceive of nothing baser than that, but it has been done. The Pharisee prayed at the publican, did he not? His children, alas! have survived him. It has been sometimes the minister who has prayed at his people; sometimes the deacon who has prayed at his minister; sometimes the Church member who has prayed at both; but it is always base. We owe, humanly, the Christian Pentecost, with all the blessings it carried in its train, to the fidelity of these first simple-minded, true-hearted followers of Jesus to each other. When the Church becomes one and the Nation, Israel, becomes one at the Throne of the Heavenly Grace, then the Holy Ghost will come as of old with power, all-conquering power, to the establishment of the Kingdom of God in the world, to the ushering in of the glorious reign of our Lord Jesus upon the earth.

Prayer is essential to the success of any religious movement. This assembling together according to the Saviour's word for praise and prayer should not be a matter of choice, but of holy compulsion born of a passion of love for Jesus Christ. "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching." (Heb. x, 25.)

What type of Christian is he who has no taste for the prayer meeting? The Apostolic "ALL" is not to be found in modern Christianity. We cannot emphasize it too strongly to-day; spiritual power can only be for that Church and that Nation which is united in prayer and praise, in short is prepared, as well as it knows how to be, for the coming of the Holy Ghost into its life. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost came to the prepared. For ten consecutive days they remained in prayer. They were of one accord in one place. A common object drew them together, a common expectation focused their faith, and focused faith always prevails. The fact that they continued for ten days proves both their earnestness and their faith. They waited earnestly for God, pleaded the promise of Christ, and had faith in His Word. They believed God. Worthy sons of Abraham surely. We do not wonder that the Holy Ghost came upon them with power. God could not resist the pleadings of these people. A rector said to me the other day, "There is not enough prayer." I agree, though I had to remind him, as I would you, that we have a large Prayer Union whose members are to be found in all parts of the world. Still there is not enough all-prevailing prayer. Our task is a difficult one. We are face to face with opposition. We are seeking to open the eyes of people to that Truth which will establish within their hearts the integrity and the authority of God's Word in such a manner as to make doubt and unbelief eternally impossible. Do you think that this gigantic task which God has placed upon our shoulders can be carried through to its glorious consummation without both prayer and fasting? Not so! Not so!

Digitized by Google

"Rejoice alway; pray without ceasing; in everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus to you-ward. Quench not the Spirit; despise not prophesyings; prove all things; hold fast that which is good; abstain from every form of evil. And the God of peace Himself sanctify you wholly; and may your spirit and soul and body be preserved entire, without blame at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Faithful is He that calleth you, who will also do it." (1 Thess. v, 16-24—R.V.)

2.—THE SYMBOLS OF PENTECOST.

WIND. FIRE.—These are the symbols of Pentecost. "And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty wind." It was not a wind, but it was a sound which reminded one forcibly of a mighty rushing wind. This was the symbol by which St. Luke seeks to give to Theophilus some idea of what it was like. And a very telling symbol it is. I have heard the wind sometimes, and doubtless you have, gathering in the distance and coming rushing along like a mighty troop of horse. How strong the wind is! In the fullness of its might it can root up trees of many years' standing and fling them headlong down the swollen river to the mighty sea. It is indicative of strength, and St. Luke would have us understand that what came upon the disciples was a great strength. Almightiness descended and took possession of them. One writer has reminded us that the wind is gentle, fanning the cheek of the passer-by. Yes! the Spirit of God is gentle as the breeze, but He is strong as the storm, and the emphasis of Pentecost is on His strength. His coming was masterful. As if He meant business, and He certainly did mean business as events most gloriously show. There is another thought suggested by this symbol. "A rushing mighty wind." Health-giving surely. The winds of March blow with strength, sometimes with fury, upon the fog-bound wintry earth, and life and health come. "Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain that they may live." (Ezekiel xxxvii, 9.) It comes as a health-giver, and life-bringer. Its very buffetings are health. That is what God's Spirit is to the soul of man. He is life, and health, and peace.

But the wind itself is a mystery, is it not? As the Saviour reminded Nicodemus: "It bloweth where it listeth, thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth, so is every one that is born of the Spirit." I spoke just now of the kiss of the wind upon the cheek. An old Jewish saying used to be this: "Moses died from the kiss of God." Ah! many have lived by the kiss of the Spirit of God. He came as a mighty rushing wind.

And as FIRE.—What a symbol this! Fire stands for three things. Light, heat, purifying. When the Spirit of God brooded over the abyss at the first He said, "Let there be light." Light was God's first creative word. From that light, following swiftly in its train, came order and all the beauty of order. When Christ began His great work, for which all that He had done in Israel through all the intervening ages was a preparation, He sent His Spirit upon His followers and the first thing was light. Their eyes were opened and their minds were enlightened. Then came heat. The Holy Ghost not only teaches us about God and Christ, but He makes our hearts flame up in love to Him. Then came purifying. The fire cleanses and purifies. "He shall be as a refiner's fire."

With feet of burning brass,
When times are dark as night,
Thou through the world dost pass,
Consuming in our sight
Dry trees and withering grass
With dreadful happy light.

O Thou consuming fire,
Why should I fear Thy flame,
Who purpose and desire
To burn what Thou shalt blame,
Ill weeds and every brier
Of folly and of shame?

With shining beams that smite
The chains of darkness through,
Thou smilest in the height,
And all things smile anew;
Thy heat, in subtle might,
Works with the gentle dew.

O Thou creating fire,
I feel Thy warmth benign;
My hopes a flowering spire
Arise, unfold and shine;
And fruits that I desire
Shall soon be mine and Thine.

3.—THE FULLNESS OF PENTECOST.

"They were all filled with the Holy Ghost." They were all, because they were each, filled. What is it to be filled with the Holy Ghost? Is it to receive the Holy Ghost for the first time? Not necessarily. Can a man be a Christian without receiving the Holy Ghost? According to Romans viii, 9, he cannot. "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His." When a man is filled with the Holy Ghost it does not mean that he receives the Holy Ghost for the first time. The disciples, at least the Eleven, had received the Holy Ghost before Pentecost, according to St. John xx, 22. "He breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost." Mark please this further thing. This filling of the Holy Ghost is an experience which may happen to the same person again and again. The experience of Pentecost is repeated over again, and the same persons who had been filled with the Holy Ghost at Pentecost were filled with the Holy Ghost as they prayed, rejoicing at their deliverance from the hand of their enemies. You will perhaps remind me of St. Paul's experience at Ephesus when he found a few disciples there who had not so much as heard that there was any such Person as the Holy Ghost. St. Paul was surprised at that until he learned into whose baptism they had been baptized; then he knew that there had been no real apprehension of Christ; in short, that they were not Christians in the true sense of that word. They were only at the half-way house, so to speak. He baptized them into the Name of Christ, after which, by faith in Christ, they received the Holy Ghost. What then is this filling of the Holy Ghost? It is taking the man who is full of prayer, and consequently full of faith, expectant, with every avenue of his nature open and receptive, and charging him, as it were, with spiritual energy so that he is able to do exploits. Surely we can see that to have the Spirit is one thing, and to be filled with the Spirit is quite another thing. The one is normal, the other is abnormal. The one is the believer's life day by day; the other is the believer's ecstasy, his lifting up, as St. John would say, into the seventh heaven. It is when a man is filled with the Holy Ghost that the world calls him mad. St. Paul was filled with the Holy Ghost as he spake for himself before Festus, and was charged with madness. St. Stephen was filled with the Holy Ghost and exclaimed: "I see the heavens opened and the Son of man sitting at the right hand of God," and they deemed him insane, so stoned him to death. St. Paul thought himself very sober, but as a matter of fact Festus was right in the letter though not in the spirit. St. Paul was indeed beside himself. This filling comes as the reward of earnest prayer and diligent search. Christ tells us that: "Ask, and ye shall receive; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

Digitized by Google

4.—The Transformation of Pentecost.

"They began to speak with tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance." There was a mighty transformation, a transformation which was felt by all those who came together to witness the great event. And what was the nature of this transformation? Wind is symbol of power; fiery tongues is symbol of inspired speech. "They spake as the Spirit gave them utterance." I believe that this involved for these first disciples the speaking in other languages. I cannot see how the narrative is to be understood but in this sense. But that is not the important point for us. The important point really is that the man who is filled with the Holy Ghost speaks with an inspired tongue. That tongue may be many languages, or it may be only one language. It is nevertheless an inspired tongue, understood of the common people; therefore it will strike home with power and conviction as no other speech can. Believe me; the man who is filled with the Holy Ghost is as much inspired to-day as in the days long ago. He is a transformed soul. We shall see in our next exposition what that transformed soul can accomplish.

THE ISRAEL OF GOD.

By Henry Proctor, F.R.S.L.

What does the Apostle mean by the above expression?

The context shows that he means the whole of the new creation; every one that is begotten of God in Christ Jesus (Gal. vi, 15-16). And it is a remarkable fact that both the Old Covenant and the New are made with Israel and Judah (Heb. viii, 8-10), and no one has ever yet been saved except by means of incorporation into Israel's Olive Tree.

Rahab, the harlot, although by her first birth a Canaanite, became, by her second birth, as much an Israelite as David, of whom she became an ancestress, as did also Ruth the Moabitess, who became her daughter-in-law (Matt. i, 5). To Rahab was granted the high honour of being listed among the heroes of faith (Heb. xi, 31) as well as being an ancestress of the Messiah. By faith, men of every nation may still be grafted into Israel's Olive Tree, and thus become members of the Israel of God (Rom. xi, 17-24). Thus all who are being saved in this dispensation are being incorporated into the House of Israel. Thus we may see why it is that the twelve gates of the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, have upon them the names of

The Twelve Tribes

of Israel, because it was prepared and builded for them, but the names of

The Twelve Apostles

on the foundations of the wall of the City show that the Church of this dispensation, which is the Body of Christ, is included in it.

It is, however, the Temple, while the City is called the Bride, the body of which Christ is the Head is the Bridegroom (Rev. xxi, 9) with (Cor. xii, 12), so that is seen in the City, not separately, but as included in God and the Lamb (Rev. xxi, 22). This is because of the answered prayer of our Lord in John xvii, 22: "That they may be one, even as we are one." So that they cannot be separated from the Father, any more than He can be "I in them and Thou in Me, that they may be made perfect in one," or

The Temple

Perfected in their Union with God and the Lamb (John xvii, 23), R.V., and 20th Cent.—"The Church which is His Body." The Church of this dispensation will be the Priesthood of Israel after a Spiritual House; a Holy Priesthood (1 Pet. ii, 5).

The Order of Melchizedek;

In the age to come Israel is to be supreme both in Heaven and on earth. (1) She is the Bride for whom the Holy City is prepared: "God is not ashamed to be called their God, for He hath prepared for them a City," for "They were longing for a better; a heavenly land" (Heb. xi, 16), R.V. and 20th Cent.—(2) On earth they will also be the chief of the nations, and Jerusalem the metropolis of the world to which of the earth will be compelled to go up, for "Then the survivors of all the nations that marched against Jerusalem shall march up year after year to worship the King—YAHVEH-TSEVAOTH, to hold the festival of booths (Feast of Tabernacles) (Zech xiv, 16-19—Moffatt and Hebrew).

Digitized by Google

ALL THE NATIONS

And so all Israel shall be saved as

A HEAVENLY CALLING (Heb. iii, 1).

But all the Covenants belong to Israel, both heavenly and earthly, even in the New Heavens and the New Earth—"For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before Me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed (race) and your name remain" (Isa. lxvi, 22). During the Millennium the

EARTHLY JERUSALEM

shall be called the camp of the Saints, and the BELOVED CITY (Rev. xx, 9). From this standpoint Abraham is for Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit.

THE HEIR OF THE WORLD,

But some hold this view to the exclusion of the heavenly calling, which is quite distinct from it. For all the Covenants, New as well as OLD, HEAVENLY as well as earthly, belong to Israel, for "Theirs is the Sonship, the GLORY."

THE COVENANTS,

the Divine legislation, the Worship and the Promises, the Patriarchs are theirs, and theirs, too, as far as natural descent goes, is the CHRIST. Rom. v, 45—Moffatt, or as 20th Cent. N.T. has it—theirs are

(1) The adoption as Sons.
(2) The visible Presence.
(3) The Covenants.
(4) The revealed law.
(5) The Temple Worship.
(6) The Promises.
(7) The Patriarchs.
(8) CHRIST in His human nature.

Never let us imagine, however, that a Gentile Church (as has been falsely taught for centuries) has taken the place of Israel—"God hath not cast away His people." The callousness which has come over earthly Israel is only partial and temporary. God has not repudiated His people—His predestined people (Rom. xi, 2—Moffatt) "All Israel shall be saved," as Scripture says, "From Zion will come the Deliverer." Rom. xi, 26—(20th Cent.)—"And they shall see the fulfilment of My Covenant when I have taken away their sins."

N.B.—The name "Jacob" is never used of the Heavenly Israel, but of the earthly. It is all inclusive of the twelve tribes.

THREE ESSENTIALS OF BRITISH-ISRAELITES.

BY R. A. BRADBURY.

WE will devote this brief article to a few thoughts on what we British-Israelites stand for and believe in, and propose to do this under three sub-titles, as follows:—THE BIBLE; KING AND COUNTRY; JESUS CHRIST—SAVIOUR AND KING.

The Bible is the greatest Book of all time. It can claim priority over all other books ever published. It has been translated into more languages and dialects than any other publication. It has had a greater sale, and a greater distribution of free copies, than any other volume.

Its universal distribution and acceptance is unprecedented.

Truly such a Book must have had a Divine origin, and its inspiration been derived from One greater than man.

We British-Israelites stand by the Book. It would be incorrect to say that we stand or fall by the Scriptures, for they will never fall nor fail.

"My Word shall not return unto Me void," says Jehovah,
"but shall accomplish that which I please."
"I, the Lord, change not; therefore, ye sons of Jacob are not consumed."

We are bidden to search the Scriptures and despise not prophecies; and we stand by the Old Book, we uphold it, and we love it; and we have good reason to stand by it; we are able to maintain its Truth, and we love it because its Truth makes us free.

It is, indeed, "A lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path."

If only the Church, in all her denominations, could say the same with united breath, what a front they could offer to the world!

At the moment they cannot. Why? Because they do not approach the Bible with the faith of little children, believing what it teaches.

None have the right to declare the Bible untrue and inaccurate simply because they fail to understand certain chapters.

The falsity of the modernist position is evident in many things.

To name two as examples: Because they could not prove the historicity of Abram and Ur of the Chaldees, they declared that this great character and his birthplace never existed, until along came the excavator to corroborate and maintain the Biblical record.

They also questioned the Genesis account of the Flood, upsetting and disturbing the simple faith of many a lover of God's Word; until silenced by the thrilling discoveries by the group of archæological surveyors led by Mr. C. Leonard Woolley, who, in a report to the Times published on March 16th, 1929, made the claim that material evidence of the Flood is at last forthcoming. To quote his own words:—

"He would be an optimist indeed who had hoped to produce material evidence for such an event as the Flood of Sumerian legend, which is also the Flood of the Book of Genesis; but in no other way can I interpret the facts which our excavations here give us."

It appears to me that the modernist is rather in the position of the schoolboy set a problem by his master. He thinks of all he knows on the subject but fails to arrive at the solution. Along comes the schoolmaster, knowing the matter from A to Z, so to speak, explains to the student, and shows him the answer.

Digitized by Google

God, Who created the heavens and the earth, and Whose Kingdom ruleth over all, knows His world from beginning to end, and consequently is able to, and did, inspire His servants to write a precise and accurate account of His own Creation.

The scientist and theologian, with all their knowledge, only know in part. "They see in a mirror darkly." May they one day, guided by God's Spirit, see "face to face."

We must hammer away in our defence of God's Word. We must stick to our guns. And surely, if slowly, we'll win through, and bring our people back to the faith of their fathers.

But I must pass on to my next point. We stand for King and Country. We are loyal to the Throne, and to the great Commonwealth of Nations that comprise our Empire. Why?

Because to the Throne of David, as now represented by His Majesty King George, and to the British People, there has been given a Divine Mission that we dare not shirk.

We have caught the vision of God's purpose concerning us, and the prophet Isaiah sums up the destiny of Israel-Britain in the following stirring words:—

> "To unloose the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke."

We have millions of precious souls under our guidance and care and must see to it that they are given just rule and righteous laws. No matter what Government is in office they must realize that this great Empire is a Divine trust and the British Commonwealth of Nations has a high destiny. British-Israelites the world over must leaven the Empire with this idea and impress upon the people this great fact.

Above all, the task with which this Nation has been commissioned is to tell the Gentiles of the Light that has been sent to lighten them and of Him Who is the Glory of His People Israel.

We must carry the knowledge of His salvation to all the families of the earth.

We, of this Movement, must persevere in the duty of bringing to our People the knowledge of their great commission. We must bring them back to the Book. We must show them why they should love their country and be loyal to their King. Many earnest Christian people have the idea that patriotism is wrong. They declare that Christ was an internationalist. The Master is not opposed to true patriotism. The words of the poet come to my mind:—

> "Breathes there the man with soul so dead—
> Who never to himself has said,
> 'This is mine own, my native land?'"

Surely a man can love his country without hating other nations?

Yes, one can so love his native land that he would do nothing to bring shame and dishonour upon her name. His love of country can be such that he desires her to go out and help the other peoples of the earth. To uplift them and bring to them the freedom and liberty that he himself enjoys. That, I think I may say, is the desire of every true B.-I. And that is the ideal of Empire that we have to place before our Race.

But now to my last point. Jesus Christ—Saviour and King. We stand firm for Jesus, Saviour of the world and Redeemer of His People Israel.

We believe that He is the Great Lover of the souls of men, and King of Israel. And we love Him, for was He not "wounded for our transgressions, and bruised for our iniquities"? Yes, He died to make us free, and now He ever liveth to make intercession on our behalf. If only people would give Him a chance. He is ready and willing to be the friend of all. He is ready and waiting to save His people from their sins. He is waiting for them "To enquire of Him, and He will verily do it for them." "He will take away ungodliness from Jacob." He will heal us and bring us to Himself.

Then, we have the glorious hope of His appearing. "He shall come whose right it is, and unto Him shall be the gathering of the people."

"God shall give unto Him the Throne—and He shall reign . . ."

But "This Gospel of the Kingdom must first be preached and then shall the end come."

"He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps."

He is calling to us to cry aloud and spare not. Cannot we hear His Word ringing down through the ages, "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?" Are we ready with the answer?

"Here am I, Lord, send me!"

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER.

SIR,—As a British-Israelite I have always understood that one of our fixed principles is the taking of Bible statements in their plain literal sense whenever possible to do so.

A good many prophecies in the Bible are described in symbolic or poetic language, but not so, for instance, with "Armageddon." This is referred to in the plainest, most simple and direct manner possible, and it is difficult to see how it can possibly, by any stretch of the imagination, be interpreted otherwise. (See Zech. xiv and Ezekiel xxxviii and xxxix.)

The circumstances of the sparing of Nineveh is not comparable, as the destruction of that city had no connection with either the First or Second Coming of Our Lord, and was merely an incident in the history of nations, written for our learning, that we might understand the loving-kindness of God; but, although delayed, we know that the prophecy was eventually fulfilled.

When the king and all his people humbled themselves before God, He withheld the judgment to show that He was both just and merciful; but we can quite believe, knowing what human nature is, that as soon as the forty days were over and no disaster occurred, the majority of the people would return to their evil ways, and call the king a fool for having starved them for three days unnecessarily.

Digitized by Google

Heaven and earth may pass away, but God's Word cannot fail, and we may rest assured that His Church and people must fulfil in the minutest detail every Commandment that He has laid upon them, and complete their destined mission to the last point.

It is quite true that from the most Christian countries we hear and see that congregations are falling off. Theological training colleges are failing, many churches are without ministers, and there is a general neglect of, and indifference to, Christ's teaching by men and women of all classes.

Pleasure is the god most worshipped just now; the dear old Sabbath that God especially ordained as a sign between Himself and His Chosen people for all generations is ignored, and Sunday games, dances and other amusements taking its place.

Is not this exactly what our Lord told His disciples would happen in the latter days? Men would be lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; false religions would arise, some of them so much like the real thing that even the Elect might be deceived, and He infers that Faith may have died out altogether by asking the question: "Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, shall He find Faith in the earth?"

There is not a word in our Lord's teaching leading us to suppose for one moment that His disciples or ministers were intended to convert the world, or establish peace on the earth. No power in Heaven or earth can do that but the King of kings and Lord of lords; therefore it can only be accomplished at His Second Coming, when He shall put down all principalities and powers and reign supreme over all.

Christ's Church was to be a recruiting agency to enlist soldiers for His army from among all nations, and the fact that the work is slackening off may be a sign that the number of His Elect is nearly accomplished, and the time of His Coming near at hand, which should be a cause of rejoicing among His faithful followers; for after enumerating the awful events which would take place immediately before His Coming—wars, earthquakes, famines, pestilences, fearful sights, upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity, men's hearts failing them for fear—He does not say humble yourselves and pray that these calamities may be averted.

No, just the contrary. "Lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh."

Far from bringing peace on the earth, our Lord emphatically stated, "I am not come to bring peace on the earth, but a sword; and let him who hath no sword sell his garment and buy one." And it is remarkable that the word Peace does not occur in our Lord's Prayer. We pray, "Thy kingdom come," and He Who taught us that prayer knew that the Prince of this world would never allow his kingdoms to be taken over without summoning all his forces to the fight. Therefore, if there is to be no more war, we must be satisfied to remain for ever under exciting conditions, for the Devil is not going to give our Lord peaceable possession of his kingdoms.

Not for one moment is it to be thought that war is desirable, for it is an awful calamity; but so are pestilence, famine, earthquake, sin; yet we know that all these will continue under the present dispensation.

We learn from history that those nations which ceased to fight soon degenerated and passed away, and in David and Solomon we have remarkable illustrations of this fact.

The former started to fight bears and lions from his boyhood; he was only a stripling when he killed Goliath, and he remained an active warrior all his life, from whose house the sword never departed. Yet he organized the kingdom, amalgamated the scattered tribes of Judah and Israel, subdued all their enemies, collected abundant material for building the Temple, and handed over the kingdom to Solomon in a flourishing condition. And through it all he found time to compose those beautiful Psalms which have been the stay and comfort of countless generations since; then made memorable his old age with songs of praise and thanksgiving to God for His mercies to him. And it is a significant fact that he committed the most disgraceful act of his life while remaining idle at home when he should have been at the head of his army in the field.

Solomon began his reign with everything in his favour, being especially endowed with wisdom and learning, and it is sad to think that the man who offered that magnificent prayer at the dedication of the Temple should have so degenerated after forty years of peace and luxury that, according to his own showing, life was "nought but vanity and vexation of spirit."

He left the kingdom to his son, an arrogant young fool, who undid all his grandfather's good work, and sent the kingdom to ruin in the first year of his reign.

The peace our Lord promised His followers was the peace which passeth all understanding—the peace of the individual soul—the peace which thousands of soldiers enjoyed during the late war, while in the trenches with rifles loaded and bayonets fixed, waiting for the order to go over the top. The mistake the Church made was in believing that, by preaching, it could convert the world and bring all men to the knowledge of the Truth; and it was a good mistake, for it inspired thousands of noble men and women to forsake all that made life easy and pleasant, and travel into the dark corners of the earth to enlist recruits for the Lord's army; but their Master had told them plainly they were to be only a little flock under His special guidance and protection. In the world, but not of it. Strangers and pilgrims seeking a better country.

This belief originated by spiritualizing and appropriating for the Church the material promises of wealth, power and dominion which God had promised to the descendants of His friend Abraham, which blessings are now being enjoyed by the Anglo-Saxon nations.

STAINTON CLARKE.

Jamaica.

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

MEMBERS and Associates are reminded of the Special General Meeting (as announced for three months past) to be held on Friday next, September 20th, at 5.30, at Headquarters, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1, for the purpose of considering amended rules for the B.-I.-W. Federation.

Members and Associates are hereby notified that the adjourned Annual Meeting for the Election of Council will be held on Friday, October 4th, at Headquarters, at 5.45 p.m.

* * *

The Speakers for next week at Headquarters are: Lt.-Col. Smythe, President of our Dover Branch, on Wednesday afternoon; and the Rev. Joseph Gay on Thursday evening.

Last week addresses were given by Mr. John Leech, K.C., and Mr. Daniel Farmer.

* * *

In view of what is happening in our country, of events in Palestine, and of the state of things in the world generally, the B.-I. Congress this year will have special importance. We appeal for donations to help with the publicity. It is of utmost urgency that people should hear the B.-I. message, as the message of hope and light and leading for the time.

We have the messengers (see overleaf), and it is our part to provide them with hearers. This can be done by prayer, faith, work and generous giving; gifts being needed to enable us to arrest public attention through the Press and by our printed matter in vast quantities. Will our readers please help? The time is short, and we want to fill the great hall at each meeting from September 30th to October 5th, twice daily.

* * *

A Life Member of the Federation has generously promised £500 for B.-I. publicity on condition that we raise another £500. We therefore most earnestly ask our friends to come quickly to our aid in order that we may be in a position to fill the condition of this handsome offer.

* * *

All our branches and all our readers are invited to pray earnestly for the Divine blessing on the whole proceedings of the Congress.

* * *

Several of our Branches have already commenced their meetings for the Autumn Session. Battersea made a splendid beginning with an address by Miss Hamilton Hunter on September 3rd, on the "Stone Symbol," and Harrow and District had a good attendance on September 5th, when Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., spoke on "The National Day of Thanksgiving and its significance."

* * *

The Rev. Pascoe Goard has broadcasted several B.-I. addresses from Vancouver. He is now on his way to England, and is speaking for some of our Associations in Canada en route.

The members of the Regina (Canada) Association had a pleasurable and profitable time at a Garden Meeting held by invitation of the Secretaries, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Painter, at their summer residence last month. At the suggestion of Mr. A. Gee (the President), Mrs. Painter, who is visiting England, was appointed a delegate to our Congress. Mr. John Kerr was the chief speaker, and he stressed the importance of B.-I. teaching to the Empire. Mr. and Mrs. A. Brestol also placed their residence at the disposal of the guests and heartily co-operated in all the preparations.

* * *

Those in the London area who can offer accommodation for visitors to the Congress are invited to communicate with the Secretary-General.

* * *

S. D. writes:—"The Rev. Gregory Bestall generously gave his services to the Blackheath Branch on August 29th.

"During his inspiring Message on 'Why I am a British-Israelite' he made a successful plea that newcomers in the audience would be stirred to come in and join the British-Israel-World Federation.

"We wish to thank Mr. Bestall for sparing us the time. We also thank the friends from the Sydenham and Woolwich Branches who so kindly helped to fill the Hall."

* * *

Mrs. Bloxam held a well-attended Meeting in deep interest at the Memorial Hall, Leicester, while she showed the Flags and Heraldry of Great Britain and the U.S.A. to be identical with those of Israel. At the afternoon meeting the subject was "How Palestine is Fulfilling Prophecy To-day." A very successful meeting was held in the evening and the Lord Mayor spoke of his interest in the address. "If we are Israel," he said, "there must be a great change in the National conduct before we shall be worthy of the high calling."

* * *

A "Forward Movement" is being inaugurated by the Committee and Members of the Walsall Branch. Mr. Wm. Whitton, of Sheffield, has arranged to pay a week's visit to the town, from Sept. 14th to 20th. Afternoon meetings are to be held at the residences of Members, and there is to be an Open Air Meeting each evening. Prayer is requested for the guidance of the Holy Spirit in all the arrangements and for blessing on the Meetings and those who attend them, particularly on Sunday 15th, when Mr. Whitton is to address a Men's Bible Class in the afternoon and conduct the Service at the Town Mission Hall in the evening.

* * *

Barrow-in-Furness reports: "The week-end, August 31st-September 2nd, began what may prove to be a great forward movement in the North. We had Mr. W. Whitton, of Sheffield, among us, and on Saturday evening he addressed a small gathering of enthusiasts, giving an outline of the B.-I. position. On Sunday Mr. Whitton conducted two Services at 3.0 and 6.30 in the Old Barrow Christian Association Mission Hall to very interested companies, and on Monday evening gave a lecture on 'The British Throne.' For inaugural work it was a splendid effort and we anticipate a Branch will now be formed at Barrow to co-ordinate our efforts in developing our work in the district."

Digitized by Google

* * *

R. M. writes: On August 27th, Rev. W. T. Medhurst addressed a meeting in the B.-I. Hall, Rhymney, on the subject "The Isles of the Sea. What? When? Why?"

A good company assembled on August 29th in the Merthyr Y.M.C.A., when Mr. Medhurst gave an excellent outline of Isaiah's great Prophecy. He pointed out the triological construction of the Book as addressed to three Houses of Israel and followed the same idea in dealing with the last 27 chapters of which the Cross was the centre, and which section was particularly addressed to the House of Israel. Mr. Medhurst was asked for a further lecture, which is being arranged for September 26th. The believers at Merthyr are very much encouraged at the brighter prospect for the winter session.

* * *

As in previous years there are several not well off, but very intelligent people who wish to hear Mr. Garrison's lecture and see his pictures. Perhaps again some of our friends will most kindly send us donations in order that we may present them with tickets. The whole of the proceeds of the lecture are for B.I. funds.

* * *

Anglo-Israel meetings, as they are called, are being held in many parts of the United States. We have before us newspaper clippings which show a number in the State of California, with a very attractive and appropriate list of subjects.

* * *

R. F. writes from New Zealand:—"I consider that one article alone in your journal is sometimes worth the whole year's subscription."

* * *

LLANDRINDOD WELLS B.-I. BIBLE CONVENTION.

THE Bible Convention at Llandrindod Wells last month was a great success. It opened on Sunday evening, August 25th, with a Divine Service at which the Rev. Joseph Gay preached. On Monday evening the delegates assembled in the Albert Hall for a welcome meeting over which Mr. John Leech, K.C., our Commissioner-General, presided. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Leech from the chair, the Rev. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., and the Rev. Joseph Gay.

Each morning from the Tuesday to the Friday Mr. Leech conducted Bible readings, and seasons of prayer were afforded which were characterized by deep and abiding spirituality. They were indeed times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Mr. Johnson on the Tuesday evening, making the experiences of Elijah at Horeb and Carmel the basis of his address, called attention to the importance of the Mountains of the Lord in the last day. Mr. Gay followed with his popular theme, "The British Empire, its origin, development and destiny." Interest was awakened in many to whom our teaching was quite new. On the Wednesday evening Mr. J. J. Morey traced in a clear and concise way the Northern Kingdom of Israel from their home in the East to their home in the West, even in these Islands of the Seas, by the foreknowledge and ordination of the Almighty, Israel's God. There were many young people present at this meeting, and they followed Mr. Morey with appreciative interest. Next, Mr. Gay showed how Israel-Britain was the nation to whom had been given the Kingdom of God since they, conspicuous among the nations of the world, were indeed functioning the Kingdom of God in the earth.

On Thursday evening Mr. Morey delivered, for the first time, his lecture on "Palestine and the Near East," illustrated by a set of splendid moving pictures taken by Mr. Dearden, Mayor of Rochdale, who was present and took charge of their exhibition. It was a most timely and important address. The audience, which comfortably filled the hall, listened with rapt attention as Mr. Morey, who, aided by his moving pictures, unfolded the wonderful story of that land made so sacred to Israel by Him, Israel's King, Who trod its valleys and taught upon its hills, and Who suffered in its city.

The closing meeting on the Friday evening maintained the earnest zeal which characterized all the meetings from the beginning.

Mr. Gay and Mr. Morey spoke, and placed our position before the people with such clarity that it must have brought conviction home to all who were present.

Mr. Leech, in well-chosen words, voiced the thanks which were due to all who had contributed to the success of the gatherings. Thus we parted to meet again at our great Congress meetings to be held in October next.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK.

BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, Friday, 20th, at 8. Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A.

BATTERSEA, 197, Lavender Hill, Tuesday, 17th, at 8. Mr. Bradbury.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 16th, at 8.

BEXHILL, Hotel Metropole, Wednesday, 18th, at 3 and 7.30. Miss Hamilton Hunter.

CANTERBURY, County Hall, Monday, 16th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.

CARDIFF, Y.M.C.A., Tuesday, 17th, at 7.30. Rev. W. T. Medhurst.

EALING, Wesleyan Memorial Hall, Windsor Road, Monday, 16th, at 8.15. Miss Hamilton Hunter.

EASTBOURNE, Saffrons Rooms, Tuesday, 17th, at 3 and 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.

HAMMERSMITH, Albion Congregational Church Brotherhood, Dalling Road, Sunday, 15th, at 3.30. Mr. A. J. Wakeford.

HORNSEY & CROUCH END, Earl Haig Memorial Hall, Elder Avenue, Wednesday, 18th, at 8. Mr. W. Gray.

HULL, Church Institute, Albion Road, Tuesday, 17th, at 7.30. Mr. H. Dale.

ISLINGTON, Holy Trinity Hall, Richmond Road, Liverpool Road. Monday, 16th, at 8. Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A.

LEICESTER, S.S. Memorial Hall, New Walk, Tuesday, 17th, at 7.45. Questions.

PAIGNTON, Public Hall, Wednesday, 18th, at 3. Mr. J. J. Morey.

PRESTON, Cafe Orient, 5, Friargate, Thursday, 19th, at 7.30. Mr. S. E. Steele.

PUTNEY, 12, Ravenna Road, Monday, 16th, at 8. Study Circle. Rev. Kenneth Dodds.

RHYMNEY, B.-I. Hall, Tuesday, 17th, at 7.

SHEFFIELD, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 18th, at 7.30.

WANDSWORTH, 120, Earlsfield Road, Wednesday, 18th, at 8.

Digitized by Google

B.-I. CONGRESS

Large Central Hall, Westminster

Monday, September 30th, to Saturday, October 5th, at 2.45 and 7.30

GREAT PUBLIC MEETINGS

MAJOR J. KNOWLES, O.B.E., will preside at the opening meeting

Among the Speakers are:—

REV. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.
REV. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.
REV. MAXWELL CARNSON, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.
REV. GILBERT DAVIES, M.A.
REV. J. LUMLEY DAVIES, L.D.
REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.
REV. CANON C. J. HOLLIS, M.A.
MR. D. DAVIDSON, M.C.
REV. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, M.A.
REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A., F.R.A.S.
REV. WM. BROWN POLLOCK, M.A.
GENERAL COVENTRY WILLIAMS, C.B.
REV. R. G. F. WADDINGTON, M.A.
REV. T. H. WHITEHOUSE.
MR. HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.
REV. COMMANDER ROBERTS, R.N.
GENERAL SIR ARTHUR PHAYRE, K.C.B.
MR. JOHN LEECH, M.A., LL.B., K.C.
REV. CHARLES COOPER, F.G.S.
CAPT. THE REV. T. G. GROUT.
COLONEL E. F. GOSSET.
DR. W. GORNOLD.
REV. GREGORY BESTALL.
REV. HECTOR MACTURK, M.A.
REV. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A.
MR. W. T. F. JARROLD, J.P.
MAJOR RICHARD RIGG, O.B.E., J.P.
REV. J. J. WHITEHOUSE, M.A.
MR. GEORGE R. GAIR.
MR. JOHN J. MOREY.

Among many intensely interesting and important subjects to be dealt with are :—

Events and Portents in Palestine, Egypt, Etc.

PAST AND PRESENT FULFILMENT OF PROPHECY.
THE MISSION AND DESTINY OF THE BRITISH RACE.
THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM.

Admission Free. All cordially invited. Reserved seats 2/-. Season ticket £1. Cheap railway fares. Vouchers for cheap fares from Sept. 28th to Oct 14th, and tickets for reserved seats, to be obtained from the—

SECRETARY-GENERAL, 6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

SEPTEMBER 21, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22 17

HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB 24 7

G^t BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

1st CHRON. c.29 v.23 JER. 33 17

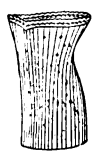
MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT" Is 19 v19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob, "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35-11.

J.J.HALL. 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.



Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate. S.W.1

ECCLESTON HOTEL
ECCLESTON SQUARE, VICTORIA, S.W. 1
Visitors are delighted! So up-to-date; so central; so economical. Bedroom, bath, breakfast, from 10/6. Weekly, inclusive, from 4½ gns.
Proprietor:
SIR JAMES MONTEITH ERSKINE, J.P.
NOTE: Very handy for British-Israel meetings at Central Hall and Buckingham Gate.

LONDON: 14, LEINSTER SQUARE, W.2
Quiet, comfortable, fully equipped.
BED AND BREAKFAST, 6/-
Other Meals as required.
PROPRIETRESS A BRITISH-ISRAELITE.

KNITTED CORSETS

Wool or Cotton. ANTI-RHEUMATIC Wool Corsets; also Boneless Corsets in Material: Coutil, 8/11, Flannel, 13/11. Ideal Corsets for sufferers from heart troubles, indigestion, or after operations. Knitted Combs., Knickers, Belts, Kneecaps, all British make. List and Patterns of Unshrinkable Stockinette Underclothing free.—Knitted Corset and Clothing Co., 118, Mansfield Road, Nottingham. Mention "National Message."

COUNTRY NEAR (25 mins.) LONDON
A FEW GENTLEPEOPLE RECEIVED IN LARGE SURREY COUNTRY HOUSE. PINE AND HEATHER DISTRICT. GRAVEL SOIL. PRIVATE GOLF COURSE. TENNIS. BRIDGE. EVERY HOME COMFORT. OWN COWS AND FARM PRODUCE.
Write BOX R.N.5, c/o "NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER."

WESTCLIFF
42, Grosvenor Road
Comfortable Guest House, highly recommended. Close to sea. Convalescent guests received. Terms reasonable.
Misses MUSKETT & BOULTER.

FOR CONGRESS VISITORS AND OTHERS.
LONDON: 64, BELGRAVE ROAD, S.W.1.
Conveniently situated at short distance from CENTRAL HALL & FEDERATION HEADQUARTERS.
Very comfortable & up to date in every respect.
Bed and Breakfast 6/6. 'Phone: VICTORIA 5124. From 35/- weekly.

LONDON
A Lady (B.-I.) receives visitors into her well-appointed House at South Kensington. Room and Breakfast at a very Moderate charge. Gas fires in all rooms. Very highly recommended.
Phone WESTERN 7138, or write BOX D.4, c/o N.M. and B.

TO BE LET.
From October 1st.
Small, Comfortable, Well-furnished House in beautiful part of West Sussex, for Long Period.
4 Bedrooms, Bathroom, Garage, Small Garden.
Very Convenient and Manageable. Station 10 minutes.
LOCAL B.-I. BRANCH. MEETINGS MONTHLY.
Apply Box "R. L." care of "National Message," Ltd.

"Ye shall keep the Sabbath, therefore; for it is holy unto you . . . a perpetual Covenant . . . a sign between Me and the children of Israel for ever."
(Exodus xxxi, 17)

The Sabbath
that was made for man
BY
J. G. MODIN
With a foreword by Rev. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.

This little work, dealing with one of the important marks of British-Israel identity, is by far the most valuable contribution yet made to the all-important subject of Sabbath keeping. It should be read and digested by every clergyman and every layman who loves our National Day of Rest, and who sees the urgent need for the observance of the Fourth Commandment.

PRICE 9d., BY POST 10d.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., Ltd., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Seventh Annual Ordinary General Meeting of this Company will be held at 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1, on Thursday, October 3, 1929, at 6 p.m., for the following purposes:—

1. To receive and consider the Report of the Directors, the Balance Sheet, and the Auditor's report thereon.
2. To declare a dividend.
3. To elect or re-elect Directors and Auditors, and to transact the ordinary business of the Company.

By Order of the Board,
WILLIAM SLEEMAN,
Secretary.

6, Buckingham Gate,
London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 403. Vol. VIII. SEPTEMBER 21st, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—VI. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard	593
EXPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.—IV. By the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.	595
THE SECRET OF BRITAIN'S STRENGTH.—I. By the late Rev. Philip Young, L.Th. (formerly Dean of Nassau)	597
JACOB THE ASPIRING. By the Rev. George Matheson, D.D., F.R.S.E.	600
HEALTH! IS THE LACK OF IT PUNISHMENT FOR SIN? By F. E. Blake	603
THE DIVINE NAMES AND TITLES (from the Companion Bible)...	603
OBITUARY. The late Mrs. Thomas Davey (with Portrait) ...	605
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.	605
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES...	606

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE EMPIRE IN SOLUTION.—VI.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

The Time of Fusion.

The coming of the Normans brings us to the eleventh century A.D. The various branches of the Israel people were now arrived in Britain. Their coming had stretched over a period of approximately twenty-five to twenty-eight hundred years. Thus it will be seen to have been a gradual process. Except in the case of the Normans there had been no marching of great military forces. Such had been the case with the Roman invasion of course. But that had been simply an invasion. The Romans had withdrawn again bag and baggage from the British coasts. These peoples of whom we speak had come to dwell. The peoples had come in bands, under independent leaders, and had been called by many names. But the Normans came with military pomp and power and conquered a place for themselves at once.

With the exception of the latter we are to think of the people making their way into Britain much as the modern migrants made their way into Canada and America.

We mention only the outstanding divisions of the people. They are as follows:—

The ancient inhabitants of the British Isles, the forefathers of whom came from their original dwelling-places in the East.

The dwelling-place from which they came was primarily Egypt; wherein Israel dwelt from the time of Joseph, and of Jacob his father, to the time of Moses.

Next their dwelling-place was in Palestine. From thence there appears to have been a migration into Britain from about the time of Moses, when an important part of the tribe of Simeon—the Simonii of Cæsar—separated from Israel, to the time of the separation of the Normans (Benjamin) from the nation of the Jews at the time of the siege of Jerusalem by Titus. After a thousand years of wandering they finally came to rest in Britain. Another dwelling-place was Troy and the Kingdom of Priam on the banks of the Dardanelles, from whence the migration led by King Brute came to England about the eleventh century B.C.

Still another dwelling-place of Israel peoples which made its important contribution to the British colony was Greece and the Grecian colony on the shores of Asia Minor. There dwelt the people of the tribe of Dan. These came into Britain in ancient times as the Tuatha de Danaan, and in later times as the Danes.

The Normans, whose fathers separated from the nation of the Jews A.D. 70, came from Normandy under the leadership of William the Conqueror.

So the peoples came. They came bearing many names. They came speaking many languages. They came during many centuries. But they were all of kindred blood, blindly following the paths marked for them by the Lord God of Israel.

Now they were in the land of Britain. Still they spoke many tongues. There were those who spoke Erse; those who spoke Gaelic; those who spoke Welsh; those who spoke

Digitized by Google

Cornish; all these speaking varieties of the one family of languages.

There were those who spoke the Saxon tongue, and those who spoke the Norman French.

They did not recognize each other as kindred peoples, they looked upon each other as mortal foes; conquerors, and conquered.

The Island of Britain was filled with antagonistic interests and peoples. But, thank God, they were of kindred stock, of uniform racial mentality, and therefore were capable of an absolute amalgamation.

Now came the centuries of the fusion of the peoples. There were many outstanding matters which tended to bring the people into one fused ethnological entity.

First among these must be mentioned the Christian faith. Second among these must be mentioned the Common Law, which was held by each of the groups which came into England.

Probably the next active agent was the strong centralized rule and administration introduced by the Normans.

Then came the Crusades. These tragedies of enthusiasm and valour failed utterly of the intended objective. But they united in a very frenzy of zeal, and religious enthusiasm, all classes of Britain, and extended to every country of Europe. They had a marked effect in fusing the various classes of Britain into one great aim and effort. All the losses suffered, and all the sufferings endured by the British in connection with the Crusades, were repaid by the progress made in bringing the people into unity of endeavour and desire.

Then came the French wars. These expeditions enlisted the various classes and ranks of the English; and the Saxons were glad to serve under Norman leaders to carry their arms back to the country from whence had come their Norman conquerors. There seemed to be relief from the sense of defeat when the ranks of English soldiery marched to invade and conquer the lands from whence had come the hosts which had been brought to defeat them.

In these conflicts there were the outstanding victories won by the Anglo-Saxon archers. The triumph was an united triumph, and all ranks at the front and at home rejoiced together. Such was the sense of victory won by the ranks of Anglo-Saxon soldiery that the rejoicing has not died out to the present day. Now there was not anything in the victories gained in these wars to cause such a spirit of jubilation to come down through the centuries. It was not the joy of conflict brought to a point of victory over the foemen. It was rather the spirit of fusion and comradeship engendered by the fierce conflict which caused a joy which has never died.

The development of the administration of the realm made for the further fusing of the peoples. The Norman element developed the strong central government. This was their especial contribution to the common weal. The Anglo-Saxon element developed the guilds of the craftsmen, and later these developed into the civic guilds, which has developed ultimately into civic and municipal government as we have it to-day.

Thus there were two phases of government growing up together, each out of the genius of one branch or other of the people.

Soon the Normans were in trouble by the fact that the Kings were aiming at autocratic control. This the Lords contested, and they were very glad to enlist the strength of the civic guilds to wrest from the King his assumed autocratic power. The Barons would never have obtained the great charter but for the support of the civic democracy.

Out of the needs of the King on the one hand, and of the Lords at other times, the guilds were able to obtain new charters or enlarged charters in return for their support, now of the King, and now of the Lords.

These struggles and alliances all tended to sweep away the difference between Briton, Saxon and Norman, and to weld the people into one.

In the meantime the polyglot languages of the people tended more and more to assimilate into one language. This process has gone forward to the present day, when the Anglo-Saxon language bids fair to become world-wide.

Passing from the stage of English fusion there developed the wider one of union of all the national divisions in the British Isles.

There came the time when one government administered all the Islands.

There was, however, in the case of South and West Ireland an extension of national government before the completion of the fusion of the peoples. The result has been trouble. This is the last part of the process of fusion yet to be carried to a conclusion. But many influences are at work which will accomplish this in the not distant future.

So now we see the Anglo-Saxon people, among whom there remains no distinction between Briton, Saxon, Dane nor Norman, united as British all.

COLONIAL EXPANSION.

The time of fusion gives place to the time of Colonial expansion.

What a wonderful chapter in the history of the British people is this. It is more romantic than any romance ever produced as a literary composition. It is more strange and dramatic than any fiction ever attempted. The period of British Colonial expansion stands out a veritable wonderland of history. The march of Israel out of Egypt was a small thing in comparison with this. The conquests made by Assyria, Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece and Rome were not to be compared either as to magnitude of movement or the spirit which energized it. The glory of the Colonial period stands thus far as the crowning period of history no matter where one may turn to find it as to age or as to people.

The fusion of the people was complete at the triumph of Trafalgar and of Waterloo. English, Scotch, Irish were all in it equally. From that period the great world movement of British colonization began.

Treaty-making councils gathered at the end of the Napoleonic wars and either confirmed or ceded to Britain, Newfoundland, Canada, Gibraltar, Cape of Good Hope, Bombay, etc., and at that period our own ships reached and took possession of Australia and New Zealand.

Thus at one stroke the hand of the great cartographer outlined the map of the British Empire and assigned the countries wherein the enterprise of the British people should be expended during the period then fully entered upon.

The actual work of colonization began at the time of Henry

Digitized by Google

the Eighth and was prosecuted with vigour during the reign of Elizabeth.

The chief stream of migration ran to the United States, but at the end of the Napoleonic period the United States separated from the Empire and started out upon her own assigned task.

The epic of the migration out of the British Isles into these great Overseas heritages is the greatest ever written, the drama of the activities of the colonists is the greatest ever enacted.

The work assigned to the two branches of the Anglo-Saxon peoples at that time, and pursued by them to the present day, differed materially. In each case the principle at the back of the movement was the same. It was not the predatory principle such as that which energized the Roman world. It was a people constantly saying in the ears of the Mother-nation, "The place is too strait for me. Give place that I MAY DWELL." They sought a dwelling-place wherein, with all others, they might labour to develop resources, and, having done so, that they might enter into the world's markets with the product of their labour. Giving of their service, and taking of the proceeds, they did not seek to enslave the peoples, nor to take without payment the wealth of the natives, nor the results of the toil of their hands. On the other hand, the Roman world enslaved the native peoples and took with a strong hand their wealth and the products of their toil.

Wherever the Anglo-Saxon went he sought to develop and to enrich. Wherever the Roman went he sought to enslave and to seize the results of others' labour.

Now the United States, Federated, became a great reservoir prepared to receive the flood of immigration which should come from the Motherland and from all the lands and peoples of Europe.

They came pouring through the gates of entry into the United States, and it became the recognized task of the United States to " make Americans " of all who came. They taught to them the faith of their fathers and the Common Law of England. They taught them to speak the English tongue and to engage in trade and commerce according to Anglo-Saxon ideals.

It was a great task, and thus far has been handled with comparative success and wonderful skill.

Britain was not formed to be such a reservoir. Her territories from Land's End to John o' Groats would be far too small for such a purpose. Britain was sent out to all the nations, over all the seas, commissioned to establish the law of righteousness in the earth.

For her the primary duty was to colonize the waste places and to lay the foundation therein of the British type of civilization and administration. Her ports of entry were left open for all the world to come and trade on equal terms. But she said to all the traders, " This one thing we will require of you, that you shall do your trading according to the equitable principles of the Common Law, or the Law of the Lord."

Life, Property, Character and Reputation shall be safeguarded. Give, as well as take, shall be the rule of the market. There shall be no seizing with the strong hand. There shall be no enforced labour nor enforced handing over of the products of labour, these things being guarded by a British administration; all the rest of the world shall be free to buy and sell in the markets of the Empire.

The second duty after colonization was Crown colonization. Colonization was the entering upon and homesteading the waste heritages. Crown colonization was the entering upon and administrating those lands which were already occupied by a native population, and which therefore offered no opportunity for the Anglo-Saxon to pre-empt the land as a dwelling-place. Of course the great example of Crown colonization was and still is India.

In colonizing and Crown colonizing Great Britain has done such a work as no nation ever attempted, much less accomplished, in historic time.

The end of this period is manifestly in sight. The Colonies have become self-ruling nations under the House of David. The Crown Colonies are being trained and are more or less slowly moving towards the same goal.

Thus the nation has become a " Nation and a company of nations " according to the promise made by God to our fathers.

The United States has come to the end of the period. The reservoir is nearly full and the gates are being closed against the inpouring flood. The present period of colonization has manifestly attained its completion, and again we must envisage the opening of a new period in the progress of the Kingdom of God in the earth.

So far we have dealt with the background of history against which the present phase of the Empire stands manifested.

We now come to the consideration of the important fact, that the present day finds the Empire again in solution.

The various component parts are being thrown into what in the old form of legal phraseology is described as " hotchpot." The Motherland, the Overseas Dominions, the Crown Colonies and Dependencies, the Mandated Territories, are all being thrown into the one common stock. The various Governments which are acting under the Crown are becoming more and more aware of this, as the calling together of conferences of Premiers shows, as well as many other signs.

THE GREAT ISSUE OF THE DAY is the recrystallizing of the Empire, and its consolidation into an interacting unity.

The consciousness of this, growing from day to day, is shown by the rising demand for free movement of Anglo-Saxons within the Empire. Also the rising demand for preferential trade, and even for free trade, within the Empire. It is a movement which is not artificial but which is part of the normal development of that living entity which is the Empire. The consideration of all this must remain for another issue.

EXPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

BY THE REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.

IV.—THE FIRST SERMON,

ACCORDING TO THE ACTS.

TWO things demand our attention at the very outset. Firstly, the occasion which gave rise to this utterance; and, secondly, St. Peter himself.

THE OCCASION.

Such was the effect of the outpouring of the Holy Ghost, such the circumstance of His coming, that the people, when they came together, and heard these Spirit-filled disciples speaking in their native languages the wonderful things of

Digitized by Google

God, they were filled with amazement, and the inevitable question sprang spontaneously to their lips, "What meaneth this?"

Wherever there is the question there is always the cynic at hand to answer it. "These men are filled with new wine."

The cynic will always furnish you with an opportunity if he cannot offer you a true and correct solution. And this was the occasion which St. Peter took by the hand and said: "Ye men of Judæa, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words. For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day. But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel."

St. Peter Himself.

The preacher himself must have first consideration at the hands of his audience. Who is he? What right has he to speak? What are his credentials? Well, the preacher of this first sermon has every right to speak, his credentials are good, his wisdom beyond dispute. No one knew better than St. Peter how to take an occasion by the hand. It was a gift native to his mentality. This speaker therefore demands a little attention at our hands. He was the man who, a little while ago, quailed before a maid-servant's saucy tongue. He was the man who had vehemently denied all knowledge of this same Jesus whom he now spoke of in the highest terms. Were there any in that audience that day who knew what this man had been and the attitude he had assumed? Have you ever listened to a preacher whom you had previously known as a blasphemer, a persecutor, and injurious? What an experience that is! There is a thrill in it. You are bound to listen to such a preacher; you cannot help yourself. And as you listen you are searching all the time for the reason of so great a change in him. He is himself a miracle and you have got to account for him.

This man, Peter, has now become the champion of the very Jesus he disowned. Openly, before the entire world so wonderfully represented in that promiscuous multitude, he speaks of Jesus. He has become the undaunted arraigner of a nation's crime. He has no fear, no misgiving, no doubt. He was always ardent and enthusiastic, but his ardour and enthusiasm had been humanly directed, hence always open to misdirection. Now, and this constituted the change, all the qualities of heart and mind of this ardent and impulsive soul come under the sway and dominion of the Holy Ghost Who had taken possession of him, which possession was made possible by the resurrection of Jesus Christ. This change in St. Peter, so clearly and manifestly set forth, may furnish us with the foundation for our estimate of the value of spiritual inspiration.

We shall do well at all times to give heed to the message of the inspired man, for, speaking as he does by the dictation of the Holy Ghost, his message must be the very truth of God Himself.

We turn then with the utmost confidence to this first sermon delivered by St. Peter on the day of Pentecost.

Prophecy.

And the first arresting thing is this:—The fact of the resurrection of our Lord rests upon the foundation of the prophets. "Ye are . . . built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief corner stone; In whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: In whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit." (Eph. ii, 20-22.)

St. Peter explains the extraordinary situation and answers the cynic by a reference to the prophet Joel. The amazing circumstance which all those who were gathered together beheld with their own eyes strikes its roots deep into prophecy. Here is furnished another link to bind the Old Testament to the New. If, as some assert, the Old Testament is obsolete, and the prophets of no account, then the product of Pentecost, as these people beheld it that day, goes unexplained. The light of prophecy must explain the actualities of history if they are to receive any explanation at all. "What meaneth this?" The fact cannot explain itself. St. Peter quotes the prophecy, then rehearses the history, then draws the inevitable conclusion. "Therefore let all the House of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made this same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ."

Though St. Peter only quotes one prophet, Joel, the prophets generally speak of a time when God should pour out His Spirit upon His people Israel, whereby they should be able to return to Him with a sincere and worshipful heart.

Isaiah speaks on this wise: "For I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground: I will pour My Spirit upon thy seed, and My blessing upon thine offspring." (Isa. xliv, 3.)

Ezekiel in two places speaks of this outpouring: "And I will give them an heart, and I will put a new spirit within you; and I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them an heart of flesh." (Ezek. xi, 19.) "And I will put My Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in My statutes, and ye shall keep My judgments, and do them." (Ezek. xxxvi, 27.)

Zechariah has this word: "And I will pour upon the House of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications; and they shall look upon Me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for Him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for Him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn." (Zech. xii, 10.) In the light of prophecy, amazement passes away, and gives place to confident worship, for "the Lord of Hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge."

History.

And now to the rehearsal of the history. "Ye men of Israel, hear these words." Note the persons to whom St. Peter addresses himself. "Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judæa, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia, Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, Jews and proselytes, Cretes and Arabians."

To this multitude St. Peter addresses himself and says, "Ye men of Israel." Jews? Yes! All Jews and nothing more? No! As he says in his conclusion, "All the House of Israel." The fact of the resurrection is declared to the whole House of Israel. Then the whole House of Israel xisted in the Apostle's day. Is there any fact of history since he days of the Apostles which has destroyed that whole House, or caused it to continue only in the Jews? I know not of any such fact. On the contrary, history has enlarged the borders of Israel's habitation, and discovered her spread abroad on the face of the whole earth, and at the same time so united, so consolidated, "a nation and a company of nations," as to be His effective witness unto all men and nations. He, "Jesus of Nazareth," Who, having tasted death for every man, now sits down at the right hand of God, there to remain until His enemies be made "the footstool of His feet."

Digitized by Google

Two facts concerning Jesus of Nazareth St. Peter stresses: (1) His death. (2) His resurrection. He has little to say with regard to His previous life, and for the very obvious reason that that life was well known by those who heard Him. I should say that by far the majority of those present had both seen Him and heard Him. The Apostle reminds them of this. His life had not been lived in a corner. Though from His coming out on the banks of the Jordan to His crucifixion only covered a period of about three years, still they were three years of the greatest possible publicity. His death was equally well known. The new factor really was His coming to life again. St. Peter puts the matter very boldly, and there is no mistaking his meaning. "Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God." It is the Man, Jesus, Who is alive from the dead. It was the Man, Jesus, Whom they killed, and it was the Man, Jesus, Who came alive again from the dead. We are in considerable danger, in these modern days of psychic research, of losing our grip upon the essential fact of the resurrection. It is the Man Who rises again. It is the Man Who becomes the first-fruits of them that sleep. In this connection it is well to remember that no other resurrection is possible than the resurrection of the body. If you do not believe in the bodily resurrection of Jesus Christ, then you do not believe in resurrection at all. It surely only needs to be stated to be accepted. A spirit can never die. That is true surely. It is only the body which suffers death. Therefore it is the body only which can be raised from the dead. This is the miracle of miracles; experienced once and only once in the world's history.

Let me not be misunderstood here. Christ tasted death for every man, but He tasted death for every man in Jesus, the body which God had given Him. This is the mystery of godliness, "God manifest in the flesh." St. Peter views the death of Jesus from the standpoint of God and man. First God, then man. "Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God." St. Peter had not forgotten the scene in the Garden. The soldiers sent to take Him could not take Him until He willed to be taken. No one can read the account of His being taken in the Garden without realizing that tremendous fact. Then, again, St. Peter had not forgotten the Divine conference which had been held upon the Transfiguration Mount when Moses, Elias and Christ, under the presidency of Jehovah, as the cloud which came down upon the Mount and hid them from the gaze of the three disciples indicates, conferred together concerning the decease which Jesus should accomplish at Jerusalem. "Determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God."

"Ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain." The "determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God" did not release man from the responsibility of his own wicked act. "It must needs be," said Christ on one occasion, "that offences come, but woe unto that man through whom the offence cometh." The Jews slew Him and said as they did it: "His blood be on us, and on our children." They took the full responsibility, awful though it was, upon their own shoulders, and, as far as they could, pledged their children to it. St. Peter drove it home upon them with tremendous force, and they resisted him not. Then he returns to the Divine purpose again and calls David to witness that it was not possible for death to hold Him. I was asked this question by the Jews in Hyde Park: "Can you find anywhere in the Old Testament that the Messiah was to be crucified?" Well, St. Peter found it in Psalm xvi. That Psalm can refer only to the death of Christ, as St. Peter so cogently points out. It cannot refer to David himself. The conclusion of the whole matter is fully expressed in the 36th verse: "Therefore, let all the House of Israel know assuredly that God hath made that same Jesus, both Lord and Christ."

What are we to understand by "all the House of Israel"? Jews? Yes! Only Jews? No! How can they who are descended, by their own showing, from one tribe, the tribe of Judah, be all the House of Israel? As far as the Old Testament is concerned, after the days of Solomon, when the kingdom was rent in twain, the northern kingdom, then formed of the ten tribes under Jeroboam, took the name of Israel, while the southern kingdom took the name of Judah. From that point onward the title "House of Israel" is designated of the northern kingdom only. That is true, is it not? Think of the audience St. Peter was addressing (verses 9-11), and immediately that phrase, "all the House of Israel," carries with it a significance far beyond Jewry. The note St. Peter struck on that Pentecostal day we strike to-day. "Let all the House of Israel know for an absolute certainty (assuredly) that God hath made that same Jesus, both Lord and Christ." That is our Message to Israel-Britain, and that is our Message to the House of Judah.

"For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call."

THE SECRET OF BRITAIN'S STRENGTH.—I.

BY THE LATE REV. PHILIP YOUNG, L.TH.
(formerly Dean of Nassau).

A NATION is influenced largely by its environment: it is, to a more or less calculable extent, what it is from the position which it has been assigned by God. Whether a people shall be strong or weak is, in fact, very much a matter of latitude and longitude. This may not be altogether a pleasing theory to accept; nevertheless it will be found to be substantially correct.

How differently would have read the history of the Anglo-Saxon race had our far-off ancestors remained in the home of their birth. From innate and original power of constitution the nation might have been expected to accomplish great things, and to play no unimportant part in the world's progress ; but most assuredly it would not have attained the dominant position which it holds to-day.

Digitized by Google

That strange migration from the East, by way of Assyria, mid-Europe, and the North Sea, by virtue of which this great and commanding race reached these Isles of the West, has told upon the nation's life. If the wanderings, with their discipline and training, gave strength and vigour and self-reliance, the settlement in the Isles of the Sea gave added strength, added vigour, and the increased self-reliance so essential to the fulfilling of a great national destiny.

It has been said, and wisely, as we think, by Mr. Benjamin Kidd, that " man originally, a creature of a warm climate, and still multiplying most easily and rapidly there, has not attained his highest development where the conditions of existence have been easiest. Throughout history the centre of power has moved gradually, but surely, to the North, into those stern regions where men have been trained for the rivalry of life, in the strenuous conflict with nature in which they have acquired energy, courage, integrity—and those characteristic qualities which contribute to raise them to a high state of social efficiency."

It may be that we owe more to this fact than we are always quite ready to admit. I have myself known the luxurious wealth and gorgeousness of a tropical clime. I have known days, not a few, when there would steal in upon the senses happiness unalloyed, as with hammock swung, I contemplated the richness, the prodigal variety in shape and colouring, of tropical cloud-land ; or caught the delicious fragrance exhaled from flower and tree, quietly the while breathing the balmiest of airs ; when merely to exist was joy. And, as the mind would wander half-lazily over past or present of West India life, there would fall upon the ear sounds suggesting many thoughts. Groups of negroes, happy negroes, stand to chat lightly and with fluent tongue, in English, strongest language of the world, or sing cheerily, keeping excellent time and tune the while, as homeward they glide with rapid and almost noiseless tread. The day's work for them is done. And they are happy, those laughter-loving negroes, if the day's narrow wants only shall be met. How simple a thing is life, there in those far-off Western seas, where needs are few, and these supplied with the minimum of toil, not toil one bit as we call toil.

Surely this is life, we say, under conditions most pleasant and most enviable. Pleasant, if you will ; enviable we must not say. Place side by side the Anglo-Saxon and the careless negro. What wide divergence is there here ! May we not at once, almost, detect that the white race has that which the dark race lacks—restless energy and endurance, indomitable pluck and the power to govern, intellectual grasp and a high ideal ? It is not less true of the West Indies than of Africa. " The brain of Africa is white, the sinews are black."

If it should seem that the hot and sunny climes of the East or West place us English at an advantage, in that under the tropics man exists subject to the least possible pressure to maintain his life ; where food is to be had almost for the asking, and man lives in luxurious ease ; we reply that in reality it is far otherwise. These very conditions are unfavourable, even inimical, to the growth and progress of a virile race. The Anglo-Saxon owes not a little of his power to-day to the bleak, cold, changeable northern land in which the race has been reared.

American writers have frequently asserted that the peculiar endowment which the Anglo-Saxon in the western world has received from Nature is an additional allowance of nervous energy. Our own observation of the American climate is consonant with this. We should be disposed to say that the undoubted exhilarating effects of the climate have greatly contributed to the mental and physical activities of this remarkable people. In America, more even than in England, one feels that one can do anything and everything, and one becomes impatient till everything is done.

But, it will be argued, our vast Colonial Empire necessitates settlement in those hotter climes which we have shown to be unfavourable to great mental effort, or physical endurance. Under such circumstances will not the Englishman deteriorate ? To some limited extent this will be true. But it must not be forgotten that the Anglo-Saxon goes forth endowed with strength of constitution. Capable, vigorous, alert, decades must pass before the powers wane, at least to any appreciable extent. Further, the Colonial element is being constantly reinforced by contingents from the mother country, always helping to keep the race at its highest. There will, of course, be interruptions in the working out of this law ; still, in general operation, it will be found to be in accordance with what we have here advanced. There may be, perhaps, in some quarters a disposition to underrate the mental and manly qualities of those who, though of us, have gone forth from us many years ago. Let it be realized then, that excellence, not deterioration, is what our great Empire gives as a wholesome object lesson to the world. How conspicuously has this been shown within recent years. Have we not witnessed the boundless generosity, the heroism and the fighting qualities of the brave men, who, gathering from every quarter of the globe, met hardship and death upon the veldt ? Have we not seen how freely and cheerily they gave themselves to uphold the dignity and greatness of this nation, throwing upon it a lustre equal to that of any previous day ? The heart of England beats stronger, because of the sacrifices men and women of our Colonies have made to secure for no mean portion of the African continent the establishment of those laws of justice and equity so long denied.

The race is strong. We say it in no vainglorious spirit. It would be simply untrue to say we are not strong. The jealousy of Europe, however unchristian and deplorable in itself, at least has this within it ; it is a tribute quite unmistakable to this country's power. Were England less great, the nations would not so persistently seek to undermine her influence, misread her motives, and malign her acts. Were England less great the European would not view with such undisguised a hatred the expansion of this Empire, an expansion—our enemies notwithstanding—not born of national greed, but forced upon us by the power of circumstances, and necessitated by the nature of this country's mission.

Canon Kingsley saw clearly what that mission was, and is, and this is what he writes :—

" This is the reason of our carefulness, of our many troubles, that God is educating and training us English ; that He will not have us to be savages, but Christian citizens ; He will have us not merely happy, but blessed through all eternity. He will not have us to be like the poor Indians, slaves to our flesh and our appetites—slaves to the pleasant things around us ; but He will have us fill the earth and subdue it ; He will have England the light of the nations—and Englishmen preach freedom, and wisdom, and prudence, and the Gospel of Jesus Christ to all the nations of the earth. Therefore, Christ afflicts us because He loves us, because whom He loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth. Because He has ordained England to preach the cross, He will have England bear the cross."

Digitized by Google

For the fulfilment of such a mission is not strength great, national, dominant, required ? That England has such needful power is a fact hardly necessary to prove, so universally is it displayed. She sends forth her sons, splendidly equipped, to every clime.

Now, although we have pointed out that the nation owes not a little to geographical position ; it would be erroneous to conclude that we have in such a fact the whole answer to the question, " What is the secret of Britain's strength ? "

For such whole answer we must take deeper soundings.

Account for it as we may, it is certain that extreme moral heights are not reached by nations which are not Protestant. The people who carry the Word of Life wherever its influence may reach must be a people pursuing a higher ideal than that of other nations. We speak of the Sunny South, but it is the land of lax morals and the stiletto. Travel northwards—and it is northwards that Protestantism flourishes—and the less violent grow the passions, the more restrained the forces of our nature. Northward and westward we English have migrated. We pride ourselves upon being more moral than races farther south ; and perhaps we are, though God knows what dark depths of sin there are in Christian England. We will not forget the latitude in which we live, for we may see in this one of the causes of Britain's greatness. But it would be unwise to overlook the enormously added power which the Protestant Reformation has given to this country. When England emerged from a bondage comparable to that of Egypt in the dark days of Israel's early history, she emerged only to begin that phenomenal advance which has made her the envy of all civilized Europe, and of the world. Still, the arrow has not struck the gold. Wherein lies the secret of it all ? Let me point it out, for it is a great secret, which we are the better and the happier for knowing, a secret which, once known, we would whisper in the ears of others, that they, too, may be the better and the happier.

It rests in this, that England is God's chosen soil, whereon He educates and trains a chosen race, that it may accomplish a great work for His glory, and to the world's great gain.

But this position in the argument is assumed. It is the " Petitio Principii " of the logician, and it would be unwise, in an enquiry such as this, to take anything for granted. It is not enough to assert, " ore rotundo, " that God has singled out this country for special favour, entrusting it with a nobler and grander mission than that which falls to the lot of others. In a matter of such supreme importance, evidence of a weighty character is naturally demanded.

That evidence we now propose to give.

As we have observed, it is clearly visible that there is in Holy Scripture a principle of election or selection. We discover that God engages Himself to bestow peculiar honour upon some particular person or particular nation. We need not enter upon any discussion, however brief, as to why God so determined. We are concerned here only with the fact. The principle itself is beyond all question. History establishes it by many examples.

In the Epistle to the Romans, chapters ix, x, xi, we learn how God, in His Sovereignty, chooses to work out His purposes. Before Esau and Jacob were born, and before, therefore, they were capable of doing good or evil, their Father in Heaven chose that the elder should serve the younger. He placed, also, this further mark of distinction upon the brothers by the words, " Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated." However arbitrary and even unreasonable, in our ignorance of, or lack of faith in, the absolute goodness of God we might imagine this to be, yet in reality it is not so. The choice is one regulated by God's foreknowledge, and has relation to what He knows will be the heart and life of the one and the other. We are assured that " God hateth nothing that He hath made." What He loved in Jacob was His own work operating congenially in Jacob ; what He hated in Esau was the profaneness which called for condemnation. We call attention to this divergence because it is one which is continued throughout the history of Israel on the one hand, and that of Edom on the other. There was, of course, no such active hatred on the part of God, as we understand hatred, and yet Israel was selected to be the recipient of peculiar national honour rather than Edom. It is essential to remember that God selects a people, maps out a specific destiny, and history concurs.

We have already seen how the Papacy, how the Mohammedan, the Jew, and the Russian, take their respective places upon the line of prophecy. It is reasonable to suppose that it would be so ; that great national movements of incalculable reach and grandeur should be marked upon the prophetic chart for the benefit of those who have eyes to see and hearts to understand. It is more than reasonable, the Bible being what it is, not only a history, but a guide. Before the mind of God the complete history of the world lies unrolled. It is before Him as one perpetual present. Each nation must fulfil the purpose He has in view. The working out of destiny may, and often will, involve many a crooked way or shameful injustice, man being so faithless and perverse ; nevertheless, the end designed is the end reached.

A nation, then, may move, it knows not why or whither ; each is blind to all the certainties, and, like man, knows not what the future shall reveal.

The godless may affect to ignore the hand of God ; the hand of God is not less there. To His children He ever and anon lifts the veil and foretells the course—not the probable, but the actual and inevitable course, which certain nations must pursue.

It is thus we learn what England is, and the worth of England's presence in the world to-day. The Anglo-Saxon race has not drifted aimlessly here or there, till eventually and fortuitously it reached these Isles, to find itself, somehow or other, in the forefront of the nations. All has been prearranged.

Digitized by Google

For the moment, however, let the mind dwell upon the estimate which a great French writer has formed of the position and prospects of our race.

M. Prevost Paradol writes: "Neither Russia nor united Germany, supposing they should attain the highest fortune, can impede that current of things, nor prevent that solution, relatively near at hand, of the long rivalry of European races for the ultimate colonization and domination of the universe.

"The world will not be Russian, nor German, nor French, alas! nor Spanish. For it can be asserted that since the great navigation has given the whole world to the enterprise of the European races, three nations were tried, one after another, by fate, to play the first part in the fortune of mankind, by everywhere propagating their tongue and blood, by means of durable colonies, and by transforming, so to say, the whole world to their own likeness. During the sixteenth century it was rational to believe the Spanish civilization would spread over all the world. Irremediable vices soon dispersed that colonial power, the vestiges of which, still covering a vast space, tell of ephemeral grandeur. Then came the turn of France, and Louisiana and Canada have reserved the last remembrance of it. Lastly, England came forward. She definitely accomplished the great work."

It is quite true, M. Prevost Paradol, "these three nations were tried one after another, by fate, to play the first part in the fortune of mankind."

"By fate," "the thing spoken by a prophet," to use the definition of our dictionaries, and "prophets of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."

In the eternal counsels of God the bounds of the nations have been set, their activities and their exploits have been circumscribed. Except as He will they can go neither here nor there, cannot, in short, enlarge their borders by one single inch. Statesmen and generals may not always have remembered this.

Now, does not this French writer say, in substance, "Here we may perceive a principle of selection; the Anglo-Saxon race has been chosen above all others to do a work of unparalleled magnitude"?

We English should be the last to quarrel with such a statement. It instinctively commands our assent. We will proceed, however, by argument and illustration. There should be some means available of determining the ancestral origin of the Anglo-Saxon.

Individuals, as we know, often take great pride in their ancestry. Records are most carefully preserved, and if a claim to a title of nobility can be maintained, so much the better. A German of to-day may feel happier if ancestral worth entitles him to place "von" before his name.

It may be thought that nations, like individuals, may well be left to look after their own ancestry. Quite true. And yet it is a most surprising fact that Englishmen, for the most part, seem to be wholly unaware of the origin and noble lineage of the Anglo-Saxon. If it were not that prophecy comes to our aid, we should find it extremely difficult to account for so strange an anomaly.

The question of the origin of nations is admittedly obscure. Presently we shall see what light Holy Scripture throws upon the origin of our own. To all historians that origin must be one of intense interest. But it has an interest hardly less intense for those who are not historians—for all, indeed, who have a desire to see how faithfully God fulfils His promises in the progress of the nations.

JACOB THE ASPIRING.

By the Rev. George Matheson, D.D., F.R.S.E.

To the ordinary English reader there is a sharp contrast between Jacob's coveting of the birthright and Jacob's dream of Divine communion. Really, however, so far from being contrasted, the latter is a development from the former. Jacob's coveting of the birthright was nothing more nor less than the beginning of his dream. What was this birthright? The inheritance of the father's property, you say. Yes; but what was the father's property which the eldest son inherited? In England we associate that institution with something very material—with stone and lime, fields and acres, houses and lands. But in Patriarchal days this was not its association. To a son of the Patriarchal House the birthright of the firstborn was the High Priesthood. In the public estimation Abraham and Isaac were not simply rulers; they were the priests of the clan, the sacred ministers of the community. To them it belonged to offer sacrifice, to them it pertained to pour out intercession. They were the ladders of communion between earth and heaven, on whose steps went up the prayers of the people; they bore the weight of the national supplication. It was to this ministry in holy things that the firstborn was heir. This was his right of primogeniture; this was his prospective privilege. And it was this which Jacob coveted. This was from the beginning his dream—the dream of being the ladder of family communion. By order of birth he was debarred from that privilege. Esau was the firstborn, and Esau had the claim. But to the eye of Jacob, Esau was unfit for the office. He was a secular man, a man of weights and measures; he had no taste for matters ecclesiastical. To Jacob it was a hard thing that the lot had fallen upon the wrong man; and the sense of the incongruity made him dream all the more.

Jacob, then, appears from the very outset as a mentally aspiring man. His dream at Bethel was no accident; it was a result of his whole past. What he there saw under the stars he had seen in his heart from the very dawn. It had been the dream of his life to be this ladder, this medium of communion. To express it in modern language, his ambition was to be a son of the Church. He wanted to be the cleric of the family, the ecclesiastic of the clan; this was his aspiration, this was his dream. And in itself it was a noble dream. I do not wish to obscure the defects of Jacob; but I cannot see either from the standpoint of the artist, or from the standpoint of the historian, that one of these defects was the desire for the birthright or the regret that it had not fallen to him. Paul says there is a noble covetousness; he bids us "covet the best gifts." Jacob's position was not unlike that of many a poor student—poor, I mean, in worldly goods, who is prevented by that poverty from gratifying the dearest desire of his life—the desire to be a minister of religion. He sees hundreds entering into the temple from which he is excluded—hundreds without his gifts securing the upper seats in the synagogue. Is it strange, is it ignoble, that he should fret against the bars! Jacob had a similar excuse for his covetousness. His barrier was not want of money, but want of primogeniture; yet it was equally an external barrier. It was a merely technical disqualification for a post which otherwise was in every way adapted to his abilities. No wonder he dreamed of his missed destiny night and day! No wonder that, amid the cold and weariness of his Bethel vigil, the fancies of his sleep took neither the form of cold nor of weariness, but assumed the shape of a ladder between earth and heaven!

Digitized by Google

But let us not forget that in Jacob's Bethel dream there is a penal as well as a pleasurable element. He pronounced the spot of the vision to be a "dreadful place." This indicates that in some sense the scene jarred upon him—that it was not in every respect harmonious with his nature. The dream, in other words, had a retributive as well as a rewarding function. Before we can understand the nature of the retribution, we must put our hand upon the fault. Jacob had a fault. His moral danger lay precisely at the point in which he was most strong—his lofty aspiration. His desire for the birthright was noble; it was the wish to enter the Church, to become a minister of religion. But why? Not yet for the love of the profession, but for the pride of the profession. He felt that to be a ladder of communion between earth and heaven was to assume a commanding position, the most commanding position in the world. The estate he desired was not one of stone and lime; but none the less was it one of exaltation. His eye was rather on the ascent than on the descent of the ladder. To be a churchman in those days was to be a power; it was to wield an influence far beyond the strength of the secular arm. Jacob felt what many a young man now feels—the social uplifting involved in the clerical office; and he had more reason to feel it than any man has in our day. This was the fly in his ointment; this was the bane of his dream.

And this was the feeling which the vision reproved. What was the cause of that dread which Jacob experienced after his Bethel dream? It was the sight of ascending and descending angels. To a selfish man, was there anything dreadful in such a spectacle as that? Not according to the common interpretation. The common interpretation is that some angels went up the ladder and others came down. I do not think this was the artist's meaning. Taking into account the ministrant character which the Hebrew attributed to the angels, I hold the meaning to be, not that some went up and others went down, but that those who went up came down again. This is evidently Paul's view. When speaking of Christ's union of exaltation and humiliation, he says: "He that *de*scended is the same as He that *a*scended." I understand him to mean that this is the true interpretation of Jacob's ladder. Supposing it to be so, we get a flood of light upon the whole narrative—light which illuminates both the past and the future in the life of Jacob, light which helps us to comprehend the weak point of his youthful dream, light which enables us to see the meaning of the shrunk sinew on the heights of Peniel.

For, what does the vision say to the life-dream of Jacob? Is it not something like this: "Jacob, you have been in a great delusion about this matter. You have been seeking the Divine Priesthood as a source of worldly power; it is in the first instance a source of worldly weakness. He who becomes the ladder between earth and heaven must bear henceforth the weight of the multitude. On him the crowd presses, on him the care descends. He goes up only that he may come down. If he ascends into the light of God, it is that he may *de*scend into the night of Man. If he rises into the heavenly rest, it is that he may learn the earthly tossing on the pillow of stone. The birthright you seek is not to be found on the mountain, but in the valley. You think the securing of the prize would make you the superior of Esau; no, it would make you in a more direct sense than ever before the servant of Esau. The higher you would climb, the deeper must be your bending. The Divine right of kings is their right to be servants—servants to the lowliest, servants to those who lie on couches not of down. If you desire your brother's birthright, it should be on the ground, not that you will gain more riches, but that you are capable of more sacrifice than he."

And is not the principle of this mystical ladder eternally true? Is it not a matter of experience that in the mental sphere the sacrifice belongs to the height? It is not a sense of want that stimulates sympathy; it is a sense of possession. Infirmaries came not from the sick, but from the strong. What has instituted asylums for the blind? It is the vision of light; had darkness been perpetual and universal, there could have been no such institutions. What has instituted asylums for the imbecile? It is the sense of mental power; insanity knows not its own unsoundness. What has instituted reformatories? It is the ideal of purity; the unobstructed presence of sin would have made such homes impossible. The burdens of humanity belong to a soul in proportion to its perfection—not its imperfection. I would apply this even to the education of children. Do not choose your nursery governess on the principle that, as she is only for the nursery, she had better not be too learned. The man or woman who has the highest knowledge of a subject will be the clearest teacher of that subject, will make it most plain to beginners. Those who are halfway up the ladder of knowledge never speak in parables; they are incapable of breaking the bread to their childlike disciples. But he who is on the topmost round can speak to the lowliest. He is the only teacher who is clear to the unlettered crowd. To him belongs the power of making simple; he alone can discourse in parables.

And does not the climax of this principle appear in the great central fact of Christianity itself. What is that central fact? It is the sin-bearing of the sinless. The Fourth Evangelist calls Christ in express terms the ladder of Jacob. Why so? Clearly because in Him the principle of that ladder finds its culmination—the principle that the highest are the servants of the lowest. Of all the sons of the human race, there is only one who stands at the foot of the ladder—the Man who has been at the top of it. The hospital of the moral pestilence gets no support from any moral invalid. Each man of dyed garments avoids brushing against the dyed garments of his brother. Simon will not speak to Magdalene; they have both dyed garments, and neither will tolerate the other's dye. Neither Simon nor Magdalene has yet been up the ladder; neither has received the birthright of priesthood. But one man has; amongst many brethren Jesus is the firstborn. And, because He alone has the birthright, He alone has the pain. The man who goes up to the heights of holiness is the man who must come down to the depths of sin—down to Simon, down to Magdalene, down to the lepers of corruption and the demoniacs of passion. Imagine a constitution of things in which every physical blow gave its pain, not to the man struck, but to some other man. We do not see this in the material world; but Christianity says that it is the law of the moral world. According to Christianity, it is the angel at the top of the ladder who is bruised by the pillow of stone. The deepest moral corruption is unfelt by the man who possesses it. It is felt by the man who does not possess it, who walks in white by the side of the crystal river. The penalty of sin falls heaviest on the holy; the Cross of Calvary first crucifies the pure. Spiritual elevation can never bring worldly elation. When Jacob reaches that summit of the ladder from which Esau is debarred, the sight of his debarred brother will be, not a triumph, but a trial.

Digitized by Google

What was the effect of Jacob's dream? In one word, it was "Peniel." We are in a great mistake if we imagine that there is no connection between the angels he beheld on the ladder and the angel with whom he wrestled until the breaking of the day. He never would have wrestled at Peniel if he had not dreamed at Bethel. The dream at Bethel gave him a conscience; there lay its terror, there lay its glory. It told him that the birthright he had received was a burden, a burden he was bound to bear. It told him that to be an angel of God was a very serious thing; it asked him if he had realized how serious. When Jacob awoke, he awoke as a new man, or rather, with an additional man in him. He had lain down a single individual; he rose a double consciousness. Two lives were within him, strove within him. There was the old life which he knew so well, and which he used to call "himself." That was still there, but it was no longer there alone. Another stood opposite to it and disputed its rule. That other was a life of strange appearance. It was like a flattering portrait of himself; but it seemed also to contradict himself. It resembled one of the angels of his dream. It was the presence in his soul of a new ideal—a new object for living. Hitherto, he had lived to overtop Esau; but the new presence said, "Let Esau overtop you!" The new presence became very troublesome. It disputed with him constantly. It interrupted him in the market-place. It checked him at the receipt of custom. It barred him at the buying of land. It cried out when he gave false measure. It said at the most inconvenient times, "Remember your brother!"—"Remember your neighbour!"—"Remember your fellow-man!" It made him less sharp in bargaining, less acute in things pertaining to his interest. A certain kind of energy departed from him—the force called "grasping." Men saw the change, and described it to his disparagement. They expressed it epigrammatically by saying that there had been a shrinking in the sinew of his thigh. Yet it came not from a diminished, but from an added, energy; it was all the effect of the new conscience—the ministrant angel of the Bethel dream.

There is a curious suggestion in the picture of this conflicting period of Jacob's life. The angel with whom he is struggling is represented as saying, "Let me go! for the day breaketh." I understand this to mean that Jacob found it easier to be good by night than by day. I understand it to mean that he formed fine resolutions under the stars which he intended to break in the sunshine. He is not singular in this; it is to some extent the experience of us all. There is a special solemnity about the night. I do not think it lies where it is supposed to lie—in the vastness of the spaces. Rather do I attribute it to an opposite impression—the sense of individual nearness to the centre of things. Jacob grows solemn when he sees that heaven and earth have a ladder between them. This is ever the source of night's solemnity. The individual feels himself less the member of a crowd, more an object of solitary contemplation. The narrative says of Jacob, "When he was alone there wrestled with him a man." It is by night that we most feel this solitude—so favourable to the wrestling angel. Our importance as units is magnified in the night. We seem to ourselves more worthy; therefore the ideal man within us awakes from his sleep and upbraids us. But when the day comes, we lose our individuality once more. Our sense of importance dies. We feel ourselves to be fragments again—atoms in the crowd, drops in the ocean of life. Conscience is never so low as when the pressure of the multitude makes me undervalue my own soul; and it is the daybreak that brings the pressure. Night says, "You are alone with God"; morning says, "How can God be affected by a puny life like you!"

And this, I think, explains the fact that conscience is often most powerful in the hour of death. Then, as in the night, I feel myself alone. The crowd has melted from my view, and the fashion of this world is dissolving like a mimic scene, and there is none but God and I. Very finely has this principle been grasped by the great artist in Genesis. With strong persistency he has been making the solitary hours of Jacob his grand hours; the night of Bethel has been his golden dream, the night of Peniel his golden struggle. But his greatest glory is reserved for his hour of greatest solitude—the hour of death. There the angel of the ladder and of the struggle appears once more, and he appears as the climax of his former self. He is still the angel of ministration; but he is no longer a mere helper to Jacob—he is inciting Jacob to bless others. The dying man becomes for the first time the universal benefactor. In his hour of death the ministrant conscience becomes dominant, supreme, overmastering. Even the poetry of his language, grand as it is, is left in the shade by the glow of his altruism. He has no thought for anything private, anything local, anything personal. He has emancipated himself from individual ambition. His aspiring has become unselfish. His own griefs and joys are forgotten. The tribes of Israel glitter in his sight—their duties and their dangers. The burdens of the people crowd upon his heart—their weightedness and their soreness. His hour of death is his hour of priesthood; he has only reached the birthright in the valley of the shadow.

Lord, give me the blessing of Jacob—his best blessing—his power to bless! Doubtless it must come with a shrunk sinew; I cannot keep the song of the lark when I get the seal of sonship; I must enter into the pain of my Lord. Yet that pain is better than the world's joy. I have heard men speak of pain as a blot on Thy universe. They were wrong; it is the birthright of the *un*blotted. Give me this birthright, O my God! Put the scar of sympathy in my heart! Let me feel my brother's thorn! Make it impossible for me to stay at the top of the ladder, even though that be heaven! Send me down the golden stair—down to the pillows of stone, down to the nights of sorrow, down to the limbs that are languid, down to the souls that are sad! Send me with a breath of Eden, send me with a flower of Paradise, send me with a cluster of the grapes of Canaan! Send me to the hours that precede the daybreak—those darkest hours which come before the dawn! Send me to the hearts without a home, to the lives without a love, to the crowds without a compass, to the ranks without a refuge! Send me to the children that none have blessed, to the famished that none have fed, to the sick that none have visited, to the demoniac that none have calmed, to the fallen that none have lifted, to the leper that none have touched, to the bereaved that none have comforted! Then shall I have the birthright of the firstborn; then shall I have the blessing of the mighty God of Jacob.

Digitized by Google

HEALTH! IS THE LACK OF IT PUNISHMENT FOR SIN?

By F. E. Blake.

Exodus xv, 26, and xxiii, 25.

Deuteronomy vii, 15; xxviii, 1-14, Blessings for obedience; xxviii, 15 to the end, Curses for disobedience.

Diseases everywhere. Why? why?

Because we do not believe God's Word, His Covenant that He made by Moses to His people.

They did not keep their part of the Covenant, so the curse of disease inflicted for disobedience has never died out. Deut. xxviii, 46, "They shall be upon thee for a sign and for a wonder, and upon thy seed forever."

We are not keeping His Covenant now (3,420 years after).

God is still waiting; all down the ages men have pleased Him and received His blessing, but only individuals. The nation still refuses to ratify that Covenant. Search the Scriptures.

In apparent weariness or despair God says to Daniel, "Lo-Ammi" (not my people), yet He says again and again that His Israel shall be claimed from the "far-off" to accomplish His promises for His Name's sake.

See how the Prophets are always upholding God's Laws and the natural result of disobedience; and how our greatest Prophet refers constantly to them, and derides the nation (His Own) for not believing Moses and the Prophets. Yet He, in His infinite love and patience, tries to teach us that He came "not to destroy" His Father's Law, "but to fulfil." When asked as to the comparative values of the Laws, He only deepened their thoughts, widened their vision and raised their ideals (as seemed His wont always), enlarging it all with Love.

I.—Ye shall love the Lord:

(a) With the soul (the spiritual, moral part of us, and seek to know His ways).

(b) With the mind (the intelligent part, and seek to understand His works).

(c) With the heart (our loving, emotional part).

(d) And with the strength (no idleness, indifference, will ever let us learn to work in God's Kingdom, where all gifts are to be used to His glory).

II.—And thy neighbour as thyself:

On these two commands hang all the Law and the Prophets.

If we confess Christ's Law to be too high, too fine, impossible in this world, why do we not return to God's Covenant and see why we do not keep that? Is it because we do not believe even in that?

God promised all sickness to be removed if we kept His Law. We evidently have not done so, as the curse remains. Our only hope is to go back, study God's Law, and learn those blessings and curses over again and insist that our nation keeps them.

The world, urged by the Devil (the spirit of evil) and our self-will, has forsaken God's Covenant. We must realize our failure, and go back to God to have it repaired, not only by repentance, but in good works to put the wrong right.

The doctors (good, brave men) have tried to cure the diseases down the ages, but even now, while finding palliatives and reasons for the last one, another appears to baffle them still! (We are fools indeed if we think to outwit the Almighty!)

The judges and lawyers have botched excuses on to the laws broken till our brains reel in the maze of their compromises; and God can do it all in a moment, if we claim Him as our Great Healer. He still waits for us to do our part (obedience), and then He will replace us where He means us to be in His scheme for the world, which apparently we have nearly lost by not understanding His will.

Is that why our Faith-healing prayers are of so little effect in places? Are our desires too closely intertwined with the evil-will and self-will that the good-will is nearly crowded out? If we want anything it is often, alas! for our self-indulgence, ambition or pleasure. That will must be knocked out. We cannot pray God's blessings to use them for the Devil or ourselves. They can be gained to use to His glory, but He cannot, or will not, give them to us to squander for our own.

If ye love Me (and My ways and works), ye will keep My commandments, and if we do that the Devil (or evil) will be conquered, our own inclinations for self will die away, and God's Will (or good-will) prevails.

Then His Kingdom will come, and that is what we say daily that we want.

THE DIVINE NAMES AND TITLES.

I.—Elohim occurs 2,700 times. Its first occurrence connects it with creation, and gives it its essential meaning as the Creator. It indicates His relation to mankind as His creatures (see note on 2 Chron. xviii, 31, where it stands in contrast with Jehovah as indicating covenant relationship). Elohim is God the Son, the living "Word" in a Divine form to create (John i, 1; Col. 1, 15-17; Rev. iii, 14); and later, with human form to redeem (John i, 14). Begotten of His Father before all worlds; born of His mother, in the world. In this Divine form He appeared to the Patriarchs, a form not temporarily assumed. Elohim is indicated (as in A.V.) by ordinary small type, "God."

II.—Jehovah. While Elohim is God as the Creator of all things, Jehovah is the same God in covenant relation to those whom He has created (Cp. 2 Chron. xviii, 31). Jehovah means the Eternal, the Immutable One, He Who WAS, and IS,

Digitized by Google

and IS TO COME. The Divine definition is given in Gen. xxi, 33. He is especially, therefore, the God of Israel; and the God of those who are redeemed, and are thus now "in Christ." We can say "My God," but not "My Jehovah," for Jehovah is "My God."

JEHOVAH is indicated (as in A.V.) by small capital letters, "LORD," and by "GOD" when it occurs in combination with Adonai, in which case Lord GOD = Adonai Jehovah.

The name Jehovah is combined with ten other words, which form what are known as "the Jehovah Titles."

They are as follows in the order in which they occur in the Hebrew Canon. All are noted in the margin, in all their occurrences:—

1. JEHOVAH-JIREH = Jehovah will see, or provide. Gen. xxii, 14.
2. JEHOVAH-ROPHEKA = Jehovah that healeth thee. Ex. xv, 26.
3. JEHOVAH-NISSI = Jehovah my banner. Ex. xvii, 15.
4. JEHOVAH-MeKADDISHKEM = Jehovah that doth sanctify you. Ex. xxxi, 13; Lev. xx, 8; xxi, 8; xxii, 32; Ezek. xx, 12.
5. JEHOVAH-SHALOM = Jehovah (send) peace. Judg. vi, 24.
6. JEHOVAH-ZeBA'OTH = Jehovah of hosts. 1 Sam. i, 3, and frequently.
7. JEHOVAH-ZIDKENU = Jehovah our righteousness. Jer. xxiii, 6; xxxiii, 16.
8. JEHOVAH-SHAMMAH = Jehovah is there. Ezek. xlviii, 35.
9. JEHOVAH-'ELYON = Jehovah most high. Ps. vii, 17; xlvii, 2; xcvii, 9.
10. JEHOVAH-RO'I = Jehovah my Shepherd. Ps. xxiii, 1.

We have seven of these, experimentally referred to, in Ps. xxiii, inasmuch as Jehovah, as the "Good," "Great," and "Chief Shepherd," is engaged, in all the perfection of His attributes, on behalf of His sheep:—

In verse 1, we have No. 1 above.
In verse 2, we have No. 5.
In verse 3, we have Nos. 2 and 7.
In verse 4, we have No. 8.
In verse 5, we have Nos. 3 and 4.

III.—JAH is Jehovah in a special sense and relation. Jehovah as having BECOME our Salvation (first occ. Ex. xv, 2), He Who IS, and WAS, and IS TO COME. It occurs 49 times (7 × 7). Compare Psalm lxviii, 4, 18.

IV.—EL is essentially the Almighty, though the word is never so rendered (see below "Shaddai"). EL is Elohim in all His strength and power. It is rendered "God" as Elohim is, but El is God the Omnipotent.

Elohim is God the Creator putting His omnipotence into operation.

Eloah (see below) is God Who wills and orders all, and Who is to be the one object of the worship of His people. El is the God Who knows all (first occ. Gen. xiv, 18-22) and sees all (Gen. xvi, 13) and that performeth all things for His people (Ps. lvii, 2); and in Whom all the Divine attributes are concentrated.

El is indicated in this edition by type in large capital letters thus: "GOD." It is sometimes transliterated in proper names Immanu-'el, Beth-'el, etc., where it is translated, as explained in the margin.

V.—ELOAH is Elohim, Who is to be worshipped. Eloah is God in connection with His Will rather than His power. The first occurrence associates this name with worship (Deut. xxxii, 15, 17). Hence it is the title used whenever the contrast (latent or expressed) is with false gods or idols. Eloah is essentially "the living God" in contrast to inanimate idols.

Eloah is rendered "God," but we have indicated it by type thus: 𝔊𝔒𝔇.

VI.—ELYON first occurs in Gen. xiv, 18 with El, and is rendered "the most high (God)". It is El and Elohim, not as the powerful Creator, but as "the possessor of heaven and earth." Hence the name is associated with Christ as the Son of "the Highest" (Luke i, 35).

It is Elyon, as possessor of the earth, Who divides the nations "their inheritance." In Ps. lxxxiii, 18, He is "over all the earth." The title occurs 36 times (6 × 6, or 6^2).

Elyon is the Dispenser of God's blessings in the earth; the blessings proceeding from a Priest Who is a King upon His throne (cp. Gen. xiv, 18-22 with Zech. vi, 13; xiv, 9).

VII.—SHADDAI is in every instance translated "Almighty," and is indicated by small capital letters ("ALMIGHTY"). It is God (El), not as the source of strength, but of grace; not as Creator, but as the Giver. Shaddai is the All-bountiful. This title does not refer to His creative power, but to His power to supply all the needs of His people. Its first occurrence is in Gen. xvii, 1, and is used to show Abraham that He Who called him out to walk alone before Him could supply all his need. Even so it is the title used in 2 Cor. vi, 18, where we are called to "come out" in separation from the world. It is often used in connection with El (see above).

VIII.—ADON is one of three titles (ADON, ADONAI, and ADONIM), all generally rendered "Lord"; but each has its own peculiar usage and association. They all denote headship in various aspects. They have to do with God as "over-lord."

(1) ADON is the Lord as Ruler in the earth. We have indicated this in type by printing the preceding article or pronouns in small capitals, not because either are to be emphasized, but to distinguish the word "Lord" from Adonai, which is always so printed in the A.V.

(2) ADONAI is the Lord in His relation to the earth; and as carrying out His purposes of blessing in the earth. With this limitation it is almost equivalent to Jehovah. Indeed, it was from an early date so used, by associating the vowel points of the word Jehovah with Adon, thus converting Adon into Adonai. A list of 134 passages where this was deliberately done is preserved and given in the Massorah (§§107-115). We have indicated these by printing the word like Jehovah, putting an asterisk, thus: LORD.*

(3) ADONIM is the plural of Adon, seldom used of man. Adonim carries with it all that Adon does, but in a greater and higher degree; and more especially as owner and proprietor. An Adon may rule others who do not belong to him. Hence

Digitized by Google

(without the article) it is often used of men. But Adonim is the Lord Who rules His own. We have indicated it by type, thus : LORD. The three may be thus briefly distinguished :—

Adon is the Lord as overlord or ruler.
Adonim is the Lord as owner.
Adonai is the Lord as blesser.

IX.—The TYPES used to indicate the above titles, in the text, are as follows :—

God = Elohim.
God = Jehovah (in combination with Adonai, " Lord ").
God = Jehovah in the Primitive Texts, altered by Sopherim to Elohim as in the Printed Text.
God = El. Lord = Jehovah.
GOD = Eloah. THE LORD = Jah.
Lord* = Jehovah in the Primitive Text, altered by Sopherim to Adonai as in the Printed Text.
Lord = Adonai. ALMIGHTY = Shaddai.
LORD = Adonim. MOST HIGH = Elyon.

X.—The combinations are indicated as follows :—

Adonai Jehovah = Lord God.
Jehovah Elohim = Lord God.
Elyon El = Most High GOD.
El Shaddai = GOD Almighty.

(From the Companion Bible).

OBITUARY.

THE LATE MRS. THOMAS DAVEY.

The late Mrs. Thomas Davey.

FANNY CURWEN, widow of the late Thomas Davey, of Melbourne, Australia, was a daughter of the late Frederic Curwen, who belonged to a branch of the Curwen family of Workington Hall, Cumberland. She was born in Chippenham, Wilts.

A believer in the identity of Britain with Israel for fifty years, also a subscriber to THE NATIONAL MESSAGE and to the funds of the Cause. For the last two years she has been in indifferent health, but bore her sufferings most bravely. Her lovable nature and bright sunny smile endeared her to all who knew her. In her quiet way she brought to many the knowledge of what the British race means to the world to-day, and we cannot doubt but that she was one of God's witnesses who has been taken out of the time of trouble. She passed away peacefully on the 25th July, 1929, and was interred in the Arno Vale Cemetery, Bristol. The Rev. R. G. F. Waddington, M.A., came down from Bradford, Yorkshire, to read the burial service.

We tender our sympathy to the family of the deceased lady.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—I should be grateful if you would kindly give me your opinion on St. Paul's words, " Unto which promise our twelve tribes instantly serving God day and night hope to come " (Acts xxvi, 7). It seems to me that this gives the impression that the twelve tribes were a unit, and in the same position before God when he wrote, although from many other passages in the Scriptures one gathers distinctly that the ten " lost " tribes were and are quite separate from Judah and Benjamin.—G. T. C.

ANSWER.—In the study of prophecy allowance has to be made for dispensational truth, while at the same time a departmental vision of the co-ordinated divisions of the whole scheme of Israel truth must be studied in true perspective and proportion.

You will observe that the closing words of the previous verse give the clue, i.e., " the promise made of God unto our fathers," with which may be compared St. Paul's words, " to confirm the promises made unto the fathers " (Rom. xv, 8). We have therefore here in these two verses a vision of the generic promises made to the covenant seed of Abraham, viewed as a comprehensive whole, redeemed, restored, and re-covenanted through the blood of Christ. As such, the covenant people are regarded as a solid unit in the eternity of God, regardless of intermediate and dispensational divisions of time or tribes.

Your mention of the word unit aptly describes the situation, as used from the point of view of military organization. A whole Division may be regarded as a unit, when moved or transported as a whole, although it will consist of numerous battalions and units grouped together. But it will be divided up into Brigades, etc., each of which may be a unit, while any one Battalion will be regarded as an individual unit also. So Israel redeemed—the covenant people—may be regarded as the Unit of God, i.e., the " twelve tribes " of history and prophecy, complete in redemption and restoration. Yet through the sub-divisions of time and tribes, Israel and Judah are for many centuries seen to be separated peoples, each working out their own pre-ordained destinies, until they are reunited and restored into one completed whole.

The House of David (the élite of Judah) is already united with the House of Israel through the Crown, while the tribe of Benjamin was restored to the House of Israel when Judas betrayed his Master for the thirty pieces of silver (Matt. xxvi, 15 ; Zech. xi, 10-14).

Your question raises a reference to the words of our Lord, " Ye shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel " (Matt. xix, 28 ; Luke xxii, 30, with which cf. 1 Cor. vi, 2, 3 ; Rev. xx, 4 ; xxi, 12, 14). The word " judging " here is probably not used in a judicial sense, indicative of a judge pronouncing a sentence, but rather as a term connoting promotion and responsibility in view of the world importance to be attached to the redemption and consolidation of the united twelve tribes of Israel.

A PRAYER.

O Lord, hear our prayer, fulfil our desires to our good, and to the praise of Thy holy Name ; forgive what we have been, and order what we shall be.—Amen.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

ARRANGEMENTS for the Congress are well in hand and we hope for large gatherings in the Central Hall, Westminster, from Monday, September 30th, to Saturday, October 5th, twice daily. The Rev. Pascoe Goard is on his way from Canada. The Rev. Maxwell Carnson is already here from South Africa. We are grateful to all who have distributed leaflets and displayed posters. Large quantities are still available and we shall be glad to supply as many more as our friends can use.

* * *

The adjourned Annual Meeting of members for the election of the Council will be held at Headquarters on Friday, October 4th, at 5.45 p.m.

* * *

The Clerical and Ministerial Conference arranged for Congress week will take place at Headquarters on Monday and Tuesday, September 30th and October 1st, at 11 a.m.

* * *

Morning sessions for delegates will be held as usual at Headquarters from Tuesday, October 1st, to Saturday, October 5th, commencing at 11 o'clock.

* * *

The Secretary-General gave an interesting account of the Canadian and United States mission tour to a crowded audience at Headquarters on September 11th, when the President, Major J. Knowles, presided.

Mr. Morey gave an excellent address on the following evening.

The speakers for next week are Rev. Kenneth Dodds, Wednesday afternoon, and Mrs. Bloxam, Thursday evening.

* * *

Mr. Garrison is to speak for our Bristol Branch on September 24th, at 3 and 7.30, in the Rotary Hall, Colston Street, and for our Bath Branch on September 25th, at 3, in their Lecture Hall.

* * *

We are very sorry to say the Rev. Joseph Gay met with a motor accident early on Saturday morning last, soon after starting for a preaching engagement in the North. His car was run into and smashed by another car. It is a marvel Mr. Gay was not killed outright. He escaped with an injured hand and a severe shock. He was conveyed to the Hendon Cottage Hospital, where his injuries were attended to, and whence he could ere long be removed to his home. His engagements for the week had, of course, to be cancelled and substitutes found. It is hoped, however, that he will have sufficiently recovered to be able to take his part in the coming Congress.

* * *

We regret to have to record the death of the Dowager Countess of Radnor. She had nearly attained the age of eighty-four. The interment took place on Saturday last at Britford, near Salisbury. The Countess was an ardent British-Israelite and did much for the Cause. She was a member of the British-Israel-World Federation from its foundation to the close of her life.

* * *

The Southport Branch opened their Autumn Session at the beginning of the month, when Mr. Wm. Whitton gave a lecture, "The British Throne," everyone being greatly interested in the story of the Stone of Israel traced through the Bible from Jacob to our own day. Mr. Whitton illustrated his lecture by a beautiful water-colour painting of the Coronation Chair and Stone, which will be on view at the forthcoming Congress.

* * *

In presenting the Quarterly Report of activities, the Sydney, New South Wales, Branch first sounded a note of praise to ALMIGHTY GOD for His Favour and Presence with them during the period under review. Three months ago the Committee decided to have their room open DAILY (Saturdays and Sundays excepted). This has been done, and abundant testimonies have been received as to the benefits resulting therefrom, and commending the wisdom of the Committee's arrangement.

The aims and objects are :—

To provide a central place where like-minded folk can meet each other, and, if they wish, partake of light refreshment.

To have a reading room, as well as a lending library.

To have a depot where British-Israel books and literature may be purchased, and information concerning the Movement given.

To make possible the holding of afternoon, as well as evening, meetings easy of access.

To establish a WITNESS in the centre of Sydney to the importance of British-Israel Truth.

To provide a rallying-place for visitors to the city who are desirous of making themselves known, and meeting others similarly interested.

It has been delightful to those in charge to welcome old and new friends from day to day. The circulating library has been a most valuable adjunct.

It has been a privilege to welcome quite a number of visitors from other States and from Overseas. The mid-week meetings for Prayer and Bible Study have been well attended and proved a source of much strength and encouragement.

The Committee urge all believers to link up with them, and concentrate on propaganda work, to awaken and generally stimulate interest in the WORK of the Federation.

* * *

Appreciations of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER from Illinois, U.S.A. :—" I am truly pleased with the journal and wish you success."

From the Orange Free State, South Africa :—" I love the journal, and it has made the Bible clearer and more understandable."

* * *

R. C. W. writes from Hammond, B.C. :—" We greatly value your journal. More and more we see the wonderful and important theme of B.-I. Truth."

* * *

L. P. writes from Victoria, B.C. :—" I cannot tell you how much I appreciate THE NATIONAL MESSAGE, especially now that so much is happening in the world day by day."

Digitized by Google

ORIGIN OF THE BIBLE.

SOME of the readers of THE NATIONAL MESSAGE may be unable to consult the books on this subject that were recommended in your issue of July 27th, 1929; or they may find them difficult to procure. For such it may be helpful to know that very much concerning our present Bible may be learnt by such a brief investigation as has here been attempted.

The first mention of any inspired writing seems to be "The Tables of Stone written by the Finger of God," called also the Covenant and Testimony. See Ex. xxiv, 4-12; xxv, 16; xxxii, 15, 16; xxxiv, 1, 5, 27, 28; xl, 20; II Kings xi, 12; xxiii, 21; II Chron. vi, 11, and v, 10.

This Testimony was placed in the Ark. See Ex. xxv, 16; Deut. x, 1-5; xxxi, 24-26; I Kings viii, 9; Heb. ix, 4.

Also called "The Book of Moses." Josh. viii, 31; II Kings xiv, 6; II Chron. xxxiv, 14-16 and 21; Neh. viii, 1-8: St. Luke xvi, 29, 31; xxiv, 27.

Called the Book or Law of the Lord. Deut. xvii, 14 to 20; Josh. i, 8; II Kings xxii, 8-20; Dan. xii, 4; Isa. xxxiv, 16; Jer. xxx, 2.

Called "the Writing." Deut. xxvii, 3; I Chron. xxviii, 19; Isa. xxx, 8; Jer. xlv, 1.

The Book of Psalms indicated: II Sam. xxiii, 1; I Chron. xvi, 7.

Some of the writers included in our Canon of the Old Testament mentioned:—

Moses: Deut, xxxi, 22.
Samuel: I Sam. x, 25; I Chron. xxix, 29.
Elijah: II Chron. xxi, 12.
Job: Ezek. xiv, 14.
Isaiah: II Chron. xxxii, 32.
Daniel: Ezek. xiv, 14.
Jeremiah: xxx, 2; II Chron. xxxv, 25; xxxvi, 12.
Zechariah: II Chron. xxiv, 20.
Haggai: Ezra v, 1.

Also mentioned:—

The Chronicles of Kings of Judah: II Kings xii, 19.
The Chronicles of the Kings of Israel: II Kings x, 34.
The Chronicles of the Kings of Israel and Judah: II Chron. xxxv, 27.

The following writings seem to have been lost:—

Enoch: Jude, ver. 14.
Wars of the Lord: Num. xxi, 14.
Book of Jasher: Josh. x, 13 and II Sam. i, 18.
Acts of Solomon: I Kings xi, 41.
Jehu: II Chron. xx, 34.
Gad: I Chron. xxix, 29.
Nathan: I Chron. xxix, 29.
Ahijah: II Chron. ix, 29.
Iddo: II Chron. xiii, 22.
Shemeniah: II Chron. xii, 15.

In the Apocrypha we find, II Maccab. ii, 13, that Nehemiah founded a library, to which was added the Latin writings. The earliest Translation of the whole Scriptures (except the Revelation of St. John) is the Syriac version, during the 1st century.

* * *

R. W. MacDonnell writes:—

To the letter of J. C. Allsopp appearing in your issue of July 20th no answer was appended.

The subject has long been a debated one in my mind, and for many years I have refrained from that tasty morsel, swine's flesh, not on the ground primarily that its use is unlawful Scripturally, but with the feeling that, in Moses' time, by proscribing certain animal foods, the Lord had a purpose in view according with an underlying principle by observance of which something of value to the welfare of His people morally or materially would result.

If wisdom directed that course then, are the conditions requiring it no longer existent?

In Scotland in my early days our Presbyterianism (I suppose it was) prevented our use of the large scaleless salt-water eels the fishermen caught at a certain season, so they were shipped off to England, where they were turned into cash. This suited the Scot, and his own scruples were allayed.

The eating of blood in blood-puddings and hare soup, etc., was, and I suppose still is, all too common amongst Christians despite the New Testament injunction against it and at such things I have often wondered that there seemed no objection from Christian leaders, and also whether those apparent departures from Scripture teaching could be satisfactorily accounted for. To me they have not yet.

One will tell me that the law is now out of force as regards them, quoting I Tim. iv, 4-5. To this I reply:—Can we by prayer sanctify for eating every creature, even those once reckoned an abomination by God's decree? Could that construction possibly be put on the meaning of the Apostle?

I would be glad, and possibly others also would, to hear something more on these subjects.

It appears to me that the Lord has made concessions to our weaknesses that, while reflecting no credit upon us, at the same time cannot be gratifying to Him.

Considering the prevalence of cancerous and other incurable diseases, may it not be that we are, after all, something like our fathers spoken of in Scripture, that certain things are visited upon us "according to our doings" yet?

* * *

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK

HEADQUARTERS, Wednesday, 25th, at 3. Lt.-Col. Smythe (of Dover); Thursday, 26th, at 7.30. Mr. L. W. Nock.
BATH, 5, Argyle Street, Thursday, 26th. Annual Meeting.
BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, 23rd, at 8.
BLACKHEATH, Y.W.C.A., Montpelier Row, Thursday, 26th, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
BRISTOL, Rotary House, Colston Street, Monday, 23rd, at 7.30. Miss E. M. Perry; Tuesday, 24th, at 3 and 7.30. Mr. Herbert Garrison, F.R.G.S.
CARDIFF, Central Y.M.C.A., Tuesday. 24th, at 7.30.
EALING, Wesleyan Memorial Hall, Monday, 23rd, at 8.15. Rev. C. W. Cooper, F.G.S.
FITTLEWORTH, Tripp Hill House, Friday, 27th. Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.
HORNSEY and CROUCH END, Earl Haig Memorial Hall, Elder Avenue, Wednesday, 25th, at 8.
HULL, Church Institute, Albion Street, Tuesday, 24th, at 7.30. Mr. B. C. Bateson.
LEEDS, City Museum, Wednesday, 25th, at 7.30. Mr. G. R. Gair.
MANCHESTER, Houldsworth Hall, Deansgate, Tuesday, 24th, at 7.45. Rev. Wm. Brown Pollock, M.A.
NOTTINGHAM, Friar Lane Schools, Thursday, 26th, at 3 and 7.30.
PUTNEY, 12, Ravenna Road, Monday, 23rd, at 8. Mr. J. J. Morey.
SHEFFIELD, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, 25th, at 7.30.
SOUTHPORT, The Hall, 631, Lords Street, Monday, 23rd, STRATFORD, E., St. Mark's Church, Windmill Lane, Monday, 23rd, at 8 Mr. L. W. Nock.
SUTTON and CHEAM, Small Public Hall, Monday, 23rd, at 3 and 8. Miss Hamilton Hunter.
SYDENHAM, Park Hall, Sydenham Park Road, Wednesday, 25th, at 7.45. Mr. J. J. Morey.
BOGNOR 26th, CHICHESTER 25th, FORDINGBRIDGE 24th, SALISBURY 23rd. Particulars of places of meeting not to hand at time of going to press.

Digitized by Google

B.-I. CONGRESS

Large Central Hall, Westminster

Monday, September 30th, to Saturday, October 5th, at 2.45 and 7.30

GREAT PUBLIC MEETINGS

MAJOR J. KNOWLES, O.B.E., will preside at the opening meeting

Among the Speakers are:—

REV. PASCOE GOARD, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.
REV. JAMES MOUNTAIN, D.D.
REV. MAXWELL CARNSON, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.
REV. GILBERT DAVIES, M.A.
REV. J. LUMLEY DAVIES, L.D.
REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.
REV. CANON C. J. HOLLIS, M.A.
MR. D. DAVIDSON, M.C.
REV. T. SPARSHOTT JOHNSON, M.A.
REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A., F.R.A.S.
REV. WM. BROWN POLLOCK, M.A.
GENERAL COVENTRY WILLIAMS, C.B.
REV. R. G. F. WADDINGTON, M.A.
REV. T. H. WHITEHOUSE.
MR. HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.
REV. COMMANDER ROBERTS, R.N.
GENERAL SIR ARTHUR PHAYRE, K.C.B.
MR. JOHN LEECH, M.A., LL.B., K.C.
REV. CHARLES COOPER, F.G.S.
CAPT. THE REV. T. G. GROUT.
COLONEL E. F. GOSSET.
DR. W. GORNOLD.
REV. GREGORY BESTALL.
REV. HECTOR MACTURK, M.A.
REV. ARTHUR PRITCHARD, M.A.
MR. W. H. HESKETH, J.P.
MR. W. T. F. JARROLD, J.P.
MAJOR RICHARD RIGG, O.B.E., J.P.
REV. J. J. WHITEHOUSE, M.A.
MR. GEORGE R. GAIR.
MR. JOHN J. MOREY.

Among many intensely interesting and important subjects to be dealt with are :—

Events and Portents in Palestine, Egypt, Etc.

PAST AND PRESENT FULFILMENT OF PROPHECY.
THE MISSION AND DESTINY OF THE BRITISH RACE.
THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM.

Admission Free. All cordially invited. Reserved seats 2/-. Season ticket £1. Cheap railway fares. Vouchers for cheap fares from Sept. 28th to Oct 14th, and tickets for reserved seats, to be obtained from the—

SECRETARY-GENERAL, 6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

Digitized by Google

SEPTEMBER 28, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43-10

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22-17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB. 24-7

G^t BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · N^FOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID — 1^CHRON 29 v 23 JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI

"A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT" Is 19 v 19-20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35-11.

J.J.HALL 1921

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone: Victoria 8961 & 8962. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate. S.W.1

SEND FOR PROSPECTUS. POST FREE.

Our Great Heritage

WITH ITS RESPONSIBILITIES. HOW AND WHERE TO FIND THE TITLE DEEDS.

By W. T. F. JARROLD.

Showing how God's promises to Abraham 2005 B.C. are being fulfilled in our Nation, Dominions, and Indian Empire, showing God's promises to King David fulfilled in the Royal House of Great Britain.

Crown 8vo., cloth gilt, 5/- net (post 6d.), with 31 illustrations.

The Times.—" His theory illumines much that is otherwise dark in the Bible, and gives meaning to modern history."

National Message.—" It can be said that in no other single book written on the subject can be found such an overwhelming collection of cumulative evidence."

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1

An Excellent Book.

The Enduring Empire of the Brit-ish

By Rev. P. H. PRITCHETT.

An account of the remarkable unconscious testimony of several Historians never before used in British-Israel evidence, which is shown to exactly fit in with the picture Scripture draws of the Scattered, Outcast, Wandering, Lost Ten-Tribed Israel led to the British Isles, and destined ultimately to become a blessing to the whole world.

A remarkable Book, which strengthens every link in the British-Israel Chain. A work showing very deep research and productive of a fund of new corroborative evidence from outside sources.

Professor Odlum, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.C.Inst., writes :—" I have had the extreme pleasure and much profit in reading your splendid book, 'The Enduring Empire of the British.' It has been a real treat to go over this gem of condensed truth which has come from your pen and labours ; most truly have you journeyed among the ancient and other historians to great advantage. I consider your excellent production as one of the most valuable and helpful of all the epitomised works on the British-Israel search after Historic and Prophetic Truth . . . You have made all of our students and special lecturers, as well as writers, your debtors to a great wealth of historic research."

Cloth, 101 pages. Price 2/6, by post 2/9.

COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1.

WHO IS THE ISRAEL OF THE PROPHECIES ?

Are you ever at a loss to answer this question adequately ? You need not be. It is answered in simple language in our publication—

THE BIBLE BASIS OF BRITISH-ISRAEL TRUTH

By S. E. STEELE.

If you find it difficult to summon your texts to support your argument with the non-believer, let this book do it for you. Present your antagonist with a copy of this book, and after reading it he cannot honestly remain a sceptic, because the texts quoted in irrefutable support of our Truth are all to be found in the Bible.

Send for some copies to-day and pass them on to those whom you wish to convert to this great Truth.

THIS IS A GOOD ELEMENTARY BOOK.

Demy 8vo. Price 1/- ; post free, 1/2.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 404. Vol. VIII. SEPTEMBER 28th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
ISRAEL IN PALESTINE. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard ...	609
THE REV. COMMANDER ROBERTS ANSWERS A MINISTERIAL CORRESPONDENT	611
EXPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.—V. By the Rev. Joseph Gay, A.T.S.	612
THE SECRET OF BRITAIN'S STRENGTH.—II. By the late Rev. Philip Young, L.Th. (formerly Dean of Nassau)	614
JERASH—THE CITY OF ANCIENT CHURCHES. EXCAVATIONS IN THE OLD CAPITAL OF GILEAD (Illustrated). By Harold J. Shepstone, F.R.G.S.	617
ISRAEL AS A DEW. (Leaves from my Notebook.) By Daniel Farmer	620
THE QUESTION OF THE CENTURIES.—II. "What Think Ye of Christ?"	621
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. By the Rev. G. H. Lancaster, M.A.	621
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	622

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

ISRAEL IN PALESTINE.

By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard.

We begin this study with a view of Israel as presented to us in the book of Numbers, issuing out of its tribal state, and into that of a single organized nation.

For purposes of local government and administration, the tribes were recognized each under its own leader, and each possessing a measure of self-government—much as provinces are recognized in the British Dominions, and States are recognized in the American Republic.

These tribes were again organized into four divisions, each consisting of three tribes. In the national encampment each division occupied one face of the square, and was led by a particular tribe whose standard became that of the division; thus the tribe of Judah camped or marched under the standard of the Lion; that of Ephraim under the standard of the Bull; Reuben under the standard of the Man; and Dan under the standard of the Flying Eagle. The division of Ephraim (all of whom descended from Rachel) occupied the west, and as the Hebrew for bull is Angle, they formed a basis of the Anglo-Saxons; and as Ephraim became the leader of the ten-tribed house of Israel, the whole of that house became designated by the name "Angle" or Bull-Saxons, in other words "John Bull."

Emerging out of Egypt and organized as a single nation, united Israel is first presented to us in the book of Numbers.

Upon the death of Saul, Israel followed the house of Saul, and Judah elected David king; thus the division which later became permanent was first established. Some seven years thereafter Israel came over and, with Judah, accepted David as king.

Upon the death of Solomon, the two kingdoms again separated, Judah together with the tribe of Benjamin—which was loaned to Judah by the Lord that David might have light before his throne—under the house of Judah as represented in Rehoboam; and Israel under the newly-established house of Jeroboam. This breach of the two houses into two kingdoms has never been healed to the present day.

Then arose in the East the nation of Assyria, which, in order to open its way to the Mediterranean Sea and to share in the rich traffic which its waters bore, found it necessary to remove Israel and other adjoining small nations out of their own land. Accordingly she carried them away northward, where they could not menace her trade routes to the sea. Apparently they were free to move north or east, but might not return to their own land for the reason indicated, thus Israel disappeared from the homeland of Palestine.

It was not necessary to Assyria's ambition that Judah should thus be removed, and finding Jerusalem unusually strong in defence, the king of Assyria passed it by after the well-known historic reverse, and turned his attention to other matters.

Let it be clearly weighed and understood that thereafter Assyria herself fell prostrate before the growing power of Babylon and thus the nation which had removed Israel, itself ceased to be.

Then arose Babylon. Because of an entirely different set of reasons, and in conjunction with a supremely greater scheme of governmental ambition, Babylon decided to attack and subdue both Jerusalem and Tyre. Space will not permit, neither will the character of this book warrant, discussion of that particular matter here, but we commend it to the careful study of scholars and readers who would understand the matters of which we are now speaking.

Digitized by Google

In due time Babylon subjugated Judah and carried her people eastward to Babylon; this was done in an effort to succeed to the great commercial organizations, the centres of which had been in Jerusalem and in Tyre, which latter state was also, for the same reason, carried away. We point this out clearly in order to guard against the entanglement which so many scholars have fallen into of imagining that the two captivities were merged one into the other, and that both Israel and Judah were alike restored after 70 years from the fall of Jerusalem. There is absolutely no excuse for any informed scholar to put forth such a suggestion.

Thus the house of Israel and the house of Judah passed from their places in the homeland—the one northward, the other eastward.

The throne of David followed neither the one nor the other into captivity, but was transferred by the hand of Jeremiah to the Brith Colony in the Brith Isles.

By way of postscript to the preceding history, there comes the organization of the improvised nation of the Jews. It was formed out of a small company of some 40,000 volunteers. It never was fully organized inasmuch as it had not the throne, nor the authority pertaining thereto. It was ruled by the priesthood and not by the king, until it passed under the Asmonean and Herodean Dynasties, the first of which was a necessary dictatorship under which the people organized themselves to meet the needs of the time; the latter of which was an Edomite usurpation.

It is not necessary to say that neither of these had anything to do with the house of David. This improvised nation continued during the prophetic period covered by Daniel's seventy weeks or possibly seventy and seven weeks, and then disappeared from the stage of history in fire and blood, for ever. Thereafter the Jews—that is to say the Jerusalem Jews—who are not to be confounded with the princely house of Judah—were scattered to the winds over all the earth.

At the time of our Lord there were four great sections of the Israel peoples (using the term "Israel" ethnologically and not nationally).

There was first the Jewish nation established in Judah and Jerusalem with whom the new Testament writers so fully deal. It was entirely separate and distinct from the Israel of the ten-tribed house.

The captivity in the meantime had increased and extended its power until it became two mighty peoples, which Rome was absolutely unable to conquer, in spite of her boastings of world dominion. These were on the one hand the Parthians, against whom Rome hurled her strength again and again, only to be broken and shattered; on the other hand the Scythians. So far was Rome from conquering these in the wilderness of Russia that she built a wall to keep them back from successfully attacking her own territories.

In the meantime the fourth section of the Israel peoples still occupied the position in the Brith Islands from which they have never been dislodged, and at the time of our Lord were waging successful war against the full strength of imperial Rome. Like a wall of steel these four hemmed in the Roman Empire and threatened its very existence. First the Jews attacked with persistent fierceness and waged a much greater war than the ordinary historian has led us to believe, shaking the power of Rome to the very centre. It is probable that her warfare would have been successful, humanly speaking, had not Rome formed an army of the youth of the Israel people in the British Islands to break the power of their brethren the Jews in the Far East.

Next, for ten years Britain fought a defensive war against the Romans, at first with entire success. But later gathering her armies from the Persian Gulf to the Baltic Sea under her very best Generals, Rome by sheer weight of numbers forced her foothold in the British Isles, and for a considerable time held within her armed lines the fat wheat-lands of Britain upon which she had established a Roman colony. But with all her strength and might she was unable to do more than subject certain portions of the British people to her yoke, and to drive the remainder to the fastnesses of the hills of Wales and Scotland, leaving the rugged Cornish at rest in their peninsula; meanwhile the central throne and government existing at that time on the island of Ireland was never menaced with danger, no armed foot of Roman soldiery having been permitted to land upon that Isle. It was true at that time, as now, that Britain's fleet was supreme upon the seas with the exception of the narrow Straits between France and Britain, upon which, concentrating all his naval forces, Rome was able to hold a precarious line of communication.

Thereafter the "Battle Axe" division—the ten-tribed house—began to move westward from the place of their dwelling and to outflank the heart of the Roman Empire. Upon many a bloody field the Goths met the legions of Rome and broke them, ever drawing their lines closer to the imperial city. So deadly did the menace at last become that Rome was compelled to withdraw her legions from Britain, and as the fierce spirit of the Briton had never been tamed, she had of necessity to withdraw first the Roman colony, thus the day came when only the walls of deserted camps and the existence of public works which Rome had constructed, remained to tell the story of the Roman Invasion. Pict, Scot, Briton, Saxon, Dane and Norman all contributed their quota to the British household, as they had a right to do—all being Israel peoples—but of the Roman colony not an ethnological trace remains.

Now appeared the purpose in the Divine Plan in permitting the Roman Invasion, for they had driven the Britons to dwell in the fastnesses of Cornwall, Wales and Scotland, and the centuries during the Roman occupation had dulled the sense of ownership of the lands occupied by the Romans. In this way a place was made for the advent of the Saxons, who, upon the withdrawal of the Romans, flowed in and took possession of the place thus vacated for them. Thus was obviated what would otherwise have been the bitterest kind of war between the ancient Brith Colony—or Israel in the Isles—and the newly-arrived men of the ten-tribed house who were supremely unconscious of the fact that they were brethren.

At the destruction of Jerusalem the tribe of Benjamin withdrew from Judah—to whom it had been loaned—when Titus opened his ranks and permitted them to march out of the beleaguered city. Thence uprooted from the homeland, they took their course westward and northward and settled in the north-west of Europe including Norway, from which country a part of them known as Norsemen settled in the north of France, afterwards called Normandy. Finally as Normans under William the Conqueror they made their way into the appointed place in the British Isles and thus completed as residents there "all the house of Israel wholly." Let it be remembered that this does not include the JEW.

Digitized by Google

THE REV. COMMANDER ROBERTS ANSWERS A MINISTERIAL CORRESPONDENT.

DEAR SIR,—As Editor of the volume "British-Israel Truth," I am privileged to write, and if possible show where apparently we join issue. It is satisfactory to gather from your letter that we have proved our case.

Perhaps the best way of reconciling our two contentions is to begin by saying that originally both Israel and all the World Powers are included in the drama which sets forth God's purpose and plan. This is abundantly proved from Deut. xxxii, 8, 9. There are only two parties in the contest.

The SEED of the WOMAN and the SEED of the BEAST.

This is clear from Genesis iii, 15, and Matt. xiii.

2.—"The Congregation of the LORD" as gradually developed, which is Israel under the blood, with individuals out of any NATION joining themselves to them—Exod. xii, 47–49. This is the Church in the Wilderness, Acts vii, 38. The word in Hebrew was קהל, and is the equivalent to the Greek word Ecclesia, "Assembly."

CHRIST built His Congregation upon Himself, the Saints and all the faithful in CHRIST, both their Lord and ours.

The Kingdom to which alone the Victory is promised is not called the Church but A NATION and must be ISRAEL. Isa. lvi, 8.

This is the Bride of CHRIST, for the LORD changeth not.

3.—We do not see any necessity for separating the 70th week of Dan. ix, 24, 27. Except as in a sequence "Seven Weeks" "three score and two weeks" and the "one week" which has also its clearly marked "midst of the week" when the Veil of the Temple was rent, no other Sacrifice being acceptable to God than the offering of CHRIST Himself for us. He confirmed this New Covenant to His disciples to the time of the Conversion of Saul of Tarsus.

4.—As stated before, the World is the arena and all the Kingdoms of the world are included in the Devil's offer to CHRIST. Matt. iv, 8.

It must be agreed that when men began to call themselves by the name of Jehovah, until the call of Abram the called out were in embryo. What this meant was but typically foreshown until then.

5.—There were seven World Powers (so to speak): 1, Egypt, 2, Assyria, 3, Babylon, 4, Medo-Persia, 5, Greece, 6, Rome and its Eastern portion Greece, or Mohammedanism, subsequently Turkey, 7. Dan. vii and viii.

Every nation emanated from the original. Israel (as a nation) alone called out by GOD. Exod. xix, 5, 6.

Now notice in Rev. iii, 22, is the last place where the word CHURCHES occurs until after the struggle and the victory of the Kingdom of the man-child. Rev. xii, as in xix, 7–9. Then in xxii, 16, the word "Churches" occurs again. Notice the peculiarity of Rev. iii, 20, 21, with Luke xii, 36, 37.

6.—Israel passes through the image of Dan. ii, 43, but does not mix with the iron. "We are the clay and THOU our Potter." Isa. lxiv, 8; Rom. ix, 21–24. Israel the ten-tribed nation were mixed among the Gentiles. Hos. viii, 8; ix, 17; Amos ix, 8–10; see Jer. xviii and xix for the two Houses.

Israel comes into the Isles of the North and West. Isa. xli, etc.; Jer. xxxi, 1–11. Here they found Grace, and as a Nation are separate under the New Covenant with the throne of David. Jer. xxxiii, 17 to end.

This is the Stone cut out of the mountain (Europe) as geologists will affirm, probably at the time of Uzziah, King of Judah.

Israel also, by passing into these Islands as a nucleus before the separation of Britain from Europe, has had a King on the throne from before the fall of Babylon, 583 B.C. Babylon fell in 536.

Also in Ireland the dynasty of Judah was reigning long before the Union of David's line with Eochaid Heremon of Ulster. Rome never ruled over Ireland or even set her foot there.

As a kingdom we are not one of the ten Kings which were established subsequent to A.D. 476. Rome never ruled the Angles or the Saxons.

7.—In Rev. xvii the last head of the beast, the eighth head is ἐκ "out of" the seven, or is a separate entity but was originally within the boundaries of the four Kings, but not of the ten latter, but these ten horns (or kingdoms) give their power and strength to the beast—the eighth head—"until the words of God are fulfilled." On the other side are those with the Lamb, who were called in Abraham, chosen in Israel and faithful to Christ.

If there is any meaning in Rev. iii, 20–21, with Luke xii, 36, 37, compared with Rev. iii, 10, and Matt. xxv, 10, it surely means that the great temptation coming will purify and make white those who have been misled by the "Churches" or who have not listened to what the SPIRIT has said. Notice also that of those sealed in Rev. vii, there are 12,000 out of Judah also that escaped out of the Roman earth; these appear in Rev. xiv with the Lamb upon Mount Zion and are working before CHRIST gathers in His harvest for His Kingdom.

As there are some of Judah saved, so by analogy there will be some of Israel lost. For "all the sinners of my people shall be destroyed," but of those brought through "THY people shall be all righteous, the righteous nation which keepeth the Truth."

This may appear confusing, but we must remember the fiery trial which is to try every one of us. And this will lead us to GOD.

I have endeavoured to be constructive, as to answer fully all your difficulties would take another volume of explanation.

Yours in Christ and the Hope of Israel,

L. G. A. ROBERTS.

Digitized by Google

EXPOSITIONS IN THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

BY THE REV. JOSEPH GAY, A.T.S.

V.—THE FIRST MIRACLE.

(Acts iii, 1.)

"Now Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour."

Never since the world began had there been such an immediate response to any appeal as that which came as the result of St. Peter's appeal on the day of Pentecost. It was estimated that three thousand souls received "his word, and were baptized," by water? it is not clear, but surely by the Holy Ghost, and were added to the disciples. "And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles."

The first of such signs to be recorded is the healing of the beggar man at the beautiful gate of the Temple. St. Peter and St. John were going up to the Temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour. It was very natural that these two men should be so closely associated, for had they not shared together some unique and important experiences during the earthly ministry of their Master? No two men were so complementary the one of the other than these two. "St. Peter's practical force and eye for externals, and St. John's more contemplative nature and eye for the unseen, needed one another. So we find them together in the judgment hall, at the sepulchre, and here."

It was the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour. It was the hour when their Master had cried, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" It was the hour when He had drunk to the dregs the cup which His Father had given Him to drink, and yielded up His Spirit. It was the hour of prayer. O! bitter irony! it was the hour when the veil of the Temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; when the earth did quake, and the rocks were rent, and the tombs were opened. Doubtless they remembered all this as they journeyed together that day towards the Temple, and now that they had well in hand the resultant fact of Pentecost, their hearts were made glad and their faith was established. The atmosphere which memory had thus created round about them, and the power which the Holy Ghost had imparted to them, made this miracle of healing the most natural thing in the world. Under these circumstances, it seems to me, we must revise our definition of miracle. Miracle is not the suspension of natural law, but its confirmation and extension. We speak, somewhat loosely at times, of the laws of nature. What we really mean by that phrase is the laws of nature as we know them. But who can determine the sphere or extent of their operation? Are all the laws of nature known to us? That which transcends all human experience we are disposed to call miracle; hence our fathers were disposed to call that a miracle which we now know to be but the application of natural law, because we have experiences which were unknown to them. Our ignorance, or limited knowledge of the vast range of the universe, of the relation of mind and will to material instruments, render it presumptuous to regard miracles as contrary to those laws of nature which may include them. There is room in nature surely for freedom of action by the Divine as by the human will, without infringing on the so-called laws of nature.

Now when all is said along this line it remains an indisputable fact that miracle is the sign of God's direct wonder-working power exercised always for man's salvation, for the ultimate triumph of good and the final overthrow of evil. We return therefore to our former statement: The atmosphere which memory had created round about these men, and the power which the Holy Ghost had imparted to them, made this miracle of healing the most natural thing in the world.

Let us now proceed to view this most important event from three standpoints: (a) The standpoint of the disciples who wrought the miracle; (b) The standpoint of the man upon whom the miracle was wrought; (c) The standpoint of the world who saw the miracle wrought and who did not deny its validity, though very many were concerned, in those early days, to destroy Christianity.

THE DISCIPLES WHO WROUGHT THE MIRACLE.

They were the happy possessors of the fulfilment of a great promise which Jesus Christ, their Lord and Master, had made to them. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." By virtue of that power they wrought this miracle of healing.

St. Peter, as usual, took speech in hand while St. John is a silent participant. "Look on us," said he. The beggar looked up expectant. There was only one thing he could have expected, and that was money. It was all he asked for, and until this hour it was all he got from the passing throng as they entered the Temple. He had asked an alms. If he had not definitely asked in all likelihood St. Peter and St. John would have passed on into the Temple as at former times without noticing him particularly. But he asked, and so St. Peter was ready to give. They had no money to give and he frankly confessed that they had none. No doubt the beggar now looked at them with a curious eye. To him and all his kind, not always beggars by the way, there is no gift without a cash value. What in the world do these men mean asking me to look up at them when they have no money to give? "He gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them."

"Silver and gold have I none: but such as I have give I thee." ". . . such as I have." That is an unfortunate translation. The R.V. is better: ". . . what I have." He did not say, "such as I have," as if he had something to give him secondary and inferior to money. "What I have." The tone is exultant and confident. The power he possessed, and the gift he was about to bestow in consequence of that possession, were far and away more precious than wealth. So thought the beggar when, receiving the gift by virtue of the power, and aided by the friendly hand of the Apostle stretched out toward him as he spoke, he stood up upon his feet, "walking, leaping, and praising God."

I have already pointed out that the first disciples possessed this power of working wonders and signs as a direct result of the coming of the Holy Ghost into their lives. The wonders and signs, however, are not wrought in the Name of the Holy Ghost, but in the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth. "In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk."

Digitized by Google

Wonders and signs therefore are a witness to the healing power of Jesus. They are therefore the natural corollary to the personal witness of the individual Christian man or woman, at any rate as far as the Apostolic age is concerned; some of us are bold enough to believe that it would still remain so if we only had the experimental faith which that early Christian Church possessed.

The disciples wrought miracles in the Name of Jesus. In whose Name did Jesus work miracles? In His own Name. That is a most important fact. Just as He spake with authority and not as the scribes, so He wrought with the same authority. Just as He was Himself the word He spake, so He was the power He manifested. And yet in all this He never ceased to glorify the Father Who was the great first cause of all things. St. John sets forth the relationship of Jesus to God in much detail in the 5th chapter of his Gospel. I will quote a few verses here and there. The reading of that whole chapter would well repay you.

Verse 17:—"My Father worketh hitherto and I work."

Verse 19:—"Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He seeth the Father do: for what things soever He doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise."

Verse 20:—"For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth Him all things that Himself doeth: and He will shew Him greater works than these, that ye may marvel."

Verse 23:—"He that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father which hath sent Him."

Verse 43:—"I am come in My Father's name, and ye receive Me not: if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive."

The disciples wrought their miracles in the Name of Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ wrought His miracles in His own Name, at the same time recognizing His vital Sonship in God. The Holy Ghost was sent into the world by Jesus Christ, God's Son. Is it not therefore clear that, through the agency of the disciple, by the power of the Holy Ghost, the Father is glorified by the continuance of the life of His Son in the world? If that be true, then there is only one thing, it seems to me, which stands in the way of these self-same Apostolic works being wrought to-day for the blessing of mankind, and as a witness to the eternal life of Jesus, and that is the hesitation of the disciple himself, amounting almost to unbelief, to put into effective operation the power which Christ, having once bestowed, has never withdrawn.

THE MAN UPON WHOM THE MIRACLE WAS WROUGHT.

He was a beggar, lame from his birth, who had been carried for many years by his friends, or probably by his relatives, and placed there at the beautiful gate of the Temple to display his helplessness to the people as they entered the Temple. In this way he earned a precarious living for himself, and it may be also for his relatives. The cynic would suggest that in healing him St. Peter had done him a bad turn, since he had thus robbed him of his means of subsistence. The beggar, however, did not so regard it. Aided by the outstretched hand of the Apostle, he stood for a moment or two to balance himself; then, feeling physical strength flow through his impotent limbs, he began to walk, a thing he had never done before in all his life. The joy of this entirely new experience filled his soul, and he went from walking to leaping, praising God as he went. A strange sight! The decorous who, with solemn stride and downcast countenance, walked with becoming dignity consonant with an approach to the Temple worship, would be shocked at such an exhibition of levity. It was a matter of indifference as far as the healed beggar was concerned what they thought of him. The healed soul has but one mood, ecstatic; one spirit, the spirit of praise; one joy, the joy of a pure and sinless life.

History speaks of him no more, but one thing is I think certain, such an one could be henceforth none other than a believer in, and a follower of, the living Jesus through Whom he had been made whole. Now this man is brought into the sacred narrative because of what followed as the direct result of his spectacular healing. It was bound to have a mighty effect upon the multitude who knew him to be the lame beggar. St. Peter took occasion by the hand and, with this living text, preached his second sermon with even greater power and unction than his first. Again he addresses himself to the men of Israel. Once more he charges home upon them their tremendous crime in slaying the Holy One and the Just. This preacher does not mince matters. There is no compromise in his speech. With a directness which only he can know who is guided and controlled by the Holy Spirit of God, he drives home their guilt and transgression upon them.

"The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified His Son Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied Him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let Him go." (Acts iii, 13.) Ye killed the Prince of life. God raised Him up so that, having tasted death, He could die no more, and by the Name of that everliving Prince this man is made whole. Mark once again how this preacher links on the stupendous fact of the resurrected Jesus with the fulfilment of all prophecy, thus establishing the truth. Yes! the very truth of the Old Testament Scriptures which, in these days, our modernist scholars would deny. "But those things, which God before had shewed by the mouth of all His prophets, that Christ should suffer, He hath so fulfilled." (Verse 18.)

Repentance must be the outcome of such preaching, and the appeal for repentance is simply irresistible. "Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed. Unto you first God, having raised up His Son Jesus, sent Him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities." (Verses 25, 26.)

THE MULTITUDE WHO SAW THE MIRACLE WROUGHT.

Now it was estimated that five thousand men believed, having heard the word. From the standpoint of the rulers, and the Sadducees more especially, this was indeed a very serious business. Whereunto would this thing grow? It must be stopped at all costs. It was not a question with them as to whether it was the truth or no. It was a challenge to their authority and they could not ignore it. The enemies of the faith, in spite of themselves, gave the Apostle a third opportunity to preach his Gospel, and that in the very citadel of authority, the Sanhedrim. I am amazed at the courageous boldness of this one-time denier of his Lord. It would seem as if the memory of his betrayal in that selfsame judgment hall, and before those selfsame rulers, urged him to swing the pendulum as far in the opposite direction as possible. As we read his utterance before the rulers of Israel, all of a piece with his previous utterances before the people of Israel, we realize how determined this man was to bring home to the entire nation their national transgression in crucifying the Lord of Glory. This preacher was delivering a message not so much to the individual as to the nation. Israel had reached the deepest depths of degradation when she handed over her Messiah to the heathen. Israel's denial of her Lord was aggravated because it had been done in the presence of a heathen ruler, Pilate, and in spite of the fact that he, knowing Him to be innocent, sought to release Him. They hounded on that Roman to an illegal killing, which was murder as laid to his account, but national apostasy as laid to theirs.

Digitized by Google

"Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by Him doth this man stand here before you whole. This is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner. Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." (Chapter iv, 10-12.)

"The humble fisherman," writes Dr. Maclaren, "had been filled with the Spirit, Who is the Strengthener, and the fear of man was dead in him. If we had never heard of Pentecost, we should need to invent something of the sort to make intelligible the transformation of these timid folk, the first disciples, into heroes. A dead Christ, lying in an unknown grave, could never have inspired His crushed followers with such courage, insight, and elastic confidence and gladness in the face of a frowning world." How very true!

But the miracle was wrought that God might testify to the power of His living Son. With this fact I would close this present treatise. The attitude of the nation and the silence of its rulers proves the validity of the wonders and signs which were wrought by the disciples of Jesus. Though the numbers which believed were great, they were, unfortunately, but a fraction of the whole. If these signs and wonders had been spurious, how gladly would those who were bent on the destruction of Christianity have seized hold upon them as proofs positive that Jesus was a base impostor, and His followers deluded fools.

We may deny miracle, but those who lived in those miracle-working days could not. The supreme miracle of the resurrection of Jesus went unchallenged by the nation at the time when, above all other times, it ought to have been challenged if it had not been true. The rulers were silent upon it because they could not deny it. Failing there, they could not deny the wonders and signs which followed as the natural and inevitable outcome of that unchallenged miracle. What they could not do in the day when it happened we cannot do now two thousand years after the event. It is for Israel to-day to accept that which could not be denied in the day of its happening, and rejoice in the blessing of freedom and liberty which always comes in the wake of that faith which the Holy Ghost inspires.

"Ye are Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise." "If we walk in the light as He is in the light we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanseth us from all sin."

THE SECRET OF BRITAIN'S STRENGTH.—II.

BY THE LATE REV. PHILIP YOUNG, L.TH.
(formerly Dean of Nassau).

M. PAUL DU CHAILLU, in a very remarkable work, "The Viking Age," in which he discusses the early history, manners and customs of the ancestors of the English-speaking races, gives us, in his preface, the following eloquent tribute:—

"In studying," he says, "the progress made in the colonization of different parts of the world by European nations, I have often asked myself the following questions: How is it that over every region of the globe the spread of the English-speaking people, and of their language, far excels that of all the other European nations combined? Why is it that wherever the English-speaking people have settled, or are at this day found, even in small numbers, they are far more energetic, daring, adventurous and prosperous, and understand the art of self-government, and of ruling alien nations, far better than other nations? Whence do they derive this remarkable energy? What are the causes which have made the English so pre-eminently a sea-faring people? for without such a characteristic they could not have been the founders of so many states and colonies speaking the English tongue?

"In studying the history of the world, we find that all the nations which have risen to high power and widespread dominion have been founded by men endowed with great, or, I might say, fierce and terrible energy. The mighty sword, with all its evils, has thus far always proved a great engine of civilization. To obtain a satisfactory answer to the above questions, we must go far back and study the history of the race who settled in Britain during and after the Roman occupation. We shall thus find why their descendants are so brave and energetic, and why they are so skilled in the art of self-government. To the numerous warlike and ocean-loving tribes of the North, the ancestors of the English-speaking people, we must look for the transformation that took place in Britain; and we may recognize to-day in their descendants the same traits of character which these old Northerners possessed. The impartial mind, which rises above the prejudice of nationality, must confess that no country will leave a more glorious impress upon the history of the world than England. Her work cannot be undone; should she to-day sink beneath the seas which bathe her shores, her record will for ever stand brilliantly illuminated on the page of history. The great states which she has founded, which have inherited her tongue and which are destined to play a most important part in the future of civilization, will be witnesses of the mighty work which she, as the mother of nations, has accomplished."

Well does M. du Chaillu say that to find a satisfactory answer to these questions bearing upon the phenomenal growth and power of England "we must go far back and study the history of the race," which has issued in its strength from the British Isles to colonize the world.

Digitized by Google

But "how far back" must we go; at what precise period of history shall we call a halt; and what is the precise locality which gives us historic foothold and guidance in our study?

These are important questions. Here it is that the fortunes of Israel and of the Anglo-Saxon pivot. Here, too, we reach the central point of our inquiry.

The story of the origin of the Anglo-Saxon race involves questions so grand, so far-reaching, questions which, "sweeping on beside the stream of prophecy, map out the scheme of man's remotest future," that the veriest sketch may not be without its value.

We are not, let it be understood, the mixed race which many people seem to think. Perhaps the satire of De Foe may be in some degree responsible for conclusions which are erroneous. "With easy pains, you may distinguish your Anglo-Saxon, Danish, Norman English."

However, Professor Thierry assures us in his history of the Norman Conquest that "the Danes, Jutes, Angles, Normans, Saxons, all sprang from one primitive stock."

Sharon Turner, perhaps the greatest authority upon the history of the Anglo-Saxons that we have, with conspicuous ability traces the race back step by step, across the Continent of Europe, back and back till ancient Assyria is reached, and there the trace is lost. He says: "Of the various (so-called Scythic) nations which have been recorded, the Sakai or Sacæ are the people from whom the descent of the Saxons may be inferred, with the least violation of probability. . . . . It is also important to remark that Ptolemy mentions a Scythian people, sprung from the Sakai by the name of Saxons."

It is essential to remember that it was to ancient Assyria that God's chosen people, Israel, were carried captive. It is now that we see the two ends of a wonderful chain linked together. And from this point we must bear in mind that we are considering the history of a people who were, and still are, the subjects of Divine prophecy.

We have gone far back. But not yet do we see granted a patent of nobility. I trust that the succeeding arguments in this chapter will make it undeniably plain that the Anglo-Saxon race has not only a record beyond all others marvellous, but also an origin truly noble.

Quite clearly, then, our present effort is to show that an ethnic unity exists between the Anglo-Saxon race and Israel of old. It is not the mere fanciful tracing out of a curious question, nor is it a theory holding no higher ground than that of a modern speculation. It is the investigation of a birthright claim—a claim withal of such surpassing magnitude, that the issues involved are of world-wide interest.

I am, of course, aware that the attitude of not a few towards this question is one of persistent ridicule. The bare idea that it should be possible for any identity to be established is treated with scorn and banter. I venture to assert that no one can maintain that attitude who has brought to bear upon the subject earnest prayer and the desire to know the truth. He may arrive at a conclusion different from that of the author; but ridicule, first and last resource of ignorance and of prejudice, will have gone for ever.

Others there are who say: "It can make little or no difference whether the theory be true or not."

Is it nothing, then, that the honour of God be upheld? Is it nothing that the Old Testament be rightly understood? Is it nothing to an unbelieving world if it can be proved that God all through the ages past has been fulfilling prophecy after prophecy, in the history of His people—the Anglo-Israel race? It is the glory of God to finish a work. Is it nothing to us that He should complete, in the national life, the great national work to which He has put His hand? If only the doubtful or the sceptical would thoroughly investigate; if they would do this at any sacrifice of time or of pre-conceived opinions, they would find their reward to be as rich as it would be surprising.

In Bunyan's autobiography, he tells us how the mere thought that perhaps the English people might be the descendants of the "lost children of Israel" held him entranced. In his "Grace Abounding," he says: "Another thought came into my mind whether we were of the Israelites or no. For finding in the Scriptures that they were once the people of God, thought I, if I were of this race my soul must needs be happy."

Had this remarkable man known the evidence which has come to light in these last days, how full to overflowing his heart would have been. We may well believe that, with all his matchless power and the force of his strong conviction, he would have pleaded with the nation that it should take up the study of this great subject and learn to know itself.

But if, it may be asked, the Anglo-Saxons be what you claim for them, why have they remained so long in ignorance of their own origin and high destiny? How could the nation be what it is and yet know not from whence it sprang?

There must be an answer to these questions, a Biblical answer, and it shall be found.

May I be allowed the remark that time does not alter the value of a promise which comes from God? Centuries may pass, but a promise holds good unless it has been specifically abrogated. It is well to remember this, for the popular conception is that the facts of Old Testament history are of little value in the twentieth century.

In tracing this out, though very briefly, we are met by the following facts:—

Some four thousand years ago, God chose Abraham to be the "Heir of the World" and the spiritual father of the Church of God, opening out to him a magnificent vision of what material and spiritual blessings should flow from him.

E.g., "Now the Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing" (Genesis xii, 1, 2). "And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (verse 3).

Again, after a matchless faith and obedience: "And the Angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time, and said, By Myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son: that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore ; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies ; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed ; because thou hast obeyed my voice." (Genesis xxii, 15-19.)

Digitized by Google

Never, in the wide range of history, has there sprung from one single act of faith and obedience a blessing of such surpassing magnitude. Extending century upon century, its glory not dimmed, but brightening as the years rolled on, the world has received it, blind though it is for the most part to the cause which gave it birth.

"By Myself have I sworn." In such unique phrase does God seek to impress the Oriental mind ; and then, as if to make assurance doubly sure, He transmits the covenant blessings to Isaac and to Jacob.

To Isaac—"In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." (Genesis xxvi, 4.)

To Jacob—"And in thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." (Genesis xxviii, 14.)

It has been well said that on the first of these promises Gal. iii, 8 is a comment. "And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the Gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed." Gal. iii, 16 is explanatory of the second. "Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many ; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ." The phrases, "in thee," "in thy seed," must, standing alone, be, by the ruling of the Apostle, referred to Christ. But when used conjointly, as in the blessing to Jacob, they demand a distinct consideration. The phrase, "in thy seed," emphatically refers to Christ. But the phrase, "in thee," must be regarded as having reference to the literal seed of Israel. We are thus shown that, while Christ is the fount of blessing to Israel and the Gentiles alike, through the Gospel, it is the special and ordained function of the literal seed to disseminate the knowledge of the Gospel throughout the world.

Of the accuracy of this reasoning there can be, I think, no possible doubt ; and presently we shall see that it is this splendid mission which God has entrusted to ten-tribed Israel. The Jews, i.e., Judah and Levi, on the contrary, by their rejection of Christ, being unable to accomplish so spiritual a work. It is a double vision : first the natural, then the spiritual. It is God's law.

Abraham, it may be said, lived long enough to see the beginnings of fulfilment. In the light of revelation and of history, we may see how Abraham's descendants are inheriting the blessings, material as well as spiritual.

It should be clear, then, that the promises given to Abraham were transmitted to Isaac, to Jacob, and to his seed, and are operative for all time. They have never been abrogated.

Now from Jacob came the twelve patriarchs, the tribes of the Children of Israel—a people whom God declared to be His inheritance, His chosen servants, His peculiar treasure, His possession. From the time of Moses until the death of Solomon they were one united nation. Then came the disruption. The ten tribes broke away northward to Samaria under Jeroboam ; the House of Judah, comprising the tribes of Judah and Levi, with the addition for 800 years of Benjamin, made up the southern kingdom, with the seat of government at Jerusalem.

Three or four hundred years pass, and the northern kingdom of Israel is carried away captive to Assyria, while 134 years later Judah passes to its own captivity in Babylon. Remaining in Babylon in strict fulfilment of prophecy for seventy years, they returned to their own land, in number, then, about 50,000. There they continued till the day of our Lord ; and when they, in unbelief, "slew the Lord of Glory," the judgment fell ; and the unexampled horrors of the Roman siege left comparatively few remaining. Those few were to suffer expatriation, were dispersed among the nations, and are so dispersed to-day.

Returning now to the northern kingdom, we see how, for its idolatry, the whole nation fell also under the wrath of God. "And so was Israel carried away out of their own land to Assyria unto this day." (2 Kings xvii, 23.) The northern kingdom never returned to Palestine, nor as yet have the two kingdoms been reunited.

Where may we look for this chosen race of God to-day ?

"Thus saith the Lord, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night. . . . . If those ordinances depart from before Me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before Me for ever." (Jeremiah xxxi, 35, 36.)

Dark, chequered, and prolonged has been the fate which has overtaken the chosen race. Nevertheless, God has never ceased to love it, never ceased to preserve and bless it, nationally, not less than individually.

Happy is it for this people that their judgment was for a time only. They were to be reinstated, taken back into the Divine favour and into covenant relationship. Over Israel God has thrown a veil of obscurity. But it is He Himself Who lifts the veil, and shows us how all through the ages He has loved and guided this ancient race.

How easy to follow the track of the Jews ! Never lost, never swallowed up, always in evidence, always to be few in numbers, prospering more or less till the day of Christ's Advent, when He came to seek and to save ; then long years of persecution, "the blood of Christ being on them and on their children," as it is even to this day.

But larger Israel—Israel of the Ten Tribes—how different has been their fortune ! Where are they now ? What work are they doing for God and for His world ?

The nation exists : that is clear, if naught else were clear. "The seed of Israel shall not cease from being a nation before God for ever." And yet for centuries it has been hidden—hidden, not in the sense of occupying some remote corner of the world ; but, blind to its own origin, the nation has been accomplishing in the world everything which God has designed for it to do.

Now the veil cast over Israel was of three folds.

They were to be called by another name.

"I said, Behold Me, behold Me, unto a nation that was not called by My name." (Isaiah lxv, 1.)

In the same chapter we have : "The Lord God shall slay thee (Judah), and call his servants (Israel) by another name." (v. 15.)

Their language should be changed. "For with stammering

Digitized by Google

lips and another tongue will He speak to this people." (Isaiah xxviii, 11.)

Their religion should be also changed. They were to be divorced from the Mosaic Law. "She is not my wife, neither am I her husband." (Hosea ii, 2; Isaiah l, 1.)

The opening chapters of Hosea's prophecy have a special interest here, for they show us the origin of a phrase so familiar to modern ears: "The lost Ten Tribes."

"Then, said God, call his name Lo-Ammi, for ye are not My people, and I will not be your God. Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered, and it shall come to pass that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not My people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land; for great shall be the day of Jezreel." (Hosea i, 9-11.)

Thus do we see God's repudiation of the Ten Tribes. They were to be "Lo-Ammi," not My people; they were to be no longer the children of the Covenant. They were to be "cast off," to lose name, and language, and religion, and as a people were to be placed historically out of view, and "left alone."

It was a calamity. It was a judgment. But God's purposes of blessing were never forgotten.

"Ye are not My people."—"Ye are the sons of the Living God."

If we have the negative, we have also the positive.

Nevertheless, how many centuries ere the one gives way to the other, and the nation attains the growth and power which are to proclaim it the most favoured nation of the world. It was a wondrous future which lay before the chosen race, and already in that race have the words of Isaiah's prophecy been fulfilled: "I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known; I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them." (Isaiah xlii, 16.)

Again: "Thus saith the Lord God, although I have cast them far off among the heathen, and although I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them as a little sanctuary in the countries where they shall come."

"I will even gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel." (Ezekiel xi, 16-17.)

Till this shall come to pass God declares that He will be to Israel as a little sanctuary. When it is come to pass, it will be as "life from the dead."

It was not, as we know, God's intention that Israel should remain in the land of their captivity, nor did they so remain. They migrated. "They shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east, they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the Lord." (Amos viii, 12.) And of the great day of national restoration to their own land, it has been said, "It shall no more be said, The Lord liveth, that brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; But, The Lord liveth, that brought up the children of Israel from the land of the north, and from all the lands whither He had driven them." (Jeremiah xvi, 14-15.)

This is in accordance with a promise given long before, when as yet Israel had not suffered deportation, but were settled in Palestine; Israel and Judah together under King David. "Moreover," God said, "I will appoint a place for My people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as before time." (2 Samuel vii, 10.)

Now this appointed place was to be an island home; north and west from Palestine, the seat of prophecy, a wilderness to which she was to be allured by God. "Therefore, behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her." (Hosea ii, 14.)

Here she was to renew her strength: "Keep silence before Me, O islands, and let the people renew their strength; . . . . then let them speak." (Isaiah xli, 1.)

JERASH—THE CITY OF ANCIENT CHURCHES.

EXCAVATIONS IN THE OLD CAPITAL OF GILEAD.

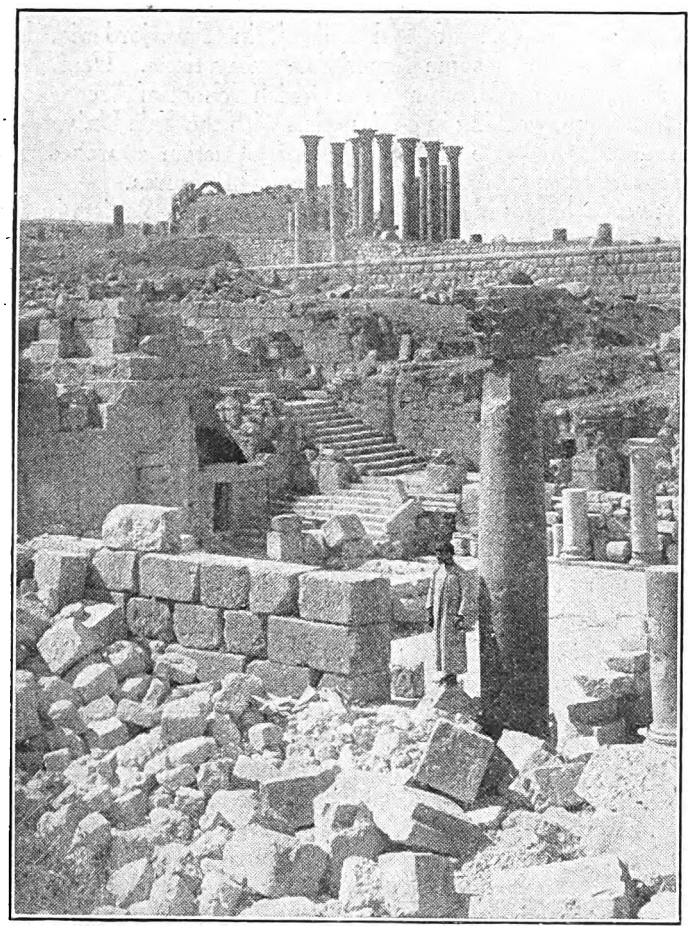
The riddle of its spring where the water was turned into wine on the anniversary of the miracle of Cana in Galilee.

By HAROLD J. SHEPSTONE, F.R.G.S.

JERASH, the capital of Old Gilead, in Transjordania, has been the scene of some remarkable excavations. Here, Mr. J. W. Crowfoot, Director of the British School of Archæology in Jerusalem, working in conjunction with the Yale University, has unearthed some of the oldest of Christian churches and discovered many interesting ecclesiastical treasures.

It was a happy idea on the part of the archæologists in the Holy City to devote attention to the ruins in Transjordania, for the district is rich in ruins dating back to Roman times and beyond. In addition to Jerash with its ancient churches, we have the "rose-red city of Petra, half as old as time"; El Kerak, one of the great overpowering Crusaders' fortresses, the wonder and admiration of all beholders; and Amman, with its Roman amphitheatre and other survivals of two thousand years ago.

This was the territory given over to the tribes of Manasseh, Gad and Reuben, because of the multitude of their cattle; and to-day Transjordania is a great cattle-raising and wheat-growing country. As a frontier land it was the first to suffer from the invasion of eastern conquerors; and the Gileadites were the first of the Israelites to be carried away into captivity. Gilead is mentioned many times in the Old Testament; and many of the great Bible heroes come from here, including Elijah the Prophet.



Jerash, the site of the present excavations, lies some twenty miles east of the River Jordan, on the northern affluent of the Brook Jabbok. According to legend the city was founded by Alexander the Great, and later rebuilt by the Syrian kings of Antioch. It was captured by Alexander Jannaeus, the Maccabean King, to be subsequently liberated by Pompey. It was destroyed by an earthquake in 657, and the spot remained untenanted for upwards of 1,200 years, when a body of Circassians, seeking refuge in Turkey from Russian oppression, were planted here by Abdul Hamid in 1878.

Digitized by Google

The Roman ruins of Jerash—for there is no doubt that the city was at the height of its splendour during Roman rule—such as the Forum, theatre, and colonnaded street that ran across the city from east to west, are fairly well known. But the object of the excavations was to learn something of its ancient churches. We know this that many of them were built on the site of pagan temples, for at one time the inhabitants of Jerash worshipped Baal. Gradually this heathen worship was superseded by Christianity, and Jerash not only became a centre of great religious activity, but the seat of a bishopric. The old chroniclers continually allude to the churches of Jerash, and Epiphanius; a bishop and writer of the fourth century speaks of a spring at Jerash at which water was turned into wine on the anniversary of the miracle at Cana in Galilee, and the excavators declare they have found this spring.

Evidently the citizens of Jerash built their churches in groups of twos and threes, and all quite close together. Furthermore, they occupied the central position in the town. Four sections or groups of churches have been uncovered, dating from the fifth or sixth century.

The first group, located near the city wall, contains a church dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, and is of the usual Byzantine type—a basilica with two side aisles ending in a triple apse. Mosaics of great interest were found here, and also a picture map of the city, with the names Alexandria and Pharos. To the south of the site there was discovered another church on a lower level, partly hollowed out of the rock, leading to a cave. An inscription found here would indicate that it was a mortuary chapel.

JERASH. The court and church of St. Theodore and dependent sanctuaries in the foreground. Higher up is the Great Temple of Artemis looking N.W.

The Baptistry of the Church of St. Theodore, showing passageway from the robing room, past baptismal font and on to the main church. The Forum is seen in the distance.

The most notable feature in connection with the second group of churches unearthed is the discovery of the floor of a synagogue, only a few inches below the level of a church located to the rear of the Temple of Artemis. The mosaics of the synagogue floor, some of which were partly destroyed by the erection of the church above it, reveal an elaborate scene from Noah's Ark, and two heads of figures with the names Shem and Japhet, Noah's two sons, written in Greek. Here we have a representation of the Deluge. There was also found a Greek inscription, broken in part, which reads as far as preserved: "Amen. Sela. Peace to the Synagogue." Several Jewish symbols were also found, a representation of the seven-branched candlestick, the palm branch, and the Torah (Scroll of the Law), and also another inscription, reading: "Peace unto all Israel," followed by the names of the benefactors.

Jerash was known to be an outpost of Hellinism, with a mixed population containing a good proportion of Jews. To have found the remains of a synagogue would have caused little surprise. But here we have an instance of a Christian Church having been erected above, or on the site of a synagogue in the year 530. Such a discovery is rightly regarded as unique.

Digitized by Google

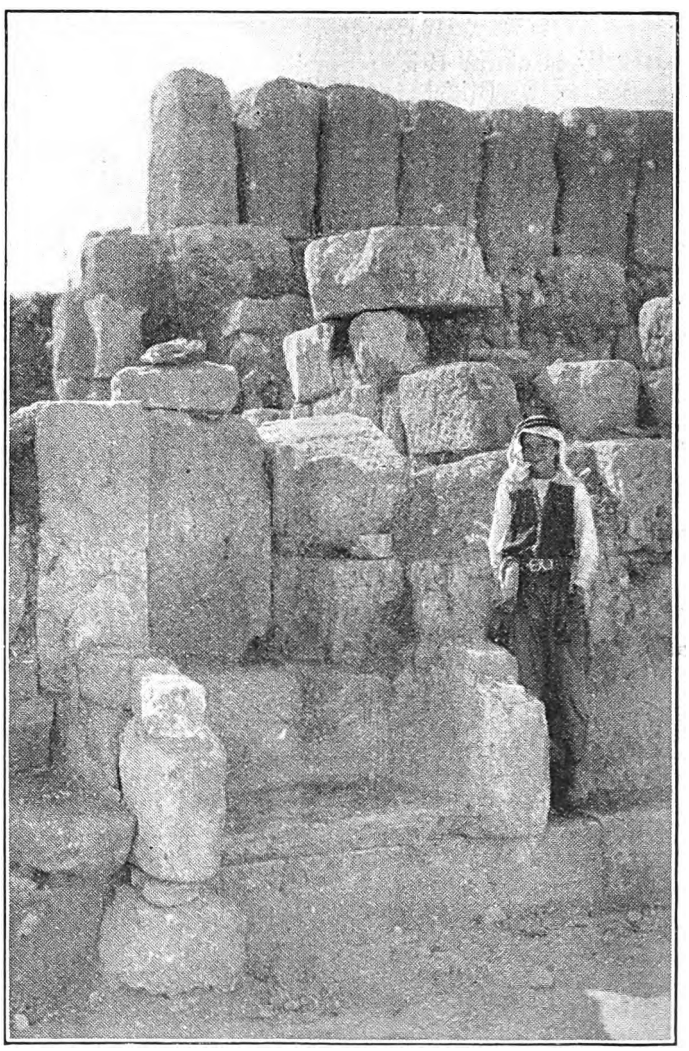
The third group of buildings to be uncovered include three churches with a common atrium, or vestibule, in front. The middle church is, in plan, a circle inscribed in a square, and is very similar in design to certain types of cathedrals. Its mosaics include representations of two cities, one of which contains the name of Alexandria. In the second of the group was found a Greek inscription with a dedication to St. George, and an excellent representation of a peacock, the symbol of life. This church as well as that of St. Cosmas and St. Damianus is of the usual basilica type with a circular apse.

The Church of St. Theodore, the excavation of which was begun last season, stands on the third and highest of the three levels rising from what was the main street of the city which was lined with columns. This building, together with another large church to its east and its side chapel, constitute the fourth group. From the evidence obtainable it is apparently the oldest of all the churches so far uncovered. Theodore was a great theologian and wrote commentaries on almost all the Books of Scripture. The church at Jerash, which was dedicated to his memory, was found to be rich in mosaics, while in addition remarkable inscriptions were found. One, valuable in that it gives data concerning dates, etc., at the west end of the church reads :



> " I am the undefiled house of victorious Theodore the immortal and godlike martyr, whose fame has flown o'er land and sea and the bounds of Ocean ; his body is in the earth, but his soul after his doom sped to the wide heaven where it for ever joins in the angelic choir, and abides a barrier against ill and an unageing defence to the city and the dwellers therein and its citizens yet to be. By the grace of God the foundation of the holy martyrion was laid in the month Dius in the third indiction, and the lintel went up in the month Dius in the fifth indiction in the year 559 (i.e., A.D. 496).

Detailed search, however, revealed the fact that this church was only part and not the oldest—or most important part—of a complex of ecclesiastical buildings extending five hundred feet from the wall of the atrium down to the colonnaded street of the city. One approached the church through three gigantic doors which led into the atrium, an irregular rhomboidal court, surrounded with an Ionic colonnade. Out of it opened a number of dwelling-rooms, many with mosaic floors, and all rich in domestic pottery. From the north end of this court three doors gave access to the main church, a three-aisled basilica, ending in a single apse lined with mosaics. The aisles were divided from the nave by two ranges of seven great Corinthian columns, which now lie tumbled higgledy-piggledy by the earthquake.

North of the church a narrow strip of ground divides it from the baths built forty years before. The east half of this serves as a passageway connecting with the church ; the west half is occupied by a little chapel whose walls were once lined with mosaic, and on whose floor a fine mosaic still survives. From the west of the church a corridor runs south, giving access to a second chapel, whose walls and floor were like those of the great church, lined with marble.

A little to the east of St. Theodore, and some sixteen feet below it, was found a stone-paved court surrounded on three sides with colonnades. On the west side it was dominated by the towering apse of St. Theodore's, flanked by two magnificent staircases, leading up to doors which opened eastwards from the aisles of the church. But east of the court was found the remains of another church which also had access to the court by staircases and passages.

Lying as it does between two great churches and connected with them and with the neighbouring streets by an elaborate system of passages and staircases, this court must have been a focus of great interest. In its centre stands a fountain, a simple square tank, from which the water flows into two semi-circular basins on the east and north sides. It was once surmounted by an arched baldachino which has collapsed. To the west it is joined to the apse by two arches fenced by low

A Bishop's Throne in the atrium of the Church of St. Theodore at Jerash, in Transjordania. Later it was evidently used as a manger, or trough for feeding horses, etc.

Digitized by Google

screens, and in the little chamber thus formed, against the east wall of the apse, is a marble throne.

This undoubtedly was the fountain or spring whose water turned into wine on the anniversary of the marriage at Cana in Galilee. But Epiphanius mentions this miracle as occurring in Gerasa or Jerash in 375, long before the Church of St. Theodore was built. Evidence would certainly show that the church was erected much later, for its apse is built over the paving slabs of the court. This miracle was, perhaps, Gerasa's chief claim to religious distinction.

Though much has been done in uncovering these early churches at Jerash the excavators declare that further research work is necessary before their task is finished and Gilead's old capital is made to divulge all its secrets.

ISRAEL AS A DEW.

(Micah v, 7.)

(LEAVES FROM MY NOTEBOOK.)

BY DANIEL FARMER.

IF the Press of the British Empire understood the position assigned to the British people, and, instead of devoting so much space to the doings of the criminal and degenerate few, their pages were used to set forth all that is highest and best in our national life, what an uplifting we should soon experience. As far back as A.D. 420 the then Bishop of London said: "We must so conduct ourselves as to show that blessed is the people whose God is the Lord, and the nation He hath chosen for Himself." In introducing the first Prince of Wales the Bishop of St. David's observed: "This is a young prince of the House of David, to sit upon the throne of Israel." That is exactly what the British-Israel-World Federation holds and teaches, viz., that we are the main part of the only people God ever selected in a national sense (Amos iii, 2), and that during this dispensation one phase of our influence "in the midst of many people" is to be as a healing, refreshing, restoring "dew." (Micah v, 7.) What a high and honourable position—what a call to every British man and woman to so conduct ourselves as members of an Empire more honoured of God than any before, and to see that our Flag is not disgraced at home or abroad.

THE DEW OF BRITISH JUSTICE.

John Stuart Mill, with his severe ethics and calm judgment, wrote: "We are the power which of all the world best understands liberty, and, whatever may have been our cross in the past, we have obtained to more conscience and moral principle in our dealings with foreigners than any other nation seems either to consider as possible, or recognize as desirable."

Could anything much higher be said about us? It was this deep appreciation of British justice which kept the Mohammedan peoples on our side, and the 360 Cameroon Chiefs of South Africa loyal to our throne, although offered by Germany an enormous sum to leave us—an offer made, and rejected, in one of our darkest hours in the Great War.

"I am not an Englishman," said Vambery, the great traveller, when writing to an influential native of Bengal, "nor do I ignore the shortcomings of the English rule in India . . . but I can assure you that England is far in advance of the rest of Europe in point of justice, liberality and fair dealing with all entrusted to her care." "The greatness of Britain is built on her splendid sense of justice," said Bishop Potter, of New York. This phase of National life was especially demanded of Israel in Old Testament times. (Micah vi, 8.)

THE DEW OF CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE.

When the Jews rejected our Lord the custody of the "Holy Oracles" was transferred to "another nation." (Matt. xxi, 43.)

We are that nation, and are in charge of both Old and New Testaments. It is a fact of history that England first received Christianity NATIONALLY. Montalembert wrote: "The Christianity of nearly half the world flows, or will flow, from the fountain which first burst forth on British soil." Between 1804 and 1920 the British and Foreign Bible Society issued 200 millions of Bibles, in part and in whole, in 517 languages. Out of some 24,000 missionaries about 22,000 are of Anglo-Saxon stock. What a God-honouring extension since Sir Walter Raleigh in 1588 gave £100 to the Virginia Company for the propagation of the Gospel in that settlement—or since the founding in Cromwell's day of "The Corporation for the Propagation of the Gospel in New England." Here, then, in the custody of the Bible, and the greatest promoters of its circulation, we recognize our identity.

THE DEW OF COLONIZATION.

God said of Israel that they were to be a people "to establish the earth, and to cause to inherit the desolate heritages," and "to make the wilderness and solitary places to rejoice and blossom as the rose." (Isa. xlix and xxxv.) This Israel never did in Old Testament times, and the Jews have never done in New Testament days; and the fact that the Anglo-Saxons alone, of all nations, have done so is another proof of our identity during the Christian dispensation. In Canada, where the Spaniards, in their hunt for gold, said "Aca nada," nothing here, modern Israel has forty million acres under cultivation, and the same result in varying degree is seen in Australia, with its 9,000 miles of coast-line, and its three million square miles, equal to Great Britain and Ireland multiplied by twenty-six; in New Zealand and South Africa Mr. G. H. Wells has said that "where one blade of grass grows, the coming of the British makes two spring up." How true this is has been shown since our recent occupation of Palestine and Mesopotamia.

THE DEW OF PHILANTHROPIC AND HUMANE LEGISLATION.

When our Lord announced His Messiahship He based it upon the philanthropic forecast stated by Isaiah. (Isa. lxi.) If nations are to be rewarded for kindness and consideration to the poor and needy (Matt. xxv), may we not confidently expect that, nationally, we shall be allowed a place in the Kingdom to which our Lord returns to purify and establish? Only Christianity considers the poor and sorrowful and degraded; all other religions more or less neglect them. Infidelity despises such. "We do not teach slaves and carters," sneered Voltaire. "What are you building, sonny?" asked a missionary of his little boy busy with a box of bricks. "A Christian village," replied the child. "Well now, build a heathen one," said his father. After a brief silence he removed the church, remarking, "We shall not need this, nor the school, nor the hospital." True! "The dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty." (Ps. lxxiv, 20.) Where should we have been to-day if, in the language of the same verse, God had not had "respect unto the covenant"?

Digitized by Google

In the legislation of Britain this humane spirit has been extended to the dumb creation. "A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast" (Prov. xii, 10), we read. The Albanians tell of how, when the British were in occupation, a kind-hearted sergeant often remonstrated with them for heartless treatment—but without effect, until one day he told his men to put the donkey into the shade and its owner in the sun, load him with the panniers, take away his water melon, and put the nose-bag on the donkey. It is said that overloaded and ill-treated donkeys were not seen again whilst the British were about.

"A man of kindness to his beast is kind;
But brutal actions show a brutal mind;
Remember, He Who made thee made the brute;
Who gave thee speech and reason, formed him mute.
He can't complain, but God's all-seeing eye
Beholds thy cruelty; He hears his cry;
He was designed thy servant, not the drudge;
Remember, his Creator is thy Judge."

Such was the gracious intention of Him Who said, "I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. . . . They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon." (Hosea xiv, 5-7.)

THE QUESTION OF THE CENTURIES—II.

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?"

I SUMMON thee, O Gladstone. "I am asked what a man should chiefly look to in his progress through life as to the power that is to sustain him under trials and enable him manfully to confront his afflictions. I must point to something which in a well-known hymn is called 'the old, old story,' and taught with an old teaching which is the best ever given to mankind. The older I grow the more confirmed I am in the belief that Jesus Christ is the only hope of humanity."

Note.—Gladstone gave to some enquirers the text which he himself read night and morning: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee."

"Before Abraham was I am." "I and My Father are one." "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father."

MACARTHUR.

Literary communications intended for the NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd., and for the COVENANT PUBLISHING Co., Ltd., should be typewritten, and bear the name and address of the sender, and be sent to

THE EDITOR, The NATIONAL MESSAGE, Ltd.,
6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Every care will be taken to return rejected manuscripts, but the Editors do not hold themselves responsible for loss or damage, nor can they undertake to return any manuscripts unaccompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

BY THE REV. G. H. LANCASTER, M.A.

QUESTION.—The meaning of Daniel xii, 7 is not very clear to me, "when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, etc." I understand that it means spread, distribute, etc. Does it seem in these difficult days that we are going to lose Palestine, India, etc., if only temporarily? The Press is clamouring for us to give up our Mandates in the Near and Middle East. If so, should we express such confidence in "no weapon that is formed against thee can prosper"?—ANON.

ANSWER.—There should not be any real difficulty attached to a general interpretation of the verses quoted by you. The Hebrew word in Dan. xii, 7 means literally "to dash to pieces," "be beaten in sunder," "cause to be discharged or dispersed," etc. It therefore follows that Israel ("the holy people") would not cease from being scattered until "time, times and an half" had been fulfilled. This latter period dates from the seventh century A.D., when Phocas uttered his famous decree in A.D. 607, after which the Papacy arose, and when Jerusalem was captured by Omar in 637.

Now this period of time has only begun to run out in modern days, although the full period of the seven times cannot expire until A.D. 1934, taking the 2,520 years by solar reckoning.

Israel is still being scattered in one sense, since the British Empire is still developing all over the world; yet in another sense the "scattering" has long since begun to cease, since the Promised Land is now practically in our possession.

It should therefore prove impossible for us to give up our Mandates, since we are bound to possess the Promised Land. It does not do to pay too much attention to "newspaper stunts." It is not a question of what the taxpayer says but what God says. Were we to give up our rule in India, that great Continent would immediately be in the throes of a terrible revolution, ghastly and unthinkable. No other country but Great Britain could keep the peace in Palestine as we have so far done, in spite of the recent troubles there. The Balfour Declaration was a political and war-time necessity, but it resulted in the Mandate being given to us, and as we have pledged ourselves to protect the Jews and the Arabs from each other, it is clear that we cannot give up our Mandates, in which respect we are fulfilling prophecy.

The promise in Isaiah liv, 17 remains unassailable, for history has proved again and again that no weapon formed against us can ever prosper. And we can rest assured that this wonderful promise will continue to be fulfilled. The dark clouds may hover overhead for a long while to come, but the present spirit of evil will be unable to triumph since the "sure word of prophecy" cannot fail, and is bound to be fulfilled.

"The unity of consciousness in human life is not forfeited by growth of knowledge, or by difference of circumstances, or by variety of experience. Novatian compares the unfolding of the mind of God in Revelation to the gradual breaking of the dawn, attempered as it is to the human eye, which after long hours of darkness could not have endured a sudden outflash of noonday sunlight."—CANON LIDDON.

Digitized by Google

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES.

ALL roads lead to London for British-Israelites next week, and we expect to see many contingents from the Provinces joining with members, supporters and enquirers in the Metropolis at the Central Hall, Westminster, in praising God for the blessings He has bestowed upon the great British-Israel Movement; in seeking new light on Holy Writ, and in encouraging each other in the work of proclaiming the Gospel of the Kingdom of God on earth.

We want this our Tenth Congress to be one never to be forgotten in the manifestation of the Presence and Power of the Holy Spirit; in the reality of Christian fellowship, and in unity and zeal for service. We feel sure that thousands all over the English-speaking world are praying for the Divine blessing upon next week's gatherings. We can assure all that no effort has been spared by the staff at Headquarters in the way of organization—for work must accompany prayer and faith.

Few can realize what thought, planning, labour and detail are involved in organizing the Congress year after year; the enormous amount of printed matter sent out, the vast correspondence, the heavy postage bills, the Press advertising costs, and the general publicity expenses. In no city in the world is organization and publicity more difficult and costly than in London, with all its distractions; and yet in this city naturally the greatest effort must be made, because this is the centre from which the British-Israel Message can most readily radiate to all parts of the world; the greater therefore is OUR privilege and responsibility. We beg that our readers will recognize this and act accordingly.

* * *

We are truly grateful to all who have so generously come forward in response to our appeal, and we feel confident that many others will respond, so that we may have all the help necessary for publicity and for our Forward Movement generally. Among the amounts in the past few days is a donation of £90 sent anonymously. We thank the generous donor most sincerely.

It is earnestly requested that all cheques and postal orders shall be made payable to B.-I.-W.F. and crossed "Midland Bank," and addressed to the Secretary-General, 6, Buckingham Gate, S.W.1. Letters containing notes should be registered, and preferably envelopes supplied by the Post Office should be used. Gifts large or small will be thankfully received.

* * *

The Clerical and Ministerial Conference will take place on Monday and Tuesday next at H.Q., at 11 a.m., under the chairmanship of the Rev. Pascoe Goard. The Congress opens at 2.45 in the Central Hall, Westminster, on Monday next, when programmes for the week will be on sale as usual; Major J. Knowles, President of the Federation, will preside, and the Rev. Pascoe Goard, Mr. John Leech, K.C., the Rev. Maxwell Carnson, of South Africa, and others will speak.

The Council will meet at 5.45 on Tuesday. The adjourned Annual Meeting for the election of new Council will be held on Friday, at 5.45.

Teas will be served at Headquarters each day.

Morning sessions for delegates will be held at 11 o'clock from Tuesday to Saturday. The evening public meeting on Saturday will take place in the Great Hall, Church House, Great Smith Street, Westminster. All other public meetings for the week in Central Hall. Congress Continuation Meetings will be held at Headquarters from October 7th to October 12th, at 2.45 and 7.30.

Cheap fares are available from September 28th to October 14th.

* * *

The inaugural meeting of the British-Israel Crusaders was held at H.Q. on Saturday afternoon, September 14th. It was very encouraging to see such a good gathering of young people, with older folk as sympathizers. Mr. John Leech, K.C., conducted the proceedings. Short speeches were given by him, Miss Hamilton Hunter, Mr. Herbert Garrison (Secretary-General), Miss Willmott and Mr. McKelvey, interspersed with singing. Twenty-five new members were enrolled. Tea was provided by the Committee.

* * *

We are glad to report that the Rev. Joseph Gay is making an excellent recovery from the effects of his accident.

* * *

Mrs. Wilson, of Sydney, New South Wales, wife of the Rev. J. T. Wilson, formerly of St. Albans, has arrived for the Congress. During the voyage from Australia round the Cape of Good Hope she gave a number of addresses on B.-I., which were cordially welcomed and aroused keen interest.

* * *

A lady member of the Council has kindly presented a clock for the entrance hall at H.Q.—a useful gift for which we are grateful.

* * *

Mr. John Leech has filled engagements for the Rev. Joseph Gay at Oxford and elsewhere. Mr. Morey has a full list of appointments. He will give two addresses at the Congress.

* * *

Mr. Garrison is giving two lectures at Bristol and one at Bath, this week.

* * *

The Vicar of a Church within the London area has asked that the Rev. Pascoe Goard shall preach for him on Armistice Sunday.

* * *

The Rev. T. Sparshott Johnson, M.A., has addressed an enthusiastic audience at Saxmundham on "The National Day of Thanksgiving and its significance." The meeting was arranged by Captain and Mrs. Garnett. Several well-known residents of the district were present. It was unanimously resolved to start a Branch of the Federation, and also a B.-I. Crusaders' Centre.

Mr. Johnson addressed the newly-formed Branch at Lowestoft on September 17th on "The Bible and World Dominion."

Digitized by Google

Commander Hugh McNeill Dill has consented to act as President, the Rev. J. Aston as Vice-President, and Miss Stubbing as Secretary. Some visitors attended from Yarmouth. We shall be glad to hear from any persons in either Saxmundham or Lowestoft districts who wish for literature, etc.

* * *

Mrs. J. S. Orpen, of Folkestone, an ardent British-Israelite and a devoted worker for the Cause, has passed on to the Heavenly Home in her 83rd year. Almost her last request was that we should send some literature to the clergyman who ministered to her for several months past. We tender our sympathy to her daughter and family.

* * *

The visit of Mr. Wm. Whitton to Walsall recently marks an epoch in the history of the Walsall Branch of the Federation. Many people heard the message for the first time at the homes of four of the members. About 125 listened eagerly to two addresses on the Sunday, and something like 700 to 800 were present at the six open-air meetings held in the centre of the town. The majority, both on Sunday and week-nights, were men. It was felt that, in answer to prayers, the message was received in most cases with willing hearts, and that permanent results will follow.

* * *

Southampton reports that they had excellent meetings on September 4th, when Mr. J. J. Morey gave two stirring addresses. The local Secretary states that the progress of the Movement is assured in Southampton if all work to the Glory of God.

* * *

On September 16th, at the Islington Branch meeting, the Rev. Sparshott Johnson dealt with the significance of the National Day of Thanksgiving. His audience was given many new points to think over.

* * *

Commencing in the issue of the week ending September 21st, the Watford "West Herts Post" is publishing fortnightly an article on British-Israel. Those interested should write to the Editor, "West Herts Post," Carey Lane, Watford, for copies, which are one penny, post paid three-halfpence.

* * *

Erratum.—In our issue of last week, page 607, in the last paragraph of the item "The Origin of the Bible," for "Latin writings" read "Hebrew writings."

* * *

"The Kentish Observer," of September 19th, gives a three-column report of Mr. Morey's lecture for our Canterbury Branch, in the County Hall, under the chairmanship of the Mayor, supported by Canon Watkins, M.A., and the Sheriff, Mr. W. R. Pierce.

* * *

C. A. writes:—"THE NATIONAL MESSAGE is a very fine paper, and I am delighted with the articles therein. It is always a pleasure to see it come into the house. It is a great educator and full of things that matter."

When Mrs. Travers (nee MacIntyre), widow of General James Travers, an Indian Mutiny V.C., celebrated her 100th birthday at her home, Bridge of Allan, recently, among the congratulations she received was the following letter sent on behalf of the King and Queen from Sandringham:—

"It has been brought to the notice of the King and Queen that to-morrow (Saturday) you will celebrate your hundredth birthday, and I am desired to convey to you Their Majesties' sincere congratulations and best wishes on the attainment of this venerable age.

"The King and Queen are much interested to hear of the distinguished military record of your family, and realize how very proud you must be that your husband and brother were awarded the Victoria Cross.

"Their Majesties trust that the remainder of your long and active life may be blessed with happiness and tranquillity."

Mrs. Travers' younger brother, the late Major-General Donald MacIntyre, was awarded the Victoria Cross in 1872 for gallantry in the expedition against the Lushais. Other members of Mrs. Travers' family rendered distinguished military service.

Mrs. Travers is a keen British-Israelite, and so was her husband.

* * *

The Annual Sale of Work in aid of the funds of the Federation will be held in the first week of December at H.Q. Gifts of articles of various kinds will be welcomed.

* * *

It is particularly requested that members and friends will kindly notify us of any change of address.

* * *

Helpful and interesting addresses were delivered at H.Q. last week by Lt.-Col. G. F. A. Smythe, President of our Dover Branch, and by Mr. L. W. Nock, President of our Barking Branch. Mr. Garrison presided on both occasions.

SOME ENGAGEMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK

BARKING, Municipal Restaurant, Friday, October 4th, at 8. Rev. O. Vince, B.A., B.D.

BELFAST, Kingham Hall, Botanic Avenue, Monday, September 30th, at 8.

CARDIFF, Y.M.C.A., Tuesday, October 1st, at 7.30.

CROUCH END and HORNSEY, Earl Haig Memorial Hall, Elder Avenue, Wednesday, October 2nd, at 8.

HARROW WEALD, Memorial Hall, High Road, Friday, October 4th, at 7.45. Rev. W. J. Gregory Bestall.

LEICESTER, S.S. Memorial Hall, New Walk, Tuesday, October 1st, at 7.45. Annual Meeting.

ST. ALBANS, C. of E. Church, Sunday, October 6th. Capt. E. Palmer Bott.

SHEFFIELD, Victoria Hall, Wednesday, October 2nd, at 7.30.

WESTMINSTER, Central Hall, Monday, September 30th to Friday, October 4th, at 2.45 and 7.30. Saturday, 5th, Central Hall, at 2.45, and Church House at 7.30.

Digitized by Google

B.-I. CONGRESS

Large Central Hall, Westminster

Monday, September 30th, to Saturday, October 5th, at 2.45 and 7.30

GREAT PUBLIC MEETINGS

MAJOR J. KNOWLES, O.B.E., will preside at the opening meeting.

Speakers announced in previous issues of this journal.

The meeting on Saturday Evening, October 5th, at 7.30, will be held in the GREAT HALL, CHURCH HOUSE, Great Smith Street, Westminster.

Among many intensely interesting and important subjects to be dealt with are :—

Events and Portents in Palestine, Egypt, Etc.

PAST AND PRESENT FULFILMENT OF PROPHECY.
THE MISSION AND DESTINY OF THE BRITISH RACE.
THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM.

Admission Free. All cordially invited. Reserved seats 2/-. Season ticket £1. Cheap railway fares. Vouchers for cheap fares from Sept. 28th to Oct 14th, and tickets for reserved seats, to be obtained from the—

SECRETARY-GENERAL, 6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

A FASCINATING

LECTURE

by

HERBERT GARRISON, F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

"CANADA"

AND SOME OF THE WONDERS OF THE UNITED STATES

Illustrated by a magnificent series of LANTERN PICTURES, MOSTLY IN COLORS

Central Hall, Westminster, London, S.W.1.
Wednesday Evening, October 2, at 7.30.

First reserved seats 3/-. Second Reserved 2/-. Unreserved 1/-. Applications for tickets, with remittance and postage, to The Assistant Secretary, 6, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1.

Digitized by Google

OCTOBER 5, 1929. Price TWOPENCE.

"Ye are My Witnesses" Isaiah 43·10 HOLY BIBLE

THE NATIONAL MESSAGE AND BANNER

"THY (ABRAHAM'S) SEED SHALL POSSESS THE GATE OF HIS ENEMIES" GEN. 22·17

"HIS (ISRAEL'S) SEED SHALL BE IN MANY WATERS" NUMB. 24·7

FOR THE BRITISH & ALL ANGLO-SAXON PEOPLES

G^t BRITAIN & IRELAND · CANADA · AUSTRALIA · SOUTH AFRICA · NEW ZEALAND · NEWFOUNDLAND

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA · INDIA · CROWN COLONIES · PROTECTORATES · DEPENDENCIES · MANDATORY TERRITORIES

"THE BANNER OF ISRAEL" AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE" WITH WHICH ARE INCORPORATED

THE THRONE OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID — 1^st CHRON. 29 v 23 — JER. 33 17

MDCCLXXVI — "A SIGN AND A WITNESS IN ... EGYPT" Is 19 v 19·20. JER 32 20.

And God said unto Jacob: "A Nation and a Company of Nations shall be of thee." Gen. 35·11

J.J.HALL. 1929

A REQUEST FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS must reach us at least fourteen days before the date of issue with which it is to take effect. Duplicate copies cannot be sent to replace those undelivered through failure to send such advanced notice. Be sure to send your old address as well as the new one.

Subscription Terms:—United Kingdom, 12s. per annum, post free. Canada and United States, $3. Subscriptions payable in advance. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or postal order (not stamps), made payable to the National Message, Ltd., and crossed "and Co." Subject to alterations in postal rates.

Telegrams: Britworfed Sowest, London. Telephone. Victoria 8961 & 8362. Postal Address: Buckingham Gate. S.W.1

The most vital book yet written by Mr. Goard

The Law of the Lord, or the Common Law

By Rev. W. PASCOE GOARD.

¶ Statesmen of every race and every tongue are seeking a system of government which will give security, establish peace—which is a final expression of ideal law-giving.

Is there such a system ?

This book demonstrates that such a system exists, and that that system is at the disposal of every nation.

It is the Common Law of the Anglo-Saxon Races.

¶ When an alien race is brought under British rule it automatically comes under the Common Law of Britain ; privilege of class is abolished ; personal rule no longer holds sway.

When the Pilgrim Fathers set forth in the Mayflower to escape the personal domination of the Stuarts, next to the Word of God, the old Anglo-Saxon Common Law was their most cherished possession.

¶ Yet the Anglo-Saxon Common Law is older than Anglo-Saxondom, older than Christianity itself. It had its first codification on Mount Sinai when the mouth of the Lord spake unto Moses.

¶ There then is the PRINCIPLE, the root of the only system of laws which can succeed. Its amplification, its application in the form of constructive co-operation, to the needs of the present are all that statesmen need consider. The ideal system is ready-made for them.

¶ Let every thinking man read this book.

DEMY 8vo. 138 PAGES. CLOTH.

PRICE 3/6 BY POST 3/9 Canada and U.S.A. 95 cents post free.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, LONDON, S.W.1

THE ORIGIN OF THE ENGLISH

By MAJOR B. de W. WELDON.

SECOND EDITION (REVISED)

Here is a book which once read will be read again and again.

Our history traced for three thousand years. Of necessity, many details must be left out, for the whole of our history could not be compressed into the two hundred and eighty pages this book contains. The fact that a second edition has been called for is evidence of the value of this work for students of the history of the English People.

" The present writer does not claim that the story to be told in the following pages is anything of a new discovery. All the essential facts were in the possession of a man who lived many centuries ago, in the reign of the Emperor Justinian. And one German at least, the philologist Grimm, early in the last century knew a good deal more about the identity of Israel than he cared to disclose in books which were intended to glorify the great German race.

" The chapters that will now be written have to contain many Biblical quotations. But they are no more designed as a theological disquisition than a Government blue book or a standard history would be.

" They are merely the missing pages of the history of Israel, the pages that centuries ago were blotted out until the time came when they might safely be restored to their proper place in the world's historical libraries. All histories are dull reading ; and condensed history is perhaps the worst of all, where no time can be given up to the ' drum and trumpet ' details, interesting though these might be made.

" This book is no exception ; having to be condensed, many interesting points must be omitted. Before our case can be established, many witnesses will have to be called ; men who lived in different ages and in countries far apart—prophets and saints, as well as dignitaries of the Church ; Greeks and Romans and Jews ; pagans from the North ; modern scholars of the most profound learning ; and writers of gossip who would be exceedingly astonished to find fragments of their work still in existence after so many centuries have elapsed. All these diverse sources of information will be placed on a friendly footing of equal credibility before the reader."

Crown 8vo. 286 pages, cloth - - - - Price 4s. 6d. ; by post, 5s.

THE COVENANT PUBLISHING CO., LTD., 6, BUCKINGHAM GATE, S.W.1

When replying to Advertisements please mention " The National Message and Banner."

Digitized by Google

THE NATIONAL

MESSAGE & BANNER

The Official Weekly Journal of the British-Israel-World Federation.

INCORPORATING "THE BANNER OF ISRAEL," AND "THE COVENANT PEOPLE."

No. 405. Vol. VIII. OCTOBER 5th, 1929. Price 2d.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
THE CONGRESS FOR 1929. By the Rev. W. Pascoe Goard ..	625
AN OLD OBJECTION ANSWERED. By the Rev. L. G. A. Roberts, Commander R.N.	627
THE SECRET OF BRITAIN'S STRENGTH.—III. By the late Rev. Philip Young, L.Th. (formerly Dean of Nassau)	628
"IN THE BEGINNING GOD . . ." (Gen. i, 1). By Dr. G. H. Bennett	629
A HOUSE OF MANY MANSIONS—THE BIBLE	632
"A WOMAN CLOTHED WITH THE SUN." By John H. Tench ..	633
THE ISRAEL NATIONS ASSEMBLE AT THE CONGRESS	636
THE QUESTION OF LANGUAGE. By Daniel Farmer	637
THE QUESTION OF THE CENTURIES.—III. "What Think Ye of Christ?"	637
THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S NEWS AND NOTES	638

EDITORIAL.

The following should be read in the light of Israel Truth, namely, that the Anglo-Saxon nations are the continuation of the Israel nation; the inheritors of her Charters; the possessors of her guarantees and immunities from destruction; the executors of her commissions.

It should be understood that Authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in their Articles.

THE CONGRESS FOR 1929.

BY THE REV. W. PASCOE GOARD.

THIS week we shall be gathering from all parts of the world for a week of fellowship, study and worship, in our Annual Congress.

It may be well that we shall ask some questions regarding ourselves and our aims.

Who are we; these people who call themselves British-Israelites of the British-Israel-World Federation?

What is our purpose in gathering and in labouring from year to year?

What is it that we hope to accomplish by our labours?

What lies at the basis of our teaching; and wherein does that basis differ from that of other Christian organizations?

What is the ultimate destiny of the Movement to which we are lending our aid and bending our endeavours?

These are questions which should be answered clearly to our own minds and for the information of others.

It has been said again and again that we are not a sect separated from bodies of Christian workers.

May I make a statement at which at first many will be inclined to shy aside, like a horse which sees something suspicious in his path? It is a statement at which, when it occurred to me to write, I found my hand halting, and my mind startling, but which careful thought assures me I may venture to make.

INASMUCH AS WE ACCEPT AND TEACH ALL THE FOUNDATION TRUTHS OF CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE HELD BY THE CHURCH AT LARGE, we may make this fact the basis of the statement we are to make. We stand alone as far as we know in preaching the facts and truth of the Gospel of the Kingdom, which therefore stands as the specialty of the teaching of the British-Israel-World Federation. Now this Gospel of the Kingdom is found in all the Bible to be based upon the history of and the prophecies concerning the nation Israel, and upon the Covenants made with the said nation Israel, as recorded in both the Old Testament and the New Testament.

It is an amazing thing that both the Modernist and the Evangelical have accepted the fallacy that the nation Israel has disappeared and that another organization has been caused to take its place. So many say the Church has taken the place of the nation Israel as the basis of the Kingdom. Some say the Jew has taken the place of Israel as the basis of the Kingdom, and so on, but all agree that the ten-tribed nation Israel has disappeared. Some say it was swallowed by the nations. Some say that it was swallowed by the nation of the Jews. But all seem to agree that as a distinct national entity it has disappeared.

Now if the nation Israel has disappeared as a national entity, then, as Dr. Driver says, "It must be manifest to all that many of these promises have never been fulfilled; and now circumstances have so changed that they never can be fulfilled." Grant the premise that ten-tribed nation Israel has ceased as a separate national entity, and Dr. Driver's conclusion is inevitable, as will be shown in a later article.

Now, from this well-nigh universal fallacy the Lord has delivered us. We know that the ten-tribed nation Israel has not been transformed into a non-national Church, nor into a Church of any kind. We know that it was never incorporated into the national entity of the Jewish nation. We know that it was not absorbed into the Gentile nations. We know that it has continued to follow the prophetic course spoken concerning it by Moses and the Prophets in the Old Testament and by our Lord and the Evangelists in the New Testament. We know that it is still, and must continue to be, the basis of the Kingdom of God in the earth. Not the Church of God let it be understood, but the basis of the Kingdom of God. The Church is ecclesiastical and is to be found in every nation, independent of national boundaries and of national organization. The Kingdom of God is national, within the boundaries of national organizations, namely, that of the Israel nations. The one is concerned with the Gospel of Salvation for every creature through the death and resurrection of the Son of God. The other is concerned with the establishment and administration of Divinely-established government in the Israel nations first, and, through them, in all the earth.

Digitized by Google

This we understand and know. This the Church at large does not understand nor know. It is a truth which has been hidden from their eyes by the "blindness in part which hath happened unto Israel until the fulness of the nations be come," but the time of Israel's blindness is now past and the time of full vision has come, bringing like the daydawn the revelation of the age-old fact of the Kingdom of God still based upon the ten-tribed nation Israel in these latter days, as it has always been so based throughout the ages. This has been clear in the sight of God but hidden from the sight of men.

Now having made this clear we make the statement from which at first we hesitated: Inasmuch as we teach and glory in the Gospel of Salvation by Grace, as the Churches do; and inasmuch as we, and as far as we know we alone—though we should be delighted to know that we have companion organizations seized of the same facts and truth—may claim to be that body of Christian believers who in this day hold the full doctrine of the Church of Christ as taught by Prophets, Evangelists, by our Lord and His Apostles. If any may claim to occupy the whole doctrinal plane of the Church of the preaching of the full doctrines of the Church, we may humbly make that claim.

To our brethren we say: Do not look for us outside of the Church in the matter of doctrine. Look rather for us in the very sanctuary, and by the Grace of God and the enlightening power of the Holy Spirit you will find us there; and from that inner court of the Temple of God we call you to draw near to Him and to His Holy Word in this forgotten realm of Divine truth.

But as to personnel: Who are we?

We are a body of earnest Bible students and Christian workers, to be found in all the Churches; in the Established Church, Bishops, ecclesiastical dignitaries, parochial clergy and laity; ministers, office-bearers and members of the Free Churches; people of Christian organizations not calling themselves Churches, and of multitudes of hitherto unchurched men and women. We are to be found in all walks of life. We have learned to love the Lord and to believe His Holy Word both as to the Gospel of Salvation by Grace and as to the Gospel of the Kingdom, written, as to the latter, in national history, in national prophecy, incorporated in national Covenant and Promise.

So we meet on a common platform of Christian Love, Faith and Labour, rejoicing in the knowledge of this phase of Divinely-revealed and administered truth, and striving to be true fellow labourers with all who love the Lord.

What is our purpose? To bring our national multitudes back to a realization of their Covenant relationship to God; and of the fact that they, as God's Kingdom, have been given by Him in turn as His Covenant to the nations, to establish the earth in righteousness.

The Church is functioning with its eyes open to its mission and responsibility.

The nation is functioning among the nations blindly and therefore imperfectly, in carrying forward the administration of its great trust as the executive agent of the Kingdom of God in the earth.

This blindness of the nation to its relationship to truth, to God and to the nations, is a terrible handicap to the Lord's work, and a constant menace to the peace and prosperity of the earth.

It is our aim and purpose to dispel this blindness and cause our people to walk in the light of God.

What is it that we hope to accomplish by our labours?

To remove the deadly fallacy which has taken the heart out of the faith of the Church at large and has made modern negations possible in the theological world. By showing that Israel is in being, exactly such a going concern as Covenant promise and prophecy declared she should be in these latter days; we hope to let loose a very fountain of waters of life which shall regenerate both the life of the Church and of the nations.

What lies at the basis of our teaching? That which in the light of this Truth and the astounding facts by it revealed we may safely call: THE INFALLIBLE WORD OF GOD. Without this knowledge we are well aware much of the wording of the Bible and many of its most solemn and majestic utterances seem to have fallen into ruin. But in the light of this Truth we see that every detail of the structure of Holy Writ stands unshaken and true, and we know it to be by tests which really must convince the reason, that every jot and tittle which entered into the messages which God caused to be written in the whole of the Bible stand infallible and sure.

This is not guaranteeing, of course, that human error has not entered through transcription or translation. But the Word of the Lord stands sure.

Next in importance to the INFALLIBLE WORD OF GOD is the truly written history of the nations found in secular literature; but of that and kindred collateral truths we have not now space to speak.

What is the ultimate destiny of the Movement to which we are lending our aid and bending our endeavours?

Its destiny as a Movement is manifestly, having so far advanced in its purpose as to awaken the Church and the nation to the facts and truths of the Kingdom of God, to be absorbed in the great reconstructed Church which is even now emerging as the surge of this great tide of truth is being felt more and more widely throughout the denominations.

We are deliberately letting loose a flood of facts and truths which will so renew the life of the Church and of the State that the flood will incorporate and swallow us up. And the sooner it does so the more will we give the glory to God.

We believe further that, in drawing together the workers of all denominations, we are forming a working basis in actual practice for the reconstitution of the Church in Britain into one fold with one Shepherd, marshalled to work out fully the great heritage of Divine truth.

Digitized by Google

So we shall meet to study, to work, and to worship now and hereafter.

AN OLD OBJECTION ANSWERED.

By the Rev. L. G. A. Roberts, Commander R.N.

C. B. F. M. writes:—I am a believer in B.-I., and it will be my lasting regret that though fairly old in years it was not until some three months since that I realized the Truth. I want, if possible, to make up for lost time by spreading the good news, etc.

One I am trying to bring in says: "All the promises in the Bible are spiritual promises, capable, when rightly understood, of individual application, the history of Israel being merely the literal covering." "He cannot see how it can be reconciled with the New Covenant, which seems to knock all question of birth or nationality on the head, and makes the acceptance of Christ the one thing needful, which is surely implied by the words, 'In Christ Jesus there is neither Jew nor Gentile, barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free, but Christ is all in all.'"

Answer:—You can inform your friend that the former teaching of theology, especially the prophetic writings, has been considerably biassed by Origen, Jerome, and Augustine of Hippo. Seeing in their day that Israel as a Nation was apparently non-existing, and imagining that the Jews were the only representatives of Israel, it was their task to reconcile the promises. The easiest way open to them was to assume that Israel was typical of the Christian Church. Rome fell in with this, and all followed in the wake. The time of this ignorance, to quote a Scriptural expression, "God winked at," until higher criticism and science stepped in.

We have much for which to thank both of these, but where they, either of them, contradict the plain words of Scripture, we must point out their error.

We accept every revelation of God, permitted to occupy the Scriptures, as historically true, and prophetically to be accomplished in due time. Where the "latter time" or "the last days" is appealed to, the time embraced is in this dispensation.

If you accept this, and look at Gen. xviii, 18-19, you will see God's election and His foreknowledge. Abraham is to be a Great and a Mighty Nation, and all the world is to be blessed by him, for he will command his children after him, and they shall do justice and judgment, that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which He hath spoken of him. Is this vain speaking as a man speaketh? Or is it not God, Who cannot lie. Hath He spoken, and can He not bring it to pass? Therefore it is our duty to look into all that God has spoken of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Nearly three parts of the Bible is taken up with the history of Abraham's people and the prophecies concerning them.

The Evangelical prophet (Isaiah) tells us where they are, who they are, what they will do, and how they will do it; other prophets fill in the picture, and Mal. iii, 6, says: "I, the Lord, change not, therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed."

