...Editorial...

Do you know how an editor can be pleased and distracted all at the same time? That's how it has been with your editor, all because it was necessary to skip last year's September, October and November issues of SEARCH. He was distracted because he received such a flood of requests for the reason his subscribers were not receiving their September, October and November issues, ranging from polite inquiries to extremely irate letters of indignation, and not a few outright claims of fraud, and several reports to the postal authorities. You could hardly blame him for being distracted, because if he sat down and answered all these letters, even with a hurried postcard, he would do nothing else, and not only the September, October and November issues of SEARCH would not appear, but the December and February as well. Besides, in the December editorial, it was all explained, and the very receipt of the magazine, would answer all the letters! So, it was deliver the magazine, not answer letters, that was necessary! In the meantime, some subscribers wrote as many as four letters, each one getting more and more indignant. Some of these we had to answer, because when Uncle Sam steps in, he arrives on your doorstep with a letter claiming you defrauded a subscriber out of his or her money, and government agents being what they are, he has already decided you are guilty, and he will take great pleasure in revoking your mailing privileges and throwing you into bankruptcy and jail. Believe us, these inspectors are impossible to talk to. They take up days of your time, inspecting every phase of your operation, before deciding that you are actually a crook, but maybe he can scare you into being honest. All in all, by skipping a few issues, because we had to, to stay in business after the news distributors went broke and left you in the lurch, we had ourselves the most enormous headache of our career. We hope our readers understand now that there was no September, October, and November issue of SEARCH, and that is wasn't our fault. And please, in the future, if you don't receive your copy, don't write until you have seen the issue on the newsstands and therefore know there was one issued. We sell our subscriptions by the 12 and 24 issues, and the dates mean nothing. You get the full 12 or 24 issues. We were on a monthly schedule, and will go back to it. Right now we are coming out every two months.

The Unpublished Facts of Life

THERE are some things that cannot be generally told—things you ought to know. Great truths are dangerous to some—but factors for personal power and accomplishment in the hands of those who understand them. Behind the tales of the miracles and mysteries of the ancients, lie centuries of their secret probing into nature's laws—their amazing discoveries of the hidden processes of man's mind, and the mastery of life's problems. Once shrouded in mystery to avoid their destruction by mass fear and ignorance, these facts remain a useful heritage for the thousands of men and women who privately use them in their homes today.

The pleasure came from the knowledge that SEARCH is missed! When it doesn't come on time, thousands of readers become very disturbed. That is a pleasant thought indeed! With the knowledge that we are so well liked and in such demand, how could we ever think of not publishing SEARCH! And of course, we will, no matter what.

One more thing—if your subscription expiration date is unknown to you, don't write us—we'll let you know by mail when it is time to renew! We promise you faithfully that you will receive a notice in the mail, and another in the magazine itself! We won't let you down.

While we're at it, we might as well tell you, too, that when we carry an advertisement, we back it up. If you ever fail to receive what you paid for, just tell us. We will see that you get it, or personally refund your money. It is perfectly true that we may be tricked into carrying a dishonest advertiser's ad, but we are honest, and we will make good for any dishonesty!

Therefore, you can buy through SEARCH with perfect confidence at all times. We don't claim that the things advertised will satisfy you—because we don't really know, in all instances. Not all people get results, for instance, from an Ouija Board. Your editor gets no results from a crystal ball. But he's been around enough to have seen such results. What interests him is how it's done!

Speaking of crystal balls, your editor has been doing some research over the past few years, and the question came up—why a ball. A crystal has certain properties, many properties, in fact, and in science, the crystal is all-important. But need it be a spherical crystal? And we've come up with the answer, which should have been obvious all along; the shape has nothing to do with it! Therefore, watch for a rather interesting article in a future issue, and another of SEARCH's famous "investigations." We'd like you readers who can, to aid us in our research, and prove one way or the other what is right or what is wrong. Yes, it has to do with our curiosity about the properties of crystals, and particu-

Other Tongues -- Other Flesh

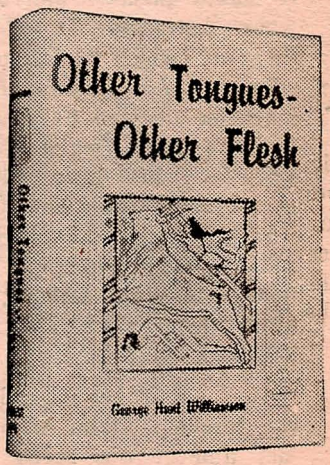

George Hunt Williamson

In more recent times, there has been a growing realization that on other worlds than ours, even in other universes, there are other living beings. The idea that earthbound man may someday journey into the heavens to discover other men and women, like or unlike himself, grows by leaps and bounds. Within man's soul lies the truth — mortals exist on other spheres!

In this book, many references and quotations are given from the latest authentic reports on Saucer phenomena. Because many believe there are contradictions in some of the reported happenings, it has been necessary to show that there is a great story and purpose behind all these experiences.

Here, in this book, is the history of OTHER TONGUES, and of OTHER FLESH; calm, scientific evidence that there are brothers of ours in the skies overhead.

We are not alone in the Universe!

larly concerning "prophecy," "vision at a distance," and various other related occult phenomena. It has, also, to do with "color" as related to both mental and physical health.

May we take a little of your time to tell you the tale of a pair of six-week-old puppies? Our youngest daughter, who is eleven, is quite a hand with animals. She has a dog who would put any of those mathematical dogs you've seen on television to shame. Her dog, which is named Bitsy, can not only count, she can add. She can add up to sixteen. Any combination of two numbers which total any figure up to sixteen. Sometimes she can even add combinations of three numbers. She rarely makes mistakes, and these only when distracted. In addition to this feat (which has astounded the editor of Imagination, Rogue (a magazine devoted to research into biology) and Imaginative Tales when he visited us—and he is hard to astound), Bitsy can do all the standard tricks like playing dead, rolling over, jumping through hoops, begging, walking on her hind feet, d a n c i n g, looking ashamed, etc.

Well, among her accomplishments are frequent litters of pups. The last time it was seven. . . And here's where the story comes in. Jennifer gives these puppies away free. She advertises in the papers, and with one exception has always managed to dispose of all the puppies. On this last litter, there were two puppies remaining, both the most lovable things you ever saw. Even your editor liked them. One man, a farmer, took both. He put them in the trunk of his car, left it open a bit so they could breathe, drove off. In a short time he was back. Had the puppies come home? No? Well, he'd arrived and found them missing. They'd gotten out somewhere along the road. He had a clue—someone had heard puppies crying. So, we went along with him, searched the road on both sides for five miles. No luck. No crying puppies. The farmer finally went on home.

Your editor went back to his work. No go. Those puppies were only six weeks old, not able to fare for themselves, and this is quite open country, that is, a puppy can wander in the woods until it starves to death. So we went hunting. Two days we hunted. A clue—a neighbor had seen them playing with another dog beside the road. More searching. The neighbor's dog had wandered out after supper, and had been gone for hours in the woods, but no sign of puppies. Apparently the older dog had led the puppies into the woods while playing, then had abandoned them there when tired of the game.

More hunting. This time we got Bitsy and Jennifer, and we had Bitsy "pick up the trail" and follow. Up the road—but then a neighbor dog began barking, and Bitsy was diverted by other interests. So we drove along in our car, stopping every hundred feet, listening. Finally, we thought we heard something. Faint and distant, across a wide field and in a woodlot. Was it the puppies? A long hike through rough terrain—and your editor's legs, being partially paralyzed, are not up to rough terrain. But after two days without food, those puppies would be very uncomfortable. They might suffer for a week or more before they died. Your editor isn't very tough, apparently. He misses sleep over things like this.

But yes! That did sound like a puppy crying! We stumbled on, and now Bitsy was on the trail too! And with Jennifer, she passed us up, went on, finally knelt in a clump of underbrush. The crying could now be heard for a mile! No doubt about it. Two puppies, bawling their heads off. Jennifer carried one, and your editor carried the other. They cried every inch of the way. Apparently from joy. At least we were a bit moist-eyed, and for the same reason.

Two lost puppies, found!

It's a good feeling.

But more good feeling to follow. Did you ever see two starved puppies eat? Eat until their little bellies dragged on the ground, immobilizing them? And cry for more?

Yes, we called the farmer, and he came back for his puppies, this time taking no chances on them falling out of his car. We went back to his farm a couple of Sundays later, to assure ourselves that the puppies had a good home. They have a good home. It was good to see them scamper about.

Ever since we've been thinking. All over the world there must be millions of people like your editor. It must be true that almost everybody would feel joy over two lost puppies found, grin with delight as they filled their hungry little stomachs, feel a satisfied feeling that now, tonight, they could go to bed and sleep without being haunted by the thought of two little puppies, alone in the woods, crying piteously, and eventually starving to death. The hunt cost us the better part of two days—two days that meant another issue of SEARCH had to be skipped!—two days in which we panted and groaned with aching legs and scratched skin, and accumulated nettles and thorns, some of which remained in the skin to fester. All for a pair of lost puppies.

Then we think of a Sputnik, of a scientific achievement almost beyond anything Man has yet achieved—and we think of the promise of the future it brings, and also the threat—the threat of atomic war from unstoppable rockets. And we wonder. WHO are the people who are making these threats? WHERE are the people who hunt lost puppies? WHY do the few threateners menace the many puppy-hunters? WHEN will the tender-hearted majority of us silence forever the mouths of the trouble-makers? WHAT are we puppy-hunters doing wrong, that we should be so helpless before so few?

The problem seems unanswerable. Even incomprehensible. Then we think of the dog in the Sputnik. Sacrificed in the interest of science. Placed in space to die alone, crying, frightened, abandoned. For us? So that Man shall advance?

It cannot be! We must be devils! We must be madmen! We must be inhuman! Is THIS Man advancing toward his great destiny? Is this Man growing in stature until he is god-like? Is this Man, moral, beautiful, loving, tender, compassionate, happy, visionary?

Who is the greatest in the eyes of the Creator: the men who placed the Sputnik in its orbit, or the dog, Laika, who died alone, further from friends than any living creature that ever lived on earth!

Let it not be construed by anyone that we are condemning Communism in particular because it so happened that the Russians were the first to launch Sputniks. Americans would have launched them too, would even have been first if they had tended to their business. Thus, it might have been an American dog that had been sent aloft. What if it had been one of our two forlorn lost puppies? What if it had been one of our two frantically tail-wagging, joyous, grateful puppies who were found?

The old feeling is back. We think of Laika, whom we have never seen, and we can't sleep. Only a dog. Just a dog. No soul (?). Millions of dogs like her. We'll have dozens more in our household, and probably more of them will get lost, and we'll have to hunt them through the weary hours. Dogs are cheap . . .

But man is cheaper! Let man go into space and die, if he chooses! Let man destroy man, if he chooses! Let man experience loneliness, terror, hunger, pain, if he chooses!

But Laika did not choose!

But wait, aren't we being too emotional? Think of the men's lives that may be saved because of what we have learned through the death of one (or more) dogs. Is not a man's life more valuable than a hundred, a thousand dogs? Is it not man's destiny to master his planet, and eventually his solar system, and maybe even his universe? If dogs can help, by dying, in these great aspirations, is this not fitting? Is not the dog the servant of man, even unto death?

It is getting hard to think—to reason. What is right and what is wrong?

Remember how we felt when the dogs were lost? Remember the wide-eyes staring at the ceiling, picturing the dogs dying of hunger? Whence came those feelings that disturb us so? Reason? What good is reason, when such emotions can destroy it? We can reason endlessly as to why Laika should have died in space—but all the same, our emotions keep disturbing us. Can right things disturb us? Or is it when a thing is wrong that we feel disturbed?

Now we have the answer. Our science, our civilization is wrong: as long as we conduct it without emotion, without moral values, without kindness, without pity, without love, without consideration, without imposing our will on that of others, man, woman, child—or dog!

"Master the Earth, oh man, and subdue it—but remember, thou shalt not kill."

"Profiteth it a man if he shall gain the moon, and be haunted by the spectre of a dog?" —Rap

AF Withholding Saucer Reports

Information on so-called "Flying Saucers" is being kept secret by this country's policymakers just as they withheld that on development of our missile program until they found we were behind, a reserve Air Force officer claims.

Lt. Col. Jim McAshan of Knoxville, Tennessee, said there is a "very definite effort" on the part of the Air Force to play down the seriousness of incidents involving unidentified flying objects.

McAshan is active in the unofficial National Investigations Committee on aerial phenomena. It is the organization's desire that information on UFO's be made public.

The Knoxville man said the Air Force releases "publicity only on the ones they can prove to be hoaxes." He said the recent claim of a man going into a space craft in Nebraska was widely publicized while reputable reports from engineers and military personnel were quieted down immediatly.

The MYSTERIOUS PROPHECY of LORD MaCAULEY

By Lawrence W. Hall

We are all interested in what the future holds, irrespective of whether it develops from decisions and acts of the present or is preordained. Some of the prophecies which seem to apply to the present world uttered by seers, both ancient and modern, are awesome indeed.

One hundred years ago, a British statesman and historian, Lord Macaulay, being seriously concerned with the destiny of America, wrote a letter to the biographer of Thomas Jefferson, H. S. Randall, and discussed what he believed to be the future. The message of this communication, which President Garfield said worried him "like an alarm bell at night," was quoted in part, as follows, by the Hon. Charles R. Eckhart of Pennsylvania in a speech given in the House of Representatives on July 2, 1935.

"I have long been convinced that institutions purely democratic must sooner or later destroy liberty or civilization, or both.

"You may think your country enjoys an exemption from these evils. I will frankly own to you that I am of a different opinion. Your fate I believe to be settled, though it is deferred by a physical cause.

"As long as you have a boundless extent of fertile and unoccupied land your laboring population will be far more at ease than the laboring population of the Old World, and while that is the case the Jefferson politics may continue to exist without any fatal calamity. But the time will come when wages will be as low and fluctuate as much with you as with us. You will have your Manchesters and your Birminghams, and in these Manchesters and Birminghams hundreds of thousands of artisans will assuredly some time be out of work. Then your institutions will be brought to the test.

"I have seen England pass through such critical seasons three or four times; through such seasons the United States will have to pass in the course of the next century, if not of this. How will you pass through them? I heartily wish you a good deliverance. But my wishes and my reason are at war, and I cannot help foreboding the worst.

"I seriously apprehend that you will, in some season of adversity as I have described, do things that will prevent prosperity from returning. There will be, I fear, spoilation. The spoilation will increase the distress. The distress will produce fresh spoilation. There is nothing to stop you. Your constitution is all soil and no anchor.

"As I said before, when a society has entered on this downward progress; either a civization or liberty must perish. Either some Caesar or Napoleon will seize the reins of government with a strong hand, or your republic will be as fearlessly plundered and laid waste by the barbarians in the twentieth century as the Roman Empire was in the fifth; with the difference that the Huns and Vandals who ravaged the Roman Empire came from without, and that your Huns and Vandals will have been engendered within your own country by your own institutions . . ."

(author's emphasis) . . Lord Macaulay, 1800-1859

Certainly since the Great Depression and the two latest wars we have seen our institutions severly tried and have witnessed the alarming spread of the vandals of exploitation of every kind: We have seen the rise in our own order of a traitorous anti-intellectualism resulting in a tragic scarcity of true leaders, and scientists. The bungling of warring factions in our political and military picture are coexistent with the stupendous increase of crime as a way of life and the idolatrous worship of gadgets and forms which have weakened the physical and moral fiber of America. Everywhere the land is filling up; there is less and less space; the population is constantly increasing. There is less and less liberty, more and more regimentation and confiscation of money.

Christians have always had a profound tendency to consider themselves as "Israel" which no doubt grew from the traditions of many early Jews converted to the Apostolic Church which proved to be all that was left of unified Israel and from which all modern influential Christianity has emerged. In some strange way we religiously consider ourselves to be Israel by adoption and Bible promise.

Today there is great interest in space flight. Thousands of applications have been received, it is said, for homesteads on the Moon. Many desire to go to Mars. There seems to be a growing fear of confinement. Has a subtle urge for another Exodus developed?

The ancient prophets uttered warnings for old Israel which turned out to be justified, and these are found in abundance in the Old Testament. But some of them could not fit ancient Israel because that nation disappeared before they were fulfilled. It appears now, for instance, that Ezekiel was in part speaking to people beyond that time—perhaps to us in the twentieth century—when the following predictions were made:

". . . I have said not in vain I would do this evil unto them . . . They shall fall by the sword, by the famine and by the pestilence . . . So will I stretch my hand and make the land desolate. . ." (Ez. 6:10, 11, 14)

I do not believe the following threats apply to ancient Israel at all: "A third part of thee shall die with the pestilence; and with famine shall they be consumed; and a third part shall fall by the sword . . . and I will scatter a third part to all the winds, and I will draw out a sword after them . . ." To have a sword after them means they are in flight. (Ez. 5:12 & 17)

Atomic radiation, illness, panic and chaos seem foretold in Ez. 7:17, 25, 26, thusly: "All hands shall be feeble, and all knees as weak as water. . .horror shall cover them . . . and baldness upon their heads . . . they shall cast their silver in the streets. I will bring the worst of the heathen and they shall possess the houses; I will also make the pomp of the strong to cease; and their holy places shall be defiled. Destruction cometh; and they shall seek peace and there shall be no peace . . . Mischief shall come upon mischief, and rumor upon rumor; then shall they seek a vision of the prophet; but the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients."

The public buildings and dwellings of old Israel were not destroyed but occupied and re-used by the enemy. But in verse 6 of Chapter 6 we are warned, to wit: "In all your dwelling places, the cities shall be laid waste, and the high places desolate, and your idols may be broken and cease, and your images may be cut down, and your works may be abolished." (14 - 15) "I will make thee a waste and a reproach among the nations. . . .

an instruction and astonishment . . ."

If the many people who claim truth for the Anglo-Israel doctrine are right, then it may be that we are facing a crisis without precedent in our history and that it has been considerably engendered from within. Religious philosophers tell us that every civilization carries within it the seed of its own destruction and preservation. They also tell us that "Babylon" is symbolical of all harmfully selfish interests and the wrong use of men and materials. Otherwise, why do thousands of ministers today talk about the forthcoming destruction of "Babylon"?

The physical city of ancient Babylon was destroyed as predicted, but never has there been a time when sun, moon, and stars could not shine; when the heavens were shaken; or "the earth moved out of her place." (Is. 13:10 - 13). . . (Amos 8:9)

To what fantastic future was God speaking through Isaiah in the following words? "I have commanded my sanctified ones, I have also called my mighty ones . . . the noise of a multitude . . . kingdoms of nations gathered together . . . they come from a far country . . . .the ends of space (the heaven) . . . .to destroy the land. Therefore, shall all hands be faint and every man's heart shall melt . . ." (Is. 13:1-9)

Rocket missiles? . . . Space craft: . . . .Alien races?. . . .cosmic invaders?. . . .Men from the ends of space?

Something tremendous is being said here. In addition to his logical conclusions drawn from study and observation of national commonwealths, was Lord Macaulay intuitively en rapport with the thoughts of ancient statesmen speaking in other tongues and climes?

It is true that prophecies have been made at various times in history which were not fulfilled because the people involved, knowing the trend by prediction, took strong measures to counteract them. Therefore, let us all "hang together" to help build a stronger and more unified national policy and purpose, else, perchance, we "hang separately".

At this point, many will tell us, no doubt, that the ancients could not foresee or even imagine a vast civilization such as our own several thousand years distant named America. Perhaps not, but the Source of prophecy knew. According to a renowned scientist in etymology at Oberlin University, Professor Miskovsky, the word "America" is derived from the Gothic-Israel form of "Amel Ric" out of "Emerich." Ric means "kingdom," and Emel means "heaven." Now, if we leave off the last letter of Amel and combine the result with Ric, we have Americ. It was from Amerigo Vespucci that we say we derived our name, "Americus in the Latin" of which America is the feminine form.

According to Professor Odlum, in nearly every language the letter "L" is interchangeable with the letter "r" under certain conditions. In the ancient Hebrew language, the word for kingdom is "Melukh" or "Amelukah." Substituting the "r" for "l" we have in that ancient language of Israel the disguised word, AMERICA. The "land of peace" and overshadowed "with wings" indeed seemed in their visions to be the "Kingdom of Heaven" on earth, so abundant is it in comparison to the poverty and limitation of that day.

This is interesting to those students who believe in the reincarnation of nations. Furthermore, it fulfills all the old promises of a mighty nation out of a remnant. "He shall cause them that come of Jacob (Israel) to take root: Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit." (Isa. 27:6) (Jere. 23:8, 30; 30:3; 46:27-28; 50:4,6; 50:17, 18, 19, 20) (Ez. Chapters 38 and 39)

It is also said that the ancient Hebrew word of "B'rith" meaning covenant is combined with the word "Ish" meaning sons, or men, to form the word "Brithish" for British, and that is the way I have seen it written at least once in very ancient books. England, then, from which we came is the latter day "Land of the Covenant," the extraction from the world of Isaac, Abraham, and Jacob.

In view of current events, the wisdom of the ancients and the words of Lord Macaulay seem well spoken. If this country is severely damaged by the spawn of Draconis, the forces of the Anti-Christ, it shall recover. The result is a purification.

". . .He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock." (Jer. 31:10) ". . . I will restore health unto thee, and I will heel thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord . . ." (Jer. 30:17) ". . .it is the day of Jacob's (Israel's) trouble; but he shall be saved out of it." (Jer. 30:17) . . . "I will burst his yoke from off thy neck and will break thy bonds." (Jer. 30:8)

WE'RE HAUNTED— AND WE LIKE IT!

By Ria Garmelle

After everyone has gone to bed, the downstairs door opens and closes and there is the sound of shuffling footsteps coming up the long flight of stairs. When they reach the landing, about two-thirds of the way up, they stop and no one ever hears them go down again. But we know it's just Oscar checking up to be sure everything is all right.

OUR apartment, which is the only one in the building, is directly above a super mart, with flat roofs on both sides of us. In May, 1957 my family went away for the week-end. I was home baby sitting with three cats and three dogs. It was after seven on Sunday evening and I was expecting the family home within the hour.

I heard the back door open and close. I went to the kitchen and examined the lock on the door; it was still bolted! I let the dogs out for about a half hour and when I had brought them back in and was settled down, I again heard the door open and close and again examined it. Still locked. So the next few times the noise occurred I ignored it, as did the dogs.

Suddenly the smallest dog, Penny, started barking and the other two, Willow and Cookie, who seldom bark, ran to the front door. I listened and heard heavy footsteps coming slowly up the stairs and pause at the landing. At that time I didn't know who it was.

I opened the door on the chain, but the hall was black. I had forgotten to turn on the lights. I called and received no answer. Just the sound of footsteps going slowly downstairs. When they reached bottom, I went out and turned on the light.

About fifteen minutes later the same thing was repeated. This time when there was no answer, I opened the door and Willow, the Dalmatian, who was trained to defend the house, reached the landing in one jump and was downstairs in two bounds, with Cookie close behind her. But there was no one in the hall and the downstairs door did not open or close.

Then I knew it was Oscar! Each time I heard the heavy footsteps come up the stairs to the landing, pause and go back downstairs, I would quiet the dogs and keep on with my painting and listening to the radio.

This is not the first time that the invisible presence the family calls Oscar has spent the evening with one of us.

When I was eighteen my favorite chair was a high overstuffed one, with big wings I could rest my head on. The fact that my father had died in that chair about a year before didn't bother me in the least. It was wonderful to sit in and read.

Soon I began to be annoyed by the feeling that someone was staring at me. The feeling would come during the day or evening, whenever I was reading. Most of the time I would be alone in the house.

Then slowly things began to happen. I say "slowly" for it seemed as if the person didn't want to frighten us. Lamps would be turned off and on several times as if a child were playing with the switch.

Locked doors would have their locks turned and they would open slowly, then would close and the locks re-lock. At night my mother and I would hear footsteps, shuffling as if the wearer had on very loose slippers. Back and forth time after time.

Just about that time I decided to put a name on the manifestation. I don't remember just why I chose the name of "Oscar," but that is the only one we have used for him. And he doesn't seem to object.

Of course my mother and I told all our friends about him. One of the severest critics was my foster brother, Robert Adams. One day he was sitting in a chair leaning against the back door, the bolt was thrown and the door was securely locked.

After laughing at my mother and I because we were telling him what Oscar had done the night before, we heard a sudden snap as the bolt shot back, the door snapped opened and slammed shut, knocking the chair Bob was sitting in forward. Then the bolt locked again. There were about six people in the room who witnessed the incident.

About a half hour later, we were eating and I asked Bob if he believed in Oscar now. He laughed again and said "Of course, I don't," and started to lift a fork of spaghetti to his mouth. A startled look came over his face and he couldn't move his arm either up or down. He couldn't even close his mouth.

Finally, after I stopped laughing, I asked him, "Now do you believe in Oscar." As Bob managed a weak 'yes' his arm went limp and the food dropped down in the plate.

All these manifestations took about a year to develop. Meanwhile I married but still lived in the same apartment. My husband had heard the footsteps and saw the lights blink on and off too. About that time I saw Oscar for the first time.

One night as I lay in bed I looked at the open doorway. There was the dark shadowy figure of a tall man standing framed by the light from the street. I couldn't then and never did see his features. He wears what appears to be a brown monk's robe with the crowl pulled so that it completely shadows his face. His hands appear to be tucked in long, loose sleeves. He usually appears in the deepest of shadows and yet you can see him rather plainly.

Anyone that sees him usually freezes and can't move, but after he disappears you have such a feeling of well-being that you actually enjoy Oscar. When he passes through the room he usually freezes the dogs. The cats get along better with him. They retain their power of movement and follow his passage with their eyes and head. Now they see him a great deal more than humans do. I have only seen Oscar about once every two or three years, though I have 'experienced' him more often.

By the time that he had first become visible, we were so used to having him around that we adopted him as a member of the family.

We were living in a double apartment with one bath. The first three rooms were occupied by a young married couple and connected to our four rooms by a long hall.

The bath had one window that opened out on an air shaft. Many a person has come from there with a pale face and said they saw two brown eyes seemingly suspended in space staring at them. But the expression in the eyes was always kind.

Marge, the young wife of the couple, had an arrested case of T.B. I was carrying my first child then. She liked to talk to me but didn't want to get too close because she wasn't sure how infectious the disease was. She would stand in the doorway, usually with her hands on either side of the frame.

Every once in a while she would catch her breath. When asked what was the matter, she always replied that it felt as if someone had put their arms around her and hugged her gently.

Clair, her husband, was quite angry over the story and denounced Oscar as silliness until one time he was on the night shift and had to sleep during the day. Marge was lonesome and stood talking to my mother and I when we heard Clair shout for her. She came back in about ten minutes giggling.

It seems that Oscar decided to prove to Clair that the talk was not silliness. When Clair had gone to sleep, he was awakened by the bed clothes being snatched from him.

He was angry and tucked the covers in again and had just dozed off when the covers were yanked over the foot of the bed and dumped on the floor. Clair thought it was his wife playing tricks, but then he heard her voice from the doorway of our apartment. Five times he tried to go back to sleep and five times the covers were jerked off.

The sixth time Clair grabbed the covers and tried to hold on, but no use. They were ripped off, thrown in a heap and then the foot of the bed rose about a foot and dropped. This happened three times before he recovered his voice and shouted for Marge. After the experience he was one of Oscar's staunchest friends.

One of Oscar's favorite tricks of that time was to fill the hall between the two apartments with smoke. It was so thick it choked you to pass through but the smoke never came into either apartment nor did it go into the outer hall.

Oscar has rarely displayed any ill-nature, but one day Marge scolded him for squeezing her too tightly. When she returned to her own apartment, she found the window to the bedroom shut and locked, while out on the fire escape lay her pajamas tied in knots and a big pile of magazines that had been stored in a corner, strewn over them.

The second time was when she moved. At that time he put a large handprint with the five fingers drawing long lines down the front of her refrigerator. The imprint was made with thick axle grease.

My marriage broke up and my mother, baby son and I moved into a small basement apartment located on the corner of 66th and Ingleside Avenues, Chicago.

The windows were the type that dropped inward for the length of a three foot chain. They faced north, west and south. No one could enter or leave the building without being seen.

After the move Oscar stayed away about six months. We thought he had stayed in the old apartment, but soon there was evidence such as light being turned on in vacant rooms, knocks on the doors etc., to show that he had found us.

One evening I was expecting a few guests. A girl friend of mine had come for supper and to fix my hair before the guests arrived. After we finished dishes, there were three raps on the front door. I went to answer, but to my surprise no one was there. After that occurred about six times, my friend, Violet Grieve, decided to watch out the window as I stood right by the door. In a few minutes there came the same three raps. I swung open the door, but no one was there. Violet reported that no one came out of the entrance and I knew no one went up stairs as that door was kept locked.

Oscar kept us running to the door until the first guest arrived and we were so tired by that time that we just didn't care whether we had company or not.

Another time, four friends of mine were visiting and my mother turned the conversation to Oscar. They had heard the story before and stated flatly that they weren't gullible. My mother then suggested that we try to move a table with our finger tips.

We turned out the lights and concentrated. Suddenly the table, a heavy kitchen type with a porcelain top, began rocking so violently that we all sprang to our feet but kept our hands on the table. It began to move around the room and, of course, we followed it.

Just when it reached the point that it seemed as if it would tip over, one of the windows opened with a crash and we could all plainly see the shadow of a tall man, dressed in a robe, with his arms folded, peering into the room.

Teeny and Bruno tried to get under the same cocktail table with disastrous results to the table and heads. John jumped behind the studio couch and Petrie ran to the corner windows only to report no one was on the street.

I married again and had two little girls. From the time my son was born I never had to worry about them getting uncovered at night or burying their faces in the pillow. Oscar seemed to have a soft spot in his heart for them from the time they were babies. Even now, when there is a drop in temperature and one is uncovered, I feel someone urging me to get up and look at them.

When they were ill and I would walk into the room, I would get the impression someone was sitting beside their beds. And they would often tell me, "Grandpa was here." (Their own private name for Oscar until they grew older.)

My mother developed the bad habit of smoking in bed. One morning she laid down on the couch and feel asleep. The cushion of the couch caught fire and my big black cat woke her up by screaming. However, this didn't seem to break her so about twelve years ago, Oscar took over.

One night she dropped into a sound sleep while holding a lighted cigarette. She felt a sharp slap on her wrist and the cigarette flew across the room. When she went to look for it, the cigarette had been crushed out.

But regardless of the lesson, she did the same thing about a month later. Only this time Oscar was not gentle. She felt a slap between the shoulder blades that knocked her half out of bed and another slap on the wrist that knocked the cigarette across the room again. It was also crushed out. From that day to this, upon retiring she leaves her cigarettes and matches in another room.

About ten years ago we had a roomer named Joseph Billings. He had the two front rooms in our apartment. He was another person who laughed every time we spoke of Oscar.

One night he came out of his apartment looking very pale and told us this story.

Every night for three weeks he pulled out the studio couch he slept on and made up his bed. He always pulled it facing east and west. After he would come out to say goodnight and go back to his bedroom, the couch would be in a north-south direction, with the covers pulled back to the bottom.

Joe was determined to stand by his principles and not admit to "Oscar." That night when Joe had gone into his apartment, remade his bed and turned it to an east-west direction, Oscar decided he had put up with enough nonsense.

Joe had just settled down when the end of the couch started turning in a circle. It made three complete turns before the end was dropped with a bump, then the covers were jerked off and left in a pile on the floor.

After Joe quieted down, he went back in, made up the couch, being careful to leave it in a north-south position. After that Oscar was satisfied, but Joe always made sure the couch remained in the position Oscar indicated.

Six years ago I re-married for the third time. My husband had been in the navy during World War II. He had several sailor hats and gave one to each of the children. One night he phoned saying he was on his way home (he is a truck driver and has rather irregular hours.) The children and my mother put on the sailor hats and waited for him to come home. They were all going to stand and salute.

They heard the front door open, close and lock. Then footsteps coming down the long hall. They stood at attention, but no Jerry. Finally my son looked up and said, "Oh, there's Oscar." They all saw the big shadowy figure in the darkness of the hall. He appeared to be laughing.

My husband, Jerry, has never seen Oscar but at times he shivers and when I question him he always says there seems to be a very cold wind blowing on his neck. This has happened when the room temperature was 95 and in the middle of summer.

We moved for the third time to the apartment described in the first paragraph. Oscar seems to like this apartment very much. The first year that we lived there he would make sounds, like the dragging of heavy chains across the roof. He would only do this on Saturday afternoons. A person could be standing on the roof seeing nothing and yet the people in the room below would hear the sounds of heavy chains being dragged rapidly across the roof. He stopped that about a year and a half ago.

When my mother goes out to the store, he delights in turning on all the lights in her bedroom. Just a few months ago, my daughter and a friend of hers were alone in the house for fifteen minutes. As soon as my mother left, the light went on in her room and Oscar started walking up and down the back porch.

This time he evidently did not want to disturb the dogs as they slept all the way through the noises. The cats were very restless and jumped up on the window sill where they kept turning their heads as if watching someone walking up and down the porch. The noises stopped when my mother came back. During Easter week of 1956 my oldest daughter then 15, had a friend Miss Gloria Lee Perry of Elkhart, Indiana, spending the week with her. The night before Gloria was to go home she suddenly reached over and shook Charm.

"There's a man standing by my bed," she whispered.

Charm rolled over, opened one eye, muttered, "Heck, it's only Oscar. He must like you. Go to sleep."

The next morning Gloria described Oscar in his brown monk's robe and the feeling of peace that comes with him.

Oscar has even followed me downtown. One evening last winter I was crossing Madison street and my mind was quite far away in a day dream. Suddenly I felt a hand hit my back and I woke with a start to find the lights had changed and the cars were waiting to start. In fact a few had. I looked around to say something to the person that hit me, but I was the only one in the middle of the street, the rest of the people were on the curb.

I had a Life Reading from Mrs. Neva Dell Hunter, of Detroit, Michigan, on July 19, 1957. I asked about Oscar and was told that Oscar had been a teacher about 2,500 years ago and I had been his favorite pupil. Due to an accident, he led his band of students into an ambush. He was killed vainly trying to protect me. He was evolved enough to ask and receive the promise that he could watch over me until I would forgive him. I think now I have.

Saucer Over Alamogordo

A report of a daytime sighting of an unidentified flying object in the White Sands Proving Ground area of southern New Mexico came from an Alamogordo insurance man.

Trent Lindsey said that he, his wife and his son, Byron, 22, saw the object Nov. 7 as they were driving on U.S. 54 en route to El Paso.

Lindsey said he and his family were traveling along the highway when the speedometer on their car began acting up. It "went crazy," he said, first whipping to the top of the gauge and then jumping back and forth.

This continued until the Lindseys were at a point north of Orogrande.

At that time, Lindsey said, he spotted a silvery object traveling out of the northeast. He estimated it was about 10,000 feet high and 30 miles away. He said it was very large, as even at that distance he could see it was not a conventional aircraft.

Both Lindsey and his son described the object as being cylindrical or oval in shape. They observed it for about three minutes before it disappeared from view over the Organ Mountains to the southwest.

All three of the observers said the object was traveling at a "tremendous" speed.

They Hunt
FLYING SAUCERS

By Robert Stern

The average American today is unconcerned over such things as unidentified aerial phenomena, better known as "flying saucers". He believes these heavenly objects have been disposed of by a lack of recent nationwide headlines, by official pronouncements, and by various seasonal activities.

IT was just over ten years ago—on June 24th, 1947, to be exact—when a business man and private pilot named Kenneth Arnold reported sighting nine shining and circular aircraft near Mt. Rainier in Washington. He estimated they had a velocity in excess of 1,200 miles per hour, or just over twice the speed of our fastest airplanes at that time. (More recently, in 1952, UFOs—Unidentified Flying Objects—were tracked on radar screens at the Washington National Airport traveling at least 7,000 mph.)

When he landed, Arnold was asked to describe the mystery craft he had sighted. The pilot, recognized for his flying ability throughout the Pacific Northwest, said they appeared as "saucers would skipping over water," and thus coining the term found in most of our dictionaries today.

Then just last January, retired Rear Admiral Delmer S. Fahrney, one-time chief of the Navy's guided missile program, told a Washington, D. C., press conference that "reliable reports indicate that there are objects coming into our atmosphere at very high speeds. . .

"No agency in this country or Russia," Fahrney continued, "is able to duplicate at this time the speeds and accelerations which radars and observers indicate these flying objects are able to achieve."

The former Admiral didn't say he knew what UFOs are. But he did say "there are signs that an intelligence directs these objects because of the way they fly."

In giving this press conference, Admiral Fahrney announced the formation of the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena in Washington, a privately supported, non-profit organization over which he presided as Chairman until his wife's illness forced his resignation last April.

Names of the Board of Governors showed that flying saucers had finally come of age, and included: Col. Robert B. Emerson, USAR, physicist; Prof. Charles A. Maney, Physics Dept., Defiance College; Vice Admiral R. H. Hillenkoetter, USN, ret., former Director of the Central Intelligence Agency; Rear Adm. Herbert B. Knowles, ret., submarine expert; J. B. Hartranft, Jr., President of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association; Major Dewey J. Fournet, Jr., USAFR, former intelligence liaison officer, and others. A panel of qualified advisors has also been established.

Perhaps such support for the UFO was helped by the publication of Edward J. Ruppelt's book, The Report on Unidentified Flying Objects (Doubleday) early in 1956. Ruppelt headed Project Blue Book, the Air Force's official investigative body for UFO phenomena, from early '51 through late 1953. The book's publication revealed for the first time that nearly 27 per cent of UFO reports defied all possible explanations the Air Force had previously indicated about 3 per cent of the reports remained unsolved), and that several official reports concluding UFO's to have a non-terrestrial origin have circulated within the Air Force as early as 1948. These reports were all classified and never revealed to the public.

Donald E. Keyhoe, a 59-year-old retired Marine Corps Major, currently directs operations at the NICAP—the group's abbreviated title—headquarters. Keyhoe was a pilot in the Corps, and received his commission at Annapolis, where he was a classmate of Fahrney's.

And Major Keyhoe is well qualified to direct activities for this energetic new group. As a professional writer, Keyhoe has authored three of the fundamental books on the topic: The Flying Saucers Are Real, Flying Saucers from Outer Space and The Flying Saucer Conspiracy.

The former Marine pilot is ably assisted by Rose Hackett Campbell in NICAP offices at 1536 Connecticut Avenue, N. W. Most of their time is consumed in preparing their 32-page monthly NICAP magazine, The UFO Investigator, for publication. In their "spare time," Major Keyhoe and Mrs. Campbell are busily engaged in soliciting membership for NICAP, which is open to anyone sincerely interested in this research.

Keyhoe lays the Air Force primarily to blame for the decreased number of UFO sightings found in our daily newspapers. "For years," he says, "Air Force Intelligence has kept secret the official reports of UFO's."

The retired Major cites Air Force Regulation 200-2 as prohibiting USAF Intelligence Officers and Offices of Public Information from even confirming the existence of UFO reports—except "when the object is positively identified as a familiar object . . ." Familiar objects are defined as including "balloons, astronomical bodies, birds and so forth."

This coincides with Admiral Fahrney's statement that "many observers have ceased to report their findings to the Air Force because of the seeming frustration—that is, all information going in, and none coming out."

Major Keyhoe does not find it difficult to believe that creatures not-of-this-world are currently visiting us. He points to such authoritative comments as that of Dr. Harlow Shapley, until recently Director of the Harvard College Observatory: "We must now accept it as inevitable that there are other worlds with some kind of thinking beings."

Even Professor Clyde W. Tombaugh, the only living astronomer who has discovered a planet—Pluto—recently observed that "other stars in our galaxy may have hundreds of thousands of inhabitable worlds. Races on these worlds may have been able to utilize the tremendous amounts of power required to bridge the space between the stars."

To facilitate research and rapid investigatory procedures, Major Keyhoe explained, "NICAP is setting up a nationwide network to report UFOs to our headquarters. All authentic reports will be evaluated by a NICAP panel of engineers, pilots, radar operators, and other experts. Conclusions will then be made public."

NICAP's work should prove interesting, to say the least. And they are not alone in their quest. "UFOs have been reported from every country of the Free World, as well as beyond the Iron Curtain," commented one researcher. "It is ridiculous to conjecture that any earthly power would dare to exhibit such a top-secret weapon to alien eyes; moreover, no country would continue to expend countless billions of dollars on conforming aircraft today if it had the UFO."

And as recently as late last May, Henry J. Taylor, this country's new envoy to Switzerland, told a Senate Foreign Relations Committee that some flying saucer reports are "very disturbing." He said that these craft have been observed "by too many sober-minded people, with photographic and other evidence. I just don't think that we know all the secrets of the universe yet."

(Editor's Note: Associate Membership in NICAP, which includes all official publications, is open to anyone at $7.50 per annum. Direct all correspondence to NICAP, 1536 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington 6, D. C.)

Haunted Town's Ghostly Dance

Deserted Kumsong, Korea, is a ghost town in a cold, dead valley between Allied and enemy lines.

American soldiers who look down on it from their front-line bunkers on these frozen hills say Kumsong is haunted.

The waves of war have washed over the town too often to count. The mud huts are battered charred heaps of rubble.

The ruins have been left to the rats—and to cautious patrols which creep into Kumsong late at night, look, and silently withdraw.

Soldiers call it "The Capital of No Man's Land."

Many come back from long hours of looking over the snow-swept valley to say they have heard "it" again—distant music and the gay laughter of women carried on the crisp night air.

It was only a whispered story until this sign appeared mysteriously one morning, nailed to a log bunker:

"Come to the gala dance this Saturday night—located in lovely, convenient Kumsong. Dancing partners and delicious drinks without cost."

The strange events prompted Sergt. Joe Schwaller of Monterey Park, Calif., to write:

"There's a place to dance in your combat pants.

"And a place to forget the fight;

"There's gals galore and no sign of war.

"In Kumsong, Saturday night.

"It's down the line, don't step on a mine.

"Far from the battle's din.

"Where you can jig to the phantom music.

"Of Ching—and his violin."

For those who scoff, there is only one answer. Just dress warmly and go up the hill to the bunkers some lonely night. You'll hear laughing voices and sweet music.

You'll hear a voice in the next bunker say: "It's Ching and his violin."

A DOCTOR LOOKS AT FOOD POISONS

By

Dr. W. D. CHESNEY, M.D.

Dr. Chesney is the old-fashioned practitioner, and he's a fighting man when it comes to the truth and to his principles. When he took his oath of Hippocrates, he meant it! Here he gives his views on one of the greatest evils of our time. He's got proof, too!

Have each of you really considered what Ray Palmer, and a few others, including the writer, have been trying to impress on you for some years? You that read this can help to rectify the horrible threat, like the sword of Damocles, that swings back and forth over YOUR loved ones. The only progress the world has ever made, has been accomplished through the martyrdom of humanitarian Crusaders. Socrates, a most ardent apostle of justice, human rights, and the survival of the entity of man, was legally assassinated by being forced to drink the cup of hemlock.

Isaiah was sawed into two pieces by a wood-blade saw because he was a non-conformist to rabbinical tyranny and despotism. A great writer once said of Jesus of Nazareth, "He lived like a man. He died like a God because he was God." Jesus taught a religion of love instead of hate, of mercy instead of Hebraic Lex Talionis which specified the most horrible doctrine that ever existed in the whole history of the human race. We all know that he was assassinated, by the greed and hypocrisy of orthodox Rabbis —not by the Jews who did the starving, the weeping, the bleeding, and the paying of the Temple tithes and taxes that ground their noses into the rocky Palestine terrain.

We all know of the persecution and martyrdom—physical or mental—imposed on all early Christians by unconscionable orthodoxies of one or more taints.

There was Galileo, Knox, Latimer, just to mention a few out of millions who died to establish TRUTH. Abe Lincoln was a born non-conformist. He was literally flayed alive by both North and South because he stood for freedom. As we all know, he was assassinated by Wilkes Booth, a half-mad actor urged on by scoundrels from North and South. For years a few men with 'guts' have been hammering away to prevent America from going down the drain. Your author has had more than his share of persecution. He has counted the cost and intends to keep right on in the path leading to freedom. And damn the torpedoes! And he will keep right on in spite of hades, the tobacco trust, the oil trust, the chemical trust, the dairy trust, the government trust that burrows in the body politic, regardless of party. In the rotten reign of bad Queen Anne of Britain, the moral and physical degeneration and degradation matched that of Sodom.

Another savior in the person of Dean Jonathan Swift, the most logical, honest and bitter satirist that ever lived, dared to point out the rascality and veniality of the Crown, the aristocracy and the administrative officials and doctors. He pointed out that the wives of decadent husbands were wont to call in a husky, healthy groom, or coachman to breed them like live stock, to restore the Englishman who was vanishing. Everybody should read an unpurgated edition of Swift's Gulliver's Travels. To shut up Swift forever, the scoundrels he had exposed had him incarcerated in an insane institution, and killed him. But Swift's Truth keeps marching on after centuries, while his persecutors lie in their graves, 'unwept, unhonored and unsung'.

1. An official of the USDA retorted, "Of course there is DDT in that apple, but it won't hurt Johnny too much, if he only eats one apple." An official in the FDA recently stated, "There is no way on earth that Americans can escape being made guinea pigs." Say, friends, when are you going to stop being guinea pigs and be men and women?

Two weeks ago the Chicago Tribune carried a story that the people would have to make their choice—save the elm trees or kill all the song birds, because the DDT would kill the birds. Now, what will kill birds will kill You and Your family. It's all just a matter of time because DDT is a cumulative poison.

About the same time a conference was being held in Madison, Wisconsin, in a vain attempt to find some way to kill the beetle that carried Dutch elm disease without killing people. Friends, which would you rather have, elm trees and see your children die from DDT, or save the people? There are far more beautiful trees than elms.

Here is a fine piece of jugglery with your health. J. R. Magness of the USDA starts off with the beating of tom-toms and says that "Crop Chemicals Are Safe." Now the pay off. After opening his mouth to make this lying declaration, he continues, "However, if evidence showed chemicals now being used were injurious to consumers, proper restrictions would be established to fully protect the consumer." Baron Munchasen never uttered a more damnable falsehood because this man knows that every farm crop now—right now, contains one or more of the following deadly, cumulative poisons: DDT, 2.4-D, parathion, lindane, selenium, manganese, toxaphene, malathion, chlordane, and on, and on, ad infinitum. And this man must know this or he ought to be forced to resign.

Now we call in the FDA (food and drug administration) to prove that either, or both governmental departments are prevaricators (let's be honest and call them what they are—infernal liars). Before me lies a bulletin put out by the F. D. A. stating, "It is extremely likely that the potential hazard of DDT has been underestimated." And another bunch of government drones—United States Public Health Service put in print, "DDT is a delayed action poison. . .It is excreted in the milk of cows and of nursing mothers after exposure to sprays and after consuming food contaminated with this poison. Children and infants are more susceptible than adults."

Now keep in mind, my dear fellow guinea pigs, that DDT is probably the least toxic of all the damnable insecticides THAT YOU AND YOURS GET IN EVERYTHING YOU EAT AND DRINK. That, too, we shall prove. Governmental drones love the alphabetical soup nomenclature. May we not follow suit and, in future, employ F.G.P. instead of spelling out, fellow guinea pigs. (Say FGP, did you know that our President allegedly does NOT use any water contaminated with fluoride of soda, otherwise known by Mercks as 'Roach and bedbug poison'.)

The journal of a.m.a. often dis-closes the damnable crime of universal, deliberate poisoning of all FGPs. But that publication goes only to DOCTORS, who, for one reason or other, do not see fit to pass on the facts to their patients. WHY? The a.m.a. could bring an end to this mass poisoning in a few weeks if it would give press releases to the various news gathering agencies. All American FGPs would be alerted and such a demand would go to out Congressional drones would pass summary laws forever banning untried, untested, poisonous, Nazi-inspired, satan-promoted substances from our foods drinks and air. For instance, the a.m.a. journal published the following, which again brands the USDA for what it absolutely is———. You fill in the blank spot. The journal a.m.a. said:

"It is not reasonable to expect that human beings can avoid injury if they are exposed year after year to a toxic agent in atmospheric concentration that will kill insects in a few hours." FGP, don't you begin to see the picture? Won't you see that your over-paid slave drivers in government are taking you for the greatest free ride since the days of Lady Godiva? The Texas Research organization, a non-profit group interested solely in humanity, placed under oath before the House Committee on poisons in foods, said that samples of every type of foods and drinks were picked up from Amarillo to Houston. DDT in toxic amounts was found in dairy products, all meats, eggs, chickens, bread, cheese; and even large varieties of dried, and even packaged foods like raisins contained possibly toxic amounts of DDT and other insecticides in general use in every state in the Union. Did the USDA lie? Or did the USDA lie?

I can give you thousands of references equally significant. I have told you before. I shall tell you again that U.S. Representative Frank Keefe (R-Wis) made two speeches before the House in 1949 (that's now eight years ago and not one single thing of a corrective nature has passed the House.) Right today hundreds of our over-paid slave drivers are gadding over the world, with their families, secretaries and friends, AT OUR EXPENSE. (When will we FGPs get a little of the Teddy 'guts' and write them to stay at home and work?) But Representative Keefe pointed out that over 800 synthetics were being introduced into our bodies through our ailments, with what may be ghastly consequences. I wonder if our decendants will not curse our money-mad generation as they go down to early death because of our sins of OMIS-SION?

Frank Keefe said, "To commercialize a new chemical FOR USE IN FOOD before its potentialities are known is in my opinion to USE THE PUBLIC AS A GUINEA PIG." And FGPs, did you know that one of the officials in the f.d.a., the soandsos that are sentencing millions yet unborn to agonizing and untimely deaths, actually stated in print this: "There is no way on earth to prevent the public from becoming guinea pigs." Do you that read this not realize what this actually means? Can any good thing come out of that town, which should be named Bureaucratsville? How does this generation of politicians dare blaspheme the name of George Washington? Is it any wonder that a great Frenchman wrote, "Plus je vois les representants du peuple, plus j'adore les chiens jaunes." (The more I see of politicians, the more I adore yellow curs.)

Before me as I write, I see a clipping sent to me by one of the many dear friends I have gained through writing TRUTH. It says that Dr. W.E. Smith, graduate of Johns Hopkins, researcher for Harvard Medical School, the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research as well as the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research, stated at a meeting of nutritionists at the Statler Hotel, that the use of DDT to keep the flies from cows, was used in a concentration sufficient to induce cancer several years later. Every farm magazine is now advertising the use of diethyl-stilbesterol for caponizing roosters. Dr. Smith said that he had found chickens on the market containing 342,000 times the amount that would cause mouse cancer. Read that again—THREE HUNDRED FORTY TWO THOUSAND TIMES THE AMOUNT THAT WOULD CAUSE MOUSE CANCER.

Millions of cattle are right today being given this damnable stilbesterol to make them grow faster on less feed. Billions of poultry carcasses are being frozen in the slops from Aureomycin tanks, and tens of millions of hogs are getting aureomycin, a wonder (blunder) drug that is treacherous as a cobra. All these statements I stand ready to prove 100%. Dr. W.A. Albrecht, a soil expert of international fame recently said that all these new diabolical, artificial fertilizers were growing enormous crops of farm products that were just no good for either man or beast. In proof of that statement he took cattle suffering from brucellosis, or contagious abortion, placed them on pasturage grown on ground containing the trace elements put there by nature—not by chemists —and they promptly recovered without all these new danged 'blunder' drugs, that have made millions of dollars for American pharmaceutical houses that care not one jot or tittle whether their garbage derived soup kills or cures. This too I stand ready to prove.

Five years ago I addressed letters to the FDA concerning these damnable so-called 'certified fruit colors'. I declared to this office my positive belief that all, or nearly all of them that were derived from coal tar, were probably carcenogenic (cancer causing) because they contained the 'azo' radical. In a nice way I was told I was full of prunes and that all that were certified were safe. And now what do we find? The United States Circuit Court has ruled that all yellow, orange and red so-called certified food colors have been proved to have very disastrous effects on animals and hence are probably carcenogenic in humans. And yet, the USDA declared all these poisons were non-poisonous. Verily I say unto all of us FGPs that not one word that stems from Washington, D.C. is to be relied on.

Before me as I write, I see a copy of Capper's Farmer, August 1957 containing a tape recording with George P. Larrick, Chairman, Food and Drug Administration. This title of this tissue of mis-information, or worse is, "Better Foods With Chemicals." FGPs, this stuff, this tripe comes from the very devil. That is the same Larrick that has tried to keep millions of people in imminent danger of death from cancer. And before I proceed to tear this piffle to tatters, let us remember what I have already told you about the ghastly hazard facing us. In addition let us first blast him by quoting from Audubon Magazine, Sept-Oct, 1952, "After the DDT was used in mosquito control in Florida, the devastation of wild life was incredible. With each successive aerial spraying the destruction of wild life was increased several fold. The beaches were actually lined with dead fish and crabs. The concentration of DDT in crab tissue was as high as 2.18 p.p.m. (parts per million)." THE PAY OFF WAS, that the mosquitoes were a worse pest after this massacre of wild life than they were before! The darned fools never seem to learn that wild life destroys mosquito larvae.

Now about the a.m.a. and f.d.a. attempts to prevent the cure of cancer by Hoxsey, Krebiozen, Lincoln, Koch and Drosnes-Lazenby. The son of Senator Tobey was sent home by doctors to die with cancer. As a last resort a treatment condemned by a.m.a. and f.d.a. was used and the boy recovered fully. Tobey asked for and got a committee appointed by Congress to investigate and report. Tobey borrowed one apparently honest man from the Department of Justice, one FitzGerald, a man who cared not a tinker's dam about a.m.a., f.d.a. or any other bureaucratic organization (I wish I could really call them what I knew they are). Let me give you a few choice quotations:

"There is reason to believe that the AMA has been hasty, capricious, arbitrary, and outright dishonest. . . .the machinations of Dr. J.J. Moore (for the last ten years treasurer of the AMA) could involve the AMA and others in an interstate conspiracy of alarming proportions. The principal witnesses to Dr. Moore's rascality. . . .

"Behind all this and over all this is the weirdest conglomeration of corrupt motives, intrigue, selfishness, jealously, obstruction and conspiracy that I have ever seen."

FGPs stop and analyze those terms—"rascality, corrupt motives, intrigue, jealously, obstruction and conspiracy I have ever seen." And FitzGerald gives positive reports of cancer cures of all types, cured by Harry Hoxsey. And so, FGPs, I ask you in the exact words of Benedict F. FitzGerald, "HOW LONG WILL THE AMERICAN PEOPLE TAKE THIS?" Senator Tobey died and by the damnable congressional juggling a man named Bricker, of Ohio, was made chairman of the committee. He either pigeonholed, or probably destroyed the report. Why will we not stop and think? Why do we let rascals pull the wool over our eyes? Why be fooled by all this double-talk smoke screen about Russkie atom bombs that delude us into pouring our wealth all over the whole bloody world?

Here I find a cablegram from the International Union Against Cancer, recently held in Rome. It pointed out that food dyes and preservatives, ". . .are cancer-producing and a serious public health problem." It warned us against a new hazard that is right now being touted by government men—the sterilization of foods by means of irradiation arising from atom fission. It warns against 29 so-called certified food colors, which our f.d.a. formerly certified as safe. Dr. J. A. Miller, a cancer specialist at U. of W. said that coal tar synthetics should be banned by law. He should have said all coal tar synthetics should be banned by most stringent laws.

A few weeks ago the use of parathion as an insecticide was discussed in the newspapers. It was being used on crops to destroy the aphis, or plant louse. Authorities (not necessarily sage men, or humanitarian) said that corn so sprayed should not be used for a ten day period. Also that hay fields, contiguous, should not be used for a long time. Now, how long is 'a long Time? And who is competent to say what the period is? And what becomes of this most dangerous of all insecticides? I tell you, FGPs, that America is in one hell of a shape. Unconscionable scoundrels are boring from within like worms in a once good apple. I tell you that these scoundrels are in high government office. And I tell you again that nothing will be done until every FGP stands up and acts like a Child of the Ever-Living God and stops this eternal ranting about Democrats and Republicans, for both parties actually stink. For many years now bills have been introduced in Congress to stop this mass poisoning and not one single, continental, constructive thing has been done by Congress.

And why is this true? Because the newspapers you read, the radio and the TV do not tell the horrible facts, and all of us being ignorant of the dangers facing us and our whole national future, go merrily on our way voting the ticket straight because our forefathers were Democrats or Republicans. Won't we FGPs ever learn that the principal ambition of every politician is to be re-elected? Will we never vote for principal and not party?

A few days ago I was talking with a state official and said, "Well, thank God, I can get beets and onions that have not been filled with deadly poisons." The man smiled with as near a smile one may expect in a public official, elected solely because he was a member of the controlling party—in this case the Republican Party, and said, "My friend, every beet and every onion contains a coal tar herbicide. After the seeds are planted the ground is sprayed with a poisonous herbicide. The seeds germinate into plants and the plants absorb the chemical. We cannot say yet whether enough of the poison is absorbed to poison them. Some of us believe the chemical is cumulative and that children now in the crib will suffer from cancer because of the cumulative effects,"

And now a word about PARATHION. The medical writer for the Chicago Tribune wrote an article for "The World's Greatest Newspaper," published in August 1951. I wonder if he regrets telling all FGPs that the several coal tar products are extremely dangerous unless employed by experts. (Querry: who are experts? Who decides the amount of deadly chemicals to be used on a crop? Who investigates the tens of thousands of fields of human ailment to discover what became of the poison? The Tribune expert stated that of all the poisonous products for farm use, parathion was the most dangerous. There he was right. To that date (1951) over 198 deaths had been recorded from chemical herbicides. (Query: how many thousands of unrecorded deaths have occurred?) How many millions of those yet unborn will die from cancer because of these most damnable German-Nazi conceived and executed coal tar synthetics? Is this another German Trojan Horse designed to destroy our American heritage?)

Thus one could go on for hours placing the record before us FGP's. And every record is true and documented. The question is this: Do we want to live our normal span in health and happiness? Have we none of the spirit of our forefathers? Anything the British ever did to them is mere goobers to what our own supposed fellow citizens are doing to us.

Have YOU counted the cost.

I have counted the cost. I have gone through earthly hells wished on me by public officials and a state university gang that did their very best to render me hors du combat. And, damn them all, I'll go right on telling the facts as long as I have my liberty, and live. Representative Keefe made the first great exposure of the vile riff-raff that are poisoning for profit, every true American. He died while carrying on the fight for freedom from damnable rascals in commerce and government. Was Frank Keefe deliberately poisoned to shut him up? Dean Swift was thrown into an insane asylum to close his mouth. Moissan, the French chemist was sent to an institution, because he discovered the secret of making real diamonds synthetically. Who, then, shall escape?

I HAVE MADE MY CHOICE. EPITAPH TO FREEDOM

While we FGPs were watching the smoke screen thrown out by TV, radio and the Free Press (free to malign, calumniate, lie, persecute and martyr those the editor does not like—or those he is hired to persecute by unconscionable rascality and heartlessness, by large advertising accounts) someone—we may reasonably suspect so-called psychiatrists, worthy followers of the Doctors Of Infamy in Nazi Germany—put across the following bill of slavery, a slavery more bitter than the colored man ever endured:

1. A relative, friend (true or false?), and officer of the law, can report you as insane, or incompetent. You are thrown into irons, and be-deviled by jail attendants until you are almost cracking up. You are then taken before a Court (which may, or may not, be crooked and have an itching paw). Three doctors are appointed by the Court. These doctors may, or may not, be as crooked as satan. You are very likely to find yourself in an insane institution as a guinea pig.

2. The institution is given the right to employ any form of treatment it wishes. It may be to destroy you with drugs. Do a lobotomy, the most devilish surgery ever devised by insane minds. You may be submitted to 'shock' treatment that also makes of you a Zombie—a walking, working, slaving corpse.

Thank God, there are a few honest Disciples of Hippocrates even now trying to put a stop to these bestial techniques. Lobotomy was the invention of Nazi S.S. doctors that made Zombies of over ten million people.

That can happen to YOU or YOUR dear ones. Once in an insane asylum, you have no other help but God. You will be put under the discipline of the German slave camps. You cannot get any message through to friends or relatives. You may be sewed, without need, in canvas suits till you really go mad. Do not, I beseech you, believe otherwise. After some damnable doctor has declared you insane, no one will be permitted to discover the truth except someone that loves you brings habeus corpus proceedings.

The U.S. Government is now prepared to put across an even more fiendish bill. A slave camp is now preparing in Alaska, away from relatives and friends. There you will unquestionably be made a guinea pig while barbarous techniques are used on you in order that some devil with an M.D. degree will be able to write a great article for some psychiatric journal.

The time to do something about it is NOW. Right NOW.

Write your Congressmen and Senators demanding that they vote against this Alaska slave camp. Do not let them mislead you with honeyed words. Demand that the investigation of f.d.a. and a.m.a. be resumed. Demand that these drones in government pass laws with teeth in them forever forbidding the use of coal tar chemicals in any business associated with food, drink or air.

CHARLES FORT'S CORROBORATION OF THE SHAVER MYSTERY

By Jim Wentworth

CRITICS of the Shaver Mystery are forever asking: "Mr. Shaver, if, as you claim, deros really exist, and are the direct cause of most, if not all, of surface man's suffering, where is the proof? Show me evidence from sources which, while completely independent of you, apparently substantiate your claims and theories."

And calmly, patiently, the man who first introduced the great Mystery, might answer: "Proof you want? Why, it is all around you. Examine your daily papers for allegedly true stories that are strange and off-trail. Study certain books by investigators of the unknown. Listen to the weird, personal experiences of confidants. Delve into the puzzles of man, of Earth's ancient past. Open your mind, wide, and you will come to the conclusion that something unnatural—most emphatically unnatural—is going on."

But this particular critic is tough, unswerving in his skepticism.

"You claim, Mr. Shaver," he continues, "that the human race is being attacked. That in many cases surface people are affected—and killed—by machine rays from the Elder Caverns. What book, for example would tell us these things?"

Richard Shaver's answer could easily be: "Try the BOOKS OF CHARLES FORT."

The other nods, claiming he wants to be fair. His library supplies him with the eleven-hundred-odd page volume, and he settles comfortably in a chair in the undisturbed quietness of his bachelor apartment.

So (he thinks to himself) I am going to come across evidence other than what Shaver offers of cavern rays at work? All kinds of rays that are used not by the kindly tero, but the degenerate dero? Rays that distantly scan and televise? Rays that project thought and seemingly three-dimensional images? Rays that stimulate all human emotion? And, worst of all, rays that torment, maim—and kill!

He starts reading. Time passes, and. . . .

What's this? A change has come over our hardened critic. No longer is he bored. He reads tensely, avidly, hardly a muscle moving.

Slowly, slowly, a conversion is taking place. What is he reading that has brought about this amazing reversal? Very easily, it could have been the following:

DR. BERTHOLLE of Paris, France, was asked by the police to examine a woman discovered burned to death on August 1, 1869. Only the floor under the partially consumed body was burned. Nothing else showed the slightest trace of fire. No other inhabitant of the house had heard a sound.

Albert Houch, living in Pittsburg, Pa., came across his dead wife lying on a table "burned to a crisp." The table was unmarked, as was the whole house itself. This happened in January, 1907.

In that same year, during the month of May, a smoldering corpse was found in a house in Manner village near Dinapore. Two constables had made the tragic discovery. The body, that of a woman, was flame-consumed. Her clothes were unscorched! No sign of a fire anywhere indoors.

The Lake Denmark Hotel stood (perhaps it still does) near Dover, N.J. On the night of December 23, 1916, proprietor Thomas W. Morphey awoke to the sound of moanings. Downstairs, burned and dying, was his housekeeper, Lillian Green. Nowhere in her room was there a sign of fire, except for the charred floor under her.

In January, 1930, the lifeless body of a woman was found. She was Mrs. Stanley Lake of Kingston, N.J. Though severely burned, her clothes remained unmarked!

DURING a calm-weather day in 1893, nineteen soldiers marched near Bourges, France. Quite unexpectedly, they were struck in silence by an "unknown force". Though some were knocked senseless, others were killed outright.

It was July of the year 1894. A large vineyard at Collis, near Fresno, California, was the scene of a death. Heart failure? Perhaps. But then, a second person dropped dead. And yet another was later found dying. A panic resulted. Quickly the vineyard grew deserted as people fled, believing that "something uncanny was occurring".

Three male bodies were found in a coal mine near Coalbridge, Scotland, in September, 1903. The odor of coal gas was not present, nor was there any sign of violence. Two of the men were dead, cousins of the other—Robert Bell—who revived. He told how the three had been walking in the mine when he felt a shock. Nothing whatever was felt by any one else present. The part of the mine where the deaths took place was not wired, other sections being lit by electricity.

The peace and serenity in a girls' school in the town of Derby, England, was unexpectedly shattered one May day in 1905. Girls screamed and sank unconscious to the floor. In five days, feminine screams and faintings occurred forty-five more times.

Left very weakened, they had to be carried home. One child was so drained of strength as to be incapable of sitting up. Some noxious gas or vapor, unknown, was thought to be responsible. But this was discounted when mice that had been put in the schoolrooms were unaffected.

A hunting party made up of M. Krassilrukoff and two friends, left for Sand Island, in the Caspian Sea. This was in January, 1909, and when they had not been heard from after a reasonable length of time, searchers were sent out. The hunters were discovered, unmarked, clothes not disarrayed, but all three dead. Autopsies were made, which revealed no trace of poison.

In the village of Zetel, Germany, during December, 1921, a person fainted in the street. Others followed suit, all for no apparent reason.

A wedding party was taking place in a house in the town of Bradford, England. This was on March 1, 1923. Suddenly the joyousness of the occasion underwent a marked change. Screams filled the air. Guests began to pass out. Four were hospitalized. Adding to the mystery was the fact that other persons in adjoining houses had also been affected. Leakage of gas was not found. Undetectable, too, was any unusual odor in the whole neighborhood.

A doctor hurried to the home of William M. Duncan at the urgings of a telephone call. Time: May, 1928. Place: town of Newton, Mass. As no one met him at the front door, he stepped inside anyway. A call brought no response, so he decided to see for himself if anyone was home. In one of the rooms he came across four unconscious bodies. The odor of gas was undetectable. Still, the doctor worked on the limp forms as if they were asphyxiation cases. They revived, and unfolded an amazing story.

William M. Duncan told how, when he entered this room, he became unconscious. His wife wondered at his prolonged absence, went into the room, and promptly fainted. The same thing happened to one son, while the second son, entering the room by chance, felt himself being overcome by something, but managed to stagger to the phone before passing out.

In El Paso, Texas, on June 19, 1929, scores of people fainted in the streets. Several died.

CAPT. COLVOCORESSES was found dead at Bridgeport, Conn., in the summer of 1872. He had been shot through the heart. But—his clothes showed no trace of a bullet's passage!

From Schaffhausen, near Beringen, Germany, a man trundled a cart on October 2, 1875. He was accompanied by two companions when "his right arm was perforated from front to back, as if by a musket ball". Only the victim heard a whirring sound. No other human was close enough to have fired a gun, and no missile was found!

A hissing sound accompanying a violent blow on the shoulder was felt by a famous official as he entered Pall Mall in London, England. It was June, 1886. Only a policeman could be seen, distantly. The official's coat, when examined at his home, revealed the nap looking "as if a hot wire had been pressed against the cloth in a long, straight line". Discovery of a missile was not made. Then what had struck the man? Something of a meteoritic nature, was the shaky theory.

The dead body of Carl Gros was discovered early in July, 1891, near Maspeth, L.I. Wounds were discovered, too—beneath clothes that were unmarked!

While walking along a Kiel, Germany, street in November, 1901, a woman was unaccountably wounded, never at any time having felt the slightest pain.

John Harding was head of a department in John Wanamaker's New York Store. On a January day in 1909, he was crossing Fifth Avenue at Thirty-third Street when a stinging sensation was felt upon his chest. No missile was found. Then Harding saw a nearby man looking around in anger as he rubbed his arm. The stranger said that he had been struck by something invisible.

Garrisoned at Colchester, England, a soldier was unexplainably knocked unconscious on the evening of April 24, 1911. So serious was the injury that he was hospitalized. A second soldier was brought to the same Garrison Hospital the following night, for he, too, had been "struck senseless by an unseen assailant". Then, on April 29, still another seriously injured soldier was carried to the hospital.

In September, 1919, windows were perforated in Newark, N.J. The missiles whatever they were, could not be found.

People were terrorized in and around Camden, N.J., in the winter of 1927-28, when they were fired upon by unknown weapons. House and store windows, as well as automobile windshields, were marked with bullet-like holes, but no bullets were ever found!

Capt. Ahrenkield of the German steamship Brechsee saw one of his sailors fall to the deck, unconscious, seriously wounded by invisible means that had brought about a four-inch head injury. All this happened during a storm, on December 7, 1931.

ALL the preceding accounts were taken from the BOOKS OF CHARLES FORT. But what of the writer himself? This man who zestfully and courageously delved into weird and taboo subjects?

That Fort must have known something about the caves of the ancients is obvious from his writings. For, how could he have investigated such forbidden subjects without learning forbidden facts? Then why was the underworld not discussed openly?

For example, on page 701 of THE BOOKS, he hints: "It may be that, telepathically, human beings have been induced to commit suicide." Telepathically?

The dero are said to operate wondrous mental machines—telaugs, or telepathic projectors—which cause hypnotic compulsions that can turn mild-mannered surface folk into murderers!

As is pointed out in the Shaver Mystery Magazine (vol. 3, no. 1, 1949) much of Fort's data is clearly ray work, while other data is of extra-terrestrial activities. Possibly Fort desired to focus attention on the latter as he considered it a greater menace than the goings on below.

A great deal of his work was done in London, England, at the time when the dero were running things their own way, with no tero interference. Their motto: "To know is to die" was strictly enforced.

Perhaps Fort wished to preserve his own life, so pretended ignorance of what was going on and thus kept himself from being killed.

However that may be, when death ended Charles Fort's writings in 1932, all strange phenomena did not end with his demise.

CONCERNING human cremations.

Many such cases have occurred since 1932, and mostly to women, for some inexplicable reason. One of the most widely publicized involved 67-year old Mrs. Mary Hardy Reeser. Her apartment—the Allamanda at 1200 Cherry Street N.E.—was in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Shortly after 8 a.m. on Monday, July 2, 1953, she was found by her landlady, Mrs. P. M. Carpenter, sitting in an overstuffed easy chair. She was dead . . . but not, certainly, from natural causes.

Little remained of Mrs. Reeser whose body had been almost totally cremated. Her skull was shrunk to baseball size, contrary to similar cases where the skulls expand and occasionally explode. One vertabra lay among the ashes, while her left foot, curiously unmarked, was encased in the remains of a black slipper.

The burned armchair was reduced to coil springs only. The lamp, chair-side table, and carpet directly below the chair were destroyed.

Untouched was everything else!

Known fact: For a human body to be completely consumed requires a 2,000 degree temperature lasting for a two or three hour period.

More recently, on May 18, 1957, Mrs. Anna Martin of 5061 Reno Street, West Philadelphia, was discovered cremated by her bachelor son, Samuel, who had come home from work around 5 p.m.

The torso of the sixty-eight year old widow, lying face down before her coal furnace, was so burned as to be almost unrecognizable, while her lower limbs were completely consumed. The furnace was blameless as it was unlit and unheated. Articles closely surrounding the corpse—newspapers, cartons, etc.—were unscorched.

A stain of approximately four square feet covering the floor around the body added to the mystery.

REGARDING the penetration of cars by "ghostly bullets".

Harold T. Wilkins, in an article in the February, 1953 issue of FATE, tells that on record are thirty-two cases of phantom bullets striking automobiles between March, 1951, and June, 1952, "on a two-and-a-half-mile-long section of road from Portsmouth to London."

Though the windshields were cracked, no missile was ever found! As for stones causing the damage, police say no. Whatever it was, it was propelled with high velocity, sometimes causing the car to sway upon impact. With the windshields cracked, a neat, round hole was invariably found at the center.

In mid-June of 1953, sixteen ghostly sniper attacks on cars happened in the state of Illinois alone.

ABOUT Fort's accounts of "something invisible" striking humans.

In reference to the John Harding case, he writes that if the unknown force had been intense enough to kill both Harding and the stranger, a ready "explanation" would have been given. Namely, that the two men had by coincidence died of heart failure in one place.

Does Fort give other true stories of "coincidental deaths"? Some accounts already listed could be regarded as such. But before I put down a few others as examples, I must mention that it is believed that the dero have a ray that can cause a synthetic heart attack.

Near Indio, California, in the Coachella desert, two dead men were found in October of 1929. Lying about one hundred yards apart, one of the men was a local resident; the other a stranger.

On the morning of June 14, 1931, a policeman tried to awaken an apparently sleeping man on a bench in Mt. Morris Park (Bronx). The man was beyond waking. He was dead. Probable cause of death was heart failure as stated by a doctor. Soon after—a second dead man was found on a nearby bench.

Consider the next peculiar entry of Charles Fort, then ask yourself if they were really "accidents", or the malicious ray work of the dero.

On the morning of April 10, 1893, twelve men were injured in the streets of Brooklyn, N.Y., all within a few hours. High falls caused some injuries, others being the result of loftily dropped objects hitting the victim.

IN the Shaver Mystery Magazine (vol. 2, no. 1, 1948) there appeared a letter from a reader telling of his experience at a Mystery Spot "three miles out of Santa Cruz, California."

He felt a slight dizziness and skull-tightening which increased with his approach to the main region of influence. A demonstration of height differentiation was given, the reader being involved. At the main center of force, he was compelled to lean at about a fifty degree angle.

He mentions a few scientific explanations for the Mystery Spot, like "a negatively charged meteorite that had been buried in the hills", and "an escape of gravity". Then he gives what he thinks could be the real reason for the phenomena. Richard Shaver agreed, and I herewith quote his answer:

"I've heard of this Mystery Spot before. With your data to go on, I should say the phenomena is due to an untended or deserted ray mech. In cavern warfare it frequently happens that the operators of a ray mech are killed leaving the ray still in function. And this warfare—as I well know—goes on all the time."

The Shaver Mystery Club Letterzine (vol. 1, no. 4) tells of a second Mystery Spot located in Oregon. I quote:

"Four miles out from Gold Hill, is a 125 foot circle of ground that drives scientists and technicians crazy trying to find explanations for its behavior. Fifty years ago an essay office on this spot was abandoned because even the scales wouldn't work. The ruins of the essay office are still there. Within the circle no compass will function, no plumb line will work, no instrument will register correctly. Nothing living will go into this circle—no birds to nest—no animal to cross. Objects thrown up to the north return to the spot. Level off a board and place a ball on it and it rolls to the north. The laws of gravity seem vetoed and of electricity quite jumbled."

Shaver's explanation of such regions were that they happened to be the focal spots of ray mech from underground which was abandoned long, long ago while still operating.

The same issue discusses still another, the Colorado Mystery Spot situated thirty miles from Pueblo. Several more are scattered throughout the world.

THEN there are the teleportation cases, many of which are discussed in THE BOOKS. Have surface people been transported below by teleportation machines?

If the reader is tempted to scoff, he should, first, think of the great number of humans who for past centuries have disappeared under very odd circumstances. Charles Fort well knew of these mysteries, and did not ignore them in his writings.

Take one city only in the United States—Chicago. The following quote is from the Chicago Tribune Magazine, dated July 10, 1955.

"In 1954, 6,243 persons were reported missing. By the year's end, 6,002 cases had been stamped "canceled."

Unaccounted for are 241 people. What of them? Were they spirited into the cavern cities beneath the Earth's surface, the luckless victims of the dero?

Several years ago, while corresponding with Richard Shaver, this writer discussed such eerie human disappearances. In an answering letter, dated June 23, 1948, Shaver wrote:

"Ships disappear—we lost whole troop ships in war—ray told me our soldiers were sold as "Frozen Samuel" in meatmarkets down there. Was it true?"

Following is what might be a case of teleportation that apparently mis-fired. Though Fort included it in THE BOOKS, I will use Harold T. Wilkins' more detailed account from an article he wrote in November, 1953 FATE.

Time: 3 a.m. Place: Bristol, England. Date: December 9, 1873.

Two figures in night clothes, an elderly man and woman, ran wildly into the station of the Bristol and Exeter railroad at Temple Meads. The startled night superintendent, Thomas Harker, had some difficulty in calming the hysterical couple, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Cumpston, who cried out that they had just "escaped from a den of thieves and rogues", and had to defend themselves with a pistol.

They believed they were followed to the station, and pleaded for protection. Harker searched the unlit platform outside, fearing he was faced with a pair of lunatics. Though nothing amiss was found, an off-patrol policeman was called.

Later that day, charged with disorderly conduct, the Cumpstons appeared before the Bristol magistrates, and related a most incredible story.

On the preceding evening, the two signed in at the Victoria Hotel, across from the railroad station. It was their intention to board a train scheduled to leave the next morning for a seaside resort about twenty-five miles away. To use Mr. Cumpston's own words:

"Early yesterday evening we were alarmed by dreadfully loud noises we could not account for. Our landlady at this hotel said it was nothing. At three this morning we heard the noises again. It was terrible. The floor gave way. It split and opened. My wife and I jumped out of bed, but the floor sank under us. Our exclamations of terror were most strangely repeated and re-echoed."

Mrs. Cumpston gave her version. "My husband fell down and was vanishing into a hole that had suddenly opened in the bedroom floor when I caught hold of his arm and, with great difficulty, pulled him back. He had gone some distance into the hole. We screamed and each time our screams were most horribly re-echoed. I said to my husband, 'Take out your pistol and fire it." He fired into the ceiling, but the strange noises continued. We opened the bedroom window and leaped out into the street, ten feet below. I again asked my husband to fire his pistol. I was sure we were being followed. He fired in the street. Then we rushed to the railroad station opposite."

Nothing unusual was found by the Bristol police who searched the hotel bedroom. Strange, indescribable noises were admitted to be heard by the landlady, Mrs. Tongue. Had the husband and wife been drinking? No, not a drop; it was ascertained. The respectability of the Cumpstons was sworn to by a Mr. Butt who was summoned by telegraph from Gloucester. Their social position in Leeds, Yorkshire, he assured, was good.

Discharged by the magistrates, it was suggested that the Cumpstons were suffering from hallucinations, and further suggested that they should be looked after by Mr. Butt.

In that same letter of Richard Shaver's, he had something to say about the Cumpston affair.

"Opening floor is often found in fairy tales, too. They (the Elder Race) must have had some method of dissipating usual solidity of matter - more surprising as floor is found intact afterward - too much for our minds. Teleport itself is only heresay, but there is a lot of evidence of its existence. I doubt there are many could use a teleportation mech if there was one found. Many mech require greater co-ordination of hand and eye than we possess nowadays. As many as a hundred little handles to adjust and re-adjust - and all completely misunderstood as to purpose."

ABOUT the dero.

Do they ever leave the underworld to walk the city streets of upper-worlders? Shaver says it happens. Their manner of departure and re-entry to the caves could, at times, be accomplished via teleportation machines. Doubtful though Shaver may be of its present usage by the dero, the possibility still remains.

Printed in the April-May, 1952 issue of FATE was a letter by a California reader who relates a strange story that was recently told to him by a street car operator who worked on cars that were run by a single man able to open and close the front and back doors by automatic levers. To quote:

"This man had taken the car over its usual route through Los Angeles proper, on through old LA, and out North Broadway where, in the Elysian Park area, it is thinly populated. It was about four in the morning, an hour or so before daybreak. As usual, he had carried some late night workers, and there were about a dozen left in the car.

"As he slowed to a lonely stop, he sensed that a woman, dressed in dark clothing with a floppy old hat, had risen and was standing behind him. As he turned to see if she wanted to get off, he saw her plunging toward him, and then she fell beside him against the front wall of the car. He stopped to pick her up, and she seized his thumb in her mouth.

"It was like having it in a vise. Then she began chewing. Her jaws were like those of a powerful dog. He grappled with her for a second, and then she let go and ran through the car to the back platform. He ran after her, his hand bleeding profusely. Suddenly she disappeared. He had not opened the rear door, and the only way she could have gotten out was through a window which wasn't open enough to allow a human body to pass through. No one in the car seemed to know what had happened to her, and no one saw her go through the window. Passengers searched the car for her, and looked under the car, but she was not seen again.

"The injured man suffered a dislocated thumb, lacerations, and a tendon almost chewed in two. He was laid up for three months. Insurance agents were so dubious of his story that they interviewed passengers who verified the accident."

Was the dark-clothed woman a mad dero who, after her unprovoked attack on the street car operator, was t e l e p o r t e d instantaneously back to the caves?

Do you have a better explanation?

GETTING TO KNOW YOURSELF

By John Mentor

Another in a series of articles on how your subconscious mind controls your destiny; and how you can learn to control your subconscious.

Number 3

WHAT ARE YOUR DREAMS?

What is a dream? The question is fairly easy to answer when the dream is experienced under certain conditions, and is remembered. The ideal dream for study is one that you have while asleep and remember when you wake up. It's isolated from other mental activity because the other mental activity is more or less suspended at the time.

However, this ideal is not the only type of dream condition. Dreams can and do occur just as often during waking life. You have pure dreams that last a fraction of a second while you are working or talking. You do not think of them as dreams. They are called inspirations, intuitions, hunches, flashes, and many other things, including messages and visions and visitations and voices. They superimpose into the surrounding material world by feeding into the visual, auditory, tactile, and olfactory centers of the mind, as well as the conscious stream of thought.

Their origin can be anything from purely psychological conflicts in the mind to telepathy and so-called extra-sensory perception. Their source can be a communication from a discarnate entity contacting you, a telepathic message from someone a thousand miles away, something you hear or see physically but don't consciously notice, or even an unresolved mental conflict that started yesterday, last week, or when you were a child.

The unfortunate thing about all this is that what feeds into your conscious mind is mostly symbols that seem to have little or no relationship to what they symbolize, and you, not knowing they are symbols, take them as they appear.

You have a dream in which you get in a car, it starts up, you try to steer it and the steering wheel won't work, you try to stop it and the brakes won't work, ahead is a washed-out bridge and the car is rushing toward it and you are headed for certain destruction—and you wake up sweating.

To get your mind off the unpleasant dream you get to work early on that business deal you've been thinking of going into lately, and before the day's over you've signed the papers and are going ahead on it. You feel better about it now, but in a week when you see something not going to your satisfaction and you try to get it changed you are informed that it can't be changed now. You don't like that, so you try to back out of the deal, and find that you can't without losing everything you put into it. In a few weeks you see the whole deal headed toward a complete flop, you are pouring money into it you can't afford, hoping against hope. You are remembering something you knew before you went into it that would have told you what was going to happen, but you just didn't think of it before you got into this mess.

You have forgotten about the dream you had. If you had known about dreams you would have known that getting into the car was a symbol for starting in on this ill fated business venture, that not being able to steer symbolized having no say on what was to happen, that the brakes not working symbolized being unable to get out of the deal once you were in it, and the washed-out bridge ahead symbolized the unfortunate and inevitable consequences of getting into this deal.

Your dream department was on the job, doing its best to let you know what would happen. You just didn't know that it was trying to tell you something, and if you had known you still wouldn't have been able to unravel what it was telling you.

Or switch the reality and the dream around. You dream you go into a business venture, put up a lot of money, then find you have nothing to say about what goes on, and when you try to back out you find you can't, and they are coming to take your home away from you. You wake up sweating from the dream, eat breakfast, get in your car and start to work, the steering wheel won't work, the brakes won't work, you plunge off the road over an embankment and are killed.

Why do we dream in symbols instead of reality? Because we think in symbols. People and things become symbols to us by mental association with other things. It is a process that goes on unconsciously, and affects our conscious life from underneath in ways that can only be uncovered by patient study.

It's very complex. A married woman may symbolize her husband as a vicious dog she holds at heel. She had a dream in which some people come to see her, but her dog growls at them and she hangs onto the leash and tries to assure the people it's all right. They are afraid and go away, and she is unhappy because they have gone. At the same time her husband might have become the symbol for the company she works for. So, troubled about the way the dog behaved, she goes on to a second stage in the dream where she is telling her husband about the dog and asking what to do about it, and her husband is calm and comforting and she feels safe with him and the problem of the dog doesn't seem so monumental.

Here the dog symbolized her husband and her husband symbolized her job. Later she might have a dream in which the dog attacks her husband and kills him, which symbolically says that her husband in real life might force her to quit work.

When you are around a person, over the weeks and months and years symbols build up in your mind, identified with that person. In one dream the vicious dog is the symbol for your husband, in a dream a year later he might be symbolized by a rabbit, an eagle, a budgie bird in a cage, depending on what role he has been playing recently in your daily life. At the same time he himself becomes a symbol for a succession of things. Your job, your doctor, the police, the army.

Symbols change, the meaning of symbols change. How then are we to make any sense out of dreams? It isn't easy—and it certainly is not a cut and dried thing where you have a dream and look it up in a book to find out what it means.

You own a book on dreams, you have a dream where you find money, you look it up and the book says, "Dreaming of finding money means you are going to fall in love." There is a fairly good chance that the book is right, but there is a better than even chance that it is wrong.

Dreams are messages fed into your conscious mind by the dream department in a language which your dream department invented on its own, without consulting a dictionary of dreams. If you are to learn what your dream department says, you must learn its language, and you must bear in mind that its language, is individual to it, and not spoken by anyone else's dream department with the same meanings.

How are you to begin learning what your dream department tells you? By bearing in mind certain general rules which will be explained and developed at length in this and subsequent articles. These rules will help you to get the feel of your own dreams, and a perspective of what they are. They will not be rigid and dogmatic rules. Few rules are, except in the exact sciences.

But these rules will help you begin to understand your dreams, and to get a certain amount of success in interpreting them. And these little successes will carry you on to greater successes.

The most common type of dream is the problem dream. That is, some problem of daily life is bothering you and is unresolved, and the dream department takes that problem and works out an answer.

In the simple problem dream there are two parts, the statement of the problem, followed by the working out of the problem to an answer. The change from part one to part two is generally done by a change of scene. If a dream starts out with you trying to get somewhere, and then you are there and the dream goes on, you have a simple problem dream, the easiest type to tackle to get an understanding of the symbology employed by your own dream department.

The reason it is the easiest type to tackle is because the first half of the dream can generally be directly identified with a known problem of waking life, and the meanings associated with the symbols can thus be determined. Then, since some of those symbols appear in the second half of the dream, you have an entering wedge into unraveling the whole dream.

The best way to do, in tackling a dream, is to write the whole dream down in detail. When you do this, and study it over, more of the details of the dream will gradually come to you, and you can add those as footnotes. And if you do this in a loose leaf notebook you can, over the months, build up a work book of your dreams and their symbology.

In addition to the simple problem dream consisting of two parts, there is the problem dream consisting of three parts. This is the alternative answer dream. The first part states the problem. The middle part is one solution to the problem dream, consisting of just solution to the same problem.

Finally there is the fragmentary problem dream, consisting of just one part. This part may be the statement of the problem, remembered on waking while the second half has been rejected by the conscious mind, and therefore cannot be remembered on waking. Or it may be the second half, with the first half rejected by the conscischious mind. Gradually in fragmentary dreams there will be a strong impression that something happened before, or after.

But along with fragmentary problem dreams there are simple message dreams, which usually consist of only one part; so in the beginning it is usually better not to bother too much about dreams having only one part. Later, with some degree of success at understanding the symbols of your dreams, you can have real success with the dreams of one part.

Eventually, if you are entirely honest with yourself, you will become able to detect and interpret a message dream, and by doing so bypass the dream department and gain conscious use of your extra senses.

Being entirely honest with yourself is the catch. It isn't easy, believe me. Dreams are always very dramatic. If your most intense interests are concerned with religion, your dream department's vocabulary of symbols will probably be religious. If you are convinced that all dreams are real, direct experiences on the astral plane, if you are convinced that there are no symbols in dreams, and your religious dreams are all true visions, it will be very difficult for you to make yourself swing around to an objective and critical—even skeptical—study of your dreams. You may feel that such an attempt would be blasphemous or sinful or endangering your security in the life after death. If you feel this way strongly, it would be better for you not to tackle an objective study of your dreams because the conflicts that would be generated in your mind could become too great for you to bear.

Real truth, however, can withstand any assault. It is only untruth that crumbles. The path to true enlightenment can seldom be found except by an honest and objective search. The goats cannot be separated from the sheep of your inner universe of thought unless you first admit to yourself

YOUR FUTURE

By Dorothy Spence Lauer

What does tomorrow hold in store for you? All of us would like to know, and there are various ways of predicting. Here, in Mrs. Lauer, we present a prophet who employs an unusual method, and whose ability SEARCH proved positively, 87½% accurate, over a period of two years.

AS I predicted, the Asiatic Flu epidemic, largely publicized, has become a fact, and the element of mass hypnosis is present. You think it—you attract it. If everyone would just put the idea out of their minds, they'd surely help themselves. Every sniffle, or little degree of not feeling up to par is now labeled Asiatic Flu. Perhaps nobody will ever estimate the amount of this epidemic which is psychosomatic, but it is a very large number of cases.

I have been asked by many: why cannot everyone get a complete spiritual healing at once? Those who have written me, asking whether or not they should discontinue a doctor, I feel this is wrong to do. Doctors are here for a purpose, and to leave something serious go unattended is not right.

I feel much will be said about Russia again. Everyone being positive they will "sneak" upon us and destroy us. How I wish I could put this idea out of people's minds. I feel that any new development they make on any new claim (they will, or have, at this writing) should not be an occasion for alarm. This feeling of alarm will hurt us all. Our government is aware of these things, and also, we are in capable hands both in a spiritual sense and in having a wise government. We would do better to think how we can help our fellow man and keep our own houses in order.

(Editor's note: This prediction was made by Mrs. Lauer on August 27, before the sputnik. Had our magazine schedule not been interrupted, it would have been published before the Russian announcement. Here is one of the problems we have in publishing Mrs. Lauer's predictions—they are sometimes only a step ahead of the event, and we suffer from appearing to be "looking backward" instead of forward.)

News of Egypt will be of a surprising nature. Here a move will take place that will shock everyone; and also Iran and China will be headlined. All in different ways, but all of a very major uptrend that each have been striving for.

Many changes in the draft system. Many will be let out, Many will also find they are not going to go to any service.

News of president Eisenhower making a decision that may meet with opposition—yet in the end he will definitely have his way.

Again a certain cult leader will face trouble and upheaval unless he watches who he is trusting. He

Editor's Note: Dorothy Spence Lauer is a Psychometrist, specializing in precognition. Ordinarily she needs but an object belonging to, or handled by, the subject, or the presence of the subject, to become aware of the psychic influences from which she draws her information. However, for the sake of expediency in providing her with a sufficiently strong personal psychic impression, the editors of this magazine hit upon the Bible verse method. By writing out a verse, while concentrating, as described in the instructions given on this page, we hope that a sufficiently powerful psychic impression will be made to enable the medium to receive the information she seeks. We have made this service available to our readers purely in an experimentative atmosphere, in an attempt, first, to determine whether or not this ability is of a nature both real and valuable; and second, to provide you with an interesting bit of entertainment.

For the convenience of our readers who wish to contact Mrs. Lauer personally, you can do so by writing your Bible verse according to instructions and mailing it directly to her. Usually Mrs. Lauer charges much more (from $5 to $10) for an analysis, however she will analyze any verse sent through SEARCH magazine for $3.00. Please send your personal orders to Mrs. Lauer, Amherst, Wisconsin, and not to this magazine. We do not assume responsibility for them, nor for the content of her analysis. However, we would appreciate continued cooperation from those of you who have personal analyses regarding her percentage of accuracy, so that, over a long period of time, we may accumulate a substantial mass of evidence of the reality of the power technically called psychometry.

HOW TO GET A PSYCHOMETRIC ANALYSIS

Select a short verse from the Bible, perhaps your favorite, and write it on a separate sheet of paper, meanwhile concentrating on your problems. Then mail the sheet to Mrs. Dorothy Spence Lauer, Amherst, Wisconsin, and enclose $3.00. Bear in mind the reply may take several weeks.

seems to have one thing that he can fall back upon. To date he hasn't thought of it, or is right now being led to believe a certain right is not his. He could straighten out and run the organization as it was and should be run. He has several loyal supporters; two who will definitely do what they have in mind if he isn't careful. I wish he himself would read this. It may make sense to him, to realize that others are also in a position to help him, with no strings attached, such as I have tried to do. As for me, money cannot purchase any information I have now or will have for him. I see complete disaster ahead for him. He in turn does nothing about it. If he doesn't wake up soon, he will find himself separated from one person who has had the glory with him, however when they see him doing nothing to save this situation, they will walk away.

One of my clients, no name mentioned for a reason, will find that much of their research pertaining to psychic and occult methods will soon pay off in large dividends, as they will reach one who has much worldwide attention and much will be discovered along this line. Almost as if they keep records of everything psychic and occult (wouldn't be surprised if even My analyses weren't weighed, pro and con, and certain research bring out details even I wasn't aware of.)

Much controversy will come up about reincarnation, karma and so on. There is the law of compensation, but beware of adding 2 and 2 and getting 5.

A new earthquake. This will be very bad, but quite away from us, yet much need will be met by us for those stricken.

One person will come up with a new angle on space ships.

Be careful of any merchandise sent you if you've lost someone dear. These "last thought" mementoes are in reality very poor merchandise, and is a number one racket. Be prepared not to accept this goods, as it was NOT ordered by the person who has passed on.

(Special to the editor: I feel that something will occur that will be very much to your liking. A book or manuscript, or something printed will be very important to you and success is assured. Someone with initial C, a man, may approach you. Be careful, avoid all dealings. You can recognize this person by fast jerky movements. Very personable in manners, but trying hard to convince you to go in with him on something (having nothing to do with aforementioned manuscript). He gives you the impression that you will head something. Use your own intuition here. Mrs. Palmer will dislike the man immensely upon meeting him, so listen to her, if not to me! Someone will want to exchange something with you. I think you'd be getting the best here, as this particular article or whatever it is really doesn't have a need where you are concerned.)

(Editor's note: The following predictions were made on October 24).

(Again for yourself, Ray Palmer: A very old paper or document—this has value of some kind, will suddenly pay off, but many a time you thought it was useless to hold on to it. You'll surely be glad you did.)

Russia will again do the outstanding. If people thought the sputnik was news, something even more outstanding is on the way.

News will come from England about someone very prominent passing on.

Scandal about a Hollywood movie star, very well known and liked. Many loyal fans will uphold this star, proving that everyone doesn't believe all they hear.

Financial success for the stock market—even though it was down. If people would only not be so implusive. Think before selling. It will rise to extraordinarily high levels.

An ocean liner will sink—many lives lost.

Anyone buying machinery that is intricate should have it examined, otherwise one particular company (the name International Harvester Company comes to mind) will have many requests for refunds. This company can avoid this by being sure that their employees are doing their work right.

Logs of all kinds show up, almost like a logging mill. Very sudden news about this, not good, though.

Public should avoid a chain letter selling government bonds. Avoid this. The government will step in, so avoid trouble for yourself by not accepting the chain letter and passing it on.

Paris France will be in the headlines.

(Ray: avoid going on a trip with a man older than you. Some strange or odd situation could arise and you'd lose in some way. Be sure to watch this. When you see WHO it is, though, you'll say to yourself "I'm sure Dorothy is wrong this time." But remember a loss will occur if you do go. An unexpected visitor that will really surprise you and in some manner you will feel a little in awe of their position.

Just be yourself and this could prove beneficial in some manner. Very soon a change in business and finances for you.)

Russia is really going to keep us going. That is, they will try the most astonishing things imaginable, and some of these experiments are going to fail miserably. One will cause us in the United States to feel like smirking—and we probably will.

Will the person from Indianapolis, Indiana write me so that I can have their address to answer their request for an analysis? Also someone from New York who failed to include their return address.

To those readers who wonder, my analyses vary in length. I only say what comes to me at the time. Never less than a full page, but many times it will be longer.

I have several monograph orders with no return address. Why do people forget to include their address even when sending money? Write me if you are one of those who hasn't received an order. One person ordered Concentration and Intuition.

that there are goats as well as sheep. If you are to have faith worthy of the meaning of the word, it must be a faith divorced from fear of discovering you have been wrong about something, a faith that gives you courage to seek the truth. A little child does not fear unless it is taught to fear. The faith of a little child is unfearing.

Truth does not hide behind the Fifth Amendment, nor does it hide its credentials and demand to be taken on trust. And after all, in these articles we are not handing you anything either as truth or untruth, we are simply showing you the way to search out the truth that lies within yourself. You, and you alone, are in a position to tell whether what you discover within yourself is truth. You and you alone are in a position to search for and find the closed doors of your mind—and open them.

I can do no more than show you the way.

The MAGIC POWER of your MIND

By James Watt

What is reality? Can you judge it with only your five senses? When something happens to you is it real? How do you know? Perhaps it happens to you only because you think it does! Perhaps the occurrence is caused by your mind, and not by the outside factors you believe were the cause. When you take an aspirin, you believe that it cures your headache; but the fact may be that the aspirin has no effect whatever — it may all be in your mind! As a man thinketh, so is he. That's an old proverb, very old. Is there, in our modern times, any authority that can prove this old adage? In this article, that authority is revealed for the first time. Now, at last, we can know the truth, and it shall make us free! You have a magic power, and it is all in your mind! Once you know how, you can use it to cure all your ills, make your fortune, draw the love of your life to you as a magnet draws iron. Here, perhaps, is the most important revelation this modern world has ever discovered. Read it, and master your destiny!

Back in the "roaring twenties" a man named Coue started a fad that swept the world. He said, in brief, that "Every day, in every way, I am becoming better and better." You could use an infinite variety of "becomings," such as "Every day, in every way, I am becoming richer and richer," or "healthier and healthier." People who needed a doctor's care, instead began repeating incessantly that "Every day my tumor is growing smaller and smaller." The strange part of the mad wave of Coueism is that in innumerable instances, it apparently did exactly as its users were saying it did. Psychologists explained this by saying that in some instances the mind actually did effect a cure, or the riches, or whatever the case may have been; and in others, the malady had never existed in the first place except in the mind. Least of all did any scientist believe that muttering words incessantly would actually have any effect, simply as words.

In an earlier day there was the "patent medicine" man who went about with his cart and his little sideshow, selling a bottle of swamp water for a dollar that cured absolutely everything. Obviously it could not, however even he could produce persons who swore they had been cured, and apparently were perfectly honest in so saying. Once more, it wasn't the medicine, but the magic power that existed in their minds that effected the cure.

There are many people who believe that they can perform many feats simply by mental power. As Dr. Rhine has proven, in his experiments at Duke University, some of them are correct in this belief. He believes the mind has this magic power. Nothing spectacular has been done, such as digging a ditch with your mind, but such things as rolling dice and concentrating on them falling on a certain number has been statistically proven.

The mental science of dianetics includes such feats as healing broken bones instantly by mind power; very much as does the Hawaiian "huna" magician.

Books written on this theme have been best-sellers recently, and they vary from tomes written by technical psychologists and psychiatrists to those written by theological people in a "religious" sense.

Even religion itself is based on this magic power. Have "faith" and you will be saved. By a mental process you can determine your eternal destiny—be it heaven or hell.

But in all these things we have had to depend on a very vague authority indeed. There has been no actual person or organization to which we can turn and get an authoritative dictum that this magic power actually exists; no one who will say "I have the scientific evidence to prove that it is so." Beyond a few minor statistics which are not universally accepted, even among statisticians, there is no proof. It must all be taken on faith, as a believer, or as a non-believer. That is, until now.

At last we have an authority. At last we can produce the facts in writing, signed, sealed and delivered. And what is this authority? None other than the Federal Trade Commission of the United States of America!

As you know, the Federal Trade Commission was formed to regulate trade, and see that it is run honestly. Among other things, they are dedicated to investigating advertising, to see that it does not make false claims. There will be no cheating of the public. It will not do to take swamp water, add a bit of bitters, and claim that it will cure cancer, kill fleas, and bestow beauty. No, if sold at all, it must be sold simply as swamp water with a bit of bitters added, and that, taken internally or externally will have only the usual effect of swamp water and bitters. And even the effects considered "usual" depend first upon a scientific analysis, and a decision rendered upon such analysis.

We all know how valuable the Federal Trade Commission is, to protect us against such unprincipled business methods as misrepresentation of goods or services. We, as a gullible people, require such protection, or we'd be "skinned" to the bone by sharpies. So the Federal Trade Commission is a good thing.

However, few of us realize that the Federal Trade Commission teaches the magic power of the mind, and in fact, renders the existence of that magic power an immutable necessity. In order to demonstrate this fact, this function of the Federal Trade Commission, we will have to take an actual instance. This instance is an actual advertisement that has appeared in the pages of this magazine (but which will appear no more).

Advertising, psychologists know full well, is a very potent bit of "mental processing." It borders on the hypnotic. By the clever use of words, repeated over and over again, with a kind of logic that is in many cases, false in itself, those exposed to that advertising can be persuaded to purchase a product almost without personal choice. Take cigarette advertising as an example. How many of us find, ringing through our minds even in our sleep, or as we go about our business, or while engaged in kissing the girl we love, the phrase: "Smoke Kent" to which is added "With the Micronite Filter"? And how many of us automatically say "Kent" when we arrive at the cigar store to purchase "some cigarettes." This is effective advertising. In a way, it is the magic power of your mind again, only this time your mind is reacting to a clever plan by some other mind, that of the advertising agency writer who devised the advertising copy.

When you analyze the advertising copy, you find that the advertiser is not making any actual claims that he cannot prove. He does not say that his cigarette does not cause cancer (nor that it does, of course). He merely stresses that it is the only one with a micronite filter. He can go on about such things as living modern, or "they satisfy," or "for pure pleasure." It is conceivable that there are persons who are not satisfied. and who would get no pleasure out of smoking, but this is not considered actual misrepresentation (although it surely is).

There is a brand of hair preparation being advertised on television which "penetrates the hidden layer" and removes dandruff. Plain soap and water will remove the dandruff also, but soap and water "remove those vital hair oils which make for the natural beauty of your hair" which is something to be concerned about. But watch the wording of those advertisements. Do they really say what you think they do? Not at all. They depend on the "magic power of your mind" to make them seem to say it.

And mostly, they depend on that magic power of your mind to make them work. They know, inevitably, that the preparation will remove the dandruff from some people's hair, and that continued advertising will sell new customers in sufficient volume to offset those who do not find that their dandruff is removed, and consequently do not buy a second bottle. Keep plugging, is their answer.

Many of you readers of SEARCH will recall the advertising for a product called "Turn-er's" in its pages. Briefly, it all began when the editor received a visit from Kenneth Arnold, the flying saucer man. Mr. Turner was Mr. Arnold's barber, and he sold him a privately concocted preparation for the hair that did something to its color, removed excessive dandruff, or so he said. It is beside the point as to whether it did or not—because Mr. Arnold forgot his bottle when returning to his home, and the editor of SEARCH, having had dandruff all his life, used the one-third bottle that was left. Strangely enough, his dandruff disappeared. His itchy scalp also stopped itching. His hair began to darken. So noticeably that his friends remarked upon it.

Delighted, he wrote Mr. Arnold and asked where more might be purchased. And as he always does, he wanted to pass on to his friends and readers what he considered a good product; so he began advertising it in his magazines. Naturally, also being a practical soul, he received a commission for sales.

Almost immediately he began receiving letters from satisfied buyers who made the most fantastic claims for Turn-er's. One man even said it cured an eye-brow infection, a scabby sort of thing, in a week, which has not recurred. Such testimonials certainly aid sales, so he published (with permission, of course) this and a few other testimonials.

But the guardians of the Public were on the job. The editor was asked to submit samples of his advertising (not the product) to the Federal Trade Commission. Apparently they bought a bottle for their own use, or asked Mr. Turner to send them one (more likely). For they turned it over to the experts for a scientific opinion. When the opinion had been rendered, they sent the editor of SEARCH the following letter:

Mr. Ray Palmer,
Ray Palmer Publishing Company,
Amherst, Wisconsin.

Re: File No. 5723727.
Dear Mr. Palmer:

Reference is made to our previous correspondence concerning advertising for Turn-er's Tonic. We have now received a scientific opinion and given consideration to this advertising.

According to the evidence available to us, the use of this product does not prevent the loss of hair, cure dandruff, bring back or restore the natural color in the hair, constitute a treatment for skin rash or for any infection of the eyebrows which exhibits the symptoms described in the testimonial or make the scalp pink and clean as a baby's.

Before proceeding further in this matter we are advising you of these conclusions in order that you may, if you so desire, submit any further evidence or information which you care to have considered. If you contemplate making any changes in the advertising as a result of the comments expressed above, please advise in detail, attaching a copy of the revised advertisement as you intend to publish it in the future.

Please understand that the comments expressed hereinabove are those of this office only and do not necessarily at this time reflect the views of the Commission itself.

Very truly yours,
CHARLES A. SWEENY,
Project Attorney.

There you have the official opinion. Turn-er's, obviously, does absolutely nothing. Therefore, the advertising must be changed. You can still sell Turn-er's, but you cannot say that it does anything. For, science says, it does not, in fact.

Here is positive proof of the magic power of the mind. Take editor Palmer's mind, for instance. He actually believes that Turn-er's removes his dandruff. He believes that when he uses Turn-er's, his scalp does not itch. He believes that it darkens his hair. It does not. The dandruff is still there, but not detectible by any means known to man (or else, he never had dandruff in the first place), or finally, it must have been something else that removed it, probably the soap and water he always uses in his bath. As for his itching, this is merely a personal experience that cannot be shared by anyone else, and that cannot be proved to anybody. Perhaps his scalp itched, perhaps it did not—who is to say, but himself? And since it is a matter of magic in his mind, there is no doubt that it was a delusion, and that it was removed by a reverse of the magic power that caused it in the first place (although he doesn't remember having initially believed he had an itch, which brought the condition on). Anyway, he's glad it's gone, and fearful that it will return, continues to use the Turn-er's preparation once a week. As for his darkened hair, he himself did not notice it at first, until some strange emanation from his mind effected other minds around him, and they thought they noticed that it was growing darker. Once informed of this illusion, he began to believe it was true, and saw it also, in the mirror.

But, says the Federal Trade Commission, if he persists in saying he had dandruff (assuming he hasn't got it now), he is a liar (subconsciously, if not consciously). And poor Mr. Crusen, who suffered for over thirty years with his "crusty eyebrows," is just as big a liar.

The truth of the matter is that neither of these gentlemen can be considered capable of judging an illusion. Faced with a fact, they cannot say that it is a fact. They are not scientists, not authorities, have no test-tubes and beakers and analysis facilities. If they lose their dandruff, or their "crust", it cannot be determined by them just what caused the loss. Only a scientist could do that. Even stopping the use of Turn-er's for a few months, and watching the dandruff return, proves nothing. In this world of illusion, nothing can be called true reality. Not by them.

Only the Federal Trade Commission can do this.

From now on, you will be sold Turn-er's, not on any false claims, but merely by high-pressure salesmanship. You will be told only the truth, and you will be urged to buy it for almost any reason, perhaps for "satisfaction", or for "fun", or for "vanity", or just for the hell of it. And you won't be cheated, because although Turn-er's does absolutely nothing, the magic power of your mind can do anything. The only thing that worries the editor, is that you'll go whole hog, and realize you don't need Turn-er's, but will merely "wish upon a star", and presto, your dandruff will be gone. It would, if you believed it would! What other inference can we draw from the opinion of the Federal Trade Commission?

It is too bad. Because in this little instance, we seem to detect that there is a "preferred" class in advertising. For instance, Camels have never satisfied this writer! Yet, for years he has been told they would! No Federal Trade Commission investigation of that claim. But there is one consolation, in that the users of Turn-er's are also satisfied. No doubt the editor will seize upon this, and make the claim that Turn-er's "satisfies". It will be interesting to see what he does. Interesting also to discover if he can sell a product that does absolutely nothing. It would indicate salesmanship of a very high order, if he does. He could sell ice to Eskimos, if so. As for me, I'm going to keep on buying Turn-er's as a prop to my mind. I find that when using it, I can use that magic power which, frankly, I did not believe existed.

Not until I had it from the horse's mouth!

What bothers me is why the scientists didn't try Turn-er's on their own dandruff, instead of in their test tubes? Is it because they know that we live in a world of illusion, and that only in the test-tube can we find truth?

What else bothers me is what will happen if I invent a product of some sort? I don't think I'd be able to sell it on the basis that "it does nothing at all". Ah, I have it—I will invent a steam engine. I still say you can't run that with the magic power of your mind!

NOTICE

SEARCH is being discriminated against in many areas for a number of reasons! But in all these areas, there are individual newsstands who are anxious to provide their customer with SEARCH. We want our subscribers (and newsstand readers) to talk to these newsstands and explain to them that we will service them direct, if they are unable to get them from their local distributor. Give them our address (Amherst, Wisconsin), or write us and give them their address. We will contact them directly. Already our readers have helped us add hundreds of newsstands.

Dear Ray:

What happened to Shaver anyway? Why isn't he writing for Search any more? I really miss him and I'm sure that many more readers miss him very much also.

I really don't think that most of the readers today realize the scope of the Shaver Mystery. The only reason I have some idea about the massiveness of the "Mystery" is because I have hunted around in old book stores and have found some of the old "Amazing Stories" that carry stories of Shaver. You probably don't remember anything that you said in these books, for some that I have are more than ten years old. But one thing that you repeated over and over again was the fact that the Shaver Mystery was huge and that volumes could be written about it. Would you be willing to back down on this statement today?

I assume that you would not; but rather, on the contrary, you would want to emphasize the massiveness of the Shaver Mystery. I therefore ask, why don't you bring Shaver back and keep him back? Even if it's only a page. May I offer the suggestion of printing some quotations from the Elder writings. I found a few in an old "Amazing" and they are very valuable and stimulating.

Don Van Brocklin

Mr. Shaver, who lives ¾ mile down the road from your editor, is working hard on a book which we will publish when it is finished. Meantime, we have another book of his, written ten years ago, which is now going into production. Further, THE SHAVER MYSTERY, by yours truly, will be published by a New York Publisher just as soon as we have finished revising and bringing it up to date. This last book will explain the entire Shaver Mystery as well as it can be in one volume. So you see, nothing has happened to Shaver.

There will be a very satisfactory treatment of the whole Mystery, including its massive aspect, for all those interested, in permanent book form. We attempted to do something of this in SEARCH in articles, and failed because no proper concept can be gained by such short articles, and those not already familiar with the massiveness of the subject were lost, and we could not answer their letters asking for an explanation. Picture yourself trying to answer a letter which goes like this: "Please tell me all about the Shaver Mystery."

As to backing down on any statement we made in the past ten years, all we can say is that we could only amplify it further! The scope of this famous mystery is so great that it cannot possibly be covered even in a dozen books. We're going to try, but we doubt if the whole "mass" of the subject can be placed in an entire perspective.

Some anti-Shaver science fiction fans have made themselves quite obnoxious by demanding "proof", with the alternative that we shut up. We remember one particular time we offered proof, and wound up with a suicide in the Chicago river! Asking for proof, in the sense that we produce a dero or a flying saucer for inspection is like asking that for proof, we produce God. The proof is all around us that there is a God. We can point to the miracle of the human body and say "there is your proof of God," and there will be people who will snort and say: "Mere chance!" To people like these we can only sigh pityingly and go on our way. So, when we point to OBVIOUS proofs of the truth of what Shaver has propounded, it is a similar matter— to the man who snorts "mere chance", we can only shrug our shoulders and pity his inability to observe and reason and add two and two.

However, we HAVE accepted challenges in the past. A particularly obnoxious challenger once insisted we tell him how to contact the dero. The situation was, oddly, similar to the old "sell my soul to the devil", which nobody believes, these days. You uttered an incantation, made a few caballistic signs, and the Devil appeared in a cloud of smoke and gave you a wish in return for your soul. Well, what do you do with a situation like this? You give the desired information, and later the man jumps in the river and kills himself. Naturally, you avoid this situation again. If you must be a stickler for "hewing the line", then you can say that the man was mentally unbalanced in the first place, and your information just pushed him over the line. Well, isn't that, in itself, a good reason to ignore further challengers? THEY may be nuts!

The fact of the Shaver Mystery is that endless evidence exists all over the earth and all through the ages that something exists that is not visible on the surface of things. Things happen to mankind that cannot be explained either through his own actions or by the action of Nature. These endless evidences are the proof that we have produced in copious amounts. You yourself can dig up many more, once you actually search. Your eventual conviction that this evidence is proof is a PERSONAL matter. You will believe because "reason dictates". If you are the kind of person who thinks man is a chance happening, life itself is a chance combination of chemical molecules in a chance combination of elements in a chance combination of solar systems in a chance combination of universes, then you are the person we must sadly turn away from and say: "For you we have no proof, nor do we intend to waste time pointing it out."—Rap.

Dear Mr. Palmer:

I have been a reader of Fate and Search for quite a while, and have bought these books at a drugstore here in Saginaw. However, about two months ago, the distributor here which distributes these books dropped Search, as he felt there wasn't any profit to be made as it didn't sell too good compared with other magazines. Now, I have been unable to purchase the latest issue of Fate Magazine. Reason, none given. To me, this sounds like undercover work. Some sort of an attempt to do away with these books here in Michigan. Being affiliated with the Michigan Flying Saucer Federation of Detroit, since I have a group here, at their recent convention, I was told by Mr. Reeves, who had an article in your first issue of Flying Saucers that these books were not available in Detroit, or other cities of Michigan. Now, it seems to me that some sort of suppression is behind this all, and that this is working very slowly, as well as subtly. It seems that this certain distributor just won't handle your three publications. Maybe, you could help in seeing just what might be done to better the situation. If you feel that this might be not worth it, please advise me, and I will see that a subscription to all three of your publications is sent to you. But, first of all, I will give you the name and address of the two distributing concerns.

Schaubel News Company—221 North Baum Street-Saginaw Michigan.

This company was the one that distributed Search Magazine.

The American News Company—3730 Hess Street-Saginaw, Michigan

This distributed Fate, but due to their going out of business, this is being taken over by Schaubel News. In a call to them yesterday, I was told that Schaubels would handle Fate magazine. But, so far, no issues has appeared in Saginaw stores and magazine places. I feel that Schaubel is doing that same as they did to Search, which is part of the suppression scheme that is now going underway. It seems that there is more to this than what appears on the surface. I don't think it is just that these don't sell good compared to other magazines. Why is it unobtainable in Detroit? That city is a Metropolis, and from what Mr. Reeves told me, Fate, Search and Flying Saucers are unavailable there. There's something fishy about the whole thing. Perhaps this suppression scheme will affect other states as well. I don't know, maybe I'm wrong about this, but from the way things stand now, it seems this way.

Joseph L. Wagner

There are several things wrong, and you might call it "suppression" if you wish; but the fact is, it really isn't. SEARCH was originally distributed by Kable News Company. Schaubel News, of Saginaw, was serviced by Kable (among others), and accepted their magazines (perhaps thirty or forty) as a group. When we switched our distribution to Wisco, we continued to send SEARCH and our other titles to Schaubel in exactly the same quantities as Kable. But what happened? The magazines came back marked "refused". We had to pay return postage, sometimes at fancy rates. One distributor sent them back via airmail at 6c an ounce! I presume he laughed his head off at his little joke. The point is, a large distributor like Kable can require that a newsdealer handle everything he sends him, in the number of copies he sends him (with the alternative that he gets nothing at all—in which case he hasn't any magazines to sell, and thus is out of business). Many newsstands carry many "trashy" titles, in spite of the fact that their customers disapprove, because of this "pressure". Today, however, many distributors and newsstands are beginning to insist that they more fantabulous than SPUTNIK!

The advents of the first steamship, the first train, telegraphs, telephone, radio, TV, automobile, aeroplane and atom bomb, etc., have all meant in their own particular way, a NEW and DIFFERENT CHANGE in life for the MULTITUDES OF PEOPLE so directly affected. Each one ushered in a NEW ERA, a NEW AGE.

The launching of the first Satellite too, has marked the crossing of a new threshold and entering into the new SPACE AGE of a nation of people already over burdened with a host of complex conditions, which are all part of a highly developed technocracy. THIS ADVENT will have a STAGGERING EFFECT upon the lives of those who people this planet.

At present our National Mental Health Problem is one of grave concern. Statistics reveal TWO PEOPLE enter a mental institution EVERY MINUTE. Moreover, this is but one of the many problems pertaining to health which effect the nation as a whole. A large number of so-called incurable diseases are taking their daily toll of COUNTLESS THOUSANDS. Existing religious, orthodoxies, systems & cultisms have ONLY ADDED to the bedlam of confusion. In the coming months or years, will your name be added to the list of incurables?

Public Enemy # 1 is the disease called IGNORANCE. Take the first preventive step, which will not only help you SOLVE present EXISTING PHYSICAL and Mental conditions, but will also INSURE you a safer, saner, and HAPPIER LIFE in the FUTURE.

Write for FREE information and testimonials — or better yet, send check or M.O. for part, or all of $40.00 for the complete lesson course (full year's study). The books "The Voice of Venus" & "The Truth About Mars" and the inspiring book of Parables "The Elysium" will be given you. Accompanying the lesson course will come your past life reading which will portray for you "where and what" you have been for the many past thousands of years, which will be part of your present corrective therapy. handle only what they want to handle, and if they have customers for SEARCH (even if it is only one customer) they order it. But even though they order it repeatedly, their order is ignored. "Too much trouble," to do all the bookkeeping necessary to supply him with that one copy." Well, Wisco, our new distributor, doesn't think it is too much trouble.

In Detroit there are something like 2000 flying saucer fans who WANT TO BUY our magazine. But they buy their magazines from about 500 separate newsstands. The Detroit distributor, no doubt, feels that he doesn't want to set up a distribution for 2000 copies on such a small profit-maker. He will gladly handle SLOPPY SEX STORIES because he can sell almost all of the 20,000 copies he distributes. Yes, it's suppression, but it is dictated by the desire and the need to make profit. The dealer doesn't want to "bother" with SEARCH. Not unless rejecting it would mean he doesn't get SLOPPY SEX STORIES. And in that case, he'll take it, but give it scant attention, like putting 50 copies consistently at a newsstand that has only 10 customers for the magazine (and is in his turn sore because he has to take more than he wants, and thus kicks it under the counter instead of displaying it). We are not using Saginaw and Detroit as examples, of course, but merely because you suggest there is some sort of "plot" in Michigan. There is not. It is just the fact that selling magazines is in a horrible mess, and the proof of this is in the fact of American News Company going broke in its magazine effort. If the largest firm in the world can't make a profit in magazines, the small firms, even the small newsstands, have an even worse chance. There are many distributors, many newsstands, run by people who are "go-getters", and they do make a profit, and run an operation that includes hard work. These people are aware that even a small magazine should get the same treatment as a large one. They are the ones we want to deal with.

In Michigan, an industrial state, labor comes high. That is one reason Detroit cannot make a profit on SEARCH. We regret that it is so, but what can we do? The answer lies in the fact that in Detroit there are dozens of newsstands who want SEARCH, and will be willing to handle it directly from the publisher, or from our new distributor, WISCO, because they are not "under contract" to any one distributor. If our readers will ask these newsstands to handle us, and will send us their names and addresses, we will be able to get many

TO ALL SEARCH READERS:

SEARCH magazine is giving its readers FACTS, let the chips fall where they may. I write and sell seventeen magazines. Most of them reserve the rights, having bought and paid for my copy, to edit it. By that I mean anything that they think is highly controversial, is blue penciled. The cowards! Jesus Christ was the most controversial figure in history! The monied gang of priests and bankers murdered Him. But Jesus and all He stood for exists stronger today than any being in the world's long history.

Radio and T.V. announcers lie by the hour. They advertise whole thousands of junk that degrades and tends to destroy all GOOD. Cigarets, rot-gut booze, quackery pills and as many fake remedies as the whole world of medical despots. The only magazine that dares open its pages to honesty is SEARCH. Oh yes, once in a blue moon one of the 'slicks' will print the true facts about Spiritualism, the watered down facts about the universal poisoning of the human race by atom fission, and fusion, the poisoned food we eat and the poison drinks we gulp down. But, believe me, the reports are all watered down.

SEARCH has given all the facts in full. Why, in God's name, won't every one of us get behind Ray Palmer and SEARCH and continue to warn the public it is about to slip down the drain. Listen! Listen if your life, if your folks' lives are worth a plugged nickel to you. I am receiving threats because of what I have revealed. Anonymous, of course. I spit on them! I'm getting too close to eighty for comfort. Or to worry about rats. I shall continue to reveal the rascality that all of us should know and realize, if we would only sit down and meditate.

Twice this year 1957, SEARCH has carried letters written by the writer, setting forth and proving that "Your Life Is Their Toy." You have seen direct quotes from FitzGerald of Department of Justice, showing the chicanery in the great medical monopoly and the so-called Food & Drug administration. You know, if you read, that there are several positive cures for all types of cancers without cutting and burning. But did you know, or do you hide your heads

That is what is going on behind closed doors in their holy sanctums in their plan for WORLD CONQUEST AND DOMINATION — with YOUR SOUL the eternal pawn in THEIR universal game of "Gods"!

Then they plan to bring back their Holy Inquisitions on a world wide scale; CENTERED HERE IN AMERICA! THIS IS THEIR ULTIMATE AIM —

Contains copy (page 29) of a nine page typewriter letter to Billy Graham and Norman Vincent Peale they never dared answer! Contains a bona fide offer (page 13) of $1,000 reward to the first person to produce asked for information. And hundreds of TRUTHS you never dreamed of! in the sand like the ostrich, and permit that damnable screeching on TV and radio to hypnotize you into destroying your life with cigarets? The scientific evidence is absolutely conclusive that cigarets will kill at least 75,000 this year from lung cancer. They cause hypertension that kills hundreds of thousands a year. They raise the blood pressure dangerously. They are the prime cause of Buergher's disease—a disease in which you get endarteritis obliterans and the surgeon slices off your limbs as the butcher slices off a round of beef.

In addition any decent doctor will warn you of the hazard of smoking if you have certain heart diseases—heart diseases that kill hundreds of thousands a year. SEARCH has published many letters and articles by me, pointing out all these things and telling you what to do to save your lives. I have even told you where to get the proof of my claims. I have pointed out in SEARCH and furnished proof about the radiation hazards. And now a bunch of asses are demanding power through fission and fusion. LISTEN: Blue panties Strauss, before monopoly took him over, including his panties, said that in a very few years, the radioactive slops from power plant would fill the earth. I have his exact statement on file. THINK. Power produced by the atom is markedly higher than power produced by all other methods known to be safe. And what will coal miners, oil workers, truckers, railroad men do to make a living if and when the atom plants are scattered all over America? Several very severe accidents have occurred just recently when something went wrong in plants. The A.E.C. recently reported that the radioactive fallout in Wisconsin had increased 300% in two years. Then that lying gang stated, "Not dangerous yet." They know, and you will know right now that all radioactive materials are cumulative. They are absorbed but are never eliminated. Hoxsey cures cancer but your grandchildren will need a thousand Hoxseys to handle the cancer that are laid at your doors because you know about these things and do nothing.

These may seem to be pretty harsh words. BUT WON'T YOU PLEASE REALIZE I AM TRYING TO SAVE YOUR LIVES AND YOUR DECENDANTS FROM CONDITIONS WORSE THAN JESUS FACED ON CALVARY? f.d.a. puts out placards condemning Hoxsey, who actually cures cancer. YET, THIS GANG REFUSES TO EVEN WARN HUMANITY ABOUT CUMULA-

TIVE POISONS IN EVERY SINGLE THING YOU EAT AND DRINK. Right here, in Wisconsin, I have been running tests and found highly toxic amounts of DDT, dieldrin, parathion, and a host of other deadly-to-man coal tar synthetics. The Texas Research Fdn. made these tests several years ago and testified to them before a Congressional Committee. Congress did nothing because you did nothing. Congressmen (House and Senate) are far too busy to actually represent you. Too busy 'junketing' over the habitable globe, and electioneering for re-election, at your expense, to pass the proper protective legislation.

A short time ago I had a commission to write an article for $800.00, for one of the big slicks. I sent it in. Some little squirt, probably fresh from the kindergarden, wrote me it was a great piece of writing, but that it would have to be edited—that is, all the meat would be taken out. I had sent documentary proof. That apparently meant nothing to this slimy 'slick', so I told the publisher to go to HELL and demanded my script back. I finally had to sic my writer's club on this publisher. No wonder they did not want to send it back. They had eliminated proved, documented facts, and plugged the holes with . . . . . (I wish all of you could understand French. It's such an explosive, expressive language).

I have over 25,000 pieces of evidence against crooked doctors, crooked politicians, skunks in the pulpit. I pray God this evidence will be available to save humanity, whether I am here or there. But, in speaking about saving humanity, all I can do is to tell you of the hazardous situation, urge you to THINK for a change, and do something about it. Good heavens, wouldn't you kill a pit viper that was about to strike at you, your family, your neighbors? Pit vipers are angelic as compared with politicians in church, state, science, or medicine. For God's sake, take a few moments off and read up on Cherokee Death March, Star Chamber, Inquisition that killed 30 million Christians since Christ's time.

Dr. W. D. Chesney, M.D.,
Milton Junction, Wisc.

Dr. Chesney is now engaged in writing a 60,000 word book, one of the most scathing indictments you will ever read, and one of the most sensational books we have ever published. Just as soon as the last word comes from his typewriter, we are going to rush it into print. So watch SEARCH for the announcement of when this book will be available. It is time the truth were told about a lot of things, and Dr. Chesney, God bless him, has nearly 80 years of telling the truth behind him! He KNOWS what he's talking about. And we'll give him the chance to tell you. In our next issue we're going to prove to you that you can go to jail for selling whole wheat, just as it comes from the harvesting machine. You don't believe it? Well, just pick up the April issue and see!—Rap.

Dear Ray:

I've just received a nice sour letter from one called "Lindy." Lindy has figured up the correct number of stars, planets, etc. And has looked up the correct answer in Briggian logarithms, and believe or not, he hit the jack-pot! Poor Lindy! He represents the multitude. Blind as moles! The 144,000 is ONLY A SYMBOLICAL figure of speech! I am blind also, trying hard to find the LIGHT. I should have termed it SYMBOLICAL, I supposed the majority would be able to understand, and I think they did! It has always been EASY TO FOOL THE MASS, I AM NOT TRYING TO FOOL ANYONE! We all need to be taught THE TRUTH OF CREATION. For in reality none of us understand it correctly. Now we shall cut down the figure, 144,000.

The figure One has always represented the ALL Mighty. The number 4 represents the Four Great Primary FORCES of creation. The second 4 represents the four elements of creation. The circle represents the SUN of mankind. The second circle represents the Universe and Omniverse of fourth dimension. While the last circle represents THE ZODIAC! The Holy Bible was taken from the Sun God worshippers, the NT taken from the workers of Appllonius of Tyana, it is his life you are taught about. None other! We are all SUN worshippers. Without the SUN, none of us could possibly

OVER THE THRESHOLD

By DANA HOWARD

The Discourses of Diane on Intuitions, Disease and Destruction, Religion, The Sub- Worlds, Reincarnation, Alchemy of Finance, and Secret of Youth.

Many earthlings have come to realize that our planet is entering a new phase — that we must be prepared to move along with it. Over the Threshold tells how that preparation can be attained. It answers such age-old problems as the Secret of Youth—Reincarnation—Disease and Destruction—Religion. It provides a satisfying answer to the mystifying flying saucer phenomena of the past decade.

This inspiring book shows how we might tap and utilize the creative essences stored in the highest ethers. Creative thought has long been considered an abstract quality, producing hit-or-miss results. But Dana Howard, through Diane, brings creative thought to the plane of absolute creation.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Dana Howard has been a subjective sensitive since childhood. While still a youngster, she was stricken with tuberculosis of the bone and sentenced by specialists to amputation of a limb or an untimely death. Guided by a power higher than infantile reasoning, while still awaiting surgery, the young girl went on a hunger fast.

Her frail body was encased in a heavy plaster cast. It was then that her strange nocturnal travels began. She would leave her body and travel in space.

These unusual flights continued throughout her long confinement and miracle cure.

The culmination of these experiences was an involuntary teleportive flight to the Planet Venus in the summer of 1939. It was then that Dana Howard met the beautiful Venus-sent messenger who called herself . . . Diane.

DELMAR WISDOM

be here! Everything would be bare of life. In face of such darkness there would be no EARTH!

The Four Great Primary Forces were taught to all persons once on this earth by the Mystic Masters of Wisdom. The Magi who were termed "the Wise men from the East." East meaning SUN. Church fathers omitted one wise man, or Magi, to confuse the masses. Man is sevenfold and not a trinity! I think most of us have been taught about the four elements; fire, water, earth and air; gases or atmosphere. An atom contains electrons, protons, neutrons, both positive and negative. Male or female. These make up the cellular substance of Spiritual; and when solidified become visible and are termed Material or just plain matter! Such things of Spirit are only invisible because we are blind. We have the eyes of moles, well covered with a veil. A veil of ignorance.

We are taught a four dimensional world only. A square box. In this casket of death mankind or more correctly speaking the Ape-beast of earth has been buried alive. Buried completely, buried since the fourth century AD. Constantine was our first butcherer and top-gangster of our era. Alexander the Great was the second of this knightly kind. While the third & 4th who tried hard to become as great as both gangsters before them were Euthalius, and Eusebius. These two maimed and distorted everything they touched! These two really added the D to the word evil.

I'd like to hear from those who really want to see the LIGHT. If any of the others want to write me concerning my teachings, do so by all means; but first before you criticize me for something you do not understand, define in full the true meaning of chapter 5 of Revelation, King James Version. And add who wrote the book Revelation and whence it came. This person can show me the door and I'll be glad to take the exit. Otherwise place your tongue in your cheek and forever hold your sharp tongue. Those in High School do not like to take orders from those in kindergarten.

I want to speak about the word PEACE. We hear a lot of this word, but does any of us understand the real meaning of this word, PEACE? I notice we cannot get along on friendly terms even through the mail or with our next door neighbor! What most people vision when they mention Peace, is a grab-bag filled with things they want. Not what will make the multitude happy.

Thanks for this explanation, Elizabeth. What you say is extremely interesting. And we always say, what is worth writing, is worth publishing!—Rap.

Dear Ray:

Back in World War One a prominent divine asked me, "What is your conception of God." When I told him he ridiculed me, because it did not agree with his own.

I am giving you an opportunity to ridicule me if you wish on my conception of religion, because probably it does not agree with yours.

Science looks impartially upon religion, which is but the outward expression of the spiritual urge within. It matters not to science whether a man is a Christian, Moslem, Jew, Buddhist, atheist or agnostic—it is the spiritual urge within that counts.

There was a time, according to science, when mankind had no religion. Primitive man knew no more about religion than is known by a new-born babe, and he had no one to teach him. All that he learned about religion came about as a result of the spiritual urge within. All of the religions of today are a result of the development of that primitive urge, modified by the errors of priestcraft.

Primitive man, like a young child, saw the world around him as a source of wonder. To him it was a world of magic. He didn't understand the workings of the world, although some things came within the grasp of his comprehension. Repetition of certain events—like the rising and setting of the sun—convinced him that they were normal. But when storms came and the sun was obscured and the lightnings flashed, he didn't understand. But he was grateful for the magic that cleared the skies so the sun shone out again.

It was magic that brought him odors of ripening fruit, that showed him where the berry patches were. It was magic that lured the game into his snares. Every event was a result of magic, either good or bad.

The great mysteries, then as now, were the mysteries of birth and death. All of his knowledge he acquired from his mother. To him her voice was "the voice of experience". He depended upon her to explain everything. At her death he was left with no one to guide him. Then came the psychic or spiritual urge to the rescue. He thought it was the urge of her spirit. To him his mother still lived in spirit. She could still guide him to the magic that he craved.

The first deity ever worshipped by mankind, according to ancient tradition, was a mother—the "Great Mother", she was called.

She was a wonderful woman if only half of the deeds ascribed to her are true—a thinker far ahead of her time. She not only ruled her family—she was ruler of the whole horde. She taught her sons to cooperate in the hunt and to fight as a team instead of fighting against each other. She introduced monogamy into the marriage relation in place of the primitive polygamy. She established homes in caves lit by a common campfire. She invented the totem system of family descent by requiring each and every young savage to wear a family emblem. She ruled with a stern but practical hand.

When the Great Mother died, it was the spiritual urge—the psychic manifestation—that held the horde together and made it eventually the greatest people on earth. It was known as the "Serpent Horde"—wearing the serpent emblem to distinguish it from others—and its descendants are found among every people today. It deified the Great Mother, for her sons and daughters believed that their psychic manifestations came from her. She was known as "Isis, the serpent-goddess", and her eldest son became her chief priest—her daughters followed in her steps, becoming mothers of families and eventually being deified by them. She was mankind's first deity—the first goddess of the ancestor-worshippers. For a long time it was thought that mothers were the only ones who possessed immortal souls. Eventually she was consigned to the Moon and worshipped with moonlight rites.

From this beginning all religions have developed, according to the views of anthropologists. Christianity based upon the worship of "Iesus Christos" (the spirit of Isis) carries on the priestcraft that was built up by orientals. The Orient was very prolific in the development of religions. The black race has its Voodooism; the red man worships the Great Spirit; the white man does not have a religion of his own. Christianity is an oriental religion.

To understand any religion it is necessary to understand its beginnings. They are all the outward expression of the same spiritual urge, modified by the priestcraft of their respective locale.

Now it's your turn.

on oriental and earlier religions. The history of religion back into antiquity is a subject that should be studied by everyone and is studied by hardly anyone. This lack of study and research into verifiable facts has been the cause of much present-day bigotry and sectarianism. But the truth is as you say, God is Universal in concept. He must be pictured in the form we are capable of picturing Him. If we are savages, we picture Him to our best ability, possibly as a super savage. If we can picture him only as a benevolent old, white-haired man sitting in resplendent light and glory on a gold throne, then so He is! You ask me my personal concept of God. I believe, quite firmly, that God cannot be conceived by me as to His actual nature, because I can only conceive of Him in terms of experience, in terms of things I know about. I know only of the visible universe, and of the mysterious invisible things that are the subject of SEARCH magazine. Since I realize the known is both meagre and often erroneous due to lack of more complete information, I thus realize that to define God is impossible to me, and quite frankly, I believe impossible to ANYONE, even to the greatest beings of the Universe that I can imagine to exist. And finally, to be perfectly clear, I want to say that when I use the word God, it is to define the CREATOR, the Something that is responsible for all that is seen and unseen—and in that sense, the Gods of religion, the Gods of the ancients, cannot possibly be that Creator, unless said religion and said Ancients meant the One responsible for all that is seen and unseen. Am I clear?—Rap.

Dear Mr. Palmer;

I have before me, the July issue of Search Magazine, having just finished the article on the Hoxsey Cancer Clinic, and, I would like to type a few paragraphs in connection with your article.

Most doctors are agreed that toxicity of the human body is what permits, and feeds, diseases, and propagates them. The statement has been made by some of the nation's greatest doctors, that detoxification of the human body, kills ALL DISEASE, restoring the body to a really healthy condition. And, it has been proven beyond all question of doubt, that all diseases are subject to detoxification, not just a few.

Bernarr MacFadden, when he was alive and publishing one of his magazines, PHYSICAL CULTURE, stressed, in every issue, milk and water dieting for at least three weeks every year, as a means of detoxificating the human body and keeping it in a non-toxic con-

MANY WONDERFUL THINGS

by Robert Huffman and Irene Specht

What happens when both the conscious and subconscious minds are stilled?

In a series of hypnotic experiments carried out over a two-year period, startling evidence was uncovered that man has a "third mind"—a God mind, a part of God within himself.

From this mind came words of such love and wisdom their power changed the lives of the group involved in the experiments, and inspired them to share this wonderful adventure.

Here is a book that answers hundreds of questions on perplexing everyday problems and the eternal mysteries of life; a book that leads the way to a true partnership with God.

dition the year round. And I myself, using a milk and water diet, cured myself of lead poisoning in my blood. Doctor Barnes of Flagstaff, Arizona, told me face to face, when I went to him, with what he called "the worst of the nine different kinds of lead poisoning", and which had got into my blood, that, "you waited too long. If you had come to me sooner, I could have given you shots and cured it up," unquote. He further told me, that there was nothing that could be done to heal me up and restore me back to good health. I went on pure raw milk and water, for three months, eating nothing else, and at the end of that time, I was totally cured, had a blood analysis and corpuscle count made, and was called BY DR. BARNES, the healthiest man in the whole Southwest, probably the whole USA.

There are many ways of detoxifying the human system, and practically ALL DOCTORS know about them. But, most of the detoxifying systems available, don't bring any, or at best, very much money to the doctors, so, why should a doctor cut off his income, just to help a dying person? He can make far more performing mutilations on the bodies of his victims, and dignifying these acts by calling them operations. He can also make much more by treating patients with radium and X-Rays, when it is a known fact now, that radiations, of any kind, are very definitely harmful, to anyone.

That Hyppocratic oath, that each and every doctor takes, when he graduates from medical school, means nothing, to these so-called cancer specialists.

The United States department of Health, Welfare, and Education, is owned, body and soul, by the AMA, and they do not hesitate to use that branch of our Federal government, as means of printing diatribes against the Hoxsey Clinic, and thereby attempting to build up prestige, and weight, in the eyes of those who are so gullible as to swallow their lies, and inferences. In regards to the Hoxsey method of treating cancer, The Hoxsey Clinic uses only systems for detoxifying the systems of all of their patients. And, notwithstanding all the denials and falsehoods that the AMA uses to try to make people believe that the "medicines" that Hoxsey uses are worthless, the Hoxsey detoxifying system is nevertheless a most successful one, and one, that the AMA would like very much to get hold of, not to give their cancer patients, but to withdraw from use completely. Your AMA doctors, who lose many more patients than they save, thru their system of "surgery and/or radiation" for treating cancer, have proven beyond all question of doubt, that they are ONLY interested in making big fees, not in saving lives.

I have two very close friends who had, (you'll notice that I use the past tense) cancer. Each of their cases were diagnosed by so-called "experts" in the cancer field, as malignant type of cancer. The "experts" wanted to operate on each of these people, but instead, they went to the Hoxsey Clinic, and art today totally cured. These two cases had biopsys performed by "experts", and were laboratory analysed, so, the "experts" can't say that they just made mistakes in their diagnosis of each case. The AMA won't hesitate to fall back on that old lie, "mistaken diagnosis", when proven wrong, but the patients were cured by the Hoxsey method.

Remember how the AMA fought the Sister Kenny system of treating Polio? The AMA fought her tooth and nail, until it was proven beyond any vestige of doubt that Sister Kenny had a system that worked successfully, and the American public forced the AMA to backtrack and finally okay her system.

As near as I can see, from all the wealth of evidence which is available to anyone and everyone, it is proven beyond all doubts, that Harry Hoxsey not only has the BEST METHOD of treating cancer, but that his system should be adopted, and at once, as standard in the treating of cancer, the world over. The Hoxsey system goes to the cause, which is toxicity of the blood, and deals with the cause, which is the only sensible way. The AMA deals with the effect. Which is best? Common sense can dictate but one answer to that, and, the answer is, deal with the cause, eliminate it, and the effect will die. Every doctor who operates on cancer, should be tried and found guilty of malpractice, because that's exactly what their system is. Every year millions of dollars are donated by people, to help "find a cure for cancer", by the Cancer Foundation. Year before last, the AMA thru this foundation put out the statement that a cure would be forthcoming within three years. In their drive for more donations they said this year, that it will be at least ten years before they find a cure for cancer. Five years ago they were saying that the cure for cancer was only a year or two away.

Now I don't care what any doctor wants to say to this claim, but I'd like to impress upon you, and all readers (if you publish this whole letter in your magazine), one cold fact, that cancer, and all other diseases will heal up of their own accord, if the disease victim will go on a plain raw milk and water diet for three months, and in some cases it might take more time, or, less time. When you detoxify the human system, no germs of any kind can live in that system, and doctors know this, it's a part of their study at medical school. But, because ANYONE WITH CANCER, OR ANY OTHER MALIGNANT DISEASE can go on a detoxifying diet, and thoroughly detoxify their physical system, eliminating all diseases, and actually becoming healthier than they have any knowledge of ever having been before in their lifetimes, which knowledge of course brings in very little or no money to the AMA members, why should the doctors cut off their noses to spite their faces.

Much more could be written about all this, which would take up more space and time, so, I'll bring this to a close with a simple, factual statement, and it is this, the Hoxsey Clinic in Dallas, Texas, is very definitely curing cancer of all kinds and types, by their own system of detoxifying the bodies of all of their patients, and as far as I know, the AMA so-called cancer specialists, are still reducing our population, still mutilating their victims' bodies, through "surgery and/or, radiation". Now, in the eyes of God, and man, which system is most worthy of praise and patronage, the AMA's system of mutilation and death, or Hoxsey's system of detoxification and Health?

Mr. Palmer, you have my permission to print this whole letter, or none of it. No permission is granted to make any changes in phraseology, or, to edit this letter in any way, or to print excerpts of it. Print it all, or, none of it. However, I would like to warn you in advance, that if you print it all, you are going to have the AMA on your neck, and they are no small outfit by any means. You'll stir up a proverbial 'hornet's nest', because they have already shown that they will go to any lengths to discredit the Hoxsey Clinic as well as 'bear down' on any firm or individual who is pro-Hoxsey. I am very much for the Hoxsey Clinic, because they have demonstrated beyond all doubts, that they do cure, and are curing, cancer of all kinds. They don't have to alibi their failures, because those failures represent people totally given up by the AMA, after the AMA had got all their money, and, not all of these AMA failures have been Hoxsey failures, some of them are alive and healthy, free of cancer, thanks

SEARCH, and your editor, are concerned with but ONE thing—and that is the right of free expression, of free speech, of free thinking, and of free action. Your letter is your opinion. What others say in SEARCH is their opinion. What your editor says is his opinion. ALL may be wrong, or ALL may be right—it makes no difference which it is—but one thing is SURE, ALL have the RIGHT to say it! Let's put it on the line. IF SEARCH disappears from the newsstands, there will be only two reasons—your editor's death (from old age we hope) or FORCE. We doubt very much if the AMA, or any other agency, will bring any pressure to bear—but if your editor is still alive, and SEARCH is not —then it will be PROOF that Mr. Mench is right. Because, lose money or not, we will publish SEARCH. It is our finest weapon in the fight against oppression and suppression, and NONE of its enemies, and by that we mean enemies of free speech, dare suppress it without proving their bigotry.

For all we know, the AMA is the finest guardian of public health this nation has. For all we know, it is the wickedest organization in the world. It is immaterial to us.

What is not immaterial is that in a society of free speech and free thought and free action, the wicked cannot survive. THAT is the crux of the situation. We have been promised that "The Truth Shall Make You Free," and it is axiomatic that to effect that freedom for ourselves, the truth must be SPOKEN. SEARCH is the place where you can TALK. Inevitably some of what is said must be lies.

But when all is SAID, the truth should be evident to the light of reason. Our greatest enemy is secrecy. SEARCH is FOR the AMA and also for HOXSEY. If either one has good in them, that's what we are searching for! If, in our search, we find bad in either one, let the chips fall where they may. And if we were to neglect publishing your letter, Mr. Mench, for the reason that the AMA is powerful, and might not approve of what we do, and act against us because of it, we'd be pretty two-faced. What we hope is that the AMA will deign to write an article stating its OWN case, for publication in SEARCH. This they have the right to do, and we'll defend that right. If they have proof that Hoxsey is a quack, they are dere-along the Columbia River, which are painted and incised on the rocks.

Mu is the name applied by Churchward to the lands in the Pacific. MU is the english name for the sound which the COW MAKES. However it was pronounced a bit different by the Atlanteans and also by the Orientals whose home land it was until the very beginning of the Glacial Period, when a fragment of the Frozen planet ARGO crashed into the Arctic Region of our earth and suddenly moved the molten interior of the earth with such great force that the three Islands in the Pacific suddenly became a seething mass of Volcanoes, which sank into a fiery abyss in a day and a night as commemorated in the Greek Alphabet. Mu sank about 19,000. Years ago when the Equinox was seven degrees in Scorpio. Three planets conjoined in Capricorn. Time of year Earth in Libra.

Atlantis sank when the magnetic North Pole suddenly moved a great distance, presumably by pushing away the fragment of the earth's crust which had covered the magnetic North Pole before the Fragment of the illfated Planet ARGO struck the arctic region of our earth.

This sudden movement caused a great vacuum under the continent of ATLANTIS located in the Atlantic ocean. This great Vacuum caused the lands to submerge suddenly with great loss of LIFE. 9564. B.C.

Even now the short distance movements of the Magnetic North Pole create a slight vacuum under the Eastern Seaboard and cause the Eastern Seaboard to submerge a little every year.

What I have stated can be verified in the Nordic Saga in Iceland. Also the records found in THEBES on which an englishman spent a lifetime and a fortune to decipher. But only seven copies were printed when the Church of England stopped him. Because the bible does not mention any Glacial period. While the records never told of any universal Flood. Noah's ARK could not even hold the animals of the United States if they were packed in like sardines.

We know that the original Human race were large Blond Giants with a knee cap more than four inches in diameter as found just north of this city in the early twenties. Compare that with the little Patella on your own prayer Bones. Did Noah and his three sons take Apes to wife to produce the different species now on the earth?

INSIDE THE SPACE SHIPS

GEORGE ADAMSKI'S NEW BOOK

What has happened to George Adamski since he wrote the famous incidents in FLYING SAUCERS HAVE LANDED? Since the memorable November 20, 1952, when he first made personal contact with a man from another world? And since December 13, 1952 when he was able to make photographs within 100 feet of the same saucer that had brought his original visitor?

INSIDE THE SPACE SHIPS is Adamski's own story of what has happened to him since then. It begins with his first meeting, a few months later, with a second man from another world—his first meeting with one who speaks to him. This second visitor brings him to a Venusian Scout (flying saucer) and this, in turn, brings him to a mother ship. Later he is conveyed in both a Saturnian Scout and a Saturnian Mother ship. Adamski tells us what transpires in these space craft and what the men and women from other worlds have told him.

Thanks for your partial analysis —it's more than we could get from the Trade Commission. As a matter of fact, TURN-ER'S contains the warning, printed right on the bottle, that it contains a metallic salt, and of course, should not be taken internally. Also thanks for the opinion that it helps dandruff. You are entitled to your opinion, of course, which is like mine. We are probably the victims of illusion, though. Who can say what is reality? One thing I can say is that I am satisfied, and I recommend TURN-ER'S to my friends in the belief that they will also be satisfied. As you will note, we retracted any and all statements about TURN-ER'S except that it darkens hair, and removes excess dandruff. We got that statement off a rival product, and if they can say it, why not we? I use TURN-ER'S and my scalp feels fine! It SATISFIES! LIVE MODERN, use TURN-ER'S! What do doctors do for dandruff—they recommend INGREDIENTS! Seriously, though, we do hope our readers won't drink TURN-ER'S. Frankly, it might make them very sick, and if they persisted, would even kill them. But then, you can do the same thing with Whiskey. Also, whiskey will dry out your hair, make it brittle, and it will make you smell like a distillery if you rub it on your scalp. I wouldn't recommend it. —Rap.

Dear Ray Palmer:

One way to settle a lot of argument about fellows who get Lemuria, Mu, and also ATLANTIS all mixed up. Just note the following dates of their destruction.

First. Lemuria. It was located in what is now the South Indian Ocean between Africa and Australia.

Lemuria was destroyed by a heavenly object presumably coming from a COMET on its return journey into Space after veering away from the SUN. It struck the lands with such force that it almost tore the EARTH ASUNDER. That is what heaved up our ROCKY MOUNTAINS and other mountain ranges 85,673,000 years ago according to the records in the Nordic SAGA in Iceland.

A Norse Friend who studied the Nordic Saga in Iceland as a young man told me what the Notation meant which we found in the Autumn of 1928 along the west bank of the Columbia river, about three miles north of Vantage Bridge when we took pictures of ancient records nomination teaches the opinions of one or at most a few persons. From my observations I haven't been able to find a church yet that teaches the whole truth. God can teach us through His Spirit if we desire to be taught. By the way, after John saw the 144,000, Rev. 7:9 says he beheld a great multitude which no man could number, clothed with white robes and palms in their hands. Would Mrs. Lemon have me believe that these were all bachelors and old maids? If such were the case God would certainly have to have a large crew of angels employed in the construction of hell. Thousands of people alive today as well as many in past centuries claim they have left their bodies temporarily and visited both the lower and higher heavens. Of all such experiences I have read about, they say in the next life—men are still men, women are still women and sex is still sex, only more so, and pure, sacred and undefiled. They say also that there are hells and lower hells where lust and every filthy thought and action imaginable is carried on, where they are always seeking false enjoyment but never find anything but dissatisfaction, disappointment and misery. If ministers would do a little more meditating on The Song of Solomon instead of dwelling so much on Paul's opinions, maybe a lot of icy hearts could be melted down a bit.

I have been told that when the righteous die, they are taken to a region in the heavens where they can dwell with beings of like minds. So the women haters and men haters and lovers can all find their corners.

Dear Ray Palmer:

I thought you might be interested in an analysis I made of Turner's. Since it contains about ½% lead which is a cumulative poison, I would suggest that you tell your readers so if they wish to buy Turners, as I have done, they will do so knowingly that the present formula contains lead.

My analysis was made from a one-half used bottle (with probably a slightly stronger concentration of lead than an unused bottle). Results recorded as PbO (lead oxide) by the electroplate method.

Thoroughly mixed sample — ·583% PbO.

Supernatent lager on standing— ·318% PbO. (with small amount sediment)

To save your good name, you might find it advisable to retract your statement from Turners ad. I do agree it helps dandruff however. Good luck to you.

man and woman with numerous special glands, sensitive nerves, body chemicals and electricity for sex enjoyment, and all this a part of that body which is a temple of the Holy Spirit? And don't anybody tell me that sex is a necessary evil for purposes of reproduction. The Creator being all intelligent, could have fashioned man to propagate as fish do, but He didn't. He created man and woman to be incomplete without one another. He created their bodies capable of physical, mental and spiritual ecstasy through sex, when the motive is conjugal love and not lust. He created highly sensitive lips for kissing, and body functions that are for pleasure only, and are entirely unnecessary for reproduction. Bodies are made to enjoy sex not just for the years of child bearing, but throughout old age as well, so if the All Highest made us that way, why is it a sin to live life more abundantly? The Bible teaches that sex wrongly used is a sin, such as lust, immoderation, fornication and adultery. Sex rightly used is a blessing. As for keeping the reproductive seed in the body, never allowing it to escape, I wonder if any mortal ever did that including Mrs. Lemon. According to our reference books, this would be an impossibility for any normal healthy person be they single or married, male or female. I wonder what kind of a Bible Mrs. Lemon has? We have four translations and none of them tell us to keep our reproductive seed in our body, to become immortal. I John 3:9, Smith—Goodspeed translation says, "No one who is a child of God commits sin, for God's nature remains in his heart. . ." In the King James its says, "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for His seed remaineth in him. . ." and the word "His" is marked with a cross reference to I Peter 1:23 which states that we are born anew of incorruptible seed (or "from a germ not perishable"—Smith—Goodspeed) by the word of God. So it is plain to see this is not speaking of one's own seed. Neither can I find where Jesus said salvation is by asceticism. The Book of Revelation is written in symbols. Women are used to represent churches. The 144,000 virgins who are undefiled by women are beings who have not had their minds fouled up with mistakes and crackpot ideas as taught by the various churches. God wants free, open independent minds that are teachable, not darkened minds bound by ignorance to blind leaders. When a person joins a church, they are limiting themselves to the truth and errors as taught by the one denomination, and each de-bine is powerful, just take a peek at the American housewife! If she doesn't buy, where is Rockefeller? As for God and reincarnation, we are certainly not fully "boned up" on either subject! We're more boned up on God than on reincarnation, because we look at the parts of God we can see, and they are things we love. We have 124 acres of God where we live, and we're pretty familiar with that Part of Him. As for reincarnation, can we help it if all the books we've read, including Blavatsky, raise more questions than they answer? After all we've read, we don't have that feeling of conviction. Rather, we get more and more suspicious that something isn't right about it. Can it be that we are impossibly unreasonable? Wouldn't it be embarrassing if we die, find out reincarnation is true, everybody laughs at us, and we have to be born again, to expiate for our stubbornness regarding reincarnation, this time with a pair of ears like a Mule? Would work something like this: In the next life, we go about buttonholing everybody and arguing all the evidence for reincarnation, to convince as many people as we can. To undo all the harm we did in insisting in this life it wasn't true, and misleading all these people! Well, we don't insist—we just can't find that bit of conclusive evidence on which to hang a belief. And the evidence is the one thing we DO insist upon.

Dear Mr. Palmer:

We live a mile and a half from our country mail box so don't get our mail for several days at a time, however, I have such fondness for Search magazine that I can "feel" when it's there and go down and get it the day it comes in. In fact, getting the mail has gotten to be an interesting game for me. It seems I can tell before opening a letter whether it contains good news or bad, so my husband is going to test me out after this for percentage of accuracy for the fun of it.

Reading your editorials is soul satisfying like getting a letter from home. How I wish your magazine had a larger circulation. It seems the really good things in life are always reserved for the minority.

The letter in the August issue by W. D. Chesney, M.D., was one of the best yet. Wish more people would braven up and write like that.

Thank God heaven isn't a limited place, where I would have to reside in the same corner with Mrs. John W. Lemon and others whose minds run like hers. Isn't it blaspheming our creator to say that sex is sin, when the Father created

They Knew Too Much About Flying Saucers

One by one, the leading figures among flying saucer researchers, who have challenged the government denial that saucers come from outer space, have been silenced. They are still alive, still living where they used to. But they will no longer talk about flying saucers or reveal why they refuse to do so.

Who were the three men in dark suits that visited them? Were they government agents, or agents of other planets? Whoever they were, they have silenced the researchers.

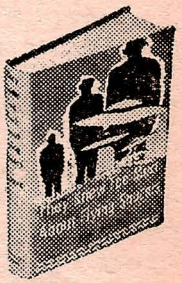

Now . . . in THEY KNEW TOO MUCH ABOUT FLYING SAUCERS, you may read the facts behind this frightening story — facts never before published!

Gray Barker, the author, was Chief Investigator for the International Flying Saucer Bureau—an organization which had its principal leader silenced by three men in black before he could reveal to the world his solution of the flying saucer mystery. Other leading investigators have also been intimidated. All their stories are here.

Grey Barker remains one of the unsilenced few. His true, amazing report includes eye-witness accounts of the famed Flatwoods "monster" which landed on a dark West Virginia hillside.

Reincarnation as applied to the impersonal soul in its evolution through various progressive forms from mineral up to man has been almost a universal tenet in the occult schools, and reference to it may be found in the sacred and philosophical writings of all ages. According to this theory the soul never reincarnates into the same species twice. It is ever drawn to a species higher in the scale of evolution. But in human reincarnation the soul is repeatedly reincarnated into a human body. Madam H. P. Blavatsky was the founder of Theosophy and was instrumental in introducing human reincarnation to America. While writing "Isis Unveiled" and working under Western initiates she stoutly denied human reincarnation. But later on when she came in contact with Hindu teachers she finally accepted human reincarnation and karma. I believe in reincarnation as applied to the impersonal soul in its evolution thru various progressive forms from mineral up to man. Everything in this world that is worth while seems to develop very slowly. Like the building of character for one thing. We get burnt so many times in regards to just one problem before we finally learn to discriminate between what is good for us and what is not. And the progress that we make in one life time is so small that I would be willing to accept that part of human reincarnation that would give me another lifetime chance to mingle with my fellow men and profit from the experiences that I have had in this life. Here are a few lines that I will put down from memory. "When we awake from the ebbtide of death and find the threads knotted, alas it is because we left it so."

this thought in mind, there are some things that we must decide upon one way or the other. In reference to the Bible, for example, Is there more than one god, is he a jealous god, an angry god, a vengeful god, a great and terrible god, or a merciful god? I believe that there is but one creator, the source of all that is, call it any name that you care to, I will use the term God. Is He a just God? The strength or weakness of your foundation depends upon your answer to this question. It was Budda who said that "If God does not prevent evil He is not good". Strickly speaking I believe that God is just and always mindful of his children. It is true that we are living in a world of many unrealities and apparent evils; Here is an example: When the child burnt himself that was an apparent evil, but if he learned, through the experience, to discriminate between what was good for him and what was not, then what appeared at first to be evil was really good. Likewise it is through this procedure that you can build character, and I believe that character is something that you can take with you. We will never know all of the answers and it is foolish to try and take on all of the burdens of this world. I believe that we are responsible only for such conditions that lie within the range of our ability to alter.

You said: "Photographic minds? I attribute such things to a natural accident at birth." If you are referring to the ordinary dictionary definition-an event which is unexpected or the cause of which was unforeseen. Then in other words you are saying that God could not foresee the fact that so and so was going to have a photographic mind. Strictly speaking, I don't believe that there is such a thing as an accident as defined above. I believe that what we refer to as an accident is the result of a chain of events or causes leading up to the effect or event. I hope that you will go into more detail on this subject of the Creator.

You say that you favor obsession/possession, rather than the theory of reincarnation, but that you don't necessarily believe in either one. That is a negative opinion, but still it shows an open mind. In reference to Mrs. Reams' statement that "REINCARNATION is, and there is nothing any idiot or ignorant human being can do about it." I would like to say that Mrs. Reams and I do have some things in common. We both believe in reincarnation and altho we both think that the editor should boneup on the subject, nevertheless we do classify him as a human being.

cost the Standard Oil ⅛ of a cent to produce a half pint, and goes to the druggist for 28⅔ cents. 140,000 medications were available in 1953. In 1953 alone 14,000 new preparations were added. Today the Drug Trust represents a $10,000,000,000 a year business. The Rockefeller interests have created, built up and developed the most far reaching industrial empire ever conceived by man. Standard Oil is the foundation industry upon which all the other industries have been built. The keystone of this mammoth industrial empire is the Chase National Bank with 27 branches in New York City and 21 in foreign countries. The Rockefellers own the largest manufacturing combine in the world and use all of their other interests to bring pressure to continue and increase the sale of drugs. In the last 30 years the Rockefeller Foundation gave just short of one half billion dollars to colleges and public agencies. The 30 odd drugless colleges in the United States did not receive one cent.

The most independent news papers are dependent on their press association for their news. One of the most powerful of the Associated Press directors is Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, also a director of the Drug Trust. William Randolph Hearst was once a very independent publisher. But in the depression year of 1932 this great paper hit financial trouble and the Chase National Bank foreclosed. Since the Hearst empire owned the International News Service this sewed up 100% the press association for the Rockefeller Drug Trust.

Under this set-up what chance do you think we would have in following your suggestion that "The least we can do is read everything carefully, and if it doesn't tell what we want to know, demand that the information be presented so that we can understand it."?

In reading the Bible it is very easy to become confused because there are so many contradictions, at least that is the way it appears. For those of us who are not so brilliant in book learning, this problem can really get us lost in the wilderness. And again, if you want to get technical about the Bible and argue just for the sake of an argument, then you can have it along with politics. But if you are trying to find a better way of life through the study of the Bible then I am for it. I am a carpenter by trade. I know that if you want to build anything worth while, you should start out with a good foundation. "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" Keeping

I was reading an article in your magazine, or was it Fate, which said that where a Flying Saucer landed, the ground was charged for several hours and sometimes for days. This Mineral charges the same way for about 60 ft. in circumference, and will also penetrate oil, where the Bell Telephone stuff will not.

Have you any suggestions?

I believe that this would develop space travel and thereby create peace on this globe, as over ambitious governments could migrate to Planets which are just ready to be developed and settled by an advanced race, instead of a race growing and being developed for a few more million years before they got to our stage. We could help them to develop faster and easier instead of the hard way.

There are still a few good claims left to stake.

Send us some of this sand. We will get it analyzed for you. And we won't ask for any claims or pay, either!—Rap.

Dear Mr. Ray Palmer:

In your editorial of July, 1957 you referred to a "left-handed" news article having to do with the atom bomb radioactive fallout. Then you went on to say "If we read news releases such as these and misinterpret them in such a manner that we are misinformed as to the facts, then we deserve to lose our lives through lack of intelligent pursuit!" I would like to break my comments, on this subject, down into two parts. First: The State Health Department of California reported that spot checks had revealed "radioactivity higher than the safe limit for continuous ingestion" in run-off from snow in three counties. This is our drinking-water. I read another article telling about how the government was disposing of radioactive waste matter by incasing it in metal containers and concrete and dumping it in the ocean. Eventually that material will be released, then what will be the result?

Now for the "left-handed" news article; The "Drug Story" by Morris A. Bealle goes into this subject in a most revealing manner. He tells how "Old Bill" Rockefeller, the pappy of John D. (the first) was a farmer until 1850. Then he moved to Cleveland, entered the patent medicine racket and had himself listed as a physician in the city directory. He became a patent medicine showman, and palmed off raw petroleum on the yokels as a cure for cancer and what have you. Today "nujol" (now a laxative) off and said that I must have read too many funny papers to expect something from that sand which I had sent to them to have analyzed. They said I should forget about it. I told them how it acted and so forth, and that it was a more powerful ray than what they discovered and sold to the Bell Telephone Co., and that it worked night and day.

I have been wondering since, how many funnies they must have read before they discovered the Element which takes power from the sun only by day, and was worth $10,000 for a few ounces of it. I was tempted to ask them after receiving their reply to my letter, but thought better of it, and thanked them for everything. I sent postage and so forth for them to return my bottle of so called sand, but am still waiting for it.

This morning I am going to travel and dig to get some more to send. I don't know where I will send it yet but I may go with it this time.

Now I am going to tell you how this all started. I found out that I could find underground currents and drilled on these currents, and sometimes found water, but other times dry holes. So to find the reason for dry holes I tested out what developed these currents, and then reading about the Bell Telephone Co. drawing power from the sun, tested it out that way. Then as drilling continued I found this Element which draws night and day. Now my son and I are drilling for water. We have been and are guaranteeing water or no pay, and are having success. We have a Contract from the Dominion Government right now and are drilling at Carway, crossing Montana and Alberta, south of Cardston.

It seemed impossible to get water here but we have just struck water at about 2½ gallons a minute.

Our method of locating or (witching) is with a pipe. It appears that the body requires a charge of magnetism, which draws on these underground currents. So far I have discovered 7 different currents, and of course I have to know which one of them is water, and about how much water, also about how deep, to be able to guarantee water or no pay.

I have staked a number of claims on this Element. I have no proof of what I claim about this Element, only that anyone can hide it and I will find it, night or day, even a mile or more away from where I am located when it is being hid.

I believe this Mineral has great possibilities if the right bunch gets his side of the story.

I know, personally, two people who have been through the Hoxsey Clinic. Their reports of it are excellent. I have no reason to believe that I have cancer, but if I did have any reason for such a belief, Hoxsey would be the man I would go to.

Yes, I saw the sign in the post-office warning the public away from Hoxsey. My people have been in this land for eleven generations. The love of America, with its honesty and decentness and fair hearing for all, has been bred into my blood and bones. It was with sick shame that I saw in this sign evidence of the depths to which the Republic has sunk. I strongly suggest that the U.S. Department of Health needs a thorough housecleaning and that the sooner a complete Congressional investigation is made of this agency, the better for the public it pretends to protect.

Dear Mr. Palmer:

The Bell Telephone Co. has an apparatus, developed for them by the Du Pont Nemours and Co., Inc., 1007 Market Street, Wilmington 98, Delaware, which runs an eight party telephone-line with power developed from the sun. It charges a battery and runs from it at night when the sun is down under.

They have a mineral smeared on a plaque on top of a pole, which the sun shines on and charges a battery.

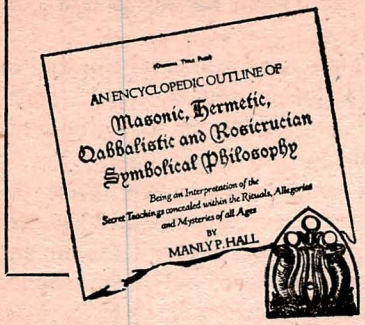

I read that the Du Pont Co. charged $10,000 to develop this for them. I have found the mineral which they use, but have found a mineral which will draw a more powerful current from the sun. It will draw this current from the sun night and day, and it draws right up through our globe.

I have been trying to get it analyzed, with no success so far. Went to Edmonton University and was told that they could not get at it for six months. Sent some to Montana but never heard from it any more. Also sent to Bell Telephone in U.S.A. and they said that they did not analyze for the public, but they sent it back and told me to contact the Du Pont outfit as they had developed this for the Telephone Co. and no doubt could help me with this.

Both currents follow the sun around, that is the one the Bell Telephone uses and the one I am trying to get analyzed.

I filled a small bottle with it and sent it to the Du Pont Co. and after about a month I heard from them, and they rather sluffed it

Nov. 25, 1950.—Extreme weather swept 22 states from the Atlantic coast to the Middle West, from Maine to Maryland. Damage to buildings, utility installations, water frontage, highways and railways was estimated at four hundred million dollars ($400,000,000.00) Metropolitan New York (we were there that day) reported 44 dead while the AP reported 278 dead across the country. On Staten Island, New York City, 3,000 were reported "refugees" from inundated houses. Trains were stalled west of Pittsburgh by nine foot snow drifts in Ohio. New York Central trains between Chicago and New York operated by way of Michigan. . . . Trains to Atlantic City were cancelled because of washouts. Wind at 94 miles an hour was reported at New York International Airport. Trees were uprooted everwhere, some falling on houses and crushing roof timbers.—Just 23 days after the fireball.

Fact nine; more H-Bomb tests, by several different nations, were made in April of this year than ever before. It has been reported that Russia detonated eight in something like one week. Britain also tested H-Bombs. Not to be outdone our country is even now continuing nuclear tests in Nevada. Now if nuclear tests affect the weather (as we firmly believe) we should be in for record breaking precipitation over parts of this country, and not only here but in other parts of the world.

Fact ten; the U.S. weather bureau, in spite of its inability to see any connection between nuclear explosions and the weather, reported 624 tornadoes (about double any previous record) for the period from January 1st, 1957 to June 1st 1957. Day after day the headlines scream OKLAHOMA TEXAS AREA IS FLOODED, HEAVY RAINS FALL. A PORTION OF KANSAS CITY WIPED OUT BY TORNADO. And so on.

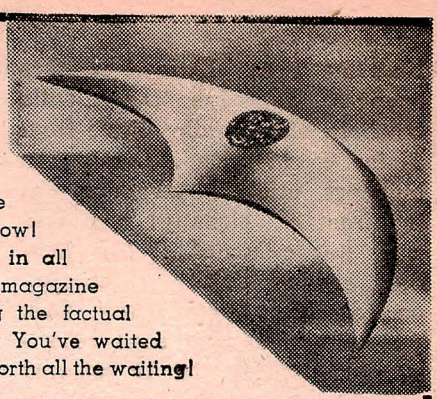

Fact eleven; with these facts to go on it is merely a matter of Straight Thinking to arrive at the conclusion, the concluding fact, "ATOM BOMB TESTING DOES AFFECT THE WEATHER." What shall we do about it? Register your complaint where it will (maybe) do some good,—with your congressman or congresswoman.

morality of present man, it is writing its own death sentence, and nothing can save it. To us, it is true that the Hitlers deserve their fates in their underground dugouts; the Mussolinis deserve their hanging by their heels; and the Caesers deserve their stabbings—but only because of their own actions.

Perhaps the shifting of the Earth's axis is a purposeful plan designed to do the justice that the then existing civilization deserves? If it is sheer accident, perhaps we can avoid it by our cleverness. If we don't deserve to be saved, our cleverness will do us little good. It is true, we think, that if we developed a high sense of moral values, a high scientific ability, we can master our own environment—even to the extent of surviving a tipping of the earth's axis.—Rap.

Sir:

Fact one: a nuclear test, an atomic explosion, sends up dust and the disintegration by-products of the blast, some of which are persistently radio - active thus producing ionization in the upper atmosphere for long periods of time.

Fact two: the sun's rays and high speed particles produces ionization in the upper atmosphere, especially during abnormal sunspot activity.

Fact three; meteors, striking the upper atmosphere, also produces ionization and provides dust particles.

Fact four; in each and every case where dust particles and/or excessive ionization appears in the upper atmosphere, regardless of how produced, precipitation is increased.

Fact five; in a study of precipitation going back as far as 1859 Dr. E. G. Bowen discovered the startling fact that the yearly meteor showers—the Bielids, the Geminids and the Ursids—were followed on January 2, 12 and 22nd by greatly increased precipitation over wide areas of the globe. From this the radio scientist inferred that it takes 30 or more days for the meteoric material to affect the weather by falling from the TOP of the atmosphere.

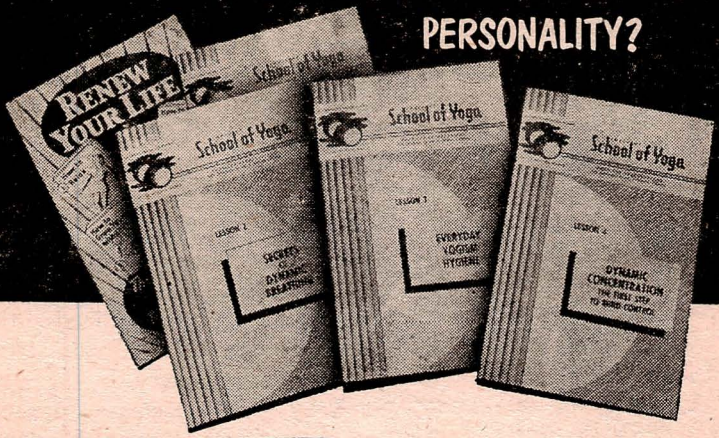

Fact six; "fire balls" which penetrate deeper into the atmosphere and bomb tests (which throw their deadly dust to a much less heighth) require much shorter time to affect the weather.

Fact seven; a news item dated Nov. 2, 1950—"The northeastern United States and Eastern Canada were brilliantly illuminated at 7:35 p.m. by what was described as a "greenish blue flash" which made the streets of Montreal as light as day . . ." (Obviously a large meteor, or a swarm of them Ed.)

Fact eight; a news item dated around the sun. When the certain point is reached where it can no longer press forward on the small orbit, the 135 degree shift is the mechanical result as explained in Barber's book.

So you see—the big monopolizers, even if they steal everything, will have something else to think about. The people who are low in spirit and in rags can be optimistic.

I was impelled to write to you and hope you will look at the following list of happenings which seem to me as forewarnings or INDICATIONS that "something is cooking" geologically speaking. We sincerely hope that if Dr. Barber is right, we still have some years to discover a way to prevent a general catastrophe. However, if there is no way, who are we, as individuals, to decry the fact of catastrophe happening to us, any more than to past and future races of Man? Nothing is permanent except change.

Certainly it will take expert scientists to solve this question, and even more expert to find a way to save our lives and our civilization. But if civilization is the decaying

The Spiral to the left is printed in an enlarged form in

THE HYPNOTISM HAND-BOOK

Have your subject gaze fixedly at this spiral and then READ TO HIM the hypnotizing techniques given WORD FOR WORD in Chapter Two of this "Handbook of Hypnosis for Therapy." As soon as he is hypnotized, READ TO HIM the particular WORD FOR WORD therapy which applies to his particular problem. Many such therapies are given, always in the exact WORD FOR WORD form, which is essential in any scientific or professional use of hypnosis.

There has never been a book like this. A few years ago an article in Western Family said about its principal author: "Along the west coast, the 'hypnotism man' whose students you'll most likely run into, is Charles Edward Cooke."

Cooke has taught doctors of medicine, dentists, psychiatrists, psychologists, ministers of the gospel, nurses, and many others, from San Diego, California, to Spokane, Washington. Cooke has mass hypnotized as many as 400 people at once by READING the WORD FOR WORD hypnotizing technique in this work.

Although written for the professional man, this book will have a wide appeal among laymen who seek precise methods rather than the vague directions that have hitherto been available. THE HYPNOTISM HAND-BOOK was written by Mr. Cooke in collaboration with science-fiction novelist and short story writer A. E. Van Vogt.

lict in their duty to the American People if they do not produce it!—Rap.

Dear Ray:

Your editorial on page 6 of the August issue of SEARCH is the most open minded and keenly analytical piece of writing I have read for a long time, and even though you do not know me personally, I hope you will list me as one of your friends.

Inflation dangers and monopolies are making slaves out of us, but I believe, generally speaking, that the thought habits of this decade are decaying, and that the large majority of Americans will not realize it until it is too late.

The financial criminals who are sapping our freedoms away might have overlooked the possibility, however, that the good Lord may have a way to counteract their greed.

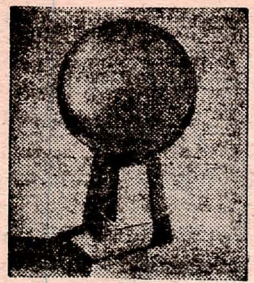

The axis of the earth is due to shift a full 135 degrees in perhaps a half hour's time or shorter. Mr. A. D. Barber has his ad in SEARCH, and I have been busy sending letters of inquiry out to various observatories for him. Surely the scientists who opened the International Geophysical Year will recognize the VALUE of the text of Mr. Barber's book. In my acquaintances and contacts, I will mention SEARCH magazine in order that it can grow in popularity regardless of the hypocrisy of certain newsstand dealers who may refuse to carry it on their shelves.

I have now received a letter from Mr. Barber that if high officials would only realize that the reason we have had so many earth quakes this year is because the gyroscope pressure of the earth, caused by its spinning, is now creating a force parallel to the continents and the quakes in the vicinity of the equator. Quakes cause, also, a rift in the floor of the Atlantic Ocean mentioned by FRANK EDWARDS in FATE magazine is getting wider probably due to the same force.

The reason there are so many quakes in the vicinity of the equator is because as the earth gets wobblier, the geographic equator is not in line with the geomagnetic equator, and the regular centrifugal force which causes the bulge, affects different areas in the equatorial region.

The GREAT sudden shift will come when the gyroscope pressure overcomes the strength of the North and South magnetic poles to hold the earth's axis in line. This great upheaval happens once every 9000 years because of a yearly lag of 35 seconds out of a circle on the "small orbit" which the earth goes through while it simultaneously makes the large orbit

NOTED ASTRONOMER CONFIRMS THIS BOOK

Most likely time is short so

Prepare and LIVE THROUGH OR DIE in the GREAT FLOOD

Coming Soon, Which Will be Caused by a SHIFT OF THE AXIS OF THE EARTH as a Result of the GYROSCOPIC ACTION of Our Solar System.

A similar shift, thousands of years ago, caused the ice ages, and the oceans to rush over the land at terrific speed, tearing mountains away and covering tropical forests (which are now our coal beds) with hundreds of feet of earth.

READ AND HEED the amazing book "The Coming Disaster" (60 pages) telling what the flood will be like, about when it will come, the warning to be had, and containing the astronomic gyroscopic, mathematical and geological proofs, written plainly. These proofs are indisputable and all who have seen mechanical demonstrations leave convinced that the book is correct.

This is not a religious prediction, but is purely SCIENTIFIC. However, the Bible predicts it. Isaiah 13:13. "Therefore I shall shake the heavens and the earth SHALL REMOVE OUT OF HER PLACE. 24:20 "The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard." See also Amos 8:9; 8:8 Haggai 2:6; Isaiah 10:26; 19:5 28:17; 44:3. 24:20.

"I freely take an oath that God strike me dead this very moment if there is any substantial error in this book — Adam D. Barber, author."

READ in this book (1) a letter from the Nobel (prize) Foundation referring it to their physics committee; (2) the report of an analytical laboratory confirming it; (3) many newspaper clippings, letter from the Civil Defense Corps of Ohio, letters from astronomers and others pertaining to it; (4) about 25 'run of the mill' fan letters from readers of it; (5) our efforts to date to save civilization through this flood and our latest plans for it, including pressure on congress to build balloons and boats; (6) our plan to prevent the flood by diverting the axis of the earth with atomic jets.

Eclipses are foretold with accuracy many years in advance. The prediction of the shift is along similar lines, only more complicated. On Dec. 21, 1956 the sun rose in the wrong place, indicating a forerunner slight shift.

Reports are that the South Pole is now 600 miles off its nest and that the polar expedition scientists are disagreeing as to the cause. Its chief, Dr. Paul Siple, has this book.

Dr. Frampwich-Gospatt, the noted English Scientist, writes he has come to the same conclusion as we have about the shift.

Dr. Malcolm H. Tallman, noted astronomer of 669 Manhattan Ave. Brooklyn 22, N. Y. writes of this book: "I find in it much valuable data as well as interesting reasoning which substantiate the conclusions."

Electropsychometrically Personalized

SELF HYPNO TAPES

are made for your personal use, on the basis of a special examinative procedure.

HAVE YOU purchased expensive instruction courses that claim to reveal the secret psychical methods of various ancient nations that have long since crumbled into dust—and from which you have not received the results that you had been led to expect?

HAVE YOU bought books on "positive thinking," and found these inspiring, but ineffective and hard to apply?

THEN look into the ultra-modern scientific processes of SELF HYPNO TAPES. These processes are based on bionucleonic and electropsychometric research, conducted mainly since 1950. Hundreds of successful SELF HYPNO TAPES have been made.

SELF HYPNO TAPES enable you to make effective use of auto-hypnosis, in the privacy of your own home. This is achieved thru the use of completely new types of personalized tape recordings.

ELIMINATE tensions, anxieties, feelings of inferiority, and fears. Develop a magnetic personality. Increase your learning and earning abilities. Activate your innate psychical powers!
